PLANE TRAVLS TWO MILES PER MINUTE CARRYING SNAKE-BITE SERUM TO BOY

In most probability what saved the life of Gilbert Loden, 12, bitten by a rattlesnake, was the quick response of the telegram sent last Saturday by Dr. Robertson to Station Hospital at Fort Sam Houston for ant-crotalus serum.
The telegram was at 12 noon and the plane reached the city 210 miles away, in two hours and five minutes and the serum was administered within fifteen minutes. Major R. E. Scott of the Fort Sam Houston Station Hospital brought the serum and the plane was piloted by Lieut. W. A. Pitts of Kelly Field.
The boy's pain was relieved within five hours after the serum was administered and Tuesday he was well enough to be taken to the ranch.

DRYDEN NEWS.

The rodeo in Dryden Sunday was attended by a large crowd. Those taking part in the goat roping contest were Clyde Mills, A. A. Henning, Hen Hilborn, W. A. Banner, Homer Chandler, J. W. Harrison, Luther Calk, Earl Henning, Colman Franklin and Tinker Rutledge, first money was won by W. A. Banner.

VOTE TODAY

It is the duty of every man and woman voter to get out and VOTE TODAY, Saturday, July 24th. The Democratic box in precinct number one is at the Court House, while the Republican primaries will be held at the School Building. The polls will be opened at both places from 8 a. m. to 7 p. m.

MAN DIES SUDDENLY

A white man, aged about 45, was found Monday noon near the tool house east of the railroad section house, in a critical condition. Mr. Calk, who found the man, notified Dr. Robertson, but he was too far gone and medical aid was of no help as he died a few minutes later. Near the body was found two empty cans of canned heat as well as an empty denatured alcohol bottle, and it was thought that he might have died from an overdose of the alcohol. A paper on his person gave the name of H. Robison and contained an affidavit taken by a notary public in El Paso county, stating that he was a tubercular and asked for help so that he may get to a sanitarium. Efforts are being made to locate the relatives of the man. He was buried Tuesday morning in the local cemetery.

CARD OF THANKS.

I wish to thank the good people of Sanderson who so kindly helped in every way and for the many courtesies shown during the illness of my son, Gilbert.
W. F. LODEN.

To All Railroad Employees and Families

Colleen Moore in the "Desert Flower" at the Princess Theatre next Monday and Tuesday is of especial interest to all railroad folks as the action of the play takes place in railroad settings, coupled with this is comedy of Miss Moore. And by way of interest write taking this picture Miss Moore came very near meeting death when she slipped on a hand-car and the handle hit her on the back of the neck cracking one of the vertebrae, causing her to spend two months in a hospital.

MAN ACCIDENTLY SHOOTS SELF

Van Finchum, who ranches on the Pecos River, accidentally shot himself through the left hand Sunday afternoon. He was sitting on a log and as he was getting up, the gun in some manner was discharged, the shot passing through the palm of his hand.
He was brought to town and Dr. Robertson dressed the wound two fingers and part of his hand had to be amputated. The last report from him he was getting along alright.

On to Del Rio

Del Rio is expecting between 5000 and 8000 people during the convention and sale of the Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers' Association and rodeo to be held there July 27, 28 and 29.

The sales will be held in the mornings, while the business sessions will be held in the court house in the afternoons and the rodeo will be staged in Cowboy Park each evening between 5 and 7 o'clock.

One of the features of the convention will be a chuck wagon dinner which will be served in Old Mexico by the Del Rio committee on one of the three days. The bridge is plenty wide to accommodate those returning from the feed.

Train Wrecked by Buffalo

Railroaders working the 900 miles of lines in the volcanic island of Java often encounter wild animals and in some instances disaster results. While a train was crossing a high bridge, it crashed into a herd of wild water buffaloes. The locomotive toppled into the river and 25 persons were killed. Shortly afterward, near the same bridge, a buffalo charged into a passenger train and derailed the locomotive, killing the engineer and injuring the fireman.

Greatest Task of University Is Development of Thinking Men

By PROF. A. B. HALL, University of Oregon.

THE task of the university is to produce leaders of public opinion to compete with "the demagogue and the charlatan," who operate behind a "barrage of publicity." Critical and independent thinking is needed to take the place of "high-powered salesmanship," used by the demagogue.

Democracy does not necessarily guarantee the conditions of its own success. It is only an instrument through which the popular will tends to become articulate. Like all other movements of mankind, it requires intelligent, aggressive and constructive leadership.

Instances in our own democracy are not difficult to find where in political issues fancy has triumphed over fact and the people have preferred form to substance. The man who aspires to sincere and enlightened public leadership today must face the unfair competition of the charlatan.

The hired makers of publicity, at the behest of those who oppose the public welfare, will fight him with the most effective methods of human persuasion that the science of applied psychology and the art of advertising have been able to contrive.

Operating behind the barrage of publicity, and concealing the motives of reaction or selfishness behind a smoke screen of sonorous sophistries, the enemy occupies a point of political strategy that no one but a political genius can successfully assail. No wonder that men of character, integrity and ideals hesitate to enter this competition for the prize of leadership.

Intelligence Tests No Certain Proof of Existing Mental Deficiency

By DR. H. W. POTTER, New York City.

There is too much of a tendency to reduce human intelligence, human behavior and human beings in general to mathematical quotients. It is an error to brand troublesome individuals as mentally deficient merely because they grade low on formally administered mental tests. Such diagnosis may easily result in gross injustice and real harm.

Apparent mental deficiency or backwardness may be due to many causes other than lack of intelligence. It is not uncommon to find a child more or less retarded in school who is reacting with some anti-social behavior because of emotional or temperamental instability, certain home situations that seem to perplex and worry him, troubles between his parents or illness. He may have a glandular disorder which could seriously affect his mental condition. Mental retardation may come as an aftermath to sleeping sickness.

It is absolutely necessary to probe into all of these factors before the diagnosis of mental defect can be made with certainty. Once such difficulties are cleared up the backward child may be found to be endowed with normal intelligence, indeed, possibly superior intelligence.

