Jet Sale Plan Pushed

Senators Wary Of Mideast Package

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's leading diplomatic and military officials told Congress on Wednesday the pending sale of jet fighters to Israel, Saudi Arabia and Egypt will enhance Israel's security, not imperil it.

But many members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee expressed serious doubt and concern. They said the F-15, the advanced jet fighter the Carter administration wants to sell to Saudi Arabia for defensive purposes, has an "enormous" offensive capability.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, the committee's second ranking Democrat, said he will press the administration to accept a compromise.

In their testimony, Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, Defense Secretary Harold Brown and Air Force Gen. David Jones, acting chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, called the sales proposal a concrete step toward peace in the Middle East and "vitally important" to U.S. interests there.

They said the administration believes its sales proposal is well considered and fair and calculated to maintain the military balance in the Middle East. They said no changes in it are contemplated.

The trio opened the Carter administration's formal defense of the president's plan to sell 60 F-15 war planes to Saudi Arabia, 75 F-16s and 15 F-15s to Israel and 50 less sophisticated F-5Es to Egypt.

They said they are convinced that it would be military "folly" for the Saudis, with a relatively small military force, to place its oil fields and security at risk by attacking Israel.

Church said an acceptable compromise must address such issues as increasing the number of F-15s being sold to Israel and giving written assurances that the Saudis will not buy additional sophisticated warplanes. He said the administration also should consider moving up the date for shipping the planes to Israel, and should face the question of what ordnance to provide on the F-15s sold to Saudi Arabia and what ordnance to hold back.

In a separate statement, Senate Minority Leader Howard H. Baker, R-Tenn., said Congress may not go along with the deal unless the Carter administration compromises on the number and mix of the planes, delivery dates and restrictions on their use.

Disapproval Procedure

Under parliamentary procedures, Congress has 30 days to disapprove of an arms sale sent to Capitol Hill by a president. If it fails to act by May 28 on the current proposal, the deal will go through. The only way Congress can stop the sales is to pass resolutions of disapproval in both the House and Senate.

While Vance, Brown and Jones were defending the sales plan, several members of the Senate committee expressed concern that it may be unwise and could harm Israeli security interests.

One day earlier, 22 of the 37 members of the House International Relations Committee had introduced a resolution to kill the entire sales deal.

Called Necessary

Vance, nonetheless, reiterated the administration's view that the sales are necessary.

"These sales will maintain essential links that permit us to play the fundamental role as a mediator between the parties," he said.

"Failure to proceed with the sales will seriously undercut the American role in the peace process and raise grave doubts about U.S. readiness to work with moderate governments in the region," Vance added.

Brown said, "These sales will continue to assure that the military balance will remain in Israel's favor.

"Indeed, Israel will be relatively stronger after receiving these additional F-15s and F-16s, while giving Egypt and Saudi Arabia a more reasonable assurance that they can defend themselves against potential attacks from other quarters about which they have real reason for concern, the defense secretary said.

Top Interceptor

Brown said that although the F-15 is at the "top of the line" as an interceptor, it is of significantly lesser use as an offensive weapon.

While all airplanes can drop bombs, he said, the F-15 is not an appropriate air-to-ground weapon "in the same way as the Cadillac is not at the top of the line for hauling gravel."

Brown and Vance said Saudi Arabia needs the F-15 to replace its aging fleet of British-made jets and to provide an effective defense of its oil fields and cities against what is perceived as a growing military threat from Iraq, South Yemen, and possibly Ethiopia. All three of Saudi Arabia's neighbors have received military supplies from the Soviet Union.

Jones said Israeli air planners would have to take into account the presence of 60 F-15s in Saudi Arabia only if Israel decided to attack that country in an all-out Mideast war.

Panhandle Gets Heavy Snow; Warmup On Way

By ESTHER LONGORIA
Avalanche-Journal Staff

WARMER temperatures and bright sunshine should cover the South Plains today, a welcome change from the wet, chilly weather of the past two days.

Weathermen say the cold Canadian air, which pushed into the area Tuesday, is rapidly being replaced by warmer air moving in from the west.

With a high of only 46 degrees Wednesday, Lubbock set a record low maximum temperature. The previous record had been 54 degrees, and that was in 1918.

The Canadian front brought only cold temperatures to most of the South Plains but dealt a real surprise to Panhandle residents — snow.

The rare May snowstorm Wednesday dumped a blanket of white from western Kansas southward to the Texas Panhandle and northeastern New Mexico.

Much of the white stuff fell on the extreme northern border of the Panhandle, with Dalhart reporting 4 inches and Stratford recording an official 9 inches, with some reports ranging up to 11 inches.

Scattered rain, mixed with snow, fell as far south as Plainview.

The storm system, which surged out of the Rockies Wednesday, was also responsible for a tornado which cut a five-mile path through Beaumont.

The small twister damaged numerous buildings and littered streets with fallen power lines and trees. Police said there were no injuries as the tornado bounced through the city for about five miles, shattering windows, damaging roofs and leveling trees.

Some of the rains were heavy, with 3.6 inches reported near San Angelo.

Temperatures were cool over most of the state Wednesday, ranging from the upper 30s to mid-40s in the Panhandle, 50s in North Texas, 60s in the central portions and mid 70s to mid 80s in the clear areas. The 4 p.m. extremes were 38 at both Amarillo and Dalhart and 86 at McAllen.

In New Mexico, the storm system buried northeastern portions of the state beneath as much as 17 inches of snow, closing roads and making travel hazaradous over much of the area. U.S. 80-87 between Raton and Clayton was closed for a time Wednesday.

For Lubbock and vicinity, forecasters are predicting 12 hours of pleasant sunshine today, with temperatures in the middle 60s. Tonight's low will be around 40.

Although Lubbock has had its fair share of moisture recently, forecasters say that the rain system has weakened and they predict no precipitation through Friday.

Carter Urges Boost In Solar Spending

GOLDEN, Colo. (AP) — President Carter, in a "Sun Day" address cut short by rain Wednesday, proposed increased spending for solar projects and promised to develop a new "national solar strategy."

Making his first stop on a planned three-day Western trip, Carter visited the future site of the federally funded Solar Energy Research Institute near Golden, Colo., and spoke to a crowd of about 300 persons.

In a surprise announcement, Carter said he would order the Energy Department to shift $100 million to solar and other renewable-resource energy projects in next year's proposed budget.

"This is an appropriate day to concentrate government efforts on solar energy," he said. The announcement drew applause and cheers from the audience.

As Carter spoke, rain began to fall, causing the president to cut short his remarks and don a raincoat.

The 9-month-old Solar Energy Research Institute now operates in temporary offices in Golden. Carter said ground would be broken for the institute's permanent home next year.

After the speech, Carter headed by motorcade to Denver where dined with a group of energy and government officials at a solar-heated cafe.

Referring to the president's pledge to shift more money to solar energy, press secretary Jody Powell told reporters aboard Air Force One that Carter and Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger had been "cooking up" the idea for some time but that Carter had wanted to save the announcement as a surprise.

As originally drafted, the president's speech mentioned no precise figures on new spending goals for renewable energy

Senate Candidates Hurl Angry Charges Before Slim Audience

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

WITH JUST two days remaining until Saturday's primary election, Democratic state senate candidates unleashed a barrage of charges and counter-charges at each other Wednesday at a Lubbock County Democratic forum.

Before a crowd of only 20 persons, former Lubbock mayor Morris Turner accused former state Rep. Delwin Jones of "taking credit when credit shouldn't be given" for many of the accomplishments of the city and Texas Tech University and demanded that Jones publicly apologize..

Turner said Jones is "taking credit for everything that happened at Texas Tech, the state school and the 137th District Court" when in fact "hundreds of people were involved in passing those pieces of legislation.

"If he had thought of re-digging Yellowhouse Canyon, he would have taken credit for that," Turner charged.

Turner said he was in office "when a lot of the projects were started" and said "lots of people were involved."

Turner said Jones "owes an apology to a lot of people" for taking full credit for the legislation and "needs to explain (that) others who were involved helped develop the legislation."

The former mayor attributed Jones's claims to the political season in which "people are prone to stretch the truth."

Jones, in turn, labeled Turner's charges "typical of a faction that's losing to attack the winner.

"As a farmer, I have to be optimistic," Jones said; "his surveys must show I'm leading and the one they have to gun down."

Jones said "it would be foolish for me to take full credit for the achievements," but said he was the leader in the fight for the legislation for which he claims credit.

Former state Rep. Jesse George denied past charges he had "planted" questions for other candidates and said he has "serious questions about the motivation and moral background of one of the candidates." When asked which candidate, George singled out Turner.

In response, Turner said George was "resorting to amateurish campaign tactics of a loser."

The only real issue discussed was that of limiting the amount which could be spent on a campaign for the legislature or state office.

George said he favors such a limit, while former state Rep. E.L. Short said he was opposed to a spending limit.

Jones said he favors shortening the time a person can campaign and shortening the time between the primary and the general election. "I'm not so concerned about a limit on the amount you can spend to run for office," he said.

Texas Tech Regent Don Workman agreed with Jones and said it shouldn't be necessary for a person to take a whole year to run for office.

Human Rights Alert Given To Filipinos

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Vice President Walter F. Mondale signed a $41 million aid package for the Philippines' rural poor here Wednesday, but warned President Ferdinand E. Marcos he risks losing American support unless he improves his human rights record.

Mondale tied the aid to President Carter's human rights program, saying the assistance represents "a tangible demonstration of the American commitment to fulfill basic human needs as a central part of our concern for human rights."

The agreements, which run over several years, are designed to build farm-to-market roads, set up cooperatives, supply pure water and investigate energy sources cheaper than oil.

The human rights issue was not mentioned in a joint communique issued after midnight Wednesday. The document dealt only with agreement on principles to govern negotiations for a new lease on U.S. military bases here.

The agreement reaffirms Philippine sovereignty over the bases. Unresolved is how much rent the United States will pay and which country has jurisdiction over American servicemen charged with violating Philippine laws.

Mondale also met with a half-dozen anti-Marcos dissidents, and one of them, former Foreign Minister Salvador Lopez, said afterwards he was satisfied the American was not here "on a pleasure trip."

"He made it clear his visit is linked to the policy of human rights," Lopez said.

It was the first full day of Mondale's five-nation Far East swing, aimed at demonstrating U.S. commitment to the region.

He travels to Bangkok today for talks with Thai leaders that are expected to center on the fate of 100,000 Indochinese refugees in their country, rampant narcotics trafficking and the defense needs of non-Communist Southeast Asia. Mondale then goes to Indonesia, Australia and New Zealand before heading home.

In what he called a "candid" 90-minute discussion with Marcos, Mondale brought up the subject of political prisoners. Among them is Marcos' most prominent opponent, former Sen. Benigno S. Aquino Jr.

At a news conference, Mondale said he told Marcos of concern among members of Congress and the American public about allegations of human rights violations. He said he had warned that failure to improve the situation "could adversely affect our ability to improve and broaden

New Drug May Tame High Blood Pressure

BOSTON (AP) — A new drug that eases high blood pressure without unpleasant side effects has been successfully tested by doctors who call it one of the most promising breakthroughs in treating this disease in two decades.

The researchers say the medicine, called SQ14225, reduces blood pressure that is so high it cannot be treated by traditional methods. They say it will be at least two years before SQ14225 is cleared for widespread use, but that it someday may replace most drugs now used for the common illness.

Unlike pills now prescribed for high blood pressure, the new medicine has no apparent side effects. Instead, it musters the body's own chemistry to fight the quietly destructive disease.

High blood pressure, or hypertension, is one of the most common diseases of adults. It afflicts about 23 million Americans — 15 percent of all adults — and the prevalence increases with age. One-quarter of all whites and half of all blacks between ages 55 and 64 have this illness.

High blood pressure is caused by narrowing of the blood vessels. It contributes to such killers as heart attack and stroke.

The new drug was used to treat 12 victims of high blood pressure at Boston University Medical Center. Four were so ill they could not be treated with conventional drugs. Researchers said SQ14225 lowered the blood pressure of each person to normal levels.

Dr. Irene Gavras, one of the Boston University researchers, said, "This new drug does not interfere with the nervous system at all."

Instead, it blocks production of a blood chemical called the angiotensin converting enzyme. This enzyme promotes production of a hormone that tightens the arteries but thwarts production of another hormone that widens them.

"This drug eliminates the constricting hormone and causes accumulation of the dilating hormone," Dr. Gavras said in an interview. "The net result is a relaxation of the blood vessels that comes through the effort of the body's own hormones."

Iceberg Drifts Toward Africa

LONDON (AP) — An iceberg 36 times the size of Bermuda and inhabited by penguins was reported Wednesday to be drifting slowly in the South Atlantic from the Antarctic towards the coast of Africa.

The iceberg, said to measure 32-by-24 miles with a draft of at least 600 feet, was observed by scientists aboard the British Antarctic survey ship John Biscoe, which docked at Southampton port Tuesday.

"It looked really magnificent, with 100-foot sheer ice cliffs," chief officer Andy Baker said in an interview with Adrien Berry, science correspondent for the London newspaper Daily Telegraph.

But British scientists and Defense Ministry officials who have been tracking the runaway iceberg told The Associated Press they believe it poses no danger to shipping because it is not traveling on any recognized lanes and should break up when it hits warmer waters.

A collision with an iceberg sank the British ocean liner Titanic on the night of April 14-15, 1912, while she was on a maiden voyage in the North Atlantic south of Newfoundland. At least 1,500 persons died.

Christopher Doake of the British Antarctic Survey at Cambridge University said he has pinpointed the iceberg's present location at about 200 miles northwest of South Georgia Island east of the southernmost tip of South America.

The iceberg's speed of travel has not yet been estimated but the nearest point of Africa is still more than 4,000 nautical miles away.

Doake said American satellites and British scientists have been tracking the iceberg's progress over several years. The largest iceberg on record was an Antarctic iceberg of over 12,000 square miles sighted in 1956.

"This iceberg originally broke off from the Antarctic mass 10 or 11 years ago, but just kept drifting around down there. Then in the last year or so it got out into the open sea," Doake said.

"It is now on the edge of the Convergence, where the cold Antarctic water meets the warmer waters away from the South Polar regions."

Berry told The Associated Press he was informed that the iceberg is covered with penguins and that it keeps changing course on its way to Africa. He said he assumed the penguins had been living on the iceberg when it broke away from the Antarctic ice mass.

The Soviet news agency Tass reported on the moving iceberg in a brief dispatch from Luanda. The report said that in the opinion of British scientists who are aboard the study vessel watching the iceberg that it "may be a source of much trouble for ships."

The subject of icebergs has gained considerable attention around the world in recent months because of proposals to tow the ice masses from their cold environments to water-short areas like Saudi Arabia.

The first International Conference on Iceberg Utilization was held in Ames, Iowa, last October but the 175 scientists attending the Saudi-financed meeting were skeptical of the towing proposal.

The runaway iceberg measures 768 square miles, compared with Bermuda which measures 21 square miles, Nantucket Island with 84 square miles and Martha's Vineyard with 200 square miles.

Hard Yankee Winters Found Good, Bad

BOSTON (UPI) — New Englanders don't have to be told about the chameleon-like weather that bakes us one day and places us in cold storage the next.

Now an English-born psychiatrist says the hardships presented by the finicky weather are good for most — but not all — of us.

"It's character building," he says.

However, those hard Yankee winters can push some people over the mental edge, said Dr. Peter Whybrow, chairman of the Psychiatry Department at the Dartmouth College Medical School in Hanover, N.H.

The 38-year-old Whybrow said that during the spring months in New England, mental hospital admissions rise, the incidence of sexual assaults increase, and cases of mental depression requiring professional care peak.

"I can only speculate as to the reasons why these terrible things would happen to people during the spring," Whybrow said. "For most of us spring is a time of rejuvenation. Others during this season take a look at themselves and don't like what they see."

Whybrow said a possible reason is that during the winter many residents of the Northeast are "closed in by the snow." Some people who do not like the idea of confronting other people enjoy and thrive during the winter months because the cold and snow keep them in.

But when spring arrives, and they start going out and meeting other people, Whybrow said, it can be a great psychological strain.

"While holed up during the winter they have an excuse to remain inside. But during the spring those excuses disappear and the confrontations put a great strain on them," he said.

"Social bonds are naturally broken during the winter. People during the winter get used to the fact that they are lonely. It is during the spring when they see people out and about that they find they can't deal with the loneliness.

"April and May are the biggest months for suicide. People are killing themselves off in great numbers during the spring all around the world, but more so in the temperate climate of New England."

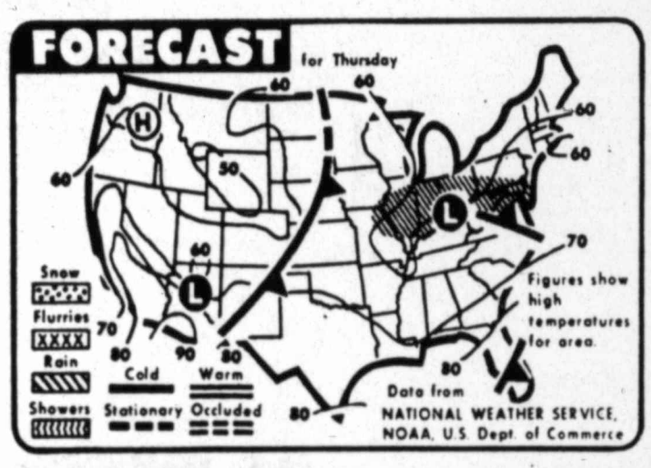

According to Whybrow, the natural process of development of depression takes several months, usually reaching its peak about the first of June.

During the spring these troubled people take a look at close look themselves.

"They say 'Oh my God. Look at me' and put a gun to their head or something," Whybrow said.

Still, Whybrow said, the challenges of winter make New Englanders among the most hearty people in the world.

"Look at the blizzard last February," he said. "We responded spendidly. New Englanders are not afraid of a challenge and this carries over into many other aspects of their lives."

North Pole Tour Spots Still Open

NEW YORK (UPI) — Tired of the same old summer resort? A package tour, described as the first commercial trip to the North Pole, still has vacancies.

Its organizer, Las Vegas travel writer and adventurer Jack Wheeler, says the May 13-20 tour will land passengers on the polar ice cap 500 miles from land, and then take them to an Eskimo village for dog sledding and a chance to sleep in an igloo.

The tour, priced under $4,000, also includes a visit to Lake Hazen, the northernmost lake in the world, and to the magnetic North Pole, 1,000 miles from the geographic North Pole, on Canada's Bathurst Island.

An April tour got to the pole but couldn't land because of seasonal ice haze. A June 9-16 tour already is sold out, the Wheeler represeentative said.

U.S. Automakers Report Surge In Sales; Imports Show Drop

DETROIT (AP) — April auto sales surged 9.2 percent to a record for U.S. manufacturers while imported car sales dropped about that amount, the automakers reported Wednesday.

General Motors Corp. and Ford Motor Co. each set sales records for the month, with GM adding a record for the late-April period. Chrysler Corp. and American Motors Corp. were also up.

Imported cars, forced to make recent sharp price hikes, saw their share of the U.S. market drop for the third straight month, from 20.6 percent in January to an estimated 17.2 percent in April.

"Consumer interest is as strong as we originally anticipated," said Robert D. Burger, GM marketing vice president.

He was referring to GM's rosy forecast of record car sales for 1978, a prediction that was widely discredited during a sales slump from mid-November to mid-March. Since then, sales of U.S. autos have rebounded.

The annual sales rate for the total industry in April was 12.1 million cars, higher than GM Chairman Thomas Murphy predicted in December.

In April, domestic cars sold at a daily rate of 34,518, narrowly surpassing the record of 34,485 set in the boom year of 1973 and up 9.2 percent over April 1977.

The daily selling rate is an industry yardstick used when the number of selling days differs from year to year, as occurred in April.

Total sales of domestic cars for the full month were 862,940.

For late April, domestic car sales were 41,717 per day, up 7.6 percent from a year ago and second best ever. Sales totaled 333,738.

For the month, GM sold a record 19,276 cars per day, up 9.5 percent from the old record set last year. Sales totaled 481,912 cars. For the April 21-30 period, GM sold a record 23,396 cars per day, up 10 percent from last year's record. Sales totaled 187,170 cars.

Ford sold a record 9,772 cars per day in April, surpassing the No. 2 automaker's 1973 record and up 4.6 percent from last year. Car sales totaled 244,307 for the month. For late April, Ford sold 12,061 cars per day, up 4.2 percent from last year, or a total of 96,489 cars.

Chrysler Corp. sales jumped 17.7 percent to 4,773 cars per day in April, for a total of 119,313 cars. During April 21-30, Chrysler sold 5,456 cars per day, up 2.7 percent. The total was 43,647 cars.

AMC jumped 11.7 percent for the month to 670 cars sold per day, for total sales of 17,408 cars. For late April, AMC was up 29.5 percent to 804 per day, or 6,432 cars.

Among major-selling imports, Toyota, Datsun and Volkswagen all showed sharp drops from April of 1977, which was an April record. Toyota spokesman Tom Eastland said the decline was no surprise because of the strength of the year-ago sales, and said this April was Toyota's second best.

Import sales totaled an estimated 179,000 cars compared to 205,600 in April 1977. The import daily selling rate was 9.5 percent below a year ago.

Chrysler Announces Recall

DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corp. announced the recall Wednesday of more than 1.2 million cars to correct a possible handling problem. It was one of three recalls issued Wednesday by the nation's No. 3 carmaker.

Models involved in the handling problem include 1976, 1977 and 1978 Dodge Aspens and Plymouth Volares.

"On a few cars, the front suspension pivot bar bracket may develop a fatigue failure primarily when subjected to heavy duty service," Chrysler said in a statement.

If the bracket failed, the driver would have difficulty controlling his car, according to Tom Houston, a Chrysler spokesman. He said the problem would show up on "less than 1 percent" of the recalled cars.

The bracket attaches to the frame and the upper control arm, which is near the front wheels.

"The car would slump" if the bracket failed, he said.

Letters will be sent to owners of the vehicles, whose autos will be equipped with a reinforcing bracket, Chrysler said.

In the second action, Chrysler is recalling the first 42,000 Plymouth Omni and Dodge Horizon subcompacts built in the 1978-model year to repair a possible front suspension balljoint attachment rivet failure.

Like the Aspen-Volare problem, Chrysler said failure of the rivet could affect directional control.

It's the second recall for the new hot-selling Omni and Horizon. Early in the model run, the cars were recalled to check the interior carpeting, which may have been stapled to the fuel tank.

In the third recall, 11,850 large motor home chassis equipped with 440 cubic inch engines are being recalled to replace a short fuel hose on the carburetor to eliminate the chance of a fuel leak.

Kent State To Observe Anniversary

KENT, Ohio (UPI) — Classes will be canceled and normal activity will come to a halt on the Kent State University campus Thursday as students, faculty and remnants of the antiwar movement mark the eighth anniversary of the Kent State shootings.

On May 4, 1970, four Kent students were killed and nine others wounded when National Guardsmen opened fire during an antiwar demonstration on campus.

This year's observance was expected to be far calmer than last year's when hundreds were arrested during demonstrations protesting the construction of a gymnasium near the shooting site.

The university this year canceled classes on the anniversary for the first time since the shooting. The Kent State faculty and administration issued several statements calling for calm.

There will be a facultysponsored convocation on the University Commons Thursday morning featuring a commemorative dance, a speech by Dr. Lawrence Kaplan, a Kent history professor, and a performance of Schubert's "Mass in G" by the university Sinfonia and Chorale.

A group known as the May 4 Task Force has scheduled a program of activities with the permission of the university. A candelight procession and allnight vigil was organized to start the task force's observance late Wednesday.

Task force leaders said the gym construction project, now nearing completion, would not be the center of the day's activities.

Instead, the events will focus on the upcoming retrial of a $46 million federal civil suit brought by the parents of students killed and wounded by the National Guard. Defendants in the case include Gov. James A. Rhodes and Ohio National Guardsmen.

Among those scheduled to speak at the task force obsevance were Dr. Daniel Ellsberg, attorney William Kunstler, American Indian Movement leader Vernon Bellecourt and former Students for a Democratic Society President Clark Kissinger.

Atlantic Balloonist Plans To Try Again

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Dewey Reinhard, who spent $235,000 last fall on an aborted attempt to be the first to cross the Atlantic in a balloon, says he will try again this year.

Reinhard's rig, The Eagle, rose from Bar Harbor, Maine, on Oct. 10 of last year, after he and co-pilot C.A. Stephenson III had waited 28 days for favorable weather conditions over the Atlantic.

Two days out, the flight was ditched for a variety of reasons, including equipment failures, lapses in communication and foul weather.

In announcing his decision this week, Reinhard declined to detail his strategy for this year because at least three other balloon attempts on the Atlantic are expected, he said.

"I feel we should protect the information gained during our $235,000 flying lesson of last October," he said.

A group of Reinhard's friends say they hope to raise $200,000 to help offset the cost of this year's adventure.

AN EDITORIAL:

So, Who's Running Store?

SELDOM IN recent history have the American people found themselves in the world of economic limbo that they do today.

There was a time when a family, and businesses, could plan with some degree of certainty for the next year, or even longer. This could be done in relation to what one might expect to make, pay in taxes and the rules under which one would operate.

Today, this is no longer so. Instead, everyone from the average wage earner to the head of the largest corporation is playing a guessing game with the government's economic planners, the President and/or Congress.

IN THE MEANTIME, inflation continues to sap the savings and weekly earnings of millions across the land.

In the latest release of consumer food prices, the inflation rate jumped 0.8 of a percent for the past month, signaling an annual inflation spiral of more than nine percent, far above the "tolerable" five to six percent goal set by the Carter administration.

Far more than half of all American households now have two or more wage-earners, often both parents. The economic squeeze is bringing about a whole restructuring of the nation's social, if not economic and moral, outlook.

IT CAN WELL be argued that more Americans are better off than they, or their predecessors, have been at any point in the nation's history.

But personal debt, not to mention the nation's debt—which in turn also is owed by individuals—is the highest in history.

What is the answer? Or Answers?

Anyone with guaranteed solutions for what ails us could name their own price these days. However, there are some obvious steps which could ease the problem.

THE BIGGEST, of course, is to get Big Government out of the economic planning business.

The other is to bring about a degree of responsible leadership to the White House and Congress which will restore the faith of the people that someone up there knows what is going on, where we are going, how we are going to get there, and how much it is going to cost.

Almost daily, the American people are bombarded by some new panacea, some new "tax break" proposal, perhaps later withdrawn or changed. The Social Security program is in trouble. And the "fix" was an unpopular tax hike.

At some point, someone has to take charge, inspire the people to make whatever sacrifices are needed to stop runaway inflation and an economy without an engineer.

The alternative well could be disaster, not just of a national but a worldwide scale.

AN EDITORIAL:

Park-ing Place Already Filled

IN THE BEGINNING was Syngman Rhee—scholar, patriot and keeper of the flame of Korean independence through 40 years of prison and exile.

Half of his long dream was realized with the defect of Japan and establishment of the South Korean republic, of which he became first president and rapidly much more.

Rhee assumed dictatorial powers, purged the opposition, executed its leader and ruled with a fist until a student uprising in 1960 forced him once more into exile.

Although a nine-month experiment with parliamentary democracy followed, the subsequent South Korean story is evidence that history to an unfortunate extent does tend to repeat itself.

IN THE SOUTH Korean elections to take place later this spring, the winner is already known. It is Park Chung Hee, leader of the 1961 military coup and winner of successive presidential elections in 1963, 1967 and 1971.

Park rules under a constitution (he wrote in 1972) which permits him an unlimited number of terms and which prohibits criticism of him. Consequently, there will be no opposition candidate.

A third of the seats of the National Assembly will be filled from a slate of candidates nominated by the president of the National Council for Unification, i.e. Park.

And just in case anyone still misses the point, Park has warned that he will not permit political activities in any way to impair the national unity and stability.

IT IS ONLY fair to note that South Korea has registered progress in some areas under Park. Economic growth is accelerating and the country is one of Asia's new rich.

Political and economic relations with Japan have been normalized and—reversing the rigid policy of the preceding regimes—contact is maintained with North Korea.

To those maintaining faith with the principle of collective security, Korea is evidence of what democratic societies can do in taking common action against aggression.

But for all that South Korea is today as an economic success story and and international symbol, politically it has succeeded in 30 years of independence only by advancing from dictator to dictator.

ART BUCHWALD:

I Know He Ain't Much But He's All I Got...

WASHINGTON—Everyone who pays federal income taxes in this country has a partner he calls Uncle Sam. As time goes on, more and more people are getting discontented with the partnership.

Take my neighbor Brandon. I met him at the post office on April 17 as he was posting his 1040 Form.

He seemed disgusted. "I just sent Uncle Sam his share of my earnings," he said. "I'm telling you if I could get out of the partnership tomorrow I would."

"Why?" I asked. "Isn't he a good partner?"

"ARE YOU KIDDING? I went to see him the other day and said, 'Sam, I'm not saying you're cheating me, but do you mind if I look at the books?'

"He got very angry because I was questioning his management of our money. 'Don't you trust me?' he wanted to know. 'Of course, I trust you,' I told him, 'but a partner should be able to check the books. After all, you have a right to look at mine.'

"So he took out this big ledger and said, 'Here, I have nothing to hide.'

"I opened the books and there was one item for $7 billion missing from HEW. 'What's this?'

"'Fraud. Someone is stealing $7 billion from Health, Education and Welfare.'

"'THAT'S A LOT OF money,' I said. So Sam replied, 'I can't watch everybody. Sometimes a few billion dollars slip between the cracks. It can happen in any business.'

"I looked at another item. 'How come,' I asked, 'these ships you ordered for the Navy now cost three times what we originally agreed to pay?'

"Sam looked innocent and then said, 'Oh yeah, I just remembered. We had to change all the plans after we gave the order, and then we didn't figure on inflation and the strikes.

'The shipbuilding company said it wouldn't continue the work unless we paid its extra costs. Brandon, we need those ships and they had me by the throat. I was going to tell you about it, but it slipped my mind.'"

