SLAYERS OF OFFICERS ELUDE POSSEMEN

INDIAN 'SAINT' ARRESTED FOR VIOLATION OF OLD ORDINANCE

Nation Prepares for Renewal of Non-Violent Campaign For Freedom

BOMBAY, Jan. 4.—(Monday)—Mahatma Gandhi was arrested early today for the second time within a year and a half and Nationalist India once more girded itself for "non-violent" war on Great Britain.

President Vallabhai Patel of the Indian Nationalist congress also was taken into custody. Both were arrested under a Bombay regulation of 1827 and the warrant stated that they were being removed to Yerawda jail at Poona for "good and sufficient reasons."

Compromise Fails

Viceroy Lord Willingdon's drastic move was made after eleventh-hour attempts of moderate Nationalist leaders to bring about a compromise had failed. Gandhi postponed a trip to the shrine at Ahmedabad in the hope that he could come to an agreement with the viceroy over the new ordinances against agitation and save the nation from a revival of last year's civil disobedience campaign.

Gandhi was arrested as he was sleeping peacefully on the stone floor of his tattered tent atop one of Bombay's tenements. He received the warrant from the head of the Bombay police with perfect serenity and smilingly handed it to his son David without comment, this being his day of silence.

Ultimatum Served

Forty minutes later the little loincland rebel was whisked through Bombay's darkened streets toward Poona, where he will be lodged in the same prison he left less than a year ago.

British authorities served an ultimatum on Gandhi at 3 o'clock this morning once more warning him that he and the Indian Nationalist congress would be held responsible for any revival of the "non-violent" conflict.

"We are prepared to deal with the movement with all the resources at our command," was the grim injunction of Viceroy Willingdon, who was believed to have lost patience with the mahatma's efforts to reopen the question of the emergency ordinances in Bengal and other disturbed provinces.

Special Ordinance

To cope with the critical situation that is bound to follow Gandhi's challenge, it was learned that a special ordinance of extraordinary stringency will be promulgated tomorrow declaring the Nationalist congress an illegal organization.

One of the most severe provisions of the ordinance will make it a grave offense for anybody to contribute funds to the congress. This is especially aimed at wealthy Bombay mill owners and merchants who heretofore have helped the congress liberally with money.

Never losing his equanimity, Gandhi sat at his spinning wheel in the darkening shadows of his tattered tent and said:

"Time alone will show whose position is justified. Meanwhile, I wish to assure the government that every endeavor will be made on the part of the congress to carry on the struggle without malice and in a strictly non-violent manner.

Reminder Unneeded

"It is hardly necessary to remind me that the congress and I, as its humble representative, are responsible for all the consequences of our actions."

Although apparently on the threshold of a long term of imprisonment or exile, Gandhi did not lose for a minute his amazing cheerfulness in his conversation with the Associated Press and he predicted a reign of terror would ensue.

He expects the government to repress his movement, this time with bullets, he said, not mere lathis staves) "but bullets can not kill a nation's soul or thirst for freedom," he added. "We shall emerge from the fiery crucible of suffering with hearts and minds purified and spirit exalted. Thus we shall be

American Consul Assaulted By Japanese Troops

U. S. OFFICIAL GIVEN BEATING BY JAP PATROL

Vigorous Protest Lodged After 'Unprovoked' Attack

U. S. FLAG DISPLAYED

Mukden Sentries Ignore Our Coat of Arms On Automobile

MUKDEN, Manchuria, Jan. 3. (AP)—American Consul Culver B. Chamberlain, stepping from an automobile displaying the American flag and coat of arms, was assaulted and painfully beaten by three Japanese soldiers today on one of the main streets of Mukden.

American Consul General Myrl S. Myers accompanied Mr. Chamberlain to the Japanese consulate where he lodged a vigorous verbal protest with Consul S. Morishima against what he described as an "entirely unprovoked assault."

Inquiry Promised

Consul Morishima promised a thorough investigation of the incident and it was launched immediately.

Mr. Chamberlain, formerly of Kansas City, Mo., and a member of the consular service for 10 years, arrived in Mukden yesterday en route to his new post at Harbin from a vacation trip to the United States.

He left the American consulate general about 6 o'clock this morning to catch a train for Harbin, he said, and his automobile was halted at the border of the Japanese railway town by three Japanese soldiers apparently forming a patrol.

Displays Passport

He alighted and displayed his diplomatic passport, attempting to explain his status in Chinese because one of the soldiers showed a knowledge of that language. One of the Japanese then became abusive and all three began beating him about

Scores Homeless After $1,000,000 Fire

DOVER, N. H., Jan. 3. (US)—A $1,000,000 fire early today destroyed the Morrell block in the center of the business section, drove hundreds into blizzard-swept streets in night garments, left scores homeless and injured 10 firemen in the city's worst fire in history.

Nine fire departments were called from three states to augment the Dover department, and keep the flames from sweeping the entire southern section of the city.

Six inches of snow on adjoining roof tops probably prevented greater damage.

A series of gasoline and fireworks, followed by bucking sidewalks, caused the city's main telegraph, telephone and electric wire poles to topple, severing nearly all means of communication and throwing the town into darkness.

Russians to Speed Up Five-Year Plan

MOSCOW, Jan. 3 (AP)—Rumors of an impending reorganization of the supreme economic council, controlling body of Soviet industry, into three separate branches to push forward the five-year plan were current here today.

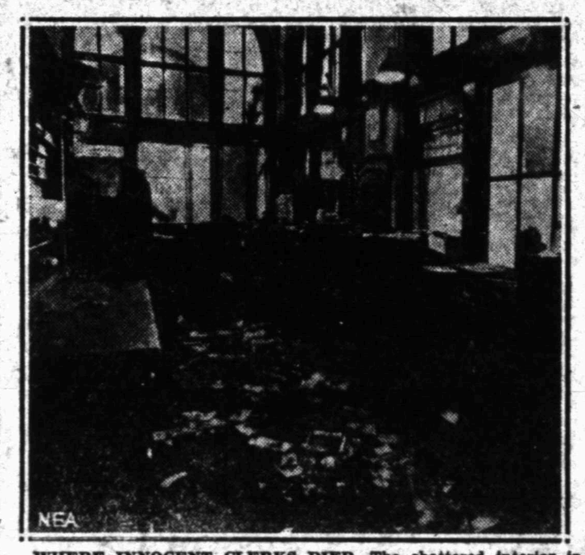

The council probably would be split up into at least three commissariats in the near future, it was understood.

The reorganization would be in line with the recently inaugurated policy of decentralizing branches of the Soviet economy which, by rapid growth in the carrying out of the five-year plan, have become unwieldy. (This is the fourth year of the five-year plan and Soviet Russia has been urged by its leaders to complete the plan this year.)

Troops Dispatched To Quell Argentine Revolt

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 3. (US)—Revolt flared in the province of Entrerios today. Tonight the government claimed that infantry, artillery and aircraft rushed to the affected zone had brought about unconditional surrender of the rebels.

When Three Died to Thwart Anti-Fascist Bomb Plot

WHERE INNOCENT CLERKS DIED—The shattered interior in the Easton, Pa., postoffice is shown above after a bomb, exploding prematurely, killed two clerks and seriously injured others. Discovery of more bombs in the boxes shown on the ledge, at the right of the picture, revealed a plot against the lives of seven prominent Italians to whom the packages were addressed.

LIFE SOUGHT—Tragic discovery of the seven bombs at Easton probably saved the life of Generoso Pope, above, prominent New York financier and publisher, to whom one of the deadly packages was addressed. The other six bombs were addressed to prominent Italians in New York as were five others intercepted in other cities of the country. Two of these later packages were received in Chicago, one each in Cleveland, Detroit and Youngstown, Ohio.

CABINET MAKER BOMB SUSPECT

Search Centers on Former Explosive Worker

NEW YORK, Jan. 3. (US)—Search for the conspirators in the New Year bomb plot centered today on a cabinet maker formerly employed in an explosive factory. Federal agents, police and private detectives declared the clue of the cabinet maker to be the most promising thus far developed in the nation-wide investigation.

The quest for the missing man spread from Easton, where three men were killed by bombs, to Phillipsburgh and Summit, N. J. Police combed the lower east side of this city for the cabinet maker.

Reports from Easton asserted the federal authorities operating there have obtained the name of a second man of anarchistic activities who was seen in the postoffice when the bombs were mailed. This suspect was said to have been identified from photographs.

Three men carried the bombs, it has been definitely determined. Two men held for questioning in Easton were released today.

LIGHT RAINS OVER SECTION

Temperature Rises Above 40 Degrees

Clouds overcast the whole of Northwest Texas and Southern Oklahoma Sunday and Sunday night as slow drizzling rain fell. Temperatures were high considering the season and other weather conditions. At no place in this immediate territory did the mercury fall below the 40-degree mark during the day.

A brisk but brief shower of rain fell in Wichita Falls shortly after 8 o'clock, but quickly settled back again to a sullen drizzle.

Temperateur at midnight was at 41, having dropped two points in three hours. The maximum for the day was 53, while the minimum temperature was 42, registered during Saturday night. A total of .08 of an inch of rain had fallen at 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

Dispatchers for the Fort Worth and Denver and the Missouri-Kansas-Texas railways told The Record News Sunday night that similar weather conditions existed over their divisions.

DEATH CLAIMS W. G. SHAPPELL

Oil Man Succumbs To Heart Stroke

W. Gerald Shappell, 32, identified with the oil industry here for many years, died of a sudden heart attack early Sunday night at his home, 1679 Speedway.

Although Mr. Shappell was said to have suffered heart trouble for some time, it was with a shock that his many friends and acquaintances here learned of his death.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete Sunday night, but close friends of the family said that services probably would be delayed several days to allow time for the arrival of relatives. The body was taken in charge by the Merkle Undertaking company.

Mr. Shappell was said to have been enjoying comparatively good health, his ailment giving him little trouble the past few days. He appeared to be in good spirits Sunday. After eating a hearty dinner Sunday evening, he stretched out across a bed at his home for a nap. He had slept a short time when

CONGRESS TO REOPEN TODAY AFTER RECESS

Problems of Vital Importance to Face Session

HEAVY CALENDAR

Both Parties Agreed to Expedite Bills of Reconstruction

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3. (AP)—Refreshed by a Christmas respite, congress reconvenes tomorrow to consider the most vital economic legislative problems ever to confront the country when not at war.

Both the Republican senate and the Democratic house have plans to expedite the most important rehabilitation proposals.

President Hoover's $500,000,000 reconstruction finance corporation has the legislative right of way in the senate.

The Democratic house will have before it the majority party's tariff measure.

Work on the big tax increase program will get started before the ways and means committee.

Bank Bills Pushed

Senator Watson, Republican leader, promised today the reconstruction finance corporation bill and the federal land bank measure increasing the capitalization of the system by $125,000,000 would be brought up for action rapidly as possible. He regards them "most important."

Until these measures, recommended to congress by the president as important steps towards economic rehabilitation, are reported by the senate banking committee, the senate may consider the Capper-Wheeler bill to authorize the farm board to turn over 40,000,000 bushels of wheat to feed the hungry.

The senate also faces again its row over the re-election of Senator

Three Brothers Who Killed Sheriff And Five Others Sought

Fourth Brother Under Arrest as Cunning Desperadoes Cover Up Tracks Despite Search by Hundreds; Three Suspects Eat at Farm Home

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Jan. 3. (US)—With a cunning born of the Ozark hills Harry Young and his two brothers eluded hundreds of armed officers and possemen today.

The brothers shot down the sheriff of Greene county and five other peace officers who attempted to arrest Harry Young late yesterday on an old warrant charging murder. The manhunt started almost before the smoke had cleared away but without success.

These were the outstanding developments tonight:

Oscar Young, a brother of Harry, Jennings and Paul, wanted for the massacre, taken into custody and held for investigation although not believed to be connected with the crime.

Three men, answering the description of the slayers, appeared at the home of Mrs. E. P. Page, on a farm near Springfield, and forced her to give them breakfast this morning.

Two men, believed to be Harry and one of his brothers, reported to have stolen an automobile and fled toward Joplin.

Every highway for a hundred miles around Springfield guarded.

Airplanes and bloodhounds used in the manhunt.

5,000 Cars Used

During the day the hunt was so intense that the fugitives might have mixed with the hunters and avoided detection. More than 5,000 automobiles, most of them loaded with heavily armed men, raced over the highways in the aimless search.

During the confusion, the authorities admit, it would have been possible for the Youngs to have taken a car and mixed in the mad drive. The Youngs are known personally to less than a score of those engaged in hunting them.

The report that the Youngs appeared at the Page farm was regarded as authentic. Mrs. Page said she had seen Harry Young before and was quite sure that he was one of the men who came to her isolated farmhouse this morning.

Eat Hurriedly

Mrs. Page refused a request for food but when the desperadoes demanded that she give them breakfast she complied. They ate hurriedly, then slipped away toward the main highway.

The report that Harry Young and one of his brothers had fled in a stolen automobile was less well established. That a Ford car had been stolen from the farm of Jesse Moore, three miles west of Springfield, was authenticated, but there was some doubt as to the thieves. The car was being traced toward Joplin.

An earlier report said that three men had dashed to an automobile from a vacant house in the suburbs of Springfield and had fled toward Joplin but investigation disclosed that this report grew out of the theft of the car from the Moore farm.

Tonight the authorities were planning to reorganize their forces to continue the manhunt at dawn. While every cross-road was being guarded the authorities admitted there was small chance of capturing the assassins in the darkness.

