EIGHT CHARRED BODIES REMOVED FROM PLANE

Young Couple And Baby Boy Drown When Boat Capsizes On River Near Austin

TRAGEDY ENDS FISHING PARTY ON COLORADO

River Accident Near Capital City Fatal For Young Family

Small Motorboat Overturns To Close Group's Week-End Outing

AUSTIN, Sept. 8. (AP)—A week-end fishing party had a tragic ending here today with the drowning of three persons, when a motorboat capsized on the Colorado river.

F. J. Bryant, 24; his wife, Gladys Bryant, 22, and their baby boy, Freddie James Bryant Jr., 3, all of Austin, lost their lives.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bryant, also on the boat, were rescued by Frank Gullette, and a youth whose name was not learned.

Father Grasps Baby

Bryant was seen to go down clasping his baby boy in his arms.

The party was returning from an all night trip up the river. The stream was on a rise, following heavy rains north of here. Progress of the boat was difficult on account of driftwood.

The boat turned over opposite the Austin boat club landing and the three who were drowned went down in 15 feet of water. Normally the river is not more than seven feet deep at this point.

When they saw the boat capsize, Gullette and his companion set out in a skiff and pulled Thomas Bryant and his wife into it. Bryant was a good swimmer and was able to keep his wife afloat in the face of drifting logs.

Relative is Boatman

J. L. Roselle, expert boatman and experienced fisherman up and down the river for 25 years, father of Mrs. Fred Bryant, lamented the fact that he did not go on the trip as he had been urged to do by his son-in-law and daughter.

"I might have been able to bring the boat safely home," he mourned.

The bodies had not been recovered late tonight.

Flag Halfmast In Honor of Robison

AUSTIN, Sept. 8. (UP)—A lone star flag on the state capitol building where the legislature recently considered the impeachment of James T. Robison, state land commissioner, flew at halfmast today in memory of the exonerated commissioner.

The body of Texas' veteran official, oldest both in age and in service, will arrive here Monday from New London, Conn., where he died Saturday after a six-week siege of pneumonia. His funeral will be held Tuesday with burial in a family plot in Oakwood cemetery where a daughter and son already lie at rest.

Hit-and-Run Plane Rips Into Tiny Boat

NEW YORK, Sept. 8. (UP)—A commercial airplane pilot was held for questioning tonight as police investigated the first hit-and-run airplane accident, which resulted in the death of one fisherman and serious injury to another in Jamaica bay today.

William Brown, 52, of Brooklyn, was killed and John Dee, 55, was injured when their motorboat was struck by a seaplane which was just leaving the bay. The plane did not stop.

World's Oldest Man, 143, Killed When Run Over by Car

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 8. (US)—After living through 143 years which compassed many wars and epidemics, Zaro Agha, the world's oldest man, met death here today under the wheels of an automobile. Zaro Agha, remarkably agile despite his nearly a century and a half, had planned shortly to make a tour of the United States.

SOAKING RAINS FALL SUNDAY

Plains and North Texas Again Drenched

Heavy downpours of rain in scattered sections from the South Plains area to Vernon and other points in Northwest Texas were again the order of the day Sunday, but they failed to match the mark set Saturday, when four inches of rain fell in certain Northwest Texas areas.

A long drouth was ended at Vernon Sunday by a heavy rainfall totaling slightly under one inch. The precipitation was general over that area. Olney reported two inches of rain in three hours, bringing the total rainfall in three days there to four inches. About on inch of rain fell over Dawson county Saturday night and Sunday.

None of the towns reported damaged crops Sunday, the rainfall being unaccompanied by hail or high winds. On the contrary, Vernon reported that cotton men there are of the opinion that the rain was not too late to insure a good crop. Other points likewise reported the rain as beneficial to cotton and late feed crops.

The rain which fell Saturday, reaching its highest precipitation point at Lockney, where four inches fell, was accompanied by damaging hail at Abernathy, Hale Center, Slaton, Brownfield, and Plainview. Tulia, Childress and Pampa received an inch or more of rain, and Kress and Plainview less than one inch.

Light rains fell in the Wichita Falls area Sunday morning, precipitation totaling .06 inches.

Later in the night, however, rain recommenced here in the form of heavy showers which fell intermittently accompanied by forked electrical displays and rumbling thunder. At first only brief downpours, they later gained in intensity, a heavy rain starting to fall about 1 o'clock. At that hour the continued lightning and thunder and cloudy skies indicated the precipitation would last far into the night.

HEAVY DOWNFALL AT FORT WORTH

FORT WORTH, Sept. 8. (AP)—Rainfall here Saturday night and early Sunday amounted to 1.38 inches. The maximum temperature today was 89 degrees.

Gasoline Bath Envelopes Five Men in Flames

WINK, Texas, Sept. 8. (UP)—Five oil field workers were seriously burned near here late today when gasoline they were using to wash lubricating oil off their bodies became ignited, enveloping them in flames.

The men, all employes of the Republic Oil company, were brought to the hospital here. Physicians believed that only two of the five would recover.

Those most seriously burned were George Jackson, Albert Helms and Martin Smith. The other two were R. C. Jackson, the brother of George Jackson, and D. H. Fisher.

There was scarcely a spot on the bodies of Smith, Helms and George Jackson where they were not seared and physicians believed their deaths were only matters of time. R. C. Jackson and Fisher were burned on the limbs.

FIRES THREATEN

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 8. (AP)—Forest fires scattered over 600 miles square in Minnesota threatened to spread over a wider territory tonight while forestry department official continued to impress labor into the ranks of fire fighting crews.

SENATE SCREEN RISES TODAY ON TARIFF BATTLE

Wordy War Over Hawley-Smoot Bill to Open At Noon

VETERANS IN FIGHT

Smoot Will Defend Measure As Simmons Leads Demo Attack

By FRASER EDWARDS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8. (US)—Wham!

A sledge-hammer stroke from the huge gavel wielded by the strong right arm of Vice President Curtis will knock a little shower of dust from the green baize cover of the dais table and rebound through the senate chamber as the hands of the great gold clock above point to noon tomorrow.

The Fight Opens

It will serve as the gong announcing the opening round of the free-for-all fight over the Hawley-Smoot tariff bill. Many will bear honorable scars of battle sustained before it is over. And that may be long after snow flies and perhaps not until the grass grows green again.

Once more, at the signal, two aging veterans of three tariff fights—Sen Reed Smoot, of Utah, chairman of the finance committee, and Sen. Furnifold Mal Simmons, of North Carolina, ranking Democrat on the committee—will face each other across the aisle and resume the hostilities of a quarter of a century.

Sparks will fly immediately when these two clash. Tall, angular Smoot is the prophet of high protection. Diminutive Simmons is the sage of the competitive tariff school. Contrasting in stature and thought, both are intense and determined last-ditch fighters for their views.

Whispering Battle

After Smoot starts the ball rolling with a statement made in almost whispered tones, Simmons will offer his resolution to obtain the income tax profits of corporations which will be benefited under the bill. While Simmons may occasionally raise his voice to a hoarse roar and Smoot yell in high-pitched tones in the debate that ensues, sooner or later this pair will be at their familiar stunt—whispering.

Standing toe to toe in the center aisle they will hold a secret debate. What they say will not be known until the congressional record appears next day. Newspaper correspondents and the official reporters on the floor will be driven to distraction and the visitors in the gallery wonder what it is all about.

Robinson's Voice Booms

There will be no difficulty in hearing every syllable when Sen. Joe Robinson, of Arkansas, Democratic floor leader, enters the fray. The booming voice of the Arkansan will make the chamber vibrate to the accompaniment of emphatic hand-smacking and desk-pounding.

Nor will ears need be strained when genial Sen. Jim Watson, of Indiana, takes the floor to sustain the action of the committee and combat the Democratic assaults. For he too can make the welkin ring with old-fashioned Republican tariff doctrine.

It will be the business of this pair to hold their respective forces in line.

The marvelous voice of Senator Borah, of Idaho, will be lifted until it crackles and peals like dreadbolted thunder as he appeals for the farmers and castigates his own party for failure to redeem its campaign pledges.

East to Be Heard

The voice of the industrial East will be heard in the measured tones of Sen. David A. Reed, of Pennsylvania, defending and justifying the rates granted great manufacturing concerns of his state.

The trumpet tongue of Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, will ring as he harasses the Republicans. And again the soft Southern twang of Tom Connally of Texas, the ponderous periods of Sam Shortridge, of California, the pedagogic utterance of Hiram Bingham, of Connecticut.

And so on down the list will rage this wordy war—each fighting for that strange mixture of personal and party politics, protection of local interests, divergent doctrines and patriotic statesmanship that go to make up a tariff bill.

Republican Committee Members Guests at Dinner at White House

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8. (US)—The president and Mrs. Hoover gave a dinner tonight at the White House for all of the members of the Republican national committee, who are here for their special meeting tomorrow.

Though it was a scorching week-end, the president cancelled his usual week-end retreat to the Blue Ridge mountains of Virginia in order to consult the committeemen and women on the status of party affairs.

Committeemen here to elect Claudius Huston of Chattanooga, Tenn., as chairman to succeed Dr. Hubert Work, tomorrow, gathered the impression that Mr. Hoover is eager to see reoraganization plans, perfected and put into effect.

The national committee has been resting on its laurels of the last campaign many leaders freely declare. Mr. Hoover as titular head of the party was said to believe that the work of the organization should be a continuous educational process.

Wichita Falls Water "Poorest in State," Says Moreland in Sermon; "Why Hesitate to Submit the Bond Election?" He Asks

By REV. PATRICK D. MORELAND

A sermon-editorial given Sunday from the pulpit of the Grant Street Methodist church

Whether or not the proposed water bonds are submitted to the people of Wichita Falls for their approval or disapproval, the fact remains that we are paying heavily for a hard and unpalatable water supply.

From a lake used for boating, fishing and amusement purposes, the water runs through an open ditch where anglers, colored and white, fish. Then we use it for drinking purposes after it has been treated with chlorine. Antiquated mains, much too small and needing replacement, distribute the water to the consumer. In some sections of the city the pressure is woefully weak, thereby creating a hazard that may result in a conflagration. The pressure is also weak during the early hours of morning before day.

Our city manager tells us that this inferior system will require an expenditure of $100,000 to repair it for next summer's heavy demands. To defer the submission of these bonds will cost this large sum, continue the present inadequate system, and perpetuate a deplorable condition.

It can be said reasonably that Wichita Falls has the most unpalatable water and the poorest system of any city of its size in Texas. A dubious honor and a costly one, noticed by every visitor to our city and long remembered. An advertisement of weakness and neglect.

"The City That Faith Built."

Does this refer to the past? Why hesitate to submit the bond election to the people?

Every bath taken upon election day will mean an affirmative vote.

WATER VOTE UNDECIDED

"Taxpayers Not Ready," Says Alderman Patton

Indecision remained foremost in the minds of the aldermen Sunday with final reading of the ordinance authorizing an election on a $1,400,000 bond issue to provide Wichita Falls with pure, soft and adequate water scheduled to come up at the meeting of the city council Monday night.

Action Delayed

Definite opinions could not be obtained and it seemed likely that the decision of the chamber of commerce, favoring the bond issue but refusing to sanction it at this time, will bear weight with the aldermen in whatever action is taken Monday night. The ordinance was passed on first and second readings with several members of the council absent and it was decided that the third reading should be postponed until the full council was present. With all the aldermen present last Monday night, it was decided that the third reading should be postponed another week.

Alderman J. H. Patton told The Record News Sunday that he had favored action on the bond issue earlier in the summer but that the council had not taken action at that time.

"I do not favor action at this time," he said, "because I do not think the issue would carry. I am inclined to think that the recommendation of the chamber of commerce will affect the action of the council Monday night and that the final reading of the ordinance will be postponed again. I am in favor of improvements in the water system and always have been, but I do not believe the citizens of Wichita Falls are ready for those changes now."

Penny Wise

The cost of holding the election, in the event the council would pass the ordinance on third reading, would be about $150, according to W. E. McBroom, city clerk. No other expenses would be entailed by the election whether the issue passed or was defeated, it was said. In the event the ordinance is indefinitely postponed, as seems likely Monday night, the city will have to spend approximately $100,000 in patching up the present water plant in order to make it sufficient for consumption demands, according to George D. Fairtrace, city manager.

The water situation has been up before the city council at various times for the past three years, it was said, and on each occasion action has been deferred.

Cantwell and Puffer To Speak at Vernon

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, Texas, Sept. 8.—Dr. Adams Puffer, widely known boy expert and author of "The Boy and His Gang," arrived in Vernon Saturday and will be one of the main speakers on the two-day institute of the Vernon and Wilbarger county schools meeting at the Vernon High school Monday. Dr. J. W. Cantwell, superintendent of the Wichita Falls schools, is another of the feature speakers.

Doctor Puffer is to make a number of appearances before local organizations during his stay here.

Three Victims of T. A. T. Plane Disaster

These three men met death when the City of San Francisco plunged into a New Mexico mountain. Right to left they are Henry Beers, of New York, editor of a golf magazine who was a passenger, A. E. Dietel and J. B. Stowe, pilots.

Wichitan Injured, Seven Escape, When Car Figures in Double Mishap

C. C. Norris in Hospital After Running Into Stalled Auto on Henrietta Road; Fire Follows Crash

Seven persons narrowly escaped serious injury or death, C. C. Norris, 2106 Ninth street, suffered a fractured jaw bone, several broken ribs and severe cuts and bruises on the face and body, three automobiles were damaged and one car was completely demolished by flames following an accident about 11:30 o'clock Sunday night on the Henrietta road about eight miles from Wichita Falls.

Mr. Norris was brought to the Hargrave-Walker hospital by a passing motorist. Physicians stated that his condition was not considered critical but he will have to remain in the hospital for some time. He was reported resting well at an early hour Monday morning.

The automobile which was destroyed by flames belonged to Mrs. W. S. Tyson, wife of Dr. W. S. Tyson, 1502 Monroe street. Engine trouble which developed shortly after the car had left Jolly necessitated a stop by the roadside, Mrs. Tyson said. They had been stopped only a few minutes when the car was struck from the rear by an automobile driven by L. E. Murrell, 1716 Collins street, slightly damaging the gas tank of Mrs. Tyson's car.

The accident was settled and Mr. Murrell drove on. When repairs on Mrs. Tyson's car had been made, the six persons in the party made ready to resume their journey when the car was struck from the rear a second time, this time by the automobile driven by Mr. Norris. Flames immediately enveloped the automobile and the passengers barely escaped before the tank exploded, throwing gasoline on Norris' car. Mrs. Tyson's machine was completely ruined and Norris' car considerably damaged.

Those in the party traveling in Mrs. Tyson's car included Mr. and Mrs. Steve Duke and their three-year-old baby, Mrs. W. L. Yauger, mother of Mrs. Tyson, and Mrs. McDonald, mother of Mrs. Duke, who was visiting here from McAlister, Okla. None of them were hurt.

The party was brought to Wichita Falls in an automobile driven by Seton Barnes, Mrs. Tyson said. Mr. Norris was alone at the time of the accident. He is a salesman for a vacuum cleaner company whose headquarters for this district are at Fort Worth.

