KNOB KNOCKER DIES IN GUN BATTLE

1,000 Sign Petition Asking Repeal Of City Sewer Tax

Faith

Red Cross Call—A "College" Town—
About That Searchlight—Real Religion—

Wichita Falls opens its annual Red Cross roll call Monday, with only 4000 memberships sought from this county. Certainly as rich and populous a county as Wichita should furnish 4000 Red Cross members without great difficulty, and support could be given to no more worthy enterprise than the Red Cross. Of all organizations, it seems to operate with the greatest dispatch, the greatest efficiency and with the least "red tape" when emergencies demand Red Cross service. The Record News hopes that the two days set aside for the call, Monday and Tuesday, will be more than sufficient to send Wichita county "over the top."

With many noted alumni of Baylor university scheduled to visit Wichita Falls for the Baptist convention next week, the Baylor club plans a banquet at which ex-students of the institution will gather to renew old friendships and traditions. Wichita Falls seems to have more graduates of colleges than almost any town in the state, with the possible exception of Austin. It is surprising that the ex-students of Baylor, Texas, A. & M., Oklahoma university and other schools do not gather oftener.

Hospitality of Wichita Falls will be put to a test next when 4000 or more delegates to the state Baptist convention arrive here for the 1927 meeting. According to local church officials, rooms are still needed to house these delegates, rooms which will be paid for at regular rates. Nothing leaves such a poor impression with visitors as the inability of a town to provide good lodgings. Wichita Falls residents who have available rooms should offer them for use at once.

With the Hamilton building intercepting the arc of the searchlight on the City National Bank building, an inquisitive reporter wonders how long it will be before other buildings as large as the Hamilton structure almost entirely cut off the beams of light. Probably not so many years before thre will be other buildings here as large or larger than the Hamilton building. Those who know the history of the City National, however, know that the growth of the institution will keep pace with that of the city, which is more important than this searchlight question.

The Rev. L. S. White, efficient and busy pastor of the First Church of Christ, has the pleasure of announcing that the entire $50,000 cost of the church building has been paid, and an annex purchased at a cost of $6750. Wichita Falls churches are unusually well housed and well equipped, which speaks well for this city's religion. It goes as far as the pocketbook, which is far too difficult to reach in many other enterprises.

Those who attended the ice manufacturers convention here say that it was one of the best and most efficiently handled in the history of the association, and that the needs and pleasures of the visitors were cared for in every respect. Hats off to Arthur C. Rayzor and his committees who did a fine piece of work for Wichita Falls.

The Record News:

The W. R. Scurry chapter of the U. D. C. wish to thank you warmly for the many lovely courtesies extended to them during their recent convention held in Wichita Falls.

There never was a time you were called that you did not respond in some lovely way, and we want you to know how thoroughly it was appreciated.

Sincerely,

Mrs. C. C. Hagmann, president,

Mrs. E. F. Riley, corresponding secretary.

COUNCIL MAY CALL ELECTION TO DECIDE

Many Want Change In Collections, Proponents Of Plan Say

TAX RAISE PREFERRED

Election Would Allow Need Charter Changes, Say City Heads

Petitions asking the city council to repeal the city sewer tax, or to order a referendum election on the question of repealing the tax, have been signed by more than 1000 voters, according to A. L. Lane, Sr., who is fostering the movement.

Mr. Lane said he is being assisted in the circulation of the petitions by M. H. Pearce, I. A. Albritton, Sr., and F. M. Knott. They do not expect to present the matter before the city council until Nov. 21, it was stated.

Many Escape, He Says

"It is our object," said Mr. Lane "to do away with the sewer tax and if it is necessary, to have a charter election and raise the ad valorem tax rate in order to take care of the difference. This would mean less to the taxpayers than the present method. We believe it all pay their share instead of many escaping as they now do that we would all be better off.

"I have talked to the mayor and several members of the council and they seem to be willing to make the change. Our petitions ask either the repeal of ordinance No. 426, the sewer tax ordinance, by the council direct or submit its repeal to the people.

"We are meeting with very little opposition, in fact only one man has refused to sign. We are in no wise fighting the city government but are merely asking them to make a change we believe would be beneficial."

Willing to Act

City officials when asked about the matter declared they desired to do what the taxpayers desire. They pointed out that repeal of the sewer tax ordinance would mean that funds derived from it for maintenance of the sewer system and disposal plant will have to be replaced in some manner. The present limit of 60 cents to general fund would not take care of the difference.

The general fund is not sufficient at present to meet the city's needs according to those in touch with the situation. They welcome a charter election. The charter of 1920 has been outgrown in many respects, according to those closely in touch with the city's affairs and they believe it would be well to amend it to allow more revenues and correct other features that have not worked out.

Finance Commissioner Oral Jones stated that regardless of the action taken on the petition that until it was repealed he would continue to take stringent methods to collect from delinquents. He has already ordered Tax Collector W. R. Hyer to start compiling lists of delinquents to be turned over to the city engineer to cut off from service.

Little Hope Held For Wounded Okla. Man

Special to The Record News.

FREDERICK, Okla., Nov. 12.—Wayne Franklin, 35, Tillman county farmer who was shot early this morning on a farm south of Tipton, was reported Saturday night as unchanged in condition but physicians held little hope for his recovery.

Officers had no clue to the whereabouts of Jess McGowan, negro, at whose home the shooting took place. McGowan left home immediately after the shooting.

The shooting was said to have followed a difficulty between the two men last Monday. M. M. Stocking, on whose farm McGowan lives, and a negro who accompanied Franklin to the house, stated that Franklin was shot when he opened the door of the house after an argument. Franklin was shot with a .38 automatic, the bullet entering the abdomen and leaving the body to the right of the spine.

Franklin is married.

Flying Skill Saves Italian Speed Ace

PARMA, Italy, Nov. 12. (AP)—Major Mario de Bernardi, Italian speed expert, who recently was timed at more than 315 miles an hour in a seaplane, had a narrow escape from death in a storm here late yesterday, his flying skill being the only thing that saved him and his passenger, Major Pedace, secretary-general of the Aero club, from disaster.

WICHITA WINS AD CONVENTION

W. S. Abbott Elected To Vice Presidency

Special to The Record News.

EL PASO, Nov. 12.—Wichita Falls was awarded the 1928 convention of the Texas advertising clubs at the closing session of the annual meeting here Saturday. In the election of officers, W. S. Abbott of Wichita Falls was elected second vice president of the state organization.

Otto Bruck, advertising manager of the Beaumont Enterprise and Journal, was elected president. He was chosen unanimously.

Other officers were: Alfonso Johnson, Dallas, first vice president; and A. D. Collins, Houston, secretary-treasurer.

Success of Rice Experiment to Lead To Extensive Tests On Valley Lands

Rice—great fields of waving rice may become common in the irrigated valley of the Wichita within the next few years.

Even today the forces are marshalling for experiments that may be the beginnings of a new and great farm industry in this northwest land of fertility.

Rice will be planted in the Wichita valley next year—planted on a large enough scale so that it can be determined definitely if the cereal can be grown here profitably. If these tests are successful more acreage will undoubtedly be given to rice, with the possible result that this section of Texas may rival the costal areas of the state in rice production ere many years have passed.

That these proposed tests will be successful is indicated by two experiments conducted in northwest Texas during the 1927 season.

That they will be successful is further indicated by the fact that J. A. Kemp and H. W. Barton, Wichita valley landowner and farmer, have become interested in the proposed industry and that one and probably both of them will have acreage planted to rice next year.

That these tests will be success-

Burns Agent Gives All Facts of Shadowing To Authorities

FORCED TO FALSIFY

Army Officer Testifies That Burns Forced Him to Lie

By Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Investigation of jury tampering in the Fall-Sinclair oil conspiracy case reached a sensational and melodramatic climax today.

One of the Burns detectives, hired by Harry F. Sinclair to shadow the Teapot Dome jurors went before the grand jury, revealed his true identity and told an amazing story of how Burns operatives were ordered to trail the jury even to the extent of "provoking a mistrial if necessary."

The detective was listed on the Burns payroll as "William V. Long" His true name is William J. McMullin of Philadelphia, a second lieutenant in the army air service. He enlisted in the Burns agency as a detective because he was out of work.

McMullin revealed to the grand jury that while employed by Burns to shadow the Fall-Sinclair jurors he was all the time in close touch with the government prosecutors and reported to them every move made by the Burns agency.

Conscience-stricken after realizing the infamous nature of the task assigned to him as a Burns agent, McMullin became an ally of the government in its effort to prove conspiracy to interfere with the orderly process of justice in the Fall-Sinclair trial.

McMullin first told his story to Gifford Pinchot, former governor of Pennsylvania, at his home here. Pinchot sent him to Owen Roberts, chief government prosecutor, to whom he repeated his story. From there on McMullin worked with the government lawyers, although still on the Burns payroll.

Texas Girl Wants To Fly Across Ocean

AUSTIN, Nov. 12. (AP)—Miss Grace McClellan, of Austin, aviatrix and trick pistol shot today declared she will undertake a transoceanic flight from Dallas to Hong Kong "or any other place" if she can get backing. TREASURE HUNT

Ruler of David Cult Believed to Have Secret Gold

By Universal Service.

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., Nov. 12. — A search for what is believed to be a buried treasure chest will be part of the picturesque climaxes of the House of David, whose overthrow was sounded this week by the decision handed down by Judge Louis Fead, recommending a receivership for the cult and exiling the aged ruler, now nigh unto death who is given but a few weeks to live.

"I believe Ben had a buried treasure chest," said Prosecutor Bookwater today. "This is an opinion long held, in the city of Benton Harbor, east of which the colony has flourished over a quarter of a century. Ben's sudden and mysterious junkets, almost always under cover of night, give credence to these rumors, when he had to have ready money, generally much cash and immediately."

JAIL DELIVERY AT WAURIKA

Three Prisoners Pick Lock; One Stays

Special to The Record News.

WAURIKA, Okla., Nov. 12.—Three prisoners escaped from the Jefferson county jail early this morning by working the lock on their cell door and lifting the door bolt. None of them had been apprehended Saturday night.

The prisoners who escaped were Jimmie Andrews of Warren, Ark., and Joe Simons of McAlester, Okla., held on charges of possession of burglary tools and Hoyt Taylor of Wichita Falls, charged with robbery of a box car.

A prisoner named Bill Phillips remained in the cell he was sharing with the escaped men. He maintains that he knows nothing of the delivery, according to Sheriff F. E. Driskill.

The cell is located on the first floor of the jail and the jailer, who lives on the second floor, stated that all of the prisoners were in their places at midnight.

Officers were mystified as to the method used by the prisoners in opening the lock. After they opened the lock they apparently used a stick tied on a piece of cloth to raise the bolt, possibly repeatedly dropping the stick until it caught on the bolt, according to Sheriff Driskill. It was the first time in 15 years that prisoners escaped from the local jail in this manner.

Allred and Fruchte To Archer City Trial

District Attorney Ben P. Allred and E. F. Fruechte, assistant, will go to Archer City early Monday morning for the trial of John Burrier charged with the murder of John McDaniel in a filling station holdup near Archer City. McDaniel was killed when he resisted a bandit. The state will be ready for trial when Judge Ernest G. Thornton of the 30th district court calls the case.

Burrier states he was in Colorado, Texas, at the time of the killing and holdup and will offer testimony to this effect.

4000 EXPECTED AT BAPTIST MEETING HERE

Advance Guard of State Delegates Arrive Saturday

NEFF TO PRESIDE

Division Meetings To Precede General Convention

Preceded by two smaller conventions which will get underway Monday, the Baptist general convention of Texas, made up of about 4000 representatives from every Baptist institution in Texas, is to convene here in the new municipal auditorium next Wednesday evening. The advance guard of the messengers and delegates began arriving late Saturday; more are expected to come Sunday, and by Monday the total representation of the Pastors' and Laymen's conference and the Woman's Missionary Union, both adjuncts of the convention, is expected to be here.

Form Program Monday.

Baptist officials of Wichita Falls are busy making preparations for the reception for the hundreds of guests, and are scouting all over the city in search of rooms for their accommodation. Meanwhile no active work is being done in the field of program arrangements, since the program of the convention proper, it was explained, it to be largely formulated during the meetings of the two organizations which meet here Monday and Tuesday.

The Woman's Missionary Union meets Monday at the First Baptist church at 10 o'clock, to begin its three-day session, and the Pastors' and Laymen's conference opens Tuesday morning in the municipal auditorium. Both meetings will last through Wednesday afternoon, and will adjourn at the time of the opening of the convention proper.

Pat M. Neff, ex-governor of Texas and president of the convention, will preside. The meeting will be unofficially in charge of the executive board of the convention, which consist of seventy-five prominent Baptist leaders, chosen from all sections of the state.

Conquest Campaign.

Although not known as official, since the program of the convention has not been announced, Baptist leaders here Saturday received word that the "Conquest Campaign" of Texas Baptists would receive special notice in the convention. The conquest was inaugurated a year ago as a debt-paying campaign for every Baptist institution. A meeting of the executive committee was held in Dallas Saturday to hear Dr. George W. Truett director of the campaign, outline methods that would be recommended to the convention for the continuation of the debt-paying drive.

May Have Bandit Band at El Paso

By Universal Service

DEL RIO, Texas, Nov. 12.—Following the arrest here today of a 45-year-old man who was going under two names and carrying more than $6000 in his pockets, authorities believed they were about to round up a band of bank robbers.

SEVEN DIE IN HOTEL BLAZE

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 13. (AP).—Seven persons, three women, two men and two children, were killed here early today in a fire in a hotel in the downtown district. Many were injured as they jumped from the windows of the burning hotel to escape death in the flames.

Smoke began pouring out of the building shortly before midnight, and many were seen to jump from the building. The bodies of most of the dead were found in a hallway on the third floor. A definite check of the dead or identification could not be made immediately.

Origin of the fire had not been determined early today.

HORSE KILLS SEYMOUR GIRL

Miss Elizabeth Lively, 20 Lives But Short Time

Special to The Record News.

SEYMOUR, Nov. 12.—Miss Elizabeth Lively, 20, daughter of Mrs. Myron Lively of Dallas, and instructor in expression in the Seymour High school, was almost instantly killed here about 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon when the horse she was riding near the end of Washington street reared, lost its footing, and fell. Miss Lively was caught beneath the horse as it fell, and was severely crushed, living only about 15 minutes after the tragedy.

She had been taking riding lessons for the last few weeks, friends said, and had borrowed the horse belonging to the children of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Cortwood. The horse had never been known to be other than gentle.

Miss Lively came to the High school here Sept 1, after graduating from the Woodrow School of Expression at Dallas.

The body is being held in the parlors of the W. H. Gray Undertaking company pending the arrival of her mother from Dallas, when funeral arrangements will be made. She is survived by her mother.

FATHER OF GIRL DIED IN SAME FASHION.

DALLAS, Nov. 12. (AP) — Miss Elizabeth Lively, 20-year-old expression teacher killed at Seymour Saturday afternoon when her horse fell on her met death in exactly the manner that her father, C. M. Lively, did about 10 years ago. He was horseback riding near Lefot when his horse suddenly became frightened falling on him and breaking his neck.

Miss Lively is survived by her mother, Mrs. C. M. Lively, and a sister, Miss Edith Lively. She was a junior student at Southern Methodist university last year and had studied a year at the Woodrow scool of Expression, in addition to attending Baylor college at Belton two years.

Contractors Threaten General Work Layoff

AUSTIN, Nov. 12. (AP)—Notice that all union carpenters will be "laid off" unless striking carpenters on three Austin contract jobs are back at work at 8 o'clock Monday morning was voted by between 25 and 30 contractors at a called meeting of the Austin Builders exchange Saturday. A pledge of this action was being sent to approximately 15 other contractors with request for signatures.

Prophet's Descendant To Speak at Fort Worth

FORT WORTH, Nov. 12. (AP)—Syud Hossian, direct descendant of the prophet of Islan, will speak before the city federation of women's clubs here on November 16. Syud is a variation of a title used by those who trace their descent in an unbroken male line from Hossian, grandson of Mahomet and son of Ali, who married Fatima, only daughter of the prophet.

PAL CAPTURED BY OFFICERS AFTER FIGHT

DEAD MAN UNKNOWN

Officers Surprise Pair In Attempt To Rob Station

One man was killed, and another, who told officers his name was Ray Smith, was captured after a running fight with Police Officers Ellis Summers and Homer Bentley about 1 o'clock Saturday night, when two men were surprised while in the act of knocking the knob off the safe of the Panhandle Filling station at the intersectiotn of Hays street and the Seymour road.

The name of the dead man is not known.

Both officers told Night Police Chief J. E. Glenn in an official report of the shooting, that they were riding near the filling station at a late hour Saturday night, and were drawn towards the filling station when they saw a Ford car parked in the driveway.

Chased Men

The bandits, surprised, began running, carrying their tools with them, leaving the officers in doubt as to the nature of their actions.

"We didn't know what they had done but we chased them, yelling that we were officers, and for them to stop," Bentley said. "After chasing them for about six blocks, they dropped behind a fence in the rear of 1603 Grant street. Summers yelled for them to stick 'em up, and one of them drew a gun and fired at us. The other pulled his gun, too. It snapped six times.

Both Officers Fire

"We both fired at them at once. I don't know which one of us hit the man."

Meanwhile, neighbors had phoned the police station for additional police. Smith, carrying a suitcase filled with tools of all descriptions, crowbars, wrenches, hammers, and other articles, was taken to the police station.

Knob Knocked Off

Officers returning to the filling station said they found that the knob had been knocked off the safe but that the inner compartments were untouched.

According to Captain Glenn, police officers had had the men spotted for the last two days, and Saturday night's activities was but the culmination of a search. The men, Capt. Glenn said, had moved into a rooming house some time ago, and had been reported by their landlady, who said they had prowled into the rooms of other occupants of the house. They left this house early last night, it was said.

The body of the dead man is being held in a local mortuary.

After the arrival of additional officers at the scene shortly after 1 o'clock, E. G. Nelson who had been attracted by the shooting, was sent to call Justice of the Peace O. L. Gibbs. Judge Gibbs said his verdict would be death from gunshot wounds.

Police officers expressed the belief that the man held had not given his right name, and shortly after 2 o'clock Saturday night he was being questioned by E. F. Fruechte, assistant district attorney. They also hoped by this means to establish the identity of the slain bandit.

Officer Summers a few months ago engaged automobile thieves in a running gun fight which lasted for several miles out the Petrolia road. The officer narrowly escaped death at the time, the men firing at him from the car, and forcing his motorcycle into a ditch while it was going at a high rate of speed.

Admiring Mob Forces Wales to Seek Help

LONDON, Nov. 12. (AP)—A crowd of eager admirers who nearly mobbed him, forced the Prince of Wales to seek refuge in Scotland Yard after an Armistice day celebration at the cenotaph. When the prince was inside the yard the crowd tried to rush the gates and the prince had to pass through the yard to the Victoria box embankment to reach his car.

Fort Worth-Dallas Lines May Be Probed

AUSTIN, Nov. 12. (AP)—Former State Senator E. G. Senter gave notice last Saturday before the railroad commission's hearing on proposed increase of Fort Worth-Dallas motor bus rates, that he will invite the attorney general's attention to his charge of infraction of the anti-trust law in operation of electric traction and bus lines between the two cities.

BUILDING FOR WEEK $178,770

Year's Total Reaches $3,205,297

Building permits for last week again took a decided upward trend, totaling $178,770. Filing of the permits for work on the Johnson chicken ranch was responsible for part of the increase but building in general showed a healthy gain. The permit for Mr. Johnson's home has been issued but not filed as yet by Fred A. Smith, building inspector. Mr. Smith will not file it until work is actually started.

Warrant Injunction Suit Before Court

The warrant injunction suit against the city was submitted Saturday to the second court of civil appeals at Fort Worth. Both sides had already submitted their briefs and short oral arguments were heard from Thelbert Martin, city attorney, and C. C. McDonald for the appellants.

The case was first filed in the 78th district court here by J. M. Childers and others and seeks to restrain the city from receiving $214,000 on emergency warrants issued by the city and sold to a Kansas firm. Judge W. D. Cook and Judge P. A. Martin refused to grant the injunction and the case was taken to the higher court.

Should the court at Fort Worth follow its usual custom no decision will be handed down until next Saturday. Occasionally the court has handed down decisions on Wednesday.

Pretty Bride in Seymour Wedding

SEYMOUR, Texas, Nov. 12.—Miss Pauline Knox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stone Knox, and Lee Morris, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Morris, who were united in marriage in a beautiful home wedding Saturday evening at 7 o'clock, with the Rev. T. S. Knox, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Abilene, performing the ceremony. The latter is a cousin of the bride. Miss Christine Caldwell, also a cousin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Caldwell, acted as bridesmaid; and Mr. Morris was attended by his brother, George Morris. Gene Culver, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Culver, was ring bearer, and Julia Ellen Knox of Anson, cousin of the bride, was flower girl.

Rice Is Success On Valley Land

ful is still further indicated by the prospect that the Kincheloe brothers, experienced rice growers, may supervise the planting and cultivation of the rice.

One test was made at the state experiment station at Iowa Park. A small quantity of the cereal was planted, merely as an experiment to see if it could be raised in this climate. No particular attention was given to the rice, other than is given all experiments at the station. Yet the rice grew and thrived and bore fruit.

The other test was along commercial lines and was conducted by experienced rice growers. The Kincheloe brothers, who have raised rice in the coastal country, planted a large tract on the shores of Lake Pauline, near Chillicothe. From one acre they obtained 111 bushels of rice, while the yield for the tract was 100 bushels an acre.

In the face of this outstanding success, the Kincheloe brothers are going to have to give up their farm on Lake Pauline. The power and light company operating in that section has taken over Lake Pauline, so the water will not be available for rice cultivation there next year.

May Come Here

So the Kincheloes are contemplating starting rice growing in the Wichita valley, where water is plentiful and comparatively cheap.

T. L. Ball, Wichita Falls realtor, and H. W. Barton, local farm owner, who are among the sponsors of the proposed cultivation of rice in the valley, visited the Kincheloe farm and inspected the rice fields there during the last week. They returned to Wichita Falls "sold" in the idea of rice cultivation in this section.

Mr. Ball brought back several small bales of rice just as it was gathered from the Kincheloe fields which he was exhibiting Saturday to many farmers and interested land owners in this city. He also had samples of the original seed which the Kincheloes planted in the Lake Pauline tract.

"I am predicting that rice will become one of the prolific crops in this valley within the next few years," Mr. Ball said. "Several land owners, including J. A. Kemp and Mr. Barton, have already become interested and chances are that rice will be planted on the lands of both men next year.

"The four Kincheloe brothers have talked the matter over with local men, and they will in all probability come to Wichita Falls and supervise the general cultivation of rice in the valley or else personally take charge of a large tract on which rice will be cultivated exclusively. They have an abundance of seed which is acclimated to the valley, and they have already had one successful season in northwest Texas.

"They point out that this locality is not too far north for rice—some of the best rice fields in Arkansas are considerably farther north than Wichita Falls.

The main necessity, they say, is an abundance of water on the ground at the right time. The irrigated valley will provide that water.

Rice is said to be a natural enemy of Johnson grass, another factor of popularity.

COPLIN IMPROVING

T. L. Coplin, deputy supervisor of the oil and gas division of the railroad commission, will be moved from the Wichita Clinic hospital Sunday to his home at 2201 Tenth street. Mr. Coplin has been ill for about three weeks, but is rapidly improving.

Detention of A. L. Johnston in Holdup "Mistake in Identity," Spence Finds

Detention of A. L. Johnston, 1509 25th street, for a short time Wednesday night by city police resulted from a misapprehension of the complaining witness, Sam B. Spence, assistant district attorney, announced Saturday. Mr. Spence said he was sure the case was one of mistaken identity, as the good reputation of Mr. Johnston precluded the possibility of his being involved in the case. Mr. Johnston is a team and trucking contractor, and was questioned by police at the instance of the man robbed. He was released at the instructions of Mr. Spence Thursday night, and Saturday Mr. Spence said the case would be dropped as it was certain that a mistake had been made.

"I have heard of things like this happening to people in fiction, but it's the first time I've ever had actual knowledge of such a mistake," said Mr. Johnston Saturday.

DROPS PISTOL, GETS 30 DAYS

Judge Rules in Contempt By Defendant

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 12. (AP) Because he dropped a pistol on the court room floor during the trial in which he was acquitted of murdering Bill Tilghman, noted frontier peace officer, Wiley Lynn, former federal prohibition agent, must spend 30 days in jail.

The Oklahoma criminal court of appeals today affirmed the sentence for contempt imposed by District Judge Frank Matthews more than two years ago.

Lynn, a part blood Indian, shot Tilghman to death late in 1924 in front of a dance hall at Cromwell, boom oil town of which Tilghman was city marshal. Tilghman was marshal of Dodge City, Kan., when it was a note dfrontier "cow town" and later a United States marshal in Oklahoma. He was a celebrated gun shot. Lynn, who said Tilghman resisted an attempted raid in dance hall, shot the old man with a pistol he had drawn from concealment after Tilghman had taken two guns from him.

Despite the activities of a battery of the state's leading attorneys in the prosecution, Lynn was acquitted in the spring of 1925 when he was tried at Wewoka.

During the trial, he dropped a loaded automatic pistol on the floor with a clatter that brought a start to many tensed nerves. Lynn picked up the gun and the incident passed unnoticed by Judge Matthews, but a prosecution attorney later whispered in the judge's ear and at the noon recess Lynn was searched and the gun removed.

After the verdict of acquittal, Judge Matthews hailed Lynn before him and after a severe lecture, sentenced him to jail. Lynn's chief counsel pleaded in vain that he had instructed his client to bring the gun into court because it might be needed as evidence.

Lynn was discharged from the prohibition service after the trial. It was testified that the woman proprietor of a rooming house and another couple accompanied Tilghman on the fatal trip to Cromwell and that Lynn was found in their car after the killing.

She Upset Juries in Court Here

Billie Igoe, who upset juries in the 89th district court this week, posed for a photographer while she chatted about the transfer of her case to another county by Judge P. A. Martin. After one jury had acquitted the young lady and another had been unable to reach a verdict, Judge Martin transferred the case on his own motion.

"Now Listen, Big Boy, You'll Never Know My Real Name," She Declares

Billie Igoe, petite defendant, who this week whipped the district attorney's force after spotting them a confession, and later tied them in another case to bring down the judicial wrath of Judge P. A. Martin of the 89th district court, in a way agrees with the judge. She admits she had rather be tried in Wichita county than Clay county.

Billie must have vamped those jurors, or at least one of them and part of the second. The jurors who turned her loose first asked the court if they could give her a suspended sentence. Her attorney had not applied for one in the forgery case and his honor had to say no. Then they found her "not guilty."

Miss Igoe admits that the name she now bears is not that of her parents or what she was christened. The name is her own. She gave it to herself.

"That name doesn't belong to you," she was charged.

"Yes, it does," she flashed back. "I gave it to myself. Just listen to me, big boy, if you are trying to find out my real name that is one thing no one will ever know except me, unless it is an accident."

She is typically feminine for when she was taken down from the jail on the top floor of the courthouse she stopped at each mirror to see if her hat was at the proper angle. Then when the photographer started to trip the shutter she stopped him, powdered her nose and repainted the bow on her lips. He was then allowed to proceed.

CALLES SEEKS 6-YEAR TERM

Obregon Rushes to Mexico City to Oppose

By Universal Service.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 12.—A showdown between President Calles and Gen. Alvaro Obregon, sole survivor of the three candidates who entered the presidential lists last summer, is expected tomorrow when the famous Yaqui fighter reaches the capital.

For some time President Calles has been quietly working to have the lengthening of the presidential period from four to six years apply to the present president, himself.

Obregon, according to those close to him, will never consent to Calles remaining in office until 1930, a project which the president has already placed before the Mexican chamber of deputies.

The capital believed the question of presidential succession was settled when government firing squads recently removed two of Obregon's opponents as presidential possibilities. But in view of later developments, political observers are inclined to believe that Calles has gathered enough strength to continue in office until 1930 instead of Obregon being elected without opposition.

Rumor Hurries Obregon.

General Obregon, it is said, was unaware of Calles' intention to succeed himself when he quit the capital for his ranch in Sonora to await the quelling of the Serrano-Gomez rebellion. But frequent reports of the president's activities to remain in office another two years reached him, and it is now believed that his hurried, and unannounced return to the capital is to force a showdown with the man he is credited with having placed in the presidency.

Those who know Calles fear he will not yield to Obregon's desire that he leave office when his four-year term expires next year. They point out that Calles is flushed with the success of his troops in Vera Cruz, and in other parts of the republic where there were small uprisings, and that if Obregon pushes him too far, he will openly announce his intention to remain in office.

May Cause War.

If Calles follows such a course, Obregon will probably take the field against Calles, friends of the general say.

Many of the deputies and senators have deserted Obregon since the Serrano-Gomez revolt and they are rushing action on the bill to lengthen the presidential term to six years and to have it apply to the present president.

The project has already been approved by the senate and it will be placed before the deputies at the earliest possible moment. And it is believed the chamber of deputies will support Calles.

Meanwhile, the capital is awaiting General Obregon's arrival with unconcealed interest, as on the surface, a rupture between Calles and Obregon is the next act in the Mexican political drama if Calles determines to follow out his plan of "no elections in 1928."

Will Finance Fliers of Merit

Easterwood Offers $50,000 For Flight

DALLAS, Nov. 12. (AP)—Col. W. E. Easterwood of Dallas, who has offered a prize of $50,000 to the aviator making a successful flight from Dallas to Hongkong with only three stops, will also finance any "recognized flyer of merit," word from his office today said. Colonel Easterwood is in New York.

His office understood the latest plan to be that Easterwood would furnish a plane and pay all expenses of the trip for the pilot he considered the most capable.

Originally Easterwood offered a prize of $25,000. It was doubled recently.

Nocona Sector Has New Tests

Montague county has gained definite assurance of two new wildcat wells and promise of two others which will demand a large share of attention of field observers. One of the wells would extend the field in the northern portion of the county while the other would open up an entirely new field south of Nocona, hub of Montague county oil activities.

Sinclair Oil and Gas company has announced its intention to drill No. 1 Dennis, 150 feet from the north line and 1630 feet from the east line of the lease in the Finess Roberson survey. This drilling location is some distance northeast of the closest production.

South of Nocona and within two miles of Montague, the county seat, Oil Operators Trust company has erected a derrick on the location its No. 1 S. Hudspeth, located 3150 feet south and 2300 feet east of the northwest corner of the S. A. Mills survey.

It is understood that Losh and McCall, diligent Montague county operators, are planning tests in the close vicinity of Nocona, one to be north and the other south of the city.

The M. G. & C. test on the Heaton brothers tract, in the O. Buckley survey, northwest of Nocona, resulted in a disappointment by swabbing dry in a sand at 754-74 feet.

NAMED TO COMMISSION.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12. (AP)—Garland S. Ferguson Jr., of Greensboro, N. C., was appointed a member of the federal trade commission today by President Coolidge.

How A Wichita Falls Organization Helps Mothers and Children

"I'm willing to work—but I can't put my babies in an orphanage!"

The young mother, who had gazed through tear-blinded eyes at a new made grave only two days before, looked desperately into the face of the Family Relief worker.

"I'm willing to work—but what of my babies?" Hundreds of other mothers have echoed her appeal.

The appeal doesn't go unanswered in Wichita Falls, as the picture above shows. Provided for through the good people of the city in the Community Chest fund, the Day Nursery is one of the 10 local organizations and institutions sharing in that fund, and doing as fine a piece of community work as could be found in the world.

The mothers all pay what they are able for the care and attention the children receive all day at the nursery. Naturally, they are able to pay mightly little, for in almost every case there are older children being supported in school. What they can pay, however, has nothing to do with what they receive through the kindness of the folks who count themselves "their brother's keeper."

Two Held For Slaying Girl

Beautiful Rufugio Girl Shot At Dance

REFUGIO, Texas, Nov. 12. (AP)—Two men from Nursery, Texas, were being detained and questioned here today in connection with the fatal shooting of Miss Annie Johnson, beautiful 18-year-old daughter of one of Refugio county's most prominent families. The shooting occurred at a dance here just before 1 o'clock this morning.

Miss Johnson left the building in which the dance was held in company with the two men shortly after midnight apparently to go for a short drive. Just before one o'clock one of the men entered the building and told friends that the girl had shot herself. The crowd rushed from the building to find Miss Johnson's body lying in a ditch nearby beside the automobile in which the two men had driven to Refugio.

Her companions told the others that she had secured a .45 caliber revolver from one of them and shot herself. He said he did not know why.

Local officers found what they believe to be blood stains in the automobile and one of the running boards. No one could be found at the dance who had heard gun shots and officers were unable to find powder burns on the girl's body.

Miss Johnson is said to have met at least one of the two men being held at a dance some weeks ago. Neither of the men is very widely known here.

The whole town was plunged into grief as a result of Miss Johnson's death. Close friends of the girl said they knew of no reason why she should seek to take her life.

RITES TODAY FOR PIONEER

Death Claims E. A. McDonald, Archer Official

Special to The Record News.

ARCHER CITY, Nov. 12.—Funeral services for E. A McDonald, 70, Archer county commissioner who died at his home in the Lake Creek community early Friday morning, are to be held from the Cumberland Presbyterian church at Lake Creek Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock with the Rev. R. L. Bates, pastor, officiating. Interment is to be in the Lake Creek cemetery.

Mr. McDonald was an old resident of Archer county, having moved there in 1890. He is survived by five sons, one of whom, Joe McDonald, was formerly sheriff of Archer county; and four daughters, one of whom is Mrs. Charles Gant, wife of the Wichita county deputy sheriff.

Mrs. F. W. Suggett and Daughter Hurt In Crash On Archer Road

Mrs. F. W. Suggett, 1811 Tilden, and her 2-year-old daughter, Betty, were reported Saturday recovering from injuries received Friday night when the car in which they were riding with Mr. Suggett was struck from the rear by a speeding sedan on the Wichita Falls-Archer City road.

Mr. Suggett, who is a prominent Wichita Falls oil operator, was driving to Wichita Falls, he said Saturday, when the sedan crashed into his car, causing it to leap a ditch and run into a fence.

In the crash Mrs. Suggett was thrown against side windguard of the car, receiving a gash on her forehead and deep cuts on each leg. The baby was thrown onto the emergency brake lever, also receiving cuts on her head.

Although his car had been knocked from the road and completely disabled, Mr. Suggett said that the sedan sped on towards Wichita Falls. Hiring a small car at a nearby filling station, the Suggetts were brought to Wichita Falls and their injuries dressed and examined.

Mr. Suggett located the sedan on the streets here and had the driver arrested. He was questioned by Night Police Chief J. A. Glenn while detained at the police station for several hours but was released on Mr. Suggett's recommendation. Mr. Suggett said, however, that he would report the case to Archer county authorities.

BULK OF TEXAS LORE GROWS

University Prof. Collects Old Texas Songs

By Universal Service.

SAN ANTONIO, Nov. 12.—To the "Tongue of Men and Angels," has been added a new language—the folk-lore of Texas.

J. Frank Dobie, secretary of the Texas Folk-Lore society, and member of the State university staff, believes that Texas can contribute quite as much to the folk-language of the world as even Ireland—with its peaceful Blarney stone—has given.

As a student of native-folk-lore Mr. Dobie has lately investigated the fartherest, wildest corners of his home state for material. He has gone to the distant ranches, where typical cowboys who are not in the movies still sing their cattle songs; to old people, who are young enough yet to hum and almost-forgotten tune about "Susan Jane," or "The Honest Tramp."

Valuable Songs Found

"The musical spect of folk-lore is important," Mr. Dobie pointed out, "as a great many traditions and customs are reflected in songs. Although these ballads are usually devoid of literary merit, they contain value as far as social history is concerned.

"There were breakfast calls that were known on the frontier, in ranch and farm homes," Mr. Dobie asserted.

"One of them was this: 'Wake Up, Jacob! Day's A-Breaking! Peas in the Pot, and Hidecakes A-Baking!' And an Old Rock-a-bye baby song was 'I Must Not Work On Sunday.' It was a sing-song on this order: 'I must not work on Sunday, Sunday, Sunday . . . because it is a sin. . . . '"

Yells of "Bad Men"

An outgrowth of the "bad man" era was a collection of bad men "yells," Mr. Dobie discovered, many of them being used by cowboys at the end of a lark in the "big city." One of these "yells" was this:

"The further up the creek you go,
The worse they get,
"And I come from the head of it!
Wh-o-o-opee!"

Mr. Dobie has found domestic lore, including love songs, cowboy lore in quantities, ranger epics and "bade men" material, as well as the ordinary amount of lengeds about people and events.

David K. E. Bruce Quits Consular Service Post

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—David K. Este Bruce, husband of the former Miss Ailsa Mellon, daughter of the secretary of the treasury, has resigned from the consular service, it was learned today. Mrs. Bruce's antipathy to living abroad is said to have prompted the resignation.

Bruce is the son of Senator William Cabell Bruce of Maryland. The couple at present are living in Baltimore.

NEW CITIZENS

Fifteen new citizens of Wichita Falls arrived via the stork route during the past week. Eligible presidents of the United States had a lead of one over the girls, the count being eight to 7. Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Mask, address not given, are the proud parents of twin boys.

The babies came to Messrs. and Mesdames:

W. E. Thomas, 1302 21st street, boy. Charles Lee; G. T. West, box 1205, boy, Lane Thurman; H. McBroom, general delivery, girl, Annie Ruth; V. J. Spencer, route 1, box 224, boy; W. K. Childers, 1405 Bell street, girl, Gloria Fae; J. F. Patton, 2142 Avenue F, boy, James Arthur; J. H. Burbaker, 1415 21st street, girl; C. J. Gibbs, Primrose Refrigerating company, boy; W. F. Chambers, 512 North Lamar avenue, boy, William Frank Jr.; V. Crumpton, 1209 North Ninth street, boy; R. L. Kennett, 700 Holliday avenue, boy; J. A. Haigwood, Oak street, girl, Millisse Kim; C. C. King, 305 Lee avenue, girl, Sadie Christine; J. W. Mask, city, twin boys; J. M. Ottelle, 2009 Wilson avenue, girl, Barbara Frances.

70 REALTORS AT BARBECUE

J. A. Kemp Host to Board At Lakeview Farms

Approximately 70 members of the Wichita Falls Real Estate board and special guests enjoyed a lamb barbecue and inspection tour of the Lakeview Farms south of the city Saturday afternoon. The meeting was for the purpose of familiarizing the realtors with the irrigated farm tracts which they have listed for sale in that area.

The realtors feasted on barbecue from spring lambs donated by J. A. Kemp, which were barbecued in Spanish sauce. Pickles, onions, coffee, etc., were included in the food.

Short talks were made by several realtors and Mr. Kemp, J. T. Harrell, J. W. Chatham, H. J. Adair and J. N. Sherrill. It was decided to raise a substantial fund to be used in advertising the irrigated lands listed with the real estate board.

Following the supper, a tour of inspection of the farm tracts was made, with special attention given to the lateral ditches and drainage of the land. The Johnson poultry farm, now nearing completion, was also visited.

4 Killed As Train Hits Car in Okla.

MUSKOGEE, Okla., Nov. 12. (AP) Four persons were killed instantly and another seriously injured when a coupe in which they were riding was struck by a Midland Valley passenger train half a mile northeast of Haskell, 22 miles northwest of here, early tonight.

HEALTH HEAD PLANS SURVEY

Dr. Drake Tells Purposes Of Work Here

Dr. Sinclair Drake of the American Public Health association, Friday started his preliminary work to the making of a health survey for Wichita Falls. Dr. Drake was in conference with Dr. L. I. Lucey of the sanitary department and Dr. H. D. Fillmore of the health department telling them of facts he wanted. He left Wichita Falls Friday night to answer an emergency call to South Carolina. On his return in about 10 days the actual survey will start.

Dr. Drake was accompanied here by E. G. Eggert, sanitary engineer with the state board of health. He will assist Dr. Drake in making the survey. The city council requested Dr. Drake to come here several months ago but so great were the demands on his time he was unable to fulfill the request until now.

Dr. Drake has been in public health work for many years and from 1895 to 1914 was health officer for Chicago. He left that office to become director of public health for the state of Illinois. Later he went into his present work and had made surveys similar to the one he is making here all over the country. He has made surveys in Fort Worth, Austin, Houston, San Antonio and Waco in Texas.

Help for City.

"We come not to criticize and tear down but to offer help in building up the health department of the city," he said.

"Our work is to plan an objective toward which the city can work. The trouble seems to be that the city has outgrown the size of the present department and we are to plan not only for the present but also for the future. It is purely a service to the people to develop and centralize the health agencies of the city.

"I understand the city is planning quite an extensive expansion of the water an dsewer departments. This is needed and especially the better protection of the water from contamination. The filter plant at present, due to several things, is forced to carry too much of a load."

The survey includes the various food and drink sources and supplies of the city, the elimination of standing water and in fact everything that touches the public health.

While in Dr. Lucey's office the report on Wasserman tests was shown to Dr. Drake. It showed 1300 tests taken with only 83 returned as positive. He said that was unusually low.

School - College Notes

Armistice day and patriotism were observed at the Junior college school Girls' club program Friday. The program was opened by Miss Katherine Weldon, president, and Miss Mabel Drinkard, chairman of the social committee, each of whom gave a short talk upon the importance of the day, Nov. 11.

The high school orchestra under the direction of Mr. Underwood, played two of Sousa's marches, "Washington Post March," and the "Cadets' March."

Roy J. Daniels, who saw active service during the World war and who witnessed the horrors of the Argonne, spoke to the assembly about the war as he saw it. After telling of his impressions of the war Mr. Daniels told of the over-sea boys' reverence for "Old Glory."

A picturized poem, "The Spirit of 1917 and the Spirit of 1927," composed by Miss Juanita Kinsey, was read by Mabel Drinkard. A soft musical undertone was maintained throughout the reading of the poem by Lorene Tucker at the piano, and Claudine McCarty on the violin. Three scenes from the poem were portrayed on the stage. The scenes were "The Spirit of 1917," "The Spirit of 1927," and "The Spirit of Liberty."

