TRAIN CRASH KILLS TWO WICHITANS

Zeppelin Passes Bermuda And Will Reach Lakehurst Today

CROWDS WAIT IN VAIN FOR SIGHT OF SHIP

American Naval Officer Aboard Craft Sends First Word

SILENCE CAUSES STIR

Lakehurst Officials Are Displeased With Failure of Communication

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14 (US)—At 11:30 o'clock tonight the navy department received the following bulletin from the Graf Zeppelin:

"Position 150 miles west of Bermuda, course northwest to Hatteras; time 11:20 plus five."

WASHINTON, Oct. 14.—A bulletin received by the navy department here at 10 o'clock tonight from Commander Rosendahl aboard the Graf Zeppelin stated the dirigible was 25 miles west of Bermuda.

The message added the air liner was heading on a northwesterly course, and was proceeding satisfactorily despite the reduced speed.

The exact time aboard ship was given in the message in naval code. It was in answer to one of the queries sent out by naval auhorities at Lakehurst this afternoon, inquiring as to the exact location of the Graf Zeppelin so that preparations might be made for her reception.

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Oct. 14. (US)—The Graf Zeppelin passed Bermuda at 6:40 o'clock this evening (5:40 eastern standard time). The weather was dark and cloudy, and there was an 18-mile-an-hour wind working against the zeppelin. The barometer also was falling.

The giant air liner took its direc-

ONE FATALITY

NAVAL AIR STATION, Lakehurst, N. J., Oct. 14 (US)—The heart of Mrs. Mary Muller, 77, of Brooklyn, palpitated too much as she spent a weary day around Lakehurst in anticipation of greeting the Graf Zeppelin and she died from heart disease on the field at 5 o'clock this afternoon.

Lieutenant Commander L. E. Muller, station surgeon, pronounced her dead, after her son and friends had rushed her to the station dispensary. She was suddenly seized by a heart attack in the midst of an animated discussion of the Graf Zeppelin's chances of reaching Lakehurst tonight.

70 Held by Dallas Cops In Roundup of Burglars

DALLAS, Oct. 14. (AP)—Police today were holding 70 persons in a roundup to stop housebreaking, but reports of Saturday night activities showed burglars made off with $130 in cash, several watches, clothes and other articles. Fifty of those held were taken in custody during the week-end.

Burglaries were numerous during the first week of the state fair.

FIREMAN HURT FIGHTING BLAZE

Ernest Habern Suffers Broken Arm

Ernest (Bill) Habern, fireman at the Giddings street fire station, suffered a fractured arm Sunday evening when he fell while fighting a fire that practically destroyed a house at 1319 Britain street. The property was owned by L. E. Cowling and company. The value of the house was placed at $4,500.

Cause of the fire was unknown.

Habern has been on the fire department only a short time and last year was the star tackle of the Wichita Falls high school Coyotes. He represents the third generation of his family now in the fire fighting service here. His father is Grover Habern, first assistant chief, and his grandfather is Chief J. L. McClure.

The injured man was taken to the Wichita Falls Clinic hospital by his father and grandfather where his injuries were treated. He was pulling a piece of fire hose from the wagon when he slipped to the pavement, breaking his arm.

Neighbors and firemen succeeded in getting almost all the furniture out of the house. Neither Miss Thelma Swain nor Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Ripple, who live in the other side of the house, were at home when the blaze broke out.

The fire started in a closet on the first floor and quickly spread to the roof. It had gained considerable headway when the firemen arrived due to the fact that the alarm was first turned in for 1401 Taylor street, some distance away. Other fire equipment was rushed to the fire when another alarm was turned in for the right address.

SMITH FACES BUSY WEEK IN FARM DISTRICT

Democratic Leader Takes Fight Into Midwest States Again

VISITS LINCOLN HOME

Congratulations Swamping Nominee After Talk on Tariff Issue

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 14 (AP).—The third from the last week of the campaign will find Governor Smith preaching a Democratic gospel in the farm and border states of the midwest.

Leaving tonight from this city where in his one-speech drive in Kentucky he laid down a nine-point prescription on the tariff, the Democratic standard bearer tomorrow will go into Missouri and from that state turn eastward over a route that will carry him through Illinois, Indiana and Ohio.

Sees Lincoln's Home

Before departing from Kentucky soil, Smith journeyed 60 miles from here to Hodgenville, where Abraham Lincoln spent a part of his early boyhood days. The governor made the trip to that city on his special train and then returned here for a few hours. His schedule called for departure from here about midnight for St. Louis, the first stop in Missouri.

Word has been received that elabgrate preparations have been made in the Missouri city for his reception.

From St. Louis the Democratic nominee will move on to Sedalia where Tuesday night he will deliver the only formal address to be made in that state. He will remain in Sedalia until Wednesday morning before departing for Chicago.

Short Stops Planned

The trip to Chicago will be by way of Springfield and Bloomington, where 10 and 15 minute stops have been arranged. His train is due in Chicago Wednesday night. The schedule calls for Smith to remain there until Saturday morning before departing for Albany by way of Indiana and Ohio. No speeches have been listed on this return

STARVATION

Zepp Passengers May Be Forced to Live on Champagne

BERLIN, Oct. 14. (AP)—Unless the Graf Zeppelin reaches Lakehurst by 6 a. m. eastern standard time, it is probable that the 60 persons it carries will have to subsist on champagne and caviar. While Dr. Eckener carried fuel sufficient for 120 hours of flying it is though that his commissary department calculated on only 100 hours at most.

Food rations for the trip had been carefully estimated on the basis of 7¾ pounds of balanced food for each person for 100 hours. The drinking water supply, carried in the form of ice to be melted as needed, had also been carefully restricted to keep down the total load of the airship.

LABOR PARTY HERE TONIGHT

Elaborate Program Is Arranged for Meeting

An elaborate program will be presented at 8 o'clock Monday night in conjunction with a public meeting to be held in the Labor temple. More than 4,000 persons are expected to attend.

The purpose of the meeting is to promote a better understanding between the public and labor. William Archer, chairman of the Labor Forward committee, and P. B. Roberts will be in charge of the program.

Fifty-seven entertainers will participate in the program and loud speakers will be installed outside the temple in order that overflow crowds may hear the proceedings. The entire program will be broadcast by remote control over station KGKO.

The program will open with a 15-minute concert by the municipal band and the invocation will be delivered by Rev. Floyd Allan Bash, pastor of First Christian church. Features will include a solo by Miss Modena Howell, music by Pippen's Pipers, solos by W. D. McFarlane, selections by the First Methodist church male quartet, address, "Labor's Ideals and Accomplishments," George Slater, executive secretary of the Texas Federation of labor; musical recitation, Mrs. Hermoine Stewart Vaughan; address, "Labor in the Church," Dr. Nat F. HOOVER TURNS TO BOSTON TO WIN EAST'S VOTE

G. O. P. Candidate to Speak In Hub City as First Talk in State

BAY STATE DOUBTFUL

Democrats Claim Massachusetts but G. O. P. Has High Hopes

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14 (AP).—Herbert Hoover turned tonight toward the debatable political territory of Massachusetts to strike another blow in his presidential candidacy

The Bay state, whose electoral vote Democratic leaders have claimed and over the disposition of which Republicans have been frankly concerned, will see the Republican nominee tomorrow in a campaign swing that will carry him across the breadth of the state to Boston for a series of conferences and a speech.

The trip called for an arduous itinerary with many events crowded into a single day. It will find him talking more, however, than he has on eieher of the two previous political pilgrimages to Newark and Elizabethton.

Through Eight States

Five speeches, including his major address at Boston tomorrow night, will be jammed into the day of whirlwind campaigning. Although his journey will take him into eight states, including Massachusetts, activities of the candidate will be confined to the Bay state.

Hoover's visit to New England will give him an opportunity to lay before the people of the industrial east his views of the protective tariff policy of the Republican party. He also will touch on foreign trade and the merchant marine.

Frequent political rumblings have been heard from Massachusetts since early days of the campaign and many of the Republican leaders have felt that the normally Republican state at present may be classed in the doubtful column.

Confidence in Industries

Some confidence has been placed by party chieftains in the contention that the New England industries need the protection of a Republican tariff.

Leaving Washington tonight on a special train, Hoover will pass through Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania, New York and Connecticut during the night, making his first appearance on the platform at Springfield, Mass., at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow morning. During a 15-minute stop there he will make a brief talk; the second halt of his train will come an hour and a half later when he arrives at Worcester, and the third shortly afterward at Newtonville where he will detrain for an automobile ride of an hour and a half to Boston common. At both Worcester and Newtonville he wil give brief talks.

Guest of Fuller

He will spend the afternoon at the home of Governor Fuller, where he will be visited by members of the Republican Service Men's league and representatives of Citizens of Foreign Birth.

Hoover did not vary his Sabbath routine today, worshipping as usual at the Friends meeting house in the morning and leaving his home in the afternoon only for a short automobile ride and for the last minute trip to the station to board his train.

Deaths From Auto Accidents Increase

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14. (US)—Deaths from automobile accidents in 77 selected cities numbered 622 for the four weeks eneded Oct. 6, compared to only 362 for the same period last year, the commerce department announced today.

Three large cities, reported no deaths for the four weeks period. They were Memphis, Tenn., Kansas City, Kan., and Somerville, Mass. Other cities reported as follows: New York 90; Chicago 66; Los Angeles 20; San Francisco 5; Washington 6; Fort Worth 5; Milwaukee 13; Omaha 2; Seattle 5.

Vote Registrations in New York Set Record

NEW YORK, Oct. 14. (US)—Two million, twenty three thousand, six hundred and fifty-four men and women in greater New York have signified their purpose to vote Nov. 6.

Negro Suspected of Assault on Elm Grove Woman Held Prisoner

Wounded Man Taken to Temple After Gainesville Sheriff Follows Trail to Houston

TEMPLE, Texas, Oct. 14. (AP)—Successful after nearly a week's trailing of his quarry, Sheriff Jake Wright accompanied by Cooke county deputies, left here today with a young negro believed to have attacked and beaten Mrs. A. R. Hassenpflug near Gainesville Monday.

Wright, after trailing the suspect through Fort Worth and other places, located the negro in Houston yesterday. He was brought here by train. Cooke county deputies met the sheriff here and the prisoner, shackled, was put in an automobile for removal to a North Texas jail. It is believed the party is en route to Fort Worth and that they will leave the negro there for safe keeping. The negro bore wounds corresponding to those Mrs. Hassenpflug said her assailant received when he hit her over the head with a fruit jar, and cotton scales. The negro suspected of the assault stopped at a Fort Worth hospital to have the wounds treated, saying he received the injury in a fight with another negro. Stitches taken on the wound at Fort Worth are said to resemble those on the suspect. Other evidence includes scars described by

COURTS HALT STAR'S WEDDING

New Yorker Gets Divorce To Wed Anita Stewart

RENO, Nev., Oct. 14. (AP)—George P. Converse, member of a wealthy New York family, was free today to marry Anita Stewart, motion picture star, to whom he said he was engaged yesterday after Mrs. Oliva Converse of Santa Barbara obtained a quick divorce here.

But Miss Stewart's status was incumbered by the California courts, which granted her an interlocutory decree of divorce in Los Angeles several months ago from Rudolph Cameron. That decree does not become final until July 4, 1929.

Converse, grandson of the late Edmund Cogswell Converse, organizer of the Bankers Trust company of New York and a former president of the United States Steel corporation, filed the suit for divorce yesterday, but a quick cross complaint from his wife won her the decree.

Miss Stewart was not mentioned in the cross complaint which alleged that Converse spent much of his time in Hollywood and that he had been seen there in company with another woman.

Mrs. Converse also worried because her husband was an aviation addict, she said.

An added cause for grief, the complaint said, was the manner in which he humiliated her by "pretending to go to sleep during a community play at Santa Barbara."

'Missing' Candidate of Communists in Houston

HOUSTON, Oct. 14. (AP)—Benjamin Gitlow, vice-presidential candidate of the Workers' (Communist) party of America, arrived in Houston late today for his scheduled address and denied that he had been "missing."

Gitlow told local Communist leaders that he had stopped over in San Diego after he had received a telegram bearing the signature of the Arizona gubernatorial candidate saying that Gitlow's speaking dates in that state had been cancelled.

NEGRO KILLED

DALLAS, Oct. 14. (AP)—Hosey Hall was shot and killed during an altercation here early today. John Brown surrendered. Both are negroes.

AUTO HIT BY DENVER TRAIN NEAR JOLLY

L. E. Riley and Mrs. Lucy Camp Instantly Killed Car Is Wrecked

TWO TRAINS AT ROAD

Light Vehicle Carried 150 Feet as Engineer Applies Brakes

L. E. Riley, 43, 2414 Fillmore street, and Mrs. Lucy H. Camp, about 40, of 705 Eleventh street, were instantly killed about 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon when the car in which they were riding was struck by a southbound Fort Worth and Denver passenger train at a crossing near Jolly, 14 miles southeast of Wichita Falls.

The confusing arrival of two trains at the road crossing within a few minutes of each other was thought by witnesses to be partly responsible for the crash. Riley and his companion, who presumably were traveling south, had just seen a Katy passenger train cross the road in front of him, and apparently was not aware of the approach of the Fort Worth and Denver train on a parallel track a short distances away, witnesses said.

Whistle Sounded

The car was hurled about 150 feet at the impact of the crash, and both victims were dead when reached. Robert Rogers, youth employed at a filling station near where the crash occurred, reported to Clay county officials later that the accident was unavoidable. The driver of the car, he said, apparently didn't see the second train. The engineer of the train, he continued, had blown a warning whistle at the regular whistling post, and on noticing that the car did not stop, gave two more piercing blasts. At the third whistle, Rogers said, the the engineer applied all his brakes, and put the locomotive in reverse, causing the wheels to spon backwards, in an effort to avoid a collision.

Rogers and the engineer gave their accounts of the crash at an inquest held before County Judge J. P. Williams at Henrietta. A verdict of unavoidable accidental death was returned after the hearing.

Wichita Falls police, who rushed to Henrietta upon learning of the accident, were at first unable to identify either of the victims. When the bodies were brought to the Moore Undertaking parlors at Henrietta, however, letters were found in the man's pocket which served for identification. Relatives in Wichita Falls were notified, and Mrs. Riley and her eldest son, J. W. Riley, arrived and positively identified the body.

Neither of the bodies was badly

Hickman's Attorneys Make Plans for Last Effort to Save Slayer's Life

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 14. (US)—Attorneys for William Edward Hickman today were reported planning a new move to save the slayer of little Marion Parker from the gallows at San Quentin next Friday.

Attorney Richard Cantillon refused to discuss the reported plan beyond saying he would leave tomorrow for Sacramento to confer with Jerome Walsh of Kansas City, chief counsel for Hickman.