Tendency Toward "Coddling" of Criminals Weakens Preventive Measures

By DR. W. C. S. PELLOWE, Detroit.

No greater challenge can come to the graduates of our institutions of higher learning than that of ridding America of a rising tide of crime and an increasing tendency for many people to think of Americanism and uniformity as synonymous terms. Business men and preachers must work together in minimizing crime, for the increase of crime is just so much sand in the business machine and an added burden to the community in general. In 1924 there were 16,646 murders in the United States.

Last year there were 400,000 major burglaries and the expenditure by municipal, state and federal governments for crime prevention amounted to $319,000,000. Every year we spend $10,000,000 in premiums for burglary prevention.

I deprecate the increase of sentiment on the part of certain club-women in behalf of criminals. Over against this maudlin sentiment we need men to bring to bear upon existing conditions their cool, calculating intelligence. We need a check-up on our laws of jurisprudence in order that criminal defense lawyers may not take advantage of technicalities.

No Foundation for Assumption That Modern Youth Is Deteriorating

By MRS. JOHN D. SHERMAN, President of Women's Clubs.

Reformers everywhere are entering their broadsides on frivolities of the youth of today. I am for the youth. Furthermore, I have every confidence in our young men and women. Just as much as I had for those in my gay and restricted life years and years ago.

I did everything they are doing. We did not wear short skirts and hobbled hair. Neither did we roll our stockings. But these later things must not be misconstrued to a point where moral standards are to be considered jeopardized.

The mode of dress has changed. The coquettes of yesterday are flappers today. There is elasticity in the modern conventions, just as there was 50 years ago. And as civilization becomes more modernized our standards are a part of the expansion program.

True, women did not smoke publicly or even in their own privacy. If they have adopted it because it is to their liking, that is their business. Because a girl or boy smokes, it is no reason they should be labeled indecent.

Education Must Not Be Considered Ended With College Graduation

By CHARLES E. RUSH, Indianapolis City Librarian.

Education is a lifelong process beginning with high-school commencement. Some seniors follow the charts and advice of wise, experienced mariners leading to the best preparation and highest training. Others drift aimlessly as derelicts menacing other voyagers. Some with definite aim and determination pass the halfway mark of success and reach the harbors of achievement and great content. Others founder in the Sargasso seas of indifference and lost ambition, heedless of helpful lighthouses and warning signals all about them.

Chief among these beacon lights are colleges, special schools and other forms of continued education whose practical value is unquestioned. If these opportunities are impossible for the present, remember and use the guiding light of your public library with all its rich treasures of wisdom and discoveries, ideas and experiences of those who have sailed similar seas. Prepare seriously to become what you most want to be.

Broken Digit Made Bresnahan

A broken finger and a lame arm took Roger Bresnahan out of the box and put him back of the bat. The broken finger was Wilbert Robinson's, the sore arm was Tacks Lattimer's. Robbie was the first string catcher of the Baltimore club of the American league and Lattimer was his understudy. The incident occurred in Washington in 1901 and in the fifth inning of a game Bresnahan was pitching.

Arm Was Sore "Lattimer's arm was so sore he couldn't throw to the bases," says Bresnahan. "As soon as a Washington player got to first base, which, I regret to say, happened frequently, he would run to second base on one pitched ball and to third on the next. Tacks tried to stop them by aiming at Joe Cantillon, the umpire, who stood back of me, for in those days when a ball struck an umpire it was dead and runners who had advanced had to return to the bases they had left. Tacks succeeded in hitting Joe twice and so turned back two runners, but I figured that after a while he wouldn't be able to peg even that far.

"Warm somebody up to take my place Mac," I said to John McGraw, "and I'll go back there and catch."

McGinnity Went In. "Joe McGinnity went in the box and on the first ball pitched, a foul tip struck me on the index finger of my right hand and put it out of joint. I was sorry then that I had been so eager to catch, but I was back there and I wasn't going to quit. I managed to escape further injury during that game and Mac thought I would make a pretty good catcher, so he bought Jack Dunn to replace me on the pitching staff."

Bresnahan on His Way. Bresnahan, after this unusual beginning, went on his way to become one of the greatest catchers in the game's history and to distinguish himself on three separate counts: As the battery mate of Matty and McGinnity on the world champion Giants of 1906, as the adapter of the shin guards for catchers and while managing the St. Louis Cardinals as the man who developed two remarkable catchers in Frank Snyder and Ivy Wingo.

Alexander Beats Cubs

Grover Cleveland Alexander, shown in the photograph, once famous Cub pitcher, recently released to the St. Louis Cardinals on waivers, easily defeated his former teammates by a score of 3 to 2 on their first meeting, yielding but four hits.

Sport Notes

Dover is that historic point on the southeastern coast of England which the channel swimmer almost gets to.

A new apartment building in Paris has a covered lawn tennis court on each floor. They are of regulation size.

With a chest expansion of eight inches, Jim Jeffries boasted a greater inflation than any other boxer in the world.

The Notre Dame track and field squad has elected Della Maria of Chicago captain for 1927. He is a star sprinter.

William T. Tilden II, tennis champion, was given his first racket when he was five years old, and at the age of seven won his first tournament.

Brains are apparently a requisite to wrestlers. "Strangler" Lewis, Jim London, Renato Gardini and Wayne "Big" Munn are all college graduates.

Now that Jack Dempsey is going to risk his heavyweight title, fistie fans are wondering whether his new nose can withstand punching as well as the old one did.

Rowing may be added to the sports program of the Olympic club of San Francisco. Clyde King, former Annapolis star, has offered to instruct the candidates.

Nick Busch of Georgetown university, football play and boxer, has two degrees and soon expects to become a doctor of philosophy. He has never failed in an examination.

BASEBALL NOTES

The Pittsburgh Pirates are rated by the talent to be the best team in the National league, based on paper strength.

Laverne Costello, who was sent to Little Rock of the Southern league, but returned, has been given his unconditional release by Milwaukee.

