

U.S. revealed as largest debtor nation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States became the world's largest debtor country in 1985, the first time America has slipped into the status of a net debtor since the early part of the century, the government reported today.

Simply stated, the numbers mean that foreigners now own more U.S.

investments than Americans have in foreign investments.

The Commerce Department said the country's international investment position was a negative $107.4 billion at the end of the year.

This marked a dramatic turnaround from the country's position just a year earlier, when the United States enjoyed a surplus on its investments of $111.8 billion.

According to official government statistics going back to 1919, this situation has never occurred. But a private study cited by the government shows the United States was last a net debtor in 1914, when the debt was a much smaller $2.2 billion.

While officials have been saying for more than a year that the United States likely became a net debtor in 1985, today's report marked the first official confirmation. It also put the actual debt at a higher amount than had earlier estimates.

Last year, the U.S. debt surpassed those of developing the developing countries of Brazil and Mexico, which each owe around $100 billion.

There is disagreement over just how serious an economic problem is presented by the country's new debtor status. President Reagan has said the change is not cause for concern, declaring that it shows the strength of the U.S. economy because of the large number of foreigners who want to invest here.

Some private economists, however, call the debt status worrisome. They say that it could reduce Americans' standard of living as the United States has to send more and

Dole predicts 'big, big win' in today's tax overhaul vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislators were scrambling to offer last-minute amendments benefiting narrow interests as the Senate prepared to approve a dramatic overhaul of the federal tax code.

"It's going to be a big, big win — almost unanimous," Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., said in predicting the outcome of the final Senate vote scheduled for late today, at the end of 13 days of debate.

As the Senate was wrapping up work on the legislation, amendments were pending to soften the impact on certain industries of the bill's minimum tax on corporations and preserve a capital gains break for farmers.

While major amendments to the sweeping package have been routinely defeated, senators have been loading up the legislation with provisions for specific organizations, firms or individuals.

That process was continuing until the final vote, which was due at 4 p.m. EDT. But Senate leaders conceded that the press of amendments could delay the vote until later in the day.

The Senate's final vote will send the legislation to a conference committee, which will draft a compromise between the Senate version and one passed last December by the House.

Although most senators were lining up to praise the tax-overhaul bill, some expressed concerns that middle-income taxpayers were not getting as much of a break as they should.

"It will increase the taxes on many average middle-income people at the same time that it gives extraordinarily large tax cuts to some of the wealthiest among us," said Sen. Carl Levin, D-Mich., the only senator to indicate he would vote against the legislation.

In general, the bill would compress more than a dozen existing individual tax brackets — ranging from an 11 percent to 50 percent — into two brackets of 15 percent and 27 percent. The measure also would do away with scores of tax breaks.

Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, which drafted the legislation, defended the package saying, "For the great bulk of ... Americans, over 80 percent will have their taxes stay the same or go down. And most of those are in middle- or lower-income class groups. On average, they are going to be tremendous beneficiaries."

Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., one of the leaders of the overhaul effort, said, "The lower rate is the proper carrot to get all taxpayers ... and this body ... to take a step it's never taken before, which is to eliminate the bulk of the loopholes."

However, critics of the new rates have cited estimates from congressional tax experts that the bill would raise the after-tax income of people earning more than $200,000 by 1.4 percent, while those earning between $30,000 and $40,000 would see a 0.4 percent increase.

In addition, those estimates show that one of every three people making between $30,000 and $40,000 would face a tax increase.

Cuts making it tough for Pantex to meet schedules

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — Federal budget cuts are making it tougher for the Pantex nuclear weapons plant to meet delivery schedules of nuclear warheads for the military, according to a heavily censored transcript of congressional hearings.

In its Sunday editions, the Amarillo Globe-News, which said it obtained the transcript, reported 75 layoffs are expected at the plant before Oct. 1.

Dr. Richard L. Wagner Jr., an assistant for atomic energy to the Secretary of Defense, expressed his concern about the workload at Pantex during hearings earlier this year before a subcommittee of the House Appropriations Committee.

"There is today, for the first time that I can remember in 20 years in this program, no slack between the DOE (Department of Energy) warhead production, warheads coming out the door at Pantex, and the need date for the DOD (Department of Defense) deployments," Wagner testified.

The Department of Energy is seeking a 14 percent increase in its defense budget for fiscal 1987.

Wagner also said Pantex may not be able to meet nuclear weapons delivery schedules if budget pressures continue or if unforeseen circumstances develop, the Globe-News reported.

The newspaper also quoted Charles Poole, who runs Pantex for the operating contractor, Mason & Hanger-Silas Mason Co., as saying he hopes the across-the-board job reductions can be made through attrition.

There are 2,850 people now employed at the plant, he said.

The cutbacks are in response to the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings budget reduction act, the transcript shows. About 1,000 people throughout the nuclear weapons system will lose their jobs.

"It is a lean budget," Sylvester J. Foley Jr., assistant secretary for defense programs, told a House appropriations subcommittee.

"What you are talking about is increasing the risk," he said. "I am unwilling to accept any further risk without it being directed because I don't think our budget should be reduced any further down from where we are right now. Even at this level, I am uneasy."

Maj. Gen. George K. Withers Jr., a deputy assistant secretary for military applications, told the congressional subcommittee manhours needed to build and assemble a nuclear weapon are increasing.

"Nuclear weapons today are considerably more complex and sophisticated than they were a few years ago, owing to the necessity of putting in modern use control and safety features," he said.

