Arabs seize Pan Am jet

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP) — Four Arabs armed with machine guns and explosives today seized a Pan Am jumbo jet with about 400 people aboard at Karachi airport and demanded an American crew fly them to Cyprus. Pakistani officials said the gunmen killed an American passenger and wounded three airport workers.

However, both State Department officials in Washington and a Pan Am spokeswoman in New York said they were told the wounded passenger was alive. Pan Am said 41 other Americans were believed on the New York-bound Boeing 747.

The gunmen, who security officials said were Palestinians, told Pakistani officials by radio they had planted explosives on the plane.

"No American should approach the aircraft. Otherwise we will give them a tough fight. We will not commit suicide," said the hijack leader, identified only as Mustafa.

Civil Aviation Administration director general Khurshid Manwar Mirza, who was negotiating with the hijackers from the control tower, said they demanded an American flight crew come aboard and fly the plane to Cyprus.

In exchange, they offered to release "at least the women and children and perhaps more," Mizra said.

Officials quoted Mustafa as saying the gunmen wanted to free Palestinian hijackers jailed in Larnaca.

Ask Us

Q. — How come we don't have an unemployment office here and have to go to Sweetwater?

A. — The Snyder TEC office will process applications, but any unemployment benefits have to be paid through its regional office in Sweetwater, following TEC policy. Regarding the question, the Texas Employment Commission is financed by the state legislature, and it faced substantial budget cuts approximately five years ago. At the time, some regional offices like the one in Sweetwater were closed and a shutdown of the local operation was expected. A local effort in support of the Snyder branch was successful in keeping it open.

Reed resignation due before board

The resignation of longtime school board member Mike Reed, who has indicated to his fellow board members the past several months he would likely be leaving Snyder with the start-up of the fall term, will be submitted for board approval Tuesday night.

Reed has entered law school at Texas Tech and is now attending classes there. Currently, he and his family plan to move to Lubbock.

Reed has served as a Snyder trustee for 6½ years — twice as president of the board, the most recent during the past school year.

In a letter addressed to Mike Jordan, current board president, Reed said, "I would...be unable to devote...time to my responsibilities as trustee and this is unacceptable to my view of the high standards of this office."

Reed's resignation will be the second from the board within the past several months. The resignation of J.M. (Mule) Kaysar was accepted by the board May 13.

This brings the normally seven-member board to five. Jordan, Charlene Light, Allen Grimmett, G.A. Parks Jr. and J.D. Hinton.

Lake water's rise now set at 5.3 ft.

Lake J.B. Thomas has now risen some 5.3 vertical ft. due to recent rains, and water district officials said Friday morning water was continuing to flow heavily into the local water source.

The lake's current level is the highest it has been in almost three years, matching a level set in December of 1983. It now stands at 2,224 ft. above sea level, still some 34 ft. below the spillway.

According to Rod Lewis, assistant manager for the Colorado River Municipal Water District, the lake has caught some 13,000 acre ft. of water from the recent rains.

He expects this level to increase, noting "Right now we've got as much water going into Thomas as we've had during this entire spell."

Rains continued throughout Scurry County Thursday and early Friday, but as of 10 a.m. all highways in the county were said open.

Rural co-op meet attended by 1,300

Approximately 1,300 people attended the 48th annual Midwest Electric Cooperative meeting and barbecue Thursday night, including 438 registered members.

Highlights of the evening included election of three directors and a short address by U.S. Rep. Charles Stenholm.

Two directors were unopposed on the vote. They included Joe Falls of Ira and Bobby Gruben of Rotan. Falls, Place 6, received 316 votes, and Gruben, Place 7, netted 311 votes.

Jerry Upshaw of Roby, Place 7, received 217 votes to defeat Andy Moore, who garnered 92 votes.

Stenholm opened his remarks by asking how many in the audience would vote for the tax overhaul bill as they understand it.

Stenholm said he was basically undecided, but that he was leaning toward a "no" vote. He said he questioned whether the nation's businesses can stand any more taxes, especially when the U.S. has been importing more food and fiber than exporting, "and yet we still expect businesses to remain competitive."

He also told the audience that opponents to rural electrification have "been turned back for the moment," but he admitted that rural electrification has suffered its share of budget cuts.

Stenholm centered the bulk of his short talk around comparing oil and gas to the agriculture industry and the hard times both are experiencing.

Defending the 1985 Farm Bill, he said the price of cotton was dropped to "get the attention of the world." "Why should we set aside acres when everyone else is planting fence row to fence row," he asked the audience.

When representatives of other countries began to question America's tactics, he said he told them that we "were doing just

SOUTH AFRICAN SPEAKER — John Bosman, international evangelist from South Africa, points to his country's strategic location Thursday while talking to Snyder High School students. S. African situation disputed

By VICKI BROWN
SDN Staff Writer

"It's as peaceful in South Africa as it is in Snyder right now," an international evangelist told a group of Snyder High School students Thursday.

John Bosman, his wife Anne and son Jayce offered their views on the South African unrest to a combined class of world history class and economic students.

"First, I want to say this," Bosman opened.

"Most everything we're seeing over television and hearing on the news about South Africa at this time is very much distorted, much of it is lies and the news media is not even telling the truth about the events in South Africa at this time."

In Snyder to preach revival services at Lighthouse Assembly of God this week, Bosman added, "I'm not trying to suggest that there is no turmoil, no riots, no problems. I'm trying to show that the rest of the world is getting a distorted picture of the problems."

Bosman, who is white, contended that the news media has convinced those outside South Africa that unrest exists between the white minority and the black majority. "It isn't white against blacks, but blacks against blacks. We are being made to believe that blacks and whites are kept apart by hate under apartheid (South Africa's governmental structure).

"Apartheid really is the means to allow each minority to grow and develop to its full potential," he said.

Bosman compared the country's racial structure to blocks. "If you put a tiny white block here to represent all the white people and a big black block here to represent all the black people, then the black block is much bigger than the white block. But that is not the true picture," he added.

He noted that while most blacks in the United States have

Dad indicted

CONROE, Texas (AP) — The father of a 2-year-old Magnolia boy who died after being left in a closed car for an hour on a hot afternoon was indicted on two counts of criminal negligence.

Ryan Scott Welch, 21, said he did not know his son, Ryan Dennis Welch, was in his car July 27 when he drove some children to a softball park.

Welch found his son lying unconscious in the back seat of the car after the game and the child later died at Tomball Community Hospital.

Jobless rate

DALLAS (AP) — Unemployment in Texas rose to 9.2 percent in August, but officials of the Bureau of Labor Statistics today described the half-point increase as insignificant.

BLS regional commissioner Bryan Richey said the increase from July's 8.7 percent was within the possible sampling error for the government's figures.

2 safes opened at mill

The burglary of a pair of safes at the Ezell-Key Grain Company and feed mill was reported Friday morning.

Law enforcement officials say cash and cashiers checks were taken with an estimated value of about $3,700.

Scurry County Sheriff Keith Collier said entry was gained to the mill office, located on U.S. Hwy. 84 southeast of Snyder, by forcing open the front doors.

The burglary is thought to have occurred sometime after 10 p.m. Thursday.

Collier said that two safes in the office had been cut open, apparently with a torch.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "The trouble with a budget is it won't budge."

Keeping tabs on our neighbors:

In September folks' attention is torn between football and a good month for fishing. Walter Buckel, in the Lamesa Press-Reporter, noted that some college coaches may want to take up fishing.

Buckel was in Austin recently and said the word is out in Austin that unless Fred Akers and his UT Longhorns go 8-2 and win a bowl game, the head coach is on his way out.

The way the SWC is shaping up, that's a tough assignment, even for UT football. Akers may want to take up fishing....

Wetting a hook reminded Buckel of a conversation between two fishing buddies.

