GEN. WOLTERS FINDS CLUE TO HOLMES MYSTERY

Wichita Falls Becomes Division Point For Three Routes Of Air Travel

14-PASSENGER PLANES TO FLY DALLAS LINE

Safeway Announces Opening of New Line From Wichita Falls

AIRPORT IMPROVED

Four Runways Started at Municipal Field to Serve Lines

Inauguration of a new Wichita Falls to Dallas extension of the Safeway Air lines service out of Wichita Falls, beginning in Dallas at 8:30 Tuesday morning, was announced Monday afternoon by John G. Groves, local traffic manager for the Southwest Air Fast Express. The new schedule will make Wichita Falls the junction for three branches of the line, Mr. Groves explained, both the Sweetwater and the Oklahoma City ships making direct connections.

Tri-Motor Planes

The first of the tri-motored, all metal Ford monoplanes, with capacity for 14 passengers, will take off from Loxe field in Dallas at 8:30 Tuesday morning. Twenty minutes later the ship will leave Meacham field at Fort Worth, completing the direct connection between Wichita Falls and the two cities to the south. The hop from Fort Worth to Wichita Falls will be completed in one hour and five minutes, the first ship on the new route landing at the Municipal airport at 9:55 Tuesday morning, bringing Dallas within an hour and 25 minutes of Wichita Falls.

Dallas passengers booked through to St. Louis or intermediate points will connect here directly with the Sweetwater ship flying north, it was pointed out.

Afternoon service from Wichita Falls to Dallas opens Tuesday afternoon at 5:20 o'clock. The ship will make Fort Worth at 4:25 and Dallas at 4:55, the new schedule announces. The Dallas ship which takes off from the Municipal airport will carry passengers from the northern branches of the line, coming from St. Louis, Springfield, Tulsa and Oklahoma City to make connections here.

Company Builds Runway

Bob Cantwell, chief pilot of the Safeway Air line, will be in Wichita Falls Tuesday to personally supervise the inauguration of the extended service.

The additional ships are being put into service simultaneously with the beginning of the city's improvement program at the Municipal airport. The surveying and plotting of the proposed new runways will be completed Tuesday, city officials have announced. The revised plans for the field include the construction of four runways to allow ships to land and take off in any direction, regardless of the direction of the wind. The center of the field will be marked in a circle, 540 feet in diameter, in which a white smaller circle will make the exact center of the landing space. The large circle is to be leveled, packed and oiled, and the runways are to converge there.

CITY APPROPRIATES $10,011 FOR AIRPORT

An appropriation of $10,011 for for operation, maintenance and improvement of the Municipal airport was approved by the city council Monday night in a short session at the Memorial auditorium when the aldermen passed the ordinance providing for the transfer of the sum out of the general fund of the city.

Alderman J. H. Patton maintained his stand against the ordinance, which he had demonstrated previously by voting against the appropriation.

The greater part of the appropriation will be utilized at the airport for salaries, purchase of gasoline and oils, lights and telephone, and various necessary tools and equipment. The remainder, amounting to about $2,000, will be used to provide a passenger waiting room, an office building, sidewalks and a gas line.

'Big Bass Drum'

William B. Shearer, self-styled "big bass drum" of the 1927 Geneva arms conference, yesterday told his story of the abortive session in the senate's probe of his activities.

S. M. U. CO-ED KILLS HUSBAND

Young Wife Refuses to Enlighten Police

DALLAS, Sept. 30. (AP)—Mrs. Marjorie McCormick, 23, student at Southern Methodist university last year, maintained silence in county jail here today while officers endeavored to piece together alleged facts in her story of events which led to the fatal shooting Sunday of her husband, Andrew P. McCormick, a 40-year-old book salesman.

The young woman was charged with murder and District Attorney William McCraw ordered her held without bail while investigators sought to locate another man and woman who were guests at the McCormick apartment a few hours prior to the shooting.

The salesman was shot through the chest with a small calibre pistol and died on the operating table at a hospital.

"He tried to choke me after I had retired, and I must have shot him as I was lapsing into unconsciousness," Mrs. McCormick told McCraw. "That's all I remember."

She would not reveal the identity of her parents. The couple was married in Denton on Oct. 30, 1928, by the Rev. Fred Galbraith, according to the woman. Officers said the McCormick apartment had the appearance of a desperate struggle, the furniture, walls and floors being smeared with blood. Playing cards were scattered over the floor, and in the kitchen was a half gallon jar partly filled with liquor.

Child, 4, Alive After Being Run Over by Train

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Sept. 30.—Eugene Didelotte, 4, was run over by a 30-ton freight train today but escaped injury.

The child was walking on the A. L. & N. right-of-way and in some manner was caught between two moving trains. A brakeman said he saw the child struck by an air hose on his train and knocked down under the other train.

The trains were stopped and frightened trainmen pulled a perfectly calm and undisturbed youngster from between two ties where he had been tossed.

SHEARER SAYS KELLOGG COST HIM GOOD JOB

Former State Secretary 'Called Bethlehem Co., On Carpet'

SCHWAB ATTACKED

'Observer' Disputes Entire Testimony of Steel Co. President

By FRASER EDWARDS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30. (US)—In a stirring defense of his honor and patriotism, William B. Shearer, naval expert, today told his story of the Geneva arms conference and many others in a series of staccato, machine gun verbal bursts, which left the crowd in the senate naval affairs committee room groggy and dazed at the end of a five-hour session.

This witness extraordinary hurled a series of sensational counter-charges while seeking to clear himself of charges ranging from "wrecking" the Geneva conference single-handed to being a German spy, a jewel thief in Europe, a bootlegger in New York, a card sharp on Atlantic liners, and an associate of crooks.

Senators Hear Story

A score of senators deserted the senate chamber and several stood for hours listening to the remarkable tale unfolded by Shearer, who revealed himself as an adequate defense propagandist. London theater and cabaret proprietor, inventor, Florida real estate operator, marine painter in his varied career.

Among them was Senator Borah of Idaho, who first demanded a senate investigation when Shearer's employment as an "observer" at Geneva was revealed in his suit for $327,500 against the Bethlehem New York and Newport News Shipbuilding companies.

Big Suit Feared.

The most sensational charge made by Shearer was that former Secretary of State Kellogg "called the Bethlehem people on the mat" and demanded his dismissal. Shearer said officials of the Bethlehem company "fired" him because they feared the government would press a suit for $15,000,000 for alleged profiteering during the world war.

In a sharp attack on Charles M. Schwab, chairman of the board of the Bethlehem Steel company, who testified that he could not recall meeting Shearer, the naval expert characterized the steel magnate as

Accidents Kill 97,000 in U. S. During Year, Report Says

CHICAGO, Sept. 30. (UP)—Ninety-seven thousand accidental deaths in the United States last year is the stupendous total which the national safety congress, meeting here today, will attempt to lower in years to come.

The most important step the congress will advocate, said an official statement, concerns "elimination of unfit and reckless motor vehicle operators through adoption of a drivers' license law in every state." There are 10,000 delegates to the congress.

MOODY ASKS SHOOK RELEASE

Tennessee Asked to Return Man Wanted Here

Requisition papers, asking for the return of Tom Shook to face trial for murder and highway robbery in the courts of Wichita county, were issued on Tennessee from the office of Gov. Dan Moody Monday. Meanwhile Sheriff W. G. Bralley and Charlie Gant, deputy, are in Decatur county, Tennessee, pushing the claims of Texas against the prisoner, held there on a second charge of murder following a shooting last Friday morning.

Action on the extradition plea is expected within the next few days, although local officials have received no direct word from Mr. Bralley or his deputy. The two left Wichita Falls in an automobile last Friday afternoon, taking with them copies of five indictments held in Wichita county.

Shook, former Electra police chief and one time Wichita Falls officer. Except for word that Shook is still being held for safe keeping in the Henderson county jail at Lexington, Tenn., and that extradition had not been granted early Monday evening, no definite word has been received.

Shook, who joined in an attack upon the night jailer here to effect an escape from the Wichita county jail last August, is wanted here for the murder of Oscar Daugherty, for robbery with firearms in three separate counts, and for driving an automobile while intoxicated.

STORM LOSES FORCE AFTER REACHING LAND

Center of Hurricane Barely Misses Pensacola and Turns Eastward

DAMAGE IS SLIGHT

Normal Course Up Atlantic Coast Expected by Observers

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30. (AP)—Hurricane warnings along the Alabama and Mississippi coast were ordered down at 9 p. m. tonight by the weather bureau and storm warnings alone left displayed.

The bureau announced in an advisory warning that the hurricane center had passed inland a short distance east of Pensacola and forecast that the northerly gale would diminish very slowly during the night.

SOUTH ALABAMA STRUCK BY GALE

BREWTON, Ala., Sept. 30. (AP)—This south Alabama city experienced a 50-mile an hour gale this afternoon which uprooted trees and damaged communication. Torrential rainfall followed. The wind subsided to a 15-mile gait by nightfall.

Wind and rain also were reported from Flomaton, 20 miles southeast.

STORM TAKES EASTWARD COURSE AT PENSACOLA

PENSACOLA, Fla., Sept. 30. (AP)—E. W. Holcombe, United States weather observer here, said at 6 p. m. today that the center of the tropical hurricane, which late today struck the gulf coast, had passed Pensacola and was moving eastward. The barometer at that hour registered 29.61 and the wind velocity was 40 miles an hour. Pensacola was in darkness, the power having failed soon after the storm center touched the coast.

BRIEF HURRICANE LASHES CITY

PENSACOLA, Fla., Sept. 30. (UP)—A furious tropical hurricane attaining an average velocity of 60 miles an hour, and an occasional strength of 90 miles an hour, lashed this city tonight.

At 4 p. m., C. S. T., the storm was raging fiercely with the wind driving blankets of rain over the city and the Gulf of Mexico.

Barometer readings were not available, but the steamship Irene, some 18 miles off the coast due south from here, said the barometer stood at 29.22, and was rising at 4 p. m.

It was feared there would be considerable damage. The United States naval radio station suffered considerable damage when the hurricane struck its plant, crashing an antennae, and leaving but one sending apparatus in operation. Whether the center of the hurricane would strike Pensacola directly was uncertain.

BLOW EXPECTED TO FOLLOW COASTLINE

BRUNSWICK, Ga., Sept. 30. (UP)—The barometer stood at 29.62 here at 5 p. m., a drop of 14 points since 7 a. m. This would indicate the hurricane which struck Pensacola, Fla., at 3 p. m. at last had assumed a normal course and would pass up through Southern Georgia, the Carolinas, and northeastward along the Atlantic seaboard, weather observers said.

Alex Pantages' Trial Set for Today As His Wife's Sentence Is Deferred

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 30. (US)—Alexander Pantages, elderly millionaire theater owner, will go to trial tomorrow morning in superior court here for an alleged criminal attack upon Eunice Pringle, 17-year-old school girl and amateur dancer.

Mrs. Lois Pantages, his wife, who was convicted last week of manslaughter as the result of an automobile accident, will be sentenced next Saturday morning. She faces one to 10 years in the penitentiary.

Woman in Wheel Chair

These were the outstanding developments today of the wealthy Pantages family's recent unhappy encounters with the law. There was poignant drama in the appearance of the husband and wife in the hall of justice this morning.

While Mrs. Pantages, in a wheel chair, was trundled into one courtroom to be sentenced, her husband was preparing to face another judge in the same building.

Flanked by two nurses and a physician, the matron was wheeled into court. With her, too, were her grown daughter and two sons. Her face was deadly pale and she was barely able to answer the few questions addressed to her by Judge Carlos H. Hardy.

Arguments Set Saturday

But her ordeal was quickly over. Attorney W. J. Ford, of defense counsel, submitted a motion for a new trial. Arguments on this motion were set by Judge Hardy for next Saturday at 9 a. m., and the sentencing of Mrs. Pantages was automatically put over until that hour. She was allowed to return home under $50,000 bail.

A few moments later, Pantages and his attorneys appeared before Superior Judge Charles W. Fricke. The millionaire had asked for a change of venue of his forthcoming trial for the asserted attack upon Miss Pringle.

Judge Fricke ruled that Pantages must go to trial here tomorrow morning.

Pantages, who is at liberty on $25,000 bail, is charged on two counts of criminal attack. In case of conviction, he faces a possible sentence of from one to 50 years. He is 55 years of age and one of the wealthiest theater men in the country.

Hamilton Denied Trial Continuance

WEATHERFORD, Texas, Sept. 30. (AP)—Overruling a defense request that the case be set for Nov. 18, District Judge J. E. Carter today ordered the trial of R. H. Hamilton, Amarillo attorney, charged with slaying his son-in-law, Tom Walton Jr., May 4, last, set for Oct. 28. The case was sent here from Amarillo on a change of venue.

Walton, who had secretly married Hamilton's daughter while they were students at the University of Texas, was shot to death in Hamilton's office, where he was alleged to have gone with the intention of telling the attorney of his marriage to his daughter.

WILLOW BANK TRIALS OPEN

G. T. James Pleads Guilty To Robbery Charge

Special to The Record News.

MANGUM, Okla., Sept. 30—G. T. James, formerly of Childress, pleaded guilty when arraigned today to face trial on a charge of robbing the First National bank of Willow, Okla., about two months ago. Sentence was deferred until Wednesday.

With his plea entered, his alleged companion in the robbery, Paul Brooks, also formerly of Childress, went on trial and selection of the jury began.

The two men were arrested in Wichita Falls the day after the robbery.

The bank was robbed by two men who escaped with about $3,000, and kidnaped the bank cashier, who later was released. Posses trailed the bandit car into Texas, where it was thought they boarded a train near Childress. Officers down the line were advised, and James and Brooks were apprehended in Wichita Falls aboard a Fort Worth and Denver train. The loot was recovered.

CITY OFFICERS TO TESTIFY IN CASE

Police Chief Frank Burns, Plainclothes Officer W. E. McDonald and Patrolman A. E. Miller left Wichita Falls about 5 o'clock Monday morning for Mangum, Okla., to appear in the trial of Paul Brooks and G. T. James in connection with the robbery of the Willow, Okla., State bank on the afternoon of Aug. 14.

The two men on trial were arrested in Wichita Falls at 1:10 on the morning of Aug. 15 when they arrived here aboard a train, 10 hours after the robbery.

MILITARY LAW PUTS REGULAR OFFICERS OUT

Guard Detachments and State Enforcers Take Town Over

FOUR ARRESTS MADE

Policeman and Deputy Constable Held for Investigation

BORGER, Texas, Sept. 30. (AP)—A missing grand jury list, apparently stolen from the county clerk's office by lawbreakers, probably formed one of the motives for the assassination of District Attorney John A. Holmes here Sept. 12, General Jacob Wolters said tonight, 12 hours after his troops had made martial law effective here.

General Wolters explained that the custom of selecting a grand jury by a jury commission had not been followed in Borger, but that grand juries had more or less been picked up when they were needed.

MORGAN WARNS CITY OF CRIMINAL EXODUS

Warning local business men that Wichita Falls is sure to draw its quota of undesirables scattered from Borger by the establishment of martial law, Frank Morgan, constable, Monday afternoon asked the cooperation of property owners in a renewed vigilance on the part of city and county officers.

"Leave the lights near your safe burning," the officer urged, "and see that no large sums of money are left where the skillful knob-knockers can reach them."

Mrs Morgan has just returned from a brief study of the situation in the Panhandle town. He brought back with him the conviction that dozens of men and women are being routed from the town and are scattering over Texas.

Just before Holmes' assassination, Wolters said, the district attorney had persuaded Judge Newton Wills to appoint a jury commission and a grand jury had been named in the legal manner.

Jury List Stolen

General Wolters' theory was that lawbreakers stole the list of the grand jury sent to the county clerk, found that it was made up of straightforward, law abiding men, and assassinated Holmes to avoid prosecution. The general made it clear that this was not regarded as the sole motive.

General Wolters announced [illegible] after his military [illegible] quiry had examined [illegible] nesses who have [illegible]

Hilarious Legion Conventioners Hear Leaders Discuss Problems

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 30. (UP) The hilarious annual convention of the American Legion, attended by some 50,000 ex-soldiers, was tinctured with seriousness here today when leaders addressed the meeting on national defense, naval reduction, and care of disabled veterans.

Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, white haired baseball arbiter, in a sensational speech, denounced congress at length on its failure to pass a bill calling for hospital construction for use of mentally ill veterans.

Ells listeners cheered when he scored the law makers for not taking care of men who lost their reason while fighting for their country.

Judge Landis was preceded on the program by Gen. Peyton C. March, Admiral Hugh Rodman and National Commander Paul McNutt, all of whom spoke on preparedness.

EASY - - The Love Story Of A Modern Girl — By Beatrice Burton

CHAPTER I

It was the twenty-third day of December.

Cold-looking gray clouds hung low over the town, and all day long the wind had sung mournfully in the chimneys of the Macy family's old brown shingle house on Pleasant street.

All afternoon, in her big front bedroom, Ann Marie Macy had been hard at work painting Christmas cards.

But it was half past 4 now, and the early winter twilight was creeping into the room, making the corners of it dark and shadowy.

Ann Marie knew the room by heart—knew it, and loved it. It was a little island of beauty in the ugly rambling house with its "body Brussels" carpets, its heavy old-fashioned furniture, its dim full-length mirrors and much-mended lace curtains.

The curtains of Ann Marie's room were dotted white muslin. The dressing table had a frill of white dotted muslin all around it, and so did the four-poster bed.