Showing Him How

Cody Busby got scooped into the arms of Jeff Smith for a quick lesson in stick-horse barrel racing theory. The toddler entered the stick-horse contest during the Hereford Junior Rodeo Series performances Saturday and Sunday. Cody later tried the run on his own and circled the three tightly arranged barrels in just over two minutes.

Increase needed, county says

In a public hearing Monday night, the Deaf Smith County Commissioners told a small group of citizens that a seven percent tax increase would keep the county from facing a deficit budget.

Some of the 10 to 15 citizens at the hearing questioned whether the county had too many employees and if the entity could trim the budget more through personnel.

Commissioners said that in two budget workshops, all county department heads were asked where they could cut costs.

"We brought in each department head and went over the budget item by item, and they all felt they have cut all they could," said Commissioner Troy Don Moore. "Each department head asked for pay increases and we did not allow any of them."

The current tax rate is 40.99 cents for each $100 of property valuation. If a tax increase is approved, the tax rate would be 43.85 cents. According to commissioners, the actual tax rate has not been increased in over six years.

"With the new jail, we have been forced by the state and federal government to hire additional people to run it," said County Judge Glen Nelson. "The state is mandating us to hire extra people, and under the current budget, we just do not have the funds."

Commissioner Austin Rose, the only commissioner who voted against the proposed increase, said he felt there were some county offices which were over staffed, but that apparently the department heads did not think so. Rose added that the only place the budget could be cut is in personnel.

Moore added, "We can either raise taxes, or cut people, if we cut people, we cut services."

Commissioner James Voyles said the only hope the county may have is if the tax base would increase. A increase in the tax base comes from an increase in the county population. "If the tax base does not increase, then we will have to cut services. If we do that, our roads will not be as good and if there is a snow bank somewhere, you will just have to wait an additional day before we can get anybody there," Voyles added.

Also at the meeting were County Clerk David Ruland, Treasurer Vesta Mae Nunley, and Auditor Alex Schroeter.

The commission will take a final vote on the issue on July 7 in the county courthouse.

TEC wants to withdraw from unemployed benefits settlement

TYLER, Texas (AP) — A threat to cut off about $50 million in federal funding to the Texas Employment Commission has prompted two state officials to try to withdraw from a settlement reached with representatives of illegal aliens.

The Texas Employment Commission settled four months ago with the representatives seeking unemployment benefits for illegal aliens and consented to stop requiring the aliens to prove work authorization from the Immigration and Naturalization Service before receiving benefits.

Assistant Texas Attorneys General Patrick Wiseman and Carla Crisford presented their motion to withdraw Monday to U.S. Magistrate Roger Sanders during a hearing to consider final approval of the proposed consent decree.

The motion was submitted after the Labor Department threatened in a letter received by the Attorney General's office in April to withdraw federal unemployment funds and employer tax credits from TEC.

Sanders presided over the hearing for U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice, who is in Houston this week. Justice gave preliminary approval to the decree on April 17.

In his order, which also rejected a TEC motion to stay Monday's hearing, Justice said, "A consent decree, once entered into, cannot be rescinded by either party at will."

Sanders declined to hear evidence in support of TEC's position, saying he was only present to hear objections by class members and others to the proposed settlement. Justice will have to hear the evidence, if he chooses, and make a ruling on the attempted abrogation, Sanders said.

The consent decree would expand the definition of aliens "residing under color of law," to include several classes not previously considered eligible, including those who have applied for lawful residency status.

But, the Labor Department said the proposed agreement could bring the state into conflict with federal regulations.

The proposed settlement was prompted by a Labor Department brief received by Ms. Crisford five days before the scheduled trial date.

The brief characterized work authorization as an appropriate additional requirement imposed by Texas and other states in accordance with the legal residency principle.

Ms. Crisford said she believed the brief left the TEC no choice but to settle the case and expand the eligibility of aliens for benefits.

In its April 21 letter, the Labor Department claims the Texas attorneys misinterpreted the department's stance in that brief.

County transfers funds for payment

Deaf Smith County Commissioners voted to approve a transfer of funds from the four precincts in order to make the final payment of $25,000 for the new jail during their regular meeting held Monday morning in the county courthouse.

Commissioners also decided to shift $120,000 from the transportation fund of revenue sharing, to the general government fund in order to pay county expenses. The commissioners felt this transfer in funds would enable the county to keep up with any unexpected bills that may occur before the new tax year.

Commissioners decided to purchase telephones for the district attorney offices, currently being remodeled, from West Texas Services of Hereford. The cost for the telephones would be $4,697, or $122 per month. The current telephone system is being rented from AT&T for $97 per month.

In other business the commission: Signed a resolution to be sent to the federal government opposing provisions in the tax reform act of 1985, relating to tax exempt obligations to the county. The resolution is being signed by commissioner courts throughout the state.

Heard from County Juvenile Probation Officer Colleen Duffy concerning funds in her department. Duffy told the commissioners that she was running out of money for residential services. Duffy explained that she is forced to remove juveniles from deplorable situations and place them in state or privately run homes. The cost to place the juveniles in these homes averages $18 per day. No action was taken.

Attorney claims state not complying

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas prison inmates denied better living conditions because the state has not complied with a federal court order should be compensated for their loss, a lawyer says.

William Bennett Turner, an attorney representing the inmates, said the state also should pay fines if the court finds the prison system is in contempt of court for failing to follow reforms ordered by U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice.

Attorneys for both sides returned to federal court Monday concerning a contempt motion filed by Turner, who claims the state has not complied with several reforms ordered to improve inmates' living conditions.

