Riots In Warsaw

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Violence broke out again today in downtown Warsaw as police dispersed a jeering crowd of youths in front of the main gate of Warsaw University.

For more than two hours several thousand persons lined the streets fronting the university. Youths chanted "Gestapo, Gestapo" at passing police cars and pushed into the busy boulevard, blocking traffic.

Rocks flew through the air as police moved in to disperse them.

A group of teen - age boys assembled on the steps of a church across the street and shouted insults and threw rocks at helmeted police and plainclothes auxiliaries.

It was the third outbreak of violence in Warsaw since student demonstrations began last Friday.

Trencheon - swinging police charged into the youths massed on the steps of the church and were met with a shower of rocks.

Backing from policemen, the youths ran for shelter into the church and shut the two big oak doors. The police did not enter the church.

The doors opened every few minutes and youths hopped out to throw bricks and other objects at passing policemen.

A battle line was formed, with the police ringing the church and the youth holed up inside. Police auxiliaries kept passersby away from the church.

ROMANIAN DIPLOMAT AND WIFE GREETED — C. T. McLaughlin, left, was on hand to greet Ambassador and Mrs. Corneliu Bogdan of Romania here Sunday. The Romanian diplomat and his wife visited here briefly following participation in a world affairs conference at Texas Tech.

Top Diplomat Of Romania Visits Snyder

By WACIL NcNAIR

If you were commissioned to show a visitor from Europe — one from a country in the Soviet bloc — a typical community in the Southwestern United States, where would you take him?

Officials of Texas Technological College had that assignment Sunday, and they brought their guest to Snyder.

The guest on the impromptu visit was Corneliu Bogdan, Romanian Ambassador to the United States. Ambassador Bogdan participated in a conference on International Affairs, which closed Saturday on the Tech Campus. The Romanian expressed a desire to remain a day longer and to visit some of West Texas outside of Lubbock. Mrs. Bogdan accompanied her husband on the trip.

Dr. Grover Murray contacted C. T. McLaughlin, long identified with Texas Tech and a former member of its board. A brief but busy visit was arranged and Ambassador Bogdan, his wife and several representatives of Texas Tech, along with Mr. and Mrs. Retha Martin of Lubbock, were guests at an informal luncheon hosted by Mr. and Mrs. McLaughlin at the Snyder Country Club. This was followed by a short visit to the Diamond M Museum.

Those from Texas Tech who accompanied the ambassador to Snyder were Dr. Murray, president, and his wife; Bill Parsley, vice president for development, and his wife; Mrs. Jean Baker, assistant to the president; and Dr. Idris Rhea Traylor Jr., professor of history, who organized the Conference on International Affairs, which this year dealt with Eastern Europe.

There was little or no politics in the conversation. In a brief interview, however, Ambassador Bogdan observed that rapid changes have swept the world in recent years and that all people have many things in common.

The one big responsibility that all people share, he said, is that "we have to preserve the world."

Keenly interested in travel, Ambassador Bogdan said he had been able to visit several areas of the United States during the eight months he has headed his country's diplomatic staff in Washington.

Desegregated Prison Rule Is Upheld

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court upheld unanimously today a federal court order that Alabama desegregate all prison facilities within the state.

Alabama's contentions that its laws requiring segregation in prisons and jails are not unconstitutional "are without merit," the court said in a brief unsigned opinion.

Additionally, the decision turned down Alabama's contention that the desegregation order makes no allowance for necessities of prison security and discipline.

The desegregation order was given in December 1966 by a three-judge federal court in Montgomery as it ruled unconstitutional an Alabama law requiring segregation of state, county and city jails.

The Supreme Court held up the ordered desegregation in March for consideration by an appeal by state and Birmingham prison officials.

Alabama officials argued that segregation helps maintain prison discipline and security, that racial strife might erupt in jails if the state was forced to desegregate its prison system.

Additionally, they argued a prisoner loses his right to select his associates and that the Alabama law did not violate the federal constitution.

Huge Texas Area Is Lashed Today By Near Blizzard

The Snyder area was in the path of a near - blizzard this morning as blowing snow swept southward out of the Texas Panhandle.

Although temperatures were just hovering around the freezing mark, the heavy fall of snow piled up on the ground and caused slush on streets and highways.

The official gauge in Snyder had logged .12 inch of moisture by 7 a.m. and the wet, clinging snow was adding more by the hour.

As much as seven inches of snow had been reported late this morning in the Panhandle and South Plains areas, with drifts two to three feet.

The snow lightened during the day in the Panhandle but dipped farther into the South Plains with accumulations of up to five inches expected in the southwest portion of Northwest Texas.

In other turbulent weather, rains of more than three inches fell throughout much of the state with flash flooding of some rivers, and hail caused damage here and there.

An outbreak of weather-related deaths occurred.

Gary Van Moore, 15, of Coahoma died today when his car and a locomotive collided during a blinding snowstorm at Coahoma.

A man with papers listing the name of Gene Edward Schwegel, 25, died when his car left a wet highway near Comstock, about 35 miles west of Del Rio today.

Mrs. Judy Stafford, who recently moved to Commerce from Wichita Falls, was killed around dawn when her car and another carrying East Texas State University co-eds collided near Cooper on a slick highway. The co-eds were taken to hospitals.

Three cars piled up on rain-slick U.S. 80 about 27 miles west of Weatherford early today, killing a 22-year-old Fort Worth man. The victim has been identified as Ronald Gorman.

General rains over the Upper Trinity River watershed caused sharp rises on the stream and creeks in the vicinity.

Heavy rains in the Sulphur River Basin will increase flooding in the Hagansport area, the Weather Bureau said. The river already was 3.5 feet over flood stage there and was expected to crest 6.5 feet over flood stage.

Snow forced the closing of the Plainview public schools and those at Hale Center and Lockney.

Daylight found snow falling at Dalhart, Amarillo, Childress, Lubbock and El Paso.

The Weather Bureau issued a warning of heavy snow accumulations of three to seven inches in the Panhandle during the day.

Winds of 20 to 30 miles an hour caused troublesome drifting.

Temperatures were in the middle and upper 20s in the snow area.

Fog occurred at El Paso, Abilene, Fort Worth, Houston, Dalhart, Amarillo, Childress, Wichita Falls, Lufkin, Galveston, Beaumont and Port Arthur.

Heavy rains of well over an inch fell generally in North Central and Central Texas, with Killeen, near Ft. Hood in Central Texas, reporting 3.40 inches.

Avalon, near Ennis, reported 2.20 inches, while Richland in the same area recorded 2.12.

Some other representative rains included Fort Worth 1.46, Corsicana 1.45, Gainesville, .70, McKinney .80, Sherman .51, Terrell 1.55, Waxachachie 1.80, West 1, Bremond 1.52, Stephenville 1.76, Austin 1.08 and Dallas 1.03.

CLUB LEADERS ARE REMINDED

It's Better To Help A Boy

By BUCK SITTON

Dr. Rex Kyker, chairman of the speech department at Abilene Christian College, told 58 representatives of 11 Boys Clubs and their guests, Saturday that when "you help a boy, you also are helping the men who will help run this country someday."

He spoke at the 8th annual Conference Awards Dinner of the West Texas Area Council, Boys' Clubs of America, held in the Scurry County Coliseum.

An ordained minister, Dr. Kyker said that perseverance and high personal goals are needed for success. He illustrated his talk by pointing to the backgrounds of famous people in the sports and science fields — Madame Curie, Glenn Cunningham, Thomas A. Edison, and Byron Nelson.

He indicated these people are good examples of what can be accomplished through a refusal to accept failure and through faith in God.