Walsh is due in Sacramento today for an appointment with Gov. C. C. Young. The state's chief executive already has declared against granting clemency to Hickman.

Cantillon and Walsh are expected to confer following the appointment with Gov. Young. At this conference it is expected that final steps will be taken in an attempt to save Hickman from death.

The parents of the condemned slayer, Mrs. Eva Hickman of Kansas City and Thomas Hickman of El Paso, are on their way to California. It is believed they will go to Sacramento to be present at the conference of attorneys.

It is expected they will visit their son at San Quentin on Wednesday. Both have declared they have abandoned hope, and have said that their journey is for the purpose of bidding their son a last farewell.

Two Women Prisoners Escape Texas Prison When Others Attend Movie

HUNTSVILLE, Oct. 14. (AP)—Two women prisoners escaped from Goree state prison farm near here last night. The prisoners had been left in the women's building while the others attended a picture show at the farm. Bars over their windows were cut and the two lowered themselves to the ground with a rope made of blankets. Their absence was noted about 1 o'clock this morning, and a posse started pursuit.

Those escaping were Pauline Fowler, Tarrant county, theft, two years, and Florence Phelps, Donley county, burglary, two years. Both had escaped once before.

Richard Johnson, negro escaped from the state penitentiary Saturday. Bloodhounds trailed him ten miles but he caught a horse near Dodge and got away. He was under 35 year sentence from Dallas county for burglary.

NEW CREAMERY FOR HEREFORD

New Pasteurization Plant Is Sought

Special to The Record News.

HEREFORD, Oct. 14.- Hereford is to have a new dairy industry, and milk users in the city are to be furnished with pasteurized milk, if plans now under way materialize.

Arrangements have been made for the machinery, a location secured, and all preliminary steps taken, according to O. L. Rutherford, prominent Hereford dairyman. Associated in this business with Mr. Rutherford, will be H. P. Sindt, recently of Amarillo, and formerly of Iowa, where for a number of years Mr. Sindt was engaged in various phases of dairy work and development.

"We want to be able to furnish the residents of Hereford with just the same brand milk that is being received by the consumers in the larger towns and cities," said Mr. Rutherford, "and if the city government passes the standard milk ordinance, which is advocated by the state board of health, we will start work immediately upon the pasteurization plant."

The ordinance referred to by Mr. Rutherford is one that is being passed by practically all incorporated towns today, and is not only a protection to the user of milk, but to the dairyman as well.

This movement is an outgrowth of the dairy development being undertaken the past few weeks by the chamber of commerce, and dairymen of Deaf Smith county.

The locating of the pasteurization plant at Hereford will in no way affect the proposed creamery which is to be located in this city.

Secretary Arnold announces that a joint night meeting of dairy men and leading citizens of Hereford is being arranged, at which definite announcement will be made as to the creamery. In all probability a committee will visit various West Texas cities inspecting creameries now in operation.

The locating of the pasteurizing plant in Hereford will mean a big step forward in the progress of dairying in Deaf Smith county.

Smith County Has Demo Headquarters

TYLER, Texas, Oct. 14. (INS)—Leasing of office space in the Bell building has been announced by the Smith county Democratic campaign committee. A secretary whose entire time will be devoted to headquarters office will be selected.

R. W. Hamilton, chairman of the county executive committee declared that "a militant and energetic campaign" will be conducted. "We will have speakers go into every community in this county and a campaign such as the county has not seen such reconstruction days will be launched," he said.

"The facts of the campaign, the studied effort of the Republican administration and especially of Secretaries Jardine and Hoover to keep down the prices of agricultural products, will be fully presented to the people," Hamilton declared.

S. S. McClendon, of Tyler, has been named county director of finance by John Henry Kirby, of Houston.

Wellington Farmers Invited To Luncheon

Special to The Record News.

WELLINGTON, Texas, Oct. 14. Fifteen of the more prominent farmers of Collingsworth county wil be invited guests as a chamber of commecre luncheon which will be held here Wednesday, Oct. 17, honoring Andy Bourland, president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce and Homer D. Wade, manager, who will be in Wellington at this time. Jim Biggs panhandle representative of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, will also be here.

S. R. Pinkston, president of the Wellington Chamber of Commerce, has announced that the luncheon will be styled a "cow-sow-hen" banquet and that diversified farming will be the major topic of discussion.

RACKETS MAY RUIN BUSINESS

10 More Years of Outlawry To Cost $100,000,000

CHICAGO, Oct. 14 (US)—Ten years more of present racketeering conditions will mean an annual loss of $100,000,000 in trade and the removal of 500,000 people, Joseph Nelson, of the Employers' association today told the Adventurers' club.

"Chicago business is slowly but surely committing suicide," Mr. Nelson said. "Business losses today due to 'rackets' run into millions. Unless business men stop pandering and working with the underworld characters to drive out competition, business faces a great disaster.

"The racketeering game is spreading. It is only a step now to the bombing of banks, skyscrapers and even police stations. With 81 bombings this year to date, of which 42 were during the last three months—we face an industrial whirlwind that will mean a greater calamity than we dream of."

Mullen's Maids to Open 'Tab' Season

Mullen's Musical Maids will formally open their winter season of musical tabloid shows at the Mission theater Saturday, it was announced Sunday by Charley Moorehead, manager of the Mission theater.

"We are opening with this company as it proved on its last engagement to be about the most popular musical show we have ever had in the theater," said Mr. Moorehead.

"Benny 'Rabbit' Reed is one of the most popular of all musical show actors we have presented, and the company supporting him contains many new faces.

"Jack 'Snitz' Leroy, the Paramount quartet, Miss Polly Wiggins and a company of 14 people will do their best to please Wichita Falls even more this engagement than they did before."

"The Schemers" is the name of the opening show which will be given in addition to the motion picture program which has been presented during the summer months.

Airplane Output of U. S. For 1928 to Reach 15,000

NEW YORK, Oct. 14 (AP).—The total airplane output for 1928 will reach 15,000 machines, it was estimated today, as compared with a production of 5,000 in the United States last year. Unfilled orders are expected to keep most of the plants in full production well over the balance of the year.

FIRE RATE LOWERED

NACONA, Texas, Oct. 14. (AP)—Nacona's fire insurance key rate has been lowered 11 cents through the purchase of a fire truck bought by Chief C. E. Collins at a cost of $6750.

Total Texas Cotton Production May Hit Happy Middle Ground

DALLAS, Oct. 14.—Unquestionable deterioration in the cotton crop during the past five weeks has taken place, according to reports compiled by the department of public relations of the Southland Life Insurance company.

In this queerest of all cotton seasons, including times at which no two people agree as to the outlook, general opinion has centered in the belief that the cotton crop will neither be too small to assure prosperity to the state as a whole, nor too large to make possible the securing of a fair price for the product.

Reports received in the last five weeks indicate, without reservation, that rapid deterioration is going on and very probably will continue. This shrinkage of the crop is, of course, due to various reasons—root rot, weevils, hot and dry weather, boll worms, and even slight damage by frost. As far as the general outlook is concerned however, two factors must be taken into consideration. One of these is the noticeable improvement in the quality of cotton produced this year, especially in north and northeast Texas, and the other fact that acreage this year appears to be producing an unusually large amount of cotton despite deterioration.

Other aspects of Texas' chance for prosperity this fall are extremely bright. The grain crops have been unusually large and profitable; the cattle industry in the extreme western part of Texas is more nearly on its feet than it has been since the war, and sections which have suffered most from near crop failures during the past two years appear to have been the most fortunate this season.

Noticeable spots on the crop map for this month are Dallam, Potter, Randall and Deaf Smith counties in the Panhandle where he biggest grain crop in history is reported; in the Rio Grande valley which is producing a 100 per cent vegetable crop and the gulf counties around Corpus Christi, where weather conditions appear to be extremely favorable for next season.

Any business map of Texas at the present time would be a spotted affair, ranging from almost hopeless outlook to the brightest of prospects. In the main, however, farmers, city folk and business itself believe conditions better than average.

Drug Chain Formed To Operate in South

NEW YORK, Oct. 14 (AP).—Lane Drug Stores, incorporated in Delaware, has been formed to organize and operate a drug store chain in the south, it was announced today. The company will take over 29 stores in Atlanta, 16 in Jacksonville and 11 in Knoxville as the first unit of its organization.

VELVET WINS WIDE APPROVAL

At Least Three Costumes of Velvet Necessary

By PEARL GROSS

NEW YORK, Oct. 14. (US)—Everything's velvet!

Which does the American woman prefer—transparent velvet or satin? These popular winter materials are waging a private war in the fashion world right now, much to the bewilderment of clothing manufacturers here.

On Fifth Avenue, our Rue de la Paix, there's a "crush" on velvet. So far, it's been velvet for tea, dinner and dance wear the Parisian couturiers making frenzied pleas to madame to cast her eyes upon satin, s'il vous plais?

One sunny day this week, a coterie of debutantes appeared at the Ritz for tea. They were, you might say, wrapped in soft, shimmering transparent velvet. There is no doubt that no feminine wardrobe is complete without at least three velvet costumes.

Smart Costume

At the aforementioned Ritz hour, the smartest costume was a black and white velvet ensemble. This comprised a black velvet frock cut severely "tailleur." The Vionnet neckline finished in a soft, crushed bow stitched flat to the front of the dress. Long tight sleeves and a slim silhouette without any variability in line except a slight blousiness at the back, gave this gown an indistinguishable air of elegance.

This debbie wore a draped black turban to match her gown. Her accessories consisted of white pearl earrings, necklace and bracelets. Most fetching of all were her white velvet handbag, white gloves and black velvet pumps stitched with white threads. She was a veritable study in black and white which drew all eyes.

Transparent Velvet

For street wear, transparent velvet is adaptable in two piece suit effects. An unusual creation glimpsed along Park avenue was a navy blue suit edged with gros-grain ribbon. The short loose-fitting jacket disclosed just a hint of the beige satin blouse underneath. Purse, shoes and gloves were of dark brown leather.

There's also something new in hats this season.

Velvet ensembles do not take kindly to felts. The more becoming velvet turban must necessarily match the most important color note of your costume.

Have you wondered now those bewitchingly oriental turbans are made to fit so tightly? It's a trick.

As a matter of fact, it isn't a hat at all. Simply a piece of velvet material cut kerchief-wise. Three quarters of a yard suffices and you wrap the velvet around your head snugly like a bandanna-bathing cap.

"Cheap" Hat

Clasp the ends of the bandanna at an appropriate place front or back, with a jewelled pin. And, presto, here's your hat!

It sounds rather cheap but it isn't. Rest assured this "hat" will cost from $10 to $20, depending on the quality of the transparent velvet purchased. Then the little item of a stone-studded pin can cost as much as you choose.

The velvet evening gown must be first, simple and second, draped at the hip. Trimmings such as sequins, embroidery or fussy ribbon is absolutely passe.

All skirts, whether for day or evening wear, ripple and flare just about an inch below milady's knees.

Oklahomans Plan Drainage Project

Special to The Record News.

GRANDFIELD, Okla., Oct. 14.—Considerable interest is being manifested in the Grandfield drainage project by landowners in the Hackberry Flat community. Men from that section are contemplating a project similar to the Deep Red project.

If the present plans materialize, this will be the second attempt for the community adjoining Grandfield on the west to get the drainage ditch through their section.

Once, several years ago, a project was proposed, viewers appointed and a report made but failure of the viewers to sign their report, it is said, caused the court to stop further action in that manner. Since that time little attention has been paid to the projects.

Lately however, farmers come to see the real value in drainage, and if present plans are carried out, a ditch will be advocated to carry off all surface water from the Hackberry Flats to the river on the south. This will give an added value to the valuable cotton land in that community. That community has a very inadequate drainage system and water stands on the farms longer than it should.

5,000 Pounds of Pecans Marketed at Coleman

Special to The Record News.

COLEMAN, Texas, Ocat. 14.—Approximately 5,000 pounds of Coleman county's pecan crop has been marketed to date, local buyers estimated. The nuts sold at from eight to 10 cents per pound.

Due to the late freezes last spring the pecan crop in this county will be only about 70 per cent normal, according to Elmo V. Cook, vocational agriculture agent here. The Coleman section of the Colorado river bottom will yield about 100,000 pounds it was said. In 1926, six carloads, or 180,000 pounds were shipped out of this city, while seven carloads were shipped from here in 1925. The pecan crop in 1927 was very light.

FAIR PLANNED

Special to The Record News.

COLEMAN, Texas, Oct. 14.—The Live Oak community fair will be held Nov. 3, according to a decision made by the executive committee recently. Miss Gertrude Brent, Coleman county home demonstration agent will superintend the exposition. Live Oak is located 15 miles southeast of this city.

Relief from Gas Stomach Pains Dizziness

The doctors tell us that 90 per cent of all sickness is due to stomach and bowel troubles. You can't be well if your digestion is bad; you are likely to get sick unless you relish food and digest it properly.

Tanlac has a wonderful record as a relief from digestive troubles, even those of years' standing.

Mr. James F. Campbell, of 1012 W. Fifth St., Little Rock, Ark., says: "I had bloating after eating. My rheumatism was so bad I could hardly raise my arms. Now I can eat anything and do a good day's work."

If you suffer from gas, pains in the stomach or bowels, dizziness, nausea, constipation or torpid liver; if you have no appetite, can't sleep and are nervous and all run down, you need Tanlac. It is good, pure medicine, made of roots, herbs and barks. Get a bottle from your druggist today. Money back if it doesn't help you.

3 BIG JOBS for an active Organization

Providing Electric Power

New electrical equipment is added in homes, offices, stores and factories each day. New homes and factories are built, new stores and offices are opened, all demanding more electric service. It is a big job for electric power companies to keep up with this increasing need.

Meeting Constant Changes

Changes in the methods of making and distributing electric power take place over night. Good equipment of yesterday will be obsolete tomorrow---something newer and better takes its place. These changes call for continual study on the part of power and light engineers.

Planning for Greater Needs

Power plants built to serve the needs of today will not be equal to tomorrow's demands. Construction of today must be planned so that instant and unlimited increases in electric power can be made when needed. Cities must have this type of electric service or they can not grow greatly.

The Texas Electric Service Company does these three big jobs in a manner unexcelled in any section of the country. This Company's service can not be equalled by an isolated power plant.

Old Age Is Lonely for Women Who Spend Youth Caring for Children

The Trouble With Life Is That It So Often Demands the Impossible of Us, So That a Woman Whose Entire Youth Has Been Absorbed in Her Children Is Supposed to Have Friends and Outside Interests in Her Age.

A mother asks these questions: "What is a woman with a young family going to do when they grow up and leave her without her job?

"Her whole time is of necessity occupied in their up-bringing. What opportunity has she of preparing for the future when she will be left alone?

"How can she take up another career when for so many years her world has been bounded by her home?