The hearing is expected to continue through the week.

"They have persistently violated the court order," Turner said Monday. "It's a sad record."

Justice ruled in 1981 that conditions within the Texas Department of Corrections violated the U.S. Constitution's protection against cruel and unusual punishment.

In May 1985, TDC officials signed an agreement intended to end courtroom battles in the lawsuit, filed in 1972 by inmate David Ruiz. Turner claimed seven areas of noncompliance, including a failure to fully separate violent and nonviolent inmates, a lack of basic necessities such as showers and outdoor recreation yards for high-security inmates, and an inadequate medical staff.

Although prison officials conceded they had not complied with all the mandated reforms, they said improvements have been made.

"We have done an absolutely fantastic job of complying with court orders," TDC Board Chairman Al Hughes said.

F. Scott McCown, an assistant to Attorney General Jim Mattox, said the state is doing the best it can to comply, but added that some changes take more time than others to implement.

A lack of money and other factors also have slowed the process, he said.

Pathologist doubts death by shock

KERRVILLE, Texas (AP) — Repeated shockings with a cattle prod, dousing in cold water and going without food for up to four days are not severe enough mistreatment to cause death, a pathologist has testified in an organized crime trial involving the torture death of a drifter.

However, Dr. Paul Radelat of Houston said he could not say what impact beatings might have on a person suffering from all the other abuses.

His testimony Monday came in the state's organized crime trial against a Hill Country ranch family accused in the March 1984 death of Anthony Bates.

On trial are Walter Wesley Ellebracht Sr., 55; his son Walter Wesley Ellebracht Jr., 33; and hitchhiker Carlton Robert Caldwell, 21.

The three are accused of conspiracy to commit aggravated kidnapping and murder in Bates' death.

Prosecutors allege Bates was tortured for several days with a cattle prod, beaten, dunked in spring water and deprived of food.

The state claims Bates' body was drenched in gasoline and torched. Charred human bone fragments were found in a burned out spot on the ranch.

The state also claims the Ellebrachts picked up hitchhikers, lured them to their ranch with the promise of work, then forced them to stay.

Radelat said he did not think repeated shocking with a cattle prod could cause death.

"I do not think it's an act clearly dangerous to human life," he said.

Under cross examination, Radelat said it was possible Bates had some underlying condition like cancer, liver disease, leukemia, or any number of ailments that could have contributed to his death.

"We don't really know why he died. There is no basis for forming an opinion as to why he died," Radelat said.

Body found, suspect jailed

QUANAH, Texas (AP) — A body found across the Red River in Jackson County, Okla., could be that of a Chillicothe man missing for nearly a month, Texas authorities said.

The body of a man believed to be Billy Matthews, 39, was found Sunday in a shallow grave about a half-mile north of the Red River, investigators in Oklahoma and Texas said.

Jackson County Sheriff Joe Boaldin in Altus, Okla., said a former Quanah man was in the Jackson County jail in connection with the case.

"The body has been sent to Oklahoma City for examination, but we have no definite ID. We're satisfied that it's him, though," Boaldin said.

Hardeman County, Texas, authorities have been searching for Matthews since May 27 when Hardeman County Sheriff Chester Ingram obtained statements from people who thought he had been murdered.

The man was arrested Sunday near his home in Eldorado, Okla., where he had moved from Quanah several weeks ago, Boaldin said. Boaldin was in Quanah Monday afternoon to get evidence and records from Ingram, including Matthews' medical records.

Shippers protest rate hike

AUSTIN (AP) — Texans will pay higher supermarket prices if trucking companies get the 11 percent rate hike they want, says a spokesman for H.E.B. stores.

The Common Carrier Motor Freight Association, representing trucking companies that handle more than 90 percent of the Texas intrastate shipping business, has asked the Railroad Commission for the rate hike that would mean about $25 million more in annual revenue.

Tom Burke, communications director for Central Freight Lines, said some trucking companies face insurance premium hikes of up to 150 percent.

"On any rate increase, the justification is because of increased operating costs," Burke said in a Monday telephone interview from his Waco office.

The rate hike would cover only intrastate shipments. Interstate trucking has been deregulated since 1980, and those rates are lower than intrastate rates.

Chuck Gilbreath, the supermarket chain's director of distribution, said transportation of products from Texas points to H.E.B.'s San Antonio distribution center accounts for 6.5 percent of the price paid by consumers.

Burke said the increase would not force a hike in grocery prices. He said transportation costs represent "a very small portion" of those prices.

But officials of Tex-Aid, an association of shippers, said at a Monday news conference that higher trucking rates mean higher prices for consumers.

"Even though the significant reduction in fuel costs allows the common carrier lower operating costs, they are requesting a higher percent increase now, during a time when many businesses are experiencing severe financial difficulty," said Tex-Aid spokesman Bill Huey of Irving, whose company, NCH Corp., uses common carriers to deliver its industrial maintenance products.

The Railroad Commission in April ordered a 2.67 percent cut in trucking rates because of lower fuel costs.

An 11 percent increase would mean $25 million a year more for the trucking companies.

Standoff ended

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — A gunman who turned exclusive Rodeo Drive into an armed camp by taking hostages in a jewelry store was stopped by flash grenades and gunfire as he tried to slip out using captives as a shield. Authorities said three hostages were killed and two wounded during the 13½-hour siege.

A man and a woman apparently were killed execution-style inside the elite Van Cleef & Arpels jewelry store, while another hostage was fatally wounded outside the store, police said.