Frank Cash, ace of the Muskogee pitching staff, has been sold to Denver of the Western league, for $3,000 cash and Pitchers Sonju and Monahan.

Amassing twenty-five hits and beating Boston, 16 to 4, the Pirates took first place in the National league race away from the Giants on June 8, 1921.

San Antonio has purchased Outfielder Ping Bodie from the Wichita Falls club. He is still able to hit them a mile and is regarded as a good card.

A new type of baseball, with a layer of India rubber wrapped around the crude rubber center, is reported to have been used in the 1925 world series.

Walter Christensen has been made manager of the Winston-Salem team for which he has been playing second base. W. C. Irby had been handling the Twins.

The veteran Ted Cather is shortstopping for Easton and doing a good job of it, besides hitting in excellent style. Buck Herzog has made Cather captain of the team.

Larry Lajole was the most graceful player in baseball and Hans Wagner the most awkward, yet both are ranked among the greatest in the history of the game.

Walter Jacobway, the former Ouachita college star, who made the training trip with the Cardinals this spring, is making a fine record for the Fort Smith twins.

Jarrell Wright, Texas collegian, sent to Reading by the Athletics, seems to be quite a pinch hitter. He delivered the winning blow in two games while batting for comrades.

J. Doak Roberts, president of the Texas league, received official notice of his election to membership on the national board of arbitration in the National Association of Baseball leagues.

George Davis, the New York university star signed by the New York Yankees, has the reputation of being one of the best outfielders in college circles and has hit consistently about the 400 mark.

A tour of the country by a team composed of old-time stars is planned by the Professional Baseball Players' association. The proceeds will go to make up a fund to take care of needy players.

Seek Elusive Elements in Dead Sea Waters

The Dead sea is the latest locale of the search for the two elements still missing from the chemist's periodic table. The high concentration of salts in this body of water caused J. Newton Friend of the Municipal Technical school of Birmingham, England, to consider the possibility of their containing either eka-caesium or eka-iodine, the names assigned to the elusive elements.

Diffractions of samples of the water were accordingly carried out and the final diffraction products submitted to X-ray analysis, but unfortunately the spectrum lines that would reveal the presence of either the one or the other failed to show up. Traces of the element strontium, however, were found, the presence of which had never before been recorded in any previous analyses of Dead sea water.—Science Service Bulletin.

Test Parachutes' Value

A new system of testing parachutes has been tried by the army air service. Two parachutes are dropped simultaneously from a plane in flight, allowing a comparison of their action in opening, speed and rate of descent. Parachutes with dummies are mounted on bomb racks under each wing and are released like bombs. Their action can then be checked. Most of the tests have been made at an altitude of 400 feet.

TWO WOMEN FOUND HELP

By Reading Experiences of Other Women

Mrs. Nina Matteson, Box 206, Oxford, N. Y., writes—"If it had not been for your medicine, I could not have done my work as it should have been done. Mother told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I had read in different papers what it had done for different women. She wanted me to try it, so my husband got me one bottle at first; then I took two others. Now I am feeling quite strong again."

Mrs. Ernest Tanguay of Adams, Mass., says she was ill for four years and could not sleep nights or go out on the street. She read about the Vegetable Compound and decided to try it. After taking eight bottles she was able to do all her work and go anywhere and is quite herself again.

This dependable Vegetable Compound is a household word in thousands of homes. The fourth generation is now learning the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For more than half a century, this reliable medicine has been used by women with very satisfactory results. If the Vegetable Compound has helped other women, why shouldn't it help you?

Mother! It's Cruel to "Physic" Your Child

To Dr. W. B. Caldwell, of Monticello, Ill., a practicing physician for 47 years, it seemed cruel that so many constipated infants and children "had to be kept constantly 'stirred up' and half sick by taking cathartic pills, tablets, salts, calomel and nasty oils.

While he knew that constipation was the cause of nearly all children's little ills, he did not believe that a sickening "purge" or "physic" was necessary.

In Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin he discovered a laxative which helps to establish natural bowel "regularity" even if the child is chronically constipated. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin not only causes a gentle, easy bowel movement, but, best of all, it never gripes, sickens or upsets the most delicate system. Besides, it is absolutely harmless, and so pleasant that even a cross, feverish, bilious, sick child gladly takes it.

Buy a large 60-cent bottle at any store that sells medicine and just see for yourself.

CHAPTER XII—Continued

Our conference was not leading us anywhere except into despondency, and I was relieved to witness a bustling activity down the creek, where a group of Natchez men seemed vitally interested in something. The group parted and I was gazing at the grandson of Strong Bow, the Huma chief. The young Huma carried a long calumet, which was decorated with the feathers of a white eagle, making it a pipe of peace. The word-bearer took the pipe from him and started with it toward the cabin of the Serpent. At that moment La Glorieuse came on the scene, barbaric and insolent, and with a glance read the situation. The Humas, allies of both the French and the Gulf Choctaws, were sending a peace pipe to the Natchez. The woman questioned the Huma rapidly; then swiftly ran after the aged word-bearer. Both Labrador and I were considering the same questions: Where was Damoan? What pipe would Tattooed Serpent return?

The minutes passed and I wondered what part La Glorieuse was playing in the drama inside the war-chief's cabin. Suddenly I realized I was doing wrong to remain aloof when I knew her influence would be hostile to me and Labrador. With a few hurried words to my friends I rose and made for the Serpent's cabin. As I reached the door the word-bearer came out, importantly holding before him a Natchez white pipe. Behind him walked the woman, her dark face lively with triumph. I had hoped the Serpent would return a pipe ablaze with flaming feathers.

The Serpent from his couch cordially invited me to enter.

"You send peace to the Humas, who are nothing but red Choctaws, and the friends of the French," I said.

He stared at me thoughtfully, and after a minute calmly replied:

"I do not ask white men what pipes I shall send to red men. I was about to send back the flaming pipe. But La Glorieuse opened my eyes. Who send a war-pipe to men of my own color, who want only peace? It would be foolish. It is time enough to send them a red ax when they begin to help the French."