Brandon continued, "So I kept turning the pages of the ledger. 'What's this item which says $10 billion for the Department of Energy?' Sam said, 'We need a Department of Energy. You agreed on it.'

"'I didn't know it would cost $10 billion,' I told Sam. He said, 'Well, you have to have nice offices, and you have to hire people to keep the paperwork straight, and you need computers.

"'A new Energy Department doesn't cost peanuts. I swear I'm personally not making a dime on it. Some day you'll consider it a bargain.'"

BRANDON SAID, "Then I came across a billion-dollar deficit in the post office. 'Sam,' I said, 'you told me if we allowed the post office to become a semipublic corporation it would be in the black. Now the deficit is worse than ever and the service is twice as bad.' Sam said, 'So I spoke too fast. With the new rates, maybe next year...'

"Now," Brandon told me, "I was really getting angry and I said, 'I'm your partner and you keep spending my money like it was going out of style. I know it takes a large investment to run a big government, but if I kept books like this you'd throw me in jail. You want me to account for every penny, and you have billions of dollars in this ledger that don't even add up.' Sam shrugged his shoulders. 'Bookkeeping isn't my strong point. I'm much better posing for posters for the Army that say, "I want you."'"

I WALKED BRANDON to his car and he finished his story. "So I finally said, 'Sam, I don't want to be partners with you. I'm better on my own.'"

"What did he say?" I asked.

"He was crestfallen and said, 'But, Brandon, I couldn't go on without you. As it stands now even after I get your check, we'll still be $60 billion in the hole. Just give me a few more years, and I promise you the books will balance down to the last nickel.'"

"And you bought it?" I asked my friend.

Brandon said, "What choice did I have? With my business, where am I going to find another partner?"

Man used to worry about whether he could afford a wife. Now he worries about how he'd make ends meet if his working wife quit.

ROWLAND EVANS & ROBERT NOVAK:

Carter, Keep Out!

EVANS

LINCOLN, Neb.—In traditionally Republican Nebraska, where the Democratic party has achieved new heights and is reaching still higher in 1978, party leaders have posted a harsh sign for the Democrat in the White House: Jimmy Carter, keep out!

That reflects the mid-term election mood throughout the Great Plains, scene of dramatic Democratic gains in recent elections. Farmer unrest, intensified by what wheat belt politicians perceive as President Carter's general ineptitude, has raised the prospect of Republican resurgence in the Plains states.

Thus, most Carter administration officials—in some cases the President himself—will not be welcome as 1978 campaigners in much of this region. Not only Nebraska but Kansas, South Dakota, Iowa, Oklahoma and Wyoming are grain states where Democratic candidates for senator and governor fear the Carter imprint.

UNENCUMBERED BY such political horrors as Vietnam or Watergate, which generated heavy out-of-power gains for the Republicans in 1966 and the Democrats in 1974, Carter nevertheless has become his own party's worst enemy for 1978.

With a general approval rating close to 80 per cent after eight years in office, Exon has one waking nightmare: the President.

"Take Carter and the Carter administration out of the equation, and Exon is a sure thing," a leading Republican told us. An Exon aide agreed: "Let Carter set foot in this state between now and November and it is conceivable we could lose." Hyperbole? The shrewdest politicians here do not think so.

APART FROM THE President's general decline, the White House has shown zealous insensitivity toward this region—as demonstrated April 12 when the House defeated the veto-threatened emergency farm bill.

A few minutes after that vote, a leading Nebraska Democrat vainly implored Sec. of Agriculture Bob Bergland to announce immediately the administration's support for a higher, $3.40 target price for hard-pressed wheat farmers, then claim credit for it in the fall campaign.

Bergland, never certain what course his orders from the White House will take, begged off. Anyway, he lamely explained, there will be a higher target price for wheat, and we will get credit for it in the fall.

Instead of hitting the headlines with a dramatic plea for higher wheat prices, Bergland waited a full week. He then sent an aide to the Senate Agriculture Committee where, in the rountine ritual of a committee hearing room the $3.40 target price was quietly endorsed by the Carter administration.

SUCH AMATEURISM follows what is perceived here as White House coolness toward Nebraska and the Great Plains.

Bergland told NBC's "Meet the Press" last month that "it has been a long time since a Democratic candidate for the presidency carried Nebraska." That "long time" goes back only to 1964, when Lyndon B. Johnson easily won the state.

Bergland went on to say that "if (the voters) choose to reject" Carter farm policies, "so be it." This back-of-the-hand attitude explains Sen. Edward Zorinsky's public ridicule of Carter's efforts to win his support for the Panama Canal treaties.

This, in turn, brought staff advice to Carter for a public spanking of the maverick Democratic senator; that would not hurt the President, said the adviser, because he has no support in Nebraska anyway.

INDEED, CARTER is looked upon as a foreigner, knowing little about Midwestern problems and caring less. Exon was "stupefied" at an Oval Office meeting with the President last July, with other farm state governors.

Carter suddenly said "too much grain" is fed to livestock. Since the major source of income for feed-grain growers is feeding grain to livestock, the governors were dismayed.

Politicians and farmers here have the mistaken belief that Carter's international human rights campaign is a major factor in declining grain exports.

Actually, delays in shipping grain abroad caused by human rights restrictions appear minimal—only $10 million in one shipment to Chile, according to the State Department. Nevertheless, the belief has taken hold and is hurting the President.

Thus the paradox of Carter's first off-year election campaign, while evidence throughout the Great Plains, is particularly vivid in Nebraska.

In a state poised for the first time to send a second Democrat to the Senate and make the Democrats the majority party, the Democrat in the White House is not wanted here between now and November.

ANDREW TULLY:

Ready... Or Not

WASHINGTON—Gentle reader, I know you're not ready for this, but here it comes. The 1980 Presidential campaign, which has been teetering on the starting blocks for several weeks, is now off and running.

The list of potential candidates now has another, probably inevitable, name. Pals of Sen. Ted Kennedy have leaked word that he has about decided he can swipe the Democratic nomination from Jimmy Carter, because of Carter's "failure to emerge as a leader."

Other, more detached, politicians say a Kennedy candidacy figures. The 1980 campaign, they argue, will be Kennedy's last chance to capitalize on the family mystique, which is beginning to show its age. As for the Chappaquiddick incident, Kennedy people say he expects it to be an issue but that he can handle it.

AH ME. WE seem to be headed for the time when a new Presidential campaign will begin the moment the previous votes are counted.

The Republicans counted Gerry Ford and Ronald Reagan among their hopefuls while the fires of the 1976 campaign were still smouldering. Sen. Bob Dole jumped in soon thereafter. On one recent day, the nation got word from George Bush, former CIA director, who announced that he had Presidential credentials. And even the modest Rep. John Anderson of Illinois says he's thinking of joining the mob.

It is all too soon; the electorate deserves a respite. But the Presidential rush also is understandable. Jimmy Carter is perceived to be in trouble every time a pollster asks a voter what he thinks of the affectionate Georgian.

THE LATEST effort by the industrious George Gallup shows that Carter's popularity is at a new low.

Forget about Panama, energy, and human rights in the Soviet Union. In Carter's case, the villain is inflation. The American voter seems finally to have decided that the high cost of living is not only too high but threatening to climb higher.

But here's the snapper. Gallup's sampling found that those polled favor far more drastic economic measures than those prescribed by Carter.

They are willing to bite the bullet, "voting" by 50 to 39 per cent in support of wage and price controls. Two months ago, controls were favored by only 44 to 40 per cent.

Moreover, Gallup found his sample pessimistic about the future. More than half of those polled, 55 per cent, believe that prices will rise more than income during the next 12 months.

Only 9 per cent believe income will go up more than prices.

THERE IT IS, Carter, sir. You've got to do something better than try to gently persuade Big Business and Big Labor to behave. Hoping that patriotism will prevail over self-interest is like trying to convince Brezhnev to buy the free enterprise system.

I do not argue that controls are imperative, although things are so bad it's hard to think of an alternative. But it is dumb of Carter to assure business and labor leaders practically every hour on the hour that he positively will not impose controls. In doing so, he offers the carrot without threatening the stick.

No wonder everybody's already running for Jimmy Carter's job. His approach to fighting inflation sends a vision of Democratic chaos dancing through even John Anderson's head.

JAY HARRIS:

The Last Frontier

"YOU CANNOT strengthen the weak by weakening the strong.

"You cannot help small men by tearing down big men.

"You cannot help the poor by destroying the rich. You cannot lift the wage earner by pulling down the wage payer. You cannot keep out of trouble by spending more than your income.

"You cannot further the brotherhood of man by inciting class hatreds.

"You cannot establish security on borrowed money. You cannot build character and courage by taking away a man's initiative and independence. You cannot help men permanently by doing for them what they could and should do themselves."

THOSE COMMENTS, first uttered by Abraham Lincoln, kicked off an address by J. Fred Bucy to the West Texas Chamber of Commerce here the other day.

Mr. Bucy, as most know, is president of Texas Instruments, one of the top electronic companies in the world. He also is a graduate of Texas Tech, and what is more important, is a man who isn't afraid to stand up for America, Free Enterprise and individual initiative. And he says so in terms anyone can understand.

It was in this context that the head of Dallas-based TI said his piece for West Texas business leaders. J. Fred, who once stood a United Way audience here on its collective ear—and got its attention—wasted no time in warming to his subject, "Free Enterprise and Government Regulation."

Mr. Bucy got down to business in a hurry, noting that all too often we hear an expression such as: "They ought to do something about...They should write their Congressmen...They should make the President do something..."

"OUR TROUBLE," he says, "is that too few of us realize "they" means "we"—you and me and every other member or friend of American business.

"We may not be responsible for getting us into the mess—but we certainly are responsible for getting us out..."

He adds: "Nobody is going to help us—not the media, not our colleges and universities, not big labor, not the bureaucrats, and not the politicians. Many of those groups helped create our present troubles, because they were trying to use business to solve social problems...

Later, he says: "At a steadily accelerating pace, the U.S. government has used American business to carry out federal social-engineering plans.

"These plans are meant to solve genuine problems—but the solutions have gotten out of hand. Hiring by quota is such a plan. Minimum wage laws are a part of the plan..." He urges business to do its own thing by taking an interest in people and their problems.

TAKING NOTE of Texas' strong economy and the broad business base in the state, Bucy offers some timely observations:

"Texas voters understand that the free enterprise system will produce a better life for all of us in this great state—if only we can keep the government and other third parties from destroying it..."

He then suggests that there are Seven Basic points which Texas must face and on which each political candidate should take a stand...

The First, he says, is fiscal responsibility. The balanced budget amendment to the Texas Constitution was a step in the right direction, he says, but Bucy, who is on the Texas Tech Board of Regents, says "a key question is how the candidate proposes to control the mounting costs of education, one of largest items in the state budget—thanks to the strongest lobby in Texas..."

The Second Basic, he cites, is Right-to-Work. "Make sure your candidate understands that the freedom of Texas business from third-party domination has played a powerful part in keeping our economy healthy."

THE THIRD Basic is preserving the incentive to work, he says. Along with preserving the right to work, "make sure your candidate plans to discourage the kind of social welfare programs that discourage job seeking."

The Fourth "must" concerns migrant labor. "As a result of American affluence and a poorly designed welfare system, there are many kinds of essential jobs to be done in Texas that Americans won't perform..."

"We should open our borders to migrant workers," Bucy says, "but not grant them citizenship," requiring them instead to register as aliens and obtain work permits and to return home when the job is done.

The Fifth issue is crime control, particularly as it relates to organized crime, he says. The Sixth Basic is "the direction of Texas' future growth...The government, through legislation and regulation, helps shape the future of business...

The Seventh Basic that the government of Texas must face is the most pressing of all, Bucy notes. "We must keep working toward removal of federal controls on gas..."

IN THE PROCESS of visiting most of TI's 44 plants in 18 countries the past 12 months, Bucy says he has been on every continent but Antarctica.

"Each time I come home to Texas, it's with a stronger conviction that Texas is the last frontier, the last stronghold of free enterprise. And because of this, it's one of the last few strongholds of human freedom left...

"Count our blessings: We have no state income tax; we have a strong work ethic; we have a 'can-do' frontier spirit; we have a Right-to-Work law; by and large, we have honest state and municipal governments; and we have a spirit of trust and cooperation between business and our state government...

"If we allow the Federal government, or its bureaucracy or militant special interest groups to destroy all of this, then we'll deserve what we get. We'll have no one to blame but ourselves."

Pair Charged With Kidnapping Jodie Gaines

McKENZIE, Tenn. (AP) — Two men were charged Wednesday with kidnapping 18-year-old Jodie Gaines, who escaped after being handcuffed to a bed and forced to listen while her captors squabbled over whether to kill her.

David Michael Wilson, 25, and Andrew Dickson, 22, both of the Paris, Tenn., area, who had been arrested by the FBI on Tuesday, were charged in Carroll County Circuit Court with kidnapping for ransom. The crime is punishable under state law by life imprisonment.

Wilson's wife, Patsy, was questioned but released. Officers hunted a third person, who was unidentified.

On Tuesday, Miss Gaines' father, businessman Ben Gaines, said the kidnappers "were going to kill her."

"One was debating whether to kill her," he said. "Two of them wanted to kill her. She was sitting in the room when they talked of killing her."

The father, president of furniture-producing Gaines Manufacturing Co., said in an interview Wednesday that at one point, news reports convinced the kidnappers the family had violated a public pledge to cooperate and restrain the FBI. Two wanted to kill her, he said Jodie told him, but the third intervened. That man apparently was at large.

They also spoke, she said, of killing her father and abducting her mother and brother.

Gaines also said Jodie told him the kidnappers caught her on a country road after she left a family, country-club dinner to visit a cousin.

"They identified themselves as with the law, checking on narcotics and she asked them first why they picked her up on that isolated road," he said.

"Then she asked them for their badge. Then they pulled a gun and asked her to get out of the car. They put her in the back seat blindfolded and drove a good long ways. They left her in the car for two nights and she stayed in her car with one or two people at all times."

The victim's brother, Ben Gaines, Jr., meanwhile, said Wednesday that his sister's "biggest problem" now was her "emotional state.

"She's nervous and really distraught," he said. "We're less concerned about her physical health than her mental health."

He said he had been instructed by the FBI not to comment on what had happened to his sister at the one-room shack where she was held by the kidnappers, who abducted her Friday night by posing as policemen and then demanded $250,000 ransom from her family.

Agents later recovered the ransom, which Miss Gaines' mother dropped in a ditch in Tennessee Monday night.

JODIE'S PRISON — FBI Agents stand in the doorway of the one-room cabin where Jodie Elizabeth Gaines, 18, of McKenzie, Tenn., was chained during a $250,000 abduction. Miss Gaines managed to free herself Tuesday morning as authorities were taking two men into custody in nearby Paris, Tenn. She had been held captive for 3½ days. (AP Laserphoto)

Tax Court Rejects Protests

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Tax Court has rejected two more attempts by individuals to avoid payment of income tax by challenges to the law or the government.

— James E. Ramsden of Hager City, Wis., had filled out his Form 1040 with the words "Object — Fifth Amendment" and he attached a protest challenging the constitutionality of the court itself.

SOLAR WARFARE — Persons were invited to the campus of the University of Arkansas at Fayetville on Tuesday to take part in an experiment using mirrors to reflect the sun's rays onto cardboard and wood model ships with hopes of setting the ships afire. The experiment was based on the legend that Archimedes destroyed the Roman fleet in a similar way thousands of years ago. The experiment failed because of a slight overcast that diffused the sun's rays. (AP Laserphoto)

Mall Ordered To Pay Taxes

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A state district judge finally has settled three years' worth of lawsuits by South Plains Mall against local city-school tax authorities. The mall was ordered to pay a total of about $870,000 in taxes.

That amount is considered to be a compromise. It is approximately $180,000 less than tax officials sought, but $335,000 more than the mall originally felt it should have to pay.

The judgment also exceeds by about $125,000 an earlier compromise owners of the regional shopping center had proposed, sources said.

The ruling brings to a close what government officials believe to be the biggest series of tax suits against the City of Lubbock and Lubbock Independent School District.

South Plains Mall had sued the city-school tax department in 1975, 1976 and 1977, complaining that the values placed on its property by tax officials were too high.

Attorneys for the mall said the property values imposed by the tax office and tax equalization board were "grossly excessive, discriminatory, invalid and void."

For each year involved, the mall said, the tax equalization board "nearly doubled the taxable values rendered" by the owners of the southwest Lubbock center.

In 1977, for example, the mall protested that the values set by the tax office and ratified by the board "would result in the plaintiff having to pay taxes (on property totaling) $5.6 million in excess of market valuation."

However, attorneys for the city and school system argued that their values on the mall were indeed "fair, reasonable and just."

City-school lawyers shrugged off the mall's contention that it was being appraised on a basis different from other local shopping places. "There is no reasonable comparison between South Plains Mall and other shopping centers," tax officials said in court documents.

They said the mall is "unique...specially designed to be attractive to customers and tenants; in truth and in fact, construction of (the mall) has depressed values of other shopping centers" and thus warranted higher values.

In 1976 and 1977, four of the stores that rent space in the mall joined the shopping center owners in their suits against the higher tax values.

Arguments in the three related years' cases were heard last month by 72nd District Judge John McFall.

The properties involved in the suits vary slightly from year to year. But briefly, according to court documents, the dispute looks like this:

In 1975, the mall rendered its property at an assessed value (60 percent of market value) of about $5.5 million. On that basis, city-school taxes would have been $169,000.

The tax office put the mall's assessed value closer to $15 million, which would have meant a tax bill that year of $465,000. The tax equalization board settled on $11 million as the mall's assessed value — which would have resulted in taxes of $345,000.

During its protest to the tax board, owners of the mall indicated they were willing to accept an assessed value of about $8 million (yielding $250,000 in taxes). In his ruling, McFall fixed the mall's 1975 assessed value at $9.3 million — resulting in a $286,000 tax bill.

In 1976, the mall rendered its property at $5.8 million (a $184,000 tax bill). The tax equalization board set a value of $11.3 million (a $358,000 bill). The mall came back with an offer to accept a value of $7.8 million (a $245,000 tax bill).

And McFall set the mall's 1976 assessed value at $9.4 million, resulting in a tax bill of nearly $300,000.

McFall put the mall's 1977 assessed value at $9.6 million, resulting in about $288,000 in city-school taxes.

Financier Leaves Costa Rica

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) — Fugitive American financier Robert L. Vesco has flown from Costa Rica to Panama with an aide in a private plane, immigration officials at San Jose airport said Wednesday.

Chief Immigration Officer Antonio Pereira said Vesco left Sunday with aide Norman le Blanc.

Vesco and Le Blanc were authorized by a judge to leave the country for up to 75 days on business, pending appeal in a fraud case. Each is under $34,000 bond.

It was not known whether Vesco plans to return to Costa Rica.

His Costa Rican lawyer, Jose Maria Pla, said that if Vesco and Le Blanc have left the country, he is sure they will return within the 75-day period.

There has been mounting pressure for Vesco's expulsion from this Central American nation, where he has lived since 1972, because of alleged improper political campaign contributions.

Vesco had said through a spokesman he wanted to go to Venezuela, the Bahamas, Grand Cayman and Mexico on business. Airport sources said he might have gone to Panama on his way to Venezuela.

Vesco, former head of the Investors Overseas Services, a Swiss-based mutual fund, is wanted in the United States in connection with the alleged siphoning-off of $224 million in company funds before it went bankrupt. He is also wanted for allegedly making an illegal $200,000 contribution to Richard M. Nixon's 1972 presidential re-election campaign.

American efforts to have him extradited to the United States have been unsuccessful. Vesco has applied for Costa Rican citizenship, but the application is threatened by the court case here.

A Costa Rican IOS stockholder, Carlos Rechnitzer, brought fraud charges against Vesco and six aides in a criminal court last year, claiming that 135,000 shares of IOS stock Vesco sold him were worthless.

Judge Juan Jose Quiros ordered the case dropped last week, citing insufficient evidence, but a public prosecutor has appealed the ruling.

In a separate proceeding, President-elect Rodrigo Carazo, who has promised to have Vesco expelled from Costa Rica when he takes office next Monday, presented written testimony Tuesday at the civil registry office against the Americans application for citizenship.

Carazo and other opposition leaders began demanding Vesco's expulsion two years ago when allegations surfaced that he had made illegal contributions to President Daniel Oduber's election campaign.

Whale Holds Trainer Underwater With Nose

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A 14,000-pound killer whale held a Marineland animal trainer underwater for several minutes before it was lured away and the trainer rescued, officials said.

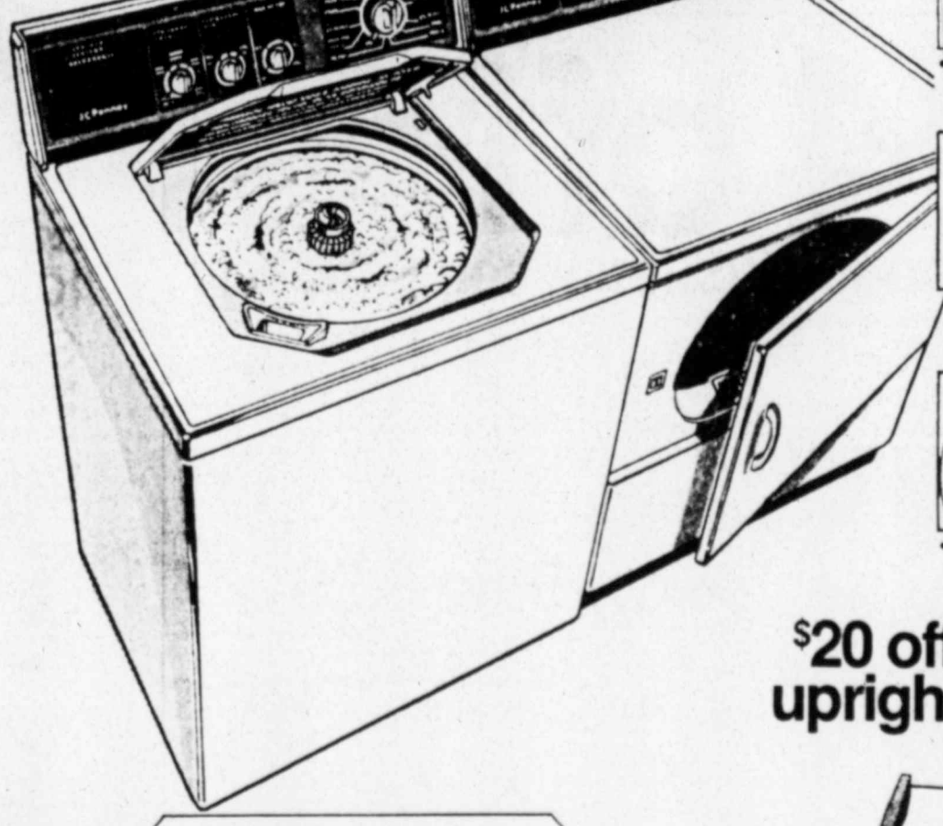

A county Fire Department spokesman said Jill Stratton, 27, was in good condition at a hospital Tuesday night. A spokesman for the oceanside amusement park said Miss Stratton was rehearsing a routine with the whale when the animal held her down with its nose.

Ellsberg Joins Protesters Of Nuclear Bombs

GOLDEN, Colo. (UPI) — Former Pentagon analyst Daniel Ellsberg, one of 35 demonstrators camped on railroad tracks leading to the Rocky Flat nuclear weapons plant, said Wednesday President Carter would find more supporters for his stance against the neutron bomb at the protest site than he would in Washington.

The 35 are the only remaining members from a group of protesters who demonstrated outside the facility last Saturday. Officials said the number of demonstrators may have reached 5,000 at its peak.

President Carter planned to make Denver an overnight stop Wednesday on a trip to the West and Ellsberg said the president should visit the demonstrators.

"We don't know yet if the president will drop by at our home on the tracks while he's in the neighborhood," Ellsberg said. "He would find more support here than he has in Washington for his decision to defer production on the neutron bomb.

"We'd encourage him to make that determent permanent," Ellsberg added. "I'd still like to ask him: "Mr. President, in view of your goal — which we share — of abolishing nuclear weapons, why is the plant at Rocky Flats still producing new nuclear warheads, three to 10 a day?'" Ellsberg said he could not understand how the president expected to reach his goal of zero nuclear weapons from the 30,000 nuclear warheads the nation now has "by adding instead of subtracting.

"The first step is to just stop producing new ones," Ellsberg said. "He could order that today."

Ellsberg said he and the other demonstrators were "putting our bodies on the railroad lines to withdraw our consent to the further production of nuclear warheads in our country."

Among the demonstrators at the site were the Rev. Peter Ediger, a Mennonite minister from Arvada, and Dr. Martin Ian Spector, a dentist from Boulder. Federal officials said they have no plans to try to forcibly remove the demonstrators, who have spent the last few days in rain, snow and freezing temperatures.

Lightning Bolt Sets Off Naphtha Blaze

ST. JAMES, La. (UPI) — A bolt of lightning touched off a blaze in a 300,000-gallon tank of naphtha Wednesday threatening several other tanks at a jet fuel munufacturing and storage facility along the Mississippi River.

No injuries were reported.

The fire, which started at about 5:45 a.m., raged out of control for more than six hours. Officials said it might burn into the night.

A statewide request for assistance firefighters skilled in work on such blazes was issued by the St. James Parish sheriff's department. All fire departments in the parish were called out and other fire units were called from as far away as Houma, more than 50 miles away by road.

"It's getting worse," said deputy Maurice Laurent. "They need a lot of help to fight it. They've got enough equipment, now they need help."

The fire was at Lajet, Inc., a fuel manufacturer and storage center in a rural area on Giver Road midway between New Orleans and Baton Rouge. No evacuation was planned because there were no homes in the immediate area, deputies said.

Despite a drenching rainstorm lasting through the morning, a thick cloud of black smoke billowed out of the tank. Cherry-red flames roared from the fuel.

At one point, when firemen thought they were about to control the flames, a side wall of the tank collapsed inward due to the intense heat. Flames and smoke spread anew and the fire flared up again.

Alexander Named To Arts Council

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Shana Alexander, who regularly appears on TV's "60 Minutes" expounding the liberal point of view, was appointed Wednesday to the New York Council on the Arts.

Mrs. Alexander, who has written for McCalls, Newsweek and Life magazines and has published several books, was appointed to the unsalaried post by Gov. Hugh Carey for a five-year term. Her nomination is subject to confirmation by the state Senate.

Carey also reappointed Arthur Levitt Jr., president of the American Stock Exchange and son of the state comptroller, to the council. His term, like Mrs. Alexander's, runs until March 31, 1983.

The council administers grants of state aid to cultural institutions and projects around the state.

Redford 'Politically Moderate'

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Film idol Robert Redford says he is politically moderate, even in his concern for the environment.

"I don't believe anything gets done from radical positions," Redford told The Salt Lake Tribune. "I have no more faith in the far-reaching right side that refuses to hear any point of view than I do the far left side that has no sense of humor."

Redford, seen by some as an environmentalist, said he doesn't like the term applied to himself.

"The environmental tag is one too loosely dropped by people who didn't know any better or who were being irresponsible about throwing lables around," he said.

Sneaky Thieves Nab Fire Truck

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Police are trying to figure out how a thief made off with a bright canary-yellow fire truck early Wednesday without leaving a trace.

Police say the fire truck, owned by the Palm River Volunteer Fire Department, was in the county's maintenance center for repairs when somebody broke into the compound, started the truck and drove it over a chain link fence to get it out.

The yellow truck is clearly marked with the fire department's name, officers said.

Man, Wife Battle For Sheriff

HAWTHORNE, Nev. (AP) — When Mineral County Democrats go to the polls in this September's primary, they will have a choice of two Sandersons for sheriff — the present sheriff and his former wife.

Sheriff E.T. "Hefty" Sanderson has filed for his fourth term as sheriff and his former wife, Mildred, is running against him.

Mrs. Sanderson lists a long interest in politics as one of her reasons for filing, noting she was active in Sanderson's re-election campaign in 1974. And, she said she had a long association with law enforcement.

Travel Costs Disallowed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Tax Court has held that the cost of transporting a child to a day care center is not deductible.

The court ruled in the case of Dorothy E. Warner of Milford, Ohio.

In her 1974 tax returns she claimed deductions for day care for her preschool age son including transportation between her home and the school.

The court agreed that the cost of the child's care is deductible, but not the cost of transportation.

While the two costs may be connected "a line must be drawn somewhere between expenses for the 'care' of a qualifying individual and those which are personal," the court said, despite the fact that "there is indeed some degree of 'inequity' in this situation."

Medical Pay Ruled Taxable

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pay received by a resident physician training in a hospital is not exempt from taxes as a scholarship or fellowship grant, the Tax Court has ruled.

The court rejected a claim by James E. White of Englewood, Colo., and Bruce I. Turner of Nashville, Tenn., that part of their income for 1973 should be excluded from taxation as a fellowship. Taxes for 1972 were also involved in Turner's case.

White was a resident at Loma Linda University Medical Center in California where his work was supervised by attending physicians, and Turner served as a resident at Charity Hospital in New Orleans.

White was paid $7,119.57 for the year and excluded $3,600 because under the law scholarships of up to $300 a month are not taxable. Turner deducted $1,523.06 in 1972 and $1,859.20 in 1973 which Louisiana law listed as a stipend, rather than as salary.

The court held, however, that both men were being paid for services at the hospitals, not via scholarships or fellowships, and thus the full amount is taxable.

Court Studies Dracula's Fate

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The California Supreme Court is deliberating the fate of Dracula — or at least things that look like the vampire.

The case involves Bela Lugosi's heirs and University Pictures.

Both want the right to "draw blood" from sales of novelty items using the vampire's likeness.

The horror movie actor's widow, Hope, and son, Bela George Lugosi, filed suit in 1966 against Universal to decide who should benefit from non-film use of Lugosi's portrayal of the infamous count.

It all started in 1931 when Lugosi ruled the Transylvania set on a Universal back lot as the central figure in the movie "Dracula."

The suit says Lugosi's contract with Universal was limited to his performance in the movie and production of ads for the film. It maintains that by marketing Lugosi's creation of Dracula, Universal has been making money that rightfully belongs to the actor's heirs.