The gunman also was injured after he walked slowly out of the building about 11:30 p.m. Monday, tied to three hostages and covered by a blanket.

"There was no indication at all that they were coming out," said police Lt. Bill Hunt.

Police Lt. David Griffey said the group headed for a lot where some of the hostages' cars were parked.

"Sheriff's deputies confronted them and there were shots fired at that point," Hunt said. "There were some flash grenades and stun guns introduced at that point, and everything ended there."

Griffey said the gunman appeared to fire first.

Steven Livaditis, in his early 20s, was booked today for investigation of multiple homicide and robbery, said police Sgt. Joe Langer.

Police did not immediately identify the two hostages found dead, face down with their hands bound, inside the store. The two victims, a man and woman, remained inside a small room in the building early today as detectives conducted their investigation.

The third victim, apparently wounded outside the store, was identified by Cedars-Sinai Medical Center spokesman Ron Wise as Van Cleef manager Hugh Skinner, 64, of Los Angeles. He had suffered multiple gunshot wounds, and was dead on arrival.

Super Tuesday

Democrats say yes, GOP says no

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas could find itself "out in the cold" if it doesn't sign up for the South's "Super Tuesday" presidential primary, says a state senator who is pushing the idea.

Twelve southern states have approved legislation needed for the March primary they believe will give the region increased clout in the presidential nominee selection process.

Sen. John Traeger, D-Seguin, said the nominees are usually selected by the time Texans have their say in May. In 1984, Texas Democrats used a complicated caucus system in May to pick national convention delegates. Texas Republicans had a presidential primary in May 1984.

Interest on T-bills dip again

WASHINGTON (AP) — Interest rates on short-term Treasury securities fell again in Monday's auction to levels in effect in early May.

The Treasury Department sold $7.4 billion in three-month bills at an average discount rate of 6.09 percent, down from 6.11 percent last week. Another $7.4 billion was sold in six-month bills at an average discount rate of 6.13 percent, down from 6.18 percent last week.

The rates were the lowest since May 12, when three-month bills averaged 6.07 percent and six-month bills sold for 6.10 percent.

The new discount rates understate the actual return to investors — 6.27 percent for three-month bills and 6.41 percent for six-month bills.

In a separate report, the Federal Reserve said Monday that the average yield for one-year Treasury bills was 6.61 percent last week, down from 6.85 percent the previous week. This interest rate is often used to change rates for homeowners with adjustable rate mortgages.

DEBTOR

more money overseas to pay interest on foreign investments.

Concerns have also been raised that such a large foreign investment in this country carries the threat that the U.S. economy will become hostage to the whims of foreign investors. If for some reason foreigners decided they did not want to hold American investments anymore, U.S. interest rates could be forced up, possibly plunging the country into a recession.

All economists agree, however, that the situation will get worse before it gets better. Some predict that the country's debtor status will climb to $400 billion in the next few years before it begins to improve.

Texans big losers

WASHINGTON — Once again, Texans are the big losers in federal grant dollars returned to the state. For the fifth year in a row, Texans paid the highest tax premium for federal grants in the nation.

For fiscal year 1985, Texans paid $1.59 in taxes for every one dollar the state received in federal grant money, according to the Tax Foundation, Inc., a non-profit, non-partisan research organization. Last year, Texans paid $1.61 in federal taxes for every $1 of federal grants allocated.

Texas was one of 20 states whose federal tax burden exceeded the amount of grants received by their state and local governments. In addition, these 20 states footed most of the bill for the grants awarded to all 50 states and the District of Columbia. Texas topped the list of all "paying" states. The 138 million Americans residing in these 20 states bore 61 percent of the costs of those grants. The citizens of these 20 states paid $60.9 billion to support the various federal grant programs, but they only received approximately $51 billion in federal grants-in-aid.

Besides Texas, the biggest losers in federal grant receipts were Florida ($1.49 in taxes for each $1 in grants), Connecticut ($1.35) and Colorado ($1.28).

At the other end of the spectrum, 100 million Americans residing in the other 30 states paid an average of just 80 cents in taxes for every $1 in federal grants their states received. These "receiving" states send $38.7 billion in taxes to Washington, DC and received $48.6 billion in federal aid.

The District of Columbia paid only 35 cents for each dollar they received in grant money. Other winners are residents of South Dakota (48 cents), Montana (53 cents), Vermont (54 cents) and Alaska (54 cents).

Ann Landers

Letter is enlightning

DEAR ANN LANDERS: In a recent column you ran a quote by H.L. Mencken: "Men have much happier lives than women. They marry later and die earlier." You went on to say, "Incidentally, very little is known about Mencken's married life. His statement suggests it wasn't anything to brag about." You were wrong.

Mencken met Sara Powell Haardt when he made a speech at Goucher College. She was a strikingly beautiful young instructor, seated in the audience. The title of his speech was, "How to Catch Husbands."

Soon after, they were frequenting Baltimore's finest restaurants. In 1930 (Mencken was then 50) he married Sara, 19 years his junior. She died of T.B. five years later. But their marriage was one of the great love stories of our time. Her health had always been poor and he knew it. On the day of her death Mencken said to a close friend, "When I married Sara the doctors said she would not live more than three years. Actually she lived five, so I had two more years of happiness than I had any right to expect."

I'd say the marriage WAS something to brag about.—A MENCKEN BUFF IN MD.

DEAR BUFF: So would I. Thanks for educating me—and millions of others. The mail from Baltimore was extremely heavy and all who wrote seemed to know the real story.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband is a petty officer in the Coast Guard. I have a complaint that many wives of Coast Guardsmen share.

