She Saw "Boot Hill" Made

Mrs. Mickey McCormick, the last resident of Old Tascosa, hell-roaring Texas frontier cattle town of the 70's, looks from the doorway of her little stone home toward "Boot Hill," last resting place of the boys buried with their boots on because they weren't quick enough on the draw. Now more than 80, Mrs. McCormick was an actress who came to the frontier when the "law of the gun" prevailed, and saw "Boot Hill" populated.

Patriotic Texans Today Are Flocking To Shrine Of Independence; Thousands Are To Attend All-Day Gathering At Site

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON-ON-THE-BRAZOS, Tex., Mar. 2.—Patriotic Texans today flocked to this shrine of Texas independence for the 102nd anniversary of the signing of the historic document that gave the state freedom from Mexico.

Thousands of motorists sped here over roads that were undreamed of on that bleak day in 1836 when hardy pioneers assembled at an humble blacksmith shop here and signed their names to the instrument drawn in the handwriting of George C. Childress.

Governor James V. Allred was scheduled to deliver the principal address of the day, while a field mass meeting attracting thousands was to be held near the smithy. The mass was to be celebrated by the Rev. James O'Brien, C. S. C. of Austin, with white-haired Christopher E. Byrne, D. D., bishop of Galveston, delivering the sermon. Music will be furnished by a chorus of 5000 child voices.

An all-day observance by patriotic and civic groups, churchmen and state officials, was scheduled in the state park containing the replica of the blacksmith shop where the declaration of independence was signed.

Sixty days after the declaration of independence was signed by the Texans, General Sam Houston, whose memory today stood out in the minds of Texans throughout

Civil Service Poll Here Faces Delay

Opinion that election on the proposal to install civil service for city employes cannot be held legally April 5 as planned by the city commission was reported this morning by City Attorney Durwood H. Bradley.

The law, as cited by the city attorney, requires a certain time-taking procedure when an election is held on a proposal to amend the city charter, as would be necessary in the case of city civil service for Lubbock.

Notice Is Required

Those requirements, he added, will not permit the holding of the poll as soon as April 5, the date for the regular city election when a mayor and two city commissioners are to be named.

His interpretation of the law is, Bradley said, that the city commission must give at least 20 days notice of its intent to consider for passage the ordinance calling an election on a proposal to amend the city charter. The call then must be advertised for at least 30 days before the election, he added.

50 Days Necessary

Thus, it was explained, at least 50 days would be required by law between the first call and the holding of the election.

The information, according to officials at the city hall, will be transmitted to the city commissioners witnout delay. Whether a special meeting of that body may be held was problematical but unlikely, it was said at the city hall.

Church Leader Faces Prison

(By The Associated Press)

BERLIN, March 2—The Rev. Martin Niemoeller, for five years a zealous leader of Protestant church opposition to German government regulation, was sentenced today to seven months imprisonment but time already spent in jail cancelled out the sentence.

He must go to jail, however, for three months unless he pays a $600 fine for speaking disparagingly of leading personages of the reich.

Time Also Pays Fine

Time already served was held also to have paid a $200 fine for violating decrees stipulating usages of the pulpit.

A great crowd milled around the courthouse from early morning before sentence was pronounced on the militant German Evangelical church pastor, who went to trial Feb. 7 on charges of inciting to disobedience against the state and violating pulpit regulations.

Invited to the courtroom were a hundred guests including the pastor's three children who were on a front bench, 50 foreign press representatives, and 90 ordinary spectators who were lucky enough to find available seats.

Niemoeller entered the courtroom exactly at noon. Smiling broadly, evidently sure of himself, he slapped one of his attorneys on the shoulder.

The court entered at 12:05 p. m., with the presiding judge saying "I

Senator Says State Officer Plays Politics

Agrees With Attorney General There Should Be A Showdown; Committee Is Defended

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Mar. 2—Sen. T. J. Holbrook of Galveston today flung back at Attorney General William McCraw the charge of "playing politics" which McCraw hurled at him last week in connection with his conduct of a senate committee investigation.

In a long talk to members of the committee which he heads, the senate dean again disclaimed any political motive in subpoenaing bank accounts of Mr. and Mrs. McCraw and permitting detailed questioning of McCraw's former law partner, Tom C. Clark of Dallas.

The committee is empowered to investigate all state departments.

No Part In Conspiracy

"Neither I nor any other member of the committee," he said, "is in the slightest degree responsible for the testimony that has been educed during the several hearings on matters relating to the conduct of the high office which the attorney general holds. Notwithstanding his statement to the contrary, I have had no part in building up a political conspiracy against him.

"I assume by his tirade against me in that direction he has decided the dogwood has commenced to bloom and it is time to set his political sail to the breeze, by creating a smoke screen, rather than discuss seriously and frankly the things which relate to the high trust the people have reposed in him."

Charges Were Hurled

After the subpoena was issued at Dallas last week for Mrs. McCraw's bank account, the attorney general, who is running for governor, sharply criticized Holbrook and Sen. Joe L. Hill of Henderson for dragging a woman into "political warfare." He said he had stood their repeated insinuations against him without protest but prying into Mrs. McCraw's private affairs violated the rules of common decency.

Holbrook in the speech to his colleagues, agreed with McCraw there should be a "showdown," adding in that connection that McCraw's case long since would have been much nearer solution had Tom Clark furn-

OLTON, Mar. 2. (Special)—Two pleas of guilty were heard in 64th district court here and sentences passed by Judge C. D. Russell, presiding.

Jack Todd, a transient, entered a plea of guilty to a charge of statutory rape on a 15-year old Littlefield girl and was given five years in prison. J. B. Jackson, a negro, was given three years on his plea of guilty to a charge of murder in the death of Arthur Gray, another negro.

James Bowman, a negro, was given 15 years for the slaying of Mose John, another negro, by a jury Monday night.

Defendant Desperately Avers Innocence In Soviet Trial

MOSCOW, Mar. 2. (AP)—A defendant who desperately protested his innocence of treason charges against him today interjected a dramatic note into the opening of the trial of 21 fallen Soviet leaders. He was N. N. Krestinsky, former assistant commissar of foreign affairs.

An indictment alleged Krestinsky confessed he had entered into a treasonable plot with General Hans Von Seekt, German military leader, at the behest of the exiled Leon Trotsky.

Krestinsky repudiated this confession and sharp attempts by the prosecution to shake his repudiation failed.

Fear Deepens For Safety Of Missing New York Child

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., March 2 (AP)—Fear deepened today for the safety of missing 12-year-old Peter Levine as G-men began an active investigation into the boy's mysterious disappearance.

Roads Said To Be Filled With Speed-Crazed Maniacs; Peace Justice Never Drives Auto

(By The Associated Press)

SALT LAKE CITY, March 2—Veteran Justice of the Peace Herman Gygi declared today he never had and never would drive an automobile "because of the horrors I've seen during my eight years in office."

Justice Gygi has been acting coroner in investigations of many fatal accidents. He estimates he's heard 3,000 traffic cases in his court.

"Drunken drivers and speeders are potential murderers, as deadly as a sniper in the woods," he said. "Our highways are filled with speed-crazed maniacs who have no thought for anyone — even themselves. I'll never get in the driver's seat myself."

Justice Gygi avoids riding in automobiles as much as possible. If he goes to court by car, his son, Herman, jr., drives him. Sometimes, he says, he trusts a deputy sheriff or state highway patrolman as chauffeur, "but only in emergencies."

Victory For City In Road Hearing

A special commission this morning announced it had found for the city in a controversy arising over condemnation of property owned by George E. Smith for opening of Texas avenue from its dead end at Twentieth street to juncture with Avenue H near Thirtieth street.

The commission, composed of Roger Q. Pierce, jr., Glen Hess and J. E. Garrison, informed Durwood H. Bradley, city attorney, and Ben Kucera, counsel for Smith, it had evaluated Smith's loss in having a part of his property divided by the Texas right-of-way at $200.

Had Asked $2,500

That represented the price the city had proposed to pay. Smith had asked $2,500.

Smith said he would appeal to county court, where he may present his case before a jury if he elects. Successive appeal procedure would be to the court of civil appeals for the seventh district, at Amarillo, and thence to the state supreme court.

Smith, representing through witnesses at a public hearing before the commission Saturday that he would financially lose heavily even though $2,500 were paid him by the city for the right-of-way, had offered to pay the city $2,500 if it would not separate his implement company building at 2608 Avenue H from a repair shop on the back triangular section of his lot.

Expenses Would Mount

He said the city's action would force him to unload freight cars of equipment on the small triangular section of his lot, where his loading dock lies, then load such equipment on trucks so as to transport it across the highway to his warehouse, at an estimated expense of $10 a car.

"The fact we unloaded approx-

Receipts for the first two months of 1938 were $32,247.17, compared to $25,621.42. The increase, $6,625.71, was 25.8 per cent over last year.

Judge Figures He'll See This Fellow Again And Offers A Polite "Good Afternoon"

BELLINGHAM, Wash., Mar. 2. (AP)—The case of Clyde Anable, charged with overparking, was called in Magistrate J. P. McGlinn's court.

"Have you anything to say in your own defense?" Judge McGlinn asked.

"My wife was having a baby."

"Were you ever tagged before for overtime parking?"

"Yes, about three years ago."

"What delayed you at that time?"

"My wife was having a baby."

"Good afternoon," said the judge. "See you again in about three years."

Tax Plan Will Aid Business

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Mar. 2.—House ways and means committee Democrats said today the administration's new tax revision bill by providing a well-balanced tax system, should bring about "a very substantial stimulation to business."

Backing up proposals to modify the undistributed profits tax, the Democrats said some of the complaints made against it were justified, but that hardships in many cases "seem to have been exaggerated."

Principle Is Sound

"On the basis of the facts," they said in a formal report to the house, "your committee believes that the principle of the undistributed profits tax is sound and should be continued."

The Democrats said they believed a proposed new surtax on closely held corporations "will not create any serious hardship, and, on the other hand, will protect the revenue."

They expressed a hope that modification of the capital gains levy would benefit persons interested in making long term investments and "will permit transactions to be made which are now prevented by the existing tax system."

Striking at these three types of taxes in a separate report last night, the seven committee Republicans contended that in the "penalty" tax on large-income corporations owned by families or by from two to ten individuals, the administration had forged a "political weapon" to "purge" the business structure of some of its foes.

Nazi Leaders Demand Austria Modify Catholic Relations

GRAZ, Austria, March 2 (AP)—Nazi leaders in this center of Austrian nazidom advanced a demand today that the traditionally Catholic nation modify its relation with the Vatican.

"The concordat must be changed," they said, as the nazi-inclined minister of interior, Arthur Seysz-Inquart, continued efforts to mollify the excited national socialists.