But Universal said the contract made no restriction on Lugosi's portrayal of Dracula, and even if it had, Lugosi's rights died with him in 1956.

Remains Believed Of Nishi

TOKYO (AP) — In a cliffside cave on Iwo Jima, the U.S. Coast Guard has found what are believed to be the long-lost remains of Baron Takeichi Nishi, a 1932 Olympic equestrian gold medalist and Japanese tank commander in the bloody World War II battle for the strategic island, it was reported Wednesday.

The newspaper Yomiuri said the April 26 discovery was reported to Japanese defense officials.

Aircraft Carrier Retired

NEW YORK (AP) — The aircraft carrier Franklin D. Roosevelt was towed into New York Harbor on Wednesday to be scrapped in Kearny, N.J.

The mammoth fighting ship, towed from Norfolk, Va., was retired last October after 32 years in service. It was one of three Midway-class carriers, then the largest in the world, built in 1945. The carrier's major service was in the Atlantic and Mediterranean and with NATO, but it also spent six months in the Vietnam area.

The fight for Iwo Jima, 800 miles from the Japanese mainland, was the fiercest of the Pacific war, killing 5,000 Americans and 18,000 Japanese. It came five months before the end of the war.

Tsunezo Wachi, former Japanese naval captain and chairman of the Iwo Jima Society, said Col. Nishi had moved his headquarters to the northern part of the island after the invasion and was caught in a heavy U.S. attack.

American troops, addressing him as "Baron Nishi," called on him to surrender rather than die, but he refused.

Yomiuri said the remains of two persons were found in the cave, near a memorial put up by the Iwo Jima Society in honor of Nishi. It is believed the other body was that of Nishi's adjutant.

The baron became a celebrity in Japan for his gold medal in the equestrian individual jumping event in the 1932 Los Angeles Olympics.

Nishi's widow died in February, and his son said her parting words were, "I'm going to be lonely in our grave without the remains of my husband."

Family members and government officials plan to visit the island to try to confirm the identity of the remains, Yomiuri said. It said an American-made fountain pen was found at the scene, and Nishi was known to have owned such pens, considered luxuries in pre-war Japan.

Horseman Airs Wagering Views

By IRA PERRY
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Legalized pari-mutuel wagering on Texas horse races could bring the state an additional $50 million a year in tax revenues, a Lubbock racing enthusiast said Wednesday in launching a campaign to win voter approval of a referendum issue on Saturday's election ballots.

Robert A. Gentry, an executive committee member of the 1,500-member Texas Horseracing Association, Inc., during a morning news conference said estimates by the association indicate Texas would gain at least $30 million during the first year of legalized horse race gambling, with that figure rising to about $50 million a year within two years.

In Saturday's election, voters in both the Democratic and Republican primaries will be asked to give their opinion on whether the 1979 legislature should enact into law a measure legalizing pari-mutuel gambling on horse racing.

The results of that poll will not be legally binding, however, meaning proponents could still ask the legislature to consider such a proposal even if it fails and that the legislature could turn them down even if it passes.

In explaining his case for legalized wagering, Gentry said the association would ask the legislature for a system in which tracks would be state-owned and operated as non-profit institutions.

Proceeds, he said, would be divided, with 85 percent of the money bet being returned to the winners, 5 percent going back to the state in the form of taxes, 5 percent going to pay costs of the track and 5 percent being returned to the horse owners.

All policing operations, operating personnel and inspectors would be state employees assigned to each track, he said.

THA members are supporting the development of at least two tracks, in Dallas and Houston, and possibly a third in San Antonio, though the resolution they support calls for local option approval.

Any track in a county where voters approved of pari-mutuel wagering could begin gambling setups.

Gentry said that proposal, however, had not been written into the referendum question, meaning that voters Saturday will only be asked to decide on a general basis if they favor gambling on horse races without knowing the specifics of how tracks would operate.

"Lubbock has a lot of horses, and I feel like Lubbock should realize a need for horse racing in Texas," Gentry said. "Texas is the most equine-populated state in the nation and does not have pari-mutuel wagering as do 32 other states. I think the referendum will be approved by substantial margins on Saturday in both the Democratic and Republican primaries."

Gentry countered arguments by church groups and other anti-crime organizations by saying "there would be no room for organized crime in a non-profit situation where teachers, doctors, lawyers and business people will be on the commission" policing track operations."

Texas voters have turned down pari-mutuel gambling eight times in 25 years, but the system was legal in the state during the 1930s.

Betting Foes File Lawsuit Against Demos

AUSTIN (AP) — Opponents of horse race betting have asked the 3rd Court of Civil Appeals to order a full trial to determine if the Texas Democratic Party acted legally in placing the referendum on the May 6 ballot.

The request has no effect on the Saturday balloting since the 3rd Court of Civil Appeals refused last month to stop the printing of Democratic ballots.

The non-binding opinon survey question also is on the Republican ballot Saturday.

"I don't want to keep people Texas from registering their opinion on pari-mutuel gambling," said Harold Hammett, Fort Worth, one of those bringing suit against the state Democratic committee. "The real question is whether a political party is defenseless to prevent a raid of its primary election ballot in the form of petitions signed by people not registererd to vote as required by law."

Hammett and the others claimed that the petitions forcing the vote to be placed on the ballot were far short of the required number of valid signatures.

Austin attorney Randall Wood said the brief filed with the court asks that the court instruct a state district court to hear the case on its merits. The district court earlier said it had no jurisdiction to interrupt an election process already under way.

The appellate court gave no indication when, or if, it would act on the request.

LCC Names Ex-Student To Be Dean

Dr. Steven S. Lemley, dean of student life at Pepperdine University in Malibu, Calif., has been named dean of the college of Lubbock Christian College.

Lemley will replace Dr. Jerry Perrin, who is resigning July 1 to go into public school administration.

Perrin has served as dean for two years. He and his wife, Janis, came to LCC in 1971 to teach in the education department. In 1973 he was promoted to department chairman and then in 1976 to dean.

Under his direction, the college received another 10-year accreditation from the Southern Association of Colleges and Universities in December, 1977.

"We are very sorry to see Jerry and Janis leave the LCC family," Dr. Harvie Pruitt, LCC president, said.

Perrin said he had wanted to return to public school administration for some time, and since their daughter has graduated, "we thought it would be a good time" to move.

Lemley is an ex-student of LCC. He attended the college in 1963-65, continued his education at Pepperdine and received his bachelor's and master's degrees there. In 1972 he received a Ph.D. from Ohio State University.

He has taught at Pepperdine since 1972. In addition to serving as dean of student life, he also has served as associate dean of student life and as an associate professor of communications.

Dr. Lemley and his wife, the former Emily Young, have three children. They will move to Lubbock in July to begin their work.

"Steve is the type of administrator LCC needs. We are very proud that he has chosen to return to his alma mater," Dr. Pruitt said.

Sheats Top Spender In Congressional Contest

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Morris Sheats continues to outspend his Democratic opponent in the race for U.S. Congress, but Kent Hance has maintained his first place position in most money raised.

On the Republican side, George Bush has collected and spent the most money followed by Jim Reese and Joe Hickox.

Reports filed with the Federal Elections Commission 10 days before Saturday's election show the candidates have collected and spent the following amounts:

—Hance, $136,011.50 in contributions, $105,863.57 in expenses. During the period of this report, April 1-21, Hance collected $19,640 and spent $47,479.47.

—Sheats, $114,946.73 in contributions, $110,981.25 in expenses. During the first three weeks in April Sheats collected $17,722.46 and spent $18,204.22.

—Bush, $86,342.06 in contributions, $65,787.55 in expenses. Of those amounts, $10,169.74 was collected and $15,278.93 was spent during the current reporting period.

—Reese, $60,985.90 in contributions, $60,527.63 in expenses. During the first three weeks in April $8,853.40 was collected and $14,814.16 was spent.

—Hickox, $20,703.10 collected and $24,768.92 spent. During the reporting period $5,359.64 was collected and $8,542.34 was spent.

Jim Reese announced Wednesday he had received a $1,000 donation from Ronald Reagan's Citizens for the Republic.

Hance received $16,375 from several political action committees (PACs) which Sheats has said obligates the state senator to the contributors. The Sheats campaign is refusing to accept any PAC money for that reason.

Sheats has accused Hance of "selling out to special interest groups" by accepting the contributions.

Hance listed more than $8,000 in PAC donations on his last report.

The PACs listed on the current report and the amounts contributed to the Hance campaign are:

Texas Automobile Dealers Association, $1,500; FED TRANS PAC (truckers and automobile workers), $1,000; BEEF-PAC (Texas cattlefeeders), $500; Employees Political Action Committee of Ensearch, an oil and gas corporation in Dallas, $500; Good Government Political Action Committee in Fort Worth, $500; Committee of Concerned Citizens PAC of Dallas, $250; Texas Food Political Action Committee of Dallas, $75; and Plainview Educators PAC, $50.

State News

Individuals contributing $1,000 to the Hance campaign were J.R. Allison, a Hereford rancher; Ben H. Carpenter, chief executive officer of Southland Financial Corporation in Irving; and John W. Carpenter III, executive assistant to the president of Southland Investment Properties in Irving.

Hance received $500 contributions from C. Keith Beers, owner of Apartment Selector Service in Dallas; Tom Stacy, a partner in Stacy-Mason, Inc., in Levelland; J.G. Stacy, of Levelland, in oil and investments; Hollis H. Horton Jr., Friona farm equipment and implement dealer; Tom Sawyer, Hance's law partner; C. Dean Davis, an Austin attorney; and W.D. Noel, chairman of the board of El Paso Products in Odessa.

Sheats received $1,000 contributions from Steve and Betty Adcock, a Methodist minister in Hartley; J.M. Fullinwider, a Midland independent oil operator; and A.F. Giebel, a petroleum engineer in Midland. Mr. and Mrs. Emory Cassell, a Lubbock cotton merchant, donated $1,975.

Donations of $500 came from Mr. and Mrs. E.D. Adcock, a Lamesa farmer; Clifford H. Andrews, Lubbock farmer and rancher; Dora and Morgan Baker of Lubbock, Dorrell and Mary Lois Baker, partners in Hub City Body Works; and Percy and Geneva Boren, city of Lubbock engineer.

Contributors of $1,000 to the Bush campaign were R.H. Fulton, a Lubbock investment firm owner; Michael J Hanley, of New York City, chairm of Hanley-Wood Inc. in Washington, D.C.; and F.L. Thompson, of Midland, president of A.W. Thompson, Inc. and C&K Petroleum in Midland.

George Gibson, a Midland geologist, donated $975 to the campaign and Joe Roper, vice president of Tom Brown, Inc., in Midland, contributed stock valued at $997.50.

Bush received contributions of $500 from Ralph S. Cooley, a Midland oil and gas businessman; J.H. Pittman, of Midland, in oil field pipe sales; and Allen Troubaugh, a Midland oil operator.

Reese received a $1,500 contribution from the Committe for the Survival of a Free Congress in Washington, D.C., and received $500 donations from H.G. Sledge, a Midland drilling contractor; Myron Pool, a Muleshoe farmer; and Herbert Graham, an Odessa investor.

Hickox received $500 from Billie P. Mabee, a Midland housewife, and James N. Landrum, a Dallas consultant, who donated $200.

Hickox was loaned $3,600 from the National Bank of Ft. Sam Houston in San Antonio to repay an excess contribution.

At least two of the candidates apparently are looking toward the general election in November and holding back some money.

Hance had $28,603.43 on hand as of April 21 and Bush had $20,554.51 left. In comparison, Sheats had only $3,965.48, Reese had $368.27 and Hickox had minus $877.50.

Gonzalez Releases Apology From FBI

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez began celebrating his 62nd birthday Wednesday by releasing an apologetic letter from FBI Director William H. Webster.

The San Antonio Democrat sent a scathing letter to Webster and Attorney General Griffin Bell on April 17 blasting the FBI for referring to Gonzalez as having received "Communist support" during political campaigns.

Last year, Gonzalez filed a Freedom of Information Act request and obtained copies of FBI memos. A memo dated June 22, 1967, read: "Congressman Gonzalez is considered a liberal who has received Communist support."

In a letter dated April 27, 1978, Webster wrote to Gonzalez: "Admittedly, considering the lack of evidence that you either solicited or were even aware of such support, this information is susceptible to erroneous interpretation.

"I am therefore instructing that the statements in the documents made available to you be expunged from our files, consistent with the spirit and intent of the Privacy Act of 1974."

Webster also said that "certain statements therefore contained in the documents which have been released to you would not now be recorded by today's standards."

During a speech last month on the House floor, Gonzalez said the FBI treated its former director, the late J. Edgar Hoover, as a "king...a potentate" and that agents would put anything in a memo "they thought J. Edgar wanted to read."

"I regret that certain practices of the past have caused you distress," wrote Webster. "I can assure that during my incumbency as director of the FBI, I shall not contenance any practices which are at variance with the law or a sense of decency. I hope that in the future I may look forward to your support and that of other members of the Congress so that my direction of the FBI will be worthy of your approbation."

A FBI spokesman said Wednesday that the agency isn't planning a full-scale review of files on former and present congressmen to alleviate any other erroneous material. "Of course, we would handle any individual requests," he said.

Brownfield Man Named To Panel

AUSTIN (Special) — State Rep. Jim Rudd of Brownfield has been named to the House Appropriations Committee by Speaker Bill Clayton.

Membership on the 21-member committee became available with the resignation of a House member serving in that capacity.

The committee considers all bills and resolutions appropriating money from the State Treasury. It is considered one of the most powerful committees in the House.

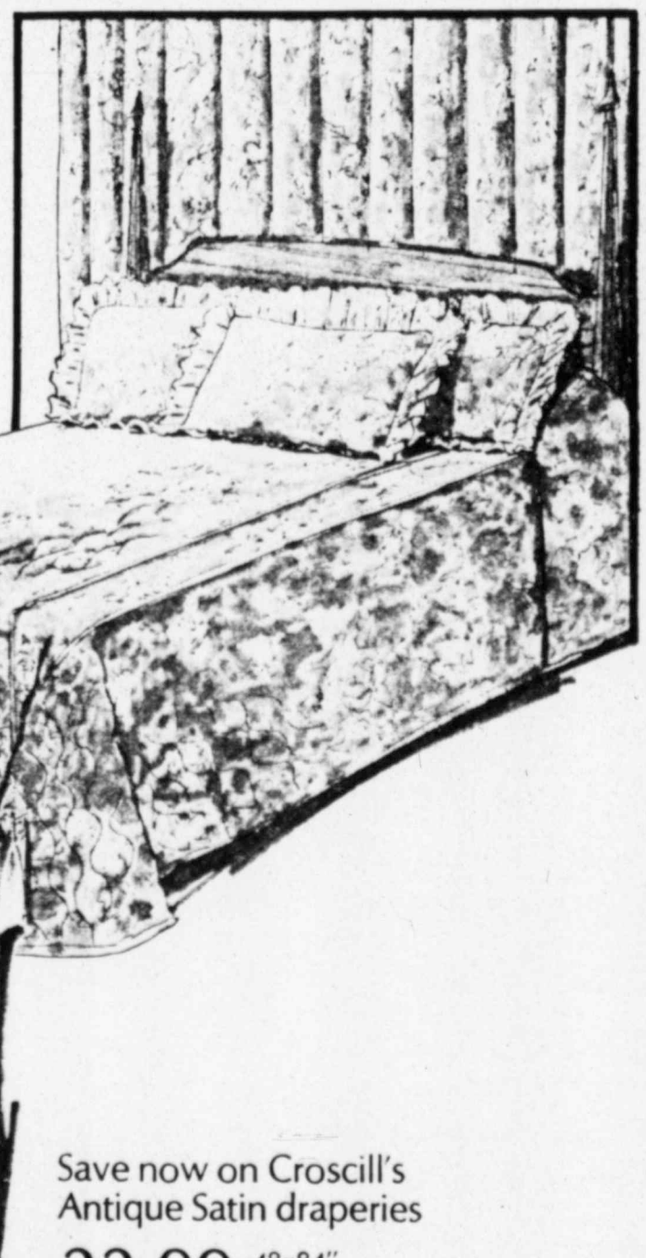

Members who serve on the Appropriations Committee do not serve on other House Committees.

Union Alleges Asbestos Use By Navy

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Three years after the Navy banned the use of asbestos in its ships, at least four naval vessels were commissioned that were insulated with the cancer-causing agent, union officials say.

The four ships, all recently serviced at the Naval Shipyard here, have asbestos insulation on pipes, according to Charles Ay, president of Asbestos Workers Local 20, and Andy Abbott, president of the shipyard's Metal Trades Council.

Asbestos is known to cause cancer, and just last week Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph Califano Jr. warned that as many as 5.6 million Americans may die of cancer or other diseases as a result of exposure to asbestos in shipyards and other workplaces.

The Navy banned asbestos as thermal insulation in new ships as of Jan. 9, 1973, the Navy's asbestos spokesman, Lt. Jim Bullock, said. The Navy, however, confirmed that the four ships — U.S.S. Tarawa, U.S.S. Paul F. Foster, U.S.S. Elliott and U.S.S. Kincaid — were commissioned in 1976 and are some of the newest ships in the Navy. All are destroyers except the Tarawa, which is a helicopter carrier.

Bullock said it would take the Navy several days to comment on the allegations. All asbestos questions to the Navy are referred to Bullock, who said he must clear his answers with a committee.

Abbott said Navy officials have told him new ships are being built without asbestos insulation. "But our experience here has been that we haven't seen any come out asbestos-free yet," Abbott said in an interview this week.

The union officials said they did not know if newer Navy ships serviced at other shipyards contained asbestos insulation.

The Associated Press learned that a Navy team from Washington inspected the Long Beach shipyard in March and found numerous violations of Navy regulations on asbestos control. The team made 43 observations about asbestos at Long Beach and 42 of them were negative.

Ay, of the asbestos workers union, said some asbestos padding on the Tarawa was taken off and left lying around on the deck for four months. Sailors kicked it around, walked over it and lay on it without any apparent appreciation of the dangers of breathing asbestos dust, Ay added.

Heavy concentrations of asbestos in the air are common when old asbestos insulation is ripped out of ships during overhauls. Asbestos workers wear protective clothing and use air hoses during rip-out work, and other workers are kept away until the air is safe again.

The inspection team in March observed a rip-out operation on the U.S.S. Halsey. The finding: "unsatisfactory asbestos controls."

The shipyard has no industrial hygienist, a specialist who in most factories or workplaces looks after the health and safety of the workers. The lack of a hygienist "seriously compromises the effectiveness and capability of the industrial hygiene division (program)," the inspection team noted.

Machines Misguiding More Mail

WASHINGTON (AP) — The use of machines instead of humans to sort mail is leading to increases in the number of letters routed to the wrong city and subsequent delays in delivery, the Postal Service says.

A Postal Service survey of intercity mail handled in 30 facilities found 2.2 percent of the letters were directed to the wrong cities — often to cities in other parts of the country, Senior Assistant Postmaster General E. V. Dorsey has told the Postal Service board.

"As an example, a letter from New York City to Washington might wind up in Cleveland. You then have to send it from Cleveland to Washington. It will be at least one day late," he said.

Dorsey was asked by a board member, Robert Hardesty, if there were fewer letters sent in the wrong direction before mechanization replaced much of the manual sorting of mail.

"Oh, yes," Dorsey replied. He said the missent rate is higher now because "mail used to be sorted twice, and that gave you two chances to catch errors. Now, you only have one shot at it."

Dorsey said the reasons for missent mail include mechanical and human errors and improper ZIP codes in the addresses.

Postal Service delivery standards call for letters to arrive in one, two or three days, depending on the distance they must travel. The mail agency's statistics show that more than 90 percent of letters are delivered within the service standards, but missent mail is one of the main reasons why some letters take longer.

Under mechanization, a machine brings one letter to a position in front of a postal worker. The worker has one second to punch several digits of the ZIP code into a keyboard on the machine. If the letter is going to a different area, he must punch the first three digits but if these numbers are the same as his area he must punch the last two digits.

The numbers punched tell the machine which area of the city or which other city the letter should go to and the machine puts the letter with the mail for that city. However, the clerk may punch a wrong number, Dorsey said. Sometimes, the machine puts the letter with the mail for the wrong city.

Under the old methods, largely abandoned in recent years, letters were sorted by clerks who read the addresses and put them into cubby holes for that area. Then a second clerk would make a second sorting to break the mail down into smaller areas. All this is now done faster by a single worker.

About 15 percent of the missent letters are the result of incorrect ZIP codes on the envelope, Dorsey said. Under the old method, clerks often could catch a letter with an incorrect ZIP code and route the letter to the proper place, but this is rare now.

The machines have helped the Postal Service trim its work force at the same time the volume of mail has been increasing. At one time it had well over 700,000 employees and now has around 650,000.

Bolger said of the missent rate, "I'm not willing to accept that as the best we can do...It should not go out of the office this way in the volume that it is."

But the postmaster general said he will not give up on mechanized mail sorting. A new optical character reader that may replace some of the existing machines likely will reduce the number of mechanical errors, he said.

The survey was of mail handled by postal facilities in 30 urban areas bound for other cities. They are Atlanta, Baltimore, Boston, Buffalo, Cincinnati, Dallas, Denver, Detroit, Hartford, Houston, Indianapolis, Los Angeles, Memphis, Milwaukee, Newark, New Orleans, New York, northern Virginia, north suburban Chicago, Philadelphia, Phoenix, Pittsburgh, Portland, Ore., Providence, Richmond, St. Louis, San Francisco, Seattle, Springfield, Mass., and Tampa.

The survey did not include mail sent to another address in the same urban area. That will be covered in a later study, Dorsey said.

Public Smoking Ban Defeated By Solons

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — After what supporters said was an intensive lobbying effort by tobacco interests, the New York State Assembly overwhelmingly rejected Wednesday a bill that would have banned smoking in public places except for special smoking areas.

The Assembly turned back the bill by vote of 55-73.

Assemblyman Pete Grannis, a Manhattan Democrat who sponsored the bill, said he would modify the measure to exclude more restaurants from the ban in hopes of getting it through the Legislature later this session.

Supporters said the bill was aimed at making the air clearer for non-smokers.

"All we are saying is that the majority of Americans who do not smoke should not be forced to breathe air filled with numerous tobacco contaminants," said Grannis.

Solar Energy Pact Begins

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexico and West Germany are launching a $16 million pilot project to use solar energy on a large scale for uninterrupted community use.

An agreement signed Tuesday between West Germany Foreign Undersecretary Erwin Stahl and Mexican Human Settlements Secretary Pedro Ramirez Vasquez calls for the biilding of two solar energy plants in Baja California North, near the U.S. border.

Senatorial Candidates Discuss Issues

There is no way that I can make any personal gain from being in the Senate. I offer my service as a responsible citizen of the District. I will not use the office as a political or personal stepping stone.	Businessman, city councilman and former mayor of Lubbock, latter two from 1968-1972.	Experience in the legislative process 1969-1976. I know the people in government and can go to work immediately. I need no on-the-job training.	Education; currently serving on Texas Youth Council Board, Texas Tech University Board of Regents, Juvenile Justice Board and National Advisory Board of the Small Business Administration; served as agricultural banker past 15 years; served as director of the West Texas Water Institute; Lubbock Planning & Zoning Commission; National Food and Fiber Institute; and currently farms and ranches in Yoakum and Cochran Counties.
How would you propose changing the financing of public schools in Texas?	Since the enactment of the Gilmer-Aikin program, the state's share of the cost of the Foundation Program has been paid on a so-called "automatic basis." This method of financing has given a stability to the financing of local school programs which is very important and extremely significant to every school child in Texas. While we are prodded by the courts to modify our present methods of school finance, we certainly have not been mandated to do so. While property tax relief obviously is needed and should receive legislative action, I do not support total abolishment of the property tax. I advocate local property tax relief with the void being supplanted from the state's general revenue funds. I continue to support local control of our school systems and would not support 100 percent state funding.	Abolish all property taxes...secure the needed funds from tax on natural resources.	Financing public schools in Texas does not need any drastic changes, only shifting the priorities of other state funding items. If school financing were moved to the top of the list, we would have less problems with school financing.	I would not change the minimum foundation program for financing of public schools — West Texas would lose.	I would propose earmarking a portion of the current sales tax income directly for public education, bypassing the legislative process. This, I believe, would reduce continued directives from Austin and Washington on educational policies and pressure on local ad valorem taxes. Also, these measures would ultimately allow localities more control over their schools. The sales tax is an excellent way to provide for public education. It is not an excessive burden on anyone or any industry and it is equalized throughout the populace. I would not want the sales tax reduced for this reason.
Can you foresee any circumstances under which a state income tax or a corporate income tax would be warranted?	The healthy, business climate of our Sunbelt state, our low per capita tax base, and our immense potential of wind and solar power are strong indicators that no state income tax is hovering on the horizon. I would not support a state income tax. My feelings are the same for a corporate income tax.	No. I will never vote for a state income tax.	No.	I cannot foresee any tax increase being necessary.	Yes, but with proper control over state expenses, it should not be a real alternative for another 10 to 20 years. I do not favor wellhead, state income or corporate income taxes.
What measures would you propose to reduce the crime rate in Texas? Would you favor registration of handguns toward this end?	I would propose a very encompassing five-point program for crime reduction and prevention in Texas: 1) Organized crime: Legislation, with the teeth to enforce it, to prohibit "silent partnership" nightclubs, bars, gambling operations and building ventures. 2) Enforcement of bail denial for those out on bail for previous crimes and arrested for other crimes. 3) Creation of a division of forensic medicine at the Tech Med School. 4) A Battered Spouses Act with both local and state funding for shelters, counseling, and prosecution. 5) Creation of a civil rights commission to insure both law enforcement officials and those apprehended for crimes are assured equal protection under the law. I would oppose registration of handguns, but also would impose stricter penalties for punishment for those carrying out a crime involving handguns.	Require courts to levy and enforce tougher penalties. We should not let second offenders out on bond. Criminals out on bond should not be released on another bond if charged with another crime. I am opposed to registration of any guns. The theory that gun registration reduces crime has proven wrong in every case where implemented. Registration may even increase crime (look at New York City).	Beef up the courts, speedier trials, refusing bail to certain offenders, and in general, getting tough on crime. Against handgun control. With gun control, the bad guys wind up with all the guns.	Hopefully permit juries to have knowledge of past records and put more teeth in sentences. I WILL NOT vote for gun control.	To reduce the crime rate I would favor legislation guaranteeing longer sentences and quicker trials. Also, I would like to see bond refused to any person who has been convicted of a major crime and who is a chief suspect in another similar crime or to someone who already is under bond for a serious offense and is a chief suspect of another similar crime. In dealing with juvenile crime, I would want to see more regional detention centers — which I have already proposed through the Texas Youth Council — to cope with children in need of supervision. These centers would handle children with problems without subjecting them to serious and habitual offenders in state training schools. Also it would allow an alternative to releasing an offender before trial. I do not favor registration of hand guns.
How would you propose maintaining, or increasing, the funding for Texas Tech University and the Tech medical school?	Persuasive power must be exerted with other Senate and House members. This persuasive element must work to maintain existing funding and achieve continual and on-going funding for the med school at Tech. An effective state senator will also work diligently to acquire necessary state funding for a School of Nursing at Tech.	The present system is adequate—Tech funding was my top priority during my eight years service. I led in getting authority and/or funding for: dormitory constuction, classroom construction, medical school, law school, museum, Textile Research Center and operating funds. Tech never was "short changed" while I was in office. It won't be if I am re-elected.	Most of the money coming to Texas Tech is spent in this area. Maintaining and increasing the funding to Texas Tech is vital in three areas: 1) provides the student a good learning environment, 2) enables us to upgrade the quality of instruction, and 3) continues to create an economic impact on the community. I would try to obtain a seat on the Finance Committee and work closely with the legislative budget board for special consideration of Tech funding.	Work hard toward goals set by board of regents and legislative experience is the only way for the work to pay off.	To aid Texas Tech University, I would encourage more state funding for agricultural research, especially in the areas of textile spinning, solar energy and feed processing. Eventually the state will have to accept more responsibility for the education of medical doctors. To meet this demand I would encourage a program of more shared expenses in the training of doctors and medical equipment and facilities.
Do you feel property tax reform is needed in Texas? If so, how would you propose to change the tax structure?	Property tax relief is needed in Texas, and I will work to see that come to pass. Changing the tax structure is a complex undertaking, but I do believe assessment and collection should remain under local control. I would initiate a move to establish zero-based budgeting.	Yes. Property taxes on homes, automobiles and real estate should be abolished. A tax on natural resources could make this possible.	We do not need property tax reform nearly as much as we need controls on government spending.	Property tax reform is needed. To change the tax structure would require a major change (across the board so everyone would pay his part).	Our ad valorem taxes generally are as high as possible. What we need now is an equalization and standardization of the collections of all taxes, especially personal property collections.
What would you favor the Texas legislature doing to improve the lot of Texas farmers?	The Texas Legislature should assist the farmer by: Removing the sales tax from utility bills; taking the lead in a comprehensive multi-state water importation program, initiating a cost-sharing formula among municipal, industrial and agriculture usage; enact a Young Farmers Investment Act of Family Farm Security Plan which would provide long-term, low-interst loans to the family farm unit or to young farmers who want to remain in agricultural production. Texas needs to exert stronger leadership on statewide, national, and international scenes in terms of seeking improved and expanded markets for our products and restrictions on imported beef, fruits and vegetables.	The Texas Agricultural Department should: (a) enforce present laws to stop illegal Mexican imports and (b) push for expanded sales worldwide through the T.A.P. program which I authored.	The legislature should work with the Commissioner of Agriculture to set up the machinery to find new markets, to encourage federal farm legislation, and be ready to help this important industry.	To help agriculture, the state should not cause fiscal tax impact on locals — cities, schools, counties and special districts. We have a staff in Washington to lobby for Texas. We need some agriculture people on this staff. Elect knowledgeable agriculturalists to the legislature.	First of all, I would favor a measure to prohibit state-owned natural gas from being sold out of state. Also, I would encourage the Texas Commissioner of Agriculture to promote Texas products overseas and nationally, as well as inside Texas. Third, I would urge the Texas Department of Agriculture to assist the state's farmers in developing markets, particularly in fruits and vegetables, while giving them some protections from both international and national imports. Finally, I would like to see accurate data developed on exports and imports of agricultural products into and from Mexico.
If you felt strongly about an issue, but your constituents had just the opposite feelings, how would you vote on that issue? Do you vote your district or your conscience?	On any issue, I would constantly seek the input and viewpoints of my constituency. I would support the majority view on legislative matters, but would certainly justify my final decisions based on intelligence, input and legislative consequences.	I always voted the majority sentiments of my district during my eight years in office.	I've been a resident of West Texas more than 44 years so I don't think I'll have difficulty determining the way this district feels.	I always vote my district and for eight years made it my business to know the people's thinking.	I would vote as the majority of my constituents feel, unless it violated a basic principle of good government or individual freedom. Then I would cast the vote as directed and ask not to be re-elected.
What legislation would you most like to see passed by the state legislature?	I also see the need for a strong DECEPTIVE PRACTICES ACT to protect the public from the deceptions in political advertising. I would propose legislation requiring that candidates or agents of candidates be prohibited to air or print political advertising tending to deceive the often gullible viewing audience. Reform legislation would also establish a ceiling on campaign contributions and expenditures. I would support state financing to some degree of public television debates for state or district offices.	Place teachers' salaries in the general appropriations bill. This would be better for all concerned.	1) Vital to Lubbock County is a permanent financing plan to aid the County Teaching Hospital. Since 25 to 40 percent of the teaching hospital budget is used in teaching medical students, I feel the state should fund that amount (25-40 percent). 2) I would work to abolish the unfair auto tax we pay in Lubbock. I tried to accomplish this as a city councilman, but we did not have the jurisdiction. As a state senator, I will try to abolish this tax.	Texas is in good shape — the only legislation needed is progressive change to keep her that way.	The legislation I would like most to see passed is one promoting water importation to the High Plains of Texas.