"How can she avoid becoming a nuisance to her children when they get homes of their own?

"How can she cultivate a hobby when her family has absorbed her for so long that she has ceased to have any hobby except her family?

"Is not the childless woman better off, because she has no one to leave her?"

The trouble with life is that it so often demands the impossible of us, and never more so than in a case such as this is. The poor woman who has a house full of children whom she must nurse and tend and feed and bathe and dress with her own hands has no time in which to do anything else. There is not a minute of the day in which she is not washing dirty little faces, or cutting bread and butter, or hustling children off to school, or patching, or mending, or sewing, or answering the eternal cry of "Mo-o-o-other."

Because she has to concentrate every thought and energy on getting her day's work done and because she has to give every bit of intelligence she has to making one dollar do the work of five, and because she has neither the time nor the money for outside indulgences and diversions, such a woman's children come to fill her whole universe. They become an obsession with her. She has no thought nor interest outside of them, and when they grow up and go about the business of life on their own account, she is left destitute, not only with empty hands but with a life that is empty of interests and purpose.

And, as my correspondent says, such women do become nuisances to their children, for they make up the legions of mothers-in-laws who wreck the peace and happiness of so many homes, and are the causes of so much estrangement between husbands and wives, and the first aid to so many divorces.

It is indisputable that the presence of any third party in a household is a menace to its well-being. No matter how good and kind a mother-in-law may be, no matter how tactful, no matter how heroically she bites back the advice and suggestions that are ever on the tip of her tongue, and refrains from interfering, she cannot help but come between the husband and wife and break up their intimacy.

There are little, foolish endearments that they cannot bestow upon each other with mother looking on. There are subjects that they do not care to discuss in mother's presence, and the moment of confidence passes. So they grow apart instead of together, as they might have done if they had been alone together.

Every woman who honestly faces the situation recognizes the fact that she does not add to her married children's happiness by going to live with them. Often she sees that she is the source of endless friction and bickering. Always she knows that no matter how much her children love her, or how willing they are to do their duty by her, they would rather be alone with their husbands and wives.

They would be happier if mother was not always present at every meal, if mother wasn't always occupying the back seat every time they went riding, if mother didn't have to be dragged along every time they went to the theater, or to the movies, or a concert, or a ball game.

And this isn't any reflection upon mother, or the children, or her in-laws. It is just that the ideal of married life is the solitude of two, as the French say, that all husbands and wives who love each other like to be alone in their home and go off on little sprees alone. Mother felt exactly that way herself when she was young.

Yet, knowing this, it is the common custom of women who are widows to break up their homes when their children marry and go to live with them. Sometimes this is a financial necessity, but oftener the woman is still young enough to support herself and be independent, or she has money enough to live upon comfortably, but she has so absorbed herself in her children that she has no existence apart from them.

The world is only interesting to her because of the part her children play in it. The whole automobile industry exists that John might buy a flivver. Millions of dollars are spent on making a motion picture that Mary may see it. Johnny's stubbing his toe is a greater tragedy than a world war.

So mother becomes a parasite upon her children and she is miserable and they are miserable. Because she has given them her life, she demands their lives in payment of the debt.

How this tragedy is to be helped, I do not know. It is easy to point out to a woman how foolish it is to absorb herself in her children to the exclusion of every other interest, but who is wise to regulate love or school the heart to prudence? It is easy enough to tell a woman that she knows her children are bound in due season to leave the home nest, and that she should lay up friendships and social connections and fads and hobbies with which to fill her life when they are gone. But how is the woman whose every waking hour is given to the service of her family to do this?

And yet somehow it must be done, and somehow many women do it.

But, even so, the lonely mother whose children have left her is far better off than the woman who has never had any children, because she at least has known what it was to be rich. She may still be rich not only in the interest she has in her children and grandchildren but in coming into her heritage of the things that the world outside of her family circle has to give her.

New Nazarene Pastor Arrives in Grandfield

Special to The Record News.

GRANDFIELD, Okla., Oct. 14.—The Rev. and Mrs. L. H. Dickerson and family arrived in this city Thursday to make their home here, Rev. Dickson having been called by the Nazarene church to fill the vacancy recently made by the resignation of Rev. W. M. Carter, who will move from the city to another church.

Rev. Dickerson comes to Grandfield from Ryan, Okla.

Student Aviator Killed When Plane Takes Fire

CHICAGO, Oct. 14. (AP)—Ray Ott, 19-year-old student aviator from Prophetstown, Ill., was killed today when his airplane burst into flames while at an altitude of about 1000 feet, and crashed to the ground at a street intersection in Cicero, a suburb.

CHIC CHERIE

Latest Fashions

This is a very subtle idea and in case it's too subtle to be clear we shall explain it. We don't want it wasted. Emily has just composed a letter at her secretary-writing-table and Emily wears a new frock of gray crepe printed with black dots in stripes and made with a square neck and a completely normal waist.

Dina likes a book in an idle hour and Dina takes her book from the same article of furniture, thereby displaying to good advantage her newest costume which consists of a white jersey blouse and a gray tweed suit. The notable thing about the blouse is that it tucks in, and about the skirt is that it has a flat peplum.

Cherie is playing tinkling tunes and—this is the point—she is playing them on the same piece of furniture! Cherie's dress has a brown velvet skirt and a white satin blouse with bands of brown satin for trimming. It is probably the tunes that are driving Emily and Dina out into the cold, but in any case they are showing off the coats to their costumes. Because these, dear reader, are all ensembles. The clothes and the furniture both. Emily's coat is of gray smooth-surfaced fabric trimmed with Persian lamb. Dina's is of gray tweed trimmed with black fur and Cherie's (in the corner) is brown velvet trimming with marten.

GASOLINE IS ELECTRIFIED

New West Texas Town Is On Boom

ABILENE, Texas, Oct. 14. (INS)—Electrification of the town of Gasoline, announced here today by the West Texas Utilities company, recalled another chapter of romance in which West Texas richly abounds.

The dusty pages of the history of Gasoline reveal that this town is truly a child of progress, born when the automobile industry was in its infancy and the aeroplane was a thing of fiction.

Old settlers recall that where now stands the progressive town of Gasoline, there once was but one store, a blacksmith shop and a few scattered houses.

This village stood on the Great Plains highway which traverses this section of the country from east to west. One far-sighted citizen, the story goes, installed a gasoline pump in the early days of the automobile and straightway did a rushing business. It was one of the first and the only filling station for miles around. A big sign bearing the word "gasoline" hung over the door.

Years later after the village had grown into a little town, containing a schoolhouse, gin and several stores, the citizens began casting about for an appropriate name. Every name proposed, it was found, was borne by some other Texas city or town. In desperation a citizen pointed to the old weatherbeaten sign over the first store and suggested that the town be officially recorded as "Gasoline." Thus it was named.

The town has grown steadily and recently the progressive citizens asserted that to be a really modern town, it must be electrified. And now workmen of the West Texas Utilities company are building an extension of the Quitaque-Turkey transmission line into that city.

Stephens County Cotton Being Ginned Rapidly

Special to The Record News.

BRECKENRIDGE, Texas, Oct. 14—Stephens county cotton is coming in fast now, according to Roy McCharen, owner and operator of the only gin in this county.

Up to Wednesday of this week, 448 bales had been ginned by McCharen. This represents about a sixth of the total crop of Stephens county. All of the cotton brought in so far for ginning has been clean and of good staple, Mr. McCharen says.

O' These Women

By LEOLA ALLARD

NEW YORK, Oct. 14. (US)—A Chicago girl gave back a gorgeous pear shaped diamond ring because her fiance wore a pink shirt in public. This year pink shirts are fashionable. She then married a man who wore white shirts and he is now being divorced by her. The pink shirt feller married another girl and they are very happy.

The New York Sun announces: "The pink shirt is now longer anything to fear. It has received the stamp of approval of those noted for sartorial correctness."

A school teacher who wore her pale green smock when she was decorating her kindergarten, took it to the laundry when it got pretty well dobbed up with grease and dust.

"Can't wash that," said the girl at the laundry counter.

"Why?" asked the teacher. "Everything on it will come out with soap and water."

"We don't wash things that are that dirty," said the girl.

The teacher went home, wrapped the package again very tightly, using yards and yards of string, took it to the laundry, gave them a slip with her address and said wash this and return it to this number, then she walked out.

It hasn't come home yet. But if you get your clothes too dirty in New York, you can wash them yourself. The laundry can't be bothered.

A woman has been going about with her husband and one of her "best friends." They seemed to be pretty fond of each other, and she noticed it, but they continued to form a party of three for theaters and dinners.

One day, making up her mind to find out, she went to the general store at the corner and asked the proprietor if he had ever heard any gossip in the neighborhood, about her husband and this woman friend.

The man said no, but now the scandal is on its way, started by the one to be most affected by it.

That's one kind of idiot!

Cleaners' bills aren't enough now, the women are taking to two-piece nighties, with pleated skirts.

Handkerchiefs of the old kind lasted and washed without tearing. So the girls have chosen large square hankies of sheerest chiffon, of daintiest colors, and there just isn't anything you can do about them if you use them, but throw them into the waste basket.

If Cleopatra had an idea she was extravagant, she should look down from the fleecy clouds upon us moderns.

MEMPHIS HI-Y CLUB IS FORMED

Dallas Leader Enrolls Charter Members

MEMPHIS, Texas, Oct. 14.—The organization of a Hi-Y club was completed in Memphis the first part of the week when Grover C. Good of Dallas, travelling Y. M. C. A. secretary was sent here to perfect the club.

Twenty members have enrolled in the club, and weekly meetings are to be held at the high school, and it is planned to have social dinners and entertainment features in connection with these meetings in the near future.

With Supt. H. A. Jackson and I. W. Jay as leaders of the newly formed club, and Lester C. Linn as sponsor, it will soon be an interesting organization. The charter members together with those taken into the cluub are as follows: Alfred Jameson, Tad Reed, Vance Johnson, Edwin Todd, Clarence Jackson, Spurgeon Miller, Deward Martindale, Allen Dunbar, Lon Webster, T. R. Easterling, Ingram Walker, Wendall Harrison, Jerry Bitton, Randolph Johnsey, Howard Foote, J. D. Jackson, Homer Shankle, Cleron McMurry, Albert Pearson, and Debs Moore.

---A LAPSED INSURANCE POLICY . . .

STARK tragedy walks here . . . . opening again the wounds of death, the twin disaster of Lapsed Insurance is blighting the lives of this bereaved mother and daughter . . . . of course very few ever let an insurance policy lapse intentionally . . . . this man didn't, but see the consequences of his carelessness? Every husband and father should read this epic story of Life Insurance.

Contrast this picture with what it might have been if only that life insurance policy hadn't lapsed.

The Mother might have had her burden lessened, been independent, could have lived a more carefree life, safe from the exigencies that women face when they must support themselve alone and unaided.

Instances like this are tragic, and oh, so unnecessary . . . . . .

You should know the efforts made by the Texas Life Insurance Companies to prevent their policyholders' insurance from becoming delinquent. Agents of these companies are schooled in the safeguards that we have created for your protection.

Even after a premium is due, there is always the 30-day period of grace, a whole month in which to make up the payment, during which the policy is kept in force. Men of the Texas companies can usually arrange to keep insurance effective if given enough warning before the lapse date.

It is a little short of foolhardy to let any insurance policy lapse. Avoid any possibility of leaving such sad inheritance as a lapsed insurance policy among your wife's souvenirs. Don't let your Life Insurance lapse.

Here's something that will interest every husband

No matter how long ago you let a policy lapse, you can usually have it re-instated at the original rate with a minimum amount of trouble and a surprisingly small amount of cash. Any agent of the Texas Life Insurance Companies will be glad to advise and assist you in securing the re-instatement.

For a brave conflict bravely fought,
And at the ending of the strife,
The victor's crown—a crown of life;
But in the valley din and low
There dogged my steps a sealthy foe
Contending till the break of day—
It was my will I strove to slay.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By GRANT DIXON

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Time has always been an important item in the life of New Yorkers, so it is not surprising to learn that an average of 10,000 persons a day now call the telephone operator to ascertain the hour. Each call represents an outlay of five cents or more, which gives the telephone company a revenue that did not exist a month ago.

There are few metropolitan centers where it is impossible to learn the time of day quickly, but people are not absolutely sure that it is correct and as New Yorkers want to be punctual at all times the cost is secondary.

Professional tattooer.
Lunch wagon.
Hospital.
Blacksmith shop.
Shooting gallery.
Drug store without soda fountain.
Fire engine house.
Barber college.
Vacant apartment house.
Spencerian card writer.
Museum of anatomy.
Zither teacher.
Hitching post.
Overhead telephone wires.
Cigar store Indian.
Barber shop with a leach.
Hotel with billard tables.
People who make a business of breaking in new shoes.

Gate "crashing" has become a highly developed art in New York, and for those who are unsophisticated in the ways of entering a theater without paying, the following list should be studied.

Impersonate a fireman.
Work for a ticket broker.
Help deliver the programs.
Correspond for an out-of-town newspaper.
Say you are the oldest actor on Broadway.
Sub for a first line critic.
Say you starred in the piece before it was turned into a musical comedy.
Present yourself as the son of the historical character the play is patterned after.
Pose as a prospective purchaser of the movie rights.
Display a taxi driver's badge and gain admittance ostensibly to collect a fare.
Call to make a charity appeal between the act.
If it's a Shakespearan play, say you're the author.
And if any of these fail, produce your own show.

Amarillo Democrats To Speak at Dalhart

Let the Ladies Battle

WHAT is the function of mere man when two ladies fight?

A man in Montreal the other day found his wife doing battle with a neighbor lady. The two women were hard at it; so the man, wishing to be helpful, seized a hockey stick and walloped the neighbor lady. The fight promptly ended; but the injured neighbor lady had him arrested.

Brought to court, the man was fined $25 despite his protests that he was trying to aid his wife—surely a laudable purpose. The judge handed him this advice:

"When women quarrel, leave them alone. Beyond pulling out hair, they do little harm!"

And that judicial pronouncement would seem to settle that question.

50,000 Accidents

THE NATIONAL SAFETY CONGRESS has analyzed some 50,000 automobile accidents to see what the drivers responsible were doing when the accidents happened. Its figures are interesting.

In over 19,000 cases the responsible driver did not have the right of way. In 7,000 he was speeding. In an equal number he was on the wrong side of the road. More than 5,000 followed a driver's failure to signal his intentions. Four thousand were due to cutting in. Some 3,800 came when the driver drove off the road.

Those figures help to indicate what the dangerous forms of traffic law violation are. It is worth noticing that the biggest single division—the first one listed in the above paragraph—was caused chiefly by a driver's selfishness. The man who plows ahead when he does not have the right of way is simply inconsiderate of the rights of others.