"Our preacher should be finishing his sermon just about now," said one of the men. "We should be at church listening to him. Don't you feel guilty?"

His friend answered as he pulled in a three-pound bass. "I couldn't have gone anyway, my wife hasn't been feeling well."

There's a lot of talk these days about the risks of smoking. George Dolan, in the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, told a story that includes another reason to swear off.

A few years ago, the couple's telephone rang. The husband answered and the caller asked for his wife.

"She can't come to the phone now," the husband said. "She's putting out the cat."

"Does it take that long?" the caller asked.

"I don't know," said the husband. "It's never been on fire before."

The caller wasn't amused, but the husband wasn't kidding.

The cat, while strolling leisurely through the living room, had curled the tip of its long, fluffy tail into an ash tray where a cigarette was burning.

The woman managed to smother the cat's tail before it caused much damage, or she said, any pain to the cat.

But the lesson was learned...the cat hasn't smoked since.

Hunts seek judges removal

DALLAS (AP) — The Texas Hunt brothers retaliated against a judge's order to move their bankruptcy proceedings from New Orleans to Dallas by seeking to have him removed from the cases.

U.S. District Judge Barefoot Sanders Thursday ordered the Hunts' Placid Oil Co., one subsidiary and the William Herbert Hunt personal estate trust to file a motion to transfer bankruptcy petitions to U.S. Bankruptcy Court in Dallas.

The Hunts responded by saying that Sanders should be removed from their cases because he owns stock in Allied Bancshares, Houston, and has historical ties to the banking industry.

Sanders' 1986 personal financial disclosure form shows an investment in Allied of between $100,000 and $250,000 — his single largest stockholding interest.

That bank is not one of the Hunts' creditors, but "having stock in any bank, particularly a Texas bank, is improper and leaves some doubt about the judge's impartiality," Hunt spokesman Joe Grillo said.

Sanders did not return messages The Associated Press left on his home's telephone answering machine Thursday night.

Stephen Gordon — one of the lawyers representing William Herbert, Nelson Bunker and Lamar Hunt — said an appeal of Sanders' order would also be filed with the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans.

Sanders gave the Hunt companies a deadline of noon next Thursday for filing their motion to transfer the cases. Failure to comply is punishable by civil contempt, his order said.

The judge also ordered the Hunt companies to file at 4 p.m. each day a status report on their compliance with his order.

Jerry P. Jones, a lead attorney for the banks, was in a meeting Thursday but said he was not commenting to the press about the judge's order, according to his secretary, Dyan Wilson.

Placid Oil, the Hunt trust and Placid Building & Service Co., which owns 27 percent of a downtown Dallas office tower, filed petitions under Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code last Friday in New Orleans to stave off foreclosures on their property by the banks.

"That's where the property lies and it's very inconvenient and difficult" to bring witnesses to Dallas, Gordon said Thursday. He and other Hunt lawyers had argued before Sanders Wednesday that most of Placid's assets are in Louisiana.

Expert says OPEC's move reflecting 'more stability'

DALLAS (AP) — OPEC overplayed its hand in manipulating the world oil supply, an error that led to the catastrophic collapse in the price of crude, an OPEC official says.

But the oil cartel's recent move to cut the surplus on the world oil market should lead to a permanent agreement reflecting more stability, Alirio A. Parra, Venezuela's representative to OPEC, said Thursday.

Parra, who was among several experts meeting here to discuss the oil-price collapse, said OPEC's interim accord to return for two months to a daily production ceiling of 16 million barrels is not a basic change in policy.

"The recent collapse in prices stems not from design but from OPEC having overplayed its hand," said Parra, past president of OPEC's board of governors.

"Now we have an OPEC that's not looking back on its past. It is not a creature of the '70's. It's much more realistic, organized and understands the market better," he said in a news conference.

In short, the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries hopes to produce an equilibrium between potential supplies and the growing market, Parra said.

OPEC considers 16 million barrels per day too low and 20 million too high for its production ceiling, he said.

OPEC's success on its latest strategy will depend in part on voluntary participation of those producer-exporters that are not members of the organization, he said.

"I think a lot of what happens to prices depends on how the agreement works and how industry administers inventories (currently totaling about 72 days)," he said. "The only thing we have before us is the majority (of OPEC members) suggesting $17 to $19 per barrel."

In a speech to participants at the energy conference, Parra said the international oil market is entering a phase of higher growth.

He described an acceptable price as one that is "high enough to sustain a reasonable level of exploration, but low enough to discourage further substitution."

In the future, he said, prices should be flexible, not rigid, as well as uniform.

Air Force chaplain confined

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A 30-year-old assistant chaplain at Randolph Air Force Base has been convicted of sexually molesting three young boys — one of them at the base chapel on Sunday — and sentenced to four years' confinement.

As part of the sentence handed down at a court-martial Thursday, Sgt. George D. Barnes was also ordered to forfeit his salary and allowances and will get a bad-conduct discharge at the end of his prison term.

Barnes, who had pleaded not guilty, sat quietly as Military Judge Lt. Col. Mark S. Anderson returned the sentence after deliberating one hour.

Prosecuting attorney Capt. Edward Goldner argued that Barnes, who faced a maximum of 23 years' confinement, was a pedophile with little chance for rehabilitation.

Three boys, aged 10 and 11 at the time the incidents occurred last year and the year before, used a doll during the court-martial to identify where they said Barnes had fondled them.

The boys said they didn't speak up earlier because they were scared to admit they had been molested. Barnes was found guilty of molesting one boy at the base chapel during Sunday activities and the other two boys at his home.

Schoolhouse 'Arrest' Scares Children and Angers Parent

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1986 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Recently an incident occurred at my children's school that upset me. Two third-grade boys were caught stealing candy and money from a teacher's room. One boy did not show up for school for a few days. When he returned, he told the kids he had been away "camping." The other boy, however, received a different punishment. He had a history of causing trouble at school, so his father suggested (and the principal agreed) that the boy be given a good scare. The principal called the police, and two police officers came to the school and told the boy he was under arrest. This "arrest" took place in front of the other students. The boy was handcuffed and led to a police car, presumably to be taken to jail, although I doubt that the incident was carried that far.

No explanation was made to the children about the "arrest," but my children came home wide-eyed, convinced that policemen do arrest little kids as they had seen it with their own eyes.

I was furious about the way the matter had been handled. When I spoke to the other parents, I was shocked to learn that many of them thought this type of scare was good for the children. I still disagree. What do you think?

ROSWELL, N.M., MOM

DEAR MOM: I agree with you. The end does not justify the means. What will the children think when they learn — and they surely will — that policemen do not arrest little kids; that those whom they trusted and respected the most — their parents, teachers and officers of the law — lied to them and had staged a phony arrest to scare them? I think, in the end, that scheme will do more harm than good.

DEAR ABBY: Can you please tell me why restaurant owners keep their restaurants so dark you need a flashlight or a match in order to read the menu? It's ridiculous. Most people would like to see what they're eating. At least I do.

Am I an oddball? Or do people really enjoy going to a restaurant and sitting in the dark?

NO BAT IN PORTLAND

DEAR NO BAT: I speak only for myself, but I agree, when the waiter has to bring a flashlight to the table in order to read the menu, it's time to lighten up. Read on for another common complaint from a diner:

DEAR ABBY: Why do so many of the finer dining rooms have "background" music so loud that the customers have to shout in order to be heard? My wife and I were invited to one of the nicest restaurants in the city, and had a miserable time because we couldn't even carry on a conversation with the couple who treated us. It was our anniversary and we had looked forward to a nice visit, but it was impossible.

Please print this to let restaurant owners and managers know that most diners, especially the older ones, find it very difficult to converse with loud, so-called background music going on. If folks want to hear music, they will go to a concert. Good eating places do not need music at all. Thank you.