Throughout this afternoon an airplane soared over the Page farm and the neighborhood, hoping to sight the fugitives, and give warning to the hundreds of possemen. Bloodhounds were brought to the scene, too, but they failed to take the scent.

Fourth Brother Quizzed

Oscar Young, a brother of Harry, Jennings and Paul, was arrested in Springfield today. He was questioned for several hours by the authorities. Following the interrogation it was announced that Oscar evidently knows nothing of the crime charged to his three brothers but that he will be held for a few hours pending developments.

Prosecutor Directs Hunt

Daniel Nee, prosecutor of Greene county, spent the day directing deputy sheriffs and possemen, as well as Company F of the Missouri national guard. The prosecutor was not optimistic.

"These men know every foot of the hill country," he said. "I believe they will attempt to make their way through the hills into Kansas and then swing southward into Oklahoma and Texas."

Harry Young was wanted for the murder of a night marshall at Republic, Mo., two years ago. For two years he evaded arrest and for two

NURSE HANGS TWO CHILDREN AND HERSELF

Parents Find Bodies After 'Love Slayings' In Chicago Home

CHICAGO, Jan. 3. (UP)—John J. Heindel and his wife returned home early today to find one small son hanging from his nursery crib, the other's body dangling in a doorway, and their maid hung in a gruesome fashion from a nail in the wall of a basement closet.

Authorities decided the maid, Mary Roth, 23, killed the children "because she loved them," then hanged herself.

Gas Jets Open

The kitchen of the home was full of gas. Sheets were packed around all cracks. Jets on the kitchen range were open. It was thought likely Miss Roth first gassed the children, then hanged them to make double sure they were dead.

George Persall Heindel, 3 months old, whom Miss Roth practically had raised, was hanging from his crib. The other child, John Benjamin, 4, was hanging in the doorway between the nursery and a sleeping porch. Miss Roth had stood on a box, fastened a noose tightly around her neck, tied the rope to a pail, then kicked the box from under her.

Defendants in Allred's Oil Ouster Suit Prepare to File Answers Today

AUSTIN, Jan. 3. (AP)—Attorneys representing defendants in Atty. Gen. James V. Allred's ouster suit against 15 major oil companies and two petroleum associations were assembling here tonight preparatory to filing answers to the allegations and setting the case for trial.

C. L. Black of Austin, retained by some of the defendants, said it was likely some of the answers could be filed tomorrow and others Tuesday when the docket of the district court of Judge C. A. Wheeler will be called. A date for the trial will be set Tuesday.

Answers were expected to enter general demurrers to the Allred allegations of a nation-wide conspiracy to control and dominate the business of marketing gasoline and petroleum products and to destroy independent filling station operators. An attack also was expected to be made on the constitutionality of the anti-trust laws Allred claims have been violated.

Allred would expel all the defendants from business in Texas and collect $17,850,000 in penalties he claims are due the state by reason of the alleged violations.

Defendants in the suit are the Standard Oil company of New

HILLS SCOURED FOR SLAYERS

Hundreds Join Search For Young Brothers

years, according to the authorities, he has been engaged in rum running and stealing automobiles.

He is a crack pistol and rifle shot, as well as a machine gunner.

Section Aroused

Not in recent years has this section of the state been so aroused as it has been by the ruthless manner in which the killers mowed down the officers last night.

The dead were Marcell Hendrix, sheriff of Green county; Wiley Mashburn, deputy sheriff; Tony Oliver, chief of detectives; Charles Houser, special officer; Sidney Meadows and Ollie Crosswhite, detectives. The three wounded officers are Frank Pike, Virgil Johnson and Owen Brown, Springfield policemen. They were not seriously injured.

All last night, and continuing throughout Sunday, the Springfield company of Missouri guardsmen, armed with machine guns and tear gas bombs, every available policeman, sheriff's deputies and citizens walked in formation over the rough country in an effort to find the killers.

Every known means of search was pressed into service. Airplanes flew over the countryside. Searchers in these planes were armed with tear gas bombs and other ammunition, ready for use at the slightest sign of the hunted desperados.

Sisters Arrested

The hunt that resulted in the fatal battle had its inception in the arrest of Loretta Conlon and Vinita Young, sisters of the Young brothers.

The Young women—they are in their early twenties—were in a stolen car when they were picked up here by Springfield police. The girls said the car belonged to Harry Young.

"Harry Young?" queried Chief Oliver. "You mean the killer—the man who killed Mark S. Noe, the night marshal over in Republic, Mo., June 2, 1929?"

"He didn't kill anybody," the women answered. "But you have been looking for him."

Women Ordered Held

Oliver ordered the women held incommunicado. He sent police out to watch the home of the father-in-law of Jennings Young here. They saw Mrs. J. D. Young, mother of the hunted brothers. Oliver ordered her arrested and a guard posted at the house. From Mrs. Young the detective chief learned definitely where her sons were in hiding.

Known at Frederick

FREDERICK, Okla., Jan. 3. (UP)—The three Young brothers, Harry, Paul and Jennings, sought for the murder of six Springfield, Mo., peace officers, all have criminal records, it was recalled here tonight.

The Youngs lived here until 10 years ago, when they moved to Jefferson City.

The three were at the J. D. Young home, six and one-half miles Southwest of Springfield. Sheriff Hendrix was summoned. He brought Deputy Mashburn with him.

About 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon Chief Oliver and Sheriff Hendrix started for the Young home in two cars.

Arrive at Dusk

It was getting dark when the officers reached the scene. They saw the house, set on a clearing on top of a hill, peering down upon them. They got out of their cars. Sheriff Hendrix and Chief Oliver conferred. They knew Harry Young was a desperate fugitive.

Sheriff Hendrix, Deputy Mashburn and Johnson advanced to the rear door of the house, following a conference with Chief Oliver. Oliver, Crosswhite and Houser stood about 10 feet from the front door of the two-story frame farm house. Meadows and Brown guarded a front window and stood so as to be able to get a view of the side of the house. Pike was assigned to an outpost.

The stage was set for a battle and that it became just as Sheriff Hendrix stepped to push open the rear door. Simultaneously there was a rat-a-tat of machine gun fire that sprayed death and injury.

Officers Mowed Down

Sheriff Hendrix was shot through the forehead. Mashburn was mowed down with several shots that hit him in the face. Death found the same mark in front of the house. Oliver, Crosswhite and Houser went down without knowing what hit them. All three were struck in the forehead by the rapid machine gun fire.

Not one of the surviving officers saw any of the three brothers during the hour or so that the battle raged, and at no time did they have an opportunity to get a clear shot at any of them, which accounts for the uneven score for the duel with the desperadoes.

Pike had his orders to call for reinforcements in the event things got too hot. It was time for him to act. He called out the names of his fellow men. Johnson and Brown answered. He finally got them to safety, put them in one of the police cars and started on a wild ride to the nearest telephone. By this time darkness had fallen.

Reinforcements Come

By flashlight and searchlight reinforcements found their way to the Young farm. Militiamen, armed with bombs and machine guns, soon appeared on the scene. It was decided to storm the house.

Men plunged into the home only to find it deserted. A machine gun was found in one room. Cigaret stubs littered the floor. An empty whisky flask was on the table. The house was thoroughly searched. Presently an officer found a door leading to an underground passageway. It was found to be a 100-foot tunnel that extended from the cellar of the Young home to a point in the orchard.

The discovery that the killers had escaped through the tunnel caused the men to begin a search for the victims of the massacre. In the darkness they stepped carefully over the rocky ground. In a brush pile near the front entrance of the house the searchers stumbled over the body of Chief Oliver. Now they got down on their hands and knees and crawled.

Presently they touched the form of Crosswhite. His pulse beat no more. He was cold—dead. Not five feet from Crosswhite they found the body of Houser. The cold bloodedness of the massacre now made itself felt upon the men searching for the missing officers.

Grimly they continued their task. Around the corner of the house, hanging across a wire fence, was the mortally wounded Mashburn, shot in the head so many times that he died in Springfield Baptist hospital two hours later.

Closer to the porch the men found the fifth victim. He was Detective Meadows, also shot through the head.

Sheriff Hendrix still was missing. Flashlights cast their rays over the ground. A pool of blood was found at the entrance to the kitchen door. Militiamen searched the kitchen. There they found the body of the sheriff, apparently hidden by the killers after the shooting.

The crowd now had increased to almost 1,000 men.

"Six dead, three wounded," they were told. "All of them officers of the law."

Mob Starts Fire

There was talk of violence if the Young brothers were captured alive. Then someone suggested that the Young home be destroyed. The mob pulled mattresses from beds and applied the match. Guardsmen, however, rushed in and extinguished the flames before much damage was done.

All night a heavy guard was maintained at the Young farm while it was estimated 10,000 others searched the countryside for the murderers. Throughout today the search continued and tonight, with reward offers mounting over the $1,000 mark there was a determined populace in Greene county that demanded the immediate capture of the brothers.

Possemen riddled outhouses and chicken coops on a score of farms as they answered misleading calls that the hunted men were hiding in these buildings. The possemen waited for no answer, but shot in volleys, fearing to give quarter.

By telephone, radio and telegraph every sheriff in the state had received descriptions of the desperados. Oklahoma authorities were advised of the possibility that the brothers may attempt to hide out with relatives in that state.

HARRY YOUNG JAILED IN TEXAS

FORT WORTH, Jan. 3. (AP)—Harry Young, 27, for whom hundreds of possemen today were scouring the Ozark region of Missouri, submitted without resistance when he was arrested near Fort Worth eight months ago for an automobile theft in which he never was brought to trial.

A few days after he was admitted to bail in the automobile theft case by county authorities, it was learned here that he was wanted in Greene county, Missouri, for the slaying of Marshal Frank Noe. Young had told officers his name was Claude Walker.

Sheriff Marcell Hendrix, leader of the six officers who were slain in an effort to arrest Young and several companions, was the sender of a telegram to Fort Worth police, informing them that the man they had held for almost a week was the suspect for whom a nation-wide search was being conducted.

Arrested at a small store, 17 miles west of Fort Worth on the Bankhead highway, by Detectives Swinney and Weatherford, Young was returned to Fort Worth with an automobile that E. C. Willard, Fort Worth, had reported stolen from a downtown corner.

Bandit Takes Auto Tour of City With Victims as His Chauffeurs

A lone bandit, with a penchant for motor rides, forced two men and a woman to drive him about town in their automobile late Saturday night after he had relieved them of their cash at the point of a gun.

Ralph Morris, employe of the city water department; C. L. Snow, 1510 Fourteenth street, and a woman companion had driven up to the woman's home in the 1300 block on Third street, and were talking when the bandit appeared.

The hijacker, according to their account to police, walked up unnoticed to the car, and pulled the door open. Enforcing his commands with a gun, he told them to start driving, after he had entered the back seat of the car. All three victims were in the front seat with Morris at the wheel.

Morris started driving. The hijacker briefly gave directions as to the route. Once, it was said, the bandit commanded a left turn and Morris made the mistake of turning the car to the right.

The bandit turned the gun in his hand and struck at the driver with the butt of the pistol. The blow, intended for Morris' head, struck the driver's shoulder as he dodged the weapon.

After being forced to drive continuously for more than half an hour, the victims were taken to a point north of the Wichita river where they were made to relinquish their cash. They said the bandit made no effort to take their watches. He obtained about $3.

Their captor, after ordering them to drive to a point on Fifth street near the Memorial auditorium, stepped from the car with the command that they keep driving.

Four Texans Fight Extradition to Arkansas

HOUSTON, Jan. 3. (UP)—A quartet of Texans held in Houston and Dallas in connection with the sensational slaying of Preston R. Austin, Victoria, Texas, cattle baron, at Hot Springs, Ark., today planned to fight extradition.

Applications for writs of habeas corpus were filed for some of the four while officers from Hot Springs were en route today to return them to Arkansas.

Those held are W. F. Martin of Humble, W. S. Scrivenor, also charged with murdering "Keggy" Jones, son-in-law of Martin, and Jones' wife; and A. M. Jenkins.

Walter G. Shanks, who has a penitentiary record in Texas, is held in Dallas. Martin also is seeking a writ of habeas corpus while Jenkins has intimated he will fight extradition.

Austin, whose death was a shock to thousands of Texans, was strangled to death in his hotel room in Hot Springs Sept. 26, 1929. Robbery was believed to have been the motive.

Gerald Shappell Claimed by Death

Mrs. Shappell, a bride of less than a year, went to rouse him. Her call unanswered, Mrs. Shappell shook her husband's shoulder but received no response.

Alarmed, Mrs. Shappell called Dr. F. R. Collard, who, upon arrival at the home, pronounced the oil man dead.

Mr. Shappell had been a resident of Wichita Falls for nearly 20 years, coming here when his father, T. O. Shappell, moved his family in 1912 from Louisiana.

As a boy Mr. Shappell attended grade and high school here. With maturity he joined his father and brother, Earle Shappell, in the oil business of T. O. Shappell & Sons.

Mr. Shappell had been active in the firm, which is among the best known independent oil concerns of North Texas. Now known as the Shappell Oil company, the business was among the first to establish here after the discovery of oil in this section and before the days of the "boom." The elder Mr. Shappell is a recognized leader of the industry in the Wichita area.

Surviving are the widow, to whom Mr. Shappell was married last March; the parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. O. Shappell; a brother, Earle Shappell, all of Wichita Falls, and a sister, Mrs. Lurline Frischkorn of Cleveland, Ohio.