McCraw Tells Of Candidacy For Governor

Dramatic Moment Is Chosen By Attorney General When He Faces Senate Committee

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Mar. 2—Attorney General William McCraw dramatically chose his appearance today before the senate general investigating committee to announce formally his candidacy for governor.

"I'm not going to wait on the blooming of the dogwoods," McCraw said. "The press may note that I expect to be a candidate for governor and you may be sure that my candidacy won't be based on the shortcomings of some one else."

Permission Is Given

McCraw, who came to the committee session at his own request, earlier had told the committee that "you have my complete permission to inspect any act of mine, public or private."

He spoke only briefly to the committee and approximately 200 persons who had been attracted by the prospect of his appearance and that of his wife.

Talk Draws Applause

The atmosphere was highly charged as McCraw faced Holbrook and Sen. Joe L. Hill, committeemen whom he had accused of attempting to ruin his chances in the governor's race. The attorney general's talk drew warm applause.

His voice became husky as he said:

"I brought my wife here this morning. It's an embarrassing thing. But if you have any questions to ask her, she's here."

"Never in my life have I made war on a woman. I trust that this committee or none other ever again will make war on the overdrawn bank account of a housewife."

Regarding the claimed insinuations against him in connection with Clark's earnings, McCraw replied:

"I have no more control over the practice of my former law partner than I have over Senator Hill" (Hill is McCraw's most persistent critic among the committeemen.)

Huge TWA Liner Missing Since Tuesday Night

(By The Associated Press)

FRESNO, Calif., March 2—Caught in a storm, a missing transport plane carrying nine persons was believed today to have crashed in rugged mountainous country east of Fresno.

Air officials concentrated on Fresno during the early morning to begin a daylight search for the big Transcontinental and Western Air Express plane, last heard from at 11:16 o'clock (CST) last night.

From the Huntington Lake region in the High Sierra 45 miles northeast of here came a report a plane had been sighted, flying at an altitude of only about 500 feet.

Soon after the report TWA and other air officials left from San Francisco, where the plane left at 8:33 o'clock last night, and from Los Angeles, where the ship was bound en route to Albuquerque, N. M. They indicated Fresno would be the concentration point of the search.

United Air Lines canceled all San Francisco-Los Angeles trips this morning, reportedly to keep the lanes clear for the search. The company would not confirm this.

tions, radioed he was north of Bakersfield and acknowledged instructions to land at that city.

It was the last word from the storm-buffeted plane.

A frantic check of San Joaquin valley fields by TWA officials at union air terminal here failed to reveal further trace of the two-motored Douglas. It took off from San Francisco at 6:33 o'clock last night with five hundred gallons of fuel, sufficient for 6 1-2 hours flight.

Those Aboard Plane

Besides Pilot Graves, the crew was composed of First Officer C. W. Wallace and Stewardess M. M. Wilson.

TWA said the six passengers and their destinations were:

H. M. Salisbury, TWA first officer, Los Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Walta, Chicago.

Mr. V. Krause, Kansas City.

Mr. Tracy Dirlan, Columbus, Ohio.

Miss Mary Lou Dirlan, Columbus, Ohio.

Broad Inquiry Being Hinted

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Mar. 2.—White House conferences on revising the anti-trust laws strengthened the belief of many legislators today that President Roosevelt would ask congress to undertake a thorough investigation of monopolies.

The president said yesterday he would submit an anti-trust message soon, but gave no approximate date. The general opinion on Capitol Hill was that he would not advocate any new legislation until the inquiry was completed.

Bills Would Be Delayed

Consideration of specific bills thus would be deferred until next year, because congressional leaders hope for an early adjournment.

Such a course would be in line with the contention of many observers that the administration is avoiding any steps which might discourage an upturn in business.

At his press conference Roosevelt replied to several questions regarding other business and labor

Brighter Days Are Seen For Oil Industry

BY HARRELL E. LEE
Associated Press Staff Writer

AUSTIN, March 2—The nation's oil producers generally feel the worst of their 1938 troubles are about over.

Spring is just beyond the horizon and spring means more automobiles on the highways and an expanding demand for gasoline. Oil men are sufficiently optimistic to believe recurrence forecasts of an early general business upturn perhaps are based on facts instead of mere hopes.

Deserve The Credit

If curtailment of winter production makes 1938 a prosperous year for the oil industry, Texas and Oklahoma deserve most of the credit. Texas already has had six statewide Sunday shutdowns and the railroad commission has ordered four more. The Oklahoma corporation commission set that state's daily allowable for March at 475,000 barrels 72,700 less than the market demand estimate of the United States bureau of mines.

The gasoline "hangover" and the business recession are the industry's chief ailments. Gasoline stocks have been setting new all-time peaks week after week. Crude oil production apparently will have to be held to a fairly small increase during the second quarter of the year to permit working off of this huge gasoline surplus.

Have Desired Effect

The Sunday shutdowns seemed to be having the desired effect of halting an alarming bottomhole pressure drop in East Texas. V. E. Cottingham, the railroad commission's Harold Bauer, eminent pianist who is to be presented in concert at 8 o'clock tonight at Senior High school auditorium under the auspices of the Tech Artist course, is a genial man with an easy flow of words and interest in the things that go to make up daily living.

Organization of a local union of cooks, waiters and waitresses to seek affiliation with the American Federation of Labor progressed at a meeting at the courthouse here Tuesday night.

J. W. Tarter and M. Hughey, president and secretary of the Amarillo local, attended.

A charter was presented and 17 charter members signed. It was indicated between 30 and 40 promised to affiliate with the organization at the next meeting which will be in the Griffith and Jay real estate offices at 1108 Texas avenue Thursday night.

After completion of organization, the union will meet once each week. Tarter and Hughey indicated they would return for the Thursday night session.

Not since the charter was discontinued in 1932 has Lubbock had a union for culinary workers.

CHEST COLDS
Relieve Their Misery This Proved Way
WHEN there's a cold to treat—especially if it's a chest cold—that's no time to experiment. Relieve the misery with the treatment that has been doubly proved for you.
Here's What To Do: It's best to stay in bed and get lots of rest. Eat lightly, drink plenty of water, and keep elimination regular. And use your dependable Vicks VapoRub without delay.
VapoRub has been proved by everyday use in more homes than any other medication of its kind—further proved by the largest clinical tests ever made on colds. (Full details in every VapoRub package.) Only Vicks give you proof like this.
VapoRub is direct external treatment. No "dosing"—no stomach upsets. Just massage it on throat, chest, and back. Then—to make its long-continued double action last even longer—spread a thick layer on the chest and cover with a warmed cloth.
No Long Waiting for Relief to Begin...
Almost before you finish rubbing, you begin to feel warm and comfortable as VapoRub goes to work direct through the skin like a poultice. At the same time its medicated vapors, released by the warmth of the body, are carried direct to the irritated air-passages with every breath.
This double action loosens phlegm—relieves irritation and coughing—helps break local congestion. And long after restful sleep comes, VapoRub keeps on working.

Perkins Heads Crosby Group

CROSBYTON, Mar. 2. (Special)—Reorganization of the Crosbyton Chamber of Commerce, inactive for the past few years, was perfected at a meeting of the citizens of the town Monday night, when directors for the organization were elected.

Directors are: C. A. Gentry, Emry Pieratt, Stanley Carter, Dr. J. L. Adams, E. M. Perkins, R. H. Horn, W. T. Dunn, H. C. Oldham, T. George, C. L. Dyer, G. E. Huddleston, and Bill Nickson. E. M. Perkins, local banker, was elected president of the body.

Pledges Are Given

The initial membership drive, made on the night of the reorganization, resulted in pledges of about $1,700, on a probable budget of $3,000, which the directors have set for the first year's operation.

The board of directors is seeking applicants for a chamber of commerce secretary, and election to this place will be made at a future date after applicants are considered.

City Will Be Represented At Dallas Hearings Monday

Lubbock will be represented at hearings before the interstate commerce commission and Texas railroad commission at Dallas Monday at which railroads will urge approval of increased freight rates on coarse grains shipped within the state, according to information given at the chamber of commerce this morning.

Coarse grains were described as being such commodities as maize, sorghums, corn and the like.

The carriers, according to information to the chamber, have asked the interstate commission to compel the state commission to authorize an increase in rates on coarse grains to a level with that of wheat. Present rates on coarse grain are approximately three and one-half cents per 100 pounds less than on wheat.

Joining the Lubbock chamber and numerous other delegations from throughout the state in the protest will be Lubbock Grain exchange, probably by George Roach, president.

Road Hearing

imately 80 cars last year and will handle at least 100 this year, having handled about 35 so far this year, will present at a glance how much I will lose," he said to the Evening Journal this morning.

"Then there are other points. I will have to stand a heavy assessment for paving of a road that does nothing but damage me; I will not have room enough to place physical equipment where I need it to carry on my business; I had planned to extend my main building, but I don't have room enough now; crossing the highway from my loading dock to the warehouse will result in my having to move heavy and long machine units across a highway designed to carry heavy traffic, which would mean extreme slowness and liability of collision.

Not Trying To Dig City

"I am not trying to dig the city; if I were I would not have offered to pay the city $2,500 rather than accept that amount for the property.

"The crux of the situation is everybody on Texas avenue will be benefitted by the street, because of rising property evaluations, except for me. I just happen to be on a spot where I will suffer tremendous damage that will increase yearly, in case my South Plains distribution business over a 75 or 100-mile radius increases."

Smith said he would advise Kucera "to proceed at once with appeal action."

The city attorney said the decision of the jury commission would "open the way" to immediate work in extending the street, which will be done to divert a dangerous flow of traffic off Avenue H and to make for a mobile handling of through communication.

Stock Market

WALL STREET REPORT

NEW YORK, March 2 (AP)—Stocks slipped into a slow decline today as buying interest ebbed throughout the market. Losses of fractions to more than a point predominated near the fourth hour.

Speculation marked time while traders looked to Washington and industrial centers for significant news. Selling, brokers said, was restrained by hope of a spring upturn from the present low levels of factory production. At the same time curtailment of public buying power from unemployment, dividend cuts and omissions and scattered salary cuts dampened optimism.

Dealings were about the quietest of recent weeks, with only 170,000 shares changing hands on the "big board" in the forenoon.

Commodities generally held to a narrow course, although wheat sagged. Corporate bonds drew a little better support than stocks.

Steel, motor, chemical, farm implement and other groups drifted down from the tops of last week's rally. The extended stay in a restricted trading area left market followers without a clue to the main trend.

Rail shares encountered moderate offerings. Suspense over the anticipated ICC decision on the freight rate increase request heightened.

Cotton Market

NEW ORLEANS REPORT

NEW ORLEANS, March 2 (AP) — Cotton prices opened net 10 points lower on the exchange here today.

The opening was steady with March at 9.19, May 9.19, July 9.38, Oct. 9.35, Dec. 9.35 and Jan. 9.35.

