Akins to head new SSC commission

By ALLEN E. HOWLAND
Business/Oil Writer

Akins

The committee of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce which has shepherded promotion of the Garden City site for the superconducting supercollider was replaced Friday by a new legal entity which will supervise the final six weeks of the state site application process.

The Garden City SSC Commission — which will submit its incorporation papers to the secretary of state next week — will succeed the 16-member WTCC Garden City SSC Steering Committee as the official promotional vehicle for the site. G. Thane Akins, former Midland mayor and a member of the WTCC's ad hoc group since its inception, was selected Friday as project manager for the new commission.

Akins' primary task as project manager will be "to pull everything together into a coordinated effort," in submitting the Garden City application to the governor's office, he said Friday after accepting the commission's only paid staff position.

The appointment of Akins comes in the wake of the Department of Energy's issuance of guidelines for SSC site proposal submission. "The DOE requires that the submitting organization be legally able to enter into contracts. The informal organization of the steering committee did not fit that criteria," explained Ralph McLaughlin, the steering committee's chairman.

"The committee has done an exceptional job in its work to this point, especially considering the limitations of the committee form of organization," Akins noted. The "exciting" facet of the new position Akins said will be "serving as the focal point for suggestions on our presentation as well as being the point for disseminating information to commission members."

Akins was among the members who attended the SSC siting conference in Columbus, Ohio, last fall. As a consulting engineer, he also served on the WTCC's engineering and technical subcommittee and is "well-acquainted with most of the details of project and the four area communities," he said.

McLaughlin and Joe Kloesel, the Midland Chamber of Commerce representative on the WTCC steering committee, took advantage of the reorganization announcement to reiterate their confidence in the Garden City site's suitability for the project.

The advance information on which the Garden City group has based its siting proposal for the past 18 months was very accurate in relation to the invitation criteria issued by the DOE Wednesday, Kloesel said. "The biggest surprise was that there were no surprises," he said.

Even the eight-volume presentation requirement didn't shock the committee. "Our tentative proposal format was prepared for six to eight volumes," Kloesel added.

Police battles crowd during pope's Mass

John Paul

Witnesses said at least 20 people were injured, including a priest. Police said 38 troopers were injured, four seriously, and that a journalist and two other Chileans were wounded by gunfire.

A young woman was seen bleeding, possibly from buckshot, although it was not clear what kind of projectiles the police were firing.

John Paul appeared shocked, pressing his hands to his forehead and gazing out at the crowd of 600,000 people. Vatican security guards rushed to the altar, on which "I am Life" was written in Spanish.

Later the pope met with 19 representatives of all opposition political parties and said, "I ask all of you to strongly reject the temptation to resort to violence." The parties, including the Communist Party, promised in a letter to work nonviolently toward ending the military dictatorship.

Church officials said after the Mass that pope was aware of what was happening and that everyone on the altar, including John Paul, felt the effects of the tear gas. The pope was not injured.

"He watched it as we all did — with serenity," said Bishop Francisco Cox, head of the Chilean organizing committee for the papal visit. "And he said at the end that he was happy to see the participation of all (the crowd), despite the provocation."

Jackson says Corrales misinterprets him

By RICK BROWN
Assistant City Editor

A City Council District 2 campaign dispute that started in the Reporter-Telegram's letters-to-the-editor section continued Friday during a press conference called by Midlander Charlie Jackson.

Jackson, who is working in the campaign of candidate Woodrow Bailey, offered his comments Friday because his position had been misinterpreted by Oralia Corrales during her own press conference Wednesday, he said.

"I have been accused of of having a personal vendetta to settle with Mrs. Corrales," he said. "This accusation is unfounded as well as erroneous."

Responding later, Mrs. Corrales, who is running for re-election to the District 2 seat, said, "I stand by that (the vendetta accusation). It's personal, and I'd rather not discuss it because it would get into litigation."

Jackson also restated his feeling that District 2 "has been overlooked in the equalization process of the city."

Jackson implored Corrales supporters to "not use the (Martin Luther King Jr.) park as a platform for reaching out to the black community. The park is incomplete, and it served as a political ploy to obtain votes. District 2 is beyond hurried pacifiers."

Said Mrs. Corrales: "He must remember that the Martin Luther King park was instigated by a meeting with me and about 60 other residents.

"This is what they requested and the (dedication) date was set by them because it was the (Martin Luther King) national holiday."

Jackson also backed off from statements that the Midland Hispanic Chamber of Commerce was additionally funded with more than $100,000 in federal community development funds during Mrs. Corrales' term.

That money actually went to the Eastside Economic Development Task Force, he acknowledged. "However, this task force was formerly of the Hispanic Chamber," he said. "Facts remain that well over $100,000 had been previously appropriated to this program when Mrs. Corrales made her motion to assign the remaining (community development) funds to the task force," he said.

Mrs. Corrales said she could not recall which councilmember moved for the appropriation of the remaining funds.

However, she reiterated that the Black Advisory Council had been funded at a $40,000 level instead of a recommended $4,000 level during the same meeting because of her efforts.

Jackson responding to reporters' questions said he "did not know any of her (Mrs. Corrales') accomplishments as far as the eastside task force is concerned."

Mrs. Corrales said she helped convince the council to follow through with several of the task force's recommendations, including the hiring of Nancy Vickrey, the former task force executive director.

She also counted among accomplishments the institution of a revolving loan fund for establishment of new businesses on the east and south sides.

Jackson went on to reiterate charges that "the paving of streets in east and south Midland were projects under way before Mrs. Corrales was elected to office.

"Recent publicity indicates that Mrs. Corrales is using streets as plusses for her campaign," he continued. "However, no real progress has been made. Only the work on streets previously suggested by organizations has been completed or started."

Reform hasn't lowered insurance premiums in other states

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last of a seven-part series of tort reform being considered in the Texas Legislature. This segment deals with reform in other states and how it has works there.

By JULIE HILLRICHS
Staff Writer

So far, five states have passed laws radically altering the legal procedures that allow injury victims to seek compensation in court for injuries they suffered through the fault of others.

In Texas, most legislative observers say only the state's pathetic budget situation will overshadow tort reform this year.

The sweeping reforms in other states resulted from intense pressure from the insurance industry, big business and major manufacturers, who claimed that the tort system was responsible for sky-rocketing insurance premiums.

Now Texas' citizens are being told there is a "crisis" in the liability insurance industry. Doctors and other professionals are being hit with enormous premium increases. Municipalities are finding they cannot obtain insurance for their police departments and other city government functions. Small business people are getting hit with premium increases that will either cause them to raise their prices considerably or possibly will put them out of business.

Proponents of tort reform say legislation passed in Florida, Washington, New York, Iowa and California have resulted in insurance companies forecasting and lowering premiums.

But their adversaries claim that when reform measures were enacted in these states, insurance carriers raised premiums.

What were the effects of tort legislation in other states?

The Iowa Legislature changed its tort law in 1983. One of the changes eliminated joint and several liability.

Within t years, liability coverage for 41 o the state's 99 counties was canceled, according to testimony given to the Iowa Governor's Task Force on Liability Insurance and Tort Reform.

The sponsor of the legislation, former Sen. Lowell Junkins, told the Texas Joint Committee on Insurance and Tort Law that the "tort reforms" didn't reduce insurance rates. He said Iowans experienced rate increases and cancellations last year just as did other states. Junkins has urged other states not to follow in Iowa's path.

Florida, whose Legislature passed a Tort Reform Act effective as of New Year's Day, required insurance rates to be rolled back 40 percent. But insurers blocked that with a court challenge while announcing premium hikes for 1987.

All Florida doctors, therefore, are facing 25 percent to 40 percent hikes in their insurance premiums as well as a new law that mandates certain amounts of malpractice coverage.

According to Florida Medical Association estimates, neurosurgeons in Dade and Broward counties will pay a record $143,000 to $176,386 a year for policies that will pa a maximum of $1 million a claim and $3 million total a year.

Under the new law, Florida's doctors must either carry malpractice insurance or must inform patients of their decision to do without. If an uninsured doctor loses a malpractice case and then cannot pay the award, that physician could be stopped from practicing for up to five years.

As a result, doctors have mounted a protest of high malpractice premiums, beginning with the refusal of thoracic and neurological surgeons to work, leading to nine hospitals in southern Florida limiting emergency room service while a 10th closed its emergency room doors altogether.

Archaeologist spends weekends 'digging up dirt' on plantation

By CATHERINE LEWIS

FOUR FORKS, Texas (AP) — While some of us live for a rousing game of tennis on the weekend or prowl the cities reveling in nightlife, Kenneth Brown spends his days off hunched over a muddy ditch, sifting through dirt.

However, Brown doesn't waste his time examining just any dirt in just any ditch.

As an archaeologist and head of the Anthropology Department at the University of Houston, he hardly has time for that.

Brown and a handful of volunteers last summer launched a full-scale archaeological excavation on the grounds surrounding the Levi Jordan Plantation, located about four miles west of the San Bernard River on Farm Road 521.

At the site, the 39-year-old teacher is working at uncovering the story of the house, which is still standing as it did 140 years ago.

Brown is also unearthing the brick ruins of the slave quarters behind it and numerous other buildings that once dotted the 70-acre sugar plantation.

The Jordan Plantation was built sometime between 1848 and 1851, Brown says. It was home to Levi's family and about 100 slaves. At one time, Jordan was supposedly the third richest man in Brazoria County as he owned the third most slaves.

The plantation is now owned by Jordan heir Dorothy Cotton. A historical marker was placed at the plantation entrance in 1967. Ms. Cotton, who lives in Angleton, leases the plantation house to a caretaker.

"Ever since I first saw this place driving by on the road, I've wondered what life was like for the people who lived there," he says.

Brown and his crew of both current UH students and graduates are digging a series of 5-by-5-foot plots near the main building in hopes of discovering household artifacts.

Such common items, Brown says, will help him piece together what everyday life was like back then.

On a recent Sunday, they were scooping dirt with trowels from a shallow plot and carefully sifting the clay soil through a fine screen to find remnants in what Brown believes was an area used as a garbage burning pile.

Fingering tiny bits of dirt-coated glass and animal bone, Brown says, "It's lots of little pieces like these that will tell the story, prove that life here wasn't necessarily what we think."

He says he believes history books often reflect only a portion of the truth about the past. Some historical accounts tell what those responsible for passing the information on wanted to be remembered, not what actually happened, he said.

Some findings at the Jordan spread have uncovered little known facts about life on a southern Texas sugar plantation.

Brown says it may come as a shock to people, but he has found strong evidence that the slaves there owned guns.

The numerous gun parts and ammunition he's dug up leave little doubt that at the Jordan Plantation it was common for blacks to have arms.

Brown says this revelation indicates there was at least some trust between slave and master.

"We look back on slavery as an extremely depressing, degrading episode of our history and rightly so, but we weren't told (some) slaves had guns," Brown says.

He realizes allowing the slaves to own guns may have only been in the owner's economic interest, since that way they could hunt game for themselves and require less food from the plantation.

Brown's findings also have shed light on the social hierarchy of slaves. He says few people realize slaves had a pecking order.

After finding silver utensils in the portion of the slave quarters where Brown says the seamstress lived, and shells, also used by slaves as eating implements, in another section, Brown deduced that the seamstress held a higher place in the social order.

The seamstress also owned store-bought jewelry, rather than the typical homemade pieces worn by most slaves, he says.

"There was status and ranking in the slave society. I'd never read anything like that in history books," Brown says.

To Brown, the Jordan Plantation represents a unique opportunity for revealing what actually happened in the past. He says Thomas Jefferson's plantation, Monticello, in Virginia, is the only other location he can think of that offers such possibilities.

Currently the entire amount of project funding is coming out of his pocket; the crewmembers are donating their time.

Kenneth Brown, left, head of the anthropology department at the University of Houston, and volunteer Aimes Atkinson examine artifacts unearthed near the Levi Jordan plantation house near Four Forks, southwest of Houston. The house, in background, is still standing much as it did 140 years ago.

Mrs. Corrales responded, saying that "It's impossible in a two-year period to complete any project; it's something that's been neglected for 100 years."

However, she said that completion of paving work on Indiana Avenue, a project completed under the auspices of the Midland County Commissioners Court, was one street accomplishment during her term.

She added that alignment of Hemlock Avenue and Scharbauer Drive will be started this year.

Jackson concluded by repeating his endorsement of Bailey in today's balloting.

Said Mrs. Corrales: "I'm just proud of the work I've been able to accomplish in District 2 with the help of a lot of other people."

TORT

Also, the nation's largest liability insurer, Aetna Life and Casualty Co., in a formal filing with Florida Insurance Commissioner Bill Gunter, wrote: "A review of the claims generating an additional payment due to (elimination of) joint and several liability indicated no reduction in the payment due to the interaction of economic damages sustained by the plaintiff, the percentage of liability assigned to Aetna's insured and the policy limits purchased."

Aetna said the elimination of joint and several liability would not reduce its losses or cause it to lower insurance premiums.

Another target of last year's insurance advertising campaign was Washington state, whose Legislature adopted sweeping changes in the tort law system.

The Washington Legislature also adopted a law reforming industry practices. That state's insurance commissioner was required to obtain from the companies information about the effect of "tort reform" on their rate structures.

St. Paul Fire and Marine Insurance Co., the nation's largest medical malpractice insurer, advised the commissioner: "These (tort) reforms should result in reduced exposure in catastrophic cases, but as to whether this actually occurs and the amount, only time will tell."

Crum and Foster wrote: "It may be years before the outcome of the legislation is known."

Great American West said: "We do not believe (tort reform) will have a significant impact on Great American's expected losses."

CNA Insurance Companies noted: "...tort reform has been very high on CNA's list of priorities...but...immediate rate decreases are not proper."

Farmers Home Group's executives notified the commissioner: "These problems (high insurance rates and policy cancellations) will continue as long as policy holders and people have the right to sue and there are attorneys available to represent clients who seek remuneration."

Jerry "Nub" Donaldson, in a January issue of Lawsuit Crisis Report, said the lawsuit reform legislation passed by the Florida Legislature has not eliminated the considerable unpredictability in evaluating insurance risks caused by the lawsuit crisis.

Nevertheless, he said 11 insurance companies submitting reports did forecast lower rates.

"Tort reform in New York and a number of other states has resulted in decreased insurance premiums," the president of Aetna Life & Casualty Co. told the New York Times.

"Aetna, for example, responded to New York's tort reform by decreasing its commercial liability rates in the state by 7 percent," said Aetna President William O. Brady in a letter to the Times editor published Dec. 31, 1986. "This will represent a saving of more than $11.5 million to New York's business owners.

He said that Aetna had not lowered liability rates in Florida in response to tort reform because "our careful analysis showed that Florida's tort reform measure was so watered down in the legislative process that its cost saving was negligible."

Donaldson countered claims that Florida's revision of its civil justice and insurance laws has not lowered insurance rates as reported by Aetna and St. Paul to the Florida Insurance Department.

He said the lawsuit reform legislation's effectiveness is "limited by significant compromises of the reforms made during the legislative process. In addition, the effects of the Florida laws may be avoided entirely by plaintiffs who wait until the last minute to file suit because of the provision that allows the reform legislation to expire before the time limit by which lawsuits must be filed expires.

"Using the Aetna and St. Paul reports to show lawsuit reform does not lower insurance rates is misleading," said Donaldson, "because in writing their reports, both companies surveyed both policies written for groups less likely to be affected by the changes made by Florida legislators (Aetna surveyed small business claims; St. Paul surveyed medical malpractice claims)."

To counter the claim that the abolition of joint and several liability in Florida has not reduced insurance, Donaldson noted that Florida retained joint and several liability for economic damages in cases with damages of $25,000 or less (the majority of cases and almost all cases surveyed by Aetna and St. Paul).

He added that in almost all the cases surveyed, Aetna and St. Paul policies were limited to $500,000 and most cases with $450,000 in noneconomic damages have at least $50,000 in economic damages so the Florida cap has no impact on their rates, thus arguing that Florida's cap of $450,000 on noneconomic damages has not lowered premiums.

To counter the claim that the abolition of the collateral source rule has not reduced insurance rates, Donaldson pointed out that Florida retained the collateral source rule in cases where a subrogation right exists, which are the vast majority of cases.

The claim that Florida's limit on punitive damages has not caused a reduction in premiums is also misleading, said Donaldson, because punitive damages are uninsurable in Florida and therefore, a limit on them will not affect insurance rates.

Five people hurt when grain elevator explodes

BURLINGTON, Iowa (AP) — A huge grain elevator caught fire and exploded Friday, blowing the tops off storage bins, shattering windows for 25 blocks and forcing evacuation of downtown buildings when flames threatened an underground fuel tank.

Five people were injured, one seriously. Twelve people worked at the elevator, officials said, but most were evacuated when the fire broke out.

"As I was looking up, there was a great big fireball, and the whole thing just kind of exploded," said Tony Miller, chief photographer at the town's daily newspaper, The Hawk Eye. The newspaper's offices are 350 yards from the elevator.

"We believe it was caused by grain dust, although we don't have any confirmation," said Jerry Ostendorf, operations manager for the state Office of Disaster Services. He called it a major explosion.

The company was cited in 1985 for safety violations involving grain dust and paid a fine, said Mary Bryant, state Occupational Safety and Health Administration administrator.

The Archer Daniels Midland elevator, along the Mississippi River, is used to store grain, principally corn, for shipment by railroad or river barge.

Burning debris, blown hundreds of yards away, started small fires after blast. A barge and railroad cars east of the terminal also caught fire, witnesses said. The explosion blew the tops out of six concrete eight-story storage bins in the 12-bin complex, and other bins were damaged.

"It blew the lid right off," said Charles Gates, The Hawk Eye's managing editor. "It was like a 2,000-pound bomb going off."

At 3 p.m., more than four hours after the blast, Police Chief Ted Behne said there was no more danger of explosions and people were being allowed back in a 10-block area that had been cleared.

Officials had feared railroad tank cars containing anhydrous ammonia, a hazardous compound used in making farm fertilizers, might explode or that the flames might reach an underground diesel fuel tank.

Miller said he and fellow photographer Mark Fageol heard the fire call and were walking toward the elevator when the blast hit.

"I had to take a step back to catch myself. As I looked up there was all kinds of sheet metal and burning wood and hot embers and a lot of smoke, and all of that stuff was starting to rain down," Miller said.

Miller said he took cover under a railroad car overhang.

"The heat was so intense you could hardly stand it. I looked at my hand as I was shooting and it was kind of burning, it was that hot. I have kind of a red mark on my hand," he said.

The thick cloud of smoke was detected on National Weather Service radar 75 miles northeast in Moline, Ill.

Five people were taken to a local hospital, but four were released. Elevator manager Jerome Kersten was admitted to a local hospital with first- and second-degree burns and possible smoke inhalation.

The company had no estimate of the damage and did not know how the fire started. grain elevator spokesman Doug Snyder said from company headquarters in Decatur, Ill.

Snyder said he was not familiar with the 1985 violations and could not comment on them.

POPE

Some battles between police and hundreds of people protesting the military government took place only 50 yards from the pope, who skipped over parts of his prepared homily to end the Mass more quickly.

Priests who had assisted the pope during the Mass came down from the altar to calm the crowd and to stop organized columns of masked protesters, many wielding clubs, who were provoking the disturbances.

Policemen had to duck behind the papal altar to avoid flying rocks. A green-uniformed trooper helped a black-robed nun up a ladder so she could flee the confusion.

The protesters virtually took over a section of the vast congregation, setting up barricades and causing disruption from the time John Paul appeared.

Police vans circled the protest area, firing tear gas canisters. Priests on the platform wiped their eyes and children cried and choked. Women were seen falling to the ground, apparently because of the gas.

Associated Press reporter Eva Vergara saw police firing their .38-caliber service revolvers over the heads of demonstrators.

The police added chemicals to the water in the water cannons to cause a burning sensation on contact with skin. The Red Cross said it aided nearly 600 people, mostly tear gas victims.

Police said Maria Olga Allemand, a photographer for the leftist Chilean opposition magazine "Analisis," was wounded by gunfire, and Hector Lopez, a Chilean cameraman, was struck by a rock.

Police, who initially said Lopez was wounded by gunfire, said he was in grave condition. They said Pedro Lizama, 21, and Jose Aguilera, 13, were also wounded by gunfire.

Protesters shouted slogans against 13-year-old rule of President Augusto Pinochet, calling him and his secret police "murderers," and threw rocks at police. They set bonfires and the fire department was called in.

"This is the time for pardon and reconciliation," said the weary-looking pontiff, who was halfway through a six-day visit to Chile. The church billed the appearance as a "Mass of Reconciliation" in this troubled South American country.

"The search for the common good requires the rejection of all forms of violence, from wherever it comes," John Paul said.

Despite the pontiff's appeals, protests and violence have been daily occurrences during his visit.

Five people arrested in drug raids on two Odessa homes

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — A former bail bondsman, his wife, son, a 37-year-old man and an 18-year-old woman remained jailed late Friday in lieu of bonds totaling $325,000 on drug charges stemming from raids on two northside homes Thursday night.

Ector County District Attorney Eric Augesen said Friday afternoon he and one of his assistants joined Odessa police officers in simultaneous raids on two houses in the 1300 block of North Washington Ave.

Search warrant-holding officers seized an undetermined quantity of cocaine and methamphetamine, he said, and arrested 56-year-old Truman Lee "Ike" Isaacs, his 19-year-old wife, Elisa Flores Isaacs, both of 1306 N. Washington Ave. Donald Heckerman, 37, was also taken into custody at the address.

Isaacs 22-year-old son, Matthew Gene Isaacs, and 18-year-old Pamela Keese were arrested at 1304 N. Washington Ave. Municipal Judge J.E. Weatherly set bond for the elder Isaacs at $100,000 on a charge of possession of cocaine. Bond for his wife was set at $50,000 on a similar charge. Heckerman's bond was set at $25,000 on the drug possession charge by the judge.

Weatherly set bond for the younger Isaacs at $50,000 on charges of possession of cocaine and methamphetamines. Bond for Ms. Keese on the same charges was set at $100,000.

Isaacs, his wife and Ms. Keese remained in the Ector County jail in lieu of bond late Friday.

Isaacs' son and Heckerman remained in the city jail in lieu of bond Friday night.

According to Augesen, the raids were the culmination of several weeks of investigation by his office and Odessa police sergeants Terry Tyree and John Hubbs.

Peace Justice J.E. Pressly issued search warrants based on information obtained by Tyree and Hubbs, the district attorney said. He, Assistant District Attorney Howard Whitworth and Odessa police converged simultaneously on the two houses around 10 p.m. Thursday, he said, and the whole operation was wrapped up about 1 a.m. Friday.

Augesen said late Friday afternoon he didn't know the exact quantity of drugs seized during the raids on the two houses.