"Sometimes you grow when you fail," said the veteran teacher.

He observed that Edison's perseverance ultimately resulted in the development of an incandescent light, although he failed in thousands of early experiments.

Madame Curie and her husband discovered radium, although people were skeptical of their many experiments, he said. Cunningham, through sheer determination and faith, overcame a serious physical handicap. Although his legs were seriously burned when he was a boy, he overcame this handicap by walking and then

FOREIGN RELATIONS QUIZ

Rusk Defends Aid Program

By ROBERT GRAY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk urged Congress today not to delay or abandon foreign aid because of the cost of the war in Vietnam. He argued that the aid program is vital to U.S. prosperity and security.

"We cannot find security apart from the rest of the world," he told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

"And in the long run, we can be neither prosperous nor safe if most other people live in squalor or if violence consumes the world around us."

Rusk prepared for today's appearance before the committee expecting that he would spend hours responding to questions about the critical state of the war in Vietnam.

Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., the committee chairman, is one of the most outspoken Senate critics of the Vietnam war policy, and many members of the committee also have opposed current policies.

The committee has been trying for weeks to get Rusk before it for public questioning about the war. And his appearance comes amid reports that President Johnson is considering an increase of up to 200,000 men above the 525,000 already authorized for Vietnam.

But Rusk was appearing officially to urge support of the foreign aid program, and he made only a brief indirect reference to the Vietnam war.

"Some say we should postpone or eliminate foreign aid because of the cost of our efforts to help defend freedom in Southeast Asia," he said. "But the freedom and progress of hundreds of millions of other Asians, the 250 million people in Latin America, and the 250 million people in Africa also engage our concern and are directly related to our own security and well-being.

"I find it hard to accept assertions that we cannot afford to devote a fraction of one per cent of our GNP (gross national product) to building a safer and more prosperous world by helping other nations to make peaceful progress.

South Viets Clean House

By BARRY KRAMER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — In the biggest house cleaning since the Communist lunar new year offensive, the South Vietnamese government fired six of the nation's 44 province chiefs today. Among them was the leader at Hue.

Informed sources said all were removed because they were ineffective either because of military inefficiency or corruption, or both.

A seventh province chief, previously considered an effective leader before he was seriously wounded in an ambush, was replaced for health reasons, sources said.

Pittsburgh Teachers Return To Work

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Some 1,000 teachers returned to work today, ending a strike that crippled Pittsburgh high schools for 11 days.

A school spokesman said classes were operating normally.

There was disagreement among teachers on the merits of a compromise which ended the strike. The walkout was triggered by teachers' demands for an election to select a bargaining agent.

SPECULATORS KNOW, BUT—

Who Has Warned Savers?

By ED MORSE
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "They've warned the stock market speculators," the broker said, "but who has warned the savers?" Then he told a Wall Street parable.

Grandpa Jones, it seems, saved $1,000 in 1933—a tough depression year—and it buys $380 worth at today's prices. Had he put the money in a typical New York savings bank from Jan. 1, 1934 to Jan. 1, 1968 at compound interest he would have $2,481. But even this would buy only $934 compared with what $1,000 bought in 1933.

Grandpa Smith, on the other hand, put $1,000 into the stock market over the same period, buying and selling completely at random. "Careless" Smith, they called him. By Jan. 1, 1968 his money grew to $10,850—and that would buy $4,123 worth at 1933 prices.

The figures on Smith's results —buying and selling just any stocks on the New York Stock Exchange—are based on a computerized study by the University of Chicago of stock action from 1926 through 1960, updated through 1967 by Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith Inc., which sponsored the study.

The growth of $1,000 at compound interest seems low today when savings banks pay 5 per cent. Over most of the 34-year period, however interest rates were much lower, ranging upwards of 1½ per cent. At current 5 per cent rates it would take $1,000 only 14 years to double. But nobody knows whether 5 per cent rates will continue for 14 years. And nobody knows what $1,000 invested in stocks would be in 14 years.

"Every elevator operator in the country has the idea he can get rich in the stock market," said William McChesney Martin Jr., chairman of the Federal Reserve Board.

He warned against "inordinate" speculation by the public and some "go-go" mutual funds. Similar warnings were issued by several prominent men.

"Speculation is a dirty word," the broker said. "But what about investment? Have you heard a single man of Martin's prominence warn the millions of Americans planning for retirement that their nest eggs are shrinking?"

Living costs rose 3.3 per cent in 1966, 3.1 per cent in 1967 and are now rising at an annual rate of 3.8 per cent. Each jump cuts that much off the purchasing power of the dollar. And the end is not in sight, economists agree.

Even so, the broker—who abides by an ethical code—advises each client that before buying stock he should have adequate cash savings for emergencies and enough insurance to protect his family.

Savings banks and insurance companies are examples of the safe, fixed-dollar investment. The erosion of the dollar's purchasing power is such, however, that even these are starting to hedge against the "silent robber"—inflation. A New York savings bank now offers its patrons a package deal: one-third of the deposit in savings, one-third in insurance and one-third in mutual funds. Some big insurance companies have entered the mutual fund business. More are expected to follow.

running every day until he made a name for himself in the sports world.

"Byron Nelson told me that he never once missed attendance at church to play golf," said the Farwell native. "He told me that God came first in his life."

Dr. Kyker also told of his work with students, and he observed that one can never be certain how a student will fare in the future.

"A man told us the other day that your C student may become the millionaire who builds the laboratory where your A student can conduct his experiments," said the ACC graduate.

Dr. Kyker's speech was delivered during a luncheon which followed a business session in the morning.

Certificates of appreciation were presented to four former chairmen of the West Texas Area Council — O. B. Ratliff of Lubbock (1961-1963), Skeet Noret of Lamesa (1964-1965), M. J. Adderton of Lubbock (1966 - 1967), and James E. Winget, Jr. of Midland (1967-1968).

Winget presided over the luncheon meeting. Invocation was given by Rev. John Bollinger, pastor of the Grace Lutheran Church. Awards were presented by Gene L. Lehnen, assistant regional director, Dallas.

Representatives elected new officers by acclamation. They include Jerry Dunlap of Odessa, chairman; Dr. David Smiley of Lamesa, vice chairman; Harry Wilkerson of Odessa, executive secretary; and, James Young of Abilene, treasurer.

Outgoing officers are Winget (chairman), H. O. (Bob) Wood of San Angelo (vice chairman), Doug McGlaun of Snyder (treasurer), and Royce Pugh of Midland (executive secretary).

New officers were nominated by Ratliff, head of the nominating committee.

San Angelo's Club received a revolving trophy for being the "outstanding club of 1967."

Registration began at 9 a.m. Saturday in the Dan Gibson Memorial building. Representatives were welcomed to the coliseum and to Snyder by Mayor M. L. Broman.

A regional report was given by Lehnen, the assistant regional director, during the morning session, and a national report was given by Frank Wade, associate director for field services.

Mickey Nunley, president of the board of directors of the host Scurry County Club, also presided over a panel discussion on club operations during the morning session.

Following lunch, the representatives divided into four groups to discuss physical, educational and social - recreational programs and the best methods to guide the programs.

Wade spoke on associate groups during the afternoon, and Jack Lewright of Abilene told of the function of the board from the executive standpoint.

Board members from Snyder all were present, and out-of-town groups were represented from Abilene, Amarillo, Andrews, Borger, Lamesa, Lubbock, Midland, Odessa, Roscoe and San Angelo.

Included among guests were C. T. McLaughlin, County Commissioners Thayne Mebane and Marion Dabbs and City Councilman R. C. Patton, as well as some wives of board members.

Church Says Women Not Fully Human?

