WOMAN SLAIN IN CHILDREN'S FIGHT

Moody Keeps Secret His Decision In Doomed Men's Cases

THREE SLATED TO DIE WILL KNOW TODAY

Public Announcement of Findings to Be Made By Governor

PRISON IS NOTIFIED

Bob Silver and Negroes May Be Saved by Chief Executive

AUSTIN, Sept. 26. (AP)—Governor Moody said late today he had reached a decision in the cases of J. R. (Bob) Silver and two negroes, slated to be electrocuted at Huntsville early Friday, but that he would postpone announcement until tomorrow to allow time for a statement explaining his action.

The governor said he notified authorities of his decision.

Silver was sentenced to death in the holdup and killing of Roscoe Wilson, cashier of a theater at Fort Worth, Jan. 31, 1927. He has been given two brief reprieves.

Second Respite

The second respite was given Thursday to allow Moody time to review the records and study the report of the pardons board.

The executive has reviewed all evidence in the case and studied alleged criminal activities of Silver before the shooting occurred.

He also has inspected a petition for commutation of the sentence to life imprisonment, said to have been signed by 10,000 persons.

Contradicting Evidence

W. A. Stone, Silver's companion in the holdup, serving a life term in connection with the killing, was said to have confessed he and not Silver, fired the fatal shot. Evidence on this point is contradictory, Moody said.

The two negroes scheduled to die shortly after midnight tomorrow night are Tom Ross from Nacogdoches county, convicted of killing Dave Patterson, paymaster of a logging camp, and O. T. Alexander, from Harris county, convicted of killing his wife, Mattie.

Man Pleads Guilty of Fellow Hunters' 'Crime'

AUSTIN, Sept. 26. (AP)—The story of a man who took the blame for the killing of six curlews by one of his hunting party guests, and paid justice court fines and costs for each bird killed, was revealed here today when Governor Moody by proclamation restored hunting rights of A. R. Epperson, Fort Worth.

Epperson was convicted and fined in Cochran county where he had a hunting party. The governor's proclamation said reports on the case showed that the man, who killed the birds "was not a sportsman and a hunter." Epperson pleaded guilty for the offenses.

Franklin Roosevelt Pleased With South's Trend

Noted New York Democrat Addresses Huge Smith Rally in Atlanta—Lauds Nominee

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 26. (AP)—Franklin D. Roosevelt, who nominated Governor Smith at the Houston convention, told a state-wide rally of Democrats here tonight that "it is very satisfactory to come back to Georgia, and discover that most of the stories about the trend to the Republican party in the south are untrue; and that when November comes the South will be found true to its historic principles."

"It is to me a significant fact," he said, "that most of the false opposition to the nominee of the Democratic party for the presidency is definitely located among those who have had the least opportunity to know him and his record. The further you go away from New York state the wilder become the untrue tales, the sillier become the reasons for opposing him.

Mentions a Few

"It is, of course, needless to tell the truth to people who do not want it . . . to those men and women like Senator Heflin and Mr. Upshaw, and Doctor Straton and Mrs. Willebrandt, who either for notoriety or for private gain are making themselves ridiculous up and down the country. Theirs are minds which do not hesitate to misstate facts so long as they can get on the front page of newspapers to continue to fill lecture engagements."

Referring to Governor Smith as "the man who stands such an excellent chance of being our next president," Mr. Roosevelt reviewed his early political career and continued:

"In the summer of 1918, I was asked to be the Democratic candidate for the governorship, but as I was starting for overseas war work I could not run. I talked about the availability of Alfred E. Smith with President Wilson. He said to me: 'I should be entirely satisfied with Smith's nomination. He seems to be a man who has responded in an extraordinary manner to the awakening forces of a new day and the compulsion of changing circumstances. He seems to have noteworthy support from organizations and individuals who are working in one way or another for the improvement of government.'

Mentioned Al's Faith

"I mentioned that Smith was a Catholic and Wilson said: 'The day to the political consideration of that has gone by. People are every day reading the casualty lists of American boys of every creed.'

"Yet today some people who falsely call themselves ministers of the Gospel are forgetful of the high ideals of only 10 years ago.

"Smith was elected governor that year, and again in 1922, and again in 1924, and again in 1926, in every case running far ahead of his ticket.

HOOVER HEARS BLUES DITTY

Mournful News Brought by North Dakotan

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26. (AP)—A decidedly unfavorable report of the political situation in the northwestern wheat belt was brought Herbert Hoover today by Senator Lynn J. Frazier, North Dakota, after the Republican presidential candidate had received encouraging news from Wyoming and Florida.

Frazier, Republican member of the Progressive group in the senate, who has endorsed Hoover's candidacy, said the situation in North Dakota was far from satisfactory and that there was much discontent among the farmers. He added that his information was that a similar situation existed in South Dakota, Montana and Minnesota.

"There is likely to be a big protest vote in my state," he said, after his conference with the nominee. "The Republicans have been promising farm relief for years and with my people farm relief is synonymous with the McNary-Haugen bill.

"I cannot believe that Governor Smith will carry the state, but there is much discontent with wheat prices low. Some say the Democratic nominee has a good chance in Montana, South Dakota and Minnesota as well as in my state. I do not know."

Frank W. Montell, former representative from Wyoming, who called on the candidate, expressed belief that Smith had lost more votes than he had gained by his rally into the west.

SQUARE DANCE 'HITS'

Judge Huff Reveals Secret About Girls of 50 Years Ago

By W. K. SHANE
The Record News Staff

"The girls of 50 years ago, grandmas of today, were not so slow themselves nor behind the girls today."

This brief acknowledgement of his introduction by R. E. Shepherd, former mayor of Wichita Falls and generalissimo of the Pageant of Progress given in the city auditorium Wednesday night, was given by R. E. Huff, pioneer citizen who came here in 1882 and who has held every position of honor the community can bestow.

"When I look out in this great audience, I feel safe in the knowledge that the future of Wichita Falls is in good, sane and competent hands," Mr. Huff said.

The crowd Mr. Huff surveyed contained 3,200 persons, or more than the total population of the city when he came to town.

The evening was filled with humor, reminders of bygone days and fun alike for the old timers and the young folks.

Hit of Evening

The square dance took down the house, but it did not hold a candle to the uproar immediately following the dance when Mrs. Mamie Dale, pioneer of 1888 from Iowa Park, and Mr. Shepherd himself, strutted their stuff to the tune of a jig back and forth across the stage.

Pioneers from Henrietta, Iowa Park and other parts of the county were in the large group introduced by Mr. Shepherd, and the formation of a Pioneers' club here was suggested.

The pageant itself, the announced business of the evening, was more than a pageant. It was a pageant plus the personality of the city and county from its founding to today.

The audience was continually a part of the show.

Audience Sings

In the 1918 wartime scene, the audience joined with the soldiers on the stage in singing songs the boys sang in the huts in France while a Red Cross nurse played the piano. One former soldier in the audience said this scene was perfect, save for the fact the piano

Upton County Demo Pledge Is Held Void

RANKIN, Texas, Sept. 26. (AP)—The primary pledge printed on Democratic ballots in Upton county was held illegal today by Judge C. R. Sutton, and the county now is without a nominee for sheriff.

In preparing the ballots the pledge was made to read, "I am a Democrat and agree to support the nominees of this party." The pledge as formulated for the statewide primary bound the voter to support the nominees of "this primary." Judge Sutton held that the substitution of the word "party" for "primary" made the ballot illegal and nullified the election.

MYSTERY NOTES ALARM HOMES

School Kids Suspected of Writing Threats

Police rushed out to the 2000 block on Hayes street Wednesday night when several reports of "black hand" activities were received at headquarters.

Underneath front doors of five or six houses were shoved notes demanding immediate evacuation or dire results and each was signed "bloody hands."

Detectives Fred Fountain and Elmer Thornton, who investigated, brought to the station several of the notes. All were in childish scrawl and all were alike with the exception of one. This one gave a family five minutes in which to move.

While the notes were believed to have been written by prankish children, Night Police Chief J. E. Glenn issued a warning. He said that police have clues that likely will lead to arrest of senders of the notes.

"Although children may get a lot of fun out of such practice, it is dangerous," he declared. "The penalty for writing anonymous threat letters is heavy and those who are caught will be punished," he said.

All of the threat notes pushed under doors after the pranksters had rattled screen doors ominously were written on school composition paper.

The Baffling Story of a Man Who Read of His Own Murder

Serialized by Ledger Syndicate

A Curious Confession

Over his coffee and toast Thomas Dean glanced idly at the headlines on the front page of his newspaper. Always unceasingly conservative in its treatment of the day's news, The Era seemed more than ordinarily dull this morning. There were long and ponderous accounts of the Ruhr situation, of the prospects of an early revival in the building trades, of the difficulties experienced in enforcing a certain amendment to the constitution, together with the usual quota of political gossip and prognostication, most of which Dean would dutifully read later in the day, as soon as he had finished another chapter of his forthcoming novel. A man who lived by his imagination had to have an antidote of some kind to sustain his mental equipoise, and the dreamy columns of The Era supplied it.

He was about to toss the paper aside when a headline below the middle of the page caught his eye: CONFESSES MURDER ON HIS DEATHBED.

The caption was printed in small, obscure type, as if conveying an apology for presenting a sensation of that sort in the sacrosanct pages of The Era. Dean gazed at it with mild interest. Three out of the five words suggested the kind of material of which he was always in search. He pronounced them slowly: "Confesses" — "murder" — "deathbed." Each one bristled with dramatic possibilities, stirring the alchemizing faculty of Dean's brain into action. Yet, on second thought, a deathbed confession was a rather ordinary thing. Ever so many people, when their time came to die, found something of which they wished to unburden their conscience. Unless the circumstances should prove unusual and striking, The Era's article possessed no particular value for Dean. He tore it out from the page, meaning to give it more careful attention later. As he did so a name seemed to leap out from the half column of type. "Paul Forrester!" he exclaimed. Then he laughed shortly, huskily, the way a man might laugh when his faculties are momentarily stunned. "Paul Forrester!"

Dean replenished his cup from the shining nickel pot placed at his elbow by his housekeeper, the estimable Mrs. Blossom.

He took two deep, bracing swallows. Paul Forrester! It was a bit staggering. Nobody had a better right to that name than Thomas Dean himself. Though he had not used it for several years, and though the reading public, his publishers, his few friends and acquaintances knew him only as Thomas Dean, he was still Paul Forrester. Partly as a matter of convenience and partly for certain other reasons, his pseudonym had to all practical purposes become his one and only name. But that did not alter the fact that he was still, legally and by birth, Paul Forrester. And Paul Forrester, according to the account in the acutely conservative Era, was dead. He had been murdered five and a half years ago by one Martin Lamont, who now, face to face with eternity, sought to relieve his conscience by

HATCHER ASKS PARTY SUPPORT

State Treasurer Says It's Time to Shoot Straight

Special to The Record News

AUSTIN, Sept. 26.—"The hour for straight shooting of candidates, as well as individual Democrats, in my opinion, is at hand," said W. Gregory Hatcher, state treasurer, in a 1,000-word statement. Hatcher was one of the state Democratic nominees for re-election and favored signening the statement of the central campaign committee at Dallas. A majority of the other state officials, however, objected to the wording of the committee statement and appointed a committee, consisting of State Supt. S. M. N. Marrs and Attorney General Claude Pollard to draft another statement that will meet with approval.

"The Democratic party in this state is now facing the greatest crisis in its history, and no man can, or ought to be permitted to dodge the issues involved in the coming election," continued Hatcher.

Loves His Party

"I am a Democrat, who next to his God and country, loves his party and who because of his love for his God, and desire to best serve his country, is loyal to his party, whether I agree to all that my party stands for or not. Next to my democracy comes the cause of prohibition, and whenever, and wherever, and however I can serve that cause within my party, I shall do so to the utmost of my ability. I stand squarely behind every prohibition measure that has been enacted into law in this state, and squarely behind the 18th amendment and the Volstead act, and am opposed to any change whatsoever being made in the constitutional amendment and national law, and any change being made in the state law, except to tighten it up to the extent that the same can be done under the constitution of Texas and to have it enforced, which is not now being done."

Hatcher stated that Al Smith was not his choice for the Democratic standard bearer and his views on prohibition are "diametrically opposed to mine in every respect, except that he promises to enforce the 18th amendment and Volstead act," He will support the New York governor and the rest of the national Democratic ticket.

Hatcher stated that he was convinced that Governor Smith in no sense favors the "nullification of the prohibition amendment."

"On the other hand," continued Hatcher, "I favor the nullification, to the extent that they have been nullified for the preservation of our white civilization in this southland, of the 14th and 15th amendments.

"Not until the election of a Democrat and New Yorker, for president, did the South get out from under negro domination that was placed over it by the Republican party, and I was among those who joined in nullification parties held in my home county, after Grover Cleveland was elected president, and helped to drive away from the ballot box negroes who had controlled the elections in that county for many years.

Negro Nominee

Hatcher called attention to the fact that there is a Republican negro nominee for congress in Illinois and referred to the report that Herbert Hoover, Republican presidential nominee, as secretary of commerce, had negroes hired to work in his department "at desks across from white girls."

There are numerous affirmative reasons," Hatcher continued, "why Governor Smith should be elected, which I shall go into later, but it is sufficient for me to know that he is the nominee of my party to insure my support."

Indian Squaw Accuses Rich Girl

ARKANSAS CITY, Kan., Sept. 26.—The noble red man has taken a leaf from the book of the paleface and has gone into society.

The women of the Osage tribe—richest organization of people on the face of the globe—do not wear the colored blankets of tradition, nor intone ancient tales of Great Chief Boiled-on-both-sides.

They wear clothes that their paleface sisters might envy, and they play bridge and get into gossipy rows.

Now the whole Osage country is excited by criminal charges against the pretty Mrs. Freddie Wheeler, white wife of the rich Morris Wheeler, Indian rancher. The chief complaining witness, Mrs. Edna Piomondon, is an Indian woman of striking beauty.

Last July Mrs. Piomondon and two other Osage women—Mrs. J. E. O'Connor and Mrs. Edna Watts—went for a drive. On their way home a masked bandit stopped the car. The chief article of value that was taken was a $1,200 diamond ring belonging to Mrs. Piomondon.

A few days later Mrs. Piomondon charged Mrs. Wheeler's brother, Johnnie Williams, with being the bandit, and charged Mrs. Wheeler with staging it. The two are now free under bond of $1,500 apiece, awaiting a hearing next month.

Williams says he has 12 witnesses to an alibi. Mrs. Wheeler tearfully protests:

"I am not guilty. There is not a witness who believes so in her heart. A fair trial will prove my innocence."

Meanwhile the whole Osage country is excited.

Mrs. Edna Piomondon, right . . . an Osage Indian woman . . . robbed of her diamond, and Mrs. Wheeler, left, whom she accuses of conspiracy to take it.

Texas Veterans Held Entitled to Tuition

AUSTIN, Sept. 26.—All persons now citizens of Texas, who served in the world war regardless of whether they were Texas citizens then, are entitled to free tuition, both in under-graduate or advanced courses at A. & M. college, it was held in an opinion written by Assistant Attorney General R. M. Tilley to T. O. Walton, president of A. & M. college.

Tilley's opinion was based on a construction of the law enacted by the 38th legislature providing free tuition for ex-service men and women honorably discharged. The law was ambiguous on that point.

AUSTIN, Sept. 26.—Gasoline tax collections for the month of August amounted to $1,825,000, which is approximately the same as for July, announced S. H. Terrell, state comptroller.

The next tax paid will be for September at the rate of two cents per gallon, under the terms of the act of the 40th legislature and will reduce the tax more than half a million dollars for the current month, Terrell said.

HOUSTON, Texas, Sept. 26. (AP)—England has sent to this country the youngest ship captain ever to dock in Port Houston.

The captain is W. Doughty, master of the Atlantic City. Captain Doughty, he told the curious, was admitted into the royal navy of Great Britain when he was 15, and has followed the sea ever since he was "old enough to swing a paintbrush."

His ship left here for Kobe, Japan, with 10,000 bales of cotton, seeking a non-stop run record.

G. O. P. DECIDES ON 'WHAT TO DO'

Mrs. Willebrandt Will Continue 'Unmuzzled'

CHICAGO, Sept. 26. (INS)—Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant United States attorney general, will continue making speeches and they will be made under the auspices of the speakers' bureau of the Republican national committee, it was announced at headquarters here today.

Mrs. Willebrandt's schedule will be filled with as many speaking engagements as her official duties at Washington will permit her. Furthermore, Mrs. Willebrandt does not feel that she needs to apologize to anyone for what she has said in past speeches or to "explain" any of those speeches.

The assistant attorney general made this clear herself to International News Service here today and later Mrs. Willebrandt and Congressman Walter Newton of Minnesota, chairman of the speakers' bureau, in a joint interview, reiterated her views.

"No private or public speech of mine," Mrs. Willebrandt stated, "with the slightest degree of fairness, could be interpreted as an appeal for religious prejudices or an appeal for opposal of Mr. Smith on the ground of religion."

Mrs. Willebrandt has been accused in her speeches of bringing in the religious issue.

"Mr. Smith himself is seeking to dodge behind his own church," she added. "Personally, I have too high a respect for people of Mr. Smith's faith, among whom I have worked, not to regret that as prominent a man as Mr. Smith is in that faith should attempt to create the impression that speeches made by drys and political opponents are made against the church.

"He laid himself open to these sources of opposition and he has no right to insinuate that his church should bear the burden of that attack."

Quanah Prepares for New Rail Celebration

Special to The Record News.

QUANAH, Texas, Sept. 26.—The first train to be run over the Quanah, Acme and Pacific railway extension to Floydada on Oct. 1 will carry several hundred Quanahites, the Quanah Municipal band, and another hundred or two from adjoining counties and Oklahoma.

An elaborate entertainment program has been arranged by Floydada, and the Quanah Chamber of Commerce is cooperating to make the event an unusual one. The schedule calls for train leaving Quanah at 7:40 a. m., and returning leaves Floydada at 10 p. m. on Oct. 1.

Wrong Word to Cause Retrial of Damage Suit

BEAUMONT, Texas, Sept. 26. (AP)—Because one word was wrong in a suit for damages in the district court here, the case must be retried after the plaintiff had been awarded damages of $6,500. The case was for damage when a motorcycle was struck by an automobile. The word "car" was used in one place instead of motorcycle.

Grape Industry Crowds Into Biggest Business Class Since Prohibition

By ALFRED P. RECK
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—The grape industry is crowding the hundred million dollar class and has almost reached that goal since prohibition, it was learned at the agriculture department today.

This year's production is estimated at 2,631,267 tons, valued at nearly $80,000,000, an increase of more than 100 per cent since 1924.

The bulk of shipments now are pouring into markets from California, New York, Pennsylvania, Arkansas and other grape growing sections. Some of the purple and white fruit will go on tables, some will be turned into raisins while still others will drop their life's blood into wine bottles.

Before prohibition, grape production was below the million ton mark. In 1924 it began to pick up. Since that time its progress has been as follows:

1924	1,177,722 tons
1925	2,084,089 tons
1926	2,423,413 tons
1927	2,464,719 tons
1928 (estimated)	2,631,267 tons

Growers Prosperous

In 1921 grape growers reaped a golden harvest of $68,000,000. Prices have advanced since last year and the 1928 production is expected to bring close to $80,000,000.