Isaacs operated Ike's Bonding for a number of years until he retired several years ago.

The May 15 deadline for proposal submissions to Gov. Bill Clements' office is "not going to be a problem either," McLaughlin said, because of the extensive advance preparation done by the 16 committee members over the past year-and-a-half to two years.

"What remains to be done for our proposal is minimal data gathering, adding to existing documentation for some criteria and polishing the finished proposal," Kloesel said.

"Some groups are getting their first look at the proposal and site requirements this week, with 45 days before the governor's deadline. Knowing what I know from the past 18 months, there's no way I would tackle the job with that little time to work," McLaughlin said.

Asked to rank Garden City's and Texas' standing among leading proposed sites, such as those in Illinois, California and New York, McLaughlin said: "Until yesterday, all the horses were in the pasture. The horse race has only begun."

Whether or not the Garden City site is selected by the governor as the only site — or one of several sites — to be nominated by Texas, the DOE invitation expressly solicits proposals from groups other than state governments. If not selected, the Garden City Commission "will certainly consider submitting its proposal independently before the Aug. 3 DOE deadline."

A select panel of the National Academies of Science and Engineering will review those proposals that pass an initial DOE screening to confirm that they meet minimum qualification criteria. The academies' panel is then required to recommend an unranked list of "most excellent" sites by December 1987.

The panel's recommendations will be reviewed by a DOE advisory board, upon whose findings the Secretary of Energy will designate a preferred site by July 1988.

The Energy Secretary plans to announce final site selection in January 1989, pending completion of a full environmental impact review. With site preparation beginning then, the facility could be operational by 1996, according to the Energy Department.

Chinese businessmen visit Midland

From Staff Reports

An entourage of Chinese businessmen making a whistle-stop tour of U.S. oil provinces are in Midland today. The group, representing China National Machinery & Equipment of Peking, is shopping for oil field equipment, including carbon dioxide injection products, according to one of their hosts.

William Stegall of Capco Resources said the delegation will be departing Midland for Los Angeles this afternoon after meetings with Midland consultant William Vick.

George Chan, vice president of Kodiak Oil Field Equipment, hosted a another panel of Chinese oilmen during the Permian Basin Oil Show in October.

Comedian to open for Temptations

Clark

Standup comedian Blake Clark will be opening The Temptations concert at 8 p.m. today.

The concert, to benefit the Museum of the Southwest, will be held at Chaparral Center. Tickets, priced at $15, may be purchased at the door.

Clark, who uses subtle humor along with improvisations and numerous dialects, has a recurring role on the "Remington Steele" television show. He also has him own Home Box Office special coming up in May.

Clark had a part in the film "St. Elmo's Fire" and has been in such television programs as "The Bob Newhart Show," "National Lampoon's Hot Flashes," "M*A*S*H, "After M*A*S*H," "Greatest American Hero" and movie of the week "Longtime Gone." He has also been on "The George Carlin HBO Special," "The Tonight Show," "Merv Griffin" and "Late Night with David Letterman."

Midlander charged in stabbing incident

From Staff Reports

Jerry Ray Murphy Jr., 21, of Midland Friday was charged with aggravated assault after he voluntarily turned himself into Midland police.

An arrest warrant had been issued for Murphy in connection with the knife slashing of Luis Flores, 28, last week. Flores suffered stab wounds to the chest, face, scalp, abdomen and back.

Murphy was being held in the Midland City Jail Friday night in lieu of a $50,000 bond.

DEATHS

Helen Rucker

Services for Helen Rucker of Midland will be at 11 a.m. today at the Ellis Funeral Home Chapel. Burial will be at Resthaven Memorial Park.

Pallbearers will be M.F. McCoy, Kenny Synatschk, C.W. Chancellor, Thad Taylor, Hal Rucker, and Bryan Parnell.

The family requests memorials be directed to Trinity School, 3500 W. Wadley, Midland, or Permian High School, Odessa.

Candidate seeks to become Dallas' first female mayor

STATE

DALLAS — Mayor Pro Tem Annette Strauss, seeking to become Dallas' first woman mayor, led a pack of nine candidates while incumbents Henry Cisneros of San Antonio and Jonathan Rogers of El Paso were expected easily to win re-election in today's city elections around the state.

In other cities across the state, voters were deciding on school board and city council candidates, as well as bond issues and other proposals.

But the Dallas mayor's race appeared to be the hottest of the big city elections with four millionaires among the host of candidates seeking to replace Mayor A. Starke Taylor, who wasn't seeking a third two-year term.

An April 18 runoff appeared likely even if Mrs. Strauss, the sister-in-law of former Democratic National Committee Chairman Robert Strauss, polled the most votes in the election as mayor of the nation's seventh-largest city. Dallas is the biggest city to have a city manager form of government.

Top contenders with Mrs. Strauss were former Dallas County Republican Chairman Fred Meyer, ex-U.S. Rep. Jim Collins, and publisher Jim Buerger. The three were just seven percentage points apart in a Dallas Morning News poll released a week ago, but trailed Mrs. Strauss by more than 10 percent.

The poll also showed that a third of the voters were undecided.

In other elections, San Antonio Mayor Cisneros' supporters expected him to easily win, but he insisted such confidence would make the race closer than anticipated. His chief challenger was former City Councilman Phil Pyndus who argued Cisneros, not San Antonio, has benefited from being mayor.

"If you ask the question right now, 'Who is better off after six years, San Antonio or Henry?' the city has deteriorated and Cisneros has a brilliant career," he said.

San Antonio also had on the ballot a $23.6 million bond election for police department improvements.

In El Paso, Mayor Jonathan Rogers, an Anglo leading a city with a Hispanic majority, was expected to win handily over three other candidates for his fourth two-year term.

In Buffalo Gap, a small town south of Abilene, voters were deciding whether to stop allowing the sale of alcohol, ending a 22-year tradition as a popular watering hole, especially in the days when Abilene was dry.

In Jonestown, near Austin, the mayor's race took on an unusual twist when the incumbent made an issue of her opponent's conviction for criminally negligent homicide. Mayor Deane Armstrong said those seeking public office must prove their credibility.

But businessman William T. Miller said the 1985 shooting deaths of two men were in self-defense and should not be a factor in the elections.

The Dallas mayoral election is a non-partisan affair that this year has taken on partisan overtones.

"Democrats see red when they see Fred Meyer," said county Democratic Chairman Sandy Kress, noting Meyer's prominence in leading Republicans to victory during seven years as Kress's GOP counterpart.

Mrs. Strauss, a two-term at-large councilwoman who has been mayor pro tem since 1984, admits that in a sense she is partisan, too.

"I am through my family," she said.

In addition to the prominence of her brother-in-law in national politics, her businessman husband, Theodore, is a fund raiser with the party.

Spending in the mayoral campaign recently topped $3 million, setting a new record.

Last week, Mrs. Strauss, 63, led the field with 28.5 percent of those surveyed in the Morning News poll, paced by strong support among women and Democrats.

The 59-year-old Meyer was backed by 16.6 percent.

Collins, 70, who spent 15 years as a Republican congressman before an unsuccessful bid to oust Democratic Sen. Lloyd Bentsen five years ago, drew 11.5 percent.

Buerger, the 46-year-old publisher of Travelhost magazine and the Oak Cliff Tribune in Dallas, drew support of 9.9 percent.

Five other mayor candidates, Marvin Crenshaw, Roni Lerouge, Billy Jack Ludwig, Gardell Morehead and Marvin Steakley, attraced 0.2 percent of likely voters.

Just over 33 percent were undecided a week before the election.

Grand jury says shootings justified

DENTON (AP) — A grand jury says Fort Worth police officers were justified in shooting and killing two armed robbers in a pizza restaurant holdup last month.

The officers, who had been trailing the men for four days, shot Jimmy Charles Dodd, 31, and James Edward Bannister, 34, both of Fort Worth, as they attempted to flee from a Pizza Hut restaurant March 21 following an armed robbery.

Police said Dodd and Bannister were suspects in a string of armed robberies in Tarrant, Denton and Dallas counties in February and March.

"We feel like the officers' actions were justified," Brad Whitlock, foreman of the Denton County grand jury, told District Court Judge Phillip Vick on Thursday.

The grand jurors issued aggravated robbery indictments naming two women found waiting in a truck near the restaurant.

Joan Jeannette Fields, 42, and Tammy Lynn Dodd Taylor, 26, had been arrested as they tried to drive away after they spotted police, authorities said.

Dodd and Bannister were inside the restaurant, where one held a gun on about 30 customers and the other was trying to force an employee to open the safe, police said.

Texas Ranger Weldon Lucas, who was working with Fort Worth police officers following the trail of the robbers, said police opened fire after one of the men saw an officer and raised his gun to shoot.

Two Fort Worth officers suffered minor injuries in the shootout. Denton police said the weapons carried by Dodd and Bannister may not have been fired, leading them to speculate the officers were injured by shots fired by fellow officers.

Ms. Fields and Ms. Taylor remained in the county jail in Denton, about 35 miles northwest of Dallas.

Ex-hostages call for even-handed Mideast policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three former American hostages in Lebanon called on the Reagan administration Friday to pursue a new, even-handed policy in the Middle East that eliminates favoritism towards Israel.

The men, who were held in Lebanon at various times over the past two years, also told a conference of Arab-Americans that Arabs have been stereotyped unfairly by some people who believe the ethnic group endorses terrorism.

"We Americans need to change our image" of Arabs, said David Jacobsen of Huntington Beach, Calif. Arab nations, he said, should embark on a public relations campaign to improve their image.

Jacobsen, freed last November after 17 months in captivity, appeared on the podium with Father Lawrence Martin Jenco, who was released last July.

The two men spent about a year in the same room together, along with two men who remain hostages in custody of the pro-Iranian Moslem group known as Islamic Jihad. They are Terry Anderson, chief Middle East correspondent for The Associated Press and Thomas Sutherland, who worked at the American University of Beirut.

Also speaking was Allyn Conwell, a businessman who spent 17 days as a hostage in June 1985 after a TWA jetliner was hijacked from Athens, Greece, to Beirut.

Jacobsen and Jenco urged Americans not to forget the remaining hostages in Lebanon, including eight Americans and Terry Waite, an envoy of the Archbishop of Canterbury who disappeared two months ago while on a mission to negotiate the release of other hostages.

Raising his voice, Jacobsen angrily dismissed as "irresponsible speculation" the notion that Waite might have been working for an intelligence agency. Waite was "not an agent" he said.

Although none of the men knew Alann Steen, the American hostage who was reportedly near death in Beirut, Jenco offered prayers for him. The State Department said Steen's kidnappers were engaging in "repugnant" behavior in refusing to release him for medical treatment.

The three ex-hostages, all of whom have broad experience in the Arab world, said that terrorism will not vanish until the root causes are tackled and injustices in the Middle East are rectified.

The Arabs are victims of a U.S. Middle East policy that places too much emphasis on Israel and fails to pay enough attention to human rights problems in other countries in the Middle East, Jenco said.

"Peace is possible only when there is fairness," said Jenco, who was the head of the Catholic Relief Services in Lebanon before his capture.

Conwell, who was criticized for his pro-Arab views by some fellow TWA passengers during the hijacking crisis, said American politicians are under domestic pressure to support the Israel.

Asked about President Reagan's Mideast policy, Conwell said, "I don't think President Reagan is naive by any stretch of the imagination." But he said politicians don't get elected to office unless they "not only acquiesce to the demands" of the Israeli lobby, but also become a spokesman for the lobby.

Conwell, originally from Houston, Texas, lives in Athens with his Greek-born wife.

Jacobsen agreed that the United States had failed to speak out forcefully enough against Israeli excesses, such as the detention in south Lebanon of nearly 400 Arabs who were seized by an Israeli-trained army. Human rights groups have been denied access to the prisoners.

While the United States has a "special relationship" with Israel, Jacobsen said that is understandable. "They are one nation that will do what they promise to do," he said.

"That doesn't mean I'm pro-Israeli or anti-Israeli," he said. "We have to look at the whole situation."

State predicted to rival California in grape, wine production

STEPHENVILLE (AP) — Grape production in Texas is a growing industry that is taking aim at a powerful western rival, says Jess Barnes, a North Texas grower.

"By the year 1995, I feel we'll be second to California in grape and wine production," said Barnes, general manager of Stephenville Vineyard, Nursery and Supply.

"Texas has more wild grapes than anywhere else in the entire world," Barnes said. "We grow 72 varieties at our nursery."

He noted that it was a Texan, T.V. Munson of Denison, who saved the wine industry in France at the turn of the century when he took wild vines from Texas to France for root stock after a pest ruined French grapevines.

"Commercial grape culture in Texas is not without its problems," Barnes said, including Pierce's Disease, cotton root rot, hail and winter freezes.

But he said experimentation and research has brought an incredible growth in the past eight years in the state's grape industry and he predicts greater expansion over the next eight years, particularly in the North Central Texas area, where a growing population provides a ready market.

He says the discovery in the past five years that vinifera grapes, which are used in European- and California-type wines, do well in the state has stimulated an almost revolutionary expansion of the industry.

Barnes says he got interested in the grape industry while he was stationed in California with the Navy, and has been in the business for 18 years.

He studied grape production in Bryan, working for Messina Hof Wine Cellars.

"I decided I wanted to go into the business for myself. Donnie Bramlett, owner of Stephenville Vineyard, Nursery, and supply, talked with me about it and we came up with a concept in 1963," he said.

Barnes says he was attracted to the Stephenville area, about 70 miles southwest of Fort Worth, by the quality and availability of land, water supply, climate, soil type, and its proximity to one of the state's major population areas for marketing.

He says his long-range plan is to plant 100 acres of table grapes. Now his company has 29 acres under cultivation with a variety of other plants as well as grapes. Barnes said he is interested in growing table grapes more than winemaking grapes because there is a higher dollar value in the table fruit.

Barnes says four basic types of grapes are grown by Texas producers: American, vinifera, hybrid and muscadine. Viniferas, Barnes says, have high yield and make quality wines. They are not grown successfully in South or East Texas, he says, where they are susceptible to Pierce's Disease. American grapes, he says, have a high degree of cold tolerance and disease resistance but are considered to make a poorer quality of wine than viniferas. Hybrid grapes have the cold hardiness and disease resistance of their American parents plus the production and quality of viniferas.

One of the major Texas grape-growing regions is the Lubbock area, he says, where about 900 acres are in production. Chenin Blanc, Cabernet Sauvignon, Sauvignon Blanc and White Riesling varieties have performed well there in recent years, Barnes says, and many growers are changing from hybrid to vinifera production. He says the area is blessed with a dry climate; deep, well-drained, fertile soil; sufficient water; cool nights during the growing season, and an absence of cotton root rot and Pierce's Disease. But he adds that there may be a northern limit for vinifera production in Texas because of winter freeze problems.

Far West Texas has the state's largest grape acreage, Barnes says, with about 1,400 acres in production. Viniferas, including Chenin Blanc, French Colombard, Sauvignon Blanc and Chardonnay, are grown almost exclusively in that area, Barnes says, stimulated by dry climate and fertile soil.

Three Americans, Indian to be freed, magazine says

WORLD

"His (Alann Steen's) case should be dealt with in a spirit of Islamic tolerance, and his kidnapped colleagues should be treated likewise...Kidnapping should be brought to an end altogether. This is an un-Islamic method that we do not approve of."

— Sheik Mohammed Mehdi Shamseddine, Shiite Moslem cleric

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The Beirut magazine Ash-Shiraa said Friday that three kidnapped Americans and an Indian would be freed soon.

The report followed an appeal to the Moslem kidnappers by U.S.-affiliated Beirut University College to have hostage Alann Steen, 47, of Boston, admitted to a hospital.

Fellow hostage Jesse Turner, 39, of Boise, Idaho, warned in a three-minute videotaped message Thursday that Steen might die any time.

The kidnappers said earlier Steen was gravely ill with high blood pressure. Ash-Shiraa quoted unnamed sources as saying Steen, Turner, Robert Polhill, 53, of New York City, and Mithileshwar Singh, 60, an Indian citizen and resident alien of the United States, "are now in the hands of a security department."

The four were abducted from Beirut University College campus in west Beirut on Jan. 24 by gunmen disguised as police.

The group claiming responsibility, Islamic Jihad for the Liberation of Palestine, is believed made up of pro-Iranian extremists.

"The last obstacle that delays the release of the four teachers is finding the proper scenario to close the case," Ash-Shiraa said. It did not elaborate.

The magazine is the same one that broke the news of secret U.S. arms sales to Iran.

In Washington, the State Department said Friday that Steen's kidnapers were engaging in "repugnant" behavior in refusing to release him unconditionally so he can receive medical attention.

In his videotape, Turner said Steen would be released if Israel frees 400 Arab prisoners.

Sheik Mohammed Mehdi Shamseddine, Lebanon's most senior Shiite Moslem cleric, pleaded Friday for the release of Steen and the three other hostages. He said in a sermon, "His (Steen's) case should be dealt with in a spirit of Islamic tolerance, and his kidnapped colleagues should be treated likewise...Kidnapping should be brought to an end altogether. This is an un-Islamic method that we do not approve of."

Shamseddine's sermon was blared by loudspeakers from Rawdat al-Shahidein's mosque on Beirut's southern outskirts.

Yasser Arafat, leader of the Palestine Liberation Organization, and Arab newspaper reports have said recently that the four educators now were in the hands of a Syrian-allied Lebanese militia pending final arrangements to set them free.

Twenty other foreigners are missing in Lebanon and believed kidnapped since March 1985. They are five more Americans, six Frenchmen, two Britons, two West Germans, an Italian, an Irishman, a South Korean and two unidentified men.

Also missing in Lebanon is Anglican Church hostage-negotiator Terry Waite, who vanished in Beirut on Jan. 20.

Also in Lebanon Friday, a truck loaded with 12 tons of flour, milk powder and canned food donated by King Fahd of Saudi Arabia was seen entering the besieged Palestinian refugee camp of Chatilla.

But a communique from the Moscow-oriented Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine said the truck came under grenade attack by Shiite militiamen and was burned, still fully loaded.

It said the attack wounded two Palestinian children and 10 other refugees.

Counties forecasts

Midland, Ector, Crane, Upton, Andrews, Gaines, Reagan, Glasscock, Howard, Martin, Borden, Dawson, Sterling, Tom Green, Irion and Coke: Today, becoming cloudy with highs near 60. A 50 percent chance of afternoon thunderstorms. Wind southeast 15 to 25 mph and gusty. Lake wind advisories will be required. Tonight, cloudy with a 50 percent chance of showers. Lows upper 30s. Sunday, cloudy with a 40 percent chance of showers. Highs upper 50s.

April showers in forecast

From Staff and Wire Reports

April and showers, which are synonymous in song, probably won't be a hit this weekend.

The weatherman at the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport is forecasting a 50 percent chance of thunderstorms this afternoon, a 50 percent probability of showers tonight, and 40 percent chance of showers on Sunday.

The high temperature today is forecast near 60 degrees. Skies are to be partly cloudy, and winds are to be southeasterly at 15 to 25 mph and gusty.

The low temperature tonight is to be in the upper 30s, and the high Sunday is to be in the upper 50s.

Friday's peak temperature was 61 degrees, which was nowhere close to the April 3 record high of 94 degrees in 1946. The overnight low was 40 degrees, and the record low for an April 4 is 28 degrees in 1945.

STATE

Sunny skies began to give way to high-level cloudiness over much of Texas Friday as the high-pressure system responsible for the mild weather across the state began to move slowly to the east.

Winds were from the north over the eastern half of the state with speeds in the 5 to 10 mph range. Over the western half, winds were from the south at 5 to 15 mph with some gusts in excess of 20 mph in the Panhandle.

The forecast calls for increasing cloudiness in the north today with a chance of showers in the western parts. It should be fair in the south, and high temperatures statewide should be in the 60s in the north and the 70s in the south.

NATION

A strong spring storm centered over Georgia dumped snow from the Appalachians and Ohio Valley down into the Deep South.

More than a foot of snow buried western North Carolina, eastern Kentucky and Tennessee, and parts of West Virginia. Another foot was expected in mountain regions by morning.

Winter storm warnings were in effect over the Appalachians from northeast Georgia and western South Carolina to southwest Pennsylvania, and for eastern sections of Tennessee and Kentucky.

Showers and thunderstorms extended from northeast Florida into eastern Georgia, and a tornado and severe thunderstorm watch was in effect from New Bern to Elizabeth City in eastern North Carolina.

In the West, rain was scattered over Washington, Oregon and western Nevada. A few thunderstorms dotted California.

Travelers' advisories for snow were issued for the Sierra Nevada south of Lake Tahoe.

Miami's Testaverde becomes NFL's richest rookie

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Vinny Testaverde, the Heisman Trophy winner some scouts rate as the best quarterback to come out of college since Joe Namath, signed a six-year contract with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, the team said Friday.

The signing that will make Testaverde the richest rookie in NFL history came more than three weeks before the Bucs will pick him No. 1 in the draft.

Terms of the agreement reached Thursday were not disclosed, but the former University of Miami star reportedly will be paid $8.2 million.

The signing comes a year after Tampa Bay owner Hugh Culverhouse vowed to make Bo Jackson, the 1985 Heisman winner from Auburn, the highest-paid rookie. However, Jackson spurned the Bucs and signed a baseball contract with the Kansas City Royals organization.

While the Bucs' losing tradition was believed to be one of the factors that swayed Jackson's decision, Testaverde had no reservations about joining a team that has had only three winning seasons in the franchise's 11-year history.

"There was never a question in my mind that the Bucs wanted Vinny Testaverde and there was no question Vinny Testaverde wanted Tampa," Bob Woolf, the player's attorney, said at a news conference.

"It's easy to take the easy road, but you feel a lot better when you have to work for it," Testaverde said in response to the question of why it wasn't important to him to start his career with a playoff contender.

The Bucs have compiled 2-14 records three of the past four years and have not made the NFL playoffs since the strike-shortened 1982 season.

One reason was instability at quarterback where the club lost Doug Williams to a contract dispute in 1983 and has tried four different starters since. Steve Young, who has four years left on a $5 million contract he signed in 1985, and Steve DeBerg shared the job last season.

"I know it's going to take a lot of hard work to take a giant step forward and win. We're all going to put our heads together and try our best," said Testaverde, who led Miami to an 11-1 record in 1986 and a 21-3 mark in two seasons as a starter.

"Everybody's been talking about one player changing it around. It's not going to happen that way," he added. "It has to be a team effort and that's what we're going to try for."

First-year Coach Ray Perkins said no timetable has been set for Testaverde to move into the lineup. While Young said two months ago that he expected to be traded if the Bucs signed Testaverde, the coach said it's possible he will keep Young, DeBerg and Testaverde on the roster.

"That's something I do not know at this time," Perkins said. "Time changes everything and everybody."