QUIET, PLEASE!

DEAR QUIET: You can say that again.

DEAR ABBY: I doubt whether there is any documentation on this, but what word do you think is more apt to be misspelled more than any other?

CURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS: "Hors d'oeuvre" gets my vote.

Delta rocket set to boost secret "Star Wars' satellites

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Two satellites scheduled for a secret launch here today are to engage in orbital pursuit, with one crashing into the other in a major test of "Star Wars" technology, sources report.

Neither the Strategic Defense Initiative Office nor the National Aeronautics and Space Administration would acknowledge the launch of the Delta booster rocket today.

Reporters were to be informed a few hours before liftoff and be escorted to a viewing site on Cape Canaveral.

If the experiment is successful, SDIO, which manages the Star Wars missile defense program, planned to discuss the results several hours after launch.

A Delta has not flown since the rocket was grounded after a failure in May.

Success would end a string of four U.S. space launch failures since February and help restore confidence in a space program battered by those and the January explosion of space shuttle Challenger.

Sources who spoke on condition of anonymity said the payload consisted of two satellites that were to separate in orbit and fly intricate maneuvers, using small jet thrusters, as they tracked each other.

The objectives, they said, were to obtain spectral data with infrared sensors and to test guidance, navigation and jet thruster systems.

One of the satellites also might try to track a rocket launched from another site, the sources said.

After these concepts have been tested, they said, one of the satellites was to ignite a small motor and crash into its companion in a test of kinetic energy technology in which one projectile is hurled at another at great speed and destroys it on impact.

One element of President Reagan's Star Wars defense system envisions scores of orbiting satellites carrying lasers.

Lawmakers get 2nd chance

AUSTIN (AP) — Although their first 30-day special session didn't get the job done, Gov. Mark White is predicting that state legislators will balance the budget on their next attempt.

"There should be no break in stride in these efforts. They are moving in the right direction. Negotiations are on-going, and we're going to continue working to hammer out the differences," White said.

White announced Thursday that lawmakers will return to the Capitol at 11 a.m. Monday. He will address a House-Senate session at noon.

The goal is the same one that eluded the session that ended Thursday — eliminating the $3.5 billion state budgete deficit.

"The time has expired on the session which was called, but we're not folding our tents and we're not going home," White said.

"We have to realize that our constitutional duty and our first responsibility is to balance the budget. And that's exactly what we must do."

White renewed his call for a temporary sales tax increase to be combined with spending cuts to wipe out the deficit.

When he opened the just-ended special session on Aug. 6, White urged lawmakers to hike the sales tax from 4⅛ cents to 5¼ cents for a year. Although he told lawmakers then that it might cost them their jobs to raise taxes in an election year, he said Thursday that remains the best course.

"I think we're going to need deep cuts combined with an emergency, temporary tax increase in order to close the budget gap. That's the reality I described at the beginning of this effort. I think that's the best compromise," White said.

White's election opponent, Republican former Gov. Bill Clements, said the Legislature's deadlock was graphic proof of White's inability to lead.

"The fact there is a second special session is unfortunate for the state. If the leadership from the governor's office had been there during the first 30 days, this crisis would be over," Clements said.

The United States buys three-quarters of all of Canada's exports.

Tactical exercise

By James Jacoby

My father always said that the best bridge tournament director he had ever known was Gen. Alfred Gruenther, who started his career as a military instructor at West Point. Father recognized that it takes the discipline of a military officer to keep unruly bridge players in hand. Today's deal shows that Gruenther was a fine player as well.

North's hand was sparse for a takeout double, but Gruenther had plenty of values to jump to six diamonds over four spades. As far as West's double of the slam goes, all I can say is that this call was certainly in the enterprising spirit of bridge in the 1930s. Today's expert would know not to double a slam when the declarer bid expecting to make it.

Still, the general had his work cut out for him. He won the spade ace and, before touching trumps, led a low heart from his hand. Since it would do West no good to now grab the ace, he ducked. When the queen won, the heart king was shed on the spade king and a heart was ruffed. Declarer played a low diamond to dummy's nine and ruffed dummy's last heart. A diamond to the king removed the last trump from West's hand, and next came dummy's nine of spades. When East followed low, South discarded a club. Poor West had to win that trick and now had the choice of leading away from the club king or giving a sluff and a ruff. Either way, Al Gruenther had won a major bridge battle.

Board to end parole

HOUSTON (AP) — The Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles will automatically revoke the parole of thrice-convicted former Texas Supreme Court Justice Donald B. Yarbrough, officials said.

The board's action will add five years of state prison time to his six-year federal sentence, parole board spokesman Mike Roach said Thursday.

The 44-year-old Yarbrough, of Houston, was on parole from the Texas Department of Corrections on perjury and bond-jumping convictions when he bribed a banker in a money-laundering scheme.

Yarbrough was convicted earlier this year on federal conspiracy and bribery charges, and is awaiting transfer to a federal prison.

Roach said the latest conviction automatically results in revocation of his state parole.

Yarbrough was paroled from the TDC in 1984 after serving about two years. The board's action will force him to serve out the remainder of his seven-year sentence, said Roach.

He said state rules will not allow Yarbrough to serve the state sentence concurrently with the federal sentence, but said he may be able to accumulate state good-time credits while in the federal penitentiary.

Roach said if Yarbrough earns sufficient good-time credits in federal prison, he might return to the TDC for only a few days for processing.

Board officials are waiting to receive court documentation of the sentence before making the revocation official, Roach said.

Yarbrough was convicted in 1978 of perjury stemming from a grand jury investigation of allegations he plotted to have a south Texas banker killed.

Tracking down a deficiency

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Do you believe in body wisdom? I have developed a craving for carrots and eat about a pound a day. I'm not pregnant. What could my body be lacking that the carrots provide?

DEAR READER — Often our bodies tell us, through cravings, that we are deficient in certain substances. I believe in body wisdom — to a degree. But a pound of a carrots a day might cause you to develop carotenemia, the presence of too much carotene in the blood and tissues. This may cause a yellow or orange cast to the skin. I suggest that you have a medical examination and let the doctor determine which, if any, nutrients you may be lacking.

DEAR DR. GOTT — During delivery, I tore my cervix, which was repaired with stitches. Seven weeks later I expelled some gauze that had been placed there during the stitching. Is this standard procedure? What damage could result?

DEAR READER — Someone didn't carry out a sponge count in the delivery room. That gauze should have been accounted for at the time of the stitching. If you have had no more problems and have had adequate obstetrical followup, there has been no damage. However, you might mention the incident to your obstetrician, who probably will want to be more careful in the future.

DEAR DR. GOTT — It could just be an obstinate pimple, but I'm scared that I might have skin cancer. Sometimes it bleeds; sometimes it just looks like a big pimple. What should I do about it?

DEAR READER — Have it removed by a surgeon or a dermatologist.

DEAR DR. GOTT — When I visit a new doctor for the first time, do I have the right to ask what medical school he went to, how long he has practiced and at what hospital he served his internship? If he refuses to answer, where can I get this information?

DEAR READER — You have every right to ask the doctor directly. In my opinion, any reputable M.D. or D.O. (osteopath) should be eager to divulge the sources of his or her medical training. If your request is refused, beware. However, you can obtain this information (or confirm a doctor's credentials) by making an inquiry to the county or state medical (or osteopathic) society — or you may write directly to your state's licensing agency. The data about a doctor's training are required for licensing.

To give you more information, I'm sending you a free copy of my new Health Report, CHOOSING A PHYSICIAN: MAKE A DECISION FOR GOOD HEALTH. Others who would like a copy should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I just had the displeasure of learning that I have been infected with herpes II. Can my uninfected mate take the new drug acyclovir as a prophylactic?