Since we married I've had to suffer rude comments such as, "Your husband certainly has a soft job." He does nothing but sit. "It's a terrible waste of taxpayers' money."

I'd like these people to know that members of the Coast Guard are there to rescue people who might otherwise drown. Their pay puts them in the low income group. These men and women work 60-80 hour weeks with no extra pay. In time of war they are under the Navy—considered military with all the problems that go with it. Since they are not part of the Defense Department, their pay comes from the Transportation Department.

So, Ann, for all those folks who believe the Coast Guard is worthless, overpaid and getting a free ride, I'd like to say, "If you should ever need to be rescued the Coast Guard will be there and you'll be darned grateful."—A WIFE OF ONE IN OREGON

DEAR OREGON: Thanks for the 21-gun salute for a fine group. We phoned Adm. J.S. Gracey, Commander of the U.S. Coast Guard, and he said: "Oregon Wife" is right.

Some on our ships spend six months or more each year away from home doing our work in waters from the Arctic to the Antarctic. Our aviators fly long, exhausting searches and make harrowing helicopter rescues. Our boat crews take their small craft out in the worst weather. Like their teammates of the four other Armed Services, they stand ready to protect America at all times.

"Next time someone tells 'Oregon Wife' that the Coast Guard is a waste of taxpayers' money she can inform them that last year they saved 6,000 lives, stopped over 1,000 tons of illegal drugs from reaching our shores and did other things that gave the taxpayers a 300 percent return on their investment.

"I am very proud of the Coast Guard and the men and women who make it what it is."

Are you, or is someone you care about messing around with drugs—or considering it? Are all drugs bad? What about pot—in moderation? Ann Landers' all-new booklet, "The Lowdown On Dope," separates the facts from the fiction. For each booklet ordered, send $2.00, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (39 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Making a spatula when in a scrape

By Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY — I thought up this idea one day when my rubber spatula broke. Take a plastic snap-on lid such as that from a coffee can or margarine tub. Cut off just the rim from half of it (but leave the lid whole). Hold it using the rimmed edge for a grip and the rimless edge for a scraping surface. This will scrape out batter, cookie dough and other items from bowls nicely. — BEVERLY

DEAR POLLY — This is for the mother of the 18-month-old son who would rather play than eat. My son at 18 months was the same except that all he would eat was dry Cheerios and hot dogs. After weeks of this, I called the doctor and he said if that's all he'll eat, give it to him three times a day. Eventually, he will eat other things; don't force him. So I did just that for six months. Every so often I gave him scrambled eggs or mashed potatoes. He finally passed this stage and eventually went to graduate school. He's now 25, a great kid and very healthy! — MRS. MARY D.

DEAR POLLY — When children are too young to write thank-you notes, have them draw a picture of their gift as best they can, then send this. Grandparents love it. — LINDA away those plastic shoe boxes you bought years ago. They are ideal for storing canceled checks. — MRS. T.

DEAR POLLY — Don't throw

DEAR POLLY — Here's my method for avoiding twisted sheets in the washer. My washer instructions suggest you pick up the sheet from the middle and let it hang, then fold it over lightly and put in the washer. Balance the load with another sheet or other items. I haven't had a problem with this method. This is a good idea for tablecloths also. — EMMA

GENERAL

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Contending hockey star Pelle Lindbergh died in November as a result of his own "criminal acts" of drunken driving and reckless driving, Lloyd's of London filed a lawsuit against the Philadelphia Flyers to avoid paying accidental-death benefits for Lindbergh.

The internationally known underwriting firm contended in the lawsuit, filed in U.S. District Court, that it should not have to pay death benefits because a provision in its policy with the Flyers states that losses caused by the insured person's "criminal or felonious act" would not be covered.

The star goaltender died last Nov. 11 after suffering severe injuries to the spinal cord and brain stem when his sports car struck a concrete wall in nearby Somerdale, N.J. Blood-test results indicated Lindbergh was heavily intoxicated at the time of the early morning crash.

TEAMWORK noun a joint action by a group of people in which each person subordinates his individual interests and opinions for the unity of the group.

When the word "teamwork" is mentioned, the most obvious thought is that of football or another sport. While it is true that a football team must have unity, teamwork also applies to business.

Old timers' baseball game won by A.L., 19-2

By DAVID GINSBURG
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Although he had just hit two three-run home runs in the same inning, former Detroit Tiger Bill Freehan wasn't proud of himself.
Actually, he was kind of ashamed. Freehan's two clouts highlighted a 14-run third inning for the American League All Stars Monday in a 19-2 rout of the National League in the Fifth Annual Old Timers Baseball Classic.
"I can't remember ever getting six RBIs in the same inning," said Freehan. "But to tell you the truth, it's kind of embarrassing. The left field wall is real, real close (about 275 feet from home plate)."

Freehan, who retired a decade ago, also said he had a better chance to do well than some of the other players in the charity event.
"I'm only in my 40s, in pretty good shape, while some of these guys are between 50 and 70 years old," said the former catcher. "That's got to mean something."
Freehan, Tom Tresh and Cookie Rojas each homered off Hoyt Wilhelm in the third-inning uprising.
The AL Stars sent 18 players to the plate in the inning. Eleven of them hit safely, three walked and one reached on an error.