NEWTON, Mass. (AP) — Dr. Mary Daly, first woman member of the Boston College theology department, says the Catholic Church is teaching that women "are not fully human."

"There will be no genuine equality of men and women in the church as long as qualified persons are excluded from any ministry by reason of their sex alone," she said. "Men have the option of becoming priests or remaining laymen. Women have no choice."

Hollywood, Fla., — there's a Romanian colony there in Florida — and I've been to Detroit and to a college in North Dakota and now to Texas. I am to go to California later this year," he said.

He also expressed satisfaction over the fact that tourism, especially from Western countries, is on the increase in Romania.

A tourist who arranges transportation through any established travel agency needs no visa to enter Romania, the ambassador said. Special emphasis was put on tourism last year and requirements of visas were suspended. The response was so good that the plan has been continued into this year.

"We had a million, two hundred thousand tourists from other countries last year. Many are just beginning to discover Eastern Europe," he declared.

Ambassador Bogdan said he found that people were basically the same everywhere.

Unfortunately, he said, his travel is limited by his diplomatic duties in Washington. He said that when he is away from Washington invariably some of his people complain "I can never find you in your office."

The white buffalo replica on the Snyder square caught the ambassador's eye. Dr. Traylor explained that Romania has obtained a pair of American Bison (buffalo) and hopes to start a herd in that country.

Ambassador and Mrs. Bogdan have three children, a daughter 22 and two others, ages 16 and 10. The children were, popular topics of conversation for Mrs. Bogdan.

"Where do your children stay while you are on trips such as this," she was asked.

Mrs. Bogdan replied that her mother - in - law served as "sitter" while she and the ambassador were away, perhaps unintentionally pointing up another area in which "people everywhere are pretty much the same."

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my mother. She is 55 years old, recently took off about 25 pounds, dyed her hair silver blonde, bought a new car, and now she thinks we are "girl friends."

Abby, mother never got along with my father. They've had the same arguments for 35 years so have never had any social life together, which has made mother a bitter person. She never joined any clubs or organizations, and now she wants to go around with me and my crowd. She calls me all the time and is forever including herself in my plans.

The latest is she wants to join a club I belong to. Abby, there are no women HER age in it — only women MY age. I cannot stop her from joining, and my friends won't blackball her because they think I want her in it. So what can I do?

STUCK WITH MOTHER

DEAR STUCK: Perhaps your mother has developed this "girl friend" attitude because you haven't discouraged her from "palling" around with you. Try to get her to act her age, and make some friends of her own. If you have to tell her in more direct language, do so. But do it with love and gentleness.

DEAR ABBY: There is a girl in one of my classes who is really groovy. But she has one bad fault that really turns me off. She uses dirty language and she swears!

She is so nice to look at, and she's a bright girl, too, but what a big fat disappointment she was when she started to talk to me. When will girls learn? Guys sometimes use rough language to each other, but no fellow likes to hear words like that coming out of a girl's mouth.

How about a few words of wisdom on the subject from you, Abby?

E. C.

DEAR E. C.: You've said it, and you've said it well. A word to the wise.

• • •

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the young mother whose husband "fussed" so at their two small sons that the boys always left the dinner table in tears prompts me to write this. There is a solution to that problem, and I hope you will be fair and print it.

The father who has put in a hard day's work has a right to come home to a peaceful, quiet dinner. Young children should be fed first, and mother and father (and the adult children) should enjoy their dinner while the young ones are otherwise occupied elsewhere.

To force "togetherness" at the dinner table with young children who have not yet learned proper table manners, and who talk and scream and disrupt the meal with fights and arguments, is unfair to the adults.

While children are learning how to behave at the table, they may be rewarded occasionally by having dessert with the "grown-ups". (This can be an incentive for them to learn table manners and proper conduct.) And only when they are capable of eating a full meal with the family should they join the adults.

Mother and father and grown children should not have to put up with ill-mannered, restless, tired, and hungry children during meal time.

Georgetown Farmer Charged With Murder

GEORGETOWN, Tex. (AP) — A Georgetown area farmer was charged with murder in the decapitation of his 6-year-old son. His wife was stabbed three times.

Held without bond is Vince Martinka, 45, who farmed 12 miles northeast of Georgetown in South Central Texas.

Williamson County authorities said Mrs. Helen Martinka told them her husband attacked her with a knife as she lay in bed Saturday. They said the boy, Joseph Anthony Martinka, was decapitated with an ax.

Mrs. Martinka fled to a neighbor's house. Neighbors subdued Martinka when he came for his wife, officers said. She was in satisfactory condition.

Officers sought a motive for attack.

Sues Government For Return Of Land

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Mary Louise Neugent has sued the U.S. government for $200 million, contending in a U.S. District Court suit that she is entitled to the money or the return of lands that were awarded her ancestors under Spanish or Mexican land grants, and later taken.

The complaint did not say which lands are claimed by the Denver woman.

Liquor By Drink May Be On Ballot

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Texas Democratic party leaders had the opportunity today to ask all voters in the state for the first time since prohibition days whether they favor sale of liquor by the drink.

The suggested opinion poll on legalized sale of mixed drinks was approved unanimously by the party's liquor subcommittee before going to the 62-member Texas - Democratic Executive Committee in session here.

The poll would not be binding on the legislature which would have to act on the drink proposal. Party leaders refer to the issue intended to go on the May 4 first primary ballot as a "referendum" although it would not be binding on lawmakers.

"There has been no statewide expression on this controversial subject in more than 40 years," said Tom Gordon of Abilene, chairman of the subcommittee. "I think this is an excellent idea."

Gordon told his subgroup the liquor poll was first requested by the Texas Restaurant Association, then later by a Democratic candidate for nomination for governor, Eugene Locke.

The question would ask each voter to say whether he is for or against "the enactment by the Texas Legislature of legislation to permit legal sale of liquor by the drink in wet areas only after a local option election and subject to strict regulation, effective controls and taxation."

ABWA Sets Date For Annual Tea

The American Business Women's Association will hold their annual "Hand of Friendship Tea" in the home of Mrs. Bill King, 3000 Thirty - seventh Street on Sunday March 17.

The association is not a club nor a sorority, but an educational association which seeks to advance women in business through education.

ABWA is now in its nineteenth successful year, being founded in 1949, with National Headquarters in Kansas City, Mo. ABWA has grown rapidly to over 750 chapters with over 45,000 active members in all 50 states.

Through ABWA's educational program, women seek self improvement in their employment skills, personality, and attitudes, which contribute toward the betterment of their own lives, and the betterment of employee-employer relationships, and greater understanding of the business climate of the communities in which they live. Their motto: "Better Personality Through Better Living" — personalysis service.

Their activities contribute toward local and national educational projects rather than those of a philanthropic nature. Chapter conduct ways and means projects, particularly ones which stress education in general. Local and national scholarships are awarded to candidates. Over $60,000.00 is contributed by chapters annually toward the education of deserving, qualified young women, in addition to the National Scholarships awarded.

The association's creed is a self explanatory one: "If you work for a man, in heaven's name, work for him. If he pays you wages which supply you bread and butter, work for him; speak well of him; stand by him and stand by the institution he represents. If put to a pinch, an ounce of loyalty is worth a pound of cleverness. If you must vilify, condemn and eternally disparge — resign your position, and when you are outside, damn to your heart's content, but as long as you are part of the institution do not condemn it. If you do that, you are losening the tendrils that are holding you to the institution, and at the first high wind that comes along, you will be uprooted and blown away, and probably will never know the reason why."

REFUSED TO BE RIFLEMAN

Objector Now Marine Hero

By JOHN T. WHEELER
Associated Press Writer

KHE SANH, Vietnam (AP) — The Methodist minister's son was a conscientious objector and a Marine outcast.