DEAR READER — I am not aware of any studies that have confirmed the value of acyclovir as a preventative. Perhaps the manufacturer can give you further information. Write the Consumer Products Division, Burroughs Wellcome Co., 3030 Cornwallis Rd., Research Triangle Park, NC 27709.

Houston mayor proposes increase in property tax

HOUSTON (AP) — Mayor Kathy Whitmire is proposing a 7 percent increase in the property tax rate to offset declining revenues.

The hike from 49.5 cents per $100 valuation to 53 cents would bring in $22 million, Mrs. Whitmire said Thursday.

It is the first time in her five years in office she has proposed a property tax increase.

She said it is necessary to help meet an anticipated budget shortfall of $93 million if current services are kept.

The owner of a $100,000 home who claims a 30 percent homestead exemption would get a city tax bill increase of about $25, to $371.

In exchange for the higher property taxes, Mrs. Whitmire has proposed throwing out her original plan to charge admission to the city zoo and make residents pay a garbage pickup fee.

Mrs. Whitmire also has proposed cutting 125 more city jobs in her latest round of budget revisions.

She already has eliminated 403 positions this summer.

Possible solution looms

AUSTIN (AP) — Speaker Gib Lewis says he sees something at the end of the legislative tunnel, and to him it looks like a possible solution to the budget crisis.

"I can see a big spotlight at the end of the tunnel," Lewis said Thursday as the Legislature wrapped up a 30-day special session without coming close to balancing the budget.

Gov. Mark White immediately called another special session, to begin Monday and continue work on the projected $3.5 billion deficit. He seemed glad to hear that Lewis — the prime opponent to White's tax hike plan — could see a glimmer of hope.

"If he sees it, I'm sure that I can see it, too," White said.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, who also views a tax hike as needed, warned Lewis to be wary of the light.

"There's light at the end of the tunnel. But I'm afraid it's the headlight of a train coming through," he said, but added he has "high hopes" for the next session.

During the session that ended Thursday, lawmakers approved bills that add up to about $560 million in savings for the state, including two measures that won final approval Thursday. The House and Senate approved a compromise version of a bill that would move state pay day from the last day of the month to the first day of the next month.

That would give the state one fewer $200 million payroll to meet in the current fiscal year.

Also approved in both chambers Thursday was a bill that increases court filing fees.

"Surprising to many of you all, we have made a great deal of progress in the last 30 days," Lewis told reporters.

Major legislation approved included a proposed constitutional amendment that would legalize branch banking, a bill allowing out-of-state banks to buy Texas banks and measures reducing teacher paperwork and increasing their disciplinary powers.

And in a historic vote, the Legislature decided to let Texans vote on whether to legalize parimutuel betting. But White has told lawmakers he probably would veto that bill.

Progress was sorely lacking on the major spending cut bill. House and Senate conferees virtually gave up this week when it became apparent White would call another session.

Man convicted of extortion-murder given death sentence

VICTORIA, Texas (AP) — A one-time Eagle Scout must pay with his life for the murder of a banker's wife, a jury decided after deliberating less than four hours.

Lesley Lee Gosch, 31, was sentenced to die by injection Thursday for the September 1985 shooting death of Rebecca Jo Patton in a San Antonio suburb.

"I'm satisfied justice was done," Assistant Bexar County District Attorney Sam Ponder said. "It was the proper verdict."

Gosch stared at his attorney Rick Woods through thick eyeglasses as a court clerk read the jury's verdict.

Prison population said nearing limit

DALLAS (AP) — Texas prison officials say the inmate population level is within a fraction of a percentage point of triggering a court-ordered admissions shutdown plan to control overcrowding.

The Texas Department of Corrections' inmate population on Thursday was just 79 admissions short of exceeding the limit imposed in 1983 by U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice, despite addition of 75 beds this week.

Justice, to resolve an overcrowding complaint by prisoners, approved an agreement in which TDC officials would not accept more inmates if it reached 95 percent of its official capacity.

TDC spokesman David Nunnelee said the tally at midnight Wednesday was 38,255, or 94.80 percent of its 40,352-bed capacity.

The prison population on Tuesday came the closest ever to triggering the shutting of TDC's front doors. The inmate count of 38,226 represented 94.85 percent of capacity which was 40,302, without the 50 beds added Wednesday.

Officials said 25 beds already had been added on Monday.

The Layman Writes Again

Yes, I did ask some interesting questions when I wrote before. "The Preacher" has been trying to prove them false. Laymen, have you been searching? Acts 17:11 (last part) says, "...searched the scriptures daily, whether those things were so." Also read John 5:39.

I use K.J.V. and N.I.V. I have Strong's Greek Dictionary of the New Testament. "Bapto" and "baptizo" are used and the word immersion is not mentioned. Cover wholly with a fluid (in N.T. only), also to moisten part of a person. Stain, dip for bapto. Baptizo is to make whelmed (used in N.T.). Look up the word whelmed. In Strong's Concordance look up overwhelmed. Read Psalms 55:5, 61:2, 77:3, 78:53, 142:3. Webster's Dictionary — overwhelm-turn over, cover up, overthrow, upset, submerge, crush.

The word bapto is used in Luke 16:24. Baptizo is used in John 13:26, Rev. 19:13. Now where can you get immersion out of these verses?

Pictorial Bible Dictionary says baptism is a term derived from the Greek "baptizo" and has often been obscured by lack of clarity and by FORCED interpretation. It's true meaning can be found only in its usage. While much debate has been focused on the various forms of baptism, immersion, sprinkling and pouring are clearly associated. Read Heb. 10:22, Matth. 3:7-12. The Pharisees and Sadducees were not ready for baptism. Notice John said Jesus' baptism was better. He baptizes with Holy Ghost and fire. This is not water. Read Acts 2:15-18.

"He will pour out his Spirit and men and women will prophesy."

Read John 17. In Acts 2, who baptized 3000? Where were they baptized? In Acts 4:4, 5000 men believed. In Acts 9:18, Paul was told to arise and be baptized. Paul stood up to be baptized.

The Bible doesn't say Paul recognized that as a preacher of the gospel his primary mission was to preach. (This is adding to God's word) I Cor. 1:17. "For Christ sent me not to baptize, but to preach the gospel, not with wisdom of words lest the cross of Christ should be made of none effect."

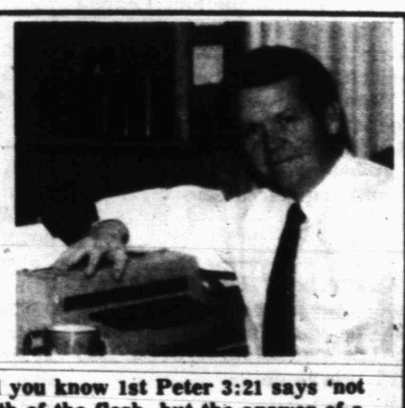

Read "The Preacher's" answer to No. 6. He uses James 2:20-26 trying to make the word, (works) mean immersion. Christians, read James 2 and Ephesians 2. Then decide if works means immersion.

"The Preacher" said every time baptism is mentioned it means immersion in his first comments on "baptizo." This is a false statement. In James 2:21 Abraham was justified by WORKS; also Rahab the harlot (verse 25). Where can you get immersion in these? You have to twist the scripture. If you have faith, you will work for Christ, the one who died for all of us. Many claim but few work.

Yours in Christ
Oliver Butler

"Questions from a Layman on Baptism" (Part 4)

Question #7 asks, "Did you know 1st Peter 3:21 says 'not putting away of the filth of the flesh, but the answer of a good conscience toward God.'?"