"Damoan the Fox sent the Huma with the pipe. Can my red brother tell me where the Fox is? He is my enemy."

"He is near," was the evasive answer. "I have told him he may come in safety. That was the talk I sent with the pipe."

"He is word-bearer for the Iron Hand," I reminded; and the Serpent had excellent cause to remember Bienville and his masterful ways and his law of "an eye for an eye."

"I do not fear the Iron Hand, because I do not fear death. And yet I tell the White Indian that this war against the French is not to my liking. My brother, the Great Sun, wishes it. I love my brother and must, as war-chief, take the path. But I do not like it. The Chickasaws promised the Great Sun much and made him see things in a dream. The man you call the Fox sends a strong talk through the white pipe. I shall have him tell it to the Great Sun tomorrow after the woman has been buried."

"And if his talk sounds good in the ears of the Great Sun there will be no war?"

"Then the war-sticks will be taken back from all our villages and from the Chickasaws."

"What if the Iron Hand demands my head?"

"He cannot have it."

"What if he asks that the woman be sent to Biloxi?"

"He cannot have her. She is your woman."

"Can Iron Hand have the man Labrador?"

"No!" It was explosive. Then almost gently, although there was no gentleness in his dark eyes: "His face will show no fear."

I interpreted his cryptic words to mean my friend would die as a part of the funeral ceremony.

I retired and walked slowly about the village, trying to straighten out my thoughts before rejoining my friends. English influence, working through the Chickasaws, had brought on the threat of war against the French. It would be most important news to carry East should the Natchez back away from their bargain. More insistent was the fact that Damoan with all his cunning would be free within twenty-four hours to walk around the village and ply his arts on the Great Sun.

Although I trusted implicitly the Serpent's assurance that the girl and I were safe I was most anxious to get away from the village before the great Sun could be induced to recall the war-sticks from the Chickasaws. I depended upon the latter's friendship for the English to help me along my journey to the English settlements, and their hatred for Bienville would sorely prejudice them against my French friends, especially if he told them the Natchez refused to break away from their allegiance with the French.

In returning to my friends my attention was attracted to a medicine-man seated before his cabin. He was busy mixing vermilion as I paused to give him greeting. As the vermilion was not for war I knew it must be for the funeral ceremony.

"Who is to wear the new red?" I asked, after a respectful silence.

"It is to brighten the face of him who may be afraid to die. His face shall show no fear," he mumbled, bending low over his task as a hint he would talk no more with me.

The new point was intended to cover any pallor in Labrador's dark countenance. It was a custom of the Natchez, this painting a victim's face, so that none could say a coward's death disgraced the noble dead.

The girl had fallen asleep in the warm sun. Labrador was staring at her most worshipfully. Without arousing her I hurriedly informed him of the new paint, whereat he made a grimace. I told him of the Natchez' strong inclination to take back their war-pipe from the Chickasaws and bury the ax they had promised to raise up against the French. In detail I spoke of escape and announced my preference for the overland trip from the Bluffs to Long Town. He readily agreed we did better to trust to the Chickasaws to stand between us and any pursuit, provided they were not enraged by the withdrawal of the Natchez to a point where they must shed white blood.

"The start must be tonight," he whispered. "Anything to save mademoiselle. Ah, that Fox! If I could only meet him when his Choctaws are not at his back! Well, the good God may send that happy day before this is finished. I have made my plan. I will go into the village as if to visit the Serpent, and pass on into the forest—and keep on traveling. I will leave my musket with you and take only my ax, knife and pistol. They will think I am coming back so long as you two are here. And they will never look for me to leave unless I go down the way we came. When it is dark you and mademoiselle take the trail to Fort Rosalie, keep clear of the fort and make the river north of it. There you will find pirogues. You will also find me waiting for you if all goes well. Adieu!"

Without waiting to hear my opinion on his planning he laid aside his musket and stroiled into the village. He had thought it out very wisely. The Natchez would not suspect Labrador of planning to escape in the daylight and without his gun.

CHAPTER XIII

Farewell to the River.

Labrador was waiting for us above Fort Rosalie, and we started on our long journey in a stolen pirogue. We saw nothing of Damoan and his men; and as the days passed I began to hope he had abandoned the pursuit.

So, with no daily crisis to keep us alert, we three subsided and dwelt within ourselves. With danger left behind I had expected mademoiselle to become buoyant and more girlish. To the contrary she seemed to be more mature, more thoughtful. At times I almost thought she regretted leaving New Orleans and her countrymen, that she already felt the chill of our more rugged northern clime and was perhaps interpreting it as a symbol of the welcome awaiting her beyond the Appalachians.

Her bearing was less surprising than Labrador's. He was preoccupied, often depressed, and seldom spoke unless one of us addressed him. Even answering the girl he first had to tear his mind free from some gloomy obsession.

Instead of the excellent companions we had been to each other in the stress of danger we were three taciturn, solemn individuals, each wrapped in a blanket of introspection.

One night Labrador left our fire and walked to the river bank and stared out over the water. Mademoiselle timidly asked me:

"Those English? Will they look on me as a queer woman?"

"They will think you a most wonderful little woman."

"But alone with two men? And dressed like a savage?"

"They would think you mad to travel up this river without men to protect you, or if you were the flimsy gowns of the old country."

"Yet they will not receive me as an equal?"

"We have some social distinctions," I admitted. "The landowner naturally lives on a different plane from the landless. Yet there is nothing to prevent the first from degenerating to the lowest plane, or the latter from climbing into the dignity of an estate."

Of course this was false, as there were certain types who never would be socially received, no matter how much worldly gear they might accumulate.

After a few minutes of silence she said:

"Monsieur, that other matter you mentioned as a way to help me. You understand how impossible that would be?"

"So long as you say so. It is most impossible. You should not trouble yourself by thinking of it."

"The river makes one forget. I always think of it stretching around the world. Last night I dreamed I was dead; that the three of us here were dead, and that we must forever work our way up this ferocious stream. I awoke, and for a bit believed we three were dead. I tried to remember just when we died, or were killed. Monsieur Labrador is no longer dead. He thinks of a woman. Of the Indian woman who died," she softly explained.