Although federal prohibition officials realize that the increase in grape production is not altogether caused by an increased demand for raisins, grape jelly or pure grape juice, they expressed no worry over the situation.

"The prohibition law says that non-intoxicating fruit beverages can be made in the home," Dr. James M. Doran, prohibition commissioner, explained. "Thousands of gallons of grape wine probably will be made this year, but we are not worried over the wine situation."

Wine seizures have been but a minor part of the dry law enforcement task. Only a small quantity, which had been diverted into commercial channels, was confiscated last year, he said.

California is the largest grape producing state in the country, New York follows a close second with Pennsylvania and Arkansas trailing. Ohio and a few other states also produce grapes but in negligible quantities.

Beaumont Cops and Preachers Aid Schools

BEAUMONT, Texas, Sept. 26. (AP)—Following a decree that all city policemen are to act as truant officers, it was announced that all ministers in the city would devote one Sunday to a talk on the value of education, as a further incentive to break school attendance records this winter.

Prosecutors to Hold Meet in Dallas Sept. 27

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Sept. 26. (UP)—William McGraw of Dallas, president, will preside over the annual convention of the District and County Attorneys' association of Texas, to be held here Sept. 27 and 28. A banquet tendered to the visitors by the San Antonio Bar association will be one of the features.

QUAKER CITY'S POLICE JAILED

24 Officers Arrested in Corruption Raids

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 26. (INS)—Another policeman of the Fourth street and Snyder avenue station of South Philadelphia was arrested at noon today, making a total of 24 officers from that district under arrest in the grand jury's probe into police corruption, growing out of the illicit liquor traffic here. The former captain commanding the district, two district detectives, eight sergeants and 13 patrolmen are included in the group.

The arrest of Samuel Sovern, the latest bluecoat taken into custody, was announced by District Attorney Monaghan as he opened the jury sessions today. He indicated others may be arrested before the hearing takes place this afternoon of those arrested last night.

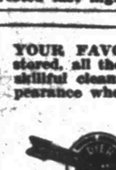

$100,000 Gift to Baylor Donated

WACO, Texas, Sept. 26. (AP)—Mrs. W. J. McKie donated $100,000 to the Baylor campaign for $2,000,000 yesterday when Dr. I. E. Gates of San Antonio spoke on the drive being waged at a county meeting at Corsicana. The gift is equaled only by that of Dr. H. L. Kokernot of San Antonio, who made his donation early in the campaign.

Mrs. McKie previously donated $25,000 to the conquest campaign waged last year, and also has made several gifts to the memorial dormitory fund. She is a graduate of Baylor university, having been baptized in the Brazos river by Dr. Rufus C. Burleson, pioneer Baptist leader and president of the university.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Sept. 26. (AP)—The fishing rod and reel were placed back on the shelf today by Senator Joe T. Robinson, who found vacation time had passed all too quickly and that the hour was near at hand for him to return to the stump in his quest for the vice presidency.

RICE FRESHIES MUST TOE LINE

Upperclassmen Distribute Hard Rules

HOUSTON, Sept. 26. (AP)—Freshmen at Rice institute must follow, to the punctuation marks, rules for behavior and conduct made for them by sophomores.

When 400 freshmen, the number allowed to enter the school this year, registered, they were handed green handbills bearing this introductory paragraph:

"The sophomore class, out of the goodness of their hearts, in order to uplift you from the depths of your present state of ignorance due to extreme youth and inexperience, have drawn up these rules of conduct for your guidance."

Under these rules, the freshmen "must cultivate and maintain at all times an attitude of humility and respect toward upperclassmen." They must "keep on the gravel walks, learn all school songs and attend pep meetings." They must address upperclassmen as "mister" or "sir," and must trot to and from classes on Tuesdays and Saturdays; they must wait outside the commons at mealtime until the upperclassmen are seated.

Rice belt buckles, knickers and moustaches are taboo. They must wear freshmen caps every day except Sunday. Red suspenders, green windsor ties and no coats are arbitrary costumes for Friday.

There also are rigid rules for the girls. Each Friday they have been instructed to "keep your eyes straight ahead, never forgetting that maidenly modesty is your chief virtue." And on Fridays they must wear specially prescribed costumes, changing each week.

"Any deviation from strict adherence to these rules will necessitate a summons before the board of corrections," the handbill warned the freshmen.

Temperance Leaders To Meet in Galveston

DALLAS, Sept. 26. (UP)—Galveston was chosen as the 1928 convention city of the Texas branch of Woman's Christian Temperance union, at the executive board meeting held here last week. The dates for the convention are October 2-5.

Although no vote in regard to parties or candidates was taken at the meeting, the women expressed themselves as going "dry" in the coming election, regardless of party affiliations.

Mrs. F. O. Hill, state organizer of the W. C. T. U., reported several new organizations formed in small towns near San Antonio.

Houston Man Invents New Trap for Mice

HOUSTON, Texas, Sept. 26. (AP)—Somebody is due to beat a path to the door of William G. Roberts, for he has invented what he is sure is a better mouse trap.

Greed and fright will lead mice to death in Roberts' trap. First ordinary bait entices the rodents into his trap. Then the entrance is automatically closed, a new outlet opened and a light bulb flashes. This light frightens the mouse, and forces it to back into a chamber from which it cannot escape until it is removed.

PROF. SEEKS DATA

EL PASO, Texas, Sept. 26. (UP)—S. H. Handeman, instructor of economics at the University of Texas, is in El Paso collecting data on the attitude of the American people toward Mexicans. The information will be used in his class work during the year.

Don't dose a Child's Cold

CONTINUAL dosing upsets children's delicate stomachs. Vicks is applied externally and therefore cannot disturb the digestion. It acts in two ways:

(1) The body heat releases the ingredients in the form of vapors which are inhaled.

(2) At the same time Vicks "draws out" the soreness like a poultice.

OVER 17 MILLION JARS USED YEARLY

101 Ranch Wild West Show Here Today With Parade

The shrill of the calliope will mingle with the Indian war whoop today. The trumpeting of elephants will merge with the snorting of buffalo, the "Yip! Yip!" of cowboys and the guttural calls of Cossack horsemen, for Miller Brothers' 101 Ranch Real Wild West, traveling on long steel trains, was due in the city with the break of day.

The big show will be on the lot in no time after the unloading begins, for the troupe is superbly organized, with 1,100 people under the Miller Brothers' banners. Of course, the Indians, the cowboys, the cavalrymen and the Cossacks will saddle and ride to the grounds. The parade wagons, floats, band wagons, baggage wagons and circus paraphernalia will follow. The great rectangular big top which, with its opera chair grandstand and auxiliary tiers, seats 12,500 people, will be ready for the crowds within two hours after the first of the "layout" gang steps on the lot. The 101 kitchens will roll on at the heels of the boss canvasman and his aides; and Indians, Cossacks, soldiers, Mexicans, Arabs, cowboys, vaqueros of the pampas and all the other picturesque folks will be at breakfast before the wagons have ceased rolling down the runs of the steel 70-foot flat cars.

The performances, affording Cossack and American circus, rodeo action and spectacles, pageantry, rough riding, novelty displays and a tidal wave of thrills, take place in the largest canvas arena ever carried by any show. Famous Indian chiefs and warriors will be seen in action with the young braves, as will the rodeo champion cowboys and cowgirls of the land. The new street parade, the largest and the most picturesque in the world, will contain bands, calliopes, tableaux cars, floats, allegorical units, elephants, camels, buffalo, longhorns, and over a mile of foreign cavalrymen and horsemen of the wild west and far east. It will start at 11 o'clock.

The 101 Ranch carries 450 horses, an Indian village and an impressive opening spectacle, "Julius Caesar," this season. Roman standing and chariot racing, gladiatorial contests and cavalry combats feature this colorful and unusual pageantry.

FEDERAL AGENTS GET JOLT

DENVER, Colo., Sept. 26. (UP)—Further curtailment of the activities of federal prohibition officers appeared certain today after a ruling by Federal Judge Foster Symes yesterday that federal officers have no right to interfere in the enforcement of state or city laws.

In ruling that methods used by state or municipal officers in enforcing prohibition laws are not subject to federal regulation, Judge Symes dismissed indictments against four city officials at Silverton, Colo., charged with conspiracy to defeat the prohibition laws.

BRYAN WOULD FAVOR AL

COLUMBUS, Neb., Sept. 26. (UP)—Congressman Edgar Howard, devoted follower of William Jennings Bryan, in an editorial in his newspaper here sharply contradicted those who believe the commoner, if alive, would oppose the presidential candidacy of Gov. Alfred E. Smith.

The Vernon messengers of good will on the second trip will visit Elliott, Harrold, Electra and the Rock Crossing area.

Church Issue Used to Confuse Voters, Charge

HOUSTON, Texas, Sept. 26. (AP)—Charging that supporters of Alfred E. Smith for president were trying to confuse voters by injecting the question of religion into the main issues, Alvin Moody of Houston, leader of anti-Smith forces, issued a statement Tuesday branding such alleged acts "as condemnable a thing as was ever seen in American politics."

GANNA'S ATTORNEY ACTS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26. (UP)—Henry D. Burkley, New York attorney, today entered an appeal with the customs bureau against a New York customs ruling that Ganna Walska, opera star, pay duty on about $2,500,000 worth of clothing and jewelry she brought to the United States.

STORM FREAK

Owner Requests Removal Of Florida Apartment From Car

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Sept. 26. (UP)—As the destructive work of the Florida hurricane disappears, the lighter side of the catastrophe is coming to the front. The following notice has been issued by a resident here:

"Will the party who owns the garage apartment that is sitting on top of my automobile please remove it? I want to use the car."

Purnell to Board Curtis Train Today

TULSA, Okla., Sept. 26. (INS)—Congressman Fred S. Purnell, ranking member of the house committee on agriculture, will join the Curtis special here tomorrow to substitute for Senator Charles at outdoor speeches during the remainder of the campaign.

The substitution became necessary following the orders of a Cheyenne, Wyo., physician, who said Senator Curtis would impair his voice seriously if he continued his outdoor speaking tour, which is scheduled to carry him over Oklahoma this week.

Although Representative Purnell will deliver the remainder of the vice presidential nominee's outdoor speeches, the senator will occupy a seat on the speaker's platform. Purnell will also make the speeches from the train platform that was also a duty of Curtis'.

Military Service

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Sept. 26. (UP)—Military services will be held here either tomorrow or Friday for Lieut. W. L. Cornelius, army flier, who fell to his death after a mid-air crash at Rockwell field yesterday.

Following the services the body will be sent to Antlers, Okla. An unofficial report of the collision which took Cornelius' life already has been forwarded to Washington.

Woman's Purse Lost From Train Returned

RAYMONDVILLE, Texas, Sept. 26. (AP)—When Miss Lillian Keeling dropped her purse containing $25 from the window of a train in Kenedy county's most sandy section, she decided it was lost for good.

But a railroad section foreman, working over the tracks in the uninhabited territory, found it and it was returned to her.

Doctor Found Women and Children Sick More Often than Men

W. B. Caldwell M.D. AT AGE 82

As a family doctor at Monticello, Ill., the whole human body, not any small part of it, was Dr. Caldwell's practice. More than half his "calls" were on women, children and babies. They are the ones most often sick. But their illnesses were usually of a minor nature—colds, fevers, headaches, biliousness—and all of them required first a thorough evacuation. They were constipated.

In the course of Dr. Caldwell's 47 years' practice, he found a good deal of success in such cases with a prescription of his own containing simple laxative herbs with pepsin. In 1892 he decided to use this formula in the manufacture of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and placed it on the market.

The preparation immediately had as great a public success as it previously had in Dr. Caldwell's private practice. Now, the third generation is using it. Mothers are giving it to their children who were given it by their mothers. Every second of the working day someone somewhere is going into a drug store to buy it. There are thousands of homes in this country that are never without a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and we have many hundreds of letters from grateful people telling us it helped when everything else failed.

While women, children and elderly people are especially benefited by Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, its mild, gentle action is promptly effective on the most robust constitution and in the most obstinate cases. Containing neither opiates nor narcotics, it is safe for the tiniest baby. Children like it and take it willingly. Every drug store sells Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, or this coupon brings a bottle for free trial:

We pride ourselves on being not only Wichita Falls' oldest department store but one of the city's most modern institutions.

Mrs. A. H. Carrigan's Impressions of Wichita Falls in Early Days

When the history of Wichita Falls was in the making, young men away from home for the first time, found the hospitality of Mrs. Lucy Barwise a genuine blessing. Mr. Hunt, Mr. Frank Daugherty and Mr. R. E. Huff were often her guests at Sunday dinner, while Mr. Huff for many years lived in the Barwise home where he was regarded as a beloved son. This home was built of the first carload of lumber shipped to Wichita Falls, and occupied the same location which is now 1100 Austin street, the home of Mrs. A. H. Carrigan, then Miss Lula Barwise. Mrs. Carrigan describes the growth of Wichita Falls as mushroom-like. As a girl, going off to school, she left by stage and returning more than a year later discovered a town which had grown up practically overnight, the Presbyterian church ready-built and the railroad extended to Wichita Falls. Mrs. Carrigan has been a customer of McClurkan's ever since the opening 22 years ago. We were indeed pleased to hear her stress the absolute dependability of our store.

Local Standard Club Begins Activities With Party at Baum Home Wednesday

The Standard club began the activities for the new year at an opening social meeting Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. C. L. Baum, 1910 Huff avenue, with Mrs. Baum, Mrs. A. C. Price and Mrs. J. N. Catter, who make up the program committee, as hostesses.

The house was attractively decorated with baskets of colorful autumn leaves and low bowls of fall flowers. The nut cups of the salad course were cleverly fashioned from autumn leaves while the salad was served in orange baskets.

During the short business session, Mrs. Baum was elected president to replace Mrs. T. P. Kelm who has moved from the city. Mrs. J. N. Catter was elected secretary to take Mrs. Baum's place.

Those who were present included the following members and associate members: Mesdames C. E. Bailey, Baum, L. L. Boardman, R. D. Bone, W. E. Brothers, Catter, S. L. Conn, J. H. Davis, C. V. Derden, J. EVENING MEAL TEST OF SKILL

Parts of Dinner May Be Prepared Early

By IDA M. CHITWOOD
Noted Culinary Expert

To the woman with no maid, entertaining at dinner is the very test of skill. Where more than two guests are added to the usual family, it is wise to have some help if it can be obtained, but without help it is possible to achieve a successful dinner by careful planning. There is much that may be done in the morning to clear the tracks and keep the last hours from being rushed.

The dessert may nearly always be prepared in advance. If it is to be ice cream from a caterer, it is even more easily disposed of. The vegetables may be cleaned and partly prepared in the morning; the salad washed and put on ice; and the salad dressing made. Often soup may be made and re-heated just before the meal. The dishes may all be wiped and laid out and a working plan fully organized so that the hostess may face the dinner hour calmly.

For her table she uses her best linen cloth and her best embroidered napkins. The centerpiece is a handsome silver or porcelain vase, or a fragile affair of engraved or colored glass. Flowers may be arranged in it by mid-afternoon, and they must harmonize in color with the decorations of the dinner china and dining room. Four single candlesticks or two candelabra will supply all the light that is needed on the table.

Salted nuts and candies are in small dishes, placed at orderly intervals on the cloth. Each place is laid at exactly equal distance from the adjoining places, for here, too, order is the first law.

On the serving table extra plates, finger bowls, and water pitcher are all set out—the last two to be filled just before dinner is announced.

When the guests enter the dining room, they find the first course on the table. For a hostess without a maid, the best choice for a first course is probably a cold food like fruit, oysters, or an hors d'oeuvre, since none of these will lose any of its palatability during the slight delay while the guests find their places. The plate on which the first course is served rests on the service plate, and the napkin lies at the left of the place.

The wise hostess prepares a menu that requires the minimum of passing. Vegetables are a part of some meat dishes, as chicken casserole, but when they must be passed separately, the two or three compartment dish will be found of the greatest help. It should be presented to each guest from his left side and he should be allowed to help himself.

For the dinner of small proportions it is both pleasant and convenient to serve the coffee in the living room. The host may take the coffee things in on a tray on which the cups and saucers and sugar bowl have been arranged in advance. It is a pleasant final ceremony, especially if there is a big wood fire around which every one may gather.

THERE never has been a cereal like Rice Krispies. Whole rice bubbles. So crisp you can actually hear them crackle when you pour on milk or cream.

A new dish for breakfast—flavor bubbles! Great for a warm weather lunch. Try them in your cooking too. Take the place of nut meats. Order from your grocer. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

THINGS are picking up—a fair sign of early autumn is the gathering of year books. Two of the women's study clubs sent me their annual programs today. That is a clever idea and I hope more of them avail themselves of gettidg a good position among the long line of 'em that are a part of the desk equipment of this column.

"NO, I want to be something big!" exploded at least three ladies at the organization meeting of the Aftrusa club when each of them in turn was asked to enter membership as a homemaker.

And all the single ones, those who are, I suppose, doing the "big things," in the estimation of the three questioned, looked their surprise. Chances are most of them would like to come in under that category.

Resuming the question of the place homemaking should occupy among the fine arts, it brings to mind that women are either becoming more masculine in their thinking or that they have never realized that washing dishes, serving meals and the hundred and one tasks of housekeeping, or seeing that they are properly done, is an art of which to be proud, and not one to be treated casually for a less commonplace classification.

Lions Make Ready For Wichita Team

Special to The Record News

VERNON, Texas, Sept. 26.—Coaches Weir and Lyles are driving their proteges at a rapid pace for the game here Saturday with the Wichita Falls Junior college eleven. The Lions have made rather indifferent showings in the first two games of the year, and are expected to experience difficulty with the collegians.

Quite a number of Vernon fans watched the Electra game with the collegians last week, and it is the opinion here that the Lions are in for a hot time Saturday. Present indications are that Weir will have his full strength available for the clash.

Modern Cinderella Leaves Shoes Behind

HOUSTON, Texas, Sept. 26. (AP)—Differing from the original only in that he left a pair of shoes behind him, Mr. Cinderella is being sought by Houston police.

Mrs. O. W. Hines heard a noise at her window. She called the police, who found barefoot tracks around the house, and in the front yard a pair of size seven shoes.

Mr. Cinderella may have his shoes if he will call at the police station.

Latest Fashions

While all her family and the gentleman who would like to be a part of her family are visiting the morgue to look for her, Cherie is having a lovely time. She is rising late, having slept peacefully in a nightgown of white crepe with a diagonal yoke and armholes of wide Alencon lace, deep brown in color. (That's new!)

And later she has a solitary breakfast in the peace she craved, far from the kind suggestions of half her friends that she should marry Andy and the advice of others that she should marry Eustace. Dressed, too, in a simple frock of blue crepe trimmed with a yoke of lace. Lace has a place in all fall styles.