Rocky Colavito's second-inning blast erased a 1-0 NL lead and helped the AL Stars to their first triumph since the initial game was played in 1982.
The emphasis, however, was not on winning.
"I just served 'em up and they hit 'em out," said Wilhelm, the winning pitcher in last year's contest.
"Just so no one gets hurt," said Early Wynn, a 300-game winner, before the game.
The game raises money for the Association of Professional Ball Players of America, a non-profit organization that helps ill or indigent ball players.
Joe DiMaggio suited up but did not play, saying he was too hot.
Willie Mays returned to the National League lineup and went hitless in two at-bats.
Home run king Hank Aaron missed the game after his sister was injured in a car accident.
The game will be telecast by CBS this Saturday.

Dave Koslo, a New York Giant southpaw, led the National League in earned-run average in 1949 with a mark of 2.50 while winning only 11 games and losing 14.

Sports news briefs

BASEBALL
NEW YORK (AP) — Relief pitcher Juan Berenguer of the San Francisco Giants, who recorded three saves and a victory in five appearances last week, was named the National League's Player of the Week.
In 8 1/3 innings, Berenguer allowed no runs, four hits and three walks and struck out nine. It was the second time in as many weeks the award went to a player on the NL West leaders. Chili Davis received the honor last week.
NEW YORK (AP) — Three-hundred game winner Don Sutton of the California Angels and Minnesota Twins first baseman Kent Hrbek, who hit .480 with four home runs last week, were co-winners of the American League's Player of the Week.

Sutton, a 20-year veteran who has beaten every major league club, won his 300th game last Wednesday, a 5-1, three-hit complete-game victory over the Texas Rangers.

Hrbek was 12-for-25 in six games, and had a 1.000 slugging percentage. His 12 hits included three doubles and the four homers while he scored eight and knocked in 12 runs.

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Texas Rangers outfielder Gary Ward will be lost to the team for three games because of the death of his father Monday.

Jimmy Ward died of an apparent heart attack in Compton, Calif., on Monday morning.

Gary Ward left Arlington on Monday afternoon and will miss the team's series against the California Angels. Ward is expected to rejoin the Rangers in Seattle on Friday.

Ward, hitting .297, drove in four runs in the Rangers' 5-4 victory over the Oakland Sunday night.

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Astros activated Nolan Ryan from the 21-day disabled list and named him as their starting pitcher in Tuesday night's game against the Cincinnati Reds.

Ryan had been disabled with a strained medial collateral ligament in his right arm. His last start was on May 31. The 39-year-old right-hander is 3-6 this year with a 5.21 ERA. He last won on April 25.

The Astros have not announced who they will remove from the 24-man roster to make room for Ryan.

The team also announced Monday that catcher Mark Bailey will be sent to the club's Triple-A Pacific Coast league affiliate in Tucson. Bailey was batting only .176 — 27 for 153 — this season.

The Astros purchased the contract of catcher John Mizerock from Tucson to replace Bailey.

Lindy Remigino of the United States won the 100-meter race at the 1952 Olympics in Helsinki in a finish so close the first four men were all timed in 10.4 seconds.

High Fives?

At first glance, one might think Larry Sowers, right, head girls' basketball coach at Hereford High School, is giving some "high fives" to Brooke Seiver. But Sowers is giving her some pointers on how to catch the basketball when it is thrown to her. Sowers is holding the second session of the 1986 Hereford Girls' Basketball Camp this week. Elderly encouraged to exercise more Use it or lose it.

That's the harsh but honest warning Dr. Betty Benison, professor of physical education at Texas Christian University, gives to the elderly. Although aging is unavoidable, evidence shows that the elderly can slow the effects of aging through moderate exercise.

Most senior citizens will never learn to do the splits or jog laps, but moderate exercise can enable them to retain much independence. For those in nursing homes, that may mean being able to drink from a glass of water without spilling; for the more active, it means being able to pursue enjoyed hobbies such as gardening or playing a sport.

"Most of my exercises have to do with daily activities," said Benison, who has produced three phonograph recordings of exercise routines for the elderly. "The exercises are designed to keep individuals independent; the longer we keep them independent, I think, the longer we keep them alive."

Benison recalled a recent visit to a nursing home where she saw a woman in a wheelchair pulling herself along a bar down a hall. The woman asked Benison to push her to her destination. To the woman's dismay, Benison refused. "Although it may seem mean not to do all their work for them, it's really to their advantage," Benison said.

"If we do things for them, they eventually lose the ability to do for themselves. If we reduce their independence, we reduce their desire to live and to feel they can be capable, contributing members of society."

Only recently have studies shown how beneficial moderate exercise can be to the elderly, especially to those who have been inactive most of their lives. A report published by the New York Times cites studies of people from middle age to 80s who participated in conditioning programs. Among resulting benefits were increased resistance against bone fractures, lower blood pressure and increased flexibility of wrists, neck, shoulders, hips, knees and ankles as well as increased work capacity and lower heart rate.

Benison stressed that exercise can be injurious if it is too demanding or inappropriate for the individual. At the time of her first phonograph recording eight years ago, little literature and almost no recorded programs were available concerning exercise for the elderly, she said. Visiting nursing homes showed her that even aides and activities directors were uninformed about exercise potential and limitations for the elderly. She made the recording with nursing home staff in mind, although no special knowledge is required to understand or follow the instructions.

The exercises are a series of movements for each body part or area. A nurse's aide or relative can assist an elderly person with the movements by holding the arm, leg or hand as it performs the movements. Such contact with another person can be therapeutic in itself, she said.

"There's a bonding between people as they go through the movements together. The touching gives the recipient a sense of nurturing, the feeling that someone cares enough to give his or her whole body to help."

