Martial Law Enforced

ISLASMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — The army, under orders to shoot curfew violators on sight, enforced martial law in three of Pakistan's largest cities today after one of the bloodiest days in the six weeks of political violence.

Martial law and round-the-clock curfews were enforced in Karachi and Hyderabad in the south and Lahore in the north, and a curfew was in effect in in the northern city of Lyallpur.

The curfew, keeping residents indoors most of the day, was relaxed for two or three house in all four cities today to allow people to buy food.

Gypsies Hurl Charges

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — The police eviction of two bands of Gypsies from the state has stirred complaints from national leaders of Gypsies and charges that the action violated the group's constitutional rights.

The evictions occurred Thursday when state police escorted two caravans of cars carrying over 40 men, women and children to the Massachusetts border. The Gypsies were evicted after several weeks of complaints from merchants that they were crowding stores, distracting clerks and stealing.

Plan Fuels Inflation

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter acknowledges that his energy plan will help fuel inflation, but says the overall impact on the economy will be beneficial.

Computer studies show inflation might be increased by less than one-half of 1 per cent, Carter said at a news conference Friday.

Budget Director Bert Lance later Friday issued a sharply revised forecast for this year's rise in consumer prices. He predictd a 6.7 per cent hike in prices this year, instead of the 5.3 per cent estimate just two months ago.

Oil Slick Spreads

STAVANGER, Norway (AP) — A giant oil slick spread over the center of the North Sea today after a pipe burst on an offshore drilling platform and sent an 180-foot-high fountain of oil cascading into the water.

Norwegian authorities warned that the southern coast of Norway and the western coast of Denmark may be hit by severe pollution within a few days, depending on weather and wind conditions.

The SDN Column

Henry Clark, president of the Snyder Chamber of Commerce, was startled when he saw the list of past Chamber presidents in the tabloid supplement we published on the day of the big banquet a week ago Friday. The first one listed was his grandfather, H. P. Wellborn, who headed the Chamber in 1926, and now Clark, the grandson, is filling the same roll exactly 50 years later.

This is Clark's second time around, since he also served as Chamber president in 1968. However, he said he was not aware that his grandfather was Chamber president until he saw the list in the banquet section.

In case you forgot to set your clock up (move it forward) Saturday night before you retired for the day, it is now one hour later than you think. Daylight Saving Time began officially at 2 a.m. today, and, unless Congress makes some changes, it will continue until the last Sunday in October.

We have been informed that the final test to determine whether spring really has arrived was passed Thursday, April 21. There is an adage that if it thunders in February there will be a freeze, or frost, on the corresponding date in April. We do not recall any thunder in February, but perhaps there was. Anyway, there was a report that it thundered here on Feb. 21. A cool spell prevailed over the area on April 21, but the low reading Thursday morning was merely 45 degrees and the overnight low Thursday night was only 42. So, it must be spring.

DURING FIRST 100 DAYS IN PRESIDENT'S OFFICE

Carter Has Many Foreigners Puzzled

By THOMAS FENTON
Associated Press Writer

Even as he approaches 100 days in office, President Carter is still a puzzle for many people around the world, a political oddity without a label, an object of both praise and alarm. A survey by Associated Press correspondents abroad showed Carter has evoked controversy with his support for human rights, his handling of arms limitation talks with the Soviet Union and his commitment to stop the spread of nuclear weapons - all major issues of his administration, which will be 100 days old next Friday.

The British, traditional allies, hailed Carter's appeal for human rights, but criticized the U.S. administration's handling of the arms control talks in Moscow and for its refusal to pressure the Port Authority of New York to give landing rights to the British-French Concorde supersonic jetliner.

President Valery Giscard d'Estaing of France has said the barring of Concorde from New York would have "political consequences," but the French in general have praised Carter on his human rights stand. Some cautioned it could have pitfalls, however.

"Waving the flag of liberty to attack the Soviet regime, Jimmy Carter risks exacerbating hostile feelings with the Kremlin leaders," said the newspaper Le Matin de Paris.

The Lisbon newspaper A Capital said Carter "has managed to: exasperate the Soviet Union, irritate Argentina and Brazil, inspite dissident Russians and alarm disarmament campaigners."

But Prof. Yoshimitsu Ide of Tsukuba University in Japan maintained that Carter was only bringing back "an American tradition since the founding of the republic" when he linked human rights to U.S. foreign policy.

"It is only natural to think that Carter's diplomacy of human rights is dangerous enough to invite the antagonism of the nations concerned because it is 'naive and interventionistie'," Prof. Ide wrote in the newspaper Yomiuri. "This is true especially at the present time when there are many who think Carter is ruralistic, religious and moralistic and cannot understand the complex framework of the present world."

After the Soviet Union rejected the Carter proposals for arms limitations, the newspaper Tages-Anzeiber of Switzerland wrote: "Seldom has the big power prestige of the Soviet Union been challenged in a more amateurish way."

One Moscow resident said, "Carter is the cowboy in the White House. He is not a diplomat. He has not been in Washington. This shows what happens when a man who has been a peanut farmer tries to be President of the United

THREE MEET IN SNYDER

Daughters Recall Ranger Father As Being Stern

By JOHN LONG

Three daughters of an early-day Texas Ranger remember their father as being stern, self-assured man who had "no patience with mediocrity."

The remarks are remembrances of Capt. George W. Arrington shared by three of his daughters. Making the observations were Mrs. Empress Bowers of Snyder, Mrs. Orlean Hoghland of Perryton and Mrs. Caroline Long of Sedona, Ariz.

The three women met this week in the home of Mrs. Bowers and began reminiscing about their father, nicknamed the "Iron-handed man of the Panhandle."

Arrington received the nickname during his eight years of service in the Texas Rangers. Eventually achieving the rank of captain, Arrington spent much of his service with the Rangers in the rough and tumultuous Texas Panhandle.

Arrington, his daughters said, joined the Rangers in the early to middle 1870s and stayed in the service until 1882.

The sisters remember their father as being a man of average height and medium build with keen black eyes who always had a beard.

Mrs. Hoghland said their father may have had a scar on his chin and wore the beard for cosmetic reasons. None of the women ever saw their father without his beard, however, and the reputed scar was only a story that had been told to them.

Capt. Arrington did, though, carry a lead slug in one of his legs from an old Civil War wound.

Arrington was born in Greensboro, Ala., on Dec. 23, 1844. Even though some of his relatives lived in the North, he fought on the side of the Confederacy during the Civil War, having enlisted when he was 16 years old.

Once, following the battle of Gettysburg, his daughters said, he had been shot in the leg while on a scouting expedition and briefly taken prisoner.

He jumped off a prisoner transport train and rejoined his Confederate unit. Later in the war, he joined a special guerrilla attack unit.

After the Civil War, Arrington traveled to Mexico and joined briefly Maximillian's forces.

After his brief excursion into Mexico, Arrington returned to the United States and worked for a time on the railroad, in a lumberyard and then as a school teacher in Arkansas.

His eight years in the Texas Rangers, his daughters said, were marked by rapid promotion.

Following his resignation from the Rangers in 1882, Arrington settled in Wheeler County in the Panhandle and became sheriff for Wheeler and 14 surrounding and still unorganized counties.

During his eight years as

Voss Wins By 7 Votes

Bill Voss retained his place on the Snyder School Board by a slender, seven-vote margin in Saturday's runoff election.

Complete, unofficial returns showed Voss with a total of 279 votes, while Lawanna Vincent had a total of 272. There was one write-in vote for Ross Carroll.

Only 552 voters went to the polls for the runoff, including 74 who cast absentee ballots.

In the April 2 election, Voss, the Place 3 incumbent on the board, needed only 12 more votes for a majority as he rolled up 434 votes, compared to 325 for Mrs. Vincent and 120 for Billye Robbins. A total of 892 voters cast ballots on April 2.

BILL VOSS

The victory in the runoff enabled Voss to become the second incumbent to win re-election to the school board. Bill Clayton was re-elected to Place 5 on the board in the April 2 election.

Thus, the only newcomer on the board is Jerry Rice, who won the Place 3 seat on the board. He succeeds Bill Eiland who did not seek re-election.

Other board members whose terms were not up this year include Vera McSpadden president of the board, Max von Roeder, Ted Crenwelge and Dillard Teal.

Also going to the state meet will be Sweetwater's one-act play, which gave District 3-AAA a sweep of the regional contest.

Snyder's Marca Parham was named best actress in the region, while Mickie Robinson and Kim Massingill were named to the all-star cast and John Hopkins and Robby Moore received honorable mention.

Snyder High will have three students competing in individual events and one alternate in the state meet. Cheryl Taylor placed second in typewriting in the regional contest, while Russell McCain was second in science and Terri Eaton was second in shorthand and Debbie Inman was the alternate in shorthand.

Registration For Kindergarten Set

The annual Spring Roundup registration of children who will be entering Snyder Public Schools kindergarten in August will begin Monday and continue through Thursday.

A valid birth certificate must be presented at the time of registration. School officials reminded that hospital, or baptismal certificates are not acceptable under Texas law.

Also, immunization records from a health unit, clinic or physician must be presented certifying immunization against polio, diphtheria-tetanus, measles-rebelo and rubella. These are required by Texas law. Although not required, mumps vaccine and tuberculin tests are highly recommended.

If immunizations are not completed, a record should show that the child enrolling is in the process of completing immunizations.

Scurry Travel Receipt Share Over $4 Million

AUSTIN—Scurry County received $4,118,000 of the state's $5,306,118,000 travel receipts in 1975, a national study commissioned by the Texas Tourist Development Agency has disclosed.

In addition to gross receipts, the study found that Scurry County had 162 of the state's 207,676 travel-related jobs, with an annual payroll of $789,000.

It also estimated $160,000 in State and $43,000 in local taxes were paid by visitors.