Blinding headlights were blamed for the accident, according to Mrs. Tyson.

'BECKY' ROGERS GOES ON TRIAL

Buda Bank Case to Be Fought Again

NEW BRAUNFELS, Texas, Sept. 8 (UP)—Mrs. Rebecca Bradley Rogers, bespectacled and stern, whose appearance resembles the type of woman usually found thumbing the pages of history in dark library corners, was ready tonight for another engagement with the forces of law.

For the second time "Becky" will go on trial in Judge J. C. Watson's district court here Monday on a charge of bank robbery. Each time before the fragile looking "Becky" wriggled out of traps set for her by prosecuting attorneys and the coming trial will probably mark her last effort to escape conviction on the charge.

Rebecca will fight it out on a plea of temporary insanity and, as on previous occasions, her husband attorney, Otis Rogers, will lead the attack to free her from the clutches of the law. She is the first woman to be tried in Texas under the law providing death for robbery with firearms but advance information indicated the state would not seek the maximum penalty.

A former trusted employe in the office of the the attorney general of the state and former student at the University of Texas where her husband was president of the student council, the scholarly looking "Becky" left her role of "hard working girl" when she was arrested and accused of stealing $1,000 from the National Bank at Buda.

Electra Boat Third In Outboard Races

DALLAS, Sept. 8. (AP)—Shreveport entries won most of the honors today in the first large-scale outboard motor boat races ever held on White Rock lake here. The crowd of spectators was estimated at 20,000. Nita, owned and driven by L. B. Slaughter, of Electra, was third in the 10-mile, class D restricted event.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 8. (AP)—El Universal's correspondent at Guaymas, Sonora, says that Blas Valenzuela, wealthy rancher arrested some time ago on a charge of having supported the Escobar revolution has been freed under $5,000 bail.

REMAINS OF CRASH VICTIMS TAKEN TO CAMP

Bodies Tentatively Identified in U. S. Survey Encampment

WATCHES TELL STORY

Position of Pilots' Hands Indicates They Were Alive To Time of Spill

By GEORGE VAN SANDS

Staff Correspondent, Universal Service and Los Angeles Examiner

GRANT, N. M., Sept. 8. (US)—Eight broken, charred bodies were lifted from the wreckage of the airliner City of San Francisco today and carried 11 miles down the rough slopes of Mount Taylor to a United States survey camp.

There they were identified by initials on ring and watches, for the bodies are so crushed and burned that only one body could, at first glance, be distinguished from the others; that of Mrs. George Raymond of Glendale, Calif., the only woman aboard.

Those who lifted the bodies of Pilot J. B. Stowe and A. B. Dietel from the shattered mass of wreckage that had been the cockpit, said that the right hands of both men were flung in front of their faces—that they must have been alive when the crash came, seeing the mountainside rushing toward them.

Conflicting Times

Watches strapped to the wrists of two of the bodies—those of Pilot Stowe and Amasa McGaffey, one of the passengers—mutely fixed the time of the crash. And, adding new mystery, fixed it as at least 40 minutes earlier than the time when the ship was reported seen last Tuesday morning, flying westward over Houck, Ariz.

Stowe's watch had stopped at 11:01, McPaffey's, 11:04.

And—giving a new and different picture of the plane's end—the wreckage was said to indicate that the Transcontinental Air Transport ship might have been flying west when she crashed into the mountain.

Flying to Los Angeles

Searchers who fought their way through underbrush and heavy timber to the scene of the crash today, returned to report that the position of the wreckage, with the shattered motors, and the remains of the cabin lying 250 yards west of the charred tree against which part of the left wing rests, shows that Stowe may still have been battling his way toward Los Angeles when the crash came.

The three bodies, crushed into the shattered forward end of the cabin that had been the cockpit, were taken to be those of Stowe, Dietel and Courier Maynard Canfield. A blackened button marked "Courier," lay near Canfield's body.

Bodies in Cabin

Bodies of the four men passengers—Amasa McGaffey of Albuquerque, N. M.; William H. Beers of New York; Harris Livermore of Boston and M. M. Campbell of Cincinnati and the body of Mrs. Raymond were huddled together in the remains of the cabin. All were badly burned.

"We didn't touch the bodies, but we could see that all the passengers had their hands clenched hard," said a man who returned from the wreck.

"Their fists are doubled up tight. It looks as if they had known, perhaps for just a minute, what was coming."

Big Trees Struck

Giant trees, 100 feet tall and some three feet in diameter, were struck and broken by the plunging plane as it crashed into the mountain.

A portion of the left wing, lying beside a charred tree at the beginning of the grim 250-yard swath cut along the slope, shows what part of the plane struck first. The left wing motor was dropped nearby.

WRECK SCENE IS DESCRIBED

Writer Tells of Conditions Around Plane

By ROBERT REDWINE

Associated Press Staff Writer

GRANT, N. M., Sept. 8. (AP)—The last search for the Transcontinental Air Transport plane, City of San Francisco, ended today as a party of forest rangers, an ambulance crew and newspapermen lifted a burned and crumpled fuselage from the charred bodies of the five passengers and a crew of three on the side of Mount Taylor, seven miles from its summit, and 27 miles northwest of Grant.

The impact of the plane, which disappeared last Tuesday and was located first yesterday from the air by Pilot George K. Rice, of a Western Air Express passenger plane, plowed a swath 300 feet long through the heavily wooded mountainside. It had thrown the bodies forward until all were crowded toward the front of the cabin. One lay virtually under the crushed and almost totally destroyed center motor of the tri-motored ship, the latest model passenger liner.

An area more than 300 feet square about the wreckage literally was covered with debris.

The plane, following its regular route from Albuquerque, N. M., to Los Angeles on its last flight, crashed into a pine tree 67 feet above the ground. The left motor

Repeal of Anti-Trust Radio Laws Sought

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8. (US)—A campaign of propaganda by powerful radio interests is now being carried on for the repeal of the anti-trust provision of the radio law, Oswald F. Schuette, executive secretary of the radio protective association declared today.

"Congress should not be misled by such propaganda," he said.

WAYNOKA, Okla., Sept. 8. (AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and his wife arrived here from Albuquerque, N. M., at 5:55 p. m., and will remain here tonight. It was reported at the airport of the Transcontinental Air transport, for which he is technical advisor.

Two Girls Arrested for Attempting To Intimidate Pantages Witnesses

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 8. (UP)—Two young women were arrested here today on a charge of attempting to intimidate state's witnesses in the impending trial of Alexander Pantages, who is accused of attacking 17-year-old Eunice Pringle.

Those held were Nancy Lee, 25, sculptress, and Janice Hill, 19, stenographer, said to be a sister. They were arrested in their rooms in the apartment house where the two state's witnesses reside.

District Attorney Buron Fitts, who headed the officers, would not disclose the names of the assertedly threatened witnesses, one of whom was the landlady of the apartment.

Fitts said that the girls invited the landlady to drink liquor with them and that when the officers appeared Miss Hill hurled a bottle of absinthe through a window. Miss Lee was accused of attempting to attack the woman with a knife.

A man who was among the first to reach the Pantages little conculation room when Miss Pringle cried out that she had been attacked, was said to have been the other witness threatened. He, too, assertedly was offered absinthe and found a note under his door. It read: "If you will testify she bruised herself, there might be $25,000 in it." He called Hollywood police and Fitts responded.

CARRYING FUN TO THE FOURTH DIMENSION

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—Does Bobby Jones have any fun playing golf?

We watched this grassy robot practicing for the champs at Del Monte last month.

His map is a combination of a Benda mask and a poker face. We never saw him smile once.

Which makes it very even. His opponents didn't smile either.

The boy is so mechanically established that every tee pole is perfection plus. He knows not the happiness of the vagrant slice to windward.

When a duffer steps to the tee he is in for some novelties and surprises. He never knows whether he is going to play golf or crokinole.

That's where we have it all over the experts. When we swing a club we never know which is going furthest, the club or the ball.

Does Jones know the astonishment of the topped niblick? He does not.

Does Jones know the fatherhood of the replaced divot? Has he ever strode in dignified limps toward a small subdivision of real estate? Has he ever picked it up with an air of dufferish proprietorship and then paraded back again with all the honors of war?

Has he ever replaced that divot back in its nest? And then patted it tenderly in the face? He has not.

Has he ever played 22 putts on on a green and then sent back to the clubhouse for lunch?

Has he ever spent three days in a bunker with an ingrown pride that prevents you flying the direction flag upside down as a distress signal?

He has not. Has he ever got a sunstroke playing winter rules in August? He has not.

Has he ever waved a twosome through a threesome and a foursome toward a well-filled locker? That's his business.

Maybe Jones and the other experts have fun. But not on the links. When a man gets too good, it's time to quit.

For the next few decades, we intend to retain our steerage membership in the Outdoor Bums' association. We can't keep up with the Joneses.

Like all other amusements, golf is fun until it gets serious.

Peace Falls Over Holy Land, Dispatches Say

LONDON, Sept. 8. (US)—According to the British colonial office, dispatches from Palestine indicate that the situation is generally quiet, no new Arab uprising being reported today.

A message from Cairo reports that in the village of Beit Hanina, near Jerusalem, a Jew shot and wounded an Arab. The Arab had stabbed a Jew at the wailing wall.

Dispatches from Palestine points state that the Jews and Arabs are mutually boycotting each other, and that while there were no outbreaks reported, uneasiness prevails everywhere.

EIGHT CHARRED BODIES FOUND

Victims of Transport Crash Are Identified

ture are scattered along the 250 yards, ending in a pile of twisted and blackened metal that was the cabin and the nose motor.

So great was the force of the impact, that the powerful nose motor was shattered. Fragments of cylinders and housing flew for yards in every direction.

Observers were uncertain as to whether or not there had been an explosion. All the trees in the vicinity are charred, but some of the men who returned from the wreck declared that they believed the plane was on fire when it swept down into the forest.

None of the passengers or crew had been thrown clear of the wreckage. The eight bodies were huddled together in a space not more than 10 feet across, still enclosed in the remains of the metal cabin.

Forest Ranger John Mims, who led the first party to reach the spot, immediately placed guards over the wreckage until Bernalillo county authorities arrived.

Fifty men aided in the grim task of removing the bodies from the plane, placing them on pack mules, and bringing them down the 11 miles of rugged mountainside to the nearest trail passable for automobiles, where the survey camp is located.

Wreckage Guarded

The wreckage was left untouched under guard placed there by W. T. Adams, supervisor of the Manzano national forest, and R. J. Hazen, aeronautic inspector for the department of commerce. It will be left there, guarded night and day, until the inquiry is completed. The inquest on the eight bodies was set for late today.

Sheep herders, pasturing their flocks on the mountainside, may have been the first actually to reach the wreck, it was indicated today, but they had no means of making any report of their discovery.

Floyd Lee, manager of the Fernandez cattle company, and C. O. Breese, owner of the Breese Lumber company, were today organizing pack trains to take camp supplies to the guards who are watching over the wrecked pane. It is believed that it will be impossible to salvage any portion of the shattered T-A-T airliner, since the crash was so complete that the largest section left intact is a 12-foot fragment of the wing.

Storm Described

Ranger Mims today added his testimony to the stories of others who told of the furious storm into which Pilot Stowe flew last Tuesday. It was lashing the entire countryside, Mims said, and extended far to the West.

Other pilots, who flew unscathed through the same storm, were "just lucky" said aviators gathered here today.

While the bodies were being removed from the wreckage, a monoplane, recognized as that of Capt Frank Hawes, circled overhead. This was the ship which Col Charles A. Lindbergh flew from New York to take part in the great search, and it was believed that Lindbergh was at the controls, watching the rescue work.

The men who reached the wreckage today did so after a night of hardship. They started late yesterday afternoon and were forced to spend the night in the woods about camp fires. Indian guides and forest rangers were with them, leading them to the spot where pilot George Rice of the Western Air Express first sighted the lost plane—four days, almost to the minute, from the time when the stopped watches of the victims indicated the disaster occurred.

Ambulances Wait

Ambulances were waiting three miles below the survey camp to take the bodies to Grant over a rugged forest trail. Here the relatives of the victims are expected to claim their dead.

Those who succeeded in getting to the wreck said today that if pilot Stowe had been able to gain an additional 500 feet of altitude he probably would have cleared the shoulder of the mountain where he crashed. This bears out the opinion of Pilot Rice, who said, after his second flight over the wreck that Stowe "didn't have elevation enough" and that a side wind had apparently hurled him against the mountain.

The wreck is believed to be an almost exact duplicate of the crash last November in which Harry Tucker and Capt. C. B. D. Collyer were killed when their record-holding monoplane, Yankee Doodle, plunged into the slopes of the Bradshaw mountains near Prescott, Arizona.

P. M. Cordell Named Superintendent Of Wichita-Archer Baptist Group

P. M. Cordell was elected superintendent of the Wichita-Archer Baptist Associational Sunday school at a meeting of Archer City, Electra, Burkburnett and Wichita Falls representatives held at the First Baptist church Sunday afternoon.

Miss Lola Leath was named secretary-treasurer. G. A. Holloway of Holliday was elected superintendent of the Archer county zone; Brooks Robertson of Burkburnett, for the Burkburnett zone; Mrs. Joe Tanner, Electra, for the Electra zone, and Fred Cone of the Lamar Avenue Baptist church for the Wichita Falls zone. Mr. Cordell, the new general superintendent, succeeds J. W. Mason, educational director of the First Baptist church.

Departmental conferences on graded work followed the election. The devotional part of the meeting was conducted by Rev. W. E. Walker, and E. L. Sutter, singer with the revival meetings now in progress at the South Side Baptist church, gave a solo. Dr. L. D. Wolfe, evangelist at the South Side revival meetings, addressed the conference on "The Sunday School As a Factor in Kingdom Building."

Truck Knocks Boy From Car; Injuries Are Fatal

TEXARKANA, Sept. 8. (AP)—Riding the fender of an automobile carrying eight other youths, all en route to a picture show in Boyd, Ark., Dillar Perkins, 17, of Texarkana, was injured fatally Saturday. A truck knocked him from the running board but failed to hit the motor car.

Planes Fail to 'Make Rain' Over Drouth Area

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8. (US)—American planes attempted recently to scientifically make rain during the terrific Chinese drought by flying over the afflicted country at a high altitude and filling the air with refrigerating chemicals, Dr. Julius Klein, assistant secretary of commerce revealed today.

The attempt failed, but according to scientific data it was probably because the atmosphere was actually devoid of any trace of moisture. Had there been even average dampness of a clear day, the effort should have started precipitation, it is believed.

FIRST BAPTIST HONORS PASTOR

Dr. Powers Observes 12th Anniversary Here

Rally day was observed in all departments of the First Baptist church Sunday in commemoration of the 12th anniversary of Dr. O. L. Powers' coming as pastor.

Various divisions of the Sunday school presented special programs Sunday morning, emphasizing the growth of the local church during its entire history. At the morning church service, Dr. Powers spoke on "The Conquering Church," outlining the program of future expansion and service which he said the institution of which he is pastor now is able to undertake. At this service, W. E. Young, financial secretary and musical director, read scores of congratulatory letters and telegrams received from prominent Baptist leaders all over the state, including Dr. S. P. Brooks, president of Baylor university; Dr. J. C. Hardy of Baylor college; Dr. Wallace Bassett, pastor of the Cliff Temple church, Dallas; Dr. George W. Truitt of Dallas, and Dr. Lee R. Scarborough of the Fort Worth Baptist seminary.