He hated war and refused to be a rifleman.

His strongest swear word was "hell." He could not curse a tough exterior.

Until he went to work aiding the wounded at Khe Sanh, Pvt. Jonathan M. Spicer of Miami, Fla., was despised by some of the other Leathernecks around him and only tolerated by others. Now he is a hero, a growing legend and badly wounded.

Friends said that Spicer joined the Marines almost on a whim when he went to a recruiting station with a friend. Somewhere in basic training, when the instructors were attempting to turn him into a professional killer, he rebelled.

"He just sort of suddenly realized combat wasn't really for him," recalled Cpl. Daniel Sullivan of Boston, Mass. "He wasn't afraid of dying. He said it just before the day he was hit. But he said he could not put himself up to killing a man."

Friends said Spicer, who stands 5-feet-9, tried to declare himself a conscientious objector in boot camp and at various other points on his route to Vietnam. He was always told: "Wait until your next assignment."

Finally he was assigned to an infantry battalion at Khe Sanh, the besieged Marine base 15 miles south of the demilitarized zone.

"He was treated with contempt by his fellow infantrymen," said an officer who was instrumental in getting Spicer transferred to one of Khe Sanh's many medical units. "He was naive, and the toughness Marines show outwardly was foreign to him."

"What no one realized" said Lt. Edward Feldman, a medical officer from Forest Hills, N.Y., "was that he was thoroughly unselfish and wouldn't hesitate to put himself in danger."

Spicer "was a tiger" when it came to the welfare of the wounded. He grabbed an unwounded man who attempted to get aboard a medical evacuation helicopter ahead of the wounded and roughly pulled him back.

Doctors said he was at the line pinned down the stretcher bearers rushing the wounded men to the helicopters, Spicer repeatedly covered his man with his own body.

A month ago the round-faced Marine ran out of luck.

"He helped get one litter on a chopper and started back to the sandbagged area," said Lt. James O. Finnegan of Philadelphia, Pa.

Other stretcher bearers were having trouble loading their litters and Spicer, despite a call from one doctor to "get the hell in here," turned back to the chopper to help.

He arrived about the same time a North Vietnamese mortar shell burst among the wounded men and litter bearers, wounding about 30 men.

Spicer was hit in the heart, face and legs. He was saved only by a delicate heart operation by Dr. Finnegan, and Lt. John Maddilligan of Brooklyn, N.Y.

Finnegan recommended Spicer for the Silver Star for bravery and gallantry. The Khe Sanh base's commander, Col. David E. Lownds, mentioned the Navy Cross.

Men who spent fruitless hours trying to teach Spicer to swear and be tough like a Marine said they felt a little guilty.

"Man, he was really out there when the shells were coming in," said one. "I'm a little sorry about the way we treated him now."

BOARD MEMBERS — The board of directors of the Scurry County Boys' Club attended the eighth annual Conference of the West Texas Area Council, Boys' Clubs of America in the Scurry County Coliseum Saturday. Farm Survey Results To Be Revealed

By OVID A. MARTIN
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first major indication of what's ahead for agriculture this year in potential production, prices and incomes—and possibly farm legislation—will be provided by a government farm survey this week.

The Agriculture Department will make public Friday results of a survey made during the first half of March on farmers' crop planting plans for the 1968 season.

Plans affecting corn, spring wheat, cotton, sorghum grain, soybeans, potatoes and many other crops will be weighed by government farm officials, political leaders, farm leaders and farmers themselves for a clue to what's ahead this year for producers.

The government has recommended smaller plantings of wheat, feed grains, potatoes and some vegetable crops. Only in the case of cotton is a modest increase in acreage sought.

The planting report will be made against a background of widespread farmer dissatisfaction with economic conditions in agriculture.

Prices for major crops tumbled last year, largely as a reaction to the year's increased production. Aggravating this situation was a further increase in farm production costs—an increase that is continuing this year.

Howell Rites Set Tuesday

Graveside rites will be held here at 3 p.m. Tuesday for Willis Elmer Howell, who died Sunday morning in a Plainview hospital.

Mr. Howell, 67, was a native of Camp Springs and farmed and ranched in that area until moving to Plainview in 1950. Services at Plainview are set for 10 a.m. Tuesday, with the graveside rites to be held at the Snyder Cemetery. Burial will be directed by Bell - Seale Funeral Home here.

Mr. Howell is survived by his wife; a daughter, Mrs. James Mebane of Dumas; a son, Herman Howell of Denver, Colo.; a sister, Mrs. Edna Wood of Snyder; and two brothers, Edward Howell of Hamilton and Elvin Howell of Tulia.

Juniors Shine At B' Spring

BIG SPRING — The Junior High School track teams from Snyder — Lamar and Travis — did themselves right proud Saturday at a track meet in Big Spring. Lamar placed fifth with 35 points, and Travis placed 11th with 22 points.

Gary Shields, Lamar 9th grader, swept to victory in the 100 and 220 yard dashes with 10.8 and 22.8 clockings respectively.

Bill Wilson took second in the broad jump with a distance of 19-2, and David McCommas placed third in the 330 with 42.4. James Tyree took sixth in the pole vault with a height of 9-6.

Mike Line, Lamar 8th grader, took second in the shot put with a heave of 44-7½, and Tom Arnold placed third in the century with a time of 11.4.

For Travis 9th grade, Johnny Mata copped a blue ribbon in the broad jump with a distance of 19-8. He also won fourth place in the 220 yard dash with 23.7.

Danny Farmer, also of Travis 9th, copped third in the 660 yard run with a time of 1:38, and he was fourth in the broad jump with a distance of 18-5.

For Travis 8th, Lonnie Meathenia, who recently moved to Snyder, won first place in the 330 yard dash with a fine 43.0 clocking. Albert Hernandez placed fourth in the shot put with a heave of 43-0 feet.

Winner of the 9th grade division was Abilene Lincoln with 124 points. The same team also won the 8th grade division with 116 points.

Longhorns Lose Again

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Anybody recall when Texas ever lost its first three games in Southwest Conference baseball.

Texas, which has won 36 championships and tied for five in the 53 years of the conference race, just doesn't do things like that.

But the Longhorns have this time and it has them in quite a bind as they try for the title in much the same way that Texas A&M in football. It is recalled that A&M lost its first four games and then roared back with the championship.

All three of the Texas losses have been by one run, indicating that the thing just can't go on forever. They're bound to get the breaks once in a while.

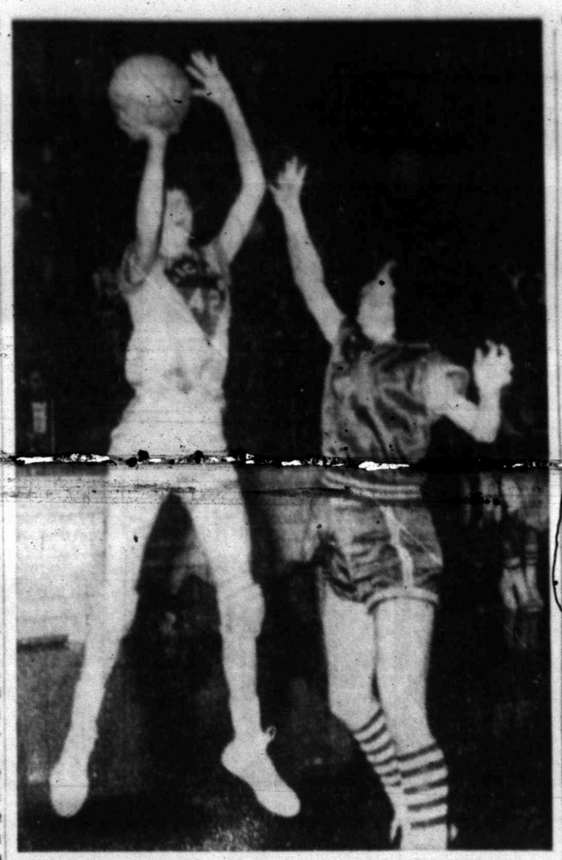
Anyway, Texas Christian and Southern Methodist are tied for the lead after the second week of conference play.