A Warning on Cancer

ANOTHER warning of the alarming increase in the prevalence of cancer, one of the most dreaded of all diseases, is given by Dr. Frederick Dugdale of Boston at the Chicago convention of the American Association for Medico-Physical Research.

"Millions in the United States are in early or potential cancerous states," he says. "Fully 5,000,000 others have the disease sufficiently advanced to be detected easily."

If cancer can be detected in time it can be avoided. The knife and the X-ray are extremely valuable, if applied in time. Delay is fatal. If you have any reason to suspect that you may have a cancerous condition, see a good doctor at once. Quacks and patent medicines will kill you. The cancer death rate can be reduced if cancer cases can be detected promptly. Do not take any chances.

Even Actors Are Human

FREE and easy—and, therefore, enviable—are the ways of the theater in Jugoslavia.

A company in Belgrade the other day was playing "Macbeth." At the height of the performance, Lady Macbeth became roiled beyond endurance at the lack of skill displayed by Macbeth. Abandoning her lines, she screamed "Idiot!"

Macbeth fled from the stage to protest to the manager, who ordered him to return. He did so, only to be met by another yell, "Idiot!" from the enraged Lady Macbeth. And the curtain came down, while the audience cheered lustily.

It is things like that which make the drama instructive and amusing. It probably could never happen in this country; but if it could the life of the theatergoer would be far more entertaining.

Beating Diphtheria

The other day, however, the New York health department issued a bulletin predicting that, with the cooperation of citizens with physicians, the disease could be completely eradicated in New York City within a few years.

The toxin-antitoxin used as a preventive renders a child immune. It is not very expensive or difficult to administer; and the old prejudice against it is rapidly dying. The health department hopes especially to reach the group of children most susceptible to diphtheria—those between nine months and five years of age.

If you have a child of that age, you might give a little consideration to the idea of having it immunized.

Texas-Oklahoma Press

THINK FOR THE CHILD

When every driver regards every child playing on the sidewalk as a possible victim of his automobile and drives accordingly there will be fewer child fatalities on the streets. The driver must do a large part of the child's thinking. He will also meet many people old enough to vote who have never grown up and he must think for them, too, if he is to avoid disastrous consequences.

TIME TO KEEP COOL

We hear men arguing on the streets over politics and sometimes they get rather warm. It does little good to get sore over a question as far off as the president's race. Men on both sides have their minds made up and we find arguments from either side trying to turn them, to no avail.

Sometimes in political campaigns men get so wrapped up in one side or the other that they will not patronize a man because he is on the other side. From our viewpoint that is not the right attitude to take. We may differ with a man in politics but that does not effect our friendship for him.

Let's argue all we want to but not let our tempers get away and say things and do things that later we will regret.

—Vernon (Texas) Times.

IN SUPPORT OF HIS PARTY

"If I couldn't lend my time and support to the Democratic party I would notify the state committee to take my name off the ticket and would not ask the support of the party," said Congressman Guinn Williams of Decatur, who was through Denton Thursday afternoon on his way to Lewisville to speak in behalf of the Democratic ticket in the national election. "I have been speaking in the western part of the state, speak three times in Denton county this week and then make a swing through Southwest Texas. I believe that a history of the Democratic and Republican parties, an explanation of the purposes of the parties and an impartial account of Governor Smith's record will suffice to carry Texas for the Democratic party."

The Room Under the Stairs

The Baffling Story of a Man Who Read of His Own Murder

By HERMAN LANDON

Copyright by G. Howard Watt — Serialized by Ledger Syndicate

Synopsis of Preceding Installments

Thomas Dean, well-known writer of mystery novels, has hidden from the world the fact that he is really

Paul Forrester, who as a youngster had been mixed up in a breach of promise suit and had figured in a self-defense killing out west some years before, from which encounter he still bears a knife scar on his neck. Dean is therefore astounded to read the death-bed confession of

Martin Lamont, western business man, in New York on a visit, in which he repents the murder of Paul Forrester five years before. This confession is witnessed by

Dennis Littleby, famous lawyer, at whose home the dying man is visiting, and

Dr. John Ballinger, well-known physician. Identification of the body, found in "The Room Under the Stairs," in Dean's deserted family house, is made by

Lieutenant Shane, of the police, who also finds a watch bearing the initials "P. F." Revisiting the house, Dean discovers pieces of a broken watch crystal at the scene of the murder, and is surprised at the sudden entrance of Littleby, who seems upset over Dean's find. Matters are further complicated by a strange young lady

Viola Gray, who tries to connect one of Dean's stories with Forrester's secret.

A visit to the notary who took the confession reveals that Lamont seemed to have a peculiar dread of the telephone.

That night Dean outwits hired assassins, Freddie Mills and Jorgo the man to give the signal by telephone that his night's work has been successful and Dean supposedly killed.

A chance encounter with the mysterious Miss Gray proves startling, as she shows terror at seeing Dean alive.

Dr. Ballinger also seems stunned by Dean's appearance.

Two Voices—and a Shot

Dean, positive now that neither of the speakers was aware of his presence, descended a few steps lower. The voices, he now discovered, came from a point where the second floor hall opened upon a balcony. The rich aroma of excellent cigars hung in the still air. For the moment Dean's interest in the subpect under discussion overcame all other considerations.

"But circumstances are sometimes deceptive," the doctor pointed out, speaking in the deep, rather brusque voice that had gone far toward capturing Dean's confidence at their first meeting, a confidence that had since received a violent shock. "And there is nothing remarkable in a scar. In my practice I have come across hundreds of them."

"Doubtless," admitted Littleby. His voice, pleasantly modulated, sounded somewhat deferential, as if he were arguing a case before a judge jealous of his dignity. "Let me make my point clear. I shall call your attention to three circumstances that may seem isolated at first glance, but assume a certain degree of correlation when you regard them more closely. Here is No. 1: Some years ago—five or six or so—a trapper named Simon Cabell was murdered near a small mining town in the Leadville district. The murderer, who, by the way was never caught, was Paul Forrester."

"The man who was subsequently murdered by Lamont?" asked the doctor, suddenly interested.

"Littleby did not answer the question. "Cabell's death occurred in an isolated section," he went on. "It attracted little attention. The murder of an obscure trapper is of no consequence, and it is doubtful if the news of it ever reached the east. At any rate, it was soon forgotten. Now here is circumstance No. 2: Something like two years ago there appeared a novel entitled 'Crossroads.' The author was our officious friend, Thomas Dean. The climacteric passage in that novel was a melodramatic scene in which the murder of Cabell was described exactly as it happened, barring the substitution of a few names and dates. The murderer even carried a scar with him through life as a result of the episode. His sensitiveness about the blemish was described with an astounding fidelity to human nature. Really, you ought to read the story, doctor. The author's insight into criminal psychology is marvelous."

"But what of it? Dean may have heard the story of the murder and adopted it bodily. Novelists often do I understand."

"Wait," said Littleby. "I now come to circumstance No. 3. Dean has just such a scar as is described in 'Crossroads,' except that it is located on the neck instead of the cheek. Perhaps the novelist exercised his license to juggle the facts a bit. At any rate, I saw it myself. He knows that I have seen it, and, though he has said nothing about it, I know that he has been greatly upset by it. Moreover, Lamont saw it the day Lieutenant Shane and Dean called. It was the sight of that scar that excited him so tremendously, although I didn't tell you at the time. Now, why did Lamont receive such a fearful shock at the sight of a scar?"

Dr. Ballinger gave an incredulous little chuckle. "Wasn't the scar on the neck one of the means by which he identified Paul Forrester as the man he murdered five and a half years ago?"

"Exactly," said Littleby in a mildly triumphant tone, "and a few days ago he almost died of shock upon seeing just such a scar on Dean's neck. How do you explain it?"

"I'd rather not try."

"And how," asked Littleby impressively, "do you explain the fact that Dean has taken such pains to hide the scar on his neck and that he acted so peculiarly—almost like a guilty man—when I discovered it?"

The answer came after a measurable pause. "There is no doubt about the identity of the man Lamont murdered?"

"Apparently not. It is the most convincing identification I ever heard of. To make it doubly positive, Lamont identified Forrester's photograph. To remove the last lota of doubt, a skeleton was found in the exact spot where Lamont concealed the body, and beside the skeleton was found Forrester's watch."

"Then—" The physician appeared to hesitate. The rumblings in the sky were growing louder; now and then an angry flash pierced the darkness. "Just what are you thinking?" Ballinger demanded. "Not that Dean is— Why, that's ridiculous!"

"I know. Utterly ridiculous. But what other construction would you put on the circumstances?"

A breath of moist wind coming in through an open window somewhat swept Dean's burning face. He leaned forward tensely, waiting for Ballinger's answer.

"It's out of my line," confessed the doctor. "I'm a hard-boiled materialist. Let's hear your explanation."

The lawyer appeared to hesitate, and his answer, when it came was evasive. "Dean seems very solicitous about Lamont's health. He has been making daily inquiries, I understand. I wonder why."

"When a lawyer talks that way, he generally knows the answer. What do you think?"

"Oh, nothing. It just occurred to me that perhaps Dean suspects that Lamont is holding something back and is afraid that he may divulge it before he dies."

"In other words, he would be pleased to learn that I have lost a patient?"

"Something like that. It's just a surmise, you understand. By the way, how did you find Lamont this evening?"

"Very weak, but still hanging on. I fear something is still worrying him. I asked Miss Farnham if anything had happened to disturb him, but she could offer no explanation. If he lives another day——"

"Dean's secret may leak out," Littleby suggested.

"I didn't mean that. Dean impresses me as an upright man. I am not sure he has any secrets. What I meant was that if Lamont lives one more day the crisis will be past and he may hang on indefinitely. Has his daughter turned up yet?"

"No," said Littleby in a baffled tone. "Most mysterious how she appeared and then vanished again so suddenly. I can't imagine why she should—— Good Lord!"

A crack, viciously sharp, came out of the stillness of the old house. Dean felt a tremor under his feet. The house seemed full of sinister echoes. Then a silence came, broken only by the beat a huge raindrops against the windows.

Murder

"What was that?" gasped Littleby.

"Sounded like a pistol shot," remarked the doctor in a curiously calm tone. "And it was fired in this house, unless I am mistaken. Let's investigate."

Two dim figures moved hurriedly across the hall, a few feet from where Dean stood leaning over the balustrade. In a moment he was following them, without thinking it strange that they should be walking straight toward the sickroom. It seemed only the logical thing to do. Lamont's name had instantly leaped leaped into his own mind the moment he heard the shot.

Miss Farnham's terrified face appeared in the doorway as Littleby and the lawyer approached the room. She pointed dumbly toward the bed, and Dean, entering shortly behind the other two men, saw the figure of Lamont crumpled back against the pillows. One arm was flung wide, the other hung limply over the side of the bed. The face, lying on its side and partly buried in the pillow, bore an expression of fixed horror.

For a moment Dean's eyes rested on a splash of red above the chest, and then a morbid attraction drew his gaze toward the telephone beside the bed, an inanimate thing of metal, yet imbued with a voice of dread. With Lamont dead, would the mystery of the fearful cries ever be solved?

It was Ballinger who, after a brief inspection of the body, spoke first. "What has happened?" he inquired of the nurse.

For a moment Miss Farnham could not speak. Her professional poise seemed to have deserted her. Dean, as yet unobserved by the others, shifted his gaze from the telephone to the nurse. She appeared to be in her late twenties, rather stout for her age, with regular but rather heavy features and the appearance of impassive capability that sometimes characterizes the profession. Now, however, she appeared to have received a shock which her calmly efficient nature was unable to withstand. Trembling, she bent a frightened gaze on Dr. Ballinger.

"He was sleeping quietly," she explained, "so I lay down on the cot for a few moments. I've had a hard day, but I didn't mean to go to sleep. I must have dozed off, though, for the next thing I knew was that dreadful shot, and then—"

"How did it happen that the night nurse did not relieve you?" asked Dr. Ballinger sharply.

"Miss Thompson had an engagement, and I offered to stay on until midnight."

A faint scowl appeared in Dr. Ballinger's good-natured face. He glanced about the room, his eyes lingering for a moment on the cot on the farther side. "Did you see any one in the room when you got up?"

Miss Farnham shook her head. "Was the door closed?"

"I think so," she replied uncertainly. "It must have been, for I am sure it was closed when I lay down. But I heard a slam of some kind just after the shot. I'm not sure just what it was, though. I was so horrified that—"

"I understand, Miss Farnham," said Ballinger gently. His eyes swept the room as if looking for a weapon, but he either ignored Dean's presence or else was curiously unaware of it. "Well, Littleby," he added, "it seems I've lost my patient."

The lawyer, grim, erect and saturine, frowned at the doctor's little jest. "And I have lost an old friend," he solemnly pointed out. With his back turned to Dean, he stood gazing at the still form on the bed. "Why should any one wish to murder a dying man?"

Dr. Ballinger shrugged. "I was just remarking a minute or two before we heard the shot that if Lamont lived one more day he might live indefinitely. Perhaps an indefinite prolongationof his life did not coincide with the murderer's plans."

"That's possible," Littleby nodded thoughtfully. "Remember what else we said, Ballinger? Something about a certain person who might be seriously embarrassed if Lamont should live long enough to—"

"That was your conjecture, not mine," interrupted the physician. "The person you had in mind is here. He will doubtless answer for himself. How about it, Dean?"

The lawyer whirled round abruptly and faced Dean, whose presence he had not noticed until now. The grief went out of his eyes; they took on a hard, lustrous look.

"How did you enter my house, sir?" he demanded.

Dean came forward and measured the lawyer's long, gaunt figure with a slightly impudent glance.

"In the time-honored way," he replied. "I rang the bell and a servant let me in."

"When was this?"

"Shortly after 7, I should say."

"Seven?" There was a tightening of the fine lines in Littleby's face. "That's more than two hours ago. What have you been doing?"

Dean glanced at the doctor, who was listening with an air of tolerant cynicism. "I called on Dr. Ballinger late this afternoon," he answered, "and asked if I could see Lamont for a few minutes. Dr. Ballinger state it was inadvisable and suggested I interview Miss Farnham instead. I told the servant who admitted me that I knew the way to Lamont's room and that she needn't trouble to show me."

Little glanced at the doctor, who nodded by way of verifying the statement.

"And did you see Miss Farnham?" Littleby inquired.

"No; apparently she was out. I knocked on the door, but no one answered."

"And then?"

"I took a look around the house," said Dean, eliding the episode of the telephone from his narrative but otherwise adhering strictly to the truth. "An old house like this always has its points of interest. Hope you don't mind the liberty I took, Littleby?"

Littleby stroked his smooth chin and looked at the physician. "Did you hear the shot?" was his next question.