The walls had been painted pale green, and there were green-and-white braided rugs on the polished floor. The ties that held back the curtains were pale-green silk ones. The window seat was heaped with pale green and pale yellow and orange silk cushions.

Anyone with half an eye could see that an artist had planned that room—and, as a matter of fact, Ann Marie was an artist of a sort.

For three years she had been making what she called "pin money" by painting Christmas cards and birthday greeting cards for her father's book store on Front street.

She leaned back in her chair now and looked thoughtfully at the ones she had been working on all afternoon—big square gray ones with a spray of mistletoe and holly in the upper left-hand corner.

There were a hundred of them. Ann Marie's father had asked her to do them for some last-minute shoppers that noon when he came home for his lunch, and at 1 o'clock Ann Marie had started to work.

"Thank heaven they're finished at last!" she said to herself, adding a few finishing touches to the last card before she laid her brushes down in the glass tray on the window sill beside her.

On the other side of the street, lights were beginning to show pinkish-yellow in the windows of the houses. The arc-light at the corner flashed up.

The headlights of a car that swung into the street were like the eyes of some giant-size animal in the darkness . . . Ann Marie put her head to one side and listened. She knew the low purring sound of that car . . . it was John Lawler's new roadster!

"He's coming here—and, ye gods! how I look!" In a flash Ann Marie was on the other side of the room, peering into the looking glass above the muslin-draped table.

"My nose shining like a brass door-knob, of course!" she groaned aloud. "And my

BORGER DRIVE IS UNDER WAY

Oil Town Taken Over by Rangers and Troops

L. S. Davidson, Maj. H. H. Johnson, County Judge H. M. Hood, District Attorney Clem Calhoun, Assistant Attorney General Paul Page, and Ranger Captains Frank Hamer and Tom Hickman.

General Wolters said that the investigators had decided that Holmes alone knew who he contemplated prosecuting and what he intended to prosecute them for. The fact that this information went to the grave with him has made the task of the investigators doubly hard, since they must call many witnesses blindly, hoping for some indication as to the battle Holmes was waging and identity of his adversaries.

Alighting from the train at 8:33 o'clock this morning, Brig. Gen. Jacob Wolters announced within two minutes that Borger and Hutchinson county were under military rule. Snappily, the guardsmen lined up against their coaches as the general read two proclamations by Gov. Dan Moody, and issued two general orders.

Heavily laden clouds only a few hundred feet from the ground had, in a fashion, advised the townspeople of the arrival of the train from Fort Worth. Smoke from the engine was visible against the sky several minutes before the train arrived. By the time it had stopped several hundred persons had gathered about the railroad station.

Assassination Mentioned

In the proclamations, which General Wolters gave to newspaper men, only one mention was made of the crime which led to an investigation and the declaration of martial law—the slaying of Holmes. In that instance the governor said: "That witnesses who have been questioned concerning law violations, including the assassination of the district attorney, have been threatened and driven from the county."

Within slightly more than half an hour after issuing the proclamations the military had taken over the combination city hall, police and fire station. All officers were disarmed, and two officers of this three-year old oil town were arrested. Sam Jones, deputy constable, and Clint Melholland, policemen, were ordered held for investigation.

Stinnett Taken Over

While the Borger city hall was being occupied, another detachment of guardsmen and Texas rangers hurried to Stinnett, the county seat 12 miles away. At 10 o'clock it was announced that martial law had been declared at Stinnett. Sheriff Joe Owenby received the proclamation which informed him he had been relieved of all duties except those of tax collector. Mayor Glenn A. Pace of Borger, arrested yesterday charged with having caused a witness in a murder case to leave town, was waiting for his preliminary hearing when military took over the court house. He waived preliminary hearing and his bond was reset at $3,000. It was signed by several persons, including John R. Miller, first mayor of Borger, and Pete Borger, a brother of the man who founded the town.

The case against Pace is to be presented to a grand jury which convenes regularly on Oct. 14.

Occupation Done Quietly

Occupation of the town was accomplished quietly and quickly. There were no demonstrations, although hundreds of curious tramped about, following the moving center of activities. They gathered at the depot, at the police station and then at the American Legion hall, which is to barrack the guardsmen. Guards were stationed at vantage points and patrolled the streets.

General Wolters established headquarters in the city hall, across the hall from the mayor's office. Ranger J. W. Aldrich was appointed police chief of Borger in place of J. W. Crabtree, and Ranger Sergeant J. B. Wheatley assumed the sheriff's office, supplanting Joe Owenbey.

Four Arrests Made

Series of arrests expected by townspeople failed to materialize. Only four persons had been jailed three hours after troops arrived. One intoxicated was taken in a hotel by a guardsman; the others were Jones, Melholland and a drunk man arrested on Main street.

Preliminary activities over, troops and rangers prepared for a clean-up. Undercover men sauntered into the few remaining hotels of questionable standing. They admitted there was less crime and vice now than at any time since Borger was founded in 1926, probably, they said, because the lawless had known martial law was coming and left town.

Clem Calhoun, sent here by Governor Moody as a special investigator, was qualified as district attorney. Calhoun, formerly of the Abilene district, had been an ardent supporter of a thorough investigation. He promised to exert every effort to enforce the law and said he had not been prompted to accept the appointment by political aspirations.

Gather Evidence

Calhoun immediately will set to work gathering evidence for presentation when district court convenes Oct. 14.

Whether his work would concern city and county officials was not learned. The governor in his proclamations criticised the officials for failure to enforce the laws. He accused them of a conspiracy with law violators, and mentioned affidavits testifying to the passage of money to officers for protection from law enforcement.

He charged that responsible citizens of Hutchinson county lived under a menace which prevents them from informing on law violators. He reiterated his statement that one peace officer is an ex-convict, and added that since it "is now imminent danger to the inhabitants and property" he felt it his duty to declare martial law.

LICENSES DECREASE

Only 9 Receive Papers Under Terms of New Texas Law

Applications for marriage licenses sank almost to disappearance during the 30 days of September, records in the office of Miss Elizabeth Hall, county clerk, revealed Monday afternoon. Fifteen couples accepted the terms of the new Texas marriage law and filed their applications Miss Hall's books show, but only nine of the number have so far come back for their certificates. Last year the licenses were issued to 72 couples during September, almost five times the number who obtained their official sanction within the state borders this year.

SAFE ROBBERY GOES UNSOLVED

All Day Probe Fails to Produce Clue

Investigations all day Monday in connection with the cracking of the safe in the Haley Drug company, Tenth and Broad streets, from which $650 in cash and checks was stolen some time early Monday morning, found the combined efforts of city and county officers fruitless.

No clues further than a brief case containing a number of chisels, punches and ohter tools could be found. These articles had been carefully handled and it was doubtful, officers said, that correct finger prints could be obtained, either from the safe or from the tools. The work was evidently that of an expert, it was pointed out, since the knob of the safe had been neatly broken off, the combination knocked out of line and the lock bar punched with a sharp instrument.

City Detectives Luke Hart and Pat Allen, Assistant District Attorney George Anderson and Deputy Sheriff H. L. White conducted the investigation. They examined the safe, tools and the entire store for further clues but were baffled by the expert handling of the job. Entrance to the store was gained by forcing a side door after the place had been locked up about midnight. The robber was thought to have been frightened into a quick escape, since he had left the tools behind.

Little Theater's One-Act Play Wins Approval of Audience Monday Night

By the Record News Critic

A crowd which filled the Episcopal Parish house to capacity on Monday night registered unqualified approval of Hildegard Flanner's one-act play, "Mansions," presented as a curtain-raiser for the Little Theater's ensuing season, under the direction of F. C. McClung.

The piece chosen for the season's opening performance is a 30-minute revelation of fundamentally opposite characters, which, being thrown together under the same roof, reach quickly the climax of 15 years of continuous friction. It has a distinctly modern touch, not in its physical setting—which might properly be in any recent generation—but in its sharp conflict between the reactionary fundamentalist, whose glory is in the deeds of his fathers, and the visionary youth who accords greatest importance to the road yet to be traveled.

Although "Mansions" is a one-act play, it is very decidedly divided into three parts. The curtain opens to disclose the straight-laced Aunt Harriett dictating as usual the mode of living to her rebellious but intimidated niece, Lydia. The complete absorption of Aunt Hardiett in the Wilde family, with its imposing list of ministers, to the exclusion of contact with an "inquisitive" world, conflicts in the first part with Lydia's insistence upon providing at least one avenue through which the light of day and the action of life may be discovered from the severe interior of her aunt's house. The second part presents Lydia with her very sick brother, Joe, who has come down stairs for a last conference. Between them the downfall of Aunt Harriett's indomitable will is plotted. With that maiden lady's return, the third part of the play witnesses a last hour conversion of Lydia's timidity into courageous fury which effectively breaks the old aunt's spell.

The three characters in "Mansions" were interpreted by members of the Little Theater who were making their initial appearances here on the amateur stage. Aunt Harriett was impersonated by Mrs. W. L. Underwood, Miss Ruby Brown portrayed the role of Lydia, while Fred Schmann Jr. played that of Joe. The excellent continuity of dramatic interest and sharply contrasted personalities effected in the presentation of the play compliments the direction given by Mr. McClung.

NAVAL PROBE HEARS EXPERT

Observer Vehemently Denies Bootlegging Charge

"the star of Bethlehem" and declared that Schwab had "never explained the $260,000 for personal expenses while serving as a dollar-year man in the war."

Meeting Described

Not only did Shearer describe his meeting with Schwab in the Ritz-Carlton hotel in New York in November, 1926, but declared that it was through this meeting that his employment by the shipbuilders was initiated. Shearer said the shipbuilders "used" him and dropped him after they got the 15-cruiser bill and the Jones-White merchant marine bills passed.

The naval expert asserted that the shipbuilders hired him to go to Geneva not as an "observer" but to see that United States got naval parity with Great Britain or not agreement on a treaty. He said they knew he went armed with a "blue book" from the naval intelligence files, showing the agenda of other nations.

British Blamed

Ridiculing the charge that he "wrecked" the conference, Shearer declared that he had never made that claim and could not have done so if he tried. He said the conference broke up simply because the British refused to agree to naval parity for the United States.

The naval expert was blazing with anger when Chairman Shortridge asked him if he had been arrested for bootlegging in New York. He turned on the committee so fiercely that for a time it was on the defensive.

"You have raked the sewers of London and New York and permitted a British stool-pigeon to get on the stand and tell about a scurrilous document to blacken down my character and break me down and pillory me before the country," shouted Shearer.

"This has nothing to do with what I did in Geneva; nothing to do with national defense. And you say this committee is fair."

The fireworks over the bootlegging charge took place just before the luncheon recess and Shortridge went to some pains to say:

"There has been no attempt to befoul or besmirch the name of any witness. Nothing of the kind was in the mind of any member of the committee. Mr. Shearer, you will be given a full opportunity to tell your story."

Shortridge then read into the record the document purporting to be a dossier from Scotland Yard on Shearer, and permitted him to answer the charges on it. Shearer told about taking the document away from Albin E. Johnson, Geneva correspondent of the New York World, who, Shearer said, circulated it along American correspondents.

Shearer quoted Johnson as saying that he "didn't give a damn if the United States got any ships or not" and charged that Johnson "reported and took his instructions every day" from the British consul general in Geneva.

THE New Series STANDARD EIGHTS

Proclaim again Packard's engineering leadership—provide new brilliance of performance,—new achievements in luxury.

Supreme engineering and expert craftsmanship have marked the Packard Standard Eight as an outstanding car in the fine car field since the day of its introduction.

But in the new series Standard Eights, Packard has surpassed every previous achievement—and in addition has given even greater attention to the refinement of incidental comforts and conveniences.

Engineering Improvements and Body Refinements

Chief among the engineering advances is the improved powerplant with its four-speed transmission and still further refined Packard straight-eight engine.

Body refinements include the inside, adjustable sun visors, adjustable driver's seat and steering gear, newly perfected shatter-proof glass, dash board lockers and new beauties in fixtures and upholstery.

Eleven Luxurious Models

Eleven beautiful body types are included in the Standard Eight line. Prices at the factory range from $2375 for the popular Five-Passenger Sedan to $2775 for the Seven-Passenger Sedan-Limousine.

Standard Eight models differ from the costlier Custom and De Luxe Packards only in size, power and degree of individuality available in color, upholstery and details of appointment. In excellence of engineering and in expert craftsmanship they are Packards through and through—fleet, smooth and luxurious.

It Costs No More to Own a Packard Eight

Two out of three motorists who buy Packard Standard Eights give up other makes of cars. They have found that Packard transportation costs no more.

Operation and maintenance expense for a Packard Standard Eight is no greater than for many cars down to half its price. The higher first cost is completely offset by the fact that Packard cars are built for long life. They can be, and usually are, according to ownership records, driven nearly twice as long as the lower priced cars traded in. Net depreciation, therefore, is no greater.

Come in and see the new Standard Eights. Drive one in any kind of demonstration you choose. Your old car will be accepted as cash, and you may buy out of income if you prefer.

You are paying for a Packard—why not own one?

CRASH PROBE KEPT SECRET

Government Suppresses Facts of Tragedy

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30. (INS)—The result of the government's investigation into the fatal T. A. T. airplane crash in New Mexico, in which eight persons were killed, will not be made public, Secretary of Commerce Lamont announced today.

Lamont stated that the department of commerce has no legal protection against damage suits, such as is possessed by the Interstate Commerce commission, and consequently will not make public the results of its investigation of air accidents.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30. (INS)—The department of commerce was criticised in the senate this afternoon by Senator Bratton, Democrat of New Mexico, for failing to make public its report on the crash of the T. A. T. air liner, City of San Francisco, in New Mexico Sept. 3 with the loss of eight lives.

Bratton, seeking adoption of a resolution authorizing a senate inquiry into all recent accidents in interstate aerial transportation, charged the law directed the secretary of commerce to make public the result of investigations. He added that the secretary of commerce refused to do so.

Opposition by Senator McNary, Republican of Oregon, meanwhile blocked action on the Bratton resolution.

CHICAGO, Sept. 30. (US)—Plying his trade in the Congress hotel today, Harry Webber, known also on many different occasions under many different aliases, picked the wrong room. As he was reaching for a pair of trousers in a room he thought unoccupied, no other than Lieut. Thomas McFarland, confidence expert of the police department, leaped from his bed and seized him.

"Good morning, lieutenant," said Webber, smiling. "Guess I made a mistake."

"Right you are, Harry," replied McFarland. "Just hand over my trousers and we'll go over to the bureau. The boys will be glad to see you again."

Okehs Ma's Smokes

LOS ANGELES.—Even though Mrs. Agnes Stevens does smoke cigarets, she can still be a good mother to her child, is the belief of Judge Hugh Crawford. Mrs. Stevens' ex-husband tried to secure their child on the grounds that the mother associated with women who smoked. "That is no reason to consider her an improper mother," said the judge.

Scion Pictured As Home Wrecker

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Sept. 30. (INS)—Harry H. Hunnewell, scion of a wealthy Boston family, who a court declared incompetent to handle his income of $1,200 a month because of extravagance, was pictured as a home wrecker today when Charles R. June was granted a divorce from Mrs. Anna June.

June alleged his wife associated with Hunnewell and told him afterwards that she was leaving to go with the other man.

The husband also charged that his wife informed him she had made reservations to go to Europe with Hunnewell and that she didn't want him to interfere with her plans.

June some time ago filed suit for $200,000 damages against Hunnewell and his mother, Bertha Hunnewell, who was appointed his guardian at the incompetency proceedings. Hunnewell was reported to have gone to Europe and service was not obtained on him and the suit for heart balm still is pending but never has been brought to trial.

FARM BOARD NEEDS TIME

Organization Is Lengthy Process, Says Member

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30. (UP)—The federal farm board needs five years in which to organize 25 per cent of the cotton growers of the southern states, Carl Williams of Oklahoma City, representing the cotton interests on the farm body, today told the senate agriculture committee.

Williams, who was the fifth member of the board to appear before the committee which is examining the member's qualifications, said the board hopes to put the cotton farmers in a position to effectively control the flow of cotton to the market when it is needed, where it is needed and at a hihger prive level by coordinating all existing cooperative agencies into a strong ceneral organization.

The witness testified that only $350,000 has been loaned to cotton co-operative so far, but added that no application for loans has been turned down.

"Was that amount sufficient to affect market conditions in any way?" Senator Caraway, Democrat, Arkansas, asked.

"No," replied Williams, "but it kept two cooperative organizations in Tennessee and Arkansas from going out of business."

Cooperative associations now operating have succeeded only in making the private dealer be good, and in slightly bolstering the price level, Williams said, by coordinating their efforts, the board hopes to better conditions before the next crop marketing year, he added.

Missouri Bank Fails To Open for Business

TEBBETTS, Mo., Sept. 30. (INS)—The Bank of Tibbetts failed to open for business today.

The board of directors closed the bank after W. R. Hord, cashier of the institution for many years, told them he was short $26,000 in his accounts. The bank's total resources was only $59,000.

Hord told the directors he had used the money to finance a filling station venture. Of the amount he is short, $21,000 was lent to another person and $5,000 on a note to Hord.

Cuban Singer To Make Debut Soon

NEW YORK, Sept. 30. (US)—Ambassador at large for the president of Cuba is rather a title for a shy, soft spoken girl of 19. But Emma Otero, protege of President Machado, wears her honor with grace.