The range of movement exercises is also appropriate for handicapped, those with arthritis or those relearning how to use a body part after an injury or trauma. Benison helped her grandfather, who suffered from Alzheimer's disease, do the movements. "He would respond with smiles; his whole face would light up when we did the range of movements," she said.

Benison's other recordings are for senior citizens who are more active, including an aerobics program for seniors. All three recordings are available from Melody House Inc., Oklahoma City.

Benison also has developed exercise programs for the handicapped and is active in United Cerebral Palsy, the U.S. Association for Blind Athletes and the Special Olympics. Holder of a doctoral degree from the University of New Mexico, she has been on TCU's faculty since 1969.

Hispanic Baptists faced with illegal aliens issue

WICHITA FALLS, Texas — How to help illegal aliens without violating any laws is one issue that the more than 1,500 Hispanic Baptists gathered in this North Texas city will consider during their three-day convention.

The 76th Mexican Baptist Convention of Texas, which began its meeting Monday, includes more than 700 Hispanic Baptist churches affiliated with the 2.3 million-member Baptist General Convention of Texas.

Although the church is "sometimes thrust into things," church officials try to avoid becoming entwined in the legal aspects of the illegal aliens issue, said Richard Vera, president of the Mexican Baptist Convention of Texas.

"We see them as potential missionaries and prospects for the kingdom (of God). We will stand by them and get them legal help," he said. "We know they could be deported to their home, but they could go back different than they came."

Vera will step down as president and delegates will vote for a replacement during the convention.

Although the Hispanics Baptists are a diverse group, Vera said, they are not face with the schisms experienced by the Southern Baptist convention.

Watch work habits during hot weather

Hot, humid weather which typifies Texas summers can be dangerous to your health, particularly if you work outdoors.

Outdoor workers often suffer from such physical disorders as heatstroke, heat exhaustion, heat cramps and fainting, says Dr. Gary Nelson, safety engineer with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Such disorders occur most often when workers do not take time to adjust to the heat, notes Nelson. Summer hot spells, the first few days of work for new workers, and the first day back on the job after a vacation or illness are likely to be times when workers suffer the most from heat-related problems.

The combination of high temperatures and high relative humidity can be especially dangerous, says Nelson.

For example, a temperature of 100 degrees F. and a relative humidity of 50 percent have the same effect as if the temperature hit 120 degrees. The human body cools itself by perspiring, but problems can develop when high relative humidity prevents the evaporation of perspiration from the skin, Nelson explains.

To avoid potential health problems during the hot summer weather, he offers these suggestions for farmers and ranchers and others who work outdoors:

—Rest periodically in a cool place; rest is most beneficial when breaks are short but frequent.

—Drink fluids every 15 to 20 minutes. Water intake must equal perspiration loss, so drink more than enough to satisfy thirst. Rely on meals to replace salt.

—Wear loose garments of thin cotton fabric to enhance air circulation near the skin and to allow body heat to escape.

—Slow down work speed or distribute the workload evenly over the course of the day.

—If possible, postpone nonessential work for cooler periods.

—Transfer workers to help from other jobs or obtain extra helpers. Young and more physically fit workers might take over.

—Where possible, shield workers from equipment heat sources, use exhaust fans near heat sources, and provide open windows and cooling fans for maximum air flow around individuals.

—Provide maximum opportunities for outside workers to work in well ventilated, shaded areas.

Heeding these suggestions and keep tabs on the daily temperature and relative humidity can go a long way to preventing heat related disorders during summer weather, says Nelson.

DR. GOTT

Treatment of muscle weakness

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I've had myasthenia gravis off and on for about 12 years. Is there anything new in the treatment for this disease?

DEAR READER — Myasthenia gravis is a chronic disease of muscle weakness caused by a defect in transmission of nerve signals from nerves to muscles. There are two basic forms of treatment.

Certain drugs (in the anticholinesterase group) improve electrical conduction from nerves to muscles. These medicines act quickly and are safe, but — by themselves — rarely restore completely normal function. They are used temporarily to relieve symptoms. Neostigmine and pyridostigmine are the most commonly administered medications.

Most patients (and doctors) are more interested in treatment that is curative and permanent. Cortisone has been shown to produce long-term beneficial effects in up to 80 percent of patients. Its method of action is unclear and, unfortunately, the drug has side effects when used for long periods.

During the past few years, specialists have become more enthusiastic about surgical treatment of myasthenia. During surgery, the thymus gland is removed. This technique is quite safe and is said to produce remission or significant improvement in about 85 percent of cases. The operation is not recommended for children, the elderly or those who have a mild form of the disease.

In most medical centers, each case of myasthenia is judged individually. Initially, anti-cholinesterase drugs may be used to control the disease. Then, depending on the severity of the condition, cortisone may be considered.

To city farm

Nursery operation bringing new life

By GARRY CHANDLER Kerrville Daily Times

KERRVILLE, Texas (AP) — For most people, the thought of a used-up landfill or wastewater treatment plant doesn't conjure up visions of beauty.

Landfills and sewage plants are final destinations for materials people usually don't want to think about.

But in Kerrville, city officials say a nursery operation that combines public facilities and private enterprise is bringing new life to the city farm in a way that should ultimately have a positive impact on the local environment.

A 1985 contract between the City of Kerrville and Kerrville HRH, Inc., a local nursery company, eventually will open about 160 acres of the city farm off Loop 534 for nursery planting, said Calvin Neely, the city's public works director.

The 160 acres, to be planted in four stages, includes all of the city's former landfill site and the irrigation area for the city's wastewater treatment plant, he said.