"I had not reached the foot of the stairs when it rang out," replied Dean, again skirting the edges of the truth. "I saw you and Dr. Ballinger rushing in from the balcony, and followed you. That's all."

"It's enough," remarked Littleby dryly. "You admit being a trespasser in my house at the time Lamont was murdered."

"That's putting an ugly twist on a plain statement of fact."

Littleby merely compressed his lips into a tight line. "We are wasting time," he observed. "The authorities must be notified. Not in a hurry, I hope, Dean?" There was a faint sarcasm in the question.

"Well, said Dean, looking at his watch, "it has just occurred to me that there is a certain little matter that requires my immediate attention. I must run out to my home and look after it."

"Indeed?" drawled the lawyer. "And you have just now remembered it." He cocked an eye in Ballinger's direction. "Anything very important?"

"Rather. It's a matter of dietetics. Dr. Ballinger will bear me out in the statement that it isn't good for a man to go without food for eight hours."

Dean's glance shifted from one man to the other as he spoke. Dr. Ballinger drew up his head a little, and in inscrutable gleam entered his narrowing eyes. But Littleby's face betrayed nothing but stark bewilderment.

"I call that unseemly levity," he declared stiffly.

"But I am afraid,' said Dean, looking him full in the eyes, "that Freddie Mills would call it cruel and inhuman treatment. He must be a very hungry man by this time."

For a mere instant the lawyer looked as startled as if Dean's fist had swung out and struck him between the eyes. Something too fleeting for the eye to catch passed across his face and was instantly gone.

"Freddie Mills?" he murmured with a slow shake of his head. "Why worry about a gentleman of his type?"

"Freddie Mills isn't a gentleman, as you probably know," Dean explained. "But one needn't be a gentleman to have a healthy appetite. How about it, doctor?"

Ballinger turned to him, looking rather awkward. "You are right, I dare say. I have known persons whose gentlemanly instincts were in inverse ratio to their appetites."

Dean moved casually toward the door. Freddie Mills' predicament was a grotesquely irrelevant topic for discussion in that room of tragedy, but he had gained a point in throwing the lawyer off his superb mental balance, even if only for a moment. And Dean had no desire to be present at the investigation that would soon be in progress. The lawyer, while conversing with Ballinger, on the balcony, had dropped several disturbing hints, each conveying a warning to Dean that he might be called upon to answer a number of difficult questions. Littleby had even cleared the way for attributing a motive to Dean in the event that Lamont's lingering existence should come to an abrupt end. I was all very absurd, but the entire chain of events leading up to the firing of the pistol shot was intimately interwoven with things that touched the core of his sensitiveness.

The door stood ajar. A little knot of awed and gaping servants was gathered outside. Ballinger stood with arms folded across his chest, a thin smile playing about his lips, while Littleby gazed irresolutely at the retreating figure.

"You will know where to find me if you should want me," said Dean. In a moment he was at the front door one flight below. He opened it a foot or so and, still remaining inside, closed it again with a slam calculated to reach the ears of the little group upstairs.

Then, swiftly and silently, he darted back across the vestibule and down the dark basement stairs.

"A few hours' fasting will do Freddie Mills a world of good," was his thought. "It may even make a gentleman of him."

High-browish people, the patrons of art,
Always, it seems, keep themselves far apart
From the crude rabble; they're quite worldly wise.
They know much more than the rest of us guys.
Maybe they do, but they give me a pain;
I do not count their acquaintance a gain.

Haughty, suave high-hats—The Folks Who Know Things,
Give my tried patience a fast set of wings.

NEVADA VOTES ARE DOUBTFUL

State Campaign About Like Municipal Fight

By RAYMOND CLAPPER
United Press Staff Correspondent

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 14.—Nevada's three electoral votes appear to be in doubt this year according to those here who are in direct contact with political conditions in the adjoining state.

Due to the momentum which William J. Bryan gave the Democratic party in this great silver producing state during his free silver campaign in 1896, Nevada has been regarded as Democratic until the Republicans carried it for Harding in 1920 and Coolidge in 1924.

The whole state cast less than 30,000 votes in the last presidential election so that the campaign has about the proportions of a fair-sized municipal fight.

Wool Men Republican

Governor Smith's strength is with the voters which gave La Follette almost as many votes in 1924 as Coolidge got, and with wet liberal residents of Reno. Republicans get strength among the wool growers who naturally favor the traditional Republican protective policy.

The two big political factors in the state now are Senator Key Pittman, Democratic, and one of the national party leaders, who is running for re-election, and George Wingfield, a romantic character, owner of most of the large banks and hotels in the state, Republican national committeeman, and a man who pretty much has his own way in the state.

Wingfield has put as the Republican senatorial candidate against Pittman a Reno attorney, Sam Platt.

Reno Is Tolerant

Hoover has a personal appeal in Nevada because he has been a mining engineer and is regarded as a product of this western country.

Smith, though alien in the background to these wide open spaces, strikes friendly response in Reno, the most tolerant city this side of Mexico.

Neither religion or prohibition are important factors in the fight, Nevadans being tolerant in the matter of religion and of the opinion that it's all right for the drys to have the law provided liquor doesn't get too bad or too high. It has done neither yet so far as Reno is concerned, according to second-hand reports.

Burk Scout Leaders Attend Wichita Meet

Special to The Record News.

BURKBURNETT, Texas, Oct. 14.—W. D. Beet, R. D. Cunningham, and F. E. Caldwell attended a meeting of the Wichita Area council at Wichita Falls Saturday night and heard a splendid talk on the scout movement by Regional Executive Fitch of Dallas. Matters of interest to this area, comprising seven counties of North Texas, were discussed at the meeting.

Troup One had a rousing meeting Friday evening at which four new members were taken into the troop. A new plan was adopted for promoting advancement tests in the troop, whereby each patrol leader selects three or four scouts from his patrol who will be expected to come prepared to pass one test at the next troop meeting. John Clifton Smith, assistant scribe, was advanced to the office of scribe. Twenty-one boys were present at this meeting.

Electra Lodge Host To Visiting Rebekahs

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Texas, Oct. 14.—Fifteen members of the Iowa Park Rebekah lodge, including 12 members of the degree team with its captain, Mrs. Ora Ackerman, and three members of the Burkburnett lodge, were present at the meeting of the Electra lodge on Friday evening when the initiatory degree was conferred upon P. F. Ford and Mrs. Ella Ford by the visiting degree team.

Mrs. C. D. Wilkerson, noble grand of the Electra lodge, presided at the meeting, at which over 100 were present. Talks for the good of the order were made by Mrs. Mamie Dale, of Iowa Park, past president of the Rebekah assembly of Texas; Mrs. Ella Ford, Mrs. J. G. Beard, of Burkburnett; Mrs. Ora Ackerman, of Iowa Park, and Miss Myrtle Cooper and P. G. Ford, of the local lodge. Following dismissal, a luncheon plate with coffee was served.

Work on New Frederick Postoffice Progresses

Special to The Record News.

FREDERICK, Okla., Oct. 14.—Rapid progress is being made in the building of the Masonic temple which is to house the Frederick postoffice. A. H. Krause, contracter, is of the opinion that the structure will be completed about Nov. 1. Work on the interior has already begun.

Some of the postoffice equipment, including a large safe, has already been received. The fixtures will soon arrive. It is the opinion of Postmaster A. M. Dennis that the postoffice will be installed in the new quarters by Nov. 15.

State Weddings

DOUBLE WEDDING

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Texas, Oct. 14.—A double wedding of much interest to Electra people occured Sunday morning at 8:30 o'clock, at the Church of Christ parsonage, when Miss Charlsie Horton became the bride of Paul Gordon and Miss Zelma Harvey became the bride of Ernest Hughes in an impressive double ring ceremony read by Rev. T. E. Millhollan, pastor of the church. Only members of the immediate families and a few friends of the couples witnessed the ceremony.

Mrs. Gordon is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Horton, of this city and Mrs. Hughes is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jess Harvey, also of this city. Mr. Hughes is the son of T. L. Hughes and Mr. Gordon, whose parents reside in Southern Texas, has been a resident of Electra for some time. All of the contracting parties are members of Electra's younger set and active in its social affairs. Both the brides, prior to their marriage, were members of the Electra high school senior class. Both couples will make their homes in Electra, where the grooms are employed in the local oil fields.

HEALTH and DIET ADVICE

By DR. FRANK McCOY
Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Mr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper.

Man's Reliance Upon Water

The earliest nations of men originated in fertile valleys like the Euphrates and the Nile. In lands periodically inundated with the waters of these rivers, man could rely upon his crops of grain and vegetables.

Civilization of the past and present have followed where water was abundant.

The most uninhabited portions of the world are those dry and rocky places where the least water exists in an available form, such as the great deserts of the world—the Sahara of Africa, the Gobi of Mongolia, and the Mojave and middle western deserts of the United States. On these arid lands, parched by the glaring sun of countless centuries, no plants will grow.

The first jelly-like beginnings of organic life, both vegetable and animal, came from the sea, and perished whenever they were cast upon dry land; and from the Paleozoic jungles to the present time, organic life has been changed and controlled by the varying balance between the elements of water and sunlight. Life had to remain near the shores of beaches and shallows.

No creature can breathe or digest its food without water. Water-living creatures wave their freely exposed gills by which they extract their oxygen from the water. Every plant and animal that escapes from the sea had to develop a tough outer coat around its breathing apparatus to retain its moisture, and the vertebrate animals develop their lungs encased within their bodies. Even the lungs are somewhat on the principle of gills, since the oxygen of the air is absorbed by the moisture of the lungs before it can reach the blood.

Many of the lower forms of life are born and live in water. Some, such as the amphibians, come forth and live upon the land. The frog lays its eggs within the water. The eggs hatch into tadpoles. The tadpoles develop legs and lungs so that the frog can live and walk on the land.

All animals living in sunlight and air must have a protective skin to regulate and retain their moisture so that they will not dry up.

A higher form of life than the amphibian, the reptile, has its life beginning in eggs on land, but the egg is principally water and is surrounded by a hard shell that prevents evaporation by preserving the precious moisture until the egg is hatched.

The highest form of life that has developed on this planet is the mammal, a form where the egg is retained and protected within the body of the mother until it has developed into a miniature adult.

With the aid of water, which is the greatest solvent in the world, the nourishing elements in the soil are dissolved, so that when the fertile earth, stirring the germ of life within the seed, there will be food for the seed to grow, and bud and blossom into full maturity.

There can be no life without water. The highest forms of living things exist where the water supply is regulated to meet the demands of both animal and vegetable life.

Questions and Answers

Question: J. L. G. asks: "Will you please explain how bacteria can produce disease if the fault is really as you say caused by our bad habits of living?"

Answer: Bacteria are microscopic fungus growths and are really of vegetable origin. They grow in much the same way as yeast cells or mold. They increase in numbers by dividing so that they actually "multiply by dividing." Bacteria cannot grow except in suitable soil, and the person with bad habits provides this soil usually on some of the mucous membranes, such as in the nose and throat. Bacteria grow rapidly and often produce poisons of their own, some being more violent than others. There are good bacteria and bad ones, but each must have suitable soil for growth. Bad habits cultivate the growth of the injurious bacteria, while good habits promote the growth of the friendly bacteria.

Question: Mrs. A. N. writes: "My husband is troubled with eczema. He always eats oatmeal for his breakfast, and I have heard that it is bad for eczema. Should he stop eating oatmeal?"

Answer: Those troubled with eczema should avoid all starches and sugars until the tendency to such skin eruptions is entirely overcome. Oatmeal is undoubtedly more irritating to this class of disorder than are the other starches.

Question: L. J. B. writes: "For some weeks now my knees have been swollen, giving a sharp twinge when I move. There is also a cracking noise in the joints. Is this serious, and could you advise me what to do?"

Answer: You are developing a case of articular rheumatism and should take a fruit fast to cleanse your system of the gather of rheumatic toxins. I have written a special article in dieting for rheumatic troubles. If you wish for a copy of it, send your request with a large, stamped, self-addressed envelope to me, in care of this newspaper.

FAVORITE JOKES OF FAMOUS FOLK

As Told by Them to
FRANK E. NICHOLSON

By ALICE FOOTE MacDOUGALL

The world points to Alice Foote MacDougall as an outstanding example for women who wish to attain success in business. Not many years ago Mrs. MacDougall, scion of an aristocratic New York family, woke up to find herself a widow, penniless, with three children to rear and educate and with no visible means of support. There followed a score or more years during which Mrs. MacDougall was engaged in the drab business of selling coffee. Finally she conceived the idea of opening coffee shops, so she began transplanting to New York quaint Italian streets, courtyards and bridges—and these shops, now a part of her $2,00,000 business, are famous the world over. She also is the author of two books.

Alice F. MacDonnell

"My favorite joke," she told me, "is about the disreputable-looking panhandler who stopped an elderly gentleman of most benevolent aspect and made a plea for a small financial contribution. When he had finished his narrative of misery and woe the elderly gentleman replied benignantly:

"'My good friend, I have no money, but I can give you some good advice.'

"'If you hain't got no money,' the other jeered, 'I reckon your advice ain't worth hearing.'"

Grandfield Rainbow Order Names Officers

Special to The Record News.

GRANDFIELD, Okla., Oct. 14.—The local order of the Rainbow met for a regular meeting Wednesday evening, and the following officers were installed: Charity, Earle Bell Fox; recorder, Virginia Slack; choir director, Frances Tant.

The order instructed the secretary to write Mark Sexson, founder of the Rainbow organization, to find out if there is to be a district meeting of Rainbows in this district, and to offer Grandfield as headquarters. If Grandfield is chosen, delegates from Duncan, Frederick, Walters, Tipton, Davidson and Lawton will meet here.

The Rainbows will put on their initiation work for the Eastern Star, Thursday evening, Oct. 18, with Pauline Bolton and Mary Gittings as candidates.

THREE SOUTHWEST CONFERENCE GAMES SCHEDULED THIS WEEK

TEXAS, PONIES, AGS FAVORITES

Porkers, Owls and Frogs Are Respective Foes

(By The Associated Press)

Some choice football will be dished up for Southwest conference fans this week-end, with six members of the major circuit, after dabbling in intersectional plays for two weeks, settling down to fight it out in their own back yards.

The Arkansas Razorbacks, leading the conference as the result of their unexpected 14 to 0 win over the Golden Baylor Bears last week, tackle the Texas Longhorns at Austin; the Rice Owls invade Dallas for their annual setto with the Southern Methodist university Mustangs; and Coach Matty Bell's Texas Christian university Horned Frogs, only undefeated outfit in the circuit, square off with the Texas Aggies at College Station.

Baylor, facing the last off-week it will have in the conference race, goes over to Shreveport for a brisk setto with the Centenary college Gentlemen, the same lads who kicked over the Aggie machine, 6 to 0, two days ago on Kyle field. Centenary, incidentally, carried off a 9 to 6 decision over Baylor last season at Waco.