I suppose that this question concerns itself with the statement that immediately precedes it in that passage, "Baptism, which corresponds to this, now saves you..." The rest of this verse, quoted by our questioner, refers to the fact that baptism does not save by "putting away the filth of the flesh" (or, in other words, "not by washing dirt off the body")—baptism saves because it is the response, the answer of a good conscience to God's command which says, "You must be baptized" — Acts 2:38.

Question #8 asks, Did you know Gal. 3:26 says, 'You are children of God by faith in Jesus Christ.'?"

This last question also quotes only a part of a passage, for the very next sentence says, "For as many of you as were baptized into Christ have put on Christ." this verse clearly puts a condition on entrance "into Christ"—BAPTISM! Those who have accepted scriptural, Christian baptism have "put on Christ," they are now "in Christ." Baptism did that. Can we be saved "outside" of Christ? What does it take (from this verse) to get "into" Christ? BAPTISM! This is the clearest passage in scripture on the ESSENTIALITY of baptism.

Schramm calls it desertion...

Walls walks out over contract dispute

DALLAS (AP) - Everson Walls' abrupt walkout in a contract dispute only days before the Dallas Cowboys' season opener amounts to desertion and "it certainly doesn't sit well with me," team president Tex Schramm said.

The 26-year-old cornerback, whose nine interceptions last season led the National Football League, left the club after practice Thursday and said he would not return until the team renegotiated the last two years years of his five-year contract.

Dallas opens the season Monday night in a nationally televised game at Texas Stadium against the New York Giants, whom the Cowboys consider their biggest hurdle in their bid to repeat as NFC East champions.

"I don't think we'll negotiate under blackmail conditions," Schramm said Thursday night.

"If he makes the decision not to play in the game, then that'll have to be his decision. He will have to accept the responsibility of deserting his team on the eve of what might be one of its biggest games," Schramm added.

Walls' agent, Steve Weinberg, told WFAA-TV Thursday night that the Cowboys promised in 1983 to renegotiate the final two years of Walls' contract if he had met certain performance standards by 1986.

Walls met those standards, but the Cowboys responded with an offer that would make the all-pro cornerback only the 12th-highest member of the Cowboys and only the 25th-highest paid defensive back in the league, Weinberg said.

The team was willing to offer more money only if Walls agreed on a new four-year contract, Weinberg said.

Dallas coach Tom Landry said the timing of Walls' walkout bothered him.

"I would think it would have to come as a surprise to anybody. After all, we're here to play football," Landry said. "Of course, it's a problem with his contract. I don't get involved in that part of it very often, and I don't have any comments about that."

The Cowboys are reeling under the weight of an 0-5 record in exhibition play, and the defensive secondary was already one of the club's biggest question marks because of the holdout of 1985 starter Dextor Clinkscale and the release of Dennis Thurman.

Schramm said, "I don't remember a case where we have ever had a player walk out on the eve of a game. It certainly does not sit well with me."

Early in training camp, when it became known Clinkscale was holding out for more money, the club said he would be fined $1,000

Baker set to aid Cowboys Monday

DALLAS (AP) - Defensive end Jesse Baker was ready to go fishing after being cut by the Houston Oilers. But now he is set to play for the Dallas Cowboys in their Monday night season opener against the Giants.

"I was going fishing down toward Galveston but something came up in the business, and I was delayed in getting away. The Cowboys called Tuesday morning but missed me. They got me in the afternoon," Baker said.

"I was not really surprised (at being waived)," said Baker, a seventh-year NFL veteran who was a three-time All-Conference selection at Jacksonville (Ala.) State. "The Oilers had indicated they were going with younger players."

At 29, the 6-5, 270-pound defensive end will rank fourth among the five true defensive linemen on the Cowboys' team.

Plagued with injuries, the Cowboys faced the game with no one but Mark Tuinei, a hastily converted offensive lineman, to back the four starters on the line.

Don Smerek, who hurt a knee against Pittsburgh two weeks ago, was moved to injured reserve to make room for Baker. He joined second-year defensive end Kevin Brooks, who was injured during training camp.

Baker, who will wear George Andrie's No. 66, will operate from Jim Jeffcoat's right end position on passing downs Monday.

"In passing situations, there won't be that much difference for me," said Jeffcoat. "I can play end or tackle on either side, I think. Now in run situations, that's where I might be hurt by changing sides."

"Not me," Baker said of switching sides. "About five years ago, they (Oilers) decided they wanted to try me on the left side. They watched me for two plays and then told me, 'Get back where you belong.'"

Cox selected for training

MARQUETTE, Mich. - Curtis Cox of Snyder has been selected by the United States Tae Kwon Do Union for training at the Olympic Training Center here.

Cox, 13, placed in the top three during regional competition.

The new Marquette Center at Northern Michigan University is one of three Olympic Training Centers. It was facilities for training in 27 of the 39 Olympic sports.

Anyone wishing to participate should register at the WTC pro shop.

Quarterback Otto Graham's last game for the Cleveland Browns was a 38-14 victory over the Los Angeles Rams in the 1955 NFL title game.

High-scoring game expected when Miami, San Diego meet

by The Associated Press

Both coaches envision a high-scoring shootout, and for good reason, when the Miami Dolphins host the San Diego Chargers in their National Football League opener Sunday.

"It's hard to visualize this as a low-scoring ballgame because both offenses have so much firepower," said Miami Coach Don Shula, pointing to the offenses that finished 1-2 in the league last year in passing.

Led by quarterback Dan Fouts, the Chargers averaged 304.4 passing yards a game last season, while the Dan Marino-led Dolphins averaged 257.1.

"I just wish we were playing Miami some other time, later in the year so our defense had a chance to become settled," said San Diego Coach Don Coryell.

Past Miami-San Diego matchups have produced some of the NFL's most memorable games. Three of the teams' last four meetings were decided in overtime, including an epic struggle in a January, 1982 playoff game that ended in a 41-38 San Diego victory.

Elsewhere, 12 other games will be played Sunday, including the defending Super Bowl champion Chicago Bears against the Cleveland Browns.

Other action includes the Los Angeles Raiders at Denver, New York Jets at Buffalo, Atlanta at New Orleans, Detroit at Minnesota, Houston at Green Bay, Los Angeles Rams at St. Louis, Philadelphia at Washington, San Francisco at Tampa Bay, Indianapolis at New England, Cincinnati at Kansas City and Pittsburgh at Seattle.

The New York Giants play at Dallas in Monday night's game. The Cowboys got a jolt Thursday when veteran cornerback Everson Walls walked out, saying he'll boycott the game unless the Cowboys meet his contract demands.

The Bears will open defense of their first NFL crown since 1963 against the Browns, winners of the AFC Central Division last year.

Led by the NFL's all-time leader Walter Payton (324 carries for 1,551 yards), the Bears had the NFL's top rushing offense in 1985 with a 172.6-yard average.

Few rivalries could be more competitive than the Raiders and Broncos. The last three games have gone into overtime - a league record - and the last five meetings have been decided by three points or less.

The Raiders posted 31-28 and 17-14 triumphs in 1985 en route to a 12-4 record and the AFC Western Division title. Partly because of those two setbacks, Denver became the first 11-5 team not to make the playoffs.

The Jim Kelly Era opens at Buffalo with the Bills entertaining the Jets.

"I've been a winner wherever I've gone and I don't expect to stop now," said the quarterback, whose presence has helped revitalize a franchise - at the gate, at least - that has set the current NFL standard for futility with back-to-back 2-14 seasons.

Although Kelly, the former USFL most-valuable player who signed a five-year, $8 million contract with the Bills on Aug. 18, has not been named the starter, he's already had a big impact on the Bills.

Season ticket sales have jumped from 19,000 to about 27,000, and the crowd for the Jets game, which was sold out earlier this week, could exceed the team's home attendance record of 79,933.