All departments of the B. Y. P. U. met in the assembly room Sunday evening for the first local showing of the motion pictures taken last spring while the daily vacation Bible school was in progress. Special departmental programs on church building followed the joint meeting.

Bill Harris, Bald Eagle of Georgia, Came to Senate On His Own Sails

'Baldy' Is Called That Despite Fact Many Other Equally Bald Senators Have Escaped Monicker

(Copyrt. 1929, by Universal Service, Inc.)

By FRASER EDWARDS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—Somehow, it sort of jars on the average citizen to hear an otherwise dignified and distinguished senator casually refer to an equally dignified and distinguished colleague as "Baldy" Yet, it must be set down that every day around the senate one hears senators refer in that familiar way to William Julius Harris, the senior senator from Georgia, suh!

Still one must in truth admit that "Baldy" Harris is bald. He has a little black fringe of hair engaged in a struggle of the survival of the fittest just above his ears—and that is all. The rest is a shining, well-shaped pate.

Why Call Him That?

But even admitting that "Baldy" Harris is irretrievably bald there seems to be no excuse for his colleagues calling him "Baldy." There have been other senators just as bald as Harris and nobody ever heard them called "Baldy."

Take the late Jacob Harold Gallinger, of New Hampshire, for instance. Every hair on his head went on strike and quit cold. But no one ever called him anything but Jake. Then there is Charles Spaulding Thomas, also a native of Georgia, but a senator from Colorado. For years he was a sort of a weather vane for the senate. When he donned his toupee it was a signal that winter had arrived. When he took it off it was a sure harbinger of spring. And yet nobody called Charlie Thomas "Baldy" when he bared his dome to the summer breezes.

And again there is Lynn Frazier, of North Dakota, and Tasker Oddie of Nevada. Both of them are just as bald as "Baldy" Harris, but nobody thinks of referring to them even by the irreverent title of "Baldy." Some senators do call Frazier "The Buffalo," but never "Baldy."

Baldness, however, seems to be no respecter of persons. There is Henry Allen of Kansas. He began his life's work as a barber. And yet he is just as bald as "Baldy" Harris, but folks call him Henry.

Yes, baldness runs in the Harris family. Gen. Peter Harris, one time adjutant general of the army, is as bald as his senior brother. The only difference is that Bill's hair—what is left of it—is black and Pete's remaining fringe might be best designed as pink.

Down in Georgia some folks have been unkind enough to say that "Baldy" Harris rode into office on Woodrow Wilson's coattails. That is inaccurate. "Baldy" came to the senate on his own and will stay there on the same.

"Baldy" got his first taste for the senate as the private secretary to the late Alexander Stephens Clay. When Clay died, "Baldy" was elected chairman of the Democratic state committee—also without opposition.

In 1912, he and a couple of others organized a Woodrow Wilson campaign committee and later Wilson appointed Harris director of the census and then chairman of the federal trade commission.

Georgians used to take their politics powerful serious in the days of Hoke Smith, Tom Watson, "Little Joe" Brown and Tom Hardwick. But they apparently decided that "Baldy" Harris was good enough for them and he had no opposition when he came up for re-election in 1924.

Like Old Man River, "Baldy" Harris just keeps rolling along. He doesn't plant many legislative 'taters and he doesn't pick much parliamentary cotton, but he just keeps rolling along voting for what he believes to be in the best interest of Georgia. And it is a safe bet that he won't have any opposition when he comes up again next year.

EPIDEMIC WANES

Burk Officials Believe Spread of Typhoid Checked

With no new cases and no additional fatalities reported during the past 48 hours, city, county, and state officials leading the battle against the typhoid fever epidemic in Burkburnett Sunday night expressed hope that the crest has been reached and passed. Hundreds of residents of the town and its suburbs have been inoculated against the disease during the week, two trained nurses have been put at the service of the public, and a series of definite sanitary measures have been taken against the spread of the disease. R. P. Reagan, city manager, said Sunday night that no new cases have been reported since Friday.

struck the tree, and its propeller slashed deeply its trunk and felled the upper part. At the right a few paces farther on a second stub stood, a little larger in diameter, against which another motor received the blow which ended its usefulness. Less than a dozen feet away in a boulder strewn swale this motor lay, not a whole peace of metal left.

For approximately 100 feet farther the airliner had plunged carrying with it destruction to trees, some of which were broken off, while others literally were uprooted. Boulders which had lain close to the roots of the trees had been tossed for a score of feet.

The group of newspapermen and searchers traveled five miles over the roughest section of a treacherous mountain from the crash reaching the wreckage at 8:30 a. m.

As the party approached the location of the burned cabin of the ship, tired from a rapid ascent, signs of the crash could be seen on the huge pine trees which cover the mountainside. First high on a tree fragments were seen, and beneath its limbs an engine was found with a few rods and parts of the landing gear lying nearby. A little further on a wing lay on the ground, and then the debris was sighted more frequently, until, about 300 yards from the point where the first wreckage was found, the party came upon a tangled mass which had been the cabin of the newest of flying ships.

The cabin was seared. Inside it charred bodies were seen, and counted—those of five men and one woman in the passenger's compartment and two men in the pilot's cockpit.

Through an opening, which once had been a window, a wrist watch on the arm of one of the pilots was visible. It was scorched, but it disclosed that the hands had stopped at 11:01 o'clock.

The hour indicated was believed to have been the hour of the crash. The plane last was sighted shortly before going over Grants, N. M.

A few miles from the base of this 10,000-foot peak. The time evidently carried by the pilot was that used at his home office in Los Angeles, Pacific coast time, which would place the time of the wreck at one minute after noon by mountain time, that used here. T. A. T. require their pilots to "keep their logs on the Albuquerque-Los Angeles run in Pacific coast time.

There was evidence on the ground about the plane of an explosion. Sand and leaves were scattered about. Several trees nearby had been seared and some partly burned. The fire, however, had no chance to spread since at the time of the crash rain was falling.

After a quick inspection, which fixed these details in the minds of all, the party began its retreat down the slopes.

"THE GREATEST TOWN GOSSIP IN THE GREATEST TOWN IN THE WORLD"

THAT'S Walter Winchell, America's premier wisecracker, whose column, "Along Broadway" will appear in The Record News beginning Monday, Sept. 16

"His distinguishing feature is the 'Americanese' he employs in writing, which he interprets in these days of psychoanalysis as a disguise for an inferiority complex," says the Literary Digest, in a recent article discussing the phenomenal rise of this newspaper columnist to national fame.

Winchell's column is just one of the many fine new features The Record News is adding this fall.

Albert Pattillo Weds Miss Charlotte Keevil

The nuptials of two popular young people were plighted when Miss Charlotte Keevil, daughter of Mrs. J. Lem Keevil and Albert D. Pattillo, son of Dr. A. D. Pattillo, were married at the home of the bride's mother Saturday evening at 8 o'clock.

Miss Keevil, gowned in a lovely brown ensemble with accessories to correspond and carrying a shower bouquet of golden tea roses with ferns and gold lace, met Mr. Pattillo before an improvised altar of palms with candelabra at each side holding five tall white tapers which furnished the only light while Dr. Floyd Allan Bash read the impressive ring ceremony.

Preceding the ceremony, R. E. Shepherd sang "I Love You Truly," and Mrs. Shepherd played "Melody of Love," with violin obligato by Mrs. Joe Crouch. The wedding march was played by Miss Gladys Wilkerson of Dallas, a roommate of the bride at T. C. U.

Mr. and Mrs. Pattillo left immediately after the ceremony for Fort Worth. Each will return to school to receive their degrees. Mrs. Pattillo will go to T. C. U. and Mr. Pattillo to Baylor Medical college.

Five roommates of the bride at T. C. U. came to attend the wedding: Misses Gladys Wilkerson, Gladys Dowling, Mamie Kennedy, Anna Maricle and Merle Hendron.

Mesdames R. A. Lincoln and Floyd Allan Bash were joint hostesses Friday afternoon and evening at Mrs. Lincoln's home at showers in honor of Miss Keevil. The home was beautifully decorated in colors carrying out the autumnal brown and gold chosen by Miss Keevil and she received a multitude of gifts.

The gift of Mr. Pattillo to his bride was a lovely string of pearls.

AMBITIONS

I'd like so to be a policeman of course,
And wear a policemanly hat,
And ride up and down on a very big horse
And order, "Do this and do that!"

A chimney sweep
Would suit me, too.
I guess, it's just because
A chimney sweep
Goes down the flue
The same as Santa Claus.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

You who do all your Sunday shopping Saturday morning and can stay at home in quiet Saturday afternoon, or devote the time to pleasure, may miss a crush and a clamour at times approaching Christmas week in effect, but you also miss human interest. There's so much of it in a crowd, if one has eyes to see; both tragedy and comedy.

◇ ◇ ◇

Standing on different corners Saturday afternoon, waiting for the proper signals, we saw seven cars probably on the way home. One would gather that touring had been their summer objective as they were filled with bedding and camping paraphernalia.

◇ ◇ ◇

We suppose that it is just the women who are really driven to it who put their shopping off until in the afternoon. There are so many who wait until the husband comes home with his pay check Saturday night. In a chain store, where people pay cash, and carry, types are certain to show more than in a store where women order over the phone.

◇ ◇ ◇

In chain stores, we think sometimes the market men are hard-boiled, but we saw one who was completely gotten the best of last Saturday afternoon. A woman who probably weighed 190 pounds and who was accompanied by three others who made up in conversation what they lacked in brawn, had him show chicken and hen and ham and beef, and finally bought liver. By the time they had finished with him, the sweat was standing on his brow, and though he had started out by being quite short talking to them, he addressed the next female customer gently. He may have been a man who needed taming.

◇ ◇ ◇

It takes shopping in some one of the "ten cent up" emporiums, to give you the crowd. We saw old women, pressing as eagerly as the young through the crowd. We saw dusky young flappers, with their hats on the back of their heads and as high French heels and shining silken hose as they could purchase. We saw a group from the country and they were sampling all the jewelry at that counter; we saw young mothers carrying small babies who cried on their shoulders and were not heeded; and we saw children of three and four and five dragged along and having been denied the toys they wished, raising old "Ned."

◇ ◇ ◇

We saw, too, a couple who had just been married, fitting out their breakfast room at the china counter and the perfect happiness reflected in their faces could not have been more beautiful if they had been buying royal Doulton or Sevres or Dresden.

◇ ◇ ◇

Saturday afternoon of all times to buy dresses! But the shops were full. And there, we saw almost a tragedy. A girl had been waiting on customers all day and when we stumbled into the place, looking to see what we could see, she was worn out. She had a customer who was impatient. The clerk was patient; she was one of those souls who bring to the world far more than they receive.

◇ ◇ ◇

The customer looked herself over in the long glass in one dress after another until she had tried them almost all. We saw the clerk stumble as she hung one back on a hook and as she stumbled, her shoe hit the customer's ankle and pulled a tiny hole in the sheer hose.

◇ ◇ ◇

We said almost tragedy. The customer left threatening to report the clerk for rudeness and the girl cried as if it had been her fault. Of course nothing could come of it, but we thought it a really a tragedy that any woman could be so hard on one of her less fortunate sisters. Charity isn't measured in terms of money.

◇ ◇ ◇

Then just one other thing we remember. We stood on a corner in the suburban district waiting on a bus, and watched the number of cars stopping on account of the stop signal. We had to wait about 15 minutes, and in that time, four negro drivers killed their engines at that stop. Which seemed to show us who was driving fastest and most recklessly.

Forum Departments Select Objectives

Objectives chosen by the different departments of the Woman's Forum for the coming year seem to show that the departments have each "hitched their wagon to a star." Departmental meetings, if carried out according to the programs, will be full of interest throughout the year.

The civic department, Mrs. Bert Bean, chairman, takes "woman as a citizen," and have fitted their programs to movements in which women are more interested each day.

The drama department, Mrs. Hubert Barr, chairman, will study the drama through original plays and the Little theater movement. The program promises hours of pleasure.

The art department, with Mrs. W. W. Silk chairman, can look forward to the best that can be offered in the way of beauty.

Health and home, Mrs. Guy C. Raley, chairman, will demonstrate the title of the department. The civic and health and home departments will have joint programs at times.

Mrs. F. C. Barron, as chairman of the music department, has made a selection of the best in local music and has arranged to bring unusual talent from other points.

The literature department, Mrs. J. W. Cantwell, chairman, has on its programs, current literature, magazines, reviewing, poetry and "Children Who Write." One can choose almost any program and have music intermingled with literature.

The Writers' monthly luncheons will be continued with original work, affording intense interest, and this department will take up also the organization of a Wichita Historical society. Every forum member is welcome in the writers' department, whether they do original work or not, it is said.

The forum magazine, with the first issue will give all current news and club news in general.

Bachelor Given Real Lecture In Talk by Dorothy

Does Bachelor Who Congratulates Himself on Maintaining His State of Single Blessedness Realize That The Wife He Eschews Would Assure Him Long Life and Prosperity and Guarantee His Sanity?

Young man, do you know that the best insurance you can take out against death, poverty and insanity is to get married? You don't believe it? Then listen to the recent report of the American Statistical society. It says: "The death rate for single and widowed men is twice that for married men. Most of the male inmates of the insane asylums and almshouses are unmarried men."

That rather upsets your theories concerning the benefits and perquisites appertaining to and concerning single blessedness, doesn't it? Of course, you have always realized that life must seem longer to a married man than it does to a bachelor, but it is a little startling to find out that its actually is longer.

However, there is no reason for our surprise in the matter. It is perfectly logical. The very monotony and lack of excitement of the domestic life are its chief assets from a hygienic point of view, and if it draws out a man's days and evenings and makes them seem interminably tedious, it also multiplies them. Obviously, the candle that is snuffed out at 10 p. m. lasts longer than the one that is burned at both ends.

So, while punching the home time-clock may have fewer thrills in it than sitting up all night in a poker game or going on wild parties, it does more to put a man in the Methuselah class. You may have no particular relish for roast beef and spinach, but it is a more wholesome diet than caviar and hooch.

Furthermore, so adoritly are our blessings often camouflaged, the one thing that men most object to in their wives is in reality their first aid to longevity. That is nagging. Probably the time when the average husband oftenest asks himself: "Why was I ever fool enough to marry?" is when his wife badgers him about taking care of himself.

It is when his Maria follows him to the door with her incessant adjuration repeated for the millionth time, not to get his feet wet, not to sit in a draught, not to eat fried oysters and pie a la mode for lunch, not to forget to go to see the doctor about his cough or the dentist about his teeth that the poor, henpecked husband regrets most bitterly the bachelor liberties that he has forfeited.

But little as he realizes it as he gulps down the food his Maria considers good for his digestion instead of dining on the dishes he likes and lets her drive him into a doctor's office, she is a guardian angel who is saving him from the grave. For among the by-products of the liberty of the unmarried man is the liberty of dying early, because there was no loving feminine eye to watch every shade of pallor and weariness on his face, to note the flagging appetite and dragging step and to take alarm at every pain and symptom of illness and to see that something was done about it.