As you can see here. This satin dress of Cherie's has a plain collar and jabot suggested in the lace insert. The wide girdle and one-sided skirt drape are quite to be expected in a new autumn dress—you can see the same hipline in the other two frocks sketched. These other two dresses, though, show other ways of achieving skirt fulness. The one to the left has a circular panel in one side of the skirt, the other has inset pleated panels. There's lace here, too. Lace collars and lace cuffs. The lingerie touch has always been popular with American women—remember when every tailored blue suit had its lace collar and cuffs?

Quiet Wedding at Home of Parson Around Corner Best for Everybody

Dorothy Dix Tells Why It Is Folly To Mortgage the Future for a Big Wedding—Was This Girl Right to Stop Supporting Her Worthless Husband?

Dear Miss Dix—I expect to get married some time this fall and would like your ideas about a church wedding and a home wedding. What do you think of an elopement when the parents on both sides are in favor of the marriage? We are a poor young couple and will both work after marriage.—JESSIE.

Answer: I think, Jessie, that if you and your sweetheart will just step around to the parson some day and get quietly married your relatives on both sides, and all of your friends, will call down every blessing that Heaven can send upon your sensible heads.

I have long held that a big display wedding was the greatest exhibition of human vanity and folly and bad taste of which anyone could be capable. Getting married is the most terrible and solemn moment in any woman's life. It is the crisis of her fate, in which she is taking the step that changes her whole existence, and that may be leading her up to heaven or down to hell, she does not know which.

It is a moment fraught with every anxiety, and why she wants to make a spectacle of herself at this particular instance and have a lot of staring, curious, critical eyes gazing upon her and commenting upon her every expression is more than any one can guess. In reality it would be no more incongruous to send out invitations to your acquaintances to come and watch you die than it is to ask them to come and watch you get married.

Of course, I am quite aware that this is not the popular view to take of a wedding, and that from the time they can think at all most women look forward to having a big wedding with ushers and flower girls and ring-bearers and bridesmaids and a veil with orange blossoms and what not?

To achieve this lifelong ambition they are willing to plunge their poor old fathers into debt and mortgage their own futures. I have known many a family that had to scrimp and starve for the next three or four years to pay for the splurge wedding of a daughter. And considering that it is just about 10 minutes from the time the organ peals out "Here Comes the Bride" until the tenor wails out "O, Promise Me," it seems to me that it is just about the poorest run for the money that anybody ever gets.

And don't be misled into thinking that you are going to get any comeback out of the bridal presents, because every one of them has to be returned, and the time when you will have to make good for the Smiths' mayonnaise bowl, or the salt-cellars the Joner's sent you, will invariably come at the moment when you are hardest up and the rent is overdue, or you have a doctor's bill or your teeth are crying for the dentist.

Furthermore, if you want to endear yourself to all who know you, you can take no better way of doing it than by cutting out that sentimental form of graft, known as the wedding present, altogether. It has got so that a wedding invitation in the mail gives the beholder heart failure even before he opens it, for well he knows it is a stand-and-deliver hold-up, and that he has to come across with something he can't afford, for those who do not want it, and have already got half a dozen of it already.

So take my advice, Jessie, and go and get married without any wedding fuss and flummery. Don't wear yourself out and go into debt for an elaborate trousseau. Get only what you actually need in the way of clothes. The stores are going to continue to do business after you are married, and you will always be able to get more hats and gowns and shoes, stockings and lingerie, and money in the savings bank is going to be a lot more useful to you than stacks of crepe de chine flummeries locked away in a trunk.

Start your new life right by marrying sensibly. That kind of marriage is the one that sticks.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—I am a girl 21 years old. More than two years ago I married a man with whom I was very much in love. Shortly after our marriage he quit work and left me to support the two of us. I did so for a while, thinking he was looking for work, but soon found out that he was not only loafing, but was spending the money I was working for on another woman. I stood this as long as I could and then came back home to my people. I have never seen nor heard from him since and have filed a suit for divorce. But what hurts me most is that my parents continually twit me about the mistake I made and my brothers and sisters taunt me by saying, "Why don't you go back to that no-good husband, and get out of the way?"

Does a girl always have to suffer like this for a blunder she makes? Was I right to leave my husband when I did, or should I have stayed on and supported him? What can I do to change the attitude of my family toward me?—BETTY.

Answer: I think you were exactly right to leave your lazy, trifling, grafting husband when you did, before there were any children to complicate the problem. Any able-bodied man who will sit down and let a woman support him is the lowest form of the male parasite, and any wife who finds that one of these has fastened himself upon her acts wisely in freeing herself of him at the earliest possible moment.

You made a mistake in marriage, but you made it in good faith, and you tried your honest best to do your part as a good wife and to make your marriage a success. Therefore, you have nothing to reproach yourself with, and you must not let this blunder ruin your life. Just put it behind you as you would any other misstep that you had unintentionally taken. Don't even think about it, except to profit by the experience which has taught you to look more warily at men, and to find out more about the habits and character of the next man who makes love to you and asks you to marry him.

Your family is certainly very cruel and unsympathetic in their treatment of you, but, sad to say, the daughter who has made an unfortunate marriage seldom gets a warm welcome when she returns to the parental roof. Why the prodigal son has the fatted calf killed for him, whereas the unhappy daughter is begrudged a veal chop, nobody knows. But it just happens that way in life.

Only too many fathers and mothers seem to think that when they have once married off a daughter and got rid of her, she should stay put and not come back on their hands, and brothers and sisters almost universally resent having to divide the family food and shelter with her. Perhaps the unmarried girls feel that a divorced sister does not boom their matrimonial stock. Be that as it may, when a girl leaves the family circle it generally closes tight and seldom opens willingly to receive her.

But inasmuch as you are a self-supporting business girl, why do you stand for this? Why don't you leave the home where you are not wanted and make your own home?

If you are able to support a husband, you can certainly support yourself. And you would be happier even if you only had a hall bedroom that was your own, and a crust that you earned than you are eating the bitter bread of your grudging relatives.

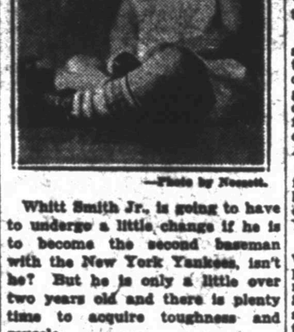

If you will go away and make yourself independent, it will force your family to respect you.

Whitt Smith Jr., is going to have to undergo a little change if he is to become the second baseman with the New York Yankees, isn't he? But he is only a little over two years old and there is plenty time to acquire toughness and muscle.

Mail Order Sales For Forum Benefit Display Interest

Mail order sales for tickets to "Naughty Marietta," the Broadway production which will be presented at the Memorial auditorium as the first of the four benefit attractions of the Woman's Forum, as an event of Oct. 8, are indicative of a good crowd, according to Mrs. G. B. Smedley, who has charge of the mail orders. Tickets will go on sale Monday, Oct. 1 at the McConnell Furniture company.

"My idea of heaven would be to sit and listen to all the music of Victor Herbert I want to," said Andrew Carnegie in speaking of the great operatic conposer, whose death American theater-goers define as a blow to the continuance of what may be called typical American music.

The role of Marietta is taken by fascinating little Era Briggs, who has danced her way into the hearts of sympathetic admirers in New York.

Miss Briggs is a western girl, who won her opportunity to appear before the footlights by winning a beauty and singing contest. She was seen by a producer who signed her up and her first chance to star came with the illness of the feminine lead in "Castles in the Air." Her success was pronounced from her first appearance and Era Briggs became famous for her dancing feet, her beauty and her fine voice.

In her appearance here in "Naughty Marietta," she will bring with her a chorus of gorgeous singers and a cast of principals that would do justice to Broadway.

DU PONTS WILL CONTROL VOTES

Delaware Sure for Herb, Is Prediction

(Editor's Note: Raymond Clapper of the United Press in Washington is now on tour of the country to analyze and report the presidential campaign as he sees it. As a student of national politics and a clear and concise writer on the subject, Clapper is among the foremost of the correspondents of long experience in the national capital. He will present an entirely unprejudiced account of his findings during his trip, which will take him into all the important battle zones of the country.)

By RAYMOND CLAPPER
United Press Staff Correspondent

WILMINGTON, Del., Sept. 26.—Most of the Du Ponts are for Hoover. And so the three electoral votes of little Delaware are likely to go to the Republicans this year for as the Du Ponts go so goes Delaware.

The spectacular action of Governor Smith when he reached into Delaware and took for his campaign manager, John J. Raskob, who promptly kidnaped his chief, Pierre S. Du Pont, and carried him over to the Democrats with a $50,000 campaign contribution is overshadowed by the fact that the Du Pont clan as a whole still is Republican and retains its tight grip on the state.

There are perhaps a hundred Du Ponts, the poorest worth a million dollars, in this state.

Control Whole State

Through the vast ramifications of the many Du Pont and General Motors enterprises this rich clan touches the state at every point, the baronial role which the name of Du Pont fills in Delaware is typified in the huge Du Pont building here, which houses the Du Pont hotel, the Du Pont offices, the local theater, and every variety of office, store and shop, except a 10-cent store.

The domination is political as well as economic. T. Coleman Du Pont, Republican national committeeman and United States senator, is the political ruler of the state. Though he is ill in New York, he still directs Delaware affairs.

Coleman Du Pont has just forced the nomination of his son-in-law, Douglas Buck, for governor on the Republican ticket despite the fact that the political organization had arranged to nominate I. D. Short, in accordance with the tradition of rotating the nomination among the three counties of the state.

Short was backed by Alfred I. Du Pont, cousin and bitter enemy of Coleman T. Du Pont.

It was Alfred Du Pont who helped elect Senator Bayard, a Democrat, against Coleman in 1922.

But Alfred has sent word he will support Hoover and the Democrats thereby lost a real chance to carry the state.

Pierre Only Democrat

Other Du Ponts are trailing along on the Republican side which leaves Pierre alone with Smith. Pierre has been a Republican but rather loosely affiliated for he voted for Wilson and never has been active.

His big interest is in abolishing prohibition, and this, as with Raskob, accounts for the support for Smith. But exigencies of the campaign seem destined to nullify their sacrifices because religion has replaced everything else as an issue in the state.

The Methodists are extremely strong and all politics in southern Delaware revolve around them and the Anti-Saloon league. The Democrats have practically no hope of even a fair vote in those counties. They do, however, hope to overcome this by winning large numbers of Italian and Polish Catholics in Wilmington, who hitherto have been Republican. These voters also are wet. So that both parties are banking on the religious question to help them.

The Democratic national committeeman, Andrew C. Gray, is handicapped by the fact that the Democrats are working without any job holders, federal, state or local.

"We're hoping Governor Smith will carry Delaware," Gray said.

Republicans are more confident. Judge Daniel O. Hastings, Coleman Du Pont's chief lieutenant, told the writer today:

"We could dismiss the state committee, close up all of our headquarters, and simply quit work and Hoover would carry the state easily. I look for Hoover to get a majority of 10,000 to 25,000 votes, which is large in a state which casts less than 100,000 votes.

"With the exception of a small percentage the best people of the state will be for Hoover. Democrats claim they will get the negro vote this year but they won't."

BOTH RETIRE

Veteran Dinner Bell and Ringer Yield to Old Age

HOUSTON, Sept. 26. (AP)—More than 30,000 times has Mrs. T. J. Matthews swung the same cowbell to call her boarders to meals.

But the cowbell now is to get an honored place on the mantel, while Mrs. Matthews rests.

The Matthews bought a hotel at LaPorte 28 years ago. They served meals, and when the food was ready Mrs. Matthews called them by bringing the old cowbell.

But the couple eventually got old and tired of their business, so they sold their hotel to W. H. Holder for $8,500. They retained some lots in back of the hotel, and there they plan to rest the remainder of their lives, and to save energy, particularly, for the celebration of their golden wedding anniversary on Jan. 1, 1928.

Mrs. Matthews' boast, in which her husband concurs, is that in the 28 years she did not miss serving a single one of the three meals each day. And no one but Mrs. Matthews ever rang the bell.

Blind French Vet To Assist in War Chapel Ceremony

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 26. The chapel, to be erected to the memory of the soldiers who lost their lives during the world war, will be on a site donated by Rev. Charles O'Gallagher, acting chaplain in the army. Funds for the building have been raised by public subscription. The chapel will be for the perpetual use of the patients at the hospital and also of the general public.

A. & M. Enrollment 400 Greater This Year

COLLEGE STATION, Texas, Sept. 26. (AP)—Opening of the 53rd annual session of the Agricultural and Mechanical college of Texas showed an increase of 400 in student enrollment over the opening day of last year. Total enrollment for the 1928-29 session accounted for 2,650 young men, 1,050 of them being freshmen. Indications are that the freshman class this year may exceed 1,100 before the end of the first term while total enrollment for the year promises to be close to 2,800.

President T. O. Walton of the college in addressing the new students cited them to the host of young men numbered among former students of the college. "You have the work and contributions of more than 20,000 young men who have been here before you to inspire you as you take up your work here," he said.

CARBON BANDIT GETS 99 YEARS

Death Penalty Question Delays Decision

EASTLAND, Sept. 26. (AP)—H. F. Hyden was convicted today by a jury here of robbery with firearms in holding up the First State bank of Carbon last December and was sentenced to 99 years in the penitentiary.

The jury was out 15 hours, differing, it was stated, on whether or not to assess the death penalty.

The trial of E. V. Allen, an alleged partner of Hyden in the robbery, has been set for this week and may be begun Wednesday afternoon.

CONVICTION IN DALLAS HOLDUP

DALLAS, Sept. 26. (AP)—At the conclusion of a trial which lasted less than three hours, Bob Gardner, 46, was convicted today of holding up and robbing Bill Boone, Dallas filling station operator, and was sentenced to serve 15 years in the state penitentiary.

On the stand Boone identified Gardner as the bandit who came to his station on the night of July 16, brandishing a revolver, and obtained $27.30 in cash.

Quanah Doctors Called to Dress Wounds of Children After Crash

Special to The Record News.

QUANAH, Texas, Sept. 26.—Called to dress the wounds of their own children, one of whom was a doctor, was the unusual experience of Dr. T. D. Frizzell and Dr. J. J. Hanna, following a head-on collision between two autos on the Loop road. Dr. Hanna's daughter, Miss Mildred Hanna, is a graduate of Baylor Medical college, and a practicing physician at Crowell.

She had come over to spend the day, and was driving with Leger Richardson when a wall of dust from a passing car obscured the vision of an approaching car driven by Sterling Baker, with whom Dr. Frizzell's son, Hayden, was riding. Miss Hanna suffered fractured ribs, scalp wounds and cuts on face and body, while other occupants were more or less bruised and cut. All are out of the hospital excepting Miss Hanna, who is reported doing nicely. Both cars were demolished.

RCA Makes Application For Larger Facilities

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26. (AP)—The Radio Corporation of America applied to the Federal Radio commission today for permission to inaugurate a wireless system among 32 American cities as a supplement to its international short wave circuits.

The company asked the allocation of 62 short wave channels for the continental field.

In the key cities where it is planned to construct and operate stations, Davis said, we "expect to give as between those cities a domestic radio telegraph service fully competitive with the existing domestic wire line companies."

STUDENTS GET WALK PAPERS

Texas A. & M. Men Draw Expulsions

BRYAN, Texas, Sept. 26. (INS)—Suspension of six students charged with hazing, five sophomores and one junior, from Texas A. & M. college until Sept. 1, 1929, was announced here today by T. A. Walton, president of the college.

Suspension of the students followed a detailed hearing conducted by the college disciplinary committee. The hearing developed when two Waco freshmen, J. R. Hatter and J. W. Youngblood, asked to resign from the college.

Those suspended were G. H. McCarty, W. S. Coleman Jr., I. H. Phillips and E. M. Moore, all of Houston; G. J. Cardwell of Lockhart, and T. E. Wooten of Thorndale. Moore was a junior.

The two Waco boys came home last week-end and announced they would not return to school because of "brutal treatment" accorded them. A long distance telephone conversation between J. H. Youngblood, father of one of the youths, and President Walton, of A. & M., resulted in Youngblood's taking his son to the college Monday to identify the hazers.

President Walton's only comment today was:

"The incident is most regretable."

10,000 ATTEND LAMESA FAIR

Large Parade Opens Yearly Occasion

Special to The Record News

LAMESA, Texas, Sept. 26.—Dubbed as "the little state fair" because of the quality and quantity of exhibitions, the Dawson county fair opened here today with an estimated attendance of 10,000 people. Although the weather was inclement, the crowds poured into the exhibition halls all day.

Perhaps one of the largest parades ever staged here, one and one-half miles long, passed in review at 1 o'clock this afternoon. The parade, in charge of Phillip Yonge, was headed by County Judge Dixie Kilgore and the commissioners court, and included the Lamesa band, Boy Scouts, Lamesa high and public schools, rural schools of the county, Aldine school, Ladies club, Mutal Aid society, horse and mule show, merchants' floats, 50 decorated cars, Lamesa fire department and hundreds of foot backers. The parade was sponsored by Mrs. W. D. Arnett, M. C. Lindsey and E. P. Anderson.

Every known product grown in West Texas is being exhibited this year in the Dawson county [illegible]

20 Towns Represented

Twenty-one rural communities are showing community booths and a number of club boys and girls have special club exhibits on display. Competition is keen among the communities for first place this year. The prize went to the O. K. community in the north part of the county last year and they are keen contenders again this year.

Horse racing, carnivals and air plane exhibitions are among the attractions for entertainment at the fair grounds.

The Lubbock fair boosters will visit the fair several hundred strong Thursday afternoon, according to A. B. Davis, manager of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce.

The Lamesa Chamber of Commerce is conducting a booth at the fair grounds in an effort to register all the cows in Dawson county. At 3 o'clock this afternoon a toll of 1500 cows had been registered. Lamesa will bid for a milk plant or creamery on the strength of the cow census found from this survey.

Experts Do Judging

Dawson county will enter exhibits both at the Panhandle South Plains fair and the state fair at Dallas this year.

All judging is being done by A. and M. college experts, with the Tinsley agricultural agent for the Santa Fe and several county agents of the section. The fair this year is under the management of W. W. Evans, county agent here, and Miss Bessie Jackson, home demonstration agent.

FLORIDANS AT WHITE HOUSE

Vast Hurricane Loss Told Executive

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26 (US)—President Coolidge was told today that the Florida hurricane disaster, far more serious than reports have indicated, will require $12,000,000 to relieve the sufferings of more than 15,000 victims.

The extent of the disaster was portrayed in new and more somber colors by Howard W. Selby, chairman of the West Palm Beach chapter of the Red Cross, Cooper C. Leightbown, former mayor of that city and W. A. Payne of the Palm Beach Post.

They called at the White House and at Red Cross national headquarters, unfolding a story of stark need in the storm swept belt and urging a new appeal to the American people for aid.

The stricken thousands in the Florida area can bury or burn their dead, they said, but only through Red Cross relief can they hope to re-establish themselves upon their desolated lands.

Pictures giving an idea of the magnitude of the disaster were laid upon the president's desk and the spokesmen for the sufferers made it plain that the disaster was the greatest ever to have fallen upon that state.

The loss, it was estimated, will total $50,000,000. Insurance to cover it runs but to $2,000,000, it was explained. The victims can possibly borrow $5,000,000 upon their holdings, leaving $40,000,000 of loss which must be met somehow.