The study was done by the U.S. Travel Data Center in Washington, D.C., an independent travel research organization funded jointly by public and private sectors.

It was based on the Center's Travel Economic Impact Model, which for the first time, breaks out a state's share of the national travel market on a county-by county basis.

The model measures the economic impact of all travel involving overnight trips away from home, and day trips at least 100 miles or more from home. Thus it includes travel by Texans as well as out-of-state visitors, for all purposes.

It includes estimates of the traveler's spending at home in preparation for the trip, his spending en route, and that at his destination.

Basic data for the model comes from the National Travel Survey, conducted every five years by the U.S. Census Bureau, and from the Center's own National Travel Expenditure Model.

It was the latter which, last year, estimated that Texas had dislodged New York for third place in the nation's $75 billion travel industry. Only California and Florida now outrank Texas, the Center said.

"We're pleased that travel research techniques have finally developed to the point that states can determine where, within their boundaries, travel dollars are spent and travel-related jobs exist," said Frank Hildebrand, executive director of the Texas Tourist Development Agency.

"Now we can trace travel's considerable economic impact on a county-by-county basis, observe changing patterns annually, and help direct the rapid growth of this burgeoning industry."

Order Too Late On Abortion

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — A 19-year-old college student who had been ordered by a court not to have an abortion until the question of the father's rights to the fetus could be decided, had the abortion before the order reached her home.

Attorneys for Wendy Chasalow, who was six weeks pregnant, said Friday that the temporary restraining order granted by state Supreme Court Justice Robert Clifford arrived too late at her home in Whippany.

A court spokesman said later that Clifford considered the matter moot.

Miss Chasalow's former boyfriend, John Rothenberger, Jr., 23, had sought to block the abortion. Rothenberger, who claimed he was the prospective father, argued he had a right to participate in the abortion decision and that the fetus had rights in the matter.

Clifford granted the restraining order after it was denied by two lower courts which based their decisions on a U.S. Supreme Court ruling that women have an absolute right to abortion during the first 12 weeks of pregnancy.

Two Vehicles Are In Mishap

A minor traffic accident was investigated Friday afternoon by Snyder policemen.

The mishap occurred in the parking lot at Hinshaw's House of Flowers about 3:30 p.m. Friday. Involved in the mishap were a parked 1971 Chevrolet owned by Lesa Minyard and a 1966 Chevrolet driven by Edith Lovelady Hammon.

Only minor damages were reported to the Minyard car with no damages being sustained by the Hammon vehicle.

a sheriff, the sisters remember their father meeting Bat Masterson and Temple Houston, the son of Sam Houston. Also as a sheriff, Arrington had the occasion to pursue the infamous Dalton Brothers and Billy the Kid.

While a sheriff, Arrington arrested hundreds of men, his daughters said. His arrests were characterized by "quantity rather than quality," the women pointed out.

After resigning as sheriff, Arrington spent the remainder of his years as a rancher. His cattle empire once encompassed approximately 20 sections of land.

Among the last of the old-time lawmen, Arrington died of a heart attack March 31, 1923.

Arrington had a family of nine children. One son died in infancy, but the remaining eight children lived to maturity. Six of his children were daughters who still survive him. Arrington, the first Texas Ranger captain of the Panhandle, is still vividly remembered by his daughters.

Flu Cases Drop In March

ATLANTA (AP) — Only isolated outbreaks of influenza have been reported in the United States in the past month, although other countries continue to report cases, federal health officials say.

The National Center for Disease Control also said Friday in a weekly report that a strain called A-Texas found on Air Force bases in Texas and Colorado could become the dominant virus in outbreaks next year.

The center said an outbreak of A-Victoria influenza struck 33 of 101 patients and 10 of 40 staff members at two nursing homes in Dalton, Ga., last month.

Two of the three deaths in that outbreak possibly were flu-related, the CDC said.

Six of nine residents of a home for the chronically ill in Yonkers, N.Y., developed what appeared to be Influenza A earlier this month, and three died, the CDC reported.

The report said none of the patients at the homes had been vaccinated against influenza.

The CDC said a virus similar to A-Victoria has been isolated in several countries, including Spain, Turkey, Belgium Pakistan, Israel and Ireland.

Influenza-like illnesses also have been reported in Finland, Canada and Scotland.

The live musical entertainment will feature the SHS choir with band members performing instrumental accompaniment. Also at the concert will be special lighting effects.

Tickets for the concert are $1.50 each, Lyon said, and the funds raised will help defray travel expenses for the choir when it goes to the Buccaneer Choir Festival in Corpus Christi April 29.

The public is invited to attend.

Soviet leaders have watched Carter warily. They avoided direct criticism during the early days of his administration, but on March 31 Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko told a news conference that "everything said about human rights by the United States ... hurts the political atmosphere for discussions of other issues, including arms limitations."

Carter's approach to diplomacy has caused some confusion in Israel. Defense minister Shimon Peres, the strongest possibility for prime minister after the May 17 elections, said one of his top priorities would be "political negotiations with a new U.S. administration, of whose intentions we know little."

After President Anwar Sadat visited Washington recently, Egypt looked more favorably toward Carter, but other Arabs express misgivings. Saudi Arabia's government has shown some dismay about Carter's Middle East policy and Crown Prince Fahd was quoted as saying this month that another Arab-Israeli war is likely if momentum toward a peace settlement is frozen.

"Carter still lacks a clear Middle East vision," said a spokesman for the Palestine Liberation Organization. "All he has been doing so far is to put out trial balloons to help him formulate a definite U.S. policy on the Arab-Israeli conflict."

In southern Africa, the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, Andrew Young, has received greater attention, but the minister of information for South Africa's apartheid government, Connie Mulder, recently assailed Carter in Parliament.

"President Carter should be cautious in order not to go down in history as the man who had lost the case for the West by busying himself with high moral issues while Russia was concentrating on practical things," he said.

A spokesman for the white minority government of Rhodesia said: "Jimmy Carter is a man of undoubted ability, but the litmus test of his leadership will be the career of Andrew Young and the other ignorant crusaders now coming into, conflict with the pragmatic attitude of old hands like Secretary of State Cyrus Vance.

Military governments in Brazil, Argentina, Chile, Uruguay and Paraguay all have rejected Carter's policy of tying human rights to military aid an intervention in their own internal affairs.

But since Carter's election thousands of persons regarded as political prisoners have been freed from South American jails.

MUSEUM EXHIBIT—These lighting devices are included in a special exhibit opening today in the Scurry County Museum. Visitors may also see watercolors by C. Warren Cullar and tour the permanent exhibit gallery.

Lighting Devices Are On Display At Museum

A collection of lighting devices dating from about 1690 to 1900 will be featured in a special exhibit opening today in the Scurry County Museum at Western Texas College.

The collection was a gift from Mrs. Wayne Boren, who assembled it over a period of years. It has been displayed numerous times in years past, and has attracted widespread attention among collectors.

Included in the collection are about 100 pieces, with about 90 of these being shown in the museum at this time.

As Mrs. Boren assembled the lighting device collection, she kept notes on each new addition, noting the period in which the piece was made and used, special purposes served by its design, and the locale in which it was especially popular.

Some of the lamps were designed to burn whale oil, others used kerosene. Candleholders are also part of the collection.

The pieces pictured at left include (back left) a pastor's lamp of pewter with a cock on top of the lid. This cock was a reminder of the cock that crowed after Peter had denied Jesus shortly before the crucifixion.

Also of pewter is the convent lamp shown at the back right. This was also designed to burn oil.

Shown at the left front is a "spark lamp" of brass with a milk glass shade. "Spark lamps" were so named because they gave out only a "spark" of light due to their small size. These lamps were often used aborad ships, and the lamp tilts on its base so that the oil supply remains level.

Center front is a Vapo Lamp, an early type of vaporizer. The heat of the burning kerosene was channeled to a small container above the lamp chimney, sending medicated vapors into the area surrounding the lamp. This was intended to relieve chest congestion, and was most often placed on a stand or table beside a child's bed.

At right front is a "fairy lamp" with a pale yellow cover. It's illumination was provided by a candle fitted into a holder in the base, and it was used as a night light.

Watercolors by C. Warren Cullar are still on display in the museum and are to remain through Friday. The Boren collection will remain through May 15.

The annual art exhibit of works by Snyder public school students will open in the museum on May 1 and continue through May 13. Eight members of the Texas Cowboy Artists organization will be exhibiting works in the museum from May 15 through the remainder of the month.

Museum hours are 8:30-12 noon and 1-5 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 8:30-12 noon and 1-4 p.m. on Fridays. Sunday hours are 1-5 p.m.

Advisors are invited to accompany their squads at a minimum cost. Special seminars are scheduled daily for advisors.

Instruction during the clinic emphasizes such areas as cheer techniques, soul chants, pompom routines, skit and pep rally planning, fund raising ideas, tumbling partner stunts, squad coordination tryout tips, voice control, uniform design and leadership and responsibility.

Resident campers will be housed in the air-conditioned dormitories on the WTC campus and will eat in the Student Center cafeteria nearby. The fees, determined by the ASCC, will cover all expenses. Commuting students will be responsible for the costs of their own meals.

Applications to attend the clinic may be obtained by writing to Pepster All-Star Cheerleading Conference, 819 Broadway, Kansas City, Mo 64105. Leather Exports From Argentina

BUENOS AIRES (AP)--Argentina, the world's No. 1 leather wholesaler, exported an estimated $120 million worth of tanned leather during 1976. Eastern Europe accounted for half of Argentina's sales, while the remainder was shipped to Western Europe and the United States.

Each tannery tailors its products to the individual specifications of its clients, both nationally and abroad, and the industry is capable of processing all the 12 to 13 million animal hides a year the country produces.