Two Robbery Suspects Sought; Victim In Jail

Lubbock investigators were seeking an armed robber Wednesday in connection with the mid-afternoon holdup of a retiree at a local retirement hotel.

Meanwhile, a second victim of a Wednesday armed robbery was in the Lubbock County Jail after being arrested on suspicion of public intoxication.

The 68-year-old retiree said he responded to a knock at his door about 2:05 p.m. Wednesday at the hotel located in the 1200-block of Broadway.

The victim said a Mexican-American man, thinly built and 36 to 45 years old, shoved him back as the door was opened.

The elderly man said he was forced toward his bed and then slugged twice when he tried to reach for a phone. The suspect reportedly broke the man's dentures in the brief melee, then made off with $80 taken from the victim's wallet.

Police drove to the 800-block of East Loop 289 early Wednesday after they received a report of a body there.

The suspect reportedly was wearing only light clothing, despite the unseasonably cold May weather, and was smeared with blood.

After some preliminary questioning by police, the man explained that he had been drinking late Tuesday at a 19th Street saloon until the establishment had closed early Wednesday.

At that time, he said, friends took him to the bus station. However, the man told police he soon walked to Broadway and Avenue A, where he hitched a ride with a muscular, black man 26 to 35 years old.

The 51-year-old said he could not be sure where the driver stopped, though he believed it was near Erskine Street and Guava Avenue.

At that point the younger man reportedly displayed a gun and demanded the man's money. The inebriated man said he lost about $37 to the man before the bandit shoved him into the mud.

The victim reportedly then walked to a field near Loop 289 where he laid down and fell asleep.

The victim's daughter could not be contacted, police said, and the man was taken to the Lubbock County Jail.

Bob Redford, sales manager at a Toyota dealership on Loop 289 southwest, said a man identifying himself as an Abernathy resident had "test driven" a nearly $5,300 vehicle Tuesday for the express purpose of showing it to his banker in Abernathy. Late Wednesday, the "customer" still had not returned with the auto, Redford said.

Meanwhile, Ben Doherty, manager of a rental car agency at the Lubbock International Airport, said he was awaiting the return of a 23-year-old Madison, Wis., woman who rented a car recently that was due April 26. The vehicle, Doherty said, is a 1977 Pontiac Catalina.

Several guitars, a stereo and speakers were taken during a burglary Wednesday at James Manning's 2021 5th St. residence, reports indicate. The items reportedly totaled $1,050 in value and were taken from one room.

About $1,450 worth of property, including 60 eight-track tapes, a tape caddy, and a $900 stereo system reportedly were stolen from Claire Thetford's 6002 Nashville Drive residence Tuesday or Wednesday.

Vandalism put a $150 to $200 dent Tuesday in the pocketbook of Mary Rosengrant who lives at 4501 4th St. The woman said it also put a large crack in the windshield of her 1975 Buick. The incident reportedly occurred near Loop 289 and Frankford Avenue.

Grady Lackey of 3215 77th St. said someone stole his hubcaps valued at $228 either Monday or Tuesday, while the tires and wheels, valued at $150, reportedly were stolen Tuesday or Wednesday from a pickup truck belonging to the Bounds Construction Co., 3819 Idalou Rd.

Brenda West of 6001 Orlando Ave. said someone broke into her car Wednesday and stole her purse. The pocketbook, a small amount of cash and several stolen credit cards amounted to a $100 loss, the victim said.

Reporting a stolen CB radio Wednesday was W. H. Ferguson of 4016 46th St., and Cindy Briscoe of 2214 15th St. told police her $87 bicycle was taken Monday or Tuesday while it was parked in the 2400-block of 14th Street.

Police stopped two cars filled with allegedly stolen goods Tuesday after traffic violations tripped up five men in two separate incidents.

About 9 p.m. an officer spotted a car drive straight ahead in a "right turn only" lane at 22nd Street and Avenue Q. After noticing a back-seat occupant bend down as if putting something under the seat and discovering that the driver had no valid license, police looked in the auto.

What they found, reports indicated, was more than $100 worth of assorted meats, including several roasts and steaks, which supposedly had been stolen from four Lubbock grocery stores.

Three men were arrested.

A short time later, another officer passed a car on Avenue G and noticed it make a U-turn. The car reportedly was driven to the 3300-block of Avenue G and parked outside a club. As the policeman watched from across the street, a man took an armload of clothing from a parked pickup and threw it in the waiting car. With both men in the auto, the car left the parking lot, and after making another U-turn, was stopped by the officer.

Police subsequently located the pickup's owner, who said the clothing, as well as a CB radio also found in the car, belonged to him.

Reports indicated the locked pickup had been broken into by way of a vent window.

In other recent reports involving stolen property, Vestal Vaughn said a box containing $700 worth of assorted tools was stolen from his garage at 6203 Lynnhaven Drive last month. Reports indicated there were no signs of forced entry.

Grandmother Applies For Clown College

NEW YORK (AP) — Theresa Arias — a Staten Island mother of six and "grandma of two and one-half" who admits to being "over 50" — wants to hit the road as a circus clown.

Mrs. Arias was one of 50 applicants who appeared Wednesday at Madison Square Garden, housing the three-ring Ringling Bros. and Barnum Bailey circus, for auditions to the circus' clown college.

As in the previous 10 years, scores of youngsters turned out, with stilts, bouncing balls, magic tricks, acrobatics and unicycles.

But Mrs. Arias, and her companion, 49-year-old Harriet Falla, attracted heavy attention when they stepped up to do their clown routine.

Mrs. Arias said it's not that she wants to run away from home.

"If I had to go away on a business trip, it wouldn't be running away," she said. "For me, it's not a running from, it's a running to something."

"We have a little clown group made up of mature women in Staten Island," Mrs. Arias said. "We perform at schools and hospitals."

As for her family's thoughts on her tryout: "They think it's pretty silly."

The audition here was one of 25 held around the country. Selection of 60 clowns-to-be will be announced in June. The eight-week course will begin in late September at the circus headquarters in Venice, Fla.

The school is free, but students pay their own room and board.

If hired, an apprentice clown is paid $155 per week. By the third year, the wages rise to $220.

But as Rochelle Klein, 23, of Massapequa, N.Y., put it, money ain't everything.

"I love clowning around. If you can be happy all the time, you really have it made."

Infant Safe, Suspect Held In Kidnap Case

A 10-week-old infant was safe and sound Wednesday and a 16-year-old Manitowoc, Wis., girl was in custody at the Lubbock County Jail following an alleged kidnapping incident that occurred in Wisconsin on April 27th.

The teen-aged suspect was arrested on the city's westside late Tuesday by FBI agents and temporarily placed in the custody of juvenile probation officers.

The young woman was brought before U. S. magistrate Bill Brister Wednesday for a preliminary arraignment on federal kidnapping charges. Brister set bond at $10,000.

The 10-week-old child, Rhonda Lackershire of Manitowoc, Wis., reportedly was unharmed and in safekeeping at the Texas Tech Health Sciences Center Hospital, pending the arrival of her mother from Wisconsin.

Lubbock FBI agent Ben Harrison said the baby's mother, Christine Bashaw of Manitowoc, Wis., alleges that she released her child to the 16-year-old voluntarily on April 27th, so that the young woman could show the infant to her husband.

When the young suspect failed to return with the baby, Manitowoc authorities were notified on April 28th.

In the meantime, authorities theorize, the suspect had taken the child and was hitchhiking toward Lubbock.

Acting on confidential information, agents arrested the 16-year-old Tuesday night at a private residence near 34th Street and Quaker Avenue, then took custody of the child.

The young female suspect is expected to begin the long journey back to Wisconsin sometime this week, Harrison said, where she will be arraigned formally before U. S. magistrate John C. McBride in Milwaukee.

Suspect Bolts From Probation Officer, Nabbed By Police

Lubbock police captured a 16-year-old aggravated robbery suspect Wednesday, about 20 minutes after the youngster bolted from a juvenile probation officer near the south side of the county jail.

The young man had been arrested about 11:30 p.m. April 27, along with a 17-year-old female companion, following an alleged holdup at the Imperial 400 Motel, 910 Ave. Q.

The youngster subsequently was implicated in at least two other recent holdups.

His alleged teen-aged accomplice later was charged with two counts of aggravated robbery and currently is being held in the Lubbock County jail.

The 16-year-old, a juvenile under Texas law, is being held following a detention hearing in 237th District Judge John McFall's court. Authorities are expected to seek certification of the youth as an adult in order that felony charges may be brought against him.

Juvenile Probation Office administrator Lloyd Watts said Wednesday the youngster simply "outran my officer" as the suspect was being taken from the JPO office at 800 Broadway to the jail immediately adjacent. The suspect had been taken to the Juvenile Probation Office for a series of psychological examinations and was not handcuffed at the time of his escape.

Police reportedly saw a man chasing the suspect, but believed the youth to be a shoplifter.

The suspect was arrested at the Lubbock National Bank building about 4:05 p.m., police said, about 20 minutes after his run to temporary freedom.

'Moonie' Ordinance Lifted During Suit

U.S. Dist. Judge Halbert O. Woodward has granted a temporary injunction barring the City of Dumas from interfering with public missionary work of the Holy Spirit Association for the Unification of World Christianity.

Plaintiffs filed suit in U.S. District Court here April 14, claiming a Dumas solicitations ordinance is unconsitutional.

The religious group, more commonly known as the "Unification Church" or "Moonies," after the Rev. Sun Nyung Moon, filed a similar suit late last year challenging a Lubbock ordinance.

Woodward also granted a temporary injunction in that case.

Woodward's order in the Dumas suit prohibits the city during the pendancy of the suit from arresting church members for violation of the solicitations ordinance when they are engaged in dissemination of religious literature or solicitation of donations on public sidewalks or parks.

Woodward also authorized transfer of the case to the Amarillo Division of the U.S. Northern District.

Tech Student Wins Architecture Prize

Mark Drake, fourth year Texas Tech University architecture student from Abilene, has won $100 prize and advanced to state competition for his design of an office building using concrete masonry units as loadbearing elements.

Drake's award was the first presented at Texas Tech by the Texas Concrete Masonry Association in a competition expected to become an annual event. Judges included one professor and two practicing members of the American Institute of Architects.

At the state level, in competition for prizes of $500, $300, and $200, judges will be practicing members of the Texas Society of Architects.

100-Year-Old Twin Dies

NORTHBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Services were held Wednesday for Emmanuel Lussier, who with his brother formed what was believed to be one of the oldest sets of twins in the world.

Lussier died Sunday at Milford Hospital in Massachusetts. He and his brother, Samuel, of Cumberland, R.I., celebrated their 100th birthday last Aug. 11.

Officials of the Guinness Book of World Records said the twins defied billion-to-one odds by reaching the century mark.

Moslem Extremists Battle U.N. Forces

TYRE, Lebanon (AP) — "I have never seen a battle so confused like it. There was shooting everywhere, and everyone was shooting at everyone."

A French army spokesman Wednesday thus described a series of clashes between Moslem extremists and U.N. forces in which a Senegalese soldier, two French troops and a Palestinian were killed.

In New York, the U.N. Security Council adopted a resolution Wednesday deploring attacks on U.N. forces in Lebanon, and demanding respect for the peacekeepers.

The council also approved a request by Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim to increase the interim force from its current 4,000 men to 6,000. In approving the additional manpower, the council called on Israel to complete its withdrawal from southern Lebanon "without any further delay."

Contacts Arafat

Waldheim said he was in touch with Yasser Arafat, head of the Palestine Liberation Organization, as soon as he was notified of the violence. He said Arafat promised to help try to prevent a recurrence.

A well-placed source at U.N. headquarters in New York said Waldheim's contact with Arafat was based on the assumption that the PLO leader has influence with the Moslem extremists.

The U.N. force of French, Senegalese, Iranian, Nepalese, Swedish and Norweigian troops was sent in to supervise withdrawal of Israeli troopsthat invaded southern Lebanon March 15 a few days after 35 Israelis were killed in a raid by Palestinian terrorists near Tel Aviv.

Israel said it made the invasion to sweep guerrilla forces off its northern flank.

"Many" Killed

Twelve French soldiers were wounded in the fighting Tuesday night, and the spokesman, Capt. Jean Menegaux, said "many gunmen" were killed.

French U.N. forces in southern Lebanon strengthened positions Wednesday following the fighting, which began when the Moslem extremists ambushed a French patrol.

Menegaux said the two-hour battle was the worst since the U.N. Security Council dispatched troops to southern Lebanon last month. It raised the total number of peacekeepers killed to eight.

Among the wounded was Col. Jean Germain Salvan, the 46-year-old commander of the 1,233-man French force, the largest and best equipped among the United Nations contingents. He will be replaced by Lt. Col. Dominique Viard, Salvan's deputy commander at a military base in southern France, a French army spokesman said.

Hit Five Times

Salvan, who lost an eye in the Algerian War, was hit by five bullets that caused multiple fractures of the legs and hips.

"Most of the bullets have been removed, and the colonel is off the critical list," a U.N. spokesman said.

Menegaux said the fighting began while Salvan was holding a "crucial meeting" with representatives of various Palestinian and Lebanese guerrilla groups in the Tyre region. He said rocket-propelled grenades, mortar rounds and machine guns were fired at a U.N. jeep and a truck carrying food.

The meeting had been called to arrange for a smooth continuation of the Israeli withdrawal, and Salvan had underscored the "imperative necessity" of barring any armed groups from returning to the region before the attack began, Menegaux said.

Ends Meeting

When Salvan received word of the fighting, he quickly ended the meeting and sent one jeep and an armored personnel carrier to the scene of the clash, three miles from the Ghassan Borro barracks, headquarters of the French troops.

The patrol ran into an ambush, and Salvan dispatched another unit of jeeps and armored vehicles, said Menegaux. Mohammed Tamraz, a Palestine Liberation Organization envoy who attended the meeting, offered to drive Salvan to the scene of the fighting to help end it.

"Col. Salvan and Tamraz stood in the Palestinian's Toyota car waving with their hands to the gunmen to cease firing," Menegaux said. "But the ambushers sprayed them with bullets. The colonel was hit in his legs and Tamraz' driver, Qassem Manna, was killed."

A French soldier in a nearby jeep was killed in the gunfire and another was wounded.

In Beirut, mainstream and radical Palestinian guerrillas said their forces were not involved in the fighting. Leftist Lebanese militiamen in Tyre also denied involvement. A group calling itself the "Popular Resistance Front for the Liberation of the South from Occupation and Fascism" earlier had accused the French of "assassinating" two of its members who were killed in a clash with French troops Monday. The group had issued a statement before the attack vowing to retaliate.

United Nations sources said all U.N. troops in southern Lebanon were put on "red alert" because of the battle and had orders to return fire from any source and forcefully prevent guerrilla infiltration across its lines toward territory still occupied by Israel.

They said the "red alert" means U.N. troops have been ordered into a maximum state of combat readiness.

In other developments Wednesday:

—In Beirut, U.N. sources said a British civilian employee of the United Nations, last seen before the Tuesday fighting, was missing in the Tyre area. The PLO issued a statement saying it would investigate the incident and "take the necessary measures to prevent any further friction with" the U.N. force.

—In Washington, the State Department blamed Lebanese leftists and Palestinian extremists for starting the Tuesday battle. Department spokesman Hodding Carter said "everyone in a position to bring these irresponsible elements to account should do so without delay. The attacks seem to have been launched by Lebanese leftists and various groups of Palestinian extremists," he said.

The Security Council resolution was approved on a 12-0 vote with the Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia abstaining. China did not participate. It was sponsored by Bolivia, India and Mauritius.

Man Suspected In Restaurant Holdup Among 63 Indicted

By FRANK PATRICK
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A man accused of seizing approximately $1,000 from a plush Lubbock restaurant and of locking its employees in a cold-storage vault was indicted Wednesday for aggravated robbery.

The indictment was returned against Danny Burtist Eoff, a former club employee who West Texas authorities allege enjoyed his biggest paydays at restaurants.

It was among 63 indictments returned by a county grand jury to Judge William R. Shaver's 140th District Court.

Two murder indictments were returned, and three men were indicted in connection with the alleged gang rape of a 14-year-old girl.

Eoff, 23, of 2139 74th St., was indicted in connection with the April 2 holdup of the Smuggler's Inn, 1915 50th St.

Eoff reportedly was out of jail on an appeal bond after a Midland jury found him guilty of the April 7, 1977, armed robbery of a Sonic Drive-In Restaurant there.

He also has been charged with the aggravated robbery earlier this year of the Nantucket Lobster Trap Restaurant in El Paso in which he allegedly got over $1,900.

The robber reportedly confronted an employee leaving the building about 3 a.m. and ordered her back inside. The witness said the masked man led her into the dining area where several employees were gathering after work and ordered them into the cold-storgage vault.

Assistant manager Michael Earl Sandell said the man made him lead the way to the bar, where the bandit reportedly ordered sevem more employees to lie face-down on the floor while he and Sandell went into the office and emptied the safe.

After money was placed in a sack, Sandell said, the bandit ordered employees on the barroom floor into the vault, took Sandell's vault key from him and locked the group inside.

Unknown to the robber, two of the imprisoned workers had called authorities.

A murder indictment was returned against Alan Joe Jenkins, 28, of 1920 E. 15th St., accused of murdering Robert Humphreys, 33, of 2727 E. 9th St.

Humphreys was fatally shot about 1:20 a.m. April 23 at a club in the 3000-block of E. Main Street.

Witnesses indicated Humphreys had been arguing with another man. The man — whom two witnesses said they knew as "Gene Autry" — reportedly left the club, but returned a short time later.

One witness reportedly said he saw a pistol in the man's hand and thought the man shot three times. Another witness reportedly indicated he saw Humphreys fall after seeing what appeared to be flashes of fire from the man's right hand.

Reports indicate Humphreys, who died at a hospital about seven hours after the incident, was shot twice with a small caliber weapon.

A murder indictment was also returned against Josephine Wilson Pena, 45, of 307 N. Ave. S, as the result of the April 4 shooting death of Carlos Arturo Flores, 33.

A witness indicated to police the defendant had been having trouble with Flores for some days prior to the incident.

A sister of the defendant said she and another woman went to the North Avenue S residence the night of the shooting to help the defendant repair a door which allegedly had been kicked down by Flores the preceding night.

Reports indicate the defendant led her companions to a bedroom to show them other damage Flores had allegedly done when Flores suddenly appeared inside the house.

The sister said Flores tried to grab the defendant, and that she pushed him away and shot him.

The three men indicted for rape of a child in connection with the alleged gang rape of the 14-year-old girl are Armando Pena Flores, 21, of 2110 Ave. L; Jerry Don Thomas, 18, of 917 E. Kent St. and Crespin Orosco, 17, of 109 Uvalde Ave.

Three juvenile males, youths 16 or younger, also were alleged to have taken part in the reported March 26 incident.

The eighth grade girl told police she accepted an invitation to go riding with one of the juveniles March 25, and that two other juveniles were also in the vehicle, a pickup truck.

She said three other males were eventually picked up to join the group and that the group switched to another vehicle, a car.

The car was reportedly driven to a dirt road in Northeast Lubbock.

The girl said that her clothes were pulled off her and that five of the six males had sexual intercourse with her inside the car.

The girl indicated she was then driven to a garage apartment. She told police some of the males again had intercourse with her there.

The girl reportedly walked home about 3 a.m. March 26 and told her family of the alleged incident.

Three persons were no-billed by grand jurors and thereby cleared of any allegation of wrongdoing in connection with the incidents considered.

James Wesley Parker, 27, of 312 E. 34th St., was cleared by no-bill of a possession of a prohibited weapon allegation. Cleared of theft allegations by no-bill were Marty Wayne Pierce, 18, whose address is unavailable, and Robert James Miller, 25, believed to be from Waco.

Other indictments returned Wednesday, with ages and latest purported addresses compiled from law enforcement agency records, include:

Mondale Signs Aid For Filipino Poor and deepen the relationship between the United States and the Philippines, which is our primary objective.

Critics of the 5 1/2-year-old martial law government accuse it of tolerating torture of prisoners, muzzling dissent and rigging last month's legislative election.

At his own news conference, the Philippine president acknowledged that Mondale indicated the United States would like to see some jail doors opened. But he added, "There are no political prisoners in the Philippines."

"We are ready to review any claims and allegations of injustices committed," he said.

Meeting with dissident leaders in foreign countries has become a common practice of Carter administration officials. Carter conferred with critics of the government in Brazil on his most recent tour.

Lopez said the group "got the feeling" from Mondale the United States will do all it can "to hasten the establishment of democracy in the Philippines." The vice president also met with Jaime Cardinal Sin, Roman Catholic archbishop of Manila and a critic of Marcos' authoritarian rule.

Cardinal Sin said later he complained to Mondale about human rights violations by the United States in the form of American support of family planning in the Philippines.

He said the church does not oppose family planning if it is in accordance with natural law but American aid comes in the form of abortion and sterilization.

American aid for family planning, health and nutrition in the Philippines came to $56.8 million in 1977.

Asked whether he considered these sessions with dissidents an interference in Philippine internal matters, Marcos replied: "We invited Vice President Mondale to the Philippines. He is free to meet with anyone he wants."

But Marcos partisans were not taking it passively. An editorial in a pro-government newspaper bitterly attacked the U.S. record on human rights, starting with the 1970 killings of anti-war protesters at Kent State University. "For lack of space," it said, "only a few out of the infinite number of American abuses can be included in this enumeration. Mr. Mondale himself, without doubt, can add to the list."

Marcos said Filipinos fought American colonizers early in this century because they felt their human rights were being violated. "If there are violations of human rights in the United States, you should not expect the Philippines to be totally free of violations," he said.

Mondale and Marcos also discussed two other major irritants in Philippine-American relations — a new agreement for continued U.S. use of two major military bases here and an economic relations treaty.

Innocence Pleaded In Mineo Killing

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A Michigan convict accused in the stabbing death of actor Sal Mineo pleaded innocent Wednesday to murder and robbery charges returned against him in a new grand-jury indictment.

Lionel Williams, 21, a former pizza delivery man, was charged with one count of murder, 10 counts of robbery and one count of attempted robbery in an indictment returned Tuesday that supercedes one issued in January. Williams earlier pleaded innocent to killing Mineo.

A pretrial hearing has been set for May 15.

The new indictment includes the robbery counts. Williams is now accused of killing Mineo during a robbery outside the one-time teen idol's Hollywood apartment on Feb. 12, 1976.

He is also accused of a string of robberies in the West Hollywood, Wilshire and Beverly Hills areas between the time of the Mineo killing and March 7, 1976.

Canal Study Voted Down

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate rejected by a vote of 49-43 on Wednesday a proposal for an $8 million study of the feasibility of building a sea-level canal between the Atlantic and Pacific oceans in Panama.

Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, offered the proposal as an amendment to a measure authorizing more than $1.2 billion worth of rivers and harbors projects.

Gravel argued that a sea-level canal is urgently needed so that large tankers, which cannot get through the existing Panama Canal's locks, could carry Alaska oil to the Gulf Coast and eastern states.

"We're wasting money," he told the Senate. "When things are inefficient and incompetent and cost us money, it's a waste," he said.

New Solar Strategy Proposed By Carter

Carter had noted in the prepared text, however, that his proposed spending for fiscal 1979 contains a 64 percent increase in money for development of solar power.

The president also had planned to announce a new $14 million loan to the city of Lamar, Colo., for a project to convert livestock excrement into methane gas. But after the original draft of the speech was distributed to reporters, the president discovered that Sen. Floyd Haskell, D-Colo., had already announced the project on Tuesday.

Ironically, it was both sunny and rainy as Air Force One touched down at Stapleton Airport in nearby Denver at approximately 4:25 p.m. CDT. The president immediately headed by motorcade to Golden.

In his speech, Carter announced he is ordering a new Cabinet-level study to develop a national solar strategy and praised solar energy as a potential counterweight to rising oil prices.

"Nobody can embargo sunlight," the president told his audience at the Solar Energy Research Institute, a federally financed project operated for the Department of Energy by the private, non-profit Midwest Research Institute of Kansas City.

"No cartel controls the sun," Carter said in an apparent reference to the Arab oil embargo of 1973-74. "Its energy will not run out. It will not pollute our air or poison our waters. It is free from stench and smog. The sun's power needs only to be collected, stored and used.

"The question is no longer whether solar energy works," he added. "We know it works. The only question is how to cut costs so that solar power can be used more widely and set a cap on rising oil prices."

Carter said his energy plan, still stalled in Congress, would increase use of home solar systems by offering more than $500 million in tax credits — up to $2,000 for each homeowner — over the next seven years.

He said the Cabinet-level review will be headed by Schlesinger, who accompanied Carter on the trip. The panel will issue a report by Sept. 1 to help Carter make budget and legislative recommendations next fall.

"The job of this committee will be to develop an overall solar strategy for speeding the use of solar technologies — both by new programs and by improving existing federal programs," Carter said.

At every stop on his visit to Colorado, California, Oregon and the state of Washington, Carter will be seeking support for the administration's priority goals for 1978 such as the voluntary anti-inflation program, Deputy White House press secretary Rex Granum said prior to takeoff.

He said many Westerners "believe their voices aren't heard in Washington" and that the president wants to "show that we are in fact concerned."

Carter lost the four states to Gerald R. Ford in the 1976 election.

The president was accompanied by Schlesinger and Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland. Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus, a former governor of Idaho, was scheduled to join the presidential party in Colorado.

After spending the night in Denver the president plans to continue with stops in California, Oregon and Washington.

Today, Carter will deliver a "Law Day" address in Los Angeles and hold a regional news conference in Portland, Ore.

Korean Pilot Says No Warning Given

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — The pilot of a Korean Air Lines jet forced down over the Soviet Union April 20 said Wednesday he didn't know he was in Russian airspace unlil his co-pilot saw a Russian fighter with its red star insignia.

Pilot Kim Chang-kyu and navigator Lee Kun-shik returned Wednesday from Paris. The Soviets, who had detained for questioning, released them Sunday.

Kim declined to go into details of the incident, saying the plane's "black box" flight recorder was confiscated by the Russians and he and his navigator were still recovering from shock.

He said the Russians denied him permission to copy the Boeing 707's flight records before he was released.

Marshall Abandons Bond Sale Suit Against City

By PAULA TILKER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Only a week after losing an appeal in a lawsuit against the city, James Marshall voluntarily has dropped another lawsuit blocking the sale of $1.73 million in airport revenue bonds.

At Marshall's request, Judge John McFall of the 237th District Court dismissed the suit without prejudice Wednesday afternoon.

Mayor Dirk West said the bond delivery, set for May 11, will not be delayed. "It will be close, but we still have time" to complete the transaction, he said.

Proceeds will be used to finance a two-tier airport parking facility. West said he expects construction to begin as soon as possible.

In announcing the withdrawal, Marshall said a letter City Attorney Fred Senter sent to city council members assures him that the parking facility will be built and that the bond proceeds will be handled correctly.

"The city agreed to everything I wanted them to do," he said, adding he was "very pleased" with the suit's outcome.

Marshall said Senter's memorandum is on file with the court and that it will bind the city to certain procedures in handling bond sale proceeds.

For his part, Senter emphasized the city did not make any agreement with Marshall. "We did not sign anything," he said.

In his memo, he added, he detailed "exactly what the ordinance says" regarding how funds will be spent and accounted for.

"So the question is, what did he gain?" Senter added.

Marshall said he gained assurance that the parking facility will be built and that proper bookkeeping records will be kept. In his suit, he contended that the ordinance authorizing the bond sale did not specify that.

He indicated that he views Senter's letter as an "agreement" by the city that it will do what he claims the ordinance did not say it would.

"My purpose in filing this lawsuit was to make sure that the two-tier parking building would be built with these funds, that proper sinking funds would be established under the law, and that all funds would be fully and properly accounted for to every citizen in this city," Marshall said in his statement.

"With the dismissal of this suit, all of this has been accomplished by this agreement, and all of my intended purposes have been fully complied with," he added.

West and Senter insist the letter is not an "agreement" designed to satisfy Marshall's demands.

"It was not done to placate Jimmy," West said. He said he requested the letter "to try to clear up points Jimmy was raising."

The letter was intended as a review for the staff "and everybody," he added.