It was further pointed out that the district has been passing through the strain of after the boom days, struggling to meet obligations. Bank deposits, it was stated, have shrunk from $50,000,000 to $10,000,000.

The dead total over 2300, Selby said. The homes wrecked total 2881, he stated.

Rig Drills Into Same Hole After Moving

SWEETWATER, Texas, Sept. 26. (UP)—People who doubt the authenticity of numerous fish stories that have circulated over the countryside, now have an opportunity to stretch their imaginative powers a little further to disclose this fish oil story which has originated in the Fisher county oil fields and is reported as being true.

About four weeks ago, drillers at the Roeser Pendleton No. 1 Decker location, about a mile and a half northeast of the Texas company's No. 1 Dan Stephens discovery, abandoned the hole after drilling to about the 1,500-foot depth. They moved their rig about 50 feet south and started drilling a new hole.

After reaching approximately the same depth, they have drilled into the hole on the first location.

The rig has been moved a second time, this time 50 feet to the north of the original location.

Den of Rattlers Killed On Wellington Farm

WELLINGTON, Texas, Sept. 26. (UP) — Twenty-five rattlesnakes were killed in one den on the W. L. King farm, eight miles west of Wellington by Lee Elmer and Lawrence King, according to reports reaching here.

The men poured water into the hole to force the reptiles out and killed them as soon as they appeared. The men poured 220 gallons of water in bringing all the snakes to the surface.

The largest snake had 12 rattles and none of them were less than three feet in length.

MME. GANNA FIGHTS LEVY

Diva May Ship Jewels Back To Paris

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25. (US)—Ganna Walska will ship her $2,500,000 wardrobe and personal effects back to Paris if hard-hearted Uncle Sam insists on collecting $1,000,000 in customs duties from the famous opera singer, wife of Harold McCormick, Chicago multi-millionaire.

H. D. Bulkley, attorney for the diva, so informed the treasury today as he pleaded with Commissioner of Customs E. C. Camp that Mme. Walska is entitled to bring her property into the United States because she is a non-resident under the alleged right of modern woman to determine her own domicile independent of her husband's nationality.

The lawyer based his plea on what he contended should be a modern interpretation of the law which holds that the domicile of a wife follows that of her husband.

"But in the present case," the attorney argued, "Mme. Walska is in fact a resident of France.

"She lives in Paris by the consent of her husband. When they were married it was agreed she could maintain her domicile in France. We offer affidavits to that effect from both Mr. McCormick and Mme. Walska."

His argument was for a recognition of modern activities of professional women who oftentimes are forced to live apart from their husbands. In addition, it was in advocacy of the principle of "equal rights" for women—a plea now being urged by the National Woman's party which is seeking a constitutional amendment designed to cure existing inequalities of women before the law.

Commissioner Camp cited several decisions which held that when relations between husband and wife are amicable, the wife cannot legally establish residence apart from her husband.

Bulkley then launched into his recital of facts in support of Mme. Walska's plea.

He said the singer had never in fact resided in the United States and had visited here but twice since her marriage to McCormick in 1922.

"Furthermore she has no intention of residing here," the attorney added.

Commissioner Camp gave the attorney some encouragement when he interjected that no case has been decided adversely in situations such as this, where the evidence of intent to live abroad had been so strong. He added however, that there were several cases in which no future intent was shown in which Americans long absent from this country had been assessed duties.

He took the matter under advisement.

Georgia Demos Hear Roosevelt

et. Why these re-elections by greatly increasing majorities? Because, although a Democrat in a Republican state, he has been the best all-round governor the state has ever had . . .

"Does it mean anything that Smith has the overwhelming support in his own state of the men and women whose life task it is to lift up to a higher plane the lives of their fellow Americans? Is that long list of unselfish social workers, teachers, ministers, doctors and nurses any evidence of the kind of public servant he is? Think that over, you who hesitate to vote for a man just because he is a Catholic . . .

"I have known Roosevelt, Taft, Wilson, Harding and Coolidge, and I can tell you that Alfred E. Smith will be in dignity and ability a fit successor to the most illustrious of them.

Two Great Qualities

"He has the two great qualities of dignity and simplicity of heart which go with great men. I wish that all of you might see as I have seen the fine family life of the governor and Mrs. Smith and their children—and now their grandchildren, too. If you seek right living, it is there, and a lot of frolic and fun, too—typical American family life that we need more of—the sort that the now thoroughly chilled White House most assuredly needs.

"Even those who may disagree with his opinions are admitting freely that Smith does not equivocate, that he does not evade, that he does not straddle. Of his opponent, this cannot be said; and while Mr. Hoover is an old friend of mine, in whom I recognize many fine qualities, still he is a great disappointment to many in this campaign.

"I am beginning to subscribe to what a Republican business man wrote me the other day from Indiana. He said: 'Ten years ago, Hoover was a great engineer; but since he has been in the cabinets of Harding and Coolidge, he has slowly but surely evolved into a rather ordinary politician. Ten years ago Smith was a politician, but since then he has developed himself into a great human engineer'."

Somerville Files State Charge After City Plumbing Law Fails

After Judge C. M. McFarland of the county court at law Tuesday quashed a complaint against C. M. Sparkman charging infraction of the city plumbing license ordinance, a new complaint charging violation of the state plumbing license laws was filed Wednesday by Wayne Somerville, county attorney. Sparkman gave bond immediately after the new complaint had been filed.

Judge McFarland ruled that the city ordinance is unconstitutional because of conflict with portions of the state plumbing license law when the original case against Sparkman was taken from the city corporation court. Judge McFarland held that the conflict between the city and state plumbing license law exists in the maximum penalty provided for violations. He pointed out the state maximum penalty is $250 while that provided by the city ordinance is $200, and ruled the corporation court was in error in trying the case.

Thelbert Martin, city attorney, said Wednesday there will be no appeal made on Judge McFarland's decision and that no plans are contemplated for any change in the city ordinance.

Blond Sweetie of Jail Breaker Tells Life Story in Bandit's Murder Trial

NORFOLK COUNTY COURTHOUSE, Dedham, Mass., Sept. 26. (UP)—Helen Elaine Bradshaw, 23-year-old attractive titian blonde and former sweetheart of Stephen J. Hoppe, on trial here for the first degree murder of a Quincy patrolman, told a crowded courtroom the story of her life at Hartford, Conn., with the defendant.

The girl seemed to hesitate in replying to questions which brought out the information that Hoppe had been absent from Hartford on the night of the murder at Quincy, Oct. 4, 1927.

Hoppe, who has a sensational record of crime and jail breaking, glared sullenly at her when she took the witness stand, and the girl turned away from him.

She met Hoppe in Hartford in the summer of 1927, she testified, and Hoppe established her as his mistress in an apartment there shortly after their meeting. She lived with him for three months, she said, including the month of October, when Patrolman Alfred N. Hollis' lifeless body was found in the rear of a Quincy hardware store by fellow officers.

Al Encouraged In North Dakota

North Dakota's vast farming territory.

At least an even chance to carry the state was the word brought to Smith by more than one of his followers, who boarded the special for informal conferences with the nominee.

Normally Republican

Others, however, emphasized that North Dakota normally is heavily Republican, particularly when there is no large scale bolt on the part of the non-partisan wing of the party, and they were of the opinion the Democrats faced an uphill battle, despite certain encouraging trends.

Bismarck, state capital, was on the schedule for a brief lay over at midday with Fargo to the east, down for an hour's stop at nightfall. Only a few other station stops in the state were scheduled.

Governor Smith worked far into the night as his train was leaving Montana on the speech he will deliver tomorrow night in St. Paul. He withheld definite announcement as to what would be his theme, but it was expected that he would touch on several campaign issues of particular interest to the agricultural northwest. After St. Paul, only one campaign speech at Milwaukee Saturday night, is to be delivered before the nominee returns to his home state to take part in the New York Democratic convention and get some rest in Albany before starting out on another speech-making tour.

Religion Is Factor

Some of those familiar with the North Dakota political situation emphasized that the religious issue was a factor working to Smith's disadvantage, particularly in the eastern section of the state.

There was a feeling among Smith's lieutenants that his cause in North Dakota had been strengthened by decision of Walter E. Maddock, who became governor recently on the death of Arthur G. Sorlie, to run for that office this fall on the Democratic ticket. He is a non-partisan leaguer and seeking non-partisan league support. He is in the field against George Shafer, nominee of the independent Republican faction.

Governor Maddock, farmer, living north of Bismarck, greeted Governor Smith on his arrival at Bismarck and was invited by the presidential nominee to accompany him to Fargo. Maddock ran for lieutenant governor on the Republican ticket.

However, Senators Nye and Frazier, identified with the non-partisan Republican wing, have come out for Hoover. Frazier is a candidate for re-election.

New Grain Rates Arouse Protests

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 26. (UP)—A vigorous protest against the recent cancellation of the export rate on grain originating south of the main line of the Santa Fe railroad in Kansas and shipped to gulf ports by way of Kansas City was voiced today by wheat farmers, grain dealers and railroads.

The order will become effective Oct. 25.

It cancels the "transit privileges" of all such grains, which is tantamount to raising the rate on grain 5 cents a 100 pounds, say grain dealers here.

The present plan allows the shipper to pay long haul rates from the point of origin to the gulf port. The interstate commerce commission order would necessitate paying the short haul rate from the point of origin to Kansas City and then another from Kansas City to the gulf, according to those protesting the new schedule.

SAFETY MEET HERE TONIGHT

Council to Discuss Fire Prevention Work

Plans for many unique features to be presented in connection with Fire Prevention week, Oct. 7-13, will be outlined at a meeting of the Wichita Falls Safety council Thursday night, J. M. Williams, chairman of the fire prevention committee, announced Wednesday. The council will hold its meeting in connection with a dinner at 6 o'clock in the basement of First Christian church.

The entire program for the week will be worked out at the meeting but it is the plan of the committee to carry out the theme of fire prevention in the most interesting methods ever advanced here, Mr. Williams said. The committee will present to the safety council a number of out-of-the ordinary features, including plans for a parade, showing all of the types of fire fighting equipment used here.

In addition to parade plans the committee will incorporate interesting programs for presentation in schools.

With Mr. Williams the fire prevention committe comprises Phil Cordell, A. M. Miller, J. W. Lyle, J. C. Ward, Hugh Cartner, George Hodgins and Fire Chief J. L. McClure.

A large attendance of members of the safety council at Thursday's meeting was urged in notices mailed out Wednesday by Lester Jones, president. The dinner will be served by Boy Scouts.

Smith Uses Telegraph to Inform Denver He Didn't Talk Beet Tariff

DENVER, Sept. 26. (AP)—Controversy over Gov. Alfred E. Smith's attitude toward a sugar tariff, which arose Sunday following an interview with the governor as his train was en route to Helena, Mont., today drew the telegraphic reply from the New York executive that he had made no statement on the question while in Denver.

On Sunday, local newspapers quoted Joseph M. Proskauer of the New York supreme court as saying that a sugar duty "should recognize the difference in production costs between this and other importing countries."

Thomas E. Howard, secretary of the Colorado Farmers' union, who participated in the farmers' conference with Justice Proskauer Saturday, said he understood that the justice was speaking for Governor Smith.

Sunday, in Wyoming, Governor Smith was quoted as saying he had authorized no statement on the sugar tariff. John R. Coen, chairman of the Republican state central committee, told a group of farmers at a party rally that Governor Smith had "repudiated" his Saturday statement.

DALLAS, Texas, Sept. 26. (UP)—Resignation of two Texas Republican presidential electors were accepted by the Republican state executive committee at a special meeting here today.

Although a list of 10 anti-Smith Democratic electors, who were expected to replace 10 Republican electors, has been in readiness for several days, the two resigning electors were replaced with Republicans. No mention of dividing the Republican electors with anti-Smith Democrats was made at the meeting.

The resigned electors are Arch Campbell, Brazoria, and W. S. Drake, Austin. Charles G. Smith, Cuero, was chosen to succeed Campbell, and John R. Drake, Austin, to succeed his father.

Campbell and Drake resigned because it was feared they were disqualified. Campbell has become an assistant postmaster and Drake is a federal jury commissioner.

Only four members of the committee attended the meeting. They were Heber Page of Dallas; J. W. Duncan, Kaufman; C. W. Beck, Hillsboro, and Dr. C. C. Baker, Hillsboro.

REJECTION OF ACCORD LOOMS

U. S. Forwards Notes to England and France

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26. (UP)—An unqualified rejection of the so-called secret Anglo-French naval accord as a basis for renewed discussions on naval arms limitations is understood to be contained in the United States' replies to Great Britain and France which were forwarded to Paris and London today.

It is understood both notes comprise a lengthy discussion of the American stand on naval disarmaments with respect to cruisers and submarines. The subject has been the center of disagreement between the United States and Great Britain and is held to have caused the failure of the 1927 Geneva conference.

Reiterates Stand

As indicated at the White House Tuesday, it is expected the notes will reiterate the United States stand on naval disarmaments as outlined at the 1927 Geneva conference. The American representatives then proposed a flat 400,000-ton limitation for all classes of cruisers. Britain disagreed with this, contending that she could not construct as many large cruisers as the United States to maintain naval parity and still build enough smaller cruisers to protect her world trade routes.

It is expected the notes will be made public shortly after their delivery to the French and British foreign offices by the American embassies at Paris and London.

President Coolidge has let it be known he feels the garbled publicity circulated on the naval agreement was a grave mistake. Persons high in the administration have represented Mr. Coolidge as feeling that more good would have resulted had Paris and London called a naval conference and discussed there with full publicity any renewed attempts at naval arms limitation.

Badly Timed

Many administration officials have expressed the belief privately that the brief announcement of the Anglo-French pact in the British house of commons by Sir Austen Chamberlain, which subsequently was followed by rumors that the agreement in reality heralded a Franco-British naval or military alliance, was timed badly.

Chamberlain's brief announcement of the pact was made just before the Briand-Kellogg treaty for renunciation of war was signed at Paris and the British foreign minister's announcement was interpreted in some quarters as indicating a lack of sincerity by France and Britain in the signing of the anti-war pact.

The administration does not hold this view. However, many congressmen do and it is likely to endanger ratification of the anti-war treaty unless the haze of semi-secrecy around the Anglo-French accord is cleared away before congress turns to its next session.

Los Angeles Clergyman Raps Aimee McPherson

LONDON, Sept. 26. (UP)—The Rev. W. E. Piersch, Los Angeles clergyman, denounced Aimee Semple McPherson bitterly in an address at the undenominational church at Hounslow last night.

He urged the authorities of England, unless they want their churches wrecked, not to admit the California woman evangelist to the country. Mrs. McPherson now is touring on the continent.

Piersch criticized her for the Los Angeles "kidnaping" episode in which she figured.

Pioneer Residents of City Urged To Attend C-C Luncheon Friday

No attempt is being made to give a personal invitation to everybody who is eligible to attend the luncheon which the chamber of commerce is giving Friday at noon at the Kemp hotel for Wichita Falls citizens who have lived in this city for 40 years or more, according to announcement made Wednesday by Hubert M. Harrison, manager of the chamber.

"Due to the large number whose residence here reaches this limit, and to the impossibility of securing an accurate list it has been decided to extend the invitation only through the newspaper," Mr. Harrison said. "It is urged that all who expect to attend the luncheon notify the chamber of commerce by Thursday night as it will be necessary to make definite reservations at the hotel by that time.

"The luncheon will be held at 12 o'clock and is in the honor of Wichita Falls 40th birthday which is being celebrated in various ways this week. The regular weekly meeting of the business council will be held in conjunction with the luncheon for the old-time citizens.

"Plans for the meeting include a display of the interesting collection of old Wichita Falls pictures which Lester Jones of the Wichita State bank has gathered within the past few years and a first organ in the city and on which Mrs. A. H. Carrigan played for the first Sunday school services held here. Mrs. Carrigan owns the instrument which is more than 50 years old.

"An oil painting owned by J. B. Barlow will also be exhibited. This canvas depicts Wichita Falls in 1880 and shows the hill where the Memorial auditorium now stands, and the section of the city where the main business part of the town is now located. Miss Johnnie Morgan will read the first chapter of her history of Wichita Falls.

"It is very important that all who expect to be present telephone to number 4131, the chamber of commerce office, and make reservation."

54 BODIES IN BLASTED FORT

Terrific Explosion Wrecks Moroccoan Building

MELILLA, Morocco, Sept. 26. (UP)—Hastily organized relief forces tonight moved through a great, smoking hole atop the rocky hill where the old Spanish fort of Cabrerizas Bajas was demolished by a terrific explosion today.

Early tonight they had recovered 54 bodies from the ruins of the historic military base and the search continued unabated after darkness fell.

At the same time the president of the municipal council appealed for the co-operation of all residents of Melilla, when it became apparent the number of homeless would total several hundred. There were more than 200 persons wounded by the explosion of a powder magazine.

The government appropriated about $4,000 as a relief fund and military and civil quarters joined in feeding and caring for the homeless and wounded.

The explosion occurred as people were leaving theaters. A red glare lighted the sky and then the blast shook the entire region. One man a mile and a half from the fortress died of shock. Walls were razed and windows shattered throughout the town.

Panic stricken, the natives fled from their houses but within a few minutes had hurried toward the demolished little settlement surrounding the fort on the hill top. About 2,000 persons lived in the settlement.

Only a huge, smouldering hole was left to mark the site of the fort. Not a wall stood and no stone had been left untouched.

In the darkness, shrieks of the injured and dying filled the air and it was only with greatest difficulty that rescue workers were able to penegrate the debris of the nearby homes.

MADRID, Sept. 26. (UP)—The high commissioner announced tonight that the explosion at Melilla, Morocco, was not of a criminal nature.

CARTOONIST IS POWER COUNSEL

News Artist Made $8,000 Yearly as 'Adviser'

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—(UP)—A New York newspaper cartoonist who admitted receiving $8,000 for a year's service as "advertising counsel" of a utilities propoganda group was the sole witness today in the federal trade commission's power investigation.

Albert T. Reid, who said he syndicates cartoons to about 35 daily and 2,000 weekly newspapers throughout the country, was asked to explain what he did for the joint committee of national utilities associations.

The committee, which maintains large offices here and in New York, utilized his services as an advertising adviser, Reid testified, after rejecting a plan he proposed for a nation-wide "educational campaign." Previous evidence has shown that the committee was in the forefront of the fight in the senate last winter against the Walsh resolution for a senate inquiry into utilities propaganda.

Arrangements for his employment, Reid said, were made by word of mouth, and there was no written contract to indicate the nature of his work for the committee. His service ran from August 1, 1927, to July 1, 1928.

During this period, Reid testified, he continued his cartoon service, but denied that his cartoons were in any way influenced by the money he received from the joint committee. Of 330 cartoons drawn in that period, only six or seven dealt with government operation of utilities, Muscle Shoals or Boulder dam, Reid said.

The hearings adjourned until next Wednesday.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By GRANT DIXON

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—An uneasy attitude marked the girl as she peered through the windows of the booth door at the woman within, who was speaking loudly into the mouthpiece of one of the telephones in a building at Forty-second and Broadway.