Last Week's Games

Although six of the seven members of the conference have tasted defeat before the season is well under way it can be construed as no sign of weakness. It took the Army to trail the Mustangs' colors in the dust, by the margin of a single point; Vanderbilt, regarded as the greatest outfit in the Southern conference, eked out a 13 to 12 victory over the Longhorns; and Centenary, undefeated in two seasons, was decidedly lucky to get off with a 6 to 0 verdict over the Aggies in their tussle Saturday at College Station. Three times the Farmers drove deep into Centenary territory, once to the four-yard line, but the boys from Louisiana each time managed to brace and hold.

Other tilts of the past week passed off about as expected, although the Rice Owls might be said to have created a mild sensation with the decisiveness of their win over Trinity university, 20 to 6. The Owls displayed a passing attack that may give the Mustangs some grief in their impending combat here.

The Mustangs, heroes of the previous week, had to be content with a 6 to 0 win over the Simmons university Cowboys at Wichita Falls. Not that they didn't bear down, but they hardly had had time to recuperate from their jaunt to West Point. Then, too, Simmons has been pointing toward its fracas with the Ponies since the season opened. The Cowboys nearly gave the Mustangs heart failure on one occasion when they blasted their way inside of the five-yard line. A long broken field sprint by Fincher saved the day for the men of Morrison.

Frogs' Goal Inviolate

As in three previous games this year, the Horned Frogs of Fort Worth put over exactly three touchdowns in humbling the Austin college Kangaroos, 21 to 0. The Frogs right now are the only footballers in the conference who can boast an uncrossed goal line. Simmons came closest to it with a field goal. Whether the Frogs' goal line will be thust inviolate at the close of another week is open to much doubt. The Aggies should smear Coach Bell's boys on Kyle field; although the same thing was said a year ago before the Frogs held the Farmers to a scoreless tie.

The Longhorns' loss to Vanderbilt was just a case of too bad. Twice after the Commodores had chalked up their 13 points the Steers had the opportunity to tie it up and as many times they failed. Two attempts at extra point were fizzled by the Longhorns. Close to 20,000 persons stood on one another's necks as the big Steer eleven, fighting gamely, came back in the second quarter to match the two touchdowns Vanderbilt had put across in the first, only to subside each time as the over-anxious Steers failed to convert.

A size-up of the week's schedule indicates Texas Southern Methodist university and the Aggies as probable winners with Baylor likely to take a thumping over at Shreveport. In view of Arkansas' victory over the highly touted Baylor aggregation, however, it is not unlikely that the Longhorns will have their hands full with the Porkers. Even so, they should win.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Blimping over the bounding wave is fine but when they yell "man overboard" we don't want to be the guy who ain't on the boat.

We sure have been hoping that the Graf Zeppelin makes it.

The boys will arrive just in time for the election.

The Graft Zepp opens up a new line of raps for the pedestrian. Suppose the sailors decide to fish while going over New Jersey?

How will a 200-pound farmer feel sailing up toward the ceiling with a hook through his lower lip?

The price of a steerage plaster on the Graft is only 3000 kazumps.

That's a lot of velvet to pay for crossing the overflow. It would be cheaper to tie a sky rocket to your coattails and work your way over.

And there is no guarantee that you will land safe. You are always taking a chance on a boat where the gangplank is a parachute.

The next time you see an old lady climbing the steeple of the village church you will know that she is seeing her folks off for Europe.

The Graft is seven hundred feet long. It is built like a cigar.

We hope it doesn't land like a stump.

The ocean greyhound is a grasshopper now.

In a few years we will be able to take breakfast in New York and supper in London.

And not enjoy either one.

That's progress.

All that we ask of those new sky sailors is to be careful where they drop their anchors.

Drives in Races Here

Al Koepke of Topeka, Kan., a favorite among the entries of drivers of the dirt track circuits who will clash here at the Texas-Oklahoma fairgrounds speedway Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 20 and 21. Touted Grapplers, Dempse Moore on Program

New faces will be seen tomorrow night by wrestling fans here, George Barnes, New York junior middleweight, said to be a grappler of high repute, will meet Bobby Chick, conqueror of Yaqui Joe, according to Matchmaker Alec Ross.

It will be Barnes' first Wichita Falls appearance.

Dempse Moore, the former Wichita Falls collegian, will meet Joe Hewitt, sparring partner of Babe Hunt, in a scheduled six-round boxing bout.

Cherokee Tribesman Reports for Football

GREENVILLE, S. C., Oct. 14 (AP).—For the first time in many years a South Carolina football team has a full-blooded Indian as a candidate. Goingback Chiltoskey, a Cherokee from the North Carolina reservation, is one of the aspirants for a berth on the Parkersburg high school eleven. He weighs 190 pounds.

Youths Practice Golf During Lunch Period

LONDON, Oct. 14 (AP).—"Putting" on minute golf courses is the favorite lunch-time game of hundreds of city youths and girls.

Snatching a sandwich and cup of coffee, they troop off to Temple Gardens on the Embankment or Kensington Gardens and queue up for a round before going back to work.

The London County council is fostering the game and already has marked out 67 putting greens in the districts under their supervision.

Roberti Calls Off Tilt With Paulino

NEW YORK, Oct. 14. (AP)—Paulino Uzcudum, Basque woodchopper, will have to find somebody else besides Roberto Roberti to fight at Ebbets field Wednesday night.

Humbert Fugazy announced today that Roberti would be unable to meet the Basque and that he was making efforts to find an acceptable substitute. Roberto recently pleaded off sick just before he was to meet the giant negro, George Godfrey. Fugazy said X-ray examination showed the big Italian had fractures of two ribs and would be unable to fight for six weeks at least.

With this battle off the program, the week's boxing card in the metropolitan district is somewhat scant. George Courtney, Oklahoma middleweight contender, takes on Wilson Yarbo, of Cleveland, tomorrow night in what looks like the best match of the week.

Many Notre Dame Boys Play Football

600 Potential Varsity Gridders at Rockne's Call

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 14. (AP)—The loss of a group of stars would spell ruin for most football coaches, but not Knute G. Rockne at Notre Dame, where he has 600 players—one-fourth of the student body—from which to select the varsity.

There are 135 candidates for the first team, 150 of the freshman squad and twelve hall teams. The first four teams as well as the hall aggregations play regular schedules. The latter compete in a tournament and play one out-of-town game each.

Rockne gets much of his material from the hall teams. If a candidate cannot make a team by the end of his sophomore year there is not much chance for him, the coach believes.

UPSETS MARK GRID SEASON

Mid-October Finds Many Elevens Defeated

By ALAN J. GOULD

CHICAGO, Oct. 14 (AP).—Football reputations and championship laurels, usually safe enough through the October stages of the gridiron grapple, have been blown away.

To the toll that has already been taken, the latest series of skirmishes, among other surprising events, witnessed the downfall of two 1927 championship arrays, Pittsburgh of the east and Texas Aggies of the southwest; Michigan's second straight setback, at the hands of Indiana; and the naval academy's third successive shutout, where Notre Dame romped off with the decision over the storm-tossed midshipmen before an astonished as well as record-breaking jam of 120,000 spectators in Chicago's famous lake front stadium, Soldier Field.

The Pitt Panthers, who carried the estern banner to the far west last year as the climax to a great season, fell before the onslaught of West Virginia, 9 to 6, while the powerful Texas Aggies were blanked, 6 to 0, by Centenary's Gentlemen, the little Louisiana aggregation that appears to delight in taking a fall out of its neighbors in the Lone Star state. Last season Southern Methodist was handled with complete lack of ceremony by the Gentlemen.

Strange Season

It's a strange season that finds two such ordinarily top ranking elevens as Michigan and the Navy without a victory to the credit of either by the middle of October. In fact the odds against such an occurence, figured a month ago, would have been around 100 to 1, at the least. Yet, the Wolverines have been toppled twice in a row, by Ohio Wesleyan and Indiana, while the Sailors have failed even to tally a single point in losing to Davis and Elkins, Boston college and Notre Dame.

Chicago has acquired an annual habit of putting on at least one tremendous gridiron spectacle and the game yesterday added new lustre to this record.

Southern elevens, after gaining a running start in the tussle for intersectional honors, fared less fortunately in their latest forays. Vanderbilt kept up its mark by taking the measure of Texas university, while Centenary trimmed the Texas Aggies and Virginia gained satisfaction in holding Princeton to a scoreless tie in one of Saturday's biggest surprises; but otherwise the score board was not so bright.

Yale Gets Revenge

Yale gained revenge for its 1927 setback at the hands of Georgia by muzzling the Bulldogs, 21 to 6, while Harvard beat North Carolina, 20-0, Colgate whipped Virginia Poly, 35-13, and Cornell university checked Hampden Sydney, 18 to 6. Centre wandered westward to take a 60-0 plastering from Missouri.

The big three of California football came through triumphantly in their latest tests. Stanford had a romp with the University of California (southern branch) but California was extended to beat the heavier Washington State eleven, 12-3, while Southern California had its hands full beating the rugged St. Mary's team, 19-6.

Alabama looked impressive in the south, beating the Mississippi Aggies, 46-0, while Georgia Tech trimmed Tulane, 12 to 0.

DAILY DOPE

By LARRY DAILEY

THE AUTUMN LEAVES are tumbling down no faster than the football teams. The so-called "big" elevens have been playing only two or three weeks, and the mortality in defeats already is heavy. Usual upsets, if they are to be called that, occurred last Saturday, although in a majority of games the elevens were about equal strength and a victory either way in many contests was to be expected.

◇ ◇ ◇

Southern Methodist university Mustangs, who scored a "moral victory" the previous week by holding Army 14-13, was fought to a 6-0 score by Simmons, a "moral victory" for the Cowboys. The Ponies did not open up with their dazzling aerial attack in the game here, however. Too, they appeared still suffering the effects of the gruelling affair with the Cadets and their play lacked snap and precision. A second touchdown scored by the Methodists was not allowed. Still, this is not detracting from the fine football played by Simmons, who in fact probably was a more formidable foe than anticipated by S. M. U. The Cowboys fought gallantly and well, as only a well-coached and good football team will.

◇ ◇ ◇

THREE TEXAS members of the Southwest conference were defeated Saturday, in two intersectional and one conference game. Arkansas trounced Baylor, rather an upset. Texas lost to Vanderbilt and Aggies were beaten by Centenary in close games that could have gone either way and occasioned no lifting of the eyebrows. Texas Christians beat Austin college and Rice rallied from its defeat the previous week by St. Edward's to trim Trinity. Texas Tech defeated St. Edward's in the state's outstanding game in which a conference team was not involved.

◇ ◇ ◇

NOTRE DAME "came back" following its rout by Wisconsin to trim Navy in a game viewed by more than 100,000 at Chicago and Yale repulsed an invasion of Georgia, avenging a defeat of last year, in outstanding intersectional battles of the day. Georgia Teach beat Tulane in the feature game of the day in the South. Kentucky showed a reversal of form by trouncing Washington and Lee.

◇ ◇ ◇

BIG TEN GAMES resulted very much as anticipated, although all of course were hard fought. Indiana defeated Michigan, something unknown by the present generation of football fans. Iowa, led by a great Indian back, Mayes McLain, turned back Chicago. Ohio State beat a mediocre Northwestern team. Minnesota was victor over Purdue.

◇ ◇ ◇

Missouri administered a severe lacing to Centre, Nebraska whaled Montana State and Creighton decisively defeated Oklahoma Aggies in the Missouri Valley district. Washington and Kansas, who tied 21-21 last year, played another no-decision contest last week, this one 7-7. Grinnell sprang something of an upset by booting a field goal to beat Iowa State. Creighton anhilated Oklahoma Aggies. Drake defeated Marquette.

◇ ◇ ◇

HARD-FOUGHT GAMES and some upsets featured a noteworthy day of football in the east. Virginia held Princeton to a scoreless tie. Bucknell upset Penn State. Harvard beat North Carolina. New York U. trounced Fordham. Penn crushed Swarthmore. Duquesne surprised by beating Washington and Jefferson and West Virginia confounded the critics by trimming Pittsburgh. Williams beat Bowdoin. Army toyed with Providence. Columbia trimmed Wesleyan. Holy Cross sprang a surprise and overwhelmed Rutgers, 46-0. Colgate bested Virginia Poly. Cornell outscored Hampden-Sidney. Gettysburg beat Lehigh. Dayton gave Brown a scare in a 13-7 loss. Dartmouth won with ease from Allegheny.

◇ ◇ ◇

THEY PLAYED to form out in the far west. Oregon ran up a 36-6 count on Willamette. California beat Washington State, 13-3. Stanford routed California (Los Angeles) by a topheavy count.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14 (AP).—Many New York big game hunters, who prefer to stalk deer and moose before cold weather, go to Canada for the season opening Sept. 15.

BIG TEN TITLE IS OPEN AFFAIR

Six Teams Still Remain as Contenders in Race

By CHARLES W. DUNKLEY

CHICAGO, Oct. 14. (AP)—Emerging victorious in opening battles involving the western conference gridiron championship, Minnesota, Indiana, Ohio state and Iowa are brewing poison for other title contenders, judging from performances in initial combats yesterday.

A better lineup of Indiana's strength will be available Saturday when the Hoosiers battle Illinois, defending champions, at Urbana. Wisconsin will take on Purdue at Lafayette. The two contests will be the standout attractions, involving championship rating.

The other two Big Ten games on the schedule bring together Michigan and Ohio state in one of their "traditional" affairs at Columbus, with Chicago tangling with the rough Minnesota boys at Minneapolis. Northwestern and Iowa will take time out from conference activity. The Purple will take the field against Kentucky at Evanston, while Ripon is figured to give Iowa a workout at Iowa City.

Analyzing yesterday's games, the sideline experts figure that Michigan, Chicago and Purdue were decisively outplayed, but that Northwestern was victim of costly fumbles.

Ohio State had three opportunities to score and seized two of them, bagging a 10 to 0 victory. The Buckeyes's vaunted backfield, figured to tear the Northwestern forward wall to pieces, did nothing of the sort, but Ohio was alert to take advantage of the fumbles which opened the gateway to scoring opportunities.

It took Indiana 28 years to score a single point against Michigan but the Hoosiers scored a touchdown and made it stick for a 6 to 0 triumph.

Iowa defeated Chicago, 13 to 0, by virtue of a superior backfield, with Mayes McLain, a Cherokee Indian, at fullback the impelling force. Chief McLain and his warriors struck with the suddeness of an Indian uprising requiring only eight plays to score their first touchdown and six to chalk up the second.

The Maroons vainly tried for the remaining three periods to find out what had happened.

Minnesota, in walloping Purdue, 15 to 0, revealed the same grinding power that made it feared a year ago. In Nagurski, the Gophers profess to have a full back worthy of being compared with Joesting. He crashed through the line seemingly as he pleased.