Young American Woman Classified 'Without Country'

NEW YORK, Jan. 3. (US)—Despite the fact that the American embassy in Paris told her there would be no difficulty about her return, Mrs. Catherine Whelan Ellis, 24, is now a "woman without a country." Or a passport!

She has no nationality. It says so on her immigrant identification card, issued in Paris last Nov. 20. "Nationality — without!" Says the card.

Mrs. Ellis was born in this country Aug. 3, 1907, the daughter of the late Frederick A. Whelan, vice president of the United Cigar Stores. She has had two previous passports, issued respectively under her maiden name in 1923 and in 1926 as Mrs. Ellis, wife of Dr. Louis Gordon-Ellis, a Frenchman of English ancestory, whom she married abroad and against whom she began divorce proceedings about a year ago. That case comes up for hearing in Paris Feb. 1, when she is due to appear in court.

She also has two young sons, 3 and 5 years old, left in Paris with a nurse when she came here on the Rochambeau Dec. 3, but she can not get her passport to return to Paris, though she applied for it a week after her arrival. Mrs. Ellis today said:

"Apparently I have to be re-naturalized, though why I can not see. The embassy said definitely there would be no trouble in returning to France. I have instructed my lawyers to take whatever steps are necessary."

more worthy of our rightful heritage of liberty."

"How long do you expect the struggle to last?" the correspondent asked.

"Oh, it may be months, it may be years, it may be decades—but what is mere measure of time to a people with 10,000 years behind them. In any event we are prepared to sacrifice all. We shall forget families and friends, we shall sacrifice our property, we shall bear the utmost privations and greatest oppression, including lathi and machine gun.

"But we shall bear no hatred toward the British. My goal is friendship with all the world. Having flung aside the sword, there is nothing except the cup of love which I offer to those who oppose me. It's by offering that cup that I expect to draw them close to me. I can not think of permanent enmity between man and man."

Women Weep

While Gandhi was speaking these words, Mrs. Gandhi and Miss Madeline Slade sat on either side of him with their heads bowed and their faces stained with tears. Outside waited a squad of detectives awaiting orders to arrest him. In front of him lay a copy of the Sermon on the Mount, his favorite Christian work.

Anticipating wholesale suppression of their activities and their arrests, Nationalist officials have arranged for a perpetual succession of dictators in national and provincial congress organizations from Gandhi down. As fast as one goes to jail another will succeed him.

MARTIAL LAW TEST SCHEDULED TODAY

HOUSTON, Jan. 3. (AP)—The trial suit to test the validity of the martial law regulation of the vast East Texas oil field is scheduled to begin here tomorrow before a three-judge federal court.

The decision will determine future control of the field, and likewise will set legal precedent as to the extent of a governor's discretionary power in declaring and enforcing martial law in any area.

The plaintiffs are E. Constantin and J. D. Wrather, and the defendants are Gov. Ross S. Sterling, all members of the state railroad commission; Atty. Gen. James Allred; Brig. Gen. Jacob F. Wolters, commander of the field under martial law; V. McDavid, county attorney of Rusk county, and Adj. Gen. W. W. Sterling.

The plaintiffs contend Gov. Sterling's declaration of martial law in the field on Aug. 16 of last year was an act exceeding his authority, was violative of due process clauses of the federal constitution, was designed to boost the price of crude oil and was "capricious, unfair and unjust." They likewise allege he acted in "accordance with a conspiracy" allegedly entered into by undesignated persons over the country, to restrict production in excess of market demand.

An incident in the trial will be a citation for contempt issued by Randolph Bryant, federal judge in the eastern district of Texas, against General Wolters.

Rail Workers Demand Proof of Wage Cut Need

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3. (US)—Railroad workers will not accept a voluntary pay cut unless railway executives prove it is necessary to preserve the roads, prominent union leaders said tonight.

Though convinced a wage slash is not justified, they will go into their conference with the executives here on Jan. 14 with an open mind.

If they are shown why a cut is necessary now they will accept it upon condition that present wage scales be restored next year or as soon as the emergency is past.

the head and face with their fists.

Mr. Chamberlain retreated within his car and the soldiers followed, still striking him. He managed to get back to the consulate where he was found to be suffering from abrasions of the forehead and a badly bruised nose and face. He later continued his journey to Harbin.

WASHINGTON AWAITS REPORTS ON ATTACK

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3. (AP)—State department officials said tonight they had no reports of an attack on Culver Bryant Chamberlain of Kansas City, Mo., recently assigned as consul at Harbin.

Chamberlain, who was born in Princeton, Ind., is one of the outstanding experts of the foreign service in the Chinese language. When he was in Washington recently on leave of absence from his post as consul at Canton, he was ordered to Harbin to assist Consul General George Hanson during the Manchurian crisis.

Department officials said they presumed his presence in Mukden was because of a stopover en route to Harbin.

U. S. ARMY OBSERVER RELEASED BY JAPS

TIENTSIN, China, Jan. 3. (UP)—Lieut. Harry Aldrich, American military observer in the Manchurian zone, arrived at Tientsin today after being "captured" and released with all courtesy by Japanese troops at Kowpangtze.

The lieutenant said he left Chinchow Thursday as a passenger on a Chinese locomotive, under instructions to observe any military movements and to report on railway conditions.

He found the track clear of troops and proceeded to Kowpangtze, reaching there at midnight. At that point, however, his locomotive almost collided with a Japanese troop train, which was proceeding slowly without lights.

The Japanese conducted him to General Tamon's headquarters, where explanations of his mission resulted in his receiving every possible courtesy from the Japanese commanders.

On orders from the general, Japanese troops set to work refilling the locomotive's water tanks and next morning he was permitted to continue his trip.

Aldrich reached Tientsin on a special train which was evacuating all observers from the Chinchow region.

JAPANESE MOVE TO STRENGTHEN HOLD

PEIPING, Jan. 3. (US)—Strongly implanted in Chinchow, Japanese militarists today directed three moves indicating they plan to make their hold on South Manchuria as unbreakable as that on north Manchuria.

A Japanese detachment marched into Hulutao, Chinese port development 10 miles south of Chinchow on the Gulf of Liaotung, which Japan has regarded as a future rival to Dairen, its port on the Liaotung peninsula.

Simultaneously a detachment of Japanese gendarmes left Shanhaikwan, behind the great wall of China, on a northward movement to Mukden, thus placing the Peiping-Mukden railroad from Mukden to the Great Wall under Japanese control. Railroad employes were ordered to remove their Chinese insignia.

Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang's spokesman tonight said the Japanese advance on Chinchow had cut off from retreat about 10,000 of the marshal's troops. He said they faced the alternatives of becoming bandits or throwing away their uniforms to join the irregulars in that region.

Completion of Highway Adds to System

Special to The Record News.

QUANAH, Texas, Jan. 3.—The new paved highway, No. 51, south from Quanah to Pease river bridge, being the border line between Hardeman and Foard counties, will be formally opened to traffic on Jan. 6, according to announcement of County Judge J. E. Magee.

The earth was removed Tuesday from the last remaining section the stretch of the highway from the Medicine Mound road four miles north of the river, to the river.

A crew of 30 workmen are still engaged in erecting shoulders, placing asphalt in the joints and putting up fencing on the fills.

The opening of this highway will give to Hardeman county, through Quanah, a paved highway east and west, and north and south clear across the county. No. 51 north connects at the recently completed free bridge across Red river with Oklahoma state highway No. 7, and is a part of federal highway No. 2, Carlsbad cavern highway, across the United States.

It is expected the next year or two will see many miles of lateral roads made into all-weather roads through use of native gravel and stone.

STEPSON HELD FOR TRIPLE MURDER

RIPLEY, Tenn., Jan. 3. (US)—A stepson, who "couldn't live in the same house with the second wife of his father," is in jail here today, charged with the torch murder of his stepmother and her two children by a former marriage.

Enmity is reported to have been the cause for the brutal attack on Mrs. Mary Moore, 45, and her two children, Frances Grigsby, 15, and Roy Grigsby, 12, at their home a few miles from here early today. The bodies were taken from their flaming home at 4 o'clock in the morning by a neighbor. Marks of violence were found on all three bodies.

Albert Moore, 35, a stepson of Mrs. Moore, and a companion, Harrison Yon, 23, were arrested. Both deny the murder charge and claim that they were away from home the night before.

Moore and his stepmother have been at odds for some time. Early this week they quarreled when she objected to Moore taking his father, J. I. Moore, from his home to the son's because the former was sick.

Congress Back At Work Today

Moses of New Hampshire as president pro tempore, with the northwestern independents still insistent on unseating him.

The Democratic joint senate-house policy committee meets tomorrow morning to approve a party tariff bill, which is slated for action in the house before the end of the week. The Democrats expect to send a balanced revenue increasing bill to the senate by Feb. 1.

Scores of Bills

Virtually every congressional committee will get to work on the scores of pending proposals during the week. The house appropriations committee will report favorably tomorrow the first urgent deficiency bill to take care of immediate needs of various departments to tide them over until the new fiscal year beginning June 30.

Hearings will begin before senate committees on prohibition and the controversial naval program. The inquiry into foreign bond flotations in this country will be resumed.

The house judiciary committee plans to decide during the week whether hearings will be held on the prohibition question. The anti-prohibitionists are soliciting names of members on a petition to force a vote, probably in March, on the wet and dry question.

One Vote on Prohibition

Speaker Garner and Representative Rainey, majority leader, have served notice on the house anti-prohibitionists that only one vote can be had on the question this session and then only after the economic measures have been disposed of.

The house banking committee expects to submit the $500,000,000 reconstruction finance corporation for action within a fortnight. Hearings now will be resumed.

Secretary Mellon and Undersecretary Mills of the treasury are expected by Chairman Collier to present the administration's tax plan to the ways and means committee at the opening hearings Thursday.

The problem of meeting the prospective $2,000,000,000 or more treasury deficit is considered the most important hurdle the Democratic house faces. Meantime, the house appropriations committee expects to carve the big supply bills to a minimum. The issue over slashing salaries of government employes is to come before both the appropriations and the expenditures committees.

Navy Airing

Wednesday, the controversy over building up the navy will be considered by the senate naval committee. Secretary Adams is slated as the first witness. Indications are the dispute between the navy league and President Hoover over the administration's naval policies will be aired.

Also, Chairman Vinson plans to call the house naval committee to consider the navy's $616,250,000 new building program, that he announced he would sponsor.

Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania is expected to testify before the LaFollette committee on numerous proposals to give direct federal aid to the unemployed when hearings are resumed tomorrow.

WICHITA FALLS SOCIETY AND CHURCH NEWS

Popular Bride-Elect Given Series Of Sunday Parties

Sunday was a day of pretty courtesies extended to Miss Jonnie Morgan, a charming bride-elect whose marriage to Albert George McGowan of Wai Ni Loka estates, Fiji Islands, will take place in the Episcopal chapel in Suva directly after her arrival there. A Hawaiian breakfast, recalling the meeting of Miss Morgan and Mr. McCowan in Honolulu, was a pretty event at the home of Dr. Maude Lindsey at 9 o'clock when Miss Ethel Farabee was joint hostess with Dr. Lindsey.

The brilliant flowers of Honolulu were used as floral decorations and the bride-elect's table had as a center, a miniature Waikiki beach scene. Little beach parasols were given as favors.

The guest list included with the honoree, her three sisters, Misses Margaret, Ethel and Beatrice Morgan, Misses Louise Kelly, Dickson, Annie Laurie Smith, Ruth Stayton, Juanita Kinsey, Margaret Beck, Ellen Parker, Mesdames Jessie Souther, John T. Butts, John W. Kinsey, John Marrs, Abe Marcus and the two hostesses, Dr. Lindsey and Miss Farabee.

Dinner Party

Mrs. P. P. Langford was hostess at a charming informal dinner at 1 o'clock when amber crystal and pink roses on the handsome lace cloth made a beautiful setting.

Seated with Miss Morgan were the following guests: Her father, C. E. Morgan, Misses Ethel, Beatrice and Margaret Morgan, Mesdames T. R. Boone, Preston Lea, T. A. Hicks, Harry Davis, Miss Dorothea Knight and Mrs. Langford.

Buffet Supper

Mrs. Q. B. Lee was hostess at a beautiful buffet supper when a fruit center and gleaming red candles on the handsome Italian cut work cloth were used for the attractive table.

The guest list included the handsome honoree and her sisters, Misses Margaret, Ethel and Beatrice Morgan, Misses Lela Tomlinson, Bertha Wray, Dorothea Knight, Margaret Lewis and Ethel Farabee; Mesdames P. P. Langford, P. L. Lea, W. L. Hawkins, W. C. Chapman, Julian McFall, Hubert Martin, T. A. Hicks, Harry Davis, T. R. Boone, Wayne Holmes, C. H. Lewis and the hostess, Mrs. Lee.

A final courtesy for the day was an informal tea given by Miss Elizabeth Brown at Kemp Kort, when about 20 of Miss Morgan's close friends were invited to call and bid her goodbye. She will leave Monday evening and will be met near the coast of the islands by Mr. McCowan in the new launch he has named for her.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

Gray days sometimes have a misnomer—gloomy days. They are rarely ever thought of as beautiful days. But Sunday, though gray in the sheer mist, has a beauty quite as definite in its own way as that day of sunny skies or night of stars and moon.

The drive through the Country Club estates and around Weeks park to the lake is one worth taking. At times I have thought of a tree in summer as a thing of supreme beauty; but an avenue of bare trees, standing black on each side of a wet and shining pavement and stretching their lacey branches against a misty sky are somewhat kin to exquisite prints, though they are too beautiful to be reproduced.