BACK, BUT BARELY—Snyder catcher Tracy Witherspoon gets back to the bag before Brownfield first baseman R. Barr can catch him, but not by much. Seconds later Witherspoon stole second and third. (SDN Staff Photo)

BEARD SHUTS 'EM OUT AGAIN

Tigers Grab 5th District Win

Coach Albert Lewis recently made the comment, "We'll put Beard against Lamesa and throw everything else at Brownfield." That was before the Cubs beat Snyder two Fridays ago to threaten Snyder's district supremacy.

A week later, the Tigers are supreme again. Lewis threw everything else at them... and Beard, too.

The senior right-hander racked up his fifth shut-out of the year, a trio of them in district play, and advanced his season slate to 8-2 as Snyder slapped the Cubs five to zip here Friday. The win marks the fourth in a row for Beard, who has yet to lose a district game this year.

The Tigers got off to a quick start Friday as Bobby Doe blasted a triple near the second base line in the opening inning. The Tiger short stop was not able to capitalize on the hit however, before the Cubs tallied a third out.

In the second inning, Snyder's efforts were more productive when Mitch Mackey's single brought home Scott Crenwelge and Dray Sikes for two points. Brownfield pitcher K. Reid loaded the bases but teammate J. Joplin managed two clutch outs to kill the Tiger threat.

The final trio of runs came in the fourth period. Mackey walked to first, then advanced the bases on Alvin Ollison's base hit. Tracey Witherspoon connected with a one-bagger to drive Mackey in for the third Snyder point and Doe walked to set Snyder in scoring position.

Ricky Beard, as effective from the plate as from the mound, singled through second base to bring Witherspoon and Doe home. A double play on the next play retired Snyder, and the afternoon's scoring.

Beard, striking out nine of the opponents, allowed only 3.59 batters up per inning. The Cubs managed two hits.

Losing pitcher, K. Reid, struck out three and allowed 10 hits.

Tuesday, the Tigers will face Lamesa at Lamesa. 3-0 against the Tornadoes, Snyder could boost their district record to 6-1 with a win there.

Steve Cauthen, the sensational 16-year-old jockey, had a six-winner day at New York's Aqueduct track in January.

Richards, a second round draft pick in 1973, serves as wide receiver and returns punts for the Cowboys. He ranked fifth in the National Football League in punt returns in 1975, averaging a 10.3 runback each time.

"I like to return punts, okay," Richards notes, "but it's not my favorite thing. But and I know this won't sound right-there's something else. I'm the only one I'd trust back there doing what I'm doing."

Richards and his wife Barbara live in Dallas where he is in sales promotion for RCA-Interstate Electric in the off season.

Richard's appearance at the banquet is made possible through Roger B. Mize, president of the Snyder National Bank.

"Snyder Jaycees wish to thank Mr. Mize for his help in making this year's banquet one of the best ever," said Bob Clifton, local president. "We are very pleased that Golden Richards will be the featured speaker."

Western Texas College won their second Western Conference title in a row as they passed up former leader New Mexico College on their home course in Hobbs, Friday.

In winning the tournament, WTC sophomore Donnie Loerwald took medalist honors and made the top spot on the Western Conference All-Conference Team. Loerwald shot a four-under 68 for the day, moving ahead of New Mexico's Steve Brewster and Odessa's Gary Varnadore in the conference tournament standings.

Chris Brown, WTC freshman, earned ninth spot on the All-Conference Team. Teammate Miller Scott, who shot a four-over par 76 for the tournament, missed making the Conference Team by a single point.

Cockroft To Be Banquet Speaker

Don Cockroft, placekicker-punter for the Cleveland Browns, will be the featured speaker at the Snyder All Sports Banquet at 6:30 p.m., May 2.

In the past nine years that Cockroft has been handling the Browns kicking-field goals, extra points, kickoffs and punting-he has climbed to third place on the team's all-time scoring list with 729 points, passing retired running back Leroy Kelly (540 points) in 1974.

Just ahead of him on the Brown's all-time scoring list is one of the greatest running backs of all time, Jim Brown, whose 756 career points is within reach, possibly in the 1977 season.

Cockroft has received a number of honors since being selected by the Browns as a third round draft choice in 1967. in 1968, he led the NFL in the field goal accuracy and was fourth in NFL scoring. That year, he was named Colorado's Professional Athlete of the Year, a great tribute to the man from Fountain, Colo.

In 1969, Cockroft was Cleveland's leading scorer and in 1972 he again led the NFL in field goal accuracy. 1972 was a banner year for the athlete, who kicked a 57 yard field goal, the second longest in NFL history. He was named Cleveland Brown's Offensive Player of the year and received the Thom McAn Golden Toe Award.

Cockroft, one of only two combination punters-placekickers in the NFL, has made 77 per cent of his field goal attempts during the past four NFL seasons.

An active member of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, Cockroft spends his off season months speaking thoughout America.

In addition to the featured speaker, Snyder's Gymnastics team, under the direction of Doug Fitzjarrell, is also scheduled to perform at the banquet.

Tickets, at $4.50 each, may be purchased at Snyder Athletic Center, West Texas Bank and Snyder National Bank.

Leading jockey at New York thoroughbred race tracks in 1976 was Jorge Velasquez with 299 winners.

Officials Upset Over Research

NEW YORK (AP)—A research study, projecting a tripling of major league salaries by 1981 and impending doom for the game, has met with antagonism from top officials in the baseball community.

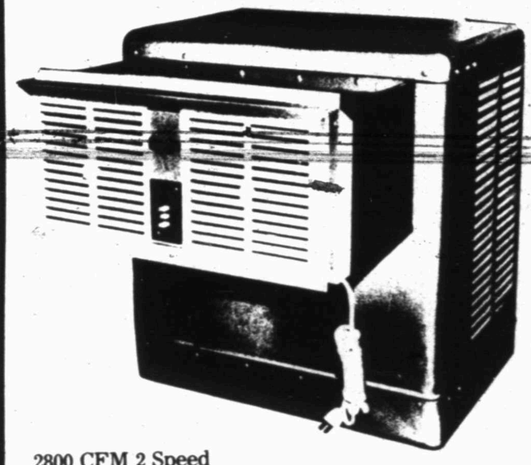

This criticism apparently stems from the concern of the baseball brass that the survey by the Wharton School of Business might be believed by the fans. One story, citing the survey, was bannered on the front page of The Detroit News with the headline: "Baseball may strike out, fiscal experts warn."

John Denny turned in a 2.52 earned run average per nine innings with the St. Louis Cardinals in 1976 to pace National League pitchers.

A CLASS IN RELAXATION THERAPY
IS BEING FORMED

Many times we create physical and emotional problems for ourselves by "uptight" living—a lifestyle that keeps us from relaxing sufficiently to allow our own resources to keep us in a restful, healthy state. It is not necessary to continue to live with high blood pressure, hyperacidity, shortness of temper and other related manifestations of uptight living, for simple techniques of relaxation can be learned, and with practice, put into operation in daily living. This new program is designed to communicate to both men and women methods and exercises which can make a dramatic difference in the way you feel and function day by day.

THE FOUR STEP PROGRAM INVOLVES:

I. Simple Exercises to gain muscle control and flexibility—a beginning step in relaxation.

II Total Breathing exercises to improve oxygenation and stamina.

III. Relaxation Techniques and practice. Deeper relaxation than most people experience even during sleep. Can help control hypertension, hyperacidity, general "uptightness" and related problems.

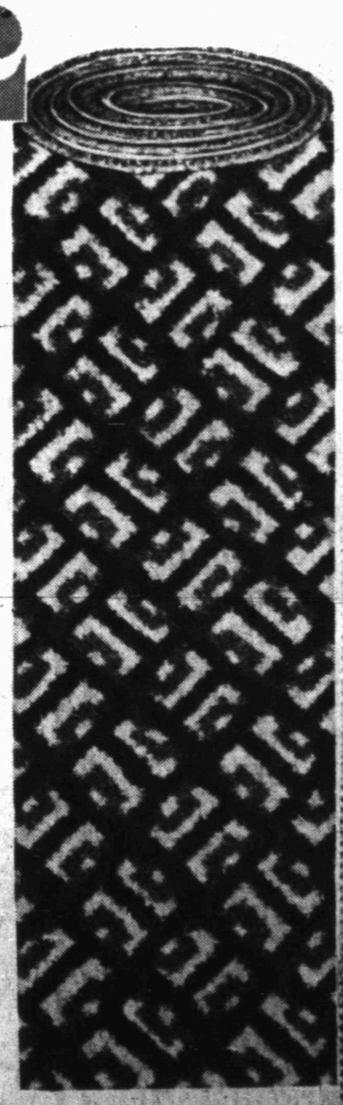

IV. Meditation Techniques. To enhance the relaxation process and to gain dynamic access to body functions normally beyond conscious control. Controlled thinking for positive mental, physical and spiritual development.

CLASSES WILL MEET FROM 7:30-8:30 PM ON TUESDAYS AND THURSDAYS, BEGINNING MAY 3RD.

Registration will be from 2-5 P.M. Sunday May 1st at the Western Texas College Gym. There will be no registration by phone or mail. Interested persons may call 573-8619 between 5:30 and 8:30 P.M. for more information.

TAGS NOT EVEN REMOVED

Stolen Goods Flowing Unchecked Into Mexico

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The tide of stolen United States goods is so overwhelming that border gangs don't even remove valid tags before turning filched autos over to Mexican dealers for resale, American law enforcement officials say.

"Our criminal intelligence data reveals that hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of stolen property, including automobiles, is flowing nearly unchecked south into Mexico," California Atty. Gen. Evelle Younger said in a situation report prepared for the Southwestern Conference on Crime and the Border.

"Stolen vehicles from this state can regularly be found in the used car lots that line the main streets of Tijuana," he said Friday. "In many instances, the valid California license plates are left on the vehicles."