SMU got that way by beating Rice 4-3 and Texas 5-4. Texas Christian lost a couple of non-conference games to Trinity but whipped Texas 10-9 and then Baylor 6-5.

Rice, riding in a tie with Baylor for third place, trounced Texas A&M 10-3 to hand the Aggies their second loss and get them in pretty deep trouble, too.

They resume conference action Tuesday when Texas is at Baylor, Texas Christian at Rice and Southern Methodist at Texas A&M.

George Halas has coached the Chicago Bears to six of its eight National Football League titles.



SHARP SHOOTER — Stephenville's Nita Stephens (42) displays her winning form. She dropped in a shot with 50 seconds remaining to boost the Honey Bees into a 40-39 lead over Canyon in a Girls Regional Basketball playoff here in Tiger Gym Saturday night. The lead held up as the Honey Bees won 43-41. The girl at the right is unidentified.

Tiger Thinlies Takes 7th Place

DENVER CITY — Snyder's Tigers placed seventh in the Denver City Relays here Saturday with 26 9-10 points. There were 12 teams entered in the Meet, and Kermit won the team trophy with 133 9-10 points.

Morris Smith of Snyder won first place in the 440 yard dash with a timing of 52.4 seconds.

Dwaine Boydstun took third place in the broad jump with a leap of 20-0 even. No other Bengals finished above third place.

Other team scores: Andrews 73, Seminole 57, Carlsbad 37, Levelland 39½, Littlefield 35, Muleshoe 25, Hobbs 25, Lamesa 11, Brownfield 10, and Monahans 2.

Snyder's mile relay unit placed fourth. Members included John Schiebel, Dwaine Boydstun, Roy Lee and Morris Smith. They recorded a 3:38.6.

John Schiebel tied for fourth in the high jump by clearing 5-6, and he placed sixth in the high hurdles with a 16.9 time.

Tommy McDorman tied for sixth in the mile with a 5:03.2 clocking.

The sprint relay unit, comprised of Ricky Arnold, Tommy Hollis, Phillip Hill, and Willis Harrison, ran to a 47.0 time and took seventh.

There were other performances of note. Smith qualified for the finals in the broad jump, although he didn't place.

Steve Burney cleared 12-9 in the pole vault, which is nine inches higher than he has ever vaulted previously.

Roy Lee was clocked at 2:12.3 and Preston Lane was timed in 2:14.9 in the half mile, but neither placed.

Harvey Browning ran a 5:08 mile.

Benitez In Gloves Semifinals

FORT WORTH — Snyder's Eloy Benitez has reached the semifinals of the State Golden Gloves Tournament. He disposed of a Tyler representative Saturday night and will meet Gus Macias, 131, of Houston in the semifinals tonight.

If he wins his first bout, then the Snyder schoolboy will tangle with the winner of the George James - Gilbert Smith bout in the finals. James is an Austin boy, and Smith represents the host Fort Worth team.

FORT WORTH (AP) — The Texas Golden Gloves Tournament moves toward a climax, or perhaps an anticlimax, tonight, with the crowning of 10 state champions.

The titlists will carry the Texas banner into the national tournament beginning March 21 in Salt Lake City.

The finals have a tough act to follow: The glittering semifinal battle Saturday night that produced a narrow decision for national light-middleweight king Jesse Valdez.

Valdez, the state's brightest Olympic games boxing hope, recovered from a shattering right to the head in the third round to outlast a furious windup by Joe Cokes of Dallas.

Cokes, who tuned up for the showdown by working with his brother Curtis, the world welterweight champion, as the defending state titlist and a five-time winner here by knockouts.

"Joe's a good boy," said Valdez after the right Saturday night left 7,668 spectators limp with praise of the long-awaited confrontation.

"Not the best I've fought," continued Valdez, "but one of the best. I was really looking forward to fighting him. I knew there were two good light middleweights in Texas—I'm not bragging—and I really wanted to fight him.

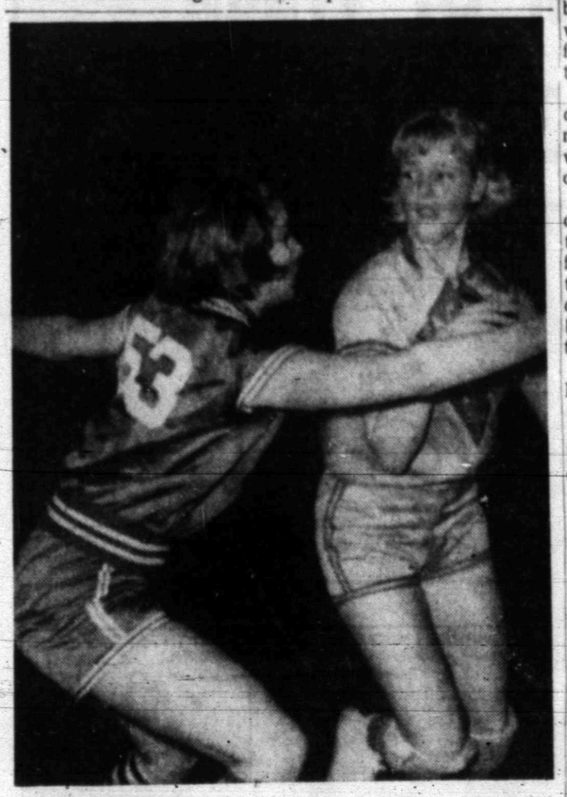
"This proved something to me. I feel better now that I've fought him. He's no pushover."

Next on the agenda for the Houston ace is Gilbert Avalos of Corpus Christi, the lightweight titlist two years ago.

The other finals match light heavyweight Davis Harmon of Temple and Mike Seibert of Houston, middleweights Milton Leverkuhn of Beaumont and James Sullivan of Austin and heavyweights Bobby Dobson of Houston and Terry Daniel of Dallas.

Four former champs face semifinal scraps before they get a chance to bag another state trophy.

They are flyweight Roland Hernandez of San Antonio, featherweight Lorenzo Trujillo of Corpus Christi, light welterweight Jesse Avalos of Corpus Christi and welter Zeke Sanches of Odessa.



GOOD DEFENDER — Canyon's Jan Sternenberg, a 5-4 sophomore (53) was the top defensive hand on the court Saturday night as the Eagles tangled with Stephenville for a berth in the State Girls Basketball Tournament. Despite her heroics, the Honey Bees will make the trip.

Honey Bees Sting Canyon

Canyon's Eagles had their wings clipped by the Stephenville Honey Bees, 43-41 in an exciting regional girls basketball contest in Tiger Gym Saturday night. The verdict qualifies the Honey Bees for the State Tournament.

The Eagles actually led throughout the entire second half until the final 30 seconds when tall Nita Stephens (5-9), a slim girl who resembles the late Babe Didrickson Zaharias, tossed in a twisting, back-bending shot from the corner with 50 seconds remaining to put Stephenville ahead, 40-39. They never relinquished the lead after that as Canyon got in foul trouble going for the ball.

The Eagles had built a 12-8 lead in the first quarter, mainly on strong defense, when the Honey Bees closed the gap at 23-23 at halftime.