Purdue's great threat, "Pest" Welch, failed to get away on his long gallops. If one Minnesota tackler missed him, another caught up with him.

Illinois acquired a little more polish yesterday in scoring a victory over Coe, while Wisconsin engaged in nothing more than practice by smothering Cornell college, using only reserves.

LaCoste Quits Tennis For Study of Motors

PATERSON, N. J., Oct. 14 (INS)—Forsaking tennis for the business of airplane production, Rene Lacoste, French tennis star, is here for two months studying the production of Wright whirlwind motors at the Wright company's Paterson plant.

LaCoste, whose father is president of the Societe Francaise Hispana Suiza, is particularly interested in the business administration of the plant. He and Louis Burkigt, an engineer, plan to go through the entire Wright plant, studying every angle of the business. At the end of two months, they plan to return to France and put their experience to practical use.

Lacoste said that he would not play tennis during his visit to the United States.

GEORGE RAPS NAVAL PACT

War-Time Premier Voices Disapproval

YARMOUTH, Oct. 14 (US)—In tones mounting almost to fury at times, David Lloyd George, England's war-time premier, voiced his denunciation of the Anglo-French naval agreement when addressing the convention of the British Liberals here tonight.

He declared he could see no other purpose in the pact except an arrangement made against America, and in a lesser degree against Italy. This antagonizing of the great powers—America and Italy in particular—was scathingly criticized by the Liberal leader.

He thundered at his audience:

"To have antagonized Italy was the height of folly. But to have antagonized the United States was sheer madness.

"The peace of the world depends on a good understanding between Great Britain and the great commonwealth of America."

Lloyd George added that the allies had done absolutely nothing about disarmament, which was agreed to in the treaty of Versailles. He declared that accord was coming, as a result, to be nothing more than a scrap of paper.

At the time of the failure of the Coolidge disarmament conference at Geneva last year—resulting in the resignation of Viscount Cecil of Chelwood from the Baldwin cabinet, and the appointment of the impetuous Lord Cushenden as his successor—Lloyd George took up the cudgel against European armaments. In unmistakable terms, he charged the governments of Europe with being more heavily armed than ever before, and asserted such a policy would inevitably lead to another world war.

SPLITTING AN "EIGHT"

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 14 (AP)—Quite a trick but it can be done. Larry Stone, veteran race driver and local repair shop owner, turns one aviation "eight" motor into two "four" auto race motors.

57,900 CIGARETTES CRUSHED BY IOWA WOMEN'S UNION

IOWA CITY, Iowa, Oct. 14. (US)—During the past year Iowa Women Christian Temperance union members crushed 57,000 cigarette stubs, members proudly reported at the annual convention here.

AROUND THE RING

By CHARLES W. DUNKLEY

CHICAGO, Oct. 14 (AP).—Good comes from evil—and, in the case of Joe Dundee, welterweight champion of the world, large profits, in cash money, follows his knockout defeats.

When Young Jack Thompson toppled Dundee over in two rounds, the victim of a technical knockout in Chicago a few days ago, the champion collected only $7,500, a mere pittance in these days of high finance in the fist fight business, especially where champions are concerned. Dundee retained his prized championship only because he forced Thompson to come in a pound over the welterweight limit.

Now, Dundee finds himself matched with Thompson for the second time with the prospects of collecting in the neighborhood of $35,000 or $45,000 if the gate comes up to anticipations. They will battle with the title at stake in Madison Square Garden, Nov. 16.

Dundee has been flattened twice since he became a top notcher, with the knockouts gaining him richer purses. He went out to San Francisco in September, 1926, to battle Eddie Roberts and to the astonishment of the boxing world was knocked out in one round. He received $7,500 for that engagement while Roberts, regarded as a push-over, got only $500.

Within the month Dundee took his conqueror to New York for a battle in Madison Square Garden and defeated him after getting knocked down early in the contest. Dundee this time collected around $10,000, a net gain of $2,500 over the purse when he was knocked stiff. He will show another profit when he tangles with Thompson, called the nearest approach to Joe Gans, in New York next month.

New York is the only spot on the fistic map that has always seen the Baltimore Italian in his most thrilling battles. When he fights away from New York anything is likely to happen, and does. When he went to Milwaukee in 1926 to box Pinkey Mitchell he was chased out of the ring after clinching and tugging for six rounds and his purse of $10,000 still remains in litigation.

In New York, however, he appears to fight with an altogether different spirit. It was in Madison Square Garden that he succeeded in knocking out Mickey Walker when the Jersey Bill Dog was standing up under all sorts of competition. It was Walker's first knockout defeat since he joined the ranks of first raters.

Sammy Mandell, world's lightweight champion, convalescing in his home at Rockford, Ill., while his broken collar bone mends, regards Jimmy Goodrich, the Buffalo warrior, and one time lightweight titleholder, as his only jinx.

Mandell got the fracture while engaging Goodrich in Flint, Mich., in a non-titular bout. It was the second time he had lost to Goodrich, through a technicality. The other defeat on his record of more than 180 bouts was to Goodrich in New York in 1925 on a foul.

The heavyweight marathon is on again, with young men with power in their arms and concrete in their chins climbing up the ladder to reach the place vacated by Gene Tunney. Mike Gibbons, known as the St. Paul Phantom, has joined the chase with an entry named Jimmy Gibbons.

Mike, now prospering in the insurance business in St. Paul, cannot get boxing out of his blood so he picked up his heavyweight prospect to develop. Gibbons, speaking the language of all managers, insists his new find will blow a hole right through the army of ambitious heavyweights.

"He is just 19," says Mike, "but give him a coupe of years and he will be ready. He can box, he is fast and he can punch. He won his last two fights by knockouts which convinced me that he has the old sock."

Benny Friedman's Team Beats Yankees, 35 to 12

NEW YORK, Oct. 14 (AP).—Benny Friedman's Detroit team of the National Professional Football league, defeated the New York Yankees today, 35 to 12. Friedman scored two touchdowns and kicked three points after touchdown.

Man Finds Himself in Box Car 1100 Miles From Home After Party

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 14. (AP)—Nearly six days without food or drink, Samuel Murray, 23, of Coffeyville, Kan., has ended an unscheduled journey of 1,150 miles here semi-conscious and in a state of collapse.

Murray, hauled out of a boxcar in the Pennsylvania railroad yards by railroad detectives and revived at a hospital, said he had attended a party in Coffeyville Saturday night. He dimly recalled that later he found himself in a railroad yard there and that he had crawled into an open boxcar.

Hours later, he said, he was awakened by the clicking of the wheels over the rails. He felt his way around the car and found the door. But all his efforts to escape proved futile, during the days that followed he tried unavailingly to attract the attention of the train crew.

After Murray was revived he was taken to a police station and then, on advice of a police surgeon, sent to the Philadelphia general hospital.

COLLEGE NOTE

Co-Eds and Non-Fraternity Men Are Best Scholars

CHICAGO, Oct. 14.—Co-eds and non-fraternity men at Northwestern excelled the fraternity men in scholarship during the last semester, according to Miss Katharine George, registrar.

Twenty-two sororities had an average of 1.5 against 1.2 for 21 fraternities. Men students not fraternity members averaged 1.3.

Alpha Chi Omega led the sororities with an average of 1.8 while Kappa Phi Gamma led the men students with 1.7.

Nicaraguan Leader May Take Up Golf

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Oct. 14. (AP)—President Adolfo Diaz has become interested in golf since the marines and members of the American electoral mission introduced the game into Nicaragua.

At the close of a tournament in which several Nicaraguans as well as Americans participated, President Diaz presented the prizes to the winners and at the same time expressed a desire to take up the game.

The nine-hole course at Quinta Nina, near here, is crowded all day and a marine enlisted man who, when he is off duty, acts as professional, has many pupils. He says a number of Nicaraguans who are receiving instruction show a natural aptitude for the game.

KISSING OFTEN PROVES DEADLY

Physician Declares Mouth Transfers Disease

By W. F. SULLIVAN

CHICAGO, Oct. 14. (UP) — In some parts of Africa the natives manifest affection for friends by spitting on them, an uncouth and unclean practice to say the least, but the American lip to lip osculation is as dangerous in the spread of disease, Dr. W. W. Peter of New York said in an interview today.

The mouth, the said, is the most dangerous medium of spreading disease, and should be "policed" at all times.

"Of course there are lots of things that can be said in favor of kissing," Dr. Peter, who attends the convention of the American Public health association next week, told the United Press. "Whatever may be said favorably, however, is offset by its danger to health.

"In Africa some of the natives do not kiss each other but they rub noses. If either party is infected with a cold that is bad. Some of the natives manifest approval or affection of persons by spitting on them.

Pentalty of Bravery

"Probably all will recall war pictures taken in France, where soldiers receiving medals were penalized for their bravery by the double kiss."

In listing a number of means of "policing" to prevent live germs from entering the mouth, Dr. Peter warned "not to be a handshaker."

"Too many persons sit down to eat their food after shaking hands with others without washing," he said. "Bread and other foods are placed in the mouth by the hand. If one wants to be a handshaker, let him get acquainted with bars of soap.

"Even in China, where cholera and other diseases are spread through uncleanliness, the Chinese are wise enough to shake their own hands and then bow their greeting."

"Each individual should erect a barrier of cleanliness around himself" the doctor continued. "Persons affected with colds should not cough or sneeze in the immediate presence of others without checking the bacteria with a handkerchief. Those unaffected should avoid those infected.

Deadly Infections

In 1925, statistics showed, that of 270,786 deaths were caused by respirational disorders, doctors found 212,222 of the cases were caused by infections received through the mouth.

Dr. Peter told of the public pools in Algiers where families bathed and drank the same water.

"You do almost as bad in Chicago, however," he added. 'You have the money to spend to cleanse your water, which makes the only difference. Five million dollars is spent for a sewage system. All water, including Lake Michigan is polluted and then you spend another $5,080,000 to clean out the pollution."

LAUGHS PRESCRIBED BY TEXAS DOCTOR

CHICAGO, Oct. 14. (US)—Health can be built through laughter, Dr. J. W. Torbett, of Marlin, Texas, told 1,500 members of the American College of Physical Therapy meeting in convention here.

"I know a woman given up by doctors who lived 66 years," Dr. Torbett said. "At the age of 37 she had a severe gall bladder operation and was told she could not live.

"She decided to be as happy as possibe in each remaining day and set out visiting friends and otherwise enjoying life. Within two years, she was pronounced 'cured' and lived beyond her 103 birthday."

Beaumont Men Named Immigration Officials

BEAUMONT, Texas, Oct. 14. (AP)—Horace C. Blades, deputy clerk of the United States district court here, and J. C. Abernathy, deputy marshal, have been appointed members of a board of inquiry to act in determining the status of immigration cases.

The board will sit on cases of illegal entry to the country, many of which arise in this seaport.

Memphis Nazarene Revival Opens Oct. 17

Special to The Record News.

MEMPHIS, Texas, Oct. 14.—The Naxarene church of this city will begin its annual fall revival Oct. 17 and continue through Oct. 28, according to its pastor, the Rev. M. M. Short.

The meeting will be conducted by a revival party which includes the Rev. J. C. Hafley of Durant, Okla., as minister; Roscoe C. Carrell of Ada, Okla., pianist, and Jack and Ruby Carter of Peniel, Texas, who will have charge of the music.

Cotton Sold for $218 Near San Angelo

SAN ANGELO, Texas, Oct. 14. (AP)—Cotton brought as high as $218 per bale and other articles sold in proportion when auctioned off at St. Anthony's school, recently completed, about ten miles from San Angelo on the Eola road.

John Dorotic bought the record bale of cotton, paying 40 cents per pound for a 545 pound bale. This was about 22 to 23 cents above the prevailing price.

TAXES JUMP ON ROAD ROUTE

Five Counties Seek Better Maintenance

ALPINE, Texas, Oct. 14. (AP)—The rise in tax values in five counties along through which the Petroleum highway, running from Tulsa, Okla., to Mexico, via Alpine and Presidio, in the last five years totaled $40,239,876, according to figures recently compiled and presented to the state highway department in an effort to secure better maintenance of this road.

Present valuation of the five counties are as follows: Upton $7,570,000; Reagan, $12,500,000; Irion, $3,100,000; Pecos, $26,500,000; Tom Green, $20,000,000; a total of $69,850,000. All of these are oil producing counties. In addition both Brewster and Presidio counties have shown a marked increase in valuations.

Heavy travel passes over this road, especially in the oil field section. A recent counting shows that 180 vehicles passed a given point in the road in Reagan county in 24 hours. It is believed that the Petroleum highway will prove one of the most popular routes in West Texas when improvements now being planned are completed.

Pecos county, north of Brewster, has recently voted bonds to pave its part of the road to the Brewster county line. The road from Alpine to the county line is already a well maintained highway. It is believed that the towns along the route north of here will benefit greatly when the road is completed, as many tourists coming into the highland section over the Mexican border road will take the route from here to points north.

Dispatches from Austin state that the highway commission has promised to do some extensive work on the Petroleum highway through the five counties named and have ordered machinery assembled to grade a 100-foot road through the oil district.

CROWDS WAIT ZEPP IN VAIN

Dirigible Expected at Lakehurst Today

don and bearings by local wireless from here. There were no messages from the airship. Heading west, the zeppelin disappeared in the distance.

Great excitement had prevailed here all day long since it was known that the giant dirigible was heading for Bermuda and was expected to pass here early in the morning. When it disappeared, flying slowly, it was going in the general direction of Lakehurst.

LAKEHURST, N. J., Oct. 14. (AP)—In the first direct communication to the naval air station, Lieut. Commander Charles E. Rosendahl passenger aboard the Graf Zeppelin, tonight wirelessed that the craft at 5:15 p. m. eastern standard time was 10 miles southwest of Bermuda on a course for Lakehurst.

"Probably not arrive before afternoon Monday."

THOUSAND WAIT FOR ARRIVAL

NAVAL AIR STATION, LAKEHURST, N. J., Oct. 14. (AP)—Thousands of persons waited in vain all day long for a sight of the transatlantic Graf Zeppelin.

In late afternoon, with arrival time estimates ranging from 11 o'clock tonight to well into tomorrow, the crowds began to disperse, clogging the roads with cars and giving marines and state troopers such a traffic problem as they had faced only in dreams.

There were a few authentic reports of the progress of the zeppelin but these were far outnumbered by the countless rumors that sprang from nowhere and spread everywhere.

Winds Hurt Progress

A wireless intercepted at Norfolk which did more than anything else to start the waiting crowds homeward reported that adverse winds had held progress down to almost nothing and that the zeppelin still was in the vicinity of Bermuda at noon.