Upon the advice of Beniamino Gigli, of the Metropolitan, President Machado sent Emma to New York to study music. This was two years ago. She has had many concerts since then and at Carnegie hall, Monday evening, Oct. 14, she will have her real debut. It is also the dream of a poor little Cuban girl who longed for the opera since she was nine years old and heard "Lucia."

Speaking of her debut today she said:

"I am so thrilled for my debut. I have no name or fame in America, yet it has been as kind to me as my own wonderful government of Cuba. I feel a great respect for the public, but I am not afraid of it! It is a wonderful thing for me to sing in your cathedral of music."

ARMY PARADE AT W T C C MEET

5,000 Men to Pass In Review

Special to The Record News.

EL PASO, Texas, Sept. 30.—What will perhaps be the largest military parade in the United States since the world war will be staged in El Paso Oct. 25, during the three-day convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce. The entire first cavalry division at Fort Bliss, comprising approximately 5,000 officers and men, will parade through the downtown section of the city to the music of a score of West Texas bands.

A review of the first cavalry division at Fort Bliss will feature the afternoon program of the opening day of the convention, Oct. 24. Troops from army posts throughout the Southwest are expected to be here for the giant spectacle, according to Maj. A. D. Surles, chief intelligence officer at Fort Bliss, who is in charge of the military part of the convention program.

Boxing Match

Sports enthusiasts will be treated to a feast in the form of the first cavalry boxing championship bouts at Fort Bliss on the opening night of the convention; a night football game between two West Texas college teams in the high school stadium, Oct. 25, and bull fights in Juarez both in the afternoon and evening of the final day.

That the program will be so diversified as to provide features of interest to everyone has been one of the main concerns of the committee in charge, according to E. C. Held, general chairman.

Women visitors at the convention will be honor guests of the women's department of the chamber of commerce at a reception in Liberty hall on the evening of the opening day, Oct. 24. Wives, sweethearts and friends of the visiting delegates will have an opportunity to meet their hostesses and El Paso leaders in women's club work.

Spanish Fiesta

The crowning event of the convention will be a gorgeous Spanish fiesta in Juarez on the closing day. Bull fights in the arena both afternoon and evening will form part of the program, of which Angel Martines is in charge.

Throughout the convention, exhibits by West Texas communities will be on display at booths in San Jacinto plaza, with band concerts arranged at intervals throughout each afternoon and evening. Between 75 and 100 steel booths will be erected in the plaza to accommodate the exhibits. A large platform in the plaza will be the stage for a number of specialty acts and entertainment stunts.

A flood of visitors are expected to start arriving in the city the day before the convention opens. Del Rio plans to send a motorcade of more than 100 automobiles, while both Fort Worth and Dallas are expected to send delegations of 500 or more by special trains.

Scribes to Be Guests

Dorrance D. Roderick and Wallace Perry will be in charge of entertainment of visiting newspaper men; Hope M. Smith, Lawrence Gardner, E. B. Link and L. N. Shafer will handle community exhibits in the plaza, and Sol I. Berg will be in charge of registration and credentials. Harvey Day, Charles Addison and Bob Washburn will form the housing committee, and L. W. Hoffecker will supervise the score or more of bands expected to participate in the convention.

AN ANCIENT PREJUDICE HAS BEEN REMOVED

Anger and fear greeted the faltering efforts of the first automobile. But the hands of AMERICAN INTELLIGENCE guided the steering wheel and controlled the throttle—the automobile drove on to glorious success.

"toasting did it"—

Gone is that ancient prejudice against cigarettes—Progress has been made. We removed the prejudice against cigarettes when we removed harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from the tobaccos.

YEARS ago, when cigarettes were made without the aid of modern science, there originated that ancient prejudice against all cigarettes. That criticism is no longer justified. LUCKY STRIKE, the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the choicest tobacco, properly aged and skillfully blended—"It's Toasted."

"TOASTING," the most modern step in cigarette manufacture, removes from LUCKY STRIKE harmful irritants which are present in cigarettes manufactured in the old-fashioned way.

Everyone knows that heat purifies, and so "TOASTING"—LUCKY STRIKE'S extra secret process—removes harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from LUCKIES which in the old-fashioned manufacture of cigarettes cause throat irritation and coughing. Thus "TOASTING" has destroyed that ancient prejudice against cigarette smoking by men and by women.

"It's Toasted"—the phrase that describes the extra "toasting" process applied in the manufacture of Lucky Strike Cigarettes. The finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—are scientifically subjected to penetrating heat at minimum, 260°—maximum, 300°, Fahrenheit. The exact, expert regulation of such high temperatures removes impurities. More than a slogan, "It's Toasted" is recognized by millions as the most modern step in cigarette manufacture.

Tea Room Opening Is Popular Social Event

Opening of the Spanish tea room at the Woman's Forum clubhouse was a colorful occasion Monday. Four dozen roses were cut from the forum rose garden and filled a tall basket stand in the foyer and jars in the upstairs halls. On the table at the entrance, queen's wreath and pink roses made a charming bit of color.

At the foyer door, Mrs. C. P. Burton, one of the hostesses of the day, gowned in orchid and purple Spanish costume, greeted incoming guests and sent them up thestairs. At the door of the tea room, Mrs. J. L. Jackson Jr., lovely in yellow Spanish clothing, met them and found them chairs.

Orange and black featured the tea room. Even to the tiny pencils adorned with orange caps that stood in tiny black flower pots, the same motif was observed. Baskets on the wall were of orange, touched with black, all due to Mesdames Oneal and Burton.

The first guests to be seated for lunch in the new tea room were Mesdames Hugh Bassett and Dan Rubsam. Mrs. Ben G. Oneal and Mrs. Bernard Martin soon occupied chairs at the same table.

Mrs. Homer Sanderford, wife of the president of Wichita Falls Kiwanis club, gave a luncheon party honoring Mrs. L. A. McDonald of Denton, wife of the governor of Texas-Oklahoma district of Kiwanis. Her guests were Mesdames R. H. Peterson, Julian Bobo, Charles Watson, Felix Collard, Floyd Allan Bash, Howard Renfro, Paul Pearson and Dan Shephard.

Mrs. B. P. Williams entertained Mrs. Wayne Somerville and Mrs. H. J. Cohn of Dallas.

Mrs. Porter Oakes had a party of six, honoring Mrs. Ola G. Hamlin's lovely daughter, Mrs. Fletcher B. Pope of McKinney. Guests included Mesdames Ola G. Hamlin, Riner, J. B. Nail and Grady England, beside the honoree.

Mrs. W. W. Cook entertained Miss Myrle Neely and Mrs. G. R. Ellis.

Numbers of parties reserved tables for later in the afternoon.

School girls, dressed in black with orange caps and aprons, served the tables.

Misses Thelma Fisher and Erma Schnelle wore lovely suits and afternoon frocks from the Parisian. Gowns of blue and black seemed to predominate, though one lovely costume worn by Miss Schnelle was of maroon velvet and the point fox fur, the lovely lace yoke and beaded bag she carried, were most carefully observed. Miss Fisher carried black with a French style.

Attention is again called to the fact that, except for out of town guests, a small cover charge is added to the luncheon price. Members are asked to bring their blue cards so there will be no misunderstanding.

Mondays' large attendance is said to make the future of the Spanish tea room an assured success. Luncheon menus were delicious and the surroundings unique in every way. Hostesses for Tuesday will be Mrs. A. G. Holmes and C. E. Basham.

A Daily Illustrated Poem For Children

By Wymond Garthwaite

NIGHT WATCHMEN

When I'm in bed at night,
Outside my door
And just in sight
At the head of the stairs
Sit two little bears.

They sit very still,
As still as can be.
They're sitting on guard,
Just watching, you see.

Their ears are wide open,
And so are their eyes.
They'll catch anyone
If anyone tries
To come up the stairs,
But nobody dares
Because
Of the bears!

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS L. N. CASON

Cross the railroad tracks by the Mill (that mill should always be capitalized), on Bluff street, and you enter a district of little "homes" that are not "for rent."

There are many children below school age playing; there are flower gardens well tended. You feel the cottages are homes. We saw no two-story houses.

Down the side of one boulevard was a hedge of Mexican fire bush, waiting the touch of frost to become scarlet.

Cockscomb flaunted itself in abundance. Back of a green hedge, we saw a well tended rose garden.

Where one drainage ditch ended, three women stood fishing. Mesquites drooped gracefully near them and mesquites bordered the stream and looked at themselves in the water.

Not since we left Tennessee have we seen so many morning glories. The vines had not blighted, but leaves were still green and wet with dew, and the purple and white flowers crowned their morning beauty.

Pink althea blossomed on many tall bushes. Golden rod was in one home, a bed plant, glowing all down the side of the house.

Goldenrod grows high and in abundance in Tennessee; but along the side of the highways, it is dusty from the passing cars. This goldenrod was so clean and gorgeous.

One little cottage in particular attracted us; at one side, stood an immense hackberry tree; at the other, a lovely umbrella tree. One clipped round privet bush stood in the front yard and a trimmed hedge half hid the beauty of a flower garden at the side of the home. The drainage ditch ran not so far away as if it were a private lake.

Down there, around the waterworks, it is worth while to drive. You see the cared for homes of men and women who love their homes and are content.

Far down a country road, a little white shack nestled in the trees. Seen from the distance, it was a thing of beauty.

When taking a drive, we have always loved going a new road. This was a new road for us, leading into the adventure of a sweet and neighborly domesticity.

Dorothy Dix Tells Some Reasons Why Men Finally Marry

When a Man Marries, It May Be Because He Wants the Girl, or a Home, or Some One to Tell His Troubles to—Or Because He Hasn't Had Any Choice in the Matter.

A correspondent asks: "Why do men marry?"

Mainly, perhaps, because of the biological urge that prompts every man to set up his own home and found his own family. Every man wants sons to carry on his name and perpetuate himself. Fatherhood is, in part, the expression of man's craving for immortality.

Men marry because they are in love with some woman. Or think they are for the time being. The mysterious power that we call sex attraction draws a man to some particular girl and he feels that life will be cinders, ashes and dust unless he can possess her for his very own. Temporarily, at least, he considers her the most beautiful, the most fascinating, the wisest, wittiest and most altogether charming being on earth, and he is willing to make any sacrifice and sign on the dotted line of any contract to secure this paragon to himself.

Sometimes this infatuation lasts. Often it doesn't. But is is while men are under its influence that most of them marry. Very few men ever deliberately and with set purpose commit matrimony. In fact, most of them, perceiving the restrictions it imposes upon their brethren and the burden it lays upon them, are set and determined not to be inveigled into the holy state under any pretext whatsoever, and then, just as they are feeling safe and secure and patting themselves upon the back for being so foxy, there comes along some maiden with a peaches-and-cream complexion and a come-hither look in her eye and it is all over except the ringing of the wedding bells.

In other countries, with a more sophisticated social system than ours, men often marry for the material advantages they will get out of it, but the American man is very seldom influenced by any such sordid considerations. Rich girls with us notoriously have fewer suitors than poor ones. Indeed, statistics show that there are more old maids among millionairesses than in any other class of women. It is love, and nothing but love, that prompts the American man to assume a girl's board bill and shopping ticket, and so, however a marriage turns out in the end, it is certain that it was love that drove the man into it at the beginning.

Men marry for homes far oftener than women do. It is all very well to say that a man can get better cooked food in a club or a restaurant than he can in his own dining room and the little tailor around the corner can execute a neater darn than any wife can and that he can set up his own house with his own household goods in it and with perfectly trained servants to run it if he wants to. These things don't make a home and no man can make a home by himself; no, not even if he puts a tidy on every chair and hangs a canary in every window. The only way to turn a house into a home is to put a wife in it.

So there comes a psychological moment when a man ups and pops the question to the woman who is nearest to him or the woman he has been going to see for 10 years without ever having come to the point, simply because he is homesick.

Because he has got to the place where he is sick and tired of the "a las" of a French chef and craves corned beef and cabbage. Or because he is worn out with fighting with laundries about missing shirts and collars and trying to remember to send his things out to the presser. Or because coming home to a dark and solitary room has got on his nerves and he wants to return of an evening to a lighted house with somebody waiting to welcome him back. Or because he has fallen for the advertisements of a rose-wreathed bungalow in the suburbs.

Men marry because they want somebody to tell things to. Somebody to whom they can tell the things that they would be ashamed to tell another man. That is why every man has to have a feminine confidante.

Every man in reality marries to get a claque and a shoulder to weep on. A man wants some woman that he can go to in his hour of triumph, and who will listen and beg for more while he boasts of his achievements and tells how great and wonderful he is. And he still more wants some woman to whom he can go when things have gone wrong and he is broken and beaten, and who will pour over his wounded vanity the healing ointment of her pity and sympathy and admiration, and who will make him feel as if he was an unappreciated martyr instead of being a rank failure.

Men marry because they are eternally little boys who never outgrow the need for a mother. They can't be happy unless they have some woman around to mother them, some woman who will always be looking out for their personal comfort, who will make the kind of a pie they like best, and put the buttons in their shirts and have their slippers toasting before the fire when they come home at night; who will be anxious about their health and worried if their appetites fail and think they are going to die every time they have a headache.

Some woman who will always think they are right and the mean old boss was to blame if they lose their jobs, or that a designing woman took them in, no matter if she will pet and spoil them and give them an occasional spank, even as mother used to do.

And men marry many a time and oft because women have picked them out for husbands and put the good thought upon them. They never knew by what means they arrive at the altar, nor how it was that they happened to pick out the particular women they did for wives, but the women do.

Oh, men marry for many reasons, and not the least among them is because marriage furnishes a man with a perfect and unassailable alibi for all he does, and all he doesn't do. He can always lay all of his sins of omission and commission upon his wife.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Many of the pretty things seen at the Spanish Tea room Monday were there because of Mrs. Ben G. Oneal's energy. She remarked "I do hate to throw pretty things away" to which Mr. Oneal replied "And she never does as long as there is any room in my garage."

It is quite gratifying to notice how many prominent club women in Wichita Falls devote some of their time and efforts to the spiritual side of life and acitvities as well as to the social and educational sides. While leaving the forum Monday Mrs. Bernard Martin remarked "I haven't time; my missionary society meets today and I do not want to be late."

SUGAR A KEY TO TASTEFUL COOKERY

To Overlook This Wonder Flavor Is to Miss the Joy of Eating

Scientific authorities are alarmed that tasteful cookery has reached such a low ebb in the United States.

Flavor affects diet and diet affects health. We can't keep well without eating the various foods that our bodies need. We can't be expected to force ourselves to eat varieties of food if we do not like them.

Every woman who is responsible for the diet of a family is to that large extent responsible for its health. Realizing this, a group of women cooking experts have been working to find what could be done to make meals more delicious. They concentrated on vegetables, for these important foods are so likely to be bland and unappetizing. They made a series of now notable experiments. They uncovered an old secret that had been lost. Use a dash of sugar, added to vegetables while they are cooking (preferably in a little water).

This addition of a dash of sugar does not make the vegetables taste sweet. It brings up all those poignant, natural flavors that mean so much to the sense of enjoyment.

Help your family to enjoy vegetables. Just try a dash of sugar in cooking peas, lima beans, string beans, corn, carrots, beets, parsnips, sweet potatoes, squash, onions and tomatoes—and taste the difference. Remember the value of something sweet for dessert. A bit of sweet makes the meal complete. The Sugar Institute.

Soft, wavy hair!

The modern sculptured bobs do wonders to bring out your personality. But like other present-day modes of arranging the hair, they call attention to it. That's why it's so important nowadays to keep your hair soft, lustrous, abundant. The easiest and quickest way to give new lustre and color to hair which has begun to look dull and lifeless, is with Danderine. And it makes the hair softer, easier to arrange; holds it in place.

Here's all you do. Each time you use your brush just put a little Danderine on it. It removes the oily film from your hair; brings out its natural color; gives it more gloss than brilliantine. Waves "set" with it stay in longer.

Danderine dissolves the crust of dandruff; puts the scalp in the pink of condition. It stops falling hair. A small bottle is enough to show its merit. Start on it tonight.

Again?

The unenlightened woman who still suffers every month, receives little sympathy when she could so easily end those pains with Midol. This merciful medicine is not a narcotic, you know. Nor does it interfere in the slightest with the normal and natural process of menstruation. It does banish the pain—in five to seven minutes. Because it acts directly on the organs affected. If taken ahead of time, you may avoid a single uncomfortable moment. Try to realize what a truly wonderful discovery this is; it has made at least one form of suffering quite needless. When every drugstore has these harmless tablets isn't it foolish to be a martyr? Midol costs fifty cents, in aluminum case.*

*Midol's comfort is not confined to any certain days or age. It relieves at any time of life. Its ease is felt immediately in cases of nervous headache, backache, cramping, hot flashes and all febrile pain peculiar to women.

TRIO DESCRIBE BANK KILLINGS

Lamar Bandits Go on Trial Today

DENVER, Sept. 30. (UP)—Details of the brutal murders that followed the robbery of the Bank of Lamar in May, 1928, were made public in confessions by Howard L. Royston, Ralph Fleagle and George J. Abshier, printed by the Denver Post today. The men will go to trial at Lamar tomorrow for the murder of A. N. Parrish, bank president, and his son, John.