Testaverde's deal reportedly is close those of quarterbacks Jim Kelly and Dan Marino in total value and includes a $2 million signing bonus. The Buffalo Bills are believed to be paying Kelly $8 million over five years, and Marino's contract with the Miami Dolphins reportedly is worth $9 million over six years.

Culverhouse presented Testaverde with a jersey carrying No. 14, his college number. The owner refused to confirm the 23-year-old's contract is the most lucrative ever for a first-year player.

"I haven't seen the other contracts," he said. "That wasn't important to me."

Testaverde did not become Miami's No. 1 quarterback until his junior season. He made the most of his opportunity, though, and finished with 6,058 career yards passing with 48 touchdowns and 25 interceptions. He threw for 2,557 yards and 26 TDs as a senior.

Culverhouse said he still feels Young, the former Brigham Young and United States Football League star, has the potential to be a "franchise quarterback."

Surprising 'Dogs host Bronchos; Rebs face 'Cats

From Staff Reports

Midland High is the surprise team of the District 4-5A baseball season. Expected to finish somewhere in the middle of the pack, the Bulldogs have taken control of second place.

The Bulldogs, only 10-9 overall, have a 3-1 league record and are one run from being 4-0, losing 1-0 to Midland Lee in the district opener. Since that loss, they've posted victories over Abilene High, Odessa Permian and San Angelo.

The Bulldogs will be out to maintain their grasp on second place today when they host Odessa High at 2 p.m. at Angels Stadium.

Elsewhere, Midland Lee is at San Angelo at 2 p.m., and Abilene Cooper battles Abilene High tonight at 8 at Hardin Simmons.

No. 2 ranked Cooper is 15-2, 4-0 overall and is threatening to run away with the league title. The Bulldogs want to keep it close for Tuesday's trip down I-20 to battle the Cougars in Abilene.

Before then, however, MHS has to look out for OHS, owner of a one-game winning streak after beating Abilene High Tuesday, 13-8.

While the 6-7, 1-4 Bronchos lack pitching, owning a 4.81 earned run average, they have had their moments at the plate. OHS is fifth in average at .293 behind Midland High's .360 pace.

Leading MHS at the plate is Jim Werner with a .571 district average while Tony Perez follows at .438. For OHS, Herbie Ramos and Freddie Mendoza are hitting .500.

A PAIR of rough losses has moved the Rebels into fourth place at 2-2 while San Angelo is in fifth at 1-3. Both teams are struggling on the mound while the Bobcats add mediocre hitting to their woes.

The Rebels own a 4.67 earned run average while San Angelo is 5.39 to rank seventh. At the plate, Lee is fourth with a .316 average while the Bobcats are again last at .204.

Individually, Lee's Jason Logi is the league's top hitter with a .600 average while teammate Billy Wagner is hitting .400. For the 'Cats, Peter Garcia, with limited at bats, is tops at .500.

Gee leads Rebs near 4-5A top

By ERIC SCHURER
Sports Writer

Bobby Gee and Larry Bryan have been looking up at Abilene Cooper in the standings for three years.

Now Midland Lee's senior golf duo could be on the verge of putting the Rebels on top of the District 4-5A golf heap.

Friday at Midland Country Club, the second of four stops in the district tournament, Gee fired a 75, just three over par, to pace Lee to a team low 320 score and within two strokes of the district lead. Midland High gained some ground to eighth, but still remains far out of playoff contention.

Gee's low round also gave the Rebel senior a five-stroke edge over second place Matt Browning of Cooper in the individual medalist race. Bryan, who struggled to an 80, is third at 157. Gee and two other golfers scored in the 70s, Mike Pettis of MHS and David Bolin of Cooper.

"I think this is the year we can catch them," Gee said of the Cougars, who have won the last seven district titles. "I've always wanted to have a good high school team that we could take to regionals and then maybe even on to state. We just need to pull our heads together and concentrate more on the mental part of the game."

Gee, a lanky 6-3 senior, showed he is approaching that mental mastery with his round at Friday. Though his drives were erratic and scattered all over the 6,950-yard par 72 course, Gee managed to shake off a pair of Cooper challengers and take a commanding five-stroke lead. Marc James and Browning entered the day tied with Gee at 72 after the first round.

"I didn't hit the ball too well, but my short game was there and it covered up for me. I was hoping I could get a lead early in case I had a bad round somewhere," said Gee, who last year finished second in the district. "Hopefully it's mine to take this year."

Lee coach Ronnie Stephens feels that the Rebels, Gee and Bryan in particular, can take advantage of the long courses in the next two weeks to overtake the front-running Cougars.

"I thought we would go ahead today, but the scores indicated how tough the course was playing," Stephens said. "Anytime Larry shoots an 80, you know it's a difficult track. But I still feel good about our chances, we've got two more long courses and that's to our advantage — if we can take advantage."

The final two district rounds will be played at Odessa Country Club April 10, and at San Angelo's Bent-

Jones

Tyrone Jones, 6-6 forward Hutchinson, Kan., CC, averaged 26.3 points per game and had a 52 per cent field goal percentage and was 80 per cent from the line. Also averaged 4.4 rebounds, 1.2 steals and two assists a game.

Coach David Farrar calls him one of the best perimeter shooters in the country.

Texas

Porter

Michael Porter, 6-0, 180, averaged 12 points per game, 4.5 assists and 6.3 rebounds for San Jacinto Junior College. Named all NJCAA tournament two years. Porter, with a 43-inch vertical jump, won the McDonald's High School All American slam dunk contest his senior year in Pulaski, Va.

Undecided on a four-year school, he doesn't lack for suitors and Virginia colleges are highly interested. He was a member of San Jac's 37-0 national champions in 1985-86 and stretched its winning streak to 71 before losing to MC in the NJCAA tournament.

Motta accuses Rockets of trying to avoid LA

DALLAS (AP) — With the NBA playoffs three weeks away, Dallas Mavericks coach Dick Motta questioned whether Midwest division opponent Houston is playing its best.

In Friday's editions in The Dallas Morning News, Motta commented on the Rockets' effort in a 117-104 loss to the Phoenix Suns Wednesday after watching the game on television.

"Houston looks like they're messing around," Motta told The Dallas Morning News. "They look like they're manipulating ... It was about the most blatant I've ever seen last night (Wednesday). It wasn't even cute ... It's a good thing he (Houston coach Bill Fitch) has a two-year (contract) extension. Thirty-seven (victories) isn't enough for most people to hold a job."

Fitch has heard the accusations of not playing his best players to manipulate standings in the past. Late in the 1983-84 season, he reduced Sampson's playing time so often that he was accused of purposely trying not to win so that Houston could get into the coin flip for Akeem Olajuwon.

The NBA changed the coin flip to a lottery for next season.

"Nobody says it to my face," Fitch said of the claims when contacted by The News in Sacramento, Calif.

In Wednesday's game, the official play-by-play sheet showed Olajuwon left the game with 8:31 remaining and the Rockets behind 94-88. The Rockets quickly scored six points and tied the game, but Olajuwon never returned.

Rodney McCray played only 4:43 of the final period, considerably less than the 7:17 played by rookie second-round pick Dave Feitl. Ralph Sampson, who missed 27 games because of a knee injury but returned to score 18 points in 28 minutes in the last two games, did not play in the fourth quarter.

"The camera kept looking at the three stooges (Olajuwon, Sampson and McCray) all together," Motta said. "They were happy. They were laughing."

Two weeks ago, the Rockets had a 36-31 record and were only one-half game behind the Utah Jazz for fourth place in the Western Conference. But the Rockets have lost six of their last seven and have fallen from fifth to sixth.

To finish the season in that slot would mean the Rockets would play a first-round series with Portland and the winner meeting the Dallas-Seattle winner.

If the Rockets continue to lose, they could fall to seventh place, which would create a first-round series between Houston and Dallas.

The Rockets are 2-2 against the Mavericks this season and will play them twice more before the end of the season. Houston is 1-3 against Portland, with one game remaining.

Fitch claims he doesn't pay attention to possible playoff matches.

"I don't think in terms of who we're going to play, period, because it doesn't make a damn bit of difference to me," Fitch said.

King is still King at midway point

...Dinah Shore

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (AP) — Betsy King finished off a wind-swept, erratic round by sinking two birdie putts Friday to tie Amy Alcott for the lead midway through the $500,000 Dinah Shore tournament.

King and Alcott each had 3-over-par 75s as winds gusting up to 40 mph at Mission Hills Country Club sent second-round scores soaring.

The two were at 1-under-par 143 after 36 holes of the event, the LPGA's richest major tournament.

Jan Stephenson had a second-round 73, Val Skinner had a 75, and Judy Rosenthal a 72 for 144 totals, one shot behind the leaders.

The first-round leader, 23-year-old Laura Davies of England, fell victim to the swirling winds. Davies, who shot a 6-under-par 66 in ideal conditions on the first day, struggled to an 83 Friday and dropped into the pack.

King, who won the LPGA tournament in Tucson, Ariz. on March 22, had four birdies, four bogeys and a triple bogey during her second round Friday. She birdied the 17th and 18th holes to pull into the tie with Alcott, who had finished the round earlier.

Alcott was steadier, with one birdie and four bogeys during her round.

Hollis Stacy, Lauren Howe, Donna Caponi, Martha Nause and Rosie Jones all were at 145.

Defending champion Pat Bradley lurked three strokes off the lead with a second-round 74 that put her in a group at 146.

Nancy Lopez had problems, ballooning to a 78 after an opening-round 71 and falling six shots off the pace.

Virtually all the golfers said playing in the gusting winds was mostly a matter of survival, but Alcott said she liked the challenge.

"I felt my second round was as good as my first (a 68)," she said. "I was consistent again.

"With the wind, you could have shot a 90 out there if you weren't careful."

Alcott also said she's been suffering from some mysterious dizziness for the last week, adding, "Maybe it's a good way for me to be. I've played some of my best golf that way."

Stephenson said the winds made her already shaky putting game ever less dependable.

"It's difficult for me to putt anyway, but when the wind causes your putter to move before you even take it back, then I'm really in trouble," Stephenson said.

Stone hires ISU's Corder

POCATELLO, Idaho (AP) — Idaho State University assistant head basketball coach Allen Corder has resigned to become the top assistant at the University of Texas at Arlington.

Corder, who has been a Bengal assistant for two seasons under head coach Jim Boutin, will assist the Mavericks' new head coach Jerry Stone.

"Right now I feel very good about what we have done in two years here," said Corder, who was ISU's starting point guard in 1978-79. "We've come along a lot quicker than I thought. Things are up and they're going to get better."

Idaho State had a 15-15 record during the 1986-87 season to finish seventh in the Big Sky Conference, but then won the league tournament before losing to Nevada-Las Vegas in the first round of the NCAA tournament.

Stone moves to Texas-Arlington from Midland College. He was named junior college coach of the year this past season after his team lost to the College of Southern Idaho in the NJCAA national championship.

Boutin said assistant coach Barry Janusch would replace Corder as ISU's top assistant.

Corder played basketball at Western Texas Junior College in Snyder before coming to ISU. He was an assistant at the College of Idaho under former ISU assistant Marty Holly, and at Utah under former Bengal coach Lynn Archibald.

Texas bombs Rice, 25-4

Associated Press

AUSTIN — Senior shortstop Coby Kerlin's five hits drove in seven runs as the top-ranked Texas Longhorns pounded Rice 25-4 in a Southwest Conference baseball game Friday night.

The Longhorns, 36-7 overall and 6-1 in the SWC, touched five Owl pitchers for 21 hits while batting through the lineup four times. Sixteen of the Texas hits were singles.

Kerlin's performance was one hit and three RBI shy of a school and conference record. Texas' 25 runs fell short of the school record of 28, set in 1947 against Hardin-Simmons.

Longhorn starter Mark Petkovsek held Rice, 22-10 and 5-5, hitless until the fifth inning to pick up his seventh win of the season against one loss.

Seven different Longhorn batters had hits and RBI as they scored in all but the fifth and eighth innings.

SWC Baseball

Arkansas 2, Texas Tech 0

LUBBOCK — Arkansas first-baseman Randy Bobb drove in two runs in the top of the ninth inning as the Razorbacks defeated Texas Tech.

The Razorbacks' win improves their record this season to 25-7-1 and 6-1 in SWC play. Texas Tech drops to 16-16 and 3-7.

Bobb's double to left field scored Mike Sisco, who had reached base with a bunt single, and Ken Reese, who reached on an error by Tech rightfielder Boo Arnold.

It was the second double by Bobb off Tech starter Bill Schutt.

Arkansas starter Ray Harris was credited with the win, improving to 3-2 for the year. He was relieved in the ninth by Tim Peters, who faced three batters and preserved the victory for his seventh save this season.

Houston 10, TCU 6

HOUSTON — Larry Coker, Omar Brewer and Lonnie Walker each hit home runs to help Houston defeat Texas Christian 10-6 in Southwest Conference baseball Friday.

The Cougars improved their record to 23-14 overall and 3-4 in the SWC, while the Horned Frogs fell to 17-20 and 1-6.

Houston built a 7-1 lead after four innings with two runs in each the first and third innings and three runs in the fourth.

But Texas Christian fought back with three runs in the fifth and two in the sixth to cut the lead to 7-6. Houston added two runs in the sixth inning and a solo home run by Walker in the eighth to close out the scoring.

Starter Steve Callarman, 3-2, took the loss for Texas Christian, while Mike Pulido, 2-1, picked up the win for the Cougars.

Ohio State shakes TCU for relays' lead

AUSTIN (AP) — Ohio State took charge after favored Texas Christian's lead-off man pulled up with an injury and won the 800-meter relay in 1:24.16 Friday night in the 60th annual Texas Relays.

TCU's Roscoe Tatum sprinted out about 140 yards into the opening leg before he slowed to a walk and limped off the track.

TCU finished second in the event last year behind Texas A&M and became the favorite when the Aggies did not enter this year because of several injuries. The Aggies won the event in 1:21.70 last year, and later in the year TCU set a national collegiate record 1:20.20.

Friday night, Texas Tech finished second at 1:24.21, and Prairie View A&M was third at 1:24.35. TCU was the leading qualifier going into the finals Friday with a 1:21.89 qualifying time.

Ohio State qualified sixth among the eight teams to make the finals with a 1:25.52 clocking.

Pam Dukes of the Puma Track Club set a Texas Relays record 58-8½ in the Women's Open Division shot put. Rice's Regina Cavanaugh won the Women's Division event with a toss of 54-9½.

Danny Edwards leads rain plagued Greensboro Open

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Danny Edwards fought off chilly winds to fire a 3-under-par 69 Friday and take the lead in the rain-shortened second round of the Greater Greensboro Open golf tournament.

Light rains started around noon at the Forest Oaks Country Club, but by 3 p.m., heavy rains, thunder and lightning forced two suspensions of play. A third delay came at 4 p.m. and ended play for the day with about half the field still on the cold and wind-swept course.

Edwards, a two-time winner at Greensboro, had a two-round total of 5-under-par 139.

T.C. Chen, a co-leader in the first round after a 4-under-par 68, had moved to 5-under-par through the first nine holes before the suspension.

"The wind is what really gives you the problem," Edwards said. "Guys would rather play in the rain than in the wind."

Edwards, 33rd on the 1987 money winning list with more than $78,000, got off to a good start, eagling the par-5 second hole. He also had a birdie at No. 12, knocking in a 15-foot putt.

"Yesterday (Thursday), you could hit your two best and you couldn't get within 50 yards of No. 2," Edwards said. "Today (Friday), I hit a drive and a 5-wood about 15 feet behind the hole and made it."

Roger Maltbie, who was tied with Chen after the opening round, skied to a 41 on his front nine Friday and finished with a 78 for a two-round total of 2-over-par 146.

Clarence Rose fired a 68 and was one shot behind Edwards at 140.

"I hit a lot of greens and I had a good opportunity to shoot a good score," Rose said.

International Team extends Chrylser Cup lead to 20-12

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — Bruce Crampton of Australia made up two strokes on the final hole to edge Chi Chi Rodriguez by one shot Friday as the International Team extended its lead to 20-12 after two days of the Chrylser Cup seniors golf competition.

Other winners Friday for the International team were Harold Henning and Gary Player of South Africa, Bob Charles of New Zealand and Christy O'Connor of Ireland. The United States got victories from Lee Elder, Dale Douglass and Gene Littler.

Each victory in the head-to-head stroke-play competition earned two points for the team. The International team led 10-6 after Thursday's first round in the Ryder Cup-style event at the Tournament Players Club at Prestencia.

"This is not really much of a lead," Player, the International team captain, said. "The matches really haven't started yet. Saturday and Sunday are each worth 34 points, then we'll really know who the winners are."

Rodriguez went to the 18th hole one shot up on Crampton, but he hit his second shot on the par-4 over the green. He chipped long and then two-putted for bogey to complete a round of 70.

Crampton sank a birdie putt from seven feet to cap his round of 69.

Player claimed an easy 78-69 victory over Miller Barber, while Henning edged Arnold Palmer 72-73, Charles downed Bob January 69-73, and O'Connor beat Casper 69-72.

Mavs pound Golden State

Associated Press

DALLAS — Rolando Blackman scored 33 points to lead Dallas to a 136-116 National Basketball Association victory over the Golden State Warriors Friday in the Mavericks' first 50-victory season of their seven-year history.

The Mavericks, close to winning their first Midwest Division title, overcame a 35-33 first-quarter lead to lead by eight, 73-55, at halftime. Dallas, 50-24, has won 10 out of its last 11 games and increased its lead to 12 points, 109-97, at the end of the third quarter.

The Mavericks, who are 32-6 at home and 26 games above .500 for the first time in the club's history, had seven players in double figures.

In addition to Blackman, Mark Aguirre had 20 points, Derek Harper had 18, rookie Roy Tarpley had a career-high 17, Sam Perkins had 15, and Brad Davis and Detlef each had 10.

Nuggets 116, Spurs 106

SAN ANTONIO — Alex English scored 29 points to lead Denver over San Antonio, strengthening the Nuggets' hold on the final playoff spot in the Western Conference.

Denver has now won three in a row and eight of its last 11. San Antonio's 26-48 record, meanwhile, assures the franchise of its worst record since joining the league 14 years ago.

The final count was the closest the Spurs could get in the second half. San Antonio was led by Walter Berry with 27 points, while Johnny Dawkins scored 23, including 17 in the final period.

Lafayette Lever added 25 points to the Nuggets' winning effort.

The Spurs tied it at 14 midway through the first period before the Nuggets ran off a 5-2 streak. After the slow start, the Nuggets rolled to a 61-39 halftime lead.

San Antonio could do little right in the first two periods, scoring just 16 points in the opening quarter and not reaching 20 until 9:27 remained in the half.

Denver's biggest lead came in the third period at 87-57 with 4:17 left in the quarter.

Hawks 126, Knicks 89

ATLANTA — Dominique Wilkins and Mike McGee each went on torrid shooting streaks and Atlanta outscored New York 39-6 in an 11-minute span of the second half.

Wilkins hit field goals on four straight Atlanta possessions during the 39-6 spurt, which began with the Hawks leading just 67-64 with 6:52 left in the third quarter. After the streak, the score was 106-70.

In the second quarter, McGee came off the bench to score 10 points in 2:04, including two three-point field goals.

The Hawks never trailed after taking an early 14-13 lead, but could not shake the Knicks in the first half as the teams traded scoring spurts.

Wilkins finished with 28 points and McGee with 26. Kevin Willis added 15 points and a game-high 12 rebounds.

Bill Cartwright led New York with 16 points. Gerald Wilkins had 15 and Rory Sparrow 14.

NBA Roundup

Celtics 119, Pistons 115, OT

BOSTON — Robert Parish's short jumper put Boston ahead to stay with 31 seconds left in overtime and the Celtics held Detroit without a field goal in the extra period.

The Pistons, who led for the first 44 minutes of the game, managed just two free throws each by Isiah Thomas and Bill Laimbeer in overtime as their hopes of ending Boston's 25-game home winning streak faded.

Detroit led by 17 points in the first quarter, 62-54 at halftime and 93-80 after the third quarter. But Boston got the first 11 points of the fourth period and the score was tied 111-111 at the end of regulation.

Thomas' free throws followed one by Boston's Kevin McHale and gave Detroit a 113-112 lead. McHale then hit a fallaway jumper, putting Boston ahead by one with 1:13 left. Laimbeer's free throws gave the Pistons their last lead, 115-114, with 50 seconds to go.

Then Parish, who hit Boston's last two field goals in the fourth quarter, connected from 11 feet and Dennis Johnson's free throw with 16 seconds to play made the score 117-115.

Detroit's Vinnie Johnson then drove to the basket with 10 seconds left, made contact with McHale and missed the shot. No foul was called.

Bullets 122, Bulls 118

LANDOVER, Md. — Jeff Malone scored 33 points and won his personal duel with Michael Jordan.

Jay Vincent had a season-high 33 for the Bullets, who snapped a three-game losing streak and pulled into a tie with Indiana for sixth place in the Eastern Conference. The Bulls are eighth, one game behind.

Vincent, who had 21 points in the second half, scored nine points in the last 3:48 of the game after Chicago had trimmed a 95-86 deficit to 107-106. His three-point play with 1:32 remaining put the Bullets up 116-108.

Nets 113, 76ers 109

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Orlando Woolridge scored five of his game-high 33 points in the closing moments.

The victory, New Jersey's third in the last four games, spoiled Julius Erving's last appearance at the Brendan Byrne Arena. Erving, who played three seasons with the Nets when they were in the American Basketball Association, had his Nets uniform number retired in ceremonies before the game.

Rick Barry joins Nuggets as special marketing assistant

DENVER (AP) — Rick Barry, the former pro basketball star who will be inducted into the National Basketball Hall of Fame next month, has joined the Denver Nuggets' front office as a special marketing assistant, the club announced Friday.

Barry, 43, a former ABA and NBA all-star who now is an NBA color analyst for TBS Sports, will be responsible for sponsorship sales, promoting special events and entertaining visiting dignitaries, said Dean Bonham, president of the Nuggets' marketing and sales division.

"I will be continuing my analysis work with TBS' telecasts of the NBA, and at the same time will be fulfilling my responsibilities in promoting the Nuggets," Barry said.

Barry was NBA Rookie of the Year in 1965-66 with San Francisco, played another year, then sat out the option year of his contract.

Winfield helps Yanks end spring drought

Associated Press

The Yankees broke a seven-game exhibition losing streak in a very big way Friday, trouncing the Montreal Expos 23-7, as Dave Winfield went 4-for-5, homered and drove in five runs to spark a 24-hit New York attack.

Joel Skinner hit a three-run homer while Winfield, Gary Ward and Ron Kittle all contributed two-run shots in an eighth-inning outburst off reliever Bob McClure.