"The idea was they would come in, take off the old vegetation, level the land and start planting St. Augustine grass for commercial sale," Neely said.

"They also have an agreement to use water from our wastewater treatment plant. Really, we're not reclaiming our landfill so much as using it for our wastewater effluent," he said.

HRH is planting in the area around the wastewater treatment plant's tailwater pond, Neely said. Planting should begin at the 40-acre former landfill site sometime next year, he said.

Although the city will continue to discharge treated wastewater into Third Creek even after a planned $7 million wastewater plant expansion is completed in 1988, 440,000 gallons of effluent will be held in reserve for HRH daily, Neely said.

In addition to improving the landscape, the HRH operation will help lower phosphate levels at the treatment plant site — an unexpected benefit, he added.

High phosphate levels in the city's wastewater discharge is being studied as a possible source of increased algae growth in the Guadalupe River.

"We inject the (sewage) sludge into the grass fields and then, every time they take the sod off, they take some of that phosphate with them," Neely said.

"I think that may help eliminate some of the concern about phosphate contamination," he said.

HRH owner Dale Hardin said the company has planted about 60 acres at the city farm since it began operations in January 1985. In addition to commercial St. Augustine Raleigh grass, about 10,000 baby oaks and 10,000 other assorted shade trees are planted at the site, he said.

Although it will be several years before HRH profits from its city farm operation, Hardin said the arrangement with the city makes excellent sense from both a business and an ecological standpoint.

"The city had this land available and to properly leach the water from the sewers of Kerrville, it needs to be sprayed over vegetation and leached through the soil to be purified," Hardin said.

"The missing link in our minds was that we might provide a use for the water once it was sprayed over the land," he said.

A board member of the Guadalupe Riverbank Improvement and Protection Association Inc., (GRIP) Hardin said he's long been committed to preserving local water quality. The prospect of working toward that goal and turning a profit at the same time is the icing on the cake, he added.

"Our company is doing everything we can to assure two things — a profit for us and enhanced water quality in the Guadalupe River," he said. "Why? Just because we live here."

Circle K to test hamburger stands

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) —
The convenience store shopper's appetite for fresh hamburger is to be tested in a deal that will bring hamburger stands to Circle K store parking lots, but Circle K says it's not just trying to keep up with rival Seven-Eleven.

Hooker Enterprises of Nashville, Tenn., will place
hamburger stands outside 12
Circle K stores in Arizona, Texas and Florida in an arrangement announced Monday by the companies.

Hooker's Hamburger stands will be tested for about two years, Circle K Chairman Karl Eller said.

operates Seven-Eleven stores, decided two months ago to try what a spokesman called "a store within a store," by bringing Hardee's hamburgers and Church's fried chicken into Seven-Eleven stores in St. Louis and the southeast.

"It's been an idea that's been kicking around the convenience store industry for a while," Circle K spokesman Ray Cox said. "Is ours a reaction to Seven-Eleven doing it?
No."

Under the Circle K agreement, Circle K will be able to purchase up to 713,332 shares of Hooker stock for $6 per share during the two-year test. If the project is successful, Circle K will have five years in which it can buy the Hooker stock.

Circle K will lease about 200 to 300 square feet of parking space to Hooker's Hamburgers for each stand. Cox said. The burgers will be sold for carry-out only, he said, noting that more than half of all fast-food customers take the product away from where they buy it.

Seven-Eleven's entry into fast food will feature the fast-food counters inside the store, Southland spokesman Doug Reed in Dallas said.

"The stores are in a process of being remodeled."

Reed said. "I think it'll happen fairly quickly. We hope to be selling the burgers (in St.
Louis) in a couple of weeks."
The fried chicken will be tested at stores in the southeast, he said.

Reed said he was unable to comment on the financial arrangements Southland has made with Hardee's and Church's.

Hooker opened its first hamburger stand in Nashville in late 1984 and has now sold the rights to 800 franchises, with 50 scheduled for completion this year.
Company officials said. Officials hope to begin building the hamburger stands in Circle K lots in three months and to open them by December.

Circle K negotiated with other fast-food companies, but Hooker founder and chairman John Jay Hooker
"seems to have a good entrepreneurial spirit," Cox said.

"As a start-up company, we are delighted to have been selected by a major national corporation such as Circle K to bring high-quality hamburgers to convenience store locations," Hooker said.

Lawmaker calls for enforcement

AUSTIN (AP) — Rep.
Lloyd Criss wants Attorney General Jim Mattox to tell the State Board of Insurance that it already has all the authority it needs to promote worker safety.

Criss on Monday asked the attorney general to review a 1973 law that forces insurance companies to provide accident prevention programs for its workers compensation customers.

The LaMarque lawmaker said the State Board of Insurance has not enforced the rule.

"My concern with all this is simple. Texas is the most dangerous state in the nation for employees to work," Criss said.

Texas reported 968 job-related deaths and 455,470 job-related accidents in 1985 to lead the nation in both categories.

Criss also said Texas businesses pay too-high premiums for their workers compensation coverage.

"What I hope to gain is to add some new words to (Board Chairman Lyndon) Olson's and the state board's vocabulary: safety, workers' lives and reasonable workers compensation premiums for Texas business," Criss said.

Olson said the insurance board has no power to require employers to implement safety programs.

"Nor does the board have the authority to send inspectors into the workplace to assure the enforcement of safety procedures," he said.
"The board will take any measures within its statutory authority to assure a safer workplace in Texas."