The conference, attended by 300 top federal and state law enforcement officials, is dealing with crime problems related to the border. Both U.S. Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell and Oscar Flores Sanchez, attorney general of Mexico, met with leaders of state agencies from California, Arizona, New Mexico and Texas at the conference.

The issues being discussed include the estimated hundreds of aliens from Mexico and Central and South American nations who nightly breach the 2,000-mile border and problems they create for U.S. communities in law enforcement, welfare costs and reduced jobs for legal residents.

The officers also are reviewing organized and amateur smuggling that involves the flow of valuables such as vehicles and guns into Mexico and a flood of narcotics, human beings and even birds into the United States.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're apt to talk rather glibly on what you expect to do today. When it comes to executing it — well, that's a horse of a different color.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Rely solely on your intellect and logic today if you expect to accumulate anything. Taking gambles just won't do.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Outside interests with pals could occupy most of your time today. Take care not to neglect the family.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Opportunities could assert themselves in two different areas today. You may not have the wherewithal to tie them together effectively.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) An exchange of far-out ideas can be enjoyable today. Don't, however, get involved in anything that calls for a personal investment.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) An unusual opportunity for gain may suddenly pop up today. If you let it catch you off-balance you could pass it by.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're capable of making fast, on-the-spot decisions today, yet for some reason you're apt to doubt the wisdom of your choices.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't seek advice from too many people today. It's smarter to do things as you envision them. They'll work out better that way.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If at all possible avoid overly ambitious types today. You'll feel more kinship with those just out for laughs.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Put your clever ideas to the test today, even though others don't see the merit in them. Chances are, you're right!

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) In social situations today stick to those who are more conventional and aboveboard. Shun the borderline types whose morals are questionable.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You and your mate are in accord today on how to spend the family funds. But, there may be small things you disagree on.

Sonny, Cher Cancel Show

NEW YORK (AP)—Sonny and Cher have decided not to continue their CBS television show, and CBS says it doesn't mind.

"I understand they have high hopes of becoming major recording artists again," said CBS TV President Robert Wussler on Thursday.

He added that CBS was agreeable to ending the show because of its "circulation performance."

The two performers were husband and wife when they first began a comedy-variety hour on CBS. But when their marriage broke up, so did the team.

Hermleigh High Junior Play Set

HERMLEIGH—The junior class of Hermleigh High School will present a play titled "Headin' for the Hills" Thursday night in the Hermleigh High School Auditorium. Curtain time is set for 7:40 p.m.

The play, authored by LeRoma Greth and directed by Jean Schooler, is a comedy about two wealthy, rather spoiled girls who are orphaned. In order to obtain their share of their father's fortune, they are placed in the care of their uncle, a hillbilly with four teen-aged children. Unfortunately, their uncle has different ideas about the money and schemes to get the girls' share of the fortune.

Eventually, the girls see hilbilly life in a new light and decide to get even with their scheming uncle with the help of a widow who wants to become the uncle's bride.

The two sisters, Cornelia and Dorthea Heister, are played by Kelly Culp and Tracey Kruger. The uncle is portrayed by Britt Fuqua. Helen Kimzey portrays Widow Squiggens-others in the cast include Laurie Peterson, Alice Mireles, Carroldon Burleson, Joe Don Williamson, Patti Melton, Ricki Ganaway, Doug Jones, Nancy Leatherwood, David Cole, Lori Fuqua, Clayton Riley, Barbara Leather wood, Stan Warren, Sharon Nachlinger, Curtis Tate, Wesley Kruger, James Willaimson, Tim Peterson and Michael Hembree.

Tickets to the play are priced at $1.50 each for adults and 75 cents for students.

Indefinite Period Brief

TWIN FALLS (AP)—It didn't take Paul Corder long to serve his time.

Corder, sheriff of Twin Falls County, pleaded guilty Thursday to a misdemeanor for failing to keep proper financial records on an office copying machine.

After accepting Corder's plea, Sixth District Court Judge Arthur Oliver said the sheriff would be placed on probation for an indefinite period of time.

The judge paused for about two seconds, then said, "That indefinite period of time has passed."

The penalty for the misdemeanor could have been a $300 fine and up to six months in jail.

10 Snyderites On Prestigious List

TIC TO ASK LEGISLATURE

Big Spring Asks For $2 Million

AUSTIN (AP)—Big Spring needs $2 million in economic aid because of the loss of Webb Air Force Base, says the Texas Industrial Commission.

After a delegation led by Big Spring councilman Ralph McLaughlin appeared before the 12-member commission Friday, the commission voted to ask the legislature for the money.

McLaughlin said the $2 million would be used as "seed money" in seeking federal aid to convert the air force base to private use for housing, industry and advertising for plant sites.

He also said Big Spring citizens are raising $350,000 themselves to purchase an additional 200 acres of land adjacent to the base for a local industrial foundation. McLaughlin said Webb officials have said the base will be deserted by Oct. 1.

The Air Force impact statement predicted Big Spring's unemployment would rise 12.8 per cent and its retail sales would dip by $20.2 million. The Air Force statement said up to 2,928 houses will be vacated.

"We now hope to rebuild Big Spring from this disaster that has happened," McLaughlin said.

In other action Friday, the industrial commission was told Tenneco Inc. of Houston has completed negotiations on a $1 billion contract with the government of Sudan concerning agricultural development of 775,000 acres of Sudanese land.

The plan includes the development of regional electric power and transportation facilities.

Home pressure kit

DEAR DR. LAMB — Relatively inexpensive self-taking blood pressure kits have appeared on the market (about 20 to 25 dollars). Would you please comment on their accuracy since they do not use a column of mercury for measuring pressure but depend upon an aneroid manometer?

Do you have some advice on the use of these instruments since I would suppose they are becoming popular for use in the home?

When measuring my own blood pressure I notice that the needle on the gauge appears to respond to the rhythm of my pulse before I can hear the heartbeat through the stethoscope. There is about a 10 point difference between the visual and aural measure points. Which represents the systolic pressure reading, the higher visual point or the lower auditory point?

I am able to measure the diastolic pressure more easily since I can hear the pulse slowly fading away.

I am 50, healthy and hope to continue to find my blood pressure satisfactory at 118 over 68 — approximately.

DEAR READER — That is a good question. Yes, anyone can buy an instrument to measure his own blood pressure. I note Sears catalog has both the aneroid type or the mercury column type.

The round dial aneroid type does suffer from the problems of any such pressure gauges. They can become faulty. They do need to be checked regularly against a known pressure or a mercury column. The mercury column reading is always accurate, if the mercury level is kept at the proper level — which you can see.

The height of the mercury column is a standard that follows basic laws of physics — just as a water column does and if the column is straight up and down it will be accurate.

The reading you are taking is dependent upon sound, not the needle vibration that you are seeing. As soon as you hear the heartbeat that is the top or systolic reading. When the sound changes markedly, just fading out, that is the diastolic level. Now if you have the stethoscope in the wrong place, not over the artery, you may not hear the sound soon enough.

How can you check that? Put your stethoscope away and find your pulse at the wrist below the cuff on your arm and above the base of the thumb. Pump up the cuff and let it gradually deflate. As the pressure falls low enough you will suddenly feel the pulse in the wrist. The arterial blood has started to flow again. Look at the dial and this is the systolic pressure.

Taking the systolic pressure this way usually gives a reading slightly lower than the reading you hear — but if it is higher it means you have the cuff on wrong, too loose, or do not have the stethoscope in the best place to pick up the sound.

Remember blood pressure is variable. A reading early in the morning before you get out of bed and face life's problems is more indicative of your true state. Late in the afternoon or evening is a better indication of life's toll on you.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-8, Blood Pressure. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Just write to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — For many years I have been taking folic acid plus a B-12 tablet as I was told I have secondary anemia. Now my doctor tells me that folic acid is the same as B-12 so I need not take both.

I would like to know if he is correct. Also I have read in a health magazine that folic acid should be taken with B-12. Please tell me in plain language what is correct for me.

DEAR READER — In plain language you will do best by doing what your doctor tells you since his remarks are applied to your own individual case.

Now I think you have misunderstood what your doctor has told you. Folic acid and B-12 are not the same. Both have similar actions and help to prevent pernicious anemia but folic acid will not prevent the changes that can occur in the spinal cord if you are deficient in B-12.

The danger in taking folic acid alone without B-12 is that it will correct the anemia and other changes indicative of a B-12 deficiency while irreversible changes occur in the spinal cord before the B-12 deficiency is discovered.

You may not have an important B-12 deficiency. If you did you would probably be taking B-12 injections rather than a pill. The usual case of pernicious anemia is associated with an inability or diminished capacity to absorb B-12 from the digestive system, hence B-12 shots are used.

To give you a better idea of the relationship between B-12 and folic acid I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-5, Vitamin B-12, Folic Acid, Pernicous Anemia. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Write to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Please explain medium chain triglycerides or MCT as referred to in material accompanying releases on some baking products such as new high fiber bread. The participants in an experiment were apparently given MCT instead of butter. This needs clarification.

DEAR READER — You do need to know what these terms mean to understand the increasing amount of information on food labels. A triglyceride is a fat. It contains three (hence tri-) fatty acids attached to glycerine. The fatty acids are chains of carbon atoms connected together. The acids are named according to how many carbon atoms are in the chain. You see this same system applied to hydrocarbons: methane (one carbon atom), ethane (two), propane (three), and butane (four).

The fatty acids in butter are made up of four carbon atoms and are called butyric acid. These are short chain fatty acids. These tend to be soft at room temperature. Fats containing medium length chains are called medium chain fatty acids and those with long chains, as found in the fat in some fish, long chain fatty acids. The longer the chain the more likely it is to be solid at room temperature. However, that is not the total picture as unsaturated fats tend to be soft at room temperature even if they are long chain acids.