Here, on Jan. 3, the mesquite trees are still green. They do not touch that chord that answers to beauty like the pen-and-ink lacework of limbs that hold the eyes. The mesquite trees seem draggled—like women of questionable virtue who still cling to their finery when time and drab days are marking them.

There is so little color; nature seems quite content with subdued tones. Only spots of vivid green in the rusty brown acres; the faded green of the mesquite leaves; a patch of glorious russet wild grass; all else is somber gray relieved with black—a lovely, restful combination for a room.

There's a house in a nest of trees where one can fancy the branches beckoning a sleeper on a spring morning; families of birds should be near to the people who live there. Then next to it, a brave red brick two-story house—quite a handsome place—whose more than 20 windows face the road unblinkingly. We think it has never known fires on its hearth; love in its rooms—sorrow at its doors. It has never been a home, though it must have been built for one. It is new with none of the rawness of a new place.

Near the end of Weeks park, little white stones have been laid in a semi-fence, and a new playground made ready for the people. But at first glance, it bears a strange semblance to a neat little graveyard. One catches a breath of relief to know that the neat little tombstones are only virgin Dutch ovens and after a few steak-fires or weinie roasts, will take on the normal smoky tints of those beneath the trees on the other side of the park.

"A winding road," a poster reads. We have an affection for winding drives and little side roads that lead off into secluded districts. We tire of beaten paths; long, straight roads so quickly lose their interest and even as we grow older, when we see a shining bit of pavement leading to the top of a steep hill and dropping into nothingness, we have a vicarious thrill.

The many buildings at the hospital for mental cases, are wrapped in mist. None are more clearly outlined than the poor clouded minds of the inmates. These patients are to us more tragic than many deaths.

And then at the lake, the sky and water meet in fog—all one silvery, intriguing mystery. The long piers stretching out into the water are wet and black until in the distance they fade into the mist. Sunday is a beautiful rainy day.

Our Children

Crow and Peacock

There are two boys in a family that hold college honors in high esteem. The family tradition is one of culture, success, honorable place. One boy is going ahead in the accepted manner. He wins friends everywhere. He stands at the head of his classes, he leads on the playground, he is successful wherever he goes. The family adore him, praise him and magnify him. He is adding glory to their name and "Praise ye him," is their daily anthem.

The second boy is nothing like that. He dislikes books and all their ways. He does not make friends easily. He cannot hit a ball once out of ten times and he doesn't care. His eyes are poor and he frowns a lot in his effort to see things clearer. When he is scolded about his shortcomings he has nothing to say. He is silent and his silence seems to deepen whenever he is brought into the family council. His parents are doing all they know how to make this "crow" into a "peacock." It can't be done. What is more, it is dangerous to try doing it. You kill the "crow" and you get no "peacock."

Education can develop and train what gifts the child has. It cannot add a single quality. It cannot make a single gift. If your child dislikes books you cannot make him into a scholar. If he loves books you cannot make him a happy laborer. If your daughter has no voice you cannot make an opera singer of her. If she wants to be a nurse you might better agree, than try to force her to become a teacher. It is an old story, so old you would think that everybody in the world knew it by heart. Maybe they do. Maybe it is the older habit of thinking. "For you, but not for me." "The neighbor's child may be something else but my child is just what I wish him to be." That's the wrong answer and it won't work.

Fathers and mothers have ambitions for their children and rightly but unless they gauge their ambition by the child's powers they are going to come to grief and bring the child down with them. Money won't buy intelligence, or grace, or beauty. It can help provide a background for them if they already exist. A parent's love for poetry, music, drama will not give a favorite child a talent for any of them. It will stimulate a talent that is already there, but it cannot create even the ghost of one.

What's the matter with being a "crow" anyway? If he wasn't a useful bird he would not have been about. There are many happy useful crows going about their own business without regard to the peacocks. The shame of their situation exists only in the minds of those who see it. The crow can't for the life of him see it or understand it. All he knows is that he is being pushed out of his nest and his friendly meadow to no good end that he can see.

The statisticians say that six per cent of the people are gifted. I doubt it. I'd put the figure at far less. Six per cent think they are gifted and the other 94 know they are not. All you have to do to agree with me is to read the books that are written, hear the songs that are sung, look at the pictures that are being painted and the sculpture that is being turned out. You will know then the rarity of the true peacock. Wouldn't it be awful if the whole community were leaders?

Three wild boars ordered by a California motion picture concern were captured by Judge R. L. Bevil of Hardin county, Texas.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

Stories of Old Songs Furnish D. A. R. Program

Holiday decorations marked the pretty tables when members of the Major Francis Grice chapter, D. A. R., met Saturday at the Woman's Forum clubhouse in their regular monthly session. Tall red tapers burning in crystal holders gave the final cheerful touch.

With Mrs. E. C. deMontel, regent, presiding, a brief business meeting was conducted during the luncheon.

Community Party Is Planned at Clarendon

Special to The Record News.

CLARENDON, Texas, Jan. 3.—A community party, something new in Clarendon, has been sponsored and projected by the Clarendon Chamber of Commerce and will be held Thursday evening, Jan. 14, according to plans being laid by a committee headed by Tom F. Connally.

A feature of this event is that there will be no out-of-town speakers, no out-of-town musicians, a totally new toastmaster, and a program of, for, and by home people.

Another feature of the occasion will be the awarding of the annual cup for the best decorated show window in Clarendon during the holiday season. The unknown judges have already made their decision and it is a sealed envelope awaiting the appointed time of award on the evening of the community party.

More local musicians will appear on this evening's program than has yet appeared on a chamber of commerce event in Clarendon. The junior band will make its first public appearance in 1932 and its second in history at the time.

Cold Insurance

He carries it with him, ready for just such times. That little box of Bayer Aspirin. If he catches cold, what of it? Bayer Aspirin will stop it. If his throat feels sore, he will end the soreness with one good gargle made from these tablets.

Dangerous complications can follow the neglect of "a common cold!" Every case of tonsilitis began with "just a sore throat!" It's a wise plan to take aspirin after any undue exposure to bad weather, or whenever there is any chance that you've caught cold. If it's genuine aspirin it can't possibly hurt you; and how it does banish the aches and pains caused by colds, neuralgia, neuritis, lumbago, and even rheumatism.

Bayer Aspirin will insure your comfort through the worst cold season. The more susceptible you are to colds, the more you need it. Does not depress the heart.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE SIMPSON

WASHINGTON.—When it comes to devising political New Year cards for the other side, Henry T. Rainey, Democratic leader in the house, discloses a remarkable technique.

Henry T. Rainey

He got out something of that sort right after Christmas, using the Democratic national committee broadcasting machinery. And if the Republicans had any doubts as to just what kind of a New Year they were going to have wished upon them by their victorious opponents in the house, they must have vanished after reading the Rainey greeting

There would be, so far as he could help it, Rainey said, no Democratic political sniping during consideration of what he called "the reconstruction bills."

Only a Truce

Once those measure are through the house, however, he put the Republicans on notice that they were to be kept continuously on the defensive.

"I expect to charge up the necessity for the unparalleled taxing burdens made necessary at this session to the policies in force since the expiration of the Wilson administration," Rainey said.

Now, there you are. As neatly put a plan of campaign as you could wish. Here is a truce promised so far as concerns getting through, with "ameliorating modifications" as Rainey put it, the legislative program offered by President Hoover to get the wheels of prosperity off dead center.

But beyond that, Rainey deems it his job to see that the country is convinced before the presidential elections that all this reconstruction business was made necessary by Republican blundering.

And viewed from a New Year vantage point, it looked a good deal as though that was going to be the general trend of the 1932 campaigning.

Incidentally, Rainey was so much pleased with his original pose in the house as a presidential spokesman that he got an ironic sort of satisfaction out of doing it again.

For the President

He referred to the measure put through before Christmas ratifying the Hoover one-year moratorium on war debts as the "debt postponement bill."

"In calling it this I am observing the wishes of the president as expressed to me by the president," he added.

What all this party sparring is about, of course, is taxes. Raising taxes is always politically dangerous, yet they have to be raised.

From now until election it will be the business of party orators to explain that it was the other party, not theirs, which made tax boosts necessary.

Citizens of Quanah Respond to Tax Plea

Special to The Record News.

QUANAH, Texas, Jan. 3.—A total of $1,773.17 in school taxes has been paid in the past 10 days, according to records at the office of Frank Womack, collector for Quanah school diartict. Practically all of this amount was paid in warrants which had been purchased from teachers and employes of the schools.

The American Legion and other agencies are appealing constantly to the public to pay their school tax now, so there need be no question of closing the schools on account of lack of funds. The school board has pared the expenses of operation to a minimum, and salary budget has been greatly reduced.

Many are not paying other taxes but "manage" somehow to pay the school tax.

Our New Viewpoint

IF THE depression is doing nothing else, it at least is causing a slow but steady and significant shift in the average American's viewpoint on political theories.

In the years of prosperity we went, almost unanimously, for the policy of helping the man at the bottom by boosting the man at the top.

We felt that the best way to provide a reasonable amount of happiness, leisure and contentment for the mass of the people was to give business and finance a free hand. If they prospered greatly, the rest of us would prosper at least a little. To suggest putting any sort of check on industry was to be guilty of heresy.

Lately the opposite theory has been coming into its own again. Such men as Gov. Gifford Pinchot have been saying things that sound remarkably like the war cries of 1912, when great wealth was feared and jealousy watched. The pendulum is swinging; a Theodore Roosevelt or a Woodrow Wilson could find a following in the land once more.

Now all of this does not mean that an immediate, far-reaching change in national policy is inevitable. It does not necessarily mean that we would be better off if we adopted more radical political and economic creeds. It simply means that our political life is in the process of getting shaken down to a more healthy and logical basis.

In any two-party system of popular government the respective parties ought to stand at opposite poles in this matter. There should be a conservative party and a liberal party. In no other way can a democracy function as it should.

During the recent years of high prosperity that condition did not exist. We all went conservative. The politician's first thought was to prove to business that he was "safe." Liberalism had no appeal.

We are getting back, now, to a sounder position. There is about to be a dividing line in public life once more. This will be a good thing for us, no matter which side proves the stronger.

1932 Resolutions

IN THE great American jokebook there is no perennial any hardier than the one about New Year's resolutions.

As December closes, each man (according to the jokesmith) casts up his account with life and discovers that he can't make things balance. So, as January opens, he is full of brave resolves. He will do this, that and the other thing; he will give up his bad habits, he will be a paragon of all of the virtues.

The point of the joke, of course, lies in the fact that a week later he is back in all of the old ruts. Nothing is more ephemeral than the lofty vows of the dawning year. No matter how emphatically you turn over a new leaf, you soon find yourself back on the same old page with all the thumb prints, blurred lines and dog-eared corners.

Yet this is hardly an argument against New Year's resolutions. Even if they are not kept, the effort of making them is worth something; for it involves standing off and looking at one's self with detachment, and a moment of objective self- criticism is good for even the most saintly.

There is a gap between what we are and what we ought to be. In most cases, the gap is fairly wide. But we are not entirely lost as long as we keep from forgetting that that gap exists. It is the Pharisee who, in all ages, has drawn mankind's severest condemnation.

So our New Year's resolutions aren't entirely wasted. We make them after more or less self-searching, and presently we break them, and in a little while it is as if we had never thought of them; but some residue is left with us, and we profit by it, if only slightly. We compel ourselves to admit, once a year, that we are not such fine fellows as we ordinarily like to pretend. That admission, if it does nothing else, at least promotes a healthful humility.

For there is hope for any kind of sinner except a complacent one.

Our Amazing Carelessness

THE fact that more than 160 people were killed in accidents over the Christmas holiday in the United States emphasizes once again, in a tragic manner, the amazing carelessness of the American people.

There was a time when only the Fourth of July brought a very large accident toll—and that was largely due to fireworks. Now, however, any holiday is certain to involve an extensive number of casualties; and the deaths are from varied causes, from auto accidents down to gunshot wounds.

What is the answer to it, anyway? Are we, as a people, simply too stupid to handle ourselves properly whenever we have a day off? Does the holiday spirit make us forget to take the usual safeguards? The man who can find a way to wipe out the steady increase in holiday fatalities will be a national benefactor.

Quotations Worth Noting

Let Mr. Klein (assistant secretary of commerce) tell his bedtime stories on the return of prosperity every night, if he wants to, but it won't move one bushel of wheat; won't put one man to work.—Congressman LaGuardia of New York.

The school draws upon itself criticism not so much by reason of what it fails to offer or accomplish but by its inability to do the work of the school, family, and the church combined.—Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia U.

Poor Miss Garbo

The usual routine of chatter that appears here on a morning like this will have to be snubbed until another day—for something so important as Greta Garbo...Miss Garbo, who is a movie actress of renown, it appears, was finally trapped by horrid reporters and hocus-focus men in New York on Saturday...There have been complaints about this...Friends of Miss Garbo and others challenge the right of the ladies and gentlemen of the press..."If Greta Garbo wants some freedom," they argue, "what business is it of you fellows to hound her and torture her that way?"...Well, that's exaggerating it a little...Greta may have been tortured and hounded by the naughty pressys of New York, but it is her own fault...Greater Garbo-mightys than the movie princess have never been that indifferent to the public as has been America's Swede Heart, as one wag calls her ...Instead of torturing herself—as she incessantly does, trying to escape from her public—Miss Garbo disguises herself as a movie actress and uses cellar doors of fancy hotels, pantries, kitchens and other means to keep from being cordial to her historians.