Trading was slow. Liverpool cables said prices drifted lower.

Active positions gained a few points during the morning.

March traded at 9.20, May at 9.26, July 9.33, Oct. at 9.39 and Dec. at 9.41.

Henry Plauche, secretary of the exchange reported exports here in February totalled 461,895 bales against 448,947 in 1937.

The turnover Monday was 16,700 bales and open commitments 413,380 bales, a decrease of 3,150 bales from tre previous day.

NEW YORK REPORT

NEW YORK, March 2 (AP) — Cotton futures opened unchanged to 3 lower. Easier cables were partly offset by trade and commission house buying. March 9.07; May 9.07; July 9.13; Oct. 9.23; Dec. 9.26; Jan. 9.27.

Trading was fairly active. Slightly narrower spreads between Bombay and New York tended to check larger offerings.

May recovered from 9.07 to 9.10 shortly after the first half hour, when the list was net unchanged to 1 point lower.

The market turned dull later in the morning but the undertone ruled steady. Some hesitancy on the buying side was attributed to fears further advances would attract freer southern or Bombay selling.

By midday May was selling at 9.14, and prices generally were 1 to 4 points net higher.

Livestock Market

KANSAS CITY REPORT

KANSAS CITY, March 2 (AP)—(U. S. D. A.)—Hogs: 1,000; uneven; top 9.00; good to choice 150-260 lbs. 8.75-9.00; few 270-310 lbs. 8.50-8.75; sows 10 lower, 7.50-7.85.

Cattle 2,500, calves 700; choice medium weight steers 9.35; heavy steers 9.00; several loads 8.50-8.85; comparatively few fed steers under 7.50; light weight South Texas bramahs 6.75; mixed yearlings up to 8.35.

Sheep 6,500; clipped lambs steady to weak; clipped lambs 7.35-7.75; best wooled lambs offered held above 8.00.

Oil Industry

chief engineer, said that during the 30-day period ended February 8 the vast field's average pressure increased 7.08 pounds.

Many persons maintained the principal reason for curtailment of production by the Sunday shutdown method was that daily allowables in East Texas could not be cut without running afoul of the marginal well law.

Operators who contend Texas is not getting its share of the national production claimed support from a recent report of the committee on petroleum reserves of the American Petroleum Institute. That report placed the known Texas oil reserves at 8,247,928,000 barrels compared to 7,359,340,000 for the rest of the nation. Texas current production is less than 40 per cent of the national output.

The report incidentally provided no basis for concern over an impending shortage of oil. It said the nation's proven reserves leaped 2,443,863,000 barrels during 1937.

Texas proration policies will be indirectly submitted to the voters in the statewide political campaigns due to become warm in the early spring. C. V. Terrell, aging railroad commission chairman, has drawn several opponents in his race for renomination. Railroad Commissioner Ernest O. Thompson, chairman of the interstate oil compact commission, is a candidate for governor.

Numerous Texas officials, including Governor James V. Allred and Attorney General William McCraw, went to Washington last week to oppose the Nye resolution intended to bolster the federal government's claim to oil deposits in the Pacific and Gulf of Mexico. Texas has been proceeding on the theory the submerged land off its coast belongs to the state.

Holbrook Charges

ished the information for which the committee thrice had asked.

"The fact Clark's income increased substantially after the attorney general's election," Holbrook said, "is and has been for a long time widely commented on throughout the state."

Clark would not authorize his Dallas bank to hand the committee all the records on his bank account and that of the old McCraw-Clark law firm. He stated, however, he would gladly produce the records of any transaction named by the inquisitors.

Holbrook said the sole purpose of subpoenaing Mrs. McCraw's account was to check whether Clark ever had made any deposits to its credit.

"This summons was not out of order," he asserted. "It meant no insult to Mrs. McCraw; nor was it intended as such. Women are citizens, as well as men, and who better would be able to defend the virtues, or portray the vices, of a husband than his wife? The fact is, many of them hold the purse strings of their weaker half, and know more about their business relations than any one else. . . . .

"The mere fact a subpoena was directed to the bank to bring up the accounts of General McCraw and his wife did not bring the matter before the world for attention. That was done by the general himself when he informed the press of the circumstances and thus advertised it to all who read. His purpose in this theatrical move I do not know and can only surmise. This is another circumstance, in the drama being played by him in which the general is the chief actor; with the committee and the people as mere onlookers."

Holbrook deplored the friction in the committee over the issuance of the Mrs. McCraw bank account subpoena. He admitted the act was not authorized by a majority of the group but said any committeeman heretofore had had the power to issue subpoenas.

"I believe," he said, "that when a majority of this committee refuses to accord each member that respect which is due him, its usefulness is ended so far as any public good may be accomplished."

inundated and a dangerous condition was reported in the Mar Vista district.

Motorists who were able to navigate Valley boulevard into the city reported that some of the swans, which usually rode the placid ponds of Lincoln park, were swimming down the highway.

Two automobiles, parked on West Channel road, dividing line between Santa Monica and Los Angeles, were reported to have been swept into the ocean. They were unoccupied. The water was up to the counters in the cafes along this road.

There were no early reports of flood casualties.

the far-flung state, led a little band of patriots to ultimate victory at the battle of San Jacinto, 18 miles below Houston.

The gentle rolling hills surrounding this old town on the right bank of the muddy Brazos river were dotted with motorists last night as many moved into Brenham, Navasota, Bryan and Houston to await the opening ceremonies today.

State highway patrolmen estimated 15,000 persons would visit the park during the day.

Noted Musician

hold on the public in the last few years.

The noted musician scoffed at the idea one must be "talented" before he can appreciate art and music.

"You cannot get along in life without intuition, without a sense of beauty," he said. "Music is one of the easiest forms because it stimulates the imagination. And a musician, no matter how accomplished, cannot give a satisfactory performance unless the audience is in a receptive mood. It's fifty-fifty proposition."

In playing before college students, Mr. Bauer selects music of a type to be recognized as worthy examples of great composers and while he might choose a program of larger dimensions in cities he has found audiences in the hinterlands, so-called, to be as responsive as those in New York City.

After the concert, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Mills will entertain with an informal reception in their home, 2627 Twenty-second street, honoring Mr. Bauer. The Artists course committee and persons especially interested in music have been invited to call, Mr. Mills said.

Twelfth Annual Banquet For Society Is Set Saturday

A 12th annual banquet will be conducted by the Engineering society of Texas Technological college at 7 o'clock Saturday night in the women's dormitory, with Dean W. R. Woolrich of the University of Texas as principal speaker.

Invitations have been sent to all graduates of the division. Alumni of the division also will conduct banquets that night in Houston, Chattanooga, and New York.

O. A. St. Clair of the Tech engineering faculty will be toastmaster. The committee planning the banquet is composed of Wayland Merriman, student from Wheeler; Carl Bechtold, Denver; Dosh McCreary, Santa Anna, and George Dupree, jr., Lubbock.

BILL IS SIGNED

WASHINGTON, Mar. 2. (AP)—President Roosevelt signed the $250,000,000 emergency relief appropriation bill today to provide supplemental funds for the Works Progress administration up to next June 30.

Contests Are Being Staged

ABILENE, March 2 (AP)—Gerald Proctor, Winters vocational agriculture student, showed the grand champion Hereford calf here Tuesday in the West Texas boys livestock show. The reserve calf was shown by Bill Magee, Albany.

Joe Antilley, 12-year-old Taylor county 4-H club boy, exhibited a six-months-old Jersey heifer to the grand championship over a field of more mature females.

Merle Proctor, Winters, had the champion milk-fed calf, and Frank Brown, also of Winters, had the blue ribbon lightweight dry-lot calf.

Rodeo Is Staged

First two performances of a three-day rodeo were marked by the speedy bulldogging of Hugh Bennett of Abilene and Fort Thomas, Ariz. Bennett, arena director for the event, tossed his steer in 8.2 seconds. Burly Rube Roberts of Fort Worth, a 240-pounder, bent a leather-necked steer to the ground in 10.7 seconds for second place.

Cleve Kelley topped ropers with a time of 18 seconds, only a fraction ahead of Gene Ross.

Although broncs were bucking viciously, Eddie Cain of Fort Sumner, N. M., was the only rider dismounted in the course of the two shows. Steer riders were less successful. All four night riders failed to qualify, while at the afternoon performance two riders were thrown, and the following made successful rides: Paul Carney of Galeton, Colo., Bud Cook of Long Beach, Jimmie Olsen of Pampa, Hank Mills of Montrose, Colo., and Hubert Flowers of Duncan, Okla.

Students Appear On Air Program Today

Results of classroom practice in music classes were to be shown this afternoon when children from Central Ward school give the Lubbock school radio program over station KFYO at 3:45. The program will present musical selections from "Pinafore", an operetta to be presented by the school on March 15 in the Senior High school auditorium.

All music classes of Charles Fike can sing the well known "Pinafore" selections, but only a select group had been chosen for the radio program. In addition, a group of saxette players will give two selections, playing this time in two parts to show their progress since the first semester.

John Davis will be the announcer for the program, making all his explanations in rhyme. Mr. Fike, Mrs. Lattie Rankin, and Mrs. Charles Fagg assisted in arranging the program.

Students in the chorus will be: Mary Lou Pinkston, Nelrose Horton, Jacqueline Lewis, Billie B. Havis, Jesse Kidwell, George Zournas, Kitty P. Bonds, Noel Ellis, Betty Cassastevens, Gwendolyn Wardlow, Billy R. Medley, Peat Belt, Billie Cannon, David Coursey, William McMillan, Barbara Abernathy, Frances Groce, Doris Brock, Tommy Su Morgan, Temple Joyce McAfee, Gene Harvey, Billie Cope, Earl Heard, George Kuykendall, Ben T. Wells, Mary Beth Dupree, and Ellen T. Moser.

Students who will play the saxettes are: Doris Mae Burdett, Betty Ann Cogborn, Ella F. Norman, Herbert Aduddell, Zola M. Elliott, Sammye Rhodes, Jessie Pipkin, Wendel Hartsfield, Louise Battin, Mary Ann Dykes, Bess Griggs, Geraldine Pool, Dorothy Stevenson, Betty Rountree, Dave Alkire, Bob Hassell, Jo David Sides, Louis Hunt, Irene Crim, Patricia Quinlan, Jo Cobb, Jack Parks, Jack Cooper, Kenneth Berry, Samuel Henley, Francis King, Ernestine Snider, Opal Hall, Janette Click, Eleanore Ferguson, Betty Jo Mangum, Duense Buck, Gordon Stalkup, Edwin Cozley, Phyllis Syfrett, and Mary Pierce.

once more give the floor to the defendant Niemoeller."

