Hope Still Held Cermak Recovery

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 25.—Physicians attempting to save the life of Mayor Anton J. Cermak of Chicago, decided today to put him under oxygen tent.

This device is designed to aid breathing and take some of the strain off his heart.

Mayor Cermak was given blood transfusions this afternoon. Dr. Frederick Tice, Chicago specialist, said as he came from the sick room he had "far from given up hope that the mayor might pull through. He is responding fine from the oxygen treatment."

SCHOOL BOYS PLOT TO STEAL PLANE BARED

By United Press

SAN BENITO, Texas, Feb. 25.—A school boy plot to steal an airplane after its pilot had been lured from the cockpit by a pretty 17-year-old girl, the sweetheart of one of the plotters, caused the death of Lehman Nelson, 33, flying instructor, and the subsequent suicide of his student, District Attorney D. S. Purl announced here today.

Three companions of Erin McCall, son of a prominent San Benito family, who shot himself to death after flying Nelson 1,000 feet above the earth, and in jail. Charges will be filed against them, Purl said, and one of the boys, the 17-year-old roommate of McCall, will be charged with being accomplice to the murder.

The clue to solution came from a woman's lips.

The district attorney said the girl sweetheart of McCall furnished evidence which led to the arrests. She had been held in jail, her identity carefully guarded, since the plane crashed Thursday evening.

The girl, Purl said, revealed the youths, after stealing the plane, planned a flight to Yucatan, Mexico. The theft and flight were planned as a lark, Purl said.

Ranger Rifle Club To Have Indoor Small Bore Range

Jim Ingram, president of the American Legion Rifle club of Ranger, has announced that plans have been completed for an indoor range, which will be located in the building next door to the Ranger Auto Parts company on South Austin street.

A bowling alley is now being installed in one side of the building, with a partition between it and the rifle range. Ranges for 22-calibre pistols and a 22-calibre rifle range are to be put in early next week, it was announced, and it is anticipated that the ranges will be open for shooting by the latter part of the week.

A 25-yard rifle range and a 25-yard pistol range will be erected, with metal backstops for all three so that there will be no danger of bullets going astray.

"Don't Kill Texas Game Commission," Is Game Head Appeal

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—"The worst move that Texas could make would be to eliminate its game, fish and oyster commission and turn all of this far-reaching activity and responsibility over to one man," Seth Gordon, president of the American Game association, said in protesting against such a contemplated move by the Texas legislature.

"The American Game association has studied administration set-ups for 21 years," Mr. Gordon continued, "and it is strongly of the opinion that the plan now in vogue in Texas is the soundest of all. It is a foregone conclusion that any change at this time would not only be a decided step backwards but would produce no tangible economies whatever. Texas has made splendid progress since the commission plan was adopted several years ago; it would be a decided step backwards to return to the old system as we understand the legislature contemplates doing."

"At present 29 states are operating their game and fish affairs under the commission plan, and a number of other states have bills before their legislature bodies to set up exactly the same kind of machinery that Texas now has. It is recognized that this plan of game and fish administration is not only the most constructive but assures better results year in and year out than can possibly be obtained with a one-man administration."

"It has also been the experience of the states which have operated for a number of years under the commission plan that improved programs and continuity of service of experienced administrators are guaranteed by this method, and that politics does not play destructive part in the game and fish work where a commission of good, strong, representative men governs policies."

"We hope that Texas will not depart from the sound basis of its present game, fish and oyster commission. Every sportsman and citizen who has Texas' interests at heart should exert every effort to prevent such a departure," Mr. Gordon concluded.

Speakeasy Scene of Triple Killing in Gotham Gangland

It was behind this bar that Michael Griffin stood when a gunman entered, killed him, John Egan, an escaped convict, and an unidentified young woman. Griffin's body fell behind the bar. On the right may be seen the broken bar-mirror, shattered by one of the gunman's bullets. The speakeasy was known as "Pork's Place" and is just off the bright lights of Broadway.

Fergusons Do Not Favor Combined Sales, Income Tax

AUSTIN, Feb. 25.—Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson and her husband, this afternoon announced the administration does not favor a combination sales tax and income tax law.