The girl, as she anxiously gazed through the glass, gingerly balanced before her—of all things—a bowl containing three large Japanese goldfish. A piece of brown paper over the opening of the bowl was the only attempt at wrapping.

Suddenly the booth door swung open and the woman emerged.

"I thought so," she thundered at the girl. "What did ma ask you to get?"

"She said that I should stop off tonight on the way home and buy some fancy fish," answered the girl.

"Well, stupid," retorted the woman. "You can eat those goldfish yourself. Ma wanted fancy fish, all right, but she wanted to fry them for dinner tonight!"

"Oh, damn!" is all that girl said as she gazed belligerently at the innocent goldfish.

He was driving from his vacation camp in Maine to his home in Yonkers, and the route map he used to pick his way showed 375 miles from Maine to his home.

When he arrived in Yonkers his speedometer showed 374 miles, and to a friend he related the story, intending to indicate that it was an amazing adventure in exact figuring.

"Huh," moaned the friend, "you can't depend much on them road maps anyhow."

And that was that.

There really are too many taxis in New York, except, of course, on rainy days. There are so many that it keeps a poor cabby wearing his thinking cap in this hot weather to try to meet the overhead.

For instance, a taxi was cruising up Fifth avenue the other night, one of those street taxis that are not permitted to cruise up if caught. The driver saw what was obviously an affectionate young couple strolling along and apparently stalking a taxi, if it proved to be the right sort of taxi. He made bold to pull up alongside and ask politely but distinctly, "Taxi?"

The young man looked the cab over severely and said "No!" as he gently seized the arm of his fair companion who was about to go aboard.

It was a hot night and that taxi's top had been turned back. The driver, without moving his cab from its tracks, raised the top to make the cab not nearly so comfortable, but far more private, caught up with the couple, half a block away by then, and said "Taxi?" and got a couple of fares in a blink.

MY CHOICE

A lot of money's said to be
The cause of much anxiety;
It's said to spread its ill-content
The moment that it leaves the mint.
But well I know a pauper's lot
Is classified as: "Not So Hot";
The balances that banks disclose
Are not a gauge of mortal woes;
And so I'd rather take a sling
At living, financed like a king.

The Bolt Is to Smith and From Smith

IT IS a political maxim that the candidate who expects to win must center public interest in himself and hold it there. He must be talked about, whether it is in criticism or praise.

An example of such success in recent history was Woodrow Wilson. Woodrow Wilson took the center of the stage in 1912 and in 1916 and the more he was attacked the bigger he loomed.

Who has the center of the stage in this campaign? Who is being praised and criticized more than any other? Whose political enemies are forcing him to the forefront of public attention? Whose name is heard a dozen times where his opponent's is heard once?

Even the conservative Outlook, independent but more often favorable to Republican than Democratic candidates says: "The bolt is to Smith and from Smith. This is what always happens when a Smith or a Roosevelt enters the arena. The other candidate is merely a lodging place."

If there is anything in being talked about, the campaign is certainly not unfavorable to Democratic success.

And one of the biggest aids is the campaign of the Anti-Smith Democrats.

Lowly Candidates for Presidency

AMONG other reasons why Dr. John Roach Straton, New York Baptist minister, is not for Alfred E. Smith for president, is Governor Smith's lowly origin and his East Side environment where poverty is the common lot and where there is probably as much vice and crime as there is in other sections of New York or even in Dallas or Wichita Falls.

This is not the first campaign in which the religious issue or the birth and environment of the candidate has been urged by the opposing party.

Thomas Jefferson was denounced an atheist and actually throughout the republic people hid their Bibles because they believed Jefferson would attempt to have them burned. It is now conceded that Jefferson went much further in his religious beliefs than perhaps a majority of church members today.

Andrew Jackson was attacked as a rude, vulgar, illiterate, uncouth frontiersman of common breeding and like Alfred E. Smith, the son of an immigrant. Cultivated people of his day held up their hands in horror at the thought of such a man sitting in the White House.

And Abraham Lincoln was looked upon in much the same light as Jackson. Ministers denounced him from their pulpits and the "whisperings" about him were less covert than about Smith today.

All men who have been on the frontiers of thought and progress beyond traditionalism have been unfairly attacked. Smith is on the frontier of the newer America, a frontier that is racial and economic as well as political. Whatever is new is suspected and feared and that is one of the reasons why Smith is viewed with such intolerance in some quarters.

Columbus' Lucky Crew

IN A FEW days we shall be celebrating Columbus Day. It ought to get a little more attention than we usually give it. In all history there are few more attractive figures than this lonely, out-at-the-elbows old explorer who discovered a new world.

But never once, in Columbus Day celebrations or at any other time, is any mention made of the men who sailed with Columbus.

The history books dismiss the sailors of Columbus' fleet with a few contemptuous lines. They were the dregs of Palos, it seems, collected, by force and threats, from waterfront dives, jails and back alleys. At sea they were unruly; once or twice they tried to mutiny. Ordinarily we pass them over with no more thought than that they were a worthless set of ruffians and loafers.

Probably they were. Yet they are a fascinating set of men, at that.

It is interesting to picture them, there on the wharves of Palos, rounded up by the officers, looking apprehensively at the three tiny ships that were to carry them west. Every man in the crowd, no doubt, as well as most of the onlookers, believed that they were about to commence a voyage from which they would never return. Bleary-eyed pot wallopers, small-time brigands and worthless sailors who could never get a ship, they must have made a sorry spectacle as they went aboard.

Then the voyage—a long succession of days and nights of terror. Ignorant, credulous men, convinced that they were under command of a madman, sailing forever to the west when anyone might know that only the edge of the bottomless pit lay there—is it any wonder they tried to mutiny? Bad food, confined quarters, inclement weather; their lot, assuredly, was not happy.

And, at last, the discovery—a hospitable green island rising out of the sea to prove that the admiral was no madman, after all. The weeks of exploration that followed must have been highly pleasant; and on the return voyage, there is no doubt, the crews convinced themselves that they were, after all, very doughty, courageous fellows. Had they not sailed where no other men had dared to sail? One can easily imagine the pride with which they stalked through the streets of Palos forever after.

Perhaps, at that, they were right. They didn't amount to much, to begin with; but they were supremely lucky, in that they found a leader who could force them to be better men than fate had intended them to be. None of us can hope for greater luck than that. To find a man who can make you surpass your possibilities, who can demand from you every last ounce of courage and fidelity and endurance that you possess—that is good fortune.

TEXANS SHOULD BE PROUD

Here is something to think about, and something about which a Texan may exult with becoming modesty:

Texas produces millions of bales of the highest quality cotton. In fact, it produces approximately one-fifth of the cotton of the world. That is something to be proud of.

Texas is also the leading state in the union in the cattle industry.

Her other farm crops compare well with other states, and she probably has as large a turkey crop, and last year Texas turkeys topped the market in the North and East.

But this is not all. Texas industrial products make its factories equal in monetary yield to its agricultural output.

According to a recent bulletin, there are two thousand factories in Texas the products of which are valued at $700,000,000 annually. There are 90,000 industrial employes and they produce more than 1,000 separate commodities.

If you are a Texan you have every right to be proud.

The Baffling Story of a Man Who Read of His Own Murder

By HERMAN LANDON

confessing his crime. It was there, in black and white, before Dean's blinking eyes, and it was all the more impressive because the Era bore the reputation of being at all times scrupulously truthful.

He tried to clear the confusion in his mind. It was all a ridiculous mistake, of course; a case of mistaken identity, no doubt. Perhaps the Era had got the facts tangled somehow. Perhaps Martin Lamont's mind had been wandering, the way a dying man's sometimes does. At any rate, the statements were a flat contradiction of what Dean knew to be the truth. Yet the thought that some one had confessed to the murder of a person named Paul Forrester was bewildering. And the name was a rather uncommon one, particularly the combination of surname and Christian name. If it had been George Brown or William Jones it would have been different. Yet it was conceivable, of course, that there had been another Paul Forrester. In fact, it was the only sensible explanation.

Dean steadied himself and started to read the account from beginning to end. No doubt a careful perusal of the confession would show convincingly that what happened to be inexcusable was only a coincidence. Dean read on, and again the type began to whirl and blur before his eyes. Coincidences, though it was growing increasingly difficult to regard them as such, were piled up in astonishing profusion. One familiar reference after another caused his mind to reel. His name was accurately given, and so was the name of his father, Jordan Forrester. The murder, according to the confession, had been committed in the old and creaky house on Hudson street formerly occupied by the Forrester family. The motive, the execution of the crime, the scene with its intimate details of description, the disposition of the body and the murderer's subsequent movements were all related with a wealth of circumstantial coloring that left nothing to the imagination. Violently as his reason rebeled against it, Dean was forced to the conclusion that he was the Paul Forrester whom the dying man had had in mind when he made his confession. If nothing else, the biographical matter at the end of the article shattered all doubt on that point.

Thoroughly dazed, Dean left the torn-out extract slip to the floor. To few men is given the dubious privilege of reading their own obituaries, although newspapers are in the habit of preparing such matters in advance of death when the subject is a person of importance. Dean felt quite sure that he was the only man who had ever experienced the sensations of reading a vivid and circumstantial account of his own demise by murder. He felt an impulse to laugh, but there was an element of gruesomeness in the thing that sobered him. His reason told him that it was a ghastly mistake, for he was very much alive, and no deliberate attempt had ever been made on his life, but how such a blunder had come about was beyond him. Again picking up the article, he scanned each detail of the account with great care.

Reads of His Own Murder

Martin Lamont, being of sound mind and realizing that the time had come to make his peace with God, was setting forth the following facts: For a number of years prior to 1917 he had been associated in various business enterprises with Jordan Forrester, father of the man he declared he had subsequently murdered. In the year mentioned the elder Forrester had died in Colorado, following a series of unlucky ventures. At the time of his death he owed Lamont the sum of $10,000, leaving behind him barely enough to defray his funeral expenses. In the months that followed, Lamont was hard pressed for money because of his daughter's serious illness and other reverses. Finally, in desperation, he decided to try to collect the money due him, or a portion of it, from Forrester's son.

Paul Forrester, the confusion stated, was then living in New York, occupying the same house on Hudson street in which his father had lived during his periodic visits to the metropolis. His numerous letters to young Forrester remaining unanswered, Lamont went to New York to appeal to him in person. Arriving in the city late in the evening, he took dinner in a restaurant and then went to the house on Hudson street. Young Forrester received him coldly, even insultingly, and flatly declared that he was neither cognizant of nor responsible for his father's obligations.

At this point in the narrative, Dean looked upu from the article and tried to steady his brain before he went on with the perusal. It was true that for a short time following his father's death he had occupied the old house on Hudson street, but he had never heard of Lamont, nor was he aware that his father had left any unpaid debts behind him. This might easily have been the case, however, for the elder Forrester, an irresponsible knight of fortune, was sadly lacking in business acumen, and he had had his financial ups and downs as far back as the son could remember.

In a sardonic humor Dean went on with the reading of the article, which from this point on grew more and more dramatic. Lamont related how he had pleaded with young Forrester, whom he believed to be in possession of ample funds, explaining that the money was a vital necessity to him in view of his poverty and his daughter's illness.

The latter was in need of hospital care and the services of costly specialists. He told the young man that his daughter was everything in his life, that his heart would break if she should die for want of the few thousands which young Forrester could so easily spare.

"The young fellow just stood there and laughed at me," the account went on. "Finally, he got insulting and showed me the door. Things began to swim before my eyes. I thought of my sick daughter, whom I loved a thousand times more than my life, and then the sight of his grinning face and the sound of his mocking voice maddened me, and I lost control of myself. Even now I hardly know how it happened, but all of a sudden I saw young Forrester stretched out on the floor, with an ugly bruise on his temple, and I was standing over him with a fire tongs in my hand. I must have grabbed it without realizing what I was doing, and struck at him with all the fury that was in me.

"For a while I just stood there and stared at him. I think I shouted to him to get up, but he never moved. Finally I bent over him and felt his face, and then I knew he was dead. His heart had stopped, and he had ceased breathing.

"Since then I have deeply repented my crime, committed in the heat of passion, but at the time I could think of nothing else than that I mustn't be found out. I felt young Forrester had goaded me to it, but I knew it would go hard with me if I should be brought to trial. Some time—maybe 15 minutes or half an hour—passed before I could think straight. It seemed to me that the only safe thing was to hide the body so it wouldn't be found till I was out of New York. I looked around for a while, wondering where it would be best to conceal it. Then I remembered that right under the main stairway there was a room that had never been used by anybody but Jordan Forrester. He showed it to me once when I went to New York with him and spent several days at his house, explaining that he went there when he wanted to be alone to figure out some problem. The door was so arranged that people wouldn't be likely to find it unless they knew it was there.

"I decided to hide the body in that room under the stairs. The lock gave me some trouble, but finally I managed it. Going back to the sitting room to get the body, I happened to glance at the fire tongs. There was a red smear at the end. I rubbed it with my handkerchief, but it didn't seem to come off. That red stain bothered me; I stared at it till the whole room seemed to be full of red. Finally I decided to hide the tongs beside the body in the room under the stairs. I had heard of murderers being caught through just such things as that. After hiding the body and the tongs, I closed the door and left the house, taking the first train out of New York."

The confession, duly attested and signed, ended with the repeated declarations of repentance, and it was also stated that the condition of Lamont's daughter had taken a sudden turn for the better and that she was still living.

Dean drew a long breath when he came to the end of Lamont's statement. The article went on to state that Lamont, who had made his confession late at night, was still alive at the time of going to press, but that his death was expected any moment. It was explained that he had come to New York to attend to certain business matters, and that on the night of his arrival he had been seized with a cardiac affection that had troubled him for several years. The attending physician gave no hope of his recovery.

Dean got up, crossed the floor twice, then sat down again and stared dully at the article. Most of the contents were incongruous, but here and there was a statement that he knew to be a fact. He had a vague recollection of the room under the stairway of the old house. His father, who had a penchant for turning his hands to mysterious and unaccustomed tasks, often puttered around in there at night, after the others of the household were asleep. Furthermore, the confession was couched in terms so simple and straightforward that Dean, could he have read it in a detached and impersonal mood, would not have doubted its authenticity for a moment. As it was, being vitally concerned through the use of his name, he felt that to let his mind dwell on it was not only useless, but a stain on his sanity as well.

The opening of the door and the appearance of Mrs. Blossom gave a welcome interruption to his tortuous processes of mind.

"Lady calling, Mr. Dean," announced the housekeeper.

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK McCOY
Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in Regard to Health and Diet Will Be Answered by Dr. McCoy, Who Can Be Addressed in Care of This Paper

Choosing Good Words

We are so apt to consider disease as a definite thing which attacks us unaware, and to which attacks we are always subject!

Some of those words most common in our language are "ailment," "attack," "seizure," "infection," "sickness," "complaint," "disorder," and such words calling up word pictures of certain unpleasant conditions which we identify by these words describing disease.

Our directed thinking is done by a series of pictures in the mind, brought out by words with which we are familiar. Speech is a series of emotional or imitative sounds which express pain, fear, anger, love, etc.

Another kind of thinking is that which we do in our dreams, whether during sleep, or in what may be called "day-dreaming."

Therefore, when we think of disease when we are talking or writing, our minds jump from one word picture to another. When we sit and meditate we imagine certain conditions with which we have been familiar. Such imaginative and emotional thinking makes us live over again experiences of either pleasure or pain.

The memory aspect of the mind can only think with whatever material it has been given through conscious thinking. Thus we learn to think of disease as a certain thing we remember under the name of "apoplexy," "fever," "tonsilitis," "tuberculosis," etc. In this way we form the habit of classifying diseased states, and the more we talk and write about "attacks," "strokes" and the like, the clearer our mental pictures of these unpleasant conditions become, and which grow into vicious monsters always waiting just around the corner.

As the sum total of our mental powers depends so largely upon our thinking in word pictures, is it not logical then to be careful in our selection of good words with which to direct the process of the mind into wholesome mental "movies?" Is it not wise to turn from images of pain and tragedy to those of health and joy, and in this simple way build up a wealth of good mental pictures which are not only pleasant to contemplate, but have the magic power to grow into superpictures by attracting other thoughts of like nature?

The physician has the most difficulty with the patients who uses the largest vocabulary in describing his symptoms. If this kind of patient can be taught to avoid words and thoughts of sickness and be just as loquacious in the use of such words as "vigorous," "well," "hardy," "strong," etc., he is already on the road to health, and the same mental power he used in describing and looking for disease is then used in an earnest search for good health.

The lesson in this article is this: Learn to think in good word pictures, and be diligent in your quest for all knowledge which will lead to living a healthful life! You will then have no time nor inclination to think in terms of disease, and such an expression as, "I feel ill" will soon give way to "I'm feeling fine today!"

Questions an dAnswers

Question: Mrs. P. O. J. asks: "What foods cause diabetes?"

Answer: There are no particular foods which in themselves cause diabetes, which is a disorder of metabolism. In curing diabetes, it is advisable to eliminate starches and sugars for some time, but this is also true in the treatment in most disorders. The sugar appearing in the urine is glycogen from the tissues, and does not come directly from the sugar you eat. Special articles for the cure of diabetes will be sent to you upon request if you will send a large, self-addressed stampe denvslope.

Question: Mrs. Hal K. asks: "Will you please tell me the proper diet for a child two and one-half years old? He does not seem to be ill, but has rough red spots on his cheeks at times, and is usually cross and irritable after waking from his afternoon nap."

Answer: Try giving him four feedings of milk a day, using eight or ten ounces of milk at each feeding. At the second, third and fourth feedings give him a generous dish of minced spinach, carrots, string beans, summer squash or celery. It is a good plan to use also one of the vegetables raw along with the cooked one.

Question: M. K. L. writes: "I have been reading your health and diet advice and am very much interested. Will you please tell me why the upper lip is swollen every morning?"

Answer: Have your teeth examined. Perhaps you are suffering from Pyorrhea or have some abscessed teeth which are poisoning your lip during the night.

New Indictment in Church Fraud Returned

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 26. (AP)—A new indictment against Clinton S. Carnes, vanished treasurer of the Southern Baptist home mission board, charging embezzlement of $88,666.88 of the board's funds was returned today by Fulton county grand jury.

Man Gets Life Term For Liquor Possession

IONIA, Mich., Sept. 26. (UP)—For the second time since its enactment Michigan's habitual criminal law exacted a life imprisonment sentence on a liquor possession charge when Alonzo Noyes, 55-year-old bachelor, entered a plea of guilty. He was charged with having five gallons of moonshine.

Noyes previously had been found guilty three times on felony charges. His first conviction was in 1894. Judge Royal A. Hawley pronounced the mandatory life sentence.

Federal Agents Hunt Gun Smuggling Clue

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 26. (AP)—Warden John W. Snook disclosed today that two department of justice agents have been here a week investigating the manner in which two pistols used by Roy Gardner, train bandit, and others in a recent attempt to escape, were smuggled into the federal penitentiary.

The Atlanta Constitution said unconfirmed reports from Washington were to the effect that two operatives also had been ordered to begin a "secret inquiry of affairs" at the prison, but Warden Snook asserted he was unaware of it if such instructions had been given.

"On my last trip from New York to California," Jetta Goudal, the screen actress, told me, "I stopped off in Chicago for a few days to visit a girl friend of mine.