The pastor rose saying:

"I have nothing to add to my observations last Saturday, and ask the court to deliver a verdict of not guilty.

"I have finished."

The verdict was pronounced, as Niemoeller listened serenely, smiling at his wife and children.

Rustic Stage Coach To Become Permanent Exhibit At Museum

A rustic stage coach which will serve as a refreshment conveyance at the Arbor day tree planting at Texas Technological college this afternoon later will become a permanent exhibit of the West Texas museum on the campus, it was announced this morning.

Arlie Crites, manager of the Palace theater, has presented the stage coach as a permanent loan from the Griffith Amusement company. The coach will be placed at the front of the museum and will remain there except in case of possible temporary use by the theater.

Exhibits Are Entered

Several exhibits have been entered in the museum in the last few days.

More than 50 Indian artifacts and several meteorite and meteorode fragments have been loaned by Floyd Seaman of Plainview. The collection was secured from Texas and three other states.

A collection of 110 Indian artifacts secured from seven states, Alaska and Panama has been given to the museum by the Smithsonian institute. The group includes a plaster cast of an unidentified artifact known as the "boat stone" because of its boat shape. Some scientists believe it was a counterweight on the "atlatl" throwing sticks used by Indians before the bow came into use.

A case of insects is being shown through courtesy of O. B. Howell, horticulture professor.

A copy of the first official proclamation of Mothers day, made April 14, 1911, has been presented by O. B. Colquitt of Dallas, a former governor of Texas.

A puzzle exhibit has been loaned temporarily by R. A. Studhalter, head professor of biology, botany and zoology. The exhibit includes most basic puzzle designs which have been placed on the market in the last 20 years.

A coin collection valued at $1,500 has been loaned by W. F. Helwig, W. C. Cole and Vernon Neill.

Steady Building Pace In City Is Continued In New Month

The new month of March has failed to bring any slackening in the steady building pace which has broken all records since the beginning of the depressions.

Three building permits this morning added $3,400 to new construction totals, increasing figures for the month to $15,066.32 and for the year to $316,178.07. Total of $33,188.82 for the week gave promise that a new record for activities during any week since Jan. 1 may be broken.

New permits included: Mary E. Martin, frame residence and garage at 2113 Twenty-fourth street, $2,500; Mrs. L. L. Ford, frame residence at 610 Fifth street, $500; and J. L. Edwards, frame and iron-clad shed at 110 North College avenue, $400.

Ex-Convict Is Facing Charge On Robbery With Firearms

HOUSTON, March 2 (AP) — A charge of robbery by firearms was filed today against W. E. Garner, 27-year-old ex-convict who is being held in jail at Austin in connection with the shooting and robbing of a highway patrolman near Bryan several days ago.

The charge against Garner was filed in connection with the kidnaping and robbing of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Nelson in their car in front of a hamburger stand when a man flourished a gun, got in their car and made them drive to Beaumont where he put them out, taking their car, two watches, two diamond rings, and $16 in cash.

Garner was arrested a few hours after Charles Key, state highway patrolman was shot in the hand and leg on February 17 on the highway near Bryan.

Movie Projector For Use In Programs Bought At Tech

A movie projector has been purchased at Texas Technological college, primarily for use in summer school recreational programs, said Dean James M. Gordon, chairman of the summer school committee.

The projector, purchase price of which was slightly more than $600, has been ordered. It also will be used during regular sessions.

Tentative plans have been discussed for erecting a platform and seats on the lawn south of the administration building to be used in summer school programs at which educational pictures and news reels would be shown.

WPA Rolls In City Boosted

More persons who have never been on WPA rolls before but who are now seeking work on government projects, were reported applying to the Lubbock office, it was explained this morning.

This type of applicant is known as a "referral," in WPA regulations. The number of persons asking for work is greater now than in the previous history of the district office here.

Increase, it was explained, is due to the large number of tenant farmers who have been replaced by tractors or by consolidation of farms under one management. Having lost their location, and unable to secure another place, they move to town and then seek work through the WPA.

Little Work Offered

"Back in the old days," commented J. O. Jones, pioneer South Plains resident, "a farmer coming to town to live, could get some hauling to do, or some work of that kind. With the auto delivery, he does not have a chance to do any hauling. There is so little work in a town for him to do that he cannot find much."

Particularly in the larger wheat producing counties has the number of farmers and others seeking WPA work shown an increase.

On the other hand, the number of former WPA roll workers who left to enter private employment last fall and who are asking a place on the rolls, is less at this season than last year. This is credited to the fact that there is an increase in general activities at this season over a year ago.

Man Is Lashed For Beating His Wife

BALTIMORE, Mar. 2. (AP)—Clyde Miller, lashed 20 times as a punishment for wife-beating, was taken to the city jail hospital last night although Warden Harry Price said he had suffered no apparent ill effects from his ordeal at the whipping post.

Price said he would remain in the hospital for an indefinite time.

The 37-year-old printer lay face down on a cot in the jail where he will spend the next six months as added punishment for beating his wife. His back was criss-crossed with welts raised by the blows of a cat-o'-nine-tails.

Shortly before noon, Miller was led from his cell to the jail lobby where the black whipping post and cat-o'-nine-tails waited. Sheriff Joseph C. Deegan, calm and dignified, laid on the lash in even measured strokes, using only a fraction of his 220 pounds weight behind them.

Miller, eyes downcast as he was strapped to the post, cringed under the first two blows, whimpered at the third, and then groaned in pain at each succeeding blow.

Broad Inquiry

problems.

Secretary Roper had informed him, Mr. Roosevelt said, that "self help" was well nigh lacking in suggestions from small business men for combatting the recession. The commerce department still is analyzing their proposals.

The president said he had no immediate changes in mind for the national labor relations act, but added it was an evolutionary law and he hoped it would be improved from time to time. He placed the social security and crop control acts in the same category.

Letters from about 15 manufacturers and employes, Mr. Roosevelt said, complained that newspapers do not give enough publicity to cases settled by the labor relations board. He read from the board's January report showing that of 116 strike cases, 103 cases covering 8,030 workers had been settled under the act.

Final Figures On Ginnings In Lubbock County Taken

Final figures on cotton ginnings for Lubbock county were taken Tuesday and forwarded to the bureau of the census at Washington where they will be released about March 10, A. L. King, census taker, said this morning.

Included in the figures, he added, were estimates of ginners as to the amount of cotton they will gin during the remainder of the season. Estimates ranged from only a few bales to more than two hundred.

Thirty of the 35 gins in the county are still operating. They are, for the most part, operating only a day or so a week. There are two or three that will have a considerable amount to gin.

In the county are three "double gins," at Wolfforth, Monroe and Acuff. M. T. Daniel owns the gin at Wolfforth, the second unit of which was not installed until late in the season; W. O. Fortenberry owns the Monroe gin and he also added his second unit after the season began. At Acuff the Farmers Cooperative owns two plants.

Grandfather And Mother Are Indicted In Cruelty Case

UNIONTOWN, Pa., March 2 (AP)—Alice Mary Harris, the six-year-old "attic baby," chortled over a birthday cake as a grand jury indicted her grandfather and unmarried mother for cruelty to an infant.

The jury returned its verdict after hearing the testimony that the red-haired child was imprisoned in an attic of the Harris farm house almost from birth.

Human Officer E. E. Smith said the grandfather, 79-year-old Davis Harris, had kept the child in the room as punishment for the daughter, 27-year-old Martha Harris.

Secret Of Buddy Baer's Mounting Success In Ring Being Exposed

Rudy York Promises To Be In The Thick Of Fight For 1938 Home Run Honors

SPORTS

LUBBOCK, TEXAS, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 2, 1938

High-Waisted Trunks Seen As Sly Trick

BY GAYLE TALBOT
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, March 2—Those who have followed the fistic career of Buddy Baer, the saner of the two brothers, will feel let down to learn that the secret of Buddy's mounting success has, or will be, exposed.

The disclosure, for such it is, comes at a particularly painful time, for the cub of the Baer family is scheduled to meet his first really important test at the Garden Friday night against Gunnar Barlund, the flailing Finn.

Successor To Brother

Some of Buddy's more enthusiastic admirers, influenced by his knockout victories over such tough customers as Abe Simon and Eddie Hogan, were beginning to see in him the successor several times removed, of his big brother Max as world's heavyweight champion. Joe Jacobs, manager of Max Schmeling, had even predicted that Buddy would win the title by 1940.

But now comes Barlund's manager, Paul Damski, with a revelation that shocked the boxing commission at its meeting yesterday.

Damski has discovered, so he claims, that Buddy has been wearing special tailor-made ring trunks that are, by artful design, full three inches higher around the waistline than any ever made before. They rise, he claims, almost to Buddy's armpits and are a serious mental hazard to any opponent.

Wears Too Many Clothes

"No fighter's ever dared take a shot at his stummick," Damski told the amazed commissioners. "Why? Because they can't see it for all those clothes he wears. We demand he cut them off at least three inches, north and south, or we don't fight."

Nobody before Damski, apparently, had noticed Baer's highwater britches, but his charges immediately recalled to ringsiders that Buddy hadn't, in fact, been socked much around the body in his sensational knockouts of Simon and Hogan, though he exhibited in each fight an abnormal ability to take it on the jaw.

"Sure," Damski agreed. "He's got a good jaw, better than Max's. But wha' Gunnar and me want to find out is how does he like 'em down below."

Faced with such logic, the commissioners had no alternative. Buddy will come into the ring Friday night, they stipulated, in store-bought, sensible garments, and that will be calling to a scion of publilism's best dressed family.

Babe Ritchie Cops Heavyweight Bout

CHICAGO, Mar. 2. (AP)—Three Texans emerged unscathed last night from fights in the Golden Gloves national championship tournament.

Carl Hilger, Fort Worth, knocked out James Young, Indianapolis, in two rounds. The 160-pounders were in the second round of the tournament.

Arthur Dorrell, Dallas, advanced through two rounds in the 147-pound class by outpointing Ezzard Charles, Cincinnati, in three rounds. It was Dorrell's second win of the evening.

Babe Ritchie, Lubbock, won over Alfred Stein, Streator, Ill., in one round in a heavyweight first-round match.

Bracket Of 32 Teams Assured For Kansas City Tourney

KANSAS CITY, Mar. 2. (AP)—A bracket of 32 teams is assured for the first annual national intercollegiate basketball tournament, to be held here March 7-12, Emil S. Liston, chairman of the tournament board of managers, said today.

Twenty-three teams from nearly as many states have entered and elimination tournaments and completion of conference races are expected to boost the total to 32 or more.

Late entries included North Texas Teachers and New Mexico State college, border conference champions.

CATCHER IS SIGNED

ST. LOUIS, Mar. 2. (AP)—The Browns' office today announced the signing of Angelo John Giuliani, recruit catcher.