"Ridiculous!" I cried.

She lifted her head and stared at me, as a well-bred woman rebukes one guilty of an incivility. I was blundering around in the midst of apologies when Labrador returned to the fire. His forehead wore a frown. He did not seem to see us.

"Old friend, you are held by little devils," I said. "Of what are you thinking?"

"I was thinking of a woman, monsieur."

The girl glanced at me in haughty triumph. Labrador twisted his cap into smaller compass and sadly added:

"Of the Natchez woman. She was very fond of me."

He had no more to confide, and my respect for the girl's reasoning suddenly became exaggerated. It was the last explanation of Labrador's mood I would have arrived at. Once I knew it, however, there was nothing to be gained by meditating on it. But the girl's reference to my offer of marriage was an entirely different matter. That contained endless room for speculation.

The next day opened with rain. The storm blew down the river and was very disagreeable to face, as the rain blurred the vision. Yet I was determined to make the Bluffs that day, and once for all have done with the Mississippi.

When we landed at Chickasaw bluffs she gave voice to a fervent, "Thank God!"

"From now on it will be overland travel, mademoiselle," I told her. "You may find it hard at first, although the trail is good. We will go slowly until you are used to it."

"Go fast! Go fast!" she urged. "The farther we draw from the river—the miserable—the better I shall feel."

We gained the top of the bluffs, and I led the way into the Chickasaw trail. I explained to the girl how we must follow it for more than a hundred and sixty miles to reach Long Town, Labrador, as if bidding farewell to the river forever, went to the brink of a bluff and stared gloomily at the leaden waters below.

I saw him lift his hands, as if in adieu, then leave the gesture unfinished and lean forward and peer intently down-stream. I called and after a bit of hesitation he turned and swaggered back to us. He smiled at the girl, and gave me a look that made me examine the flint in my gun.

"Forty-foot pirogue coming upstream. Filled with Indians. I think there is one white man in it," he told me in Choctaw, with a flash of his white teeth.

The girl was not to be deceived by his cheery manner, and fiercely demanded:

"What is it? Where are they?"

"There is a canoe down the river, heading this way. We don't know who is in it. There is nothing to fear. If mademoiselle will put her best foot forward for a few miles we will laugh at them. Remember, there is no danger. We shall be far up the trail before they can even land."

I meant this assurance only in part. Mademoiselle at her best could make but slow progress. Not used to forest travel and long confined to the pirogue she made me groan inwardly. She believed she was doing famously, and as the Choctaws would hunt us silently, not daring to proclaim their presence by their usual cries of discovery I expected any minute to behold them bounding from the bushes.

Labrador, too, was very uneasy and wished to drop back and guard the trail. I would not listen to his proposition, and muttering under his breath he suddenly caught the girl up and ran with her. She protested and struggled, but he paid no heed. She quickly quieted when she saw it was useless to resist. I raced along at his side and when he tired he passed her to me. And in this fashion we ran, taking turns in carrying her, and making excellent progress. I believed we were beyond all danger.

Our awakening came when the girl happened to glance back. She gave a shrill scream. Before she had finished Labrador had her behind a tree and I was under cover on the other side of the trail. I could see nothing to cause alarm.

"What was it, mademoiselle?" I asked, my voice betraying my impatience. I fear.

"A painted face close to the ground," she huskily replied, and pointing a trembling finger at a sycamore half way down our field of vision.

"You imagined it," I told her as she walked beside me up the trail with Labrador bringing up the rear.

"I tell you I saw it! A horrible face, with white and yellow stripes running up and down—"

With a low exclamation that was more a bark than any spoken word Labrador swept the girl from my side and darted with her into a clump of oaks. I did not pause to look back, but followed him. A long arrow sithered against a tree within a few inches of my head as I joined my friends.

Little Need to Fear Bite of Brown Spider

Though spider bites may often be painful, especially to certain individuals, they do not justify the fear many persons exhibit for the eight-legged creatures, as most spiders are harmless; few of them are dangerously poisonous. All of the 400 or 500 species that a persistent seeker may find within easy reach of most American communities have poison glands, but none are so poisonous as they are reputed to be. Such poisons as they have are intended for defense against others in the spider's world of miniature life and for killing or rendering harmless the tiny creatures which supply her diet. Man's organism is so great that it will not succumb to this dose of poison that suffices to kill an insect. The bites of a few species, nevertheless, do cause severe pain. The danger of their being inflicted, however, is offset to some extent by the color warning given to most of us by this class of arachnida. The more dangerous species display brilliant and sometimes very beautiful colors which at once attract attention; but of the ordinary little brown spiders we need have no fear.

Musical Trees

In Barbados there is a whistling tree. It has a peculiar shaped leaf, and all its pods have a split edge. The wind passing through the pods causes them to emit the sounds that have given the tree its name. There is a long valley packed with these trees, and when the trade winds blow across the island a continuous deep-toned whistle comes from the valley, the effect being extremely weird. In the Sudan there is a species of acacia also known as the whistling tree.—Grit.

I know it perfectly—the generic timber—the composite echo etched into my mind by a thousand conscious listenings. But it will not get past my consciousness to my lips, and utterly refuses to descend my arm and pen.—William Beebe.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

BEAR CHATS

"Of course," said Mr. Bear, "I used to live in the woods."

Trying to Cool Himself.

"What is that?" asked the other bears.

"The winter has come and gone," said Mr. Bear, "and we have been doing just the same as usual."

"If we had been free we would have been filling up our tummies with berries and all sorts of goodies so that we wouldn't have wanted to eat anything until the early spring."

"We would have gone to sleep for the winter if we had been free, but here in the zoo, of course, we couldn't."

"Now the prairie dogs went to sleep just the same as though they had been out of the zoo."

"In or out of the zoo, they do the same. But we do differently."

"We aren't allowed to eat a great, great deal which would last us all winter."

"The keeper sees that we get fed regular meals, so that we can't sleep, or rather so long a time."