Jetta Goudal

"One day while she was driving me over the town in her car, we noticed that the cops had new uniforms—oh, beautiful new uniforms, dark blue with gold braid and everything.

"We were commenting on how the policemen looked in their new regalia, when my friend ran past a stop-light. An officer whistled and we stopped.

"'I didn't see the light,' my friend explained, 'I was looking at that new uniform of yours—it's adorable!'

"'Don't kid me, lady,' growled the cop, 'you can't talk me out of it!'

"'Heavens!' exclaimed my friend, 'I should hope not—what would I do with it!'"

William McKinley, twenty-fourth president of the United States, was born at Niles, O., and started the practice of law in Canton. He entered the Civil War though but a boy in years and rose to the rank of major. In 1869 he was elected prosecuting attorney and eight years later was chosen United States Representative.

After serving as governor of Ohio from 1891 to 1895, he was nominated by the Republicans and won the presidential race against William Jennings Bryan.

During his administration war broke out between Spain and her possession, Cuba, which the Spaniards had treated cruelly.

The president sent the battleship Maine to Havana to inquire into reports that many Cubans were dying of starvation. The Maine was blown up in the harbor and many officers and sailors killed. Spaniards were suspected of the act. President McKinley said war on Cuba must stop. Congress declared Cuba free. Spain refused to remove her soldiers and war began.

WELLS TRIMS WILD BILL HALLAHAN IN DIXIE OPENER, 2 TO 0

BARONS SWAT TWO IN FOURTH

Texas Champs Founder in Birmingham

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Sept. 26. (AP)—Wild Bill Hallahan of Houston, dazzled the Birmingham Barons for a spell here today in the first game of the Dixie series but his fast ball was finally turned on him for a taming, 2 to 0.

Some 15,000 excited fans, many of them Texans, jammed Rickwood park to see "the battle of southpaws." Eddie Wells, leading pitcher of the Southern association, was in the pit for the Barons and Hallahan was the starting choice of the Buffaloes.

The Barons chalked seven hits to five for the Buffs although "Wild Bill" turned in nine strikeouts.

Ernie Smith, Birmingham shortstop, was the sensation of the day. Smith sent a long fly in the fourth to score Bigelow from third while Shirley, first baseman, added the other in the same inning, when he came home from third when Hock, Buffalo third baseman, threw low to first on Wells' grounder.

Hallahan, though pitching masterfully most of the way, put himself in bad holes on poor throws to second base. On each occasion he allowed the runner to get his bag and the batter to gain first. In the first inning he slipped into such a hole, but strengthened and struck out Sandy Bigelow and Shirley in order to extricate himself. Walker, Houston first baseman, was the hitting star of the day with a couple of doubles in three trips to the plate.

Penner probably will try to check the Barons tomorrow while Roy is expected to take the box for Birmingham. Both are right handers.

Women Golfers in Quarter Finals

Former Champs Steady in Second Round

HOT SPRINGS, Va., Sept. 26. (AP)—Golf stalwarts of the women held their own today in contrast to the first round of the championship when the titleholder and a former champion were summarily removed. All four former champions playing in the second round won their matches and proceeded to the quarter finals and as there are two in each bracket it is possible for the semi-finals to bring together four women who have stood at the head of the class.

Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd, who won the title in 1909, 1910 and 1924, Miss Marion Hollins, winner in 1921, Miss Glenna Collett, champion of 1922 and 1925, and Mrs. G. Henry Stetson, 1926 winner, remained very much in the competition.

Miss Maureen Orcutt, runner-up last year and medalist in this championship, Miss Virginia Van Wie, Chicago player, Miss Dora Virtue, sole Canadian player left, and Miss Virginia Wilson, Chicago, but champion of Canada, were the others who had a chance to win.

Frogs to Meet West Texas Team

Cowboys Will Meet Foe at Breckenridge

FORT WORTH, Sept. 26. (AP)—The Texas Christian university Horned Frogs will invade West Texas for the first time in four years Oct. 6, when they journey to Breckenridge for a game with the Simmons Cowboys.

The Cowboys, coached by Frank Bridges, former Baylor mentor, are making a strong bid for the place in the Southwest conference that will be left by the withdrawal of the University of Arkansas, and the showing of the team this year will materially affect their chances. The game with T. C. U. will be the Cowboys' first tilt with a member of the conference and from indications the throng of coaches, fans and critics that will follow the team to Breckenridge Oct. 6 will form one of the largest crowds to see a football game in that section.

COWBOYS TRAIN FOR S. M. U. CLASH

ABILENE, Texas, Sept. 26.—With less than three weeks remaining before they play Southern Methodist university in what is considered to be their hardest game of this season, the Simmons university Cowboys launched their third week of training Monday with more stress on offense, which was so sadly lacking in the first game, played with Decatur Baptist college here Saturday.

Although the Cowboys did not try to open up anything, and punted over a dozen times on first down in the Decatur game, it was nevertheless evident that much is to be done yet to develop an offense that will move the wall of the powerful S. M. U. Mustangs.

Coach Frank Bridges sent his three clubs through a long signal practice Monday and promises to send a team with more punch against the Sul Ross Teachers Saturday at Big Spring.

In spite of the slowness of last Saturday's contest, the Simmons defense looked encouraging and several of the new recruits were among the defensive stars.

From all indications the Cowboys will be able to throw a powerful line against the Mustangs, averaging over 185 pounds from tackle to tackle, schooled in the art of defense, which will turn the S. M. U. team to the air if they expect to cinch it against Simmons.

"Uncle Joe" Smith, big Wichita Falls boy, who is playing his second year with Simmons, has the left tackle salted down pretty well and Hardy Pearce, another sophomore, has the other. Both of these men weigh nearly 200. At the guards Bridges has C. Daniel, a letter man, and Tittle, big 190-pounder from Merkel, who has showed unusual ability and nosed out two letter men so far. Daniel is short, but a hard-hitting, driving guard.

At center, Golightly, Marlin high school product, has the edge over all competitors thus far and shows a lot of smartness for a new man. Golightly weighs 185. Jennings and Ribble, letter men, play the guards, also, and Bridges has several promising men as reserve material.

With Captain "Red" Moore at right end, the left wing has resolved to a fight between Griggs, former Decatur man, and Halle Daniel, formerly a guard.

In the backfield, Bridges has Sims, Hyde and Walter as quarters; Davenport, Sanders, Harvey, Sellers, Kuhn, Britton and several promising recruits as other backfield material.

The backfield which the Simmons coach sent to start the Decatur game averaged over 180 pounds and was not a slow aggregation.

Team work and offense will now be the keyword of the Simmons camp until Oct. 13, when they meet the Mustangs.

Coyotes Take Hard Workout For Home Debut With Decatur Friday

Doubling work for two games this week-end, Coach Bud McCallum gave his Wichita Falls Coyotes a hard practice session Wednesday afternoon.

The Coyotes make their home debut Friday afternoon at Athletic park with Decatur Baptist college and journey to Olney Saturday for a practice skirmish with Olney high school.

The Coyote line began to round into formidable condition yesterday after several days of hard work under the direction of Assistant Coaches Bill Morris and Coyal Francis.

A scrimmage with the E. A. Baggett's Junior college Indians, in which both coaches stressed and perfected pass plays and defense, concluded the last hard practice before the game Friday.

Kenneth Mills and Captain Harvey Black flashed the best form that they have displayed this year in the Coyote backfield yesterday, while Jud Bell at guard, Hodgkiss at center, and Bains at end, worked well in the line.

The Indian line is considerably strengthened over its appearance in the game with Electra Saturday. Baggett's passing attack is beginning to work into fair shape.

Gabbert Stephens, Indian end, was by far the outstanding player in the line, though Ramey, and Captain Ox Edmondson tackled right lustily at times.

Harvey seems to be in the class of the Redskins at receiving passes, while Mitchell, and Castleberry, halfbacks, loom as the most dependable ball carriers.

KABAROS AND MATSUDA MEET

Auto Dealers Stage Match Here Friday

Matty Matsuda, Japanese exponent of jui jutsu wrestling, will grapple Nick Kabaros in the main event of a free wrestling and boxing show to be staged Friday night at the intersection of Scott avenue and Eighth street.

The free entertainment is being backed by the Wichita Falls Automobile dealers in celebration of Wichita Falls' 46th birthday.

Country Boy Owens of Wichita Falls will box an eight-round exhibition with Cyclone Hall of Childress as the boxing feature of the program.

Curly Robertson and Whirlwind Kelly meet in a four-round paperweight mill for a gold medal offered by Harry Katz.

The feature boxing bout promises to be one of the best that has been seen in Wichita Falls for several weeks. The Country Boy, who has disposed of all comers for the last few months, goes into the hardest fight of his career when he meets Hall, according to Alec B. Ross, who is matchmaker of the show.

Hall has participated in 45 fights, has scored 21 wins by knockouts, and has never been knocked off his feet, Ross asserted.

Baer Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER
(Copyrt. 1928, by Universal Service)

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—The war veterans' home at Yountville, Calif., now has a snorer's barracks.

Seems that nasal shrapnel annoys the heroes of three wars.

Roar of artillery and bombs bursting in air are music when compared with a nose that never reaches the climax.

So Colonel Holderman has divided his squads into two classes. The vets with somnambulistic musical ability have been assigned to separate quarters where they can bugle all night without disturbing alert sentries.

There are 24 snoring soldiers in the colonel's bunk expedition.

These midnight canaries can now orchestrate their slumbers without disturbing the war department.

Peculiar thing about a man who snores is that you can never get him to admit it.

The wife has a beautiful, well modulated snore that starts at zero and winds up among General Motors.

It runs a neat treble scale, hesitates for a few notes, picks up where it left off, gains power and finally sounds like a cat with walnut shells on its feet.

She retaliates by insisting that we wear a clothes pin on our nose when we sleep. No man has ever heard himself snore, but if the wife's statement is correct, our nose is the best after-dinner speaker in the world.

We have heard some anonymous complaints in Turkish baths and Pullman sleepers. We do our best when traveling to help the engineer whistle for the crossings.

A good, sincere, manly snore will scare burglars away, put the baby to sleep and make a Jersey skeeter bite himself in frustrated indignation.

Apartment houses with dining alcoves, kitchenettes and other guest traps might also include snoring nooks in the building plans.

But there is no law against sounding your A when sleeping. There can be no real criticism of a self-winding nose or any other engine that keeps running smoothly without extra consumption of oil and gasoline.

McCallum Starts First High School Class in Football

A class in football, a course which has never been offered before in a class room at Wichita Falls high school, is being held under Coach Bud McCallum this year.

The majority of the members of the class are men who are out for the team, although a few have joined it merely to learn more about the game.

The class every day substitutes for "skull practice" during regular practice and saves a great deal of time, according to Coach McCallum.

It is being held during the sixth or last period of the day and is beneficial to football players from a scholastic standpoint as they go to regular classes at earlier periods and do not receive a cut or absence from a sixth period class on playing days.

Montgomery Wins Race In Class B Baseball

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Sept. 26. (AP)—Montgomery of the Southeastern league today won the class B baseball championship of the South by defeating Asheville of the South Atlantic league, 6 to 1. Montgomery took four and Asheville two games of the scheduled seven-game series.

American Girls Beat Canadian Polo Champs

WESTCHESTER BILTMORE CLUB, RYE, N. Y., Sept. 26. (UP)—With mallets singing and the flying hoofs of their ponies churning the green turf, four hard-hitting American girls rode to victory over a Canadian team today in the first of an international series for the women's polo championship, 5 to 2.

Georgia Team Has Two Captains

These charging lads are the 1928 captains of the University of Georgia football team. They are Lautzenheiser (left) a tackle, and Jacobson (right) a guard. The unusual part of their reign as leaders of the Bullfrogs is that one man will be captain one game and the other for the next. This is something new in southern football.

Buckaroos Show Host of Defects

But Team Makes Ready for Second Clash

Special to The Record News

BRECKENRIDGE, Texas, Sept. 26.—Although showing little knowledge of the simplest rules of football, having lost more than 100 yards as a result of penalties for offside and holding in their first game with the Comanche Indians here last Friday, Coach P. E. Shotwell, Breckenridge mentor, seemed very well pleased with his 1928 Buckaroos Monday, and set to work to iron out the rough spots in preparation for their second game next Friday with the Weatherford eleven.

Weatherford, apparently, is very weak this year and won't give Shotwell much trouble. He will only use the game as a stepping stone for his first real test and conference game to be played the following week with Eastland, the date for this game being Oct. 5.

After hearing from Abilene Monday, the last team in the Oil Belt district to play a game, scribes and fans of this district are picking Ranger as the blackhorse in the district race, the Bulldogs having won their two starts by big scores. Of course Abilene and Cisco are still considered the biggest threats. Very little thought is given to the poor showing the Abilene Eagles displayed against the Anson Tigers in their game Monday.

Brownwood, playing Rising Star last Friday to scoreless tie, was shoved completely out of the championship picture. San Angelo made an unimpressive showing also.

Arkansas May Quit Southwest Conference

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Sept. 26. (UP)—Reports that Arkansas university, whose withdrawal from the Southwest conference is rumored, may join the old Missouri Valley conference, were current here today.

By LOUIS A. DOUGHER

NEW YORK, Sept. 25—When you reach the right fielders with chances of getting into the world series of 1928, you come to the cream of the sluggers, Babe Ruth and Paul Waner.

There is only one Babe Ruth. He stands alone in his specialty of hammering the ball out of the lot. In 132 games he has driven in 122 runs, almost one to a game. No other right fielder compares to him in that, though Paul Waner has a much higher batting average.

Furthermore, Babe Ruth is in all his glory in a world series. He is the greatest showman in baseball, rising to his greatest heights at crucial moments. The honors of the American league may be left to Babe Ruth. Let's say no more.

Waner Trails Ruth

Paul Waner lacks the terrific slugging prowess of Ruth, but consider those 200 hits in 133 games 46 of them doubles and 11 of them triples. He is far behind Ruth in home runs, but the Yankee gardener is the only right fielder who has driven in more runs.

It is quite a drop from Ruth and Paul Waner to the other right fielders, with chances of horning into the big scrap next month. Bing Miller of the A's, is a steady, capable player, but there is nothing brilliant about him.

Mell Ott of the Giants shares his duties with Leslie Mann, baldheaded veteran, and does well. The chunky youngster is a slashing hitter and a fair fielder.

Kiki Cuyler of the Chicago Cubs is the best base runner of the right field troupe and he measures up very well in the field and at bat. Cuyler was Pittsburgh's brightest light in 1925, but that year on the bench in 1926 did him no good and he has not recovered yet. Next season he should approach nearer the class he showed in 1925. A batting average of .276 really isn't the Cuyler standard.

Orsatti Is Slugger

Orsatti, who may be seen in action if the Cardinals triumph, is only a fair fielder, but a hitting, slugging fool. His running mate, George Harper, is a brilliant fielder and a fair hitter. The Cardinals ought not to be weak in right field.

The Cincinnati Reds have a promising youngster in Callaghan who would not look out of place in a world series.

Pete Scott, a reformed catcher, plays right field for the Pirates whenever Grantham's injuries cause Paul Waner to hold down the first corner, and he does so well enough. Scott is a dependable hitter, though not as dangerous as the older Waner.

No contender for the title has a weak right fielder, while the Yanks and Pirates have glittering stars.

CARDS' LEAD IN RACE SLUMPS

Vance Reaches Record of 200 Strikeouts

By WILLIAM J. CHAPMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

BROOKLYN, Sept. 26.—The long right arm of dazzling Dazzy Vance sprinkled loads and loads of salt on the proud tail feathers of the strutting Red Birds here today, and just as the fowls were performing all their smartest tricks for the delighted pitcher, Gink Hendrick stepped to the plate and unfeelingly slaughtered the flock of them.

The Gink did it with his little home run bat while three Robins were roosting contentedly on every available perch in the seventh inning, with hardly a thought of moving from where they were. The Gink caught one of Red Bird Mitchell's choice spitters and sent it on a ride to far and distant parts for a complete trip around the bases and safe transportation home for all the Robins on the bases.

This blow enabled the home flock from Brooklyn to humble the St. Louis foe 6 to 1, so as to reduce the Mound City margin in the pennant race to a bare half game over the Giants, who sat idle in the chill of the stands.

The Cardinals never seriously threatened at any other time after the first. Vance entered the game siming at a mark of 200 strikeouts for the season, and rolled up seven to reach that figure.

The Dazzler has done his share and more for the Robins—and the Giants, too, it seems—this season. He retires to the sidelines with a mark of 22 victories and only 10 defeats.

The Giants can tie the Cardinals for the lead by the simple process of taking two from the Cubs at the Polo grounds tomorrow, even if the leaders win one in Boston.

TULSA WINS SERIES OPENER

Oilers Beat Oklahoma City By 10 to 9 Score

TULSA, Okla., Sept. 26. (UP)—A home run by Dondero in the ninth inning ended a 9-all count and gave Tulsa a 10 to 9 victory over Oklahoma City today in the first game of the play-off series of the Western league.

Dondero was the hero of the game, for in addition to bringing in the winning run with his circuit clout in the ninth, his first homer in the sixth inning also drove in several Tulsa runners. The Oilers made four runs in that inning to take a two-score lead over the Indians.

Home runs by Huffman and Thomas in the sixth inning gave Oklahoma City three scores and a two run lead over the Oilers, who quickly came back to assume the advantage. Then the Indians evened the count in the seventh with two scores.

A bad third inning was experienced by both teams. Oklahoma City made three in that frame and Tulsa scored four times. Both clubs changed pitchers, with Thomas relieving Bornholdt for the Indians and Naylor taking the place of Smithson. After the disastrous sixth inning, Black took the mound for Oklahoma City.

The line scores:

Tulsa	104 004 001—10	7	1

Employment Agency Seeks Job for Boy

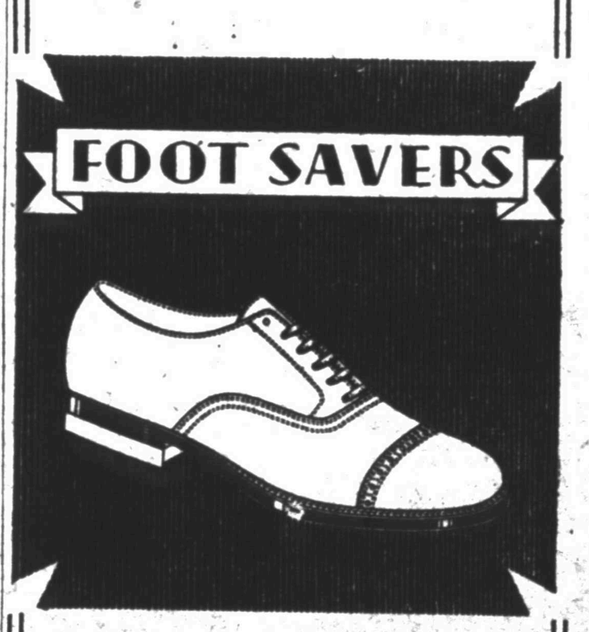

Is there anyone in Wichita Falls who has a job for a bright, hard working boy?