Giuliani, 26, joined the Browns last fall, coming from Dallas of the Texas league. He is one of six catchers on the Brownie roster this season.

WINS TECHNICAL K. O.

SEATTLE, Mar. 2. (AP)—Al Hostak, 159 1-2, Seattle's 22-year-old middleweight contender, won a technical knockout last night in the second round of a scheduled 10-round bout with Milford "Swede" Berglund, 163, San Diego, Calif.

Indiana May Be Surprise Grid Eleven

BY EDDIE BRIETZ
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Mar. 2.—Feed box special: Watch that Indiana football team next fall . . . If it doesn't turn out to be one of the country's big surprises, our dope is wrong . . . (And grey-haired Bo McMillin probably will want to murder us for tipping you off) . . . So this is spring training! New York World Telegram carries a picture layout showing Hank Greenberg disporting on the beach with an eye filling cutie; Dizzy Dean puffing a cigarette and swinging a mashie and Al Simmons doing a Greenberg on another beach . . . Pretty soft, eh . . . And up here the wind knocks your ears off.

Davey Day, the Chicago lightweight star, will make headquarters here from now on . . . He'll challenge Lou Ambers at Friday's boxing commission meeting . . . Art Winch, one of Barney Ross' managers, says Louis and Thomas will be a sellout in Chicago . . .

Fresh from Dixie: Bill Terry says the new ball park at Baton Rouge is the best the Jints have trained in since he joined the club 15 years ago . . . The Reds have no less than 50 players tuning up at Tampa . . . Every ball player in Florida is pulling for Joe Medwick to get the $25,000 he is demanding from the Cards . . . Joe is getting a bit temperamental . . . He went out to see the Yanks train at St. Pete, but when 10:45 came around and nary a ball player had showed, Joe hit the grit for the golf course . . . He won't wait even for royalty . . . Oscar Vitt has laid down the law to Rollie Hemsley, who has promised to be a good boy from now on.

Here's the week's bell ringer: Fellow called up the Kansas City Star and asked if Nathan Mann had whipped Louis if Joe would have lost his outdoor as well as his indoor title . . . Haw! . . . Chicago, Milwaukee, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia, will get a look at razzle dazzle football as she is played in the southwest this fall.

College Boxing Drawing Fire

SEATTLE, Mar. 2. (AP)—Dr. David C. Hall, director of the University of Washington health service, advocated today abolishment of college boxing, which he said "often leads to student 'punch drunkenness'".

The campus physician, a former middleweight boxing and wrestling champion at Brown university, said "any sport, the object of which is to render an opponent unconscious is fundamentally wrong and should be abolished."

Good Body Builder

He viewed the sport as an excellent body builder if it is confined to scientific sparring in which attempts at physical injury are abandoned.

Considering boxing especially injurious to students, he pointed out "the more acute the intellect, the more susceptible is the brain to injury. Blows to the head cause small hemorrhages of the brain. Continued concussions of the brain build scar tissue impairing the athlete's effectiveness, finally resulting in 'punch drunkenness'."

Want Some More Boxing?

By Collier Parris

HOW ABOUT some more boxing?

Noting the success attending, and the calibre of boxers produced by, the recent Golden Gloves tournaments, officials have requested Lubbock to conduct a district A. A. U. boxing tournament.

Until the Golden Gloves caught on, the Amateur Athletic union was ace high in the sponsoring of boxing in Texas, and still is tops in reputation and name.

Many cities that conducted Golden Gloves tournaments, and several who did not, are getting ready for their AAU tournaments. We have been asked by Southwestern AAU officials to help conduct a district tournament in Lubbock.

So well did the Golden Gloves event "go over," that many fight fans are asking us every day why we don't bear down on the A. A. U. tournament, thus bringing back the healthy, husky scrappers who delighted hundreds of fans in the G. G. tournaments.

We should like to hear from the fans, or more of them.

It is not our desire to help put on an AAU tournament if the fans and the fighters are "burned out" after the Golden Gloves. If they have seen enough boxing for one season, if the fighters have tired of fighting, there is no point in going ahead with the A. A. U. tournament.

But if you'd like to see some more boxing, and if the scrappers of the territory are willing to come in and make it a show, we'll be only too glad to cooperate.

Winners of the district tournament here would go to Dallas for the Southwestern A. A. U. meet, and from there straight to Boston, Mass., for the national tournament.

We'd like to hear from the fans and fighters, right away. There isn't a lot of time. The tournament, if held, would be scheduled for the third week in this month.

Personally, this department would be very glad to see the AAU tournament staged here.

Until late March and mid-April, the sports season here will be quite dull, and a snappy boxing tournament would pep things up considerably.

We would confine the AAU tournament, however, to a one-night stand, limiting the number of contestants to four per weight division, holding semi-finals and finals the same evening.

A shortage in flyweights, bantams and heavyweights would allow bringing in, or inviting, some of our neighboring Golden Gloves champs for exhibition bouts.

Fans would be interested, we believe, in seeing Flyweight Rudy Russell, Bantamweight Tommy Coats and Heavyweight Babe Ritchie meet Golden Gloves champions from other districts.

It is possible that Truett Fulcher, Abilene's heavyweight who gained the decision over Ritchie in the finals of the state Golden Gloves, might be induced to come to Lubbock and meet the Babe again. Lubbock fans would like to see the Abilene heavyweight operate.

Such a boxing program, we believe, would meet with approval of fans, and would result in another big house at the Auditorium, or wherever fights were staged.

Appoint a commission to investigate the proselyting by—of all people—college presidents of professional football players!

The complainant is George Preston Marshall, owner of the professional grid champs, the Washington Redskins. And maybe he has a right to howl.

It is generally understood that colleges go after promising football material, bid against each other for the best talent, offer nice jobs to real standouts.

But these boys are usually brought in from the high schools, prep schools or junior colleges.

It remains for Mr. Marshall to disclose the quite appalling stunts most recently charged to the colleges — the hiring of professional gridders, amounting to the theft of pro grid stars from under the noses of their sponsors.

"I'm appealing," wailed Marshall in an A. P. interview, "to the sportsmanship of college presidents to protect us from the commercialism of their institutions."

As horrible examples, Marshall points out the recent "signing" by Columbia university of Cliff Battles, ace ball toter of the Redskin tribe, the running mate of Sammy Baugh, and the proselyting by the U. S. Naval academy of Keith Molesworth, star of the Chicago Bears. "Just think of it," explodes Marshall, who recalls the snagging last year by New Hampshire of the fast-running, hard-blocking George Sauer from the Green Bay Packers.

No, Elmer Battles isn't going to play football for Columbia, any more than Molesworth will play for Navy or Sauer for the Packers. They were employed by those institutions as assistant football coaches, a perfectly legitimate occupation.

But it's "the same difference" to the professional teams. For all it means to them, the aforementioned athletes might as well be toting the mail for the colleges as teaching younger men how to tote it — they're gone from the pro teams.

Marshall, of course, won't get very far in his campaign against collegiate proselyting of his prize players.

Professional football is serving its purpose, or one of its principal purposes, when it takes a college graduate in hand, teaches him more about the game and equips him for a career of coaching, or a career of anything else.

Most professional players take up the game with the idea of increasing their knowledge of the game so as to be better prepared to coach it. To many pro gridders, the few seasons they spend in the money camps serve as a method of passing the time, profitably, until there's an opening to coach.

Some, of course, like Dutch Clark, Bronko Nagurski, and others, stay with it a long time, as long as they're good, it's a lucrative job.

But back to Marshall's wailing.

"Professional football," he says, "has a rule to protect the colleges. We can't sign a school player during the four years he's schooling. They ought to draw up something like that to protect us.

"And if they don't do something to protect us poor professionals, I think this would be a dandy subject for study by the Carnegie Foundation."

The Redskin chief is excited now over a rumor that Navy is trying to sign his star quarterback, Riley Smith, to a coaching contract.

Tiger Catcher Expecting To Pound Apple

LAKELAND, Fla., March 2 (AP)—Rudolph Preston York, preparing for his second year in the big time with the Detroit Tigers, expects to top the 35 home runs he pounded out last season.

Rudy York

The unassuming Rudy, first string catcher for the Tigers, won't predict that he will beat out Joe DiMaggio, Hank Greenberg or Lou Gehrig in the American League swat derby, but he argues the law of averages should be in his favor.

In fact, York indicated he believes he might have led DiMaggio last season had he played the full schedule. The Yankee outfielder hit 46 round-trippers in 620 times at bat while York made his 35 in 375 visits to the plate.

Will Do His Part

Mickey Cochrane, the Detroit manager, has predicted Rudy and Greenberg will out-homer DiMaggio and Gehrig in 1938 and York is confident he will do his part.

The first catcher to arrive at the Tigers' training camp, the 210-pound Georgian, who tried out as a first baseman in 1936 and as a third baseman last year, is slated over his regular job and is determined to hold it, come what may.

The second year jinx, which often catches up with big league sophomores, holds no terrors for Rudy. He sees no reason why he should not lift his .307 batting mark of 1937.

"My defensive work should be improved, too," he said. "I'll know my pitchers and my signals better."

Giants Get Down To Business With Eye On National Flag

(By The Associated Press)

BATON ROUGE, La.—With few, if any, worries as to who will play what position on his New York Giants, Bill Terry already is concentrating upon the finer points of baseball. He had his pitchers fielding bunts yesterday and practicing covering first base while the first sacker handled grounders rolling down the line.

OFF FOR CAMP

NEW YORK—The Brooklyn Dodgers' first squad leaves today to open the training camp at Clearwater, Fla. Four players, Alta Cohen, Clyde Sukeforth, Walter Singer and Jack Kimball will start from here.

AN OBVIOUS REASON

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—There's an obvious reason why Outfielder Jake Powell joined the New York Yankees' squad several days before he was due. Scaling 189, he is 14 pounds above normal weight.

EFFECTIVENESS IS CUT

ORLANDO, Fla.—Manager Bucky Harris of the Washington Senators set aside today for the first session of his annual endeavor to teach Monte Weaver how to conceal his pitching delivery. Harris says Weaver's habit of exposing his grip on the ball cuts his effectiveness 30 per cent.

A NEW BATTING ORDER

NEW ORLEANS—Oscar Vitt, Cleveland's new manager, says he regards fifth place as an important spot in the batting order and for that reason the Indians will present a new lineup for their exhibitions. Vitt favors a left-handed heavy hitter for the spot and believes this may call for Earl Averill, who had batted third ever since he joined the club nine years ago.

The temperature of the sun is about 11,000 degrees Fahrenheit.

Dangerous Dick Sampson Will Meet Bob Cummings In Feature Mat Attraction At Auditorium; Fast Bout Expected

Dangerous Dick Sampson, the Denton, Texas, native who has been playing professional football and doing professional wrestling in New England for the past six years, takes the spotlight on tonight's grappling card at the Auditorium. He meets Bob Cummings, grunting Californian who is much improved.