Gray-haired Ralph Fleagle, of Garden City, Kan., shot down E. A. Kessinger, a teller the bandits had kidnaped, the confessions disclosed. At the time Kessinger, expecting to be released, was standing blindfolded in a shack near Garden City. After the teller fell, Ralph Fleagle pumped bullets into the wounded man's body, the confessions said.

Dr. W. W. Wineinger of Dighton, Kan., was shot to death from behind as he stood on a hallway in the Garden City neighborhood. Jake Fleagle, head of the gang and now sought for the Rodeo, Calif., bank robbery of last week, killed the physician after Dr. Wineinger had treated the wounds of Howard L. Royston, a third member of the gang.

The confessions did not disclose who killed A. N. Parrish and John Parrish, who lost their lives in a revolver fight in the bank during the robbery. The robbers, however, said they thought that the aged bank president killed his own son while he was shooting at Ralph Fleagle, one of the bandits.

Three More Escape Prison

HUNTSVILLE, Texas, Sept. 30. (AP)—With no clues to whereabouts of 15 convicts who remained at liberty after their break from the Wynne farm some time Friday night, prison officials Monday were faced with a stiff further search when it becahne known that there other men had made their getaway from the Ferguson farm Sunday.

Details relative to the Ferguson break were lacking. Reports saying that John Lee Herrings, under a 10 year sentence for criminal assault from Wichita county, Will King, under a four year sentence for robbery from Bastrop county, and Jim Hinton, under a two year sentence for disposing of mortgaged property from Harris county had escaped.

With the escape of the three men from the Ferguson farm the number of convicts at liberty was brought to 18.

FRISCO HOST TO BANKERS

Women Representatives Attend by Scores

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 30 (UP)—This city was a little "high hat" today and well nigh bursting with pride.

For San Francisco was host to the American bankers, here for their 55th annual convention.

Included among the thousands of delegates who have ojurneyed from all sections of the country were some of the most notable figures of the nation's financial history.

And San Francisco learned that not all the financial leaders known throughout the 48 states were of the pompous, sedate variety.

San Francisco also learned that women have indeed entered the banking field, for there were hundreds here for the convention of American bank women.

More than a score of divisional and committee meetings were scheduled for today—so many were the meetings that the list had the appearance of a busy suburban time table.

Craig B. Hazlewood, president of the association and a prominent Chicago banker, called the meeting of the administrative committee today.

First general session of the convention will be held tomorrow at the Curran theater at, which time President Hazlewood will deliver his annual address.

Two Girls Held Here In Theft of Wink Car

Two young women, believed by the arresting officers to be about 19 years of age, were taken into custody on the Electra highway Monday afternoon, charged with stealing an automobile which has been missing from Wink, Texas, for the past two weeks. The girls were lodged in the jail at Electra by Jess Leverett and E. L. Bradford, county traffic officers, after a conference with officials at Wink. Mr. Leverett said Monday night that the sheriff from Winkler county would come for the prisoners within a few days.

THUGS ASSAULT GEM SALESMAN

Importer Loses $30,000 Jewels to Houston Bandits

HOUSTON, Sept. 30. (AP)—Police tonight were searching for the assailant or assailants of J. D. Rose, 35-year-old importer of diamonds who was beaten, bound and gagged in the Queen theater building here and robbed of gems said to have been worth between $20,000 and $30,000.

Rose was found in an unconscious condition, his nose broken and his face and head covered with bruises. He was in the rest room on the second floor of the building.

Rose had just gone to the office of the H. L. Taylor Wholesale Jewelers. He had taken the diamonds with him to show Mr. Taylor. While talking to the jeweler, Rose complained of being sick. He left Taylor to go to the rest room on the floor below.

A half hour later he had not returned and Taylor went to look for him. He found Taylor lying on the floor, unconscious. His mouth was filled with cotton and a black silk handkerchief was tied over his face. Rose was bleeding from the mouth and nose, Taylor said.

Taylor said the gems were worth between $20,000 and $30,000.

Mr. Rose's father is a diamond cutter at Antwerp, Belgium. The diamonds were consigned to the Marine Bank and Trust company.

Rose went to the bank to get the diamonds this morning. B. C. Bukowski, cashier, said he noticed the invoice on them was about $20,000.

CIRCUS AGENT CLAIMS 'PLOT'

Robbins Bros. Show Denies Date Here Canceled

Circus agents and fans were all agog in Wichita Falls Monday over charges made by the Buck Jones and Robbins Bros. show, which exhibits here Oct. 3, that an effort was being made to create the impression in Northwest Texas and Southern Oklahoma that the organization had canceled its engagement here.

Hundreds of postal cards, announcing that another circus with a very similar name "positively would not" come to Wichita Falls, have been circulated in this territory, agents of the Robbins brothers show said. The name of the circus which "regretted" that it would not be here is so similar to the name of the Robbins Bros. show, it was claimed, that many persons have been led to believe that the Robbins Bros. date had been canceled.

Advertisements carried Tuesday morning announced that the Robbins Bros. show and parade would be given here as scheduled.

ROCK SLIDE PINS WORKER

Wichitan Hurt as Concrete Falls in Ditch

C. A. Mitchell, 305 Front street, employe of the Oklahoma Metal corporation, suffered severe injuries shortly after 3 o'clock Monday afternoon when he was buried beneath several large blocks of concrete while working in a ditch at the Continental refinery on the Burkburnett road.

The injured man was taken to the Hargrave-Walker hospital in a Merkle company ambulance. He had suffered no superficial injuries. He could not move his hips nor the upper portion of either leg, but attendants at the hospital were unable to say whether the paralysis was permanent or temporary. He was resting well Monday night.

Workers at the refinery were unable to state how the concrete happened to fall into the ditch unless it was due to a weakening of the earth around the edges. Several men worked for some time before they could extricate the injured man and remove the blocks under which he was pinned. He complained of severe pains in his side after they had placed him in the ambulance.

Mr. Mitchell has lived in Wichita Falls about two months, having been an employe of a local ice company before going to work for the metal company, which was doing work at the refinery. He had been employed only since 1 o'clock Monday afternoon and had been working about two hours when the accident occurred.

September Rains Here Total 3.53

With the exception of a greater amount of rainfall and at the some time a greater number of clear days, the weather for September this year bore a marked similarity to that of September, 1928, according to the monthly weather report issued Monday by the Texas Electric Service company bureau.

The precipitation during the past month totaled 3.53 inches compared with only .30 inch for September last year. Residents of Wichita Falls durinx the last month experienceds thunderstorms on six days while in September, 1928, there were no thunderstorms recorded. By a queer quirk of nature, the month of September last year had 15 cloudy or partly cloudy days compared with only 14 such days this year, despite the greater rainfall last month. The temperatures for the two months varied by only fractional parts of a degree, considered as averages.

The complete report for the two months follows:

Mean maximum	89.57	89.97

DAVIS MENTHOLIZED BEANS

THE HIGHEST GOAL EVER REACHED IN FINE CAR PERFORMANCE, EASE, VALUE

THE NEW Cadillacs, La Salles and Fleetwoods which made their first appearance early this autumn offer a contrast so sharp and striking—when compared with all other cars, either native or foreign—that you will promptly agree that these latest triumphs of Cadillac engineering and manufacturing genius are unmistakably the greatest monetary values in the industry today.

Not in one thing, but in all things—in their new designs; plus their lower, longer, racier lines; plus greater seating capacity; plus larger, more powerful V-type, 8-cylinder engines; plus more speed and even finer acceleration; plus easier steering; plus richer and more luxurious Fleetwood and Fisher Bodies; plus non-shatterable Security-Plate Glass standard equipment in all windows, doors and windshields; plus new improved Syncro-Mesh Silent-Shift Transmission; plus new improved Safety-Mechanical Four-Wheel Brakes.

It is obviously quite impossible to place a true dollars-and-cents valuation on the new improved Cadillac-La Salle Syncro-Mesh Silent-Shift Transmission. Syncro-Mesh is today's highest development in transmissions for the simplification of control under all driving conditions. It has been deliberately designed to afford you maximum freedom from either mental or physical strain in gear-shifting.

One of the greatest contributors to safety, in the new Cadillacs and La Salles, is the harmonized steering system. This new steering system makes these cars amazingly easy to handle in traffic congestion, in parking manipulations, and in cross-country driving.

In no other car can you secure brakes as smooth, sure, powerful, and as effortlessly responsive as the new and improved Cadillac-La Salle Safety-Mechanical Four-Wheel Brakes—for these brakes, like the Syncro-Mesh Transmission, are protected by basic patents.

The new Cadillac-La Salle Fisher and Fleetwood bodies possess luxurious new special fittings and appointments. Rear seats are roomier—four inches wider. Roomier front compartments. Adjustable front seats are even more easily adjusted than in the past. All five and seven-passenger closed bodies are equipped with disappearing center arm rests for rear compartments.

These new and exclusive features of themselves almost compel your choice of Cadillac or La Salle. But when you remember that, in addition, all the class distinction inseparably associated with Cadillac creations is yours, without a penny price premium, it becomes perfectly plain, we repeat, that these cars are unmistakably the greatest monetary values in the industry today. Cadillac Motor Car Company, Division of General Motors, Detroit, Michigan; Oshawa, Canada.

THE NEW LA SALLES are priced from $2685 to $2795
THE NEW CADILLACS are priced from $3295 to $3795
THE NEW FLEETWOODS are priced from $3995 to $7300

THE THREE R CURE

Daily Editorial

THE soreheads and short-tailed foxes who would destroy present economic systems and replace stable methods with hare-brained experiment, are simply bent upon establishing equality by reverse process.

They do not esteem themselves competent to rise, consequently they aim to raze peak possibilities to more convenient levels.

It's much easier to disrupt than to create—and it takes less effort to be an ant-hill than a mountain.

Bolshevism and kindred heresies, promise social standardization through the simple expedient of eliminating competition and comparison—by the wiping out of pacemakers and the removal of shoulder-straps from captaining minds.

Ability's award and inefficiency's wage are to be the same. And devil take the foremost.

Manifestly, such pinchbeck can only be successfully hawked to the gullible and the uninformed. Creeds of that sort may hardly expect footing where men daily witness fulfilled contracts between ambition and opportunity, within the shadow of immigrant-owned skyscrapers.

We can best offset the spread of despairing doctrines by stimulating enterprise and by summoning history to testify how generously progress has kept covenant with zeal and vision.

We must oppose disordered thought with wider-spread knowledge—democracy must either banish ignorance or become poisoned by its fallacies.

It is our duty to interpret America to both non-English-speaking aliens and native illiterates through compulsory education—with extension schools and factory classrooms.

EXPEDIENCY and the balance sheet alike urge it. Ignorance neither pays communities nor dividends.

And neither the chances omnipresent throughout the United States nor the spirit of humanity, which is the very essence of the constitution, may be rendered intelligible to unlettered backwoodsmen or foreign-born masses, until they are required to talk, read and write the language which law, legislation, presidential messages and the newspapers speak.

The extent to which industry is dependent upon print-blind labor not only retards production and confuses administration, but constantly piles up a junk-heap of maimed workers and damaged machines, at a cost incalculably greater than the antidote's.

Future security compels attention to present concentrations of unread and unassimilated folk. They live in America, but America does not yet live in them.

Illiteracy is a pick-and-shovel estate—a life sentence to inferiority and menial tasks.

The man who knows nothing of the past will find little in the future.

The less he has gleaned from human experience, the more he may be expected to duplicate its signal errors.

No argument appears too ridiculous—no sophistry seems far-fetched to a person without the developed sense, the background and the record to confute it.

Not until we provide means to acquaint citizens and potential citizens with the truths about the land from which they sprang and to which they have come, shall its fair intents be revealed to them—not until they can read, may we right their bewildered notions and empower them to inherit full estates of privilege and betterment.

Three Men Killed As Building Collapses

PERU, Ind., Sept. 30. (UP)—Three workmen were killed here today when the building which they were razing collapsed.

The dead: Charles Cunningham, 55; John Einsler, 60; Frank E. Einsler, 26, a son.

The men were working in the inside of the rear of the building when the walls and roof caved in.

A 70-year-old woman in Illinois was badly burned while smoking a pipe in bed. When will the ladies learn not to smoke pipes in bed?

A fashion note says track pants will be the style for men next summer. That is, for some men.

Meet the Underworld

AFTER 17 people were killed in the fire that destroyed a Detroit night club, an ugly rumor popped up for the police to investigate. This rumor said that the club had been set on fire by a disgruntled bootleg ring which had recently lost the privilege of supplying the club with its booze.

Now this rumor is very probably false. It is quite likely that the fire was accidental and not incendiary. Nevertheless, the mere fact that rumor came into existence at all is rather important.

It is a symptom; an indication of a state of affairs in our national life which we do not stop to recognize and whose importance we fail to realize.

True or false, this rumor emphasizes once more a truth that everybody must admit; namely, that the business of selling liquor in prohibition America is in the hands of desperate criminals, and that the man who patronizes a speakeasy puts himself in touch with one of the most dangerous sections of the underworld.

In some ways our modern world is a little bit topsy-turvy. We have developed a curious sense of values. Some of the things we do are rather strange.

The average citizen would never dream of consorting with burglars, holdup men or pickpockets.

Yet, in a great many cases, he will maintain business relations, and develop a certain degree of intimacy, with bootleggers—and be rather proud of it.

And the point of this Detroit rumor is this: whether it is true or false, it could be true—that is, the business of selling liquor is in the hands of men who would not hesitate to adopt such a course if it suited their purposes.

When you go into a speakeasy, or buy a small package from an itinerant bootlegger, you are putting yourself in direct contact with a criminal class that is unscrupulous and lawless enough to make Jesse James' gang look like a group of Sunday school urchins.

You are also doing your part to strengthen and perpetuate the hold that the underworld has on every city government in the land.

This is a state of affairs that is without a parallel in our entire national history. The ugly little rumor that popped up after the Detroit night club fire simply emphasizes it afresh. When, do you suppose, are we really going to do something about it?

High School Football

IT IS hard to see why this nation devotes so much attention to college football when there are so many high school games to watch. The college game, to be sure, is more spectacular. It has the huge crowds, the "color"—what ever would we do without that word?—the faultlessly drilled teams, the unbending ballyhoo. But the high school game has an appeal all its own. It reaches inside of you and takes hold of your heart and tugs at it, somehow, in a way that college football never does.

Just why it should be so different is hard to explain. Perhaps it is because the high school youngsters, both in the stands and on the field, represent youth at its very best—unspoiled and unsophisticated. They have not yet reached the point where they are afraid that unfettered enthusiasm may make them a bit ridiculous.

The game itself, of course, is not as entertaining, technically, as a college game. The players make more mistakes. The 15-year-old quarterbacks do not always exercise good judgment. The tackling is apt to be a bit ragged. The interference on end runs and off-tackle smashes frequently goes astray.

But, after all, who cares? There is a do-or-die spirit that makes up for all errors. Players and spectators alike are on fire with energy. The atmosphere is electric.

There is one queer feature about watching a high school game, though. Before the thing is over you are apt to find a mist coming into your eyes now and then, a lump rising to clog your throat.

For the high school kids have something that we older ones have pretty well lost—something that they themselves will lose in a few years. They have enthusiasm. They are able to make of the crossing of a whitewashed line an event as important as the world war. They can scream themselves into exhaustion simply because a lad named Kozinski is able to run 10 yards without being knocked down.

Now this youthful enthusiasm is going to be spoiled in a few years. It can't last.' But while it lasts its possibilities are infinite. These youngsters, if they only knew it, have the world in their hands. They could make it over. They are much better than we older ones; so much more alive, so much wiser.

Don't go to a high school football game with condescension in your heart. You aren't worth it. No adult is entitled to look down on any youth. Go, instead, ready to learn something—ready to learn how fine and loyal and ecstatic our American youngsters are. They may shame you, but they'll hearten you, too. If they could only learn, as they grow older, not to listen to us, their elders, they could transform the nation.

It's Interesting, Anyway

THE SENATE'S investigation of Lobbyist Shearer's connection with the shipbuilding firms may not be able to establish definitely that gentleman's exact status as a paid propagandist, but it is, at least, uncovering some highly interesting facts.

It is rather noteworthy, for instance, that American shipbuilding interests raised a $148,000 "slush fund" to lobby through congress the Jones-White marine act which was designed to put the government's shipping business in the hands of private interests.

It is, also, rather interesting to contemplate the virtuous indignation of the shipbuilders who insist that Shearer was retained by them at Geneva simply as "an observer." Our shipbuilders must be prosperous, indeed, if it is worth $50,000 to them to get from a private reporter precisely the same news that they could get for three cents a day in any good newspaper.

Quotations Worth Noting

"A man who enjoys his work achieves more successes than do less happy workers, and with each victory comes increased zest for the attainment of still greater objectives."—L. A. Downs, president Illinois Central railroad.

"Football appeals to me more than any other sport. . . . Our young men are virile and will soon learn to play well."—Portes Gil, president of Mexico.

"The machine age in industry has hardly started."—Thomas A. Edison.