Miss Fern Sides, secretary of the city free employment agency, said Wednesday that a boy whose mother is now working and whose father is sick in bed, has had to quit school and go to work.

"If this boy can get work either before or after school hours and on Saturday, he can resume his school work," Miss Sides said. "He is a good boy, and at present is studying his books at home by himself at night."

Canadian Press Bulges With All Latest News in World of Sport

Mister Runyon Observes With Pride Space Given to American Events—and Other Customs

By DAMON RUNYON
(Copyright, 1928, by Universal Service)

MONTREAL, Sept. 26.—The newspapers here give quite a play to sport.

More, I should say, proportionately to their space, than the American newspapers.

No Sunday paper is permitted here, but the Standard, a weekly adjunct of one of the dailies, comes out late Saturday night the size of a volume of the Encyclopedia Britannica, and it carries all the late sport news of Canada and the United States.

They have a number of big dailies here, and they all give as much attention to big league baseball in the states as they do to International league baseball. Some of them carry sport features familiar to the readers of American newspapers. Horse racing, in its season, is covered fully, not only from the Canadian tracks, but from tracks in the United States as well.

And the newsstands, of which there seem to be more in Montreal than anywhere else in the world, are piled high with newspapers from all over Canada, and the states, and with all the English sports publications. It strikes me that they care more for professional sport than for amateur sport in Montreal.

The price of an American newspaper here is little more than in the states, but a box of American cigarets costs on an average of 10 cents more in Montreal than in New York. Not that there is any connection. I merely mention it.

Composer Visits City

Walter Donaldson was here recently, ensconsed in a suite in the Mount Royal, with a push button for the waiter within easy reach, writing the music for Eddie Cantor's new show.

Walter Donaldson has probably composed more popular music than any other living man, and it is estimated that if there were no race tracks in the world he would be worth $11,762,343.56.

He is a mild looking little Irishman, with a perennial smile. He has commenced to take on jowls and stomach the past couple of years, and has also become a song publisher on his own hook, which is perhaps worse.

This chap wrote the music of "Mammy," "My Buddy," "Beside a Babbling Brook," "Carolina in the Morning," "Yes, Sir, That's My Baby," "Blue Heaven," and scores of other songs that have sold into the millions. When it comes to tearing off popular music, Donaldson is in a class by himself, and that goes for Irving Berlin, and all the rest of them.

Horses Blasé Tourists

Around the public squares of Montreal stand many rickety looking old Victorias, of the type of that "Mississippi" which rattled along Broadway until the grim reaper stepped in and knocked him off for his gallant steed.

Aged horses, knobby-kneed, and watery-eyed, stand in the shafts of these Victorias with heads drooping dejectedly. Possibly they were once proud equines in shiny jingling, well polished harness, pulling brilliant vehicles loaded with Montreal aristocracy, along Sherbrooke avenue.

Their present jobs done on their high seats in the sunshine. Some of them are young fellows, others jaded looking old men, with complexions the color of ancient saddles.

The reason for so many horse hauled public vehicles in Montreal is that automobiles are not permitted on Mount Royal, the hill that towers over the town, and if you want a good eyeful of Montreal you have to go up on Mount Royal.

So the tourists must toll up there behind the plodding plugs. Old-fashioned tally-hos, with four horses lashed to them, find favor with many of the visiting firemen, and a leather-lunged gent hawls out the spots of interest, if any.

City Divided

The line of demarcation between the French and English inmates of Montreal is sharply drawn. They herd to themselves, socially and residentially, though they mingle in the marts of trade.

Mr. Joe Paige walked me down to a slow amble to show me the street that splits the town in the middle and represents the fence between the French and English sections. The French section is the more interesting.

In the pleasant streets of the French precincts pretty girls, and solid matrons, and gents with moustaches, and beards, go walking around and about babbling the accents of the fluer de lis.

The architecture of the dwelling houses seems quite foreign. The French not infrequently build their stairways to their second floors outside the house, instead of inside. I am told that this has been prohibited by law in Montreal. I don't see why, the outside stairways strike me as more convenient than the inside stairways, and far handier for necking parties. Somebody is always prohibiting something somewhere.

Alligator Hunters Make Big Profits

ORANGE, Texas, Sept. 26. (UP)—A review of the record of alligator hides handled through Orange from the hunters operating in the Texas and Louisiana markets would indicate that the business was one of no little importance.

While exact figures on hides shipped from this point are not available, it is known that the total would run high into the tens and that the money accruing from the sale of 'gator hides, would make a good showing on a financial statement.

According to J. W. Pavell, who buys a majority of hides brought here, some men make as high as $90 in one night killing alligators. Prices paid the hunters range from $3 to $4 each. The number of alligator hides marketed here this year has been much larger than any previous year, it is said. The trapping season opens Oct. 20, in Louisiana.

Officials on Trial in Queen's Sewer Scandal

NEW YORK, Sept. 26. (UP)—Maurice E. Connolly, former borough president of Queens, and Frederick Seely, former city engineer of that borough, today went to trial on charges of conspiracy to defraud growing from the $30,000,000 Queens sewer scandal.

In the same courtroom of the Queens county courthouse where Ruth Snyder and Judd Gray heard the death sentence pronounced, the two faced indictments on three counts, maximum punishment for which would be a year's imprisonment and $1,000 fine on each count.

Old Time Razor Used In Negro 'Carving'

WAXAHACHIE, Texas, Sept. 26. (UP)—Pre-war times are once more in our midst. At least the country is getting back to normalcy, according to Justice of the Peace W. E. Cox.

A complaint alleging aggravated assault has been filed in Justice Cox's court by a negro man against a negro woman, who among other things, "did with malicious intent, cut, carve and otherwise mistreat the victim, thereby marring his countenance, map, features and physiognomy, to say nothing of spoiling his good humor. The weapon used in said assault was the good old fashioned razor.

Whereas, heretofore, the judge declared, if it had been a modern weapon like a pistol, sandbag or flatiron, it would not have been news—but a razor is the old time method of doing plain and fancy carving.

Coleman Farm Boys To Use New Methods

COLEMAN, Texas, Sept. 26. (AP)—Agricultural boys at the Coleman high school expect to show their fathers a few things about how to make a living next year by feeding livestock economically and raising better cotton.

Each boy has chosen a project to take care of and keep records on, and will report at the end of the year. Of the 30 boys taking vocational agriculture, 14 selected cotton, five poultry, four dairy cows, three sheep, two baby beeves and two brood sows. Each boy, with the help of books, bulletins and class room discussions will endeavor to make the project better than the average farmer in the county would have done.

BRECK TO MEET EASTLAND FOE

First Conference Game on October 5

Special to The Record News.

BRECKENRIDGE, Sept. 26.—Football fans of this section will be able to see their fill here the week-end of Oct. 5 and 6. Two games of different importance but of some interest to all will be on the card both days.

The first day, Oct. 5, Breckenridge plays its first conference game of the 1928 schedule against the ancient foes from Eastland. The following day will usher in the football classic of the West—the Simmons T. C. U. game.

Both games will be played on Buckaroo field, one of the best if not the best high school field in the state. Hundreds of high school fans will journey over from Eastland Friday, Oct. 5, to see Breckenridge and Eastland tie up in the first real battle for state team, and they will in all probability stay over for the big game the following afternoon.

From 8,000 to 12,000 people are expected to be in Breckenridge these two days.

Jake Sanderfer jr. and M. E. Daniels, local sportsmen and promoters of the Cowboy-Frog affair, say that more than $2,000 worth of tickets to this game have been sold to Breckenridge people alone. Both institutions have said they were sending special trains for the game. Calls for tickets come in daily from every section of West Texas.

Officials are predicting that the Buckaroo stadium will be bulging to capacity for the big tilt.

For Inflamed Breathing Tubes

Try Dr. Blosser's Medical Cigarettes in the Next Attack

If you have catarrh you are in danger of losing your hearing. The first symptoms of catarrhal deafness are roaring or buzzing sensations and a stopped-up feeling in the ears. A neglected cold, or an uncured cold, leads to catarrh, and as everybody knows, catarrh affects the eye, ears nose, throat, lungs and frequently undermines the general health.

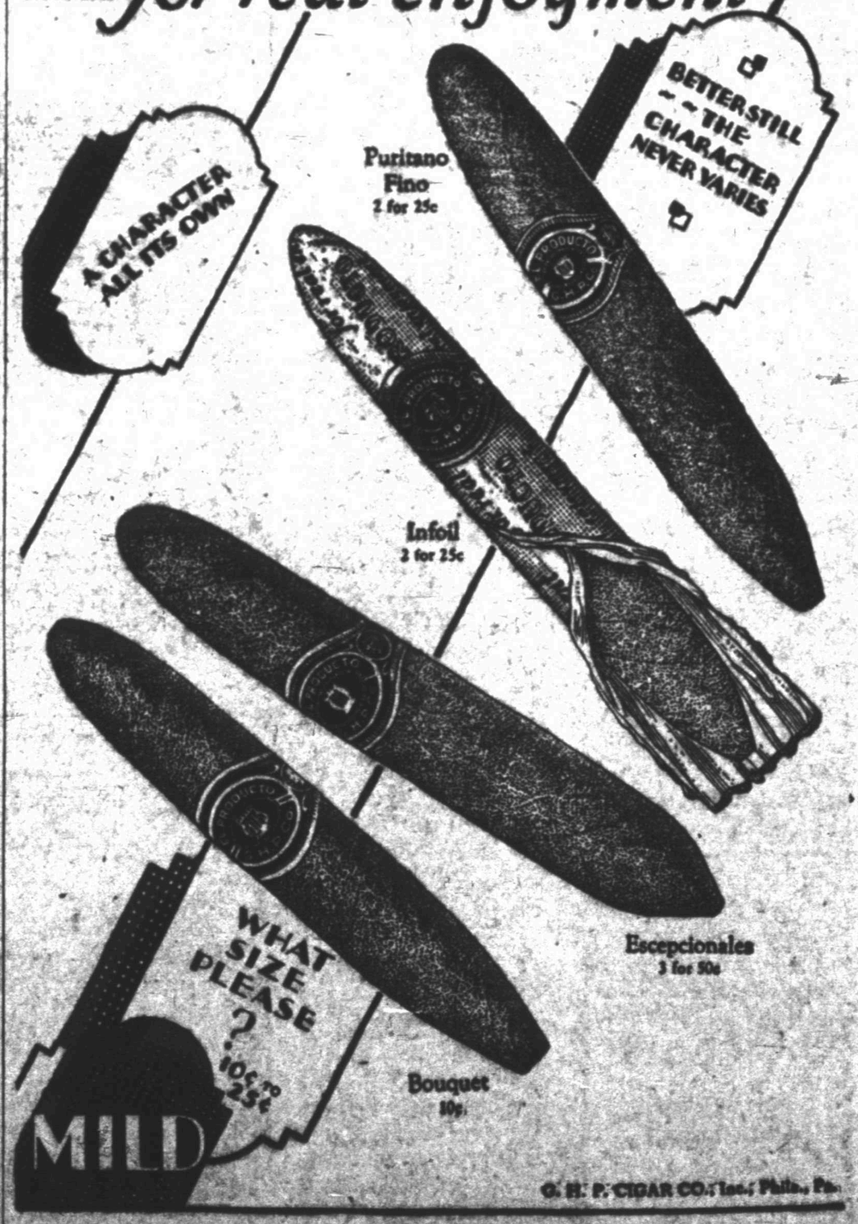

The secret of the successful medication of these hidden parts was discovered by Dr. Blosser in his medical practice. This remedy is applied by smoking a certain combination of medical herbs (containing no tobacco) in a pipe or cigarette. Dr. Blosser's Remedy produces a dense smoke vapor which is inhaled or forced into the Eustachian tubes leading to the middle ear. BULL-DOG Strength

YOU never saw a tire with the strength this one has. One look at its massive tread and thick carcass will tell you more than we could in a thousand words.

Compare it — with any tire. Yes — include the heavy duties — and note the difference. This tire of greater wear for hard passenger car service is actually thicker and stronger than the majority of heavy duty tires — size for size.

Think what that means in extra miles. Think what it means in freedom from punctures and blowouts. You will drive this tire as far as you ever drove any tire before you begin to even think of punctures. And thousands of miles beyond that before punctures can possible occur.

You will feel a new security as you drive — its new tread design grips wet and slippery road surfaces and is cut extra deep to give thousands of miles more traction.

We invite you to see this remarkable new tire. It is built to last as long as you drive your car. It is the finest tire — in our belief — that anyone has ever produced in the history of automotive transportation.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Sept. 26. (AP)—Early advances of about 40 to 48 points on a continuation of the of the recent buying movement were checked by southern selling and realizing in the cotton market today. December contracts, after selling up to 19.09, closed at 18.86. The general market closed steady, at net advances of 18 to 27 points.

The opening was steady at a decline of 6 points to an advance of 2 points, with most months a shade lower under selling promoted by relatively easy Liverpool cables. The comparatively small offerings were absorbed around the initial prices, however, and the market soon turned upward.

Demand became more active and general after publication of the weekly report of the weather bureau which evidently made a bullish impression on sentiment and prices moved up rapidly to 19.12 for October, 18.98 for January, and 18.90 for March, or 40 to 48 points net higher, new high ground for the movement on most positions. Demand then tapered off somewhat, and the market was less active during the afternoon, last prices showing reactions of 18 to 27 points from the best under realizing and southern selling or hedging.

Brokers with Wall street and western connections were reported buyers on the midday advance which was accompanied by reports of a good spot demand from both domestic and foreign sources. Increased offerings were again in evidence around the 19 cent level for the year months, however, the weekly report of the weather bureau was commented on by late afternoon buyers as tending to increase the tendency to scale down estimates of the crop and reports of light frosts.

Private cables reported increased hedging with Continental and Bombay liquidation in Liverpool.

Exports for the day 25.336 bales, making 817,130 so far this season. Port receipts 52,184. U. S. port stocks 959,912.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 26. (AP)—Unfavorable weather and weather prospects coupled with a reported urgent demand for spots seemed responsible for an advance of $2.50 a bale from an early decline in the cotton market today. Heavy profit-taking developed, however, and the advance was not fully maintained, closing prices showing net gains of 21 to 26 points, or approximately $1.50 a bale.

December opened at 18.00 and on the bulge traded to 18.45 but eased off in later trading and closed at 18.28, or 28 points net up.

The opening was easy in sympathy with lower Liverpool cables and first trades showed losses of 4 to 8 points. The early offerings were quickly absorbed and values started upward under buying promoted by the weather map's showing of low temperatures in the eastern belt and before the demand was supplied October contracts traded to 18.10, with active months generally showing advances of 25 points from the opening.

Later in the morning when the weekly weather and crop summary was issued indicating unfavorable weather in the belt particularly in the eastern section due to the recent tropical hurricane, buying increased. Shorts covered freely and some cotton was reported bought for speculative account. There were several short-lived reactions, but October and December ultimately were up 47 to 50 points above the lows and 42 points over the previous close.

Reports from the interior indicating spots were in urgent demand there further stimulated purchasing as did fears of a return of cold weather in the belt which traders considered detrimental to crop progress.

Rather liberal profit-taking followed the bulge and prices slowly but steadily eased until active position showed losses of 20 to 21 points compared with the highs. When the offerings were absorbed however, prices rallied slightly and October closed at 18.19 and January 18.30, or 24 to 30 points net up.

Stock Prices Average Lower Despite Drop in Call Rate to Six Per Cent

By BROADAN WALL
Universal Service Financial Expert

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—Easing of the call rate from a renewal of 7 per cent to 6 per cent failed to offset continued profit taking in the stock market today, and all groups closed slightly lower on the average.

"Selected stocks" again gave the appearance of strength to the market with Radio jumping 5⅜, for the best gain, with a fairly substantial short interest again reported trapped in the stock.

General Motors, with a 2 point gain, and Graham-Paige with the same advance, featured an otherwise irregular motor group in which Hudson dropped nearly 3 points.

Montgomery Ward declined 5 points in the face of stock dividend talk. Steel common also dipped fractionally although the Iron Age told of increasing production as a result of sustained buying by automobile manufacturers and larger demand from the railroads.

Pan American scored the best gain among the oils while the coppers ruled fairly steady.

Call Rate May Gain

With call money down to 6 per cent, there was not a great deal of worry over the federal reserve meeting tomorrow afternoon. It was generally expected that loans will show another increase of about $50,000,000 and that the rediscount rate would be left unchanged. Calling of $10,000,000 more loans was due to government withdrawals, representing the last of the aftermath of the mid-September treasury financing. The easier conditions in the face of this call was no surprise, however, as there should be plenty of funds available until the banks have to prepare for the October 1 disbursements. Whether these preparations are made Firday or Monday is up to the individual banker, but when they are the call rate should go to 8 per cent at least.

Missouri Pacific benefited most from the increased attention to the rails with the new buying largely influenced by the highly favorable earnings report for August.

On the basis of the eight months' showing and allowing for equity in Texas & Pacific, International Great Northern and Gulf Coast, net for the common this year, is placed at more than $13 a share.

St. Paul was the subject of further accumulation also coincident with reports of continued betterment in income. The report that the commerce commission would announce decision on the Nickel Plate deal remained unconfirmed and there was no anxiety to hasten such announcement as from past happenings there is reason to fear it will be more bearish than bullish.

Coppers Supported

Coppers were well supported. There was talk of a merger being planned by prominent bankers in which Magma and Calumet & Arizona would take part. Higher dividend was forecast for the latter stock, also. Pressed steel car was helped somewhat by hints that interests who hold a big block of Baldwin had beep active in the market for the shares recently. Morgan interest was mentioned in connection with the early bulge in Johns Manville.

Eaton Axle slipped, although it was estimated that net this year would approximate $6.50 a share. Group work continued in White Sewing Machine as report was heard that a new model would be introduced next month.

The greater activity in the oils was attributed to plans of bankers and stock market interests for the next few weeks. One of the first developments of the improved status of the oils is expected to be a dividend on Barnsdall tomorrow. Pan American reflected plans of the bankers interested therein while Texas and Tidewater awaited the coming of Cutten. He is expected in New York tomorrow.

Sinclair was considerably more active coincident with further reports as to plans of leading interests in the oil industry regarding Sinclair. As a result thereof it is understood, Sinclair eventually will be linked with other properties.

Choice medium weight steers in Chicago scored $18.60, a figure equal to the high level of the year.

Fat lambs ruled unevenly 15-40c lower, while aged stock registered no material change, choice range lambs in Chicago topped at $14.00, and in Kansas City, on early rounds, choice rangers brought $13.85. Aggregate receipts were around 95,800, against 108,732 a week ago and 81,790 a year ago.

CHICAGO REVIEW
By THOMAS TEMPLE HOYNE

CHICAGO, Sept. 26. (US)—Grains closed higher today with a decided display of power at the end, leaving the impression that any further advance early tomorrow might start shorts scrambling to cover and put prices up sharply.

At the end wheat was up 1⅛ to 1⅝c; corn was up 1⅛ to 1⅝c; oats were ⅛c higher to ⅛c lower; rye was up ⅝ ot 1⅝c.

The tightening situation in the deferred corn futures that has appeared for several days to be developing looked today as if it were approaching a head that would force traders who have been taking liberties on the selling side to buy in what they have sold. It seemed quite within the range of possibilities that corn may go up through the offers today.