The characters portrayed were Red Cross nurses, Louise Carpenter and Martha Ellen Hines; a sailor, Rosmarian Art; a soldier, Corrine Tucker, and "The Goddess of Liberty, Elna Stovall. The Girl Reserves' code was given by Genevieve Fritz.

Chicago Stages Blaze to Demonstrate Equipment

Nearly 5000 Chicagoans were kept warm while observing firemen demonstrating a new high-pressure hose wagon on a building on Wacker Drive, in the heart of Chicago. The building purposely had been fired. Powerful streams were played on the flames which dislodged bricks, throwing them into an adjoining vacant lot. Three thousand feet of hose were connected to a fire boat in the Chicago river to pump the water. Above photo shows the hose wagon in action.

D. CUPID HAS TOUGH BATTLE

Marriages Gain, But Divorces Gain Most

Cupid slipped a bit in his race with the ancient enemy, divorce, in Wichita county and its trade territory during 1926, according to preliminary figures just announced by the department of commerce. The love god showed a gain in matches over the previous year. He actually had a larger increase than did divorce but his percentage of increase was more than 20 per cent below that of the enemy.

Divorces Gain

Wichita county accounts for almost half of the figures of the nine counties considered. Had the other eight counties had the same percentage of increase Cupid would have fared better than he did. There were 129 more marriages in the county in 1926 than there were in 1925 or a little better than a 10 per cent increase. Divorces in the county, however, were what knocked the figures for the district. The increase here was 104 or a jump of 20 per cent. When the four annulments were added the percentage is raised slightly higher. However, annulments were not taken in the 1925 figures.

The actual increase in marriages over the nine counties was 291 or a percentage increase of .96 of one per cent. The divorce increase was 81 or 12.3 per cent. Again adding the annulments the figure is raised one per cent.

Records by Counties

Montague county was the only one of the nine that showed an increase in marriages and a drop in divorces. Hall county showed a jump in the number of couples joining together but only scored an even break in those who came to a parting of the ways.

The figures given are as follows:

County—	Marriages. 1926.	1925.	Divorces. 1926.	1925	Annulled
Archer	160	178	19	24	0
Baylor	115	120	12	7	0

100 TO GO ON SHRINE TRIP

Nobles Visit Bellevue, Bowie and Henrietta

Approximately 100 nobles, their wives and friends, are expected to join in the fifth and last local pilgrimage of Wichita Falls Shriners, which leaves from Maskat temple Sunday morning at 10 o'clock. The three towns of Bowie, Bellevue and Henrietta will be visited on the trip.

The group is to leave from the temple in automobiles late Sunday morning, arriving in Bowie in time for lunch which will be prepared for the visitors by the Bowie Masons. From 1:30 until 2:30 the local Shrine band will give a sacred concert.

At 3 o'clock the body will move on to Bellevue, where a sacred concert will be given for an hour beginning at 3:30 o'clock.

A supper and entertainment program has been arranged for the delegates when they arrive at Henrietta, it is announced. Beginning at 6 o'clock, the band will repeat the sacred concert, before leaving for Wichita Falls.

At each of the stops, Potentate Guy Rogers and Assistant Rabban W. H. Caldwell will make short talks. Marshall Franklin is to be officially in charge of the trip.

Kiwanis Nominations To Close Monday

Attention of Kiwanis club members is called to the closing of nominations for new officers Monday at 1:30 o'clock, in the weekly announcement of the club's program. The election will be held at the annual meeting Monday, December 5. Cecil Putty is chairman of the program committee for the luncheon Monday at the Kemp hotel.

Actresses of Paris have taken to rose-scented lipsticks.

A. & M. EXPERT TELLS HOW TO SELECT COWS FOR DAIRY HERD

PICK BREED AND KEEP IT

Form in Which Product Is Sold Is Important

By A. L. DARNELL
Professor of Dairy Husbandry, Texas A. & M. College
Written Especially for The Record News

One of the first questions to be considered in starting a herd of dairy cattle is the choice of a breed. Although this is of considerable importance in some of the states, it is of much less importance in Texas. There is a tendency for some to place too much importance upon this matter. The most important thing about the whole question is to select some particular breed and stick to it, rather than to try two or more breeds. Even worse than that is to cross breeds. Breeds represent the efforts of generations of breeders and we should take advantage of these many years of constructive work by our ancestors.

Factors in Choosing

The major breeds of dairy cattle; namely the Jerseys, Holsteins, Guernseys and Ayrshires, do not differ greatly in efficiency. There are, however, certain factors that must be taken into consideration in choosing a breed. Some of the most important ones are as follows:

1. Breed of cattle most common in the community.
2. Form in which the product is to be sold.
3. The probable demand for surplus stock.
4. Economy of production of milk and fat.
5. Beef value of discarded cows and adaptability of calves for veal.
6. Preference of the breeder.

The first factor listed above is by far the most important one to be considered, and should be given much more prominence. Of course, if a breeder has sufficient capital to do considerable pioneer work in introducing a new breed into a community, then he falls into another class of dairymen and need not expect as quick return or as economical operation as he would had he selected the breed of cattle common to the community. So far as the average community in Texas is concerned, we have only two breeds of dairy cattle from which to select, if this factor is to govern us entirely. According to the 1920 census report, the pure-bred dairy cattle in Texas are made up of 80.1 per cent Jerseys, 12.7 per cent Holsteins, 0.25 per cent Guernseys, 0.08 per cent Ayrshires, and 6.8 per cent of all other breeds.

Some of the great advantages of selecting the breed common to your community may be enumerated as follows:

Advantages of Plan

1. It is a great advantage in selling surplus stock.
2. May save expense in buying males for breeding and make it possible to make more use of a bull that is found to sire especially valuable animals.
3. It may save expense in testing and keeping records on herds—especially all purebred cattle.
4. It makes possible a local breed organization, and creates greater interest in good stock.

The second factor, that is, the form in which the product is to be sold, is possibly the second most important consideration. Where the product is to be sold in the form of butter fat in sour cream, the Jersey or Guernsey will prove to be a wise selection due to their economy of fat production as compared with other breeds. On the other hand, if whole milk is sold, the Holstein or Ayrshire will prove to be the best selection due to their economical production of milk.

The third factor, that of the probable demand for surplus stock, has been mentioned briefly in our discussion of the first factor and due to the lack of space will not be discussed, further than to say that the surplus Jerseys in Texas are sold much more easily than any of the other breeds.

With reference to the fourth factor, the economy of production of milk and fat, we will again refer to our brief discussion of the first factor. In economical production of butter fat the Jersey ranks first, Guernsey second, Ayrshire third and Holstein fourth. In economy of milk production the Holstein ranks first, Ayrshire second, Guernsey third and Jersey fourth. In the percentage of butter fat contained in the milk the Jersey ranks first with an average of 5.3 per cent butter fat, Guernsey second with an average of five per cent butter fat, the Ayshire third with an average of 3.97 per cent butter fat, and the Holstein fourth with an average of 3.4 per cent butter fat.

Under the fifth factor, that of the beef value of discarded cows, we might as well just rank the breeds from the best to poorest in this respect. They rank as follows: Holstein, Ayrshire, Jersey and Guernsey. They rank in the same order in respect to veal production with the calves.

Breeder's Preference

Now we come to the last factor, that of the breeder's preference. All other things being equal, a man should select the breed he loves best; for in the final analysis he will more likely make a success with this breed. However, again I want to repeat that the economic factors first mentioned are much more important than this last consideration.

We now come to the second part of our discussion, that of selecting the individual cow.

The success of a dairy farmer depends more upon the selection of the individual within the breed than it does upon the choice of a breed. The breeders of the past have established uniform characteristics in each breed in so far as color, size and type are concerned. At the same time they raised the average production of the breed. However, there is yet as wide variation in production within each breed as there is between the different breeds. If a dairyman is to succeed in his business he must take advantage of these wide variations and select each year the best individuals in his herd to replace the cows passing their period of usefulness.

A cow has an inherited ability to produce a certain amount of milk, and the animal with inheritance for high milk production will not fail if properly managed during her useful life. There is little evidence to support the common idea that an inferior cow is the result of wrong methods of raising as a calf. While the size, and possibly the vigor may be influenced by the feeding when young, the tendency to produce milk is not much affected by the methods followed in raising the animal. A cow's milk yield is the result of inheritance plus the method of feeding and management. If a cow shows one year that she has inherited tendency toward milk production, she can be expected to produce well for her entire life. A cow that is a small producer by inheritance remains so year after year. In selecting the individual, never lose sight of the fact that a high producing cow is much more economical in production than a low producer.

In a general way there are two methods of selecting dairy cows. The first is by type and conformation, and the second is by records of production. There is a certain conformation that goes with high milk production. This conformation is usually distinct enough to enable experienced judges to select very good from very inferior cows. It is an easy matter to select cows that will produce 350 pounds to 400 pounds of butter fat yearly, from those that will produce only 100 pounds to 200 pounds. However, it is a more difficult matter to judge by type and conformation alone which will produce 400 pounds of fat and which will produce 500 pounds per year. Even the most experienced judges will make decided errors in this latter case.

It is often necessary to select cows by appearance when buying, but it is not necessary to follow this practice after the animals are in the herd. No successful merchant will attempt to run his business without some system of records; neither should a dairyman. A more business like plan is to keep a record of production for each individual in the herd, in order that the unprofitable animals may be known and rejected. The records to be kept will depend to some extent upon the use made of the milk. If it is sold by quantity regardless of quality, then the total production is the important fact. If the price of milk is based upon the buter fat, both the quantity and quality need to be known.

With this sort of record of production it is an easy matter to cull out the poor individuals. I want to impress upon you, however, the necessity of keeping this record the entire year and not just for a few months when the cow is fresh.

(Editor's Note: In the third of his series of articles on dairying, Professor Darnell will discuss "Properly Housing the Dairy Herd." This article will appear in next Sunday's Record News. Prof. Darnell's series of articles has been especially prepared for The Record News in the interest of the development of dairying in northwest Texas.)

Farm And Garden

There may be some farmers in this section of the state who have realized more from their cotton crops this year than has A. F. Germany, but their numbers are few.

Mr. Germany, who has a farm on the Red river north of Wichita Falls, brought his 117th bale of the season to the Wichita Falls markets Saturday.

"And that isn't the end of it," Mr. Germany said. "I will get several more bales out of my fields before I call it a season."

M. M. McClure of the Dean community was mixing with the crowds at Seventh and Indiana Saturday.

When it comes to growing long staple cotton, E. J. Fancher of Iowa Park is right there. During the last two days Mr. Fancher has brought 15 bales of long staple to the Wichita Falls markets. Most of this cotton brought an average of 22 cents.

Among the out of county farmers who greeted acquaintances around Seventh and Indiana Saturday was C. Wilson of Henrietta.

J. A. Feity of Byers is about to finish up his cotton crop for this year—a portion of which he brought to the Wichita Falls market Saturday. While in the city he lingered at the farmers' favorite corner to greet friends and acquaintances for a brief time after attending to his business.

M. L. Lynch of Iowa Park was a business visitor in Wichita Falls during the week. While here he marketed six bales of the famous long staple cotton which is raised to a large extent around Iowa Park. Mr. Lynch received a big price for his long staple, which he considers about the "only" cotton to raise.

"Pecans will be gone by frost," declared S. D. Johnson, manager of the R. O. Harvey farm northwest of Wichita Falls. "We have had a big crop of pecans this year and the market prices have been good, considering the extent of the yield." There are about 1,000 pecan trees on Mr. Johnson's farm and most of them bore nuts this year.

Among local farmers who lingered at Seventh and Indiana Saturday were A. F. Dye and A. C. Harris.

L. A. Thompson was another Iowa Park farmer who was in the city on business Saturday.

H. E. Holley, who has a farm northwest of Wichita Falls brought some cotton to the local market Saturday. "There will not be much more," he said.

J. B. Church greeted friends at Seventh and Indiana Saturday. He brought in some cotton from his farm near Wichita Falls.

Another farmer who is about to end up his 1927 cotton season is W. A. Moore, who farms near Lake Wichita. Mr. Moore brought some cotton to market Saturday.

Long staple cotton has another convert in J. A. Pruitt, Iowa Park grower. He marketed some of the long staple in Wichita Falls Saturday.

Intensive, careful cultivation of cotton has a convert in H. W. Barton. He had approximately 800 acres planted to cotton this season.

Special attention, careful cultivation was given one eight-acre field. From this area was gathered 12 bales, averaging more than 500 pounds each.

From the remainder of the crop, to which no more than ordinary attention was given, a half-bale to an acre was gathered.

"That's why I am for intensive cultivation," Mr. Barton said.

Cotton Receipts Here Total 27,000

About 27,000 bales of the 1927 crop of cotton had been received at Wichita Falls cotton yards up to and including Saturday afternoon.

On November 12, 1926, there had also been received in local yards approximately 27,000 bales. The difference between the receipts for the two years was not more than 50 bales.

There is this difference, however—last year at this time the crop was not more than half picked and little more than a third of the bales had been brought to the Wichita Falls yards.

This year the crop is at least 95 per cent picked, and at least two-thirds of the bales have been placed in local yards.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW.

CHICAGO, Nov. 12. (AP)—Wheat prices went up with a rush today, and the corn market came down equally as fast. Canada's government crop report, extreme cold weather over the Canadian prairies, and fresh word of damage by rust in Argentina lifted wheat. Washington official crop figures were the ruling force i nthe corn trade.

Closing quotations on wheat were firm, 2 to 2½c net higher, with corn 2¾ to 2⅝c off, oats ⅛@⅝c to ¼c down, and provisions unchanged to 5c up.

Oats reflected the action of corn despite a reduction of 50,000,000 bushels in the Canadian oats crop as compared with two months ago.

Provisions were firmer owing to scattered buying.

WOOL MARKET.

BOSTON, Nov. 12. (AP)—Better sale of fine territory grade wool is reported but the mill demand has not attained much breadth. Other lines of domestic wools are moderately active. Prices remain firm on all greasy domestic wools. Dealers freely reject mill offers that do not come up to asking prices. Foreign prices substantially above this market and still going up with no visible over supply of domestic wools, inspire confidence of the dealers.

Automatic Cotton Picker "Apparently Success" After Tests Near Electra

"The international automatic cotton picker apparently is a success."

That is the verdict of two groups of noted federal and state agricultural authorities who visited the H. H. Haynes farm north of Electra Friday and Saturday and watched demonstrations of the automatic picker.

The automatic picker is being demonstrated on the Haynes farm for the benefit of cotton growers in this section of Texas. In addition to the two groups of farm officials, many Wichita and Wilbarger county farmers watched the demonstrations.

Dr. B. Youngblood, director of experiment stations in Texas who is working out of the board of agricultural economics at Washington, headed the group which went from Wichita Falls to the Haynes farm Saturday. He is making a special study of the staple and grades of cotton.

In his party was George C. Crawford of the Texas experiment station, R. E. Dickson, J. T. Egan, district agent of College Station, Earl J. Wilson, superintendent of the experiment station at Iowa Park, Mr. Lusk of the Iowa Park station, and G. C. McGown, Wichita county agent.

The group which witnessed the demonstration Friday has been on a tour of northwest Texas and the Plains country inspecting farm machinery. Their inspections were directed particularly toward machinery used in harvesting cotton, so the visit to the Haynes farm fitted in with their program. County Agent McGown also accompanied this group to the cotton picking demonstration.

In the party there were George L. Foster, of the Chilian Nitrate of Soda educational bureau, Dallas; Dan D. Scoates, agricultural engineering department of Texas A. & M. College; S. H. McCrory, United States department of agriculture; W. B. Farrar, Portland Cement association of Dallas; L. J. Fletcher, agricultural engineer, supervisor of agricultural sales, Peoria, Ill.; D. J. Burleson, extension agronomist, University of Arkansas Fayetteville, Ark.; L. B. Neighborn and F. A. Thormann, experimental engineer, Deere and company, Marseilles works, East Moline, Ill.; R. R. Walker, M.-K.-T. agricultural agent, Dallas; M. B. Oates, Fort Worth and Denver agricultural agent, Wichita Falls; B. M. Whittaker, West Texas Chamber of Commerce; O. K. Barnes, director of agriculture, Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce, and Mr. McGown. The party was in charges of Mr. Scoates.

COTTON HOLDS STEADY TONE

Receipts Here Saturday Total 110 Bales

The cotton market was unchanged Saturday, middling selling in Wichita Falls on a basis of 20 cents. The price range was upward from 18 cents for some varieties of snaps.

Receipts Saturday were the heaviest of the week, with local cotton yards reporting 110 bales received. Saturday may be the last day the recipts will go above 100 bales because of the lateness of the season, it was said. It is estimated that fully 95 per cent of the crop in territory tributary to Wichita Falls has been picked, with fully two-thirds of the crop having been brought to market here.

Prime seed was quoted at $35 a ton.

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12. (AP)—The cotton market showed a generally steady tone today on covering by recent sellers, combined with trade and commission house buying on reports of low temperatures in the southwest and a generally steady spot situation. January contracts after selling off to 1.74, advanced to 20.01 and closed at 19.94, compared with 19.90 at the close Friday. The general market closed steady, at net advances of four to 20 points.

The opening was steady at unchanged prices to an advance of 7 points on overnight buying orders attracted by the firmer tone yesterday. This initial demand was soon supplied by realizing or liquidation, together with local and southern selling and prices eased off to 19 70 for December and 20.07 for May, or about 13 to 16 points net lower.

Trade interests were again credited with buying on scale down orders, however, and prices firmed up later on renewed covering. Some commission house buying was also reported on the advance which extended to 19.96 for December and 20.33 for May or about 7 to 12 points above Friday's closing quotations. The tone was a few points off from the best under realizing.

Conflicting views were expressed as to the probable showing of the census report on domestic consumption for October, which is expected at the opening of the market on Monday, and the uncertainty in this respect may have had a restricting effect on business which was comparatively quiet.

Private cables attributed early advances in Liverpool to Bombay buying and covering on the improved technical position, and the prospect for a cold wave in the southwest, followed by partial reactions under hedging and liquidation.

Manchester advices reported a better feeling owing to an improved demand for cotton cloths from India.

The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 168,000 bales against 250,000 at the same time last year.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 12. (AP)—Readjustment of the local market with the advance in New York yesterday and prospects for cold weather in the belt over Sunday carried cotton prices up 56 points above the close Thursday. December sold up to 20.12, but declined in the final trading on week-end evening-up and closed at 20.03, or 47 points net up. The general market closed steady at a net advance of 43 to 4 points.

Liverpool did not fully meet the advance in New York yesterday, but the local market opened 43 to 44 points higher on readjustment. Prices gained a few points additonal after the start on the cold weather reported in the west. December traded to 20.03 and March 30.18, or 45 to 47 points above the previous close.

Some week-end realizing was absorbed on declines of 14 to 17 points and in the late trading prices rallied on prospects for killing frost and covering. All months made new highs with December at 20.12 and March 20.29, or 56 points net up. The market lost about 9 points at the end on additional realizing.

Exports for the day totaled 25,777 bales.

Steel Common and Few Other Stocks Feature More Irregular Market In Wall Street On Saturday

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—Steel Common and a few other stocks featured a more irregular market in today's half session as a result of special influences. The rails as a group acted better than the industrials and recovered a small part of recent losses. The week-end trade reviews told of somewhat greater activity in retail buying as a result of the changed weather conditions in the north and east and this helped out the pool work going on in the chain and store stocks. Harvester and Montgomery Ward added to their gains but others met profit-taking of sufficient volume to keep their price almost stationary. Sterling established a new post-war high record price as a result of steady big demand while other exchanges held firm with the exception of the yen. Wheat climbed on bullish weather advices from the north while cotton quieted and ruled rather irregular.

Further good recovery in steel was due to the change in sentiment engendered by the favorable tonnage report and the more optimistic reports from the steel centers. With Steel Common in the lead it is difficult for professional pressure to have much influence on the list. Some day or other the Steel corporation will split up its stock and until then the really good distribution will nto have taken place.

Independent steel stocks, however, fail to follow their leader in the manner they would if the more powerful interests in Bethlehem and other companies were sure that there would be an immediate big improvement in the industry.

Central, Atchison and other first-grade rails responded to the quiet investment demand that has been evidenced for several weeks. It was pointed out that if Atchison spent no more for maintenance this year than it did in 1926 it would show earnings of approximately $25 a share for the year. It is the constant additions to surplus along with the steady flow of a good share of income to additions and betterments that influenced the absorption of this class of stock. Another factor of benefit is that they never suffer from the effects produced by such liquidating pools as have been at work in some of the less sound rail shares and so many of the industrials. With a favorable money market ahead for a year or more the investment stocks alone reflect the resulting favorable investment conditions.

Corn Products further gain was accompanied by rumor of extra dividend declaration early next year. It will be remembered that similar rumors accompanied the last poor operation managed by the same floor trader most active in the market for the stock at present. General Motors added a little to its gain but there was less haste in the covering of shorts so that it faltered toward the close. Independent motors quieted also but held firm. The Chrysler directors meeting from which only the regular divident is to be expected will be held next Wednesday.

N. Y. Stocks

NEW YORK, Nov. 12. (AP)—Spirited buying in the stock market today carried the general level of prices upward. Some week-end profit taking in the last hour of the half day session checked the advance somewhat, but nevertheless many of the leading issues closed 1 to 3 points or more above yesterday's final figures, some of them at their peaks for the day.

Considerable optimism prevailed among operators for the advance as buying orders came in from the outside, inspired by such favorable developments as President Sloan's optimistic forecast of next year's General Motors earnings, stiffening steel prices ad the increase in unfilled orders of the United States Steel corporation. Easy money continued to be a factor, emphasized by the ready reception given various new issues in the bond field.

Prospects of good biusenss was again reflected by buoyancy of mercantile issues such as Montgomery Ward, Woolworth, Sears Roebuck, Munsing Wear and Arnold Constable, all of which reached their highest prices of the year.

Such leading issues as United States Steel and General Motors were in brisk demand, the former closing at its day's highest, but motors fell back a little in the final dealings.

The last half hour was featured by the strength of some of the carriers, notably Atchison and Delaware and Hudson, which attained their best prices of the day in that period.

Some of the specialties provided much interest. Du Pont stimulated by expectations that the company's share of he General Motors extra dividend will be passed on to the shareholders Monday had an extreme jump of more than 4 points to 320, closing a point below that figure.

Strength of sterling, which reached $4.87 1-16, the highest since 114, was the outstanding feature of the foreign exchange market. Dutch guilders at 40.32½ cents were at the highest level since 1915. Other changes were negligible.

GOOD DEMAND FOR TURKEYS

Supply Reported Low On Local Market

With the approach of the holidays turkeys are becoming more important in local markets each day. Supplies at local poultry and preduce houses are rather low now, but it is believed there will be enough to supply the Thanksgiving demand.

Because of the uncertainty of the supply, market quotations are changed almost daily.

The following prices were quoted by the Wichita Poultry and Egg company Saturday:

DRYGOODS MARKET.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12. (AP)— Cotton goods continued in very moderate demand today with prices more firmly established on the lower levels. Burlaps for future delivery attracted more attention. Raw silk was unchanged. Wool goods for immediate use sold better in retail channels.

CROP REPORTS HELP TRADING

Grain Futures Stimulated On Bulletins

By Universal Service.

CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—Active tradnig in grain futures was stimulated by the United States and Canadian government crop reports, estimates in both instances being far different than anticipated by the trade in general, with the result that there was quie a scramble to protect holdings.

The wheat market was decidedly strong and did not lose much of the early gain. Shorts were heavy buyers but there was also commission house absorption of wheat. Corn was as weak as wheat was strong, many longs unloading their grain. Oats were affected by the corn weakness while rye was sharply higher.

Wheat showed an advance of 2¼@2⅝c for the day, while corn closed 2⅝@2½c lower. Oats were ⅝@½c lower and rye advanced 2⅝@3¼c. For the week, wheat is 1½@1⅞c higher, corn ¼@⅝c lower, oats ¼@⅝c higher and rye 4½@5½c higher. No important export business was reported at the seaboard but it was said that liberal sales were made on the Pacific coast.

The opening rush to sel corn carried prices off sharply. There was a general desire to sell as the United States government's estimate of the crop was much larger than looked for. It exceeded private estimates by a good margin, and created uneasiness among holders of futures in spite of the fact that most of them believe that the final repor next monh, which will be based upon threshing returns, will be materially under the present figure. Weather conditions were fine for improving the quality of the new corn and a good demand is expected for this later.

Oats were depressed by the corn weakness.

Rye advanced sharply.

Livestock

TEXAS LIVESTOCK.

FORT WORTH, Nov. 12. (AP)— With 1200 cattle and 860 calves marked up for today's trading an early clearance was made at steady values.

Butcher cows went at $5.00 to $6.00 for the bulk of the better cows, while a few small lots above the $6.00 level. Meaty cutters $4.50 and $5.00; canners $4.00 to $4.50.

Bulls steady $5.00 to $5.75 with undesirables below the $5.00 figure.

Calf trading was particularly active. Better lots of steer calves $9.00 to $9.75; few butcher calves $7.50 to $8.25. Cull calves both heavy and light $5.00@6.00.

Hogs were scarce and values steady with a top in the truck section of $9.35 which was paid for 241 pound butchers. A car lot of 213 pound averages sold for $9.15, while a few 350 pound butchers sold for $9.00. Packing sows sold up to $8.00; pigs lacked in receipts.

With only 50 sheep in the receipts for the day values were nominally steady.

Hogs 600; steady; top $9.35; packing sows up to $8.00.

Cattle 2300; week's tops: Cake fed steers $11.75; best grass slaughter steers $9.65; slaughter yearlings $11.00; beef cows $7.50; heavy slaughter calves $8.25; heavy stock steer yearling calves $10.25.

Sheep, 100; week's tops: Good slaughter wethers $8.00; choice slaughter yearlings $11.00; best fat lambs $12.50.

KANSAS LIVESTOCK.

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 12. (AP)—Hogs: Receipts 1000; slow; top $9.40; packing sows $7.00@8.00.

Cattle: Receipts 3000; calves 500; top for week: Choice yearlings $17.50; good heavy steers $15.50; good medium weights $15.00; vealers $13.00; bulk of beef steers and yearlings $9.00@14.75; plain grassers around $8.50; stockers and feeders $8.00@11.00.

Sheep: Receipts none. For week: Fed native and western lambs $12.50@13.85; ewes $5.65@6.00; yearling wethers $11.25; feeding lambs $13.00@13.25.

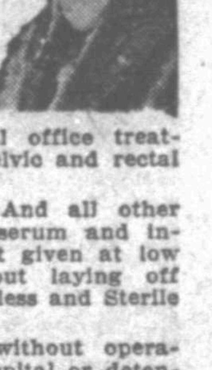

CHICAGO LIVESTOCK.

CHICAGO, Nov. 12. (AP)—Hogs 4000; steady; top $9.70; pigs $8.50@8.75; packing sows $8.00@8.35.

Cattle, 1500; for week: Fed yearlings and steers $10.00, new high top; weighty grassers up to $15.00; most westerns $10.25@10.50; heavy grass cows $10.00; bulk $8.50 downward: grass heifers $8.50@9.25; cutter cows $5.10@5.25; heavy bulls $7.15@7.35.

Sheep 2000; week's top: Fat range lambs $14.00; fat native lambs $14.35; slaughter yearling wethers $11.50; fat ewes $7.00; range feeding lambs $14.25.

OPERATORS BACK THEIR OPTIMISM WITH INCREASED DRILLING

DEEPER WELLS TO BE DRILLED

New Oil Locations Made By Many

By TOM TRULY
The Record News Oil Editor

Continued decline of the flush fields of Oklahoma and the growing belief that far West Texas, while a mammoth thing, will have no effect on the light crude market were reflected in the North Texas district again the past week by further expansion of oil developments in a markedly cheerful spirit.

The rest of the oil world has apparently gained confidence in the ability and sincerity of Seminole operators in keeping their giant field "in despite" new discoveries. Operators in these parts are more and more becoming converted to the much preached theory that the character of the West Texas crude plus a sensible development program and the lessening scarcity of transportation facilities in West Texas will prevent the oil produced there from wrecking the market as was feared some weeks back.

Actual Proof

The most convincing proof that North Texas oil men have decided that conditions are getting better is the fact that they are drilling a greater number of wells each week where it is considered certain that oil will be found. In short, development of proven leases is gaining headway.

Attesting to this were a score of new producers completed during the past week. Attesting to the belief that a big change for the better is not many months away is the increasing number of new wells being started in areas requiring comparatively deep drilling. New locations the past week numbered approximately 30 and half of them were in areas where production is found below 2000 feet, particularly Wilbarger, Young and Jack counties.

The two best wells this week were scored by the deep pay areas of Young county. In the Morrison field north of Graham, Nash and Windfohr brought in a 600-barrel well in their No. 1 Hinson and Pitzer and West were equally successful in their No. 3 Morrison. A number of new wells are being started in this rejuvenated field. In the South Bend field Connor's No. 4 McCluskey was drilled in and is flowing 500 barrels with some water from the 4200 foot lime.

Shaw and Rathke Well

The only new completion in the deep sand field of Jack county was Shaw and Rathke's No. 3 Cullers in the Leidecker pool which is flowing and swabbing 200 barrels daily from the Strawn sand at 1997-2008 feet.

Drilling activity is on the incline in Montague county but only one producer was reported for the week. It is The Texas company's No. 3 Hinson in the northwest portion of the Nocona field which is pumping 70 barrels from sand at 780-09 feet.

Shallow wells are yet being drilled with regularity in Archer county but results this week were not in any way profitable. Six dry holes were reported. Atlantic Oil Producing company completed a 20-barrel pumper in its No. 6-D Wilson, northwest of Archer City.

Cooke county had a new producer in Hamilton and Martin's No. 1 Peter Bindle, located in the Carey expansion to the Muenster field which pumped 50 barrels. Two important deep tests are under way southwest of Gainesville.

Wichita county's activity was confined to the starting of several new wells in the south half of the county where some good wells have been completed of late.

West Texas Crude On Eastern Seaboard

NEW YORK, Nov. 12. (AP)—Movement of West Texas crude oil to Atlantic coast refineries has started in substantial volume. Standard Oil company of New Jersey is receiving 45,000 barrels daily at its refineries in Baltimore and Bayonne, N. J. The crude is being topped for the present for gasoline recovery and the balance sold as fuel oil.

Reiter-Foster Sells Interest in Refinery

The Humble Oil and Refining company has purchased the 25 per cent interest of Reiter-Foster Oil corporation in the casinghead gasoline plant at Woodson, Throckmorton county.

Above is the largest abstract of title ever made in Wichita county. It was made by he Guarantee Abstract and Title company and contains 1606 pages, is six inches thick and weighs 17 pounds. Typing of the instrument required three weeks. It is on the Van Cleave lands at Burkburnett and contains interesting oil history.

PECOS, WINKLER GAIN NEW OIL

Ardmore-West Texas Pipe Line Rumored

Special to The Record News.

SAN ANGELO, Nov. 12. — Increased production for Pecos and Winkler counties, the assurance of more pipe line facilities for both areas and restricting by Southern Pipe Line Co. of pipe line runs to its own production in Winkler and an entire cutting off in the Upton-Crane districts were features of oil development this week in the West Texas permian basin. Oil had been struck in many other wells in Winkler, where a big drilling program is getting under way; the Orient railroad got its first production, in Upton county, and several Howard and Pecos wildcats passed up showing.

Pecos Completions

Pecos county's latest completions: Humble No. 2 Smith and California No. 3 Smith, lease No. 2, had been pinched to 61 and 664 barrels a day, respectively. The wells offset each other. Humble No. 2 Smith, in section 36, block 194, G. C. & S. F. Ry. Co. survey, came in for 96 barrels hourly from 1425 to 1510 feet. California No. 3 Smith, lease No. 2, in section 35, made 650 barrels the first 14 hours from 1445-87 feet and increased its yield upon deepening. Marland No. 4-A Yates in section 60 flowed 735 barrels in five hours Tuesday, after coming in at 970 feet for 70 barrels the first hour and a half. An initial flow of 55 barrels hourly was made by Mid-Kansas and Transcontinental No. 5B Yates from a pay topped at 990 feet and penetrated 25 feet. Flowing 2000 barrels a day from 1242 feet, Mid-Kansas and Transcontinental No. 1D Yates increased to 2537 barrels daily Wednesday after being deepened to 1284.

Mid-Kansas and Transcontinental Nos. 5B and 2C Yates were making some oil drilling Tuesday at 1035 and 960 feet, respectively. No. 2C at 555 feet struck a pocket of gas with oil that blew the tools out of the hole. McMan-Marland No. 8 Yates in section 34 1-2 had made one small flow when it had drilled to 1360 feet in grey lime. The eastern Pecos pool was defined further early in the week when Douglas Oil Co. No. 1 White & Baker, in section 6, block 194, about three miles northwest of production, struck sulphur water at 1518 feet, later drilling to 1579. Only a few weeks ago Roxana paid $80,000 for an undivided half interest in section 6 and three other sections and the completed test.

Shallow Oil Showing

One of the week's shallow showing in Pecos county was in Donald W. Cuming's No. 1 Blackstone & Slaughter, in section 23, block 129, T. & St. L. Ry. Co. survey, at 535 feet. The wildcat is about three miles northeast of Transcontinental's No. 1 Blackstone & Slaughter, which had drilled to 2860 feet. Geo. Anderson, C. E. Menzie and the Red Bank Oil company's No. 1 Sherbine, in section 6, block 604, Mary Moorman survey, was completed at 2585 feet with a hole full of sulphur water struck at 2580 feet. The rig is being moved five miles southeast where Anderson & Menzie will drill another test on the Sherbine ranch, 1320 feet from the south line and 50 feet from the west line of section 43, block C4, G. C. & S. F. Ry. Co. survey, on Arthur Harrel's ranch. Henshaw No. 1 Sweatt & Hinyard was fishing for a bailer at 925 feet. Illinois Pipe Line Co. Tuesday resumed oil runs to Del Rio after a four days' shutdown.

Line From Ardmore

Reports here considered reliable but unconfirmed are that the Ozark Pipe Line Co., transportation branch of the Roxana Petroleum Co., is preparing to construct a major trunk line from Ardmore, Okla., into West Texas, with prongs terminating in Pecos and Winkler counties. The Ozark recently ran surveys from eastern Pecos county to the Orient railroad for which it now is believed will be a feeder to the big line, which, coming into West Texas, will serve the fields in Wilbarger, Brown and other counties. Inquiries recently reaching steel mills from Roxana for 600 miles of Pipe tend to bear out the pipe line rumors. Gulf is looping the line it is laying from the Yates-Smith-Thompson field to the Orient railroad.

Atlantic Refining Co., affiliated with the Atlantic Oil Producing Co., is laying an 8-inch pipe line from section 31, block B5, public school land, in Winkler county, to its tank farm on the T. & P. railroad, three miles east of Mildand. It probably will deliver crude to the Magnolia, which is building a trunk line west from Ranger.

Cutting off of pipe line runs from Upton-Crane county and restricting of acceptances in Winkler county to its own oil by Southern Pipe Line Co. was confirmed at the offices of the Southern Crude Oil Purchasing Co. here, but details and the reason were lacking. The opinion was expressed that the refinery at Destrhan, La., designed to handle Venezuelan crude, was being changed to permit the better handling of West Texas crude, necessitating a shutdown. Some saw in the step the launching of a big drilling campaign by Southern Crude.

TURBEVILLE EXTENDED

The Turbeville pool in Archer county Saturday had apparently been extended approximately 1200 feet to the north by L. T. Burns and The Texas company's No. 1 Burns which swabbed 40 barrels of oil and some water. The water is being plugged off.

CONTINENTAL-ANCEL.

Continental Oil company is spudding in its No. 1 G. B. Ancel, located in the northwest corner of the northwest of the northeast of section 10, block 7, H. & T. C. survey, Wichita county and near the Wilbarger county line south of Electra.

WOLF-FERGUSON.

A. T. Wolf has made location to drill his No. 1 B. N. Ferguson 150 feet from the south and east lines of the J. T. Lewis survey, abstract 462, south of Iowa Park in Wichita county.

HARRIS-FARMER.

Ted Harris's No. 1 L. H. Farmer is a new location 43 feet south and 360 feet east of the northwest corner of block 6, W. C. Winters survey, southwest of Archer City in Archer county.

GRAHAM EXTENSION.

Lindsey and Boller are cementing to shut off water in their No. 1 Graham Estate, located in abstract 246, east of the Morrison field in Young county, which is estimated as a 50-barrel well from sand at 2053-78 feet.

HUMBLE-WAGGONER.

Humble Oil and Refining company is rigging up rotary to drill its No. H-21 Waggoner in section 46, block 4, H. & T. C. survey, Wilbarger county.

McCHESNEY-BEARDON.

Mrs. McChesney has spudded in her No. 4-A Beardon, 200 feet north of No. 1 in the Hopkins survey, north Young county.

WELDON & LOWREY-CUBAN.

Weldon and Lowrey have made location to drill their No. 1 J. Cuban in the southwest corner of the north 25 of the southeast 50-acre square of block 5, W. E. Probert survey, Archer county.

SIMMS-PRESTON.

Simms Oil company has abandoned as a dry hole at 1761 feet its No. 1 Preston in block 6, Red River lands, southeast of Burkburnett in Wichita county.

HAMILTON-NEALY.

G. B. Hamilton's No. 1 Nealy in section 176, T. E. & L. survey, Young county, was plugged at a depth of 1153 feet.

LONG-MARSH.

C. B. Long's No. 1 Marsh in block 130, Harris subdivision, Archer county, was deserted when it reached a depth of 1536 feet.

ROBERTS ET AL-KEEN.

Roberts Oil corporation, Atlantic and Clark have completed one well and are completing another on their Keen tract in section 3401, northeast Young county. No. 2 Keen is a 35-barrel well from sand at 807-9 feet and No. 3 is being completed in the sand at 825 feet.

HARDEMAN COUNTY.

The Milham corporation's No. 1 Reeves in section 19, East Texas railway survey, 15 miles southwest of Quanah in Hardeman county, was last reported drilling at 2514 feet.

KOURI TEST.

S. S. Kouri is drilling at 500 feet in a test southeast of his recently completed No. 1 Bouldin in Haskell county but located in section 11, block 3, H. & T. C. survey, Shakelford county.

PANHANDLE-COLGAN.

Panhandle Refining company is coring a sand at 1405 feet in its No. 1 Colgan, located in the J. F. Martin survey, north of Megargel in southwest Archer county.

GULF-FLUHMANN.

Gulf Production company missed the regular Fluhmann sand in its No. 1 Fluhmann, W. A. McKinney survey, Wilbarger county, and is drilling at 1520 feet.

TEXAS-WATKINS.

Texas company No. 1 Watkins, Foard county, is drilling at 2915 feet.

Wichita Companies to Put Down Important Jack County Oil Test

Location was announced yesterday for a test well which will mean much to the future of the deep pools south of Bryson in Jack county. It is Petroleum Producers, United Producers and Consolidated Oil companies' No. 1, G. W. Fields estate, located about midway between the Leidecker and Security Drilling company pools and just south of Bryson. The well is to be drilling 2500 feet with cable tools.

Exact description of the location is 1500 feet south and 1500 feet west of the northeast corner of the John Balch survey, abstract 41.

This is the third wildcat in this area to be started recently. Carl S. Leidecker is drilling below 1100 feet in his No. 1 Bryson Bank in the O. P. McKenzie survey. Aaron Leidecker has spudded in his cable tool test, No. 1 W. N. Moore, north of the Holman pool and in the J. N Williams survey.

Three Wells Digging For New Pay Discovered South of Iowa Park

Discovery of a new sand at 1525 feet by Henry Hobbs in his No. 1 Watkins, southwest of Iowa Park, has precipitated the drilling of three new tests in that area.

Approximately 1000 feet west of the No. 1 Watkins, Mr. Hobbs is drilling below 1200 feet his No. 1 Hodges, located 1550 feet south and 150 feet west of the northeast corner of the H. T. & B. survey, abstract 139.

The Magnolia Petroleum company is spudding in its No. 12 Hodges, 404 feet south of the Hobbs-Watkins well and in block 46 of Kemp's Wichita valley farm lands, Magnolia has several producers on this tract but this is an effort to extend the 1500-foot sand to the south.

The newest location in the area is Producers Drilling company's (O'Donohoe and Gates) No. 1 Hodges, located in the northeast corner of block 7, H. T. & B. survey. Drilling will begin next week at this location, which is just south of the well Mr. Hobbs is now drilling.

MORE PEPPER IN PANHANDLE

Premiums Offered On Oil Produced There

The better feeling that has existed for several weeks in the Panhandle field is growing. Demand for the Panhandle crude is picking up and a number of producers have been offered small premiums for their oil, it is reported here.

These offers are for Hutchinson-Carson crude, which is now posted at 75 cents a barrel flat. Eastern Carson and Gray counties are on a gravity basis and the Toronto Pipe Line company of Wichita Falls is offering a 10 cent premium for all the oil it is offered.

Most of the drilling today in the Panhandle is in the Bowers and Pampa pools of Gray county, and the Borger district is unusually quiet. Operators are waiting for a better market and many inside locations are yet to be drilled there. Rumors have been in existence that it will not be long before the gravity schedule is also re-established for Hutchinson-Carson crude, but no confirmation is available.

Prairie Runs Climb.

Outstanding event of the Panhandle is the action of the Prairie Pipe Line company in increasing its runs of through its eight-inch line from Kingsmill to Ringling, Okla., and is now moving 7000 barrels of oil a day. This oil is going to the Standard Oil company of Louisiana, via a point near Seminole, Okla., where one barrel of Panhandle oil and three of Seminole oil are mixed and the mixed product then goes to the Baton Rouge refinery for use in the plant there.

Interest in natural gas continues brisk and latest development is the placing of orders for the pipe for the Panhandle-Denver gas line and the announcement that the Knorpp gas line to Kansas City is to be started soon.

$100,000 Sale Made.