The Packers hope to start off better than they have in recent seasons. They have started slowly in each of Forrest Gregg's first two seasons and finished at 8-8, just short of the playoffs. Since their Super Bowl victory after the 1967 season, the Packers have qualified for the playoffs only twice - in 1972 and 1982.

Gregg has done a house-cleaning at Green Bay, getting rid of many of last year's starters, including the passing combination of quarterback Lynn Dickey and tight end Paul Coffman.

District 2-4A squads slated to begin wars this evening

There are a couple of sandbaggers maybe, but District 2-4A teams in general face a pretty stiff test when they open the 1986 high school football season tonight.

The district schools, already spread apart by over 200 miles, will extend their range up in the panhandle to Hereford and Tulia - where two of the most competitive games are expected to occur.

Snyder's Ragin' Tigers, hoping to put together their best season in a number of years, open at Tulia. The Hornets have been picked by almost everybody to win District 3-3A this season.

Tulia, runnerup in district play a year ago, is coached by well-known L.G. Wilson, 62 years old.

"I remember he was coaching when I was in high school," said Snyder mentor Dennis Tomlin. "He is one of the most respected coaches there is. It is an honor to play him. I know his team will be well prepared and well coached. If I can ever say I beat L.G. when he had one of his better teams, that's something I'd be very proud of."

Game captains for the Tigers will be Chris Garrett, Henry Treat, Cotton Merritt and Mark Helms.

Andrews will also head north, taking the Mustang bus to Hereford to meet a team highly-touted in District 1-4A.

Other 2-4A squads on the road tonight are Pecos, which goes to Kermit, and Fort Stockton, which treks to Crane.

Crane and Kermit are picked neck-and-neck in District 4-3A this season. Both come off of playoff years in 1985.

Teams opening at home are expected to have an easier time of it, with the exception of Lamesa. The Golden Tors bring back only seven lettermen from a 4-6 squad. They'll be hosting Levelland, which returns a bevy of starters from a 5-5 club.

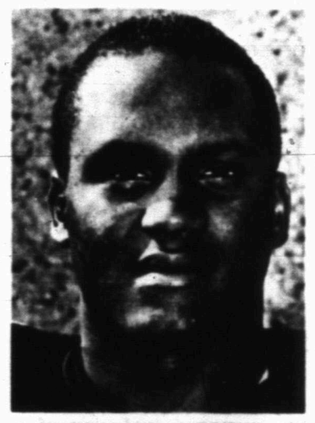

Big Spring, the new kid on the block, will host a good El Paso Riverside squad from 2-5A. In two other games, Lake View entertains 30-5A contender Del Rio and Sweetwater picks on Merkel, picked to finish near the cellar in 4-3A.

Sweetwater won the district last season and eventually the Class 4A state championship. Lake View served as runnerup before losing to Lubbock Estacado.

Weather wrecks opener for Hermleigh's Cards

The weather has caused major problems at Hermleigh, where heavy rains have ruined the Cardinals' home opener.

School superintendant Jerry Church said this morning that Cardinal Field was under water and unplayable for tonight's ballgame with Paint Creek. Plans are to try and move the site of the game to Paint Creek, or some other drier field.

Church was trying to contact Paint Creek school officials via law enforcement agencies because phones were apparently not working between the two communities.

Rains also forced the cancellation of the Cardinals' final scrimmage last weekend and has hampered workouts.

"Everybody is real restless because we haven't played in so long," said Coach Jack Vining. "The kids are anxious."

Bad news struck the Cardinal in another way recently when freshman Manuel Castillo suffered a broken arm. Castillo wasn't a starter, but the team depth could be affected.

In other area games, Ira is scheduled to play at Southland and Borden County will go to McCaulley. All three area games are scheduled for 7:30 p.m. starts.

Texas ticket scandle

AUSTIN (AP) - University of Texas football players arranged free passes to football games last season for friends who were neither students nor family members, according to a published report.

Pass lists to UT games last year showed that for the first two home games, against Missouri and Rice, 46 players requested that their complimentary passes go to people described as friends, the Austin American-Statesman reported in today's editions.

The newspaper said the pass category is not within the NCAA rules unless the friends are students. Other recipients were listed as students.

For the last eight games of the season, all people designated to receive tickets were described as students or family members,

UCLA tests tough Sooners Saturday

by The Associated Press

One thing you can say about UCLA - the Bruins don't open the season with soft-touch opponents.

For the second year in a row, they'll be opening on the road against the defending national champion when they face the Oklahoma Sooners on Saturday. Last year, they defeated Brigham Young 27-24 on opening day.

"The Oklahoma game is a big game nationally," said UCLA Coach Terry Donahue, who was the defensive line coach at Kansas from 1967-70 (Oklahoma beat the Jayhawks in each of those four years but three of them were four-point games). "It's an exciting event. The players want to play Oklahoma. I don't think we're any different than anybody else."

The Bruins are no slouches themselves, starting the season ranked No. 4. UCLA is the highest-ranked team the Sooners have faced in an opener since 1968 when they lost to No. 3 Notre Dame 45-21.

"We're a better football team than we were that day," noted Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer, who was the Sooners' offensive coordinator back then.

Some other high-powered matchups will be featured in college football's first full weekend of play, including an intrastate battle between No. 3 Miami and No. 13 Florida.

In other games involving the Top Twenty teams, Vanderbilt will play at No. 5 Alabama, Temple visits No. 6 Penn State, No. 11 Florida State is at No. 8 Nebraska, New Mexico travels to No. 10 Tennessee, No. 12 Baylor is at Wyoming, Tennessee-Chattanooga visits No. 14 Auburn and Utah State is at No. 18 Brigham Young.

The Miami-Florida rivalry is one of the most intense in the country. The series, now in its 48th game, has been played in Orlando, Tampa and Jacksonville as well as Miami and Gainesville. Florida leads 25-22.

It began in 1938 and has been played every year except 1943.

Twenty-four games have been decided by less than a touchdown, but not the last three. Miami's last visit to Gainesville was a 28-3 loss in 1983, the only loss in the Hurricanes' national championship season.

Florida State will face a Nebraska team surrounded by controversy. Earlier in the week, the Cornhuskers had 60 players suspended by the NCAA for handing out game passes to people not eligible to use them. But on Thursday, the NCAA granted the university's request for a stay of the suspensions.

The game will be televised by ABC and will be the first night game at Nebraska's Memorial Stadium.

Despite returning 15 starters and a pair of kicking specialists, Tennessee opens its season with new faces at key positions and a lot of questions facing Volunteer Coach Johnny Majors.

But that's nothing compared to the new faces starting for New Mexico on the Lobos' defense. Four, and maybe five, starters for Joe Lee Dunn's team will be transfers from junior colleges or schools that have dropped football.

WALLS

a day until he reported.

Schramm said if Walls carried out his threat, "he would be subject to an automatic fine, but this goes beyond that. I think when you get to the point of four days before the opening of the regular season and you walk out, that's a little different from not reporting on the first day."

Schramm declined to elaborate on the steps the Cowboys would consider above and beyond a fine.

"I don't know what our options are. Certain options are available if a player leaves and stays out for over five days. But I don't know if that would be applicable or not, since he could miss the game and return and still be back within the five-day limit," Schramm said.

Weinberg said that, on Walls' instruction, he filed a grievance against the Cowboys on Thursday with the NFL Players Association.

The grievance seeks an arbitration hearing and an order forcing the Cowboys to renegotiate in good faith with Weinberg on the last two years of Walls' contract.

In 1983, the Cowboys signed four veteran players to three-year contracts, but refused to give Walls a three-year contract, Weinberg said.

Walls agreed on a five-year contract as a result, Weinberg said, after Schramm and Cowboys vice president Gil Brandt proposed inclusion of a clause that promised renegotiation of the last two years if Walls achieved 200 points under a system set up by Brandt.