It started this way the other day ...Several chroniclers of New York guessed whether Greta was here or not...This one put it this way: "Was that Greta Garbo at Soandso's the other day?"...Another guessed: "Isn't that Garbo in what hotel?" ...This is not getting anywhere, of course...She is or she isn't...And so one of the rags came out (after a broadcaster announced that he met and talked with her) and again guessed...The paper wasn't certain ..."Is it Garbo or isn't it?" its headlines queried...The general public has its favorites on and off the professional platforms... The newspapers and their representatives represent the public ... The public demands and depends upon the newspapers to keep it informed—accurately—about their favorites ... Greta Garbo certainly must be included in this country's brief list of genuine and popular favorites ... But Miss Garbo now shuns that public and its representatives ... She will not consent to an interview, a picture, or give in the pleas of struggling reporters and photographers ... All of whom are assigned by their editors to "get that picture of Garbo" or find a cozy spot in any of the breadlines!

Nothing, probably, would have come of Garbo's visit to Manhattan ... But when Greta was discovered dwelling at a hotel under the name of "Gussie Berger" (the Gussie apparently being her real last name for short), and a columnist recognized her and attempted to talk with her, guards from everywhere surrounded her, helped her escape, and aroused the curiosity of a few editors ... "Why," they wondered, "does that Miss Berger hide her face or run away when she is questioned?" Garbo makes trips from Hollywood to New York almost regularly every six months ... This marks the first time she was "caught" by the press ... As one editor observed: "Because Garbo is in New York certainly isn't news. But she is news when she disguises herself and goes to such extremes to escape interviewers" ... The newspapers, however, didn't take her to heart until they found out that their representatives in Hollywood didn't know what was going on ... The editors queried their west coast defenders ... "Is Garbo in Hollywood? We hear she's in New York" "Garbo is in Hollywood," they all replied ... Naturally, an editor who finds his know-it-alls wrong like that immediately proceeds to humiliate them ... This is what followed.

Greta's favorite male escort, a 64-year-old director working for a rival movie firm here, guarded her with his very life ... He outsmarted the town's most persistent journalists ... "I never see her," he fibbed ... "She is here for freedom. She wants peace. She won't answer her phone. I cannot help you" ... Well, on second thought, he didn't outsmart the scribes ... The scribes respected the man's cunning and behaved themselves ... They so reported to their chiefs ... One of them was immediately fired for being what is better known as a second-rate go-getter ... The substitute came back with a picture of Garbo, taken as she ran from newspaper people ... When this department caught up with Miss Garbo, in the pantry of her hotel, she fumed because the elevator had not dropped to the basement floor hurriedly enough ... We squeezed into the lift with her ... Breathless from running, we pleaded with her as the elevator climbed swiftly to her floor ... "Miss Garbo," we said, putting on a false-face (to register humility), "won't you please reconsider and oblige those reporters and photographers with something, a picture or an interview?" ... "You are all hor-ee-bill!" she responded icily ... And she beat a hasty retreat to her room.

Why? ... Why do her intimates and those who manage her permit that? ... If it is privacy she desires and peace of mind, why not do what some other sensitive celebrities do? ... They summon the press, make them agree to go after a 10-minute chat, and then it's over ... The reporters are happier, and so is the victim ... If Miss Garbo had said, "I will be glad to see you all, but please do not reveal my address," no honorable member of the journals would have violated that agreement ... But, no ... Miss Garbo's "act" must go on ... There must be "mystery" ... Maude Adams did it, you know ... Why not the Stockholm barber's little girl, who was made rich by Americans? ... I saw Garbo cry at 7:25 Saturday evening .. She was so pale ... She is very anaemic, anyhow, and her bosom swelled and dropped rapidly, so angry was she with the boys and girls of the papers ... They had flash-lighted her two hours before ... So instead of staying in her room or taking a hide-away exit to escape them—on her second visit—she took the main entrance and invited another chase ... But her routine fell flat this time ... Only one followed her, so she got into a cab and wept.

Oh, I know that Greta no longer needs publicity ... But we of the papers must cater to that army of heroine-worshipers in these United States ... In Europe, from where Greta comes, even an alley-cat is permitted to blink at a monarch ... They even have demonstrations and parades for their queens, so that commoners like you, you, you and Winchell may gape or be awed ... Over here we select our own princes and princesses and honor them ... Lindy, frixample —and Miss Garbo ... Reporters, after all, are merely note-jotter-downers ... But the historians in the decades to come will have to read what we all write to know! ... To know what gods we bowed before ... Granted that Greta is not assuming a high-hattitude—but is Simply Like That! ... But why? ... She is merely an actress! ... Built up by high-voltaged publicists —with the mystery and aloof gag ... She wasn't that starchy before she became Somebody ... Sure! Greta doesn't need the press any more ... But a current movie magazine contains a likeness of her taken in the days when she did! ... Greta, whose indifference cost a news photographer his job the other afternoon, is seen in a "still," posing in a bathing suit (on a wintry day) for a phoney race ... That snapshot very likely isn't in Greta's scrapbook ... But it is testimony that Greta Garbo once needed the assistance of $30 per week news collectors ... Many of whom need Greta Garbo's assistance now.

P. S.—Tomorrow she will have police protection. Huh.

EXPLANATION OF LAST SATURDAY'S CARTOON

THE NEW YEAR—When Julius Caesar arbitrarily fixed the length of the solar year at 365¼ days, he exceeded it by 11 minutes and 14 seconds. Pope Gregory XIII in 1582 ordered 10 days suppressed to correct the error, and the addition of a day each fourth year except centenary years that are not divisible by 400. The first Julian year began on Jan. 1, 46 B. C. Between then and the beginning of the Christian era there were only 11 intercalary days, and the astronomical surplus of the year 1 B. C. will forever remain unaccounted for. The retardation of 29 hours, 9 minutes and 54 seconds, at the end of 1931, then consists of the surplus of 1 B. C., (5 hours, 48 minutes, 46 seconds), the surplus of 1929, 1930 and 1931 (17 hours, 26 minutes, 18 seconds) and 331-400 of the intercalary day in the year 2000 (1600-1931) (19 hours, 51 minutes, 36 seconds) less the adverse portion of a day which will be omitted in the year 4000 (13 hours, 56 minutes, 46 seconds). Thus the astronomical year 1932 began at 9 minutes, 54 seconds past 5 a. m. on Jan. 2.

THE BALL OF PINS AND NAILS—From the world's greatest packing center come a curio which shows graphically how nature takes care of unusual articles in the diet of a cow. A neat ball, the size of a baseball, was formed of brass pins and a few small nails, consumed by the cow during her lifetime. The ball was taken from the cow's stomach in the slaughtering house of Swift & Co., Chicago, and it is now in the possession of Mr. Louis F. Swift.

CHAPTER XLIX

"If you turned over them little card indexes in your mind, do you suppose you'd find one on a fellow named Dwight Sutro?"

Nothing in Scotty's brusk, husky voice gave faintest hint of the turmoil of amazement and apprehension that name on the gambler's mouth had produced in him.

"I have known Dwight a long time," he said.

"Is he a man, Scotty?"

It seemed to Scotty that the air grew chill about him. Little waves ran before his eyes along the varnish of the flat-topped desk. The gentle voice of that question. The measured drawl. They pressed the truth from him against his will.

"I would not call him a man, Ace," he said. "It is a long time since I have heard a man say a good word for Dwight Sutro."

"How is Marguerite, Scotty?"

The gentle voice had, then, left that region of danger. The chill fled back, and Scotty looked into warm black eyes. Ace Wilfong never forgot to ask about Marguerite. When Marguerite graduated from high school Ace Wilfong had sent her the biggest basket of flowers that any girl got.

"She's fine," said Scotty gruffly. Always afraid of betraying what a sentimental old fool he was when anybody spoke of Marguerite.

"Would you let Marguerite marry —a man like Dwight Sutro?" said Ace suddenly.

Scotty's oath tore through the air like a torpedo. Other oaths piled on top of it. Deep-mouthed, sincere, stupendous oaths.

"I don't reckon you'd even trust him in a poker game," said Ace Wilfong pleasantly. The code of indifference proper to such surroundings must be maintained. "Poker," said the king of the gamblers in that same gentle voice, "is a funny game. It shows a man up so plain. If I knew I was wrong, I would not want anybody to get me in a game of poker. Cards don't hardly count in poker. It is a man's character, his brain, what he has got inside him that plays poker. I'd like to play poker with Dwight Sutro some time."

"You are not fit to be a decent woman's friend," said Ace Wilfong

Looking up, Scotty caught the pulse of primitive savagery that shot across the gambler's face. Only an instant it broke through like a flash of lightning in a dark sky. Then it was gone, and the mask fell again into place. Scotty could neither read nor guess the thoughts behind it.

Williams, opening the door of the little house on Buchanan street, saw standing there a tall dark young man in a gray hat worn a little on one side and a rough overcoat belted tightly, with a bit of a swagger, about his slim waist.

Peering into the little circle of light made by the wrought-iron lantern that swung beside the door, Williams obeerved further how lean was the face under the gray hat, and he encountered there a quiet gaze which convinced him he had never seen this visitor before. Surely, he could not have forgotten those black deep eyes.

"Yes, sir?" said Williams. His tone was nondescript, for he had not as yet determined the status of this late caller.

"Is Mr. Sutro at home?" said the tall, dark young man.

"I could see, sir," suggested Williams. "What name would I say?"

The tall, dark young man came into the hall, nor did Williams say him nay.

"Name?" he repeated. "My name is Wilfong."

Williams permitted his eyes to blink rapidly several times. He knew that name well enough.

The heavy, wine-red curtains dropped behind him. In the drawing room, where firelight and candle light made a soft glow, he did not wait, as was his custom, for Mr. Sutro to raise his head from the book he was reading.

"Mr. Wilfong to see you, sir," he said. The slightest emphasis on the "Mr."—and yet was there?

One quick movement, shoving away the decanter of brandy, the half-emptied glass. The smile froze in Dwight Sutro's blue eyes, froze to a sneer.

"I shall be very glad to see Mr. Wilfong," he said, and if Williams had laid stress upon the title, Dwight Sutro flung it back to him as a veritable mockery.

Williams held open the curtains. The tall, dark young man passed inside. It struck Williams that he moved like a panther. Williams dropped the curtains and left the two men alone together.

"Hello, Wilfong," said Dwight Sutro. Amazing how he managed to make those two words a taunt. Nor did he get up. His blue eyes never lost that smile, and in his dinner clothes he looked more than ever the aristocrat.

But if Ace Wilfong heard the taunt, he chose to ignore it. Not a ripple touched his face. And if the other man had thought to gain advantage by keeping his seat, he was disappointed. Ace Wilfong towered over him, easy, cool, unruffled.

"We won't waste any time," he said, in that gentlest voice of his which was almost like a caress. "You know why I have come. I expect you are surprised that I did not come before. I have had some such surprise myself. But I have had reasons. Now I have come."

"So I see," said Dwight Sutro, with an exaggerated politeness, an insufferable politeness. "But why you have come still remains a mystery. We have little in common, you and I. Of course I will listen to anything you have to say."

"I thought you would." The gambler kept that even tone, that gen-

Haskin, director, Washington, D. C.

Q.—How old is Jack Dempsey?—M. F.

A.—He is 36. He was born June 24, 1895.

Q.—What is the melting point of tin?—W. C.

A.—The melting point is 232 degrees Centigrade, equal to 430 degrees Fahrenheit, approximately.

Q.—What was Thorpe's record for kicking a field goal?—F. J. P.

A.—His record in kicking a field goal was 48 yards. This was a place kick in the game between Carlisle and Harvard on Nov. 11, 1911.

Q.—How much did George Washington pay for his pew in the church in Alexandria?—M. H.

A.—Thirty-six pounds 10 shillings.

Q.—Were potatoes brought to America from Europe or taken to Europe from America?—L. M. N.

A.—Potatoes were introduced into Europe from America.

Q.—How tall is Kate Smith, the singer? Is she married?—J. R. A.

A.—She is 23 years old, 5 feet 9 inches tall, and weighs 240 pounds. She is not married.

Q.—Who were the Americans concerned in the X, Y, Z papers?—S. B.

A.—The three commissioners to France, represented by X, Y and Z were John Marshall, X; Charles Pinckney, Y; and Elbridge Gerry, Z. The letters were used in transmitting reports to congress.

Q.—Why does it cost more to have an automobile battery charged in one shop than it does in another?—H. E. B.

A.—It is practically impossible to give an average figure for what it costs a plant to charge a battery, as this depends entirely upon the amount of current necessary for the particular battery, the labor cost, service cost, etc. The size of the shop and the price of current in a particular city have a great deal to do with the average cost to charge a battery and would vary considerably.

Q.—What are the dry powdered chemicals used in fire fighting at home?—R. W. G.

A.—The bureau of standards says that "dry powder" fire extinguishers which have been examined by that bureau have usually consisted of a tube filled with a dry powder consisting of about 90 per cent baking soda with about 10 per cent inert material such as clay, brick dust, and asbestos to prevent the powder from caking. The effectiveness of dry powder fire extinguishers in comparison with other available first-aid equipment is small.

Q.—Is there any way to shrink a woolen sweater that has been stretched too large?—S. W.

A.—There is no perfectly satisfactory way of shrinking a knitted garment which has become distorted. Sometimes soaking it in hot water and then dashing it into very cold water will improve it somewhat, however, extremely hot water will tend to felt the wool and may injure its appearance.