Bell Oil and Gas company of Tulsa has purchased the holdings of the Triangle Oil company of Amarillo, for $100,000. The deal included a 40 acre lease in the northwest of the northwest of section 5, block Y, of M. & C. survey, east of Borger, Hutchinson county. The four wells have produced more than 416,678 barrels of oil from June 14, 1926, to November 1. The gas revenues has also been large. M. C. Nobles, H. A. Nobles and Frank Storm were the three owners of the Triangle. The Nobles were among the Panhandle men who induced Dr. Charles N. Gould to make his first survey of the Panhandle in 1917, and which led to the eventual opening of that field.

The Bell company recently bought the Canyon Oil company lease, also in block Y area, and it has been a large purchaser of Panhandle oil for more than a year.

In Gray County.

Tipton et al No. 1 McConnell, located four miles north of Kingsmills in section 201 Gray county, after finding the pay a few days ago at 3180 feet, this week drilled to 3255 feet and oil rose 2500 feet in the hole. Storage has been ordered and preparations are being made to drill in and complete the well.

Then 12 miles southeast of the new Bowers pool, the Amgray well which extended Gray county producing area about six miles to the south and east some time ago, found the second granite wash at 2720 to 2725 feet, which boosted the daily output over a 100 barrels. The Amagray Oil company No. 1 Chapman in the southwest quarter of section 9, block 26, made 211 barrels the first day from the second granite wash at 2720 to 2725 feet, an increase of 170 barrels over the output from the first granite wash found at 2640 to 2660 feet. The gravity of the crude from this well is the same as the Delaney well in the Bowers pool, 44.6.

Osage Nation to Sell Off Valuable Tracts

TULSA, Okla., Nov. 12.—Just five weeks off and a battle of dollars will take place at Pawhuska, capital of the Osage Nation, that will make oil men forget about over-production, government regulation and what not. It will be the first Osage oil lease sale under the Osage fiscal year starting April 8.

Twenty thousand acres of unsold acreage is to be offered for the highest bonus bid, plus fixed royalties. Most of the high bidding will be around the Burbank field, in the West Side, and near the recent gushers of A. G. Oliphant and others, Gypsy Oil company and Kewanee Oil and Gas company.

21 New Locations Made In West Texas Fields

Special to The Record News.

SAN ANGELO, Nov. 12.—Twenty-one locations for oil tests were made last week in nine West Texas counties, one more than during the preceding week, but they were divided between the same number of counties. Locations for the last eleven weeks were swelled to 245.

Pecos county led the list with eight, Winkler county got five, Upton county two and Ward, Terrell, Runnels, Crane, Concho and Brewster counties, one each.

Electra and Baylor County Only Fields Showing Gains Past Week

A gain of 55 barrels at Electra and a five-barrel upward fluctuation in Baylor county were the only gains shown in the official estimate of daily oil production in the north Texas district for the past week. The district averaged 92,610 barrels daily as compared with 93,695 barrels, a decline of 1085 barrels.

Heaviest losses were sustained in Archer, Young and Montague counties. Jack county declined 25 barrels, which was unexpected in the face of several new producers:

OIL HISTORY IN BIG ABSTRACT

1600 Page Title Sets New County Record

Probably the largest abstract of title ever made in Wichita county and certainly the largest ever made by the Guarantee Abstract and Title company, which was founded here 30 years ago, was completed Thursday by that concern, according to R. E. Schoolfield, president.

The abstract is on 1150 acres of land belonging to A. J. Van Cleave. Its great size is not due particularly to the number of fee owners of the land but to the hectic methods of development in the Burkburnett oil boom of 1918, Mr. Schoolfield said.

The abstract contains 1606 typewritten pages, is six inches thick and weighs 17 pounds. Three weeks were required to type it. An abstract made several years ago on lands owned by Bob Waggoner would probably have been as large, Mr. Schoolfield said, but it was drawn up in several sections, each in reality a separate abstract.

History of Lands.

The abstract records the history of what is now blocks 101 to 106, inclusive, of the Red river valley land, located east and northeast of Burkburnett. The land originally comprised patents to William Earp in 1872 and to James McGrain in 1862.

Later it was sold to Burk Burnett who in turn sold it to Kemp and Kell and others in 1906. Kemp and Kell included it in their Red river valley lands in 1907 the 1150 acres were purchased by A. J. Van Cleave of Clinton, Mo.

Mr. Van Cleave died in 1915 and the property went to his son, A. J. Van Cleave Jr., the present owner. Thus the fee ownerships are comparatively few.

"But soon after the Fowler well came in in 1918 leasing became active on the Van Cleave land," said Mr. Schoolfield.

"There were countless leases, sub-leases, royalty sales, transfers, etc., during the boom and the complete history of these is what makes the abstract so large."

100 Wells Drilled.

More than 100 oil wells were drilled on the lands and it was reported that young Van Cleave was drawing monthly royalties amounting to $100,000 while all of the wells were flush. Now, however, phoduction in all of the wells has become settled and all of them are probably making less than one did in 1918.

Large companies holding producing leases on the land include the Texas company, Gulf and Magnolia. These leases are comparatively large as those held by individuals and small companies ranged in size from one to 20 acres and each small tract had its share of transfers, according to Mr. Schoolfield.

Recalls Boom Days.

Mr. Schoolfield, who is well known among oil operators and big company men, recalled Thursday the uncontrolled drilling campaign which marked the Burkburnett shallow field in 1918 and 1919.

"One man would get a tract of five or 10 acres and immediately form a company. It was seldom that difficulty was encountered in selling stock as it seemed that any where a hole was bored oil would spot. The company would drill as many wells as it could crowd on its tract and the stockholders received fat dividends until the decline in yield set in. The real knowledge of the oil business was required and many good wells were ruined by improper handling," he said.

Pile Up Honors At Oil Meeting

Wichitans Dominate Fort Worth Powwow

Wichita Falls oildom did quite well at the Fort Worth meeting of the Texas division of the Mid-Continent Oil and Gas association, according to members who returned Saturday.

John F. O'Donohoe, president of the Petroleum Producers company of Wichita Falls and one of Texas' most successful operators, was elected president of the association to succeed J. D. Collett of Fort Worth.

The coveted Marland golf trophy was won by the Wichita Falls wildcat team. The margin of victory was eight-tenths of a point per man over the Fort Worth team. Dallas was third and Houston fourth.

Roscoe Davis of Wichita Falls won low score for left-handed shoots Thus Wichita Falls dominates oil men's golf in Texas.

New members of the association's board, elected Friday, included Mr. O'Donohoe, Harry Hines and Walter Alexander. Re-elected members of the board included J. S. Bridwell, Walter D. Cline, E. H. Eddleman, W. B. Hamilton, Harry C. Hansen of Wichita Falls; Roy B. Jones, J. A. Kemp and J. L. McMahon.

In an address before the association, W. B. Hamilton declared:

"West Texas is showing a more sympathetic and keen interest in the welfare of the oil industry. This interest, participated in by bankers, ranchmen, farmers and attorneys, was evidenced in large measure by the formation of the oil and gas bureau of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

"Public sentiment in general, however, is not very favorable and only with the full co-operation and understanding of the public can the industry stave off unfair legislation and other influences that will prove detrimental to the development of the oil resources of the state."

MAGNOLIA COMPLETES LINE.

The Magnolia's new pipe line from West Texas to Ranger will be completed by Jan. 1, next. In the meanwhile the Magnolia has six of its big tanks up and is filling them. It plans eight of 55,000-barrel capacity and four of 80,000-barrel capacity.

GRAHAM FIELD AT BOOM PACE

Activity Gets Hot After Well Comes In

Pitzer and West "started something" when they drilled in their No. 1 Hinson three weeks ago for a 600-barrel well, for now leasing and drilling activities have grown to such proportions that Graham, Young county seat, is experiencing another boom, many new wells are being started and already some gushers have been brought in.

The grouping of drilling blocks on the strength of the new Morrison pool production offers some interesting developments, declare scouts who have surveyed that district. The leasing is taking a northwest trend from the Buttram pool in Jack county to the Morrison pool at Graham and farther northwest, it is said. Another leasing trend is found running from the South Bend field north to Graham.

Simms Oil company has entered the field and is rigging up on a location that looks good for the big production. It is Simms et al No. 1 A. M. Graham estate, located 167 feet south and 200 feet west of the northeast corner of the Ben Hill survey, just northeast of Graham. This test is rigging up cable tools.

Four miles northeast of the Hinson well, the Shor Oil company will begin operations immediately at No. 1 R. J. Robertson, located 1867 feet southwest and 240 feet northwest of the southeast corner of section 1577, T. E. & L. survey.

With two good wells completed this week, and five wells drilling, no less than 10 other tests are now being planned for this sector.

Of importance, but not in connection with the Graham field, was the abandonment this week of J. S. Cosden's No. 1 A. H. Jones in the J. Decker survey, abstract 1302, south Young, as a dry hole at 4860 feet.

A. P. I. Annual Meet In Chicago December, 5-8

Every phase of the oil industry will receive due discussion and consideration at the eighth annual meeting of the American Petroleum Institute in Chicago on December 5, 6, 7 and 8, according to the preliminary program contained in a bulletin just issued by the institute.

Sessions are to be held morning, afternoon and evening in the Stevens hotel.

Request that persons desiring tickets for the annual dinner on Thursday evening, December 8, make reservations promptly was contained in the bulletin.

GASOLINE IS DEARER.

Refiners report that U. S. motor grade of gasoline is a little firmer at 6 to 6 1-4 cents a gallon. Higher gravities are somewhat weaker as a result of exporters completing their purchases for domestic and export materials. Burning oils are softer, but a period of cold weather would see them stiffen in price and demand.

Six New Tests For Wilbarger

Three Wildcats Included In Locations

Improved morale of the oil man is having a telling effect on development in Wilbarger county. With six new wells announced this week, three of which are wildcats, total operations in that county have reached a total of approximately 50, four-fifths of which are active.

The most important locations were:

The Texas company's No. C-1 Waggoner, northwest of the 1-B producer, and located 205 feet from the south and east lines of the northeast of the southeast of section 25, block 4, H. & T. C. survey.

The Texas company's No. 1-D Waggoner, five miles southeast of Rock Crossing field and in the center of the north half of section 43, M. E. & P. survey, is rigging up cable tools.

Fain-McGaha Oil company's No. N-1 Waggoner in the southwest corner of the north half of the northeast quarter of section 17, block 4, H. & T. C. survey. This well offsets The Texas company's producer.

The Texas company started its No. 4-B Waggoner (second well on the lease) in the northwest of the northwest of section 17. It is 210 feet from the north and 255 from the west line of section.

44th Well In Pecos County

Huge Gusher in On Yates Ranch

Special to The Record News.

SAN ANGELO, Nov. 12.—Pecos county gained its forty-fourth and one of its greatest producers late in the week when Mid-Kansas and Transcontinental No. 2-C Yates came in for an estimated 800 to 1000 barrels hourly from 955 to 991 feet. It is 1028 feet from the north line and 330 feet from the west line of section 60, block 1, L. G.-N. railway survey.

At the same time Atlantic Oil Producing company drilled in its No. 1-A Hendricks for 60 barrels hourly from 2850 to 2860 feet. It was to be deepened. The well is in the northwest corner of the east half of the southwest quarter of section 34, block B-5, public school land, Winkler county.

LOSER IN PECOS

Heavy operating costs in the Pecos area of West Texas is understood to have caused the Transcontinental Oil company and to show a deficit of close to $200,000 against $75,000 for the second quarter. Rumors that the Transcontinental was to be merged with another major firm were denied by President E. B. Parriott.

A Column of Et Ceteras in Sport

Coach E. J. (Doc) Stewart, late lamented mentor of the Texas Longhorns at Austin, is up to his old tricks at El Paso, or to be a little more exact, the Texas Miners are up to the tricks usually attributable to teams coached by the veteran Stewart. To wit, the game Friday between the Miners and the New Mexico Aggies at El Paso, which resulted in a 19 to 7 success for a team from a school which up to this season had cut very little ice on the gridirons of the Far Southwest.

Coach Stewart's Miners took a comparatively more powerful New Mexico eleven to a good cleaning largely as a result of some clever backfield performance filled with all the trickery of manipulating the pigskin to befuddle the foe that has been typical of Stewart-coached aggregations. A feature of the game was a 70-yard run for a touchdown by Campbell, Miner back, who received the Aggie kick-off and returned through a broken field for the full distance necessary to a touchdown.

Now the anvil chorus, who have uttered throaty cries anent the defeat of Clyde Littlefield's Texas Longhorns by S. M. U. some time ago, may find a little something to salve their feelings by thinking over the result of the Armistice Day victory of these same Steers with the Kansas Aggies on the minus end. The Steers' 41 to 7 win was some sweet revenge for the 13 to 3 defeat the Longhorns suffered last year at Manhattan.

It won't be long now until the thump of the pigskin globe will be heard on the basketball courts of the Lone Star state. Thanksgiving Day ends the football season and likewise gives the signal for the beginning of basketball training. In some of the state schools practice sessions have already opened and a fast season of cage contests is certain for the various conferences.

Memphis has a gold medal band which boasts of the proud record of never having been defeated in a contest during the last five years. Up until last week, Memphis had a football team which had not, for five years, tasted defeat at the hands of a bitter rival, Wellington high school. But last week the Skyrockets from the upper Panhandle did the trick, 25 to 6. They had a couple of shirt tail parades up in Wellington to celebrate the event.

Some of these days West Texas is going to produce another Robert Tyre Jones, speaking of golf. Maybe he'll burst forth up at Quanah. They've a pretty fair golfer in that city by name of L. S. Walker. On Nov. 20, Joe Kirkwood, noted professional golfer, is to visit Quanah. Walker is to engage him in an exhibition match.

The Wichita Falls High school Coyotes are naturally getting most of the local gridiron fans' interest. One should not overlook the coming battle between Reagan and Zundelowitz teams however for the junior high school football championship of Wichita Falls. The contest is scheduled for Tuesday afternoon, Nov. 22. On basis of comparative scores, Zundelowitz appears to have a bit the stronger team but that may not mean a thing when Zundy meets Reagan. Incidentally this will be the first contest ever staged between the football teams of the two high schools, so far as official records are concerned. Some of the stars in this battle may be seen next year in the spangles of the Coyotes.

Next week is going to be a dull one so far as Southwest conference football fans are concerned. But it'll be far from dull for the members of the football squads. Yesterday saw the last games between conference members preliminary to the big Turkey Day games. Main interest will center on the conditioning of the Texas Longhorns and the Texas Aggies for their annual game, always the big Thanksgiving Day feature. Both teams will have time to recover from any but major injuries to players in the ten or twelve days intervening before the yearly meeting. Right now the edge is with the Texas Aggies but on Thanksgiving Day the dope doesn't mean enough to wad a shotgun.

ROCKNE'S MEN GET HARD LICK

Cadets Give Micks Worst Drubbing In Years

By ED FRAYNE
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

YANKEE STADIUM NEW, YORK, Nov. 12.—Notre Dame's cherished hopes of a national football championship were snuffed out at Yankee stadium this afternoon in the most amazing football upset of the 1927 season.

While 70,000 astonished spectators looked on, one of the greatest West Point teams in history gave the fighting Irish their first defeat of the year, and one of the worst drubbings a Notre Dame team has ever taken. The final score was 18-0.

This, for a team that went into action as a 2-1 favorite, was more than upset. It was a catastrophe.

It was the fourth time that a West Point team has triumphed over a Notre Dame eleven in the 15 years that they have played. And to add to the sweetness of the success, the victory was won by virtually the same cadet eleven that lost to the identical Notre Dame team in 1926. In that game, the final count was 7-0 in favor of the South Benders.

Cadets Start Fast.

Three touchdowns were scored by the conquering Cadets, one in the very first minute of play, one in the third quarter, and one in the fourth.

Two of them were accounted for by Chris Cagle, the agile left half back of the West Pointers, and the other was a 60-yard run by Bill Nave, the Cadet quarterback, after he had intercepted a forward pass.

Two of the attempted goal kicks were blocked, and a third went wide of the posts.

According to the statistics, Notre Dame actually outplayed their conquerors, but this happens to be one time that figures do not tell the whole truth. The Irish scored 10 first downs, against only seven for Army, which is generally regarded as a moral victory in case the leading team loses. However, the yardage from scrimmage tells another kind of a story.

Army Gains Better.

They give Army 244 yards from scrimmage against only 130 for Notre Dame.

Other statistics follow: Penalties: Notre Dame, eight penalties, totalling 30 yards; Army, three penalties, totalling 15 yards.

Passes: Notre Dame, complete eight out of 32 attempts; Army completed one out of 10 attempts. However, Army intercepted five of the Irish passes, while the Rockne team caught only one of Army's.

Notre Dame kicked for a total of 369 yards, against 405 yards for the Army.

They were exactly even on fumbles. Each side fumbled three times, and each recovered three fumbles by opposing team.

Sixty-yard Thrill.

However, the figures fail to show one costly interception that the visiting team suffered, the Notre Dame pass that fell into Nave's hands in the third quarter. He raced 60 yards to a touchdown on that.

The figures fail to show the spirit of the Army team, admitted to be potentially the best team in the land. Composed of veterans who have played college football in many instances, they found an inspiration today that has not been evident in some of their preceding exhibitions.

They gave the younger team everything they had, and it was more than enough.

There never has been a finer display of offensive and defensive football than the Cadets displayed in their victory. While Cagle and Nave stood out as the touchdown makers, it was superlative team work more than anything that caused Notre Dame's downfall.

Army Line Powerful.

The Army linesman charged with a ferocity that has not been equalled in an eastern field this year. Their ends were down under every punt and the whole squad was in on every play.

In contrast, the South Bend elvyen looked amateurish at times.

A number of times, the Rockne lineman rushed passers, but failed to tackle when they recahed their objective. At other times, they were blocked off by defensive backs who knew their jobs as few others do.

Micks Fought Hard.

Notre Dame was outplayed in every department, but they fought it out to the bitter end. They were still charging in a desperate effort to push over at least one score as the closing whistle blew. They were on Army's seven-yard line, which was the closest they were to scoring the whole afternoon long.

Almost before the echo of the starting whistle had died away, Cagle was racing over the Notre Dame goal line for an Army touchdown. Knute Rockne had pursued his usual policy of starting his second-string line-up and he paid a heavy price for his experiment. Army evidently expected something like that, and they threw every ounce of power into the first minute of play.

Sprague Kicks Off.

Sprague kicked off for Army, and Notre Dame was downed deep in her own territory. The Irish were unable to gain against the fierce charges of the Cadet line, and they kicked. Army took the ball in midfield and just managed to make a first down with the help of a five-yard offside penalty that was inflicted against the Irish. It was Army's ball on Notre Dame's 40-yard line.

There came two smashes at the Notre Dame, and then came Cagle. He came pounding out of the Army backfield, apparently headed for the right side of the Notre Dame line. Before he struck he seemed to sense that the expected opening wasn't here, knd he veered for the open spaces on the right side of the line. Two flying green shirts stabbed at him as he tore for the side lines, but he swerved out of danger.

Cagle Runs Wild.

Now he was close to the side-lines in front of the press box, tearing like mad over the 30-yard line. He was having difficulty in holding his balance, and he wabbled crazily for a few steps.

The Army cheering section was breathless momentarily, fearful that he would stumble or step over. But he didn't. He righted himself, and flew on. Twenty yards, 10 yards, and with a mad dive, he was over the final stripe for a touchdown.

Over on the side lines, Knute Rockne bit his lip in exasperation. He barked a signal to the first-string squad, and they dashed into action even before the Army could line up to try for the extra point. The damage was done, but the varsity managed to hold the damage to the touchdown. They broke through when Sprague attempted to add the extra point with a kick from placement, and they blocked that.

The remainder of the quarter was a wicked battle, with most of the battling in Notre Dame territory. However, at no time were the Cadets in what could be termed a threatening position.

Two touchdown drives featured the second period, but neither materialized.

Field Goal Fails.

Army threatened first, but Truman Landon's attempt to make a field goal from Notre Dame's 16-yard line was blocked.

Then came the most inspiring march of the first half—a Notre Dame parade that sent the greater part of the vast crowd into ecstacies of delight. The green-shirted Indians started on their own 30-yard line, and they fought their way to within 13 yards of the West Point goal line before they were checked.

The Army was in position to score again, but they tried two passes, and they failed. Notre Dame regained the ball on an incompleted pass that went over their goal line.

Once, again, the agile Cagle stormed across the Notre Dame ramparts during the fourth quarter. He collaborated with Bob Hutchinson, another Army back, in a passing act that will probably stand out as the prettiest play of the game. The pass was good for 12 yards, and Cagle sped 23 yards more for a touchdown.

Meehan Deserves Credit.

Arthur Meehan deserves some of the credit for the score, he contributed his share a few minutes before the touchdown when he intercepted a pass by Neimiec on Notre Dame's 38-yard line. He scampered to the Irish eight-yard line before he was forced out of bounds. There the green shirts made a dramatic stand, a successful one. Two line smashes by Hutchinson and an off-tackle play by Cagle advanced the ball to Notre Dame's three-yard line, and Cagle tried to sneak around end on the next play. He was dragged down when he was a matter of inches away from the Notre Dame goal line.

Neimiec made a nice kick from behind his own goal line, and Army gathered in the ball on her 38-yard line. On the second play, Hutchinson and Cagle teamed for the touchdown.

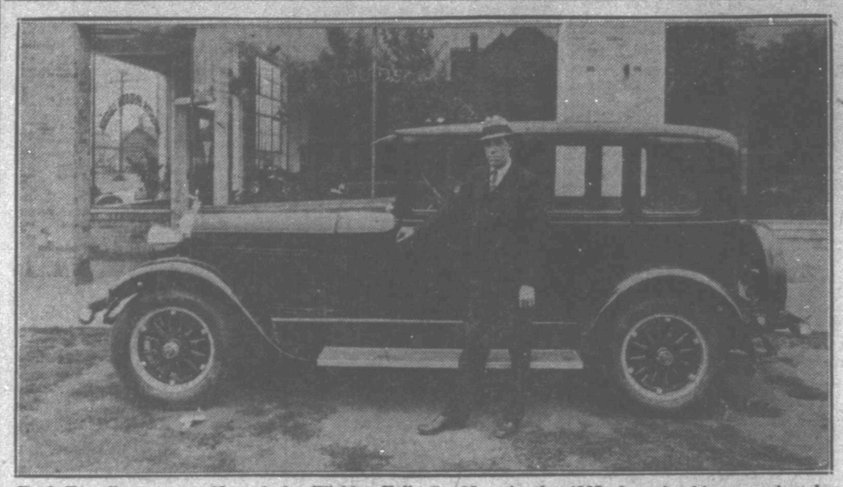

Cagle Takes Ball.

When Cagle caught the ball, one Notre Dame man was close, and he cut diagonally across the field. It was a pretty race, but Cagle managed to outleg his attacker. He raced over before the Rockne man could attempt a tackle.

Brethnall attempted to kick the extra point, but it was blocked.

The air was full of footballs for the remainder of the quarter. The Irish made a heart-breaking effort to register at least once, and almost every play they attempted was a pass. They were down on Army's eight-yard line, as the result of a successful pass, when the final whistle blew.

Pitcher Takes to Selling Autos for Winter

Fred Fussell, star portsider of the Wichita Falls Spudders in the 1927 championship campaign, has joined the sales force of the local Hudson-Essex company. Here's a picture showing him in the guise of a bank president about to enter his car. It sure is great to be famous.

STEERS REST FOR ONE DAY

Longhorns to Begin Hard Training Monday

AUSTIN, Nov. 12. (AP)—The University of Texas Longhorns rested Saturday between the throes of a soul-satisfying 41 to 7 victory over the Kansas Aggie football team and nearly two weeks training grind in preparation for the annual big game with Texas A. & M. college Thanksgiving day.

Because of their superior playing Friday with the Kansas Aggies the Longhorns are not so sure but what they may take the Texas Aggies to a good trimming Thanksgiving. Playing at the apex of their ability the Longhorns ran circles around the Kansans, transforming every break of the game into a Texas score, intercepting passes and scooping up fumbles and getting away unbelievable distances with them.

The Aggies, foiled somewhat by the late Texas heat, never were able to get any sort of sustained attack unlimbered except once in the second quarter when Captain Douglas scored from the 22-yard line on a trick play.

State Fish Hatchery To Raise Game Fish

SAN MARCOS, Nov. 12. (AP)—The game fish Texas sportsmen catch during the next few years will sprout their first scale in a $100,000 hatchery in San Marcos, watered by the crystal San Marcos river.

This hatchery, operated by the federal government, is now being doubled in capacity at a cost this year of $6000 and an ultimate expected cost of $25,000.

While block-long dikes are being built, and numerous breeding ponds excavated, the older portion of the hatchery is being stocked at capacity, and from it hundreds of thousands of baby fish are being taken to replenish the streams of central and southwest Texas.

Veteran in Charge

O. N. Baldwin, veteran fish hatchery man, is in charge. He succeeded Mark Riley, who joined the state game and fish department as manager of a big western hatchery. Mr. Baldwin was formerly here, and under his direction the hatchery was laid out and put into operation. Now he is adding several acres to the expanse of pools in which game fish will be bred.

Efforts are being made to assure the remaining funds for completion of the $31,000 program of utilizing the entire tract of land here for capacity operation of the hatchery.

Hatchery Near River

The hatchery is located in the edge of the city, along Austin-San Marcos highway, and within a hundred feet of the San Marcos river, which supplies the hatchery with water. The hatchery opposite the State Teachers college bathing pool is, itself one of the most picturesque scenic attractions of San Marcos, mirroring in its rippling pools the towers of the Teachers' college set on top of a hill 300 feet above it.

OKLA. AGGIES STARTLE HOGS

But Arkansas Razorbacks Finally Win, 33-20

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Nov. 12. (AP)—Flashing an air attack in every period, the University of Arkansas Razorbacks celebrated their ninth annual homecoming game with a 33 to 20 win over the Oklahoma A. & M. college, Missouri valley champions of last year, here today.

Arkansas opened a drive with Cole doing the passing and the Razorbacks crossed the Aggies' goal line five times. Cole, Arkansas quarterback, with the aim of a sharpshooter, completed nine out of fourteen passes. Wright, giant Oklahoma halfback, threatened seriously in the third period with his line smashes. The Oklahoman ran wild, putting the ball in scoring position twice before the dazed Razorbacks could nail him. Arkansas' record showed nineteen first downs, while the Oklahomans made twelve.

Oklahoma threatened seriously in the second and third periods when Wright, giant Aggie halfback ripped and tore the Porker line to shreds. A pass, Wright to Radnich, resulted in the first Oklahoma touchdown late in the second period. The Aggies scored twice in the third quarter. Poole and Bowman turned the trick after Wright had put the ball down deep in Arkansas territory.

Cole scored the last two touchdowns for Arkansas, one coming in the second period and one in the final quarter. He kicked for the extra point after his second touchdown. Schacher kicked goal twice for the Aggies.

The line-up:

Arkansas (33)	Pos.	Okla. A&M (20)
Coleman (c)	Center.	Kratz
Kirby	Right Guard.	Hendrickson
Winters	Right Tackle.	Ellis
Rose	Right End	Poole
Boise	Quarter Back.	Schacher
Donothan	Half Back.	Martin
Cole	Half Back.	Wright
Beavers	Full Back.	Bowman (c)

Score by periods:

Arkansas	20	6	0	7	—33
Okla A&M.	0	7	13	0	—20

Arkansas scoring: Ttouchdowns, Cole, 2, Donothan, Cowger, Beavers.
Oklahoma A. & M. scoring: Bowman, Poole, Radnich. Points after touchdown, Arkansas, Cole 3, Schacher 2.
Officials: Referee, Jones, Tulsa; umpire, Penny, Brown; head linesman, Ryan, Missouri; field judge, Olda, Kansas university.

Fighter Flies to Side Of Ill Divorced Wife

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Nov. 12. (AP)—Bud Taylor, claimant of the bantamweight championship, who made a hurried trip by air and rail from the west coast when informed that his divorced wife, Mrs. Iris Ward Taylor, was seriously ill, arrived here last night. He found Mrs. Taylor much improved, although physicians said she was still in a critical condition as the result of peritonitis. When informed of Mrs. Taylor's illness, Taylor started from Los Angeles by airplane, but changed to a railroad train at Salt Lake City.

SOONERS HALT KANSAS JAYS

Oklahoma Victorious 26-7 At College Homecoming

NORMAN, Okla., Nov. 12. (AP)—Protected by a light line that stood, fought and out-charged the University of Kansas, the University of Oklahoma's make-shift backfield ran rings around the University of Kansas Jayhawkers as a fitting climax to the Sooners' homecoming. Coach Ad Lindsey's Crimson clad warriors won, 26 to 7.

A colorful crowd estimated at 20,000 persons filled the stadium and cheered the Sooners on. The Sooners made fourteen first downs to their opponents' six. Oklahoma made 263 yards in scrimmage as compared to 136 for Kansas.

Electra Volleyers Trim Burkburnett

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Nov. 12.—The volley ball senior and junior teams of the Electra high school, defeated the Burkburnett teams Friday night in the high school gymnasium at Burkburnett. The seniors won by five points and the juniors won by six points.

Electra has two strong teams and did some good work Friday evening, according to Miss Ethel Varnell, coach of the Electra teams. The senior team is composed of Misses Burrl Rhinehart, Melva Adams, Donnie Hubbard, Lucy Whitesides, Lucille Meroney and Lois Chesher, with Miss Jetta Hearndon as substitute.

The junior team has Misses Mary Brown, captain; Pauline Bogart, Oleta Jones, Berta May Bazzen, Opal Choate and Oleta Howles, with Miss Reba Lewis as substitute.

Both teams are in good shape and have several more games for the near future.

Texas Aggies Put In Gym Material

New Equipment Installed For Intramural Use

Special to The Record News.

COLLEGE STATION, Nov. 12.—Another step forward in the effort to make the athletic equipment of the A. and M. college of Texas as complete and modern as that found anywhere has been taken with the completion of three new tennis courts for the use of the Aggie varsity and intramural players.

The three courts are located away from Kyle field, being the only facilities of the Aggie athletic equipment not included in this one field. The new location was chosen because of the unusual amount of light which falls upon the site, enabling the players to pursue their sport without being handicapped with eye shades.

The courts are concrete and are painted green which protects the players' eyes from the glaring reflection of the sun and the crevices in the concrete are filled with asphalt to allow for expansion without cracking, a fault found with most concrete courts. Instead of having the courts lined off in the usual way, a durable paint which will stand up under all weather conditions was used and it will be unnecessary to mark off the courts more than once a year.

Red Grange Expects To Reap $50,000 On Grid

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—Approximately $50,000 is the sum Red Grange expects to reap from his third season of pro football.

The Gallopin' Ghost of Illinois played before 75,000 fans in his first five games, and had 13 more to go. He expects to play before 400,000 fans this season.

Next to Grange, Benny Friedman, former Michigan star, will get the highest sum out of pro football. He is looking for close to $25,000 for his toil as a pro this year.

DERBY PURSE SPLIT BY TWO

Haskell Horses Tie In Dead Heat Race

HASKELL, Texas, Nov. 12. (Sp) The third and last day of the race meet at Haskell was featured by close races an thrilling finishes.

H. W. Hill's Roxey Savoy won for the third straight time in the first race, Red Robin being just nosed out after coming up from behind. Grey Eagle was third.

Orphan Boy owned by J. A. Zimmerman was the favorite and won the second race under the whip, being pushed at all times by Trigger, E. C. Cooper's bay gelding.. Ruth took third.

In the third race Queen Cup won easily by four lengths, Starlight taking second and Efficient Boy third.

The fourth race, the Haskell derby, was declared no winner between Sansaba and Winnie May for the first and second place, and the purse split between them. Mattie S with the diminutive T. Speck up was third.

The last race, specially for non-winners, was won easily by Dollie Cleveland with Red Ant taking second and Peanuts third.

The meet was run off smoothly from start to finish and was the first successful meet of more than one day ever held in Haskell county. It is the intention of the fair association to hold several meets during the year.

Terrill Claims Grid Flag After Victory

DALLAS, Nov. 12. (AP)—Terrill School of Dallas claimed the State academy football championship today as a result of having defeated the Dallas academy, 19 to 0, Friday. In the first period the academy seemed to have the better of the game, but the Terrill Tigers rallied in the remaining periods and pounded through for a touchdown in the second and two in the fourth quarter.

GOLF

By ROBERT T. JONES

U. S. Amateur, British Open And Southern Open Golf Champion

It seems now, in the light of some things I have read, that upon returning from Britain this summer I allowed myself to be quoted, with regard to the desired adoption of a standard ball, before I was ready or qualified to say anything of a definite nature. I remember talking and writing, with some enthusiasm about certain experiments which were being made in England with a solid gutta percha golf ball, the idea being that such a ball might lead to the solution of the problems of golf course architecture which the rubber ball had thrust upon us. I tried to avoid the expression of any definite opinion as to just what we ought to do or what ball we ought to adopt. Apparently I did not do so.

* * *

I have just read in London golf illustrated a very well considered article which points out the great danger to the popularity of golf of any legislation which will make the game difficult beyond the capacity of the average player to enjoy it. Such a result, I agree, would be the ruin of the great game we are seeking to foster and it would withdraw from us the support of the so-called average golfer, who after all is the backbone of the sport. Golf truly is not a science. It was never meant to be measured by scientific standards. It is a game for recreation and necessary to play it well to enjoy it.

* * *

Admitting then that the men who support our clubs and who maintain our golf courses are content with the present ball, and admitting also that to deprive these men of the pleasure of playing the game, to make it hard for them, would take from the others the advantages of good courses and great public interest, still I think we may find a middle ground that will avoid these results and yet bring back into competitive golf the versatility and all-around skill which to a great measure have been made unnecessary by the driving power of the present ball.

* * *

Obviously, the gutta percha ball is out of the question. True it behaves very nicely for the pitches and around the green. It is far more controllable than the modern ball within a hundred yards of the hole. But on the long shots, to one brought up on the rubber ball, it has a most unpleasant sound and feel off the club. I can not get away from the impression when using it that I am sounding futily upon a sphere of wood. And it holds its shape about as well. After playing seven holes with one I found flat places all over it, made by the impact of the club and probably it would have been almost cubic if I had hit it on the pole every time, as I do a rubber ball.

* * *

The gutta also is some forty or fifty yards off the rubber ball in driving power. On courses designed for its use that factor is desirable, but the difference is too great, I think, when we consider that nearly all our courses were either designed for the rubber ball, or lengthened to balance its potentialities as far as possible. Even those who like the gutta recommend using it only on short courses.

* * *

The floater is better mainly because it is rubber and yields to the club more in the manner of our accustomed ball. But it, too, I think, is too short for our long courses. The problem which confronts us is not to restore the ball and clubs to the exact condition which obtained years ago before our courses were lengthened—that would leave us as badly off as we are now. What we are seeking is a reduction in length sufficient, on our present courses, to bring back the playing conditions which we used to have.

* * *

The present ball has a diameter of 1.62 inches and the floater one of 1.72 inches. The proposed standard, I believe, is 1.68 inches in diameter, with a specific gravity of 1.10, just enough to make it sink in water. The claim is that the resiliency can be controlled so that the driving power may be regulated accurately within certain limits. The proposal is to take twenty yards off the normal drive of the long hitter, reducing it from say 250 yards to 230 yards.

Caldwell Watches Game From Sidelines

By DAMON RUNYON.

Universal Service Staff Correspondent

YALE BOWL, New Haven, Conn., Nov. 12.—"Ten minutes to play—ten minutes to play—"

A Yale man to my left on the rampart of the old Yale bowl was intoning the words like a funeral dirge as he watched the clock on the score board across the field where it said so plainly to him: Princeton 6, Yale 0.

"Nine minutes to play—nine minutes to play—no—hope Yale."

Then, suddenly, his breath intaking in a sharp gasp and issuing again around a ferocious yell, he was on his feet, and on their feet with him were nearly 80,000 other citizens of assorted sizes and sexes. "Yes—ip, whoo-ee, Wahhoo, lookit Fishwick, lookit Fishwick," the man bawled.

All Go Quite Mad.

And thereafter for a space of some minutes the man was quite mad, and wholly unaccountable and with him in the same state were most of the other citizens referred to above.

For you see there had occurred down there on the field a succession of startling football explosions—bang-bang—like that, which swiftly turned a gold and brown November day into a rare occasion for Yale just when it had become most depressing.

Out of the haze of the late afternoon there came flashing with a furious fan-fare of activity one of the most tremendous football teams in Yale history just at a moment when it had commenced to look like one of the—well, stupidest.

Home Folks Lunatic.

Inside of ten minutes it had knooked off two touchdowns for a final 14 to 6 score and set the home folks half crazy with excitement even as their lips were framing stinging criticism.

A powerful forward pass that shot from Hoben to big Fishwick, the end lurking in an unexpected spot, followed by Cox's goal from touchdown did the business. That boot of Cox made the second touchdown in the nature of an anti-climax.

Hoben's pass carried twenty yards and left Fishwick about twenty yards to travel. Yale was at mighty low ebb when Hoben, the quarterback of old Eli, let fly that pass. And to Yale eyes, Fishwick was a young giant dropped in by a king providence as he came lunging forward to grip the ball in his powerful fists.

Princeton Far Away.

No Princeton man was close enough to him to hand him a ripe apple as Fishwick swung around with the ball and leaped across across the green turf for the Princeton goal lines.

Men and women rose shrieking. Torn paper flew over the Yale side of the great bowl like snow flakes after Cox added the point that put Yale in front.

Presently the long long wail of the famous old "undertaker song" of Yale, as mournful as I imagine the cry of a banahee to be, went rolling out over the Connecticut hills, the morbid song of Yale in gloating triumph.

Caldwell On Side.

While all this was going on I was matching a young fellow sitting on a bench on the Yale inside line, a bareheaded young fellow in street clothes. He was Bruce Caldwell, the great back of Yale, who was declared ineligible to play in today's game because it was learned at the last minute that he once played with the brown freshmen.

I had been thinking of Caldwell as the thesis of this tale in the event the score had remained Princeton 6, Yale 0, for at least twice today I believe Caldwell would have scored where other Yale backs failed. Of course it is only a surmise but once when Johnny Garvey was hurled at the Princeton front with only a few feet to go, I felt sure Caldwell would have made it. I suppose the feeling was prompted largely by sympathy for the man who might have been.

He sat almost inert on the bench throughout the game and between the halves he sat there alone as the coaches who occupied the bench with him were called elsewhere.

He's Happy Over Win.

He seemed to be rejoicing with his team mates in the wild scramble of the last ten minutes. Yale won without him, but it is only fair to assume that with him the score might have been even bigger.

And in winning it would seem that Yale has the best team in the East since it licked the Army that licked Notre Dame and then licked the unbeaten Tigers from Old Nassau.

Mr. Tad Jones, the Yale coach, abandoned much of the deception that served him so well in other games and came out today more on the up—and—up. He had his boys playing a lot of straight, but futile football wasting plenty of energy battering at the Princeton line in the good old fashioned way.

An Oldtime Finish.

Twice they were bolted with their noses half inside the Princeton gates. At that it looked as if Garvey was over for a touchdown only to be caught and tossed back by Miles. But in any event it was one of those old time finishes that seemed to have almost passed out of football, with the Yale young men still make—dancing about the community by way of celebrating a most unexpected victory.

Grid Captains

Ted Meyer, captain of Ohio State University's eleven, won his measure of fame with the Scarlet and Gray despite the fact that a row of all-American stars stood in his path.

When Meyer elected to add football to his curriculum Ohio State boasted of the presence of Young and Hess at guards, both all-American selections. Meyer, undaunted, forced the coaches to give him a chance as alternate for Young. He broke into the game some of the time at least.

Last fall Young's place was taken.

Last season Young had departed and Meyer filled his shoes permanently. Playing opposite a guard of Hess' caliber was a tough assignment but Meyer received due credit for playing a brilliant game?

He's a resident of Cleveland, O., and is the second successive captain from that city, succeeding Marty J. Karow, '26 pilot.

Line Coach of Texas Aggies Once Star Of Michigan Aggies; Also Aided Yost

Special to The Record News.

COLLEGE STATION, Nov. 12.—Charles F. Bassett, who began his work this fall in the A&M College coaching staff as line coach of football, had among other interesting experiences during the World War that of coaching an army football team that reached the semi-finals of the AEF championship. Bassett went overseas in the engineering corps and it was while stationed as captain of Base Section Five, around Brest, France, that he coached his doughboy team.

Bassett came to A&M from the University of Michigan, where last year he assisted Yost in football and Mather in basketball, as basketball coach as well as line coach in football.

Bassett is an engineering graduate of Michigan State College, East Lansing, and a graduate in physical education from the University of Michigan. While at Michigan State, he played three years on the varsity football and basketball teams, 1927, 1929 and 1920, and two years on the college baseball team.

S. M. U. Mustangs Swamp Baylor's Golden Bears 34-0 In Game Full Of Thrills

Ed Hughes' Column

Jack Dempsey's idea that a fifteen fight before another Tunney meeting might possibly render more harm than good is not without logic. In the salad days of a career, experience, the adventure of fighting, is most beneficial to the lure — sometimes. However, there comes a moment when experience, the teacher, has imparted all his skill, and after that comes deterioration, the inevitable wear and tear on the physical machinery. Each punch, as Dempsey explained, eats into the fighting armor, both in giving and receiving. The physical resources are being spent, never to be replenished.

However, it is not only in the later stages of a ring career that one fight can inflict unholy harm on a ring gladiator. Often as not youth, in acquiring the essential experience, founders on disaster frequently from the cruel impact of one unfortunate blow. No fighting man was ever the better for a beating, despite the attempted consolation lodged in such remarks.

* * *

Jimmy Slattery was just about the shiftiest and most conceited boxer in the business until he ran afoul of Dave Shade's unexpected knockout cup to the chin. That one blow ruined a coming champion beyond a doubt. With his confidence unimpaired nothing could have stopped the Buffalo wizard from becoming a genuine champion. It is doubtful if Slattery will ever make the pinnacle now, despite the fact that he holds the synthetic N. B. A. boxing title of light-heavyweight champion.