Walls' performance over the past three years, including appearances in the Pro Bowl, met the specified points, but the Cowboys have failed to renegotiate in good faith as pledged, Weinberg said.

Walls indicated a week earlier that he might walk out before the first game. He said he was upset that the club had failed to renegotiate his contract, yet needed only one day to work out a contract with running back Herschel Walker after his release by the USFL's New Jersey Generals.

Becker rips Srejber

NEW YORK (AP) - It took Boris Becker a lot longer to realize how badly he was routing Milan Srejber than it took the crowd at the U.S. Open.

Becker, the two-time Wimbledon champion and No. 3 seed here, surged into the semifinals Thursday with a 6-3, 6-2, 6-1 victory over the unseeded Srejber. The West German star dismantled the Czechoslovak's big serve, toying with his opponent in the last two sets.

But it was not until the 81-minute match was nearly over that Becker recognized how lopsided it was.

"I'm looking at the scoreboard when it is 6-3, 6-2, 4-0 and saying, 'What the hell is going on, this is a quarterfinal match?'

"Then I felt a little sorry for the crowd," Becker said.

There were 20,773 people in attendance and they booed Srejber repeatedly for his uninspired performance in which he let shots sail by without lifting his racket. Then, the crowd took to sarcastically cheering Srejber every time he won a point - which was 27 times in the last two sets.

Srejber hadn't met a seeded player en route to the quarterfinals.

"He is a strange guy off the court and I don't think many players talk to him," Becker said.

Srejber didn't want to talk much after the match.

"Last time I won, now I lost," Srejber said. "He's a good player."

In the other men's quarterfinal on Thursday, No. 16 Miloslav Mecir, Srejber's countryman, upended No. 7 Joakim Nystrom 6-4, 6-2, 3-6, 6-2.

Becker meets Mecir, whom he has beaten three times in four matches - including the quarterfinals at Wimbledon this year - and top-seeded and defending champion Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia plays No. 4 Stefan Edberg of Sweden in Saturday's semifinals.

Today's women's semifinals featured the top three players and No. 7 Helena Sukova of Czechoslovakia.

Chris Evert Lloyd, seeded second and seeking her seventh Open crown, faced Sukova in the first match. Top-seed Martina Navratilova, winner of two Opens, played No. 3 Steffi Graf of West Germany in the other semifinal.

The Senior PGA Tour expanded from only two events in 1980 to 30 in 1986.

Volleyball team gets strong challenge from Pecos Eagles

Snyder's Lady Tigers get their toughest test of the young season when they entertain District 2-4A rival Pecos at 3 p.m. Saturday.

A junior varsity match is scheduled for 2 p.m. Tickets are $2 for adults and $1 for students.

"Pecos has won their own tournament and the Monahans Tournament. They are picked to win our district," said Snyder Coach Vicki Nelms. "They are definitely very tough, very well coached and it's going to take a lot from us to beat them. We feel like we've got as good a chance as anybody. We need as many fans here as we can get in the gym."

Pecos returns five of six starters from last season's third-place finish in the 2-4A, including second-team all-loop pick Anna Ozuna, and setter Shelly McQueen, who was MVP at the Pecos Tournament last weekend.

The Lady Eagles come into the match with an 11-2 record. Snyder is 9-5. Both teams are 1-0 in district play. Pecos defeated Lamesa in its 2-4A opener while Snyder knocked off Fort Stockton.

"Pecos is real defensive. We'll have to have a lot of offense and play good defense," said Nelms. "If can play with the intensity we played with Tuesday and get a few breaks maybe it can go our way."

Coach Nelms said she had not selected starters for the contest and probably would not do so until Saturday.

Brewers battle for last place

by The Associated Press

MILWAUKEE (AP) - The battle for last place in the American League East is pretty much one-sided at the moment.

The last-place Milwaukee Brewers, riding a six-game losing streak, are playing like they want to stay there. That's good news for the Cleveland Indians, who took advantage of the Brewers' slumping pitching staff to pile up a 15-4 victory Thursday night.

Despite the outcome, Cleveland Manager Pat Corrales saw good things ahead for both clubs.

"I know these two clubs are battling to get out of last place, but I'll tell you something: you just wait a year or two and we're going to pass some ball clubs. Not just us - both clubs," Corrales declared.

Corrales, whose Indians moved a fraction of a percentage point ahead of Baltimore into fifth place in the American League East, has reason for future optimism with budding sluggers like Joe Carter and Cory Snyder.

Carter, 25, went 4-for-5 Thursday night and hit his 25th homer of the season, a grand slam. Snyder, a 23-year-old rookie brought up in June, hit two three-run homers - Nos. 19 and 20 this season - in the first and eighth innings to pace the 17-hit Cleveland attack.

In the only other American League game Thursday night, Kansas City blanked Chicago 1-0.

Royals 1, White Sox 0

Mark Gubicza and Steve Farr teamed on a three-hitter and Lonnie Smith's RBI single in the bottom of the eighth inning gave Kansas City its victory over Chicago.

White Sox starter Jose DeLeon and Mark Gubicza of the Royals matched two-hitters for six innings. DeLeon had retired 12 straight batters, but left the game because of stiffness in his right arm, and Bill Dawley, 0-6, took over to start the seventh.

Smith hurls Expos to win over Giants

MONTREAL (AP) - When the National League season got under way, the Montreal Expos were counting heavily on Bryn Smith, an 18-game winner in 1985.

What they were looking for was the type of effort he gave them in Montreal's 4-2 victory over the San Francisco Giants Thursday night.

In the only game in the National League, Smith checked the Giants on five hits over eight innings, striking out seven and walking just one. It was reminiscent of last year, when his 18-5 record and 2.91 earned run average helped the Expos stay in contention for most of the season.

Yet it was a far cry from the way Smith has pitched for most of this year, a season in which he has struggled to repeat the peformance that made him one of the league's most dependable hurlers a year ago.

It's been a frustrating campaign for the bearded right-hander, with no one realizing that more than Smith himself.

"I know I haven't done the job I should have this year," said Smith, who raised his record to 10-8 with his second consecutive victory. "Maybe I took too much for granted after last year and didn't work as hard as I should have."

While Smith seems to have found his old form late in the season, the same can't be said about his San Francisco counterpart, Mike LaCoss, who continued his second-half slump by losing his eighth straight game.

LaCoss, who hasn't won since July 13, gave up only five hits in six innings, but allowed all four runs as his record dropped to 9-11.

The "friend" designation disappeared after two games because the NCAA clarified that the rule prohibited friends who were not students or relatives from receiving passes, UT officials said.

University athletic administrators said they are complying as best they can with NCAA regulations on free passes. A lawyer hired by UT to look into the Longhorn program said Thursday he will investigate the matter.

The National Collegiate Athletic Association announced on Wednesday it had suspended 60 University of Nebraska players because they allowed unauthorized people to use their free passes to Nebraska games in 1985.

Runoff dates set, ballots canvassed

Council members Thursday officially called for an Oct. 4 runoff election and canvassed ballots from last Saturday's first-ever Snyder vote for single member district representation.

Dates for the runoff between Ralph Williamson and John Johnson for the District 2 seat include: Sept. 8, draw for order on the ballot; Sept. 15, first day for absentee; Sept. 26, last day to receive absentee mail-in applications; Sept. 30, last day to vote absentee; Oct. 4, the election; and Oct. 6, canvass the ballots.

Ollie Peak, who served as election judge Saturday, was named judge for the runoff also.

During the vote canvass, it was noted that only three write-in votes were received out of the 654 ballots cast.

This equated to one write-in each for Districts 1, 2 and 4.

The closest race saw only six votes separate the winning and losing candidate, the District 1 contest where Fred Castillo defeated Albert Lewis 77 to 71.