The more optimistic however, gave full credence to a rumor reputedly from a source close to unnamed powers said to have the zeppelin's speed under control. This rumor was that the ship was being idled out of sight off the American coast and would slide into Lakehurst for a mooring at 11 o'clock tonight.

Believers in this rumor hung doggedly on, crowding the hangar where the navy dirigible Los Angeles awaited its big young sister from across the seas and the field prepared for the reception of the visitor.

Germans on Hand

Among the crowd today were high officials of the German diplomatic service, Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the bureau of aeronautics, and Grover Whalen, representing Mayor James J. Walker of New York.

Although it had been generally hoped that the zeppelin would arrive in the daylight hours of today there was no anxiety caused by its non-appearance.

A shadow of irritation hung over parts of the air station headquarters today, some of the officers feeling that as the zeppelin was coming here to berth more effort should have been made to communicate directly progressive positions and estimated time of arrival.

It was said that station operators picked up the dirigible by wireless this morning but that in reply to requests for information on position and arrival time the ship replied that it was "too busy sending press" to answer the questions.

Reticent to Reply

Capt. E. S. Jackson, commandant of the air station, then dispatched a wireless to the dirigible at noon, stressing the importance of his having the information requested, information necessary to his plans for landing the ship. Hours later no reply had been received.

One high naval official, who came here to help greet the zeppelin, expressed annoyance in an interview over the failure of the ship to reply to communications from Lakehurst, but asked that his name not be connected with the remarks.

He said he learned that after a message had been sent to the officers of the ship and had gone unacknowledged, another message was addressed to Lieut. Commander C. E. Rosendahl, captain of the Los Angeles, who is making the trip as an invited guest. This also failed to draw any reply.

"We shall show the Graf Zeppelin every courtesy," the naval official said, "and accord them every service regardless of the time of day or night they come in."

Among those waiting for the Graf Zeppelin were a score or more of airship designers and engineers formerly engaged at Friedrichshafen and now working at the Goodyear Zeppelin factory at Akron, Ohio.

CRIPPLED FIN HOLDS SPEED DOWN

NEW YORK, Oct. 15. (US)—Forced to a snail's pace by her crippled port fin and still headwinds, the Graf Zeppelin unexpectedly veered south to the Bermudas this afternoon.

This maneuver was made in the hope of finding a favoring air current, according to a radiogram from the ship.

Radiograms from Berlin confirmed reports that the mammoth balloon, instead of speeding toward Lakehurst, as expected, had encountered fresh difficulties with her damaged port "horizontal."

This huge vane controls the vertical posture of the zeppelin. Its covering was ripped off in a squall in midocean. In order to attempt to repair it Knuit Eckener, son of Dr. Hugo Eckener, and an aide, climbed out on the fin in a blinding rain with ropes lashed to their waists.

Job Takes Two Hours

This scene was repeated early Sunday morning, according to the radiograms to Berlin and relayed to the United States. Again the zeppelin's adventurous crew was obliged to crawl along the slender "cat-walk" while the balloon's equilibrum was in danger of being upset.

For two hours, said the Berlin radio, the Graf Zeppelin's crew worked to complete the repair job.

By that time headwinds had been increasing, and the morale of the zep's 20 passengers was beginning to suffer from their long confinement.

At noon the position of the Graf Zeppelin was about 80 miles east by north of Bermuda. The dirigible was steering 15 miles south of the Bermudas in the hope of catching a following wind.

The radiogram disclosing the exact position of the zeppelin completely upset plans for her reception at Lakehurst, N. J., where many thousands had gathered under smiling skies in the hope that in the afternoon the zeppelin's gray snout would appear on the horizon.

It was believed the airship could not make her hangar before early tomorrow. The Bermudas are about 750 miles on an air line from Lakehurst. With a favoring air current, the dirigible could pick up greater speed and might attain from 70 to 85 miles an hour.

Holds Speed Down

It seemed to be indicated, however, that because of the crippled fin, Dr. Eckener hesitated to drive the monster flying machine into a headwind.

That these winds would prevail until dusk Sunday had been the prediction Saturday of Dr. James H. Kimball, New York government weather forecaster.

At 1:52 p. m. (New York time) the 20 passengers and 60 members of the crew of the Graf Zeppelin had been restricted to the narrow, although luxurious, quarters of her huge cabin for 84 hours.

They had expected to reach Lakehurst and descend in triumph from the great balloon at noon today.

Now, it appears, their voyage from Friedrichshafen, Germany, which was begun at 1:52 a. m. (New York time) Thursday, may consume 96 hours or more. At 5:52 a. m. tomorrow 100 hours would have elapsed.

The zeppelin was fueled for 126 hours. This fuel consisted of the much-praised "blau" gas, almost as light as air, and an emergency mixture of benzol and benzine. Adverse winds would exhaust her fuel more rapidly.

C. of C. Nominating Committee to Meet

Another meeting of the nominating committee of the chamber of commerce to select 20 nominees for the 1929 board of directors will be held next Friday night, Dr. Everett Jones, chairman, announced Sunday. The committee will name 20 from whom five will be elected next January.

Dr. Jones said the committee is making an exhaustive survey of the chamber's membership to determine the names for presentation to the organization. He said while the committee has held one preliminary meeting it is not likely selection of the nominees will be made Friday.

Today { At the Theaters

MAJESTIC: Bebe Daniels in "Take Me Home." Comedy. Fables. Topics. Paramount newsreel.

STRAND: Clara Bow in "Wings." Two special vitaphone shorts. Pathe newsreel.

MISSION: Rex, king of wild horses, in "Guardian of the Wild." Century comedy.

GARDEN: "Law of the Range." Comedy.

GEM: "When the Law Rides." Comedy.

Last time Mullen's Musical Maids left the Mission theater the Dent company had tough luck for a fire came along less than a week later and closed the house for the summer. If Benny "Rabbit" Reed does as well in pleasing Wichitans as he has done in the past (and he should do better for he has a world of friends here), it seems as though Manager Charley Moorehead ought to keep the company and good luck at the theater all winter. They will open Saturday.

◇ ◇ ◇

A sailor story from dear old Frisco town is told in "The Waterfront," the starring piece for Dorothy Mackaill and Jack Mulhall now at the Olympic. Here's hoping no native of Frisco reads the preceding sentence, for out there they go wild when anyone is so plebeian as to speak of their beloved "San Francisco" as "Frisco."

◇ ◇ ◇

There used to be a song "Horses," and the tune went up and down in comedy fashion. These days it seems all the horses are on the screen. It is certain the song is gone and also that horses are not on the streets This is by way of saying that Rex, the king of wild horses, is being starred at the Mission in "Guardian of the Wild."

◇ ◇ ◇

Over at the Majestic, Hans Smith announces the first of the regular five-act vaudeville shows of the season to open Thursday. The two preceding Keith Orpheum Interstate shows this season have been "unit" shows. Mr. Smith is happy at the return of the program of five acts of vaudeville, for there hasn't been anything like that since last season. Headlining that act is Jack Carson in an act called "Sidekicks," and Ethel Davis, formerly of the Greenwich Village Follies, is seen and heard in "Comedy Song Chatter." It starts Thursday. The show will also include a feature film, comedy and newsreel.

theater, is still in its first run in New York at the Criterion theater. The picture is in its 62nd week there and is playing at $2 a seat. The New York run is developing into one of the longest in motion picture history.

Bebe Daniels, never hard to take, any way you look at it, is at the Majestic theater in "Take Me Home," a title which every flapper probably will recognize as having a strangely realistic ring in real life.

◇ ◇ ◇

Colleen Moore, different in type to Bebe Daniels, but just as easy to look at, is coming to the Majestic Saturday.

◇ ◇ ◇

One of the outstanding organists of this part of the country has been announced by Charlie Moorehead as coming to the Olympic theater Sunday, Oct. 21, to play a long engagement here. The gigantic Wurlitzer organ is being rebuilt so that the new artist will have on of the best instruments in the country on which to play.

Train Kills Two Wichitans

mangled, it was reported. Mrs. Camp sustained a crushed skull, and Riley suffered a deep gash in the right side.

The bodies were taken in charge at Henrietta by the Merkle Undertaking company, and were brought to Wichita Falls. It was not until late in the afternoon that Mrs. Camp was identified.

Mr. Riley, according to his oldest son, J. W. Riley, left home Sunday morning about 10 o'clock without telling members of the family where he was going.

Mr. Riley was the son of S. R. Riley, dairyman, who lives about five miles from Wichita Falls on the Burkburnett road. He was a carpenter. Besides his wife, his father, and his son, J. W., he is survived by two brothers, J. R. Riley of Wichita Falls; and R. L. Riley of Dalhart; two sisters, Mrs. A. J. Holder and Mrs. D. D. Douglas, both of Wichita Falls, and six other children: Ruth 13, Nellie 11, Novis 16, Beatrice 4, Lonnie Jr., 2, and a three-month-old baby girl.

Mrs. Camp, for the last three or four years, had been head of the pleating and alteration department of the Wichita Cleaning and Dye Works, according to H. R. Hanks, general manager. She is survived by her mother, two brothers and two sisters, of Memphis, Tenn.; a brother in California; a son, Conrad Beasley, in the navy, who is stationed at the Philadelphia navy yard; a daughter, Mrs. J. F. Lowe of Fort Worth; and a brother-in-law, Fred Teubert, who lives here. The daughter from Fort Worth was expected to arrive here late Sunday night.

Funeral arrangements for the victims had not been completed Sunday night.

RETURN FOR FAIR

Mr. and Mrs. Ray A. Luck, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Miller and A. F. Hall returned Sunday from Dallas, where they attended the state fair over the week-end.

SOUSA'S BAND ON 36TH TOUR

Noted Director Starts Concert 'On Time'

John Philip Sousa, who will be here with his band for concerts in the Wichita Falls Memorial auditorium Wednesday afternoon and night, is heralded in advance notices as being one band director who starts his concerts at the announced hour.

The present trip of the band marks Sousa's 36th annual tour at the head of the organization of 100 soloists and musicians.

For 12 years before he became director of his own organization, Sousa directed the United States Marine band. It was during the Marine band period that he became schooled in the military theory that promptness is among the cardinal virtues with the result that not more than once or twice a season does the exact minute upon which a concert is scheduled to begin fail to find Sousa on the conductor's stand.

"The way to begin a concert is to begin it," says Sousa.

"Certainly one owes a greater degree of consideration to the one who has arrived on time than to the late comer, so unless circumstances are exceptional I insist that my concerts begin at the advertised hour."

Especial attention has been called by Shrine officials to the fact that the afternoon matinee, intended primarily for school children, starts at 3 o'clock.

The speech in Chicago will be made Friday night. What the governor will disclose in this and his Sedalia address have not been disclosed.

BELIEVES TARIFF NOW OUT OF POLITICS

HODGENVILLE, Ky., Oct. 14 (UP)—Gov. Alfred E. Smith went 72 miles down into Kentucky today to visit the boyhood log cabin home of Abraham Lincoln, preserved now as a shrine and encased in a marble hall.

After attending church at the cathedral in Louisville, he gathered the members of his party for the afternoon train trip to pay respects at the remodeled humble home where Lincoln ran and played at the age of 12.

The Democratic presidential nominee carried with him many telegrams of congratulations upon his speech delivered at the Louisville armory Saturday night, condemning the Republican tariff system and advocating a policy for making tariff rates through a non-partisan commission of economic experts.

The governor thought his speech laid down a new tariff doctrine for the Democratic party, which would take the tariff issue forever out of politics.

His receptions have far exceeded his expectations and he thinks his trip has entirely justified his position that the southern trip was unnecessary. He made it only upon the demands of his campaign managers who felt that the states he has visited were in danger.

J. F. Riggs Visits Here

J. F. Riggs and wife, former Wichitans now living at Amarillo, were the house guests Sunday night of E. H. Yager of 705 Eleventh street. Mr. Riggs was in the clothing business here for many years. He and his wife stopped here on their way to Dallas.

A gigantic, red, white and blue poster with a closeup of Gov. Alfred E. Smith has been received at the county Democratic headquarters in the Hamilton building and will be taken out to adorn the stage for all future speakings, according to Edgar Scurry, county Democratic chairman.

OKLAHOMA FOR HOOVER, HE SAYS

L. C. Plemons of Frederick, Okla., a Wichita Falls visitor Sunday, said if Gov. Alfred E. Smith failed to carry Texas in his battle for the presidency that the governor was defeated. "Hoover will carry Oklahoma by a big majority," said Mr. Plemons.

RAZOR WIELDERS STAY NEUTRAL

K. C. Spell says that he is running a barber shop for both Democrats and Republicans, but that it looks as though Gov. Alfred E. Smith will have to gain considerably if he is to win.

DEMOCRATIC WOMEN WORK FOR SMITH

"Everything is looking steadily better," is the optimistic word from Mrs. W. P. Smith, county Democrat leader for women. The women are putting their shoulders to the wheel and are doing some good work in the precincts," she said. "You can't beat the good Democratic women of Wichita Falls."

HOUSTON COP ARRESTS SUSPECT

HOUSTON, Oct. 14. (AP)—A negro suspect was being questioned by police last night in connection with an attack on Mrs. A. R. Hassenpflug of Elm Grove, near Gainesville, last Monday.

The suspect was arrested by a city detective after arrival of Sheriff Jake Wright of Gainesville, who has continued a state-wide search for the negro.

The negro, police announced, fits the description of the attacker.

Sheriff Wright said a negro cotton picker, being transferred in a car by Mrs. Hassenflugh from one field to another, felled her with a half gallon water jug, attacked her and then almost severed her tongue with a piece of glass or a knife.

It was learned that the negro probably will be taken to Elm Grove where Mrs. Hassenflug still is in a serious condition, in an attempt at establishing definitely whether the right man is held.

RICH PRINCES CONFER TODAY

Powerful Indian Maharajahs To Lay Plans

LONDON, Oct. 14 (AP).—Rich and powerful Indian Maharajahs, whose treasure houses bulge with jewels and whose glittering palaces are often like dream buildings in an enchanted land, will assemble here tomorrow for diplomatic and political negotiations. The meeting is regarded as one of the most important Anglo-Indian conferences in the history of Britain's dominion over India.

Out of it all may come a federated India, a united states of India, but with little likelihood of it being called that.

While the Simon commission, composed of Englishmen, is in India studying the problem of Indian self-government, these picturesque Indian potentates have come to London to confer on questions of deep importance to the British empire, the relationship of their almost independent monarchies to the paramount power, the British crown.

These sovereigns are the ruling princes, a number of the most prominent of whom are now in London. They include the Maharajah of Patiala, chancellor of the chamber of princes; the Nawab of Shopal, the Maharao of Cutch and the Maharajah of Kashimir.

The princes acknowledge King George as suzerain, but neither they nor their people are British subjects. The British parliament in Westminster cannot legislate for them. The king's writ does not run in their land.