Stephenville won the tilt at the free throw line, putting in 15 gratis tosses, compared with only 11 for Canyon. The Eagles had one more field goal than the Honey Bees — 15 to 14.

Canyon also led at the end of the third quarter — 34 to 32.

Jan Stenenberg, a 5-4 sophomore, was outstanding on defense for Canyon, and she also tallied 13 points — only one less than Pam Richardson, Susan Swatzell was credited with nine points, and Linda Lehman posted five.

Stephens was high scorer in the tilt with 17 points. Others scoring for the Honey Bees were Barbara Shipp (15) and Debbie Ballow (11).

Dickinson Is Doral Champ

By BEN FUNK
Associated Press Sports Writer

MIAMI (AP) — Gardner Dickinson says he has "kicked away about 50 tournaments" in his 17 years on the golf trail, and he almost put the boot to another one when he finished the Doral Open Sunday with a bogey and double bogey.

But young Tom Weiskopf, with a chance to capitalize on Dickinson's ragged finish, showed that he, too, can kick away the golden opportunities in the clinch.

Surging from three strokes behind to tie Dickinson in a dramatic stretch run, Weiskopf blew it with a closing pair of bogeys and his 40-year-old foe walked away with the $20,000 top prize.

"I hate a finish like that," said a dead-panned Dickinson, "but I've got the check in my pocket."

The dramatic last-round duel, starting with the two men in a deadlock, was so tense that Weiskopf posted five bogeys and Dickerson three bogeys and a double bogey. It was the worst round of the tournament for both of then.

Dickinson wound up with a par 72 for a 13-under-par 275. Weiskopf took a 74 for 276.

Weiskopf, who missed a 10-foot putt at the 18th that would have thrown the match into a sudden-death playoff, had the satisfaction of taking over the lead in the 1968 money-winning race.

His $12,000 check ran his bankroll to $52,546 and shoved him ahead of Canadian George Knudson, who failed to survive the 36-hole cut here following consecutive victories at Phoenix and Tucson.

PHILLIPS WINS SINGLES CROWN

ODESSA — John Phillips, Snyder's fine sophomore tennis player, won the Division II singles championship here Saturday afternoon with an 8-6, 1-6, 6-1 victory over Midland High's Jim Chisum.

Phillips took three matches enroute to the finals and definitely stamped himself as a contender for state individual honors.

Coach of the Tiger net squad is Ken McAllister.

Bobcats Trip Tigers Twice

SAN ANGELO — The host Bobcats bombarded two Snyder pitchers early in two games to sack up a doubleheader, 4-2 and 7-1, here Saturday afternoon. It was the third triumph by the Bobcats over the Tigers.

Gill went the route for the victors in the first tilt and was credited with the win. Although he gave up six hits, his teammates didn't make any errors.

The Bobcats benefitted from a shaky first frame by Snyder's Jim Patrick. Jim went the route and fanned 10, but he was touched for two hits and a walk in the opening stanza. An error also contributed to two early runs. San Angelo also pushed across single tallies in the third and sixth frames.

Snyder fought back gallantly and scored two runs in the 6th. Max Moreland and David McGinnis walked, then pulled a double steal. Merce Hernandez smashed a line single, bringing in both runners.

Hernandez suffered from an unlucky beginning in the second game as two hits and an error let in a run in the opening stanza. Three hits and a walk allowed four Bobcats to cross home plate in the second frame, and they added two in the sixth on a home run by Fikes. He put it over the left field fence.

Hernandez also went the distance, and he struck out eight. Winning pitcher was Franke, and he went the route.

The Tigers got their only run in the third when Larry Waddeck tripled and scored on an error.

The Bengals host Odessa Permian at 4 p.m. tomorrow.

Congress Plans Scrutiny Of Our Entire Tax Structure

By JOSEPH R. COYNE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — After more than a year of study, the Johnson administration has started down the road to tax reform in its plan to eliminate the exemption for state and local industrial development bonds.

Before the total job is completed, the nation's entire tax structure is likely to come under congressional scrutiny, including the controversial 27½ per cent oil depletion allowance.

Although the administration has yet to unveil its long-promised tax reform package, the Treasury Department has decided to move on its own to end what it considers an abuse of tax exempt development bonds issued in the name of states and localities.

In reality, the Treasury said, these are nothing more than a bond used by a corporation to get a cheap interest rate for plant expansion and thus represent a federal subsidy.

Because interest on the bonds is free of federal income taxes, they can be floated at a lower rate than regular corporate bonds.

The Treasury can eliminate the exemption by administrative action because the bonds were originally declared tax exempt by a 1954 Treasury ruling.

Treasury officials said they are doing hard-pressed state and local taxpayers a favor by moving now.

Industrial development bonds issued in the name of a local government—at least $1.4 billion worth were issued last year—compete with regular municipal bonds and thus drive up their cost, the treasury said.

And when a local or state government must pay a higher interest rate, the result is higher property taxes, sales taxes and state income taxes.

The effort to push through this reform—which many states have requested—could be the easiest faced by the Treasury in the long list of reforms to be unveiled. They reportedly will be made known after Congress begins to act on the 10 per cent income tax surcharge proposal.

The administration wants to keep the surcharge and tax reform package separate. Tax reform legislation is expected to take at least a year to move through Congress after it's submitted.

The over-all reform program is expected to cover charitable foundations, estate and gift taxes, multiple exemptions enjoyed by some corporations and perhaps a minimum tax for the very rich who are able to avoid taxes through large charitable deductions and depreciation.

No change in the 27½ per cent oil depletion rate is expected to be recommended by the White House but some members of Congress have said they will try to lower it.

The industrial development bond was designed originally for use by areas of high unemployment to attract job-producing industries. But in recent years companies have threatened to take their business elsewhere if they didn't get the cost-saving advantage of an industrial development bond signed by a local government, officials said.

More than 40 states now authorize use of tax-free bonds, some of them simply to prevent industry from moving elsewhere.

North Carolina only recently authorized their use—but at the same time asked the Treasury to eliminate the tax exemption altogether.

When the tax exemption was granted, the Treasury defined an industrial development bond as the obligation of a state or local government, thus providing a tax exemption on the interest.

Now the Treasury plans to repeal this definition on bonds issued after March 15.

Junior Editors Quiz on SATURN

QUESTION: What are Saturn's rings composed of and how did they get there?

* * * *

ANSWER: Billions of tiny particles, probably the size of gravel, make up Saturn's rings, which circle the planet as a flat disk about 10 miles thick. Saturn is an extremely cold planet, with a temperature of perhaps 250 degrees below zero. Some astronomers believe the particles in the rings are ice, which helps to explain why they reflect so much of the sun's light. Other authorities think rock fragments may be included. How the rings came about is another mystery. Some astronomers believe they represent the fragments of a moon which once circled Saturn. Because it came too close to the planet's gravitational pull, it broke into many fragments. Another theory holds that the rings are comprised of matter leftover when the planet originally formed. Saturn is of very light material; so light, it would float if there was water to float in — an idea symbolized by the impossible picture at lower right. Saturn has nine known moons — a tenth has just been sighted by astronomers. One of these, Titan, is the only moon in our solar system known to have an atmosphere.

Tension Subsides In Gold Market

By LAWRENCE MALKIN
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — Tensions subsided on the London market today following the announcement by the seven-nation gold pool that it would keep the price at $35 an ounce. But on the Zurich market the initial demand appeared to be only slightly below that of Friday.

One Zurich banker said the gold pool's announcement "does not seem to have had the desired effect, as far as we can judge at this time."

The pound jumped to $2.3980 on the London foreign exchange market, after closing Friday at $2.39225, its lowest level.