Senter seconded West's claim. "I wrote it at the request of the mayor because there was so much talk about what we were doing in this ordinance," Senter said.

And, he added, the letter is not "legally binding on anybody, even though it says what the ordinance does."

Marshall says he still intends to pursue his other lawsuit against the city. In that suit, Marshall seeks to block the sale of $26.4 million in general obligation bonds authorized last year by Lubbock voters.

Crosbyton Project Draws High Praise At Sun Day Observance

By DEAN GLAZE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

CROSBYTON — Thick clouds veiled the sun here Wednesday, but they didn't dim the enthusiasm of Sun Day activities as Crosbyton proudly welcomed observers of its progressing solar energy project.

A long list of guests was on hand, including several Lubbock city officials, a spokesman from Gov. Dolph Briscoe's office, and some 30 members of the Texas Tech faculty. In addition, U.S. Reps. George Mahon and Omar Burleson phoned from Washington to congratulate the city on its contributions to solar energy research.

There are indications the Department of Energy may move phase two of the solar experiments to Tech, which is undertaking the project.

Dr. John Reichert, director of the project and professor of electrical engineering at Tech, said the possible relocation is a big issue here. "Personally, I'd rather have it here," he remarked. He said a good deal of uncertainty surrounds the site of phase two.

Phase two, called the Analogue Design Verification System, would call for construction of a 65-foot mirrored dish to test the feasibility of bringing solar power to West Texas. Should testing prove positive, 10 more dishes, measuring 200 feet across, would be constructed. The units would supply five megawatts of power.

The project, which could cost as much as $22 million in government funds, is one of the largest of its kind in the world.

Dr. Herb Carper, project manager and mechanical engineering professor at Tech, said the project has experienced no problems. "Everything we predicted has come true. Some of the worries about problems about the mirrors not withstanding hail have been laid to rest."

Dr. Reichert said tests indicate the mirrors can withstand damage from two inch hailstones striking the surface at 110 mph. Experiments also show that West Texas sandstorms cannot damage the dish surface.

Phase two testing will take about 20 months. Construction of the 10 solar dishes is still three to four years in the future.

A representative of the governor's energy office relayed a message from Briscoe praising the efforts of Crosbyton, Lubbock and Tech. "The practical application of existing solar energy technology presents a unique opportunity to augment our dwindling supplies of fossil fuels with a decentralized power source which is virtually inexhaustable and essentially non-polluting. Texas has produced one-third of all the energy produced in the nation's history. It is appropriate that we maintain our leadership in developing the energy technology which will carry the country into the next century."

Alan Henry, Lubbock mayor pro-tem, told the audience, "I don't know of any project in recent years that has captured the imagination of the people on the South Plains more than this particular project."

Dr. Ernst Kiesling, professor or civil engineering at Tech, had some sobering thoughts for the audience. "Don't expect solar energy to solve our energy dilemma," he said, observing that the real danger exists in the complacency of people who expect a technological miracle to get the world out of its energy bind.

He said the government has expressed hopes to have 2.5 million homes powered by solar energy by 1985. With some 80 million homes in the country at present, that's approximately one in 30.

ITALIAN WINE

NEW YORK (AP) — Italy now supplies 44 percent of the imported wine sold in the United States, Italian Trade Commissioner Dr. Lucio Caputo says. Caputo, in a statement released here Tuesday, says 21 percent of the imported wine comes from France and 19 percent from Germany. Portuguese wines make up about 10 percent the import market, Spain nearly 2.5 percent and all other countries account for 3.5 percent.

Big Spring Schools Offer $1,000 Reward

A-J Correspondent

BIG SPRING—A $1,000 reward has been offered for information leading to the identity and conviction of persons suspected of starting a $50,000 fire early Wednesday morning in the choir room at Big Spring High School.

The reward was posted by the school system and an anonymous businessman.

Firemen responded quickly enough to the alarm to contain the blaze and keep it from spreading to other areas of the $5 million school complex.

The fire was discovered shortly after 4:30 a.m.

Fire department officials estimate that fires had been kindled in at least four places in the choir room.

A small fire set in a store room did not spread due to the lack of ventilation.

Most of the loss is covered by insurance.

Fires were set in a room where tuxedos were the office of choir director Jack Bowers and in the music trophy storeroom.

Bowers said there was no way of knowing if the intense heat had damaged three pianos in the choir room.

Four heating units were heavily damaged, as was the ceiling and a portion of the roof. Several of the structural beams will also have to be replaced.

Tainted Marijuana Eyed As Cause Of Disease

RED BANK, N.J. (AP) — A 15-year-old Monmouth County girl may have contracted a serious blood disease from marijuana tainted with the herbicide paraquat, her doctor says.

Eugene Cheslock, a hematologist, said Tuesday that a chemcial company had confirmed that marijuana smoked by the girl had been sprayed with paraquat. "It is a possibility" that the paraquat caused the disease, aplastic anemia, the doctor said. But he said the National Center for Disease Control told him they had not received any reports of the disease being linked with the herbicide.

Texas Needs a Governor Who Will Reduce Taxes!

Texas Needs Preston Smith.

Texans have paid too much in taxes!

For the last six years Texas has been operating with a tax surplus that has sky-rocketed to more than 2 Billion dollars.

It's easy for other candidates to say "no new taxes" when they have been taking more money out of your pocket than is needed to run your state government.

You've been overcharged!

Preston Smith will reduce taxes.

- Preston Smith will improve Texas schools!
- Preston Smith will implement a state energy program!
- Preston Smith will strengthen agriculture in Texas!
- Preston Smith will fight the rising crime rate!

Texas Needs
Preston Smith

Stowaway To Leave Texas

ARLINGTON (UPI) — After more than three months and 15,000 miles of traveling, Lauren Kim Roche is ready to go home.

Early this week the 16-year-old girl called the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service and told them Texas was nice but Wellington, New Zealand, was home.

Later this week Lauren will be deported, thus ending her "little trip to the United States" which began Jan. 20 aboard the U.S. Coast Guard icebreaker Polar Star.

Lauren admits three crew members — whose names she has refused to divulge — helped a lot.

"I just walked on. It wasn't that hard to get aboard the ship," she said. "No one asked questions. The ship is open to the public when it lands so I just took one bag aboard and put it in the turbine room.

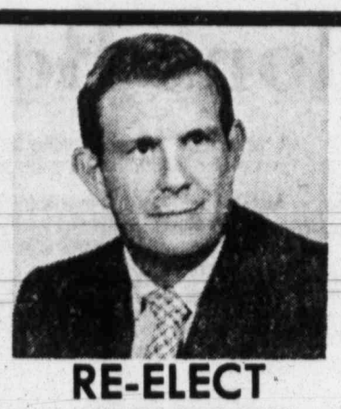

"I was in a fan space compartment right underneath the bridge of the ship," she said. "And it's so small no one ever bothered to look in there. All there is in there is a bunch of pipes. It wasn't comfortable.

"I was cramped pretty bad. I had to lie down most of the time. I had a flashlight but the batteries went out after two days so I was without light for 18 days. I didn't have a radio. Sometimes I just talked to myself."

According to the teen-ager, her three friends fed her food and water. Meanwhile the Polar Star went on duty in Antarctica before propeller problems sent the ship to Seattle, Wash., for repairs.

Lauren disembarked, again with the aid of her friends, and then took a bus to Salem, Ore., where she stayed with a family of one of the crewmen. From Oregon, her odyssey took her to California where she latched onto the Dr. Hook's Medicine Show band and followed them to Arlington for a show.

Two days later she was on the phone to the Immigration Service.

CHAPTER NINE — ALLERGIES: YOUR PERSONAL POISONS

Pollution Can Be Fatal To Allergy Sufferers

By JOHN BARBOUR
Associated Press Writer

"The air is unacceptable," the weather report says. But it doesn't suggest an alternative. The phrase has become a sign of our modern times.

A generation or two ago, except in a few industrial cities, no one would have dreamt of a phrase like that. But today it is estimated that air pollution costs Americans more than a billion dollars a month. Smog pervades much of America, even areas in the sunny Southwest where people used to go to recover from tuberculosis.

The air, good or bad, is impossible to escape. And for some people bad air can mean gross discomfort, and in some cases, death. More than three million Americans suffer from allergic asthma — and nearly half of them are disabled in some degree by wheezing, wracking misery of asthmatic breathig. For these, when the air is "unacceptable," it is even more unacceptable.

Not many Americans remember the smog attack in Donora, Pa., in late October 1948. The river valley town near Pittsburgh was caught in a temperature inversion and dense smog from the town's smokestacks was trapped in the valley for four days before rain cleansed the air. Seventeen people died, some 15 more than normal death rate, and the prime victims were elderly people and those with heart and respiratory conditions.

In normal people, it produced sore throats, breathing difficulties, eye and nose irritations, even nausea. Autopsies showed that those who died had clogged bronchial tubes and lung abnormalities. Of the popultion of 14,000, 340 had known allergic asthma, and 57 percent of them suffered from severe reactions much higher than the population at large.

The culprit was smoke that would normally rise and be blown away by winds and a peculiar weather phenomenon called a temperature inversion.

A temperature inversion is simply a layer of warm air which acts as a lid over cooler air near the earth's surface. It can be caused by a warm air front moving over cooler air, or it sometimes occurs when the earth cools more rapidly than the air above. A bright night gives way to a clear morning, but the warn air lid up there, and the gases of the city are trapped.

There is little or nothing that can be done about temperature inversions, but when one occurs, a city could limit automobile travel and other energy uses that produce smog.

Tremendous amoungs of smog are pumped into the air every day. There is an estimated quadrillion tons of air over the United States, and every year the nation's cars and chimneys pump 130 million tons of waste into it.

Before anti-pollution devices were required, automobiles produced up to 65 percent of the nation's aerial debris. Today, with energy requirements still going up and the nation turning to cheaper, more availble coal, that high-polluting fuel will require tight controls.

There are two kinds of smog — Los Angeles smog and London smog. The Los Angeles type is produced by auto exhaust and is predominantely hydrocarbons and nitrogen oxides which, under sunlight, produce irritating ozone in the smog that is highly damaging to the eyes, nose and throat.

London smog contains a larger amount of soot and sulfur dioxide. Sulfur dioxide joins with water to produce sulfuric acid. This type of smog can produce a kind of synthetic asthma.

Studies have shown that the nasal passages filter out almost all of the sulful dioxide inhaled, letting less than one percent of it through to the rest of the respiratory tract.

Individuals can do several things during a smog attack to make themselves more comfortable. If you suffer from heart or other respiratory conditions you should stay indoors. If you go outside, wear handkerchiefs or gauze masks over the face.

But there are long range effects to air pollution too. Any number of studies show that long exposure to air pollution is followed by a high rate of respirtory disease. That could include common colds, chronic sinus trouble, bronchitis, asthma, emphysema and lung cancer.

Of over 29 million Americans whose activity is limited by chronic health conditions, more than three-and-a-half-million of them suffer from respiratory problems.

The person with allergies, whether asthmatic or nasal, has a greater interest in the acceptable air and certainly should be behind efforts to improve it. Air pollution control is costly, but so is air pollution. Pittsburgh, Los Angeles, Chicago and other cities have done much to improve their air quality. That proves that even in heavily populated cities, combined federal, state and city governments can demand and get cleaner air.

Reese Prepares For Armed Forces Week

A joint, services speaking team and a combined display at South Plains Mall will be putting the current military picture before area residents for Armed Forces Week May 15-21.

A youth recognition day, with an awards luncheon and a commander-for-a-day format, will highlight the week's activities at Reese Air Force Base.

Anything the public would like to know about the military or a variety of other subjects will be on agendas for special teams of speakers — the joint team with members of the Army, Air Force, Navy and Marine Corps; a special youth oriented team; and officers and enlisted personnel briefing teams.

Films will be used for a variety of subjects suitable for any group.

Military gear, large and small, will fill much of the mall display area all week.

At Reese, where the observance also fills the week, May 17 will be geared to a special salute to youth with three outstanding citizenship awards to be presented at a noon lunch at which Lubbock Mayor Dirk West will be speaker.

The Lubbock Jaycees will serve as a screening and interview committee to select winners, using biographical sketches and letters of recommendation from sponsors.

Winners — one from seventh and eighth, ninth and 10th, 11th and 12th grades — will receive $25 bonds and plaques arranged by Lubbock National Bank.

Groups joining Reese personnel in the salute by nominating their best are Boy Scouts of America, Boys Clubs of America, Young Men's Christian Association, Young Women's Christian Association, Camp Fire Council, 4-H Clubs, Girl Scouts of America, Future Farmers of America, Future Homemakers of America, Future Teachers of America.

Also, the Catholic, Methodist, Jewish, Presbyterian and Baptist communities in addition to Reese AFB Youth/Chapel Groups, Fellowship of Christian Athletes, National Honor Society, National Junior Honor Society and Cal Farley's Boys Ranch.

The day will include the red carpet tour of the base and facilities. All participating students may try out the Link simulators with two, chosen by lot, given a flight in the new instrument flight simulator.

Lunch for the students will be free, but accompanying parents and sponsors should be prepared to pay not more than $3 for lunch.

After lunch, students will be matched with Reese senior commanders and will observe see how their military counterparts operate.

Special, personalized tours of the base will be available for all retired military persons. Visitors will be matched, as nearly as possible, with comparable ranks to their status upon retiring.

Reservations may be made with Capt. George Reasonover, Armed Forces Week project officer, at 885-3727, 3284 or 3211.

Deadline for the luncheon is May 8 with other deadlines set for May 10.

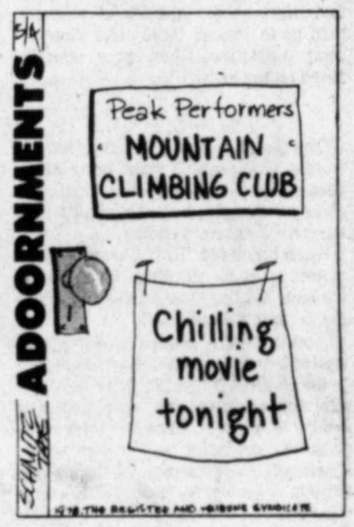

Other week activities include a turkey shoot May 20, sponsored by the Reese AFB Rod and Gun Club, and the Reese Partnership Golf Tourney which unwinds May 27-29.

Running in conjunction with the week's activities is an accellerated membership drive for the Air Force Association, a mixture of military and civilian members dedicated to the support of the Air Force and national defense.

Maj. Gen. Charles L. Donnelly Jr, commander of the Sheppard Technical Center at Sheppard AFB, will be speaker for the May 13 AFA banquet.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I hope you can help me. I'm ashamed to ask anyone else. My problem is I don't know how to laugh.

It's not because I can't see the funny side of life — in fact I am easily amused, but I have never been able to produce a hearty laugh spontaneously the way others do.

I envy friends who can respond to a humorous remark with a great big guffaw. The best I can manage is a little chuckle. I dread it when someone tells a joke. I hate not being able to show my appreciation. Can you check with a psychiatrist and tell me what is my problem? — Too Serious In Yonkers

Dear Yonk: I didn't need to check with anyone. Your problem is relatively simple.

Laughter is a highly individual response. Some people scream, others roar, cackle or hoot — and then there are those who can only smile. Settle for your chuckle. A fake laugh is much worse than none at all. And remember that wise old Chinese proverb — "Have pity on the person who laughs a great deal, for he is almost always unhappy."

• • •

Dear Ann: I recently acquired a diamond ring. My grandmother left it to me in her will. I hate having this reminder around and I could really use some extra money.

I took the ring to a pawn shop last week and after considerable haggling they offered to give me about a fourth of what the ring is really worth. I then took it to a jeweler down the street. He was willing to give me a trade-in. I don't want another diamond ring, Ann. What I need is the money to pay off some bills.

How can I get as much for the ring as it is truly worth? — Diamonds Are Forever

Dear Forever: Go to a jewelry store that has a reputation for quality. Avoid the shlock shops. Ask for an estimate, then go to two or three other stores of good reputation. Make your selection based on the highest bid.

• • •

Dear Ann Landers: The letter from the woman who couldn't stand her husband because of his poor speech habits and gross manners hit home. My story, however, has a different ending.

When I married "Bill" I knew we were worlds apart in education. Even though we both had the same amount of schooling, he didn't sound like it.

I loved the guy enough to help him. I started by reading aloud to him as well as to the children. I tactfully brought "Bill" into conversations and corrected him gently, in private, when he made mistakes in grammar or pronunciation. Eventually his manner of expressing himself improved — along with everything else.

It didn't happen overnight, but by the time our four children graduated high school their father could have been valedictorian.

What did it? Love. If that woman really cared about her man she would be helping him instead of complaining about how embarrassed she is. (P.S. My sister's husband made Phi Beta Kappa at Yale. He broke her jaw last week.) — I'm Proud of Mine

Dear Proud: You sound like a neat lady. I hope your star student appreciates you.

Parents, what should you do if your teenager is having sexual relations? Ann Landers' new booklet, "High School Sex and How to Deal With It — A Guide for Teens and Their Parents," gives no-nonsense advice on how to handle this delicate situation. Tune In Tomorrow

NEW YORK—May 4 marks the 14th anniversary of NBC's Another World," 1976's Emmy winner as Outstanding Daytime Dramatic Series and consistently one of the three top-rated daytime programs.

The show's headwriter, Harding Lemay, states that the show deals primarily with "the collison of classes. Conflicts arise from what characters desperately desire to be but usually can't be. There is a perpetual attraction between passive and active and rich and poor people. The show concentrates on themes about the two major life forces in our self-seeking society, sex and money."

Soap opera viewers seem to be particularly fascinated with wealth and how the other half lives. To feed that fascination, Leman sets his characters in glamorously posh art galleries, trendy nightclubs and discos, and tower exectuve suite trappings. The characters, especially the women, are garbed in the most fashionable attire to be seen on TV, everything from satin to sables and jewelry fit for a king or queen.

Lemany chooses his subwriters from the ranks of working theatrical playwrights who have an "unerring perception of people and a strong sense of scripting organic, non-synthetic dialogue that evolves from characterization rather than plot."

Executive producer Paul Rauch and producers Mary Bonner and Joseph Willmore scout Broadway, Off-Broadway, and regional theater companies for thoroughly trained performers. The show boasts a stellar and professionally high-regarded cast of acclaimed theatrical notables such as Douglass Watson (Mac) Irene Dailey (Liz), Anne Meacham (Louise) and others. Despite a higher rate of cast turnovers than most other serials, "AW" continues to maintain a loyal audience, a feat that serials with rapidly revolving characters often find difficult if not impossible to surmount.

Also unlike most other serials, "AW" seems to thrive on a general lack of forceful, dynamic cast personalities who attract a frantically devout fan following. This is undoubtedly due to the story emphasis on ambivalently envolving characterization rather than an instantly recognizable, flamboyant personality.

One of the exceptions is Jay Moran (Vince Frame) who is drawing the kind of fan mail response that makes him a top contender as the next afternoon heathtrob king. The actor, born in El Paso, Tex., once intended to be a lawyer. He briefly played a piano turner who wanted to tune lonely housewife Joan Willis' strings on the defunct "How To Survive A Marriage."

Meanwhile, William Russ recently departed his role as Bert McGowan to appear in the upcoming Al Pacino-starring movie, tentatively titled, "The Fourth of July."

Despite periodic low points, "Another World" has been a generally bangup celebration of fine talent and gripping drama. As you'll see when you tune in tomorrow

Open-Dated Foods For Infants Coming

PITTSBURGH (UPI) -- A major food processor has begun marking its baby food containers with the date by which the product should be used for peak quality. James T. Flynn, general manager for the company, says the open-dated merchandise should be in supermarkets within the next few months.

Flynn said food in properly stored containers, including jars whose lids remain depressed, remains wholesome and high in quality for some time past the date stamped.

He estimated the shelf life of jarred baby foods at two to three years, depending on variety, and of dry infant cereals, two years.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:
Is one permitted to pay dues as a non-coffee-drinking member? Never did drink a cup. If you can accept me on those terms, I will most gladly thank you for all the knowledge and pleasure you give me each day. (You bet! — H.)

Years ago when our children were young and we had a house in "new suburbia," where everyone else was young as well, and with small children, when one "came down with," so did the others in a matter of days.

So, to entertain my small boy when he was sick in bed, I devised a system that proved practical and inexpensive.

I bought toys that could easily be used and enjoyed in bed. Such as decks of cards with notches for building. There were a dozen or so such toys. As other youngsters "came down with it," their mothers added to this special toy supply.

These toys were kept separate from the regular toys. Like a circulating library, as each child needed entertainment, there was the whole group from everyone's collection at hand. Old friends and new ones.

It was a practical idea and the children, instead of totally dreading illness, had special toys to discover or rediscover and enjoy. — Helen C. Hubbard

What a help that must have been! Neighbors can be really wonderful, if we let them.

Why not share each other's problems as well as joys, and, whenever possible, make some gestures of kindness.

It helps your neighbor as well as giving you a marvelous feeling of satisfaction. — Heloise

In putting up hems of new garments when alone, I simply slip the new garment over a garment of the right length that is hanging on a hanger, making sure to match shoulder seams.

Then place pins on the new garment at the same length. — Ruth C. Kimes

DEAR HELOISE:
Now that we have cleaned the front, the insides and the top of the refrigerator, moved it out and cleaned behind...

Let's take off the bottom plate and clean that stuff out of the pan underneath, and sprinkle a little baking soda in it to keep it sweet-smelling. — Eliz.

DEAR HELOISE:
I always wash my shower curtain in my washing machine on the delicate cycle, then pop in the dryer (damp dry or low heat).

They come out so clean and soft — no muss, no fuss, and if the black stuff insists on staying inside of that shower curtain's little hem after laundering — why I just cut it off. It doesn't make that much difference in the length of the curtain. — Dahlia

Luv, I wash mine this way, too, but find it best to add a couple or more bath towels when washing and drying shower curtains.

Also, before that mildew has a chance to collect on that curtain, just take your pinking scissors or regular snips and cut that hem off. — Heloise

We know to run white vinegar through the brew cycle of the new coffee makers — cleans beautifully. We've been told vinegar is great for cleaning steam irons (I've tried it, and it works).

Well, when my curling iron got to where it wasn't steaming properly, I just used good ol' vinegar in it. Worked like a charm! — Noreen Emmel

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY
DR. GEORGE C. THOSTESON

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Recently you mentioned that the condition of one's nails can tell much about a person's health. You said nails should be mildly rounded and that when they are humped it was an indication of lung trouble.

Just for fun I decided to take a good look at my boyfriend's nails. He has been smoking for 30 years, and sure enough, his nails were really humped up and white, to boot.

But he nearly laughed his head off when I told him what you said. He said he had never heard of such a ridiculous thing. Please tell me if it is true. If so, why do lung troubles affect nails in this manner? Most cigarette smokers seem to enjoy a cavalier attitude toward their health and refuse to believe that smoking can damage their lungs and heart. — V.H.H.

You are referring to pulmonary osteoarthropathy (if your boyfriend needs a fancy phrase to impress him). It's more commonly called "clubbing." The ends of the fingers become blunt with rounded nails, like your boyfriend's. This can be a sign of tuberculosis, emphysema, or bronchietasis. A chief reason for the finger symptoms is that lung involvement causes blood and circulation changes that often affect the extremities.

You will be doing your boyfriend a favor by urging him to have a chest X-ray. Your comment about the cavalier attitude of some heavy smokers is well taken.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a 34-year-old woman who has been nursing a hiatal hernia for several years. Now, I am pregnant. What can I expect? Will the pregnancy irritate the hernia? — Mrs. J.W.

It very likely will. Pregnancy may cause more pressure on the hernia site (the gullet where it passes through the diaphragm). Women with this condition sometimes report episodes of shortness of breath during pregnancy. Much will depend on the size of the hernia and how well you attempt to control it. For tips on that see my booklet, "Hiatal Hernia." For a copy, send 35 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Thosteson, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

• • •

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband (who is 40) has been in good health always, but has begun complaining about shoulder pain after he does any manual labor. Is this calcium deposits? What can be done for this? — Mrs. G.A.

Shoulder pain after exertion is very common after age 35. It is usually a result of strain which responds to rest and heat therapy. In some, the irritation on tendons and muscles can lead to calcium buildup, which can be seen by X-ray. If that happens, cortisone may help, or, in severe and chronic cases, surgical removal of the deposits. However, because pain on exertion can represent more than mere mechanical problems, it is best to have it diagnosed. Shoulder pain can stem from circulation disturbance and it also may be the only symptom of a heart-related problem (such as angina). It is wise to find the cause, so appropriate treatment can be prescribed.

• • •

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have very severe menstrual cramps just before my period begins. What is the usual cause of this and is it serious? I can stand the cramps, but it is the worrying about them that really bothers me. — Mrs. O.T.

There are several possible causes for cramps before and during menstruation. These include: congestion of the pelvic structures, fibroid tumor, endometriosis, and others. A pelvic examination would tell much and put your mind at ease or provide appropriate treatment.

More exercise and salt restriction a week before your period may lessen any congestion. Worry can add to any spasm problem you may be having, and it won't, as you already know, help correct matters.

• • •

Dear Dr. Thosteson: When is the best time to get pregnant? — J.K.

This varies widely among individual women depending on the length of cycle. For the average woman with a 28-day cycle, the most likely time would be between days 12 and 17. That's when ovulation is most likely to occur.

If afflicted with problem fingernails or toenails, learn the practical, medically correct form of treatment. Write to Dr. Thosteson, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, for a copy of his booklet, "Solving Your Nail Problems," enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Here is another hand where the standard expert play in rubber bridge is going to produce fewer tricks than the ordinary play.

South ruffs the second heart and sees that he will have no trouble winning the rest of the tricks if spades behave properly. So at trick three he leads a diamond to dummy, leads the nine of trumps and lets it ride. That is, he lets it ride if East doesn't play the queen. Either way he is going to make the rest of the tricks.

The expert sees that if West holds four spades to the queen and he takes the finesse, West will be able to lead a second heart and South will have to ruff. West will hold the long trump and the contract wil be gone, but not forgotting.

So expert South simply cashes his ace and king of trumps and plays diamonds, clubs or both suits. It doesn't make much difference. West will collect at trick with his small trump and East will make his queen, but the contract will be safe since trumps didn't break 5-1.

What does the experts do in match point duplicate? He probably goes after the maximum — takes the finesse and makes six. In match point games, overtricks are almost as important as making your contract. In rubber bridge the contract is what counts.

Ask the Experts

A Canadian reader wants to know if bridge has borrowed the term "Love" from tennis.

Some players do use it to describe a score of zero below the line and they certainly have borrowed it from tennis.

(Do you have a question for the experts? Write "Ask the Experts," Box 489 Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. Individual questions will be answered if accompanied by stamped, self-addressed envelopes. The most interesting questions will be used in the column and will receive copies of JACOBY MODERN.

Quick Analysis of Drugs Shows How Patients React To Chemicals

GALVESTON (Special) — New "high speed" analysis of anti-cancer drugs at the University of Texas Medical Branch in Galveston is showing scientists differences in how patients assimilate the treatment chemicals.

Dr. James A. Nelson, of the department of pharmacology and toxicology, said improved high pressure "liquid chromatography" is being used to measure drugs in body fluids of cancer patients treated with various chemicals. It has been found that the same drug treatment for the same kind of cancer produces different degrees of response. The amount of the chemical recovered indicates effectiveness of the chemotherapy. Dr. Nelson's research is supported by an American Cancer Society grant.

The new high-speed chromatography reduces from days to hours the time required to analyze chemicals retrieved from body fluids. The method of testing is derived from an old technique in chemistry which is based on the differences in absorption properties of the compounds being analyzed.

One of the goals of Dr. Nelson's research is to identify patients who respond more readily to anti-cancer chemicals. Biochemical reasons for their greater response would then be sought.

Among the drugs being tested are methotrexate, a compound that blocks metabolism in the cancer cell, and Ara-A, a more recently discovered drug that has low toxicity. In addition to the assay of anti-cancer drugs retrieved from the body, scientists are synchronizing the effects of chemicals on a patient's cancer cells cultured in the laboratory with chemotherapy given the patient. Comparison of the effect of drugs on the cells with the patient's progress against cancer is a guide to treatment and discloses new facts about anti-cancer chemicals.

U.S. Attorney Quits Lynn Trial

HOUSTON (AP) — U.S. Attorney Tony Canales voluntarily removed himself Wednesday from the prosecution of Carol Lynn, the former Houston police chief charged with obstruction of justice in an alleged $45,000 extortion plot.

Canales announced his action shortly after U.S. Magistrate H. Lingo Platter had rejected a plea by lawyers for Lynn that Canales be removed in that he could be a material witness in the case.

"Whether I am in it or not doesn't amount to a hill of beans," Canales said. "The case will be prosecuted anyway and I want to give this man a fair trial. I don't want to be an issue in this trial."

Canales said the case would be handled by two assistants, George A. Kelt Jr. and Michael J. Brown, with assistance from the Justice Department's public integrity section.

Lynn, 45, was police chief in 1974-75 and was on duty as an assistant chief April 10 when he was arrested by FBI agents and charged in an alleged scheme to extort $45,000 from John Holden, a Houston oilman. Lynn was fired April 20 by Police Chief Harry Caldwell.

An FBI affidavit submitted April 10 to Platter alleges Lynn told Holden he could use his influence to have Leonel Castillo, U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service director, to persuade Canales to drop a securities violations case against Holden. Castillo is a former Houston city controller.

Lynn is free under $50,000 bond.

Platter rejected the removal plea submitted by Lynn's lawyer, James Pape, saying he lacked jurisdiction over the prosecution phase of the case. Platter said his only jurisdiction was to determine whether there was probable cause for the complaint against Lynn to be filed.

Also rejected was a Pape motion that Canales be summoned as a witness at the hearing.

Kelt told Platter the only accusations by the defense against Canales were those made by Lynn and that they were hearsay.

Filings In Gaming Case Not Expected

Asst. Dist. Atty. David Nelson said Wednesday he anticipates no charges to be filed against any of 38 persons who were detained by police April 27 in connection with an alleged gambling operation.

Nelson said insufficient evidence had been presented to the Criminal District Attorney's office and a case could not be made "at this time" against any of those involved.