Q.—How did Nag's Head, the place near which a fishing vessel recently was swallowed by quicksand, get its name?—T. W.

A.—Nag's Head is on the coast of North Carolina near Cape Hatteras. In colonial times the famous pirate Saxon Teach, known as Blackbeard, lived near there. He would fasten a lantern to a horse's head and, at night, the lantern bobbing up and down with the movement of the old nag's head, would look, from the sea, like a ship's light riding the waves. Other ships, thinking there was a channel or an anchorage, would follow and go ashore. The pirates then would take the disabled vessel.

Q.—What is the largest vessel which has docked at Chicago?—C. B.

A.—The largest passenger vessel which has docked at Chicago is the steamer Seeandbee, 6,381 tons gross and 3,434 tons net, register length 484.5 feet, register breadth 58.1 feet, and the largest freight vessel is the steamer Harry Coulby, 9,467 tons gross and 7,485 tons net, register length 484.5 feet, register breadth 58.1 feet, and the largest freight vessel is the steamer Harry Coulby, 9,467 tons gross and 7,485 tons net, register length 615.2 feet, register breadth 65.2 feet. There are two harbors in the city of Chicago, one of which is known as Chicago harbor and is located at the mouth of the Chicago river, and the other is known as Calumet or South Chicago harbor and is located at the mouth of the Calumet river about 11 miles south of Chicago harbor. The passenger vessels dock at Chicago harbor, also some of the feright vessels, but the largest freight vessels dock at Calumet harbor.

Fats and Oils

All fats and oils are members of the hydro-carbon group of food and contain carbon, hydrogen, and oxygen the same as the carbohydrates such as starch and sugar. The main difference is because of the small amount of oxygen which makes the fats combine readily with more oxygen, thus releasing a large amount of heat in the body when they are used as food. Fats and oils are chemically about the same except that the oils melt at a lower temperature. Fats used for food come both from the animal and vegetable kingdoms. They are one of the highest sources of nourishment and are usually easily assimilated, being digested entirely in the intestines. The Esquimos and other northern races consume large quantities of fats, as a great deal of fuel food is necessary for protection against the cold. Such foods are of course less needed by those living in temperate or tropical regions, but, whenever used in the proper amounts, the fats are a far more efficient fuel and energy food than are the carbo-hydrates.

One-sixth of the normal body weight is made up of fat which is deposited through almost all of the tissue as well as being found in layers in various parts. The fat of the body is produced from fatty foods consumed as well as being formed from carbo-hydrates and proteins whose elements are rearranged to form fat when the food supply is deficient in fats and oils.

Butter and margarine are the most commonly used fats, but there are many others of great value if used properly.

Animal Fats

The tissues of all animals used for food contain varying amounts of fat. Even the lean part of meat contains a considerable amount of fat even after cooking. The fat which forms in layers is also separately removed and heated to be made into lard, tallow, or suet. Pork fat thus treated is called lard, beef fat tallow, and mutton fat suet. These are then used in different ways in preparing meat or vegetable dishes. These animal fats are easily digested but often interfere with the digestion and assimilation of other foods such as proteins and starches, especially when cooked together. The digestive enzymes needed for the digestion of the proteins and starches cannot readily penetrate through the fatty coverings especially if such foods are fried in the fat.

Fish Fats

Most fish contain a large amount of fat which is not easily separated from the flesh, as it grows through all the fleshy tissues. Salmon, herring, mackerel, and eels are the fish with the largest amount of fat and because of this many people with weak digestive powers find difficulty in digesting such fat fish. The Esquimo seems able to use a large amount of whale blubber, but this is generally eaten separately from the flesh. The whale is really a sea mammal, and not a fish, with large deposits of fat found in layers along the back and on the belly.

Cod liver oil is now used a great deal for therapeutic purposes, especially for the large amount of vitamin D which it contains. This oil is obtained from the fresh liver by heavy pressure. It is easily digested.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Diversion for Studious Child

Question—Mrs. T. writes: "My little boy is thin and nervous. He is good in his studies but does not like to play very much. Do you think this is serious, or will he outgrow it?"

Answer—Nervous children should be encouraged to develop the physique, and the tendency to too much mental development must be discouraged by providing enough interesting exercise in the form of games and sports. An effort should be made to teach this type of child to divert his energy, part of the time, away from study and self-contemplation to constructive physical expression.

Anemia

Question—Mrs. Hilda A. writes: "My sister is suffering from anemia. It seems that she has something almost like paralysis in her limbs. What will relieve the trouble?"

Answer—You did not say whether your sister's trouble is primary or secondary anemia, but the symptoms you describe are more like those of primary or pernicious anemia. This is too serious a condition to be prescribed for in this question and answer column, but I will be glad to send special information on the subject of primary anemia if you will only send me your full name and address.

Blood Tumors

Question—B. B. writes: "I have a red spot on my cheek which looks something like an enlarged vein, but it is almost round."

Answer—A dermatologist or plastic surgeon should be able to get rid of the spot. These small blood tumors can be reduced through electrical treatments or destroyed entirely by burning with the high-frequency electric spark.

Arkansas Town Is Up-and-Coming Community Since Women Took Reins

By DOROTHY ROE
(Copyright, 1932, by Universal Service, Inc.)

MT. IDA, Ark., Jan. 3.—A suffragettes' paradise is perched high in the hills of Southern Arkansas.

It is this little town of Mt. Ida, where women rule supreme.

A woman mayor and a complete set of feminine city officials crack the whip of government here while the men look on in open-mouthed admiration.

Mrs. Eva McLane, a gray-haired, motherly woman, runs the town from her sunny kitchen. And, between baking fluffy biscuits and feeding the chickens, she settles all masculine disputes with a firm hand.

She was elected mayor by unanimous vote of the 600 citizens of Mt. Ida, as were the six matrons who form her council.

Interviewed in her combination living room and mayor's office, she untied her apron, smiled affably, and said:

"Well, I never went in for politics before, but I must say things are a lot better in this town since we women stepped in and took charge.

"The men themselves suggested it. I guess they were just plain tired, or maybe lazy. Anyway they put my name and the names of my six council members on the ticket, and we were unopposed in the election.

"The first thing we did was to have a clean-up week—men never do know much about such things. And now we're working on a plan to put a fence around the courthouse lawn and plant shrubs and flowers. We want to sink an artesian well, too, so we'll have water for the fire department to use.

"Nothing much got done around here while the men were running the town. But now everybody says we're an up-and-coming community."

In her position as mayor of Mt. Ida, Mrs. McLane appoints the police department, street commissioner and fire chief. The merchants bring her their dissensions to settle, and the village ne'er-do-wells regard her with a wary eye. There has been only one arrest for drunkenness in the year that Mrs. McLane has held office, an all-time record.

The mayor's husband, J. G. McLane, looks on his woman-ruled town with resignation. He speaks with pride of "my wife, the mayor," and says:

"What can you do? They even named the town after a woman."

Donley County Schools To Receive State Aid

Special to The Record News.

CLARENDON, Texas, Jan. 3.—The rural schools of Donley county will receive a sum of $5,097 from the state department of education this year, according to a letter from William Eilers, state rural school supervisor, who visited the Donley schools recently. Only two schools, the McKnight and Chamberlain units, failed to meet the requirements entitling them to the maximum of state aid.

19 SCHOOLS INVITED TO PLAY IN MUNDAY COURT TOURNEY

The Ambler's Corner

By BILL JENKINS

The University of Southern California won the Rose Bowl contest, but the Trojans did this only by taking complete advantage of the breaks that were afforded. This is the way quite a few games are won, but in a game so important as this one, we should consider the actual ability of both teams. The Tulane laddies outplayed the Trojans, but their power and the recovered fumble in the third quarter gave the Trojans a victory. The Trojans undoubtedly had the best defensive team and had more power, but the Green Wave was faster and more handy with the passes. Tulane had the outstanding offense, because it made more first downs and gained more yardage from scrimmage, but it could not make the yardage when it was needed.

Jim Thorpe, one of the outstanding players of all time, said in an article written for the United Press that Jerry Dalrymple, all-American end, played only a fair game. We wouldn't disagree with Thorpe for anything in the world, but we must remember that Dalrymple had an injured knee. This knee was hurt again in the early part of the game, but he fought like a demon the rest of the game, and was circled only twice during the contest. This would never have happened, but the injured knee slowed him down quite a bit. Dalrymple was the outstanding player for the Trojans. Twice Pinckert came around on a reverse play, and ran over 20 yards for a touchdown on both occasions.

This is the first time any team from Louisiana has had the honor of playing in the Rose Bowl contest. S. M. U. would have been invited if they had defeated St. Mary's team a few weeks back. The Mustangs completely outplayed Coach Slip Madigan's team in the first half, but they weakened in the final half.

The Trojans were crowned National champions by their victory, and they rightfully deserve the title.

Another team in Wichita county has come to the front in a basket ball way the last few weeks. Cashion, always a strong team in Wichita county tournaments, displayed its prowess Friday night by a victory over the Nocona Indians. We will have a chance to compare the Cashion and Wichita Falls teams tonight when they meet on the Junior college court.

Golfer Sinks 124-Yard Drive for Hole-in-One

Special to The Record News.

CLARENDON, Texas, Jan. 3.—Tom E. Connally, Clarendon grain dealer, joined the "dodo" club of the golfing fraternity here this afternoon when he holed his tee shot on the difficult number four hole on the Hillcraft Golf club course. The hole is 124 yards long and is not within sight of the tee. Connally was shooting against a stiff wind. The ball caught the edge of the sand and curved gently into the cup.

The other players in the threesome were A. N. Wood, retired groceryman, and R. C. Weatherly, local carpenter. Following the perfect shot, the first in his several years of golf playing and the first in the new year on the local course, Mr. Connally failed to regain his composure sufficiently to win the match from his two adversaries.

Clarendon Broncs Go To Basket Practice

CLARENDON, Texas, Jan. 3.—Laying aside the cumbersome moleskins which carried them to the final game in the class B gridiron race, th Clarendon High school Bronchos have donned the abbreviated cage uniforms and turned to the maple court for further athletic honors. Four letter men and 14 aspirants answered the initial call of Coach John Hutton for basket ball sharpshooters and received preliminary instructions this week.

The letter men reporting, upon whom hopes hinge for a successful cage season, are Raymond Nichols, Fred Reid, Snooks Andis and Loyd Martin, all of football fame. Others who are fighting for berths on the Maroon and White squad are O. C. Watson Jr., O'Neal, Barton, Phelps, Blocker, Benson, C. Hudson, Merritt, B. Hudson, P. Greene and Bill Walker.

Quanah Beats Crowell In First Court Game

QUANAH, Texas, Jan. 3.—The Quanah Indians opened their basket ball season Friday night by journeying to Crowell where they were defeated by the Wildcats 28-8. The Quanah team was greatly handicapped by the absence of Cecil Faircloth, captain and star basket shooter, who was out of the game on account of throat trouble.

Although the Indians were outclassed they put up a real game. Smith, a first year man, playing at guard, turned in a stellar game for the Indians, as did Cox and Creighton, forwards.

The outstanding players for Crowell were Mullens and Dick Todd. Mullens was high point man with 12 points.

Coach Joe Forrester of the Indians plans changes in his team which will enable them to make a much better showing in the coming games.

A return game with Crowell is to be played at Quanah.

Runyon Wouldn't Be Flabbergasted If Walker Knocked Champion Over

Schmeling Isn't So Hot and Mickey Is Quite a Good Fighter, Says Writer in Predicting $300,000 Gate

By DAMON RUNYON

NEW YORK, Jan. 3. (US)—Old Doctor Kearns might not be quite so brash in his bloviations about where the Schmeling-Walker fight ought to go, and what he wants, and what he doesn't want, and all that sort of business, if he knew how gingerly the Madison Square Garden corporation seems to be approaching the proposed bout in Miami.

If you ask me, I think the garden outfit would chuck a big sigh of relief if the old doctor refused to go to Florida. It would then forget the bout entirely, and perhaps let some sucker rent the Miami arena and play promoter. Last season by staying out of Florida and collecting rent from Mr. Pa Stribling and Mr. Frank Bruen, the garden made a little profit off its Miami area for the first time since it was built.

With the Miami match off, Herr Max Schmeling could proceed on his exhibition tour until June when he will probably fight the terrible Sharkey man, or possibly Jack Dempsey. What old Doctor Kearns and Mickey Walker would do then is something for the doctor to figure out all by himself. I confess I do not know the answer.

Garden Not Optimistic

The Madison Square Garden corporation doesn't seem altogether optimistic about a fight in Florida this winter, especially a heavyweight championship fight.

Personally, I think Schmeling and Walker will draw $300,000, or better in Miami, and with both of them working on a percentage that sort of a gate would show black ink for the garden. But then I don't have to pay the bills if there is a loss, so I can afford to be optimistic.

I figure my gate off the Sharkey-Scott fight, which drew $212,000 in a bad business year, and with every writer in the country giving it the jolly old Bronx cheer right from taw. Certainly Schmeling and Walker which is at least a contest, ought to do $100,000 better than that.

But the garden took a $90,000 loss on Sharkey and Scott. Then it got a $76,000 belt out in Cleveland. So you can scarcely blame the garden mob for feeling a bit leary of these outside promotions.

James J. Johnston, the old boy bandit, boxing director of the garden, has already been quoted in the public prints as saying he didn't think much of the Schmeling-Walker match, though I am inclined to think that when Mr. Johnston said that it was only because Mr. Josephus Jacobs, manager of Herr Max, was talking of taking the show to some other port.