Although they are two of a kind in that they prefer to wrestle clean, the match is sure to be full of action, not a slow-pokey affair between friends trying to out-science each other. It isn't likely to get rough and brutal, but it's pretty sure to provide more or less sensational action.

Cummings Looks Better

Sampson, the stalking panther who shows no fear of anybody, who can't be bluffed into running, or tricked into falling into an unnatural embrace, is still "something new" in the way of a grappler. He has his off moments, to be sure, and his aggressive spirit sometimes gets him into trouble, but he ranks as one of the topnotch grapplers and one of the most popular, at the moment, in these parts.

Cummings, since his last siege here, has evidently been places where his usual and previous tactics didn't do so good. At any rate, he turned demonish against Sailor Moran last week in the semi-final, and was doing right well at the job of beating Mr. Moran up, until Referee Clements broke it up. With Clements' help, Moran was able to last the duration of the 30-minute bout. On points, he was beaten.

Moran isn't around tonight, and perhaps Clements will look at things in an unbiased manner.

The supporting card brings Otis Clingman here for perhaps the last time this season. The Amarillo lad is anxious to rejoin his family in Portland, Ore., where the young Clingmans are in school and where, for the past year or so, Clingman has been headquartering.

The popular Texan may need all he's got tonight to stave off the angry Bulldog Bill Venable. The Bulldog is by no means a slouch when it comes to the rough and ready game. He is powerful, vicious and tenacious, apparently hard to hurt.

Gorilla Pogi has a "setup" in Tex Hager, the Oregonian, to start the show, but it's a show just to see the Gorilla in action.

ten years I had been made miserable with terrible gas pains after eating. My bowels would not function properly and my system filled with poisons. My kidneys were disordered and the pain I endured in my back was most unbearable. I could not enjoy a good night's sleep, because of the frequent night risings, and I began to lose weight, had no pep or energy and my work about the house became an impossibility. Various medicines failed completely in my case and it was not until I began Gly-Cas that I noticed any favorable results at all."

"Gly-Cas removed the poisons from my system almost at once," continued Miss Pacheco. "Soon I was eating the foods I had been denied for years, without any ill effects afterwards. My kidneys have been regulated, sleep good, and strength and energy has been restored. I have gained ten pounds in weight in just a short time and really feel better than I have in ten years—and to think—a single medicine, Gly-Cas, did this for me after all else had failed.

Gly-Cas is sold by Mark Halsey Drug Co., 1219 Broadway, this city, and by all the leading drug stores in surrounding towns. Adv.

Pythian Banquet Is Staged On Tuesday

Fraternal orders as a "balance wheel of the nation" were pictured here Tuesday night by Fred H. Jones of Los Angeles, supreme chancellor of Knights of Pythias, who installed a class of pages at a meeting of Lubbock lodge following a banquet at which he was guest of honor at Lubbock hotel.

Many out-of-town members attended. Jones left today for Abilene to visit the third of the four lodges he is to address in Texas.

He mentioned the Lubbock lodge's high position among lodges west of the Mississippi.

Other Officials Here

Other visiting officials were A. J. W. Schmid of El Paso, grand chancellor of Texas, John Lee Smith of Throckmorton, Theo Yarbrough of Weatherford, and F. J. McCarty of Clovis, N. M., past grand chancellor of New Mexico.

Dr. G. H. Ater of Lubbock, grand outer guard, introduced grand officers at both the banquet and lodge ceremony.

G. K. Taylor, chancellor commander of the Lubbock lodge, presided for the lodge opening. Jones and Schmid addressed the meeting.

Jones was escorted into Lubbock from Ropesville by a caravan of 20 automobiles, two airplanes, two city police patrolmen, and a Texas Highway patrolman.

In the ceremony Tuesday night he was presented with a large cowboy hat.

Among the pages were: T. R. Bumpass, Aubrey Arnett, Bill Slater, E. L. Hicks, Harold Medlock, George Jacks, C. E. Curry, Curtis L. Boyd, L. G. Pierce, jr., W. E. Golightly, Ray Halsey, L. E. Mumaugh, J. K. Eradshaw, C. G. Prestridge, R. C. Ivey, jr., T. J. George, S. R. Houston, Dub Comer, and Roger H. Collins, all of Lubbock; and S. R. McDougal of Childress.

Among the visitors were 19 from Paducah, six from Childress, one from San Angelo, three from Midland, and three from Big Spring.

Large Attendance Is Expected At School

Ten companies have pledged the attendance of 115 employes at the traffic safety school sponsored by Lubbock Safety council starting Monday night in the Engineering auditorium at Texas Technological college.

The council hopes to gain 100 per cent patronage of all Lubbock firms in classes, which will be conducted once each week for eight weeks. The school is part of the council's program of safety education started several weeks ago. Every motorist should attend, O. B. Conley urged.

To Canvass Civic Clubs

Signing of the 10 companies Tuesday was at the Lions club's weekly meeting. Each civic club will be canvassed this week. Other firms not approached by the council may secure blanks from Conley or by calling the chamber of commerce.

Should enrollment outgrow facilities for the one class planned, other classes will be organized, Conley said.

Companies signing Tuesday and number of employes pledged are: Armstrong Transfer and Storage company, 12; Aetna Life Insurance company, 5; Hub Clothiers, 3; Lubbock clinic, 5; Stewart and Benson clinic, 5; C. A. Sanford and Son, 4; Stephens Dry Goods company, 15; Plains Radio Broadcasting company, 14; Lindsey Theaters, Inc., 30; and West Texas Gas company, 22.

LEVELLAND, (Special)—Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Adams have returned from Rochester, Minn., where the former went through Mayo clinic. They said the mercury was down to 10 below during the six weeks they were there. Mr. Adams underwent a major operation.

Brother Of Lubbock Woman Is Killed In Tuesday Mishap

Injuries sustained in an automobile-truck accident near Falfurrias Tuesday afternoon were fatal to Herman S. Achilles, 60, of Austin, brother of Mrs. Ed D. Allen of two miles south of Lubbock. Mrs. Achilles was seriously injured.

Allen, county clerk, and Mrs. Allen left Tuesday afternoon for Austin where, they indicated, funeral services will be held. Achilles had lived at Austin more than 50 years.

Investigating officers were told a rear tire on Achilles' car blew out before the crash. Occupants of the truck were not hurt.

Mrs. Achilles' condition was described as "fairly good," despite numerous lacerations, according to an Associated Press report from Falfurrias. The couple was en route from Galveston to Edinburg to visit a son, Ed Achilles.

Other than his wife, Achilles is survived by four sons and a daughter, Allen said.

AT the big Mother-In-Law Day celebration at Amarillo next week, six of the biggest, finest looking men in all the Panhandle will present to Mrs. Roosevelt, the honor guest, a bouquet of 5,000 roses.

According to the rules set forth, those six men must be well over 6 feet and must weigh more than 225 pounds. Applications are being received and those chosen will be elected by a committee.

Lubbock has a candidate for such a post of honor and unless all signs fail, he'll be one of the six. He is Wesley Joosten, paper salesman who is as handsome as he is big.

Mr. Joosten, sponsored by the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce, is 6 feet, 4½ inches tall and weighs 275 pounds. And there's not an ounce of superfluous fat on him.

Amarillo, here we come with the Tech and High school bands and Mr. Joosten to steal your show!

H. H. Halsell:

"Most men who achieve success have done so because they didn't know when to quit!"

PERHAPS you are one of those who has begun the annual, nerve-wracking business of making out an income tax return.

If you're not, don't feel so chipper, because you'll probably be making one out a year from now, if plans of Senator Robert LaFollette and others go through. They hope to widen the bracket to catch a few additional millions of men in the income tax net and, with the government needing money like it does, their plans may be crowned with success.

While it is hard to pay an income tax, just be glad you are not in the class with 61 millionaires in the nation.

Those 61 will pay more income tax than 2,500,000 other American individuals who are now within the taxable earning brackets.

At least there were 61 of 'em last year.

IT sounds unreasonable, Mr. Ripley, but never-the-less, 'tis true that 61 men who earned more than a million smackers during 1936 paid, in 1937, a total of $77,138,000. Two and one-half millions of the rest of us paid $66,282,000 on our 1936 incomes.

Thus the much maligned rich guys, whether willingly or not, chipped in considerable dough to make the Washington mare go.

Here are some figures:

The 1937 income tax payments found those 61 guys who made more than a million apiece in 1936 paying 71 per cent of their net incomes after deductions.

They found 2,500,000 of the rest of us paying 2.1 per cent to Uncle Sammy—also after deductions.

It doesn't sound possible, but it happened.

A LOT of readers will say that anybody who makes more than $1,000,000 in a year ought to have to pay 71 per cent of it to the government.

Maybe they're right. The Plainsman isn't arguing on that score.

But the fact remains that they did pay that much, hence their earning abilities are worth more to the nation than the puny earning abilities of those of us who were in the 2,500,000 taxpayer group.

Maybe, as the New Dealers would have you believe, it is iniquitous to be able to make a lot of money.

Maybe the oft-prattled of "forgotten man" represents all the sweetness and light in this fair land of ours and those who can—and do—shift for themselves to such an extent as to make money are boogey-men, devils in human form and altogether loathesome.

But those old meanies sure do come in handy around tax-paying time.

They sure do!

THERE are two sides to every question and it is neither possible nor entirely desirable that all of us see any question in exactly the same light.

For these reasons there probably will be many a vote cast here on April 5 against institution of civil service for the great majority of municipal employes of Lubbock.

The Plainsman, however, makes bold to forecast that the great majority of our citizens who study, beforehand, the system of civil service and who have no axes to grind at City hall will vote in favor of the new measure approved in city commission meeting Monday night.

By institution of civil service, the citizens of this community will make sure that most municipal employment will be given on merit, rather than as political pie, and then that the jobs will be held on the merit basis, alone, instead of through a system of political favoritism.

HERE is a brief explanation of the way civil service works in most places where it is used. If Lubbock adopts the measure, the handling of it may not be exactly this way, but will, in general, coincide.

Let's say there is a water department clerkship to be filled.

A public announcement of civil service examinations covering that position will be made, giving time, date, hour, place, etc.

At the appointed time and place, the examination will be given to all comers eligible to hold the position in question. Then examinations will be graded and results approved by the civil service commission. Under rules previously set down, the best fitted person—as far as examination can reveal—will get the job.

Let us suppose that John Blank won, by merit, the water department clerkship.

And let us further suppose that John was better in his examination than he turns out to be in his actual work.

After a trial period, upon petition of his superior and investigation by the civil service commission, another examination may be called and the place refilled.

Such situations, however, are very rare where civil service is in effect. Usually the best man in the examination is the best man for the job, since the examination is written to apply to work to be done.