He said subsequent investigations might provide enough information for charges to be filed, although he stressed that for the moment no charges are expected.

"We would have to have proof of operation," Nelson said, "and there was none."

Police had received confidential information early on the evening of April 26 that heavy losers in previous gambling games might be planning to rob a game that night at a South Lubbock motel.

Detectives staked out the motel about 9:30 p.m. April 26, then intervened about 1 a.m. April 27.

Police found evidence that gambling was being done in two rooms and the names of 30 Lubbock men and one local woman were taken. Eight other persons from North Texas towns and Houston were detained, police said.

Card Offered To Aid In Catching Rapists

FORT WORTH (UPI) — The first few hours after a woman has been raped are the most important to her if she ever wants her assailant prosacuted.

For many women, the first impulse — after relief that they have survived the attack — is to bathe, thus washing away much of the evidence police and courts need.

The Mayor's Committee on the Status of Women in Fort Worth has come up with a card it hopes will help women in those trying moments. The bilingual, wallet-sized card outlines, step by step, what to do in case of a rape. It is designed to serve the same purpose as other emergency numbers people carry — you may never need it, but it will be there if you do.

About 118,000 cards are being mailed out in city water bills, a procedure that will still miss many women, particularly apartment dwellers. Cards will also be available at public libraries and eventually through colleges and the school system.

Anyone who mails a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Mayor's Committee on the Status of Women, City Hall, Fort Worth, Texas, 76102 can receive up to 10 cards.

The card advises against bathing and tells victims to contact police immediately. The number for the city's rape counseling service is also given. Next, a woman should go to her local emergency room, taking a change of clothing. She should also try to sort out in her mind as many details as she can of the attack, particularly a description of the rapist.

The police department's fulltime rape counselor, Jenny Willimon, says it is imperative that women report rapes, despite any feelings of humiliation or fear of how their families will react.

"If rapes are not reported," she said, "there is little the police can do to prevent other rapes. We do know that rapists do not just rape once — they rape over and over again."

As one member of the committee, Esther Emery, said, "This is an educational project designed to have a calming effect; there is no reason for panic."

New Trial Ordered In Custody Case

AUSTIN (UPI) — The 3rd Court of Civil Appeals Wednesday ordered a new trial to determine if a Belton man should be awarded custody of an illegitimate son for whom he has never provided financial support.

The appellate court reversed a lower court decision awarding Robert Harold Vance custody of the child, saying the trial court's decision was clearly contrary to the evidence as to the child's best interest.

Vance filed a petition for legitimation after the child's mother had asked the Travis County Child Welfare Unit to place the baby for adoption.

A Travis County district court, acting on a suit by the welfare unit, terminated the parent-child relationship between Cassius Dosbrow and his mother and its legal father, and granted Vance's petition for legitimation and gave him custody of the child, who was born in 1974 in South Dakota.

Vance provided no support for the child, and was two to three years behind in support payments for three teen-age children by an earlier marriage. He said he planned to have a teen-age girl babysit with the child while he worked, or place the baby in a day care center.

The appellate court said, "Vance's past disregard for the child's welfare is convincing that he has but faint devotion for the child.

"He appears heedless of his duty, apart from law, to support his children as best he can. Vance's promise of future support of Cassius may be measured best by his past indifference to the welfare of Cassius and his daughters," the court said in sending the case back to the Travis County district court for a new hearing.

In an unrelated case, the Texas Supreme Court Wednesday upheld a lower court decision that a Jefferson County boat dealer, Hubert Spradling, had engaged in deceptive trade practices in the sale of a board to N.D. Williams.

Williams paid $10,800 and traded in his own boat valued at $5,500 for a 35-foot Sportscraft pleasure boat, which he said Spradling represented to be a 1973 model with a retail price of $22,500.

A trial jury found the boat was an earlier model, was not in the condition Spradling represented, and was worth $12,000.

spradling, who does business as Sprad's Boat Barn, filed an appeal contending the judge at the trial gave the jury improper instructions concerning the definition of deceptive trade practices.

Treasury Agents Pinch Santa Money

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — The managers of Santa's Village in Jefferson, N.H., decided to print facsimiles of U.S. currency to promote business, using Rudolph the Red-nosed Reindeer. And not they're red-faced.

Rudolph's signature was on the bottom of $3 bills that the small White Mountain tourist attraction used for seven years as promotional flyers. But when U.S. Treasury agents saw the promotional bills, which had been circulated at the Burlington Mall in Massachusetts, they blew the whistle on Rudolph, Santa and the managment of Santa's village.

It seems that the bills were reproduced using a photograph of a real $20 bill, and that's against federal law. Half a million of the bills were confiscated by agents, who said it would have been okay if they would have simply drawn the bills, instead of taking pictures of them.

Oil News

Mexico's Excess Crude Oil Eyed

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexico will have approximately 700,000 barrels daily of crude oil available for export by the end of this year as a result of increased production, the Mexican state petroleum monopoly Pemex said Wednesday.

A Pemex statement said Japan, Spain, Switzerland, France, Brazil and the United States are interested in purchasing this excess crude.

Mexico currently produces an average of 1.1 million barrels of crude a day, but Pemex said production is expected to go to 1.8 million barrels a day by December.

The country currently exports about 200,000 barrels a day, most of it to the United States with some side sales to Israel.

Board Reports Fuel Discoveries

AUSTIN (AP) — The railroad commission reported Wednesday there were 32 oil discoveries and 51 gas discoveries in Texas in April.

The wildcat oil wells included six in southeast Texas; five in west central Texas; four each in the Refugio, Lubbock and North Texas areas; three in the Panhandle; two in South Texas; and one each in the San Antonio, East Texas, San Angelo and Midland areas.

The gas wildcats included 17 in South Texas; 13 in southeast Texas; 10 in the Refugio area; four in west central Texas; two each in the San Angelo and Lubbock areas; and one each in the San Antonio area, East Texas and the Panhandle.

The commission said 351 exploratory and field tests in April were dry holes.

Gasoline Stocks Show Decrease

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's refiners increased gasoline output as inventories of the product declined, according to the latest weekly supply statistics released Wednesday by the American Petroleum Institute.

For the week ended April 28, gasoline stocks fell to 252.9 million barrels from 255.6 million barrels a week earlier and were lower than the 255.7 million barrels on hand in the comparable week last year.

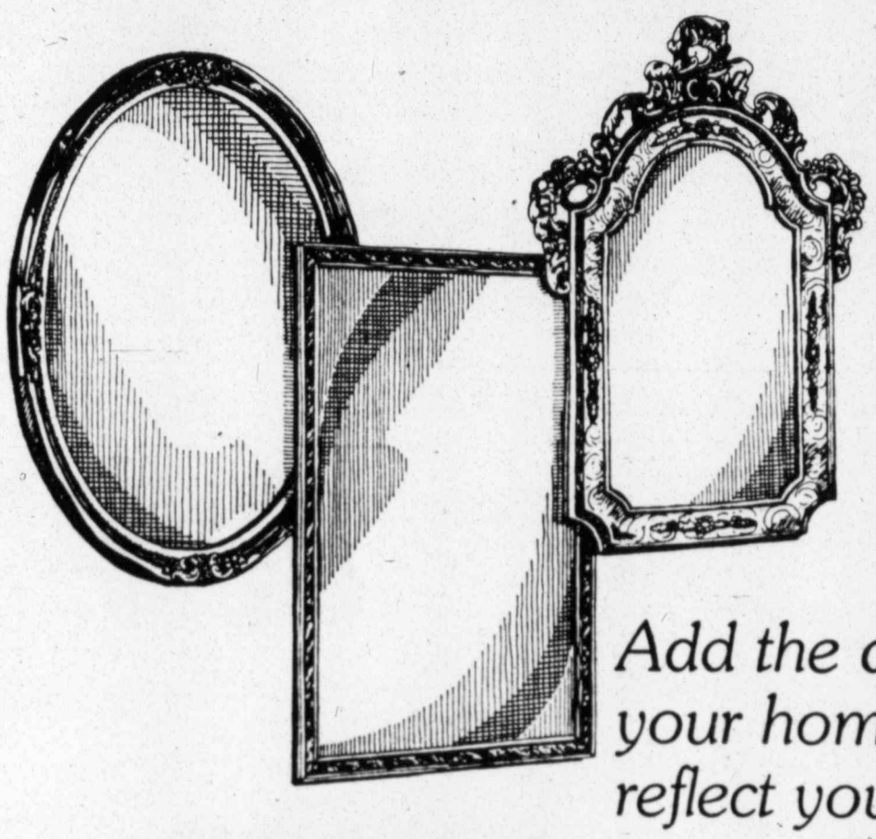

Gasoline production in the latest week increased to 6.8 million barrels daily from 6.6 million barrels daily in the previous week. The situation reflected the beginning of the nation's summer motoring season.

Meanwhile, supplies of distillate oils, used primarily for home heating, were virtually unchanged and stood at 137.5 million barrels as compared with 137.6 million barrels a week earlier. Distillate production was down to 2.8 million barrels daily from 2.9 million barrels daily in the preceding week.

Crude oil imports increased to 5.5 million barrels daily from 5.2 million barrels daily a week earlier, but were significantly below the 6.7 million barrels imported daily at this time last year.

CELEBRATE THE SUN — The sun was the guest of honor at numerous Sun Day gatherings across the nation Wednesday. A hot air balloon, left, is held near the ground as the sun peeks through the trees on the Mall Wednesday in Washington. Some early participants in Sun Day are beginning to gather beneath the balloon. The Washington Monument is mirrored in the Reflecting Pool. U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations, Andrew Young, center, tries a pyramid on for size in New York early Wednesday during Sun Day festivities. The pyramid is supposed to be conducive to attracting positive feelings to the person under it. New York celebrations will last May 3-6. Solar Energy Celebrants Salute Bashful Sun

By The Associated Press

"Sun Day" celebrants across the country paid tribute to the power and potential of solar energy Wednesday with displays, demonstrations and demands for federal action. But the sun itself proved a fickle target of affection, failing to show up for the occasion in several places.

The effort to focus attention on the sun was sponsored by Solar Action Inc., a Washington-based nonprofit group. Backers included consumer activists, environmentalists, businessmen, government officials and labor leaders.

Typical of the activities across the country were those in Iowa. There were sunrise services and solar displays. There were songs to the sun and movies about the sun. A Cedar Rapids group gathered at 5 a.m. for a trek to the woods to watch the sun come up.

After the ceremonies — which included a yoga exercise used by Eastern cultures to salute the sun — there was breakfast: granola, whole wheat muffins and "sunrise soup," which, explained one participant, contains orange juice, tomato juice, lemon juice, consomme and herbs.

Events in the nation's capital began early in the morning with speeches, music and solar-cooked food. The area around the Washington Monument was turned into a giant sundial.

New Yorkers, who began "Sun Day" observances with a 5:57 a.m. ceremony outside U.N. headquarters, got a bright sunny day for the occasion. Parts of Oklahoma and Kansas, however, were covered with snow; hikers who climbed Cadillac Mountain in Maine to watch the sunrise had to settle for clouds; and in New Orleans, outdoor fairs, speeches and other activities were cancelled or moved indoors because of a storm which dumped 4.21 inches of rain on the city between 7 a.m. and 11 a.m.

"I guess it shows you've got to have a good backup system," said one organizer of the New Orleans events, referring to the fact that most solar energy devices are used in conjunction with traditional power sources which take over when there is not enough sun.

The speakers around the country had a common theme: Solar power can cut energy costs without damaging the environment and the federal government should do more to encourage its use.

Among the examples:

—"We're here to celebrate the dawning of the solar age and bring the administration kicking and screaming into it." U.S. Rep. Richard L. Ottinger, D-N.Y., to the group that hiked up Cadillac Mountain, one of the spots where — assuming the weather is fair — the sun's rays first strike the United States each day.

—"Solar energy works. It won't pollute our air and it won't foul our rivers." Actor Robert Redford to a crowd of about 1,500 at the United Nations.

—"We will use the political and economic power of our enthusiasm to incorporate the sun in our city life and our urban life." Andrew Young, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, also at the U.N.

—Solar energy will "help us get out from under the thumb of the big oil companies and the foreign oil barons" and the federal government should "do more to tap the sun's potential and also help relieve the nation's dependence on oil." U.S. Sen. Thomas J. McIntyre, D-N.H., in a speech prepared for delivery at the University of New Hampshire.

—"We've established a real curiosity about solar, so let's keep it up ... Solar doesn't have a single dangerous consequence for anybody. And it doesn't have any price increases." U.S. Rep. Andrew McGuire, D-N.J., to a crowd at the Lincoln Memorial in Washington.

One sign of federal support for solar power came in the announcement by the Department of Energy of the winners of $573,000 in grants awarded to five hospitals to help pay for experimental, solar hot water systems. The hospitals are: Wesley Medical Center, Wichita, Kan.; Santa Clara Medical Center, Calif.; Hurst-Euless-Bedford Hospital, Bedford, Texas; St. Mary's Hospital, Rhinelander, Wis.; and Dayton Childrens' Psychiatric Hospital, Ohio.

A sign of international support for solar power came in full-page advertisements placed in The Washington Post and The New York Times by Saudi Arabia, holder of the world's largest oil reserves and the leading exporter of oil to the United States.

SUN DIAL — The National Park Service decided to construct a sun dial using the Washington Monument as the gnomon. Wednesday at 9 a.m. EDT the long shadow pointed at the Lincoln Memorial, upper left. The park service placed numbers around the monument about 30 feet from the center. (AP Laserphoto)

Eight Candidates Seeking To Replace Burleson

By ESTHER LONGORIA
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Not all voters across the South Plains will be selecting candidates in Saturday's primaries to succeed retiring George Mahon, who has represented the 19th U.S. Congressional District for the past 44 years.

Votes in Floyd, Crosby, Lynn, Garza, Borden, Howard, Scurry, Kent and Mitchell counties and part of Dawson County are part of the sprawling 17th U.S. Congressional District, which has been represented by Omar Burleson for the past 32 years.

Seven Democrats and one Republican are seeking to replace Burleson, the fifth-ranking Democrat on the powerful House Ways and Means Committee, who announced last year that he would retire from the Congress.

Democrats sharing the ballot include Charles Stenholm, Jim Snowden, Crews McCulloch, Jim Sharp, Fike Godfrey, A.L. "Dusty" Rhodes and Jim Baum.

Democrats across the district Saturday will elect one of those men to vie against lone Republican, Bill Fisher, 34-year-old Abilene attorney and former Taylor County GOP chairman, in the November general election.

With seven candidates seeking the Democratic nod, the race's observers say that a runoff is inevitable, predicting that it will probably be between Rhodes, an Abilene attorney, and Stamford farmer Stenholm.

The 45-year-old Rhodes, who has done most of his campaigning with the help of his twin-engine, computer and radar-equipped Beechcraft Baron, says that by primary election day he will have spent at least $292,000 on the campaign. Of that amount, about $100,000 was his own money.

Stenholm, 39, and Godfrey, 54, of Abilene and former executive vice-president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, also have spent a considerable amount of money themselves.

Stenholm predicts that he will have spent $150,000 by primary day, including $20,000 of his own money, while Godfrey has spent more than $50,000, adding that he could have raised much more "if we wanted to get real vicious about it."

Baum, 41, manager of KBYG radio in Big Spring, says that he has raised more than $30,000 for his campaign with "a lot of hard work," including knocking on the doors of at least 300 homes and businesses in 86 towns across the 33-county district since January.

"I resent that you have to be wealthy in order to seek public office in this country," said Baum, who says that the district needs a member of the middle class to represent the majority middle-income family. "I would try to represent those of us caught in the middle; I'm one of those, too," he said.

"A lot of people have been attracted to my campaign because they see an old boy here who is trying to swim upstream," he added. "Money doesn't vote. People vote."

Godfrey, who ranches on 4,500 acres in Kent County, says that there is a need to get the control of the federal government back into the hands of the people. "The very people that are paying the most in taxes now, the middle class, are getting the least," he said. "We should be recognizing them instead of harrassing them."

He says he is seven years ahead of anybody else in the race because of his experience as the paid West Texas chamber director working on projects and legislation related to the area, both in Washington and Austin. "Congress is no place for on-the-job training," he said.

Godfrey, a Ford dealer in Spur before becoming executive vice-president of the West Texas chamber, can talk at length about Washington's bureaucrats. "Many times I found them to be generally unconcerned with our problems," he said. "They just do not have a grasp of our ranching and farming problems, and I found that to be a frustrating experience."

McCulloch and Snowden say that they, too, are displeased with the federal government.

McCulloch, a 46-year-old real estate broker from Weatherford, says he has refused to accept campaign contributions from anyone except individuals.

"I feel this special interest influence on our congressmen is the real reason for Sharpstown, Watergate and Koreagate," the 12-year Army veteran said. "The big spenders in this campaign are getting their share of those funds, and I feel that if one of them gets elected his service will have already been bought and paid for by special interests.

"I think the real issue is whether the voters are going to elect a representative or whether special interests are going to elect a representative," McCulloch added.

Snowden, 56, former mayor of Tye, a small community near Abilene, believes that the "influence peddling" is the root cause of the majority of the problems the government has today.

"I feel that if the government was really honest with the people, we wouldn't have the inflation we have or the energy problem," Snowden said, adding that he thought that "the big businessmen of the world have too much influence on the president and his foreign and internal policies."

Sharp, 26, of Big Spring, who was appointed by Burleson as an assistant doorkeeper in the U.S. House, says that it was his relative youth that prompted in part his decision to run for the office.

He believes that the 17th District seat would be better off going to a person under 30 who could serve long enough to build up seniority in the all-important House committee system.

"Of its 24 seats in the House of Representatives," he said, "Texas should afford itself at least one and preferably two freshmen members under the age of 30 every 10 years or so. This would protect Texas in the seniority system for generations to come."

Basically, all seven of the candidates have talked a conservative line that calls for decreased government spending, an end to increasing the governmental bureaucracy and deregulation of oil and gas.

Polls taken by two of the candidates reportedly show Rhodes leading in name identification, with Stenholm in second place and Baum following closely.

However, Baum's strategy appears to be to replace Stenholm as the candidate to make a runoff with Rhodes.

Baum has said that Stenholm "claims kinship to agribusiness due to his farm holdings and membership in farm organizations" but should not have the support of farmers because he has not endorsed the American Agriculture Movement.

The Big Spring radio station manager, a staunch supporter of the movement, says he backs 100 percent parity for farmers through mandatory acreage controls that would reduce farm surpluses and drive up the market price.

Stenholm says he supports the goal of 100 percent parity in the marketplace but admits that he has lost some support among the more militant farmers because he has refused to go along with their strike tactics.

"Coal miners should not have the right to bring this country to its knees and neither should farmers," Stenholm, who holds an agricultural education degree from Texas Tech, said.

He calls for a 25 percent set aside for all major crops and continued government help in stabilizing the marketplace. But he adds that farmers are going to have to solve many of their marketing problems on their own.

Concerning the American Agriculture Movement, Rhodes said, "American Agriculture represents all farmers in this country and what's good for the farming industry is good for the U.S.

"I believe its time we stop apologizing for the right of the farmer to make a profit," he added. "We can accomplish this in the short term by the Congress demanding that our food and fiber products in the international market be sold at a parity or pricing level established by the heavy machinery and other export items shipped overseas.

"In the long run, we must have legislation which will provide a base price level which will allow the farmer to make a profit."

"A lot may still be undecided as they go into the voting booth," Godfrey said. "With seven people in the race, its still very fluid."

Grand Jury Indicts Ex-Cotton Broker

A story in Tuesday's morning edition of The Avalanche-Journal incorrectly said the defendant is currently serving a one-year term after pleading guilty to a similar charge. Nowlin is serving a one-year term at the federal correctional facility in Seagoville after pleading guilty in U.S. District Court here to a charge of failing to account for and pay employee withholding taxes to the federal government.

He was convicted on a theft by check charge by a Seymour state court jury in October and assessed a five-year prison term, a case which was appealed.

Stock Mart Prices Drop

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market tumbled steeply Wednesday, in what brokers described as heavy profit-taking and the return of investors' worries over economic performance and inflation.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial and blue chip stocks fell 11.35 points to 828.83, recording its largest single-day drop in nearly four months. On Jan. 6 the index fell 11.43 points when the Dow broke below the 800 level for the first time since late 1975.

Trading continued its recent heavy pace on Wednesday. Volume on the Big Board came to 37.56 million shares. That was lower that the 41.40 million in extremely active trading Tuesday.

Overall losing issues outnumbered gainers by margin of almost 3-2 among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues. The NYSE composite index closed down .46 at 53.72.

Pan American, up ⅜ to 6¾, was the most active issue as of the 4 p.m. close of the NYSE. One analyst suggested that Pan Am might benefit by the airline pilots' strike started against its competitor Northwest Airlines on Saturday. Northwest was off ⅛ at 26¾.

DA Candidates Spend Heavily

By BOB CAMPBELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Incumbent Criminal District Attorney Alton Griffin and challenger John T. Montford continued to spend freely — to a total of more than $40,000 between them — in the Democratic primary race through April.

With only the last week to go, Montford reported total expenses through April of $25,476 and about $11,000 since the last reporting date a month ago.

Griffin reported expenditures of $14,959 and about $6,000 during the past month.

New contributions reported were $9,197 to Montford and $7,260 to Griffin.

Of Griffin's contributions, $1,000 was received from owners and operators of Trammel's Lubbock Bail Bond. Contributors of $250 were Ethel Cypert and Don Herriage, Jack Trammel, Houston Trammel, and H.C. Trammel.

In another contested Democratic primary race, incumbent County Commissioner Coy Biggs of Slaton and challenger Paul Enger Sr. of Lubbock reported expenditures of $615 and $304, respectively, for April.

J.E. Gray of Slaton and Gene Leach each gave $100 to the Biggs campaign.

Enger reported $25 each from Calvin Brunken and James Bowman, both of Lubbock, $25 from Clyde Booth of Wolfforth and $277 in assorted small contributions.

Montford has been spending most of his money on radio and television advertisements, the report said.

He spent $1,394 at KMCC, $3,000 at KLBK, $1,900 at KCBD and $476 at KLLL Radio.

Big contributors to his campaign in the past month were John O'Shea and Bob Lokey, who gave $500 and $300, and Scott Egert, who donated several hundred dollars in office space, furniture, signs and other election aids.

Others who gave $100 each were Peggy Hewitt, E.D. Mankin, Earl Ince Jr., Durwood Mayfield, H. Lynn Mercer, Roger McMillan, E.B. Hill, Jimmy Webb, H.S. Humphries, Charles Bucy, Frank Bownds, Charles Craig, J.L. Horn, Jim Ed Waller, Dr. and Mrs. John Chalk, Fred H. Timberlake Jr., Betty Lou Petree and Jim Holloway.

T.W. Kirkpatrick, Gerald Anderson, Jim Bob Jackson and Bob Green each gave $200.

Griffin reported expenses of $4,500 to Webster & Harris Advertising for television advertising on three Lubbock stations, $1,350 for radio advertising, $100 for 5,000 campaign postcards and $124 for 10,000 matchbooks.

His other contributors for the month were Hugh Newton, $300; and Bob Jordon, Mike Irish and Weston A. Pettey, $200 each.

Voter Purge Creates Confusion

AUSTIN (UPI) — Texas Democratic chairman Calvin Guest said Wednesday a purge of voter registration rolls has created some confusion about eligibility to vote in Saturday's primary election and participate in precinct conventions.

Guest said, however, those 900,000 voters on the purged list are eligible to vote and to take part in the precinct conventions.

Names of voters whose registration applications were not deliverable through the mail were removed from the list of eligible voters. The names are on a special purged list, however, and those persons can vote in Saturday's elections.

"all those who vote in the Democratic primary, including those on voter registration purged lists, are eligible to fully participate in the precinct convention where they voted," Guest said.

"The convention process provides every Democrat an opportunity for input into the party and the political system. The decisions made at the precinct convention will have influence at the state level as well as the national."

Groups Hit Whale, Porpoise Killings

WASHINGTON (AP)— Conservation groups protested the killing of whales and porpoises Wednesday while President Carter conferred with Japanese Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda.

At a noon rally in Lafayette Park, across the street from the White House, onlookers were urged to boycott Japanese and Russian goods to put economic pressure on the two nations to stop the killing of the marine mammals.

"Japan now has the distinction of being the largest dolphin-killer in the world," said Craig Van Note of Monitor, one of the conservation groups.

CITY PERSON

Politics in the sense of the art and science and of government is derived from the Greek "polis" — meaning city. Originally, a politician was a person who helped manage the affairs of a city, just as a statesman helped manage the affairs of a state.

DON WORKMAN • STATE SENATE

A WORKMAN For The People of West Texas Wants YOU To Know ... Where He Stands On Law And Order.

Dear Voter:

As a member of both the Texas Yough Council and the Juvenile Justic Board, and a parent, I am naturally concerned with youth crime and crime in general in West Texas. More than 50 percent of crimes committed in this country are committed by persons 18 and under. When elected as your State Senator for the 28th State Senatorial District, I will deal with the crime problem in West Texas by:

☑ Moving the Texas Youth Council toward a regional detention center concept, separating children in need of supervision and truents from serving as an alternative to jail while juveniles are awaiting trail;

☑ Urging a change of Title III of the Texas Family Code which deals with juvenile delinquents, allowing a sentence of an habitual or serious offender to extend past his juvenile age limit of 18;

☑ Introducing a bill which, first of all, enables a jury, upon request, to have an offender transferred from Texas Youth Council facilities to the Department of Correction when reaching adult age; and secondly, provides that a serious or habitual offender would have a permanent police record after age 18;

☑ Working toward a plan that denies bond to any person who has been convicted of a major crime and is a chief suspect in a similar crime and also deny bond to someone who is already under bond for a serious offense and is a chief suspect of another similar crime.

It's time the benefit of the doubt goes to society, the victims, and not to the offender. As your State Senator I will work to abolish slow tedious trails and light sentences and bring swift and powerful justice back to the state.

Sincerely,

Don

Americans Favor Consumer Agency

By LOUIS HARRIS

Although the House of Representatives has effectively killed the proposal for a new federal consumer protection agency, public support for just such an agency continues to rise. The most recent Harris Survey soundings on this issue indicate that a 58-28 percent majority favors a federal agency to protect consumers. This is up from 55-28 percent who felt that way in 1977, 52-34 percent in 1976, and 44-41 percent back in 1975.

The reasons why the public supports such an agency are not hard to find:

—A 69-20 percent majority holds the view that "such an agency is long overdue, for the individual consumer needs help in making his complaints heard and in getting better quality and safer products and services."

—A 67-18 percent majority also feels that "big business has so much power with the government that, unless the consumer has someone in government to argue his case and make business give better quality, the consumer will continue to be shortchanged on products and services." This majority has remained virtually unchanged since 1975. Indeed, the decision of Congress to block a consumer protection agency is seen as proof of the entrenched power of business in the federal establishment and on Capitol Hill. Business lobbied against the consumer bill perhaps more vigorously than against any other measure in recent years.

To be sure, people express some doubts about the consumer protection agency, according to the recent Harris Survey of 1,510 adults nationwide:

—By 52-29 percent, a majority worries that "adding another government bureaucracy, no matter how well intentioned, will lead to more red tape and spending more tax, money, and it won't give the consumer more protection." In fact, the most effective argument made against a consumer agency is that Americans have little taste for adding to the federal bureaucracy. However, it is significant that this particular objection to a consumer agency has been on the decline. Back in 1975, a much higher 62-23 percent majority expressed fears of adding another federal agency. By 1977, the number who had these fears had dropped to 55-25 percent. If this trend continues, there will come a time objection against a consumer protection agency.

—By 48-34 percent, a plurality also is sympathetic to the complaints of many businessmen that "business is tied up ow by mountains of red tape from government regulations, and a consumer protection agency will just add more red tape and keep business from doing its job."

While it would be overstating the case to claim that the 1978 defeat of the consumer protection agency in the House of Representatives will be a major issue in this fall's elections, it would be a mistake to think that those incumbents who voted against the measure have heard the last from their constituents on the issue. Consumer groups now understand that the rough tactics used by Ralph Nader in behalf of the bill undoubtedly backfired. But they still feel that solid organization at the grass-roots level, directed toward political activity in behalf of those who voted for the consumer protection agency, could make a significant mark on the political scene. The consumer movement has an appeal that goes close to the heart of the current independent mood of the American electorate.

Social Security Office To Offer Teleservice

The social security office in Lubbock has joined other branches around the country in offering a new teleservice program to the public.

Using the service, a person can contact the nearest social security office by telephone and receive an answer to any question he has about social security.

Also, a claim for any type of social security benefit can be filed over the telephone. For example, if a person is disabled and cannot come to the office, or if a person wants to file for retirement or health insurance benefits and cannot find the time to come to the office, he can call and give the necessary information over the telephone.

When the application has been completed, it will be mailed for signature. An envelope will also be sent so that the signed application and all the necessary proofs which will be requested can be returned to the social security office by mail.

The phone number for the social security office in Lubbock is 762-7385.

Goldwater Wins Award

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. (AP) — U.S. Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., has been named winner of the Air Force Academy's 1978 Thomas D. White National Defense Award.

The award, presented annually to a prominent citizen who has contributed significantly to the nation's armed services, will be presented to Goldwater on May 13, a spokesman said Wednesday.

The award is named in honor of the late Air Force chief of staff, who held the position during the beginning years of the academy.

Goldwater retired from the Air Force Reserve in 1967 as a major general after 37 years of service.

Chaparrals Go Against SWC King Texas A&M

COLLEGE STATION (Special) — Just what does Larry Hays expect his Lubbock Christian College Chaparrals to gain from the four game series with Southwest Conference champion Texas A&M?

"We'll try to win, naturally," Hays said of the four-game series which opens with a 1:30 p.m. doubleheader today, "but our main goal is playing people and trying to prepare for the people we'll be meeting next week."

That next week is the District VIII (NAIA) Tournament at Arlington, which features Texas Wesleyan, University of Dallas, Jarvis Christian, Dallas Baptist and Midwestern in addition to the Chaparrals.