Nor is it strange to learn that married men are more prosperous than bachelors. The thing that keeps more men from marrying than anything else is fear of the price. They figure up the cost of a wife and children—food bills and clothes bills and rent bills and school bills—and it seems to them that if they will cut out all those bankrupting expenses and spend no money except upon themselves, they are bound to be millionaires in a few years.

But something seems to go awry with their calculations, for in every community you will find a hundred rich married men to one rich bachelor. Indeed, most men who have made fortunes will tell you that they never saved anything until after they got married or really got down to the business of money-making. It was only after they got married that they put their hearts and their backs into their jobs and that is why most employers prefer married men to single ones.

As long as a man has no one but himself to think of he feels free to throw his money about as he pleases and to loaf and invite his soul whenever he is so inclined. He can always make what he needs and he sees no necessity of sticking to a hard job or doing uncongenial work, and so he often becomes a wanderer and lets youth and even middle age pass by without settling down to any definite occupation.

But with the married man it is a different story. He has given hostages to fortune. A wife and children look to him for support and he is driven forward by the most relentless force in the world—the need of those who love him and whom he loves better than ease or rest. It is the thought of his little children crying for bread, of their little bare feet on the pavement, of their having no roof to shelter them that gives many a man the strength and energy to fight his way through incredible difficulties to success.

It is because the married man has to make money that turns many a one of them into a go-getter who would be a ne'er-do-well if he was a bachelor. To meet the demands of his family, to give wife the pearls she craves and to give the children the sport cars they can't live without, the man has to hustle around so much that it incidentally lands him on easy street, and this incentive to make the most of his ability the bachelor lacks.

At first blush it might seem that if anything could drive a man crazy it would be the trials and tribulations of matrimony and that the bachelor's life should be one of tranquility with little to worry him. But evidently this is not the case since statistics show that there are more insane unmarried men than married men.

Perhaps the poor bachelors go cuckoo trying to sidestep matrimony and avoid the traps made by designing women who are bent on luring them into marriage. Perhaps having no one to think about but themselves they grow nutty brooding over trifles that affect themselves. Perhaps if they had been all right in the beginning they would not be bachelors.

Perhaps to keep him normal a man needs a wife that he can blame for everything that goes wrong and with whom he can quarrel and on whom he can work off his nerves and his temper. Perhaps men who are married are more generally happy than unmarried men, and happy, contented people don't go batty.

Anyway, the report of the American Statistical society that married men live longer, stay out of debt and keep out of the insane asylums is a great selling argument for matrimony.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—Why is it that the wife of the average business man cannot understand the dedication of a woman's life to a business career? Why cannot these women realize that a girl can prefer a good job to a husband and that an income can look more attractive to a girl than a jelly bean? Most wives are jealous of their husband's secretaries, but if they only knew it we are their friends and not their enemies. We help make the money that is lavished on them and we have no designs on their husbands. If you can make these wives see their husbands as the fine, honorable men they are, who know how to treat sensible, hard-working business girls, and if you can make them see us as we are, interested in our jobs, liking our bosses, but no vamps, many a business girl would rise up and call you blessed.

—A WORKING GIRL.

Answer—Good for you, my dear! You are saying what I am always contending, that there is mighty little philandering in the average business office and that most wives who are jealous of their husband's secretaries are borrowing trouble.

Of course, there are a few men who would make love to a female snake. They have affairs with their women employes, but they would be unfaithful to their wives in any event and they are not worth any wife's worrying about. Moreover, they are not typical of the average American business man. He treats the women who work for him with as much respect as he would show any other women and he is far more apt to flirt with the woman who sits across the table from him at dinner than he is with the girl who sits at his elbow taking down dictation.

Also, the conditions of an office do not promote sentiment. In a way the relation between an employer and an employe is much like matrimony. They see each other at too close range and each raspe the nerves of the other with mistakes and ill-temper and annoying little peculiarities.

So, instead of trying to take her husband away from her, many a stenographer sincerely pities his wife and thanks heaven she only has to stand him during working hours.—DOROTHY DIX.

Prepare for Coolidge-Trumbull Wedding

Maj. John Coolidge, son of former president Calvin Coolidge, and Florence Trumbull, daughter of the governor of Connecticut, will be married Sept. 23. They are shown above. Below is the apartment in which they will live. Jean Trumbull (lower eft) will act as maid of honor at the wedding and John Hills of Northampton, Mass., will be an usher.

Seven o'Clock Breakfast and No Servants, Part of Florence's Plans

By SANDOR S. KLEIN
United Press Staff Correspondent

PLAINVILLE, Conn., Sept. 8.—Being a housewife will be no more difficult and certainly more thrilling than being a social debutante, according to Florence Trumbull, daughter of Governor John H. Trumbull, who will become Mrs. John Coolidge Sept. 23.

"There is no reason why I can't be as good a house wife as any other girl," she told the United Press today. "I'm quite able to cook—not everything, of course—and I intend to do it all myself."

She'll Make Breakfast

She was mildly offended when it was suggested that perhaps 7 a. m. would be too early an hour for her to awaken to make John's breakfast before he left their Westville apartment for the New Haven railroad offices at New Haven, where he is employed as clerk.

"Of course, I intend to make his breakfast," she said vehemently. "Other wives do. Why shouldn't I?"

The Coolidge household, like the administration of Calvin Coolidge when he was president, will be regulated by a strick budget. What it will be, she doesn't quite know yet, she said, "because it will require a little experimenting."

"We'll have no maids or servants of any kind, for that matter," she said. "It would be an extravagance—an unnecessary luxury."

She will do her cooking on the white-enameled gas range in the kitchen of their four-and-one-half room apartment at Westville. She also will do her own shopping for the Coolidge cupboard.

Although Miss Trumbull preferred not to talk about their home near New Haven, it was learned it is a modest little rear apartment in a red and white brick building of severe colonial design. The rent is $78 a month.

Furnishings Undecided

There is a center path which leads through a small, green courtyard to the white pillared entrance of the Coolidges' home-to-be. Through the door one enters into what will be their own little foyer.

Miss Trumbull said neither she nor her fiance has decided on the furnishings for their new home.

"We intend to start shopping for furniture within a few days," she said. "John and I prefer something simple, yet neat."

"No, I don't believe the apartment will be completely furnished when we occupy it," she added. "We'll complete the furnishings as we go along."

For the present, she said, John will have to use the trolley line, which runs past their intended home at Westville, to get to his office in New Haven. Later, if they become more prosperous, they may buy a cheap but durable automobile.

Guiding Your Child

By MRS. AGNES LYNE

CHORES

There is a good deal to be said for the old-fashioned institution of the daily chore.

In all homes save those of the wealthy it was the custom a generation ago for every child to share in the daily tasks of the home. The boy fed the chickens and carried in the wood for the kitchen stove. The girl helped make the beds and dry the dishes. They probably grumbled a good deal from time to time but they accepted the daily chore as a part of life.

Today boys and girls have no such daily tasks assigned to them. Even in homes in which the mother does all her own work, she does not expect her children to share with her any of the work of the home.

All sorts of appliances have so lightened her work that she really needs little help. She has plenty of time, so she makes the children's beds and picks up their clothes after them.

Then too, affected by the modern trend to "free the child" and to give him a "happy childhood to remember," she carefully refrains from requiring anything which looks like work.

I believe this to be a mistake. Children raised under this well intentioned but unwise regime will go through life expecting service. They will be possessed of a kind of selfishness which will make them difficult to live with, difficult to work with.

Children should have chores. They need not be heavy and they need not be irksome. They should be small responsibilities which will give the children a feeling of willingness to help. Teach them to be their own valets, to wait upon themselves and cheerfully to lend a hand whenever it is needed.

Oh, These Women

NEW YORK, Sept. 8. (US)—A lady whose husband told her she better learn repartee, recalled with an amused smile (being a smart woman she said nothing about it), the Ambrose Bierce definition of repartee:

"Repartee: Prudent insult in retort. Practiced by people with a constitutional aversion to violence, but a strong disposition to offend. In a war with words, the tactics of the North American Indian."

It was Bierce who defined "truthful" as "dumb and illiterate." A great boost for women!

But I'll make a bet that she managed to be where, when she looked around, that's what would happen. We are like that.

The trickiest thing about women, is the way they can put meanings into their lips and eyes that aren't there at all. They can look things they don't in the least feel or think, and they can pout outside and laugh inside, and vice versa. They practice this in the cradle and naturally they keep getting better as the years go on. About 60 they don't care so much any more and then they do it from habit.

A California woman got a divorce because her husband was cruel. He got mad because she kissed other men—the big brute! The kisses, she explained, were in fun, and didn't mean a thing.

But that is just the thing they should explain to the "other men" they kiss—and you will notice they never do.

An Englishman, writing of Hollywood in a London society column, says:

"The general spirit of the place is indicated in the story that a visiting French star, not being able to speak English, was taught to say: 'It is lousy,' when she entered a house.

"Roars of laughter!"

From London, where the weather is damp, comes this recipe for a "fixer" that will keep the hair in curl, no matter how trying the weather.

"Two drachms of tragacanth, half an ounce of glycerine, and one ounce of spirits of wine, and water up to one pint.

"As the fixer is difficult to prepare it should be made up by a chemist."

SARTIN TELLS OF NEHEMIAH

Modern Builder Needed In Homes, He Says

"Wichita Falls, like the entire nation, needs a modern Nehemiah who is willing to rebuild the crumbling walls of home life, religious education, respect for law, and Sabbath observance, smothering all jealousies and denominational differences in a great common purpose," declared Judge B. D. Sartin before the Men's Bible class of the Highland Heights Christian church Sunday morning.

Speaking upon the rebuilding of Jerusalem's fallen walls under the direction of Nehemiah, Judge Sartin said that the greatest lesson to be drawn from that incident in Hebrew history is one of purposeful cooperation. The serious danger of enemies within a city was illustrated, he said, by the presence of one tribe within Jerusalem which refused to subscribe to Nehemiah's plan.

Community Apartments

"The enemies that are within are the real dangers to the liberty of this republic, not those from without," he added. "It is so with the individual. Alexander the Great could conquer the forces of the world on the battlefield, and could weep because there were no more worlds to conquer, yet in the battle of self-control he fell, conquered and utterly defeated."

The completion of Jerusalem's walls for protection against hostile peoples on every side was accomplished, the speaker said, by each family building that section of the wall nearest them. The fulfillment of Christ's prayer for the unity of all mankind in work and worship, Judge Sartin said, demands rededication of individuals and churches to the rebuilding of broken walls of social conduct.

"Disintegration of the home has filled this city with boys and girls whose lives are unguided derelicts. America rapidly is abandoning the home as an institution and is going into the community apartment idea. Regardless of how humble a home may be, it is vital to the future of this nation."

Challenge to Church

Judge Sartin deplored the lack of religious education in the experience of the "vast majority of children," pointing to the presence of only 5,000 persons in Sunday school out of almost 60,000 within the city. Following almost complete debarment of the Bible from public schools, he said, the churches are compelled to accept a new challenge, or witness the progress of America toward a Godless civilization.

"Another wall that is down," the speaker continued, "is that of law-enforcement and law-respect. We are the most lawless nation under the sun. Even the state governments themselves flaunt the constitution of the nation. Together with increasing contempt for established temporal law is an increasing desecration of the Sabbath. In most cities you can not tell whether it is Sunday or Monday—business and pleasure continues unabated, and the purpose of the day is almost forgotten."

Burk C.-C. Plans For Trades Day Oct. 5

Special to The Record News.

BURKBURNETT, Texas, Sept. 8.—The board of directors of the Burkburnett Chamber of Commerce has completed plans for another trades day for the city to be held Saturday, Oct. 5. The trades day that was recently held here was put over with such an overwhelming success that the local chamber of commerce feels that another one could be put over in the same manner. In addition to the offering of usual prizes by the chamber of commerce, each merchant who participates in the event will offer a special prize. Free auctioneering services will be rendered, it was announced.

We Women

By BETTY BRAINERD

Almost every feminine fault has its masculine equivalent and vice versa. One sex is just about as obnoxious on occasion as the other; which does not alter the fact that certain of woman's idiosyncracies, become chronic, render their possessor nothing short of a pest, a social menace, distasteful alike to her intimates and to the rest of the world.

These pests should be legislated against—banished to a sort of spiritual-leper colony. Since that is impossible they should be written, talked and preached against. They should be cured if possible. If not, they should be pointed out as horrible examples to others who display similar tendencies.

One of the pests—and there are lots of this sort—is the woman who always has a remedy for everything and insists upon its being adopted.

Have you a cold in the head? "My dear, throw your quinine and argyrol down the drain and drink water! Twelve glasses of plain, cool water each day will cure you. Promise me you'll try it. I'll get a glassful for you at once!"

You mention casually that your rugs are going to the cleaner. Immediately she becomes rhapsodic over a new establishment she has discovered. Your own man may be a tried and true marvel. It matters not. She will nag and insist until she either is insulted or gets your agreement to try her "find."

You are reducing? She knows a more effective diet than the one on which you pin your faith.

Your baby specialists is a wizard? She urges you to leave him and if you love your child try Dr. Blank who did such wonders for little Annie.

Silly, you think, to pay any attention to such an opinionated idiot. Ah! But the energy of her! The determination and the persistence of her! You can no more ignore her than you can ignore a bad case of hay-fever! The only solution is to stop knowing her.

Conviction is essential to all women. Without it they could never endure the responsibility, make the lightning decisions, cope with the sudden crises attendant upon child-rearing. But these pests of perfection, these plagues and rightness overdo the virtue. They should be disciplined. Or ostracised.

Miss Brainerd wishes to help her readers whenever possible. Write her, sending stamped, self-addressed envelope for personal reply.

Rites Held Sunday For J. S. Hedgpeth

The body of J. S. Hedgpeth, 74, of Nocona, who died in a local hospital about 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon, was forwarded overland to Montague, by the Dalton-Powell Undertaking company. Funeral services were held from the First Methodist church in Montague at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Interment was in the Montague cemetery.

Trial of Barratry Case Set in Court Monday

Trial of E. A. Martin, local attorney, under four barratry indictments, will be called in the county court-at-law Monday morning, Wayne Somerville, county attorney, announced Sunday. Attorneys on both sides of the case were uncertain late Sunday as to whether the case will go to trial on schedule. No indication of the line of defense has been given since the defendant was released on bond several weeks ago. The attorney is charged with having sought to be employed as an attorney to push a damage suit after an automobile collision here.

Commissioners Open Fuel Bids Monday

Bids for supplying the gas fuel for all the county buildings during the coming year will be opened in the course of the regular meeting of the county commissioners court Monday, M. A. Bundy, commissioner from precinct 1, announced Sunday. The contract will include gas for the courthouse, the jail, the county farm, and the Wichita General hospital. No other business outside the usual routine is expected during the session, Mr. Bundy said. Judge John P. Marrs, who has been visiting in Waco, is expected to return in time to preside at the meeting.