JUST because a man gets a job via civil service does not give him a life's lease on his position.

Periodically, all employes must stand examinations and investigation and if their records—as they individually write them—are not "up to snuff," they make way for some one who can — or will — do better.

Thus civil service does away with political pie in the form of jobs; it does away with inefficiency of personnel and it permits the public's business to be carried on in a semblance of the same efficiency that it applied to private business.

Also, the system eliminates the tearing up of a city's organization every time there is a change in administration majority.

Civil service may, of course, be nullified by a civil service commission made up of individuals who are "politically minded" and who will permit the principle to be violated in exchange for political favors.

Members of such a commission should be men who are not personally interested in politics; who have never been in public office or candidates for public office, and who are automatically taken from the commission if, at any time during their membership, they become active in a local campaign.

In other words, membership on a civil service commission should be a civic service, unpaid for and of the highest quality.

Then, under a commission of that kind, civil service will work—and it does work in many an American city.

THE PLAINSMAN has been suggesting civil service for Lubbock for several years.

He said less than two years ago that the present City commission was largely composed of men who could institute civil service if they wanted to.

This column is glad to see the matter called to a vote and salutes the commission's membership which voted unanimously for the special election in the matter.

It doesn't make any personal difference to The Plainsman whether we have civil service in Lubbock, or not.

He's got a job; never expects to work for the city; has no kin-folks or friends who would be benefitted by civil service.

Knowledge of civil service in other communities convinces him that it's best for any city — and what's best for any city is none too good for Lubbock.

That's our position in the matter and if the majority should oppose civil service, it'll be no skin off'n our nose!

CAST OF CHARACTERS

POLLY CHELSEY, heroine; stranded in London when war breaks out.

JERRY WHITFIELD, hero; the Yankee who sees her through.

CABELL BANKS, privateer captain.

Yesterday: Appointing himself Polly's protector in London, Jerry asks her to marry him. He is already much in love.

CHAPTER V

"Are you making a joke, Jerry?" Polly asked in an uncertain voice. "People don't talk of marrying when they've just met."

Jerry held her hands and looked down into her face. "Look at me, Polly! Do I look like a man that's joking? I figure there are troubles ahead of us. Dangers, even. We can face them better as man and wife."

"Oh! So it's convenience you're thinking of!"

"It's love I'm thinking of, Polly. But I'm not denying the convenience of the arrangement. Well? What have you to say?"

"This is the most upsetting thing that ever happened to me," Polly answered. "There was a miller in Lyme that proposed to me before I left home. And last Christmas Eve, after carol singing, a young farmer did the same. But it did nothing to my heart, either time."

"Has my proposal done something to your heart, Polly?"

The girl looked up at the bronzed young seaman and answered honestly, "My heart's going like a loud ticking clock, Jerry."

Polly went and sat down sedately. "There's something about English marriage laws you've yet to learn, Jerry. There must be a publishing of the banns in a church for three Sundays before the wedding day. Then, if any soul objects, the marriage can be stopped. My mother was Mary Dart, a London girl. She fell in love with my father when she met him here in her cousin's countinghouse. It was his first voyage over as captain of his own brig, the Proud Lyme. He courted her whirlwind fashion and she acccepted him, but the Darts were wild. My father's sister, my Aunt Kate Chelsey, had come over with him to see London. So it was that my mother went back to America with them and was married in Connecticut, simple fashion. That way, they got around the banns and outwitted the Darts."

Jerry said impatiently, "Banns! So the crazy English have us in another tangle, have they?"

He walked back and forth across the room while his anger seethed. He was not one to take defeat meekly. It was a while before he could say in a natural voice, "Very well, Polly. Of course we can't wait for banns to be published. If I must abide by English laws, I must. I'll be merely your cousin and stop courting you till I can do it with honor. Good night, Polly. I'll see you tomorrow after I've planned a way to get us to France."

"Well, now!" Polly exclaimed, somewhat taken aback at having stopped his courtship so effectively. "I bid you good night, Cousin Jerry Whitfield!"

"There's the matter of your trunk," Jerry said from the doorway. "It would be better for me to go and get it tonight than to wait till morning. Tell me just how to get to the Dart house in Hempill street."

Polly told him. "But I dread for you to go to that house, Jerry. If there were only my clothes in the trunk I'd never let you go. But there's my mother's miniature and my money. We'll need the money to get me out of England. Will you be careful not to excite Mr. Dart?"

"I'll not wave an American flag or strike him," Jerry answered with a grin. "I promise. Go to bed now, and to sleep." He kissed her on the forehead, much as her brother Dick might have done, and went out.

It was 10 o'clock when Jerry got out of the gig before Oliver Dart's house and knocked on the oaken door. Mrs. Broggs admitted him. When he said, "I've come to get Miss Polly Chelsey's things," she gave an exclamation of concern.

"Lud, sir! Do you know where she is?"

"Yes, I do. She's safe with me at a tavern. I'm a cousin of her father's, from America, and I mean to look after her. I've got a gig waiting outside. Tell me where her trunk is, and I'll fetch it down to the street."

"Lud!" exclaimed Mrs. Broggs again. "Master's got it! He found out tonight that she'd run off, so he had it carried down to his study, to go through."

"Where is his study?" asked Jerry, visibly angry.

"At the head of the stairs on the floor above, sir. But wait! I can see you're hot-tempered. You'll throw Mr. Dart into a rage, likely."

"Well, he's already thrown me into one. What's he searching Miss Chelsey's clothes for? Firearms? Take me to him."

When the woman ushered Jerry Whitfield into Oliver Dart's study it was evident that they could not have arrived at a more unfortunate moment. The old man was ripping a skirt hem with his penknife and pulling out pieces of buckram which he evidently suspected of being paper. Garments were strewn about on floor, table and chairs, giving that pitiful effect which personal objects always give when desecrated.

"Stop that!" Jerry said.

"When it so pleases me. Who are you?"

"My name's Jeremiah Whitfield. I'm cousin to Trepid Chelsey of Connecticut and I mean to take care of his daughter. I've come to get her belongings." He turned to Mrs. Broggs. "Madam, gather up everything at once, so I can take the trunk down."

"Do so, Mrs. Broggs," said old Oliver Dart, laying down his penknife. "I find nothing incriminating."

"Where is the girl's money?" Jerry asked. "And her mother's picture?"

"I've taken the money," said Oliver Dart, "as a very small payment toward what America owes me. I've also retained the miniature, since that was paid for with Dart money. The frame is of

SWEET "CATCH-PHRASES" AND THE FACTS

Despite all the engaging chatter in high places about "leisure" and "the more abundant life," the proposal that Americans be given extra half dozen or dozen hours a week to loaf around is not as lovely as might seem at first glance.

"Leisure" and the so-called "more abundant life" means, practically speaking and to the average citizen, additional time to "fool around." Just how good will that be for the nation and for individuals, alike?

There has long been a suspicion that idleness was no breeder of virtue. Especially when it was coupled with other old offenders—like bad companions and lack of proper home influence.

But now idleness marches to the head of the class as the chief reason for crime, according to Warden Lewis E. Lawes, of Sing Sing prison. Some years ago gambling headed the cause-of-crime list. Liquor and immorality are still holding their places, but gambling is way down the line and idleness takes its place.

Warden Lawes blames the depression and points to the result. He said:

"There are more first offenders getting into difficulty in tough times than when times are good. That's why the proportion of first offenders in prison is increasing lately."

The warden didn't add what he might have: that most of these first offenders would have been both honest and at liberty if they had had jobs to work at. Idleness will always be productive of crime, in just about the direct proportion that men can't get work—or do not have to work.

"The more abundant life" we hear so much about is merely a political catch-phrase which very possibly will hurt, rather than help, us all.

Hollywood Chit-Chat

BY PAUL HARRISON
Journal Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD, March 2.—It was about 20 years ago that Fred Jackman, now Hollywood's foremost special effects expert, sold some property for $10,000 and decided to indulge an ambition to get into the movie business.

Every dime of his capital went into a flicker called "Race for Life," which starred Barney Oldfield and his famous "Old 99," Jim Jeffries and Death Valley Scotty. The film was a magnificent flop. Jackman emerged from the shambles with the company's only tangible asset—a motion picture camera.

He decided to be a photographer. Somebody showed him how to load the box and set the lens and turn the crank. After an hour's instruction he got a job with the Rolin Film Co., which had hired Hal Roach and Harold Lloyd to make one of the "Willie Work" comedies.

After a couple of days of random effort, Roach took Jackman aside and said confidentially that this was the first time he ever had directed, and he'd appreciate it if Jackman would help him over the rough spots. The photographer then had to confess that it also was his first picture.

Error Made It Funny

The comedy was very bad indeed, but outstanding among its faults was the weirdly jerky action. Obviously Jackman didn't know how to crank his box at a constant speed. To correct that, he had the bright idea of spending a day in a theater watching the projectionist crank his machine. After getting the feel of the projectionist's rhythm he applied the same timing to cranking his camera on another "Willie Work" epic called "Just Nuts."

Jackman didn't know at the time that a projection machine ground out 16 frames with each turn of the crank, while a movie camera used only eight frames to a turn. Result was that his film, taken slowly, showed fights and chases occurring at breath-taking speed when projected at the normal rate.

Instead of ruining the picture, his error made it riotously funny (for those days). Jackman, Lloyd and Roach all got contracts with Pathe on the strength of it. More important still, the mistake introduced him to trick photography and made him a pioneer in the field of special effects.

Harold Lloyd gave up the "Willie Work" character, and he and Jackman and Roach began the "Lonesome Luke" series. Luke was a loudly dressed nitwit with a cookie-duster mustache and a cane.

Tested Bathing Beauties

About this time Roach got some money together and organized a company of his own. Jackman declined a third interest, preferring the security of a $50 job with Mack Sennett. One of his chores was screen-testing bathing beauties, but he became so accustomed to the required type of beauty that he'd save money by making the tests without any film in his camera.

For five years, because of his speed technique and his skill and daring in filming hair-breadth stunts, Jackman shot every one of the Keystone Kop comedies.

During his seven years of employment there, the photographer and Sennett never mentioned salary, but every week Jackman's check was a little larger. He was making $500 a week when he returned to Hal Roach to film the Ruth Roland serials.

These called for increasingly thrilling and difficult shots, and Jackman finally began to solve some of the technical problems by making the first trick miniatures.

Back With Lloyd Now

Camera magic became more and more important to the industry, and in one form or another more of the astonishing effects now in common use were pioneered by Fred Jackman. Warner Brothers took him away from his camera, and from Roach, and put him at the head of their new process department. He stayed there 10 years and recently quit to go into business for himself. Now he's a technical consultant; works only on the most difficult problems of the studios.