Novelette

Near the border of the Circle, where the Buicks and the Lincolns
Rest in regal pomp and grandeur,
like the lay-offs at Longacre,
Showy as a brown-skin hoofer in a colored show's finale;
Near the border of the Circle, every night, about eleven,
You will see a little lady, old as stories told at banquets,
Tattered as the Collier's weeklies
in the waiting rooms of dentists;
Any night you'll see her standing, propped against some brilliant window,
Selling all the morning papers in the shadow of sleek monsters,
With trim bodies built by Fisher, or designed, with care, by Brewster;
And this bard, who passes nightly,
ever eyes this figure sadly,
Meditating on the whimsies and caprices of Dame Fortune,
Often, as he eyes the lady with her
Mirrors and her Newses,
Bent and frayed and worn and threadbare, 'neath the signs that shriek the legend:
"Bodies Built by This or That One,"
he will wend his sad way homeward
And, at midnight mates with morning, he will dream upon his pillow
Of a sign, a mighty beacon, flashing o'er the paper vendor,
With a million incandescents, reading: "Body Wrecked by Broadway."

In Other Words

Returning voyagers bring back the story about Sascha Guitry, who is one of the old country's better actors and authors. He frequented a hat shop with Yvonne Printemp, who is Mrs. Guitry, and the clerk proffered a sombrero type. Guitry put it on.

"How do you like?" he asked Yvonne, his "bitter-sweet."

"It makes you look like an old nance!" she grumbled.

Turning to the clerk, Sascha stammered: "Here, take it away. It ages me."

Jim Tully, in case you didn't know, is doing a book on England. While there recently he interviewed George Bernard Shaw, who remarked: "I began to write to avoid honest work."

"So did I," responded Jim, who added: "Why don't you come to America?"

"Why should I," said Shaw, "when all the interesting Americans come to see me here?"

"I know, George," replied Tully, "but don't be so selfish. I don't like to do all the traveling."

Oop!

Just before Texas Guinan closed her convent on Long Island, a priceless scene was enacted in the impromptu manner. Hilda Ferguson, former "Follies" frail, who left her numerous bracelets at home before going night clubbing, was made conspicuous when La Guinan, standing on a chair and pointing her clackers at Hilda, screeched: "Oh, look! Miss Ferguson has her bracelets in hock!"

"I may not have my bracelets," meowed Miss Ferguson, who is one of our better meowers, "but I still have my youth!"

Whereupon Miss Guinan announced the next number.

Merciless Truth

Charles Washburn, George M. Cohan's press agent, argues that familiarity breeds deadheads.

Newspaper Man Stuff

Pierre de Rohan, once Connecticut's most famous dramatic critic, shifted to Camden, N. J., and later to the New York rags, which signaled a series of sour breaks. The going was pretty tough for de Rohan for a while. You can always get a job when you have one in New York you know. At any rate, he recently was appointed movie oracle for the N. Y. Morning Telegraph and his first contribution was called "Credo of a Critic," in which he set forth a number of "I believe thats" of a noble and lofty nature that pretty well covered a critic's job, at least from an ideal point of view.

Adolph Zukor clipped the piece and mailed it to Adolph Ochs, owner of the N. Y. Times, with some superscription such as "I'd like you to read this." Ochs passed it along to the managing editor, who handed it to the Times cinema reviewer with the instructions to spread it among the staff.

And there it is, or it was, at least a week ago—on the bulletin board in the dramatic department, the recommended credo for the Times.

In fewer words, a few weeks ago de Rohan couldn't get a job on that paper, which now takes lessons from him.

Of All Remarks!

At dinner the other night in Dinty Moore's place, Ziegfeld, Sam Goldwyn, Harry Rothenbach and Rudolph Friml, the composer, were swapping chatter between mouthfuls. Suddenly Goldwyn began humming a tune.

"That sounds like one of the melodies I played at your house last night," ventured Friml.

"Nothing of the kind," retorted Goldwyn, "that melody was stolen from a composer who is a friend of mine."

"That's what I say," said Friml, "it's my melody!"

Why Colyumnists Gray Young
(Or Making Scoopes)

Several months ago it was recorded in a "This Town of Ours" bureau that Mrs. George Olsen (Ethel Shutta) would shelve the cast of Ziegfeld's "Whoopee" to anticipate another blessed event. The day of publication Miss Shutta coldly telegraphed: "The only blessed event I anticipate, sir, is the return of my darling husband, George, from Miami in a few weeks."

However, as exclusively chronicled, Miss Shutta left the "Whoopee" cast a few days later, and, according to the various New York newspapers last week, a child christened George, Jr., was born to a Mr. and Mrs. George Olsen, the papers describing the mother as Ethel Shutta, recent comedienne in a show called "Whoopee."

We think we understand. The George Olsens had nothing to do with it. It was one of those acts of God, as the saying goes.

CHAPTER XV

My hands grow cold and my flesh creeps; and yet the night is warm. Only the mist is cold, this mysterious mist that trails the dead before us and sucks from them their last, creeping life. By morning they will be pale and their blood congealed and black.

Still the parachute-rockets shoot up and cast their pitiless light over the stony landscape, which is full of craters and frozen lights like a moon. The blood beneath my skin brings fear and restlessness into my thoughts. They become feeble and tremble, they desire warmth and life. They cannot endure without sympathy and communion, they are disordered before the naked picture of despair.

I hear the rattle of the mess-tins and immediately I feel a strong desire for warm food; it would do me good and comfort me. Painfully I force myself to wait until I am relieved.

Then I go into the dug-out and find a mug of barley. It is cooked in fat and tastes good, I eat it slowly. I remain quiet, though the others are in a better mood, for the shelling has died down.

The days go by and the inexorable hours follow one another as a matter of course. Attacks alternate with counter-attacks and slowly the dead pile up in the field of craters between the trenches. We are able to bring in most of the wounded that do not lie too far off. But many have long to wait and we listen to them dying.

For one of them we search two days in vain. He must be lying on his belly and unable to turn over. Otherwise it is hard to understand why we cannot find him; for it is only when a man has his mouth close to the ground that it is impossible to gauge the direction of his cry.

He must have been badly hit—one of those nasty wounds, neither so severe that they exhaust the body at once and a man dreams on in a half-swoon, nor so light that a man endures the pain in the hope of becoming well again. Kat thinks he has either a broken pelvis or a shot through the spine. His chest cannot have been injured, otherwise he would not have such strength to cry out. And if it were any other kind of wound it would be possible to see him moving.

He grows gradually hoarser. The voice sounds so desperate that it prevails everywhere. The first night some of our fellows go out three times to look for him. But when they think they have located him and crawl across, next time they hear the voice it seems to come from somewhere else altogether.

We search in vain until dawn. We scrutinize the field all day with glasses, but discover nothing. On the second day the calls are fainter; that will be because his lips and mouth have become dry.

Our company commander has promised special leave with three days extra to anyone who finds him. That is a powerful inducement, but we would do all that is possible without that; for the cry is terrible. Kat and Kropp even go out in the afternoon, and Albert gets the lobe of his ear shot off in consequence. It is to no purpose, they come back without him.

It is easy to understand what he cries. At first he called only for help—the second night he must have some delirium, he talks with his wife and his children, we often detect the name Elise. Today he merely weeps. By evening the voice dwindles to a croaking. But it persists still through the whole night. We hear it so distinctly because the wind blows toward our line. In the morning when we suppose he must already have long gone to his rest, there comes across to us one last gurgling rattle.

The days are hot and the dead lie unburied. We cannot fetch them all in if we did we should not know what to do with them. The shells will bury them. Many have their bellies swollen up like balloons. They hiss, belch, and make movements. The gases in them make noises.

The sky is blue and without clouds. In the evening it grows sultry and the heat rises from the earth. When the wind blows toward us it brings the smell of blood, which is heavy and sweet. This deathly exhalation from the shell holes seems to be a mixture of chloroform and putrefaction, and fills us with nausea and retching.

The nights become quiet and the hunt for copper driving-bands and the silken parachutes of the French star-shells begins. Why the driving bands are so desirable no one knows exactly. The collectors merely assert that they are valuable. Some have collected so many that they will stoop under the weight of them when we go back.

But Haie at least gives a reason. He intends to give them to his girl to supplement her garters. At this the Friesians explode with mirth. They slap their knees: 'By Jove, though, he's a wit, Haie is, he's got brains." Tjaden, especially, can hardly contain himself; he takes the largest of the rings in his hand and every now and then puts his leg through it to show how much slack there is.

"Haie, man, she must have legs like an elephant!"

Haie beams, proud that his girl should receive so much appreciation.

"She's a nice bit," he says with self-satisfaction.

The parachutes are turned to more practical uses. According to the size of the bust three or perhaps four will make a blouse. Kropp and I use them as handkerchiefs. The others send them home. If the women could see at what risk these bits of rag are often obtained they would be horrified.

Kat surprises Tjaden endeavoring with perfect equanimity to knock the driving band off a dud. If anyone else had tried it the thing would have exploded, but Tjaden always has his luck with him.

One morning two butterflies play in front of our trench. They are brimstone butterflies with red spots on their yellow wings. What can they be looking for here? There is not a plant nor a flower for miles. They settle on the teeth of a skull. The birds, too, are just as carefree, they have long since accustomed themselves to the war. Every morning larks ascend from No Man's Land. A year ago we watched them nesting; the young ones grew up too.

We have a spell from the rats in the trench. They are in No Man's Land—we know what for. They grow fat; when we see one we have a crack at it. At night we hear again the rolling behind the enemy lines. All day we have only the normal shelling, so that we are able to repair the trenches. There is always plenty of amusement, the airmen see to that. There are countless fights for us to watch every day.

Battle planes don't trouble us, but the observation planes we hate like the plague; they put the artillery on to us. A couple of minutes after they appear, shrapnel and high-explosives begin to drop on us. We lose 11 men in one day that way, and five of them stretcher bearers. Two are so smashed that Tjaden remarks you could scrape them off the wall of the trench with a spoon and bury them in a mess-tin. Another has the lower part of his body and his legs torn off. Dead, his chest leans against the side of the trench, his face is lemon-yellow, in his beard still burns a cigaret. It glows until it dies out on his lips.

We put the dead in a large shell-hole. So far there are three layers, one on top of the other.

Suddenly the shelling begins to pound again. Soon we are sitting up once more with the rigid tenseness of blank anticipation.

Attack, counter attack, charge, repulse—these are words, but what things they signify! We have lost a good many men, mostly recruits. Reinforcements have again been sent up to our sector. It is one of the new regiments, composed of young fellows called up during last year. They have had hardly any training, and are sent into the field with only a theoretical knowledge. They do know what a hand grenade is, it is true, but they have very little idea of cover, and what is most important of all, have no eye for it. A fold in the ground has to be quite 18 inches high before they can see it.

Although we need reinforcement, the recruits give us almost more trouble than they are worth. They are helpless in this grim fighting area, they fall like flies. The present method of fighting from posts demands knowledge and experience; a man must have a feeling for the contours of the ground, an ear for the sound and character of the shells, must be able to decide beforehand where they will drop, how they will burst, and how to shelter from them. The young recruits of course know none of these things. They get killed simply because they can hardly tell shrapnel from high explosive, they are mown down because they are listening anxiously to the roar of the big coal boxes falling far in the rear, and miss the light, piping whistle of the low spreading little daisy-cutters. They flock together like sheep instead of scattering, and even the wounded are shot down like hares by the airmen.

Their pale turnip faces, their pitiful clenched hands, the miserable courage of these poor devils, the desperate charges and attacks made by these poor brave devils, who are so terrified that they dare not cry out loudly, but with battered chests and torn bellies and arms and legs only whimper softly for their mothers and cease as soon as one looks at them.

Their sharp, downy, deaf faces have the awful expressionlessness of dead children.

It brings a lump into the throat to see how they go over and run and fall. A man would like to spank them, they are so stupid, and to take them by the arm and lead them away from here where they have no business to be. They wear gray coats and trousers and boots, but for most of them the uniform is far too big; it hangs on their limbs, their shoulders are too narrow, their bodies too slight; no uniform was ever made to these childish measurements.

Between five and ten recruits fall to every old hand.

A surprise gas attack carries off a lot of them. They have not yet learned what to do. We found one dug-out full of them, with blue heads and black lips. Some of them in a shell hole took their masks off too soon; they did not know that the gas lies longest in the hollows; when they saw others on top without masks they pulled theirs off too and swallowed enough to scorch their lungs. Their condition is hopeless, they choose to death with hemorrhages and suffocation.

The Once Over

By H. I. PHILLIPS

SAM HILDRETH

(Samuel Clay Hildreth, turf veteran, and internationally known as an owner and trainer of thoroughbreds, died in New York at the age of 63).

There's a hush through all the stables,
Such as stables seldom know;
And beneath Rancocas gables
There are sounds of moanin' low;
Through the farm there is a growin'
Spell o' sadness all th' day,
For you can't stop hosses knowin'
When th' masters' gone away.

There's a sad look in th' faces
O' the thoroughbreds 'at stand
Still an' silent in their places
Like they missed th' vanished hand;
There's a whinny in th' clearin'
An' it's kinda like a moan—
O!' Stromboli's sensin', fearin'
That he's now been left alone.

In the pasture, huddled closely,
Are the hosses of his pride
Seemin' scared and lookin' mos'ly
Like they's hurt way deep inside;
Purchase, Grey Law—wonder hosses—
Droop their heads an' whinny low
Like they got the news th' boss's
Gone where all good horsemen go.

Pawin' at th' grass an' sighin'
With a way that hosses hev
When they feels a lot like cryin'
Is th' great ol' winner, Zev;
Hourless stands there lookin', yearnin',
With the other runners great
For a voice beyon' returnin'—

'Cross the field beyon' th' clearin'
Rises through the mists a host,
An' there seems to be appearin'
More than one old-timer's ghost;
Friar Rock! He gallops faster!
Vulcain, Novelty have come—
Come to meet the good old master
And to guide his spirit home!

Actress Goes Back To Her Deserted Bus Driver Hubby

LONDON, Sept. 30. (US)—Phyllis Blok, London actress, has returned to the bus driver husband and the household duties she deserted when the footlights beckoned.

The 20-year-old stage beauty left the man she married at the age of 15, vowing never to return to the "101 jobs I loathe in the house." She wrote her husband:

"Tim, you are simply great. If I had smiled through it all as you did, things might have been different, and I might have been at home now, darning your socks. I am going back to the stage because I cannot help it."

However, love had its way. The magistrate before whom Mrs. Blok had her husband summoned for failure to support their two children had something to do with it. They left the courtroom completely reconciled.

SERVICE CLUB IDEAL DEFINED

Kiwanis Club Hears Talk By District Head

"Unless a service club fosters a real and sincere friendship among its members, and arouses in them an enthusiasm for community service, it has no right to exist," declared L. A. McDonald of Denton, district governor of Kiwanis International, in an address before the weekly meeting of the local club at the Kemp hotel Monday noon.

"In order to appreciate the privilege which we have in being members of this organization," the speaker continued, "we must remember that the 13 years of its remarkable growth have been marked by great sacrifice of time and energy by leaders who were drawn from high positions in our business and industrial machinery."

Mr. McDonald was introduced by Julian Bobo, past district-governor of the Texas-Oklahoma district.

Preceding Mr. McDonald's address, a brief program was given by the Taylor party, now engaged in a revival meeting at the First Baptist church. Charley Taylor appeared in the role of an entertainer rather than as an evangelist Monday, using a musical baritone voice in "Old Man River," and whistling this number and "There's a Rainbow Round My Shoulder." He was accompanied by Laurie Taylor, pianist.

Charley Taylor spoke briefly on the function of service clubs, declaring that such organizations are made up of men who are trying to learn the art of living.

Members of the Taylor party, including C. F. Taylor Sr., father of Charley and Laurie, were introduced by W. E. Young.

Jack Chewning was introduced by Hooper Sanderford, president, as a new member.

COTTON GINS RUN AT TOP SPEED IN OKLAHOMA

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 30. (UP)—Picking of Oklahoma's cotton crop was progressing rapidly this week.

The crop is estimated at about 1,000,000 bales. Approximately 75,000 bales have been ginned. Cotton gins were running steadily in practically every section of the state. In the southwestern counties, they were running on a 24-hour basis.

Estimates and the quality of the crop have been aided by the warm, sunny weather of last week following the rainy season earlier in the month.

Heart in Reverse

LONDON—The butterfly is an insect whose heart beats backwards as well as forwards, according to Prof. John H. Gerould. The beat starts at the head and travels forward, squeezing the blood on ahead of it. After repeating this several times the heart will pause and then a beat will start at the forward end, forcing the blood in the opposite direction.

Woman Accused Of Killing Husband Over Card Play

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 30. (UP)—Murder charges were filed today against Mrs. Myrtle Bennett, 31, after she shot and killed her husband, John, 36, when she bid four spades in bridge and he, her partner, went set.

The charges were prepared while Mrs. Bennett lay prostrate from shock at police headquarters.

Bennett, a perfume company agent, died on the floor of his fashionable apartment here late last night after his wife sent two bullets into his side. He had blamed her for raising his one-spade bid, slapped her and ordered their guests home during the quarrel which ended with his death.

M'DONALD TO VISIT GOTHAM

Premier Accepts Jimmy Walker's Bid

ABOARD S. S. BERENGARIA, Sept. 30. (UP)—Premier J. Ramsay MacDonald's plans were slightly modified today as the result of his acceptance of Mayor Walker's invitation to stop over in New York long enough to have the freedom of the city conferred upon him.

Instead of proceeding to Washington immediately after landing in New York Friday, the British prime minister will go to the city hall where he will receive the key of the city. It will be the first time in history that this honor will have been conferred upon the head of a British government.

After a ceremony which is expected to last two hours, the premier and his party will leave for Washington.

MacDonald's failure to attend church services yesterday disappointed many passengers who had come to the service in the hope of seeing him.