Expo second baseman Vance Law came in to face Winfield in his second at-bat of the eighth. The outfielder batted left-handed for the first time in his career. He fouled off a pitch and swung and missed before eventually walking on a full count. Law got Dan Pasqua on a pop fly to left center to end the inning.

Exhibitions

Reds 8, Astros 7

In Tampa, Lloyd McClendon led off the bottom of the 10th inning with a home run to lift Cincinnati over Houston. McClendon's homer off reliever Aurelio Lopez, let the Reds end their Florida training camp with a 15-9 exhibition record. Cincinnati plays Montreal in two weekend exhibition games in Nashville, Tenn., before opening the National League season Monday against the Expos at Riverfront Stadium.

Royals 4, Rangers 0

At Port Charlotte, Charlie Leibrandt pitched seven shutout innings and Bo Jackson drove in two runs with a pinch single to lead Kansas City over Texas. Leibrandt gave up back-to-back singles to Oddibe McDowell and Scott Fletcher to lead off the bottom of the first, but allowed the Rangers only three more singles in the rest of his final effort of the spring. The crowd of 5,028 was the Rangers 11th sellout in the 14 home games they played this spring.

Braves 4, Orioles 2

In West Palm Beach, Andres Thomas broke a 2-2 tie with a lead-off home run in the eighth inning as Atlanta defeated Baltimore. Thomas' homer, his first of the spring, negated a two-run rally by the Orioles in the top of the inning. The victory was the Braves' ninth in their last 11 games.

White Sox 4, Red Sox 1

In Sarasota, Floyd Bannister pitched five shutout innings and Bob James followed with two perfect innings as Chicago beat Boston. Bannister, 3-0, allowed four hits. Manager Jim Fregosi was impressed with James, who is coming back from arm trouble that idled him for two months last season.

Pirates 4, Blue Jays 3

In Dunedin, Barry Bonds walked with the bases loaded and Junior Ortiz scored on a passed ball as Pittsburgh edged Toronto. In the Pirate seventh, Bobby Bonilla singled, Denny Gonzalez singled and Ortiz was safe on a fielder's choice when Bonilla was thrown out at the plate. Oinx Concepcion then hit a ball back to pitcher Jeff Musselman, whose throw to first was dropped by rookie Fred McGriff to load the bases. Bonds then walked, scoring Gonzalez, and Ortiz scored on a passed ball charged to Ernie Witt.

Phillies 2, Mets 0

In St. Petersburg, three left-handers, Don Carman, Jeff Calhoun and rookie Wally Ritchie, combined on a four-hitter as the Philadelphia defeated New York. Carman gave up two hits and a walk with five strikeouts over the first six innings. Calhoun pitched a perfect seventh, and Ritchie followed with two more scoreless innings, yielding two hits.

Indians 5, Brewers 4

In Tucson, Tony Bernazard scored from third on a wild pitch by Jay Aldrich in the bottom of the ninth inning to lift Cleveland over Milwaukee. Cleveland trailed 4-3 entering the bottom of the ninth. But with one out, Cory Snyder singled and was replaced by pinch-runner Otis Nixon, who moved to third on Bernazard's pinch single. Rookie Tommy Hinzo drove in Nixon with a high-bouncing single to third, and after Brett Butler was walked intentionally to load the bases, Bernazard scored.

Brewers 12, Mariners 2

In Chandler, Juan Nieves pitched six shutout innings as Milwaukee defeated Seattle with the help of Dale Sveum's three-run homer. Nieves has 14 consecutive scoreless innings in three games. Glenn Braggs had three hits and drove in three runs for Milwaukee.

A's 11, Cubs 10

In Mesa, rookie Terry Steinbach homered and Jose Tolentino had four hits as Oakland edged Chicago. Dave Von Ohlen picked up the victory in a game played in wind gusts of 40 mph. Luis Polonia and Gary Jones added three hits each for Oakland. Keith Moreland hit two homers and drove in five runs for the Cubs.

Cleveland Indians sign Steve Carlton for middle-inning relief work

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Left-hander Steve Carlton, a starter throughout his 22 years in the major leagues, signed Friday with the Cleveland Indians and will become a middle-inning relief pitcher in his latest attempt to revive his career.

Carlton, 42, a four-time Cy Young Award-winner, failed in a bid to rejoin the Philadelphia Phillies on March 21 after he allowed seven earned runs in five exhibition games covering 14 innings. He had been in camp as a non-roster, unpaid player.

"We're gambling that he can fill a role for us," said Joe Klein, Indians' vice president. "He's healthy, and the point is, he can fall out of bed and pitch two innings. If we were getting him to be a starter, he wouldn't be ready. But the way we're going to use him, he's ready."

Carlton has a career record of 323-229 and an ERA of 3.11, and he ranks second to Nolan Ryan on the all-time strikeout list with 4,040.

He spent 15 of his 22 years with Philadelphia, where Indians Manager Pat Corrales managed him in 1982 and '83. Carlton's last Cy Young Award came under Corrales in 1982.

"We needed a middle, left-handed reliever," Corrales said. "If we had said we wanted him as a starter, we wouldn't have signed him. But we got our heads together and said, 'Maybe he'll go for it.'"

Corrales said he telephoned Carlton Wednesday night to see if he would be interested in a relief job. Carlton balked at first, but called Corrales back to accept the offer.

The manager said he told Carlton he could make no guarantees about an eventual move to the starting rotation, although he said it was possible he could become Cleveland's fourth or fifth starter if he pitches well early in the year.

Carlton established a major-league record with 512 consecutive starts at one point in his career. After he was on the disabled list for much of the 1985 season, he pitched with Philadelphia, the San Francisco Giants and the Chicago White Sox in three separate comeback attempts last year.

He started a combined 32 games for the three teams, compiling a 9-14 record and 5.10 ERA.

Carlton, who refused to talk to reporters for much of his career, was reluctant to discuss the signing Friday. Reached by telephone in Florida, he said: "I feel very good about it. I'd rather talk once I'm in uniform."

He was to join the Indians on Friday night in Buffalo, where they were scheduled to play the Toronto Blue Jays in an exhibition game Saturday. Corrales said Carlton would follow 48-year-old knuckleballer Phil Niekro to the mound in that game.

Niekro, ironically, was claimed by the Indians on waivers from the New York Yankees exactly one year ago Friday. He has 311 career wins, giving the Indians two pitchers over 40 with a career total of 634 wins. The only other time two 300-game winners were on the same team was when Tim Keefe and Mickey Welch played for the New York Giants in 1891.

Carlton broke into the majors with the St. Louis Cardinals in 1965 and was traded to the Phillies before the 1972 season.

To make room on their roster, the Indians sent rookie outfielder Dave Clark to Class AAA Buffalo.

Gooden news stuns Mets

NEW YORK (AP) — Dwight Gooden's insistence that he be tested for drugs may have been a cry for help.

"The amazing thing to me is that it looked like he wanted to get caught," New York Mets Manager Davey Johnson said of his pitcher.

"I'm reading this, and I still can't believe it," Johnson added, while looking at the headlines proclaiming the stunning news that Gooden, the National League's Cy Young Award winner in 1985, had been using cocaine.

"I talked to Dwight several times last year when he was having trouble down here (in Tampa, Fla.) with the police and all that," Frank Cashen, the Mets' executive vice president and general manager, said. "I didn't ask about drug use, per se, but it was obvious he was having problems. The underlying problem is now apparent."

Gooden, who asked that a drug-testing clause be in his contract, was tested March 26 and was told this week that it revealed cocaine in his system. Upon hearing the news, he cried.

"He just sat there befuddled," Joe McIlvaine, the Mets' vice president of baseball operations, said. "Here's a guy who's been on top of the world, and at a moment that he most needed help, he didn't know who he would ask (for help)."

Al Harazin, the Mets' vice president, said Gooden knew the test would be positive, adding, "But he was so insistent."

"He asked specifically for this," Harazin told New York Newsday. "The first thing in my mind is that he was crying out for help. The obvious thing is he wanted to get caught."

Cashen agreed.

"He wanted to dispel the rumors," Cashen said. "I've wrestled with that question ever since I saw the test results. The only thing I can come up with is that he was crying out for help. That's why I think it's best this thing came out now.

"Dwight obviously needs treatment to turn his life around."

Charles Ehrlich, an attorney for Gooden, said he had asked the right-handed pitcher several times whether he was using drugs. Gooden denied it, Ehrlich said.

"We had heard the rumors," Ehrlich said. "I had no reason to doubt him. And I don't think anything that happened this winter (including a run-in with Tampa police) was related to drug use. They were isolated incidents. I think he experimented with cocaine and does not have a serious problem."

Cubs deal away Dennis Eckersley

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Cubs traded right-handed pitcher Dennis Eckersley to the Oakland A's Friday in a five-player deal.

Along with Eckersley, the Cubs sent infielder Dan Roan to the A's for three minor league players, outfielder David Wilder, infielder Brian Guinn and right-handed pitcher Mark Leonette.

Eckersley, 32, came to the Cubs in June of 1984 from the Boston Red Sox in a trade for first baseman Bill Buckner. He posted a 10-8 record for the Cubs while helping them win the National League East. Eckersley was 11-7 in 1985 and fell to 6-11 last season with 4.57 earned run average. But he led the club in strikeouts with 137 and 201 innings pitched.

The three players the Cubs received from the A's all played with Huntsville of the Class AA Southern League last year. Wilder had a .301 average with 11 home runs and 85 runs batted in. Guinn had a .283 average with five homers and 63 runs batted in and Leonette had a 6-4 record with a 3.78 ERA and 10 saves.

Leonard, Hagler hype continues at frenzied pace

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Marvelous Marvin Hagler and Sugar Ray Leonard met at a news conference Friday for the first time since December.

It also was their last public appearance together until the Monday morning weigh-in for Hagler's middleweight title defense Monday night.

The two fighters appeared together Dec. 8 in San Francisco on the sixth stop of what was supposed to be a 12-city promotional tour.

Hagler refused to continue the tour.

"It was becoming a circus," Hagler once charged. "He was becoming a big politician, playing to the public, instead of talking fight talk. People were saying we had become friends. There are no friends in the ring."

"He disturbs me sometimes," Leonard said.

But even without the tour, the hype of the match has continued at a frenzied pace.

At Friday's news conference at Caesars Palace, promoter Bob Arum said, "There's very little to say any more."

That statement then was borne out by many of questions asked of the two fighters.

Leonard, who underwent another retinal examination Tuesday night, was asked how painful such an examination is?

"It's not something you want to get used to," the former undisputed welterweight champion replied.

Hagler was asked what advice he has received from managers Pat and Goody Petronelli for the fight.

"They told me, 'Once you climb through the ropes you're on your own,' " he said.

Both fighters also made brief statements.

Leonard said. "This fight and this win will be dedicated to Camp Good Days and Special Times." That is a facility in New York for children with terminal cancer.

"This fight will show young people never to give up," said Leonard, who is coming out of retirement to challenge Hagler almost five years after undergoing retinal surgery on his left eye.

"After this fight, I'll still be champion of the world," Hagler said.

But he no longer is undisputed middleweight champion.

The World Boxing Association has withdrawn championship recognition from Hagler for failing to sign in December for a mandatory title defense.

Hagler's attorney tried to obtain a temporary injunction against the WBA's action, but a U.S. District Court judge in Boston refused to grant one. On Thursday, Hagler's appeal was rejected.

The International Boxing Federation recognizes Hagler, but is not sanctioning the fight as a title match and should Leonard win, the title would be declared vacant.

The scheduled 12-round fight does have championship sanction from the World Boxing Council.

It will be a big boxing weekend at Caesars Palace.

Friday night, Iran Barkley of New York, the WBA's second-ranked middleweight contender, was to meet Jorge Amparo of Las Vegas in a scheduled 10-round to be televised by ESPN.

Saturday at about noon, CST, Donald Curry of Fort Worth, Texas, was to defend the United States Boxing Association junior middleweight title in a scheduled 12-round bout against Carlos Santos of Puerto Rico.

Curry is a former undisputed welterweight champion. Santos is a former IBF junior middleweight champion. Their fight will be televised on CBS.

The Friday and Saturday shows were to be held in the 15,300-seat outdoor stadium, which has been long sold out for the Hagler-Leonard match, which will be shown on closed-circuit television in the United States and Canada.

The last time Hagler lost a fight was on March 9, 1976, when he fell to Willie "The Worm" Monroe.

But only in news clippings and photographs. There is no film or videotape of The Worm's win. Because of a blizzard that night in Philadelphia, none of the city's three network television stations was able to dispatch a crew.

Two months earlier, Hagler had lost for the first time in his career after 25 wins, dropping a 10-rounder to another Philadelphia fighter, Bobby Watts. Then Marvin knocked out Matt Donovan in two rounds. Monroe was next.

Buffs make golf move on RC Owls

From Staff Reports

STANTON — The Stanton Buffaloes made up nine strokes on their home course Friday to move into a tie with the Reagan County Owls after three rounds of District 6-2A play here at Martin County Country Club.

Greg Avery led the Stanton charge with a 77 as the Buffaloes teamed up for a four-man round of 322 for a three-week total of 985. The Owls, led by Keith Bitner's 78, shot 331 to match the 985 score. McCamey is in a distant third with a 1017.

Thon reports back to camp

KISSIMMEE, Fla. (AP) — Houston Astros shortstop Dickie Thon reported to the team's spring training camp Friday to avoid being placed on a restricted list, a club spokesman said.

Thon, who walked out of camp in Kissimmee last month because of an eye problem, was notified by letter Thursday from General Manager Dick Wagner to report back or be placed on the restricted list. That would mean he would not be counted towards the final 24-man roster, would be required to get in shape and wouldn't receive his salary.

Wagner said the team needed to resolve Thon's status before the Astros' regular season begins Monday.

Astros spokesman Chuck Pool said he was not sure whether the team would place Thon on the disabled list. A player on the disabled list receives his full salary and counts against a team's roster.

"We're now at a position where we have to get the roster down to 24 since we open Monday night," Pool said.

Thon has been in Los Angeles this week undergoing eye treatment from an optometrist. A March 20 eye examination showed no change in his vision from the previous year.

wood Country Club April 14, both are recognized as long, difficult courses.

Cooper has won the last seven district titles, but because of Lee's one-two punch of Gee and Bryan, even Cougar coach Prentice Martin gives Lee the nod as the favorite in the final two rounds.

"You have to have two strong golfers and Lee does, that's why I still call them the favorites," Martin said. "They let us off the hook when Larry didn't do what he's capable of. We've won at least seven district titles in a row, but I expect that tide to change."

MHS coach John Ford was disappointed that his Bulldogs didn't gain more ground on the most difficult course in district play, but he was more than pleased at Pettis' improved performance.

"He played on the No. 2 team today because he's played so terribly the last three weeks," Ford said. "But it looks like he might have it in that good form we've been expecting now. We had a golden opportunity to make up some ground today, but we let it get away from us."

Mike Johnson's 83 and Mark Smith's 84 were the next best Bulldog scores.

Man receives patent for pet safety belts

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Buckle up your beagle and strap in your Siamese cat, says a man who started making seat belts for pets after his Yorkshire terrier was killed in a car accident.

"This is not a pet rock kind of thing," according to Gary D. Murray. "It's not a yuppie thing. It's to save animals' lives. I had one lady who was complaining she didn't like the color. I said, 'Listen lady, it's not for you. It's for the dog.' "

Murray, 38, recently received a patent for his red "Pet Luv" harnesses and is planning to mass-market the devices, which attach to regular car seat belts and sell for $16.95.

The Reno, Nev., resident was in San Francisco recently to show his invention to the local chapter of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Chapter president Richard Avanzino said restraining devices such as the seat belts are a good idea, even for pets that enjoy traveling and usually are well-behaved.

"We hear of an untold number of incidents where dogs have jumped out of windows or out of the backs of pickup trucks, causing a serious traffic hazard," Avanzino said. "Not only can the pet be killed, but it can cause a lot of human suffering because of people having accidents trying to avoid them."

Mark McGuire, executive director of the Nevada Humane Society, said many accidents also are caused by pets that interfere with drivers and distract them from the road.

In 1982, Murray was driving a friend's car in Nevada when a tire blew and the car crashed into a tree. Murray, who only a short time before had himself started wearing a seat belt, suffered a cut on the head that required a few stitches. His dog, however, was thrown into the windshield.

Daylight Saving Time

That phrase bothers me, and it plays havoc with some people's internal clocks!

Daylight can be altered by turning of clocks, but saved? People are always telling us how to "save time." We are encouraged to purchase "time-saving devices," "time-saving machines," and "time-saving schedules."

But can you actually "save time?" Where do you store it? How do you file it? Or bank it?

You cannot save time but you certainly can waste it. The only thing we can do with time is MANAGE IT. And I'm convinced that in most cases the difference between success and failure, accomplishment and striking-out is found precisely at the point of time-management. The person who manages TIME has learned how to manage life. Because life is time and time is life. Get your time in focus and much of life focuses.

"The clock upbraids me with the waste of time," said Shakespeare. And La Bruyere added: "Those who make the worst use of time most complain of its shortness."

LIFESCOPE

Trouble Deciding Right From Wrong? Your Lifescope Says, "It's Easy As Telling Light From Dark!"

Woe to those who mock the Holy One of Israel and dare the Lord to punish them. They say that what is right is wrong and what is wrong is right; that black is white and white is black; bitter is sweet and sweet is bitter. Woe to those who are wise and shrewd in their own eyes!

Let love be without hypocrisy. Abhor what is evil. Cling to what is good. God tolerated man's past ignorance about these things, but now He commands everyone to put away idols and worship only Him. For there is no partiality with God.

Seek good and not evil, that you might live. Yes, hate evil, love good, and establish justice in your courts, and perhaps even yet the Lord God of Hosts will have mercy on you. He has shown you, O man, what is good; and what does the Lord require of you but to do justly, to love mercy, and to walk humbly with your God. Do not be overcome by evil, but overcome evil with good.

For we must all stand before Christ to be judged and have our lives laid bare - before Him. Each of us will receive whatever he deserves for the good or bad things he has done in his earthly body. To him who knows to do good and does not do it, to him it is sin.

God shows His anger from heaven against all sinful, evil men who push away the truth from them. For the truth about God is known to them instinctively; God has put this knowledge in their hearts. So they will have no excuse when they stand before God at Judgment Day.

The Good News is that God makes us right in His sight when we put our faith and trust in Christ to save us!

Taken from Isa. 5, Rom. 12, 2, 1, Acts 17, Am. 5, Mic. 6, II Cor. 5

Temple preacher 'brainwashes' message

RELIGION

By JOHN KELSO

TEMPLE (AP) — Howard L. Grant, the high-energy, holler-and-shout preacher of the Deliverance Temple Holiness Church of Jesus Christ, has a favorite message: People need a good brainwashing with God's word.

"I Am Accused of Brainwashing," is one of the favorite works of this pastor of a small downtown church of more than 100 members. Grant says he's a a good brainwasher who helps to save people.

"It's a different type of brainwashing," Grant says. "It's to get the people to the point where they'll humble themselves before God."

Grant, 35, says he never had any formal religious schooling, but he says he figures he has read the Bible six or seven times.

If it says so in the Bible, Grant believes it. And there's a chance he'll talk about it on his Sunday morning radio show "It's Time to Tell the Truth," on KMIL-AM in Cameron, a small town about 30 miles southeast of Temple. The program has been on the air for seven years, most of the time consisting of tapes of Grant's sermons to his church, an assemblage made up of poor people — the sort of people, Grant says, who have to "get up and get it." But from time to time Grant has switched to a live, talk show format in hopes of gathering a larger listening flock.

"You want the response from the media. You want the response from the people. If I'm to continue, I want to hear from them. I'll preach to nobody, but I have to feel like somebody's listenin' ".

Under his talk show format, people can phone in, Grant says, and ask him any question they want about the Bible.

They ask whether Eve really ate an apple in the Garden of Eden and if there really used to be giants on the earth.

Brother Howard Grant

"Well, it wasn't yesterday," Grant said of the giants. "But you may remember reading about one of the last giants that was slain by a little man named David. Goliath really was a big fella. He was about 9 feet tall. So there was actually giants on the Earth. There wasn't no giants that had feet 50 feet long. But the Bible said in the Book of Genesis that there were men on the Earth that were almost abominable."

Grant, a squarely built man who enjoys He was reared in a tiny black neighborhood in the Houston area, known as Lily White, he says, because it was surrounded by the predominantly white suburb of Spring Branch.

Grant says he felt a lot of pressure as a black youngster growing up in the 1960s, a time of school integration busing and racial unrest.

He says he was about 14 when he first encountered drugs. After high school, Grant says he continued using drugs — black Mollies, speed, white crosses, crank, all the various forms of amphetamines that were popular back in the 1960s and 1970s.

"I did it with both hands," Grant says. "I eventually got strung out on heroin. I started off snortin' coke, and I liked the coke, but I couldn't get coke. So I got strung out on heroin. But God delivered me, thank God."

In high school, Grant never thought of preaching aspired to be a stand-up comedian, because he liked to tell jokes at parties and make people laugh.

"I wanted to be an Eddie Murphy or a Redd Foxx," Grant says.

In 1973, Grant says, his cousin, Paul Grant, began talking to him about religion. Soon afterward, he quit drugs and began preaching.

He become pastor of his current church after a visit from a couple of church members in 1979. At the time, he was working at a carbon black company in Conroe.

Grant doesn't always stay inside the church when he wants to deliver his message. The church owns a 40-by 80-foot tent, and sometimes Grant and the Kingdom band hit the road and hold revivals. They have been to Warren, Taylor, Cameron, Killeen, Houston and several towns in Louisiana.

The revivals, he said, attract people who ordinarily might not come to church.

"They feel like, 'Well, I don't have the clothes to go out, I don't feel like I should go today,' " Grant says, "But we're out there playing loud in a tent, and they're just drawn. They're drawn to the edge of the tent. And then they end up coming in and sitting down in blue jeans, T-shirts. ...It's a much more relaxed atmosphere. And then they're able to hear the gospel."

Grant says some of his messages are plenty colorful.

One of his favorites was last Halloween — right in the street in front of the church. The message was about going to hell and the evils of Halloween witchcraft. For this event Grant and his flock put together a makeshift coffin painted red on the inside and black on the outside and set it under a flashing traffic signal that created the correct effect.

One church member, who Grant says was a pimp before he found God and joined his church, climbed inside the coffin and would pop out at appropriate moments during Grant's preaching and try to pull him inside the thing.

"He would come up out of that coffin, he'd grab and pull on me and wouldn't let me go. He almost got me in there one time."

Grant's church is fairly strict. Drinking and smoking are considered wrong, as is makeup on women. "We teach 'em to bring out their natural beauty," Grant said.