"When we are free we have great autumn feasts, and then great winter sleeps, but here in the zoo we eat when the keeper feeds us and we sleep regular daily or nightly sleeps, and little naps, too."

"But it always seems very strange to me," continued Mr. Bear, "when the autumn has passed and I find myself still awake looking around at the people and the snowstorms and the winter."

"Still, I believe in changing one's ways to suit the place one is in, so in the zoo I live zoo ways and when free I live free ways."

And the other bears all agreed that they thought it best to do just the same.

Then Mrs. Polar Bear began to speak.

"Listen, children, boys and girls," she growled, as she sat, trying to cool herself upon a big cake of ice which the keeper had given to her.

"You all think it is hot, and you're right. Gracious, mercy me, but you're right. It is hot and it seems hotter than ever, though I think that every summer."

"Now, I see you walking about, and you take out your handkerchiefs and you mop your foreheads and fan yourselves. You go in wading and swimming whenever you can and you eat ice cream, too, whenever you can."

"I have no objection to any of these things which you do. But just remember, children, and tell your daddies and your mothers to remember it, too."

"Remember that you've all put your furs away for the summer; that you've put away your winter clothes and you've taken out summer ones."

"You wear short sleeves, and often you don't wear stockings. But the polar bears can't change their clothes. They have no summer outfit."

"They do not store away their clothes. They can't."

"And what is more, in the winter you not only bundle up, but you live in houses which are warm, I'm told, and you never go swimming in ice-caked pools or anything like that."

"But the polar bears do. No weather is too cold for them. In the winter they love ice, too."

"So can you imagine what it is to them in the summer, when they can't put on cool things and when they aren't nearly so used to the heat as you are? No they aren't used to it, for the home of the polar bears is far up North, where there are icebergs and where the weather is never of the kind that makes people fan themselves."

"So don't complain of the heat too much, for there are others who feel it more than you. Ah, there is some one who knows it," added Mrs. Polar Bear, as the keeper put another huge chunk of ice in her yard—something which he did many times these hot days.

Like a Farthing

Why is the North pole like a quarrel of a penny? Because it is a far-thing.

Hemline Flare Is Seeking Admirers

Mode Still Persists; Same Influence May Dominate Autumn Fashions.

It will come as something of a relief to learn that the Paris midseason collections have not furthered the reaction toward the slender silhouette. Indeed, even the hemline flare, once the leading insurrectionist against the simple and narrow outline, but more lately snubbed by an ungrateful mode, has returned to claim some of its early admirers. Despite the many predictions of a return to the straight silhouette, the spirit of the flare still persists, declares a fashion writer in the New York Herald-Tribune, and it is our belief that the same influence will dominate the modes of next autumn.

The flare, in its present connotation, does not exclusively mean the hemline distension which was its first and most popular manifestation. It now indicates any deviation from the strictly parallel outline which was the essence of the post-war silhouette.

The question of skirt length, about which so many conflicting ideas have been broadcast, remains in status quo. Despite rumors of greater length, afternoon dresses are as short as ever and sometimes a little shorter. Evening dresses are clearly longer but that is not of great significance. Indications at the moment are that late summer and early autumn will witness a slightly lowered hemline. It will be no more than a few inches at most, however, and it will not be the forerunner of the ankle-length skirt. For which you may be duly grateful.

Two-Piece Frocks. Generally, the present midseason collections confirm the various tendencies that were launched earlier in the spring. Outstanding is the universal prevalence of the two-piece frock, though for day wear rather than evening dress, in which realm it has given way to the more feminine and elaborately worked gown that contrasts sharply with the sports-like tendency of the day-time mode.

Jeans. Patou shows jumper frocks even for the afternoon in town, and of such material and make that they are suitable for the bridge party or the tea dansant as well as the street. One particularly smart model is made of black satin, and has that touch of pink which is particularly fashionable just now. It appears in the cravette, the cuffs and in two narrow rows in the skirt above the hem. The whole skirt is finely plaited.

Another charming example of the jumper frock in the Patou collection is a dainty model that will be much worn at Deauville and Biarritz throughout the summer. It is made of beige crepe de chine, finely hand-tucked in horizontal lines with a small square yoke, the latter left untucked. A narrow gold leather belt gives the final touch of originality to this pretty frock, which has the skirt plaited with the same degree of fineness as the tucks on the jumper.

Contrast in Coat and Dress. Also noteworthy among the general tendencies of the demi-season offerings is the contrast between coat and dress in the two-piece ensembles. A Louiseboulanger model illustrates a very happy interpretation of this idea. She shows a straight coat in mauve laine made with the new deep yoke that also goes over the top of the sleeves in a shield movement. This coat is lined with dull rose crepe de chine which has a hint of mauve in it. The dress is also made of this rose crepe and has a new line in the interesting long stole front that hangs loose from a pointed yoke at the back, having crossed the shoulders.

The Clashing Ensemble. Molyneux carries out the contrasting coat and dress in rep and foulard. He has a belted coat in navy blue that is lined with foulard printed in bright blue and black on a white ground. The same foulard is used for the dress, which has a border of blue, black and white stripes round the hem.

Another characteristic of the mid-season is the further development of the uneven hemline. This is seen in points and petal edges on the more elaborate afternoon dresses, and sometimes in turrets on simpler gowns, as in one smart pale yellow model by Louiseboulanger that is cut out to make the box plait in front appear a little longer than the rest of the skirt. The same cut is used in the plain black, thus giving wider serrated edges all along.

Midseason Evening Gowns.

In evening gowns the midseason showing of the haute couture evidences a continuation of the two schools that have opposed each other all spring at the smart Paris functions. On the one side there is the plain chiffon gown developed in various effective colors. The significant point of this type du soir is that it is entirely devoid of trimming except in the shape of some flower or motif of the same color as the dress. Molyneux varies this very slightly by using marquisette instead of chiffon, and the effect is as light and airy as if the fabric were chiffon. Pale turquoise blue and beige that is ranged from palest champagne to light nut brown are the most popular new colorings for these gowns, though there is still a great deal of currant red, geranium rose and a beautiful bright green with a hint of blue in it like the color of Kentucky grass. White is also used and there is a great deal of very simple black that is being worn by young girls.