At the daily gold fixing in London, at which representatives of the major dealers balance the demand for gold against the supply and set the price, turnover of less than 10 tons was anticipated.

Dealers said that despite the drop in demand for gold, there was no active selling by speculators who have built up hoards of the metal since the devaluation of the pound in November.

The consensus among London dealers was that the gold pool's action was sufficient to halt speculators but was not far-reaching enough to make our selves yet.

Frankfurt banks reported the demand for gold there had subsided but pointed out that Monday is normally a quiet day for gold trading.

"We expect to get a better idea of the trend at midweek," a spokesman for one leading German bank said.

The Frankfurt dealers reported both the U.S. dollar and the pound showed slight improvement.

Pieces Of B52 Found

PORT ISABEL, Tex. (AP) — Weather hampered the Civil Air Patrol and ground parties Sunday in their search for clues in the Feb. 28 disappearance of a B52 bomber from Carswell Air Force Base.

Bits and pieces of a B52 were found Saturday on a beach on South Padre Island but fog closed in on the area Sunday, limiting search operations to the northern end of the island.

The plane disappeared from a radar screen during a practice bombing run off Matagorda Island. Eight men were aboard the supersonic, intercontinental bomber. The Air Force said the aircraft had no nuclear weapons aboard.

A spokesman at Carswell said that while the pieces found on the beach Saturday came from a B52 there was no way to determine if they were from the missing plane. He said the pieces found could not have come off during flight.

Local Audience Applauds Munich Chamber Orchestra

The mention of "strings" in skilled artists the field of music nowadays usually stirs visions of two or three electronic guitars, plus a few other "instruments" not readily identified.

To the Munich Chamber Orchestra, "strings" are violins, violas, cellos, etc., with nothing attached but the hands of skilled musicians.

They proved Sunday that pleasing sounds still emerge from such instruments when manipulated by dedicated and Conductor Hans Stadlmair presented his internationally known ensemble in the Snyder High School Auditorium as a feature in this season's Scurry Concert Association series.

An audience of some 300-325 persons turned out on a dreary Sunday afternoon to applaud the ensemble from Munich.

Perhaps the highlight of the program was the Violin Concerto No. 1 in C Major by Haydn, featuring violinist Lucas David as soloist.

Joseph Anthony Martinka, 6, who lived with his parents on a farm northeast of Georgetown, was decapitated with an ax Saturday. Police charged his father, Vince Martinka, who was held without bond.

INSIDE INFORMATION

Solons Want Leaks Plugged

By DICK BARNES
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The price of stock in a certain company suddenly jumps one day amidst heavy trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The next day the government awards a fat contract to that same firm.

Suspicion arises: Did a government employe or a congressional insider leak advance word of the contract? Or buy a stock themselves based on information obtained in their official capacities?

The realm of government insiders and security dealings is murky. Proving a connection is difficult; analyzing market behavior for clues is filled with pitfalls; legal distinctions can be tricky.

The Treasury Department reported last Tuesday on one information leak that could have meant windfall profits for bond speculators.

The information dealt with a $25 billion sale of U.S. bonds. The treasury report traced its leak to a middle-level employe who died of a heart attack a week after he was suspended.

"I am not convinced this leak is the only one that has occurred," said Chairman Wright Patman, D-Tex., of the House Banking Committee. He wants to investigate.

Rumors of another government information leak arose last Jan. 25, the day President Johnson activated some air reservists and air guardsmen in response to North Korea's seizure of the intelligence ship Pueblo.

On Jan. 24, stock market prices had declined for the 12th consecutive day. Analysts cited uncertainty over the possibility of war as one cause. The next morning—before Johnson's announcement that reservists would be called up—stock in aerospace and defense industry firms — helped spark a market upsurge. At the time, the advance was described by analysts as technical.

For a time after Johnson's announcement, most stocks dropped. But the aerospace and defense-related issues kept climbing.

By day's end, the gains included McDonnell-Douglas up 2, Boeing and General Dynamics each up 1⅞, United Aircraft up 2⅝ and Raytheon up 4⅛.

A spokesman for the Securities and exchange Commission, which polices the market, acknowledged to the Associated Press that "we're concerned with that naturally." "But it's difficult if not impossible to come up with anything."

A major obstacle to proving a link to a government insider is getting a starting point. Given one individual's name, SEC investigators can pore over thousands of brokers' market transactions until they find what the individual traded.

Given a stock name, probers can see if government or congressional insiders turn up among traders in that issue. But a category as broad as defense-related issues makes an investigation exceedingly difficult.

One individual's purchase or sale, even of enough shares to profit him thousands of dollars, may make no dent in over-all market activity. Thus suspicion may never arise.

Links are even tougher to trade if the insider merely tells his brother-in-law to snap up a certain stock.

In October 1965, Rep. Robert Dole, R-Kan., asked the SEC and the Defense Department to investigate heavy trading in three aircraft companies during two market sessions immediately preceding announcement that a $2 billion government contract had been awarded.

During the two sessions, Lockheed, which got the contract to build the C5A transport plane, rose 3¾ points. The losers, Boeing and Douglas, dropped 7⅛ and 4⅛ respectively.

Whether Congress will take steps to insure against its own members using inside information for stock market profits should soon become apparent.

The Senate Ethics Committee is expected to unveil shortly its proposed standards of conduct. There are indications it will comment on such dealings as part of its recommendations on conflicts of interest.

The "Code of Ethics for Government Service" adopted by Congress in 1958 says any person in government service should "never use any information coming to him confidentially in the performance of governmental duties as a means for making private profit."

Violation of this code can bring dismissal but a Civil Service Commission official said he could find no instance where an employe had been fired for insider market activity.

Criminal law bars Agriculture Department employes from premature release of crop information or from speculating in commodities on the basis of information not available to the public. Penalties can range to 10 years in prison and $10,000 fine.

432 Skiers Stranded By Snowstorm

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — A snow storm that swirled through New Mexico Sunday provided a joyful interlude for 432 skiers but a night of discomfort and inconvenience for several hundred stranded motorists.

The skiers were a noisy, happy group as they waited at the base of the Sandia Peak ski slopes for a dozen buses from Albuquerque to follow a snow plow up New Mexico 10 to reach them.

Skiers reached the 10,679-foot Sandia crest earlier in the day via aerial tramway which had to be closed because of winds up to 60 miles per hour. They made their way through blowing snow to the ski lodge.

Buses carried them from the east to the west slopes of the Sandia Mountains overlooking Albuquerque, to their vehicles parked at the base of the tramway.

It was not as happy an occasion at Moriarty, about 40 miles east of Albuquerque, where several hundred travelers were caught in the storm.

About 300 persons spent the night in the Moriarty High School after the town's 100 motel rooms were rented.

"They're sitting around playing cards and other games and talking," said one of the travelers. "Some of them had bedding with them, but not all."

He has a reputation for being straight with his customers, and he can tell you right off whether you need a new part or a replacement.

Replacement cores also are carried in stock and steel overflow tubes may be replaced for better performance. Frank also repairs leaks in gas tanks.

Now is the time of year to drain out anti - freeze debris. The time to repair a minor leak is now before a major repair job becomes necessary.

Whatever the type of repair or replacement needed, Frank has the equipment and the experience to do a professional job. Just dial 573-2131 for a quick and honest appraisal of your radiator needs.

Texas Farms Lead In Payments Received

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department reports Texas led all states in government payments received by farmers in 1967 with a total of $462,167,000.

The department said payment to all U.S. farmers totaled $3.1 billion. The bulk of the money paid Texas farmers was for participating in a federal cotton program.