But there is optimism in Grant's messages. For instance, he says that there will be no nuclear holocaust, because, according to him, the Bible doesn't say anything about one coming.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

Holy Week lectures to begin

Kelsey

Morton Kelsey will present a series of Holy Week lectures beginning Maundy Thursday, April 16, at Holy Trinity Episcopal Church.

Kelsy's subjects for the Holy Week lectures will be "Meaning of the Eucharist," 7:30 p.m. on Maundy Thursday; "Passing Through Darkness," noon on Good Friday; and "The Implications of the Resurrection," 9:30 a.m. on Saturday. He will also speak at the 9 a.m. and 11:05 a.m. worship services on Easter Sunday.

Kelsey, born in Illinois and reared in Pennsyvania, he received, with honors, his bachelor of arts degree from Washington and Lee University in 1938. He went on to graduate study in philosophy at Princeton and then to the Episcopal Theological School, where he received his BD in 1943. He has done graduate work in psychology at the Claremont Graduate School in California and at the C.G. Jung Institute in Zurich, Switzerland.

From 1943 until 1969, Kelsey was an active priest of the Episcopal Church. In 1969 he was asked to come to Notre Dame as a Visiting Professor in the Department of Graduate Studies in Education. The following year he was made assistant professor. In 1975, he became an associate professor and later became a professor in the Department of Theology. In 1982 he became Professor Emeritus of the University of Notre Dame.

Among his published works are "Encounter With God," "Healing and Christianity," "Tongue Speaking: An Experiment in Spiritual Experience," "God, Dreams and Revelations," and "The Christian and the Supernatural," just to name a few.

Cookbook sold as fund-raiser

"Breaking Bread with St. Nicholas," a compilation of recipes from current church members and an update of the 1962 cookbook, was compiled by the Episcopal Church Women of St. Nicholas and is being sold as a fund-raiser.

"Breaking Bread" is published in a gray, three-ring binder notebook which opens easily and lays flat on the counter. Among its features is a flap on the inside cover for storing additional recipies. Pages can be added to the binder.

The recipes are categorized under appetizers, dips and beverages, soups, salads and sandwiches, vegetables and side dishes, meat poultry and fish, main dishes and casseroles, Southwestern cookery, breads and sweet breads, cakes and icings, pies and desserts, cookies and candy.

Each category is denoted by a different cross and a prayer.

The book costs $10 and may be purchased at the church office, 2900 Princeton Ave. For more information call the church, 694-8856.

Harvest will present concert

Harvest, a contemporary Christian music duo, will be in concert 7:30 p.m. Thursday at Midland Civic Center, 105 N. Main.

Jerry Williams, an Odessa native and 1972 graduate of Odessa High School, and Ed Kerr are Harvest. They have toured nationally performing songs from their last four albums, "Only the Overcomers," "Voices," "Send Us to the World," and "It's Alright Now."

Steven Davis, producer of the Moody Broadcasting Network of Chicago, stated in his "Reviewer's Best of 1985" published in "Moody Monthly" Best Worship and Call to Commitment Award is given to Harvest, who received the same award last year. The album is "Voices." Of all the people singing for the glory of God, Harvest ministers with more power, greater conviction, and a stronger sense of urgency than any other."

A $2 donation will be taken at the door the night of the concert. A love offering will also be taken. For further information, call Street Level, sponsor of the concert, at 1-362-8195.

Church offers video cassette

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints is offering the video cassette "Our Heavenly Father's Plan" to anyone who will call for it.

A spokesman of the church said the cassette is for anyone "who has ever asked the questions: Who am I? What am I doing here? What part does Jesus Christ play in my life?"

The cassette is 27 minutes long and is produced by the Church. It is free of charge and may be ordered by calling 800-826-8282.

Sunday night 'Youth Night'

Sunday night will be observed as "Youth Night" at Bellview Baptist Church. The youth preacher will be Phillip Vestal. Mark Jacobs will be the youth musician.

Vestal is the son of Daniel Vestal, pastor of First Baptist Church. Phillip surrendered to preach last summer. He is a junior at Lee High School.

Jacobs is a freshman at Lee Freshman School. He is a member of Bellview and is a soloist in the church's youth choir. He is involved in football and basketball at his school.

Bellview is located at 1710 N. Big Spring. The public is invited to the 6:40 p.m. service, according to G.A. Magee, pastor.

'Teens for Life' rally to begin

Phillips

Lynn

Youth evangelist B.J. Phillips will lead the "Teens for Life" youth rally April 15-17. The rally will be held at the Word of Life Church, 3838 W. Wall, at 7 p.m. each day. Terri Lynn will be the guest singer.

Phillips, of Church on the Rock in Rockwall, is the editor of Frontline Report, a monthly newspaper. He is also host of Devilbusters youth radio show out of Dallas. According to a spokesman for Word of Life, Phillips has ministered in churches, youth rallies, camps, retreats and school assemblies "with a wit and seriousness that motivates young people everywhere he goes."

Ms. Lynn is a former country-rock nightclub singer according to the church spokesman, who also said, "Her past experience enables her to relate the powerful meaning of becoming a new person in Jesus Christ."

In addition to teenagers, adults and children are invited to attend, according to the church spokesman. For more information, call the church at 687-0337.

Revival services scheduled

Revival services are scheduled at the Church of God of Prophcey, 5301 Thomason Drive, beginning Sunday and running each night through April 12. Services begin at 7 p.m. Julius Wittenburg will be the guest evangelist.

Wittenburg, who is from Istanbul, Turkey and is Jewish by birth, has been a Christian since his conversion in 1980. He has been a full-time evangelist for the past two years and currently serves as State Sunday School and CPMA Director for the Church of God of Prophecy in Missouri.

John Miller, pastor of the local church, says the public is invited to attend one or all of the revival meetings.

April 12 to be 'Friend Day'

Johnson

April 12 has been designated as "Friend Day" at Kelview Heights Baptist Church. It is in honor of the 26th anniversary of the Rev. Frank Johnson as the church's pastor.

Jerry Berry, associate pastor, says attendance is expected to be in excess of 3,000 people in the two morning services, held at 9:00 and 10:30.

"Friend Day is designed to show the people of Midland the love and concern that members of Kelview Heights have for their friends, their neighbors, and this community," said Berry.

The morning services will feature a number of the church's special singing groups, as well as the 100-voice choir.

There will be programs for children and a nursery is available.

Johnson says the public is invited to participate. The church is located on Scharbauer Drive, just off Big Spring.

Film addresses stress, anxiety

"Happiness is a Choice," a film dealing with stress, anxiety and depression, will be shown Sunday, 7 p.m., at the Living Way Foursquare Church, 415 Alta.

Featured in the film are Paul Meier and Frank Minirth, Christian psychiatrists; Joni Eareckson-Tada; Beverly LaHaye; and Don Baker, pastor and author.

Church sets Spring Film Festival

First Christian Church is holding a Spring Film Festival Sundays through April 12. Each program is scheduled to begin at 5:30 p.m.

The second program, set for Sunday, is "Inside I Trembled," a 40-minute film. It is a dramatization of what Matthew may have been thinking during the days before and after Jesus' crucifixion.

A film about the Shroud of Turin, "The Silent Witness," will be viewed April 12.

Supper will be available at a cost of $3 for adults and $1 for children under 12. A nursery will also be provided. The church is located at 1301 W. Lousiana.

Christian Friends of Israel representatives visit church

Jim and Julie Chandler, representatives of Christian Friends of Israel, will speak Thursday, 7 p.m., at Christian Life Center, 2901 W. Kansas. Retired schoolteachers from Florida, the Chandlers spend part of each year touring and speaking in the United States and several months living in Israel.

They first went to Israel in 1961 when Mrs. Chandler received a grant to study at Hebrew Union College taking courses which helped her write the curriculum for a public school class called "The Bible as Literature." Her husband studied archaeology, biblical history and literature. They say they believe their "call" to Israel came at that time, however, it was eleven years before the call was finalized. In 1980, they took an early retirement from their teaching jobs in Florida, sold their home, and moved to Jerusalem.

For the past five years, they have been part of the Intercessors for Israel in Jerusalem led by Lance Lamber. Chandler is an ordained pastor in the West Jerusalem Baptist Congregation.

According to Judy Stone, a spokesman for Christian Life Center, the public is invited to attend the service. There is no admission charge. A free-will offering will be taken.

Mother wants to take action against teacher

PORT ARTHUR (AP) — The mother of an 18-year-old who says he wants to marry his 40-year-old former teacher contends their relationship violates teacher ethics.

"I believe my son is a victim," says Sherry Pate. "I want to take whatever legal action I can."

Mrs. Pate's son, Todd Colletti, and his former teacher, Marty Sims, became engaged on Christmas Eve. They have been living together since shortly after Jan. 23, when Ms. Sims resigned from her Port Arthur teaching job.

The pair say they just fell in love.

"People cast me as a child molester and him as someone who doesn't know his own mind," said Ms. Sims, a divorcee and grandmother, with three children of her own.

"It's beyond my comprehension how we can be persecuted for loving," Ms. Sims said.

Ms. Sims worked five years for the district, teaching data processing after gaining her teaching credentials in 1984.

Colletti and Ms. Sims say their romance became "physical" in December before they announced their engagement.

Mrs. Pate claims Ms. Sims violated a teacher code of ethics which bars teachers from becoming involved romantically with students, noting the pair announced the engagement a month before Ms. Sims resigned from her teaching job.

State education officials say Mrs. Pate has been told she may file a complaint with the state education commissioner.

"There would be a full investigation," said Texas Education Agency spokeswoman Terry Anderson.

Mrs. Pate also has requested an investigation into whether child abuse may have been involved. But Jefferson County District Attorney Joe Loidold refused further comment.

Ms. Sims and Colletti maintain their relationship did not become physical until after Colletti turned 18.

Ms. Sims resigned from her teaching job when school officials started questioning her about out-of-town trips she took as a school adviser to Colletti. One of the trips was to a conference in Boston that was cancelled, but the pair stayed three days and filed a $1,200 expense statement.

Legislators tour El Paso, Juarez

EL PASO (AP) — State legislators and their guests are touring this border city and Ciudad Juarez, Mexico in a three-day event sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and House Speaker Gib Lewis are in the group, which is here to learn about some of the issues that affect border residents, said Don Henderson, chamber president.

Up to 70 percent of the legislators never have been to El Paso, Henderson said.

"It became apparent to us that we should take a higher profile and get involved," he said, explaining how the program, called El Paso State Capital Days, was started two years ago.

The group, which arrived in El Paso late Thursday night, was scheduled Friday to visit the Texas Tech Health Science Center, the University of Texas-El Paso and El Paso Community College. They also plan to visit Juarez industrial parks and the racetrack there.

The $65,000 it cost to bring some 50 legislators and their guests here was paid by more than 50 contributors and sponsors of the El Paso Chamber of Commerce.

Today, the group plans to tour the missions and the Tigua Indian Reservation. They are scheduled to leave Sunday.

United Crane and Rigging Co. workers lift a 39-foot, 12-ton sailboat from the backyard of Steve and Cherie Yelton. The Yeltons bought the boat partially assembled and had it shipped about three years ago from Canada to their backyard in Houston for final finishing. When the boat's outfitting is complete, the couple plans to take a world cruise.

Dr. Seuss says he's proud he kicked Dick, Jane out of school

DALLAS (AP) — With more than 45 books, three Academy Awards and a Pulitzer prize to his credit, the man known to millions of kids as Dr. Seuss said Friday his greatest pride is getting Dick and Jane kicked out of most school libraries.

Those once-standard primers, which Theodor Suess Geisel said insult children's intelligence, have been edged out by books featuring Seussian characters such as Horton, the Grinch, the Lorax and the Cat in the Hat.

Geisel, 83, was in Dallas to appear at the opening of a retrospective exhibit of about 300 drawings, illustrations, political cartoons, books and other material spanning his 60-year career.

The exhibit was developed by the San Diego Museum of Art from Geisel's private collection, the University Research Library of UCLA and the Lyndon B. Johnson Library.

Geisel, nattily dressed in a suit and striped bow tie, joked to reporters that his ability to communicate with children stems from his own "limited mentality."

And he says he first began drawing his strange-looking beasts because he couldn't draw people.

His unorthodox stories set in fanciful lands such as Katroo and the Prairie of Prax begin a series of doodles: "You have two creatures, then they start fighting, then you write down what they say."

Sometimes words spark his imagination, but then again his drawings may be the starting point.

"The picture is there," he said, describing his technique. "You just have to draw around it."

Geisel's first book, "And to Think that I Saw It on Mulberry Street," was published in 1937 and his latest, "You're Only Old Once," came out last March.

Of the hundreds of characters he has created, Geisel says the fuzzy-headed Lorax is his favorite, but the means-spirited Grinch rates a close second.

"I think I like the Grinch because he's evil," Geisel says.

But spinning his brand of yarn is not always easy. Geisel said he had struggled for three months to find a fitting ending for "How the Grinch Stole Christmas," the story of a greedy Grinch who spirited away a town's Christmas gifts.

Finally, Geisel settled upon the closing line for a happy ending: "And the Grinch himself carved the roast beast."

Geisel said it is his favorite line in all his books because "it ended the murderous experience of writing that book."

The Dallas exhibit includes preparatory sketches and finished illustrations from his books as well as print advertisements done in the 1930s and '40s for companies such as Holly Sugar, Ford Motor Co. and Standard Oil Co.

Geisel also made films during a stint in the Army. He worked under Frank Capra in the Army's documentary film unit.

Geisel's 1946 work, "Your Job in Germany," was later released by Warner Brothers under the title "Hitler Lives" and won an Academy Award. His documentary "Designed for Death" also won an Oscar, as did his 1951 animated cartoon, "Gerald McBoing-Boing."

Geisel still spends his days at his LaJolla, Calif., home writing books and painting.

Clements' staff member meets with prison officials

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — A member of Gov. Bill Clements' staff met with prison officials Friday to discuss ways to relieve crowded conditions within the 26-unit prison system.

"In short, they talked and they are making progress in resolving the crisis," said Rossanna Salazar, Clements' deputy press secretary. "But at this point, no action is being taken by the governor today in activating the Prison Management Act."

Meeting with Rider Scott, the governor's general counsel, during the 90-minute session were John Byrd, executive director of the Board of Pardons and Parole; Andy Collins, assistant director of the Texas Department of Corrections, and other officials.

The prisons were closed earlier this week for the 10th time this year after the inmate population surpassed a state-mandated 95 percent capacity.

Under the Prison Management Act, the governor can declare an emergency status, forcing the early release of inmates from prison to supervised halfway houses throughout the state. The inmates are granted up to 90 days of "good time."

During two previous weekends, Clements has authorized the release of hundreds of inmates.

But Scott said the governor would rather see the prison population reduced through paroles instead of "gratuitously" awarding good time credit.

He said the governor's office was getting a daily prison population count.

"We're watching it very closely because of the (population) increase this week," Scott said. "We're seeing whether or not the normal parole process will take care of the excess capacity."

Houston may be site for show featuring GOP candidates

HOUSTON (AP) — The city which recently lost out on a bid to host the 1988 Democratic National Convention is in the running for the first live, televised appearance of Republican presidental candidates, officials say.

The July 1 appearance would be on "Firing Line," hosted by conservative political commentator William F. Buckley, said Warren Steibel, the show's producer.

Buckley will feature the major Democratic contenders on a show in September. Houston also is among cities being considered as a site for that show as well, officials said.

Steibel will view possible Houston locations, including the new Wortham Center, next week. "I think the Republican one will be in Houston," he said.

The special two-hour show may be viewed by an estimated 7 million to 10 million households. The format of the show has not been set.

The candidates who will participate, Steibel said, are Vice President George Bush, U.S. Sen Robert Dole of Kansas, U.S. Rep. Jack Kemp of New York, evangelist Pat Robertson of Virginia, former Secretary of State Alexander Haig of Washington and Pete DePont, former governor of Delaware.

The possibility of broadcasting the program from Houston drew support from City Councilman Rodney Ellis, who sent a memo to Mayor Kathy Whitmire, asking that her office pursue hosting the televised appearance. He also asked Mrs. Whitmire to meet with Steibel when he visited Houston.

"I am convinced that your office could boost Houston's chances of landing one or both debates if we move quickly," the memo said.

Scientists speculate Nessie has relative

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Does Nessie, the monster of Scotland's Loch Ness, have a great-aunt Greta who lives in a huge mountain lake in northern Sweden? Scientists said Friday they will make a search to find out.

Reports of a monster in Lake Storsjon go back 350 years, three centuries before someone first claimed to see Nessie in December 1933.

Sten Rentzhog said the large number of sightings means "there must be something" in the lake 300 north of Stockholm, where spring comes so late that cars are still driving the 18 miles across Storsjon's ice-covered surface.

Rentzhog runs the county museum in nearby Ostersund and is director of the newly formed Society for Investigating the Great Lake.

He said in a telephone interview that his museum staff had collected the reports of 400 people who claim to have seen the monster between 1635 and last week.

Lars Thofeldt, a member of the 12-man scientific team, said no clear picture of the monster emerges from the accounts. He is a botanist and teaches at the college in Ostersund.

"Some people said they saw a large neck undulating back and forth that looked like a horse's mane," Thofeldt told The Associated Press by telephone. "Others observed a large wormlike creature."

Rentzhog said: "Scientifically, you can't say it exists until it is proved, but there is at least as much evidence as there is about the Loch Ness monster."

Reports of the creature's size also differ. One of the earliest reports described it as large enough to wrap its body around one of Storsjon's many islands, but later ones give a variety of lengths ranging from 10 feet to 42.

The Loch Ness monster is described as 40 to 50 feet long.

One of many theories is that the reported monster was trapped in the Swedish lake 15,000 years ago, during the Ice Age. Thofeldt said it could be a water reptile or akin to a large snail.

Human settlement in the Storsjon Basin has been traced to the Iron Age around 400 B.C., making it the oldest inhabited area in Scandinavia, Rentzhog said.

Although the Great Lake society will search for evidence of the monster, Thofeldt said, its "real aim is to investigate the area and to create an interest for bringing qualified enterprises here."

Swedish news reports said submarines would probe the lake.

Miners' wives, children move into men-only hostel to protest

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — About 250 wives and children of black coal miners have moved into men-only hostels in a union-sponsored effort to break a century-old system of separating migrant laborers from their families, officials said Friday.

"They have come to stay," said Cyril Ramaphosa, general secretary of the National Union of Mineworkers. "There could be conflict if they tried to evict those people."

Ramaphosa said 250 women and children had been in hostels near Anglo American Corp. mines since last weekend. He told reporters the protest, which defies mine rules and South African law, would be extended to gold and diamond mines.

The migrant system began soon after gold was discovered in Johannesburg a century ago. Black miners from rural South Africa and neighboring countries were offered single-sex housing under contracts that prevented them from seeing their families more than a few times a year.

Union officials said that in coal mine hostels, one room usually houses four or five men. They said miners without families agreed to move out and sleep elsewhere, so that each miner involved in the protest could have a hostel room for his family.

"The movement has proceeded peacefully," Ramaphosa said. "Mine management has been confused as to how to respond."

The Anglo mines involved are New Largo, Landau, Bank, Kriel, Arnot, Goedehoop and South African Coal Estates, union spokesman Marcel Golding said.

Anglo spokesman James Duncan responded in a statement, "We are not prepared to comment on what we are going to do. Some women moved into hostel accomodation at some collieries but in our view the figure given by the (union) is high."

The company had said Wednesday that discussions about the hostels were taking place between employee representatives and mine management.

The mining industry, which provides more than half of South Africa's export income, employs 600,000 blacks, of whom the mineworkers' union claims to represent 360,000. About 40 percent of the men come from Lesotho, Mozambique, Botswana, Malawi and Swaziland, where jobs are scarce.

The migrant system is supported by laws barring foreign miners' dependents from entering South Africa. Scrapping the laws could allow hundreds of thousands of women and children to move near the mines, some of which are located in areas that have been off-limits for blacks.

Over the decades, critics have attacked the migrant system as a manifestation of apartheid and blamed the system for prostitution, homosexuality and tribal fighting among the men.

By law and custom, apartheid establishes a racially segregated society in which the 24-million black majority has no vote in national affairs. The 5-million white minority controls the economy and maintains separate districts, schools and health services.

Peter Gush, chairman of Anglo's gold and uranium division, said last month the company was "increasingly concerned" about the migrant labor system.

Gush said in a statement that Anglo was improving its hostels and giving miners a greater say in their management, with "our ultimate objective being to give our employees the opportunity of owning their own homes and of living with their families in a normal society."

Recent annual reports of Anglo's Vaal Reefs, Elandsrand and Western Deep Levels gold mines said construction has started on family housing units to be sold to black miners at subsidized prices.

Ramaphosa said the union rejected the house-purchase plan as too costly for blacks. He said the mine companies should provide housing for blacks as they have for white miners — at very low subsidized rents.

The Weekly Mail, a newspaper that opposes the government, quoted miner Judas Ngwenya, from the KaNgwane black homeland, as saying he brought his wife, Fikile Mahlaba, into his hostel so he could "live with her like any other human being is allowed to do."

"Since my wife moved in, I have never been late for work," he said.

Libya bombs Soviet-made weapons left in Chad

N'DJAMENA, Chad (AP) — Libyan jets hit Ouadi Doum in blanket bombing that destroyed or damaged about half the Soviet-made aircraft left behind when Chad's troops routed Libyan forces two weeks ago, a senior French officer said Friday.

The high-altitude raids continued all day Friday.

The officer, who spoke to reporters on condition of anonymity, said the bombing of Ouadi Doum was the reason for French Defense Minister Andre Giraud's warning to the Libyans Friday.

Giraud said in Paris that French military forces may have to intervene north of the 16th parallel, implying they might attack the Libyan bombers.

The French have 2,500 troops and a squadron of Jaguar fighter bombers south of the 16th parallel, which for years served as the unspoken truce line between Chadian and Libyan forces in this former French colony.

N'Djamena, the capital, is 620 miles from Ouadi Doum, meaning the Jaguars would require airborne refueling.

The French officer said much of the estimated $500 million worth of Soviet-made weaponry abandoned at Ouadi Doum is brand new, highly sophisticated and never fell into Western hands before. That explains Libya's persistence in bombing it, he said.

Aircraft found intact there included three Mikoyan-24 armored attack helicopters, three Italian-made Marchetti light planes, nine Czechoslovak-made L-39 ground support planes, two Sukoi fighter-bombers and an Antonov-26 transport plane. The Mikoyans, Sukois and Antonov are Soviet-made.

The Frenchman said at least half the aircraft were destroyed or damaged in daily air attacks. He did not say how long the air strikes had been going on. The Chadians overran the huge Libyan base in northern Chad on March 22.

The Libyans also left behind intact ultramodern versions of SA-6 surface to air missile batteries, never in Western hands before, he said.