Right now he's working with Harold Lloyd on "Professor Beware," and this is the first time in 20 years they've made a picture together.

Nice Of Him To Go To All That Trouble

FDR Finally Has Decided To "Sit Tight" And Stop Rocking Economic Boat, Dutcher Says

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
Journal Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, March 2—Business men may still believe it's too good to be true, but they have persuaded the President that he ought not to do or say anything which might cause him to be accused of rocking the boat.

For a while at least, Roosevelt plans to sit inactively in the middle—and quietly, too, except for frequent optimistic and inspirational assurances designed to improve business psychology.

The President is tired and he is especially tired because so much of the New Deal recovery has been lost so rapidly. Although various plans for another resuscitation are in abeyance, he clings to the hope that business will recover under its own steam.

Avoiding Disturbance

For some time it has been observed that F. D. R. doesn't seek to monopolize conversations as he once did.

Rodney Dutcher

And lately they have reported that he greets proposals looking to reform even of the mildest nature, with the objection that they might cause him to be accused of "disturbing business."

The little business men's conference, from which Roosevelt expected at least some sympathy and constructive support, appears to have saddened him and led him to pay more heed to business protests. He has not swung from the New Dealer reform group into the Richberg "co-operators" since no program for letting business organize to police itself is yet in the cards.

But he has sought ground between. It looks now as if business might get practically all of the tax revision it has asked for.

Wage-Hour May Be Dead

Although it's reported that wages and hours are a White House "must" measure, some of the best friends of wage-hour legislation have given up hoping that Roosevelt will really fight for it again this session.

The opposition apparently will continue to slash away at his reorganization program. It seems doubtful that the President will seek to insist on new monopoly legislation, or even an investigation of that problem.

No new important legislation will be proposed unless depression exigencies eventually demand it.

"Attacks on business," as the speeches of Assistant Attorney General Robert Jackson, have ceased. Jackson's last speech, made in New York and admittedly the last he expects to make on business and government for some time, was more of a plea and an explanation than an attack.

Reform Still To Be Sought

Nevertheless, Roosevelt still yearns for further social-economic reforms. Delegates of the Consumers' National federation, who met with him for half an hour, gathered that impression despite the fact that the President was lukewarm to their request for a congressional investigation into "flagrant under-consumption of the necessities of life," commercial devices and practices which keep housewives from getting their money's worth and business and financial controls "which deny to workers and farmers the right to enjoy the abundant standard of living which they are ready and able to produce.

The President, although apparently unwilling to make any move that would "upset business," was sympathetic as President Michael Quill of the Transport Workers' union—a New York City councilman—and F. B. McLauren of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters, told him that the cost of living was bearing down hard on their members and that wage increases meant nothing if they were promptly eaten up by higher prices.

Roosevelt pointed out that the price of food wasn't a new problem for government. It bothered Queen Elizabeth, he said, until she finally made production of bread a public utility. It stayed that way in England, with prices fixed, for 100 years.

The President also recalled his story of how the British government first entered the transport business by breaking a one-boat ferry monopoly on the Thames. He indicated he would like to see a far greater abundance of bread, milk and other necessities.

For Love Of Polly

some value."

"Give me those things," Jerry said, much too angry to think clearly. "You're too old for me to fight, but I'll pry you loose from 'em if I have to shake your riggin' down!"

"Sailor talk! . . . Hm-m-m. Well, Mr. Jeremiah Whitfield, I'm an infirm old man with no means of protecting my rights. You'll find what you're looking for in the table drawer over there. See that you deliver it to the girl."

"She'll get it," Jerry replied, "if I live to get to the Unicorn and Crown."

Mrs. Broggs, who was closing the trunk lid, looked up obliquely at Jerry and laid her finger on her lips. But the damage was done. Old Oliver Dart had his great-niece's London address, if he cared to use it. He sat passively silent as Jerry departed with the trunk. He neither scowled nor smiled but sat with his face closed in upon itself, and his finger tips delicately meeting.

Jerry waited till next morning to restore Polly's property to her. He found her satisfyingly appreciative. She went to him and kissed him fleetingly on the lips. "As a grateful person kisses a very kind cousin," she said, laughing. After they had looked at the miniature she hung it around her neck on a chain. The money, she asked him to keep for her.

He made no effort to take her in his arms, but his eyes were so ardent that she knew she had not dreamed his love making of last night. It was rather sweet, she realized, to find the fire still very much alive under the ashes of honor and caution he had spread.

"I've been at the docks since daylight," he said. "I've found a way for us to get out of England. Can you be brave and level-headed beyond the average woman, Polly?"

"I doubt if I'm naturally that way," answered Polly, "but I can try. What is the plan, Jerry?"

"Chet Wheeler put me on to it. A smuggling clique works out of a cove between Deal and Dover. I've got in touch with one of them. This day week he'll take us across the Channel to a fishing port near Calais. Chet's already gone to Dover, to wait. To hide out, rather."

"But for me," Polly said, "you'd be at Dover with him. The Unicorn and Crown's an awfully public place for an American sailor to be. When I came to you yesterday, Jerry, you lost precious time and took on a useless burden. Two useless burdens!" she insisted, over his protest, for her dog could be heard barking down in the stable yard. "I'd better take Nuisance to the commons and let him run."

"I'll walk part way with you, Polly," Jerry said. "But I must go back to the docks and seal friendship with that French-speaking rascal who's to take us across."

They left the tavern and walked a piece together through the London streets, each comforted by the nearness of the other. Then, before he took a lane leading down to the river, Jerry watched Polly walk toward the commons, the little mongrel at her heels.

Her lovely head was held high and her body swayed in the long graceful strides of an American village girl who can listen to a lark sing while driving home the cow. . . . "The sweet!" he said tenderly. For though he had come ashore at London two months ago to see the town (and had done so, right thoroughly) he had seen nothing in feminine form—neither through fine coach windows nor behind tap-room bars nor on the boards of Drury Lane Theater—as appealing as honest Polly Chelsey from Connecticut.

Human Selection On Scientific Basis Is Said To Be Necessary To Produce Race Which Would Have Amazing Abilities

WASHINGTON, March 2 (AP) — A race of human beings possessing the intellectual ability of Einstein or Aristotle can be produced, a prominent geneticist said here, if human selection could be placed on a scientific basis.

Instead, it is tending the other way, Paul Popenoe of Los Angeles declared in an article in the Journal of Heredity. Present trends in human genetics, he said, point toward the production of a race of superidiots who will "be too stupid to live."

Incredible Results

"If a super-man could arrange human marriage at will, he could produce results that by present standards are almost incredible," Popenoe said.

"Humanly speaking, there are almost no limits to the possibilities of selection for intelligence, and a race could be produced, the least intelligent individual of which would have a greater intellect than Aristotle, Goethe or Newton."

Recent experiments with rats have shown that by breeding the most intelligent animals, it is possible to develop super-intelligence.

Strain Of Idiots

A similar experiment in which the dullest rats in each generation were selected produced a strain of idiots. The most intelligent rat of the latter group could not perform half so well as the dullest individual of the intelligent strain.

The intelligence of every human being is the direct result of the quality of genes he or she inherits from his or her parents, Popenoe declared.

"As in playing bridge," he added, "a person may get all clubs or all spades, but he may also get such a bad assortment of cards that he is unable to take a single trick. The same is true in the assortment of genes dealt to an individual."

Until quite recently, there was a "no man's land" in Switzerland. A small triangular acreage was set aside more than 100 years ago as a refuge for wayfarers "without a country."

Pasture Work Being Pushed

COLLEGE STATION, March 2 (AP) —Texas farmers and ranchmen are growing more interested in the improvement and management of their pastures—and have something to show for it.

R. R. Lancaster, pasture specialist of the Texas A. and M. college extension service division announced in his annual report today pasture demonstrations were carried out by 1893 farmers and ranchmen in 191 counties in 1937, an increase of 58 per cent over the number in 1936.

His figures did not include results of the range conservation feature of the federal agricultural conservation program, which involved 18,306 ranches and more than 62,000,000 acres.

Learn Of Management

"Texas farmers not only are seeding and establishing more pastures but also are learning more about pasture management," Lancaster said in referring to practices of natural reseeding by deferred grazing and the use of rotation grazing. He added the 58 per cent increase in 1937 followed an 85 per cent increase in 1936 over 1935.

"Texas farmers and ranchmen are coming to realize that invasion of prickly pear, mesquite, huisache cedar, lechuguilla and other growths in threatening their native pasture land. The 1935 census indicated there were some 23,000,000 acres of 'woodland pasture' in Texas as compared with only 11,000,000 mentioned in the 1925 census," Lancaster said.

Seeding pastures to improved grasses and clovers long has been common in East Texas, and, under stimulus of the 1937 agricultural conservation program, the movement spread to a number of gulf coast counties, the report said.

Deferred grazing accomplished remarkable results in West Texas, Lancaster said, especially in Crane, Andrews and Ector counties.

City Zoning Is Subject Of A Paper Read At Club Session

City zoning was subject of a paper read by O. A. St. Clair, head of the department of industrial engineering at Texas Technological college, at a regular meeting of Lubbock Technical club in the engineering auditorium at the college Tuesday night.

St. Clair is chairman of a committee which for several months has been making a research of different localities that have adopted city zoning. In 1917 only three localities in the U. S. had such a plan and in 1932 about 70 per cent of the urban population was under such control.

Purposes Are Cited

City zoning is used to lessen congestion in the street, to promote health and general welfare, and to take care of emergencies that might be caused by fires, panics, or riots, it was pointed out.

A general discussion was conducted after the paper was read. O. V. Adams, dean of engineering at the college, discussed the question by pointing out that Lubbock probably will have a large increase in population because of recent oil interest in this area and that such a plan as the zoning would carry out would be desirable.

The club voted to endorse a plan that would carry out city zoning and present it to the city commission here. They also voted to present such a paper to the various civic and other clubs of the city.

Hollywood's Beautiful 'Experiment'

Warner Brothers movie moguls say it is all because of her intellect that they are casting 19-year-old Rosella Towne, the eyeful above, in a leading role in her very first picture. Their story is that Rosella was selected for the "experiment" because she was the ranking student in her graduating class at Huntington Park, Calif., high school. One glance at the photo, however, will prove that Rosella has qualifications other than intelligence.

TAHOKA, March 2, (Special)—Dr. Robert Harp was acquitted by a jury in 106th district court here Tuesday night on an indictment charging him with destroying an unborn child.

Witnesses gave as their opinion the evidence a child delivered Feb. 18 to Lenora Silva was dead several days prior to her labors beginning at 2 o'clock that morning.

State testimony had said an attempt to deliver the woman by Dr Harp had resulted in decapitation of the infant. Complete delivery had been effected only after the mother had been taken to Lubbock. District Attorney Truett Smith sought to show through witnesses.