* * *

A single punch often shatters the capabilities of a first-class fighter, as Philadelphia Jack O'Brien once suggested to me one day. "I saw Gus Bob Fitzsimmons crack George Gardner near the temple," narrated Jack, "and I swear that Gardner was never the same from that moment on. It was a terrible blow and nobody knows what would have happened had Gardner received it on a vital spot."

* * *

Taking punishment, as Dempsey explained, never helped a fighter at any stage of the game, but it has punched many a victim into the tragic darkness of "goofiness." Certain fights in the careers of famous ringsters may be singled out as ruinous occasions in which the defeated have absorbed knocks that altered the entire fistic destinies.

Years ago you could tab the case of Eddie Hanlon, phenomenal featherweight of California. Hanlon first rose to prominence when Young Corbett was fresh from his conquest of "Terrible Terry" McGovern. Hanlon was a marvel, and he proved it at 18, when he held the great Corbett to a 20-round draw. The youngster's admirers could see nothing but a title for Eddie after that, but Hanlon made a mistake. Shortly after that he again came to grips with McGovern's conqueror, who had made special preparations for the return engagement. Corbett about ruined the dangerous "comer." Hanlon was fearfully thrashed and thoroughly whipped when the referee stopped it in the eleventh round. Hanlon made some good fights after that, but the beating Corbett gave him put a damper on his championship prospects.

Tom Sharkey's greatest fight was also the one in which the rough sailor was started on the downward path that led to defeats and chagrin. That was the 25-rounder with mighty Jeffries in which many thought Sharkey earned a draw at the termination of 25 rounds. Jeffries triumphed, and in so doing Sharkey was brutally hammered in the closing rounds.

Two of Sharkey's ribs were dented in from the ponderous smashes of the giant champion. Sharkey's exhibition was most brave, yet subsequent events proved it unfair to his championship hopes. The Jeffries beating crushed the marvelous stamina of the once doughty sailor, who never amounted to much after that.

Navy Loses 27 to 12 In Michigan Contest

MICHIGAN STADIUM, ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 12. (AP)—Showing a brilliant offense in two quarters, Michigan defeated Navy, 27 to 12, today before some 87,000 persons, the largest crowd ever to witness a football game here. It was the third meeting between the two teams.

Navy buttered Michigan in the first and third periods, accounting for a touchdown in each of these quarters. The first Navy counter was a halfback raiser, Lloyd, the Middie left half, taking the ball on the second play after Michigan's second touchdown and dashing 35 yards to cross the Wolverine goal line.

Army Outplays Micks To Win by 18-0 Score

YANKEE STADIUM, NEW YORK, Nov. 12. (AP)—Army played Notre Dame until the final moments to win, 18 to 0, before a great crowd of 76,000 persons Saturday. The end of the game found the battle on Army's five-yard line after Notre Dame had unleased a little effective forward passing attack. Until the eleventh hour Army had the advantage.

Minnesota Drive Too Powerful For Drake

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 12. (AP)—Minnesota's powerful football machine ground up the Drake Bulldog here this afternoon, 27 to 6, before a crowd of 35,000, the smallest here this season. After the first half Minnesota replaced its regulars with second string men and Drake pushed over a touchdown in the third period.

HUME STAR OF PONY VICTORY

Long Runs Through Field Feature Contest

DALLAS, Nov. 12. (AP)—In a game packed with thrilling passes and breath-taking runs, the Southern Methodist university Mustangs of Dallas today defeated the Baylor university Golden Bears, 34 to 0 before a crowd of approximately 6000 rather chilled spectators at Ownby stadium.

Gerald Mann star Mustang quarterback playing his last game on the home field, shone again, not as an individual star but as a signal caller supreme in the southwest conference. His work today probably assured him a berth on the mythical all-southwest conference team and did much to enhance his chances for the all-American.

Hume Shines Often.

Redman Hume, at half for the Ponies, did more spectacular work, reeling off several long runs, one for 57 yards that ended two feet from the goal when he slid out of bounds. The wiry Weir Washam, quarter for the Bears, was the outstanding Baptist player, making several long returns with punts, and imbuing his baffled team with a fighting spirit that lasted until the final gun.

The Methodists were badly outplayed in the first quarter, the ball being in their half of the field most of that period, but in the second quarter they unleashed a spectacular and perfectly executed passing game that puzzled and then completely routed the Bears.

Passes Bring Score.

Three passes led to the Mustangs first touchdown, Love receiving one to gain 45 yards, Johnson taking one for 15 yards and Reed carrying the third 11 yards to cross the Baptists goal. Love then booted the ball between the goal posts for the extra point.

Hume, in two broken field runs that netted about 60 yards in the next few minutes brought the ball to Baylor's eight-yard line and then dashed around right end for the Mustangs second touchdown. The Bears were off side on the try for goal, and the Ponies were given the extra point.

Then Hume made the prettiest run of the day. With the ball on his own 41-yard line, Mann called for a lateral pass, received the pig skin and tossed it to Hume, who dodged and sidestepped Bear tacklers for 59 yards, crossing the Baptists goal in the center of the field. Love's place kick for the extra point was blocked.

Hume Runs 52 Yards.

Shortly after the kickoff, the Mustangs failing to gain with line bucks, Mann threw another pass to Hume who ran 52 yards, sliding out of bounds two feet from the goal. After one plunge at the Bear line had failed, Mann dived over the line of scrimmage for the Methodists fourth touchdown. Hume kicked goal.

After the Ponies had again been held and forced to punt to Baylor's 20-yard line a Drain back failed to toss a pass far enough and Watters, Mustang end intercepted, running 16 yards to the Bears' four yard line. Hume, on the next play plunged through left tackle for his third touchdown of the day and a moment later kicked goal.

Lineup:

S. M. U.		Baylor
Schaedel	Right Guard.	Taylor
Lindley	Right Tackle.	West
Dawson	Right End.	Griffin
Reed	Quarterback.	Washam
Johnson	Right Half.	Pruitt
Craig	Fullback.	Hayes

Score by periods:

S. M. U.	0	14	13	7	—34

Officials: Cochran, Kalamazoo, referee; Kinney, Miss. A. & M., umpire; Utay, Texas A. & M. head linesman; Dayton, Williams, field judge.

Touchdowns: S. M. U. Hume, substituting for Johnson three; Reed, Mann, substituting for Reed.

Point from place kick: Love, Hume 3.

First downs: S. M. U. 16, Baylor 6.

Passes: S. M. U. completed 16 for average 27 yards, was incompleted. Baylor completed five for average 13 yards.

Penalties: S. M. U. 4 for 80 yards; Baylor one for 15 yards.

PLAY BY PLAY ACCOUNT

Winning the toss, S. M. U. chose to kick, defending the south goal. After a kickoff that was smothered by the wind on Baylor's 40-yard line the Bears started a drive to the Mustangs' goal, but were halted on the Ponies' 20-yard line when the Mustangs defense stiffened.

In an interchange of punts, Washam kicked out of bounds for Baylor on the Mustangs' one-yard line but after gaining 10 yards on line bucks the Ponies punted to their own 40-yard line. Noble carried the ball to Mustang's 31-yard line on a hidden ball run through center as the quarter ended.

After Trigg had recovered a Baylor fumble on the first play of the second quarter the Mustangs drove to mid-field but were halted when they were penalized 15 yards. The Ponies regained their lost ground, however, when Love, substituting for Craig gained 45 yards after receiving a pass from Reed and was downed on the Bears' 26-yard line.

Pass Gains Ground.

Another pass from Reed to Johnson gained 15 yards, Johnson going down on Baylor's eleven-yard line. Johnson then made a lateral pass to Reed, who went over the Bears' goal for a touchdown. Love kicked goal for the extra point. Score: S. M. U. 7, Baylor 0.

After a series of punts, both teams failing to gain through the line, S. M. U. regained a fumble on the Bears' 19-yard line. The Mustangs fumbled on the next play and the overcoated crowd was brought to its feet when Noble recovered for the Bears and raced down a clear field apparently on his way to the Mustangs' goal. He stumbled, however, and was downed on his own 42-yard line.

Bears Are Halted.

The Bears failed to gain and Pruitt kicked out of bounds on the Mustangs' 12-yard line. Hume, shaking off half a dozen Baylor tacklers, made a pretty broken field run around right end for forty-one yards.

After several gains through the line, Hume, substituting for Johnson, ran the ball to Baylor's eight-yard line and then went around right end for a touchdown. Baylor was offside on the try for goal and the Ponies were given the extra point.

Score: S. M. U. 14, Baylor 6.

Soon after the kickoff, Washam intercepted a long Mustang pass and ran the ball to the 50-yard line. A punt, stopped on the Ponies' one-yard line, was kicked to the Ponies' 29-yard line.

Triple Pass Works.

A triple pass, Mann to Hooks to Roach, put the ball on Baylor's 36-yard line, the half ending with the ball there in the Mustangs' possession.

Score end of half: S. M. U. 14, Baylor 6.

After plowing their way to Baylor's 38-yard line, Mann ran the ball to Baylor's 12-yard line, but the ball went back to Baylor's 37-yard line when the Mustangs were penalized. After downing a Baylor punt on the Mustangs' 20-yard line, a triple pass, Mann to Love to Roach and line plunges brought the ball to the Ponies' 41-yard line.

Hume Races 59 Yards

On the next play Mann threw a short lateral pass to Hume who raced 59 yards to cross Baylor's goal. Love's try for the extra point was blocked. Score: S. M. U. 20; Baylor 0.

After being stopped tembporarily in midfield Mann hurled another pass, a long one this time, to Hume who raced 52 yards and slid across the Bears' goal line. The officials however, ruled that Hume was out of bounds on the slide two feet from the goal. After one line buck failed Mann dived over the goal for a touchdown. Hume place kicked between the goal posts for the extra point. Score: S. M. U. 27; Baylor 0.

A 38 yard pass, Mann to Watters, put the ball on the Bears' 26 yard line in the first play after the kickoff. The ball was in the Ponies possession on Baylor's 27-yard line as the third quarter ended. Score: S. M. U. 27; Baylor 0.

A Series of Fumbles

A pass, Mann to Watters, gained eight yards, but Baylor recovered a Mustang fumble and punted to the Ponies' 22-yard line. The Mustangs punted to Baylor's 30-yard line and recovered a Bear fumble on the next play. The Ponies were unable to gain and punted out of bounds on the Bears' 20-yard line.

Watters intercepted a Baylor pass and ran to the Bears' four-yard line. Hume crossed the Bears' goal on a delayed run through left tackle for a touchdown and kicked goal for the extra point. Score: S. M. U. 34; Baylor 0.

The game ended with the ball on Baylor's 22-yard line after a punting duel, neither team being able to make substantial gains on runs or passes.

Iowa Park Rolls New Crop Spinach

Wichita Valley Section Bids For Leadership

Keep your eye on the Iowa Park section. It bids to become one of the most prolific areas of spinach cultivation in the southwest.

Two carloads of spinach have already been shipped from Iowa Park this season—and there will be more.

The first carload was shipped November 6, and the second was sent on its way to the Chicago markets Friday. The initial carload was shipped exactly 50 days from the time of planting, according to O. K. Barnes, agricultural director of the chamber of commerce.

The bulk of this early spinach is from the farm of Joe Atchley, southwest of Iowa Park. There are about 250 acres planted to spinach in the Iowa Park section.

From this acreage it is estimated that within the next 10 days there will be a yield of three carloads a week, possibly more.

The spinach grown around Iowa Park has been classed as A No. 1—the best. A Chicago buyer who was in Iowa Park inspecting the spinach from the Atchley farm recently said it was as good as any he had seen anywhere this year, better than that grown in most spinach areas.

Cultivation of spinach in this section was still largely experimental this year, but the success which has attended the efforts of the Atchley brothers and other farmers who have planted spinach will be the incentive for more general cultivation of the crop next year, it is said. It is reported that one farmer has announced he will plant 500 acres to spinach next year, and others have said they will plant lesser tracts.

College Beauty

THUG'S VICTIM FACES CHARGE

Boy Moved From Cot In Hospital To Jail

Louis Picklesimer, 17-year-old Geary, Okla., youth, with a bandaged head concealing wounds he received two weeks ago when he was attacked and robbed as he slept in a haystack near Iowa Park by his companion, was removed from the Wichita General hospital late Saturday afternoon and lodged in the county jail after Sheriff W. G. Bralley had verified information that the youth was the object of a warrant from Taloga, Okla., charging theft of an automobile.

The charge on which Louis is held also implicates two other boys, Bert and Bill Fields, although the scant information available does not state the time of the alleged theft. Officers here, Sheriff Bralley said, were working on clues that point to these two boys as the ones who were with Louis two weeks ago when they rode from Wichita Falls out towards Iowa Park.

Experiments Pushed At Iowa Park Station

Experiments for 1927 being conducted at the state experiment station at Iowa Park are being completed as fast as possible, according to G. C. McGown, county agent. Considerable valuable information will be derived from the experiments, he said.

Dr. J. B. Taubenhause, in charge of root rot investigation in Texas, was a recent visitor at the station. He conferred with J. P. Lusk, plant pathologist, regarding the experiments under way and assisted in planning the 1928 program.

When this year's data is collected the plant pathologists of the experiment stations at Iowa Park, Weslaco and Temple will meet with Dr. Taubehaus and his staff of College Station to correlate their results and to discuss further experiments.

The new buildings have recently been completed at Iowa Park station. One is an office and laboratory building, and the other is a barn used for an office has been moved to another location and improved.

Abundance of Nuts Available For Holiday Market; Grapefruit Lower

There will be an abundance of nuts to supply the holiday demands, according to local produce dealers. More grades of walnuts are being received than for several years, with the result that this nut will be considerably cheaper than last year. Almonds, brazil nuts and filberts are also being received in large quantities. Pecans are not quoted by the produce dealers, because the local demand is principally supplied by the Wichita growers of this popular nut.

For the first time in several weeks the scarcity of lemons has been relieved, with the result that the price has dropped $10.50 and $11.50 a box to $8.50 and $9 a box.

Grapefruit also dropped 50 cents a box in the face of reports of large crops in the lower Rio Grande valley. Local dealers expect to receive large shipments of this fruit within the next few weeks.

Bananas advanced one cent during the week to sell at 9 cents a pound, the highest bananas have sold in several years.

Bell peppers also staged an advance from 6 cents to 10 cents. This is because the home grown supplies are about used up, and larger peppers from South Texas are being shipped in. Potatoes and turnips dropped while tomatoes advanced in price.

$500 In Prizes Offered In Contest To Record News Readers

Five hundred dollars spending money for Christmas! Is there a man, woman or child who would not make an effort to win this? And it may be done so easily!

Five hundred dollars will be given away in cash prizes to winners in the Santa's Sack Contest in The Record News, starting today. Look at the double page picture of Santa's sleigh and its bounty of packages in Sunday's paper and you will be surprised at the simple method of winning a cash prize.

As first prize $250 will be awarded to the person turning in the most attractive exhibit of the five pages comprising this contest, the remaining four pages to appear November 20, November 27, December 4 and December 11. All that is required is to write plainly and neatly the name of the santa's sack item on each package tumbling from Santa's sleigh. The items will be found in the corresponding advertisements appearing in today's Record News. After reading an advertisement and noting the item contained therein turn to the Santa's Sack page and write the item on the package labeled with the firm's name. The pages may be colored if so desired. Keep the pages together and send the entire lot in to the Santa's Sack Contest Editor at The Record News at the close of the contest, December 11. The prizes will be awarded before Christmas. Beside the generous first prize, $125 will be given as second prize; $50 as third prize; $5 as fourth to eighth prizes; and $2.50 as ninth to twenty-eighth prizes.

It is impossible to make a mistake. Attractiveness and neatness are the only requisites. Do not let this opportunity escape to win such a substantial sum that will prove doubly valuable at this time of the year. Watch the remaining four pages of Santa's Sack contest!

SPORTING NEWS — THE RECORD NEWS — FIRST ACCURATE COMPLETE

Sports Through Edgren's Eyes

By ROBERT EDGREN

California boxing is in a groggy condition resulting from the newest ring in years, pulled by Welterweight Champion Joe Dundee and Max Waxman, his manager. There has been nothing quite so disastrous since the ferocious plasterer, Fred Fulton, took a dive in the first round and insisted upon being counted out, although his opponent, Tony Fuente, had missed him twice and hadn't landed a blow.

* * *

Dundee was under contract to risk his title in a "10-round decision bout with Ace Hudkins, the Nebraska Wildcat. Under the terms of the contract filed with the boxing commission Dundee was to fight for 37 1-2 per cent of the gate receipts, and Hudkins was to get 12 1-2 per cent.

* * *

The California boxing law is patterened after the Walker law in New York and, like the New York law, prohibits the giving of guarantees and names the percentages that may be paid champions and other boxers. It seems that in California, as it is in New York and other states that have boxing commissions, champions and boxers recognized as "good drawing cards" usually demand a private agreement with a guarantee and percentage privilege. It is as illegal as bootlegging, but just as popular among the lads who make up the "big money" class. According to commont report Dundee and his manager signed the usual formal contract for the legal percentage and had a private contract with Promoter Dick Donald guaranteeing Dundee a flat $60,000.

* * *

Dundee appeared at training quarters rather fat at the waitline, but full of predictions that he'd knock Hudkins out. It developed that Hudkins had already been training a month for the fight and Manager Waxman became very anxious about choosing a referee.

* * *

The commission refused to let Waxman say who could and who could not officiate. As in New York, the commission appoints referees just before the bouts. Waxman became vociferous about his "rights" as manager of the champion and the risk Dundee was taking with his valuable title, but the commission stood pat on making its own last moment selection. On the fight night Waxman appeared at Wrigley field to collect according to the "gentlemen's agreement." As the entire gate receipts were about $70,000 not all available in cash, Donald offered part cash and a $10,000 check to complete the total. The check was promptly refused.

* * *

The buyers of some $70,000 worth of tickets want their money back. The commission says that a refund is impossible because the gallerytes had no seat stubs and ringsiders probably threw theirs away, and anyhow, Uncle Sam will demand his tax money, and there are other taxes and expenses, including the renovation of Mr. Wrigley's ball park and pay for the chairs wrecked or removed as souvenirs. The commission thinks that about $30,000 may be salvaged from the wreck, and proposes giving this to local charities.

The barring of Dundee probably won't be recognized in the east, as the California commission has long refused to take part in the working agreement between commissions that exist in most states where boxing is legal and under commission rule. California has refused to recognize eastern suspensions.

* * *

Hudkins, while in the ring, claimed the welter title. This was a mere gesture and means nothing outside his own dooryard. Dundee is still champion, but it is a pretty poor champion who will run out of a match the way Dundee did. He had in advances over $33,000 and was afraid to "risk his title" against Ace Hudkins for that amount and an additional collection totalling nearer $50,000. He ran away rather than fight and risk a beating.

Sunset High At Dallas Gets Cup

Forest High Loses Out In District Three Race

FORT WORTH, Nov. 12 (AP) — Central high of Fort Worth defeated Forest high, Dallas, in a hard battle here today by a score of 26 to 19. The loss of Forest high clinched the district three championships for Sunset high, Dallas, and ended the Dallas invasion of schools here for the 1927 season.

Forest was the first to score, crossing Central's goal line in the first few minutes of play. Central scored a marker in the first quarter, added two in the second quarter and a third in the fourth period. Forest scored again in the second period and crossed the goal line in the third period for its final touchdown.

Quanah Rout Shows Pack's Power As Coyotes Trample Over Victims For 64 to 2 Win

COYOTES PUT SPEED IN PLAY

Quanah Fought Bitterly But Was Outclassed

Wichita Falls' Coyotes Saturday afternoon at Spudder Park took the hapless Quanah team into camp 64-2. The only time there was the least doubt of the outcome of the game was in the first period and after that it was only a matter of whether or not the visitors would be able to score and how long "Bud" McCallum wanted to keep his scoring machinery of Black, Mills, and Mitchell working. The visitors two points were made in the third period when Perkins started to punt. He took a step backward preparatory to driving the ball and his foot crossed the end zone line for an automatic safety.

Black Runs Far.

Black made the outstanding run of the game when he cut off of tackle for 61 yards and a touchdown. He shook off two tacklers and sidestepped three more men and trotted 20 yards without any opposition in his way. Hamorick and Williams of the reserves also showed the boys some speed as did Mitchell and Mills.

Perhaps the most hopeful sign of the game was the interference the Pack ran. Time and again three and four men were taken out by the ball leaders to give him a fair start. Twenty yard runs were the rule because of this. Incidentally a fair safety man was uncovered in Lee. This lad is not quite ready for the first string yet, especially with Black on hand, but he will be heard from later.

Game Starts Tight.

The game started out like it might be a real contest. The first crack out of the box an outside kick was tried by the Pack and worked when Barton dropped on the rolling leather. The Coyotes could not make a first down even with the aid of a 15 yard penalty. Young Mister Davis took the ball for Quanah and promptly made 12 yards. However this spurt did not last long. Black foozled his first punt and Quanah was still in a fair way to score. They were forced to punt a little later and Black got on his toe and booted the ball further back. The ball shifted a time or two and then Brooks punted over the goal line and it was the Coyotes' ball.

Penalty Slows Pack

Mills started the ball to rolling with eight yards at right end. Mitchell made 12 and then six. A penalty slowed things up and Wichita Falls again punted. Davis made two yards and then fumbled. Smith dived on the ball 22 yards from the Orange goal line. Black came out of a funny formation and shot a pass to Mitchell as that worthy was tearing along. He continued to race until he had the first touchdown. Mitchell missed his field goal trying for the extra point.

Smith made a regular kickoff and the ball was on the 29 yard line after the sweaters were untangled. Quanah tried a couple of plays and some Coyote was declared guilty of clipping and penalized 25 yards. The Coyote line was smothering plays and they rushed Brooks so that he punted but 16 yards. They played around until the end of the period with the ball in the Coyote's possession on his own 33 yard line.

March for Touchdown

A march for touchdown was started. Mills made seven yards and a first down. Another later pass was uncorked for another first down with Mitchell on the receiving and running end. Mills hit guard for four yards and Mitchell came off of left tackle for six yards and first down. Smith missed the try for point.

Quanah again elected to receive but were unable to get anywhere and punted after three plays. Black grabbed the punt and was downed. He seemed peeved about the matter and came tearing off tackle and went for his 61 yard dash and touchdown. This time the extra point was made on a pass from Black to Powell.

Smith booted the kickoff 51 yards and on the first play Quanah drew a penalty of 5 yards for offside. Brooks punted 16 yards.

Williams who had been sent into the game made 17 yards in his first effort. Dickey made ten yards more and on the next play two more. Williams circled left end for three yards and a touchdown. He missed the goal. This brought the score to 25 to 0. Substitutes were flocking on the field and it was often hard to tell just what the whistle was blowing for.

Another March Starts.

After the kickoff and the Quanah punt which Williams returned 10 yards further than it had been kicked another march was started. Williams hustled 35 yards to the one yard line. Dickey failed to gain and Williams took it over. His try for the extra point was blocked.

Quanah again elected to receive and as had been the case throughout the period was forced to kick. The team with the exception of Brooks and Davis seemed demoralized. They could not tackle, charge or block. Hambrick, the smallest man on the Coyote squad came flying in. He ripped off a 25-yard gain to introduce himself. William and Harvey made two yards. Harvey uncorked a pass to Steven with the ball on the Quanah 20-yard line and it was another touchdown. Williams kicked goal for the extra point and brought the score to 38 to 0.

Five touchdowns had been made and the whistle ended the period soon after. The lone touchdown in the first period was a mystery to many.

How Quanah Scored.

McCallum still did not send his regulars back to start the second half. The second stringer did not get off to so good a start and Quanah made its fourth first down of the game shortly after. Brooks got off a good punt. On the 19-yard line a Wichita Falls man was caught clipping from behind. The penalty is 25 yards but as the rules say no penalty can take the ball closer than the one-yard line, it was downed there. Here Perkins made his unfortunate step and Quanah its two points.

Quanah seemed to take heart and made two more first downs. One by Davis and one by Brinkahoff. Brooks punted 40 yards to the one-yard line where the ball was downed. Perkins punted back 35 yards but on the first Quanah play Brinkahoff's pass was intercepted by Wheeler. Hambrick scooted for 10 yards and a first down. It was the first time the Coyotes had forced the chain up in the period. Hambrick in three plays with a penalty in between made another first down. Another seemed close at hand but Perkins fumbled. The Red and Black line was back in its stride and Quanah was forced to punt. The Coyotes began toting the mail in a hurry but did not manage to score during the period, the only one of the game.

Davis Goes 31 Yards.

After a few minutes of play, Davis got loose and made 31 yards. Cool headwork by Lee at safety prevented a touchdown as the flying Orange jersey had passed all but him. Both teams played around until there was about seven minutes left to play. The Coyotes occasionally made a first down. Immediately after the twenty-first when Perkins had passed to Harvey for ten yards McCallum yelled "First team, scat!"

It took the officials four minutes to get the substitutions straight and then how that first team did "Scat!" Mills made four yards in going out of bounds. Mitchell ran through the Orange 26 yards for a touchdown. Smith missed goal. There were just five minutes to play when the play by Mills started.

The next marker came on three plays. Smith kicked off, the ball hit a Quanah man on the knee and a flock of Coyotes covered it. Black circled right end for 32 yards and on the next play Mitchell went eight more for the touchdown. Smith kicked goal for the fifty-first point. Smith again kicked off and recovered 30 yards down the field when Watt fumbled. Mills made eight yards and a pass, Black to Mills netted the needed 21 yards for the touchdown. Smith missed the goal.

Onside Kick Scores.

The final touchdown started with an onside recovery of the kickoff by Scott. Black went around left end for four yards. Mitchell made 10 yards and a first down. A pass failed. Harvey made two yards. Williams cut around left end for 23 yards. He hit center for five yards and the touchdown as the whistle blew. He kicked goal making the score 64 to 2.

MICK DEFEAT JOLT TO WEST

Army Victory Puts Blot On Great Record

By Universal Service.

CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 12.—Joy and sadnes sinterminglied in the middle west tonight after a hectic day of football.

Of course there were upsets. What is a day of modern football without them.

But the west hardly expected that the Army would whip Notre Dame. That was the worst blow of all.

The rest of the upsets didn't matter so much. They were teams which had no chance at any championship.

Illinois Delivers

Illinois lived up to her reputation and took down former Amos Alonzo Stagg's Chicago Maroons 15 to 6. This leaves only Ohio State as a stumbling block to a championship for the Illini.

Northwestern, primed for a win after four successive defeats could do no more harm than lose to a great Indian eleven. The Hoosiers won 13 to 7.

Wisconsin was upset by Iowa, the Buckeyes winning their first conference game of the season. Iowa won 16 to 0.

In the two intersectional clashes of the day, the middle west came out victorious over the east. Marquette winning from Holy Cross 12 to 6, and Michigan smothering the Navy 27 to 12.

Some Pathos Too

The remainder of the games were rather pathetic for the losers. Ohio State, recovering somewhat from her defeat at the hands of Princeton last Saturday romped to a 61 to 0 victory over Dennison. Purdue, now right in its prime gained a well earned 46 to 0 victory over Little Franklin. Minnesota, after tying Notre Dame last Saturday took it easy against Drake and won only 27 to 6.

Butler won from her old rival, Wabash, 13 to 6, at Indianapolis. Alabamba's crimson tide went the wrong way and lost to Florida 13 to 6 at Montgomery. Vanderbilt and Tennessee played a 7 to 7 tie at Knoxville.

The Mighty Fall

All in all it was a great day, with many of the mighty falling before the weak.

The midwest cannot forget the trimming administered to Notre Dame. That win will take something of the color away from the Notre Dame-University of Southern California game here on the 26th, but that will be a great game nonetheless.

Frederick Cats Face Final Hurdle For District Title In Mangum Contest

Bearcats Win Over Powerful Elk City Gridiron Foe By Score of 21 to 7 in Closely Fought Game

Special to The Record News.

FREDERICK, Nov. 12.—After Coach Roy Danford's Bearcat football aggregation vanquished the Elk City team on the local gridiron, 21 to 7, the only hurdle between the Frederick Bearcats and the conference championship is the contest next Friday at Mangum. Hubert Williams, a light but wiry halfback, belonging to the second string, proved the best ground gainer for the Bearcats but had to be removed in the last stanza because of injuries. "Hoot" Gibson, the other halfback, made the largest gain, 35 yards.

The first counter came in the second quarter after a series of line plunges when Leonds of the Bearcats went over for a touchdown. Gibson failed to kick the extra counter. The ball was soon worked back towards Ely City's goal when the visitors fumbled for a loss and a touchdown was made, counting two for Frederick. The half ended 8 to 0 in Frederick's favor.

Elk City Powerful.

Elk City came back strong the second half and got possession of the ball which was fumbled by one of the Bearcats. Two short forward passes to Edgar and Elk City scored its first touchdown. Because a Bearcat was offside the extra point was counted, although it went wide. Score, Frederick 8, Elk City 7.

The fourth quarter proved the Bearcat's harvest for after a number of line plunges with the ball lacking less than a yard, Williams negotiated the required distance. Gibson again failed to kick goal. Score, Frederick 14, Elk City 7.

A number of new men were substituted by both coaches but the Bearcats kept up their winning pace.

Gibson Scores Final.

Gibson scored the final touchdown after breaking through the line for 10 yards and this time he kicked goal. The line-ups:

Frederick	Pos.	Elk City
Emmick	Center.	Aldridge
Worthington	Right Guard.	Estes
O. Williams	Right Tackle	Taylor
Phipps	Right End.	Hunter
Dent Smith	Quarter Back.	Gunter
Lemonds	Half Back.	Shields
Gibson	Full Back.	Mead

Substitutes: Frederick, H. Williams, John Wessell, Barker, Pritchard, Flood, Cassidy. Elk City, Royse.

Indians Hope to End String of Losses When They Meet Wesley Here Nov. 19

Loss of Two Men From Lineup Due to Ineligibility, However, Is Serious Blow to Chances of Tribe

The Wichita Falls Junior college gridsters hope to better their standing of five losses, one win and a tie in even starts Saturday afternoon when they pair off with the fast team from Wesley college. The Indians have been meeting plenty of tough breaks this year and from the standpoint of the fans they have not done so well.

An extra week of rest since their loss to Randolph college at Cisco has helped the team greatly and they are in much better shape than ever before this year. Only two men are on the ineligible list at present but they will be greatly missed from the team.

Two Men Out.

Marconi Hobbs, center, and Wayne Eversole, fullback, are the two that will not be in the game. Captain Boyd and B. D. (Red) Ewing are suffering with slight injuries but will be in the game for a part of the time anyway.

With McKinney, Scoggins and Ewing on deck for the wing jobs it should be an easy matter to have these two positions well cared for. Sammons and McMillen loom up as the starters at tackle. Ray and Tarkington will likely draw the guard positions. Adkins or Clark will be at center. Rayzor will be back at quarterback. Moore and Hodges look like the two starting halves. Enloe probably will open the game at fullback in the place of Eversole.

On the shoulders of Dempsey Moore, husky halfback, will rest the work of line plunging while Enloe has been more than passing fair this year on heaving passes. Rayzor has starred this year on the receiving end of the heaves.

Indians' Score Low.

The record this year for the Indians starts with a loss to Cameron Aggies at Lawton by the score of 13 to 0. Vernon high school nosed them out by a 7 to 6 score. The tribe then defeated Cordell Christian college by the score of 18 to 0. They tied with Paris junior college, 13 to 13. Ranger junior college defeated them on a muddy field by the score of 12 to 0 at the Texas-Oklahoma fair. N. T. A. C. beat them recently by the score of 36 to 6. Randolph college at Cisco set them back heavily by the score of 40 to 0.

The Indians have scored only 43 points to their opponents 121 this year, but they are confident that they can raise their score well against Wesley with a victory Saturday afternoon at Spudder park.

'Plunging Preacher'

WACO, Texas, Oct. 26.—The "Plunging Preacher" is the sobriquet which has been conferred on Ed "Ox" Keyes, big West Texas ministerial student.

He is one of the mainstays in the offense of the Baylor university gridiron team, which last year was runner-up in the Southwestern conference.

Keyes is a terror at ramming the line. Big and brawny, he drives with a force of a tractor. His home is in San Angelo. After a hard game on Saturday, it is not uncommon for him to hold the pastorate of a rural church the following Sunday.

RANGER LOSES TO TARLETON

Plowboys Win Junior College Tilt, 26-6

STEPHENVILLE, Nov. 12. (AP)—John Tarleton Plow Boys defeated Ranger junior today 26 to 6. Captain Taylor was the first enemy to cross the John Tarleton goal line this year when he raced 30 yards for a touchdown in the last half.

Ranger held Tarleton to one score in the first half but weakened in the two closing quarters. Hunter and Patton starred for the visitors.

Illinois Chases Chicago 15 to 6

Substitute Halfback Stars For Winning Team

ILLINOIS STADIUM, CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Nov. 12. (AP)—Illinois, continuing its march toward western conference championship, defeated Chicago, 15 to 6, today with upwards of 50,000 viewing the game.

Frank Walker, an Urbana boy, replacing Douglas Mills, left halfback, for Illinois, scored both of Illinois' markers. The Illini were presented with an additional two points as a result of a safety scored by Anderson in the first period.

Libby scored for Chicago in the fourth period after Humbert, the Illini fullback, had fumbled on Illinois' 10-yard line.

HASKELL REDS TRIP LOYOLA

Indians Turn Trick In Three-Nothing Win

LAWRENCE, Kans., Nov. 12. (AP) The Haskell Indians accomplished what no other team has been able to do during the last three years and turned back the Maroon Cyclone of Loyola university from New Orleans in a thrilling interscholastical grid contest here this afternoon. The score was 3 to 0.

A place kick by Captain Hawley from the 20-yard line in the final quarter gave the Braves their margin of victory, and although the southerners opened up with a dazzling passing attack in the final minutes of play they were unable to score against the fighting Red Men.

ADMINISTRATOR'S NOTICE
The State of Texas:
To the Sheriff or any Constable of Wichita County Greeting:

Know ye that Geo. A. Mawman, administrator of the estate of Christina Ruschhaupt, deceased, having filed in our county court his final account of the condition of the estate of said Christina Ruschhaupt, deceased, together with an application to be discharged from said administration, you are hereby commanded, that by publication of this writ for 20 days in a newspaper regularly published in the County of Wichita you give due notice to all persons interested in the account for final settlement of said estate, to file their objections thereto, if any they have, on or before the December term 1927, of said county court, commencing and to be holden at the courthouse of said county, in the City of Wichita Falls on the first Monday in December, A. D. 1927 when said account and application will be considered by said court.

Witness, Elizabeth Hall, clerk of the county court of Wichita county.

Given under my hand and the seal of said court at my office in the City of Wichita Falls, this 29th day of October, A. D. 1927.

GOLFING AROUND THE CLOCK

The First Thing He Did Was To Try To Intimidate Me With One of Those Wild Cat Yells.

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

"There is nothing new about that phosphorescent golf ball a fellow just says he has invented," observed Bill. "Me and Julius Jones the chemist used 'em fifteen years ago, way up in Northern Vermont, where Julius was some sort of a chemist for a wood pulp concern, and I was time keeper. They didn't cost so much either as they do now, for Julius was able to cop a little phosphorous out of the laboratory supplies now and then, and it didn't take much of it to light up a golf ball—for a while, like an automobile headlight, especially on a dark night.

"But there ain't nothing permanent about phosphorescence. A ball will go off a tee like a stream and light sizzling and smoking in the rough, but just about the time you ketch up to it and start to clout it, out it will go. Then there were oher objections to night playing, so pretty soon we gave it up, and quit about half past nine every night, when it gets too dark up there even in the summer time to get much sport out of the pastime.

"Julius and I had been talking of the limitations of golf, as to time and what could be done about them. We never got off work till five in the afternoon and that held us down to thirty-six holes for the afternoon round, if we played lively. Of course, we could have some sport if we wanted to get up at four the next morning, and play twenty-seven holes before going to work at eight, but you got to get a little sleep now and then and besides, after a fellow has been keeping time for gangs of woodmen that are scattered all over eight or ten square miles, he don't feel like climbing out of bed before sunrise. What we felt the need of, both as golf practice and healthy exercise, was fifty-four holes straight from five o'clock on, and the only way we could figure on getting it was getting some kind of light to work by.

"I suggested that if we got all the motor trucks that belonged to the firm and lined 'em up along the fairways, with their headlines shining on the course maybe we could play. But Julius seemed to think the boss might object and besides, he pointed out that a ball flickering in and out of flash light beams would be harder to see them if it just skittered along through the dark. So we gave that up.

"Then one night Julius got to looking at the phosphorescent face of his wrist watch and the idea came to him that if a wrist watch would shine in the dark so would a golf ball. So he began experimenting and in a week he was ready to take me out on the course and show me how he was going to revolutionize the great game.

"Well, it was great—at first. I drove off a ball and when it left the tee it looked as if somebody had sent out a long shiny spear into the darkness. It came down on the fairway, and there it was, a round glow, that sort of smoked across the face of it, and lit up the grass for three or four feet all around.

"It was easy to keep your eye on, too, but it sort of disconcerted you when it winked out just as you were in the middle of the down swing. Julius said that we might have fixed that by a lot of experiments during which he might make a ball that would keep giving out beams for the duration of a game. He would have gone ahead and tried it, except for other things.

"There was the wild life, in the first place. You'd never suspect playing over one of these mountain courses in the daytime what a world of fauna there is on them which never comes out till after nightfall. Hardly ever did I drive a ball than a couple of rabbits didn't come up to investigate and give me a terrible start when they went skittering off into the underbrush. Then there was woodchucks, which would stand right over the ball and snarl and get nasty when you come up. And snakes! I didn't know there were so many of them in the world. You may not know it, but snakes do most of their sleeping in the sun in the day time and roam around at night seeking what they may devour.

"They seemed to regard these golf balls as something good to eat and after, as not one of them would have a ball in his jaws, and go squirming off when you came up for a shot. It did look funny the first time we saw that bright flame going off to one side of the course in spirals. But the worst trouble we had was with the wildcats. They were parked around in trees, and having the curiosity of a cat they got all worked up with puzzlement when they would see a sphere of fire drop right underneath 'em. They dropped as quick almost as the ball did and stood there looking at it intently when Julius or me came up for a second shot. Well, the fact that we were armed with a lot of niblicks and cleeks mean nothing at all in their lives.

"One night a big fellow was nosing the ball I had driven, and I being of course only able to see the ball, ran right into him on my way to it. The first thing he did was to try to intimidate me with one of those wildcat yells, which are like a tomcat yell, magnified about a thousand diameters. Mistakingly thinking that perhaps this effort was not a success, he started after me. I didn't know what would have happened if just then Julius hadn't driven another ball, accidently, being so frightened when the wildcat yelled that he reacted nervously and poked it, and it took the animal in the ear.

"I guess he judged that there was something more than human about what was going on, for he turned and climbed back into his tree. We'd had all the golf we wanted that night, so we decided to wait till the next night and come out with a couple of rifles, so as to be prepared for emergencies.

"The word must have got around among the creatures that something strange was going on in that section. That's the only way I can account for what happened. Julius, hoping to locate a beast of some sort for a shot had brought along a flash light. We both drove off and started out for our balls; he was holding the light in his left hand and began sort of spraying beams along the fairway as he walked. Well, wherever it stopped there was a big luminous bulb, or a pair of them, just as if there were golf balls suspended in the air or up in the trees, which didn't seem to accord with nature, somehow.

"As we went along there was a terrible scurrying, and then we saw that the place was full of deer and smaller mammalia which had come to see what was going on. And then along came a warden who had been patrolling the place for poachers and arrested both of us for hunting game with lights, which is against the law. So we decided to play by daylight after this. But while I don't think the new scheme is going to work out I will say that night golfing up in the woods of northern Vermont is about as exciting a pastime as a fellow could ask for.

WHITNEY TO RETURN HERE

Reader Appears Under Auspices of Teachers

Edwin M. Whitney, reader and dramatic interpreter who appeared in Wichita Falls last year, is to make a return trip, arriving here November 18 for an appearance sponsored by the Wichita Falls Teachers' association, it has been announced by Miss Bennie Works, president of the organization. Whitney, in his program here last year, read "The Fortune Hunter," by Winchell Smith, whih considerable success.

"Turn to the Right," a national favorite, also written by Smith, is the probable selection for this year's performance as this number has been accorded splendid approval in letters received here from previous locations.

While the number is secured primarily for the teachers organization, the public is invited to attend. Prices have again been set at the lowest margins usually charged for like numbers, according to Miss Works, the two classes of sets being sold at 50 cents and $1. Tickets may be secured in advance from Miss Works or from any members of the executive committee.

OIL WELL IN DEAL

FORT WORTH, Nov. 12. (AP)—Negotiations are under way by L. D. Ladd and associates of Fort Worth and Ballinger for the sale of a half interest of their discovery well and surrounding acreage in Runnells county to the Vacuum Oil company.

"Ignorance, Madam"

By BRUCE BARTON

Illustrated by RAEBURN VAN BUREN

FIFTEEN years ago I was employed by a gentleman whose income was exactly one hundred times as large as mine. The first interview in his office was crisp and to the point.

* * *

"Don't get into the habit of agreeing with me," he said positively. "I can find plenty of men who will stand around and say, 'Yes, yes.' What I need is some one to say, 'No, no,' when I'm wrong, and stick to it."

* * *

Some months later a discussion arose on a matter with which I was somewhat familiar. I took him at his word and disagreed, but he was sure of his ground and overruled me.

* * *

The next morning the telephone in my boarding-house rang at about eight-fifteen. The caller was my boss.

* * *

"I have been thinking over that matter," he said, "and I just want to say that you were right and I was wrong."

* * *

I have talked with one of the richest men in the world, and one of the most famous. In the course of the conversation, each of them said frankly and unhesitatingly: "I don't know."

* * *

"Everybody tells me we've got to get back to normal," said the rich man, wrinkling his brows like a schoolboy puzzling over a problem in arithmetic. "What's normal? That's what I'd like to know." And the famous man asked for books on Abraham Lincoln, about whom he confessed he knew very little but wanted to know more.