With the same match a garden promotion you will be absolutely astonished how it will grow, and grow and grow in importance in the eyes, and speech of Mr. Johnston. I think I can guarantee that before post time, Mr. Johnston will have convinced himself, and a lot of paying clients, that it is the greatest struggle since David took on Goliath.

Real Battle

Many experts who have been decrying Walker as an opponent for Herr Max will find themselves gnawed by doubt a few days before the battle, if it takes place, and will be resorting to "if," and "maybe." 'Tis ever so with the experts.

If I didn't think Walker had any more chance against Schmeling than some of the boxing writers have been saying, I wouldn't go to Florida to see it. I wouldn't walk around the block to see it. I once got myself excused from attending a so-called heavyweight championship bout because I was convinced it was a travesty on the name, and I did not see any sense in wasting time and money on the thing.

That was the Dempsey-Miske "fight" at Benton Harbor. I thought then, and I still think, it was an insult to the intelligence of the readers of the sport pages to write of that affair in anything like a serious vein. They put a sick man in with one of the greatest fighters the game had ever produced. I thought that was little short of criminal.

But I cannot understand how any one can say that Walker has no chance with Schmeling, just off the form. Walker won 11 out of 15 rounds from Sharkey, the guy the boxing writers say Schmeling ought to fight, and I thought it was sheer larceny to give Sharkey as good as a draw. Schmeling has been knocked out several times, and that proves he is quite vulnerable.

Schmeling is a slow beginner, while Walker is lighting from the opening bell. He is apt to hit Schmeling with everything but the water bucket in the early rounds. I think the life-o'-Riley will begin collecting on Walker before the bout has gone very far, but just the same I wouldn't be absolutely flabbergasted if Walker knocked the German over.

LEAGUE DROPS SALARY RULE

Club Limit Reinstated By Texas Moguls

DALLAS, Jan. 3. (AP)—The individual salary rule of the Texas league was repealed at a meeting of club representatives here today.

A monthly club salary limit rule, similar to that in effect prior to adoption of the one limiting individual salaries, was reinstated with the figure materially lower than formerly.

Repeal was an outgrowth of action by Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis, who recently told the Texas league owners an individual salary limit would be illegal and result in conflict between the league and the major leagues.

Under the individual limit, a limit would be placed on the amount each player could receive. Under the other plan, a limit was set on the total each club could pay out in salaries.

The individual limit rule was never given application since it was adopted at the October meeting of the league.

The annual meeting was set for Jan. 30-31 in Houston where the league members will be guests of the Houston club, champion in the last race. No other business was transacted.

Opinion among some baseball men at the meeting was that eventually salvation of the minor leagues would depend on an enforceable individual salary limit, but for the present circumstances necessitated agreement with the view of Commissioner Landis.

All clubs were represented except Galveston, whose proxy was voted by J. Alvin Gardner, president of the league. Others present were Beaumont, Rube Stuart, Bob Stow, Jack Zellers; Dallas, Sol Dreyfuss, Bob Tarleton; Fort Worth, Ted Robinson, Roy Meehan; Houston, Fred Ankenman; San Antonio, Homer Hammon, Van Landingham, Tom Connor; Shreveport, T. S. Hickman; Wichita Falls, L. C. McEvoy, Guy Airey.

$300,000 GAME

U. S. C., Tulane and Rose Bowl to Receive $85,000 Each

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 2. (AP)—Despite threatening weather, the Tulane-Southern California game at Pasadena New Year's day smashed all Rose Bowl records for attendance and gate receipts.

Approximately 80,000 persons paid $300,000 to see what was declared to have been the best of the East-West classics. Arnold Eddy, Trojan graduate manager, said today his figures indicate the two teams and the Tournament of Roses association, sponsor, will receive $85,000 each. The Trojans pledged $50,000 of their end to charity.

The largest previous attendance was 70,000 at the Southern California-Pittsburgh game in 1930.

Armour Victor In Miami Tourney

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 3. (AP)—Tommy Armour of Detroit burned up 72 holes of the Miami Springs course for a 285 to win first money in the $2,500 Miami open golf tournament. Armour had rounds of 75 and 71 in the 36-hole finals today, which added to his previous 36-hole total of 139 gave him a rcord low score for the Miami event.

John Kinder, Caldwell, N. J., was nine strokes behind Armour with a 294 for second money while Mike Turnesa, Elmsford, N. Y., followed Kinder with 295. Willie MacFarlane, Tuckahoe, N. J., Joe Turnesa, Elmsford, N. Y., the defending champion, and Ed Williams, Cleveland, were in a three-way tie with 297 for fourth place. Willie Klein, East Williston, L. I., and Bill Mehlhorn, New York, had 299's.

Irvin Uteritz has turned out leading "B" teams at Wisconsin for several seasons while the Badger varsity has been below standard.

HOLTON BOOKS FIVE CONTESTS

Strong Cashion Team Plays Here Tonight

Coach Barry Holton's Coyotes will meet five different teams in the next week on the home court in an attempt to get in shape for the round robin schedule between the teams of football district No. 2. This schedule will open a little later in the season.

The Pack meets Cashion Monday night, Fairview Tuesday night, Petrolia Wednesday night, Union Valley Friday night, and Bowie Saturday night. All of these games will be played on the Junior college court.

Although all of these are practice games, the most important one will be with Cashion Monday night. Both Cashion and Wichita Falls have defeated the Nocona Indians, and this contest will give an idea as to the strongest team in Wichita county. The Coyotes have not practiced since the close of school for the holidays, while the Cats have played a few games over the holidays.

Another interesting game adorns the week's schedule. The Pack will meet the Union Valley Wildcats on Friday night. There have been two previous games between these two teams already this season with a victory for both teams. This game will break the deadlock.

HOLLISTER TEAMS LOSE

FREDERICK, Okla., Jan. 3.—Both Hollister teams were defeated Friday night when Consolidated No. 11 chalked up a 35 to 27 score against the boys, and a 24 to 14 score against the Hollister girls.

Pete Burke of No. 11 starred in the goal shooting.

The Junior high squad won 17 to 7 over Consolidated No. 11. A fuorth game was played by independent teams.

BIBLE CLASS HEARS DANIEL

Need of Spiritual Light Told By Speaker

Jesus as the Light of the world was extolled by Roy J. Daniel before members of the Kay Bible class of the First Methodist church Sunday morning as "our only hope that the attainment of God-likeness is not impossible to human kind.'

The force of the gospel's designation of Jesus as "the Light of the World," Mr. Daniel said, is found in measuring the indispensability of light to the physical world. As the light of the sun is requisite to plant and animal life, he said, the light of Jesus' life and teaching alone can enable men to attain the order and harmony of heaven in their lives.

Mr. Daniel spoke in part as follows:

"Shakespeare in one of his plays wrote: 'How far that little candlelight throws its beam! So shines a good deed in a naughty world.'

"There are several different kinds of light with which we are familiar. There is the light of the sun without which there would be no plant life, no animal life, no human life, no life of any kind whatever on the face of the earth. The light of the sun is the giver of life to the world. The greatest killer of germs and disease is the streaming light of the monarch of the day.

Moon's Power

"Just as the sun rules the day so does the lesser light, the moon, rule and govern the night. But the light of the moon is not a natural light. The moon is a burnt-out body, and the light it sends to the world at night is a reflected light—reflected rays of the sun. Yet the moon has its power upon the tides of earth, regulating their ebb and flow.

"When man came to know the use of fire then he had a light more powerful and useful at night than that of the moon. Discovering a tree set afire by lightning was probably man's first contact with fire. It was by the light of the pine knots upon the fireplace that the pioneer youth like Abraham Lincoln sought to improve his mind after the day of toil and hard work. It was by that light that he sought to prepare for opportunity and leadership.

"At the present day we just press a button and we flood the room or building or city with a brilliant light that for all practical purposes equals that of the sun. By means of the electric light we turn the night into day, and bring light to places where the rays of the sun could never enter. The subterranean places of the earth are now made bright as day. As you know to Edison are we indebted for the electric light, an almost necessary servant to man.

"The great light of the day, the sun, the light of night and lovers, the moon, the man-made lights of fire and of electricity are all wonderful, and have their places in our lives and scheme of things. But greater and more important than all those lights combined is another and necessary light—the Light of the World. John in his gospel tells us that that light existed before the world was made. He tells us that that light was with God and of God before there was any beginning of anything.

"There was a forerunner to that Light of lights. That forerunner sent from God was John the Baptist who came out of the wilderness crying, 'The Kingdom of God is at hand.' He warned the people to repent of their sins. Clad only in goat skins and living on wild honey that forerunner came and told the people: 'There shall come after me one whose shoestrings I am not worthy to unloose.' When that light of the world went to John the Baptist at the river Jordan to be baptized John knew the light, and he turned over to Him his leadership of spiritual things.

"John the apostle tells us that when the light of the world came to the world that the world rejected Him. The world received Him not. It betrayed Him, it spit upon Him, it cruelly hung Him upon a tree, and pierced His loving heart with a soldier's spear. The world tried to put out the light of the world. But it only succeeded in putting out the earthly flame of that light. The spiritual flame of the light of the world they could not destroy—the Hebrews and Romans combined could not put out the spiritual flame which burns today with a greater brightness than ever before in all history. His own race rejected the light of the world.

"At the beginning of His ministry among men, the members of His own family refused to see the divine nature of the light of the world. They looked upon Him as any other common carpenter until He changed the water into wine at the marriage feast. That miracle opened their eyes to the light of the world. The members of His family became His devoted followers and disciples, and His brother James became the first bishop of the Christian church at Jerusalem.

Goal of Perfection

"And to those who received the light of the world He gave power to become the sons of God. One of the indestructible hopes of mankind is that some day, somehow, men shall be Godlike in character and conduct. In the beginning man was made Godlike and complete. But he threw that advantage away. So all through the Bible there runs the hope that again the individual man shall become perfect and complete. Likewise, there exists the hope that some day there shall be a perfect society when individuals shall have attained Godlikeness and shall live with one another in such relations as to bring about on earth the order and harmony of heaven. The light of the world is our only hope that the attainment of Godlikeness is not impossible to human flesh.

"The Light of the World was the founder of the Christian religion. And that founder decreed a code of thought and conduct which may be summed up in the sentence: 'Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect.' But it seems absolutely beyond man's capacity to be perfect or even to approximate perfection. There is a penalty for man's inability to be perfect, and that penalty is punishment—punishment meted out in this world and continued in the next. We are told by those who have the right to interpret Christ's teachings that endeavoring to be perfect, and expressing repentance for our transgressions will obtain suspension of sentence—a suspended sentence as we say in the law; but true repentance means foregoing all vain desires and satisfactions, all selfish pleasures, all selfish use of wealth, pride of life and all that is summed up under the term of duty to man and country. Not one individual in a million can possibly do it. Gandhi in India is doing it. But I believe the effort and struggle we make trying will be rewarded both in this world and in the next. It is no great sin to fail and fall; the greater sin consists in not trying to rise again.

"Man's spirit needs religion just as his body needs food and water. His spiritual life, his higher instincts, his sense of morality are all dependent upon the religious training he receives, and he does not have to be conscious of it. 'You have seen the picture or perhaps a print of it painted by Holman Hunt and called 'The Light of the World.' In that picture we see the Savior, standing at the door of an humble cottage. He is dressed in a simple white garment, and upon His head sits the crown of thorns. In His left hand He is holding a lighted lantern which dispels the immediate surrounding darkness. His right hand is knocking at the door of the cottage. 'Behold I stand at your door and knock.' The Light of the World stands at your door and knocks! But I notice in the picture that the latch string of the cottage door does not hang outside—it hangs inside and the opening of the door depends upon the occupant inside.

"Thus it is with the doors to the hearts of your life and mine. The Light of the World stands just outside knocking and seeking entrance, but whether He enters in depends upon ourselves—the latch string hangs inside and to open the door of your heart you must pull the string from the inside. Whether you open the door or not there the Light of the World will continue to knock until the end of your life because in the words of the poet: 'There is a divinity that shapes our ends, rough hew them how we may.'"

FANCIES CAN'T HELP STOCKS

Market Begins Year With 'Old Problems'

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—Securities markets open the new year auspiciously only because of the enormous depreciation already taken place in quotations. Such purely negative arguments alone are possible in attempting to arrive at a constructive, cheer-inducing conclusion. To say that prices have gone so far "they cannot go any lower" is fanciful, and too frequently has proven fallacious during the past few years.

The markets require actualities at this stage to support a rising trend, developments of such nature as to preclude any possibility of doubt that a genuine turn has occurred.

Inventorying the situation as 1932 commences its fateful career there are present most of the "old problems" of the past year, but genuine progress has been attained in numerous directions. Is it significant that all such progress toward readjustment has occurred exclusively in directions which respond to the force of economic law alone?

The unsettled problems have to do mainly with governmental decisions. In this field there are likely to be momentous happenings during the current year.

It is worthy of more than passing notice that the commodity price level for several months, while slowly yielding to new lows almost weekly, nevertheless shows complete absence of that element of severe unsettlement which occasions serious shrinkage in values.

It may be too early to proclaim stabilization of commodity price levels, yet it does seem true that commodity prices at wholesale today are showing some evidence of stabilizing. No finer augury of the future could develop than stabilization of commodities, since this would remove a great portion of the business man's worries.

Not that all products at any period are likely to touch bottom simultaneously; but in several fields already there have been distinct signs of strenuous resistance to further decline.