Remember that the length of the chain has nothing to do with whether the fatty acid is saturated or unsaturated with hydrogen atoms. Thus soft butter from short chain butyric acid is mostly saturated fat. It is soft because of the short chain. Coconut oil is liquid but it is almost all saturated fat.

BITTER PILL TO SWALLOW

Postal Service Duns AMA For Back Postage

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Postal Service is giving the American Medical Association a bitter pill to swallow; a million dollar bill for back postage that's due Monday.

The Postal Service accused the AMA of illegally underpaying its postal charges for more than three years. It threatened legal action if the back postage is not paid promptly.

Copies of two letters from Arthur S. Cahn, assistant general counsel for the mail agency, seeking payment from the AMA were obtained by The Associated Press.

In Chicago, AMA spokesman Joseph Breu declined to comment.

Cahn said in one of the letters, "If the deficiency is not satisfied, the Postal Service intends pormptly to initiate whatever litigiation may be necessary to enforce its claim."

The Postal Service action is in addition to a criminal investigation by the Justice Department of possible fraud by the AMA in connection with mail reports of its weekly magazine.

Second class mailers do not put postage on the magazines and newspapers they send through the mail. Instead, they submit reports to the Postal Service saying how many copies were sent.

The Postal Service contends the AMA submitted false reports on its mailings, allowing it to underpay its postal bills.

The AMA Board of Directors in 1970 voted to expand the circulation of the Journal of the American Medical Association by sending free copies to physicians who were not association members.

The apparent goal of the free distribution was to increase the journal's advertising revenue from manufacturers of drugs and medical devices.

However, the law requires organizations with second class mailing permits to distribute no more than 10 per cent of their circulation as free sample copies. They must pay a higher postage rate, known as the transient rate, to send out extra sample copies.

Cahn said the AMA paid $166,820 between April 3, 1972, and August 4, 1975, when it shoud have paid $1,215,787. His letter demanded the $1,048,967 difference, but no fines were assessed.

The capital of the Confederacy moved from Montgomery, Ala., to Richmond, Va., on May 30, 1861.

DIVERSIFIED

BY BILLY E. ROACH
COUNTY EXTENSION AGENT

A training meeting to qualify users of pesticides for a Private Applicators Certificate has been scheduled for 6 p.m. Monday in the Hermleigh School cafeteria. Several of these meetings will be held between now and October.

According to the "Insecticide, Rodenticide and Fungicide Act" it will be necessary for purchasers of "Restricted Use" chemicals to have this certificate before these pesticides can be sold. As yet the list of pesticides to be placed under the "restricted use" label has not been completed, however those who plan to purchase and use pesticides should consider qualifying for the certificate.

The program will start rather early. The reason for this is that the training will last from three to three and one half hours.

Peach Thinning Time

In order to have high quality peaches at harvest and healthy trees, peaches should be thinned as soon as possible. Peaches should not be closer than four to eight inches apart on any single shoot. Now I know this seems rather far apart and as seldom as we have a fruit crop in the Scurry County area, it will be most difficult to thin peaches this much. But for large, high quality fruit, you must have ample space for growth and air circulation.

In thinning, the small fruit should be removed before they are the size of a nickel and is approximately ¾ inch in diameter. This can be done by hand or with a short rubber hose attached to a broom handle. If thinning is delayed beyond this stage of growth, less and less results are obtained from thinning.

CHECK FOR APHIDS

Now is the time to check your prize roses and other plants, especially garden, for aphid, Aphids or plant lice are 1-16 to ¼ inch long insects that vary in color from pale green to very dark green, almost black.

These tiny insects can virtually ruin a plant by sucking plant juices and secreting a sticky substance called honey dew.

An aphid has two tube-like structures at his back end that reminds you of "dual exhaust system." They may be winged or wingless.

Signs of an aphid infestation on your plants can be cupped leaves, wilted appearance or yellowing of leaves.

There are two common insecticides effective for controlling aphid, malathion and diazinon. You should check the label on the container for precise mixtures and waiting period before harvest. We also have available in our office "Vegetable Garden Insects and Their Control" for distribution to the public.

STUDENT PRESS OFFICIALS—Linda Grissom (right) of Western Texas College was elected secretary of the Texas Intercollegiate Press Assn. for 1977 during the annual convention April 16 in San Angelo. Other officers are Christy Harlin (left) of Stephen F. Austin University, vice-president, and Margaret Lee (middle) of Sam Houston State University, president.

Western Texan Rates High In Competition

The Western Texas College student newspaper, Western Texan, won second place in Division II of the 55th annual Texas Intercollegiate Press Association contest in San Angelo and WTC finished second in newspaper sweepstakes.

The biweekly campus publication ranked behind The Ram Page of Angelo State University and ahead of The Megophone of Southwestern University.

In sweepstakes, WTC scored 39 points to ASU's 87. Third-place Tarrant Co. Junior College-Northwest tallied 34.

Other Division II schools and newspaper point standings were: Tarrant Co.-South 31, Southwestern 26, Wayland Baptist College 22, Amarillo College 21, Tarrant Co.-Northeast 20, San Jacinto College 16½, Texas Wesleyan College 11, Howard Payne University 9½, Paris Junior College 8, Houston Baptist University and Blinn College 7 each, Tarleton State University 5, Howard College 4, and Texas Eastern University and Odessa College 3 each.

Critic judge William Roesgen, editor of the Billings (Mont.) Gazette, said of the Western Texan: "This paper has some excellent writing. Considerable care is given to leads that attract interest in stories, and there is concern for featuring stories with the widest possible interest. I had a terrible time trying to find a third place in the class with the top two newspapers."

Individual WTC newspaper winners included Weldon Jefferson, Colorado freshman, first, single ad; Tracy Moore, Snyder sophomore, second, news story; Paul Gilbert Snyder sophomore, third, sports photo; Kay Ellington, Snyder freshman, second feature; and Ellington, third, critical review.

In Division II general magazine competition, WTC students received individual honors. They were Linda Grissom, Snyder sophomore, second, sports photo; Randy Parrott, Albany freshman, second, editorial, and Paula Cornoyer, Sweetwater sophomore, and Ellington, third, feature story.

WTC's literary magazine, Unity, is expected to be judged later. Editor is Stacy Payne, Stanton sophomore.

Students representing the college in live contests in print media were Diane Wright, Brownfield freshman, news writing; Ellington, editorial writing; Payne, feature writing, and Cornoyer, headline writing.

Broadcast media entries included Kathy Spencer, Anson sophomore, and Wright, radio newswriting; Payne and Ellington, commercial copywriting; Stephanie Stephens, Snyder freshman, and Grissom, Spencer and Ellington, radio announcing, and Stephens and Grissom, TV announcing.

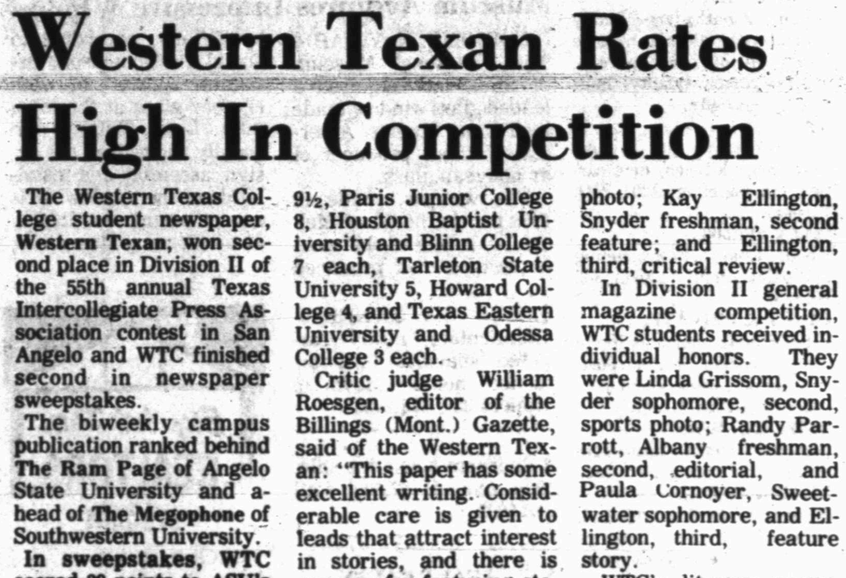

Other students attending the conference were Judi Huffman, Jill Palmer, LaDonna Powell and Neely Wright, all entered in TIPA newspaper and magazine contests.

Mike McBride, WTC associate professor of journalism, was elected to a two-year term as vice president of the Texas Intercollegiate Press Advisers Assn. President is Wilma Wirt, University of Texas at El Paso, and secretary is JoAnn Langston, Texas Wesleyan College.

Grissom was elected 1977-78 secretary of the student organization. President is Margaret Lee, Sam Houston State University, and vice president is Christy Harlin, Stephen F. Austin State University.

Other TIPA member schools are Angelina College, Bee County College, Brazosport College, Eastfield College, Lamar University, Lee College, McMurry College, Midland College, Midwestern University, Pan American University, Sam Houston, Southwest Texas Junior College, Southwest Texas State University, Stephen F. Austin, Sul Ross State University, Texas A&I University, UT-El Paso, UT-Arlington, UT-Permian Basin, and West Texas State University.

Awards were presented during a brunch in the ASU Houston Harte University Center ballroom.

Couple Wed In C-City

MRS. JIMMY EASTER

Miss Phyllis Joy Solomon and Jimmy Easter, both of Lubbock, were united in marriage in the First Baptist Church of Colorado City April 23 at 6 p.m.

Rev. J. Roy Haynes, retired Baptist minister, performed the double ring ceremony.

The couple's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Linden Solomon of Colorado City, and Mr. and Mrs. C.A. Easter of Lubbock.

The father of the bride gave her in marriage. She wore an ivory, starlight organza floor length gown. The skirt back had a deep ruffle flowing from the waist down around the bottom of the skirt. A double cape collar formed into cap sleeves was accented by scoop neckline.