* * *

In contrast with these successful gentlemen are two New York friends of mine, not so noted. One is ticket-taker in a theater; the other travels for a silk concern. The motto of each is: "Concede nothing. Ask no questions. Put up a stiff bluff and bull it through."

I think the rich man or the famous man, meeting them incognito, might be a little embarrassed at their complete and unqualified self-assurance. For wise old Samuel Johnson they would feel contempt; he committed the unforgivable sin, according to their code.

* * *

It was at a dinner-party, you remember. The lady on his right asked the Doctor how he had happened to make a ridiculous mistake in the definition of a certain word in his dictionary.

* * *

"Ignorance, madam," he responded frankly, "pure ignorance."

* * *

My wise New York friends would never be trapped into any such damaging admission. They know everything.

* * *

Everything except this—that about the biggest three words a big man can use are: "I don't know."

Dream of Union of English Peoples Basis of Rhodes Scholarship

By DORAH McCONNICO WADE

No doubt the most of the readers of The Record News are familiar with the story of the Rhodes scholarship, but I am sure there are some to whom this story will answer a lot of questions they have wanted to ask, as it did for me. It was told to me by a man whose nephew was a Rhodes scholar and who was so enthusiastic over the life of the man who founded this scholarship of good will he went on a pilgrimage to South Africa and gathered this story there.

The ideal for which Cecil Rhodes was striving was the union of all the people of the British Empire and the United States. He believed if that could be brought about there would be no more war in the world. In his will he left money to found the scholarships by which young men especially fitted from the United States, British dominions and Germany could be educated at Oxford University. His one stipulation was that they were to be missionaries of good will on their return home.

He started dreaming big things when he was a mere lad and laid plans to make his dreams come true. He wanted to be a millionaire; not that he loved money, or the place it would give him in the world, he wanted it for what he could do with it for the helping of the ills of the world brought about by misunderstanding. And like all other men who worked for money with which to do good, he made it.

Join Diamond Hunt

He was born in England and at seventeen years of age, went to see his brother who was a cotton planter in South Africa. When he arrived there he found the country in a turmoil of excitement over the diamond field north of the Vaal river. His brother sold his plantation and the two of them joined the other adventurous young men and were soon on their way to what is now Kimberly.

Rhodes soon made enough money to return to England in order to study at Oxford University. But he only spent his summers there, the rest of the year he was working hard in Africa. It was here he conceived the thought of bringing about the union of South Africa. At this time there were English colonies on the south and east, Boer states in the middle and native territory on the west.

The chief man in the Boer states was a man named Kruger who hated progress and wanted to drive the British out of South Africa and treated the natives like slaves, and for twenty years he and Rhodes had it, nip and tuck. Rhodes, with his ideal ever before him, was not only taking the lead in the political life of the country, but the natives looked upon him as their friend.

When Kruger tried to shut out the British from the trade route to the interior, by planting little republics in native territory, Rhodes got the British government to take over the protection of the native territory, winning his first great victory and showing Kruger he was trying to protect the natives, but egged on by Kruger the little republics went on fighting and stealing the cattle of the natives as before. Rhodes then got the British government to send a small army to settle the question.

His dream was to unite South Africa from the Zambesi to the Cape. But the territory north of the Boer states was in the hand of savages. After trying for years to get the British government to try to win it for civilization, he decided to do it himself. His first step was to persuade the leaders of the diamond industries to unite in forming a great monopoly and to allow him to use part of the profit in pushing British colonization to Central Africa. Because he had proven his courage, faith and resourcefulness they trusted him and the monopoly was formed.

Wins Battles

Both Germany and Kruger tried to get ahead of him in winning the favor of the native King Lobengula who ruled Central Africa, but his reputation had gone ahead of him and the king granted him many concessions and this was the beginning of the settling of the region now called Rhodesia. There was much fighting between the natives and the whites who settled the country, but Rhodes could always settle it. He would go into the most hostile savage camp unarmed and talk with the chiefs and listen patiently to all their grievances. What he told them he would do he always did. He taught them honesty, courage and patience by example. The great wealth he made in Africa sends the good will he lived into many countries by this scholarship he founded at Oxford.

TRY SALTS IF KIDNEYS HURT

Drink Water Freely and Often to Keep Kidneys Flushed and Clean.

No man or woman can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Too much rich food creates acids which clog the kidney pores so that they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood. Then you get sick. Rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage, or attended by a sensation of scalding, begin to drink soft water in quantities; also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to help neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer cause irritation, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and can not injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, which everyone can take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby often preventing serious kidney complications.

Schools to Close Education Week Observance At Services Today

Wichita Falls schools Sunday will bring to a close the program features that have been presented during the last week, with the observance of "For God and Country Day," the last day of National Education week. During the past week nearly every school has followed out a program outlined by the National Education association that has done much to instill the six principles which have been stressed: health, worthy home membership, command of fundamental processes, citizenship, and vocation.

Principals have announced that the various ministers in the city will be asked to include in their sermons Sunday special references to National Education week, and to comment on "ethical character," the subject of study for the last day.

"Worthy use of leisure" was the slogan for the Saturday, "Community Day," when school children were lectured on the following means to improve the art of using their leisure hours:

1. By introducing young people to a wide range of life interests.
2. By teaching the use of books and libraries and developing wholesome reading appetitites closely related to each of the great objectives of education and life.
3. By developing appreciation of fine music and skill in singing, playing, and dancing.
4. By having children participate in games and sports which may be easily continued into after years.
5. By providing experience in pleasant social life through school activities.
6. By cultivating in children a love of the outdoors—appreciation of flowers, animals, landscapes, sky, and stars.
7. By giving children an opportunity to develop hobbies in various creative fields—gardening, mechanics, fine arts, architecture, city planning.
8. By making the school and its playfields the center and servant of a wholesome and satisfying neighborhood life.
9. By calling attention to various recreational agencies and the value which they serve—theaters, concerts, libraries, radio, periodicals and newspapers, museums, parks, playgrounds, travel.

Educator to Give Series of Lectures

"The Heritage of American Children," is the subject of an address to be delivered here Monday night in the auditorium of Junior college by Dr. James M. Glass, well-known educator from Rollins college, who will be presented in a series of lectures and conferences under the auspices of the Wichita Falls Teachers association. The lecture is open to the public, and no admission will be charged.

Dr. Glass is to remain in the city two days, officials have announced, and will devote the remaining lectures, after the Monday night appearance, to the teachers of the city. On Monday afternoon he will address high school teachers in the auditorium of the Zundelowitz high school on the subject, "Present-Day Criterion for Secondary Education."

Tuesday two addresses will be given. At 4 o'clock at the Reagan auditorium "The Contributions of the Elementary School to Secondary Education" will center around the now popular topic of the transition from elementary to high school. At night at the Reagan auditorium at 8 o'clock the final topic of the series will be "The Extended Public School System." Monday morning there will also be held a special conference session in the office of Dr. Cantwell, local superintendent, for principals of all schools of the city.

DIVORCE ENDS BRIEF UNION

Mrs. Manning Leaves Husband For Paris

By Universal Service.

MANILA, Nov. 12.—The romance of Lieut. Benjamin Franklin Manning and his wife, the former Mrs. Horace Dodge Jr., has come to an end and she is now on her way to Paris to start divorce proceedings, if reports received here from passengers on the steamer President Hayes are to be credited.

According to the passengers, violent altercations between the couple occurred while aboard the steamer President McKinley, on which the newlyweds started their honeymoon at Honolulu. Their suite on the McKinley is said to have been the scene of violent quarreling, which culminated with Mrs. Manning taking another cabin on the ship.

At Shanghai Mrs. Manning consulted attorneys. Manning left the vessel at that port, while Mrs. Manning continued her voyage on the steamer President Hayes.

Upon purchasing her ticket she stipulated that Manning should be refused booking on the same vessel.

Mrs. Manning refused to be interviewed.

Mrs. Manning, formerly wife of Horace Dodge Jr., member of the millionaire automobile family of Detroit, secured a divorce in Honolulu from Dodge on May 27. She married Lieutenant Manning on September 1.

VERNON SOCIETY

VERNON, Nov. 12.—Erven Pohlman of Electra and Miss Bernice Atkins of Elliott, were united in marriage Sunday morning at the home of the bride's parents in Elliott. Rev. T. 111 Mothers Visit Austin School For Education Program

One hundred and eleven mothers visited Austin school Wednesday, which was the day that American Education week had set aside as "Know Your School" day. Many of the mothers dined with their children in the cafeteria and satisfied themselves that wholesome, nourishing food was being served to their children. Every classroom had its quota of interested, visiting mothers, who were there to inform themselves as to what was going on in Austin school. Mrs. R. P. Willis, president of Austin school P.-T. A., and her corps of assistants, welcomed the mothers.

Miss Tacker of the Austin school faculty, who is sponsoring the Citizenship club, reports that the points to be developed in this club are co-operation and interdependence, which are traceable in the building of a house, the furnishing of the house, clothing, fuel and lights, food, civil relationships, animal relationships (domestic, birds, insects) and plant life.

The Handwork club, guided by Miss Ethel Stockard, has for its chief aims the desire to help the child express his ideas in a concrete way and to give him first-hand acquaintance with many common materials.

The Bluebonnet club is another club of boys and girls attending Austin school of which Miss Gladys Johnson is sponsor. The officers are: Charles Parker, chairman; Tom Martin, vice chairman; Frida Kolb, secretary; Thelma Rose Long, critic; H. L. Gilley and Margaret Lee Yager, sergeants-at-arms. The purpose of the club is to train little citizens. The club flower is the bluebonnet and the colors are red, white and blue.

News Notes From P.-T. A. Council

By MRS. W. A. M'GEE

The Wichita Falls school system made for itself a new record the past week when it observed national education week, with daily programs that were timely and educational. It was a systematic, well balanced and well planned celebration, and that student, teacher or parent who was fortunate enough to attend such a series of programs, must feel indeed well repaid for his time and effort and that national education week is one worthy of the name.

The unique grading system recently adopted by teachers of the Zundelowitz junior high school—undoubtedly deserves much praise for the ideals it sets forth, and the thoroughness with which class work is accomplished. What is more, students who make the grade and get their names on the roll of honor, are truly to be congratulated.

Mrs. O. H. Karr, president of the P.-T. A. council, leaves today for Houston, where she will represent the Wichita Falls' Parent-Teachers association in the four-day session of the state P.-T. A. convention which convenes there November 14-17.

Reagan junior high school deserves commendation for the "Know Your School Program" held Wednesday evening, when parents were put through the daily schedule which their children have nine months in the year. Yes, and they even bought lunch in the cafeteria.

Armistice and citizenship day programs that deserve special mention, were given Friday morning by the Junior college-high school, Reagan and Zundelowitz junior high, and Academy Mary Immaculate.

Physicians Complete Pre-School Clinic On Friday Morning

The child health clinic of the children of the Alamo school who will enter school in January was completed Friday morning when the roundup of about 120 children

Thorough medical examination was made of the children and recommendation made to the parents of any abnormality or case of malnutrition. Physicians in charge offered their co-operation with the parents in eliminating defects found and in giving them advice on child care.

Physicians in charge of the work included the following. Drs. H. P. Ledford, B. C. Cammock, J. E. Kanatser, William Rosenblatt, Wallace Masters, A. P. Terrill, Bailey Collins, George T. Singleton, W. R. McAdams and Mangum. Misses Lillian Harkins and Mary E. Sutherland, Red Cross nurses, assisted the physicians.

The following committee of mothers aided in giving the examinations: Mesdames C. H. Clarke, J. A. Bonham, W. A. Goolsbee, C. C. Duncan, S. E. Manning, J. A. Gibbs, Stone, Alfred Burnside, A. J. Newby, Lewis. Teachers who helped are Misses Kate Haynes, Minnie Bell Davis and Mrs. W. A. Mangum.

Schools Join In Armistice Day Spirit With Impressive Programs

Schools in Wichita Falls Friday observed Armistice day with appropriate programs in connection with features arranged in line with national education week. J. S. Dickey delivered the Armistice day address at the Reagan junior high school following the morning's program, and the Social Science club of the Zundelowitz junior high school was in charge of the observances in that school.

Judge B. D. Sartin was the principal speaker at the program Friday morning at the Lamar grade school, speaking on the subject, "The Meaning of Armistice Day." Included in the program was a sing-song by the Rainbow chorus and a flag drill given by the fourth grade pupils.

Doctor Found Women and Children Sick More Often than Men

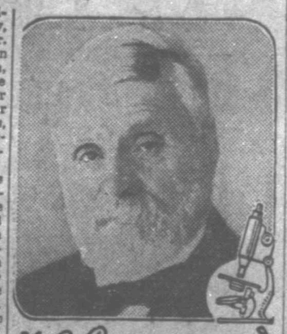

As a family doctor at Monticello, Illinois, the whole human body, not any small part of it, was Dr. Caldwell's practice. More than half his "calls" were on women, children and babies. They are the ones most often sick. But their illnesses were usually of a minor nature—colds, fevers, headaches, biliousness—and all of them required first a thorough evacuation. They were constipated.

In the course of Dr. Caldwell's 47 years' practice (he was graduated from Rush Medical College back in 1875), he found a good deal of success in such cases with a prescription of his own containing simple laxative herbs with pepsin. In 1892 he decided to use this formula in the manufacture of a medicine to be known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and in that year his prescription was first placed on the market.

The preparation immediately had as great a success in the drug stores as it previously had in Dr. Caldwell's private practice. Now, the third generation is using it. Mothers are giving it to their children who were given it by their mothers. Every second of the working day someone somewhere is going into a drug store to buy it. Millions of bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are being used a year.

Its great success is based on merit, on repeated buying, on one satisfied user telling another. There are thousands of homes in this country that are never without a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and we have gotten many hundreds of letters from grateful people telling us that it helped them when everything else failed.

While women, children and elderly people are especially benefited by Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, it is promptly effective on the most robust constitution and in the most obstinate cases. It is mild and gentle in its action and does not cause griping and strain. Containing neither opiates nor narcotics, it is safe for the tiniest baby. Children like it and take it willingly.

Dr. B. Caldwell M.D. AT AGE 83

Every drug store sells Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Keep a bottle in your home,—where many live someone is sure to need it quickly.

We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.

ELEVENTH ANNUAL RED CROSS ROLL CALL OPENS MONDAY

4000 MEMBERS WICHITA GOAL

Drive Expected to End Here Tuesday Eve.

The eleventh annual roll call of the American Red Cross will be officially opened in Wichita Falls Monday, Nov. 14.

J. A. Kemp, chairman of the roll call committee announces that all plans are completed and that 40 men will begin canvassing in the business district Monday morning at 9:30. All workers are requested to meet at the office of Walter Curlee, ground floor of the Perkins-Snider building at the hour to receive supplies and financial instructions. At the same hour on Tuesday morning 100 women will begin canvassing in the residence district.

Business Firms Aid

Every business institution in the city having 25 employees or more has agreed to conduct group roll calls in their organizations, and it is expected that practically every concern will report 100 per cent membership by Monday evening.

It is the earnest desire of the Red Cross officials that the campaign be finished by Tuesday evening and they request that when called upon by the workers that they be redy to join without delay. The Red Cross offers four classes of membership, annual $1, contributing $5, sustaining $10, supporting $25. The goal has been set at 4000 memberships an dconsidering the great humanitarian work being done by the Red Cross, local officials feel that this goal will be reached by Tuesday evening.

Headquarters Opened

Headquarters have been opened at the office of Walter Curlee ground floor of the Perkins-Snider building where Mrs. T. B. Smith the local secretary will be on duty all day Monday and Tuesday, and those who are not going to be in their office or place of business may step in at headquarters and join there. The official button is the badge of membership and all those who have joined are asked to wear the button.

The general committee consists of J. A. Kemp, Luther Hoffman, J. L. McMahon, T. R. Lawson and W. o. Beeman. The following are the names of the team captains who will work in the business district. Wm. Burke, Tom Wynn, J. C. Pennell, Chas. Kinsey, W. S. Abbott, H. Robbins, Pat Simmons, Alvah Conner, Will Gray, Homer Sanderford, L. H. Frank, W. E. McBroom, Guy C. Bailey, J. R. Jarboe, W. W. Powell, Ira Brown, P. W. Tucker, Ray Keith, Ray Hanks, Paul Putty and Julian Bobo.

TROOP TWENTY

Troop Twenty, the Owl troop, met at the First Southern Presbyterian church Friday, with the scoutmaster, R. E. Davis, in charge. The meeting opened with the scout oath and pledge of allegiance to the flag.

Patrols assembled and made out patrol reports. A discussion of the coming Jamboree was held.

One scout gave the history of the flag and another told of the World wfr and Armistice day. Then a contest was held in questions on the flag.

A contest on the scout laws was followed by a game of Kelly Says and a knot tying contest. Reggie Humphreys was victor in the knot tying contest.

The troop had four visitors at the meeting, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Norwood, Mrs. Frank Humphrey, and Scout Executive Frank B. Creighton. Mr. Creighton gave an interesting talk about board of review and the scout and dad supper which will be held in December.

An account of good turns was given and the meeting closed with the pledge of allegiance and scout oath.

TOMMY NORWOOD, Scribe.

Scout Leaders' Training Course

A training course for scout leaders will start November 22 at the First Methodist church, Tenth and Lamar, and will continue for nine weeks, with one session each week.

The training will be given by doing things instead of talking about how to do them. The time each meeting will be divided between exhibitions of handicraft, songs, games, demonstrations of different phases of scouting, inspirational talks by prominent men of this city patrol study and handicraft classes. The men who take this course will learn the things that are necessary in a good scoutmaster.

All men 21 years of age or over are invited to take this course. There will be no charge except for books purchased during the school.

Troop Sixteen

Following three consecutive outdoor meetings, troop sixteen again met at the troop headquarters Friday night, with 14 members present. Mr. Kauffman, scoutmaster of troop thirteen, and several members of his troop were visitors at the meeting.

Rules for the use of knife and axe were reviewed and a game featuring knot tying followed.

As a patrol stunt Woodrow Williamson of the Flying Eagle patrol, told some interesting incidents about the World war, in keeping with the spirit of Armistice day.

The troop is planning an all-day hike and treasure hunt for Thanksgiving day.

KENNETH IRWIN, S. M.

SERVICE BARS

All scouts who are interested in earning council service bars are requested to leave their telephone numbers at scout headquarters so they may be called when scouts are called upon for community service.

Wednesday, Nov. 16, after school, scout headquarters wants 50 boys to deliver circulars for the community chest drive. Council service will be given for this.

Saturday, Nov. 19, Chief Creighton will want 30 boys to report to headquarters at 2 p. m. for instructions on service to be given Monday morning, Nov. 421, between 6 and 7:30.

TROOP FIFTEEN

Troop fifteen met at the Highland Heights Christian church Friday night, with Paul Barnett, scoutmaster, in charge, and 21 scouts present.

Chief Creighton visited the troop for a short while and made a short talk on how the charter members of the troop had held together in spite of many handicaps.

Ed Mulligan, Bob Ford, and J. W. Adair were presented cetrificates for second class badges and merit badges.

Victor Smith, a new member, was voted into the troop. Chief Creighton made a talk to the five new members thta were voted in last week.

The three patrols of the troop are having a contest. Last week was book-end week and this week was bird house week. The Pelican patrol is in the lead, the Silver Fox patrol next, and the Panther patrol last.

The Panther and Silver Fox patrols gave a stunt entitled, "Worst Aid," and games of swat 'em and skin-the-snake were played.

The meeting wa sclosed with a story, the "Llano Kid," told by the scoutmaster.

NATIONAL OFFICE WORKER HERE

Friday noon, November 18, the executive board of the Boy Scouts and the scoutmasters of this city will meet and will hear a talk by Stanley Harris, the national office man who has charge of racial work The scoutmasters will be the guests of the council at this time.

TROOP TWO

Troop two, Bill McClure, scoutmaster, held its regular meeting Friday night at the First Methodist church. The meeting opened with the scout oath, scout laws, and the pledge of allegiance to the flag, led by Mack McClure.

The Scoutmasters' Bulletin was read and fully discussed. Troop two is going out strong and expects to win the plaque this time.

The winter camp was discussed. It will be held right after Christmas, probably at Craterville park. Dues were collected and roll was called. There were 27 members present.

Patrol periods were held and points for the inter-patrol contest were counted. Melvin Giles' patrol is still in the lead by 57 points. The things that count in this contest are uniforms, attendance, punctuality and payment of dues.

Compass game was played and a knot tying contest was held. The scouts were drilled on the scout laws. The contest in this ended in a tie between George Nelson and Leonard Baggett.

The meeting closed with the scout oath and the scout laws. After the meeting several boys passed tests.

Each patrol held a meeting last week.

TROOP THREE

Troop three, the "snappy troop," opened its meeting Friday night with "assembly," by the troop bugler, J. G. Dixon. While the scouts stook at attention "To the Colors" was played.

Patrol inspection was won by the Black Bear patrol. The "neatest patrol" contest was also won by the Black Bear patrol. Homer Lee, patrol leader of this patrol, will have charge of the meeting next Friday night. The attendance prize was won by Charles Powell, a visitor.

The bulletin from headquarters was read by Ral Roper and emphasized by Mr. Loeffler, the scoutmaster. This was followed by a short pep meeting.

An instruction period was held. "How to Pas Second-Class Cooking" was given by Oscar Thornton, and followed by patrol stunts.

A short business meeting was held and officers for 1928 were installed. They are as follows: Lee Loeffler, scoutmaster; Springer Williams, senior patrol leader; Harold Kimmell, scribe and treasurer. Patrol leaders as follows: Melvin Edmonds, Lion patrol; Rollin Dixon, Wolf patrol; Oscar Thornton, Raven patrol, and Homer Lee, Black Bear patrol. Old and new business was discussed and a short week-end trip was planned for next Saturday and Sunday.

The meeting was closed with taps, played by the troop bugler, and the scout benediction was repeated. There were 40 boys present.

TROOP 13

Troop 13, J. H. Kauffman, scoutmaster, opened its meeting Wednesday night with the scout oath.

A short business meeting was held and plans for a hike to be held Sunday afternoon.

Knotting and first aid were practiced and the Jamboree was discussed fully. Troop 13 is determined to win the Jamboree.

The meeting was closed with the pledge of allegiance to the flag.

SCOUTMASTER ILL

Don Ross, scoutmaster of Troop 12 had his tonsils removed Saturday. Headquarters hopes he will get along nicely and be up before long.

JAMBOREE

Much preparation gis bein made for the Jamboree to be held December 30. A harmonica contest, handicraft contest, knot tying, compass game, scout laws and knife and axe are among the numbers on the program.

TROOP FOUR

Troop four, the Pirates, had charge of a banquet given at the First Christian church in honor of Father and Son week. John Texis, scoutmaster of the troop, was toastmaster for the scouts and J. Tol Camp, president of the Men's Bible class, was toastmaster for the men. There were 74 members of Troop four Sunday school class present.

The banquet opened with the song, "America." Henry Helgerson gave a talk on "What We Owe to Our Fathers"; Wendell Bash gave a toast, "To Our Fathers," and Ed Sutton gave a "Challenge to Dad."

Bryant Creighton, who is able to walk after several months' illness, was welcomed back.

Dr. Tyson delivered an interesting talk on "Fathers and Sons," and Mr. J. Tol Camp complimented the troop upon its activities.

After the banquet the fathers and sons attended the church services in a body, the scouts in uniform first and the dads behind them. The scouts gave a preliminary program consisting of the scout oath, scout laws and "To the Colors" by the troop bugler. Dr. Kellems delivered a splendid sermon and Troop four closed the services with the Lord's Prayer.

Following the church service an African wild game picture was shown.

TROOP FOUR MEETING

Troop four, the Pirates, held its meeting Friday from 6:30 to 7:30 on account of the revival services being held at the First Christian church. The meeting opened with the laws; followed by a handiwork display.

Ed Sutton, senior patrol leader, led the flag ceremony and Edwin White gave a talk on the duties of a scout.

Advancement cards were presented the following: Maynard Creighton for pathfinding and cooking merit badges; Paul Seeds, for first aid merit badge, and Billie Jenkins for second-class badge.

Names of scouts who will be in the Troop four hall of fame will be announced soon. These will be scouts who have performed distinguished service for the troop.

Plans were made for a hike for Sunday afternoon. The scouts will meet at the home of the scoutmaster, John Tevis, at 2:30 to go on the hike, where they will pass tests and play games.

Plans were made for a patrol contest which will start soon.

Roll call was followed by several peppy games, and the meeting was closed with the scoutmaster's benediction and taps.

Shepherd Tells of Great Work Of Red Cross In Proclamation On Call

Mayor R. E. Shepherd has issued a formal proclamation calling upon the citizens of Wichita Falls to renew their allegiance to the American Red Cross by enrolling their names as members during the Eleventh Annual Roll Call which opens Monday.

Mayor R. E. Shepherd points out, in issuing his proclamation, that there can be no better celebration of the true meaning of Armistice day than that offered in enrollment in the American Red Cross.

The five million members which the American Red Cross is asking for this year is an increase of nearly two million over last year's figures, he stated, but is not in any sense an unreasonable request because every American citizen should join the American Red Cross. His proclamation, in part follows:

"The American Red Cross is Monday opening its eleventh annual roll call for members, summoning thep eople of this country to enlist in its ranks so that each may share in the advancement of its work both at home and in foreign lands.

"Membership in this great humanitarian army should be considered a privilege and an obligation. The most democratic organization in the world, the Red Cross is dependent, for its very existence, upon the support it receives from the rank and file of the people who, at roll call time, pay their dues and receive the certificate of membership.

"These dues, offered by the rich and poor alike, form a fund which enables the Red Cross to go immediately into action when a tornado strikes or when a Mississippi flood drives thousands from their homes.

"It enables the United States to play the role of philanthropist among nations. Countries poorer than ours, crushed by disaster, are helped by your dues and mine and international bonds of friendship are welded that surely must lessen the danger of war.

"In addition, these same dues finance the work of Red Cross public health nurses; programs of life saving and first aid that have done so much to reduce hazards from accidents; it helps finance the Junior Red Cross, that international alliance of school children and it brings aid and comfort to the disabled veteran of the World war.

"I strongly urge every man, woman and child in this community to become a member of the Red Cross during the present roll call. Our local chapter is counting on enlisting 4000 members at least and when the campaign is ended, if we go over the top, it will be a great personal satisfaction to me and a satisfaction to Wichita Falls to know that we have played our part in boosting the membership of the national Red Cross to a figure it certainly deserves to attain."

SOUTHWESTERN TRAILS

By Harry Hampton Williams
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

SAN ANTONIO, Nov. 12.—Bill Murray is a former Texan. Now he lives in Bolivia, South America, 350 miles from a railroad, and over 500 miles from his favorite seaport.—Gaverlie meaning the one he uses in getting in or out of the world. That is the word brought to J. B. Freeman, San Antonio, by M. C. Elliott, a former Oklahoma City man, and now a resident of Bolivia.

Bill Murray grew up along the northern edge of Texas, and one day rode his horse across Red river, and kept on riding until he reached Tishomingo, the capital of the Chickasaw nation. There he hung out his shingle as attorney-at-law. Later on he was president of the constitutional convention, speaker of the first house of representatives, a defeated candidate for governor, and then an Oklahoma congressman for a few terms.

About a dozen years ago he went to Bolivia as a colonizer, securing great land grants from the government. In addition to his lands and cattle in Bolivia, Murray runs an immense general merchandising business, supplying a vast inland territory.

Billy Dickson had a glorious time the day Indians tried to exterminate the little band of 28 white men inside the adobe walls, back in 1874.

Bob Polley, 85-year-old San Antonian, recently made a trip to the walls, which he first visited in 1878, and he says that Billy Dickson's widow still lives in her old home near the walls. Billy passed away only a few years ago.

Billy was the best marksman among the whites, and when the ammunition ran low, the men elected that Billy should do the shooting for all of them. Hour after hour the youth stood at the portholes. Every time he squinted his eye through a porthole and pulled the trigger, an Indian was carried away by his comrades.

The grand finale came late in the afternoon, when the several hundred Indians had regreated. A lone Indian rode to the top of a little knoll 1200 yards distant, to see what he might see around the walls. Billy took his rifle, and the Indian toppled from his horse dead.

In after years Billy Dickson took up land near by, married and settled down.

The site of the adobe walls is about 35 miles northeast of Amarillo, 25 miles east of the oil town of Borger, and on the South Canadian river.

A young chieftain of that fight was Quanah Parker, son of a Comanche chief, and whose mother was Cynthia Ann Parker of the Dessolate Heart.

Ab Blocker of Big Wells, one of the old time trail driving crowd, is noted for his humorous anecdotes and snappy accounts of incidents along the cattle trails.

Old timers around San Antonio still laugh when they recall what he said about the country around Cheyenne, Wyo., 44 years ago. When he got back he remarked that that country was tough—so tough the "women gave the babies cartridges to cut their teeth on."

Speaking of a certain period of his life, Blocker says he was "given to spending his money where it would do the least good and yield the most fun."

The name "X. I. T." was "thought up" by Ab Blocker for some men who wanted a name and brand for a ranch. And Mr. Blocker refers to the incident as "a severe strain on his mentality." The "X. I. T." became a famous ranch and brand.

The world pays homage to the men who conquered the frontiers. Poets have sung of the bravery and nobility of the pioneer women. But what about the children?

Frontier tragedies sometimes wrote their grimmest chapters across the hearts of little children. There was Maude, the 6-year-old daughter of Mrs. John McLaurin, who was killed by Indians in 1852, about 10 miles above the town of Leaky.

The little girl was in the garden with her mother and two younger children when Mrs. McLaurin was killed. The child ran to the house, brought a pillow, placed it under her mother's head, put the two younger babies by their dead mother's side, instructed them not to leave, then set out to a neighboring place to break the sad news.

'JAIL BIRD' IS RECAPTURED.

MARION, Ill., Nov. 12. (AP)—Harvey Dungy, former member of the Birger gang, who sawed his way to freedom from the jail here early Wednesday night was captured today at West Frankfort, Ill.

Little Cripple At Day Nursery Will Walk Soon

They haul him around in a little wagon now, at the Day nursery—a faithful little brother pulling and another little brother pushing, sometimes.

—But he leaves within a few days for Hella Temple, in Dallas, and they're going to cure his leg; the leg that has drawn and shriveled since a bad illness last winter.

When he comes back, thanks to the Day nursery folks, he will be able to run and play like other children. He's a nice kid, too, with his patient little face and clear blue eyes, and he doesn't fuss when the others forget him and leave him huddled alone, nursing the bad leg.

The Day nursery executives have been working on the little cripple's case some months, and his application has been in at Hella Temple a long time. The children's hospital is so crowded that he had to wait his turn, but the waiting is just about over.

Lose Fat
In the Right Way

For 20 years, slender women have been telling others the easy, pleasant way to reduce. It is the right way, based on a modern discovery made by able scientific men. It has proved so efficient that for two decades it has held the top place in this field. Now you can see the results wherever you look. Slender figures are the usual, fat is the exception.

That right way is embodied in Marmola prescription tablets. It is a substance employed in the body to regulate nutrition. Its purpose is to turn food into fuel and energy, rather than into fat.

There are no secrets about it. The formula appears in every box, also the reasons for results. Thus users know just why it acts, and they have no fear of harm. The use requires no abnormal exercise or diet, though moderation helps. People simply take four tablets daily until the weight comes down to normal in a natural way.

Consider what Marmola has done for so many and so long. See what it has done in your own circle, because one user tells others. Now learn what it means to you. Watch the new beauty that it brings, the new vitality and health. You owe that to yourself. Order it now—before you forget it. Don't longer suffer an abnormal figure when so many have found a corrective.

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1 per box. If your druggist is out, he will get them at once from his jobber.

NOCONA SOCIETY

Special to The Record News.

NOCONA, Nov. 12.—On Nov. 2 one of the most interesting meetings this year was at the home of Mrs. W. C. Gill, at the Literary club meeting.

Mrs. Bowdry, first vice president, presided during the business session. Mrs. D. G. Gardner directed the study for the afternoon discussing the "Unusual in Art."

The hostess, assisted by her daughter, Miss Jewell, and Miss Nells Pridday, served perfection salad, Boston brown bread, hot tea and olives to the 19 club members present.

Mrs. Newton Pribble was welcomed into the club as a new member by the president, Mrs. G. W. Humphreys. The next meeting of the club will be at the home of Mrs. A. C. Hood November 17.

Wednesday, Bridge Club

The Wednesday Afternoon Bridge club was entertained on Thursday afternoon last week by Miss Lelian Crain.

Mrs. Coffman's score was highest and she received a hand-painted mint plate. Mrs. Jesse Thompson received a pretty little flower bowl frog for cutting the ace of diamonds.

Miss Crain served a delightful salad course to the following: Miss Mary Nellie McCall, Mesdames Coffman, Neath Thompson, Foster, Freeman and Mrs. Williams, who is a new member in the club.

Bridge Party

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Freeman entertained a number of their friends on Friday evening of last week with several tables of bridge. High score prize for the men, a knife for the watch chain, was awarded Mr. Stelzer, and for the ladies, Mrs. Utt won a lovely green flower dish. Cut prizes, a smoking set and hand-embroidered case containing hot plate holders went to Mr. Foster and Mrs. Montgomery. The consolation prize for either men or ladies, went to Mrs. Harold Hamilton. This was a whisk broom to "brush up" with.

Mrs. Freeman, assisted by Mrs. Coffman, served sandwiches, fruit cookies and coffee to the following: Messrs. and Mesdames Billings, Neath, Thompson, Foster, Montgomery, Daniels, Bouriand, Strong, Berry, Hamilton, Utt, Stelzar and Coffman.

Thursday Bridge Club

Mrs. Stelzer was hostess to the Thursday Evening Bridge club last week. High scores were made by Mr. and Mrs. Bernstein and the prizes were a handsome necktie and a beautiful service tray, Mrs. Freeman and Mrs. Neath were fortunate in cutting and the prizes for this were a box of dainty handkerchiefs and a cigarette case filled with "Chesterfields."

A very tempting plate luncheon, consisting of salad, cheese tidbits, caramel cake and coffee was served to the following members, who made up the three tables: Messrs. and Mesdames Hamilton, Bernstein, Utt, Neath, Freeman, and the host and hostess.

Mrs. Freeman Hostess.

A lovely affair of the past week was a little bridge party and luncheon on Saturday morning in Mrs. Freeman's apartment, when eight friends made up two tables, playing from 9:30 to noon.

Miss Mary Nell McCall received a pretty little should bouquet for high score and a lovely bottle of sachet powder went to Miss Doris Clark for cut.

At noon, the hostess, assisted by her niece, Miss Eloise Ingram, served a lovely plate luncheon to Misses Doris Clark, Lelia Crain, Mary Nelle McCall, Frances Bodry, Virginia Hood, Polly Wilkes, Mesdames Scott Coffman and Ora Lemon.

Missionary Society Meets

The South Circle of the Woman's Missionary society of the Methodist church met Monday in the home of Mrs. J. A. W. McGraw with Mrs. A. S. McMahon as leader for the afternoon.

The meeting was opened with a song "Help Somebody Today." The book of Jonah was read and discussed by the leader. Papers were read by Mrs. John Hill and Mrs. Henry McGrew.

Mrs. H. G. Holcomb, chairman of the South Circle, presided in a business session, in which officers were elected for the circle. They were: Mrs. Frank Clegg, treasurer; Mrs. J. A. W. McGrew, agent for Missionary voice, Mrs. T. R. Stump, secretary and press reporter.

Baptist W. M. U.

The North Circle of the Baptist W. M. U. met in the church parlors Monday afternon for a Bible lesson on the book of Amos which was led by the pastor, Rev. J. A. Russell.

The South Circle met at the home of Mrs. B. E. Anderson for their Bible study.

Wiener Roast.

A group of the Justin Leather Gods Shop girls motored to Dripping Springs Tuesday after work hours and enjoyed a wiener roast. Music by a graphaphone helped to make the outing delightful.

In the group were: Misses Rose Mary Carminati, Frances Leach, Sue Shue, Mary Leach, Emma Howard, Polly Williams, Sibyl Leach, Ruby Nix, Charlsie Denison.

Birthday Party

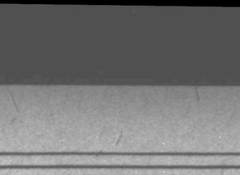

Mrs. G. P. Cone entertained Saturday afternoon with a party honoring her son, J. H. Cone, on his seventh birthday. As the little guests arrived, they presented the honoree with gifts. The guests were: Robert, Dan, and Mary Margaret Gribbon, Ralph and True Strong Jr., Patricia Ann Corson, De Priest and Patricia Foster, Camille Carmichael, Billy Joe Billings, Evelyn Keene, Thelda Bernard and Lola Williams.

The Dangerous Age

The caveman thought he was living in a dangerous age. Little did he know how safe he was. But how could he guess that his descendants would be killed off by the thousands by huge steel monsters breathing smoke and fire? He never heard of automobile accidents—he never heard of hospitals or nurses or doctors—or doctor bills.

Three Kinds of Values

Articles are valuable principally for three reasons:

I—They have intrinsic value, due to the costly materials or skilled labor with which they are made.

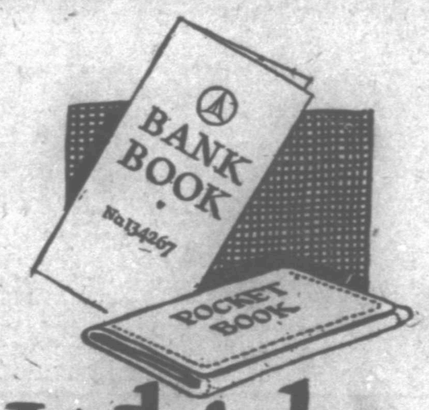

II—They have sentimental value, due to their association with someone we love.

III—They are valuable because they are rare—or because they are irreplaceable.

Every one has valuables in at least one of these classifications—probably in all three. Unless they are in constant use, the best place to keep them in a safe deposit box in this bank.

From Lindbergh's Plane to the King's Tailor, Wichita Falls Boy Tells of Trip to London Town

Somewhat at variance with the stories told by sophisticated travelers who have planned ahead of time just what they are to see when visiting abroad, is this simple straightforward tale of the impressions of a 5-year-old boy of his trip to London.

An interview with Master Tom Harwood Stacy, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Harwood Stacy, 1404 Monroe street, follows in the language of the child, concerning his recent voyage to England where he visited in London with relatives:

Mummy and I left Wichita Falls last May. We sailed from Montreal on a boat named the Regina—nice boat. Mr. Lindbergh flew over our ship when we got near Ireland. We landed at Liverpool and took a train for London. They call the engineer "engine driver." He doesn't sleep in the engine.

People get in the sides of the cars over there; not in each end like in America. They call freight trains "goods trains," they carry all the goods. They call the freight cars "van cars" and the brakemen "van guards." The goods trains don't have any cabooses.

There are lots of railroad stations in London—not like New York. In London they have Victoria station, Paddington station, Euston station, Charing Cross, and Waterloo station.

Meets "Lists"

Some of the main streets in London are Piccadilly Circus, Oxford Circus, Regent street, Victoria street, and Pall Mall. Auntie Doodie lives on Porchester Terrace, near Hyde park. Lots of new buildings on Regent street—nice new stores. They are fixing up the pavement on Picadilly Circus. They are building lovely new "flats" near Piccadilly Circus. They call them flats, but we call them apartments. They have "lifts" in the flats—we call them elevators.

There is a big river running through London called the Thames. Lots of boats on the Thames. Along one side of the Thames they call it the "embankment."

Some of the fine buildings are the Parliament buildings and Westminster Abbey. In the tower of the Parliament buildings is a big clock with glass in it, but I am not sure it is glass, called Big Ben. When it strikes it makes a tune and you can hear it nearly

Mrs. J. H. Massie is arranging the museum. Those who have curios or other interesting objects to lend are urged to do so. Assisting Mrs. Massie will be the following committee: Mesdames Arch Collins, C. E. Basham, R. O. Harvey, W. S. Langford and Frank E. Brandeberry.

Radio artists, "The Hired Hand and the Sunflower Girl," from station WBAP, Fort Worth, will appear at the show in person, broadcasting their program from the Wichita Falls station at 6 to 7 o'clock and from 10 to 11 o'clock in the evening. Mayor R. E. Shepherd and other city entertainers will appear between broadcasting hours.

Music Department To Hold Tuesday Meeting

The music department of the Womans Forum will meet at 2:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in the forum auditorium. Miss Erma Nala Voss will give an informal talk continuing the subject: "What We Hear in Music" and the musical program will be given by Mrs. Luella B. Thompson, Mrs. Harwood Stacy, Mrs. P. M. Cordell and Mrs. J. E. Hall.

Tea will be served during the social hour following the program. Mrs. O. E. Nicholls is chairman of the music department of the Womans Forum.

Meeting of W. M. S. Circles Announced

The Highland Heights Baptist W. M. S. circles will meet Monday at the following places: Circle one, with Mrs. Jewel Cunningham, 2201 Eighth street; Circle two, with Mrs. E. A. Woody, 2003 Avenue Q; Circle number three, with Mrs. C. T. Moss, 3105 Lawrence street.

Women's Friday Clubs Observe Armistice Day

The Travel club entertained members of the Junior Travel club at a luncheon Friday at the Womans Forum commemorating Armistice Day, with Mrs. W. W. Frazier, vice president of the Travel club, presided over the program of the luncheon. Mrs. C. M. Conrey introduced the speaker, Dr. Jesse Kellem, who spoke on "War to End War." He told of the futility of trying to end war without the organization of Christians. Two songs were given by Charles H. Richards; "O Sole Mio" and for encore an Irish song. Mrs. Grady England played the accompaniment.

The table had a beautiful decoration of red, white and blue. Red salvia, white chrysanthemums and plumosa fern in a blue bowl, centered the table. Blue candles in white crystal holders were set at each end. Plate favors were bunches of red salvia, white chrysanthemums and fern tied with red, white and blue ribbons.

A four-course luncheon was served to the members of the club; the members of the Junior Travel club; Dr. Kellem, Mr. Richards and guests of club members.