Premier MacDonald explained later that he was very tired, having slept badly during the previous night because of banging doors and the heavy swells which the vessel encountered on reaching the open sea. Immediately after breakfast he lay down in his stateroom to get some sleep and when he awoke, the Sunday services was over.

Entrants from Wichita and surrounding counties in the national Atwater Kent audition contest will be heard at the First Methodist church Tuesday night, Oct. 1, at 8 o'clock, according to Mrs. Lois Parker, local chairman of the contest.

A considerable number of applications already were in the hands of the local committee Monday, with numerous others expected before the hour set for the tryout Tuesday night, it was said.

The contest, sponsored by the Atwater Kent system, offers to five young men and five women of this country scholarships and cash awards ranging from $1,000 to $5,000 each. In each local contest, one young man and one young woman will be selected by the radio audience and a committee of judges. Local winners will compete in a state contest in Dallas late in October. Winners of state meets in turn will compete in district contests, the winners of which will engage in the final contest from which the 10 winning vocalists will be selected.

According to Mrs. Parker, the finals in the local contest will be held at station KGKO at 9 o'clock Wednesday night, Oct. 9. The use of the local broadcasting station for putting finalists here on the air was obtained through the courtesy of the Parking-Timberlake company, their advertising hour having been assigned to the amateur singers' audition.

Applicants for the Atwater-Kent scholarships may register for the finals up to 6 p. m. on Oct. 8, Mrs. Parker said, by communicating with her at 2146 Avenue H, this city, or with station KGKO.

BIRTH CONTROL IDEA SCORED

Catholic Women Hear Assault on Non-Adherence

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30. (INS)—A concentrated assault on birth control, divorce and the less apostolic doctrines of the "intermediate" Protestant groups is in progress at the convention of the National Council of Catholic women here.

Non-adherence to the Apostles' creed and doubt of the Divinity of Christ, brought on by "the great delusion that modern science and modern research have rendered untenable the traditional basis of religious belief," were attacked by Thomas F. Woodlock, member of the Interstate commerce commission in a speech expounding "the new humanism" a system of thought recognizing the "reasonableness" of fundamental belief.

"Forces are at work to persuade women to sell their motherhood for leisure," said Bishop Christopher E. Byrne, of Galveston, in a speech against birth control and divorce. "And divorce cuts the tie of Christian marriage and drives mothers and children from the home it destroys.

"Men's passions have made marriage concubinate, polygamous and dissoluble, to the dishonoring and degradation of women in every case."

Henry Ford Says Woman's Power Is Confined to Home

NEW YORK, Sept. 30. (INS)—If women are wise, they are a coming power but a power in the home, not in industry, Henry Ford said in an interview to be published in the October issue of Pictorial Review.

"Homes are the motive of man; industry exists only because in the end it ministers to homes," Ford declares in the interview.

"Women are a diminishing factor than an oncoming force in industry. As precision increases in industry, women will tend to decrease and disappear because they are not precise and mechanically-minded. They have not the patience to make or handle machinery and they have not the interest to develop in mechanical work.

"Girls are not of an inventive turn of mind. They are more apt to take orders than to forge ahead for themselves.

"Women are the same way. Women don't want to think on mechanical and industrial matters. They don't want to think much even in their home life, except in human crisis, and then they are resourceful and rise nobly to a situation."

FACTS about the prices of new cars which every car buyer should know

In the interest of the public and of our dealers, all advertisements of General Motors cars carry this statement:

"Consider the delivered price as well as the list (f.o.b.) price when comparing automobile values. Our dealers' delivered prices include only authorized charges for freight and delivery, and the charge for any additional accessories or financing desired."

WHEN you buy a new automobile, it is the delivered price that you actually pay.

The delivered price consists of the list price of the car—the f.o.b. price advertised by the manufacturer—plus certain other charges which the dealer makes.

You are entitled to know what those charges are and what they are for. This information is necessary to properly compare motor car values.

In keeping with General Motors' policy of frankness, General Motors dealers have adopted a standard price tag which explains exactly what their charges are. The tag is attached to the steering wheels of new cars on display in their showrooms. It shows the list price of the car and the following other items:

1. Freight and Delivery. An authorized amount to cover the freight charges paid by the dealer and the cost of unloading, inspecting, supplying fuel and oil—preparing the car for delivery to you.
2. Accessories. A charge for any additional accessories that may be purchased.

The price tag tells all. No other items are added. Nothing is hidden. There is no extra charge to permit a seemingly better trade-in offer. No extra charge to cover advertising, etc. Each charge is fair and reasonable.

General Motors dealers invite you to make their tag your guide in comparing automobile values. The real measure of value is the delivered price—for that is the price you pay.

If you wish to purchase on time payments, find out and compare the finance charges. General Motors dealers offer convenient terms at reasonable cost.

BARONS BREAK TIE BY WINNING OVER STEERS, 8 TO 4

NEXT CONFLICT AT BIRMINGHAM

Dallas Must Win Two to Clinch Series

By GAYLE TALBOT JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer.

DALLAS, Sept. 30.—Crafty Ray Caldwell set the Dallas Steers back on their heels for the last five innings here today while the Birmingham Barons came from behind to belt out an 8 to 4 victory in the fifth game of the Dixie series.

A circuit blow by Guy Sturdy that sailed far over the right field screen in the seventh proved the winning run and cost Sergeant George Connally the decision. Three more Baron runs scored off Tauscher and Barnabe in the ninth merely were incidental.

One More Necessary

Today's triumph put the Alabamans in a favorable position to capture the Dixie classic, with only one more victory necessary to bring them in. The Steers would have to win two straight to pull through. Both clubs left at 8 p. m. for Birmingham, where the sixth game will be played Wednesday. A seventh game, if necessary to settle the argument, would be played here Friday.

Caldwell pitched masterful ball today to put his team ahead in the series. Although the Steers obtained eight hits off the former major leaguer, they were strung over seven innings. After the fourth inning, when they scored their last run, the Steers were helpless before Caldwell's slow curves, lofting for the most part to waiting Baron outfielders.

Sparkling Support

He was accorded sparkling support with the exception of the second frame, when Pickering's wild throw to first let in two Dallas runs. Four Mavs were pegged out on the base paths, Frank Gibson's snap throws getting three of them. A fast double play killed an incipient Dallas rally in the third. Moose Clabaugh turned in a catch of Rosenthal's drive to right in the same inning.

Connally for the most part was ineffective. Before he went out for a pinch batter in the seventh the sergeant gave up seven hits and issued four walks, three in a row in the sixth to force in a run.

Guy Sturdy, Birmingham first baseker, was the mainspring of the Barons' attack. In addition to his prize wallop in the seventh, he delivered two singles and a walk and scored three runs. Ray Flaskamper poked a pair of doubles to left to lead the Dallas assault.

Two in First

The Barons jumped off to a two-run lead in the first, when, after Sturdy had singled, Clabaugh slapped a single to center that went through Johnson's legs. Smith brought Clabaugh in with a rap to right.

The Steers had their only scoring spree in the second, when they put over three runs on one hit. Caldwell handed out two of his three walks in that chapter, passing both Bischoff and Johnson. Bischoff scored when Pickering took Jeffries' hopper and threw into the dirt at first. Hap Morse followed with a clean blow to right field to clear the sacks.

Pickering's lapse, incidentally, cost him his job for the rest of the day. Klugman substituted for him and contributed a brace of doubles and a walk to prove Manager Dobbs made a smart move.

Squared in Fourth

Birmingham squared the count in the fourth, when Weis singled, moved around to third on sacrifices by Smith and Bennett, and scored on Klugman's double against the left screen. The Steers forged ahead again in their half in almost exactly the same manner. Davis got a fluke infield hit, was helped around to third and spiked the plate on Jeffries' punch to right.

From there on the Texas league champs scarcely threatened. One Steer reached first in each of the last four frames, but Caldwell saw that they stayed there.

Smith beat out an infield rap to second after two Barons were out in the sixth. It seemed to unsteady Connally, and he issued passes to Bennett, Klugman and Gibson, forcing Smith in. Caldwell fanned to close the inning and it appeared Connally might pull through. Then he tossed a home run ball to Sturdy to start the seventh, and with it the ball game.

Then It Ended

Tauscher managed to get the Barons out without a run in the eighth, but fell apart in the next inning. Barnabe relieved him after Sturdy and Black had singled in succession. Andy Moore hit for Clabaugh and delivered a single to score Sturdy. There followed a walk to Smith, and Bennett brought in the last two Birmingham runs with a blow between first and second.

Reds Accept Resignation Of Manager Hendricks

CINCINNATI, Sept. 30. (AP)—Jack Hendricks' resignation as manager of the Cincinnati Reds, submitted eight days ago, was accepted by the board of directors today.

After accepting the resignation the board, with the exception of Louis Widrig, treasurer, resigned.

The new directors, headed by Sidney Weil, who purchased controlling interest in the club last week, then elected Weil president.

Other new directors are Gus Hill, vice president; Maurice Galvin, Covington, Ky.; Joseph A. Meagher, Newport, Ky., secretary, and Widrig, holdover treasurer.

Stanzak Brothers Win Title of World's Champs

WAUKEGAN, Ill., Sept. 30. (UP)—The Stanzak brothers of Waukegan and North Chicago won the "world's championship" of teams composed of brothers here this afternoon by defeating the Mariatt brothers of Hawk Springs, Mo., in the fourth and deciding game of the series, 3 to 1.

Jack Mariatt started for the losers but was relieved in the sixth by Fred, 45, the oldest son.

COYOTES WORK OFF SORENESS

Squad Put Through Light Workout Monday

Coach Holton gave his charges a light workout Monday afternoon for the purpose of limbering up the sore muscles contracted in the game with Lawton high school Friday. The squad was divided in half. Assistant Coach Bill Morris is to take the yannigans in hand four days out of the week, while Coach Holton is to devote his time to the regulars on four practice days and take over the whole squad once each week. This will give the coach a chance to instruct the regulars personally and correct their faults.

A light signal drill with a light scrimmage with Junior college Indians was the program for yesterday's practice. The wooden line, a heavy wooden affair which the linemen push around in order to perfect their charging, and the tackling dummy are being rigged up and will be ready for service today. Coach Holton plans to begin real football training now that better practice equipment is on hand.

Coach Holton announced that football from a more serious point of view will be taught from now on. Those who will for the time being be on the first squad under Mr. Holton's direction include Orion Smith, Bob Carstarphen, Ogden Kelly, J. R. Holton, Monk Hodgkiss, J. Carstarphen, Raymond Allen, Laverne Malone, Lester Daniels, Sam Fowler, Earl Hutchison, Morris Lee, Tom Beaty, Carlisle Norwood, Leo Davis, Bob Guy, Jerre Elliott, Harlan Ray, Paul Dickey, Loyce Watson, Erwin Morris, Roy Parrish, Rollin Dixon, Chick Holden and John Sween.

U. T. Longhorns Meet Centenary Saturday

AUSTIN, Sept. 30. (AP)—With three weeks of practice behind them and a hard fought game under their belts, the University of Texas Longhorns today started pointing for that nemesis of Southwest conference teams, the Centenary gentlemen. The rugged Shreveport team will make its appearance at Memorial stadium Saturday hopeful of continuing the same brand of play that overwhelmed all conference foes in 1928-29.

Although the work of Dexter Shelley was a bright spot in last week's 13-0 victory over the St. Edwards eleven, Coach Clyde Littlefield faced the task of installing a co-ordinated drive in the Orange eleven.

Cubs Have Cash Ready For More New Players

CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—The Cubs picked up some of the biggest bargains in baseball in Hack Wilson, Rigss Stephenson, Pat Malone and others, but William Wrigley Jr., expects to pay money for the next batch of stars.

"Just the other day," he said, "I gave Veeck and McCarthy $500,000 to go out and get ball players."

DEAD SHOT

Theater Man Proves His Shooting Skill When Holdup Impends

CHICAGO, Sept. 30. (UP)—Ever since the Chicago theater was held up a year ago by a smartly clad bandit, Babe Cobb, 25, assistant manager of McVickers big loop picture house owned by the same chain, has been practicing pistol shooting daily.

Last night while 3,000 patrons remained engrossed in a film depiction of jungle warfare, Cobb shot and killed the same well dressed bandit as he fled from the treasurer's office of McVickers theater when the $7,100 holdup was effected. Last night he recognized the man instantly.

WESTERNS TO ENCOUNTER FOE

Every Team to Play This Week-End

By PAUL KING

CHICAGO, Sept. 30. (UP)—Although no inter-conference conflicts are scheduled, every football team in the Western conference will swing into action this week-end.

Five teams, Wisconsin, Michigan, Indiana, Iowa and Ohio State will engage in their second contests, having opened their seasons a week earlier.

Perhaps the feature attraction of the ensuing week-end will be the Indiana-Notre Dame game at Bloomington. It will be the first game of the season for Coach Rockne's Ramblers, who according to pre-season reports, are destined to take their place alongside other great Notre Dame elevens.

Divides Double-Header

Indiana opened its season last week by dividing a double-header, winning from Wabash 19 to 2 and losing to Ohio State 18 to 0.

Illinois, regarded among the favorites for the Big Ten championship, will engage Kansas university at Urbana. The Illini are conceded a decided advantage over the Kansans who have become well known for their ability to bowl over better rated teams.

Wisconsin, fresh from a 21 to 0 victory over a determined South Dakota eleven, will meet Colgate at Madison. The Badgers showed well against the Dakotians and are expected to rate well in this year's conference competition.

Minnesota's steam roller eleven will engage Coe college in its initial fray of the season at Minneapolis. Although forced to fill several vacancies created by graduation, Coach Doc Spears has rounded together a commendable aggregation at the Northern school. Coe defeated the Iowa Teachers 7 to 0 last week-end.

Wildcats Tackle Bulldogs

Dick Hanley's Northwestern Wildcats will play host to Potsy Clark's Butler Bulldogs at Evanston. The Evanston aggregation, hit fairly hard by graduation, in all probability will run into stiff competition from the Hoosier state team. Butler defeated Illinois Wesleyan, 13 to 9, in its initial conflict.

Purdue, with Pest Welch, star backfield man in the lineup, will take the field against the Kansas Aggies at Lafayette. The Boilermakers, moulded from a host of lettermen, probably will meet stubborn competition from the Kansans.

Coach Harry Kipke's Michigan eleven, conceded among the favorites for the Big Ten title, will square off against Michigan State at Ann Arbor. The Wolverines showed expected strength against Albion in its opening contest by winning 39 to 0. Michigan also took a second game from Mount Union 16 to 6.

Ohio State will clash with Wittenberg at Columbus. The Wittenberg squad, much lighter than the Ohioans, are conceded little chance of crossing the Buckeye's goal line.

Maroons Meet Beloit

Chicago probably will be accorded little competition by Beloit when they meet on Stag field. The Maroons, given little chance to finish high in the final conference rating, are expected to present a fast running attack against Beloit.

Iowa, after defeating Carroll college 46 to 0 in its initial game, will do battle with Monmouth at Iowa City. Although the Buckeyes were heartened with announcement that Pape, star back, had been ruled eligible after being ineligible earlier in the season, they were given another setback when the athletic committee announced that several other men were lost from the squad because of scholastic delinquency and failure to complete registration.

Golfers Banqueted At San Angelo

SAN ANGELO, Texas, Sept. 30. (AP)—Approximately 150 golfers entered in the annual San Angelo country club invitation tournament were guests at a stag banquet in their honor tonight.

Dennis Lavender of Abilene, state amateur champion, won the qualifying round today with a total of 75 for 18 holes, two above par.

Six flights will start match play tomorrow.

Next to Lavender today came Olin Blanks of San Angelo with a 74 and Lee Davis, Fort Worth, Paul Henshaw of San Angelo and Al Badger of Abilene with 76 each.

'Donie' Bush To Manage Chisox

CHICAGO, Sept. 30. (AP)—Charles A. Comiskey, 70 year old owner of the Chicago White Sox, returned to the pennant wars today, determined to develop a flag contender for the 1930 American league race.

The "old Roman" made his first step by signing Owen "Donie" Bush, until recently leader of the Pirates, to manage the club. He will succeed Russell "Lena" Blackburne. Bush will assume active charge in December when radical changes in the personnel of the club are contemplated.

No reference was made as to the terms of Bush's contracts, which calls for two year's service. It was hinted he would receive in excess of $20,000 a year.

Bush has a reputation as a high caliber manager as the result of his achievements while piloting the Pirates, the Washington Americans and the Indianapolis club of the American association. Under his regime the Pirates won the National league flag in 1927 but were no match for the Yankees in the world series.

The Shadow

So, left or right, now turn your head
And see the ghost that follows still,
Down where the valley fog is spread
Or where faint starlight strikes the hill,
Through mist and rain, through sun and snow,
Through song and silence, shade and gleam,
Blown back to you as lost winds blow
The drifting phantom of a dream.

You may not hear a footstep fall,
For ghosts walk lightly down the glen;
You may not hear dim echoes call
From days that will not come again;
But, left or right, if you still turn
With eager eyes that seek to find,
Through eerie shades where dim lights burn
You'll see the ghost you left behind.

You left behind—but would not stay.
No barricade could hold it back,
However faint and far away
The light might fall upon time's track
And though you shut it from your sight
And turn to those you love the most
No dark recesses of the night
Can keep you hidden from a ghost.