In keeping with tradition the bride wore pearls borrowed from her sister. She wore diamond earrings, a gift from the groom. Her bouquet had streamers of satin tied in love-knots from her mother's wedding flowers and was carried by her sister.

The bride carried a nosegay of peach gladiolas, roses, baby's breath, and wore a halo of baby's breath in her hair.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Donald Smith, sister of the bride. She wore a dress of peach chiffon, which was floor length, and carried a nosegay of peach glads, pompom and baby's breath with baby's breath in her hair.

Serving as best man was Karl Schotz. Ushers were Donald Smith and Jackie Easter.

The church was centered with 15 branch candelabra, flanked on either side with baskets of peach gladiolas, carnations and palms. Family pews were marked with bows.

Mrs. Doris Pace from Big Spring, provided wedding music playing a flute solo. Also Mrs. Mark McClay from Morse, played the organ, as Jeff McGowen sang "There Is Love."

A reception was held in the home of the bride's parents. The wedding cake was 3 tiered containing white and peach roses. Votive candles and the registery book were on an antique table, attended by Jeannie Jackson of Lubbock.

The bride chose a yellow hopsack jumpsuit with white accessories for a wedding trip to New Orleans, after which the couple will be at home in Lubbock.

The bride is an Ira High School and South Plains College graduate. She is a Registered X-Ray Technician at Medical Arts Clinic in Lubbock.

The bridegroom is employed in X-Ray Department at University Hospital there.

Out of town guests for the wedding were from Ira, Snyder, Roscoe, Spring, Midland, Vincent, and Morse.

Patriotism Too Costly

DALLAS (AP)--What price patriotism?

Lone Star Gas Co. in Dallas found out this week when a family called to ask that their outdoor gaslight be disconnected.

A company spokesman asked why, and was told:

"Didn't you hear the President? We're running out of energy and want to do our part."

The gas utility spokesman said the gaslight "only costs you $2.85 a month and the light doesn't use that much gas. It adds safety to your house."

The caller insisted.

"OK," the company spokesman said, "It'll cost you $16."

"Sixteen dollars just to disconnect a light?" the caller asked.

"That's right, $16," was the reply.

The light still shines, a beacon of economic reality.

Economy in the kitchen: flake a cooked, white-fleshed fish and use as a "stretcher" in a crabmeat or shrimp dish.

Italian Dessert Being Probed

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Concerned about youngsters who might be getting a nip of rum, unawares, after dinner, a Michigan official has launched an investigation into an Italian dessert.

The Rev. Allen Rice II, executive director of the Michigan Council on Alcohol Problems, asked the state Liquor Control Commission Tuesday to impose regulations on the sale of the "Babarum" cake, which is being test-marketed in Massachusetts, California, New York and Minnesota.

California legislative aide Bert Barker, here for the announcement, said that each cake contains an eighth of an ounce of rum, or one-twelfth of a shot-glassful.

The Italian-made cakes are distributed by Progresso Foods Corp. of Jersey City, N.J. James Mahr, Progresso's national sales manager, said, "People are blowing this out of proportion."

He said he had never felt the effects of alcohol from eating the rumcakes and feels "perfectly safe" in letting his own children eat them.

DAR Organizes Chapter

An organizational meeting for the Martin Preuit Chapter of Daughters of the American Revolution was held April 16 in the home of Mrs. Henry F. Clark, organizing regent.

The new DAR Chapter is named after Martin Preuit who was born July 15, 1752. He served in the Revolutionary War under Gen. George Washington until the colonies gained their independence. He died in 1844 and is buried in Madison County, Ill. He is the great-great-great grandfather of Mrs. Clark.

The following officers were installed by Mrs. Jimmy Don Hale, a member of the Anne Pettus Shelburne Chapter of the DAR, Rotan. Those officers include: organizing regent, Mrs. Henry Clark; vice-regent, Mrs. Leland Herod; recording secretary, Mrs. John Richardson; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Douglas Hill; treasurer, Mrs. Sam Joyce; registrar, Mrs. Jervis Bullard; historian, Mrs. Travis Hatter; librarian, Mrs. Bert Dennis; and chaplain, Mrs. Frank Miller.

During the meeting, a telephone call made by Mrs. Clark to the organizing Secretary General at National Headquarters of DAR in Washington, D.C. confirmed the local chapters organization.

Membership in the DAR provides an opportunity to serve both "home and country." Participation in its many faceted program offers both challenge and opportunity. Within this group of dedicated women whose time-honored objectives are historical, educational, and patriotic, prospective members will find not only congenial friends but women who share their belief and pride in the ideals of the Republic.

Any woman is eligible for membership in the DAR who is over eighteen, and who is descended from a man or woman who, with unfailing loyalty to the cause of American Independence, served as a soldier, sailor or civil officer in one of the several colonies or states, or in the United Colonies or States, or as a recognized patriot, or rendered material aid thereto; provided the applicant must be endorsed by two members of the chapter and after acceptance of the chapter is invited to join. A member desiring transfer from another chapter or membership at large, shall be proposed and elected by the chapter in the same manner as a new member.

If you are a novice at making cheese fondue, remember to cut the French bread to be served with it so that each piece has a portion of crust. Recipes for the cheese dish sometimes neglect to remind cooks of this.

South's whole problem was to get to play at four or maybe five hearts. The fact that he got West to double was just icing on his cake.

Of course, dummy came down with the right cards to make five hearts a lay down, but South wasn't satisfied. He went after an overtrick.

He ruffed the opening spade and led his ace of hearts. When both opponents followed, South was ready for operation overtrick.

He led his 10 of clubs. At this point in time, the defenders could have saved the overtrick if West had played small and East dropped his king. But West put on the jack and now it didn't matter what East did.

All South had to do was to ruff a spade, play the diamond ace, ruff a diamond, ruff a spade, lead the nine of clubs and sit back.

East had held his king of clubs and had to win the trick. Then he had to lead a spade or diamond. South ruffed in dummy while discarding his last club.

know if there is any sure way to tell whether a double is for takeout or for penalty.

In modern expert circles there are so many fancy doubles that, except for the double of seven notrump which is always for penalty, each partnership struggles with its own rules.

Stars Answer For Lyons

NEW YORK (AP) – When you call Jeffrey Lyons, you never know who will answer. It might be Bob Hope.

Lyons, a film critic for local radio and television stations, has induced several of the stars he's interviewed to record a message for his telephone answering machine.

This week, for example, if you call and Lyons is out, you'll hear: "This is Glenda Jackson. Judy and Jeffrey aren't here at the moment. When you hear the tone, please leave your message."

Aspirin depletes the body of vitamin C, therefore while taking aspirin, be sure to supplement it with extra vitamin C. Ascorbic acid (Vitamin C) levels in the white blood cells drop precipitously during aspirin therapy. Evidence shows that the white cells (leukocytes) ability to fight pathogenic germs depends on its store of ascorbic acid.

our hospital needs

The Scurry County Hospital Board's decision to move ahead with plans for a major addition to Cogdell Memorial Hospital represents an opportunity to keep a vital community service abreast of area needs.

But it is not coming too soon.

Several times the past winter the hospital was forced to set up beds in hallways to take care of patients. In these instances, which seemed to come around more frequently as the months passed, there were upsurges of various illnesses usually associated with the winter months, but there were no epidemics. For the most part, the demands could be attributed to normal winter situations.

It represents a continuation of a trend that has stimulated interest in attracting more doctors here and a general improvement of medical services. But, as hospital officials have noted, more doctors mean more demands for hospital services.

And, as members of the board observed at their meeting Thursday night, neither the demand nor the cost of construction can be expected to decline in the near future.

It will be a big project, perhaps the biggest yet involving hospital facilities here. But the need has been firmly established and it appears almost inevitable that it will continue to grow. Thus, we say, the sooner the project can come about, the better.

clark misses point

With a friend like Ramsey Clark, the opponents of capital punishment don't need any enemies.

The former U.S. attorney general and candidate for U.S. senator from New York last year was one of several prominent persons who spoke at a rally in Atlanta the other day, where about 3,000 protest marchers from around the country called for abolition of the death penalty.

For too long, said Clark, Americans have glorified power and violence. It's time we begin revering life as an end in inself and practiced the old Commandment, "Thou shalt not kill."

It happens, of course, that only one man has been executed in the United States in the past 10 years and the only glorification involved in that sad episode was the news media's elevation of him to celebrity status. It also happens that the greatest violence being practiced in America these days is not by society against its criminals but the other way around.

There may be reasons for doing away with capital punishment, but the argument that it reflects some innate love of violence in American society is supported neither by statistics nor good sense.

court's impact

The most lasting impact which any President makes on history is the result of his choices for the U.S. Supreme Court.

We are still affected in our daily living--and our children, too, perhaps for all their lives will be--by the appointments of Franklin Roosevelt.

Not in generations has the Supreme Court been so evenly balanced, left and right, as now.

President Carter may tip that balance either way. Which way?

In late March the U.S. Supreme Court handed down a decision of so-so significance, but the infighting within the court over that decision was indeed significant.

Here's the background.

A little girl disappeared in Iowa in 1968.

Two days later an escaped mental patient confessed--and led police to where he had buried the body.

It is difficult to imagine a more open and shut case.

Yet the guilty verdict was appealed on a technicality.

Police who picked up the confessed killer--while driving him toward the jailhouse-- "talked to him about the crime" without a lawyer present.

What the arresting officer said was that the girl's parents were entitled to a Christian burial for their child so he hoped the body would be found.

And it was then that the confessed kidnap-killer led the police to the body where he had left it in a roadside ditch.

On that technicality--talking to the accused about the crime without a lawyer present—the guilty verdict was set aside.

The defendant will have to be retried--with the stipulation that his having directed police to the body must not be mentioned to the next jury.