The business world is bound to be materially impressed by continued relative stability in prices, even though in individual industries there are likely to be "bottomless pits" of price movements incidental to distress liquidation, desire for liquidity, etc.

In the securities markets proper, the new year presumably will be forced to discount the continued uncertainty resulting from the delayed decisions on prime factors.

The bond market was favored in the closing days of 1931 by the bankers' pool whose initial operations were successful in stemming the tide of sinking prices. Return of confidence, essential to sustained price betterment in securities, must be reflected in the bond list.

Two Prisoners Taken To State Penitentiary

Two prisoners were taken from the Wichita county jail Sunday noon by Bud Russell, state penitentiary agent, for transfer to Huntsville, according to Sheriff Perry Browning.

R. C. Fitzgerald, brought here from Pampa recently for safe-keeping, and Rush Owens of Montague county were the two prisoners placed abaord the penitentiary train here. Fitzgerald was convicted of burglary; and Owens' parole recently was revoked.

Among five prisoners brought by the penitentiary agent from Pampa was Carl Hefner, under 99-year sentence for murder.

MARTIN TALKS ON MIRACLES

'Middle Ground' of Belief Upheld by Teacher

Asserting the right of private students of the Bible to adopt a middle-ground between views of "modernists" and "fundamentalists," Judge P. A. Martin declared before members of the Floral Heights Methodist Men's Bible class Sunday morning the sufficiency of Christian religion as set forth in the book of St. John.

"Some time, somewhere, in some way all things are created," Judge Martin said. "Therefore a Creator, a miracle-worker, if you please, was at work. I do not have to delve deep into scientific tomes for proof that such a Creator can or cannot provide for the incarnation and a virgin birth. I have uncontradicted evidence that He can and will provide for a new birth to all who believe on Him and trust Him."

Commending the study of the book of John because it is a "spiritual" gospel, Judge Martin declared that the "world needs today more than any other thing a deeper spirituality and a higher sense of spiritual values."

The speaker's address was in part as follows:

"The first three gospels, Matthew, Mark and Luke, are called the 'synoptic' gospels, because they give the general view or synopsis of the life of Jesus. The gospel of Saint John, the divine, was the last one written and it is referred to by all writers as the 'spiritual' gospel, dealing not so much with its hero as an historical person, but seeking to present Him, as God the Son, the second person of the trinity and to account for the incarnation or the blending of divinity with humanity in the nature of the Christ. Thus it is the prime object of the gospel of John to present Jesus to the world as the Savior of men.

Many Are Skeptical

"He is called the Word, that is, in the Greek, the Logos, meaning, as well as I am able to gather from learned writers, the divine principle, concept or thought of divinity. Passing rapidly through some aspects of His pre-incarnation work, the sacred writer plunges at once into the infallable proofs of His divinity, beginning with the witness of John the Baptist, turning again to say that this 'Word was made flesh and dwelt among us and and we beheld his glory.'

"So here we get the doctrine of the incarnation at the very outset of our six months' study of the gospel of John. It is expressed in our creed as a belief that the Christ is the Son of God, 'conceived by the Holy Ghost; born of the Virgin Mary.' It means the union of the divine with the human in the form of man and with all the attributes of both God and man. I am well aware that many modern thinkers and writers (and some of them able preachers, too) are becoming skeptical of the virgin birth of Jesus and are seeking to explain it away, but to my mind they will emasculate the Scriptures and place them upon a level with the 'Arabian Nights' or 'Aesops Fables' when they do so. If Jesus was all human He was not divine and if He was not divine then He was only the greatest man that ever lived, yet only a man.

"In their efforts to meet the onslaughts of so-called science and account for sacred things in a way to satisfy the demands of the modernists some of our teachers and preachers have almost abolished the apostle's creed and rendered meaningless the doctrine of the new birth, as well as the virgin birth, and all other miracles of the Bible. Modern evangelism is to some extent responsible for this. We have far too many church members who have never realized that a miracle has been performed in their own lives through the new birth.

"And there is a close analogy between the incarnation and the new birth, if we will but think of it. Jesus became partly human by being born of a virgin; man becomes partly divine by being 'born of the Spirit.' For the apostle says in this lesson: 'As many as received Him, to them He became the power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on His name: which were born, not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God.'

"So here we have the incarnation of God in man and of a power to become the sons of God given to man through belief in His name, not through ancestral blood, not through a man's decree, but through the action of God alone, as in the incarnation of the Christ Himself.

"I know full well that I am swimming in some of the deep waters of the Scriptures when I talk of the incarnation and of the new birth, but if you feel about it like I do you will be glad to hear somebody, even though he be not a preacher, present the gospel without discarding the miraculous and without dodging the issue between the so-called schools of thought known as 'modernists' and 'fundamentalists.'

"If I understand these terms at all, they constitute what psycho-analysts call the 'outer fringe' of religious thought, the one trying to reconcile everything in the Bible with the teachings of science; and the other contending that everything in the Bible shall be taken literally as it is written; that when it says 'sheep' it means sheep and when it says 'goat' it means goat. I have the very greatest respect for each side of this controversy, personally, but from the point of view of a private student of the Bible, I reject the extreme teachings of both, and adopt a middle course which appears to me to be the common sense of the matter.

Belief in Miracles

"'In the beginning, God' is said in Genesis, 'In the beginning was the Word and the Word was God' is said in the gospel of John. Genesis says He 'created the heaven and the earth. John says 'all things were made by Him.' Moses and John say the same thing. Sometime, somewhere in some way all things were created; therefore a Creator, a miracle-worker, if you please, and if able to create the universe, make the laws of nature, set the stars in their courses, provide for the tides and the changing seasons this Creator is surely able to provide for a virgin birth and for a new birth; my common sense teaches me that and I don't have to believe myself literally a sheep or a goat in order to accept the miraculous; nor do I have to delve deep into scientific tomes, searching for scientific proofs that such a Creator can or cannot provide for the incarnation and a virgin birth and I have the uncontradicted evidence of the saints of all ages that He can and will provide for the new birth to all who believe on Him and trust Him. A world has seen the rising of the 'day star' of hope in the human breast; a world feels that mighty impact of His life and His spirit and a world has recently celebrated His birth in pealing bells and swelling carols of Christmas tide. And in His name lies the only hope of the world, here or hereafter.

"I am truly glad that we shall study the gospel of John for the next few months for it is a spiritual gospel and what we need, what the world needs today, more than any other thing, is a deeper spirituality and a higher and better sense of spiritual values, and this, as I understand it, is the high purpose of the book.

"If we study it as we should, we will get great benefit out of it and may in some measure conform our lives to the spiritual standard set for us in the life of the Word made manifest in the flesh as the Son of Mary."

tle tone. "I will make it brief. You stay away from my wife. I have not wanted to say it. You have forced it upon me. Stay away from her. You don't know much about men of my sort, maybe, but I reckon you can figure out what I mean by that."

Dwight Sutro filled his glass with brandy to the top and drank it off. The brandy had appealed to him for some time as he sat there. It stimulated imagination, visualization. It also stimulated courage.

"I am not much in the habit," he said nastily, "of discussing ladies. I shall, of course, see your wife just as often as she will allow me to do so. If you will permit me to say so, my good man, that's entirely her affair. Her marriage to you was a ghastly mistake, as you must know quite as well as she does. Don't make matters worse by attempting to interfere between us. Surely the poor girl has a right to such happiness as she can find in the friendship of a man of her own world. She's been cut off from all the things that mean anything to her long enough."

"You are not fit to be a decent woman's friend," said Ace Wilfong, without anger, without venom still. "Women do not understand about men like you. Good women do not. But I have known your kind, here and there, without quite so many fancy trimmings on the outside. I would rather see a woman I cared about dead than at the mercy of your kind. I have done a few things in my time that do not entitle me to do much preaching. But I have never yet sat in on that kind of a game. And this is once you are not going to deal it out."

Dwight Sutro laughed. "I don't mind telling you," he said, "that I think you're damn funny. But you can't keep me away from Jan. If she wants to come to me, with me, she'll come. It is up to her. Why the hell shouldn't she? What can you do about it?"

Ace Wilfong's dark hand shut suddenly, hard. His shadow against the wall, thrown by the candles, bulked huge and black and menacing on the plaster. And that shadow trembled and shook, like a great tree in a strong wind.

"I can do this about it," said the king of the gamblers, very slowly, gently, but any man not drunk with desire, not dazed with brandy, must have heard the death-knell ringing through the words, the war-cry of the underworld, the warning of men who deal in cold steel and primitive justice. "If you ever go near my wife again, I will kill you as I would a dog."

The shadow was gone from the wall.

George C. Butte Slated For Philippines Post

AUSTIN, Jan. 3.—The prospective resignation of Dwight Davis as governor of the Philippine Islands has caused the Texas friends of Dr. George C. Butte, former dean of the law school of the University of Texas, to discuss the possibility of his being appointed to the vacancy. At present, Dr. Butte is vice governor of these overseas possessions of the United States. Governor Davis is now in this country and Dr. Butte is temporarily filling the office. According to newspaper reports that have come from Manila from time to time, Butte has already won a popular place in the hearts of the people of the island, and his appointment as governor-general would meet with general approval. His governmental policies are said to be in line with those of the Hoover administration.

Dr. Butte's advent into politics was when he became a candidate for governor of Texas against Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson in 1925. His campaign attracted national interest and brought to him the recognition of being appointed attorney general of Porto Rica. Following his service in that position he became connected with the attorney general's department of the United States. He was appointed vice governor of the Philippines several months ago.

ELDORADO C-C NAMES HEADS

Many Projects to Be Undertaken in 1932

Special to The Record News.

ELDORADO, Okla., Jan. 3.—E. M. Francis, president of the First National bank of Eldorado will head the Eldorado Chamber of Commerce during 1932, having been chosen as president of that body Friday night at the regular annual meeting when new directors and other officers to serve during 1932 were elected.

The meeting was held at the American Legion hall and was called to order by S. A. Cook, retiring president.

The new board of directors is composed of Blair Thorp, W. L. Phillips, R. W. Summers, O. V. Wood, O. W. Farley, D. L. Jones, S. A. Cook and E. M. Francis.

Other officers elected by the new board were D. L. Jones, vice president and Leland Farley, secretary, the latter succeeding himself.

Before the election was held the retiring president called for reports from the chairmen of the several standing committees and a financial statement from the secretary-treasurer.

Blair Thorp, chairman of the road committee told of the securing for Eldorado of a state designation of one important highway through Eldorado, referring to highway 24, known as the Chisholm trail, which has this week been taken over for maintenance by the Oklahoma state highway department. He also said that indications now point to the early designation as a state highway of the road from Eldorado to Olustee, thence north to No. 62, which road has been completed according to state and federal highway specifications.

E. M. Francis gave a report on the assistance rendered by the charity committee in connection with the chamber of commerce as a whole in aiding in drouth relief work during the past winter and spring.

W. L. Phillips, chairman of the advertising committee, said the principle project for the year which his committee had put over was a six months trades day program during which time six first Monday trades days were held, in which practically every firm in Eldorado cooperated, both in the advertising and other features.

E. M. Francis mentioned several projects which will probably be started soon after he names the various standing committees. The only appointment made thus far was that of Blair Thorp, who was reappointed as chairman of the highway committee.

GRAND JURY MEETS TODAY

Two Courts to Open New Term Monday

Grand jurors to serve the 30th district court during January, February and March will be sworn in Monday morning by Judge P. A. Martin, with at least 16 cases scheduled for investigation, and new terms will be opened by both Judge Martin and Judge Allan D. Montgomery of the 30th district court.

Sixty-six cases now comprise the docket to be called Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock in Judge Martin's court, while the appearance docket to be called at the same hour before Judge Montgomery contains 21 cases.

The cases of Harrison Derouen, negro, charged with the killing of Martha Simmons, his mother-in-law on Sunday night, Dec. 27, is among those to be investigated by the grand jury this week, according to Mike Anglin, assistant district attorney. The woman was found in a dying condition on Bonner street soon after having left her daughter's home near the scene of the attack.

THE SCARLET CORD HANGS FROM THE WALL OF JERICHO

A NEWSBOY shouts "paper!" A grocer puts out a price-tag on a barrel of potatoes. A ticket broker advises you that he sells "the best seats for the ball game." . . . These are all forms of advertising.

Along the highways the motorist reads as he goes, "Fresh Eggs," or "Dahlias and Gladioli," or "Newly Picked Raspberries.'" . . . These are all forms of advertising.

Few Englishmen of the Middle Ages could read, but each one knew a goat from a bull, and all could therefore pick their favorite hostelry by the sign it displayed. By the costumes of the attendant priests a Roman could tell whether he was entering the temple of Adonis or Pallas Athene. Some hundreds of years before that a man named Joshua, the leader of a tribe of Jews, knew where to storm the city of Jericho because a scarlet cord hung from a window in the wall. . . . These are all forms of advertising.

In each of these cases a sign of some sort told people what they wanted to know, where they could buy something, where they could get some special sort of information, where they could avail themselves of some special type of service.

The advertising in this newspaper tells you exactly these same things. But advertising is also a business force. It has been organized. Its results have been tested. Its value is known.

To the consumer it means shopping news. To the consumer it offers information of pleasant, agreeable ways to live. To both consumer and merchant alike it is a civilizer, because it spreads information.

Advertising is as much a part of your life as your telephone, your food, your business or your family. . . . Indeed, most of these things are possible, partly because of advertising!

The scarlet cord still hangs from the wall of Jericho.