Friday Literary Club

The Friday Literary club met in regular session Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. Will Gray, 1215 Taylor, with Mrs. Gray hostess and Mrs. W. A. McCarty, leader. The lesson was on France and roll call was responded to by the names of famous French women. The program follows: "Literature and Art;" short stories of Balzac and de Maupassant by Mrs. W. A. McCarty; "Pasteur," Mrs. W. B. Whiting; "Art in the Louvre," Mrs. R. H. Hughes.

The following members were present: Mrs. D. M. Bernard, new member and Mesdames D. K. Bell, D. A. Cook, Herbert Gray, Harvey Harris, R. H. Hughes, W. A. McCarty, J. J. Thomas and W. B. Whiting.

Coterie Club

The Coterie club met Friday afternoon at the Womans Forum with Mrs. A. R. Bleakley hostess. Roll call was responded to with "Industrial Problems." The program follows: John Galswprthy's life and works, Mrs. Hubert H. Harrison; the plot of "Strife," Mrs. E. B. Bailey; Discussion of character groups, Mrs. C. P. Burton.

The following members were present: Mesdames Bleakley, E. P. Bass, C. W. Boller, C. P. Burton, Arch Collins, Harrison, A. G. Holmes, Lester Jones, J. H. Martin, J. H. Massie, J. C. Mytinger, C. D. Shamburger, John L. Waggoner and one guest, Mrs. Frank Scott of Sulphur Springs.

Unity Club

The Unity club met Friday in an Armistice Day program at the Womans Forum with Mrs. J. C. Hunt hostess and Mrs. J. T. Montgomery, leader. Mrs. Montgomery led the discussion on "The Life of Woodrow Wilson."

Judge J. T. Montgomery was the speaker for the afternoon, his subject was, "Wilson as a Person."

Council of Jewish Women Gives Fort Worth Program

The Wichita Falls and Fort Worth sections of the Council of Jewish Women met in joint reciprocity meeting this week in Fort Worth, the occasion being the celebration of the annual peace day luncheon observed at the Temple Community center.

The temple was prettily decorated in flags and streamers of red, white and blue and miniature flags were given as favors. About 175 guests were served.

Mrs. H. H. Miller, president of the Fort Worth council, introduced Mrs. Harry Ginsburg who served as chairman of the day. Mrs. Leo Goldstucker, president of the Wichita Falls council, was toastmistress. The program was given by the Wichita Falls group.

The program follows: Prayer, Mrs. Ben Kaufman, piano solo, "Phasantasiestucke," Opus 12 Schumann, and "Reverie" (Vernon Eville) both by Mrs. Joe Art; "Peace" by Rabbi S. J. Schwab; violin solo from Ninth Concerto, (Charles DeBerriot) and "Eli Eli," Hebrew melody, by Mrs. Joseph Rabinowitz; reading, "The Club Woman" by Mrs. Alex Horwitz; vocal solo "By the Waters of the Minnetonka" by Mrs. Harry Cohen; piano selections, "Believe Me if All Those Endearing Young Charms" and "The Rosary" by Mrs. Harry Carlsburg of Bowie.

In addition to those mentioned above, the Wichita Falls delegation to Fort Worth was made up of the following: Mesdames I. A. Fine, Max Shain, Philip Pink, B. Brettler, Ben Newman, Louis Loevy, M. E. Wolf, Nathan Persky, Alex Marshall, A. B. Blank, S. H. Smith, D. Persky, Dave Paul, J. S. Schwab, I. B. Persky, Louis Pink, J. Cohen, Ben Small, Aaron Criss and Morris Persky of Electra.

Wichita Falls Musicians Win Praise

Mrs. Harwood Stacy who won the $100 prize given by the San Antonio Musical club for the best violin composition and Mrs. Bruce Greenwood who played it, have returned from San Antonio where they appeared before the club. The recital was given in the Crystal ballroom of the Menger hotel and was attended by the members of the San Antonio Musical club guests and those who had won prizes. Those who won prizes in voice and piano gave their prize winning numbers.

Mrs. Stacy who is gifted pianist and who has composed for the piano, surprised her friends by writing a violin number, "The Air de Ballet." Its beauty so instantly impressed itself on her friends and especially Mrs. Greenwood, who played it. They insisted on her entering it in the annual contest staged by the San Antonio Musical club for Texas composers. Louis Victor Saar was the judge and he gave it first place.

The San Antonio papers were not only loud in their praises of the composition, but they paid tribute to its rendition by Mrs. Greenwood. Mrs. Greenwood has written several songs for which Mrs. Stacy has composed the music.

Mrs. Stacy and Mrs. Greenwood visited friends in Austin and Waco on their way home.

State Conference of Baptist Women Listed

The 21st annual conference of the state Women's Missionary union of the First Baptist church will hold a conference in the First Baptist church Monday morning from 10 and 12 o'clock.

The various state divisional chairmen will have charge of the work of the departments and will conduct discussions on that date. Local and associate members are invited to the meeting.

Dorinda's Diary

THERE IS NO DESOLATION

November 13—

Trees bare of leaves are never bare of beauty,
God made it that no thing be desolate:
Low dunes along a wind-swept sea at evening
Glow out like scarlet embers in a grate;
The leafless, tawny reaches of old deserts
Hold every changing color of the dawn;
A strange insistent radiance clings mutely
To jewel-knuckled weeds when life is gone.
O singers of all loveliness—remember
The unsung splendor of each barren thing."—I had come face to face with beauty.

IF MRS. CROWELL never wrote another poem this one would do me! But who will ever forget all those other poems she read, the time she was the guests of the Silks and read to that great gathering at the Country club? Her husband, who is also a poet, was on the same program. Think of a husband being a poet! Most of 'em won't even read a poem. Amy Bell Bright (Mrs. J. D. Bright) described most of our husbands when she said the nearest Del Bright ever got to a poem was when he was reading "Maggie and Jiggs."

But some people's lives are poems—and some men are people. Del Bright (J. D.) is a real people. Yes, piural; he's a whole team. He, "Builds High Places On the Peaks of Song." Ask any person who knows of his work among the "under-privileged boys" and they'll say "If he never does another thing but that, it will do me!"

* * *

AT THE Art exhibit at the Womans Forum last Sunday afternoon, I just watched Pearl Silk (Mrs. W. W. Silk), her face was so radiant. She was so happy over all that joy she had helped to bring to so many people. She is always "climbing bright ladders." Not only has her living a poem, been instrumental in getting the art exhibit, but it had a lot to do with the building in which the exhibit was held and ALL to do, with those wonderful pictures hanging on the wall of the junior college, that are ours, to have and to hold. Living a poem is forgetting self and that is one person she never gives a thought. Some day, pages later, I am going to tell all the various ways, I know, she has lived a poem. But if she never did any more than the ones I have already put down, they would do me!

* * *

AS I was sitting there listening to Mr. Yunt giving his talk on pictures, Sunday afternoon, I was trying to look prosperous and alert so I would attract his attention and he would say "Hh Ha! An Appreciative One!" and take me into the inner shrine and show me the Corot. As he finished and every one was getting up to look at the pictures I sauntered out in front of the pool and lilies picture and was picking bugs off the leaves, when I saw him coming with pad and pencil in hand to take my order for a dozen Corots, C. O. D. I hoisted my shoulders and tried to look more Mrs. Astorbiltish than usual, straightened my hat and did things to my face—"Madam," he said as he reached me, "Will you please stand from in front of that picture so others may se!" And, as I unhoisted my shoulders, he walked rapidly towards the inner shrine, where reposed the Corot!—Well, if I never see the Corot, the pool and the lilies and bugs will do me!

* * *

GRACE HARRELL (Mrs. J. T. Harrell) surely deserves the name her friends have given her—"Sarah Bernhardt"—I thought I never saw such acting as she use to do in the Little theater and here she comes along and surpasses herself in this recital in which the Readers club presented her Thursday evening at the Bernard Martin home. Peter Ames Vincent who directed the Little theater here, said Grace was better than most of the well known actresses on the stage. I never saw the most of them and if I never do—Grace will do me!

* * *

EVERY one who attended the Cabaret at the Forum—are talking about the songs written by Doroth Nolen and set to music by Mattlyn Wilson. One of the songs is as sweet as the dimple in Dorothy's cheek and the other has all the words and melody that composes a popular song and Dorothy's friends are predicting it is going to be one of the hits. Dorothy writes the sweetest little poems, too, and the funniest little jinkies—I'm for 'em all.

The next program for the Dramatic department of the Forum, fairly shouts its promise of a good show. And why shouldn't it? Such a cast of clever actors for both the dramatic play and the comedy, and Una Fulton (Mrs. E. L. Fulton) and Ella Merle Mathis, directing. Both plays have a mystery that will keep the audience guessing until the final curtain and the "Will o' the Wisp" will end with a pleasing surprise for the guests. I don't know what it is, but anything Una and Ella Merle do, will do me!

* * *

SPEAKING of the coming program made me think of the last (and first) given this year and reminded me of an interesting little happening that occurred during the rehearsal of "The Maker of Dreams," that beautiful phantasy directed by Fay Bonham (Mrs. J. A. Bonham) Dorinda went out with Fay to help her arrange the stage and they got to discussing the antiques Emma Gene Hicks (Mrs. T. A. Hicks) had used in the "Show Off," that knockout program that had just been given—and so on and so on, well anyway Fay said her husband's family had some wonderful antiques and that some day she hoped to have two of them at least. Then Dorinda told of some in her family and two she especially craved, and told the history of the two especial pieces.

Fay gasped, and told her the pieces they each wanted were the same ones! Then they started in to see "who was who" down the ancestral line and found a man who had helped pour tea at a fashionable Boston tea party was the same "Great-Great-Great" to both families; then coming on down they found one in the receiving line at the Alamo. That settled it! They exclaimed "Cousin!" fell on each other's necks and lived happily ever after.

* * *

MY friends are always saying to me, "Well, what's the latest thing J. L. has said?" So I'm going to write down his latest, so I won't forget to tell 'em. J. L. is the young hopeful of Evelyn and J. L. Jackson Jr. and among other reasons why I love him like he belonged to me, is because one of the first names he ever called was that of the one who did belong to me and whose absence makes room in my heart for all boys.

J. L.'s grandmother Chumley of Austin was visiting in the home and after J. L. had repeatedly pulled his little sister's red gold hair, which he had rather do than eat, his grandmother told him if he did it again she was going to have to paddle him. He drew himself up to his greatest heighth (he's about as big as a minute) and said, "Ah, Grandma Chum you had better go home before you get silly."

So I think I had better close this diary before I get silly. I write down things from the sublime to the ridiculous, but our lives are made up from sublime and ridiculous things—either one will do me! Some days I dance and kick a star; Some days my thoughts don't rise so far. —Dorinda.

SALLY'S SALLIES

A model husband is seldom a model anything else.

Young Stacy Tells Of Trip to London

all over London. I don't like the tune very much.

Sees the King

Then, there is the Admiralty building where they make all the boats. The Horse Guards there ride on horseback and guard the admiralty. The horse guards have red uniforms. There are different guards in front of Buckingham palace. These guards in front of the palace live in barracks. I always saluted the guards in front of the palace. These guards have funny hats called "busbies." They are sort of fluffy top-knots.

King George lives in Buckingham Palace. He lives with the queen. The street in front of the palace is called the "Mall" (pronounced Moll.) That is a different street from Pall Mall (pronounced Pell-Mell) which runs in front of the Prince of Wales' house. I saw King George. He was riding in a carriage, not in a motor car. They call them motor cars—we call them autos. Uncle Frank got the king's tailor to make a cap for me.

Impressed With Planes.

My Granny in London took me out to Kinsington Garden where "Peter Pan" lived, and to Richmond Park to see the deer and to the zoo where I saw the monkeys have tea. At 4 o'clock they placed tables for the monkeys with regular cups and saucers and tea, and the monkeys drank their tea out of the cups, and they had cake, too.

And I saw a rhinos (rhinoceros) and some snakes. Then we went to Hyde Park and saw the boats on a little river there called the "Serpentine," and we saw the smart men on horseback all dressed up riding down "Rotten Row."

Then we went to Hampstead Heath in Auntie Doodie's car and took our lunch and then we went to Auntie Doodie's house in the country at Wargrave where we stayed for a month and we went to Hendon where there is a flying field and I saw lots of airplanes flying almost up to God.

There are lots of bridges in London. We went across Battersea Bridge, Waterloo bridge and Blackfriars Bridge.

Granny took me to Trafalgar Square where there is a big statue of Admiral Nelson. Also there are statues of General Kitchener and General Roberts. You know General Kitchener got drowned in the war. There is also a statue of Abraham Lincoln.

Westminster Abbey is the place where the unknown soldier that was killed in France is buried. I always took off my hat when I went there and everybody took off their hats and there were lots of flowers. Shakespeare is also buried there. Near Trafalgar square is the Strand, Savoy hotel and Charing Cross station.

My Granddaddy gave me a lovely violin about 150 years old, and I am going to take lessons from "Man's Baby" (Tom's name for Eithel Allen Nelson.)

We left London from Waterloo station and went to Southampton and got on the boat "George Washington.' I met a little girl on the boat named Rosemary and we played together on deck. Then we got to New York. It is a big city and we crossed on a ferry boat and took a taxi to the Pennsylvania hotel. When we got on the train there was a big baseball game in New York and a man gave me a little "Paul Waner" baseball bat. Then we came home.

Wichita Falls is just a little city.

MOTHER

A Cross, Sick Child is Constipated! Look at Tongue

No matter what ails your child, a gentle, thorough laxative should always be the first treatment given.

If your little one is out-of-sorts, half-sick, isn't resting, eating and acting naturally—look, Mother; see if tongue is coated. This is a sure sign that the little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with waste. When cross, irritable, feverish, stomach sour, breath bad or has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, sore throat, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Fig Syrup," and in a few hours all the constipated poison, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of the little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

Mothers can rest easy after giving this harmless, "fruity laxative" because it never fails to cleanse the little one's, liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach and they dearly love its pleasant taste. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups printed on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Fig Syrup"; then see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."

Infant Care

Mothers, you can't start too early to establish a child's serene and tranquil disposition. Even an infant can have a happy, fretless state of uninterrupted health. What will help do this? A simple, purely vegetable product as old as you are; plain Castoria.

A few drops of Castoria will settle all uneasiness in a jiffy. Will dispel colic or ward off constipation; and just as surely check diarrhea.

In real sickness call a physician. But many physicians urge only Castoria for those little childish disorders that need nothing more. You need never be afraid to give pure Castoria. It is safe and perfectly harmless, for it contains no paregoric, no opiates, no dope of any kind. At least, this is true of the genuine Fletcher's Castoria—and that is the kind doctors tell you always to buy.

Fletcher's Castoria is fine for any child. All children love to take it. Delicious tasting, and as good as it tastes. Just look for the Fletcher signature on the package and you will know you have the genuine and pure Castoria.

*SPECIAL NOTE: With every bottle of genuine Fletcher's Castoria is wrapped a book on "Care and Feeding of Babies" worth its weight in gold to every mother or prospective mother.

Well, What's a Chignon, Anyway?

You Just Know They Love to Wear 'Em

By MARIE THERESA
The Record News Staff

A READER of the column—oh, yes, there are—told me last Sunday morning that she liked my column better when I didn't have anything to write about. Since that's just the kind of writing I do best, there should be no reason for disappointing the lady. Anyway, I made myself clear at the beginning that this column would be run on that platform and now that I've made the lady feel duly ignorant, I shall proceed with a few philosophical observations.

* * *

ARE you letting your hair grow out? A chignon—very small as to size and quite troublesome as to placement, seems to be the order of the day. Marie Theresa failed utterly in assimilating a well delivered sermon last Sunday morning, for watching the various means the younger girls and matrons of the city are adopting and devising (all rules are off when it comes to growing hair gracefully) in regaining what they so proudly parted with some four and six years ago.

Most of 'em are just letting it grow out, any old way, so long as the average of an inch a month is maintained. Others are growing out the front locks and keeping the back clipped, but not as closely as a year ago. Some are adopting the reverse process and are developing a small roll at the nape of the neck while the front locks are still curling freely and gracefully about their faces.

* * *

WHAT do you think of the method of Tillie the Toiler, is adopting in the difficult situation? Of course, you've noticed that Tillie's hair is hanging well over her neck and kept in place with a strand of the same. That type of chignon growing looks well on paper but works out pretty badly in actual life.

Oh, well, if I am to cut short this story on le petite chignon, I'd better do so right away by saying that there is no royal road to raising long hair. The first puff of strong Wichita Falls wind will undo an untold amount of labor and forethought expended on the trivial matter of a coiffure. What's an added four inches of hair length to the elements, anyway?

* * *

JOY for you—the management for the Marion Talley concert is sponsoring a dinner on the evening of the concert. Marion will be seated among the elect, but of course, she won't be allowed to eat much. I promised you more joy. The jolly part comes in when the announcement is made that the dinner will be formal and that dress suits, both formal and informal will be the order of the day, and that the ladies will appear in brilliant colors and decollete gowns.

Is there anyone who doesn't enjoy forgetting the workaday life for a while and leaving cares and small problems at home? And there is not a better way in the world than to put on a dress suit or evening dress and play around in them for an evening.

On Friday evening, Nov. 25, Wichita Falls is going to see another celebration with just such privilege attached. The dinner to be given on the evening of Marion Talley's appearance among us, sponsored by the Womans Forum, is to be somewhat formal in plan. And to judge from the number who have expressed themselves eager to attend the dinner, the people of Wichita Falls ar merely teasing when they seem to shy away from formal and semi-formal affairs. An evening of looking his best and leaving off that tweed suit for the more somber, but yet festive tux, and the substitution of a transparent velvet dres sto replace the poiret and gingham jersey or wool georgette workaday life is in a way a treat.

* * *

MRS. W. W. SILK is probably the most harrassed of all the women in town. She has been receiving reserveations for the Marion Talley concert, and Thursday began to sell tickets to people in the city.

She sold something like 1000 tickets before she realized that things were snapping too fast for her. She shut off the phone. Then Marion Talley admirers stormed her doors. She shut her doors, and now we don't know what people are going to do for tickets unless they read the ads and run around to McConnell's Furniture company to buy 'em. Are we going to sell out the house? Stay around and see.

CORA BRUCE GREENWOOD, who is studying piano and the harp at the Curtis Institute in Philadelphia, writes home to parents and friends that she is mixing pleasure with work and is kept busy these days. Her grandmother, Mrs. A. B. Anderson, who is chaperoning Miss Greenwood, accompanies her to Princeton and other schools where she is invited to the university dances.

The young lady shows a great deal of interest in the cosmopolitanism of the students, and writes that many nationalities and most of the five races are represented there. She writes of a Russian musician who is attracting a great deal of attention from the students in the school and those outside the school who are interested in musical things.

* * *

KNOW of any announcements or any weddings? Marie Theresa hasn't had a wedding for so long nor any announcements, that she's afraid the long layoff is going to spoil her for the deluge that is bound to come later.

HOLLIS NOTES

HOLLIS, Okla., Nov. 12. — Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Moore of Grandfield, Okla., are visiting this week in the home of Mr. Moore's sister, Mrs. B. F. Roberts, and other relatives and friends here this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Dickerson and family visited with Mr. Dickerson's father at Bethel, Okla., last week end.

Mr. and Mrs. Findley Chancellor visited in Mangum, Okla., last week with friends and relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Hughes of Hollis, Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Martin of Bethel, and Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Townsend of Mangum, Okla., were visitors Sunday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Ballington at Gould.

Colonel Scudder Ray, of Oklahoma City, was visiting in Hollis this week with old friends and with his father and mother, Dr. and Mrs. Ray, at Gould, Oklahoma.

Mrs. A. R. Reeves entertained members of the Junior B. Y. P. U. of the First Baptist church with a picnic Monday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Cox were visitors in Altus, Saturday.

Mrs. M. A. Williams and Mrs. Laura Plunkett went to Wichita Falls, Monday, to visit with relatives. They will remain alaw about a month.

Mrs. W. T. Kay went to Altus Monday, to meet her sister, Mrs. Sally Sublet of Oklahoma City, who plans to visit in her home for several weeks and with other relatives and friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Nelson went to Russell, Sunday, and brought back with them, Mrs. Nelson's mother, Mrs. M. A. Williams, who has been visiting there with her sister.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Goodman of Amarillo moved to Hollis this week. Mr. Goodman as accepted a position as educational director of the First Baptist church.

The W. M. U. of the Methodist church met Monday in an all day session. The morning was spent in devotional. At the business meeting held at 1 o'clock, a motion was made and carried to send a love offering to one of the students from Hollis in the Southwestern Seminary at Dallas this offering to cover one month's expenses. At 2 o'clock, the members began sewing for an invalid, and the remainder of the evening was spent in this way.

Dramatic Reader Features Program Of Readers' Club

Five other artists appeared Thursday evening in the recital of the Readers' club when members entertained guests and husbands at the annual guest privilege event, by presenting Mrs. J. T. Harrell, as the feature of the evening's program, at the home of Mrs. Bernard Martin, 1615 Buchanan street. They were Miss Modena Howell, Mrs. J. W. Akin Jr., Mrs. Bruce Greenwood, Mrs. Lucile Brooks Huff and Mr. J. S. Pitman. With their support, Mrs. Harrell was given the proper musical atmosphere and the living room of the lovely Bernard Martin home with its adornment of chrysanthemums and roses made a perfect stage setting for her program.

The sun parlor, where members of the Readers' club greeted the guests and where later refreshments were served was decorated in autumn leaves and chrysanthemums. The following ladies received the guests: Mesdames Martin, C. W. Ruffner, president of the Readers' club, O. Abernathy, Dan Grieder, Porter Oakes, W. F. Pagan, E. L. Fulton and Miss Marguerite Fisher. Mrs. J. S. Crumple racted as usher, seating the guests in the living and dining rooms.

Mrs. Harrell was introduced by Mrs. Ruffner. Her first number, a group of three poems by Grace Nell Crowell, was interpreted in a pleasing manner. The beautiful quality of her voice was brought out and her tone effects were noticeable.

In "The Passing of the White Swan" by Sir Gilbert Parker, in her interpretations of the three different characters, the father, child and the priest, the tone effects were more pronounced and she held her audience with the feeling she put into each characterization. She was at her best in this.

In "The Impertinence of the Creature" by Cosmo Gordon-Lenox, in which she was cleverly assisted by Mr. Pitman, she was perfectly at ease in the role, but it is not her best style.

Musical numbers were given between the readings, by Mrs. Greenwood, who played a violin selection, "Meditation," from Thais, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Huff; and Miss Howell who gave two vocal solos, "Ave Maria," by Schubert, and "Oh, Dry Those Tears," by Del Rigo, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Akin and Mrs. Greenwood on the violin.

Drama Department Will Present Two Plays November 22

Patrons of the drama department of the Womans Forum of which Mrs. E. W. Wade is chairman, are looking forward to the next program, which will be given on the afternoon and evening of November 22. Mrs. E. L. Fulton will direct the dramatic one-act play, "Will o' the Wisp," and Miss Ella Merle Mathis, the comedy, "The Man in the Bowler Hat." Both plays have a touch of mystery that hold the suspense until the end but in no other way are they alike.

The play directed by Mrs. Fulton calls for an unusual stage effect, which will be under the supervision of Mrs. W. F. Pagan. Those taking part in it have unusual dramatic ability, Mrs. Fulton is well known as a director.

The comedy is one of the newest that could be procured and is laughable from start to finish. The cast is made up of clever actors who have already made names for themselves and Miss Mathis not only directs the play but takes a part in the cast.

The plays with the cast for each follow: "The Will o' the Wisp," by Doris Halman. Characters: "The Lady," Mrs. Claud Ruffner; "The Countrywoman," Mrs. John Rhea; "The Irish Maid," Mrs. Charlie Reid and "The Will o' the Wisp."

"The Man in the Bowler Hat," anonymous; has the following cast: "John," Baldwin Montgomery, "Mary," Miss Mathis; "He," Raymond Strong; "She," Miss Eloise Hawkins; "Chief Villian," Trent Hill; "Bad Man," Harold Hamlin; "The Man in the Bowler Hat," Bruce Greenwood.

Forum membership cards will admit to these performances.

Adventures In the Shops

As Told By

Jacqueline

DUE to the protracted warm weather, Miller-Ferguson's is staging a huge mid-season sale. This sale of the smart fall and winter apparel is early indeed, but a continued summer instead of fall has made it necessary.

Everything in the store is marked at a surprisingly low price. The cost values will give you a conception of the favorable prices to be found this week at Miller-Ferguson's — smart new coats valued to $100 are being sold for $67. Don't fail to take advantage of this opportunity.

DURING a tour of Chapman's Dairy a few days ago, I discovered something every housewife should know (which is pretty late the bargain). This is the only dairy in town which maintains a rural cooling station, where the milk is pre-cooled before being pasteurized. No expense has been spared in making Chapman's $10,000 rural station one of the finest examples of a modern cooling plant to be found anywhere. After the milk is cooled to a temperature of 45 degrees there, it is brought to the city plant, pasteurized and placed in refrigerated storage until delivered.

It is such a comfortable feeling to know that the milk and butter served at your table and used in cooking your food, have been made safe, as well as delightful to the taste, by the greatest care and most rigid sanitation in its preparation for use. See that Wichita Falls' richest and purest milk and butter are in your home. Phone 2-1537.

CULVERT'S Ice Cream Factory always has something attractive and appropriate for holiday refreshments and desserts, but the molded and tinted ice cream offerings for Thanksgiving are especially pleasing.

In this pure, rich ice cream, such a favorite with young and old and a healthful food for all, we find: Golden ears of corn, turkey gobblers, pumpkin pies, footballs, Plymouth Rocks, autumn leaves and pumpkins.

To order several different patterns and serve them on a platter, allowing the guests at your party or Thanksgiving Day dinner to make their own selection, is the most effective manner of serving these delightful molds.

Each individual piece is worked out with consummate skill and care to the most minute detail—for example, in the ear of corn each grain stands distinct, the autumn leaf is subtly shaded in the fall colors of the woods, and even the lacing of the football has received its share of attention.

Place your orders now to avoid disappointment. Culvert's molds have been in constant use for the last weeks, and are in even greater demand as the important Thursday approaches. Phone 2165.

MAJESTIC

THE vaudeville scheduled for November 17 and 18 at the Majestic Theater consists of an especially arranged show with Count Boral Vici working through every act. Louise Mele, one of Broadway's promising young dancers, appears in the Count's song, dance and musical production. Miss Mele was selected from 100 girls at a recent contest of the New York Hippodrome for the beauty of her physique, which is acknowledged by nationally known authorities as being "Perfect." Joe Darcy, America's Blackface Songster, also provides excellent entertainment.

Charles Murray in "Life of Riley" will be featured on the screen.

THE shoe is no longer a foot covering to be considered as a separate item, but a part of Milady's costume.

The new street shoes just arrived at Sanderford's Booterie were chosen with view to their place in the ensemble. The fashionable fall colors are represented—black, grey, taupe and bronze, and the patterns are smarter than you can imagine. One of the newest is a dress type oxford in bronze silk kid lizard, with tip and quarter of bronze silk kid. This is also stunning in gunmetal grey. A black suede, with gunmetal tip, heel and facing, has a smart two-eyelet tie and comfortable heel for walking. These shoes have individuality. See them now.

Melvin Traylor Gives Advice

MELVIN TRAYLOR is former president of the American Bankers' association. He is the president of a large financial concern in the city of Chicago. He is a former Texan and admittedly one of the foremost financiers of America. He is a Texan looking around a bit. This is his summary of the situation:

"If a man will use his head instead of his feet he can do better in Texas right now than in any other state." Texas of today is not the Texas of Melvin Traylor's boyhood. Texas of today is a vast growing commonwealth. Texans of today believe in the development of all natural resources. They believe in all the modern accessories of civilization to aid in the forward movement.

They believe in manufacturing as well as farming. They are opening up the wide spaces to settlers. They are making Texas the oil producing state of the union. They are making Texas the citrus producing state of the union. They are not afraid to advertise.

They believe in the irrigation and reclamation of idle lands.

They believe in keeping Texas money at home. They believe in Texans feeding themselves. They believe in diversification of all crops. They believe in building cotton mills, and some day they will insist that some of the money of Texas should be placed in woolen and mohair mills and tanneries.

All this is coming. In population Texas should pass the 6,000,000 mark in the year 1930. Texas is the place for a man who makes use of his head. Any old place is good enough for a man who uses his feet and forgets that he has a head.

Why Beckham Lost

IN THE Blue Grass regions and cities and towns of Kentucky there are a vast number of Democrats who are liberals. That is, they do not believe in blue laws. They do not believe in drastic laws for the suppression of amusements they look upon as necessary for the happiness of man.

Kentucky elected a Republican governor. He is of the liberal type, although the Republican party is said to be the party of Puritanism in America. He saw no harm in racing. Beckham, the Democratic nominee, promised to root out or eradicate the racing habit in his native state.

Democratic liberals revolted. They voted against Beckham. They voted for Sampson, a Republican liberal. They voted for the thoroughbreds. They voted for race meetings. They voted for the great Kentucky pastime. They voted that it was all right for a man to place a dollar on his favorite horse.

Of course, the chairman of the state executive committee of the Democratic party had an alibi—a very thin alibi. He said that the Democrats could not overcome the 25,000 negro voters who train under the Republican banner.

If he will look at the returns he will discover that the sixth and seventh congressional districts, Democratic Gibraltars in other years, slashed Beckham and his associates on the ticket and caused the loss of the state to the Democrats.

Some day perhaps, the followers of Jefferson, or the so-called followers of Jefferson, will devote their attention to fundamentals of government and not to the trifles which are said to plague mankind.

Texas Leads All the Rest

THERE are 416 Texans inmates of the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan. A census of the states shows Texas far in the lead. This may be true but it is not a correct census. New York and Pennsylvania and other important states on the eastern seaboard send their federal convicts to the federal penitentiary at Atlanta. There should be a revision and a new count taken.

Indians On the Warpath

AMERICAN Indians are on the warpath for Charles Curtis of Kansas. He is a Republican presidential possibility and half Indian. There are 75,000 Indian voters in the state of Oklahoma. They promise Curtis a full vote if he should happen to be the Republican standard bearer. This may land Oklahoma in the Republican column next year, if—

Brisbane As a Prophet

THERE are 24 graves in a cemetery in the City of Mexico. Each grave contains the dust of a Mexican who aspired to be president of the republic, or who assisted a leader ambitious to serve the republic in the office of president.

After viewing the headstones from a distance Arthur Brisbane writes it down for his readers that there is a stable government in Mexico and will be for some time to come.

His prophecy is a truthful declaration. A man who dares to aspire to high place against the government in Mexico pays the price. He faces a firing squad and is sent to the cemetery.

Might is right and the Lord help the misguided patriot or adventurer who dares to defy the dictator of the hour.

Mussolini gave the rebels in Italy castor oil. Calles gives them bullets. It is only a difference in medicine. Castor works in Italy; leaden missiles work in Mexico.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By BURTON RASCOE.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—There is a vendor of second-hand umbrellas on Park Row. He looks like a soiled and shopworn Santa Claus. If you will listen to him, he will tell you stories of his encounters with the Red Skins in his youth. I don't know whether he really ever was an Indian fighter or whether he makes up his tales from remembering passages in the nickel novels of the 'Nineties. I suspect the latter; but at any rate he is one of the many lonely figures of metropolitan life, a man pathetically eager for an audience, hungry for a sympathetic ear into which he can pour tales of past adventures which, perhaps he has never had.

* * *

It is related that the movie critics who attend the Thursday afternoon "pre-views" at Roxy's theater have a hard time concentrating on the picture. It seems that the projecting room is ordinarily used as a dressing room by the chorus girls of Roxy's gang and that these young ladies just will change their clothes there, movie critics or no movie critics.

* * *

Then there was that young man who got arrested for sleeping in the subway—an event the New York newspapers treated at length. He worked as a day laborer for $35 a week and as a messenger on his day off. He wanted his people back home to think that he was making good in a big way in the great metropolis. To save money to send them he slept nightly in the subway trains. For clothing, he picked up odds and ends, checked them in various stores and picked them up again as the garments he was wearing went into dissolution. He solved the problem of toilette by getting his shaves and haircuts in the Bowery schools for barbers, where such service is free. He had reduced frugality to an art but his career was cut short by an unimaginative and unsympathetic policeman. . . . And so it goes in life; the policeman is always there to prevent us from realizing our most gorgeously happy dreams.

The new supreme court building is a vast edifice containing about 25 courtrooms. A newspaper reporter delegated to cover the news there is up against handicaps of time and space. One enterprising reporter bethought himself of a noble idea. He bought himself a pair of roller skates, and thus equipped, he sped swiftly from court to court. But the sedate gentlemen of the bench, unused to having people careening into their courts in this breezy fashion, put a stop to this method of locomotion. The reporter in question has asked permission to use a bicycle.

I have yet to meet a woman who doesn't drop gloves out of her lap at the theater and cause me to search around for them in the dark, right at the tenser moments of the show, and always with an insistent, "Never mind! Never mind them please!" which means, "Find those gloves for me if you have to crawl around on your hands and knees in the dark till the show lets out!"

Nor have I ever met a woman who, if she had gloves with her, doesn't drop at least one of them just as she steps out of the cab. If there is a large puddle of water there from which I have to fish them out, she (or they) will inevitably drop two gloves, with: "There go my gloves! Oh, I'm so sorry. Stupid of me! Now you have got yourself all muddy on my account! Thanks so much! Too bad you had to soil your handkerchief! They can be dry cleaned!"

Still, there are women who do not discover that they have left one glove in a taxicab until they have dropped its mate and who seem to expect you to run after the cab which has already got hidden in the traffic

Governors I Have Known

—By— Hugh Nugent Fitzgerald

WRITTEN EXCLUSIVELY FOR THE WICHITA FALLS RECORD NEWS

OSCAR BRANCH COLQUITT picked up the reins of governor when Thomas M. Campbell had passed out of the picture. Campbell had defeated Colquitt for the nomination in the famous convention where Joseph Weldon Bailey had announced the "Campbells Are Coming." It was then that Col. R. M. Johnston, "the Warwick of the Houston Post," made his famous declaration that the Colquitt people would be back four years later. They kept their word. They came back. They nominated their favorite for governor.

There had been a stormy campaign for the nomination, but Colquitt won hands down. He had the backing of many of the leading newspapers of the state and at least four powerful editors of the period gave him loyal support. Oscar Branch Colquitt is a Georgian. His father was a Confederate soldier. The family moved to East Texas from Georgia following in the wake of the Civil war. There his father became a tiller of the soil and the son followed the plough in his youthful years.

He drifted from the farm to town and invaded the office of a weekly newspaper. Later he moved to Terrell, the county seat of Kaufman county, where his career really began. There he established and published for years a powerful weekly newspaper and there he invaded the political field. For many years thereafter he was one of the stormy petrels of Democratic politics. He had been a follower of Hogg and the close personal friend of Charles A. Culberson. He had been elected to the state senate, where he became very influential and was recognized in time as a tax expert of the highest ability.

He served as tax commissioner of Texas. He was always interested in freight and passenger rates and became an expert in this field. Then he decided to become, if possible, a member of the state railway commission. In his first race Senator Joseph Weldon Bailey backed John W. Hornsby of Austin. It is a matter of record that Colquitt ran away with Cooke county, then the home of the senator, and won the nomination. In time he became a power as a railroad commissioner.

* * *

FOR YEARS and years he was one of the best political fence builders in Texas. As a campaigner he ranked with the ablest that Texas has known. Not a brilliant orator, but a convincing speaker and a wizard when it came to marshalling facts and figures which caught the ears or the minds of the masses of the Democrats in the rural regions of the state, he never showed the slightest trace of fatigue in the most heated or long drawn out campaigns. He was not a statewide prohibitionist in those exciting times. He was a champion of local option in the settlement of the liquor question and this won for him the hostility as well as drew the fire of the prohibitionists who were becoming all powerful, the temperance organizations of the women of the state, the ministers of the churches who had invaded the political field and who preached from their pulpit and the school houses of the commonwealth, that the rum demon, which they declared had been entrenched in Texas almost from the beginning, had corrupted the morals and destroyed the souls of men and dominated the politics of the state which had known a Stephen F. Austin and a Sam Houston.

Colquitt has ever been a fighter. He struck back with a vengeance and among his targets were ministers of his own denomination. These were more than stormy times in Texas. Prohibition was the paramount issue and the destruction of the liquor traffic the every-day slogan of the pros, and this to the exclusion of all economic issues that attempted to thrust their faces uppermost. In his battle for railroad commissioner and governor, Colquitt had the backing of the thousands of small farmers and an army of tenants, known as renters. They placed prohibition in the rear. They placed land reform to the front.

Then he had the backing of the labor organizations for the most part. He had been their friend and their champion in his senatorial days and he had been the champion of fair freight rates for the producers of Texas, the growers of things, as a member of the railway commission. Regardless of the fact that the legislature, or at least the lower house, was dominated by the pros, many excellent laws were enacted during his first term. Campbell had succeeded in bringing about the abrogation of the convict lease system, but a Campbell legislature had made no provision nor had it devised a method or system for the employment of convicts.

* * *

IT WAS DURING the first term of Colquitt that prison farms were purchased by the state and the convicts were employed as tillers of the soil, or growers of things instead of having their services sold to the highest bidder, as the bodies and souls of slaves were sold in ante-bellum days to those who were in the market for human chattels. There was a partial revision of tax laws. Colquitt preached economy. He preached an equalization of taxes. He believed that the state ranger service should be reduced to the minimum or abolished entirely.

He insisted that the peace officers of cities and counties should enforce the law and that if it were impossible for them to enforce the laws they should call upon able bodied citizens and swear them in as peace officers until the majesty of the law had been recognized. In a crisis he believed that when a sheriff called upon a governor he should be given the assistance of the state military forces but this did not carry with it the implication that he favored placing the military above the civil law. He did not believe in martial law or in the injunction form of government.

Campbell may have broken the backbone of the convict lease system in Texas, but Colquitt was the man who made the fight, a successful one, against the use of the bullwhip in the prison pens and farms and for the abolition of the methods of punishment which had been declared time and again the shame of the people. He campaigned the state, with a big bullwhip in his hand, ever asking the voters if they would sustain by their ballots that implement of human torture. All the time the battle of prohibition raged. All the time Colquitt was denounced by his political opponents as a menace. All the time he was pointed to as the leader of the liquor and brewery forces.

All the time in the rural districts the farm organizations gave him loyal support and the most of the time in the cities and the towns the labor leaders and their followers fought the battles of the governor who had been a plow-boy and then became the editor of a powerful weekly newspaper and a political leader of his period. His greatest battle was fought in 1912. He had never sustained the Mexican policy of Woodrow Wilson. He did not believe in certain other policies of Woodrow Wilson. Colquitt comes of an ancient Georgia family and his forebears were soldiers who fought in the wars for American independence. Woodrow Wilson was nominated in Baltimore and the 40 immortals returned to Texas.

* * *

COLQUITT had opened his campaign for a second term. The 40 immortals were opposed to the nomination of Colquitt, the pro leaders were opposed to the nomination of Colquitt, the woman temperance organizations were opposed to a second term for the man they had branded as "Little Oscar." William F. Ramsey was selected as their standard bearer. He had been a judge in the court of criminal appeals by appointment. He had been a supreme court justice by appointment. He was a leader of the Texas bar. He was induced to resign from the bench "to save the state." He resigned and he ran.

In the years of his political life Colquitt had succeeded in building up a large army of political enemies. They saw his finish when Ramsey opened his campaign. They made their preparations to bury "Little Oscar" at the primary. There are thousands of men living who participated in that campaign. While it was on it reminded them of the days of Hogg and Culberson. It seemed as if the state was one seething caldron of boiling and sputtering tar. There were hundreds of spellbinders in the field, nine-tenths of them called for the relegation of Colquitt to private life.

Colquitt was the principal spellbinder of his own cause. He did the most of his campaigning, although here and there a few devoted friends appealed to the people to vindicate his policies by giving him their votes at the polls. As for the betting talent its shouters saw an easy victory for the prize candidate of the 40 immortals from Baltimore and the huge army of pros and Colquitt haters they promised to muster on the day of the primary balloting. It is ancient history. Colquitt snatched victory from defeat. He defeated Ramsey by a majority of nearly 50,000. He had become the little Napoleon of Texas politics instead of the "Little Oscar" of the vanquished side. He never changed his program which called for lower freight rates for the farmers and livestock growers, and he never changed base in his advocacy of just laws for the wage workers of the state.

He had many unfortunate run-ins as political wiseacres call them. He became engaged in a row with the Daughters of Confederacy, this over the possession of office room under the Big Dome. He followed the law but he did not bow to custom. He became involved in a row with the Daughters of the Republic as to who should be the guardian of the battlefield shrines of Texas. He followed the law, but he did not follow custom. In those days the women did not have the ballot. They had influence, just the same. In the long run the Daughters won. In the long run they did not forgive Colquitt.

* * *

A PLURALITY nomination handed the prize to an officeseeker for several years up to the renomination of Colquitt in his historic campaign which ended in the defeat of Judge Ramsey. Colquitt was ambitious to get to the senate. His uncle, Alfred H. Colquitt of Georgia, had been a noted senator from that state. He sent a message to the legislature in which he recommended a change in the nominating law providing for majority instead of plurality vote. He was warned that he might prove this his own undoing. He shouldered all responsibility. Then the lawmakers made the change.

Not long after his retirement from the office of governor, Colquitt announced as a candidate for the United States senate against Charles A. Culberson. There were other entrants. Samuel Palmer Brooks of Waco was in that race. Well, the campaign was exciting. Barry Miller did the campaigning for Culberson, the battle of the ballots came and Colquitt emerged the leader by a majority of 36,000. Culberson ran second. All the pros and all the anti-Colquitt democrats rallied to the flag of Culberson. Colquitt went down in defeat. If the plurality system had prevailed he would have won the prize in the very first engagement. He had met his waterloo. He bowed to the verdict of the people. He gave Culberson loyal support. He picked Dallas for his home. He engaged in the oil business. Many times since he has been a near millionaire, and many times the millions vanished. He did not withdraw from politics. When the klan issue came he declared against the Invisible Empire. He backed Mrs. Ferguson in the run-off race where Felix Robertson was put away. He was the first of the democratic leaders to split with the Ferguson administration and he gave his fullest support to Dan Moody in the campaign that followed. Indeed, he purchased a weekly newspaper and edited the publication from the start to the finish of the memorable political battle which resulted in the nomination and election of Moody as governor of Texas.