An improved, laser-guided version of earlier SA-6 missiles, the batteries each comprise 12 tractor-borne surface-to-air missiles with a range of nearly 20,000 feet. They are deployed in groups of four tracked vehicles carrying three missiles each, and connected by cable to a tracked command vehicle bearing the radar and laser guidance systems for the 12 missiles.

AP Laserphoto Map

At least three groups of SA-6s were captured in Ouadi Doum.

The officer did not know if any of these batteries were damaged.

He said the Libyan jets were bombing Ouadi Doum daily from at least 20,000 feet up, generally attacking in two phases each lasting 90 minutes.

"The Russians must have put a lot of pressure on the Libyans to wipe out all this equipment before we got hold of it," he said.

Ouadi Doum, about 150 miles south of the Libyan border, was the Libyans' most important military base during their five-year occupation of northern Chad. It was carved out of open desert in years of costly effort and included a major airfield.

In their headlong flight from the base, the Libyans left behind T-55 and T-72 tanks, heavy rocket launcher systems, trucks and armored personnel carriers, aircraft, and other weapons, military sources said.

French intelligence officers flew to Ouadi Doum this week to inspect the equipment. Some of it was expected to be flown to the United States for study by Pentagon experts. The U.S. Embassy declined to comment.

Chadian officers, demanding anonymity, said the Libyan raiders were Tupolev bombers based in Khoufra oasis.

Ouadi Doum's 13,000-foot runway was undamaged in the Chadian blitz that sent the 2,500-man Libyan garrison fleeing into the desert in panic.

The Libyans "were so terrified they fled across their own minefields," a Chadian officer said. Chadian officers said many of the 3,500 Libyans known to have been killed during the three-month Chadian push died from their own mines.

The government scheduled a big victory parade in N'Djamena Saturday, including Tibesti nomad guerrillas loyal to former rebel leader Goukouni Oueddei. Goukouni's break with Libya's Col. Moammar Gadhafi last October, along with the guerrillas' switch of alliances, contributed to the Libyan defeats.

Giraud said the Chadian victories "restored Chad's sovereignty" over the northern desert held by the Libyans since 1983.

He said France up to now turned down President Hissene Habre's repeated request for deployment of French combat troops north of the 16th parallel, to avoid being accused of mounting a military threat against Libyan territory.

"But the situation is changing from hour to hour, and the intense bombing by the Libyan air force could result in a French intervention" north of the 16th parallel, he said.

Diplomatic sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the Soviet Union had delivered a "discreet warning" to France against direct military action against Libyan territory.

Ground fighting has slackened since Chad's capture of Gouar and Ounianga Kebir outposts in the Tibesti foothills this week, Chadian military sources said.

She's only 14 and her parents wonder where she's headed

For 14-year-old Tracey, the transition from childhood to early adolescence is not the same as it is for others. She is bored and depressed and displays frequent outbursts of anger. Behaviors that once were excused as discipline problems now no longer are acceptable to parents, teachers and others. To her family, home life has become strained and filled with frustration. They don't know where to turn for help.

Chronic sadness, inability to communicate with others or repeated school failure may indicate a serious emotional problem. For many adolescents and parents, Glenwood can replace confusion and frustration with insight and understanding. We want to help people learn to cope with life and its problems. Marie Osmond dedicates replica log cabin at Mormon cemetery

Osmond

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Marie Osmond helped dedicate a replica log cabin at a Mormon cemetery, saying she felt she represented a part of the heritage of Mormons who settled there.

Miss Osmond, a member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, on Thursday cut the ribbon to the cabin, a replica of the more than 1,000 Mormon cabins that lined the Missouri River from 1846 to 1848, including those that made up the Winter Quarters here.

"I remember visiting the Winter Quarters with my family when I was about 15," said Miss Osmond, in Omaha for a series of performances. "It makes you think about the people, their hardships, frustrations and sacrifices to seek a place to worship the Heavenly Father in peace and freedom."

Miss Osmond said her ancestors did not come through the Omaha Winter Quarters area.

"They went up and through Wyoming and Idaho, but I know many people whose ancestors did come through here," she said. "I'm here because I think I represent a part of the heritage of the Mormons who settled here."

GENEVA (AP) — Prices soared at a spectacular pace in a sentimental finale to the late Duchess of Windsor's jewelry auction Friday. The two-day "sale of the century" raised $50 million that will benefit cancer and AIDS research.

Sotheby's announced the grand total of the two-day auction was $50,281,887, including the 10-percent buyer's premium.

John L. Marion, president of Sotheby's North America, said the result reflected a "unique outpouring of nostalgia" for the romance between King Edward VIII, who abdicated his throne in 1936 to marry the twice-divorced American commoner, Wallis Walford Simpson.

The highest price of the Friday session, $1.3 million, was fetched by a 1913 Royal Navy officer's sword given to Edward when he was Prince of Wales by his father, King George V. It was more than hundred times the catalogue estimate. It went to a British buyer who remained anonymous, like most other buyers of important lots.

A record $30 million was bid for 95 items, including the multimillion dollar gems, on Thursday, and 211 were offered for sale on Friday.

A four-piece lot, including a plain platinum wedding band given the duchess by her royal husband, went up to $120,000 in a dizzying 40 seconds, almost 200 times the estimated price.

A gold pocket watch, an Easter gift in 1939 and cryptically inscribed in the duke's handwriting "No excuse for going in the wrong direction," fetched $466,200.

DETROIT (AP) — Big band leader Woody Herman was in stable and improving condition Friday after being hospitalized for undisclosed reasons.

Herman, 73, was admitted March 26 to Sinai Hospital, said hospital spokeswoman Suzanne Timma, who would not say why.

Herman, a resident of Los Angeles, has led big bands since 1936. He gained popularity in 1939 after he recorded "Woodchoppers Ball." Herman sings and plays clarinet and saxophone with his band, the Thundering Herd.

His "Let's Dance" was nominated for a Grammy Award this year in the jazz instrumental performance category.

GABORONE, Botswana (AP) — Britain's Prince Charles did not return home at the end of his official southern African tour as previously announced, but flew to Botswana for a private vacation.

Prince Charles

Buckingham Palace confirmed Friday that the Prince of Wales was on a private visit to Botswana with his friend, Sir Laurens van der Post, a South African author. The palace said he would arrive in London on April 8.

His official trip included visits to Swaziland, Malawi and Kenya checking on Commonwealth Development Corp. projects.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — He's Haggard. He's turning 50. And he'd like to meet Bigfoot.

Haggard

Country music czar Merle Haggard will celebrate half a century on Monday, and he said he planned to keep on chugging. "I feel great," he said as he prepared to perform Friday night with Alabama and The Judds in Inglewood.

"Forty was the bad one. It tore me up," Haggard said.

Known for his hard living and barroom music, Haggard added: "I'm having more fun than ever. I want to live to be around as long as George Burns. I'm happy to be around and I want to show my enthusiasm through good music."

Haggard, who has been performing hits like "Okie From Muskogee," "Mama Tried" and "I Think I'll Just Stay Here and Drink" for three decades, recently moved from Bakersfield to a small northern California town he'll identify only as "Bigfoot Country."

"Yeah, I'd like to meet that old fellow, Bigfoot," he said, referring to the legendary beast that stalks the mountains. "I have an idea he might be a pretty good guitar picker."

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor Edward I. Koch, whose Sunday morning TV show drove "Danger Mouse" off the tube but has attracted only half as many viewers as the cartoon show, said losing the ratings war to "a rat" is hard to take.

"To lose ratings to Danger Mouse?...To a rat? Oh, sorry, to a mouse? It's tough stuff!" Koch said.

"Koch on Call" on WNYW-TV replaced Danger Mouse, an animated superhero, three weeks ago for a four-week trial.

According to the Nielsen ratings, 95,000 households of 6.7 million in the metropolitan area watched Koch's first 9:30 a.m. program. The audience dropped quickly to 34,000 the second week and 41,000 the third.

Danger Mouse had averaged twice the ratings in the preceding four weeks.

On the show, Koch interviews one of his commissioners about his or her background and interests, then the mayor and commissioner take questions called in by viewers.

Koch was asked Friday it the ratings were low because the commissioners — police, welfare and health — were boring.

"No," he said. But he suggested the viewers "found Danger Mouse more interesting."

A newspaper advertisement is asking readers to send in a "Danger Mouse Rescue Coupon" urging that the British-made mouse be brought back to TV.

SUNDAY, APRIL 5, 1987

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: The year ahead will bring greater harmony to a special relationship; do more to cultivate the friendship side of love. Getting down to brass tacks at work will help you move closer to your career goals. Your charm can work wonders for you in the marketplace!

CELEBRITY BIRTHDATES: The great actress Bette Davis, gossip columnist Maxine Cheshire, tennis' Stacy Margolan, actor Gregory Peck, "Hotel" author Arthur Hailey, actor Michael Moriarty, civil rights leader-educator Booker T. Washington, TV host-actor Robert Q. Lewis, actor Spencer Tracy, country music's Roy Clark.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Recent mental and spiritual explorations have opened your eyes to a whole new world. If married, you rejoice in sharing these revelations with your spouse. Your partner has good hunches; follow them.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You may want to spend today at home catching up on household chores or relaxing. The choice is yours. Convince a loved one to try one of your favorite hobbies. Correct bad habits.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A good day for discussions. Ask mate or family members about ways you can cut expenses. Learn to delegate more responsibilities. Phone or write an older relative who has been on your mind.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Socializing with neighbors could prove especially rewarding today. Your humanitarianism attracts many interesting people to your side. Romantic partner is impressed by your vitality. Plan a special outing or dinner for two.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Be wary of free advice. Handle personal matters early in the day. It may be time to change your priorities. Reading will expand your horizons. Be willing to try new methods.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Hold on tight to both your emotions and your money today. Quick decisions and hasty words could lead to regrets later on. Group activities are favored over one-on-one encounters this evening. Mingle.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Expect the unexpected in the way of communications today. A flash of insight will help you solve a problem. The pieces of a puzzle suddenly fall into place. Romance looks very promising.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Always trying to play it safe can make life dull. Welcome a challenge as a chance to get out of your rut. Discussing your plans with mate will prevent any misunderstandings.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Unexpected developments add a touch of glamour to the day. A chance remark by a new acquaintance could change your outlook. Modern conveniences reduce household drudgery. Think about investing in new technology.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A last-minute invitation holds special appeal. Reconnect with close friends who live some distance away. Someone makes a real estate decision after a family pow-wow. Speak up if you have certain reservations.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A burst of energy helps you accomplish a lot today. You find that physical activity relieves nervous tension. Get in touch with old friends. Write or call someone who has been in your thoughts.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You could happen on a great new way to make money. Jot down your original ideas but keep them to yourself. The telephone seems to ring off the wall, bringing you interesting invitations!

Marie Osmond dedicates replica log cabin at Mormon cemetery

Osmond

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Marie Osmond helped dedicate a replica log cabin at a Mormon cemetery, saying she felt she represented a part of the heritage of Mormons who settled there.

Miss Osmond, a member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, on Thursday cut the ribbon to the cabin, a replica of the more than 1,000 Mormon cabins that lined the Missouri River from 1846 to 1848, including those that made up the Winter Quarters here.

"I remember visiting the Winter Quarters with my family when I was about 15," said Miss Osmond, in Omaha for a series of performances. "It makes you think about the people, their hardships, frustrations and sacrifices to seek a place to worship the Heavenly Father in peace and freedom."

Miss Osmond said her ancestors did not come through the Omaha Winter Quarters area.

"They went up and through Wyoming and Idaho, but I know many people whose ancestors did come through here," she said. "I'm here because I think I represent a part of the heritage of the Mormons who settled here."

GENEVA (AP) — Prices soared at a spectacular pace in a sentimental finale to the late Duchess of Windsor's jewelry auction Friday. The two-day "sale of the century" raised $50 million that will benefit cancer and AIDS research.

Sotheby's announced the grand total of the two-day auction was $50,281,887, including the 10-percent buyer's premium.

John L. Marion, president of Sotheby's North America, said the result reflected a "unique outpouring of nostalgia" for the romance between King Edward VIII, who abdicated his throne in 1936 to marry the twice-divorced American commoner, Wallis Walford Simpson.

The highest price of the Friday session, $1.3 million, was fetched by a 1913 Royal Navy officer's sword given to Edward when he was Prince of Wales by his father, King George V. It was more than hundred times the catalogue estimate. It went to a British buyer who remained anonymous, like most other buyers of important lots.

A record $30 million was bid for 95 items, including the multimillion dollar gems, on Thursday, and 211 were offered for sale on Friday.

A four-piece lot, including a plain platinum wedding band given the duchess by her royal husband, went up to $120,000 in a dizzying 40 seconds, almost 200 times the estimated price.

A gold pocket watch, an Easter gift in 1939 and cryptically inscribed in the duke's handwriting "No excuse for going in the wrong direction," fetched $466,200.

PHILADELPHIA TODAY

The Pennsylvania Gazette today posted the militia drill days for Philadelphia and Montgomery counties. This month both units were to assemble on the last two Mondays, the 23rd and 30th.

Bids were now being accepted at the Post Office on a proposed weekly mail route between Philadelphia and Bedford, Pa. This route would link up with the one recently established between Alexandria, Va., and Fort Pitt, Pa.

John Betts of Buckingham in Bucks County advertised for a runaway apprentice. The lad, Moses Young, 19, was wearing a white felt hat, brown linsey coat, dark brown vest, leather breeches, blue woolen stockings and good shoes with steel buckles when he disappeared. Betts offered a $2 reward for his return.

CONFEDERATION TODAY

In Congress today, William Pierce of Georgia finally succeeded in having his motion passed ordering the secretary of foreign affairs to give Congress a full account of negotiations with Spain.

The Committee on the Military Establishment recommended that the Act of Congress of October 1786, adding 2,040 troops, be repealed and that the secretary of war be directed to reduce the present Army to one regiment of infantry of three battalions with 720 men, and one battalion of artillery with 240 men, and one troop of cavalry of 60 dragoons.

Congressman James Varnum wrote his governor, John Collins of Rhode Island:

"The General Assembly have suffered in the opinion of many for refusing the appointment of delegates to meet in convention in Philadelphia. Perhaps they will reconsider that matter in May when an appointment will be in time."

Gov. Edmund Randolph reported to the Virginia members of Congress the latest word on Washington as a delegate to the convention.

"Genl. Washington is prevailed upon to agree to go to Phila. if his health will permit. He is at present afflicted with the rheumatism, so as to be unable to move himself in his bed sometimes, and often to raise his hand to his head. He purposes to travel earlier than for the meeting, that he may apologize to the Cincinnati for his refusal of their presidency."

DELEGATES TODAY

Edward Moyston, proprietor of Philadelphia's fashionable City Tavern, wrote George Washington:

"As the Convention of the States is expected to meet in this City in the Next Month, I make bold to request your influence with such Gentlemen of your acquaintance as may want Accommodations. I have fitted up Chambers in the most convenient manner, and am certain that they will find it more agreeable than any private Lodging House in Town, as they will always have more Attendants, should their own be out of the way, than are commonly to be found in private Houses, and as I have altered the House they may be as private as in any other."

LOOKING BACK

Arms Control, 1787 Style

When Gen. George Washington tendered his resignation to Congress in December 1783, the Continental Army ceased to exist.

Almost immediately, increasing pressure to open western lands for settlement and organization forced Congress to examine the lack of any military. Troops were needed not only to defend the newly recognized frontier but also to ensure peaceful settlement. Several states offered regiments if Congress would reimburse their back pay. Instead, Congress recommended that Connecticut, New York, New Jesey, and Pennsylvania contribute a 700-man militia to form a national army.

The size of that Army increased gradually over the years. In October 1786, Congress passed an act calling for 2,040 troops. Today's report from the Committee on the Military Establishment proposed to reduce that number by half. So on the eve of the Constitutional Convention, the committee had called for an exceptionally modest army of 1,020 troops.

This tenuous, uneven "establishment" provoked vigorous reaction by the Convention. The preamble of the new Constitution called for ensuring domestic tranquility and providing for the common defense. More specifically Article 1, Section 8, Clauses 12 and 13 called for raising and supporting armies amd providing and maintaining a navy. The president was given control of the the "Army and Navy of the United States" by Article 2, Section 2, Clause 1 which designated him commander in chief.

The size of the Army and Navy has fluctuated wildly over the years since, but never has the military establishment reached the low strength of 1783-1787.

Webster nomination hearing to begin

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Intelligence Committee said Friday that hearings on FBI Director William Webster's nomination to head the CIA will begin next Wednesday, opening the way for public questioning on what role the FBI might have played in the Iran-Contra affair.

One source, commenting on condition of anonymity, said preliminary work by the committee has turned up no evidence that could place Webster's nomination in jeopardy.

However, Webster is expected to face close questioning about what the FBI did — or didn't do — in connection with the secret sale of arms to Iran and possible diversion of some profits to Nicaraguan rebels.

Webster, 63, has won wide respect during his nine-year tenure as director of the FBI, and was praised by congressional Democrats and Republicans alike when President Reagan announced his nomination last month to replace ailing CIA Director William Casey.

However, the Intelligence Committee, which has conducted its own inquiry into the Iran-Contra matter, is sure to have pointed questions on investigations the FBI suspended or delayed in connection with the affair.

Early next week, the committee is likely to make public portions of testimony taken last year from Attorney General Edwin Meese III during its closed Iran-Contra hearings.

Meese asked Webster last Oct. 30 to suspend an FBI investigation into Southern Air Transport, a Miami-based air freight company that was linked to resupply efforts for the Contra rebels and that also was employed by the CIA to handle arms shipments to Iran.

The attorney general's request, which Webster granted, is among subjects of interest to the committee, along with the FBI's role in subsequent investigations of the arms sale and fund-diversion scheme.

The FBI began investigating Southern Air last October after a plane carrying weapons was shot down over Nicaragua and American freight handler Eugene Hasenfus was captured. The plane carried documents linking the crew to Southern Air.

Meese later in October asked that Webster suspend the agency's investigation, apparently out of administration fears of any disclosure that could jeopardize arms shipments to Iran, which officials hoped would lead to the release of U.S. hostages held in Lebanon. Webster put the investigation on hold for nearly three weeks.

In addition to releasing a declassified transcript of Meese's testimony on that matter, the Intelligence Committee also may release a portion dealing with the weekend of Nov. 22, when Meese discovered the possible diversion of funds to the Contras.

Webster reportedly agreed with Meese at that time not to bring the FBI into the investigation immediately, and the attorney general conducted his weekend probe informally and without experienced criminal attorneys present.

Investigators believe documents at the National Security Council were destroyed or altered at about that time, and they are looking into whether Meese's actions may have damaged the government's ability to discern the truth.

Webster was chosen to succeed Casey, who retired from the CIA post after being stricken with a brain tumor, after Reagan's earlier nominee, Casey deputy Robert Gates, withdrew from consideration. Gates had come under fire because of the agency's role in the Iran-Contra affair.

In a related development, the Intelligence Committee said Friday it will try to develop a capability to independently audit the CIA's covert activities to ensure that the panel does not have to depend solely on the CIA for information.

The current situation, under which congressional oversight panels must rely on whatever the CIA decides to give them, "at best leaves doubts in the minds of many as to the capacity of the committee to perform its oversight function fully and independently," chairman David Boren, D-Okla., and vice chairman William Cohen, R-Maine, said in a joint statement.

Meanwhile, Rep. Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo., said Webster shouldn't be confirmed as CIA director until Congress knows if he was aware of alleged surveillance of her and other persons opposed to Reagan administration Central American policies.

Ms. Schroeder, in a letter to Boren, referred to the activities of Frank Varelli, who has contended he worked for the FBI from 1981 to 1984 in a variety of informant and surveillance positions.

Surrogate mother denied right to visit baby

HACKENSACK, N.J. (AP) — Surrogate-mother Mary Beth Whitehead will not be allowed to visit her baby daughter while she appeals a judge's decision awarding custody to the biological father, an appellate panel ruled Friday.

The appellate panel said it was not in the best interest of the year-old girl known as Baby M to be exposed to Mrs. Whitehead at this time.

The court also said that in the event a lower court ruling eventually is overturned, the child would not be harmed by the missed visitations.

The decision of the three appeals judges denied a request made by Mrs. Whitehead's attorneys for a stay of Superior Court Judge Harvey R. Sorkow's Tuesday ruling, which upheld the nation's first disputed surrogate contract.

The appeals panel also denied requests to stay giving the child a legal name and her adoption by her father William Stern's wife, Elizabeth.

The surrogate's lawyer, Harold J. Cassidy, said in a prepared statement that he would seek a stay from the New Jersey Supreme Court. He also will ask the state's highest court to hear a direct appeal of the historic case.

Mrs. Whitehead, who had been artificially inseminated with Stern's sperm under the $10,000 contract, has vowed to take her fight to get her baby back to the U.S. Supreme Court, if necessary.

The landmark case was sparked by her refusal to turn the child over to the Sterns after the baby was born. Mrs. Whitehead, the mother of two other children, fled with the infant to Florida, where she stayed for 87 days until authorities caught up with her and put the infant in the temporary custody of the Sterns.

Sorkow said the baby, now called Melissa Elizabeth Stern, should be reared by Stern, and allowed Mrs. Stern to adopt the year-old child minutes after he issued his 121-page decision.

He dismissed arguments by Cassidy that the contract signed by Mrs. Whitehead and Stern in February 1985 was invalid because surrogate parenting exploits women and amounts to baby selling.

The judge said that adoption has a greater potential for exploitation of women because of the potential pressure on a mother to give up her child.

And Sorkow condemned Mrs. Whitehead, a 29-year-old Brick Township homemaker, saying she was a manipulative and impulsive woman who cannot deal with crises and becomes overpossessive of her children.

NATION IN BRIEF

Three soldiers killed in training exercise

FORT CARSON, Colo. (AP) — An explosive charge used to clear minefields blew up prematurely during a training exercise Friday, killing three soldiers, a spokeswoman at Fort Carson Army Post said.

No one else was injured in the accident.

The victims' names were being withheld until their families could be notified, said Spec. 4 Kim Hoppens of the Fort Carson public affairs office.

The accident occurred about noon Friday, she said, at the Fort Carson Training Maneuver Area on the south end of the Army post, which is south of Colorado Springs.

The victims were participating in an exercise in which an explosive charge is detonated to clear a foot path through an imaginary minefield when the explosive went off prematurely, said Hoppens.

Fort Carson safety officers were investigating the deaths, she said.

Outhouse focus of suit

WEST BEND, Wis. (AP) — Rodney Temple and his wife have taken their complaint from the outhouse to the courthouse.

Temple, 20, and his wife, Roberta, 22, of Hartford filed suit in Washington County Circuit Court alleging he was injured when four men overturned a portable outhouse while he was inside.

Temple seeks $10,000 for pain and suffering. Mrs. Temple, who was not present when the privy was toppled, seeks $5,000 for her husband-and-loss of companionship.