The other school of evening gowns is what is known as the glittering type. It depends for its effect on the richness and sparkle of its embroidery or fringes which are carried out in the beads and sequins and sometimes diamante and crystal. The form of the latter species is straighter than that of the chiffon gown, for the fullness necessitated by a filmy material is replaced by flat bouffees and slashed panels in a gown that is weighted by embroidery. Another contrast in their elaborate types is the often one-sided effect given by drapery in the plain chiffon gowns, whereas the embroidered dress is usually symmetrical in form.

For the Traveler.

The urban exodus is about to begin. Two things are uppermost in the mind of the prospective feminine traveler. What shall she wear for the trip itself and the incidental touring, and what types of dress will insure her certain smartness, even when sojourning in a strange country.

The first consideration for the traveler is that she arrive at her destination as fresh and trim, or almost so, as when she started out. Nothing is more disillusioning than to leave home in a fresh frock of some lightweight material and descend from the train or motor hours later in something that is so wrinkled and rumpled as to bear almost no resemblance to its former self. Therefore when traveling choose a costume of soft woolen mixture. These are admirable for retaining their lines and not showing dust and soil. As the present tendency is toward a great expression of color, the dull, drab checks are not so desirable as those of a gayer tone.

Mohair provides an alternative for the woman who finds the woolen too warm, particularly for train travel, and it has the further advantage of cleaning easily when necessary. If one chooses this material it is important to avoid those combined with artificial silk, as this is apt to crease and frill in an unbecoming manner when traveling. Skirts are usually plaited to insure freedom of movement and come in all sorts of widths and styles. Many of them, with a view to delivering the wearer at her stopping place with all her pristine glory intact, are confining their plaits to the sides and front, so that all possibility of the unlovely crushed look is avoided.

GET YOURSELF A BRAND NEW LIVER

How Dodson's Liver Tonic Makes You Feel the Old Liver Is Born Again.

Just off the slant of Old Piedmont where it rolls away into the foot-hills of South Georgia Bud Evans makes a good stand of cotton. A year ago he was too sick to even follow a plow. His right side seemed hard, felt as if his liver had turned to stone; belched gas all the time; couldn't hold up his head for the pain; calomel just turned him inside out. You couldn't imagine anyone sicker than Bud Evans. It just happened that an egg buyer dropped in on him one day and says: "What you need, Bud, is a dose of Dodson's Liver Tonic—your liver is baked and full up so it doesn't work." And so Bud got a bottle at the town drug store for a few cents. The very first night it loosened up so much sour bile and fermenting food that the swelling went down, his whole system righted itself and he was a new man entirely before noon.

There is no question but that Dodson's Liver Tonic did more for bilious people than anything else ever known. It works easily and smoothly, without gripe or distress, and cleans out all the sour bile and stinking stuff that gives you headache, nausea, vomiting, bilious fever and all the other distresses due to obstinate constipation.

Get one bottle of Dodson's Liver Tonic, and if it doesn't make you feel like you had traded your old, worn-out liver for a new one full of pep, go to the druggist and he will refund the price.

Fisher's engineering experts—skilled beyond their calling by virtue of years of continuous research and experimentation with all types of body construction—unhesitatingly aver that none but Body by Fisher—exclusively used by General Motors for Cadillac, Buick, Chevrolet, Oakland, Oldsmobile and Pontiac cars—affords the essential virtues of safety, beauty and comfort which characterize every Fisher product. Quite logically the public knows that when any improvement which really gives an enhanced measure of safety, comfort and luxury is perfected, Fisher will be the first to present it just as Fisher has created and been the first to present every important improvement in body design and construction of the past decade.

NEW LOW PRICES Firestone GUM-DIPPED TIRES

Close-up section of Gum-Dipped Balloon showing increased cord strength and more flexible tread, compared to many other tires, all thoroughly waterproof and treated with rubber by Gum-Dipping.

Car owners have never been able to buy tire mileage at so low a cost per mile as they can buy Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires today. And never before have they been able to buy tires so comfortable, safe and trouble free.

This is possible because of the highly skilled research engineers who have developed special machinery and processes for manufacturing Gum-Dipped Tires, combined with economical national distribution through efficient Service Dealers, many equipped with the latest Firestone methods of repairing High Pressure, Full-Size Balloon, Bus and Truck Tires.

Firestone's long fight against the British Rubber Restriction Act has saved car owners millions of dollars.

We can serve you better with these wonderful tires and save you money. Come in today.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO THE CONSTITUTION

Senate Joint Resolution No. 9
A Joint Resolution relating to the amending of Article 16, Section 58, of the Constitution of the State of Texas, abolishing the Board of Prison Commissioners; providing for the supervision and management of the Prison System, under such laws as may be provided for by the Legislature.

Be it Resolved by the Legislature of the State of Texas:

Section 1. That Article 16, Section 58 of the Constitution of the State of Texas, be amended so as to hereafter read as follows:

Section 58. The Legislature shall have full power and authority to provide by law for the management and control of the Prison System of Texas; and to this end shall have power and authority to place the Prison System under the supervision, management and control of such trained and experienced officer, or officers, as the Legislature may from time to time provide for by law.

Section 2. The above Constitutional amendment shall be submitted to a vote of the qualified electors of this State at a general election to be held November 3, 1926, at which election all voters favoring said proposed amendment shall write or have printed on their ballot the words "For the amendment of Article 16, Section 58 of the Constitution, abolishing the Board of Prison Commissioners." And all those opposing said amendment shall write or have printed on their ballot the words "Against the amendment of Article 16, Section 58, of the Constitution, abolishing the Board of Prison Commissioners."

Section 3. The Governor of this State is hereby directed to issue the necessary proclamation for said election and have the same published as required by law.