TIME rolled on. The fortieth legislature created a state tax commission of 15 members. Governor Moody named the former governor chairman of the commission. He accepted. He has submitted several reports, not official, but informative, to his fellow members and to the people of Texas, using the press as a vehicle of transmission. Early in the summer of 1927 he announced himself a receptive candidate for the office of United States senator in the campaign that will take place next year. Furthermore, he declared himself in hearty accord with the provisions of the 18th amendment and the Volstead act and for a drastic enforcement of all pro laws. He added, "I am not responsible for the 18th amendment or the Volstead act, but I am for rigid enforcement all along the line."

This must have been a rude jolt for many of his old-time supporters in the fierce campaigns which Colquitt precipitated in bygone days. Speaking of the press and press correspondence, Colquitt was one of the best copy makers that ever held office in Texas. Newspaper men were his friends, his office and the mansion were open to them at all times. He never ran away from a fight, never broke his word, never dodged an issue and if his body is covered with scars, think of the blows he returned to his adversaries in open fight and the scars he inflicted. We was well to do when he entered office; he was a poor man when he retired from office; he appointed his friends to place and demanded in return they should serve the state.

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK McCOY

Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Dr. McCoy, who can be addressed in care of this paper.

MANY TYPES OF APHASIA.

The police authorities in every city are constantly perplexed by true or faked cases of aphasia. The newspapers almost every day contain reports of persons being found who can not remember their names. Many of these people have simply told imaginary stories to account for their voluntary disappearance, and to make excuses which will be accepted by their friends or relatives to account for an absence which they are not willing to explain in any other way.

The true aphasia cases do not always present the difficulty over the memory of names, but sometimes the one so affected loses the power of control over the vocal cords, or over movements of the arms or legs. They actually forget how to make certain motions and when cured of the cause of their trouble they must learn the movements all over again.

Aphasia, in any form, is caused by some disturbance in the nerve centers of certain portions of the brain. A blow on the head or the breaking of a blood vessel may interfere with the nerve impulses emanating from the higher brain centers which control the intellectual processes.

Where this trouble occurs in children, the probabilities are that with proper care the patient will get well. A form of aphasia is often present with young children of decidedly nervous temperaments. Many children have difficulty in developing the power of speech. They are sometimes born with an improper development of the speech centers in the brain, but by careful training, such defects can be, at least, partially overcome.

The adult person who develops aphasia has very little chance for a complete recovery unless radical constitutional treatment is adopted. If a bloodclot has formed on the brain, this must be absorbed and the fasting treatment has proven best for the purpose of not only absorbing bloodclots, but for getting rid of the effects of an injury to the brain which may have been caused by a blow.

If the police would start fasting every aphasia patient, they would soon find that the faked cases would be cured in a day or two and the true cases would repond after a fast of from ten days to two weeks. It is remarkable how young children who seem to be dull and slow in speech development will show a sudden improvement after a few days' fast followed by a carefully restricted diet. Dull children who would otherwise grow up with only meager intellectual powers can thus be helped and their whole mental lives changed by a few days of fasting and then the establishment of a regulated, hygienic regime.

QUESTION: Mrs. L. B. A. writes: "Is there a cure for goitre without the knife? If so, what is it?"

ANSWER: All goitres can be reduced by dieting. Please send your name and address so I can send you a special article on the subject.

QUESTION: Mary B. writes: "What is the rose apple?"

ANSWER: The rose apple is the fruit of an East India tree that is grown in California for its foliage. The fruit, although very fragrant, is insipid and of no food value. It is used in the tropics for making jelly and preserves.

QUESTION: E. W. writes: "Kindly advise me if there is any harm in using non-perspirants for checking perspiration under the arms."

ANSWER: Your system is bound to be harmed by anything which will check elimination of poisons from the body. Stopping the elimination through the pores will hurt you in much the same way as if the flow of urine were partially stopped, or in the same way as if you did something to make your bowels more sluggish. It is all right for you to use some deodorant or just plain talcum powder which will keep the sweat from soiling your clothing.

Bogota, Columbia, has a real estate boom

Letters From Wichitan on Broadway

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—"And the night shall be filled with music . . ."

And this night was! It was the night of nights at the Metropolitan Grand Opera house when opened the first opera of the season. Oh, yes, there was music in the air when the clannish aristocrats, the well-dowered "recent arrivals" in Mayfair and the none-too-affluent long and bobhair geniuses who worship at the shrine of the lyric muse journeyed to that celebrated but somewhat antiquated temple of music, the Metropolitan, and were included in the under-dressed and over-jeweled throngs that went to make up the brilliant, glittering audience at the guilded nest of Gatti-Casazza's silver-toned song birds.

For more than four decades the unwritten law has decreed that the annual New York social season begin when the great yellow curtains at the Metropolitan part on the first act of the opening opera. Here in New York, society and opera go hand in hand. It is the one social institution that has not suffered to any great extent by the infusion of blood that is not of a combat hue and dollars that have been amassed in the sale of household commodities and patent medicines.

In the boxes the hostesses—the "parterre-ites" —entertain. Such parties consist of from six to eight. Their somewhat belated and noisy arrival occurs shortly after the curtain has gone up—coming directly from a dinner party at the Ritz or the St. Regis or the Park Lane, and they leave during the final act for a cabaret, reveling in the consolation of having dutily paid their debt to art and society, and having given the patrons of llese majesty a rare treat. Such a party, we understand, represents on average cost to the hostess of $567. True, they heart but little of the opera, and not being conversant with French, Italian and German, do not understand the small amount they have heard—even as you and I.

SUCH are the box patrons. One must possess a vast fortune to live up to an opera box. And as one is seated in the opera, so is his social status. Outside the socially enchanted semi-circle—the famous "glittering horseshoe"—of first-tier boxes, lesser folk assume places best suited to their rank and fortune. And from our seat in the lofty heights of this time-honored temple those on the stage resembled nothing so much as those characters such as one meets in that dust between consciousness and unconsciousness—unreal, eerie —and somewhat absurd.

But with the assistance of our program we know when Dreda Aves of Galveston, Texas,—daughter of an Episcopal clergyman there, and niece of the Bishop of Mexico —made her entrance. Likewise Lenora Corona, another soprano whose native town is Fort Worth. Miss Corona made her operatic debut in Naples, but, like Miss Aves, this was her initial performance in America. From the applause that drifted upwards to our belfry seat it appeared that Miss Corona had become what is known as a "hit."

Perhaps the most high-class of all New York's schools of music is the Juillia. The head instructor is none other than Joseph Lhevinne, who has had wide acclaim, and John Erskine sits on the board of regents. The school's clientel claims what is the "ultra" of talented student-musicians. Recently a contest was held to determine the most promising of all of Juillia's two hundred and fifty pupils. The winer was to receive a Fellowship Award for future tuition; being worth fifteen hundred dollars in the coin of the realm. Then the elimination began, and finally, before a large gathering of music critics, the scolarship and the coveted distinction was awarded Miss Katherine Kilander, daughter of Mrs. E. Kilander of Wichita Falls. Her wining selection was "Beethoven's Sonata."

Joseph Lhevinn ehas been Katherine's personal instructor for 14 months time. Soon, when her course has been completed, she will appear regularly on the concert stage, instead of now and then as she is doing at present.

* * *

KATHERINE is the second of Wichita's contribution to the New York circles of higher learning, and next Sunday you will hear of a young man who is climbing high in the field of art.

Among the recent Wichitans to visit Gotham were Mr. and Mrs. J. C. V. T. Christensen and their granddaughter, Miss Mary Donnell. They arrived here on the S. S. Frederick VIII following a visit to Denmark, Copenhagen, and a tour of Europe.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Huff and Dr. R. E. Huff passed through some time ago enroute to Texas following a long visit in the continent.

Blast Moves 125,000 Tons.

In a single blast at Kandos, N. S. W., recently, 125,000 tons of limestone were dislodged. Twenty-three holes, ranging in depth from 120 to 165 feet, were charged with 13 tons of gelignite, and all the explosive fired simultaneously. Ninety thousand tons of cement were taken from the mass of limestone.

VARIETY WITH PLENTY OF THE SAME IS TENOR OF WEEK'S BILL

STAR DANCERS FEATURE CARD

Lively Numbers Fill Out Majestic Program

Variety was the first name of vaudeville and is still the one preferred by many of the troupers who carry this form of entertainment to the public. The billing force of the Interstate must have had this in mind when they framed the show that will come to the Majestic Thursday and Friday. Almost all kinds of acts are on the program from a musical revue to croon songs and some straight work.

Count Bernie Vici and his "Symphonic Girls" occupy the lead on the bill and close it. Count Vici signed Louise Mele who at 17 is regarded as one of the real comers. She is the premiere danseuse of the act. The young woman started three years ago under the direction of Allen E. Foster and has been in featured in "Princess April," "Mercenary Mary" and other musical comedies.

The Perfect Physique.

Beside her fame as a dancer, Miss Mele is possessed of a wonderful physique and it has been called perfect by experts. She walked off with a contest on the New York Hippodrome stage where the judges were Bernarr McFadden, Anette Kellerman and the famous Rumania artist, Constantin Bodnar. Several Broadway producers were expecting to use Miss Mele until they found Count Vici had already signed her.

Natahane and Sully open the bill with what is described as a petite dance act. Very little is known of the act here and the press agents failed to send much ahead.

The second act is billed as Sim Moore and Pal in "The Whatnots." The pal is none other than George Chariand. This pair have a lively line of chatter and just as they seem to be getting well started on a good comedy act they burst into song and the first thing anybody knows some high class tumbling is started and other acrobatics. The four phases are so mixed that the act well deserves its name.

Bill Talent and Flo Merit have one in "Over the Plate" that at first sound should appeal to baseball fans. The critics, however, say it is a takeoff on reducing and Bill shows Flo some novel ways that unwanted flesh can be lost. He is ranked well up among the comedians of vaudeville while Flo is a talented singer.

Joe Darcy Himself.

An old friend to vaudeville fans over the country comes in the fourth and next to last spot, Joe Darcy. He sings as usual in blackface with an occasional wisecrack between songs. Joe has written several well known songs, perhaps the best "Mammy O' Mine" had a long run. He sticks almost entirely to the lyrics with the old negro tunes or those similar to them. He likes his comedy but is able to draw the line in time not to ruin his songs.

'Painted Ponies' Story of Thrills

Hoot Gibson Has Star Role In Picture

Plenty of laughs and thrills, interspersed with deft dramatic touches, constitute the prime ingredients in Hoot Gibson's Universal-Jewel western, "Painted Ponies," which will be the attraction at the Olympic theater today only.

The rodeo scenes depict some of the most exciting cowboy stunts ever filmed for they were made at the famous annual event at Saugus, California. Gibson, who performs on the back of a maddened steer, proves himself to be a real cowboy, still able to do the tricks that won for him the world championship in cowboy athletics three years in a row at Pendleton, Ore.

Ethlyne Clair, in the role of the refreshing, entrancing beauty for which a great many movie fans have been shouting, since her last appearance with Gibson in "A Hero on Horseback."

From the time Gibson appears on the scene, the hero runs into troubles and more troubles which lead up to a great many comic situations and the beginning of a love affair that supplies the heart throbs.

With such an ingenious blending of comedy, drama and the melodramatic, Gibson rises to new heights, to which he is assisted by a featured supporting cast, including, in addition to Ethlyne Clair, such well known players as "Slim" Summerville, William Dunn, Chas. Sellon and Otto Hoffman.

Tim McCoy Has Star Role In Film Of Early West Called 'The Frontiersman'

The greatest American Indian conspiracy against the western progress of the white man plays an important role in "The Frontiersman," a spectacular film produced by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer with Tim McCoy in the starring role, now showing at the Mission theater.

This production, based on a story of the times of Andrew Jackson and the Creek Indian war, has been elaborately filmed depicting upon the screen many of the stirring incidents in the life of "the fightin'st fighter" who ever became president of the United States.

McCoy looks the part of a frontier soldier and Indian fighter in his trim buckskins and his dress uniform. His deep knowledge of the North American Indian, coming from his years of association with them, has given him a sureness in these roles that few actors of far longer screen or stage experience could acquire.

His ability at performing screen stunts, his horsemanship and his screen personality indicate that it will not be long before Tim McCoy is one of the most popular stars of the screen. There is something about him so clean-cut and appealing that he cannot fail to win fan followers by the thousands.

The beautiful Claire Windsor plays her role of Andrew Jackson's ward in the same pleasing way she has interpreted feminine leads for years. She is not only lovely to gaze upon but she inspires any man in a picture audience to wishing he stood in the hero's boots just by matter of taking a little punishment for her before the final clinch.

Director Reginald Barker has come up to his usual standafrd for red-blooded, out-of-doors stories, in which he excels.

The cast includes, besides those already mentioned, such names as: Tom O'Brien, Louise Lorraine, Lillian Leighton, Russell Simpson, Chief Big Tree, Frank Hagney, John Peters, May Foster and others.

"Camille" With Norma Talmadge As French Heroine Feature At Strand

Will Norma Talmadge's stellar production of the Alexander Dumas classic, "Camille," in strictly modern form, be the forerunner of other modernized screen versions of famous plays and novels of past centuries?

In this question is found the essence of the interest that has focused the attention of the entire motion picture industry on Miss Talmadge's latest starring vehicle, feature attraction at the Strand theater this week.

It is considered quite possible that Norma's "Camille," regarded as one of the most brilliant screen performances of her career, will establish a vogue for the substitution of sleek limousines for stage coaches, and bobbed tresses for powdered hair.

Miss Talmadge wears her bobbed hair in "Camille," and while the Dumas classic comes to the screen unchanged in its basic theme or spirit, the settings and costuming are carried out strictly according to 1927 standards.

This new "Camille," produced by Joseph M. Schenck for First National, was directed by Fred Niblo and marks his first effort under a new contract with the Schenck organization.

Appearing as Norma's new leading man, in the role of "Armand," is Gilbert Roland, a young Spanish actor, who is the first virtually unknown player to be cast opposite the star. Other members of the supporting cast are Lilyan Tashman, Rose Dione, Harvey Clark, Alec Francis, Helen Jerome Eddy, Albert Conit, Michael Visceroff, Evelyn Selbie and Etta Lee.

Fred de Grasac wrote the screen adaptation of "Camille," the continuity is the work of Chandler Sprague and Olga Printzlau and the settings were designed by William Cameron Menzies, art director for all Joseph M. Schenck enterprises.

NOVEL THEME IN FILM STORY

"Metropolis" at Olympic Unusual Picture

An incredible motion picture is on its way to the Olympic theater. It is "Metropolis" the "cinemiracle" which will be seen here on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, and which recently shattered attendance records on Broadway. To those who like new faces on the screen "Metropolis" should offer the utmost in film satisfaction. Though the players are all well known to European audiences, they are new to America.

Even superlatives seem inadequate to describe the originality of the story, which deals with the problems of a visioned "Metropolis," the city where once man made machinery and now machinery makes man. The story is reminiscent of "R. U. R.," a romance of Robots, which graced our speaking stage several seasons ago.

Dwell Under City.

In "Metropolis," the workers, who dress alike, look alike and think alike, are merely called workmen and designated by number. They live miles below the city, and above them, though still under the city, is housed the machinery by which the town is run. The only bright moment in the strenuous 10-hour day the workmen put in is the respite they enjoy in hearing Mary, a girl of their own class, preach the gospel of salvation.

To counteract the girl apostle's influence, John Masterman, who runs the city, orders that a machine-made counterpart of Mary be struck off which will prevent the workmen using their brains and thus become dissatisfied. Rotwang, an inventor, "creates" another Mary, who causes death, disaster and ruination in the city before she is finally put to death herself.

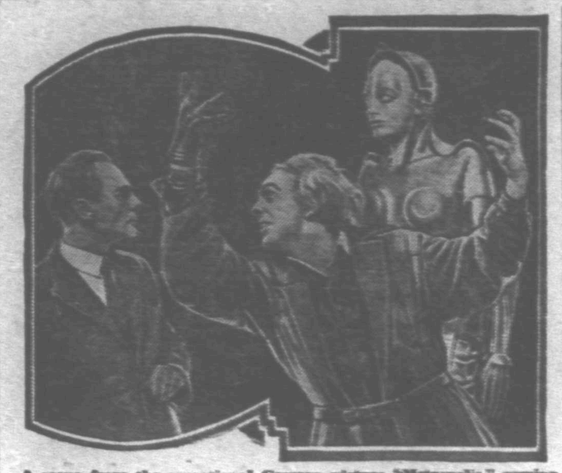

Even amazing sets are useless when a story doesn't "hold-up." But in the case of "Metropolis" the situations, acting and photography, go hand in hand with the stunning and imaginative sittings. The Tower of Babel sequence is especially effective, as are the scenes in which Masterman's son flees from his father's business to the city of the workmen. The conception of elecated streets, one above the other and each jammed with traffic hurrying in the same direction, is a breath-taking spectacle.

An Imaginative Tale.

The episode in which Mary's likeness is struck off from metal, and is like its pattern except for lack of soul, is astonishing. In fact, this highly imaginative tale, by its exquisite handling, is invested with a deal of realism.

Karl Freund, who photographed "The Last Laugh" and "Variety," outdoes even himself on "Metropolis," and Fritz Lang, megaphonewielder, turned out an excellent piece of work.

You cannot afford to miss "Metropolis." It is the best of the best German films and will hold you spellbound.

Comic Team At Majestic

Beery and Hatton In Laugh Maker

Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton have achieved the impossible. They have made four comedies in a row and each one is funnier than its predecessor.

The latest nonsense opera of this inimitable pair, "Now We're in the Air," opened yesterday at the Majestic theater. Beery and Hatton exceed anything they have ever done before for Paramount.

They are shown as a couple of boob aviators, who become such by wandering into a propeller testing room where six propellers are roaring at once and having their Scotch highlander costumes blown off them. Someone tosses them a pair of flying suits and they are off.

Mistaken identity dominates the theme. It does not end with the comedians being mistaken for fliers, but Louise Brooks, the charming and beautiful leading woman, figures in the mistakes. She plays twin sisters, one Germnn and one French. Wally loves the German girl and Ray the French; their problem of telling them apart is a tough one and leads to no end of amazing situations.

Beery and Hatton are first heroes of the Germans, and then heroes of the French. Naturally such good "breaks" don't last, and they find themselves before a firing squad and between the devil and the deep blue sea.

Gag after gag, some tried and true, but nearly all new, excort this funny pair through their celluloid adventures. The story has a refreshing resemblance to an actual plot, something not often found in comedies. According to the records, Monte Brice, Keene Thomson and Tom J. Geraghty are responsible for this anomaly.

The work of the cast is consistently capable. Malcolm Waite is the enemy spy who does the villainous work, Russell Simpson is the Scotch lord who hires the team as servants, and others are Emile Chautard and Duke Martin. Frank Strayer directed.

Rules of the Contest

Santa Claus' sack holds $500.00 in cash prizes for those who present the most attractive exhibits of the five pages comprising the "Santa's Sack Contest." This is the first page of the "Santa Sack Contest." Another will be published next Sunday and each Sunday until it has appeared five consecutive Sundays.

This is the way the prizes will be divided:

1st Prize	$250.00
2nd Prize	$125.00
3rd Prize	50.00
4th to 8th Prize, each	5.00
9th to 28th Prize, each	2.50

The requirements are simple. Anyone may enter—man, woman or child. All that has to be done is to write plainly and neatly the name of the "Santa's Sack Items" on each package appearing on these pages. They will be found in the advertisements appearing in this paper under the name of each firm whose name appears on the packages seen falling from Santa's sleigh. So turn to the advertisements and you will find in each some item followed by the words "This Is The Item for Santa's Sack," "Santa Claus Special," "Santa's Item" or some similar wording indicating clearly the item to which each firm refers. It is not possible to make a mistake.

The prizes will be awarded for the best appearing set of pages sent in. Color them if you wish. But they must be original pages that appear in this paper—no special drawings will be eligible. Do not send them separately, but wait until you have completed the last one which will appear December 11th, and send them all in together.

See that your entry has your name upon it, and be sure that it is delivered to the Editor, Santa's Sack Contest, care of this paper by December 15th, as that is the day we will close the contest, so that prizes may be awarded before Christmas.

FIGHTING UNDER FIVE FLAGS

to Douglas De Younge Silver 'As Told by Tracy Richardson

PART THREE.

THE STORY SO FAR:

In the first two chapters Richardson told how he and Sam Dreben, an American buddy, left the States to fight in Mexico as soldiers of fortune. In 1912 they joined the revolution against Madero. The two Americans were under the immediate command of Generals Salazar and Emiliano Campa and saw active fighting. After a number of successful battles against the Federals the rebel officers rested in an old ranch house, plotting the next day's move against the enemy. Neither Richardson or Dreben liked Campa who was treacherous, cowardly and the worst American hater in Mexico.

JUMPING FROM THE JAWS OF A FIRING SQUAD DEATH.

The next morning, in spite of considerable merrymaking the night before, we all got up fairly early and begun discussing plans which would involve attacking the Federals at the railroad again. There was a burst of activity in the little room occupied by our chief, Campa, and we heard a merry whistling accompanied by the bristly scraping of a razor in combat with a tough beard.

Sam Dreben walked over, opened the door and found Campa at death grips with a two week's old stubble. The General appeared to be in a high mood so Sam attempted an early morning pleasantry by observing that it was a nice day for a fight.

"Yes, sir, it is," agreed Campa, "and if I'm going into battle and maybe get killed I want to die clean."

"Well, I don't see why that should have any connection with shaving," answered Sam, "you never get close enough to a fight to get killed anyway. You might work yourself up in such a sweat running the other way that you would get pneumonia and die but that's the only way I can figure that a battle and your death would have any connection."

Campa let this crack pass without any comment but I noticed he eyed Sam sourly through the broken glass he was shaving by and grunted to himself in a way that boded no good to anyone.

We had a couple of skirmishes during the day but the main enemy body didn't show up so we went back to the ranch house late in the afternoon and laid around smoking and telling stories.

American Hater Vents His Spleen.

After supper I went to bed rather early and hadn't been sleeping very long when I felt someone shaking me. There was Campa's chief of staff bearing news that the General wanted to see me pronto. I reached under my head for my pistol but was told not to bother for that detail had already been attended to. Then I began to detect the odor of fish about the midnight awakening but could do nothing except follow the orderly to where the General awaited my displeasure.

When I was hailed before him Campa was sprawled out in a chair about half drunk. There was a litter of cigarette butts arrayed in a semi-circle before him and his cruel face twitched with as evil a smile as it's ever been my misfortune to observe.

Campa wasted no time in sparring around with suave preliminaries. He poured himself another drink with a bravado flourish and got down to business.

"Richardson," he growled, "your friend Dreben just tried to rape a woman and I'm going to have him shot. You and Zimmerman are Americans and I'm going to have you both shot, too. That's all I have to say so get away from here. The orderly will take you in custody."

Without more ado I was hustled into a little room which served as a guardhouse and where I found Sam. I knew Campa's ridiculous charge was without foundation because in the first place Sam was always the soul of courtesy towards women and in the second place there weren't any women around the ranch. Sam and I were both feeling pretty glum and knew that fast work was necessary to save us from the wrath incurred by that badly timed taunt Campa had absorbed while shaving in the morning.

We tried to force the heavy bars on the windows and to pry the door but didn't have any luck. I had forgotten to figure on my man Tomaso, however, who, as I later found out, had sneaked away from the house when he found out I had been summoned before the General, had gotten wind of what was up and had posted himself outside our guardhouse window to be of service, if and when needed.

While Sam and I were wondering what to do Tomaso loitered by the window and under pretence of lighting a cigarette whispered in that he was pushing right off for the mountains to fetch the men who were serving directly under Sam and me, to rescue us. They hated Campa as much as we did and we knew they could save us if brought down in time. It was a slim chance but we told Tomaso to make every effort to spread the alarm.

In the meantime Zimmerman had not been locked up, but had been refused permission to leave the Hacienda or talk to us.

At 3:30 in the morning a squad of soldiers stumped into the room, woke us up from a fitful doze and proudly announced they had been ordered to lead us outside to be executed. I would have sold out then for a nickel and so would Sam. It looked like curtains, with Campa ringing down the asbestos sheet which we probably would have needed right after the close of the show.

"All Over But the Shooting."

We were solemnly paraded out in the courtyard where we were joined by Jack Zimmerman and Homer Scott the photographer, the inventive genius who devised the dynamite train back at Rellano some time before. The latter was excluded from the executive order because he was a non combattant, and that was right where the General made a bonehead play.

Scott had already perfected a few of his own plans to save us. Unbeknownst to us he had hidden horses in the thick bush just outside the ranch and had posted several soldiers and officers who hated Campa to stand at the entrance to the courtyard. They were instructed to snipe off Campa just before he gave the firing order and then to fire into the mass of the executioners.

According to this plan, our only chance of escaping with our lives was in trusting to luck that the confusion resulting from the masked attack would create enough of a furor to let us make a quick exit. That was all Scott could do—and it at least gave us the satisfaction of knowing that if we were killed more than a few Mexicans would go along with us.

We were marched over to a convenient adobe wall and stood with our backs against it while Campa slowly marched up and down, wabbling slightly, the while he relieved himself of as excellent an assortment of Anglo-Mexican profanity as any of us had ever heard. Sam Dreben, Jack Zimmerman and I could do nothing but stand there and nervously wonder when the fireworks were going to start.

You can imagine the situation. We had heard by the grapevine route what Scott and his few cohorts were planning and we knew that Tomaso had gone for help which was due to return at almost anytime now. Also we knew that as soon as Campa finished his outburst he would probably give the firing squad an order to finish us then and there. It was a hot moment.

Finally the General appeared to be verbally exhausted so he wheeled with what was intended to be a magnificent gesture and pompously barked out, "Line up your firing squad."

An Indian officer, a man I'd seen kill many with his own hands as Campa's personal executioner stepped out in front of his men. He caressingly fingered his rifle while he flavoured me with an especially evil grin. To add to the setting I caught a hasty glimpse of friend Chino lurking in the background with a well satisfied smile spread across his face. It was small help to know that my impending death was at least going to make some people happy.

Group of rebel officers at Jiminez, Mexico, three days after rebel victory at Villa Lopez, Orozco revolution, Mexico, 1912. Left to right, Major Manuel Antillion, Sam Dreben, Tracy Richardson and Major Sanchez. Three days before, Tracy Richardson had been shot through the right lung bya Mexican sniper.

Right at this moment Sam Dreben decided to make a valiant stall for time so he boldly stepped forward and addressed the general.

"See here general," he rasped, "would you be kind enough to let us know about these charges you're having us murdered on? Get definite!"

Campa solemnly repeated the phoney accusation about Sam's mythical insult to Mexican womanhood.

"If you think I've attacked a woman, Campa," Sam returned, "all right go ahead and shoot me. But you haven't got anything against Zimmerman and Richardson here. Turn them loose."

Campa waved his hand brusquely as though the incident was closed and it was all over but the shooting. "You're all a bunch of dirty Gringoes," he snapped, "I'm going to get rid of every Gringo in Mexico and I'm going to start right here."

In the Enemy's Camp by Mistake.

He turned to his firing squad and was just about to give the signal to fire. Major Zapata, one of Scott's plant in the bushes stepped out, leading his men. He held up his hand and distracted Campa's attention, while he started to speak.

"Campa," said the major, 'this crazy butchery must cease. You're dead wrong and these men have all fought bravely for us. We officers have talked this thing over and won't permit the execution. If you insist on going on with this we'll place you under arrest and take you where Orozco and Salazar can find out all the facts. You're not the entire army, you know."

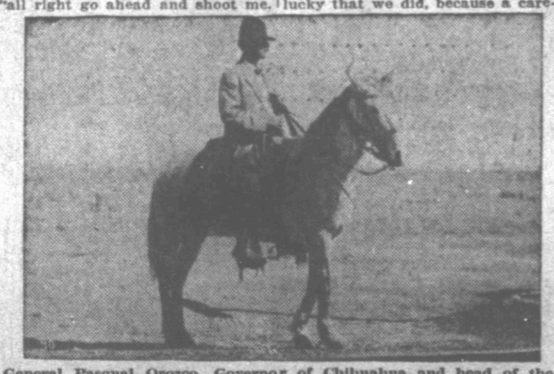

Zapata was looking straight into Campa's eyes when he said this and the coward faded. Then and there he abandoned the execution but moaned about it like a peevish old lady. Finally in a burst of irritation he insisted that Sam Dreben should leave his command. He played right into Sam's hand here.

"Say," sassed back Sam when he heard he was persons non grata. "If you were running the fanciest army in the world and buck privates were being paid a thousand dollars a day I wouldn't take a job in it as paymaster with headquarters ten miles back from the firing line."

That concluded Campa's serio-comic execution which came a little too close to being serious to be enjoyable. We got our horses, loaded on some food, filled our canteens and Dreben, Scott, Zimmerman and I barged off with five Mexican officers—all disgusted with Campa. We headed up the trail north to join Orozco or Salazar whom we knew were somewhere in the vicinity of Torreon.

After two days hard riding up the river valley we came to the town of Lerdo. It was night time and we kept right on riding past some campfires until we discovered suddenly we were right square in the middle of a camp of Federals. They must have discovered our mistake at about the same time we did for they started firing at us at close range. We fired back a few shots but spent most of our efforts in beating a snappy retreat. Only the fact that there were a few of us saved the party from being wiped out. We emerged miraculously from the trap with no casualties and galloped our horses ahead at full speed to the north, aiming for Bermejillo.

We knew Orozco had intended to make his headquarters there for an attack on Torreon. After riding furiously all night we drew up to Bermejillo with more caution than we used at Lerdo. It was lucky that we did, because a careful survey of the place revealed it to be in the Federals' hands, too. There was nothing to do but beat a hasty and quiet retreat.

General Pasqual Orozco, Governor of Chihuahua and head of the Orozco revolution against President Francisco Madero of Mexico in 1912. General Orozco was slain in a border clash with Texas rangers. Tracy Richardson served under him in the campaign from Chihuahua against Torreon.

Our position was now extremely ticklish. Twice we had tipped the enemy off to the fact that there was a band of rebels in the vicinity and before very long we expected to be aware of Federals in pursuit. We decided to make for Conejos knowing there were wells there and they would probably be held by our own crowd. Fortunately for us there were plenty of ranches along the way and we were able to change horses twice a day. We certainly needed to.

Pancho Loses a Meal.

We were riding on an average of twenty-two hours a day and living on parched corn, pallid, blue chickens and canteen water. Just when we got to Conejos we found out once more we were in the enemy camp and that they held the town. They were more surprised than we were—and their amazement was our only salvation, so we kept on going like the Twentieth Century running through Yonkers, New York. We headed right through the middle of the town in a northerly direction and were greeted with a fine assortment of rifle shots, mountain gun fire, shell fire and in fact every thing they had. None of their shots took effect, however, while our wild rush had one good result. The Federal horses were accidently stampeded which no doubt saved our lives again as it left the enemy afoot and gaping after us.

This was an unasked for boon and we decided to make the most of it by driving the steeds along with us as far as possible. In this way we hoped to make our insignificant party appear like a formidable army of several hundred instead of a paltry straggling nine.

On to the north we pushed feeling positive that at Rellano we would find our own men. This was the scene of our first tough fight and we all figured it would have been impossible for the enemy to have wrested the town away from the rebels. We followed the railway line for a few miles and captured a couple of stray Federals out foraging. From them we got our first word of Orozco and Salazar since our foray south.

We learned that Salazar had been badly beaten on his flank movement to the left and that Orozco had reached Bermejillo only to be severely defeated and forced to retire up north. Both generals had then been flanked, pursued and flanked again and again so that the rebels had been forced to retire back to the border at Juarez, terminating the rebellion.

This was sour news. Already we had ridden at top speed for two hundred miles and here we faced the prospect of about six hundred more to go. Fast riding, too, as the Federals were hot on our trail. We decided to make a wide detour westwirad, avoid all Federals and reach the border just as soon as possible. Day after day of hard riding followed. At nightfall we would stop for a brief meal and then push on once more—riding almost all night.

Late one afternoon when we were a little northwest of Parral we were approaching a ranch house. As we rode up there was a sudden bustle of activity near the entrance, as half a dozen horsemen rode furiously away. On arriving at the scene a few minutes later we found a good dinner on the table where our departing friends had been just about to sit down. One of the women in the house then told us that we had just scared Pancho Villa out of his evening meal.

Heavy Guns Rout Rebels.

We appropriated his dinner but right afterwards decided to clear out as we knew Villa wasn't going far and would probably be returning with reinforcements to revenge his lost repast. We rode all night and during the following afternoon were greeted by a courier from General Rojas of the rebels, who was holding Santa Rosalia. All the way up there had come rumors that a rebel army was fighting its way north so Rojas sent couriers out to guide us. We must have made rather an impression on the Federals for nine of us to expand into an army.

We headed for Santa Rosalia and after a while were met by a very high toned cavalcade consisting of General Rojas and his officers. They rode in fringed carriages and somewhere in the procession lurked a band which burst out into "La Paloma" as soon as we appeared around a bend. All in all our party felt quite heroic at this display, as we were escorted back to Santa Rosalia with honor.

We all had visions of rest and a big feed but were jarred to learn that Rojas had only recaptured the town the day before and aimed to retire towards Chihuahua that same night. They planned to leave by train though, so it meant we could get a night's rest during the trip.

We left on scheduled time and the next morning met Salazar who had grouped his forces on a siding. He gave us a cheerful welcome and pressed us for news of southern developments. After unloading our information he confirmed the report that both his and Orozco's columns had been defeated and that our profit had been the only one to even remotely approach Torreon. That morning the rebel cause looked pretty bad. Everybody was shy on ammunition and money.

We Americans decided to keep pushing on to Chihuahua and get thoroughly rested as well as spread ourselves to a few baths. After we got there we settled ourselves comfortably and began to lay in a stock of clothing. For two weeks we lived off the fat of a lean land. Everything we appropriated was paid for in vouchers on the Mexican government, some of which were redeemed and a great many of which, I regret to admit, were not.

Just as we were seriously settling down to enjoy the lighter side of being soldiers of fortune we got another jolt. This time it was a stiff one and permanently wrecked our Chihuahua vacation.

The Federals sneaked up north on us and before half of the gang knew what it was all about, began to storm the mountain pass at Bachimba, on the railroad. We all hustled down to the scene of action—a strategic place the rebels always had considered impregnable. So it might have been, too, had not General Huerta, the Federal leader, brought along several heavy naval guns with him and what those pieces didn't do to the vicinity of Bachimba isn't even worth forgetting.

A Town of Fighting Men.

This was the first time I had ever been under fire from really heavy guns and the experience was gruesomely nerve wrecking, especially as none of us could put up any defense and could only hide behind rocks, watching every shot spatter rebels all over the landscape. There was no chance to get the machine guns in action, or any other small pieces, so that when the enemy had thoroughly cleaned up with their big guns they swarmed through the pass—not, however, until what was left of the rebel army had cleared out for Chihuahua.

Sam Dreben, snapped in action, just as he had set up his Colt machine gun to open fire on the Federals at battle of Villa Lopez, in Orozco revolution, Mexico, 1912.

Our own party got back to the city in time to see a fearful panic in full sway. The Federals were momentarily approaching so everyone who had any connection at all with the revolutionary movement was rushing around sacking, looting and blowing up buildings preparatory to a quick getaway further north. Inhabitants milled and edged about frantically in an effort to save their possessions. Drunks swayed up and down the streets taking pot shots at any heads peering out of windows. Every once in a while there would be a dull crash as a party of looters blew up a safe or vault.

Dreben and I concerned ourselves mainly with getting out of the inferno alive before the Federals arrived, when we figured there would be even more hubbub. We deployed around back streets down to the railroad and were lucky enough to hop on a train just moving out for the border. Within a few hours we were back again at El Paso.

El Paso was just as interesting, if not quite as exciting, as the territory we had just left. All sorts of romantic characters roamed around the streets and convened in the bars. I met many men who had been in the first, or Madero revolution and each one had had enough adventure to last anyone for a lifetime. On account of the proximity to the United States this melee had drawn more foreigners than any revolution since the time of Walker's fillibustering expedition in the '40s.

This group, milling around El Paso right after the collapse of the Orozco fuss included Dan Mahoney, now famous as a newspaper publisher in Ohio, R. H. MacDonald and one Charpentier, a chap who ventured into Mexico to blow up railroad bridges. The latter's experiences in the desert and with cloudbursts would make the Beadle Dime novel series sound like bedtime stories.

There was another thrilling character around El Paso known as Dynamite Slim, quite unassuming and talking none at all unless he knew you. He was in the heighth of his glory when he could take a sack of dynamite bombs, light them one by one from his cigar, and toss them deftly over a wall into a heap of Federals.

Other rough and tumble boys who would rather fight than eat and who lent El Paso such a picturesque flavor at the time were Humdall, Morgan, Bulger, Tex Woodward, Jack Nenan and Jack Carlisle. I soldiered with both Tex Woodward and Carlisle and will tell of some amazing experiences shared with them later on.

Baby Vamps Hold Stage at Mission

Al Russell's Baby Vampires are still rioting their way through the hearts of their audiences at the Mission theater with the Bon Ton ballet and their gay selection of entertaining numbers.

Their third week of stage revue and stock presentation is more warmly welcomed each succeeding week, according to Charles Moorehead, manager of the theater. "Broadway Higgins," given during the past week met with unusually generous applause for its humorous points and deep appreciation of the more serious character of the presentation. The coming week will see a change of program that will offer variety and entertainment and "something different," in abundance.

The 16-piece orchestra of Hawaiians have entirely won over the many Wichita Falls folk that have heard them.

Twirls 38 Times on Toe.

The ballet dancing record for twirling on one toe was set by accident in London recently. Vera Nemchinova, the Russian ballet star, was to have emulated five other famous prima ballerinas by twirling 32 times. She started a few bars of music too soon, and the result was that she turned on her toe 38 times, which is believed to be a record.

How many carefully coiffured heads can stand the test of eyes only inches away, and reveal not a speck of dandruff? How many women can worm to the dance, and know their hair will have no taint for the partner who holds them close?

No one can be sure who has acid scalp.

If you even suspect this acid condition of the scalp, it is time for Danderine. This scientific preparation will neutralize any acidity; and dissolve all dandruff if there is any. And it always gives the hair itself a lovely softness and sheen. It will wave better, hold a wave longer, and behave better all the time if you just occasionally apply a few drops of Danderine. Try it! Every drugstore has this perfect conditioner of the scalp and hair, and a thirty-five cent bottle lasts for weeks.

CAL IS HOST TO AVIATORS

Lindbergh and Ruth Elder To Be Present

By Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—The cream of America's aviators, headed by Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, will be guests of President Coolidge at luncheon in the White House on Monday.

Ruth Elder, now receiving the plaudits of the world, will sit at the president's table and it is understood that all the aviators who have negotiated transoceanic flights will be included among the president's guests.

While the list is unannounced, it is understood that among those invited are Clarence Chamberlin and Charles A. Levine, who hold the long distance record; Art Goebel, winner of the Dole prize, and Lieutenants aMitland and Habenberger, who first flew to Hawaii, and George Haldeman, who piloted the Elder flight.

Music - Musicians

BY COBINA WRIGHT.

Noted Songstress and Society Leader.

(Copyright, 1927, By Universal Service.)

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—William M. Sullivan the well known lawyer and patron of music who has just returned from a three months' visit in Europe, tells me the following amusing little incident which occurred during his stay at Berlin at the Furstenhof hotel.

One night at dinner there, glancing over the menu in search of something unusual to whet his appetite, he discovered not only a peche melba, but a peche farrar. Summoning the maitre D'Hotel, he inquired the difference between the two peaches, curious to know what, in culinary circles, this fine operatic direction signified. The answer came, "Vell, Meester Sullivan, all ze defference in ze world!" "In Germany we like Madame Melba, but oh, how we lofe Farrar!"

THE TENOR, Gigli, Anna Case and Paul Kochanski were soloists at Clarence MacKay's recent dinner to the delegates of the International Radio Telegraph conference, on behalf of the Commercial cable and Postal Telegraph companies.

Kochanski, who loves a prank, made us all laugh when picking up the combined menu and program, he said to Gigli with a very serious face, "Aha, I see eyou are singing tonight 'The Caviar de Beluga!'" "Oh, no, no, no," corrected Gigli with that personal gravity somehow so characteristic of tenors, "I am singing Rachmaninoff!" Then after a moment, he realized the joke and laughed as much as Kochanski.

SPEAKING of Anna Case, her concert last week was a very gala and highly successful occasion. I was struck again with her great charm of personality. When she stepped out on the platform, massed with autumn leaves and flowers, she had captivated her large audience even before she began to sing.

A personal triumph, also, was Yolanda Mero's appearance at the New York Symphony last Sunday, when she played her own composition "Capriccioso Ungarese." She was recalled again and again, and I went back to see her, expecting to find her in a great state of exaltation at her success, but she told me she had suffered agonies of nervousness, and had asked herself whether the terrible strain was really worthwhile. How little an audience realizes the nervous strain an artist must undergo. And in spite of the torture Mme. Mero went through, she managed to conceal it all behind a gracious and winning smile.

The meeting scheduled for the Emma B. Childers Guild of the Episcopal church on Monday, has been postponed indefinitely.

England's new postal orders are declared to be to small to permit writing in of necessary instructions.

Revive Your Dull Skin

Now you can bring out the hidden beauty of your skin instantly. You can remove lines and wrinkles, pimples, blackheads, freckles, and other facial blemishes—lift up flabby skin—tighten sagging muscles—erase the shine from your nose—close pores by just patting on each day

Mme. Chernoff's A & B Astringent Bleach

This wonderful preparation, different from anything you have ever tried, performs the double function of bleaching the skin and acting as an astringent. It is the very foundation of a clear, firm skin. Nothing else that you can use will be quite as effective. It is the ideal powder base. You'll never know what a perfect skin is until you pat A & B Astringent Bleach on your face, neck and shoulders. Then watch the satin-like texture return to your skin. You'll feel its tonic-like effect immediately as it rouses your sluggish skin to action. And through daily use you will see your skin grow more and more lovely.