According to the suit and police reports, Temple went into an outhouse near a baseball diamond in Richfield early last May 17. While he was inside, he said, the men "entered into a conspiracy" to tip over the outhouse.

Temple said he was pinched in the door as it hit the ground.

Fruit fly battle continues

HIALEAH, Fla. (AP) — Four million sterile Mediterranean fruit flies were dropped over 49 square miles Friday as part of an ongoing battle to eradicate the insect, a threat to Florida's citrus industry.

Agriculture officials hope the sterile flies will mate with female medflies that may have survived four aerial insecticide sprayings over Hialeah last month. When the sterile flies mate, the result is infertile eggs.

A total of 200 million flies will be set free during over the next 2½ months.

Worker killed by mirrors

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — A 32-year-old construction worker was crushed by 4,800 pounds of mirrors when two crates he was unloading broke open, authorities said.

Michael VanTimmeren of Grand Rapids, an employee of Fryling Construction Co., died Thursday of head injuries when the crates broke as he was unloading a truck at an apartment complex, said Kent County Sheriff's Deputy Harlow Blumenstein.

Evidence shows lightning hit rocket

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — A pinpoint hole in a charred chunk of a failed satellite rocket is strong evidence the vehicle was hit by lightning before it broke apart last week, the head of an investigation team said Friday.

Jon R. Busse said at a news conference that no conclusions had been reached on the cause of the accident, but he said electro-magnetic interference remained the leading candidate.

Busse displayed the yard-square piece of rocket, describing the suspect area as a "pinhole in the fiberglass and cork section of the conical part of the nose fairing."

The fairing, or nose cone, protected the military communications satellite that rode atop the doomed Atlas-Centaur rocket, which broke apart 52 seconds after it was launched in a rainstorm on March 26.

The fiberglass side of the recovered section was charred over an area about 2 inches in diameter. On the cork side, the pinhole is surrounded by another charred section about 6 inches long and 2 inches wide.

The quarter-inch-thick piece is among about 100 fragments of the Atlas-Centaur rocket recovered either from the ocean or nearby beaches. Other pieces are being examined for evidence of lightning.

Busse said lightning experts on his review panel said burn was similar to those caused by lightning on fiberglass sections of aircraft. But he said they have not concluded whether the Atlas-Centaur fairing was charred before, during or after the accident.

Mobil America catching 'the word' on wing and a prayer

EDITOR'S NOTE — In the comfort and privacy of their own cars and trucks, worshipers can sing loudly and off-key without annoying others. Parents can shush their fidgeting children. Invalids and the elderly don't have to worry about getting in and out of the sanctuary. The drive-in church is an idea that appeals to many in mobile America.

By BOB DVORCHAK

ARMBRUST, Pa. (AP) — Harry Bisping parks his orange Volkswagon Beetle in the gravel lot of Armbrust Wesleyan Church, turns on his radio, and waits for Sunday services to start.

"Vans, Trucks And Campers Please Park In Rear," says a sign over the pulpit.

Bisping's church is a drive-in, inspired by outdoor movie theaters and fast-food restaurants, and he thinks it's a fine idea.

"There are softer seats for one thing," Bisping, 74, says from the bucket seat of the 1974 Beetle that has traveled 156,000 miles.

For the past 10 years, the Rev. J.L. Clark has preached in his outdoor chapel in this rural Westmoreland County village 35 miles east of Pittsburgh. Attendance averages about 100 for the 8:45 a.m. service.

Clark's pulpit is a redwood gazebo. Worshipers tune their radios to a special channel to hear the choir and the sermon.

Vehicles park in rows in the church's lot, which has a basketball backboard with a bent rim and is surrounded by wooded hills and newly mown hayfields.

"The outdoor service fulfills a need for vacationers, campers, the handicapped or people just going out of town for the day," Clark says. "It's an opportunity to drop by and worship in casual attire."

The minister says worshipers are encouraged to "come as they are."

"Some stop before the service to buy coffee and doughnuts," he says. "Some come with their children still in their night clothes."

Inspired by the drive-in movie concept, Clark held his first outdoor service in 1952 when he was based in Indiana County. The idea has been popular with the 450-member congregation here, although a regular service is held at 11 a.m. for traditionalists.

"I enjoy speaking in the open air," Clark says. "It's exciting to be out under the sun. It's a pleasant Sunday morning experience."

A driver makes a religious donation during the Sunday service of the Armbrust Wesleyan Church.

In the comfort and solitude of their cars, people can sing loudly and off-key without annoying others. Parents can shush their fidgeting children by rolling up their windows. And invalids and the elderly don't have to worry about getting in and out of the sanctuary.

"I'm trying to revise our methods to minister to the people of this day," Clark says. "Traditional methodology just isn't reaching some people. People are not going to stuffy churches."

Elizabeth Kunkle, 70, attended a recent service with her daughter, Brenda Meyers of New Stanton, and her springer spaniel, Heidi, who poked her nose out the car window but refrained from barking during services.

"The dog never misses," Mrs. Kunkle says. "She goes everywhere we go. We could never bring her to a regular church."

Like many worshipers, Mrs. Kunkle had a Sunday paper in the back seat. She enjoys the unstilted approach to church. "It's not that stiff. It's more natural. It's pretty out here."

"There are people who come to this that don't come to regular services. They can come just as they are," says Goldie Musgrove, 67. She used the time before church to balance her checkbook while sitting in the cab of a red pickup, where she kept her Bible.

Her husband, Ed, 71, likes the drive-in because he's had three heart attacks and has been advised by doctors not to climb up or down steps.

"I'm not supposed to walk up or walk down, just on the level," says Musgrove, a retired coal miner who is always one of the earlier arrivals.

The outdoor arena is similar to inside services. Late arrivals try to find their spots without attracting too much attention, and there are always plenty of spaces up front.

Rain can be a nuisance, but church officials say no outdoor service has ever been canceled by bad weather.

"We've never been rained out in 10 years," Clark says. "We've had rain, but unless it's severe, we can manage."

"When it does rain, you just get out here with an umbrella," says Tom Webb, one of two ushers who cover the driveways leading to the lots. The ushers hand out church bulletins to arriving motorists and take in collection envelopes as worshipers exit.

The drive-in is convenient for Gary and Cindy Sherwin, who sat in a blue van with their sons Matthew and Stephen, ages 7 and 4. They planned an outing in Pittsburgh after church.

"If you want to go somewhere for the day, you can come early," Mrs. Sherwin says. "You don't have to get all dressed up for church and then go home and change. It's more relaxed, especially with the kids."

Advent of videos changing way people say 'farewell'

By MARIA L. La GANGA

Los Angeles Times-
Washington Post News Service

Paulette Kizzar's face stares out from the television screen, eyes rimmed red with tears and fatigue. A tube, hooked over her ears and into her nose, brings oxygen to her failing lungs. As she speaks, a tear rolls down her flushed cheek.

She is 18, she is dying, and she is saying goodby.

"I don't know if I'm gonna die or not, but my biggest fear is not being remembered," she says from her hospital bed as her mother strokes her back. "I just want everybody to remember me — not like I look right now, but how I was always smiling and having a good time.

"And I don't want anybody to ever think that I'm a quitter, because I'm gonna fight it as long and as hard as I can." A pause. More tears. "And if I die, I want everybody to be happy for me because I won't have to have treatments. I won't have to go to the doctors any more."

The cystic fibrosis patient from Santa Ana, Calif., died last January, one day after taping this 10-minute video. Paulette Kizzar never saw the finished product. She was buried in her prom dress Jan. 29.

Through the ages people have left behind farewell messages to ensure that, if they cannot defy their mortality, at least they can live on in the memories of their loved ones and of coming generations.

Ancient Egyptians left elaborate crypts, furnished for use in the afterlife and decorated with wall paintings depicting their life stories. Later generations composed farewll letters and poems. And today's technological revolution has spawned a new way of saying goodby — with videotapes.

"For their last statement, people have used whatever means of communication they were most content with, the technology of the day," said John S. Stephenson, president of the Association for Death Education and Counseling, a national organization of teachers and therapists. "It seems to be very fitting for people today to make use of videotape, just as in the past someone might write letters."

IN WHAT became his last statement, Glenn Anderson, brother of Beirut hostage Terry Anderson, videotaped an emotional plea June 3 for his brother's return. Terry, the 38-year-old chief Middle East correspondent for the Associated Press, was kidnapped March 16, 1985. The tape, which Glenn recorded from his New York hospital bed, was subsequently played on Lebanese television. The family hoped it would lead to Terry's return.

"My father died of cancer waiting to see Terry," Glenn, 46, said on the tape. "He did not see him. Now I have cancer, and I made a vow I would not die until I saw Terry. That vow is very close to an end. Please release him. I wish to see him one more time. Please release him. Thank you."

Glenn Anderson died June 7 of lung cancer. He never saw his brother again.

Most people who compose farewells know before hand their approximate time of death, experts contend, far enough ahead to allow them to start a process called "anticipatory grief," in which they acknowledge their potential loss of life, prepare themselves for it and project beyond their death to think about life without them in it.

"They're on their way to accepting death," said Stephanie La Farge, a psychologist who founded a "video analysis" program at Rhode Island Hospital in Providence. "It doesn't mean they're not still angry and don't have doubts. (Composing a goodby statement) shows both the need to communicate and this acceptance of death."

The dying who write or tape goodbys are doing the same thing as artists when they paint pictures, novelists when they write fiction and parents when they have children, contends Edwin Shneidman, a University of California, Los Angeles, professor of thanatology, the study of death and dying.

"It's a lien on the future," Shneidman said. "It extends life at least a minute beyond death."

Although each family reacts differently to farewells, experts debate the merits of these videotaped messages.

PSYCHOLOGIST STEPHENSON contends that goodby letters and tapes help friends and family cope with the death of loved ones. The only time such a tape might be harmful, he said, is if someone became "pathologically linked" to it and stayed mired in grief.

"Some of us might on first hearing of it be repulsed by the notion of a (farewell) videotape, but this is the communication mode of today and tomorrow," he said. "If it (the tape) is used as a token of what that person meant and was, fine. If it becomes a vehicle for trying to avoid the reality of the death, then we'd have to ask what the purpose of that is."

Dennis Hlynsky, a videographer and documentary maker who works on the Rhode Island Hospital project, said "The tapes are good and they're bad according to who's watching them."

"They are a great blessing for those people who have not had actual experience with the person who has died," Hlynsky said. "They give us an inside track into an event we're all heading for. But for those people who have had actual intimate experience with the person who has been recorded, the image of the tape doesn't stop at the viewing. A single gesture is one that was made 10,000 times before. And that reminder can be difficult."

In "Voices of Death: Personal Documents from People Facing Death," Shneidman likens farewell messages to the guidebooks left behind by 16th and 17th century adventurers. The books are called "rutters" and describe a safe route through unknown regions in an effort to help the travelers who came later.

"Death remains mysterious; we scan our horizons for any possible clues that might help us avoid the rough waters in the passage of our lives toward death," Shneidman wrote.

While most family members acknowledge the difficulty of watching a videotape of a loved one who has died, they also argue that the pain is usually eclipsed by the comfort the tapes proffer.

SARAH HOARD'S husband, James, a Long Beach, Calif., engineer, videotaped a farewell three days before his death. The first time she watched the tape after his death "was hard, but it was comforting," she said. "But each time I watch it, I realize that he was an incredible man in that in his death he tried to rise above what was happening to him in his concern for us."

The advent of inexpensive and easy-to-use electronic equipment is changing the way people say farewell, and many experts say it could become the prime medium for such communication as the impact and common use of the written word wanes. Since the mid-1950s, it has been relatively simple for consumers to make audio tapes, and sales of recorders and blank tapes are still rising.

When Roger Johnson, an 11-year-old cystic fibrosis patient, went into Childrens Hospital of Orange County (Calif.) for the last time, he told nurse Jackie Walker that he was worried about how his mother would manage after he died.

Walker suggested that he write a letter to his mother, Cindy Messerli, but after much discussion, Walker and Johnson huddled in his room with a tape recorder on March 14, 1983, and recorded a 15-minute audio tape.

Parts are spoken in past tense, for Roger knew that, while he was speaking about "now," his words would not be heard until after his death.

Roger's voice is high and reedy, and he sounds as if he is reading aloud in class when he says: "This is Roger Johnson, and I decided to sit down and make a tape for my family and friends, 'cause there are a lot of people that I love and that I enjoy being with, and I've enjoyed spending my life with."

An oxygen tank hisses in the background, the boy gasps and wheezes, and the recorder is stopped and restarted frequently because of Roger's difficulty breathing. "I'd like to start off with my mom," he says, "because no matter what I do or say, and even when I'm being a twit, I know she'll always love me, and that's a real nice feeling."

ROGER'S IS not the only voice on the tape. Walker had to finish the recording alone: "Rog ran out of breath before finishing this tape, so I promised that I would end it for him. Rog said he wanted to make this tape to help his family and friends feel better after he was gone."

Roger died in his mother's arms on March 21, 1983. As she had promised, Walker gave the tape to his mother after his death. It was played in part at his funeral, which he planned himself.

Psychologist La Farge started the "video analysis" program at Rhode Island Hospital in Providence in 1979, when she began taping young cancer patients during a research project. By 1983, adolescent patients diagnosed with cancer were using the hospital's equipment to tape themselves at will.

Dying patients now review all the tapes they have made and edit them to form a final statement. The program has amassed 500 hours of raw video tapes and about 20 such formal statements. At least 10 of those are all or partial farewell messages.

James Hoard was 41 when he found out that he had inoperable lung cancer. Hoard taped a conversation with his physician just three days before his death in 1982, in which he spoke of his regrets as a father and his hopes for his family — especially for his wife, Sarah.

"I love her (Sarah) and I want her to know that," he says from his hospital bed. "Now, I don't know what happens after I die. I hope that somehow I can watch what goes on from now on, and I hope that when it's her time that I'll recognize her in some way. ...If she meets somebody that she wants to marry that's fine. I don't know how to put that any better than that. I hope she finds somebody."

At the end of the tape, Sarah, Matthew, then 6, and Kimberly, then 4, join Hoard in the stark hospital room. The children clamber into their father's bed, careful not to disturb the intravenous tube that drips morphine into his veins.

"YOU DON'T realize how much you want to be with your kids (until) you suddenly find out that you aren't gonna be able to be with them very long," he says, glancing down at the children. "Boy, that one gets you right in the old pit of the tummy. Most importantly, in day-in-day-out living, you got to love the ones you love. That's preachy, but it's what I believe. Normally you just don't do it enough. I didn't."

Paulette Kizzar told her father last January that she knew she was never going to leave Childrens Hospital of Orange County. Her death was not really what frightened her, Paul Kizzar said. What plauged the bright, blue-eyed blonde was that her family would fare badly after she died or that she would be forgotten.

So nurse Elizabeth Styffe and Dr. Frank Karden gathered Paulette's friends together in her room, arranged for the hospital's audio-visual staff to join them, and Paulette did the rest.

"I'm gonna tell you guys, if I die and when I'm up in heaven, I'm gonna be checkin' up on you," she said. "I'm gonna be watchin' you and I'm gonna tell God, 'You better watch them.' Especially you, Dad, always on the freeways.

"...I'm not gonna be telling Him all the bad things," Paulette promised. "I'm also gonna be telling him all the good things and giving you Brownie points."

Four months after Paulette's death, Annette Kizzar, Paulette's mother, had only seen the tape once, she said, and her husband had not been able to watch it at all.

"The first time wasn't hard," she said, "but I think it will be harder now. I think part of that is the different stages (of grief) that you go through."

STILL, THE Kizzars do not regret having the tape of their daughter's final message to them. Although it is difficult to see her face and her her voice now, they say, it probably will be a comfort in the future.

Their response to their daughter's farewell is characteristic of parents and family members who have seen and heard their loved ones say goodby on tape.

Cindy Messerli said she first heard the audio tape from her son Roger Johnson at the funeral home before his burial.

"It was the nicest gift anyone could ever give me," Messerli said. "I would say I listen to it once a week, minimum, to hear his voice. ...With a tape, a letter, a video, it helps with the grieving, getting the garbage out of the way. It helps get you back to the positive things. ... When I get really, really down I remember that Roger didn't want to be forgotten, but he didn't want me to be sad."

The first time Sarah Hoard saw the tape her husband made, she was sitting at his side in the hospital. The second time was six months after his death.

"It's hard to look at the tape and hear his voice and know the mannerisms and realize that he's gone," she said. But by watching the tape, Sarah Hoard is heartened by the strength her husband showed in his last days.

"He had an incredible capacity in his dying day to try to reach out and comfort other people," she said. "And he had come to grips with what had happened."

PHILADELPHIA TODAY

The Pennsylvania Gazette today posted the militia drill days for Philadelphia and Montgomery counties. This month both units were to assemble on the last two Mondays, the 23rd and 30th.

Bids were now being accepted at the Post Office on a proposed weekly mail route between Philadelphia and Bedford, Pa. This route would link up with the one recently established between Alexandria, Va., and Fort Pitt, Pa.

John Betts of Buckingham in Bucks County advertised for a runaway apprentice. The lad, Moses Young, 19, was wearing a white felt hat, brown linsey coat, dark brown vest, leather breeches, blue woolen stockings and good shoes with steel buckles when he disappeared. Betts offered a $2 reward for his return.

CONFEDERATION TODAY

In Congress today, William Pierce of Georgia finally succeeded in having his motion passed ordering the secretary of foreign affairs to give Congress a full account of negotiations with Spain.

The Committee on the Military Establishment recommended that the Act of Congress of October 1786, adding 2,040 troops, be repealed and that the secretary of war be directed to reduce the present Army to one regiment of infantry of three battalions with 720 men, and one battalion of artillery with 240 men, and one troop of cavalry of 60 dragoons.

Congressman James Varnum wrote his governor, John Collins of Rhode Island:

"The General Assembly have suffered in the opinion of many for refusing the appointment of delegates to meet in convention in Philadelphia. Perhaps they will reconsider that matter in May when an appointment will be in time."

Gov. Edmund Randolph reported to the Virginia members of Congress the latest word on Washington as a delegate to the convention.

"Genl. Washington is prevailed upon to agree to go to Phila. if his health will permit. He is at present afflicted with the rheumatism, so as to be unable to move himself in his bed sometimes, and often to raise his hand to his head. He purposes to travel earlier than for the meeting, that he may apologize to the Cincinnati for his refusal of their presidency."

DELEGATES TODAY

Edward Moyston, proprietor of Philadelphia's fashionable City Tavern, wrote George Washington:

"As the Convention of the States is expected to meet in this City in the Next Month, I make bold to request your influence with such Gentlemen of your acquaintance as may want Accommodations. I have fitted up Chambers in the most convenient manner, and am certain that they will find it more agreeable than any private Lodging House in Town, as they will always have more Attendants, should their own be out of the way, than are commonly to be found in private Houses, and as I have altered the House they may be as private as in any other."

LOOKING BACK
Arms Control, 1787 Style

When Gen. George Washington tendered his resignation to Congress in December 1783, the Continental Army ceased to exist.

Almost immediately, increasing pressure to open western lands for settlement and organization forced Congress to examine the lack of any military. Troops were needed not only to defend the newly recognized frontier but also to ensure peaceful settlement. Several states offered regiments if Congress would reimburse their back pay. Instead, Congress recommended that Connecticut, New York, New Jesey, and Pennsylvania contribute a 700-man militia to form a national army.

The size of that Army increased gradually over the years. In October 1786, Congress passed an act calling for 2,040 troops. Today's report from the Committee on the Military Establishment proposed to reduce that number by half. So on the eve of the Constitutional Convention, the committee had called for an exceptionally modest army of 1,020 troops.

This tenuous, uneven "establishment" provoked vigorous reaction by the Convention. The preamble of the new Constitution called for ensuring domestic tranquility and providing for the common defense. More specifically Article 1, Section 8, Clauses 12 and 13 called for raising and supporting armies amd providing and maintaining a navy. The president was given control of the the "Army and Navy of the United States" by Article 2, Section 2, Clause 1 which designated him commander in chief.

The size of the Army and Navy has fluctuated wildly over the years since, but never has the military establishment reached the low strength of 1783-1787.

Webster nomination hearing to begin

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Intelligence Committee said Friday that hearings on FBI Director William Webster's nomination to head the CIA will begin next Wednesday, opening the way for public questioning on what role the FBI might have played in the Iran-Contra affair.

One source, commenting on condition of anonymity, said preliminary work by the committee has turned up no evidence that could place Webster's nomination in jeopardy.

However, Webster is expected to face close questioning about what the FBI did — or didn't do — in connection with the secret sale of arms to Iran and possible diversion of some profits to Nicaraguan rebels.

Webster, 63, has won wide respect during his nine-year tenure as director of the FBI, and was praised by congressional Democrats and Republicans alike when President Reagan announced his nomination last month to replace ailing CIA Director William Casey.

However, the Intelligence Committee, which has conducted its own inquiry into the Iran-Contra matter, is sure to have pointed questions on investigations the FBI suspended or delayed in connection with the affair.

Early next week, the committee is likely to make public portions of testimony taken last year from Attorney General Edwin Meese III during its closed Iran-Contra hearings.

Meese asked Webster last Oct. 30 to suspend an FBI investigation into Southern Air Transport, a Miami-based air freight company that was linked to resupply efforts for the Contra rebels and that also was employed by the CIA to handle arms shipments to Iran.

The attorney general's request, which Webster granted, is among subjects of interest to the committee, along with the FBI's role in subsequent investigations of the arms sale and fund-diversion scheme.

The FBI began investigating Southern Air last October after a plane carrying weapons was shot down over Nicaragua and American freight handler Eugene Hasenfus was captured. The plane carried documents linking the crew to Southern Air.

Meese later in October asked that Webster suspend the agency's investigation, apparently out of administration fears of any disclosure that could jeopardize arms shipments to Iran, which officials hoped would lead to the release of U.S. hostages held in Lebanon. Webster put the investigation on hold for nearly three weeks.

In addition to releasing a declassified transcript of Meese's testimony on that matter, the Intelligence Committee also may release a portion dealing with the weekend of Nov. 22, when Meese discovered the possible diversion of funds to the Contras.

Webster reportedly agreed with Meese at that time not to bring the FBI into the investigation immediately, and the attorney general conducted his weekend probe informally and without experienced criminal attorneys present.

Investigators believe documents at the National Security Council were destroyed or altered at about that time, and they are looking into whether Meese's actions may have damaged the government's ability to discern the truth.

Webster was chosen to succeed Casey, who retired from the CIA post after being stricken with a brain tumor, after Reagan's earlier nominee, Casey deputy Robert Gates, withdrew from consideration. Gates had come under fire because of the agency's role in the Iran-Contra affair.