Rhode Island trailed the rest of the states with total payments of only $76,000, mostly for soil conservation practices.

About 40 per cent of all the payments went to farmers in the 12 Midwestern grain livestock and dairy states. Their total was $1,240,174,000.

NEW DEFENSE SECRETARY

Enter Clark Clifford-Cooly

By SAUL PETT
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some years ago Clark Clifford was entertaining his mother at dinner in a downtown restaurant when he was called to the phone.

Returning to the table, he announced, with no change of expression, "Mother, our house is on fire. I'm afraid you'll have to skip dessert."

People who know him agree that the new secretary of defense is a monument of unflappability. They may disagree on other traits—on the depth of his thinking and convictions, for example—but to a man they agree on his elegant poise. This, obviously, is no small quality in a man who heads the most powerful, most involved military establishment in the world.

Unflappable himself, Clark McAdams Clifford, advisor to presidents and one of the country's wealthiest lawyers, habitually encourages others to cool it. His clients were among the biggest corporate giants anywhere and to those about to hit the panic button he was fond of telling about the man in the old Western town who saw a building burning. "He ran into the nearest saloon and yelled, 'fire!' —and everybody did."

Clifford now has, as he likes to say, only one client, Uncle Sam, who presumably is given the same cooling advice for much less money.

His law income, it is said, ranged from $500,000 to $1 million a year; his Cabinet salary now is $35,000.

What Uncle Sam is getting for his money is a spectacularly successful man of 61, who has been a consultant and troubleshooter for three presidents, a man said to be a hard-nosed realist with the soothing bedside manner of a Park Avenue doctor attending dowager hypochondriacs, a man who knows his way through the snake pits of government and around the palpitating egos of Congress, a highly methodical, analytical man who disdains the "lazy slovenly thinking" behind the use of such labels as hawks and doves, a man whose admirers insist will be "nobody's pigeon," foreign or domestic.

Clifford's critics tend to find him hawkish. If true, he is a selective hawk.

In all the fiery talk that followed the North Korean seizure of the U.S. intelligence ship Pueblo, it was Clifford who pointed out that none of the angry countermeasures being suggested by the vengeance seekers or the dashing plots pushed by the Errol Flynn strategists would bring the ship or men back.

In other matters, those familiar with the thinking of the new secretary picture his views thusly: He opposed a bombing pause in Vietnam in the belief that Hanoi would regard it as a sign of wavering American will and "the first step toward our withdrawal." Ultimately, he thinks, the enemy will finally grind down and quit, but only after he is convinced of our determination and "realizes that, after all, we are not like the French."

Clifford does not regard Communist states as a monolithic menace to be feared equally everywhere. He makes a distinction between the aggressiveness of red China and Red Russia and, hoping for a detente with the one, says, "I am not willing to proceed [illegible] that the Soviet Union must always be our enemy."

But where his predecessor, Robert McNamara, spoke of moving toward "nuclear parity" with the Russians, Clifford talks of the need for "nuclear superiority." In support, he cites hypothetical figures. If intelligence tells us the Russians have 100 nuclear missiles, do we limit ourselves to 100? What, he asks, is the margin of error in our intelligence? Twenty-five per cent? Then do we still limit ourselv to 100 missiles when they n ave 125?

Clark Clifford is a tall, elegant man with broad shoulders, sandy-gray hair that rolls back in serenely even waves, a handsome, resolute profile resembling the All-American virility we used to see in the shirt ads, a soft voice that can be as caressing as mink, and the general appearance of a silent screen star who well remembers the days of gold-plated Rolls Royces. He favors striped suits with padded shoulders, wide lapels, double-breasted jackets, wide trousers, and one wonders whether he uses Adolph Menjou's tailor.

Mentally or physically, he is a man who never appears rumpled. Even on the golf course, playing bare-chested in the heat of a Washington summer, it is said that Clark Clifford still looks well turned out. And people who have observed him in high-level White House meetings say that even in the trauma of crisis his careful reasoning and calm analysis never lose their crease.

Mcamara, too, is famed for his methodical approach. But, a White House source notes, "McNamara appears supercharged and you can see his mind racing. Clifford's may be racing, too, but it is never visible and he never seems on the razor's edge."

This same source, who is close to Lyndon Johnson, says the President is so impressed with the breadth of Clifford's talents and experience he could have, with equal confidence, appointed him secretary of state or attorney general.

Conversationally, Clifford is a man given to wry understatement expressed in an admixture of vernacular and words of starched formality.

Early in February, when all hell was breaking loose, when Washington lights were burning late over the Pueblo seizure and the enemy offensive in Vietnam, Clifford was trying to do three things at once. He was involved in the complicated process of divesting himself of his law practice and vast stock holdings, he was reading furiously all the things a defense secretary-designate must read, and he was taking part, day and night in crucial White House conferences. How, a visitor asked, was he managing under the triple pressures?

"I have the feeling," said Clifford, "that if I can weather this period with some equilibrium, it'll be good preparation for the job."

What went through his mind when the President asked him to take the job?

"When the President asks you, when a specific call is issued like a draft, when you think of all his accumulated difficulties and the posture of our country and its complex problems, then, by God, you go.

"I see an incredible opportunity for service. I may get chewed up in the process but . . . Who would want to go into the Cabinet in Coolidge's administration? This is the time to serve. The gravity of the decisions being made are sobering beyond belief."

What were his first impressions of the job?

The scope of the problems is wider than anyone can imagine until he actually comes in contact with them. I am beginning to perceive the great number of decisions that the secretary must make himself. He cannot sit back and confine himself to high-level policy pronouncements. He must get into the thick of it."

Was he aware, as a former high official of the Pentagon said, that the place was loaded with admirals and generals waiting to ambush a new secretary with "the old chestnuts rejected by McNamara"?

"I am aware of it. I knew ahead of time that there were men who honestly feel their opinion is superior to what was previously accepted. I will have to winnow through these ideas as I go. But I am comforted by the fact that after more than 20 years in government work you get an instinct about certain things."

As a man of great self-discipline, Clark Clifford continually impresses his wife, children and friends with the fact that he can sleep any time he chooses, drinks no liquor and confines himself to three cigarettes a day one after lunch, two after dinner, no less, no more, no matter how rich the satisfaction of the last draw.

All sources appear to agree that Clifford will get along better with Congress than McNamara, no small factor as Lyndon Johnson gets ready for the quadrennial Super Bowl of American politics.

"McNamara," said a Clifford friend who also is a knowing Washington hand, "gave the impression he suffered fools badly. Clark may not suffer them gladly but he's been in politics long enough to be more tolerant, to take the few extra steps to avoid friction."

Over the years, Clifford's services to presidents have been many and varied. As special counsel, he wrote speeches for Harry Truman and helped write the Defense Department. He advised Truman on everything from the cold war to how to win re-election in 1948 to the tiniest details of image-making. Have Albert Einstein to lunch; at your next press conference mention a current affairs book you're reading, said one long Clifford memo.

For John F. Kennedy, Clifford supplied the blueprint for the transition of power from Dwight Eisenhower, helped investigate U.S. intelligence after the disaster at the Bay of Pigs, later headed the President's Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board and represented Kennedy in his fight with the steel industry in 1962.

For Lyndon Johnson, Clifford has, among other things, made fact-finding trips to Vietnam, accompanied the President to the Manila conference, helped draw up the strategy by which Johnson eliminated Robert Kennedy as a vice presidential nominee in 1964 and, more recently, been consulted on the President's last State of the Union speech, the Pueblo and assorted crises. He has, in short, become known as an "insider's insider."

Between presidential missions, Clark McAdams Clifford practiced law in Washington, most frequently representing people with government problems.