There is a complete line of toilet preparations made in accordance with Mme. Chernoff's formulas. Sold on money-back guarantee. At your favorite toilet counter. Remember, your money cannot buy finer quality.

Marion Talley in Favorite Poses

Marion Talley, youthful operatic star, has the reputation of being quite an all around girl and these pictures seem to bear it out. At the top left the Kansas City girl is shown in street dress while in the inset she is shown with the cap and goggles of an aviatrix. Below she is shown as a cook and is sifting flour on the dough board. The big picture at the right is taken in costume from her favorite part. She will appear here under the auspices of the Womans Forum, Nov. 25.

Womans Forum On Trial Here In Bringing Noted Concert Star

By MRS. DEANE J. WOLFF

When Edward W. Bok was 50 years old he retired from business and began to put into practice some of the ideals which he had gained through the busy years when he was following out other men's plans as well as his own. He dreamed of giving the best that the world had to offer in music and drama and literature to those who could appreciate it and often had neither the time nor the money to avail themselves of the programs of that kind which came to their city. Mr. Bok arranged a series of concerts and lectures for the people of Philadelphia with that one thought foremost in his mind. They were such a great success, not only from an artistic standpoint, but also a financial one, that he was able to bring the most splendid talent in the world to his city, and finally to arrange special performances at hours when differently employed persons might be able to attend them. He used the money that was made to secure finer entertainments and more opportunities for everyone to hear them. What a gift he gave to his city by opening doors of culture and enjoyment and growth to his fellow citizens, he changed the tone, the atmosphere, of his city.

Not many individuals ever have the money or the power to carry out their ideals. The Forum is not fifty years old, but in so far as it represents the ideals of you and me, it will have power. The Forum, in bringing Marion Talley to Wichita Falls on November 25, has the same purpose that Mr. Bok had. The concert must be a financial success. If this concert is a financial success, the eastern managers are going to have confidence in the ability of the Forum to manage a big attraction, and the Forum is going to have faith in itself, is going to believe that it can do big things. Then the Forum will be able to bring better and more interesting features to the city at low prices, and make this one of the avenues wherein it fills a real need and performs a genuine service for its beloved city of Wichita Falls.

Campus News

UNIVERSITY OF TEXAS CAMPUS, AUSTIN, Nov. 12.—The members of the Beta Theta Pi fraternity entertained with a dinner and formal dance Friday evening of the past week which was the most elaborate social affair given on the campus this fall. The dinner was held at the Driskill hotel preceding the dance and was attended by the fraternity members and an equal number of their co-ed friends. After a five-course dinner, they adjourned to the Austin Country club where the "Merrymakers" orchestra from Little Rock, Ark., played for the dance which was participated in by a large group of additional guests. White chrysanthemums and red roses were the flowers chosen for the decorations of the tables and club rooms, the tables representing wheels with spokes radiating from centerpieces of the favored flowers. Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Clough of Wichita Falls were among the chaperones for the affair. Among the dinner guests were: Misses Lillian Randle of Wichita Falls and Euela Pierson of Nocona and guests for the dance included: Misses Frances Ann Saunders, Wilton Wade, Thelma Fisher, Retta Barnard of Wichita Falls and Adele Housels of Vernon; Bert Ripley and Edward Smith of Wichita Falls; Virgil Childress of Bellevue; Gus Cook of Seymour, and Charles Farrington of Munday. Gerald Coffee and Leo Baldwin of Wichita Falls are members of the fraternity and Malcolm Body of Henrietta is one of the pledges.

"GOLDEN RULE" WEEK PLANNED

Gov. Moody Appoints Local Chairmen

The observation of "Golden Rule," Sunday, Dec. 4, set aside by President Coolidge and Governor Dan Moody to aid the 33,415 orphans under Near East relief care in Bible lands will be observed in Wichita Falls with special programs to be arranged by a number of local committeemen appointed within the last week by Governor Moody, it was announced here Friday. Churches in cities all over the state and nation are co-operating in the drive. The work in Texas is nominally in charge of the governor, who is honorary chairman of the various committees, although the active work will be in charge of Dr. Charles C. Selecman of Dallas, president of Southern Methodist university.

Active work in arranging the program of the day has not begun, but is expected to get under way within the near future, it was announced by local committeemen.

Moody Appointees

The appointments for Wichita Falls follow:

Mrs. J. A. Kemp, First Presbyterian church; the Rev. R. G. Percival, Grant Street Methodist church; the Rev. Frank Doege, First Evangelical church; the Rev. Gaines B. Hall, First Southern Presbyterian church; the Rev. L. S. White, First Church of Christ; the Rev. W. D. Cook, Yale Avenue Evangelical church; the Rev. C. S. Holley, Scotland Evangelical church; Mrs. Homer McGregor, First Baptist church; Mrs. J. W. Bradley, Highland Heights Christian church; Mrs. T. T. T. Reese, First Christian church; Mrs. B. H. Davidson, Grace Methodist church; Mrs. T. R. Boone, Floral Heights Methodist church.

The appointment letter to the local chairman of this city says in part:

Observed Last Year

"International Golden Rule Sunday, Dec. 4, observed last year in all states and scores of foreign countries, is now firmly established.

"My earnest desire is that Gloden Rule Sunday be observed in all of the communities in the state, and appreciating that this canont be accomplished excepting through strong, local leadership, I hereby appoint you chairman and ex-officio member of the golden rule state committee, of which group I have the honor to preside as chairman."

Music At The Churches

The importance of the musical programs in the churches of Wichita Falls for this Sunday are especially stressed, many soloists, quartets and duets being scheduled to appear in the majority of the morning and evening services. The arrangements are perhaps better than those programs given during the last two weeks, more numbers of a classical nature having been chosen by the persons appearing on the programs.

At the first Methodist church, the musical attraction of the morning service is to be a violin solo, Schubert's "Ava Maria," by Miss Oscar Lillian Bilbo. The morning anthem, Handel's "Holy Art Thou," is to be rendered by Miss Modena Howell, vocal soloist who will be accompanied by the church choir under the direction of Joel H. MacGregor. Miss Minnie T. Baker and the choir will give the evening anthem, "The Voice of Jesus," by Ashford. The solo number of this service will be "One Sweetly Solemn Thought," (Ambrose-McKinney), which will be given by a quartet composed of Messrs. Hansen, MacGregor, Bohmfalk and Gray. In addition, special organ numbers are to be given by Mrs. J. W. Akin Jr.

Mrs. O. E. Nicholls, organist at the Floral Heights Methodist church, will open the morning musical program with two selections, "March," by Lefebure-Wely, and Mailly' "Invocation." Mr. Aldrich, Mrs. Thorburn and the choir will give as the morning anthem, Wildemere's "I Will Love Thee, O Lord." A duett, "Love Divine," will be sung by Mrs. Thorburn and Mr. Evans. "The Crussaders," (Voickman) and "Memories," by St. Clair, both organ solos, will be given by Mrs. Nicholls at the evening service. Soloists for this service will be Mrs. Thorburn, Mrs. Thompson, Mr. Evans and Mr. Aldrich, who will render the quartet, "Ad the Heart Panteth," by Ashford.

At the First Presbyterian church morning service, the Rev. Daniel E. Grieder, junior pastor, will give a baritone solo as the chief musical feature. During the evening services, "Turn Ye Even to Me," arranged for a quartet, will be rendered by Mrs. Hallie Adams Hill, Mrs. J. M. Bell, Paul Von Allmen, and the Rev. Daniel E. Grieder.

The morning anthem at the First Southern Presbyterian church is to be given by Mr. Kitchell, with the assistance of the choir, who will sing "Turn Unto Me," by Suter. The Gospel solo of the evening service will be given by George C. Taylor, while the evening anthem, "Saviour Breathe An Evening Blessing," is to be sung by Mrs. Underwood and the choir.

The choral choir of the Grace Methodist Episcopal church will sing the morning anthem which has been selected as Gabriel's "Praise Him Forever," Mrs. Torby Fletcher and E. O. Albert, soloists of the morning, will sing the duet, "Drifting," by Ackley. The choir will sing Gounod's "Send Out Thy Light," at the evening service.

Three organ solos are to be given at the morning services of the Church of the Good Shepherd: "Prelude in F," by Schackley; "No Shadows Yonder," by Gaul; and the "Postlude in B Flat," by Hamer.

Mrs. B. B. Woodall is to be the soloist at the morning service at the Floral Heights Presbyterian church. She will sing "He Shall Feed His Flock," by Handel, and "O Rest in the Lord," from Mendelssohn's "Elijah." In addition, the Rev. and Mrs. David Rees-Jones will sing "Face to Face" (Tullar), by special request. At the evening service, Misses and Burgess Eason and Elsie Mae Shofe will sing "Tell It Again."

18 GIRLS GET "NEW CHANCE"

Oldest of Girl-Mothers Is Only Sixteen

Eighteen girls from Wichita Falls are having "another chance" to make good.

How? Because the secretary of the Children's Aid—and in age they are "children"—knows that most of the finest folks in the world are those who have built their lives above a misstep, and that girls who have made the most tragic misstep of all are no exception.

The 18 girls from Wichita Falls are in a San Antonio home, where they were sent by the local welfare worker, at different times during the past year, before their babies came. A picture of the whole group, taken for record for the Children's Aid office, looks like a group of little girls with their dolls. There are shadows on some of the young faces . . . but the San Antonio home workers do their best to remove those shadows, and to make the girls understand that the past is past and the future holds golden possibilities.

Public Opinion.

The unmarried mother problem has long been the most grievous with which social service workers had to grapple, mainly because of one thing: A hard and pharasaical public opinion. "What's the use of bothering with a girl like that?" has been the attitude in the past.

The situation is changing now. And as it has changed, the future has opened white pages for these poor little youngsters who yesterday would have clasped their babies in their arms with absolute hopelessness for "tomorrow." There wasn't any 'tomorrow' then.

The youngest girl from Wichita Falls in the San Antonio home—cared for and sent by the local Children's Aid secretary—had a birthday on the day her baby was four months old. It was her eleventh birthday.

Oldest Sixteen.

The oldest one of all is just sixteen.

The girls stay in the home at least a year and learn a trade; they may stay longer if they wish and work and keep their babies. Sometimes the babies are released by their young mothers for adoption.

"But every single one of the girls from Wichita Falls," the Children's Aid secretary said Saturday, "is keeping her baby. They have all talked over their plans with me, and that one thing is fixed in their minds: That it's their baby, and they're responsible.

"They will go to some town where they are unknown, get a job at whatever trade they have learned and arrange for the baby's care during the day."

The San Antonio home has a remarkable record of girl-mothers who have "made good," either as wives or in business.

THE SUMMER VACATION THAT WAS TOO GOOD TO LAST

By GEORGE ADE.

Once there was a Wife who gave the Money-Getter a Vacation by going into the Country for a Month. Dearie took her to the Train, and all the way she kept saying that it did not seem just Right to romp away on a Pleasure Trip and leave him Shell-Roaded.

He began to fear that she would Weaken, so he told her that while he was slaving and sizzling in the Train had flirted around the Curve, for he knew that she was watching him from the Observation Car. Then he threw his Hat in the Air and began to do Flip-Flops.

"O, I suppose this is Miserable," he said. "I can see a very poor Month ahead of me—yes—not. Me wearing all my Bells and taking a Hurdle every Furlong."

He rushed in to the Telegraph Office and sent a Wire to her, so

"Sitting Alone in the Gloaming Thinking of the Absent One.

City, it would give him sufficient Joy to know that Darling was out in the Woods, listening to the Birds. He insisted that she should stay until she was thoroughly Rested. Of course, he did not dare to make it too Strong. He played the Self-Sacrifice Gag and threw in a Dash of Marital Solicitude, and made an awful Try at Imitating one who has been soaked by a Great Sorrow. As the Missus looked at him through her Tears and held his Salary-Hook in hers, little did she suspect that he had framed up a Poker Festival for that Night and already the Home Brew was spread out on the Ice.

He had told her that he was going to sit up in the Library every Evening and read Macaulay's History of England. By opening the Windows on both sides he could get a nice Breeze from the West. Along about 10 o'clock if he got Sleepy, he could turn in. Why not?

Gamey Friends Do Their Stuff.

It was a lovely Time-Table that he had mapped out. He submitted it to Pet before she went away and she put her O. K. on it, even though her heart ached for him. Breakfast at the strange Boarding-House. A day of Toil interrupted by a small Bunch of Food at the Dairy Lunch.

Then back to the unfamiliar Faces at the Boarding-House.

Then sitting alone in the Gloaming, thinking of the Absent One.

Then an Hour or two in the Library with the jovial Macaulay.

Then to Bed in the Lonesome House and Dreams of Sweetie.

He gave her a Schedule which she could consult at any time, Day or Night, and thereby find out what he was doing at that Moment. It was just as convenient as sending a Marconi every Hour or so.

He held himself down until the that it would catch her at the first Station up the Road. It said not to worry and to take a Good Rest and everything was moving along about the same as usual. With love and Kisses.

After which he went over to Mike's to see if the Volstead Act was still unheard of there.

Hubby went up street with his straw dipped down in Front, the same as the College Rakes wear them and his Coat was thrown wide open to show the dizzy Pleats. His Cuban Blood was all het up and he told himself that he was 19 years old and never had a Home.

Oh, but he was Nifty. He was out of the Corral and into the Red Clover and nix any Halter and Box Stall for him. At least not for a Month.

It happened that he had the usual number of disreputable Friends. They were All Right, but he did not dare to have them up to the House, because Angel-Face had investigated them and returned True Bills. They were a little too Gamey for Presbyterian Circles but they fitted right in at any Function where every man takes off his Coat.

Husband began to use the Telephone and in the course of an Hour he had organized a Pirate Crew that would go as far as you like at any Game from Pitch-and-toss to Manslaughter.

For when a decent Married Man does start out to find something different from the calm Joys of connubing in a Side Street, he is the Village Limit.

Husband had the whole Shop to himself. He employed a Senegambian who was a good two-handed Worker with the Corkscrew. Then he had $40 worth of Dutch Lunch sent in from the Delicatessan and arranged the Stacks of Reds, Whites, and Blues. He told himself that the only True Enjoyment was found in Bachelor's Hall.

When the War Path Got Too Rough.

His Hickey Acquaintances came in, showing more or less Stage Fright, as they were not accustomed to seeing Rugs and Tidies. They told him he had a Swell Joint. After they had been to the Tea a couple of times they began to peel and one of them started some rowdy Work on the Piano. Another backed into a $30 Statuette and put it out of Business and then offered to pay for it, but the Host said it cost only 98 cents at a Bargain Sale.

At 10 p. m. the wife, who was in Upper Seven, referred to her Time-Table and saw Papa sitting by the Student's Lamp, reading Macaulay. She had no way of knowing that Papa had just been strung for a Month's Rent in a Progressive Jack Pot.

In the Morning when Papa arose and looked at the cold Welsh Rabbits and saw the Cigar Ashes all over the Place and when he had a Taste as if he were taking care of a Lap-Robe, the glad Bohemian Existence did not look as Good to him as it had when lighted up the Night before. Especially as he had got the Zoop for some 80 Buckerines.

Still there is no one case of Remorse that is going to head off a Man who wants to be rejuvenated. He pulled himself together on the Second Day and resumed the Merry Clip and there was nothing doing in the Macaulay Line. Home did not get him until the Lights had winked out in the other Places. He would not leave the Stag Club or Mike's non-Volstead place until they began putting the Chairs on the Tables.

For the first two Weeks it was immense. In time, however, it struck him that there was a certain monotony in spending one's Money on the Night Owls and showing up with the Milkman. The Poker Players were into him and he began to suspect that he needed a Guardian.

Like every other man who sends his Wife to a Summer Place, he ended his Hurrah by making a few Resolutions and begging her to come Home.

And she will always believe that he did the Macaulay Act every Evening while she was away. Which is just as well.

"Coming After Mother Friday," Wires Daughter in Pathetic Case Here

A happy old lady left Wichita Falls with her daughter and son-in-law from east Texas, Saturday afternoon, the three waving farewells to Mrs. McHam, Wichita Falls Family Relief worker, who had got them together.

The case was just another one of those involving "traveling" mothers, as the too-often pitiful swapping of an aged parent from one child to another over the country is called by the social service workers. This time, however, mother was very much wanted and the whole trouble came about simply through returned letters and a fine old lady's pride.

"Please come out here and talk to an old lady in my house," a rooming house keeper begged Mrs. McHam early last week. Mrs. McHam went immediately and found the old lady, ill and penniless, in bed in her room.

It developed that she had insisted on "making a home" for a younger son in one of the trades in Wichita Falls. When labor conditions got so bad and he lost his job things went from bad to worse and he finally found a cheap, clean little room for his mother and put her in it, leaving town occasionally to hunt work and doing the best he could. It was while he was gone and left what little cash he had with her, that she got sick. The money went for medicine and neighbors came in.

But the old lady refused to tell the names of any relatives until Mrs. McHam came. She had daughters—but she seemed afraid that they'd come in for some criticism because of the circumstances. Finally, however, Mrs. McHam persuaded her to tell.

Letters to a daughter down in East Texas and another in Missouri went by special delivery on the first mail. And almost before the East Texas one was expected to arrive at its destination a message came winging back. "Coming after Mother Friday; please take care of her."

That was Wednesday. On Thursday afternoon a letter came to Mrs. McHam from the daughter in Missouri. "The last letter I had from mother she was just fine," she said. "I am worried to death. Please take good care of her until my sister gets there. She wired me she was going. My sister wrote me a week or two ago that she had had two letters returned from mother and thought she had just moved. She was worried, but thought, of course, it was all right—"

Friday night late the daughter and son-in-law from East Texas drove in, having come 300 miles since early morning. And Saturday morning all three were on their way back home.

AUBURN SETS SPEED MARK

Stock Model Car Does Mileage Skillfully

Twenty-seven years ago, when the Auburn Automobile company was established, an automobile was a curiosity. Those pioneering souls, who had an insatiable curiosity, would buy the machines produced in that day, to satisfy a desire to determine the possibility of the extermination of the horse-drawn vehicle and just to see if it would run.

With the improvement of the performance, the automobile came to more general use. More and more people bought this new type of conveyance, until it became a fixed law of society, that a family should own a motor car. This was the era when the passenger car was used for pleasure purposes only.

Practical Uses

At about this time some enterprising person discovered that his pleasure car could be turned to practical purposes. Some hustling salesman found he could make calls faster, than previously and adopted the automobile to further his private interests. Others noted the progress he made and copied the idea, until the automobile came into general business use.

In those early days there were few cars. There were few service stations to keep these cars in running order. There were fewer tools and little experience behind the repair work. Often the service station manager did not know what an equitable service should be and was forced to do considerable experimentation before he could arrive at a conclusion. There was no chart by which he could guide his operations.

Today a business man, with the use of an automobile, can make a 100-mile trip in a little more than two hours and save enough time out of the day to transact the essentials of his routine activities. His work is speeded up materially. His business range is broadened. His time counts for more.

Auburn Makes Record

"Automobiles are, today, a practical thing, adaptable to business as never before," says E. L. Cord, president of the Auburn Automobile company. "An Auburn car made 1000 miles at an average speed of 68.34 miles per hour, at the Culver City, Cal., race track on March 15, and could have traveled on indefinitely. Another Auburn car traveled 58.24 miles per hou rfor 75 miles at the Atlantic City speedway on May 7.

"On July 4, at Salem, N. H., an Auburn car, for 100 miles averaged 89.19 miles per hour. At the Atlantic City speedway in early August, Auburn cars ran 15,00 miles, in less than 15,000 minutes. These cars were strictly stock cars and capable of continued, indefinite service. Many other examples could be cited, to show that the automobile has proven itself an integral part of our modern existence, so woven into the woof and the warp of our complex business life, as to make it indispensable."

Parasols for Maud Mullers.

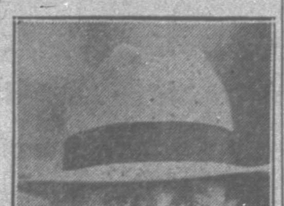

Maud Mullers of Germany who must rake hay while the sun shines are to be provided with large parasols that leave both hands free. A canopy that is supported by steel tubing attached to the shoulders has been perfected. It is light in weight and may be folded when not in use. Artists, gardeners and others who work in the open are also taking to the new device.

Crusader's Ghost Returns.

A crusader's ghost, fully accoutered in armor, is said to be haunting Portchester Castle, near Portsmouth, England, one of the most perfect Roman fortresses in existence. The only one who has come forward as an eyewitness of the knightly wraith is a woman who says she saw it kneeling on a spiral stairway.

Takes Control Of Tire Company

J. H. Durnal, for the past year and a half general manager of the Durnal Rubber company, has purchased the entire stock of the company, to be known in the future of the Durnal-Michelin Rubber company.

Mr. Durnal is well known in Wichita Falls and surrounding territory as one of the most successful business men. His tire business is easily among the leading in this part of the state, doing both wholesale and retail business. His complete remodeling of the building located at 806 Travis makes it one of the most modern in the city.

Graham Brothers Open New Plant

Operations in the new plant at Stockton, Calif., for the production of Graham Brothers trucks have been started and production is to be stepped up as rapidly as possible, according to an announcement today by Dodge Brothers, Inc., the parent company. The new building makes this plant one of the largest in Stockton in size and in value of its products, it is claimed.

Graham Brothers business has been particularly good this year on the Pacific coast, registrations of Graham Brothers trucks in California in the first nine months leading those of any other company. Because of the materfal gains which the company has made west of the Rocky Mountains it was impossible for the former plant to turn out enough trucks to meet the demand and it became imperative that facilities be greatly increased.

A new truck for delivering ice cream is equipped with an electric refrigerator which manufactures ice as needed.

Dodge Posts $500 Prize For Best Letter Each Month On Automobile

Responses already received indicate a widespread interest in the prize letter competition begun recently by Dodge Brothers, Inc., in conjunction with the broadcasting of "Dodge Brothers' Dependable Hour of Music" each Friday evening over the Columbia chain of radio stations.

A cash prize of $500 will be awarded each month to the writer of the best letter on "Why I Own a Dodge," or "Why I Want a Dodge." The contest is open to everyone except Dodge Brothers' and Dodge Brothers dealers' employes and members of their families.

Letters are not to exceed 150 words and are to be based upon the writer's own experience with Dodge Brothers cars, the experience of his friends or any other logical line of reasoning he may choose. Sincerity rather than literary style will be the basis upon which the best letter is chosen and the winner will be picked by a committee of prominent citizens.

The conditions under which the contest is being conducted provide that the best letter received each week will be read during each of the Friday night programs over the Columbian System and the winner for the month will be picked from those read. Letters must be written upon special blanks which can be secured from and Dodge dealer. There is no limit to the number of members of a family who may submit letters but no individual may submit more than one a month. All letters must be addressed to Radio Committee, Dodge Brothers, Inc., Detroit, Mich.

The stations which are included in the Columbia system the country from Newark, N. J., as far west as the Mississippi. They are: WOR, Newark; WEAN, Providence; WNAC, Boston; WFBL, Syracuse; WMAK, Buffalo; WCAU, Philadelphia; WJAS, Pittsburgh; WADC, Akron; WAIU, Columbus; WKRC, Cincinnati; WGHP, Detroit; WMAQ, Chicago; KMOX, St. Louis; WOWO, Fort Wayne, and WCAO, Baltimore.

Paulk Answers Radioer's Question

One of the most popular questions asked of the radio and battery dealers today is—which is better, a storage battery or a power unit?

"Each has its own peculiar advantages and disadvantages," claims Kendel Paulk of the Wichita Falls Battery company, Willard service station dealer here.

"A power unit may be the ideal accessory for one man's radio set, and be absolutely impractical for another. Makers of the better power units design and build them to be adapted to all standard makes of raido sets, and where the set owner has electric light power, they give excellent results.

"Many people, however, have homemade sets or those built by amateurs or non-standard circuits. To many of these types of sets, power units are not adaptable.

"To tell whether power units or storage batteries should be used, it is necessary to take into consideration such things as the kind of set, the number and kind of tubes in the set, the location of the set, the availability of lighting current and a number of other details. The set owner in doubt should consult a reputable radio dealer or service station," concludes Mr. Paulk.

New Light-Vapor Beauty Bath.

Light and vapor baths are the latest idea in Paris for beautifying the face. Beauty experts have introduced a cabinet that gives both at the same time. The steam is said to open the pores, while blue rays from the special lamps stimulate the circulation. The treatment is said to be very soothing as well as beneficial.

CHRYSLER MEN ADVISE OWNER

Pointers Given On How To Prepare For Cold

At this season the prudent motorist, taking time by the forelock is beginning to consider approaching changes in driving conditions and is planning how best to put his car f order for winter months.

Chrysler service experts, following the Chrysler policy of assuring to owners the fullest possible enjoyment of their cars throughout the year, have outlined a program of preparation. They advise motorists to make use of service station facilities, wherever possible. But as there are always a certain number of owners who prefer to condition their own cars for the winter, these suggestions will be read with profit by many.

The first step advised is to remove from the oil pan any accumulated sludge and to refill the pan with fresh oil, taking care that it is of good quality. Frequent changes in oil, taking care that it is of good quality. Frequent changes of oil afterward, in conjunction with proper adjustment of crankcase ventilator, will continue to safeguard oil circulation.

Next, the chassis should be completely lubricated and the oil changed in the transmission and differential. The generator shoud be thoroughly inspected and cleaned and any worn parts replaced. With this done and the battery checked and recharged the electrical system will have plenty of "punch."

Other important items on the schedule include cleaning of gas tank, vacuum tank, carburetor and gas lines, and adjustment of the carburetor to proper winter setting. The cooling system should be thoroughly flushed, worn hose replaced and anti-freeze solution poured in.

Successful experiments with powdered coal indicate that it will soon begin to replace oil fuel on ships.

News and Views With Wichita Dealers

R. W. Ferrall, Oldsmobile and Cadillac dealer at Vernon, was a visitor in Wichita Falls Wednesday. While in the city he bought a new Oldsmobile coach and an Oldsmobile de luxe sedan from the Birch Motor company for Vernon customers.

C. C. Myers of the Wichita Hudson-Essex company has returned from a business trip to Dallas. While there he obtained six new Hudsons from the Ferguson Motor company, distributors of Hudson cars in Texas.

McKanna Motor company reports the sale of a five-passenger Packard 6 sedan to M. I. Wells, women's ready-to-wear dealer of Vernon.

Oran Key of the Overland Motor company of Vernon reports numerous sales of Whippets and Willys-Knights in his territory. He recently accompanied representatives of the Knight-Whippet company of Wichita Falls to Dallas where they obtained six new cars, three for Vernon and three for this city. He has sold three Willys-Knights and nine Whippets to Vernon customers this month.

D. L. Fritz of Fritz Motor company was in Quanah Thursday boosting LaSalle cars. He recently sold a LaSalle coupe to J. J. Perkins of Perkins-Timberlake company. Mr. Perkins referred him to a Quanah business man as a LaSalle prospect, so he went after the prospect.

"Cap" Hunt, Oakland dealer at Seymour, was a visitor at the local plant of McElreath Motor company during the past week.

J. F. Rudd of Dallas, representative of Nash-McLarty Motor company, state distributors of Nash cars, was a visitor at the Nash-King company a few days ago.

"October was the biggest month in Chevrolet history," O. E. Brown of Fox-Brown Chevrolet company said Thursday. "During the month Chevrolet delivered 112,064 cars at retail. Judging by our sale this month, it looks like November will at least equal the record of October. Our business has been steady all year, with no appreciable letup at any time. Chevrolet dealers are enjoying a satisfactory business throughout this territory."

C. T. Boone, general manager of Knight-Whippet company, was in Dallas several days during the last week conferring with factory officials. "Just trying to induce them to assign us an adequate supply of Whippets and Willys-Knights to satisfy the trade in this territory," he said.

Fritz Motor company delivered a new LaSalle town sedan to C. A. Everets during the last week.

"From Baseballs to Automobiles" may be the title of a story written about Fred Fussel, Spudder pitcher who goes to Pittsburgh next season. This Wichita Falls diamond hero joined the sales force of Wichita Hudson-Essex company during the last week. "He is playing at top speed in this auto game just like he played baseball out there on the diamond," Manager Myers declared Thursday.

C. R. Hooks, Texas representative of the Gardner Motor company, was in Wichita Falls Wednesday and Thursday arranging a shipping schedule for gardners with the Birch Motor company: While he was here M. T. Birch, manager, ordered one of the new Gardner 75 club sedans. "It is the lowest price straight eight on the market," Mr. Birch said. They expect to receive a shipment of Gardners within the next week.

Claud Red, manager of the Lincoln department of the Langford Motor company, was in Burkburnett on business Thursday.

Dr. J. B. Nail, member of the Wichita Falls Clinic hospital staff, purchased a new Packard 6 sedan from McKanna Motor company several days ago.

"Cotton money is keeping automobile dealers and salesmen on the jump in northwest Texas these days," P. M. Backus of the Knight-Whippet company averred a few days ago. "Cotton raisers and cotton pickers who have profited from good crops and good prices are buying automobiles, especially used cars. Many of them want Whippets. We receive calls for cars from our dealers in towns west of here for new and used cars nearly every day. These cars are sold to those who have cleaned up during cotton season."

Henry Streit, Studebaker and Erskine dealer at Vernon, was a visitor in Wichita Falls Tuesday. While here he bought a new Studebaker Commander coupe from Fritz Motor company. He drove it home.

Bob Cornelison, manager of McFall Brothers, Dodge dealers, was in Electra on business Thursday and Friday.

"I haven't delved into historical records to find out what were the achievements in the past, but I do know that the last week has been a big one with us in the used car business," J. L. McElreath of McElreath Motor company declared Thursday. "Our used car supplies are dwindling every day."

The first of the new Hupmobiles—the car that is causing wide and favorable comment wherever it is shown—arrived in Wichita Falls Friday when L. O. Brown of Victory Motor company returned from state headquarters at Fort Worth with one of the new designs. This is the first of the new line to be exhibited here. The Victory company expects to receive a carload shipment of the new Hupmobiles within the next week or ten days.

C. L. Baldwin placed an order with McKanna Motor company for a new 5-passenger Packard 6 sedan during the week.

F. N. Payne, used car manager with Knight-Whippet company reports a "splendid week's business." He said they have sold practically every cheap used car in stock.

Other automobile men may have been busy in their chosen line of commercial endeavor during the last week, but not so with S. A. Phillips, assistant sales manager of Nash-King company. As a newly-wedded man he could find little time for the automobile business, according to his associates at Nash-King company. He married Miss Sardony Warren late last Saturday night. She was formerly employed with the Dent theaters. They are at home at 2014 McGregor avenue.

Birch Motor company started a new used car sale Wednesday. Six cars were sold during the first day of the sale, according to Mr. Birch. Dealers from all over this section of Texas, as well as individuals, have been buying more used cars than ever before, Mr. Birch said.

Langford Motor company reports recent sales of three new Lincoln cars, with orders received for two more special Lincoln jobs.

W. W. Griffith of Whippet-Knight Auto company of Crowell, was a visitor at the local Whippet-Knight plant Wednesday. He returned to Crowell with four new Whippets. "Money is more plentiful than automobiles in Crowell," he said.

Dr. E. M. Ammon, dentist of Munday, purchased a new Hudson Standard sedan from Wichita Hudson-Essex company during the last week.

J. Y. Littleton, in charge of the service department of Fox-Brown Motor company, reports business as "humming" in his department. Business has been good throughout the fall, he declared. There has been no particular pick-up in business, he said, but it has been normal and satisfactory all fall.

A. C. Spillars of Dallas, Oakland factory representative, was a visitor at McElreath Motor company during the week.

Birch Motor company delivered a new Oldsmobile sport coupe to T. R. Ziegler of Wichita Falls several days ago.

I. W. Daw joined the sales force of McKanna Motor company last week. He was formerly connected with the McKanna firm, but has been in New York for the last four months.

G. W. Bills of Altus has been appointed Knight-Whippet dealer in that Oklahoma city. He was here during the last week, driving three new Whippets back to Altus with him and leaving orders for two carloads, rush shipment, with the local Knight-Whippet company.

L. W. Williams, service manager of Prather Cadillac company of Dallas, gave an interesting, illustrated lecture on the new Cadillac and LaSalle cars at the Fritz Motor company plant Monday night. His lecture was illustrated with motion picture scenes showing the various fine points of the cars in detail.

E. J. Shepherd of Denver, Colo., purchased a new Gardner sedan from Birch Motor company several days ago. Mr. Shepherd is a brother of Dave Shepherd of the Wichita Cleaning and Dye works.

Mr. Bradley of Bradley Motor company of Lubbock couldn't get enough Pontiacs delivered to him at Lubbock to supply the demand, so he came to Wichita Falls last Thursday and purchased two of the new cars from McElreath Motor company.

CADILLAC HAS BIG PRODUCTION

October Output Establishes New Mark For Month

DETROIT, Nov. 14.—October production of Cadillac and LaSalle cars by the Cadillac Motor Car company reached a new peak for all time, according to preliminary figures just released by H. M. Stephens, the company's general sales manager.

The company's plant has been running very near to capacity out put since the beginning of production of the new Cadillac and continued so throughout October. Average daily output is 175 to 180 cars per day. Expected production for the month was 4276 units, a gain of five per cent over September which was the biggest previous month in the company's history. This tops production in October, 1926, by 43 per cent and the biggest previous October by 30 per cent.

Preliminary figures of shipments also indicate that October shipments the second largest of any month in Cadillac history, the largest being March of the current year. They will surpass September shipments by six per cent, shipments of October of last year by 93 per cent and will be 25 per cent greater than any previous October in Cadillac history.

Production schedules based upon demand for both the LaSalle and the new Cadillac call for 100 per cent increase in output through the current 12 months.

Beware Carbon Monoxide Gas Is Warning Given to All Drivers

The approaching winter season brings to mind the need of precaution for all motorist against the ever present carbon monoxide gas that lurks in the exhaust of all motor cars propelled by gas engines. Though the results of this deadly gas are known to most motorists the fatalities that occurred last year were mostly due to lack of care in guarding against the serious consequences of inhaling the carbon monoxide fumes.

Mr. T. H. tSambaugh, general service manager of Olds Motor works, has sent bulletins to the Ooldsmobile dealer organiaztion suggesting that they write all Oldsmobile owners warning them of the carbon monoxide fumes contained in the exhaust of all automobiles and tha tthe danger is just as great in public garages as in private garages.

Advice to Drivers

He advises motorists—

"Do not run the engine while your car is in a closed space.

Open your garage doors to their full limit before starting motor.

"Do not run motor in garage after starting, even though doors are open. Drive the car outside and let the warming-up period take place in the open air.

"After driving into garage, shut motor off immediately and leave garage."

One of the most dangerous features of carbon monoxide gas is the fact that it is odorless, colorless and tasteless, therefore, it cannot be detected by any of the sanses. It is so insidious that a person breathing it has little or no warning before becoming unconscious. One of its first reactions is an instant loss of motive power, thus preventing the victim from escaping even if he realizes his danger, says Mr. Stambaugh.

How Gas Affects

"When taken into the lungs carbon monoxide uniteds with the hemoglobin, the oxygen-carrying substance in the blood, more readily than does oxygen itself, thereby excluding the oxygen and causing suffocation. The affinity of carbon monoxide for hemoglobin is about 300 times greater than that of oxygen."

"People who are repeatedly exposed to carbon monoxide gas usually experience the following symptoms—tired feeling, dizziness, mental confusion, headaches, nausea, palpitation of heart, sleepiness and loss of appetite."

The Oldsmobile service director concludes his warning with the advice that if a person is found overcome by carbon monoxide that the victim be removed at once to the fresh air, and, if breathing has apparently stopped, artificial respiration be started pending the arrival of a physician and an oxygen-carbon-dioxide inhaler.

Ex-Follies Girl Eeeks Fortune

Declaring herself the widow of the late Alfonse H. Morgan, wealthy Cleveland, Ohio, business man, Mrs. Ann M. Gowans, former Follies dancer, has entered claim for a widow's share in his fortune. She says they were never married by a clergyman. Instead, she repeated the words of the ceremony which a justice of the peace had read to her at a former marriage, and Morgan repeated the words after her, he says. They kept their "marriage" secret because they did not wish to antagonize her husband's family, she asserts. Mrs. Gowans is above, and, inset, her "best friend," Mis Audrey Clapp, Chicago model, a former Clevelander, winner of a "perfect form" contest there, who testified in Mrs. Gowans' behalf at the opening of the case in probate court.

WEDDING VEIL - By FANNIE HURST

The World's Highest Paid Short Story Writer

Author of "Lummox", "Humoresque"

© McClure Newspaper Syndicate

THE wedding veil was three yards long. It was inset with medallions of Venetian point-lace. Point-lace medallions that had been made by a group of six Italian women, who had spent four years over them in a lace factory in the shadow of a Doges Palace. A bride of just sixty years ago had worn them mounted on the three yards of ephemeral tulle when she was married to a young army officer named Conrad Laclead, whose father had been one of the early settlers of old New Orleans.

It was a wedding as lovely as a bit of old garden or an oval painting on a fan. There had been sixteen bridesmaids, in sixteen graduated tints of orchid. Mrs. Conrad-to-be had walked down an avenue of magnolias-in-bloom when she was married to the tallest, the handsomest man in the world. The sixteen bridesmaids had carried petunias, the color of the deepest shade of orchid worn by the tallest of them.

A Wedding Not to Forget

There was a fountain in the garden that bounced a huge silver ball on its spray and on the side porch of an old house that was half-buried in foliage, six old family negroes stood spellbound at the beauty of the scene.

It was a wedding that faded back into the memory as fragrantly as old lavendar. Sixty years later, when Mrs. Conrad Laclead lifted the fragile, slightly-yellowed veil with the medallions made by the six Italian women in the shadow of a Doges Palace, out of its box, it lit up the room. In beauty.

Sixty years later, Mrs. Conrad Laclead's grand-daughter, whose name was Tress, was about to wear that veil. It was the first time it had stirred from its lavendar since Mrs. Laclead's own daughter had worn it just a year before Tress's birth.

Mrs. Laclead's hair was as white as the veil now. A rich ivory white. There was a bandeau of orange blossoms shirred against the front where the tulle formed a little cap that fitted the curls.

Contemplating it, a pucker came between Mrs. Laclead's eyes.

Such a Veil On Bobbed Head?

The great difficulty was, Tress had no curls. Her head was all shorn, like a boy's, and somehow, for the life of her, the grandmother could not quite visualize its beautiful, almost sacred descent to a head that was shorn like a boy's. Her own curls had peeked out so like tendrils, that day sixty years back, in the garden in old New Orleans. Her daughter's hair had been brown and soft, almost like a baby's as it seeps out of its cap, as the veil had descended for the second time.

And now, somehow, it was all a little strange and a little queer to the old lady in her pretty room of cretonnes and mahoganies. The veil almost seemed to flutter of apprehension.

What sort of a bride was it about to descend upon? It was about to descend upon no bride at all. It took young Tress, who was eighteen and who had a body like a slim young sapling, just five minutes to kiss the nonsense of the wedding veil away from her grandmother's worried brow. Tress and her fiance, who was a junior member of a banking firm, were just going down-town and be married in no manner at all. The spectacle of the wedding veil, filling her grandmother's room with its luminosity, sent her into peals of laughter.

Tress Thought It Was to Laugh

Imagine Tress in all the fol-de-rol of a wedding veil! Imagine the junior partner viewing her bowed little, shaved little head in a wedding veil.

Old darling duck of a grandmother. Weddings in old-fashioned gardens in old New Orleans just weren't being done any more. Why, Tress wasn't even going to have a ring.

Shades of dear old Grandfather Conrad Laclead, who had been dead more years than she was old! Fancy the junior partner tripping himself up in the voluminous folds of yards of wedding veil! It was to laugh. It was to laugh to such an extent, that Tress, whose vitality was something that took your breath away, hugged and embraced and teased and babied her little old grandmother and then rushed off with the junior partner and was married.

The news came up to Mrs. Conrad Laclead by telegraph. The young couple were already speeding in the junior partner's racing roadster on a honeymoon, and one hour later, twenty dozen camelias, sent by her adoring grand-things, arrived between layers of cotton in a pink-and-gold wicker hamper almost large enough for Mrs. Conrad Laclead to lie down in.

The fragrance filled her old room with old memories of New Orleans. The fragrance filled her heart with new ache for the shorn head that had been married without the blessing of the three yards of tulle veil.

The tulle veil filled the room. Crammed the room. But with heart ache.

Tress had been married in a Magistrate's dusty room in the heart of a banging city. Grand mother had been married in a garden of love.

Tress Wore Veil by Proxy

It was as if by proxy, Mrs. Conrad Laclead would bestow upon Tress the beauty and the romance of a wedding in New Orleans. With the camelias all about her, that the young honeymooners had sent her, dozens of them banked against chairs, along mantel pieces and a great shower of them on the divan, she let the wedding veil slide softly on to her ivory white hair. It came down with the caress of a dove. It came down gently; as gently as she remembered the fingers of Conrad Laclead had caressed her the day that they were married.

Why, how voluminously beautiful she was in the veil! It swirled about her feet. Her parchment-like little face shone out beneath the bandeau of orange blossoms. And so did the curls. Soft little tendrils that mingled with the blossoms. For a long time, Mrs. Conrad Laclead stood before the peer glass with a shower of camelias in her arms and the wedding veil in a swirl of beauty around her.

Then she sat down and still continued to gaze straight ahead of her as if the tulle were a mist that was bearing her along like a cloud.

For a long time she sat there. For such a long time that her maid, looking in, spoke her name softly and then when she received no answer, shook her, gently at first and then quite roughly.

There was almost the look in little Mrs. Conrad Laclead's dead face, that she had worn in the garden of old New Orleans sixty years before.

FANNIE HURST

Why, how beautiful she was in the veil! For a long time she stood before the peer glass.