In a related development, the Intelligence Committee said Friday it will try to develop a capability to independently audit the CIA's covert activities to ensure that the panel does not have to depend solely on the CIA for information.

The current situation, under which congressional oversight panels must rely on whatever the CIA decides to give them, "at best leaves doubts in the minds of many as to the capacity of the committee to perform its oversight function fully and independently," chairman David Boren, D-Okla., and vice chairman William Cohen, R-Maine, said in a joint statement.

Meanwhile, Rep. Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo., said Webster shouldn't be confirmed as CIA director until Congress knows if he was aware of alleged surveillance of her and other persons opposed to Reagan administration Central American policies.

Ms. Schroeder, in a letter to Boren, referred to the activities of Frank Varelli, who has contended he worked for the FBI from 1981 to 1984 in a variety of informant and surveillance positions.

Surrogate mother denied right to visit baby

HACKENSACK, N.J. (AP) — Surrogate mother Mary Beth Whitehead will not be allowed to visit her baby daughter while she appeals a judge's decision awarding custody to the biological father, an appellate panel ruled Friday.

The appellate panel said it was not in the best interest of the year-old girl known as Baby M to be exposed to Mrs. Whitehead at this time.

The court also said that in the event a lower court ruling eventually is overturned, the child would not be harmed by the missed visitations.

The decision of the three appeals judges denied a request made by Mrs. Whitehead's attorneys for a stay of Superior Court Judge Harvey R. Sorkow's Tuesday ruling, which upheld the nation's first disputed surrogate contract.

The appeals panel also denied requests to stay giving the child a legal name and her adoption by her father William Stern's wife, Elizabeth.

The surrogate's lawyer, Harold J. Cassidy, said in a prepared statement that he would seek a stay from the New Jersey Supreme Court. He also will ask the state's highest court to hear a direct appeal of the historic case.

Mrs. Whitehead, who had been artificially inseminated with Stern's sperm under the $10,000 contract, has vowed to take her fight to get her baby back to the U.S. Supreme Court, if necessary.

The landmark case was sparked by her refusal to turn the child over to the Sterns after the baby was born. Mrs. Whitehead, the mother of two other children, fled with the infant to Florida, where she stayed for 87 days until authorities caught up with her and put the infant in the temporary custody of the Sterns.

Sorkow said the baby, now called Melissa Elizabeth Stern, should be reared by Stern, and allowed Mrs. Stern to adopt the year-old child minutes after he issued his 121-page decision.

He dismissed arguments by Cassidy that the contract signed by Mrs. Whitehead and Stern in February 1985 was invalid because surrogate parenting exploits women and amounts to baby selling.

The judge said that adoption has a greater potential for exploitation of women because of the potential pressure on a mother to give up her child.

And Sorkow condemned Mrs. Whitehead, a 29-year-old Brick Township homemaker, saying she was a manipulative and impulsive woman who cannot deal with crises and becomes overpossessive of her children.

NATION IN BRIEF

Three soldiers killed in training exercise

FORT CARSON, Colo. (AP) — An explosive charge used to clear mine fields blew up prematurely during a training exercise Friday, killing three soldiers, a spokeswoman at Fort Carson Army Post said.

No one else was injured in the accident.

The victims' names were being withheld until their families could be notified, said Spec. 4 Kim Hoppens of the Fort Carson public affairs office.

The accident occurred about noon Friday, she said, at the Fort Carson Training Maneuver Area on the south end of the Army post, which is south of Colorado Springs.

The victims were participating in an exercise in which an explosive charge is detonated to clear a foot path through an imaginary minefield when the explosive went off prematurely, said Hoppens.

Fort Carson safety officers were investigating the deaths, she said.

Outhouse focus of suit

WEST BEND, Wis. (AP) — Rodney Temple and his wife have taken their complaint from the outhouse to the courthouse.

Temple, 20, and his wife, Roberta, 22, of Hartford filed suit in Washington County Circuit Court alleging he was injured when four men overturned a portable outhouse while he was inside.

Temple seeks $10,000 for pain and suffering. Mrs. Temple, who was not present when the privy was toppled, seeks $5,000 for her husband and loss of companionship.

According to the suit and police reports, Temple went into an outhouse near a baseball diamond in Richfield early last May 17. While he was inside, he said, the men "entered into a conspiracy" to tip over the outhouse.

Temple said he was pinched in the door as it hit the ground.

Fruit fly battle continues

HIALEAH, Fla. (AP) — Four million sterile Mediterranean fruit flies were dropped over 49 square miles Friday as part of an ongoing battle to eradicate the insect, a threat to Florida's citrus industry.

Agriculture officials hope the sterile flies will mate with female medflies that may have survived four aerial insecticide sprayings over Hialeah last month. When the sterile flies mate, the result is infertile eggs.

A total of 200 million flies will be set free during over the next 2½ months.

Worker killed by mirrors

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — A 32-year-old construction worker was crushed by 4,800 pounds of mirrors when two crates he was unloading broke open, authorities said.

Michael VanTimmeren of Grand Rapids, an employee of Fryling Construction Co., died Thursday of head injuries when the crates broke as he was unloading a truck at an apartment complex, said Kent County Sheriff's Deputy Harlow Blumenstein.

Evidence shows lightning hit rocket

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — A pinpoint hole in a charred chunk of a failed satellite rocket is strong evidence the vehicle was hit by lightning before it broke apart last week, the head of an investigation team said Friday.

Jon R. Busse said at a news conference that no conclusions had been reached on the cause of the accident, but he said electro-magnetic interference remained the leading candidate.

Busse displayed the yard-square piece of rocket, describing the suspect area as a "pinhole in the fiberglass and cork section of the conical part of the nose fairing."

The fairing, or nose cone, protected the military communications satellite that rode atop the doomed Atlas-Centaur rocket, which broke apart 52 seconds after it was launched in a rainstorm on March 26.

The fiberglass side of the recovered section was charred over an area about 2 inches in diameter. On the cork side, the pinhole is surrounded by another charred section about 6 inches long and 2 inches wide.

The quarter-inch-thick piece is among about 100 fragments of the Atlas-Centaur rocket recovered either from the ocean or nearby beaches. Other pieces are being examined for evidence of lightning.

Busse said lightning experts on his review panel said burn was similar to those caused by lightning on fiberglass sections of aircraft. But he said they have not concluded whether the Atlas-Centaur fairing was charred before, during or after the accident.

Mobil America catching 'the word' on wing and a prayer

EDITOR'S NOTE — In the comfort and privacy of their own cars and trucks, worshipers can sing loudly and off-key without annoying others. Parents can shush their fidgeting children. Invalids and the elderly don't have to worry about getting in and out of the sanctuary. The drive-in church is an idea that appeals to many in mobile America.

By BOB DVORCHAK

ARMBRUST, Pa. (AP) — Harry Bisping parks his orange Volkswagon Beetle in the gravel lot of Armbrust Wesleyan Church, turns on his radio, and waits for Sunday services to start.

"Vans, Trucks And Campers Please Park In Rear," says a sign over the pulpit.

Bisping's church is a drive-in, inspired by outdoor movie theaters and fast-food restaurants, and he thinks it's a fine idea.

"There are softer seats for one thing," Bisping, 74, says from the bucket seat of the 1974 Beetle that has traveled 156,000 miles.

For the past 10 years, the Rev. J.L. Clark has preached in his outdoor chapel in this rural Westmoreland County village 35 miles east of Pittsburgh. Attendance averages about 100 for the 8:45 a.m. service.

Clark's pulpit is a redwood gazebo. Worshipers tune their radios to a special channel to hear the choir and the sermon.

Vehicles park in rows in the church's lot, which has a basketball backboard with a bent rim and is surrounded by wooded hills and newly mown hayfields.

"The outdoor service fulfills a need for vacationers, campers, the handicapped or people just going out of town for the day," Clark says. "It's an opportunity to drop by and worship in casual attire."

The minister says worshipers are encouraged to "come as they are."

"Some stop before the service to buy coffee and doughnuts," he says. "Some come with their children still in their night clothes."

Inspired by the drive-in movie concept, Clark held his first outdoor service in 1952 when he was based in Indiana County. The idea has been popular with the 450-member congregation here, although a regular service is held at 11 a.m. for traditionalists.

"I enjoy speaking in the open air," Clark says. "It's exciting to be out under the sun. It's a pleasant Sunday morning experience."

A driver makes a religious donation during the Sunday service of the Armbrust Wesleyan Church.

In the comfort and solitude of their cars, people can sing loudly and off-key without annoying others. Parents can shush their fidgeting children by rolling up their windows. And invalids and the elderly don't have to worry about getting in and out of the sanctuary.

"I'm trying to revise our methods to minister to the people of this day," Clark says. "Traditional methodology just isn't reaching some people. People are not going to stuffy churches."

Elizabeth Kunkle, 70, attended a recent service with her daughter, Brenda Meyers of New Stanton, and her springer spaniel, Heidi, who poked her nose out the car window but refrained from barking during services.

"The dog never misses," Mrs. Kunkle says. "She goes everywhere we go. We could never bring her to a regular church."

Like many worshipers, Mrs. Kunkle had a Sunday paper in the back seat. She enjoys the unstilted approach to church. "It's not that stiff. It's more natural. It's pretty out here."

"There are people who come to this that don't come to regular services. They can come just as they are," says Goldie Musgrove, 67. She used the time before church to balance her checkbook while sitting in the cab of a red pickup, where she kept her Bible.

Her husband, Ed, 71, likes the drive-in because he's had three heart attacks and has been advised by doctors not to climb up or down steps.

"I'm not supposed to walk up or walk down, just on the level," says Musgrove, a retired coal miner who is always one of the earlier arrivals.

The outdoor arena is similar to inside services. Late arrivals try to find their spots without attracting too much attention, and there are always plenty of spaces up front.

Rain can be a nuisance, but church officials say no outdoor service has ever been canceled by bad weather.

"We've never been rained out in 10 years," Clark says. "We've had rain, but unless it's severe, we can manage."

"When it does rain, you just get out here with an umbrella," says Tom Webb, one of two ushers who cover the driveways leading to the lots. The ushers hand out church bulletins to arriving motorists and take in collection envelopes as worshipers exit.

The drive-in is convenient for Gary and Cindy Sherwin, who sat in a blue van with their sons Matthew and Stephen, ages 7 and 4. They planned an outing in Pittsburgh after church.

"If you want to go somewhere for the day, you can come early," Mrs. Sherwin says. "You don't have to get all dressed up for church and then go home and change. It's more relaxed, especially with the kids."

Advent of videos changing way people say 'farewell'

By MARIA L. La GANGA

Paulette Kizzar's face stares out from the television screen, eyes rimmed red with tears and fatigue. A tube, hooked over her ears and into her nose, brings oxygen to her failing lungs. As she speaks, a tear rolls down her flushed cheek —

She is 18, she is dying, and she is saying goodby.

"I don't know if I'm gonna die or not, but my biggest fear is not being remembered," she says from her hospital bed as her mother strokes her back. "I just want everybody to remember me — not like I look right now, but how I was always smiling and having a good time.

"And I don't want anybody to ever think that I'm a quitter, because I'm gonna fight it as long and as hard as I can." A pause. More tears. "And if I die, I want everybody to be happy for me because I won't have to have treatments. I won't have to go to the doctors any more."

The cystic fibrosis patient from Santa Ana, Calif., died last January, one day after taping this 10-minute video. Paulette Kizzar never saw the finished product. She was buried in her prom dress Jan. 29.

Through the ages people have left behind farewell messages to ensure that, if they cannot defy their mortality, at least they can live on in the memories of their loved ones and of coming generations.

Ancient Egyptians left elaborate crypts, furnished for use in the afterlife and decorated with wall paintings depicting their life stories. Later generations composed farewll letters and poems. And today's technological revolution has spawned a new way of saying goodby — with videotapes.

"For their last statement, people have used whatever means of communication they were most content with, the technology of the day," said John S. Stephenson, president of the Association for Death Education and Counseling, a national organization of teachers and therapists. "It seems to be very fitting for people today to make use of videotape, just as in the past someone might write letters."

IN WHAT became his last statement, Glenn Anderson, brother of Beirut hostage Terry Anderson, videotaped an emotional plea June 3 for his brother's return. Terry, the 38-year-old chief Middle East correspondent for the Associated Press, was kidnapped March 16, 1985. The tape, which Glenn recorded from his New York hospital bed, was subsequently played on Lebanese television. The family hoped it would lead to Terry's return.

"My father died of cancer waiting to see Terry," Glenn, 46, said on the tape. "He did not see him. Now I have cancer, and I made a vow I would not die until I saw Terry. That vow is very close to an end. Please release him. I wish to see him one more time. Please release him. Thank you."

Glenn Anderson died June 7 of lung cancer. He never saw his brother again.

Most people who compose farewells know before hand their approximate time of death, experts contend, far enough ahead to allow them to start a process called "anticipatory grief," in which they acknowledge their potential loss of life, prepare themselves for it and project beyond their death to think about life without them in it.

"They're on their way to accepting death," said Stephanie La Farge, a psychologist who founded a "video analysis" program at Rhode Island Hospital in Providence. "It doesn't mean they're not still angry and don't have doubts. (Composing a goodby statement) shows both the need to communicate and this acceptance of death."

The dying who write or tape goodbys are doing the same thing as artists when they paint pictures, novelists when they write fiction and parents when they have children, contends Edwin Shneidman, a University of California, Los Angeles, professor of thanatology, the study of death and dying.

"It's a lien on the future," Shneidman said. "It extends life at least a minute beyond death."

Although each family reacts differently to farewells, experts debate the merits of these videotaped messages.

PSYCHOLOGIST STEPHENSON contends that goodby letters and tapes help friends and family cope with the death of loved ones. The only time such a tape might be harmful, he said, is if someone became "pathologically linked" to it and stayed mired in grief.

"Some of us might on first hearing of it be repulsed by the notion of a (farewell) videotape, but this is the communication mode of today and tomorrow," he said. "If it (the tape) is used as a token of what that person meant and was, fine. If it becomes a vehicle for trying to avoid the reality of the death, then we'd have to ask what the purpose of that is."

Dennis Hlynsky, a videographer and documentary maker who works on the Rhode Island Hospital project, said "The tapes are good and they're bad according to who's watching them."

"They are a great blessing for those people who have not had actual experience with the person who has died," Hlynsky said. "They give us an inside track into an event we're all heading for. But for those people who have had actual intimate experience with the person who has been recorded, the image of the tape doesn't stop at the viewing. A single gesture is one that was made 10,000 times before. And that reminder can be difficult."

In "Voices of Death: Personal Documents from People Facing Death," Shneidman likens farewell messages to the guidebooks left behind by 16th and 17th century adventurers. The books are called "rutters" and describe a safe route through unknown regions in an effort to help the travelers who came later.

"Death remains mysterious; we scan our horizons for any possible clues that might help us avoid the rough waters in the passage of our lives toward death," Shneidman wrote.

While most family members acknowledge the difficulty of watching a videotape of a loved one who has died, they also argue that the pain is usually eclipsed by the comfort the tapes proffer.

SARAH HOARD'S husband, James, a Long Beach, Calif., engineer, videotaped a farewell three days before his death. The first time she watched the tape after his death "was hard, but it was comforting," she said. "But each time I watch it, I realize that he was an incredible man in that in his death he tried to rise above what was happening to him in his concern for us."

The advent of inexpensive and easy-to-use electronic equipment is changing the way people say farewell, and many experts say it could become the prime medium for such communication as the impact and common use of the written word wanes. Since the mid-1950s, it has been relatively simple for consumers to make audio tapes, and sales of recorders and blank tapes are still rising.

When Roger Johnson, an 11-year-old cystic fibrosis patient, went into Childrens Hospital of Orange County (Calif.) for the last time, he told nurse Jackie Walker that he was worried about how his mother would manage after he died.

Walker suggested that he write a letter to his mother, Cindy Messerli, but after much discussion, Walker and Johnson huddled in his room with a tape recorder on March 14, 1983, and recorded a 15-minute audio tape.

Parts are spoken in past tense, for Roger knew that, while he was speaking about "now," his words would not be heard until after his death.

Roger's voice is high and reedy, and he sounds as if he is reading aloud in class when he says: "This is Roger Johnson, and I decided to sit down and make a tape for my family and friends, 'cause there are a lot of people that I love and that I enjoy being with, and I've enjoyed spending my life with."

An oxygen tank hisses in the background, the boy gasps and wheezes, and the recorder is stopped and restarted frequently because of Roger's difficulty breathing. "I'd like to start off with my mom," he says, "because no matter what I do or say, and even when I'm being a twit, I know she'll always love me, and that's a real nice feeling."

ROGER'S IS not the only voice on the tape. Walker had to finish the recording alone: "Rog ran out of breath before finishing this tape, so I promised that I would end it for him. Rog said he wanted to make this tape to help his family and friends feel better after he was gone."

Roger died in his mother's arms on March 21, 1983. As she had promised, Walker gave the tape to his mother after his death. It was played in part at his funeral, which he planned himself.

Psychologist La Farge started the "video analysis" program at Rhode Island Hospital in Providence in 1979, when she began taping young cancer patients during a research project. By 1983, adolescent patients diagnosed with cancer were using the hospital's equipment to tape themselves at will.

Dying patients now review all the tapes they have made and edit them to form a final statement. The program has amassed 500 hours of raw video tapes and about 20 such formal statements. At least 10 of those are all or partial farewell messages.

James Hoard was 41 when he found out that he had inoperable lung cancer. Hoard taped a conversation with his physician just three days before his death in 1982, in which he spoke of his regrets as a father and his hopes for his family — especially for his wife, Sarah.

"I love her (Sarah) and I want her to know that," he says from his hospital bed. "Now, I don't know what happens after I die. I hope that somehow I can watch what goes on from now on, and I hope that when it's her time that I'll recognize her in some way. ...If she meets somebody that she wants to marry that's fine. I don't know how to put that any better than that. I hope she finds somebody."

At the end of the tape, Sarah, Matthew, then 6, and Kimberly, then 4, join Hoard in the stark hospital room. The children clamber into their father's bed, careful not to disturb the intravenous tube that drips morphine into his veins.

"YOU DON'T realize how much you want to be with your kids (until) you suddenly find out that you aren't gonna be able to be with them very long," he says, glancing down at the children. "Boy, that one gets you right in the old pit of the tummy. Most importantly, in day-in-day-out living, you got to love the ones you love. That's preachy, but it's what I believe. Normally you just don't do it enough. I didn't."

Paulette Kizzar told her father last January that she knew she was never going to leave Childrens Hospital of Orange County. Her death was not really what frightened her, Paul Kizzar said. What plauged the bright, blue-eyed blonde was that her family would fare badly after she died or that she would be forgotten.

So nurse Elizabeth Styffe and Dr. Frank Karden gathered Paulette's friends together in her room, arranged for the hospital's audio-visual staff to join them, and Paulette did the rest.

"I'm gonna tell you guys, if I die and when I'm up in heaven, I'm gonna be checkin' up on you," she said. "I'm gonna be watchin' you and I'm gonna tell God, 'You better watch them.' Especially you, Dad, always on the freeways.

"...I'm not gonna be telling Him all the bad things," Paulette promised. "I'm also gonna be telling him all the good things and giving you Brownie points."

Four months after Paulette's death, Annette Kizzar, Paulette's mother, had only seen the tape once, she said, and her husband had not been able to watch it at all.

"The first time wasn't hard," she said, "but I think it will be harder now. I think part of that is the different stages (of grief) that you go through."

STILL, THE Kizzars do not regret having the tape of their daughter's final message to them. Although it is difficult to see her face and her her voice now, they say, it probably will be a comfort in the future.

Their response to their daughter's farewell is characteristic of parents and family members who have seen and heard their loved ones say goodby on tape.

Cindy Messerli said she first heard the audio tape from her son Roger Johnson at the funeral home before his burial.

"It was the nicest gift anyone could ever give me," Messerli said. "I would say I listen to it once a week, minimum, to hear his voice. ...With a tape, a letter, a video, it helps with the grieving, getting the garbage out of the way. It helps get you back to the positive things. ... When I get really, really down I remember that Roger didn't want to be forgotten, but he didn't want me to be sad."

The first time Sarah Hoard saw the tape her husband made, she was sitting at his side in the hospital. The second time was six months after his death.

"It's hard to look at the tape and hear his voice and know the mannerisms and realize that he's gone," she said. But by watching the tape, Sarah Hoard is heartened by the strength her husband showed in his last days.

"He had an incredible capacity in his dying day to try to reach out and comfort other people," she said. "And he had come to grips with what had happened."

NOTICE OF SECURED PARTY'S INTENDED DISPOSITION OF COLLATERAL

WHEREAS, pursuant to a Security Agreement dated August 20, 1982, WILLIAM E. HENDON, JR. assigned and granted to THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK OF MIDLAND a security interest in 643,284 shares of stock of Cameo Minerals, Inc. more fully described in each of said Security Agreement; and

WHEREAS, on December 17, 1982, Cameo Minerals, Inc. merged into Hendon Exploration, Inc., a Texas corporation, and the shares of Cameo Minerals, Inc. were converted into 55,925,316 shares of Hendon Exploration, Inc. (the "Stock") and subject to said Security Agreement; and

WHEREAS, U.S. Capital Corporation of America, Inc. has succeeded to the rights of the Secured Party under the Security Agreement; and

WHEREAS, the obligation described in the Security Agreement has matured and remains unpaid thereby causing a default under said Security Agreement.

NOW, THEREFORE, know all men by these presents:

That, U.S. Capital Corporation of America, Inc. ("Secured Party") pursuant to the Security Agreement and the provisions of Section 9.504 of the Texas Business & Commerce Code hereby gives notice that Secured Party intends to sell at public sale to the highest bidder for cash all of the Stock, covered by the Security Agreement.

The sale will take place at the office of U.S. Capital Corporation of America, Inc., 200 Crescent Court, Suite 1350, Dallas, Texas 75201, at 10:00 a.m., Central Standard Time on April 13, 1987. Persons requiring additional information regarding the sale may contact Don Hanvey, whose phone number is (214) 871-4700.

The Stock will be sold only as a block to a single purchaser who is a resident of Texas solely for his own account, for investment and not with a view to the resale or distribution thereof, and the purchaser will be restricted from reselling the Stock or interests thereon without compliance with the requirements of the Securities Act of 1933 and will be required to sign a statement to that effect. Any purchaser shall be required to demonstrate that he is financially sophisticated and can afford the risk of a highly speculative investment and is a Texas resident.

The stock certificate representing the Stock will bear a legend to the effect that such shares have not been registered under the Act and may not be transferred other than in compliance therewith.

Prospective purchasers at the sale will be furnished, upon request, with such information concerning the financial position of Hendon Exploration, Inc. as may at the time be in the possession of Secured Party.

Secured Party reserves the right to bid for and purchase the Stock.