LCC's first appearance in that double-elimination meet will come at 3:30 p.m. Monday against the winner of the UD-Midwestern contest.

But here today, Hays' worries will be on A&M, which has set numerous school records en route to a 32-12 mark and a second straight SWC crown.

And the Chaps will be facing one of the top southpaws in the nation, Mark Thurmond, today. Thurmond is 11-0 with a 1.63 ERA. He was 8-0 in SWC play with eight complete game victories and five shutouts, including a no-hitter against Texas Tech. The Houston Spring Branch product, a junior, has won 22 consecutive regular-season games and his only collegiate setbacks have been in post-season outings.

He will be opposed today by Oscar Acosta, the high-kicking LCC freshman who has compiled a 10-3 mark. Tonight's nightcap will be a battle of the Rosses, LCC junior John (7-3, 3.17 ERA) and Aggie junior Mark (8-3, 2.84 ERA).

Friday's hurlers will be Gary Swann and Richard Nixon for the Chaps, who bring a 42-18 mark into this series, and senior right-hander David Pieczynski (4-4, 3.36) and either senior lefty Jim McWilliams (2-2, 1.82) or freshman Perry Swanson (2-1, 4.36).

Both teams have excellent defenses, with A&M having pulled a school record 56 double plays, including 32 in SWC action, and LCC 45.

Strange as it may seem, the Aggies are playing only .640 ball in their new 5,000 seat stadium (16-9) and .842 ball on the road (16-3). However, the Cadets opened with Southern Cal and Minnesota at home, so that accounts somewhat for those nine setbacks.

"We've got to make sure we use all of our pitching this week," Hays pointed out, then quickly added a footnote, "but they may makes us do that in the first game.

"I want to throw Sanders for an inning or two, so we may split up the fourth game.

"We've got to start playing well . . . and right now," Hays said. "If we play lousy and get beat or even lousy and win, then I'm going to be extremely worried going into the district tournament. But if we play well, even if we lose down here, I think it will put us in the proper frame of mind."

It rained almost two inches here Tuesday but cleared off Wednesday afternoon and was expected to be bright and clear today. The games will follow the normal SWC pattern, one seven and one nine-inning tilt per day. Until now, LCC has played only seven-inning games.

The Aggies are hitting only .270 as a team and have only two men listed about .270, leadoff man Robert Bonner and Kyle Hawthrone.

Bonner is hitting .339 and tops the team in hits with 56 plus has 11 doubles and five homers. His 126 assists at shortstop set a new school record and he established an SWC mark with 73.

Hawthorne is hitting .311 with 14 homers and 45 RBIs and his 94 total bases is five away from a school record.

The Aggies, who beat the Houston Astros 1-0 in an exhibition contest, enter this series as the No. 5 team in the NCAA and LCC is No. 7 in the NAIA.

SWC Cage Tourney Among Spring Topics

DALLAS (Special)—San Antonio officials will make their pitch for holding a future Southwest Conference basketball tournament as committee meetings begin the annual SWC spring business meetings.

The meetings where the faculty representatives—the voting members of the conference—go into session will not begin until Friday. However, a series of committee meetings will be held today.

The SWC basketball tournament has been held in Houston's Summit Coliseum for the past two years, after the initial tournament was held at SMU's Moody Coliseum.

The tournament was a sellout this spring in Houston, with more than 16,000 fans watching the final three nights.

San Antonio has—or will have when expansion work is completed—a downtown basketball facility capable of seating 16,000 fans. The facility is used by the professional San Antonio Spurs.

The presentation by the San Antonio Chamber of Commerce will be for a future tournament.

The series of committee meetings will be held with proposals to be submitted to the faculty representatives. Actions by this governing body will be announced at

Watson, Player Lead Byron Nelson Pack

DALLAS (AP) — Tom Watson, who admits to "a special feeling about this tournament," and South African Gary Player loom as leading contenders in a strong field arrayed for the $200,000 Byron Nelson Golf Classic.

Although he had a three-tournament winning streak broken last week in New Orleans, Gary insists he's still playing well "though I really wasn't sharp in that last round."

"It was to be expected," Player said. "To win in the United States you have to do everything well. And you simply can't keep on doing everything well week after week indefinitely. But that's over now. There's no reason I couldn't continue to play well this week."

Player, the only three-time winner on the tour this year, is an amazing 47 strokes below par for his last four starts. He must be considered the top candidate for the $40,000 first prize in the event that was scheduled to begin today on the revamped, 6,983-yard, par 71 Preston Trail Golf Club course.

A victory by either Player or Watson would lift them into the season's leading money-winning spot ahead of Jack Nicklaus and Hubert Green. They occupy the first two places now but both are skipping this tournament.

The field, however, is extremely strong. It includes defending titleholder Ray Floyd, PGA champion Lanny Wadkins, Hale Irwin, Jerry Pate, Tom Weiskopf, Australian David Graham, Arnold Palmer and Lon Hinkle, whose first career victory last week denied Player a rare fourth consecutive title.

Watson, who has won twice this year, currently holds the British Open title and was runner-up to Player at the Masters, may be the most dangerous.

He's giving indications he's regaining the form that made him the 1977 Player of the Year. He took a week off following the Tournament of Champions and spent the entire time working on his game. After a shaky start last week in New Orleans, he played well.

And he certainly has the desire.

Tech's Mock, Irons Drafted

Linebacker Mike Mock and offensive tackle Dan Irons Wednesday became the fourth and fifth Texas Tech players to be drafted by National Football League teams.

Mock was drafted by the New York Jets in the eighth round. The Jets had acquired the pick in a trade with Philadelphia. Irons was chosen in the 12th and final round by San Francisco.

Tuesday, the New York Giants had taken Tech running back Billy Taylor and defensive tackle Jim Krahl in the fourth and fifth rounds, respectively, while New Orleans tabbed cornerback Eric Felton in the fifth round.

Mock, a two-time all-Southwest Conference selection at linebacker, was surprised at his selection.

"Before the draft, I'd kind of figured that I would get drafted because Oakland, Dallas and Houston said that they had me on their draft list, and I had been to New York to get a physical from the Jets.

"But by this time, I was beginning to wonder some. Then someone called me and told me I was drafted, and I was stunned because they (the Jets) hadn't gotten in touch with me at the time.

"I'm glad to get the opportunity. I don't know what the Jets have exactly, but I just want to go up there and make the team.

Mock, a 6-1, 225-pounder, was voted the SWC's best linebacker by Texas Football magazine following the 1977 season.

Irons was quite surprised at his selection, since he missed nearly half of last season with a knee injury and will miss the next season because of a subsequent operation. He has had three knee operations since the spring of 1977.

"I told San Francisco that I was going to sit out a year, and I didn't think they'd draft me then," the 6-7, 260-pounder said, "but they called me Wednesday and said they were going to take a chance on me. I'm really surprised, but I'm pleased."

Irons, who made four All-America teams following the 1977 season despite his problems, said he will move to San Francisco this summer and undergo rehabilitation from 49er trainers for a full year.

Holmes Traded

NEW YORK (AP) — The Pittsburgh Steelers traded defensive tackle Ernie Holmes, once an integral part of their "Steel Curtain Line," to Tampa Bay for a pair of low-round draft choices Wednesday as the National Football League concluded its college draft.

Holmes, who had a couple of brushes with the law in recent seasons, and who acquired a bit of a "flake" image when he got a haircut in the shape of an arrow, was the biggest name mentioned as the seventh through 12th round unraveled at the draft.

To get the 6-foot-3½, 260-pounder, entering his seventh pro season, the Buccaneers gave up the 10th-round choice they previously had acquired from Oakland as well as their own 11th-round selection.

With those selections, the Steelers drafted Northern Arizona place-kicker Tom Jerich and Florida State defensive back Nat Terry.

The 12-round draft of 334 players was completed in 17 hours, 16 minutes. Seattle did not get one pick because it got an extra one a year ago in a supplemental draft, and Green Bay had one taken away because it conducted an illegal training camp.

The final player picked, by Dallas, was Montana LState guard Lee Washburn. In all, 180 offensive players, 140 defensive players and 14 specialists were taken. The most-picked players were defensive backs, 50. The school losing the most players was Florida with 10.

40 Teams Enter Qualifiers Meet

About 40 schools will have athletes competing in the Lubbock State Qualifiers Meet, to be held at Texas Tech's all-weather track Saturday.

And Lubbock Public Schools officials, who are sponsoring the meet, said entries would be accepted today. Officials plan to meet tonight to draw up heats and lane assignments.

Slaton will have John Johnson in the 100-yard dash, and its mile relay turned in a time of 3:21.0. Also among the latest entries was Abilene Cooper's Tim Prine, who cleared 15-6 in regional. Levelland's Jim Faulkner, who set a regional record of 15-0 at Odessa, will be in the field also.

The 440 has added Ronnie Huddleston of Clyde.

The mile relay will have the Fort Stockton unit which ran 3:17.7, along with Odessa Ector which finished second in that Class AAA race in 3:18.8.

Currently, entries have been received from Slaton, Abilene, Andrews, Rotan, Tahoka, Clyde, Klondike, Whiteface, Levelland, Seymour, Amherst, Crosbyton, Stamford, Wellington, Panhandle, Memphis, Crane, Gruver, Cooper, New Deal, Marfa, Cotton Center, Denver City, Pecos, Fort Stockton, Post, Lockney, Colorado City, Ector, Brownfield, Muleshoe, Farwell, Dimmitt, Lazbuddie, Spearman and the city high schools.

The meet will be held at the Tech track, with no preliminary competition. If more competitors are on hand than can be handled in one heat, a second heat will be added.

There will be no team points maintained.

Idalou Band Slates Junior Track Meet

Registration will begin at 9 a.m. and field events will start at 10, with running events to follow. The meet is limited to boys and girls between the ages of 3 and 12.

There will be a $1 entry fee per participant and will be five events in each age group. Ribbons will be awarded to the top six finishers in each heat and each race.

Chaparrals Ink Cage Recruits

Boston, a 6-4 forward, averaged 17 points and 14 rebounds a game last year for a 15-10 Gallup, N.M., squad.

The other newcomer is 6-2 guard Bruce Carver, who is transfering from Odessa College where he saw limited action this year. However, as a senior at Eunice, N.M., High School, Carver led the Land of Enchantment in scoring with a 33-points-per-game norm.

LCC's signees include three guards and two forwards. Previously, the Chaps had inked 5-11 guard Marshall Smith of Albuquerque Highland, 6-3 Bill McGee of Houston Lee and 6-4 forward Tony Hamby of Monterey.

Assistant cage coach Darrell Price indicated he hoped to conclude the basketball recruiting within the next 10 days by "signing a couple of big men."

City Bicycle Club To Sponsor Race

Competitive cyclists from all over the United States will gather at Buffalo Springs Lake for the 5th annual Lubbock Cycling Classic at 9 a.m. Sunday.

Tom Hutchinson, Jr., president of the Lubbock Bicycle Club, said, "The course is a twisting and undulating destroyer of competitive egos on which speeds of up to 50 mph are reached on the descents. Many bicycle racers have tested their prowess over this, the most difficult road racing course in this part of the country. Only the strong of heart return for more."

The primary function of the 1978 event, sponsored by the Lubbock club, is as a women's international development race. The best women racers in the country have been invited to Lubbock to contend for a generous prize list. Points will count toward the selection of the world team that will represent the U.S. abroad in the late summer.

Defending the colors of the Lubbock Bicycle Club will be such riders as Joyce Gimmell, the fastest woman cyclist in Texas; James Foster, who has only lost one race in the over 35 age bracket this year; sprint champion Doug Carr, international competitor Dave Mayer-Oakes, plus Tim Redus, Sean Miller, and Keith Burt.

The best vantage point for spectators will be at the start-finish line approximately one mile east of the entrance and on all of the hills. For more information contact Hutchinson at 793-5672.

Baseball Contests Postponed Again

Bad weather now owns a two-game lead this week on the District 4-AAAA baseball teams as the cold and wet climate forced postponements Wednesday for the second consecutive day.

The four teams will try to play their doubleheaders again today on Hub City diamonds at 2:30 p.m. Monterey seeks a second straight unbeaten district slate in its twin bill with Plainview at Lowrey Field. Lubbock High and Coronado battle consolation stakes in Mackenzie Park.

Option Seats Still Available

However, deadline for purchasing options on stadium seats this year is May 31, reported John Owens, who has headed up the option sales.

Tech officials reported that 81 percent of the $300 option seats in the stadium have been purchased since the new option program began in 1976. The $300 seats are all in chair-back areas between the 30-yard lines.

In the $200 option areas, more than 64 percent of the seats have been sold. These chair-back seats on the west side of the stadium are between the 10-and 30-yard lines and between the 45-yard lines on the east side of the stadium.

Options purchased this year will run for nine years, beginning with the 1978 football season. Persons interested in the option purchases can contact the Tech athletic office for additional details.

State Net Pairings Set

Prince To Pull Repeat?

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Sensitive Prince will be the only unbeaten colt in Saturday's Kentucky Derby and trainer Allen Jerkens is optimistic, in his low-key way, that the son of Majestic Prince still will be unvanquished after battling Affirmed, Alydar and seven other 3-year-olds.

Sensitive Prince has been lightly raced up to his bid for the Derby, winning all six of his starts — one last year — for the same record his sire carried into the 1969 Derby that he won after a thrilling duel with Arts and Letters and Dike.

Sensitive Prince's last race was the 1 1-16-mile Calumet Purse at Keeneland, which he won by 5¼ lengths in 1:444-5, on a good track. His final workout came Wednesday morning when he went seven furlongs in 1:274-5 under exercise rider Jimmy Rhodes.

"The boy said he went real well," said Jerkens. "I said, 'Don't kid me.' He said, 'I wouldn't kid you on something as important as this.'"

Sensitive Prince, owned by Top o' the Marc Stable, has raced only as far as 1 1-16 miles twice this year, winning the Fountain of Youth at Gulfstream Park in 1:41 and the Calumet Purse. In the Fountain of Youth he beat Wood Memorial winner Believe It by a head while carrying 114 pounds and getting eight pounds from Believe It.

Asked why Sensitive Prince had not run in any of the 1⅛-mile preps for the 1¼-mile Derby, Jerkens said, "There weren't any so that we could space them the way we wanted to."

Jerkens' training schedule for Sensitive Prince obviously has been shaped with more than just the Derby in mind. "We always want to be optimistic enough so that if he wins the Derby we could run him back in the Preakness (May 20)," he said.

Harbor View Farm's Affirmed also worked and made an excellent move while Calumet Farm's Alydar and Hickory Tree Stable's Believe galloped.

With exercise rider Jose Ithier up, Affirmed went five-eighths of a mile in 59 seconds after a half mile in 47 1-5 and galloped out three-quarters in 1:124-5.

"The decision was made to work today because now he can rest tomorrow and come back and gallop Friday," said Laz Barrera, the trainer of the Santa Anita and Hollywood Derby winner.

Jockey Killed At Pimlico

BALTIMORE (AP) — One jockey was killed and two others were injured Wednesday in a spill at Pimlico Race Course. One of four horses involved in the accident had to be destroyed, authorities said.

Robert Pineda, 25, the jockey on Easter Bunny Mine in the second race, was pronounced dead at Sinai Hospital of "multiple internal injuries," a hospital spokeswoman said.

"He was kicked in the head and was bleeding through the ears and his mouth," said John DiNatale, Easter Bunny Mine's trainer. "There was a crease dented into his helmet."

Pineda's brother, Alvaro Pineda, was killed in a similar spill at Santa Anita in California several years ago, Jeffrey Weisman, a track spokesman said.

Rudy Turcotte, the jockey on Easy Edith, was in stable condition with a fractured collar bone, according to the spokeswoman, who asked not to be identified.

The third jockey, James Thornton, was also hospitalized at Sinai, but his condition was withheld until his family could be notified. The spokeswoman would say only that he was alive.

Jockey F.W. Kratz, who was also involved in the spill, was not hospitalized.

A track spokesman said the accident took place in the second race as the field was rounding the turn for home.

Alydar Trainer Recalls Tim Tam

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Alydar, the Kentucky Derby favorite, reminds Jimmy Jones a lot of another horse from the Calumet stable he saddled for a victory 20 years ago.

"Got the same characteristics as Tim Tam," said the former trainer who with father Ben Jones guided Calumet's racing fortunes from 1939 through 1964.

"Tim Tam didn't slug you out with a big burst, but he always found a way to win. I remember he used to win races by heads and noses. I said this sucker is just lucky. After a while, I came to the conclusion he wasn't lucky. He was just smart. He was a pro.

"That's the way I feel about Alydar. Doesn't overpower you. Doesn't look sensational. He just gets to the wire firlt."

Tim Tam won the Derby in 1958, one of eight thoroughbreds flying the devil red silks of Calumet to capture this most prestigious of all horse races. The first was Whirlaway back in 1941, the last was Forward Pass in 1968 when Dancer's Image was forced to forfeit his purse because of the controversial Butasolidin (drug medication) incident.

"This is the finest Derby field in many years," Jones acknowledged Wednesday as activity intensified around the Churchill Downs barns. "At least four, maybe more, top-flight horses, all primed and ready. Not a hair out of place. All the trainers confident."

Besides Alydar and Affirmed, who battled for 2-year-old honors in 1977 and dominated the 3-year-old campaign this spring from opposite coasts, strong contenders include undefeated Sensitive Prince, who raced only once as a 2-year-old, and fast-coming Believe It, winner of the Wood Memorial.

Rounding out the field are Chief of Dixieland, Hoist the Silver, Esops Foibles, Dr. Valeri, Derby Creek Road and Raymond Earl, all rated as outsiders.

"Both were fantastic mares," he said. "I remember Real Delight. She was crippled with arthritis. I'd look at her and she'd come out with steam and somehow manage to win.

"I never knew exactly how. But she did it. Pure guts, I guess. Blue Delight was the same way. Methodical, professional — they are the words for it."

Ask Jimmy Jones to name the greatest race horse he ever saddled — or saw — and it's like throwing a switch on an electric scoreboard.

"No question," he booms, "Citation. He could do anything and everything. Other great horses have had to have certain conditions. Secretariat, for instance, needed a hard, firm race track.

"Citation — that horse didn't give a damn what he ran on. It could be railroad tracks as far as he was concerned. And he could win with me on his back. There, gentlemen, was a horse."

Ron Lyle To Fight Robinson June 3

Lyle, who hasn't fought since his victory over Stan Ward in September 1977, has agreed to fight Howard "Big City" Robinson at the Denver Auditorium Arena.

A Las Vegas bout against Larry Holmes was cancelled by the American Broadcasting Company in February.

Lyle, 36, is free on $10,000 bond on charges of first-and second-degree murder in connection with the New Year's Eve shooting death of Vernon Clark, his former employee.

Atty. Walter Gerash has said Lyle will plead innocent at a hearing next Wednesday, claiming self-defense.

Rabbit Maranville, a member of the Baseball Hall of Fame, used to catch pop flies with both hands against his chest. He called that a vest pocket catch.

Steinbrenner-Kubek Dispute Affects TV Coverage

NEW YORK (AP) — A dispute between New York Yankee owner George Steinbrenner and NBC broadcaster Tony Kubek has affected the network's baseball coverage in at least one instance, it was learned Wednesday.

Steinbrenner took exception to an article which appeared in the Fort Lauderdale News during spring training. Kubek, who was quoted as comparing Steinbrenner with Oakland's controversial owner Charles Finley, said in the article that the Yankee owner manipulates people and makes the players fear for their jobs.

Steinbrenner made copies of the article and mailed them to major league owners with the postscript: "How's this for the mouth that bites the hand that feeds it?"

Steinbrenner also sent notes to NBC executives and complained to the baseball commissioner's office. And when Kubek went to Texas the day before NBC's opening "Game of the Week" telecast to do some taped interviews, he was prevented from talking to the Yankee players.

This was accomplished, according to baseball and network sources, when Steinbrenner told a Yankee employee that he should instruct each player individually not to talk to Kubek. If a player did talk to Kubek, Steinbrenner reportedly said, the Yankee employee would be fired.

The result was that Kubek did not interview any Yankees even though several players pointedly asked to be interviewed in defiance of the owner.

Steinbrenner, speaking by phone from Tampa Wednesday, said that he was disappointed with Kubek's comments because "I thought we were pretty good friends." But he denied that he tmld any Yankee player not to speak with Kubek.

"They didn't get it from me," he said. "I may have intimated to (Manager) Billy Martin that if that's the way Tony feels about me, how does he expect me to feel about him? And Billy said he agreed with me. I got a call from Joe Garagiola and he told me the players were not cooperating. And I said 'Hey, if Tony and I have a problem you may be better suited to do the interviews.'"

A club spokesman in the publicity department also denied the report.

But Kubek, Chet Simmons, president of NBC Sports, and Tom Villante of the commissioner's office confirmed that Kubek had been prevented from interviewing the players.

"From what I understand, Joe took care of the interviews and Tony walked away from it," said Simmons. "I think Tony did the right thing. After that we have not had any kind of situation. I have talked with George and everything is fine."

The commissioner's office got Steinbrenner and Simmons together recently for lunch to iron out their problems, Villante said.

"NBC's position was that Kubek was speaking as a private citizen and did not do it on the airwaves. George knows that we have consultation rights with the networks regarding announcers but that's it. He knows we don't have any control over the announcers."

Steinbrenner said he was upset with the article because he considered it an unwarranted attack on owners in general and him in particular. He added that "never once during the luncheon did they (NBC) complain about Kubek not getting an interview.

"I just didn't think it was right for a man who spent his life in the game to say those things. I guess if the guy really feels that way he should say what he thinks. But he should have been man enough to come to me first."

"I said some things in the article about Steinbrenner," said Kubek by phone from his Wisconsin home. "I said he's got an expensive toy and he won't let anyone enjoy it. I said the turmoil on the Yankees is not over, it's going to resurface.

"This should be a personal thing between George and me but he's trying to make it George against the network. He likes to be the eye of the hurricane. He should have had to integrity to call me directly. But he chose to take another route. He sent notes with the article attatched to all the owners and to the people at NBC.

"But this is typical of George," Kubek added. "He likes to use people as pawns, to manipulate them. You'd think with all the other problems he's got — books being audited, some players don't want to play for him, a sore-armed pitching staff in some respects — he'd be too busy to bother with me.

"I'd be happy to talk to Mr. Steinbrenner about it but I wish he'd keep NBC out of it."

Kubek says he has been told by some NBC technicians that they have had some problems at Yankee Stadium as a result of his dispute with Steinbrenner, but the Yankee owner, Simmons and an NBC technician all deny the charge.

Kubek says he has gotten some backing from NBC but he fears that he could be vulnerable when the networks begin serious negotiations with baseball over a new TV contract. The current deal on both NBC and ABC, as well as Kubek's contract, runs out after the 1979 season.

"If he can have influence on the other owners, my job may be at stake," said Kubek. "There are millions of dollars at stake. Maybe I'm being paranoid but if he's starting a blackball procedure I certainly want to have something to say about it, not just for me but for the cause of journalistic integrity."

Steinbrenner said he considers the incident "water over the dam" and he denies absolutely that he has any designs on Kubek's job.

"I would never do that," he said. "I would never go after a man's job. I couldn't care less about Kubek's job.

"I was just upset at the time. I couldn't understand why he would take a shot at me. As far as I'm concerned, it's over."

Aeros Fire Staffers

HOUSTON (AP) — The World Hockey Association Houston Aeros fired all but three members of their front office staff Wednesday in a move described by an Aeros official as a holding pattern for a possible move into the National Hockey League.

Coach Bill Dineen, assistant coach Jack Stanfield and officer manager Jennifer Hyde are all that remain of the office staff.

"When you've lost $2 million running a team during the season you don't want people sitting around with nothing to do," said Burrell Cohen, chief operating officer of the Arena Operating Company.

Arena Operating Company operates the Summit and is owned by Kenneth Schnitzer, Aeros chairman of the board.

"All we've really done is reduce our staff until we have a better idea of what the future of hockey is in Houston," Cohen said. "We kept all the people that have something to do."

Cohen said the staff was dismissed Wednesday because there was nothing for them to do until the Aeros owners know if their 30-day campaign to sell 7,000 season tickets is successful.

Schnitzer's ticket drive ends at midnight Thursday and if 7,000 season tickets aren't confirmed, he plans to discontinue efforts to obtain an NHL franchise for Houston.

Dismissal of the staff came hours after Aeros President Harrison Vickers resigned his post Tuesday night. Vickers allegedly was to be retained by the Aeros.

Vickers would only say he resigned because he had philosophical differences with the owners but sources said he disliked being retained when the rest of the staff was being fired.

Since the NHL has no plans for expansion, Schnitzer hopes to purchase an existing NHL franchise and move it to Houston.

Lopez, Stacy Lead Field

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Two of the tour's youngest players, Nancy Lopez and Hollis Stacy, are considered the women to beat in the $80,000 Women's International Golf Tournament beginning today.

Miss Lopez, 21, of Roswell, N.M., is the only pro to win two tournaments this year and is the leading money winner with a $54,756 total. She had consecutive victories in the Bent Tree and Sunstar classics, and did not enter last week's Lady Tara after finishing well back in two previous tournaments.

Miss Stacy, 24, from nearby Savannah, Ga., winner last year of the U.S. Open, captured first place outright at the Birmingham Classic, then tied for first in the American Defender and Lady Tara, losing both in sudden death playoffs. She is sixth in earnings with $31,095.

A somewhat smaller but still elite field is entered in the third annual Women's International, played over the Devil's Elbow course at Moss Creek Plantation. The layout will play at 6,100 yards and the winner will pocket $12,000.

The field includes winners of every women's Professional Golf Association tournament in 1977 and thus far in 1978 with the exception of Chako Higuchi, winner of both the U.S. and Japanese LPGA championships last year.

A late entry is Janet Coles, who was extended an invitation by virtue of her victory last week in the Lady Tara. Forced to withdraw because of injury or illness were Sandra Post, JoAnn Washam and Joanne Carner.

Zisk Powers Texas Past Orioles

By The Associated Press

Richie Zisk drove in both Texas runs with sixth-inning double and an eighth-inning single, giving the Rangers a 2-1 victory over the Baltimore Orioles behind the three-hit pitching of Doyle Alexander Wednesday night.

The victory was the seventh straight for the hot Rangers.

DODGERS 9, CUBS 5

Reggie Smith had a triple, a double, two singles and three runs batted in and Rick Monday slugged his ninth homer and doubled in another run, leading Los Angeles to a victory over Chicago.

Monday homered in the second inning for the Dodgers, who snapped a three-game losing streak, but the Cubs took the lead in the bottom of the second on Dave Kingman's third homer after Steve Ontiveros had singled.

Monday doubled in a run in the fifth to tie it, then the Cubs went on top 4-2 in the bottom of the fifth on a run-scoring single by Heity Cruz and a sacrifice fly by Ontiveros.

The Dodgers took the lead in the sixth with three runs on a walk, a bunt single by Bill Russell, run-scoring singles by Smith and Ron Cey and a fielder's choice RBI by Steve Garvey, who had his 21-game hitting streak stopped. Garvey also had a sacrifice fly.

Relief pitcher Charlie Hough singled to open the Dodger seventh and scored on Smith's triple. Hough also doubled home a run in the eighth after Monday had singled, and Smith hit an RBI double in the ninth.

Winner Doug Rau, 4-0, started for the Dodgers and worked five innings. Ray Burris, 2-1, was the loser.

YANKEES 6, ROYALS 5

Graig Nettles' solo home run with two out in the eighth inning gave New York victory over Kansas City in a slugfest that featured three homers by each team.

Jim Spencer and Reggie Jackson also homered for the Yankees while Amos Otis, Clint Hurdle and Al Cowens connected for Kansas City.

Nettles' second homer of the season came off starter Dennis Leonard, 3-4. It struck the facade of the third deck in right field and enabled the Yankees to sweep a three-game series from their American League playoff rivals the last two years.

It also made a winner of Ed Figueroa, 4-1, who yielded 10 hits in eight innings but still came away with only his second triumph in eight career decisions with the Royals.

Cowens tagged Figueroa for a game-tying home run with one out in the top of the eighth but Figueroa retired the next two batters. He gave way to Rich Gossage in the ninth. Gossage retired the Royals in order in the ninth, striking out two batters.

BREWERS 4, WHITE SOX 0

Rookie Paul Molitor hit a two-run double and scored in the seventh inning and Jerry Augustine fired a three-hitter, leading Milwaukee to a victory over Chicago.

REDS 12, PHILLIES 3

Pete Rose, with two hits, moved within two of the 3,000-hit mark for his career and Fred Norman won his fourth straight game as Cincinnati belted Philadelphia.

Rose, 37, is on the verge of becoming the 13th player in major league history to reach the presitigious plateau. He can achieve the milestone at Riverfront Stadium Friday night against the Montreal Expos.

Norman, 4-0, spotted the Phils a 3-0 first-inning lead, then settled down to boost his career record at Riverfront to 42-17. Backed by a 15-hit attack, Norman scattered six hits before leaving the game in the eighth inning. Manny Sarmiento pitched the eighth and Doug Bair the ninth.

EXPOS 10, ASTROS 3

Ross Grimsley pitched his fifth consecutive victory and Gary Carter drove in five runs with a grand slam home run and a double as Montreal downed Houston.

Grimsley, voted the National League's Pitcher of the Month for April, gave up a two-run home run to Cesar Cedeno in the third inning and a run-scoring single to Bob Watson in the seventh but had little other trouble as he scattered 11 hits, walked four and struck out three.

Carter, who hit 31 homers last season, 22 of them with the bases empty, slammed a grand slam off Houston starter J.R. Richard, 1-3, in the third inning to give Montreal an 8-2 lead.

Grimsley and Warren Cromartie singled and Dave Cash walked to load the bases. Andre Dawson struck out before Carter hit a 3-1 pitch over the wall in left-center for his third homer of the season.

PADRES 7, PIRATES 5

Bibby, who also yielded a two-run, pinch-hit homer to Jerry Turner that tied the score at 5-5 in the sixth, opened the seventh by walking Gene Richards.

After Richards stole second, Ozzie Smith laid down a sacrifice bunt. Bibby fielded the ball but threw wildly past third, allowing Richards to score and Smith to reach second.