And it may come in some old song—
"The moon is new, but love is old"—
If memory can last that long.
Before the years are gray and cold;
But you can always understand
It waits again to know the day
When two ghosts wander, hand in hand,
Nor care if they have lost the way.

The Ideal Golf Stadium

Golf, as a rule, through any championship has to be seen at a gallop or a hurdle. At its best it demands several miles of hiking along the edge of the course.

Out at Pebble Beach Samuel G. Blythe, author, golfer and philosopher, set a world's record when it comes to a golf stadium. His home on a hill overlooks the Pebble Beach links and the Pacific as well. Sitting on his porch one could follow the play on 12 or 13 holes, using a rocking chair for this worthy purpose. The hospitable Mr. Blythe had field glasses ready for his guests, and in case there was any element of doubt, there were fleet scouts ready to set out and bring back accurate reports of any unusual incidents. The only trouble is that the view in general is likely to take the spectator's mind away from golf.

There certainly is no other stadium in sport that can even approach the Blythe arrangement for all-round spectacular effect. Nothing else can even run a good fourth.

The only true way to discover a weakness is to run into heavy pressure. You'll be surprised how often you will be surprised.

A Coming Great

Dear Sir: The outstanding pitcher of the major leagues this year is Wesley Ferrell, of the Cleveland Indians. While he may not win as many games as Lefty Grove or Guy Bush, he will be close on their heels in a matter of victories, and no first-year hurler has done quite so well in many seasons. Miller Huggins ranked Ferrell as the best recruit to come along in years and predicts a great future for him. Ferrell is a North Carolinian and was picked up by Cleveland while pitching in the Blackstone Valley, Mass., league. He is well over six feet, weighs close to 200 and has a fine curve ball. He already has won 20 games, and that's a good start for any youngster spending his first year in the big show.

The Difference

"What," asks P. H., "is the difference between an average golfer and a duffer?"

The average golfer should play between 90 and 100. The duffer considers it a big day when he has cracked 110.

A well known scientist is said to be working on a serum that will prevent golfers from talking their game at such extended length. It is hardly possible that any serum could accomplish what the army and navy together couldn't even hope to check.

Hornsby and Foxx in Infield Spotlight as World's Series Nears

By BRIAN BELL
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Discussion of the infields to match strength in the World series throws the spotlight on two opposing players, standing out in bold relief, Hornsby of the Cubs and Foxx of the Athletics.

One is at the height of a great career and the other standing on the threshold. Hornsby is the Cubs' leading hitter and an inspirational player with few equals. Foxx led the American league in hitting for most of the season's play.

Share Glories

Foxx is regarded as a better batsman than Grimm, who will play first base for the Cubs in the series after a six weeks absence from the game on account of injuries, but the Cub veteran is the better fielder. Foxx has many things to learn about the fine art of first base play. Grimm will have the distinction of being the only lefthanded batsmen in the Cub lineup.

Hornsby should outhit Bishop, the Athletics' second sacker, more than 10 points on the basis of the season's work, but here the fielding advantage will rest with the American league. Hornsby is an adequate defensive baseman, but Bishop at times is an extrordinary performer.

Moving to shortstop the Cubs will have the better of the argument if the season's offensive figures are to be relied upon, for English is a much better hitter than Boley. Their fielding seems about on a par.

Does Well Enough

Jimmy Dykes, although he may be a better shortstop than third baseman, does well enough at the position he will occupy in the series. Norman McMillan, the Cub third baseman, probably will play a sound fielding game, but he can not be figured to hit with the power of Dykes.

On the Cub infield Hornsby and Grimm are .300 hitters and English has batted at a .280 clip. McMillan has been around .270. The A's have two 300 hitters in Foxx and Dykes, but Bishop and Boley have not been much above .250, so the batting percentage will be in slightly favor of the Cubs.

The Athletics have made fewer double plays than any other club in the American league and the Cubs lead the National league in this department of play, but nevertheless there seems little to choose between the two defensive combinations.

Good Reserves

Good reserve strength is found in both benches, Philadelphia has Hale for third base emergency, Cronin for short, Eddie Collins for second, although it is unlikely that he will leave the coaching line for active service, and Burns for first.

The Cubs can toss Tolson in to relieve Grimm if the first baseman falters; Blair, a hard hitter, can play any one of the four infield positions and Beck is a handy may round third, although he does not pack a heavy hitting punch.

The earth is likely to be struck by a comet only once in 20,000,000 years, scientists declare.

JUST THE Baer Facts

By Bugs Baer

MY DISTINGUISHED COLLEAGUE FROM NEBRASKA

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Senator Bow Howell wants to know why President Hoover doesn't dry up Washington.

After all these years, the senator wants prohibition enforced.

Mr. Hoover doesn't ask Senator Howell why he doesn't dry up Nebraska.

One man couldn't ask all that question.

They're still making that stuff out in the gold-plated West.

As a memorandum for the archives, we want to state that we recently inhaled a snifter of corn likker in Washington that was boiled up in Nebraska.

The motto of Nebraska is "equality before the law."

This is an abbreviation of "equality before the laws gets here."

Nebraska is also known as the antelope state. You act like one of those leaping gazelles after a snorter of good old Nebraskan blood purifier.

We don't claim that Nebraska is the sixth great lake anymore than we insist that Senator Howell is the fifth Marx brother.

But Senator Howell's arid interrogatory does not represent a plebiscite of inhabitants.

Neither is it a consensus of opinion. The average Nebraskan minds his own business.

The average Nebraskan minds his own business. Even if he requires coils, a copper tank and bran mash to do it.

The mop has been a battle axe for some 10 years.

Senator Howell can ask questions of Mr. Hoover. But he can't make 'em embarrassing.

The senator has a better opportunity than our president of knowing that Washington is wet because our president doesn't go to those kind of places.

Over 12 years ago we stated that dry laws would result in leopard prohibition. Dry in spots.

Dry in spots. But plenty of leopard in between.

That expression has been copped by many an orator since then. And the leopard could be the state flower of Nebraska.

Probably Senator Howell is imperfectly sincere when he asks questions so far from first base.

But people who live in crystal mansions shouldn't renew the lease.

OIL BELT RACE TAKING FORM

Sweetwater and Big Spring Eliminated

By BOYCE HOUSE

Although autumn is just beginning, and the end of the schedule is yet two months distant, the championship race in the Oil Belt district—rated by many as "the toughest in Texas"—is beginning to take definite form.

Of the 10 teams that entered the chase with bright hopes, two are already out of the picture, with double defeats; and two others are standing with their backs to the wall, as the result of a single loss. Only one team has yet to play a conference game. The remaining five are tied for the lead with one victory each.

The Sweetwater Mustangs clashed last Monday with the Abilene Eagles, state champions of 1928, and outplayed the Eagles during the first quarter but could not maintain the pace and were defeated, 27 to 0. The outstanding man for the victors was "Smoky" Allen, triple threat quarterback. There is plenty of beef and power in the Eagles' forward wall but the backfield seems likely to fall short of last season's quartet.

When the Eastland Mavericks Saturday defeated Sweetwater, 16 to 6, the Mustangs' chances for the district title were extinguished. Lynn, Sweetwater quarterback, is perhaps the speediest man ever seen on a West Texas gridiron. Eastland had to come from behind to win putting over two touchdowns in the last quarter. Norton's running and the splendid work of the entire Maverick line featured.

The big Buckaroos of Breckenridge administered a 58-0 defeat to the Big Spring Steers. Two weeks ago, the Steers lost, 40-0, to the Ranger Bulldogs.

Chances of the Mineral Wells Mountaineers were badly dented when the San Angelo Bobcats, another dark horse eleven, put over a 19-0 triumph. The Bobcats, a strong defensive club, put over a score and then held the huge Mountaineers. Just before the curtain fell, the Bobcats plucked two Mineral Wells passes from the sky and registered two more scores. San Angelo is likely to go places in the flag chase. The Mountaineers may be able to get back in the race however. They meet the Breckenridge team this week and a victory for Mineral Wells would put them back in the thick of the fight. But the Buckaroos have been considered by many as the most likely winners of the championship.

A game that should be a thriller is the Eastland-Ranger battle. The Bulldogs, losers to Brownwood 12 to 7 a week ago, must win or abandon all title hopes. Meanwhile, Brownwood will be meeting Abilene, with an Eagle victory highly probable particularly in view of the 13-7 non-conference game with Dublin that Brownwood played Friday. Eastland won over Dublin 50 to 6 a week before.

Cisco Loboes break into the race with a game against Sweetwater. Lynn, will provide some excitement but the Loboes should win handily. On Saturday night, Cisco defeated the El Paso Tigers, 38 to 13, on the El Paso gridiron. Some observers are predicting that this will be a "Cisco year."

San Angelo will meet the Big Spring Steers this week. The standing:

Cuyler Will Go After Base Stealing Record

NEW YORK, Sept. 30 (AP)—Hazen Cuyler, champion base stealer of the National league, can set a new record for a single series by stealing seven sacks in the coming classic.

Jim Slagle of the old Cubs stole six bases in 1907 to set a record that still stands.

Cuyler will be the fastest man in the field during the series and should easily lead in stolen bases.

The roster of the squad now is numbered at about 30 daily practicers. Coach Baggett says that his squad will be in better condition next Saturday than they were last Friday at Decatur.

A Condensed Food List

So many correspondents ask which foods are proteins, starches, non-starches, fats and sugars that I am going to give you a condensed food list in this one article. Of course, if you wish to have a correctly balanced diet, it is necessary to understand the different food classifications and the effect of each food in the body.

In tomorrow's article I will give you some rules about combinations and in Thursday's article I will explain more about the quantities of these different foods to be used each day, so I would suggest that you save these articles and keep them for future reference.

Good Proteins

Lean beef, mutton, chicken, turkey, rabbit, fresh fish such as sole, halibut, black bass, cod, perch and tuna, eggs, cheese, gelatin, frog legs, turtle and milk.

Good Starches

Potatoes, corn, macaroni, spaghetti, vermicelli, noodles, Hubbard squash, rice, corn bread, corn meal, wholewheat biscuits, wholewheat flour, shredded wheat and barley.

Non Starchy Vegetables

Celery, spinach, string beans, asparagus, summer squash, cucumbers, eggplant, beet tops, turnip tops, beets, carrots, parsnips, turnips, pumpkin, lettuce, okra, chayotes, oyster plant, mallow, kale, zucchini, vegetable marrow.

Good Sugars

Sweet fruits, maple syrup, honey, and unrefined cane sugars.

Fats and Oils

Cream, butter, avocados, olives, peanut oil, and all vegetable oil.

Acid Fruits

Apples, apricots, peaches, nectarines, pears, grapes, oranges, grapefruit, lemons, plums loquats, cherries, berries, pineapple, tomatoes, melons.

Stewed Fruits

Prunes, figs, pears, raisins, apples, apricots, berries.

Others Not So Good

In the above list I have given you the different kinds of foods which I consider the best for patients to use. Of course, there are many other kinds which could be listed under each heading, and you will notice in my weekly menus that I do name a good many others for the sake of variety. Many of these other foods which could be listed under the above classifications are more difficult to digest or too complicated in their structure, containing too many varieties of food elements in themselves which makes it more difficult to combine them with other foods.

In tomorrow's article I will give you some rules about combining the foods I have listed above, and in the next day's article I will explain more about the quantities and proportions to be used in each day's menus.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Pain Under Shoulder

Question—Mrs. Mc. asks: "What would cause my husband to have a pain under the left shoulder blade? Several years ago that lung closed for sometime when he suddenly stepped under a cold shower. Could it be a result of that?"

Answer—Pains under the left shoulder usually come from either heart trouble or from some lung disorder such as you mention. If the lung has remained collapsed it may still be possible to open it up by having your husband take deep breathing exercises.

Buttermilk

Question—J. K. G. asks: "Will you kindly tell me the difference between buttermilk and acidolphilus milk, and what would you advise taking for an acid stomach or intestinal indigestion?"

Answer—There is some difference between buttermilk and acidolphilus milk, but not much difference in that which is commercially sold. Either of these milks make an excellent diet to take for a short time, excluding all other foods; or, a pint of either milk may be used in place of a meal.

Fainting Spells

Question—F. A. N. asks: "Will you please tell me how I can overcome fainting spells, and what causes them? I cannot have a slight pain without turning very weak and sick and unless I lie down under a fan or apply wet cloths to my head I will faint. I cannot even listen to people telling of operations without having a fainting spell which leaves me weak for a half day. Severe pain will not make me sick or faint, but slight uncomfortable pains always make me sick to the extent that I almost faint."

Answer — You may have some kind of heart trouble, or you may be over-nervous, due to wrong mental and physical training. Of course, I cannot tell you specifically what is causing your trouble without a personal consultation and examination.

Oklahoma Highways To Be Made Wider

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 30. (UP)—State highway commissioners in the future will require highway right of ways 100 feet in width instead of the present 80-foot right of ways, Chairman Law Wents said today.

This will be done to prevent crowding highways with gasoline filling stations and lunch stands immediately beside the road, Wents said. The commission will condemn property on each corner of a highway where the highway crosses a railroad to prevent erection of billboards and other obstructions, he said.

BANDITS LOOT BRANCH BANK

Tunnel Gives Entrance To Institution

OAKLAND, Calif., Sept. 30. (UP)—A branch bank of the American Trust company here was robbed in a spectacular manner by a group of desperadoes today.

The bandits escaped with an unknown amount of money. A check of cash on hand to determine the loss was being made.

Gloomy Bank Reviews Coupled With Tight Money Keep Stocks Down

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Sept. 30. (US)—Less favorable trade opinions from banking quarters joined with continued tight money to put the stock market lower again today. Offerings were in small blocks and losses were confined to two points or less in some instances but there was no sign of aggressive support until late in the afternoon. A few Specialties moved against the main trend as a result of individual influences, with Columbia Graphaphone gaining 6½, Eyers 9½ and United Carbon 10⅜. Steel made up part of its early loss in the closing recovery but finished 1⅝ lower while Auburn lost 19, Commercial Solvents 29¼, Simmons 5 and Westinghouse 2¼. General Motors rallied fractionally while other standard Industrials showed but slight change for the session. Oils were quiet and comparatively steady. Rails lost with the Industrials. Call money advanced from 9 to 10 per cent with fear expressed that the rate might go higher. Turnover dropped ot near the 3,000,000-share level.

"Better buying" was the word heard throughout the street in the afternoon. It was applied to Steel particularly. The only trouble was that too many people seemed to know of it. Even those who are known to have been active on the short side in the past few weeks helped spread the report. It does not seem likely that the Steel bankers would advertise extensively if they were planning a real upward move in the market. The extent of the decline suffered in the past fortnight warrants some technical recovery of itself but after the manner in which public confidence is shaken it will take some entirely new buying incentive to bring broad upward movement. There is sufficient short interest in Steel, Montgomery Ward, Radio and many other active stocks to effect a fairly good comeback but any such recovery will be limited by the more aggressive bear activities as professionals have been successful in influencing real liquidation for the first time in over a year.

Activity in Gold Dust and Standard brands was watched with interest as it was accompanied by report that the Morgan group were ready to put the two companies together. Standard has been a keen disappointment since the merger was formed but from all accounts the weak offerings have been absorbed by banking insiders. Absorption of Johns Manville was declared to be impressive also as leading bankers have not given up the idea of making it the General Motors of the building industry. The unsettling reports of automobile operations continued to flow in from the West and proved even more of a bearish infuence than money and banking activities.

There appeared to be better absorption of Standard Oil shares at interyals. The leading oil interests were not active in the recent flurry in the shares but they continue to express the greatest optimism for the long pull. Mexican Seaboard was well taken also due to realization that its holdings in Kettleman Hills alone have more value than the current market value of the company. Houston's activity was due almost entirely to pool work similar to that witnessed quite often in the past, usually to the regret of followers. Absorption of Eastman Kodak is based on belief that the shares will be split up before long.

Banking reviews for the first of the month were responsible for the widespread talk of slow down in business. A month ago all the banks were highly optimistic as to the business outlook for the fall. Now they talk of slowdown and express wonder as to how far it will go. Study of the reviews indicate their "worry" is due to the falling off in the motor business and the smaller steel tonnage report. Automobile men declare the falling off in sales of General Motors and other companies is due to Ford and the nervousness aroused by an unsettled stock market. Steel men are not worried about the drop in unfilled orders as they expect the increased railroad demand will take up any slack resulting from lesser buying by automobile companies this fall.

MIDWESTERN LIVESTOCK

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 30. (AP) (USDA)—Cattle trade around the 11 market circuit was very slow with a weak to lower undertone prevailing on most all classes. Chicago reported a 25@50c decline on practically all killing classes, but at some points native grain fed steers and yearlings were in too limited supply for packers to shade values. A slow Eastern dressed beef markets and a narrow demand for feeders continued to have a depressing influence to the trade on slaughter steers. Chicago realized $16.25 on choice 1275 pound steers. Better grades of light weight stockers found a fairly broad outlet, but other replacement steers were very difficult to move. Choice white faced yearling stockers cashed at around the $12.00 mark and highly bred stock steers calves cleared up to $13.00. Aggregate receipts were estimated at 142,300 against 145,433 a week ago and 147,452 the corresponding day last year.

Fat lambs was tendered a jolt of 25@75c with packers especially bearish on rangers. Aged stock ruled steady to 25c lower. A few choice native lambs in Chicago made $13.000, while choice westerns at Omaha Kansas City and St. Joseph brought $12.50. The supply approximated 155,700 an increase of 12,000 over last Monday but 2,000 short of a year ago.