The Theme Song Warbler—Dern Him

WITH the water problem being dodged at every pop of the bottle, so to speak, and the usual fall worries anent the cotton crop besetting us all, it's an unpropitious time, perhaps, to bring up a discussion of such an outlandish thing as music. But here goes.

We do not pretend to offishness in the matter of music, and secretly we revel in such cowboy tunes as "Goodbye, Old Paint," just as much as we revere a Beethoven symphony—and we can honestly say that we have heard all the German's symphonies—but there's a breaking point in such things, and we here and now, in the sight and reach of Mayor Akin and the city police force, declare that we are going to mash in the head of the next person who offends our sensibilities by humming, or singing, within 100 yards of us, any "theme song" from any talkie whatever.

We further declare that were it possible to leave the job, and had we the money, we would entrain at once for Hollywood and decapitate all composers responsible for such gush.

Surely any person at all sensitive and observant will agree that the mental energy wasted by minds which seethe and writhe at hearing these songs is enough to explode the latest Einstein perpetration or to offer, offhand, a means of getting pure water in Wichita Falls without having to have a bond election anyway. On any day while conducting your business make a note of the number of times your train of thought is shattered by one of your weakminded friends strolling by your desk, or by your favorite resting spot on Scott avenue with the latest heartache cure on his or her lips. "When my dreams come tru-u-u-ue." this person will gurgle; or, and much worse, he or she will, with malice aforethought, chant, "Ah, sweet meestahree of life . . ." and "a desert song, and you . . ." and, so help us Jehovah, other mawkish and downright moonleery lyrics. Bosh!

Of course we are in the vast minority, and are liable to execution or worse for trampling on the tastes of more leather-souled ones for whom this trash was written. But the thing that astounds us is that people looked upon as discriminating in their tastes are seen, and, more discomforting, heard emitting these warbles.

Can they really mean that they like them? Of course, being intelligent, they understand the origin of all these red-hot love tunes—they surely know that the composer either was a Freudian patient, or knew what he was doing and wrote the songs for stifled and neurotic ones—and yet, and yet . . . they sing with fervor, and with apparent "appreciation" when we are so unfortunate as to hear them.

And for all of which we are very, very indignant, and we wish to repeat our warning, that whoso, in future, comes near us with the latest "Love nest and you . . ." or whatnot song, is going to be quite dexterously prepared to meet his Maker.

Inspect Your Auto

THE IMPORTANCE of having the family auto inspected at fairly regular intervals for mechanical defects is a thing that most of us overlook. We take it for granted that things are safe enough—and, sometimes, discover something is wrong only when it causes disaster.

The Baltimore Automobile club and police recently stopped and inspected as many autos as they could lay hands on. Of 193,354 cars inspected, they found more than 31,000 that needed brake adjustments in order to be perfectly safe. Eight thousand had unsuspected defects in the steering gear and nearly 40,000 needed adjustment of lights. While no survey has been made here, the proportion might be expected to prevail in about the same degree in Wichita Falls.

These are small matters, perhaps, but they are just the sort of thing that can cause "unavoidable" accidents. Having a mechanic check the operation of your car every so often is essential to safe driving, especially in these days where almost every car is made to develop and maintain high speeds over long distances and even in heavy traffic.

For Creative Workers

THE CONTRIBUTIONS to art and culture by the modernistic school have been many, undoubtedly, but there are times when the frantic seekers after the new simply talk foolishly.

A magazine recently printed plans for a "modernistic" house. It was to be a six-sided affair, hung on a sort of central mast, with transparent walls and various other innovations; but the floor plans were its most interesting feature. These disclosed one triangular room, tucked away between a bedroom and the kitchen, labeled "the creative room."

It was explained that every citizen needs a special room, so designed that he can retire to it and let his creative powers have full sway.

What a pity that none of the great creative artists of former years had the advantages offered by such a compartment!

A Careless Nation

AMERICA evidently still needs a lengthy course in safety education before it can handle a major holiday properly. Over the Labor day week-end 205 people were killed by accidents of various kinds.

Some of these mishaps came in auto traffic. Others were due to fires, explosions, airplane crashes and the like. Drowning claimed, as usual, a number of lives.

It's too late to do anything about it, of course. But the thing to be remembered is the fact that nearly every one of these 205 deaths was caused by carelessness—carelessness on the part of the victim or on the part of someone else.

A nation that sacrifices 205 lives to carelessness when it makes a holiday is almost too careless to be trusted with holidays.

CHATTY—GODDESS OF CAB

By BEATRICE BURTON, Author of: "HER MAN," "HONEY LOU," "SALLY'S SHOULDERS," "MONEY LOVE," "LOVE BOUND," ETC.

COPYRIGHT 1929, CENTRAL PRESS ASS'N INC., CLEVELAND, OHIO.

READ THIS FIRST

Charlotte Chatterton, nicknamed Chatty, is a born gossip. Her mother, a widowed dressmaker through Mrs. Van Nuys, a wealthy customer and old friend of the family, gets Chatty a position as switchboard operator at the Van Nuys offices. Chatty meets Billie Langenau, a file clerk, and Agnes Herford, private secretary to Mr. Van Nuys. Chatty falls in love with a young bond salesman, David Jordan, but when she gossips and causes Agnes to resign her position David drops Chatty. Chatty has dates with Bryant Dunning, a new salesman, who is married but says he has left his wife. Chatty has many parties at Winnie Talcott's house. Winnie is Mr. Van's new secretary.

One day Chatty overhears David talking on the phone about taking a new position at the Midas bank. Later she sees him copying names. Wishing to get even with him, and believing him stealing the bond buyers' lists, Chatty tattles to Mr. Van. Mr. Van is very angry, as he has given David permission to copy the lists. Chatty has to apologize to David or leave. She leaves, and is unsuccessful in getting another position. She continues to have dates with Bryant Dunning, although her mother urges her not to do so.

Now Go on With the Story

CHAPTER XLVII

She sat with her eyes cast down, thinking, thinking.

What could she say?

She couldn't make open love to the man; tell him she was sick at heart for him, that if he didn't come back to her she'd—she'd—she didn't know what would happen.

But she had to say something. An opportunity like this might not come again! The bank was closed, and yet David made no move to go.

"But Dave," she ventured at last. "Don't you see? I want you to believe in me again! I'm trying—trying so hard to be—to be what you—what everyone wants me to be!"

David gulped, got up, and walked up and down the room.

Chatty's heart leaped. He, too, was stirred, then! He wasn't going to be just impersonal and cold!

"I'd like to believe in you," he said at last, reseating himself. "It hurt—what you did."

"You mean—about Agnes?"

Chatty's face flamed.

David nodded. "That—and other things. But you can't force belief. You can't say 'I believe' and make yourself do it. No one can. You believe or you don't believe—you love or you don't love—not according to what you want, but because you must. Don't you know that?"

Chatty did know it. She could no more help loving and wanting Dave than she could help breathing. Was belief, then, really like that? Something that you couldn't get by asking for it?

"Tell me some more about yourself," suggested Dave. "What do you do with yourself, evenings? How do you pass your time? Are you happy?"

Chatty relaxed. This was like old times—a real, friendly chat with Dave! He wanted her to talk to him. He had said she was "enormously attractive!" He had walked the floor. He wanted to believe in her! Surely, with so much in her favor, she would win him the rest of the way.

How to do it? How to make herself appear attractive, good, sweet in his eyes?

Chatty's thoughts were like lightning flashes, so fast and furiously did they come. David didn't like wild parties. He didn't drink. He liked bridge and Billie and George and quiet amusements. Better not tell him about Bryant and Winnie and Jim, then.

"Oh, I spend a lot of time with Billie. When she's not too busy with George, that is," she amended, hurriedly. "And I stay at home a lot, too. Pud—Pud rather needs me. He—he has been trying very hard to—to get a sewing machine for mother. And I'm helping him—"

Chatty tried not to blush. She hadn't helped him at all. But she was going to! "I'll give him some money tonight, so that won't be a fib!" thought Chatty.

"And—and who takes you riding now, on picnics and—and rides?" David repeated himself lamely.

Chatty trembled with delight, inside. He remembered! He was jealous!

"No one takes me riding!" she asserted. "I—I don't care to go riding with anyone, since—since—" Chatty stopped.

But what was this? David, with a cold stern look on his face; David, as chilly in manner as if she was a stranger—

"You will excuse me now, Miss Chatterton!" he said, icily. "I am very busy!"

"Why, Dave! Why—what did I say? What have I done? What—"

David stopped in front of her, and his eyes blazed into hers with a passion that frightened her. Gone the coldness, gone the reserve, gone the impersonality that had chilled her; this was the David she had known, the David she loved, and yet a David strange and terrible—

"You lied!" he accused. "Three times within a month have I seen you with Bryant Dunning in his car. Twice with his arms around you, and as late as last night! I passed you on the road!"

Chatty remembered the car with the bright lights, for which they had to wait to start petting.

"I have heard of the parties at Winnie's, and the expeditions to Lollypop Inn." David stormed on. "You can't talk of others, Miss Chatterton, and not be talked about! But I don't listen to gossip; I merely believe my eyes, not my ears!"

Chatty's face flamed, hot, moist, in terrible shame.

"Believe in you? Believe in you?" David laughed, a nasty laugh, a laugh all scorn and contempt. "I did believe in you—I believed in you as a man believes in a holy thing in life! And you were not what I thought! You were a liar and a cheat, a thief and a trouble maker, a gossip and a slanderer! You tore my heart in two, and now you come here with a pack of falsehoods and want to do it again! Well, you can't! I don't believe in you. I never will believe in you! I hope I never, never see your pretty face with its false eyes and its snake's tongue again!"

And David flung out of the office and disappeared, leaving Chatty to pick up her shattered dream and creep from the office and the bank as best she could.

Chatty did not go back to the office that afternoon. She went home, to lock herself in her room and cry—cry as if her heart would break.

It was really all over.

He hated her. And the worst of it was, she had brought it on herself by lying to him. His questions had been a test. And she had not measured up. It wasn't fair to test a girl like that! What harm was there in riding with Bryant Dunning and letting him kiss her? Probably he had that girl with him when he passed them, parked. Doubtless he kissed and hugged her, the nasty cat! Had she asked him a single question? Not one!

The more Chatty thought of it, the angrier she got. She didn't know that the modern psychologist has discovered that the angrier we get at people, the more we show, often times, how wrong we are ourselves; that we get angry with others to restore our waning respect for ourselves.

Chatty was all wrong.

To pretend to herself that David was wrong and she right, was the only way in which she could support her own thoughts of herself.

"Well, if that's the way you feel about it, Mr. David Jordan, you can just go plumb to!" declared Chatty, passionately. "If I'm going to have the name, I might as well have the game! I've been good. I've tried. I've kept from repeating innocent gossip! Much good it did me! From now on—watch out!"

Just what harm it would do David for Chatty to gossip about her friends she didn't reason out. It was just a protest.

"And I'll go with Bryant Dunning all I please, so there! And he can kiss me all he pleases—and—I'll go tonight!"

No sooner said than done. Out of the apartment to the drug store, a nickel in the slot, Bryant Dunning on the phone—

"Bryant? I need you! Seven-thirty, sharp. And I don't want any friends along, either. Just us two, Bryant, dear. We're going to the Lollypop and dance—and raise whoopee!"

SIDE GLANCES By George Clark

"All right then, where's the rich man so much better off; we all eat, don't we?"

The Day Book of a New Yorker

Broadway Chatter by Grant Dixon

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—A well known society man was spending the week-end at South Hampton lately and played golf at the National club, which is one of the most famous in America. This gentleman never smokes or drinks, but he has a great fondness for candy as many teetotalers have. After a heavy lunch he engaged in a rubber of bridge and one of the other players, who is also a good feeder, helped our hero, whom we will call Mr. C. devour a whole box of candy.

Later, on the golf links, Mr. C. walking along between shots, would stop and pick up a mushroom and break it open with the remark:

"This is a lovely pink one," then he would eat it.

His friend, who assisted him to consume the candy, was still hungry also and was anxious to eat some of the mushrooms growing wild on the links but had neither faith enough in his own ability to tell a mushroom from a toadstool or in that of his friend to take a chance. Therefore, he watched Mr. C. enviously and as mushroom after mushroom disappeared he remarked:

"How can you tell them from toadstools?"

It is the first time in the years this writer has been hammering a ball that he has ever seen a player pick and eat raw mushrooms on the links, and it is not a diet he would recommend to his readers, unless they are old mushroom pickers, because according to the encyclopedia, toadstool poisoning is very serious and very painful.

The Commercial Value of a Good Laugh

Ed Wynn, the well known comedian, had a gag in his last show which took about two minutes to do on the stage but rocked the audience with laughter.

The comedian, and incidentally, that's the designation by which he wants to be known, was a waiter in a restaurant, and a customer came in and sat down while Wynn nervously fidgeted behind him with his napkin waiting for his order. As he looked over the menu card, the customer remarked:

"I am so hungry I could eat a horse."

Wynn immediately disappeared and came back leading a full grown live horse.

I was talking to him about it the other day, and he said:

"That gag cost $130 a week. We not only had to carry the same horse with us, but we had to take along a stage hand who was a member of the union, to be a nurse to the horse, and he got $80 a week. The nag didn't draw any salary, himself. When the show went on the road, we had to take the same horse from town to town. We didn't dare take a chance on a local horse, because we could not tell how he might act when he got behind the footlights, but the laughs that the joke got was worth the investment."

This gives an idea of what real rocking laughs are worth and how far actors and producers are willing to go in spending money to get them.

Ready Cash

The will of Arnold Rothstein was recently admitted for probate and disclosed to some extent the ramifications of the financial operations of this curious New York gambler who was shot to death, supposedly by some of his enemies because he welched on a gambling debt. The will disclosed he had property, jewelry, money and securities hidden in safe deposit boxes in the names of various people. The total value of his estate was estimated at about $2,700,000.

The probation of this will recalls a story about Rothstein which may or may not be true. He was always reported to have carried large sums in cash. Years ago when Tex Rickard, the famous boxing promoter, now dead, was involved in an unpleasant scandal, it was reported that he needed a half million dollars in cash. In fairness to Rickard, the reader must be reminded that he was acquitted of the charges brought against him by two girls and their parents who made the accusation. Continuing, Tex Rickard sent for Rothstein and told him he needed to borrow some money. Rothstein asked how much and Rickard said a half million dollars, whereupon the gambler took off his coat and vest, loosened his shirt, unbuckled a money belt and counted out the sum Rickard had asked for. Whether or not this story is true the writer is not sure, but it was generally accepted around the New York tenderloin where Rickard and Rothstein circulated through so many years of their lives, as based on facts.

A Prophecy

George Bye, who was formerly a newspaper man and accompanied Lieutenant Hinton on his pioneer flight to South America, is now one of the outstanding literary agents of New York. It was in Bye's fertile brain that the title and idea for the Governor Smith story, now running in the Saturday Evening Post, originated. So pleased is the Democratic presidential candidate with the results gotten him by Mr. Bye that he has put all his literary affairs in the hands of this gentleman, and Mr. Bye has promised him that he will make more money out of literature in the next four years than Mr. Hoover makes out of running the government. I understand that there is no doubt but that this prophecy will come true.