GIANTS 4, CARDS 0

Jim Barr continued his mastery over St. Louis with a five-hit shutout and Larry Herndon tripled home two runs, scored another and stole two bases as the San Francisco Giants posted a 4-0 victory over the Cards in a rain-delayed game.

Barr, 2-3, is 10-3 lifetime against the Cardinals.

The Giants, batting only .218 as a team, scored three runs in the first inning off St. Louis starter Eric Rasmussen, 2-3, highlighted by Herndon two-run triple.

Terry Whitfield began the game with a single, went to third on an infield hit by Rob Andrews and scored on a sacrifice fly by Darrell Evans. After Willie McCovey lined out, Jack Clark singled and Herndon sent Andrews and Clark home with his triple up the gap in right-center.

The Giants added another run in the fourth inning when Herndon opened with a single. After a 32-minute rain delay, Herndon stole second. Marc Hill walked, Johnnie LeMaster sacrificed the runners and Barr helped his own cause with a single to score Herndon.

RED SOX 11, TWINS 9

Fred Lynn drilled three hits, including a tie-breaking two-run single in the sixth inning, to lead Boston to a victory over Minnesota.

Lynn, who singled home a run in the second and had a double wasted in the fifth, took advantage of a Minnesota shift for his third hit. With the bases loaded, and shortstop Roy Smalley playing almost behind second base, Lynn steered a ground single through the vacant hole at short, driving in two runs.

Boston completed a five-run sixth as another run came across when Butch Hobson struck out but catcher Butch Wynegar was unable to handle the pitch for a passed ball.

Levelland Dribblers Advance

LEVELLAND (Special)—Action concluded late Wednesday night in the first round of the National Little Dribblers Tournament at the Texan Dome on the campus of South Plains College.

Action will begin at 8 a.m. today in the second round of the tournament, which runs through Saturday.

In Senior Division play Wednesday, Levelland topped Welch, La., 54-22, while Hobbs, N.M., ran over Mid-Cities (Tex.) 79-35 and Mercer Island, Wash., defeated Bovina 68-25.

In the American Major division, Fairfield defeated New Baden, Ill., 37-34; Willcox, Ariz., topped Holcolmb, Kan., 43-12; Hale Center tripped Benton, La., 32-27; and Fairfield downed Willcox 36-25.

In the National Major division, Bryan downed Conway, Ark., 52-27; Wichita, Kan., topped Minneapolis 35-27; North Bellevue, Wash., defeated Corpus Christi 40-26; and Hobbs rapped Levelland 45-30.

SWC Tourney Among Topics

The spring meeting will be held here, although in the past, it was usually held in connection with the spring athletic meets. However, the tennis, track and golf meets have been separated to different cities, and the business meetings were scheduled for a different weekend from the athletic contests.

A light SWC agenda is expected, with some of the routine matters to be discussed including a revision of the SWC constitution and by-laws to coincide with the NCAA guidelines, where the NCAA has changed its rules at the winter meeting.

Philadelphia Edges Past Washington

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Substitute Steve Mix scored 15 of his 22 points in the second half as the Philadelphia 76ers rallied to beat the Washington Bullets 110-104 Wednesday night to even their National Basketball Association Eastern Conference final playoff series at one game apiece.

Wayland's Weese Named Top Coach

PLAINVIEW (Special)—Dean Weese, coach of the Wayland Baptist Flying Queens, was recently named coach of the year by the Texas Association of Basketball Coaches, for the second time in three years.

At Wayland's athletic banquet Tuesday night, Jill Rankin was named most valuable Queen, while Carl Burson Sr. was named most valuable Pioneer.

Other awards went to Steve Partridge, track; Leann Waddell and Rick Reimer, scholastic; Daryl Reimer, cross country; Kathy Harston, Queens leadership; Burson, most proficient; and Gene Strickland and Valerie Goodwin, free throws.

Nuggets Rip Bucks, Win Playoff Series

DENVER (AP) — David Thompson tossed in 37 points and Anthony Roberts added 26, including two key baskets at the end of fast breaks late in the game, and the Denver Nuggets held off a Milwaukee rally to defeat the Bucks 116-110 Wednesday night and win their National Basketball Association playoff series.

The Nuggets, who once led the best-of-seven series 3-1 before Milwaukee rebounded to square it at 3-3 and force a seventh game, now advance to the Western Conference finals against the Seattle SuperSonics. That series begins here Friday night.

Thompson, responding to the pressure with his best performance of the playoffs, hit nine of 13 shots from the floor in the first half, scoring 22 points as Denver moved to a 66-56 halftime edge.

Denver remained in control early in the third quarter as Roberts scored eight of the Nuggets' first 12 points in the period. Thompson three-point play at the end of the quarter put Denver ahead 95-81.

But the Bucks, as they did in Game 5 here, staged a furious fourth-quarter rally. After Thompson's basket put Denver ahead by 16 to open the final quarter, Milwaukee scored nine straight points, five of them by guard Brian Winters, to pull within seven at 97-90 with 8:35 left.

Two medium-range jumpers by Thompson kept the Bucks at bay before Milwaukee scored eight of the next nine points. Winters' long jumper made it 106-102 with 3:33 left.

Thompson's 15-footer was offset by a Winters' bucket, but Roberts then hit a stuff shot off a fast break for a 110-104 lead. Seconds later, Roberts hauled in Bobby Jones' long lead pass and scored on a layup. He was fouled on the play and his free throw seemingly put Denver comfortably ahead 113-104.

Possibility Of Price Pressure Discussed By Cotton Growers

By KETH HENLEY
Avalanche-Journal Farm Writer

The possibility of "strong price pressure" on 1978-crop High Plains cotton from competing growths was raised at the 21st annual meeting of the Plains Cotton Growers, Inc. (PCG) here Wednesday at the Southpark Inn.

John McNutt, director of international marketing for Cotton Inc. in New York, noted that consumer demand for textiles in Western Europe and Japan currently is "extremely low" and that demand for cotton in 1979 is not expected to significantly improve.

Cotton consumption likely will be close to the same level as it was in 1977, he said, and competing producers of short staple cotton — mainly Russia, Turkey, Pakistan and Argentina — probably will turnout about the same quantities of cotton this year as they did the year before.

"Consequently, with a good supply of short staple cotton and without an increase in demand, we may be under some strong price pressure," said McNutt.

One solution, he noted, however, would be the production of superior strength fiber, particularly in light of the current emphasis on open-end spinning.

The relatively new technique in some instances produces a stronger yarn at a lower production cost with a short staple fiber than the traditional ring frame can spin with a longer staple type.

McNutt said there are approximately 1 million open-end rotors in operation in the free world, consuming almost 3 million bales of cotton each year.

Almost 45 percent are in Western Europe, 20 percent in Japan, 20 percent in the United States and the remaining 15 percent in other Far Eastern countries.

Certain cottons grown on the High Plains produce high-strength fiber, the Cotton Inc. official noted, which will perform best for mills with open-end equipment.

"As as the mills become more familiar with this fact, these cottons will be more desired and therefore more salable," said McNutt. "Eventually, these high-strength varieties should command a nice premium."

Lloyd Cline of Lamesa, PCG president, told the almost 400 cotton producers and agribusinessmen that the challenge is ahead of them.

"We have before us the opportunity to greatly enhance both volume and profitability of our product sales by aggressively pursuing the market for cotton to be used on the fast-growing, open-end spinning system," he said.

Officers of the 25-county, Lubbock-based organization were re-elected by the board following the membership meeting.

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

ABOUT 2,123 LUBBOCK COUNTY FARMS with 447,715 acres of cropland have signed intentions to participate in the 1978 federal farm program.

They have indicated intentions to plant 286,572 acres of cotton, about 64 percent of the cropland. About 300 farms haven't signed up.

The indicated cotton diversion on the signed farms is 21,385 acres, almost 8 percent of the intended acres. Most farms are signing up for the 10 percent diversion but the signup isn't binding. With adequate planting rains, more cotton probably would be planted.

Lubbock County farmers also have indicated they plan to have 7,764 acres of wheat for harvest. There is a 20 percent set-aside on wheat.

The signup shows intentions to plant 25,648 acres of grain sorghum with only 425 acres of voluntary set-aside. It also shows intentions to plant 3,401 acres of corn with only 134 acres of voluntary set-aside. The county last year had 11,150 acres of corn.

NATIONALLY, BY THE END OF APRIL, a total of 666,490 farms representing nearly half of the wheat and feed grain acreage in the country had been signed up for the set-aside program.

The USDA reported this week that the farms which have signed up so far constitute about 30 percent of the wheat and feed grain farms in the United States. But those farmers account for 44.9 percent of the normal crop acreage devoted to wheat and feed grains.

The administration considers the set-aside program critical to alleviating the large carryover stocks of wheat and feed grains that have pushed market prices down and caused the current "bust" cycle for American farmers.

The signup period began March 1 and will continue through May 15.

Signed farms have designated as set-aside acreage a total of 9,703,873 acres of cropland, including 5,876,522 acres of wheat and 3,827,351 acres of feed grain. The feed grain set-aside includes 2,755,891 acres of corn, 627,000 acres of sorghum, and 444,390 acres of barley.

SIGNED UP FARMS INTEND TO PLANT 29,382,609 acres of wheat and 38,273,513 acres of feed grains. The participating farms have 120,342,050 acres of the 268,246,692 acres normally devoted to those crops.

Participation in the set-aside program is voluntary, but farmers must participate to be eligible for price support loans, disaster payments or target price payments.

Although a farmer must sign up and comply with set-aside provisions to be eligible for program benefits, they will not be locked into the planting intentions they specify initially. Final figures will be available only after farmers officially certify their acreage later in the year.

Statewide in Texas, 57,418 farms have signed up to set-aside 422,605 acres of wheat and 276,444 acres of feed grains.

Most Contracts Record New Highs For Season

By Reuters

CHICAGO — Cattle futures ended two to 35 points higher Wednesday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange.

June, which was up 67 points early in the session, led the advance. Sales totaled 22,060 cars.

The market was steady to higher all day and climbed to new highs for the season in most contracts.

The June contract ran up to 54.45, highest since 1975, under aggressive local and commission house short covering and other buying. Light cattle supplies brought support even though beef fell to a three-week low and the pork complex weakened.

Wholesale beef was off one cent at 81 3/4 cents a pound for all weights, a three-week low. The six markets expect 11,700 head today.

Cash cattle were off 50 cents to up 25 cents, with the best top at $56 per hundredweight, equal to the high since September 1975. The Omaha top was $55. Slaughter was 142,000 head.

Hog futures skidded to new lows of the day in late trade and ended 60 points lower to 25 points higher on sales of 8,171 cars. Nearby June was the weakest after pacing the early gain of 75 points. Both nearbys set new highs.

Late profit-taking was traced primarily to the sharp premium of futures to cash. Overshadowed was the five-weedk high in cash hams and higher cash hogs, despite increased arrivals.

Wholesale hams were up one to two cents at 72 to 75 cents a pound, f.o.b. river, a five-week high. The six markets expect 28,500 head today.

Cash hogs were up 25 cents to $1.50 with the best top at $50.50 per hundredweight, a seven-week high. Slaughter was 285,000 head.

Pork belly (bacon) futures tumbled 110 to 200 points, led by July at the limit, on sales of 6,782 cars. The market collapsed after early gains of 127 points to two-week highs on aggressive short covering and other buying.

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Corn futures edged a shade higher, wheat prices dipped slightly and soybeans finished mixed on the Chicago Board of Trade Wednesday.

The overriding factors continued to be clear weather that allowed Midwestern farmers to catch up with delayed spring planting and rains in the Southwest that benefited winter wheat crops.

But farmers sold limited amounts of grains, partly because of their preoccupation with fieldwork, and that removed some of the pressure from corn and soybeans.

Cotton Futures

NEW YORK (AP) — Cotton futures No. 2 closed 15 cents to $1.25 a bale higher Wednesday.

HIGH PLAINS COTTON
U. S. Department of Agriculture

Trading was moderate Wednesday in the Lubbock cotton market.

Supplies of cotton for sale were heavy and demand was moderate. High Plains growers sold mixed lots at 700 to 1,100 points over loan rates.

The Lubbock Cotton Exchange's spot quotations held steady. The base price of grade 41, staple 34, micronaire 3.5-4.9, was quoted at 52.60 cents, even with a week ago.

LUBBOCK SPOT COTTON

Quotations are the approximate prices reported to the Agricultural Marketing Service for qualities equal to the U.S. Official Grade and Staple Standards. Prices are for micronaire (mike) readings of 3.5 through 4.9, in mixed lots, uncompressed, free of all charges in the warehouse in the market.

Handicapped Scouts Protest Rule

NORTH BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP) — Steven Cerbasi and Frank Burrell, Boy Scouts who have muscular dystrophy, wanted to be Eagle Scouts. So their scoutmaster tried to work out a way: instead of hikes and endurance tests, they took and passed oral tests.

But the Boy Scouts of America then said they can't be Eagle Scouts after all — and now the national headquarters is adamant about denying them the special rank.

"You can't say tell me, when the book states show me," spokesman Thomas Dew summed up the rules Wednesday at national Boy Scout headquarters here.

Dew said it is possible the organization will wind up creating special badges for handicapped teen-agers instead — "one of several ideas" to revise policy. But even if adopted, that won't satisfy the two handicapped youths' scoutmaster, 76-year-old Edward Mattern.

Standard requirements to become an Eagle scout include planning and making five 10-mile hikes and a 20-mile hike.

But Mattern said Cerbasi and Burrell, residents of a special Toms River, N.J., home, were physically unable to do that kind of thing. And they are not the only ones about whom protests have been lodged.

Mattern also wants Eagle badges given to the families of two other handicapped boys who died during a long controversy about the awards.

Dew said scout headquarters has also received hundreds of letters protesting a ruling against an Eagle award for Gregory Wittine, a Long Island cerebral palsy victim who completed a 10-mile hike requirement on his hands and knees and in a wheelchair.

He was ruled ineligible because he is 23 and the cutoff age is 18.

Meanwhile, several Eagle Scouts have written national headquarters and said they would turn in their badbes if the handicapped boys do not get awards, Dew said Tuesday. But one Eagle Scout with cerebral palsy has written saying he is against any changes, he added.

Boys with one degree or another of mental or physical handicap comprise some 60,000 of the 1.2 million boys in scouting, according to Russell Bufkins, public relations director for Boy Scouts of America.

Bufkins said most of them are scattered through regular troops, but 813 special units have been set up.

But creating special awards may be contrary to policy, Dew said.

"We have the advice of a committee on handicapped that says mainline them" — give them a normal program — he said.

Mattern says an official manual, "Scouting for the Physically Handicapped," permits scoutmasters to substitute oral tests for dexterity tests, and "That's exactly what I did."

Dew, however, said the manual warns leaders not to be oversolicitous of the handicapped and said the language on substitutions is:

"There are no substitutions authorized as stated in the requirements. Flexibility is brought into the advancement plan so that many obstacles to the fulfillment of the requirments may be overcome through imagination and ingenuity."

Dew said "flexibility" includes substituting emergency preparedness for life saving, and personal fitness for sports. But he added that rules for merit badges specify: "A scout is expected to meet the requirements as stated — no more and no less ... Just telling about it isn't enough."

Dew defended the difficult Eagle requirements, noting only 2 percent of non-handicapped scouts make the grade. He said it may also be difficult for handicapped scouts to achieve Life and Star ranks, the second and third highest orders. Both also require endurance tests.

But he said the Boy Scouts want to encourage the handicapped.

"We wouldn't have an advisory committee on the handicapped if we didn't want them. We think they can benefit — and bring something to scouting," Dew said.

Older Texans Day Slated For May 17

The South Plains Advisory Council on Aging and the staff of the South Plai.s Association of Governments will sponsor a Special Recognition Day May 17 to honor local senior citizens.

The day is part of Older Texans month, designated as the month of May by Gov. Dolph Briscoe.

The senior citizens' day will begin at 9:30 a.m. at the Fair Park Coliseum and all South Plains area senior citizens are invited to participate.

Activites will include an old fashioned "dinner on the ground," outstanding senior citizens awards and a senior olympics.

The senior olympics will be sponsored in part by State Savings of Lubbock in cooperation with the Office on Aging and Action Programs RSVP and Foster Grandparents. Registration can be completed through local senior citizens centers.

Older citizens of the South Plains counties, with their families and friends, are invited to bring their basket lunch and take part in the day's activites which are scheduled to run to 2:30 p.m.

Man Called Too Short To Become Firefighter

EAST PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — A man who was not allowed to become a firefighter because he is less than 5 feet 6 inches tall has charged in U.S. District Court that his consitutional rights were violated.

Bruce W. Dias, 19, said he was forced to take off his sneakers and stand against a wall to be measured. Dias says firefighters do not fight fires without footwear, and the height test should be disallowed.

Show Tries To Reflect Society

NEW YORK (AP) — To characterize Jayne Adair as enthusiastic about "Studio See" hardly states the case.

"In some ways, I think if people watch 'Studio See' 25 years from now," says TV program's 29-year-old producer, "they're going to know a lot more about the way society was today than by reading the headlines in the New York Times."

Miss Adair was in New York City with her crew from Columbia, S.C., preparing for a second season of "Studio See" on Public Broadcasting Service stations.

The New York trip was, in a sense, a tame one for the "Studio See" people. Indeed, they'd chased bear in Alaska, stood ground in the face of stampeding ponies in Virginia, recorded a grain harvest in Iowa from inside a tractor's hydraulic scoop.

Says Miss Adair, "The program has developed a reputation in going places people never thought video could go." The program, in fact, is totally portable — everything is shot with three-quarter inch video equipment instead of on film, all out of the studio, all on location.

"Studio See" is shown in many areas on Sundays.

"Studio See," produced by the South Carolina Educational Television Network, is a magazine-type program for young people between 10 and 15. There is no regular cast — the stars are the kids the show tries to reach.

"The big problem for kids in this age group," says Miss Adair, "is self-identity. They find this by getting into an activity that creates a dialectic with other people.

Thus the report on three California teen-agers with their own cookie business. Or the visit with kids from New Orleans who'd begun a jazz band. Or the trip to Pennsylvania to find out what it's like to be a kid in a circus.

Each episode — 26 this season, 26 in preparation for next — is divided into segments, and attention is given to a mix in geography and subject.

The recent New York trip was for work on four stories, one involving the teenage son of Marie Winn. Mrs. Winn's book, "The Plug-in Drug," argues that television-watching itself, rather than program content, is what damages child development and family relations.

The young man teaches a crossword puzzle course at New York's New School for Social Research.

"Doing this segment," says Miss Adair, "is like saying not everybody watches four to six hours of television every day. There are all sorts of alternatives other than television that are more fun to them than TV."

In a way, the Winn segment is atypical for "Studio See." "It's our feeling," she says, "that any kid from anywhere and essentially any activity is worthy of our encouragement."

The "Studio See" crew, for example, recorded action in the city's double-dutch jumprope competition while on the same trip.

Ideas come from all sources. "We clip a lot of newspapers and magazines," says Miss Adair, "and kids and adults write to us a lot.

"It's really great to call a kid who's written and say, 'Hi, I'm Jayne Adair.' They just flip out because most of them never expect to hear from us."

Here's the zinger: The upcoming season probably will be "Studio See's" last. Stations in the PBS network who bid on programs each spring did not pick up the South Carolina show for the 1979-80 season. "The outlook for children's programming on public television is dismal," says Miss Adair.

Atlantic City Braces For Casino Debut

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Resorts International Hotel Casino is booked solid through Labor Day weekened as operators prepare to open the first legal casino here late this month.

The 798 rooms in the hotel are booked into fall with prices depending on room size and view, said manager Anthony Rey. Prices of enlarged and renovated rooms at the hotel jumped 25 to 30 percent Monday to reflect the coming casino era, Rey said.

"We've just be inundated with reservations," he said. "We've been full for certain times in the past, but never have we been full so far in advance."

Last week, Resorts officials began refusing telephone reservations and told callers to submit written "requests." But Rey said the hotel soon may discourage the written requests and instead suggest that callers get back in touch two weeks before they plan to come.

Almost 60 percent of the rooms will be occupied by conventions and other groups, with the balance going to families and individuals, Rey said. The number is down from the 75 to 80 percent of rooms reserved by winter conventions, a figure the hotel plans to reduce permanently to make more room for gamblers.

The rates for rooms in Resorts' main building, the former Haddon Hall, will range from $65 to $100 a night. Prices in the 237 rooms in the Chalfonte building across North Carolina Avenue will range from $40 to $60 a night, Rey said. An oceanfront room that once cost $65 a night will now go for $100, he said.

He said hotel officials are devising a "traffic control" system to prevent congestion in the lobbies and the 37,000-square-foot casinos.

There is space for about 800 gamblers at any given time, but Rey estimated nearly 3,000 sightseers might fill the casino at times.

Coronado Slates 'Senior Kid Day'

May 12 has been set for Coronado High School's annual "Senior Kid Day," roughly translated by one CHS senior as "just one last day to be crazy before we graduate."

"Mr. Muscles and Miss Venus," the male and female students who best fit those roles respectively will also be honored.

Dr. Joyce Brothers Dependent On Media To Transmit Advice

She once flew back and forth between California and New York three times in three days to spend evenings with her husband.

"I may be a psychologist but I'm still a woman," she said during a recent interview, holding up a compact mirror to straighten her hair and freshen her makeup as a photographer waited.

And when it was suggested flying cross-country to be with her husband was not very liberated, she replied, "It's not liberated or unliberated. It's something that pleases me to do."

That's one reason the Aerosol Packaging Council of the Chemical Specialties Manufacturers Association recently hired her as a consultant, at what Dr. Brothers calls "a nice sum."

She was in San Francisco for several radio and TV talk shows, hyping aerosols and a brochure entitled "Dr. Joyce Brothers Asks: How Do You Rate as a 'Superwoman'?"

Although she has no private practice and is not known for research, the media made her a celebrity after she won the top prize on a quiz show as a sports expert. She claims she has been on the air — TV or radio — daily for the past 20 years.

She says she makes such TV appearances to transmit sound psychological advice to people who don't read journals or newspapers.

"Even in situations like Hollywood Squares, everything I say is valid psychologically. It's an opportunity to get little tips in," she said. She said her job with the aerosol industry works the same way.

The "Superwoman" brochure includes a series of suggestions by Dr. Brothers and tips from the aerosol industry, all intended to "help make your life easier" if you're juggling a career with marriage, motherhood and friends.

One suggestion on how to enhance a marriage is: "Sweep him off to a weekend hideaway. (Tip: When he's not looking, spray a touch of your favorite aerosol cologne mist on bedsheets and pillows.)" Another on being a good neighbor advises that lawn mowers be sprayed with an aerosol lubricant to keep noise low.

"Women are just doing too much. One of the things they need to learn is that if you don't have fun in life, some pleasure, some delight, you're just not going to be a good wife or a good mother or a good employee," she said.

Joyce Brothers opens and reads all her mail and writes her column herself. "I never tell people what to do, ever," she said. And she never tries to be witty.

Junction Sets Two Noncredit Art Seminars

Two noncredit art seminar-workshops, one in Papago basketweaving, the other in glass engraving, are schedule for July at the Texas Tech University Center at Junction, with the first deadlines for registration set May 31.

Registration cost after June 1 increases, according to Profs. Bill C. Lockhart and Betty A. Street of the Texas Tech Department.

The workshop in Papago basketweaving will be conducted July 14-16, the workshop in glass engraving July 21-22.

The workshop is sponsored by the Art Department and the Division of Continuing Education.

The three-day basketweaving workshop will feature Mary Miguel and Nina Jose, Papago basketweavors who have demonstated and exhibited at numerous locations throughout Arizona. Both weavers use traditional materials; however, Miguel works with more traditional techniques and designs and Jose uses more contemporary approaches. Contemporary Papago baskets will be exhibited during the program.

The first day will be devoted to a seminar-demonstration by the two-weavers. The last two days will be a hands-on workshop for participants to execute their own baskets under the supervision of the two weavers.

Registration fees are $10 before June 1 and $15 after that for the seminar-demonstration only; $35 before June 1 and $40 after for the workshop only and $45 before June 1 and $50 afterward for the entire program.

Texas Tech Art Prof. Paul Hanna will conduct the two-day workshop in glass engraving. His works have been exhibited widely across the United States, and he has been involved with his experimentation and research with glass engraving for several years. His engravings will be exhibited during the workshop.

Primary emphasis will be on technical aspects of the media and will include how to cut, polish and drill glass, line engraving and stripple engraving with a stylus, line engraving and stipple engraving with power engraver, and more traditional depth engraving with abrasive wheels and various shaped heads with power equipment.

The first day will include a workshop session and a slide presentation. Two workshop sessions are scheduled for the second day.

Registration prior to June 1 is $25 and after June 1, $30. Registration forms should be returned to Lockhart, Department of Art, before May 20 or to the TTU Center at Junction after May 20.

KKYN To Begin Night Broadcasts

PLAINVIEW (Special) — KKYN Radio has received approval from the Federal Communications Commission to begin nighttime broadcasting.

Grant of the station's construction permit by the F.C.C. will allow KKYN to operate with 500 watts of power during nighttime hours. Daytime power will be increased from 1,000 watts to 2,500.

According to Bruce Campbell, vice president and general manager of Panhandle Broadcasting, nighttime operation is expected to begin around the first of August.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By SAM SHULSKY

Q I am 45, single, with $2,000 in savings and a discomforting view of my future. I intend now, to save at the rate of $5,000 a year but, I don't know where to put the money. I had thought of investing in real estate. A friend advises me to invest in utilities — although that seems like a slow method, indeed.

A. no doubt about it. There isn't much chance a public utility share of stock will double in market price overnight.

In the main, utility shares are attractive for their generous yield and not as fast capital gains vehicles. And if you are in a position to save $5,000 a year you obviously don't want more taxable current income.

You lose me at the fork in the road where you seem to be poised between going into real estate (as an owner, an entrepeneur) or putting your money into conservative staid shares, such as electric utilities, sitting back and collecting dividends. That's not a choice you would make in an off-hand fashion any more than if you had to decide between sunning yourself on the beach or sky-diving out of an airplane.

Investing in parcels of real estate is not a casual, on-the-other-hand pursuit. It is a sophisticated, extremely risky business with potentially big rewards or big losses. Fortunes have been made — and lost — in real estate ownership. If you feel you can master the art (as you seem to imply in your letter) by all means go to it, but be prepared to do so with a dedication which must go far beyond the casual effort of picking up a phone and asking a broker to buy you 50 shares of XYZ Gas & Electric.

Q. In October I sold some AT&T bonds which pay interest January 1 and July 1. I assume that by selling the bonds midway between the interest payment dates I forfeited interest earned after July 1?

A. Not true. Bond interest is earned and credited on a daily basis. If you examine your sales confirmation slip you will find the market price you received plus any interest due you since the last interest payment date — in this case from July 1 to the sale in October.

• • •

Q. I would like to eliminate some savings certificates and shift the funds to federal bonds for tax exemption. Would you suggest these bonds or common stock? I'm 61, retired and would like to keep up with inflation.

A. Let's set a few things straight at the outset:

1. Treasury bond interest is exempt from state and local income taxes, but not from federal income taxes. So if you are in a near-40 percent tax bracket your first goal should be protection from federal income taxes. This would point to municipal bonds. Any additional state or local income tax exemption these might provide would be a bonus.

2. Common stocks are not exactly an alternative to tax-exempt bonds. If you've retired at 61 on fixed pension, you should have some commons, in any event, in the hope that increased market price and-or increased dividends over the years will help you combat inflation.

So the answer would be: That money which you want to keep in dollars should be shifted to tax-exempt municipals; that money which you want to risk in equities as a hedge against inflation should go into common shares.

New Energy Proposals Considered

By BILL CLAYTON

AUSTIN — Since the oil embargo of 1973, Americans have made many statements concerning the need of energy for a strong America. It has become obvious that as a nation we are not going to solve our energy problems overnight. However, I do believe that as soon as Congress passes an energy plan the nation will quickly begin to take the necessary steps to develop our oil and gas, nuclear, and coal resources as well as solar and other alternatfe sources.

We have already started a program in the State of Texas. As a member of the Texas Energy Advisory Council, I will be reviewing a number of applications from the private and public sectors this month which are aimed at aiding our citizens by bringing in new sources of energy. One proposer has proposed a wind irrigation system which appears to have merit, and I hope this system might supply the farmer with a less expensive source of energy.

There are a number of grants involved in this program which are aimed at providing alternate and hopefully cheaper energy to the homeowner and private business owner. As I have stated many times, the time of debate concerning our energy future is over. We need to get with the energy program by bringing on line new oil and gas reserves, cleaning up and making safe our coal and nuclear industry while increasing production in both areas. We must also begin to construct and improve on wind, solar and other alternate source installations.

As we struggle to solve our energy problems we must keep in mind the fact that we as a nation are spending billions of dollars or foreign oil and gas so that we can bridge the gap between domestic supply and domestic demand.

The only major products that can be exported to reduce our balance of payments are in the form of agricultural goods and military hardware. The sale of massive amounts of military hardware around the world can be of no advantage for obvious reasons. Thus we are left with the trade of agricultural goods produced by the American farmer for petroleum products from foreign sources.

It is very clear that energy for a strong America is very dependent on agriculture. As a farmer I am very concerned about getting a fair price for my produce. Everything increase in price in the production end of the farming business but not in the profit end. Just breaking even has become very difficult for many farmers and many have lost money year after year. If the farmer does not receive a fair price and agricultural production drops nationwide then our balance of trade will tilt heavily in the direction of foreign oil producers and we as a nation will be in a very, very serious economic difficulty.

Thus I am working with state and federal officials as well as farmers in atempting to devise methods of giving the farmer a fair profit for his agricultural produce.

INVENTED SAXOPHONE

Antoine Joseph Sax, a Belgian who made musical instruments, discovered that the proportions given to a column of air vibrating in a sonorous tube are the sole determinant of the character of the timbre produced. He patented his saxhorn and a group of cylinder instruments called saxotrombas in 1845, and he registered the saxophone on June 22, 1846.