Storms move across state

by The Associated Press

Storms that drowned two women advanced farther across the state today prompting the National Weather Service to issue flash flood watches and several warnings for several areas already drenched by rain.

The NWS posted a flash flood watch today and tonight for the Permian Basin, Concho Valley and Big Bend country and most of the Southwest Texas mountains. A total of 30 counties were included in the watch.

More serious flood warnings were issued mid-morning for Collins and Denton counties in North Texas. Heavy thunderstorms and rain covered an area 110 miles wide from near Pecos to near Abilene in West Texas, the Weather Service.

Rivers over North Texas near the Red River have received rainfall amounts of between 4 and 7 inches of rain during the past couple of days, causing many creeks and rivers to go out of their banks. Beaver Creek, which has a flood stage of 24 feet, was at 27.40 feet today.

The NWS said thunderstorms dumped heavy rains in the Wichita Falls area and high winds blew a roof off a building near Perry on Thursday evening. Little Wichita River at Henrietta, which was still rising, was 20.57 feet and out of its banks today.

Rain decreased to the west and southwest of Wichita Falls, but could redevelop later today, the NWS said.

A flash flood watch was in effect today for north and northeast Texas, north of a San Angelo to Shreveport.

Heaviest rainfall amounts across north central Texas this morning included near 2 inches at Wolfe City, Naples and an inch and a half at Negley, Sherman, Lone Oak and Chico.

Urban street flooding was reported in Denton County and the Lamar County Sheriff Department also reported some minor street flooding at Paris.

The upper-level trough that has been moving across the South Plains all week dampened Lubbock and the surrounding area Thursday as skies dumped up to 3 inches of rain on the city.

In Odessa, where more than 3 inches of rain were reported Thursday, the Red Cross evacuated 120 families from the north side of town where up to 5 feet of water was reported standing in some homes.

About 400 people were housed at the National Guard Armory Thursday night after they were forced to leave their homes because of the flooding, police said. Odessa police reported no road closings or major accidents.

The two Alpine women — Jesusita Reyes, 62, and Nora Pallanez, 63 — drowned after high water swept them from their cars, said Alpine Police Chief Ruben Melgoza on Thursday. Mrs. Reyes died Wednesday night; Mrs. Pallanez Thursday morning.

Flooding damaged several buildings, streets, sewer lines and railroad tracks in Alpine, Melgoza said, but no one was evacuated.

Speaker disputes S. Africa reports the same language and the same culture, blacks in South Africa are divided by language and religion.

"Blacks are not a united block, but are divided into 10 different tribes with 10 languages and 40 dialects and 10 different religions. It's true that the black block is larger against the white block, but when you separate the 10 tribes, the blocks are all about the same size."

According to Bosman, South Africa's racial problems began about five or 10 years ago when "the government was forced to place blacks in some leadership positions."

"The whites have always been in leadership positions and tribes have always been willing to follow that leadership," he said. Bosman claims that when the government appoints a black man from one tribe to a management role, such as naming him foreman over a group of other blacks, members of the other nine tribes rebel against that leadership. The rebellion then leads to tribal war.

"Once the fighting started among the tribes, the white controlled military and police moved in to settle the war among the tribes," Bosman claimed. "That's the time when ABC and CBS and all the rest start their cameras rolling to show the world how the whites are treating the blacks. They don't show all the events that happened up to that time.

"The whole country is not burning up. What's occurring is happening in little isolated areas," he said.

Bosman also claims that Communism is the underlying cause of the strife in his country with the Soviet Union inciting the majority of the riots. "South Africa is strategically an important country because all ocean transportation goes around the southern tip of Africa," he explained. "The country that controls South Africa is the country that controls the ocean. Russia wants to control the ocean."

Noting that South Africa is the world's largest producer of gold and diamonds, Bosman also cited the country's large deposits of uranium and other minerals. "The U. S. space program is dependent on these minerals. If Russia could control those minerals, they can control the space race," he said.

He added that since "Communism is totally illegal in South Africa, the Soviet Union must try to take over by force. But the South African government is holding fast and will not give over to the Communists and to Russia."

In addition to inciting internal unrest, he contended the Soviet Union is also using the news media as a vehicle to force world economic sanctions against the white minority government.

Bosman also claimed that civil rights leader Nelson Mandela (now serving a life sentence) was imprisoned over 20 years ago "for heading the Communist Party in South Africa and leading a Communist plot to take over the government. There were white people arrested at the same time. Mandela is looked on as a hero by the rest of the world, but black people in South Africa don't really look at him as a leader."

When questioned about Archbishop Desmond Tutu (leader of the Anglican Church in South Africa and vocal opponent of apartheid), Bosman replied that "Tutu has less than a 2 percent following. He's not really a political leader, but when he comes to the United States, they put him in the forefront as one of the major leaders of South Africa."

Currently based in Amarillo, the Bosmans have been in the U.S. the past seven months conducting revival services in the western states. Invited to come by Assembly of God leadership, Bosman plans to remain in this country indefinitely. He will return to South Africa for meetings and to visit relatives.

He noted that during a three-week stay in his country in June he "never heard one gunshot or saw police up and down the streets. Yet when I returned (to the U.S.), the first thing I saw was a news story about a riot and I could tell that what they were actually showing was film from 10 years ago."

Guerrero wants to retire number

AUSTIN (AP) — Rep. Lena Guerrero wants her colleagues to approve a measure to guarantee there would never be another House Bill 72.

The Austin Democrat wants to retire the number 72, not the historic 1984 public school reform bill that carries the number. She wants HB72 to be stricken from the list of numbers assigned to legislation.

HB72 has become an overwhelming burden for a bill to bear, she said.

An area of U.S. Hwy. 84 near Inadale has been closed twice due to rainfall in that area, most recently Thursday morning.

Snyder's official rain total rose by 1.04 inches Thursday with rain continuing Friday morning. The official total now stands at 20.50 inches--approximately the average annual rainfall recorded here.

The local forecast is for a 40 percent chance of showers and thunderstorms Friday, decreasing to a 20 percent chance Saturday.

Area rain totals reported Friday morning included 3 inches said received near Polar in Kent County. Other reports include Ira, 1 inch; Dunn, .80 of an inch; Fluvanna, .15 of an inch; and Hermleigh, .50 of an inch.

In spite of current problems, Stenholm said "we should remind ourselves that very few of us are buying a one way ticket out of the U.S. or escaping across a 'check point Charlie' in order to leave this country."

"The future may look bleak now, but under our system of government we can find some of the answers," he said in closing.

Vahid Morris, one of three students to attend the Midwest Electric Coop tour to Washington D. C., briefly spoke to the audience, expressing his thanks for the opportunity to make the trip and encouraging his peers to try out for this year's trip.

Door prizes were given throughout the evening. The annual barbecue meal was catered by Johnny's Catering Service of Midland. This was their third year to cater the local event.

BB gun shots cause damage

Two apparently related criminal mischief complaints involving damage caused by a BB gun were filed Thursday evening with police.

Dick Hanks of 2501 48th St. reported at 6:58 p.m. that the windshield on his 1984 Ford pickup had apparently been shot with a BB gun sometime during the day.

While investigating the Hanks complaint, officers also discovered that a 1975 Ford pickup at the Robert Hood residence at 2500 48th St. had been similarly damaged.

No estimates were available for the value of damage to the trucks.

In other action Thursday, city officers logged two misdemeanor arrests including one for shoplifting.

A 67-year-old man was taken into custody for misdemeanor theft at 10:12 a.m. after employees of Furr's Supermarket called police to report having a shoplifter in custody.

The man had allegedly attempted to steal a pack of cigarettes.

In other action, officers jailed one local man for driving while intoxicated Thursday night.