Mexico Denies Story of 'Divorce Mill' in Country

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 8. (AP)—In the face of reports that a probe is likely to be made into alleged divorce mills in Mexico, where foreigners dissolve their marital bonds in a matter of weeks, the foreign relations department has furnished the press with figures to show that only 30 divorces are on record as having been granted to foreigners in Mexico in the first six months of 1929, and of these 26 were obtained by Americans.

In the last half of 1928, the figures show, the divorces procured by foreigners numbered 32, of which 29 went to Americans.

Marriages of foreigners in Mexico, according to the department were much more frequent than divorces. During the first six months of 1929 these totalled 1,298 of which 850 involved American couples. In the last half of 1928, 1,762 foreign couples were married in Mexico 1,214 of them Americans.

Following publication by a local newspaper recently of the report that divorce mills were to be investigated, and especially the divorce procedure in Cuernavaca, the supreme court declared null a divorce granted in the state of Yucatan. This was followed by a flood of petitions for annullment of divorces granted in Yucatan, Morelos and Sonora, according to El Universal Grafico, which said the petitions on file numbered 140.

Give the Toes Room

You have undoubtedly seen the crippled man in the circus who used his great toe for writing, brushing his hair, helping to dress, and picking up various objects. The toe is naturally prehensile, as are the fingers. However, the toes of most of us, after being cramped into the shoes and accustomed for years to little or no movement, are so stiffened and rigid that we find it hard to use them at all.

Some races develop their ability to use their toes almost as readily as their hands. We read about Chinese oarsmen who use their toes to work the oars, and of the native Australians who grasp trees while climbing with the great toe, and of the Hindoo tailors who ply their needles with the help of the toe. So accustomed are we to shoes, however, that when we, at the beach, see some individual who saves himself the trouble of stooping over, by picking up papers, rocks, pencils, matches or clothing with his toes, we stop and wonder in awe and admiration.

When you are buying your shoes, you should be most particular to find the type of shoe which will allow the toes, all of them, enough room to move properly. Both the shoes and stockings should fit correctly, if real foot comfort is to be yours. When stockings are too long they will cause blisters, while those too short will pull the toes painfully backward. The hose should be changed daily, and it is well to alternate with one pair of shoes one day and another the next. By placing the shoes in the closet with shoe-trees inside they will last longer, and this gives the odor of perspiration a chance to dry out of them.

In buying a shoe, be sure that it is broad enough to do away with the deplorable tendency of the big toe to push the others over and buckle them over in such a position that the underneath toenail saws away on the upper toe, and the joints are so stretched that bunions result. By allowing the big toe room to stretch out and push against the ground in walking, the arch is developed, and this assists in giving the body a good bearing.

The twenty-six bones of the remarkably sculptured foot structure, as well as the foot ligaments and the foot nerves are each one capable of hurting if they are cramped into a too tight shoe. The familiar limp and walk of the one who tries to save the feet, while the face is screwed up in pain, is the universal sign of new shoes or of shoes not yet broken. There used to be a custom in En-'and that the prince never wore a new shoe until it had been broken in for several days by a substitute. This would be a good plan for all of us, but unfortunately it is not practicable and, to avoid the pain, it is better to buy a shoe which will really fit the foot.

The shoe should be as broad as the foot is while bearing the weight of the body, and as long as the foot is while the longitudinal arch is extended by the body's weight. In measuring the foot for fitting, place the ruler on the floor and measure the foot while you are stepping on it. You will then get the correct length. When the feet are at rest inside the shoe the toes do not come clear to the end. Besides fitting for length and breadth, the shoe should be fitted around the ankle, with no grabbing or stretching on the part of the leather.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Insomnia

Question: K. O. writes—"Sometime ago I saw advertised in the paper a new electrical device to cure sleeplessness. As I have been suffering from insomnia for quite a while, I would like to know what you think of this, and where I could find it."

Answer—Many experimental machines have been devised for use in attempting to induce sleep, but I do not know where any such apparatus is obtainable on the market. The main object is to produce a sort of hypnosis, but you can do this just as well, yourself, by completely relaxing, and mentally repeating the word "sleep" over and over again. As long as you have no physical irritation which keeps you awake, the repeated suggestion of the word "sleep" or "sleepy" will always get results and is a sure cure for insomnia.

Near-Sightedness

Question—W. R. S. writes: "I am a little near-sighted and look very funny in glasses. Could my eyes be cured any other way besides wearing glasses?"

Answer—Near-sightedness can be helped to some degree by improving the general health, and by taking the eye exercises. These exercises will strengthen the muscles of the eyes sometimes enough so that you can go without glasses, even though your eye defect is not entirely corrected. It is advisable to wear glasses at least when reading as long as the near-sightedness continues.

Large Nose

Question—G. H. asks: "Is there any way of making a large nose small by operation? If so, is it dangerous, and where would you advise me to go for it, and what is the cost of such an operation?"

Answer—I would not advise anyone to try to reduce the size of his nose by an operation unless, perhaps, he happens to be in the theatrical profession. This operation is dangerous, and always very expensive if performed by a skilled plastic surgeon. You should be proud of your large nose, as physiognomists and phrenologists tell us it is a sign of great mental powers.

SPUDDERS COME FROM BEHIND TO NOSE OUT INDIANS, 12-9

GULLIC'S BLOW CINCHES GAME

Ted's Homer With Two On In Seventh Is Decisive

By LARRY DAILEY
Record News Sports Editor

The Spudders are staggering on the defense like a schoolboy nine. But they still pack the old potent wallop on the attack. Further evidence of the direful Wichita Falls macing was given yesterday, when Galloway's gallopers came from behind to trim the San Antonio Indians, 12 to 9, in a long-drawn-out, free-hitting affair.

Despite ineffective chucking, which yesterday happened to be the Spudder weakness, the home athletes kept plugging along in the face of such difficulties. Trailing 8 to 4, they scored three in the fourth, tied it in the fifth and took the lead in the sixth. Then Ted Gullic blasted a home run in the seventh with two comrades on the line, which was to prove the decisive poke.

Pete and Fitz Lead

Pete Turgeon hammered a double and two singles that drove home three runs and scored one himself and Howard Fitzgerald maced three hits to share Spudder batting honors of the day. Rabbit Benton, Gullic and Carl Williams got two hits each of the 13 Spudder knocks.

Tiny Chaplin was driven from the box in the fourth round and Whitey Glaser stayed in there the rest of the way to take the lacing.

Harold Wiltse started for the Spudders but was replaced in the third inning, after yielding six runs and as many hits. Paul Hopkins and Rusty Cromer, succeeding tossers, were wild and Andy Messenger finished by hurling the last three rounds and stopping the hostiles in the sixth. Save for the eighth, when the Tribe scored two tallies, one on a homer by Brozovich, Subway Andy held his former teammates at bay.

Spudders Start Scoring

The Spudders scored three runs in the first inning. Benton was passed and advanced to third on Fitzgerald's single to right and Howard moved up on Gullic's infield out. Bennett walked, filling the bases. Turgeon singled to left, scoring Benton and Fitz, and Bettencourt slashed a hit to center, tallying Bennett.

San Antonio took the lead in the second with five runs. Fitz misjudged and dropped Riley's fly, Jim going to second. Casey singled to right, sending Riley to third. Brozovich hit to right, scoring Riley and sending Casey to third and Brozovich made second on the throw-in. Bettencourt threw out Schacht. Arzatti whanged a hit through the box to center, scoring Casey and Brozovich. Chaplin singled through short, Arzatti stopping at second. Tate strolled, filling the bases. Kott's lift to Fitzgerald sent Arzatti home and Chaplin to third. Ballew pasted a two-base drive to center, scoring Chaplin.

San Antonio scored one more in the third. Casey walked and was safe at second on Wiltse's high throw on Brozovich's bunt. Schacht popped to Benton. Arzatti doubled to right, scoring Casey. Hopkins replaced Wiltse and stopped the run-making.

Pete Drives in Another

Turgeon drove home another run in the Spudder third. Gullic, first up, walked, advanced to second on Bennett's infield out and scored on Pete's second single to left. Glaser went to the hill after Bettencourt was passed and stopped the tallying that round.

The Indians tallied two more in the fourth. Ballew walked and went all the way to uncovered third on Riley's sacrifice, Bettencourt to Williams. Riley singled to center, scoring Ballew. Brozovich hit to center. Cromer relieved Hopkins and walked Schacht, filling the bases. Casey scored while Turgeon was throwing out Arzatti.

The Spudders scored three in the fourth. Cromer walked and Benton singled to center. Fitzgerald hit to center, scoring Cromer, and Benton tallied and Fitz reached third when Brozovich allowed the ball to roll through him. Gullic singled to center, scoring Fitz.

Crouch scored the tying run in the fifth when he forced Williams, who had singled through Ballew; stole second and rode home on Benton's three-base drive down the left field line.

Turgeon Hits Again

Messenger took up the mound burden in the sixth after Cromer had walked the first Indian, and turned back the hostiles scoreless in that frame.

Turgeon crashed the left-center wall for two bases for his third knock and he scored on Williams' liner over Riley to give the Spudders a 9 to 8 lead. Kott's great one-hand stop of Crouch's grounder over second forced Carl for the third out.

Gullic drove his home run over the left field fence in the seventh, scoring Benton, who had walked, and Fitzgerald, who had singled, ahead.

Brozovich blasted his homer over the right field wall in the eighth. Schacht singled to center but was picked off first by Messenger. Frank Meyers, coaching at first, talked so strenuously to Umpire Bob Countryman about the decision that he was banished from the park.

Daily Dope

By LARRY DAILEY

YOU HEAR lots about the courage of the ball club or fighter or golfer that comes from behind to win. And it does require plenty of the old heart to rally when the other fellow is leading. But it takes no less moxie for the front-runner to repulse the challenge of the contender.

Take a ball team that is leading the pack, particularly in a close race. Every man's hand is raised against them. The other nines of course are eager to knock off the leaders and to that purpose they save their best pitchers for the pacesetters. And the mental strain of maintaining a precarious margin is terrific. Only a ball club of great fighting spirit can stay out in front.

THE SPUDDERS have led the Texas league for nearly half a season. Their play the past few weeks has been erratic. Some of the stars encountered slumps. But there was no relief; with the limited number of players carried by Texas league clubs, the regulars perforce had to remain in the game, though badly in need of a vacation.

But the Spudders, faltering and staggering though they have been recently, still are out in front.

It is further proof that the Spudders are a great money ball club, and a tribute to the leadership of Jim Galloway and his aides, Carl Williams and Johnny Tobin, in maintaining team morale, that the Wichita Falls club has kept the lead.

And it is that courage of the Spudders that will make them always dangerous as contenders for the second half and in the playoff, if they attain that end.

Piling Tests for Vernon Bridge Successful

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, Texas, Sept. 8.—Piling tests at the proposed St. James crossing bridge site were completed Friday afternoon by the Austin Bridge company with favorable result, and work will be started in the near future on construction of the bridge. The Austin Bridge company has the contract on a bid of $26,213. The bridge will connect with the Farmers Valley community and all other territory north and west of Pease river, giving residents of that region a shorter route to Vernon. The crossing is about five miles west of Vernon.

E. MOORE SETS RECORD

FORT WORTH, Sept. 8. (AP)—Fort Worth split a double-header with Waco Sunday afternoon but it didn't bother the fans. Their idol, little Eddie Moore, shattered the league's three-base hit record. He did it in the first game of the double-header, which the Panthers won, 5 to 2.

Upon his first appearance to the plate in the initial game Moore crashed the apple to right for three bases, tying the record. On his second trip to the plate, in the third inning, another three-ply wallop left his bat. Little Eddie continued to hit the ball hard in the second game, getting two doubles and scoring both of the Cat runs, his mates having lost the nightcap, 4 to 2 in eight innings. Score:

Producers Nine Loses at Dallas

Wichita Falls Eliminated in Amateur Baseball

Special to The Record News.

DALLAS, Sept. 8.—Employers Casualty company of Dallas marched to the North Texas amateur championship Sunday afternoon at Easterwood park when it eliminated the Producers Creamery nine of Wichita Falls from the state race by taking the second game of the series, 8 to 4.

The game was a see-saw affair until the last of the third inning when the locals pounded the offerings of Pitcher Robertson for four runs to take a commanding lead.

By virtue of this victory the Dallas club will enter the finals of the state race next week-end.

Leading the locals to victory were Lamm, Capps and Faulkner, who slugged the ball freely with runners on the bags. One of the outstanding offensive preformers of the combat was McMahan, lead-off man and outfielder for the invaders. He connected safely three times. Two of the blows were good for extra base socks.

Both starting pitchers went the route but Wicker of the Dallas club found going somewhat smoother than his opponent, Robertson, who gave up 12 blows. Wicker was pounded for eight wallops but they were kept well scattered. Score:

Hero of Two Wars Dies in Vernon

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, Texas, Sept. 8.—A colorful career that won citations for bravery and valor from two nations and took Sam L. Brandon into Mexico as a soldier of fortune in a Mexican revolution, and into France as an American marine in the world war, where he was shell shocked and wounded in Belleau woods, was ended here Friday night when he died at a Vernon hospital after a nervous collapse nine days ago. He was 38 years old.

Saturday afternoon the veteran soldier was paid a last tribute by a service organization when the Vernon American Legion post accorded him a full military funeral.

Brandon was a soldier of fortune in Madero's army in the Mexican revolution in 1910. He went to France with one of the first contingents of marines in the world war and was wounded and shell-shocked during the war. He won three citations for bravery, one from the French government.

Interment was in East View cemetery. He had been in Vernon about two years.

He is survived by two children, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Brandon, five brothers and a sister.

Quanah Postpones Golf Tournament

Rain Causes Setting Back Of Invitation Meet

QUANAH, Texas, Sept. 8.—The first annual invitation tournament of the Quanah Country club, scheduled to have opened here Monday, has been indefinitely postponed, it was announced Sunday by R. R. Gilliland, president of the club. Sunday's downpour left the country course in no condition for play, and rather than to present the new 18-hole layout not at its best, tournament officials decided on an indefinite postponement.

One of the greatest fields ever to compete in a Northwest Texas tournament is expected to participate.

Kirkland Favors Plains Water Plan

Special to The Record News.

QUANAH, Texas, Sept. 8.—Kirkland, just over the Childress county line 20 miles west of Quanah, is strongly in favor of the proposed mammoth water project now being under consideration for the towns of the lower Panhandle, and representative business men at a meeting held there recently endorsed the project, according to Secretary Carl Guin of the Quanah Chamber of Commerce, who, with N. W. Galbraith, attended the meeting there.

The water project will call for the expenditure of $12,000,000, the laying of a 36-inch main from Quitaque on the Plains to connect with all towns between Quitaque and Wichita Falls. Engineers have made surveys and submitted figures and estimates of both supply and probable cost of the project. Various meetings have already been held in this section, and a general conference has been called by Mayor T. D. Frizzell of Quanah to be held here Sept. 10, at 2:30 p. m., for further discussion of the project. City officials and chamber of commerce officials of all towns along the proposed line are expected to attend this conference. Engineers will be present and discuss the various phases of the project and have available figures and surveys.