The complexity of the decree diluted its newsworthiness. In effect, it will make this killer more difficult to convict. An Iowa attorney called it "a bitter pill."

But hear this: The Supreme Court was divided 5-4. Bitterly divided. The four dissenters called the decision "weird," "bizarre," "irrational," "senseless."

Chief Justice Warren Burger dissented out loud! He accused the court majority of "punishing the public."

A confessed kidnap-killer had led police to the body and yet conceivably could go free.

Justice Thurgood Marshall justified his nullifying vote by saying, "Every American must be protected from the awesome power of the state."

But who is going to protect Americans from the awesome cruelty of chronic killers?

The High Court, especially since Earl Warren was chief justice, tended to bend over backward in protecting the rights of wrongdoers.

That prejudice remains.

But it is now supported by a hairline margin of 5-to-4.

President Carter will likely make the next appointment to the court. There is no way to exaggerate the significance of that next choice.

in washington

martha angle and robert walters

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — The politicians who never have been notably enthusiastic about popular participation in the process of selecting the two major parties' presidential nominees have some new, but not necessarily valuable, ammunition.

It comes in the form of a study of "Participation in American Presidential Nominations, 1976," written by Austin Ranney and just published by the American Enterprise Institute, a Washington research organization.

Ranney is a highly respected academician and a past president of the American Political Science Association, but his study unnecessarily denigrates the statewide primary election as a means of selecting delegates to the two parties' presidential nominating conventions.

No fewer than 30 states conducted presidential primaries last year, with much of the new-found popularity for that process a direct result of the program of institutinal reform which the Democrats initiated in 1968 and which now has affected both major parties.

But the proportion of the voting age population which participated in those primaries was an abysmal 28 per cent, far lower than the shameful 54 per cent of the electorate which turned out for the general election for president.

Citing that low turnout in primaries, Ranney concludes his study with this negative view of the process:

"Whether nominations made by these special primary electorates will achieve the goals claimed for them of more representative conventions, more legitimate nominatins and greater general popular support for our system is still an open question.

"All we can say on the basis of what we have learned about 1976 is that they have not yet done so."

But that approach is reminiscent of the timeworn joke in which one man asks, "How's your wife?" and his companion replies, "Compared to whom?"

Ranney's study presents some fascinating comparative figures which show that in the 21 states which last year retained the more conventional method of selecting national convention delegates, a process which usually begins with precinct caucuses and ends at state conventions, only 1.9 per cent of the voting-age population participated in the caucuses.

In other words, participation of eligible voters was approximately 15 times higher in states with primary elections as in those with the cacus-and-convention system.

Moreover, numbers alone cannot fully reflect the impact of the democratization of the process used to gin with unpublicized "precinct caucuses" in the corner of a neighborhood bar, the basement recreation room of a local party satrap or even the cab of a political functionary's pickup.

Consider President Carter's home state of Geogia where last year 30.5 cent of the voting age population turned out for the primaries, a figure only slightly higher than the national average of 28.2 per cent for all primary states.

That's a long way from universal participation, but it differs greatly from the system used in the state as recently as 1968, when the party reform rules forced Georgia Democrats to open up the process.

In those bad old days, the Democratic gubernatorial nominee unilterally appointed the state party chairman. That state chairman, with the advice and consent of the governor, then selected Georgia's entire delegation to the national convention.

Ranney is correct in noting that turnout in the primary process his hardly something to write home about. But the participation of 502,371 people in last year's Georgia Democratic primary is surely an improvement over a system in which two men performed the same function.

Introduction: Understanding

If my wife and I can understand each other a little bit better, our chances of happiness will be increased by that much. We can increase our understanding by telling each other what is going on inside, and by listening while the other is talking. Last week we focused on talking, this week we will concentrate on listening.

How Not To Hear

Right now there are a good many radio stations broadcasting. I can hear none of them. The reason is simple: my radio is turned off. Now, when my radio is turned off, it has some distinct advantages. It uses no power, and it does not bother me. I can get a lot done when my radio is turned off. I miss a lot, too. When my radio is off, I do not hear the news. All I know is what is happening in my own little world. This could be a parable of what happens between my wife and myself. To complete communication, both the transmitter and the receiver must be in operation at the same time. So, to receive messages from my wife, she must talk to me, and I must listen. The real difficulty is to have them both in operation simultaneously.

Internal Static

A radio, when turned on, uses power. When I am listening, I am using energy, doing work. It takes a good bit of effort on my part to really listen. To really comprehend what my wife is saying often takes a lot of hard work on my part. A problem that radio makers have to solve is that of the internal noise in the receiver. Sometimes the set itself has all sorts of hums and buzzes and whines and clicks and sputters. These noises tend to drown out any message from outside. With a radio, the solution is simple: throw the thing away and get a set that doesn't do that. We human beings have a lot of internal noises, but I do not recommend that solution. When my wife is talking to me, it often happens that something she says reminds me of something else. All of a sudden I am miles away. Sometimes she catches me at it and gets mad. I have to notice when I begin to drift off and stop it before I start. Sometimes I am preoccupied. My work, my plans take up my attention. My mind drifts to these things, especially when my wife is trying to tell me something. It takes effort to turn my attention to what is happening Now.

Tuning

Sometimes a radio receiver is badly tuned. One time I had a radio that simply did not pick up the bass section at all. All you could hear were the higher pitches. The voices all sounded angry or frightened. Sometimes our hearing becomes similarly selective. There have been times when I could hear only my wife's anger. When she was saying something loving, I never noticed. There have been times when I only heard her love. When she spoke in anger, I never noticed. I have to watch out for this, because no human being can possibly be completely angry all the time, nor completely loving all the time. When I see just one thing, something is wrong with my perception. These times have been particularly frustrating to my wife. When I could see only her anger, she would try to reach out to me in love, and I would not notice. She almost gave up in despair. When I could only see her as loving, it was better, but still frustrating. I could not hear her when she tried to tell me when I was hurting her. Again she almost gave up.

Conclusion

To develop good communication between my wife and myself, I have to be sure of two things: that both my transmitter and receiver are working at the same time. My transmitter must be sending out the messages I want sent, and my receiver must pick up what is being sent without too much interference. Then we will be able to begin to communicate.

The feller on Deep Creek says, talking is just like doing carpentry work--measure twice and saw once.

The following notice came to us this week. It was simply entitled "Notice."

To make things easier for all of us, please notice this important notice about notices...you may have noticed the increase among notices for you to notice...we notice that some of the notices have been noticed...on the other hand, some of our notices have not been noticed...it has been noticed that the responses to our notices have been noticeably unnoticed...this notice is to remind you to notice this notice and to respond to the notice because we do not want the notice to go unnoticed.

Thoughts to ponder:

If you are a $10,000 income worker now and present rates of inflation hold (assuming an average of six per cent per annum) you'll be making $45,000 by the year 2001 if wages keep up with prices. Generally they do, so you have a lot to look forward to.

Not necessarily--for ordinary costs by then will look like these: lower priced car $17,160; average house $171,160; monthly rent for a luxury suburban apartment $1,287; Sunday newspaper $1.50; ground beef, $2.15 per pound; coffee $8.50 per pound (if we're lucky); head of lettuce $2.53; and a Big Mac, $3.22.

Millionaires will be a dime a dozen. Hundred dollar bills will have replaced tens as common folding money. Weekly allowances for kids will run about what a grown man's wages did back in the 1930s.

Money is a comparative thing. If everybody has a lot of it, value goes down for the funds on hand. That's the fallacy of minimum wages set by government enactment. All wages go up, and jobs disappear at lower levels because no employer can affort to "carry" the learner, inefficient or marginal employee.

Someday, maybe, the collective wisdom of mankind will determine that nature's laws of supply and demand and the competition of the free markets always level things out in the end.

Temporary problems and shortages are created time and again when govenment attempts to change economic law either by statue or regulation.

the roots critics

When something stirs the hearts and minds of people as much as did the now-famous television series "Roots," there is bound to be a reaction. Most of it has centered on the question of the historical accuracy of the book by Alex Haley, on which the series was based, and some of it has even been international.

The London Sunday Times, for instance, has thrown doubt on Haley's discovery that he was descended from a young African named Kunta Kinte, who was kidnapped by slave traders in the 18th century. Other critics have pointed out that the story ignores the important role played by black Africans themselves in slave trade.

Still others, while they take pains to condemn slavery as an evil institution, argue that it really wasn't all that bad, you know. It was to the economic self-interest of slaveowners to treat their slaves humanely.

All of which criticism would seem to be quite beside the point.

Alex Haley is not Swiss-German or Scotch-irish. He is not Chinese. His roots obviously are African, and since there is no record of Africans ever having hijacked passing ships to take them to America, it is also obvious that somewhere along the line one of his ancestors was forcibly brought to this country.

As for the claim that slavery was not oppresive as we have always thought it was, those who make the claim have the burden of explaining why it was necessary to have a Fugitive Slave Law, why such things as the Underground Railway existed, why there was an abolition movement--why, indeed, the nation nearly tore itself asunder over slavery.

In short, it is difficult to figure out just what the critics are getting at. if "Roots is not absolutely verifiable in every detail, it in no way offends essential historical truth. If it does not tell the whole story of the black experience in America, Haley never pretends that it did.

As for other criticisms--that all black characters in "Roots" are good and noble and all the whites are mean and cruel, and that rehashing all this stuff about slavery will contribute to racial discord--the one charge was also laid against "Uncle Tom's Cabin" and the other is reminiscent of the argument not heard in more than a century that blacks would be happier if they were kept in ignorance.

White Americans have "Gone with the Wind," black Americans now have "Roots," When it comes to a comparison between the two in terms of historical accuracy, there is really no contest.