The hig market, after opening slow at 10@25c lower rates, closed dull at most points, with prices 25@50s under last week's close. The day's extreme top of $10.80 was paid in Chicago. Total offerings were around 121,300 against 111.962 a week ago and 73,185 a year ago.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30. (AP)—Cotton goods were firm and unchanged. Fair inquiry was reported for a number of print cloths and sheetings, together with drills and other coarse goods constructions. TEXAS CASH PRICES

FORT WORTH, Sept. 30. (AP)—Wheat followed the sharp advances in contract values today and closed 3½c up on all grades on the Fort Worth cash market. Other grains were strong but unchanged.

Wheat—Demand good. Dealers bid basis delivered Galveston export rate No. 1 ordinary hard $1.30½@1.31; No. 1 soft red mixed $1.32½@1.33. Mills bid basis delivered Texas common points: No. 1 ordinary hard $1.32½@1.33; 13 per cent protein $1.36@1.36½; 14 per cent $1.40@1.40½; 15 per cent $1.44@1.44½; 16 per cent $1.48@1.48½.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Sept. 30. (US)—Wheat prices soared in the late trading on the local exchange today to close four cents above the early lows which were at new low levels for the movement. Buying by local bulls and commission houses precipitated heavy short covering in a market which acted oversold.

Coarse grains dipped with wheat early but quickly recovered and ruled steady to higher and advancing further with wheat before the close. Rye followed wheat.

Closing quotations registered net gains of 1@2⅜c in wheat futures. Corn closed steady to 1⅛c higher; oats ¼@1⅛c up; and rye ⅛@1⅛c higher. Winnipeg wheat prices closely followed those of the local market in the late rally, finishing 1⅜@2⅛c higher.

While there were rumors after the close of favorable farm relief action, they were impossible to confirm. The strong rally to all appearances was the corrective action in the form of short covering which generally occurs when sentiment becomes too bearish, with a consequent oversold market condition.

Feeling toward the market became intensely bearish as prices reacted from the rally of last Thursday and selling was persistent. Cables were weak, Liverpool closing 1⅛@2⅜c lower.

Export demand was still very quiet.

On the early dip with wheat, there was good local buying in corn and the market rallied well. At no time were there any heavy offerings in the market, pit observers said. Trade was stil of moderate proportions

Cash corn trading was fairly steady and while offerings in the spot market were liberal there was a good demand. Yellow and ordinary grades ruling steady to ½c off, while white was unchanged to ½c up.

In the cash market, wheat was steady to 2c lower; corn unchanged to ½c lower; oats steady to ½c better; rye unchanged; and barley unchanged.

FEED CROPS PRODUCE WELL

Heavy Acreage Here Brings Good Yield

Farm produce of various kinds will show far better results for the year 1929 than prevalent impressions with the public during the past two months indicated, according to agricultural leaders who witnessed the display of Wichita county products at the fair at Iowa Park last week.

The outstanding crop in this section will be that of feed, according to O. K. Barnes, agricultural agent of the chamber of commerce. Not only in the irrigated district, but generally all over the county, large acreage has been devoted to the growth of various feed stuffs, and the yield on the average, he said, will be good not only from the standpoint of quality, but in quantity.

As an illustration of Wichita county's capacity for corn growing, reference was made to a field of more than 100 acres near Burkburnett, planted this year to white Dent field corn. Gathering is now underway, and a conservative estimate places the prospective yield at more than 5,000 bushels. There is a strong possibility it was said, that the land will show 60 bushels of corn per acre. Specimens from that field took second place at the county fair.

In the territory east and south of Burkburnett an unusually heavy acreage with good yield has been used this year for feed, principally for dairy cows. Much of this crop is being sold, a large part of it for feeding in this section.

The display of more than a dozen varieties of feed and an impressive exhibition of livestock in which dairy stock was strongly featured plainly identified last week's fair as representing a district extensively interested in dairy development. The livestock section, which was in charge of John L. Mizell, county dairy expert, revealed the marked improvement made in the grade of milk cows generally maintained in the county, according to those familiar with this development in recent years.

Many truck farmers in the Wichita Falls community are still busy with a large harvest of turnips, which constitute the largest remaining item in locally grown table vegetables. Much acreage has been given to spinach during the past four weeks, promising an extensive winter crop.

Local poultry markets were practically devoid of producers Monday, only a small number of light deliveries being reported in the city. From the past week's receipts, however, a carload of dressed chickens was shipped from the Armour creameries plant here Monday morning.

The local market has been plentifully supplied during the past two weeks with pears grown in North Texas, the largest portion coming probably from the vicinity of Denison, Sherman and Denton. Selling at $1 to $1.25 a bushel, they have been delivered in great quantities to many homes here for canning.

A total of 275 bales of cotton ginned in the county Monday brought the season's total within two bales of the 5,000 mark—the mark standing Monday evening at 4,998 bales.

TARIFF FOES CLAIM VICTORY

Hoover Faces Defeat On Flexible Law

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30. (INS)—President Hoover was threatened with the first major legislative defeat of his career today with the senate preparing to reject his appeal for retention of the existing flexible tariff law.

A Democratic-Insurgent coalition claimed sufficient vote to strip the president of all rate-fixing powers and restore to congress the exclusive authority to adjust rates to meet changing economic conditions. Under the coalition's plan, the U. S. tariff commission would report direct to congress any necessary changes in existing rates, with the president empowered merely to send along his personal recommendation.

Administration leaders, apparently sensing defeat, were seeking adoption of a "60-day veto" provision, by which the president would be authorized to act finally on any proposed rate changes if congress failed to approve or disapprove the commission's recommendations within 60 days. Coalition leaders opposed this provision on the ground it would defeat their purpose to strip the president of all rate-making powers.

There is a "joker" in the coalition's plan. This lay in the fact that congress would have to adopt a joint resolution, authorizing any proposed rate change before it would become effective. The president therefore would have the final word in any rate controversy, through his constitutional power to veto acts of congress.

Not even the most optimistic member of the coalition would predict the enactment of such a rate change over a presidential veto. Thus, the president would be able to prevent rate changes, even if he can no longer fix the rates.

The outcome was in doubt even though coalition leaders claimed a victory and one administration poll showed a lineup of 48 to 47 against the president, if all senators were present and voting. The coalition leaders claimed a larger majority but there was every indication the vote would be close.

German Pilots plane Propelled by Rockets

FRANKFURT, Germany, Sept. 30. (UP)—Fritz von Opel, the wealthy young automobile magnate, succeeded today in rising in an airplane propelled by rockets instead of by a motor.

Von Opel has been planning to attempt a flight across the English channel in his plane, today's flight being a preliminary test.

Von Opel, after two failures, rose in the air and attained a height of 170 feet. He landed after flying for six miles.

SCOTT AVENUE BRIDGE READY

Traffic Must Wait City's Work on Approaches

Wichita county will place its official approval on the new Scott avenue bridge across the Wichita river no later than Monday of next week, although the structure must remain unused until the city completes its part of the work, according to the engineer's report presented to members of the commissioners court in its regular session Monday morning. The court inspected the new bridge, built at a cost of $72,000 and completed by the Luten Bridge company, in the course of its meeting Monday. Except for the removal of a few structural frames and the clearing away of debris, the contracting company has finished its work, the commissioners were informed. The bridge proper is ready for use, only the gaps at either end, to be filled in by the city, preventing its opening to traffic at once.

Upon the motion of L. L. Kuntz, representing precinct 3, the commissioners appointed R. F. Beasley, justice of the peace of Iowa Park, to succeed J. V. Williamson, whose resignation was accepted Monday. The court also passed an order authorizing T. W. McHam, county treasurer, to pay $67,328.66 in interest to the Central Hanover Bank and Trust company and the National Bank of Commerce in New York, to cover the year's interest on county loans. The money is to be in the New York banks on Oct. 10, Mr. McHam explained.

Before the close of the session, John P. Marrs, county judge, announced that he would attend the state convention of county judges and commissioners to be held at Houston Oct. 2-4.

Four Insurance Suits Sent to Federal Court

Four suits seeking the collection of insurance under the Texas Workmens' Compensation act were transferred Monday into the United States court out of the 78th district court here where they were originally filed.

The Associated Indemnity Corporation is named defendant in three of the petitions filed. They are: Mrs. Joe Randolph and son, seeking $7,200 for the death of their husband and father after he became ill from inhaling welding tank gas last March; J. F. Tallant, suing for $6,941.31 following an injury to his arm in July when he was struck by a wagon tongue; and Mrs. O. C. Kimble and four minor children, asking $6,859 compensation for the death of Mr. Kimble after a heat stroke in coke chamber last April. J. B. Gobis names the New Amsterdam Casualty company defendant in the fourth suit, which seeks the collection of $8,020 compensation for injuries which the plaintiff claims to have suffered when he fell 40 feet from an oil derrick in January.

Building Permits For Month Total $86,448

Building permits for the month of September totaled $86,448, according to figures released Monday in the office of the city engineer. This amount brings the total for 1929 to $491,969.25. The building permits issued during the spring and summer months showed a marked decrease from the totals for the first three months of the year, when the permits amounted to more than $100,000 each month. In April the total took a sudden drop and less than $40,000 in permits was issued. Since that time, however, the monthly totals have increased and the million mark will probably be passed within the next month, according to officials in the city engineer's office.

Court Hears $750 Suit Against City of Iowa Park

Testimony for the plaintiff in a $750 damage suit brought by T. J. Edwards against the city of Iowa Park was begun before Judge W. W. Cook in the 78th district court Monday afternoon. Mr. Edwards alleged that his car was damaged and he suffered personal injuries last August when his car struck construction work left unmarked on an Iowa Park street.

EASY - - The Love Story Of A Modern Girl — By Beatrice Burton

hair all screwed back behind my ears!"

With one hand she fluffed a powder puff across her nose, and with the other she pulled out the big bone hairpin in her hair, loosening it in a shower around her shoulders.

It was wonderful hair — thick and naturally curly. It was light brown and the curled-up ends of it looked as if they had been dipped in a pot of pure gold.

Ann Marie had just time enough to twist it up in a soft roll at the back of her head and to put on a pair of high-heeled slippers when the front door bell rang.

She ran down the stairs, slipping out of the smock that covered her blue crepe house dress as she ran. There was an old-fashioned hall seat at the bottom of the stairs and she flung the smock into it as she passed it.

"Quite the young lady of leisure!" she giggled to herself as she opened the door to the man who stood outside on the porch.

"Hello, John!" she said to him. "How nice to see you! And if you'd come two minutes later you'd have missed me! I was just going down town to take some cards to my father."

John Lawler came into the hall. "Glad I didn't miss you," he said shortly and awkwardly. "Put your things on . . . I'll take you down to your dad's store. Glad to."

John Lawler was the "catch" of the little suburban town. He was 23, just starting work in his father's bank, and very good looking in a blonde lanky sort of way.

"Saw you in the bank, today, didn't I, Mr. Macy?"

A good-looking man can attract almost any girl that he wants to attract.

A man with plenty of money can attract nine girls out of 10.

Young John Lawler, with both money and good looks, knew deep down in his bachelor heart that he could have his pick of the girls in town — with one exception.

That one exception was Ann Marie Macy.

He never had been able to get far with her, and he did not know why. He had been coming here to the old brown shingle house to call on her once or twice a week for the past year.

But so far he had never been able to screw up enough courage to even try to kiss her, although he wanted to every time he laid eyes on her.

So far he had not even dared to slip his arm along the back of the seat of his car when she went driving with him, although he had made love to every other girl who ever had gone for a drive in it with him.

And when he was with her he was always awkward and nervous and ill at ease.

He shifted from one foot to the other now as he stood looking down at her, and he fidgeted with the gray felt hat that he was holding in his hands.

Ann Marie smiled up at him — a lovely smile that crinkled up the corners of her blue, blue eyes and made deep dimples in her cheeks. Ann Marie was prettier than most girls, but when she smiled she was a dream!

"I'll run upstairs and get the cards, Johnny," she said. Her voice was sweet and soft and a little bit husky. "I won't be two minutes. There's a fire in the grate in the sitting room. Go in and warm yourself. This hall's always as cold as a tomb."

She gave him a little shove towards the door of the sitting room and ran up the stairs.

When she came running down once more, in a little close-fitting hat and blue cape, he was still standing where she had left him under the hall lamp with its ruby-red shade. He was still fidgeting with his hat.

"Party tomorrow night at the Country club, Ann Marie," he said, grinning at her. His gray eyes were very friendly and eager. "Go with me?"

"Crazy about it," answered Ann Marie promptly. She loved a party. All of it—from the moment she began to dress for it in her only evening gown and her silver slippers to the moment when she came quietly into the house at midnight on tired and aching feet. "Only I haven't a single thing to wear but that old yellow dress of mine. Care?"

He held the door open for her. "Of course I don't care what you wear, Ann Marie. Anything you wear is—all right."

What he was thinking and what he wanted to say was that she was a raving beauty no matter what she wore . . . But he couldn't say it to her any more than he could take her into his arms when he wanted to.

He stood, flushed and silent and awkward, while she passed him and stepped out upon the porch.

A thin cold rain had begun to fall and the glow of the headlights on John's roadster was reflected in the wet gleaming pavement.

"I love rain coming down and lights shining in the dark!" Ann Marie declared, hopping into the car. "Some time I'm going to paint a real picture—and it's going to be roofs all covered with rain, and a dark gray sky. Twilight, you know . . . Don't you love rain, John?"

"Sure I love it." He tucked the fur robe around Ann Marie's knees. "Sure—I'm crazy about anything that you're crazy about."

That was as near as he had ever come to telling her that he was in love with her. He laughed nervously after he had said it.

"How are you going to find time to paint pictures, Ann Marie?" he said a few seconds later when they were turning into Front street. "You know what I mean?—You'll get married like all girls and you won't have any time for painting pictures, will you. I know my mother is always saying she can't find time to do half the things she wants to do. If a woman keeps house and has children and goes out with her husband sometimes in in the evening—"

He stopped talking suddenly as if his brain had stopped working at that point. And Ann Marie was too surprised to ask him to go on with what he had started to say.

For he never had talked to her in this way before. He never had said much of anything serious or important to her before. All of his talk had been about football games he had seen during his four years at college or about some new dance music that he had heard lately or about a travel book that he had been reading.

Neither of them spoke until the roadster slowed down and stopped at the curb outside Mr. Macy's book store on Front street near Garden court.

Then Ann Marie answered one of the questions he had just asked her.

"I don't intend to get married, Johnny," she said slowly. He was helping her out of the car, and she stood on the step a few inches above the sidewalk. Her eyes were on a level with his eyes. "I'm going to study painting until I know just about everything there is to know about it—and then I'm going to paint pictures, myself. You watch me!"

"Oh, I'll watch you all right," he told her, "I'm all eyes where you're concerned, Ann Marie."

He was. He never looked at anyone else—or at anything else—when she was around. His eyes were full of a sort of sick longing now as he followed her into her father's store.

Mr. Macy was a small gray man. His thin hair was gray and so was his wisp of a mustache. His eyes were blue-gray and very meek and mild behind his horn-rimmed spectacles. His shiny suit was gray. His necktie was cheap flimsy gray-and-black silk.

But his shop was as gay and bright-colored as it could be. It was lined with shelf after shelf of books in their brilliant bindings. Every light was covered with an orange-colored silk shade that had been made by the nimble fingers of his daughter, Ann Marie. The chairs had been painted a cheerful orange color, and there was a row of potted plants in the back window.

When Ann Marie and John Lawler opened the door of the shop he was standing behind the table where Christmas cards were on sale, counting them and stacking them in neat piles.

"Here are the odes you asked me for this noon," Ann Marie told him, and she laid a square white package down on the table in front of him. "Just a hundred of them, 'Dad."

Mr. Macy nodded.

He was peering over the top of his glasses at John Lawler. He came around the table and held out his hand to him.

"How d'you do sir?" he asked, and John shook hands with him.

"Fine—How are you, sir?" he asked. He was very brisk and hearty now—very much the young man of the world. "Saw you in the bank today, didn't I, Mr. Macy?"

Ann Marie's father seemed to become even smaller than he actually was. He gave a nervous little cough.

"Oh, yes! yes, indeed!" He answered almost too quickly. "Yes, I dropped in at the bank to see your father about—about a loan. A small loan . . . Yes, indeed!"

He rubbed his hands together as he talked. He was still beaming at John from behind his glasses, but there was something pleading in his look—something pathetic in his politeness towards the younger man.

TRUCK DRIVER HELD IN CRASH

Three Negroes Injured in Highway Collision

Charges of aggravated assault with a motor vehicle were filed in the county court-at-law Monday afternoon against Estell Teafateller of Iowa Park, in connection with an automobile collision which seriously injured three negroes Monday morning. Teafateller was later released under a $500 bond.

G. C. Casey, his wife, Connie Casey, and their infant daughter, Ruth, were rushed to the Wichita General hospital where the baby was reported to have suffered a fractured skull. It's condition is critical. Five other negroes were in the car which was knocked off the Iowa Park road by the force of the collision with a truck driven by Teafateller. The defendant told Wayne Somerville, county attorney who investigated the case, that his wheels had become locked and that the truck was out of control when the car load of negroes, bound for the cotton patch, attempted to pass him. Both cars turned over, the truck on top of the Ford touring car driven by Casey.

The weasel is a pure killer, destroying more animals than it can consume.