It is now planned to perfect a permanent organization at this conference to carry on the work in an effort to bring about relief from the ever-present water problems of practically every town in the lower Panhandle by bringing in an abundant supply of good water from the caprock plains of West Texas.

Magic Password May Reestablish Anastasia's Claim to Royalty

By HENRY CAVENDISH

BERLIN, Sept. 8. (US)—Sounding of the magic password—"Schwipsik"—and the doors of Russia's erstwhile nobility were thrown open to the woman who has pressed her claims to recognition as the grand duchess Anastasia, of Russia.

Such is the secret, Universal Service learned today, of Anastasia's progress in her battle for recognition as the sole surviving member of the immediate family of the late Czar Nicholas.

The fight of the present Anastasia for recognition as the grand duchess has hinged on the use of the nickname for grand duchess Anastasia, this nickname, Universal Service now learns, was "Schwipsik," and the genuine daughter of the czar was called by this pet name among the members of the immediate family.

When the present Anatasia appeared to them and mentioned her nickname of "Schfipsik," great credence was given to her claims.

A great setback to Anastasia's claims has resulted, however, from the disclosures by a former Russian army officer named Buligin of the method by which the present Anastasia came by nickname.

According to M. Buligin, he was sent to Siberia on orders from the Russian monarchists in the summer 1918, charged with the mission of reaching the family of the czar, then being held in Siberia. As a password, M. Buligin was given the nickname of grand Duchess Anastasia.

The former Russian officer failed in his mission, but several years later he visited in Berlin with the family of Osten Saken, the Russian emigres with whom the present Anastasia lived for several years after the Bolshevik revolution. While there, M. Buligin asserts he told the story of his trip to Siberia, and divulged the nickname "Schwipsjk" in his recountings.

In this way, Anastasia became acquainted with the name which on he rlips threw even her bitterest enemies and opponents into confusion over her identity.

AMERICAN WRITING PAPER COMPANY INC.

The present American Writing Paper Co., Inc., was formed through a reorganization of the American Writing Paper company of New Jersey, which went into receivership in 1923. The company manufactures and sells writing paper, cardboard and affiliated lines. Fourteen paper mills are owned and operated, all of which are in Holyoke, Mass. It also has an inactive plant in Connecticut awaiting sale. In 1928 net income totaled $277,994. This compared with $149,631 in 1927. This was not sufficient to cover bond interest and preferred dividend requirements.

Funded debt totals $6,076,000. Capital stock outstanding May 26, 1929, consists of 9,266 shares of $6 cumulative preferred of no par value which is redeemable at 105 and 188,078 shares of no par common. The preferred is cumulative annually to $3 during 1929, $4 during 1930, $5 in 1931 and $6 thereafter. Common and preferred have equal voting power unless two years preferred dividends are in default when the preferred shares elect the directors. Dividends at $3 a share a year were started on the preferred in April, 1929, but nothing has been paid on common.

As of Jan. 1, 1929, total current assets were $4,836,663, total current liabilities were $683,045 and net working capital was $4,153,618. Book value applicable to the common after allowing $100 a share for the preferred amounted to $3.87 a share.

All preferred and common shares are deposited under a voting trust agreement which ends Dec. 31, 1933.

"DECAY AND DILAPIDATION" THREATENING HOME, SAYS MARTIN

BIBLE CLASS HEARS TALK

Church No "Service Club," Says Speaker

Asserting that the American home has been subjected to such an attack and is in such a state of "decay and dilapidation" as to require instant attention, Judge P. A. Martin, in his address before the Bible class of the Floral Heights Methodist church Sunday morning called upon the church membership to rush to fill the "breach in the walls." Judge Martin described the home, the church, and the state as the three great protective walls, and his address described "breaches" within the three. The theme was suggested by a text from the fourth chapter of Nehemiah: "So we built the wall; for the people had a mind to work."

A synopsis of the judge's lecture is quoted below:

"As Dr. Gilroy, in his newspaper comment on today's lesson has well said we are little concerned with the waning of an ancient city, but there are modern abodes and holy places that need to be safeguarded against enemies.

Lesson for America

"Under the leadership of Nehemiah the remnant of the Jews who had returned to their sacred city went to work systematically and rebuilt the defenses of the city and put it in condition to become again a capital city for God's race. They did this under great difficulties and with many discouragements. The reason they did it was because they 'had a mind to work' at the job, even though half of them had to stand guard with swords and spears while the other half worked. It is a lesson of perseverance and patient toil that we would get from the topic of the day.

"It is a lesson that the American people need today as they never needed it before, both in temporal and spiritual affairs. I don't know what percentage of our people actually work, but I do know that it is small in comparison with the work of our fathers, who opened up the resources of our great country and made the leisure of the present age possible. I know that modern invention has produced an age of machine work which has harnessed steam, gasoline and electricity and made these elements do the work of man to such an extent that unemployment has become one of our great problems. At the same time great wealth has been amassed in the hands of the fortunate few and they are able to command the services of machines, both human and mechanical to do their work for them and they have leisure on their hands. Whatever may be the causes or conditions which produce it, the idleness of our millions of people, rich or poor, is an element of danger to our institutions of both church and state, and, in my humble judgment, is one of the main causes, if not the main cause of the existence of what we call a crime wave in our country, for it is a faithful old saying that Satan finds work for idle hands to do.

"Our civilization has three great walls of defense; the home, the church and the state. A breach in either of these defenses is dangerous and America should be able to summon all lovers of liberty to the job of repair.

"I am glad that the president of the United States has summoned to his aid a chosen committee to study the threatened breach in the walls of the state and recommend remedies. Let us hope that they will find the root of the trouble and be able to tell us just what gate needs most to be closed or what bastion is weakest and when they blow the trumpet let all good men go to the place armed for the conflict and with 'a mind to work' until the gap is closed.

Home Needs Attention

"The American home has been subjected to such an attack and is in such a state of decay and dilapidation that it is in need of instant attention. The most insidious forces have been at work, sapping the very foundations of the home. Vicious literature, crowded conditions, stress of business cares, lack of time, newspapers of the yellow stripe, modern amusements outside, quarrels and bickerings inside, easy divorce laws, division of authority, lack of parental authority, idleness and a thousand and one other things that might be mentioned have just about made the home a mere place to eat and sleep.

"When we come to consider the church we find that there too, sinister influences have been at work, as they always have. They have been 'sapping at the Rock of Ages' always and, I suppose they always will. But the church has nothing to fear from enemies without. The sappers within furnish the greatest danger. Of late we have been regaled with a general rehash of the old-time war between the so-called 'modernists' and 'fundamentalists.' Not one in a dozen know what it is all about and yet there are those who would divide the forces of Christ's kingdom upon the question. Then there are those who have the idea that the church of God is a big service club like the Lions, the Rotary or the Kiwanis, having for its object the relief of the physical wants of humanity and the demands of good fellowship.

"Then there are those who cannot get it out of their heads that the church of God has a political mission in the world and that its time and its money should be spent in furthering the candidacy of this or that man or this or that measure.

Church "Sleepers"

"Then there are those who seem to think the church is simply a place of 'rest for the weary.' These are the 'sleepers' not the 'pillars' of the church. Negative in character, they do little harm, but no real good. They have not the mind to 'work' at the job and simply sleep. Let us hope they may wake and go to work.

"This lesson would be lost to each of us if it did not have local application. We study it in vain if we do not apply its truths to ourselves. Have we a mind to 'work' to repair the breaches in our own walls? Are we ready and willing, as the Jews were to abandon our homes for the time being and work for the general good of our Zion? Or are we afraid of the ridicule of Sanballet and Tobiah. We know the right; have we the grace and the grit to do it?"

Worth More Than All the Money in Wichita, She Says

After Taking Orgatone Mrs. Colbert Feels Better Than in Two Years

"I wouldn't take all the money in Wichita Falls for the good Orgatone has done me," was the emphatic statement made by Mrs. J. R. Colbert, residing at 101 Galveston street, Wichita Falls, Texas, a few days ago.

"My family and friends are delighted with my improvement," she continued, "and I want to say that I will always be thankful for the benefits I have received from Orgatone. I think it is worth its weight in gold.

"I began to feel weak and sluggish about two years ago, and all my energy and strength was steadily slipping away from me. Although I tried all kinds of treatment and medicines, I kept going down hill all the time. My condition kept getting worse, and finally my kidneys started troubling me. I suffered with severe headaches and developed a very bad case of constipation. I would have splitting pains in my back and my food didn't nourish me at all. My blood was getting thin, and I was so weak that I was almost down in bed.

"I was so nervous and racked with pain I could hardly sleep or get any rest at all. There seemed to be no relief day or night from my troubles, and I was down-hearted because I felt my life was a burden to myself and family. And I had just about given up of ever finding anything to do me any good, because ever treatment and medicine I had tried failed to do me any good.

"I don't know what would have happened to me if I hadn't decided to try Orgatone. I read about it in the papers and I heard a lot of talk about it, and while I was afraid that it would not do any good, I felt it was my only hope.

"Well, I did the best thing I ever did in my life when I bought that bottle of Orgatone. I began on it a few weeks ago, and before I had finished half of my first bottle I began to feel better, and I could retain my food and could eat without feeling sick or having any gas on my stomach afterwards. I have taken five bottles in all, and now I'm feeling better than I have in two years. I can now digest anything I eat, and sleep fine, without feeling the least bit bad when I get up. My nervousness is all gone, and my strength and energy is restored, and I'm gaining daily. It's a pleasure to tell about a medicine that does what Orgatone has for me."

Orgatone is not a so-called patent or secret remedy but a new scientific blie treatment manufactured by one of the world's greatest laboratories and is sold in Wichita Falls exclusively by Allison' Drug Store, 716 Indiana avenue.—Adv.

Showers Reduce Sunday Classes

Rains generally credited with benefitting everything but Sunday school attendance gave Wichita Falls churches the lowest weekly record for the year Sunday morning, when the total number present dropped to 4,914, a loss of 584 in comparison with the record of Sept. 1.

With 30 schools reporting, one of which had been susnended for the past five weeks, only four reported any gain over the attendance of the preceding Sunday. These were the First Presbyterian, Buchanan Street Church of Christ, Scotland Methodist, and the First Baptist churches. The First Southern Presbyterian repeated the attendance of Sept. 1.

The individual reports follow:

	Sept. 8	Sept. 1
First Baptist	907	868
First Methodist	546	687
Floral Heights Methodist	390	470

Each of many feature productions shown in local theaters since the installation of synchronized-sound equipment has left in its wake a more or less extended epidemic of whistled, hummed and sung "theme" songs. Dick Barthelmess brought "Weary River," which even yet is heard occasionally. Al Jolson popularized "Mammy," but amateur efforts at reproduction effectively muddled the memory of Al's rendition. Fanny Brice gave "My Man" a new lease on life—for a while.

But none of those was so enthusiastically received and retained as "The Broadway Melody," "The Desert Song," "Sleepy Valley," and the enchanting melodies of "Show Boat." From the last named, "Old Man River," didn't take hold on the popular mind, although it figured heavily in maintaining behind the action of that story an eerie, mystic atmosphere which was vital to its success. That Lonesome Road" is the "Show Boat" song along which memory swings to and fro.

Will the consummate inanities of the Marx brothers linger in street talk and color local repartee even longer than we hum the theme songs of recent productions? Probably so. There appears to have been a quite thorough inoculation with the germ of insane chatter in the Groucho vein. Animated exchanges of opinion as to which moment of the farce was most amusing have enlivened many informal talk-fests. Sentences from Groucho's endless monologue are being lifted bodily to bolster up faltering command with the redemptive powers of humor. Perfect pantomime played a large part in the Marx brothers' entertainment, and certain poses and gestures will be remembered longer even than Mr. Hammer's wisecracks.

No part of "The Dance of Life," the Majestic's present attraction, gained a more friendly reception than the thrice-repeated "Swanee River," with Hal Skelly and Nancy Carroll supplying a smooth bit of team-dancing. The Swanee Riverdance is inserted at points carrying the dramatic-swells, and the unfailing appeal of the old Foster masterpiece plays heavily on the cords of sentiment.

The discovery that "The Single Standard," at the Strand, is not a talking picture might promise a slight degree of disappointment until one remembers that the principal roles are played by Greta Garbo and Nils Asther, with Johnny Mack Brown contributing an equally excellent third part. With that personnel there is reason to welcome the silent screen, for full opportunity is given to their unusual finesse in the eloquence of gesture.

Miss Garbo and Mr. Asther make a convincing drama of Adela Rogers St. John's popular novel. As implied by the title, the right of woman to nourish more than one amorous connection is brought to the fore, not for definite decision, but for consideration. A sincere "censorship" would draw great satisfaction from that fact that the one "standard" eulogized and approved by the picture is that of maternal love and loyalty.

Johnny Mack Brown, who quite recently galloped fiendishly over football fields of the South under the colors of Alabama, crowds the two acknowledged principals persistently for first honors. Johnny made a big yardage, and goes over the last chalk-line of the domestic tangle in true varsity style.

Riot Marks Election Meeting at Juarez

JUAREZ, Mexico, Sept. 8. (AP)—A riot occurred today at the Juarez race track among 5,000 voters who ultimately renominated Federal Congressman Antonio Carono for the fourth time. The melee, in which bottles, sticks and stones were hurled, began when the voters were ordered into the track through the turnstiles, which served to record the ballot totals. It was stopped by the arrival of two companies of soldiers from the local garrison. Eight men were injured severely.

'Flying Grandmother' Takes Sixth Ride

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Sept. 8. (UP)—Chipper and smiling, Mrs. Alamatia Bennett, waved cheerily to watching thousands as she took to the air from the Springfield airport here late today in celebration of her 103rd birthday.

Today's trip, the sixth for the centenarian air fan, was made in a modern cabin monoplane piloted by Maude Irving Tait, local aviatrix. The "flying grandmother" was accompanied on the air voyage by her grandson, Donald M. Smith.

Chinese Troops Open Barrage on Soviets

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R., Sept. 8. (AP)—A Tass Agency dispatch from Vladivostok today says Chinese troops unexpectedly opened artillery and rifle fire on Soviet border troops in the Gradekovo-Poltaskoya district, in Nikolskusurlisk region. The dispatch did not give details.

News from Chile indicates that that country will abolish capital punishment, thereby becoming the 25th nation in the world to do so.

BUTLER TRIAL SET MONDAY

Former Store Official To Take Witness Stand

Both the state and the defense will announce ready for trial Monday morning when the cases against Hugh Butler and Hub Stanley, charged with taking $700 from the Silver store here early in July, are called in the 89th district court, according to announcements from the attorneys Sunday.

Earl Kuntz, representing the defendants said he would offer a motion to have Butler tried first, explaining that Butler is being held in jail while Stanley is free under bond. The defendant will enter a plea of not guilty and will take the stand in his own behalf, according to Mr. Kuntz. The exact nature of the defense was not disclosed, but the attorney said five witnesses have been subpoenaed to substantiate the evidence of Butler. Stanley's trial is expected to follow immediately upon the completion of the earlier hearing.