The September future shows no sign of petering out with the drawing nearer of Saturday, the last delivery day. On the other hand, that future develops renewed strength on every decline.

If September corn should go out as high as a dollar that conclusion of grading in this future would have probably a decided bullish effect on all the deferred futures. It would not seem than that 90 cents was extremely high for corn.

In spite of the bearish attitude on wheat of most big local professional traders that market showed marked strength today. It was pounded by selling from the opening, but steadily worked upward in the face of bear efforts to keep it down.

As suggested here today, buying of December wheat set in around 1.17 apparently by big interests that are under the market.

Rye appears to be in a very strong position. The September future, because of the small stocks here, seems to be in a class by itself and susceptible to faster advances than the other futures if buying develops in volume. But the very fact that it is the current future makes it dangerous for the ordinary trader to trade in.

If September goes out at a much higher figure it is pretty certain that the other futures will respond to the strength showed by the leader. At present prices, with a world's short crop in prospect rye looks cheapest of the grains.

In the cash market wheat was unchanged; corn was unchanged to ⅛c up; oats were unchanged to ⅛c off; rye was 1½ to 2½c up; barley was firm.

Oklahoma Educational Speakers Announced

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 26. (UP)—The Oklahoma Educational association today announced the following speakers to headline the various meetings throughout the state:

George D. Strayer of New York, eminent educator, central district meeting, Nov. 1 at Edmond.

Victor Murdock, owner of the Wichita, Kan., Eagle, panhandle district meeting, Oct. 26, at Guymon.

Former Oklahoma City superintendent Brandenburg, northern district meeting, Nov. 8, at Ponca City.

NEW YORK.—A Brooklyn man who has just got out of the hoosegow by a writ of habeas corpus insists that he is Samuel Frank and not his brother Albert. Mrs. Albert Frank disagrees. "I ought to know the man I married," she told Justice Humphrey. "This is my husband." And Frank interposed: "I never married this woman or any other woman." Frank had been in jail for non-payment of $3,260 accrued alimony. The judge continued the case after voicing suspicion that the lady was mistaken.

Pecos Takes Lead From Winkler in New Production—17 New Oil Wells

Special to The Record News

SAN ANGELO, Sept. 26.—Total potential oil production of 269,719.40 barrels daily was registered by 17 wells completed last week in three counties in the Permian basin of West Texas. This was 214,651.40 barrels more than was indicated by 22 wells completed during the week ending Sept. 15 and 8,809.40 barrels in excess of the total daily potential yield of 26 wells completed during the week ending Sept. 8, when it appeared a new record for the year had been set.

Pecos county, although it had but four completions, snatched the lead last week from Winkler, its total daily potential increasing by 225,254.40 barrels. Of this amount 146,318.40 barrels was contributed by Mid-Kansas and Transcontinental No. 5-D Yates, in section 62, block 1, I. & G. N. Ry. Co. survey, in gauging 4,572 barrels of oil in 45 minutes, a rate of 6,090.60 barrels hourly, a new record for the pool. Eight wells were completed in Winkler county for total daily potential production of 41,330 barrels and Howard county completed five wells having total daily initial output of 3,135 barrels.

Four tests were abandoned, dry, one each in Howard, Jones, Reeves and Winkler counties, one less than during the preceding week.

Salt Water in St. Louis Pool

Special to The Record News.

TULSA, Okla., Sept. 26.—Salt water is encroaching the St. Louis oil pool of Pottawatomie county, and that flush area may fall off sharply as a result.

The pool made 115,284 barrels from 152 wells Wednesday. Magnolia company's No. 1 Hembree, the discovery well in the Wilcox sand in 19-7-5, is cutting 50 per cent and the lease made 14,757 barrels. 70 TESTS IN LEFORS AREA

Townsite Play Becomes Active

Le Fors, the municipality in which Gray county's court edicts are sent forth, is just now in the center of one of the most active and extensive drilling campaigns under way in the North Texas fields.

While between 60 and 70 rigs are drilling in the various sections radiating in all directions from this little town, the townsite itself is not immune from the bit and within the past few weeks a number of good wells have been completed in this area.

Completion of the Mordyan Oil company No. 1 Mel Davis in section 8, A. C. H. & B. survey a few days ago flowing 100 barrels per hour from the granite wash at 2,810 feet has become a factor in many new operators entering the field and during the week a number of deals were closed for new tests to be started at once.

Still Flowing

One of the most active in the townsite is the LeFors Petroleum company which completed its No. 2 well about a month ago. It still is flowing at the rate of 2,300 barrels daily, the granite wash having been topped at 2,750 feet. The same company is drilling at 2,669 feet in No. 4 Townsite, and rigging up to put down its No. 5 on the same lease.

North of town the Prairie Oil and Gas company is developing its C. Thut lease, in the T. Thut survey. This company already has completed two wells here. No. 1 came in swabbing 500 barrels and No. 2 is flowing 1,100 barrels per day. Both finished at 2,750 feet.

One mile south of LeFors in section 5, block 1, A. C. H. & B. survey, on the Shaw farm, Danciger Brothers No. 1 J. M. Shaw is in the upper pay at 2,300 feet and making 25,000,000 feet of gas. Northwest of this gasser and in the same block and survey, the White Eagle Oil and Refining company's No. 1 Shaw is drilling.

Gardner-Collins-Dunigan No. 1 Bruce Bull, in the northeast portion of section 3, block B-2, H. & G. N. survey, is drilling at 2,100 feet. This well is located west of McIlroy company's No. 1 B. Bull in the same survey, which is flowing 200 barrels from the 2,750-foot wash.

North of the McIlroy producer in section 2, block B12, H. & G. N. survey, Skelly Oil company's No. 1 Bruce Bull is drilling at 2,000 feet.

Landreth Drills

Landreth Production company's No. 1 Thut, in section 1, block B-2 H. & G. N. survey, a diagonal offset to the northwest of the LeFors Petroleum No. 2 townsite well, is having a fishing job at 2,350 feet and is making 50,000,000 feet of gas.

The Gulf Production company's No. 1 C. Thut in A. Z. Zweig survey, adjoining the LeFors townsite to the north, aparently is a dry hole at 2,800 feet. This is an east offset to the Prairie producer on the west.

In the northeast part of the field, east of the Texas company's Thut et al wells in H. & G. N. survey, block 1, Perkins & Collum No. 1 G. H. Saunders in section 4, B. S. & F. survey, Saunders lands, is running 8½-inch casing at 2,000 feet.

Companies which are engaged in drilling and which hold valuable leases are the Gulf, Magnolia, Skelly, Prairie, Mid-West, Tidal, Phillips Petroleum, Roxana, Danciger, Sun and Sinclair.

The Texas company alone has a daily output of approximately 6,000 barrels from its various leases and at present is drilling 12 deep tests in this section.

Several dry holes have been completed but these have had no bearing on the extent and magnitude of the producing area.

ANTI-ALS 'RUSH' MOODY FOR AID

Letters From Coast to Coast Received by Executive

AUSTIN, Sept. 26. (AP)—Governor Moody disclosed today that he has received letters from coast to coast urging him to assume leadership of the so-called anti-Smith Democrats since he declined recently to speak for Governor Smith at the Amarillo Tri-State fair.

The Texas executive, however, said again that he will support the whole Democratic ticket. He wired a New York paper requesting a correction of its published intimation that he might support Hoover, Republican presidential nominee.

The story came to Governor Moody's attention here as quoted in a Washington special dispatch relating that much interest had been attracted in the national capital by the report dated from Austin.

"The statement that I will support Herbert is not true and I ask that you correct it," the governor wired the New York paper. He said he had been unable to locate the paper's Austin correspondent.

"I am supporting and shall continue to support the entire Democratic ticket," he added. A copy of the message will be sent to the Democratic national headquarters, the governor said. He did not read the names of those he said had urged him to lead the anti-Smith Democrats.

HERALD-TRIBUNE PRINTED STORY

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 26. (INS)—Governor Dan Moody today emphatically denied that he would support Herbert Hoover, Republican presidential nominee. The governor made this declaration when shown a story purported to be printed by the Republican New York Herald-Tribune under a Washington date line. Moody today wired the editor of the Herald-Tribune that the story was not true.

"Texas paper in a Washington special," the governor's telegram to the editor read, "carries an item stating: 'Much interest was attracted in political circles here today by a news story in the New York Herald-Tribune, Republican, under an Austin date line that Governor Moody would support Herbert Hoover.' I have tried to locate your Austin correspondent but my efforts have been in vain. Statement that I will support Herbert Hoover is not true and I ask that you correct it. Statement attributed to your paper that while I had declared at the recent Democratic state convention that I would vote for the Democratic electors that a change seems to have come over me since that time is completely in error. I am supporting and I shall continue to support the Democratic ticket."

The fair, which is to last through Saturday, is staged under the auspices of the Burkburnett chamber of commerce.

Those who have not yet seen and heard an all talking motion picture should go to the Strand Thursday where "The Terror" is being presented for the last time.

◇ ◇ ◇

Mike Donlin used to be restricted to the Polo grounds in New York and the other diamonds on which the New York Giants played for his audiences. That was in his time as one of the greatest of major league baseball stars. Nowdays the whole world is his audience, for he has become a good motion picture actor with Paramount.

◇ ◇ ◇

Mike is seen along with Richard Arlen, Louis Brooks and Wallace Beery in "Beggars of Life," a Paramount sound picture which will open at the Strand theater Friday. The funny thing is that Wallace Beery is starred by Paramount far above the others in the cast. Beery is just plain crude to our way of seeing the flickers. On the stage, he would rate cheap burlesque or tenth class girl and tab shows. He is so bad that he couldn't be worse. That's how he gets by. The Cherry sisters did the same thing and got by on the fact that their best and most serious efforts were so ridiculous that everyone laughed at them—but paid to see them just the same.

◇ ◇ ◇

Well, Beery is coming, and so is a wild west show and a circus, and the big crowds will as usual turn out to see all three.

◇ ◇ ◇

"Beggars of Life" as a picture has received some excellent comment by eastern critics. It is a Paramount feature, and Paramount has the habit of generally adhering to a rather high standard of entertainment.

◇ ◇ ◇

French farces have been noted for a long time for their "speedy" trains of thought, lines, action and dialogue. Then, most folks know Marion Davies. So movie makers put this combination in a picture and called it "Her Cardboard Lover." It is adapted from the French farce of the legitimate stage, "Dans Sa Candeur Naive." The picture is at the Majestic, and if we don't miss our guess the bald headed row should be well filled.

Gospel Given To All, He Says

Pastor Talks on 'Passing of The Wicked'

"The Passing of the Wicked" was the subject of Rev. W. B. Walker, pastor of the First Nazarene church who addressed a large crowd Wednesday night. The minister said God divides people into two classes while people divide humanity into three.

"If we can get God's definition of the wicked, it will help us to understand the text. God divides humanity differently than we do. We divide people into three classes, but God divides them into only two classes. We divide them, first the Christian, secondly, those who are moral, but make no profession of Christianity, and thirdly, those who are desperately wicked. The Lord divides them into the righteous and unrighteous, the godly and the ungodly, the just and the unjust, those who are headed toward Heaven, and those headed toward hell.

"It is said of the wicked that they are like troubled sea, when it cannot rest, whose waters cast up mire and dirt. There is no peace, saith my God, to the wicked. There are two characteristics of the wicked. They are void of soul rest, and have no peace. There is no peace in their heart and no rest in their life.

"Then it is interesting to note the opportunities of the wicked. They had many opportunities to hear preaching. Opportunity is a wonderful thing. It is said that every man has at least one opportunity to become rich. If he seizes this opportunity, he will be well fixed, but if he fails, he will ever remain poor.

"God gives to every man the opportunity to hear the gospel, and if he fails to accept it the Lord is under no obligation to give a second call. This call comes to every normal human being, and if the call is heeded such a soul will have peace and satisfaction."

Pageant Gives City's History

on the stage Monday night was in tune and it should not have been if it was really intended to represent those in France during the war.

Two little page girls, Rose M. Art and Mary A. Riley opened the pageant with a call to attention on their trumpets.

Little girls, seated on a birthday cake which was symbolic of the city's 46th birthday celebration of which the pageant was a part, were dressed like and designated as "rosebuds." When they climbed down from the cake, they displayed the individually lettered cards they had carried hidden up to that time and spelled out: "Birthday of Wichita Fal's, the City Faith Built."

HAMMOND WINS AIRPORT LEASE

Provisions Made for New Additions to Field

Active management of the Wichita Falls municipal airport on the Burkburnett road has passed to the hands of L. P. (Pink) Hammond, oil man and ranch owner, it was announced Wednesday by George D. Fairtrace, city manager.

The announcement followed a meeting of directors of the airport company and the city manager at which they considered bids which had been opened at the city council meeting Monday night.

Mr. Hammond was the high bidder, and has agreed to go ahead with certain improvements at the field and to operate it within all regulations of the air as set down by the United States department of commerce, and also within the ordinances of the air now existing or which may later be made by the Wichita Falls city council.

The written contract is being prepared. It will contain the provisions agreed upon by Mr. Hammond in submitting his bid and also in accepting the airport.

Twenty-four hour service at the field, installation of a large gasoline tank, mechanic's service, the construction of a machine shop and the equipment for the shop, the erection of a water tank, the care of the field and all similar things required for a class A airport will be the duties of Mr. Hammond under his contract. He will pay the city $160 a month and will have the field for the two-year period ending when the city's option to buy the field expires.

Magazine Cowboys Poor Substitute, Says Old Timer

Locks Unknown Here in Early Days, Declares J. J. Pike

"The old time West Texas cowboys were real big hearted fellows but these magazine cover cowboys aren't even like them" was the expression of J. J. Pike of 1605 Bluff street in giving an account of the early days of Wichita Falls.

Mr. Pike and his parents moved here from Nebraska in 1883 at which time there was no bridge across the Wichita river and freighting was done with oxen and wagons to Vernon, Seymour and towns farther west.

Indians from the reservation in Oklahoma were frequent visitors in those days. They came here mainly to trade and were always peaceful and law abiding, Mr. Pike said.

The country around Wichita Falls at that date was abounding with deer, antelope, wild turkey, and prairie dogs, and most of the land which is now fenced into farms was was an open cattle range.

Rains in Northwest Texas were much lighter then than the average rainfall a year now and, at that time, before irrigation had been practiced in Wichita Valley old timers experienced great difficulty in raising wheat on the scanty water supply, Mr. Pike asserted.

During the early years of Mr. Pike's residence here the saloon was the most prosperous of Wichita Falls businesses. The greater part of the business section, known in that day as "town," was located between Sixth and Eighth streets on Ohio avenue.

The house in which the Pike family lived was on the north side of the river and was the only one between the Wichita and Red rivers. There were few residences and a great part of the residents lived in tents.

Wichita Falls principal social event of that time was the old fashioned square dance and as Mr. Pike puts it, "The music was made on fiddles and not violins, because that was before violins were invented."

Mr. Pike claims to have been the second person to drive across the Wichita river bridge. He crossed it with his team "on the run" after having been beaten to the honor of first crosser by a man from the other side of the river.

The inhabitants of Wichita Falls then found no need of locks and practically all of the houses were built without them, Mr. Pike said.

Layman Has Same Obligations to God That Minister Has, Explains Goodell

"Personal Work and How to Do It," will be the subject of Dr. Charles L. Goodell in his service Thursday morning at 10 o'clock in First Methodist church where revival meetings are attracting large crowds. His sermon Thursday night at 7:30 o'clock will be "The Greatest Story in the World."

Dr. Goddell, who opened an evangelistic campaign in the Methodist church last Sunday will address members of the Rotary club at noon Thursday on "What Is Your Business?" He will speak to Wichita Falls Kiwanians at their luncheon Monday.

"Laymen and the Church" was the subject of the minister's sermon Wednesday night in the church.

Laymen Founded Church

"The Christian church was founded by laymen," he said. "Jesus of Nazareth was Himself a layman and He called laymen to be His associates. He found them among fishermen and the common people. Their predecessors in the Jewish church also had been laymen; Moses was a layman and the prophets were laymen. It was to a company of laymen that Jesus committed the building of His church.

"When the apostles gave themselves to the preaching of the Word they called other men to care for the temporalities of the church, but the qualifications for such service were spiritual. The first man they chose was the martyr Stephen, and of him it is recorded, 'He was a man full of faith and of the Holy Ghost,' and it is further recorded of him, 'that being full of faith and power he did great wonders and miracles among the people.'

"It is quite apparent that there are not two kinds of religion, one for the pulpit and one for the pew.

"Every layman is under just as great obligation to live a consecrated life and to devote his talents to God as is the minister. The layman may cultivate his fields or work in factory or store, but his real business is to serve God, and in that he and the minister have the same calling. Their task is a common task, neither of them can succeed without the other. When the elder Beecher was asked why his ministry at Park street was so successful he said, 'I preach on Sunday, but I have 450 men and women who go out every day in the week to translate into life and service the message which I have sought to lodge in their hearts.'

Must Heed Call

"The laymen of the church, as well as the ministry must listen to and heed the call of God. They have responsibilities that may well challenge every power within them. The call of the hour is for pastoral and personal evangelism and in the winning of the world to God. It is the personal touch on the part of the layman that is to count supremely, because there are hundreds of times as many laymen as ministers. Every layman must find his man and bring him to Jesus.

"It is the personal touch that counts in business and it is the personal touch that counts in religion. Every man who has seen Christ in his own life must bring Him to the thought of others.

"The womanhood of the church must enlist itself for this high and holy privilege. You are a mother seeking to train your child in the nurture and admonition of the Lord. Why not find another mother who has been indifferent concerning the great interests of her children and win her to Jesus Christ?

"Let ministers and laymen unite in this common purpose and their own hearts will be welded together in the fire of a common devotion, and the altars of the church will begin to glow with fire hitherto unknown. Being sharers with Christ in His passion for men, we shall also be sharers in the glory which He has with the Father. He that winneth souls is wise."

Goodell Gives Talk At Optimists' Club Meet

An inspirational address by Dr. Charles L. Goodall, executive secretary of the Federated Council of Churches of Christ in America, of New York City, featured the regular meeting of the Optimists' club at the Kemp hotel Wednesday.

Dr. Goodall was introduced by Dr. S. S. McKenney, pastor of the First Methodist church, at which Dr Goodell is conducting a series of daily services.

Dr. Goodell, in his address, pointed out the way of life followed by men of thought and action, adding, "A man really lives where his interests are."

INDIANS GAVE CITY NAME

Harrison Tells How Title Originated

In connection with the celebration of Wichita Falls' 46th birthday, and in answer to inquiries, Hubert Harrison, manager of the chamber of commerce, Wednesday explained where the city got its name.

"This first part of the name, 'Wichita,' means 'waist deep' in the Comanche Indian language, so I understand," Mr. Harrison said.

"There used to be some falls in the river that flows through town. In 1886, a company built a dam across the river for power purposes. In 1888 the dam washed away, and leveled off the top of the falls and filled in the lower portion so that the river has since had a slope instead of falls.

"The name of the city itself, however, came from the combination of the Indian name and the falls in the river here."