Section 4. The sum of $5,000.00, or so much thereof as may be necessary is hereby appropriated out of the funds in the Treasury of the State, and not otherwise appropriated, to pay the expenses of such publication and election.

Approved, April 4, 1925.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO THE CONSTITUTION

House Joint Resolution No. 9
A Resolution proposing an amendment to Art. 7, of the Constitution of the State of Texas by changing Section 3, eliminating the provision authorizing the Legislature to create special districts and making an appropriation therefor.

Be it Resolved by the Legislature of the State of Texas:

Section 1. That Section 3, Article 7, of the Constitution be so changed as to read as follows: (creating new Section.)

Section 3. One-fourth of the revenue derived from the State Occupation taxes and poll tax of one dollar on every inhabitant of the State, between the ages of twenty-one and sixty years, shall be set apart annually for the benefit of the public free schools; and in addition thereto, there shall be levied and collected an annual ad valorem State tax of such an amount not to exceed thirty-five cents on the one hundred ($100.00) dollars valuation, as with the available school fund arising from all other sources, will be sufficient to maintain and support the public schools of this State for a period of not less than six months in each year, and it shall be the duty of the State Board of Education to set aside a sufficient amount out of the said tax to provide free text books for the use of children attending the public free schools of this State; provided, however, that should the limit of taxation herein named be insufficient the deficit may be met by appropriation from the general funds of the State and the Legislature may also provide for the formation of school districts by general laws; and all such school districts may embrace parts of two or more counties, and the Legislature shall be authorized to pass laws for the assessment and collection of taxes in all said districts and for the management and control of the public school or schools of such districts, whether such districts are composed of territory wholly within a county or in parts of two or more counties, and the Legislature may authorize an additional ad valorem tax to be levied and collected within all school districts heretofore formed or hereafter formed, for the further maintenance of public free schools, and for the erection and equipment of school buildings therein; provided that a majority of the qualified property tax paying voters of the district voting at an election to be held for that purpose shall vote such tax not to exceed in any one year one ($1.00) dollar on the hundred dollars valuation of the property subject to taxation in such district, but the limitation upon the amount of school district tax herein authorized shall not apply to incorporate cities or towns constituting separate and independent school districts, nor to independent or common school districts created by general or special law.

Sec. 2. The foregoing constitutional amendment shall be submitted to a vote of the qualified electors of the State at an election to be held throughout the State on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, 1927, at which election all voters favoring said proposed amendment shall write or have printed on their ballots the words, "For the amendment to the Constitution of the State of Texas eliminating the provision which authorizes the Legislature to create special school districts," and all those opposing shall write or have printed on their ballots the words, "Against the amendment to the Constitution of the State of Texas eliminating the provision which authorizes the Legislature to create special school districts."

Sec. 3. The Governor of the State is hereby directed to issue the necessary proclamation for said election and to have same published as required by the Constitution and existing laws of the State.

Section 4. That the sum of two thousand ($2,000.000) dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated out of any funds in the Treasury of the State of Texas not otherwise appropriated, to pay the expenses of such publication and election.

Approved April 4, 1925.
EMMA GRIGSBY MEHARG,
Secretary of State.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO THE CONSTITUTION

Senate Joint Resolution No. 7

Proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the State of Texas by amending Section 33 and Section 40 of Article 16 of the Constitution of Texas so as to permit officers of the National Guard, the National Guard

Reserve, and the Officers Reserve Corps of the United States, and enlisted men of the National Guard, the National Guard Reserve, and the Organized Reserves of the United States to hold public office in Texas.

Be it Resolved by the Legislature of the State of Texas:

Section 1. That Section 33 of Article 16 of the Constitution of the State of Texas be amended so as to read as follows:

"The accounting officers of this State shall neither draw nor pay a warrant upon the Treasury in favor of any person, for salary or compensation as agent, officer or appointee, who holds at the same time any other office or position of honor, trust or profit, under this State or the United States; except as prescribed in this Constitution. Provided, that this restriction as to the drawing and paying of warrants upon the Treasury shall not apply to officers of the National Guard of Texas, the National Guard Reserve, the Officers Reserve Corps of the United States, nor to enlisted men of the National Guard, the National Guard Reserve, and the Organized Reserves of the United States."

Section 2. That Section 40 of Article 16 of the Constitution of the State of Texas be amended so as to read as follows:

"No person shall hold or exercise, at the same time, more than one civil office of emolument, except that of Justice of the Peace, County Commissioner, Notary Public and Postmaster, officer of the National Guard, the National Guard Reserve, and the Officers Reserve Corps of the United States, and enlisted men of the National Guard, the National Guard Reserve, and the Organized Reserves of the United States, unless otherwise specially provided herein. Provided, that nothing in this Constitution shall be construed to prohibit an officer, or enlisted man of the National Guard, or an officer in the Officers Reserve Corps of the United States, or an enlisted man in the Organized Reserves of the United States from holding in conjunction with such office any other office or position of honor, trust or profit, under this State or the United States."

Section 3. The foregoing Constitutional amendment shall be submitted to a vote of the qualified electors of this State at an election to be held on the first Tuesday in November, A. D. 1926, at which all ballots shall have printed thereon:

"For the Constitutional amendment permitting officers and enlisted men of the National Guard, and the National Guard Reserve, and officers of the Officers Reserve Corps of the United States, and enlisted men of the Organized Reserves of the United States, to hold other offices or positions of honor, trust or profit under this State or the United States," and:

"Against the Constitutional amendment permitting officers and enlisted men of the National Guard, and the National Guard Reserve, and officers of the Officers Reserve Corps of the United States, and enlisted men of the Organized Reserves of the United States, to hold other offices or positions of honor, trust or profit under this State or the United States."

Each voter shall scratch out one of said clauses on the ballot, leaving the one expressing his vote on the proposed amendment.

Section 4. The Governor shall issue the necessary Proclamation for said election, and have the same published as required by the Constitution and laws of this State. The expense of publication and election for such amendment shall be paid out of proper appropriation made by law.

Approved March 16, 1925.
EMMA GRIGSBY MEHARG,
Secretary of State.