The two men, driving through from Wichita Falls in an automobile, were arrested in Breckenridge on the day of the money loss at the instance of Chief of Police Frank Burns. At the time of the arrest, the loss had not become known, the two having been taken into custody because police were seeking Stanley in connection with a shooting scrape here. The discovery of a money bag, claimed as one from the Silver store, and an unexplained quantity of money in the car of the two prisoners led to investigations, the uncovering of the robbery and the subsequent indictments. Butler was at that time acting assistant manager of the store.

Following his indictment here, Butler was taken to Dallas on a Tarrant county indictment. He escaped from jail there several weeks ago and was recaptured late in August to be returned to face a murder charge in Hillsboro. The prisoner was brought back to Wichita county on the authority of a bench warrant signed by Judge Allan Montgomery. He will be turned over to Hill county authorities again after his trial here.

Jinks Improving After Transfusion

Following the transfusion of one pint of blood Saturday afternoon, the condition of D. T. Jinks, 1611 Lucile avenue, whose left leg was crushed in an accident at the Wichita Mill and Elevator Friday afternoon, was reported slightly improved Sunday at the Wichita Falls Clinic hospital.

Attendants at the hospital were unable to state Sunday in view of the improvements, whether another transfusion would be necessary. Three young men, out of 20 who volunteered and were examined, qualified for the transfusion. Five hundred centimeters of blood, or about one pint, was taken from one young man Saturday.

Fire Destroys Barn On Farm Near Frederick

Special to The Record News.

FREDERICK, Okla., Sept. 8.—Fire of undetermined origin destroyed a barn and two cows belonging to W. J. Ash on his farm joining Frederick on the southwest about 2 o'clock Saturday morning. The fire department was called and by means of the booster tank and water from a hydrant other outbuildings were saved. The barn was almost consumed before the arrival of Lum Lemonds, fire chief, and his crew.

Ice Company Truck Damaged by Fire

Firemen were called to Twelfth street and Ohio avenue shortly before 8 o'clock Sunday night when the cushions of a truck belonging to the Peoples Ice company caught fire. The blaze was quickly extinguished but 40 gallons of chemical were used in putting out the flames. Damage was estimated at $5.

ICE CREAM SOCIAL POSTPONED BY LEAGUE

Leaders in the Sibley Taylor Epworth league announced Sunday that the ice cream supper planned for Monday night has been indefinitely postponed because of the weather.

Rabbit Breeders Meet At Iowa Park Sept. 10

Members of the American Rabbit and Cavy Breeders association of Texas will meet at Iowa Park Tuesday, Sept. 10, at 8 p. m., in the chamber of commerce rooms there, for conference with officials of the Wichita county fair relative to the exhibition to be held on Sept. 26, 27 and 28 at Iowa Park, according to W. L. Smith, corresponding secretary.

The rabbit breeders are planning to hold, in conjunction with the annual fair at Iowa Park, one of the largest rabbit shows to be given in North Texas this year, it was announced. Entries from many surrounding counties are expected. Mr. Smith said, and premiums will be paid on a percentage basis to winners.

A licensed judge of the A. R. & C. B. A. of Texas will be on hand to judge all entries and make awards, it was said.

Driver to Ask Delay In Trial for Fatal Accident

A motion for continuance because of the absence of material witnesses will be offered by the defense when the trial of Bob McCorkle, charged with negligent homicide, is called in the county court-at-law Monday morning, according to an announcement from James V. Allred, defense attorney.

McCorkle was arrested and put under bond after the death of Tom Bennett, aged Wichitan, who was fatally injured when he was struck by the McCorkle car on Ohio street several weeks ago.

Loss of Enthusiasm Most Complete. Bankruptcy, Kay Bible Class Told

Vision and Faith in God Given as Requisites of Success by Daniel in Sunday Address

The most complete bankruptcy into which a person may fall is the loss of all enthusiastic purposes, Roy J. Daniel told members of the Kay Bible class Sunday morning in an address on Nehemiah's rebuilding of the walls of Jerusalem.

"The richest person on earth is the one who has God in his heart and life, and finds supreme happiness in unselfish service to Him and His cause," Mr. Daniel continued. "Nehemiah succeeded because he dedicated his life to a great and difficult task. Enthusiasm, vision, faith in one's self and God, and a will to work are the requisites to success."

Daniel

The address follows:

Who is the most bankrupt man or woman in the world? Is it that person who has drilled a thousand oil wells and found them all to be dry in his efforts to entice from the bowels of the earth its liquid gold? Is it that person whose place of business has been destroyed by fire, without having any kind of insurance? Is it that person who has lost all earthly possessions? No; none of these. A bankrupt person is one who has lost his or her enthusiasm. When you are no longer enthused by a glorious sunset, by the beautiful pictures which nature paints upon the sky, by the sweet melody of a singing bird, by the happy chatter of a little child, or by a great ideal, then you are a bankrupt. But the most bankrupt person in the whole world is the man or woman who has lost God. The richest person on earth is that person who has God in his heart and life, and finds supreme happiness in unselfish service to Him and His cause.

Man of Character

Judged by that standard Nehemiah of this lesson today was not a bankrupt. Nehemiah was a Jew who served the Persian king as a cupbearer. It was necessary that a cupbearer of the king be a man of trustworthy character because his close daily contact with the king in handing him his cup of wine or water made it possible for the cupbearer to poison the king if the cupbearer were an unscrupulous man. It was a place of great honor and trust. And the fact that Nehemiah was the king's favorite cupbearer shows that he had made good on the job. Being near the throne Nehemiah was looked upon by his fellow captive Hebrews as their leader and friend in court.

One day a caravan of Nehemiah's countrymen came into Susa from Jerusalem. Nehemiah went to talk with them and inquired of them how things were at Jerusalem. And they told him things were in a very bad condition. They told him that the walls of the city were down, that the gates were off their hinges, and that the city was without any protection against her enemies. In those days before the invention of firearms and cannon and airplanes a city depended upon its walls for defense. Thus we read of the walls of Rome, the walls of Troy, the walls of Athens, the walls of Jerusalem and realize that the walls meant everything to those great cities. The bad news about the walls gave Nehemiah the blues. He became very unhappy worrying about the situation. What was the first thing he did about it? He went to God in prayer about the proposition. He confessed before God the sins of his people and then he confessed his own sins. Then he ended his prayer by asking God to give him victory in his petition to the powerful king. About four months after the interview with the caravan from Jerusalem Nehemiah was serving the king his wine when the king noticed the sad look in the cupbearer's face. Nehemiah had tried to hide his sadness but without success. When the king asked him what the trouble was Nehemiah saw his opportunity. He breathed a silent quiet prayer to God for strength and victory. Do we do that as often as we should? Our victories over sin and temptation would be greater if we would just pause and breathe quiet prayers to God when we face the battles of life. God gave Nehemiah strength because he asked the king for permission to return to the city that contained the sepulchres of his fathers, and to rebuild the walls there. To Nehemiah's amazement the king not only granted his request but also gave him a commission as governor of Jerusalem and a cavalry escort to protect him and his party as they crossed the hostile territory between Susa and Jerusalem. It was quite some promotion from a position of servant cupbearer to the Persian king to that of his governor and legal representative in the city of Jerusalem.

Nehemiah slipped into Jerusalem quietly and remained three days before anybody knew of his arrival. He spent those three days seeing without being seen. He got on a mule one night and rode over a section of the old wall on a tour of inspection. He wanted to know the ground before he made any plans. When he had his plans ready he called the leaders of the Jews at Jerusalem into a conference and they became enthusiastic over his plans to rebuild the walls. The people became enthused and had a will to work. The plan wisely provided that each man was to work on that portion of the wall nearest his home and family. Each man was thus inspired to do his best and put into the wall his best efforts.

Difficulties of Work

Now Nehemiah did not have smooth sailing in rebuilding the walls of Jerusalem. The enemies of Judah around about and especially Samaria did not want to see restored the glories of Jerusalem and the ancient glories of the Hebrew race. The ring-leader of Nehemiah's enemies was a man named Sanballat. He tried several times to get Nehemiah to go outside Jerusalem to meet him and talk with him so he could get hands on him. But Nehemiah would not be swerved from his purpose and kept on the job in hand. Nehemiah's workmen worked on the walls and carried their sidearms strapped to their bodies as they labored. Finally Sanballat said that he was going to report to the Persian king that Nehemiah was rebuilding the walls for a selfish purpose. He threatened to report that Nehemiah and the Jews were planning to rise up and throw off the yoke of Persia and establish in Jerusalem a Hebrew kingdom with Nehemiah as king. But Nehemiah told him to crack his whip because the hand of God was upon him and his work. Beset on all sides by hostile Ammonites, Samarians, Arabs and Philistines, Nehemiah kept at his task until the walls were completed.

So Nehemiah succeeded because he dedicated his life to a great difficult task. He has enthusiasm and vision and faith in himself and in God. Likewise today if we would succeed in life we must dedicate our lives to great tasks, we must take the propositions of life to God in prayer, we must know and believe that the hand of God is upon and with us, and we must have at all times the will to work.

SCHOOL TERMS OPEN TODAY

Students of City-County Resume Work

Wichita county school children numbering approximately 8,000 outside Wichita Falls, will answer the roll in 21 school houses Monday morning when the new fall school term officially opens. Fifteen common schools and half a dozen institutions in independent districts will marshall their students for another full nine month session, Burl Bryant, county superintendent, announced Sunday.

The number includes all but two of the schools in the county. At County Line, the students are still without a building, he explained, the state comptroller's office has not yet approved a $7,500 bond issue voted several months ago. The County Line school building was destroyed by fire last spring.

Students in the Allendale district are stopping rather than starting school, the superintendent said. A two months summer session was brought to a close on Friday afternoon, and the children of the district will be turned loose for the cotton picking season during the coming six weeks. After that time the regular work will be resumed, Mr. Bryant said.

In the rural districts proper, where 15 country schools will open their doors Monday, 70 teachers will take charge of some 2,000 students, the superintendent's records show. At Iowa Park, Burkburnett, Electra, Clara, Fairview, and Valley View, all independent districts, approximately 6,000 students are enrolled, Mr. Bryant said.

Five Masked Youths Rob Chicago Theater

CHICAGO, Sept. 8. (US)—Five masked and armed youths, showing peculiar familiarity with the structure, robbed the palatial Chicago theater, largest of Chicago's motion picture places, and one of the country's leading Publix theaters, of $1,890 today. They dropped $550 as they fled, however.

Ambrose Conroy, assistant manager of the theater, was opening the door of his office in the basement of the building, just before the first Sunday performance, when the five robbers seized him, pressed guns against him, and forced him to open the safe.

LAMAR AVENUE CHURCH ELECTS

Baptist Congregation Names New Officers

Members of the Lamar Avenue Baptist church met in conference Sunday morning for the purpose of electing officers for the year ending Aug. 31, 1930. The church recently adopted the Wichita-Archer Baptist association year which begins on Sept. 1, and for this reason a called meeting was held in order to name officers.

Board members elected were J. J. Nicholson and Fred L. Cone; Clarence Lile, church clerk; Jess McLarry, treasurer; Clarence Lile, director of B. Y. P. U. work; J. J. Bozeman, board of ushers; Mrs. W. E. Walker, pianist; and W. R. Harper, choir director.

Approval of the annual report of the work accomplished by the various departments of church was also given. This report showed a net gain in members for the year of 132, with a present membership of 612.

Messengers to the Wichita-Archer association meeting to be held at the Highland Heights Baptist church beginning Wednesday night Sept. 11 were also elected, as follows: J. J. Nicholson, Fred L. Cone, Conner Smith, Mrs. W. R. Harper, Mrs. Raymond Ferrill, Mrs. F. C. Paull and Mrs. H. A. O'Neil.

Historic Town Now Minus Five Saloons

GALENA, Ill., Sept. 8. (US)—Galena, the town from which General Grant marched off to war and a high place in American history, the town that used to be the jumping off place to the unknown West, today smarted from the "straw that broke the camel's back."

A raiding party of prohibition agents dropped in yesterday, raided five saloons, dismantled a huge distillery, and placed 10 men under arrest, one of them being H. J. Vogel, alleged owner of the still.

Bankers to Talk Farm Relief at Dallas Today

DALLAS, Sept. 8. (UP)—The merits of the federal farm relief act will be discussed here tomorrow by the executive committee of the Texas Bankers' association and bankers who will meet with the committee. The group will decide whether the association will sponsor cooperatives as required by the federal farm board before aid can be granted growers. The meeting was called by A. A. Horne, Galveston, president of the association, on suggestion of Gov. Dan Moody.

'Dry Hole' Turns Out To Be Big Producer

WICHITA, Kan., Sept. 8. (AP)—A well which operators thought Saturday was dry, today increased its production by swabbing and may become one of the largest producers in Greenwich townsite. The well was put down for William F. Kenny, New York. It is on the Tripp land in the northeast edge of Greenwich townsite, and tanked 250 barrels of oil in three and one-half hours of swabbing.

OFFICER IMPROVING

Warren Belcher, deputy sheriff, who was injured in an automobile collision as he was returning to Wichita Falls with a prisoner last week will be able to leave the hospital within the next few days, according to reports received by Sheriff W. G. Bralley Sunday. Mr. Belcher suffered injuries to his arm when the car he was driving was struck by a passing truck on the Henrietta highway.

Death Claims Miss Nora True

Services Monday at 4:30 for Wichita Woman

Miss Nora Nellie True, 35, died at the family residence, 1509 Polk street, about 10 o'clock Sunday morning following a prolonged illness. The body was taken in charge by the Merkle Undertaking company.

Funeral services will be held from the Floral Heights Methodist church at 4:30 o'clock Monday afternoon with Dr. E. R. Barcus, pastor, officiating. The body will be forwarded by the Merkle company to Munday, Texas, Monday night for interment in the cemetery at that city. Services there will be held at the cemetery at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning.

Active pallbearers for the rites here were announced as follows: Milton Johnson, P. B. Cox, M. J. McGuigan, J. W. Donehoo, G. H. Howell and Paul B. Scott.

Miss True had lived in Wichita Falls for the past seven years, having moved here from Munday where she spent her childhood. She was born in Alvord, Texas. She made her residence here with her mother, Mrs. M. M. True.

Besides her mother, Miss True is survived by six brothers, L. F. True of Atwood, Okla., W. W. True of House, N. M., E. F. True of McAlister, N. M., J. B. True of Floydada, Texas, S. M. True of Goree, Texas, and C. C. True of Dallas, and two sisters, Mrs. Lee Farrington of McAlister, N. M., and Mrs. S. N. Wright of Roosevelt, N. M.

Walters, Okla., Approves Additional School Tax

Special to The Record News.

WALTERS, Okla., Sept. 8.—Walters citizens this week approved a proposition authorizing the county to levy and collect an additional tax levy of 10 mills for school purposes in the city of Walters. The 10-mill levy will be collected in addition to the 5 mills which the law allows and will furnish sufficient funds for the conduct of a regular school term here during the coming school year.

Littlefield Watches New Oil Development

Special to The Record News.

LITTLEFIELD, Texas, Sept. 8.—News of the finding of about 80 feet of sand in an oil well being drilled five miles south from Lehman, comes to holders of Littlefield lands with much interest, since this well is only about 20 miles from the south line of the Littlefield lands. The development of this well is being watched by many of the large oil companies.