STEEL SHORTAGE FEARED

High Drilling Pace Ups Rig Equipment Orders

By Max B. Skelton
AP Oil Writer

HOUSTON (AP)— Domestic oil and gas drilling operations are at a 16-year high.

The situation has prompted a rash of orders for new drilling rig components, but, at the same time, has caused some fear shortages of some steel supplies may develop in the months ahead.

Ed McGhee, executive vice president of the International Association of Drilling Contractors, says manufacturers of drilling rig components report new orders have taken a sharp jump in the past 90 days.

"After suffering through a dismal 1976, the manufacturers were caught by surprise," McGhee said. "Delivery time has stretched out accordingly."

McGhee said most of the new orders are from U.S. and Canadian land drilling contractors.

Most are for medium depth rigs," he said. "This pattern seems a natural outgrowth of the high rig utilization rates of late 1976 and early 1977."

McGhee said news of the improved status brought quick reaction from some Washington politicians.

"Some are suggesting an embargo on exports of drilling equipment," he said. "A similar proposal two years ago by Sen. Henry Jackson D-Wash. never came to a head."

McGhee said concern mounts in the United States about possible shortages of some grades of well casing steel good before the end of the year.

The unprecedented spurt of land drilling in the first quarter has already drawn down stocks of some suppliers," he said. adding that the overall U.S. economy may determine in part whether the situation degenerates to the depths of two years ago.

"A strong resurgence in other industries might inhibit American steel mills from dedicating more tonnage to oilfield tubulars," he said.

As the number of rotary drilling rigs in use moved to a 16-year high of 1,906, McGhee said industry statisticians are scratching their heads over how much improvement to expect in new well drilling this year.

"On the one hand, active rig count for the first quarter leads year ago levels by some 15 per cent," he said.

"On the other hand, reports of new well completions reflect little change."

McGhee said no one doubts the rig figures but that some statisticians are suspicious of the well counts.

"They believe the 1976 first figures were bloated by inclusion of a large number of wells which had actually been completed late in 1975 but not included in the count until after the new year," he said.

"Some now predict a total 1977 gain of 10 to 12 per cent for active rigs, with new well completions trailing this improvement only slightly."

The industry completed 39,765 domestic wells last year while maintaining an average of 1,658 active rotary rigs.

Last year's rig activity ranged from a low week of 1,457 active rigs to a peak week of 1,869. Through mid-April, this year's activity has ranged from a low of 1,815 to a high of 1,906.

When the industry drilled a record 58,160 wells in 1956, the active rotary rig count averaged 2,619. The prolonged slump in domestic drilling operations then dropped the average to only 975 in 1971 when only 27,300 wells were completed.

During 1971, the weekly rig count average dropped as low as 814 and got no higher than 1,189.

Industry officials trace the upward swing in activity to price increases that followed the 1973-74 Arab oil embargo.

"This low level trend of the past few years was reversed in 1973," John Moody, president of the 18,500 American Association of Petroleum Geolgists, said in recent congressional testimony.

"The price increases provided enough incentive for a substantial increase in the number of new field wildcats, exploratory wells and an even greater expansion in development drilling."

Frank N. Ikard, president of the American Petroleum Institute, said while reporting the 1976 well completions total that the sharp increase in drilling over the past few years can be attributed directly to the greater incentives resulting from proved prices.

"However, given the magnitude of the current shortfall in domestic production, what we really need is even more drilling and major discoveries," Ikard said.

Grades Improve With Rewards

By Abigail Van Buren

1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y.News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: To FED UP IN TEXAS who objects to paying children for getting good grades in school: The idea of rewarding good grades does have some merit because most children lack the maturity and foresight to realize the importance of working hard enough to get good grades.

When my son was a high school freshman, his grades were barely passing. He hated school and wanted to quit. Lecturing did no good. Discipline only made matters worse. Then on the advice of a friend I decided to try the "reward" method; nothing for a C, $1 for a B and $2 for an A. And an extra $5 if he made the honor roll.

For every "D" he lost a dollar, and for an "F" he lost two dollars.

The results were immediate. For his first report card I paid him $1—slightly above a "C" average. The following report cards showed steady improvement until he obtained a 3.8 average (A minus) in the first semester of his senior year. His attitude had changed, and he was actually enjoying school.

But the final payoff came in his last semester before graduation. We disposed of the report-card system; and I offered him a new car if he could make a 4.0 (straight-A) average for his final semester.

Yes, he made it. He got his car and graduated with honors.

Some students get poor grades because they lack the incentive to work. All I did was provide the incentive, and it worked beautifully.

PAID UP IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR PAID UP: Although few parents can afford the kind of incentive you offered, I certainly can't knock your "incentive" system. Your son was the big winner, Dad. Congratulations to both of you. Read on for a letter from another parent who shares your opinion:

DEAR ABBY: May I say something to that Texan who thought that bribing kids for getting good grades was wrong?

My 9-year-old son has a learning disability. Nothing serious. It can be corrected with special help.

However, he wanted something special for Christmas last year, so my husband told him that if he brought home a good report card, he could have it.

Well, to make a long story short, our son made a B average the last grading period before Christmas!

According to his special teacher, he had to work 10 times as hard as a normal child in order to make a C average, so for him to have made a B was fantastic. The incentive to achieve is what made the difference.

Granted, kids always want what their friends have, but if they are willing to work as hard as mine did, they deserve a reward.

I'm also from Texas, but sign this....

Miss Dietrich Said Very Ill

LONDON (AP)-- A lawyer representing Marlene Dietrich in a libel case says the 75-year-old actress is so ill she can't even discuss the case.

Edward Adeane told high court justice Sir Basil Neild that Miss Dietrich is being treated in Paris for the after-effects of a broken hip, depression and nervousness.

Not many of us think for ourselves when it comes to matters in religion. We prefer to leave religious subjects and Bible issues to those supposedly trained and skilled in this field—the priests, theologians, pastors, and ministers. Sometimes we get the idea that the Bible cannot be understood by common people. Some religious leaders even teach and encourage this view.

Does the Bible say anything about the ability and the responsibility of the average person to understand its message? Most certainly it does.

To the Christians at Ephesus, Paul wrote: "Wherefore be ye not foolish, but understand what the will of the Lord is" (Ephesians 5:17).

Surely God does not require of man that which is beyond his ability.

The Jews of Berea, for example, are described in the New Testament as "noble." Yet, they were not famous, nor where they rich or powerful. In fact, they were somewhat obscure. The description of their nobility is recorded in Acts 17:11:

"These were more noble than those in Thessalonica in that they received the word with all readiness of mind and searched the scriptures daily, whether these things were so."

This reference to the Bereans is significant because it is plainly a tribute to a religious people. The Bereans were noble in attitude. They were noble because they were eager to be taught the truth—they were sincerely truth-seekers! Although ready to receive religious teaching from others, they were at the same time very careful to examine such teaching in the light of the scriptures.

Certainly the Bereans could not be called professional theologians. They were simple people of honest hearts and open minds —moreover, a people with a profound respect for the authority of the sacred scriptures.

Unfortunately, this attitude of the Bereans—the spirit of independent, personal investigation — does not prevail widely among religious people in the twentieth century. It is a sad commentary on our lack of love for the truth (2 Thessalonians 2:10-12). Man is in a pitiable state (a sad plight) when he possesses neither the intellectual vitality nor the spiritual interest to study God's will for himself.

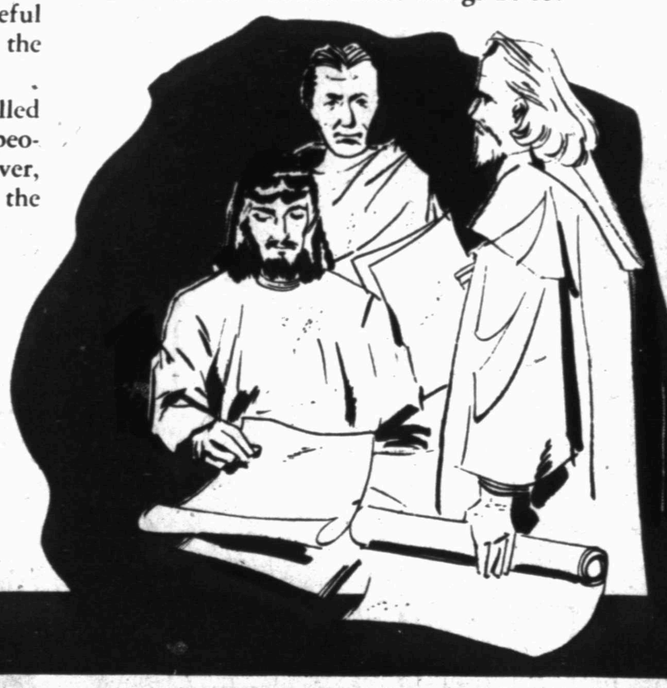

The New Testament abounds with evidence that harmonizes with the attitude of the noble Bereans. The apostle Peter insisted that Christians should know what they believe and why they believe it, "ready always to give an answer to every man that asketh you a reason of the hope that is in you" (1 Peter 3:15).

The apostle John places the responsibility directly upon every Christian to follow the pattern of the Bereans and prove every teaching to be sure it is from God: "because many false prophets are gone out into the world" (1 John 4:1).

By revelation John commends very highly the favorable characteristic of the church of Ephesus of being ready at all times to check truth against error. They had "tried them which say they are apostles, and are not, and hast found them liars . . ." (Revelation 2:2).

Members of churches of Christ today are simply trying to reproduce faithfully the church of our Lord as it existed in the first century—the same in doctrine, worship, name, organization, service, life and work. The Bible clearly teaches that the seed of the gospel—the word of God—will produce after its kind, pure and undenominational Christianity. The first century church was founded upon the basis of the word; it follows that the same word must serve as the blueprint for the twentieth century church.

We invite our friends to "search the scriptures" to see whether these things be so!