Former Gov. James E. Ferguson added that any attempt to combine the two would probably result in complications.

Mr. Ferguson announced that formal notice of the action of congress in re-submitting the prohibition issue had been received at Austin.

No view on whether the Texas referendum should be delayed was expressed other than the remark that if Texas waits a couple of years people will be going to Louisiana to get their beer.

Violinist Finds New Hazard For Players

BOSTON, Mass.—Grand opera singers live in terror of developing callouses on their vocal cords, and consequently flats on the high notes of their voices. Orchestra conductors are subject to neuritis in their baton arms. But it remained for Henri Casadesu, French violinist, to discover a new occupational hazard in music.

M. Casadesu conceived an ambition to become a virtuoso of an ancient stringed instrument long as extinct as the dodo in the mind of the musical public. This was a violin d'Amour—"love-violin." A set of as many as 14 strings under the seven top strings set up "sympathetic vibrations" when the top strings are played, thus appearing to murmur lovingly to them.

To his dismay, M. Casadesu discovered that practicing on the violin d'Amour made him cross-eyed. From the extremes of the instrument's wide bridge, three of its strings cut in to the northeast and three to the northwest, to fit the narrow fingerboard.

M. Casadesu, instinctively glancing along these converging strings, found his eyes also converging. After much study, he hit on a simple solution. He now plays with one eye shut.

Recently M. Casadesu, appearing in Boston with his Society of Ancient Instruments, presented music played by himself on the violin d'Amour, and by his associates on the quinton and viola da gamba. History-loving Bostonians reminded themselves that early forms of these instruments were owned, played or heard by Henry VIII, Queen Elizabeth, Sir Walter Raleigh and Sir Francis Drake.

Ranger Clinic to Have New Offices

The Ranger Medical and Surgical Clinic has begun work on moving two buildings to the lot in the middle of the block on Pine street between Rusk and Austin streets, where the offices of the clinic will be located as soon as the building can be renovated and improved.

The layout of the offices will be the same as that now in use in the Sam Houston Life Building with an X-ray room, electrical treatment room, laboratory and library in addition to the offices of the doctors.

Dr. Downtain, who has moved his dental office from Strawn, will be located in the building with the clinic as will the former members, Drs. Lordson, Palmer, Jackson and Shackelford.

When the building is completed a lawn will be put in front and the entire premises improved so that it will present a neat appearance.

One section of the building has been moved to the lot and is expected that, with the weather permitting, the second section will be in place by Monday morning.

JAPS PREPARE FOR FIGHT IN NEW OFFENSIVE

By United Press

MUKDEN, Manchuria, Feb. 25.—Snows along a 250-mile battlefield were lighted tonight by the fires of Japanese troops, resting from the rigors of a sustained drive that carried them to victory on the opening day of the general offensive into Jehol province.

The green-clad soldiers of Nippon gained all their objectives, the military reported here. They moved into the important inland city of Chaoyang. Two other cities had fallen into their hands.

Initial success of their stubborn drive indicated to observers here they would reach Jehol city, their major objective, within a fortnight or less.

Casualties, according to reports here, were comparatively light.

The bitter cold imposed immense hardships on the troops, little prepared for sub-zero weather. Lacking overcoats, their heaviest apparel consisted of knitted jackets. Snow piled above their knees as they buffed drifts in the mountain passes. Chinese troops, lacking food and ammunition, were reported retreating.

Aged Peace Officers Says Jesse James Died at Brownwood

By United Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—A conference with vast potentialities was arranged for today between Secretary of State Stimson and Senator Cordell Hull, his successor. Out of it may come official American approval of the League of Nations report condemning Japanese domination of Manchuria.

Goodwin, 77, former peace officer and boyhood playmate of the James brothers, claims that Jesse James posed as his own slayer and collected the bounty which had been placed on his head.

"It's all a mistake," said Goodwin. "What really happened was that when Jesse found Bob was plotting to kill him, Jesse killed Bob and sold Ford's body to the law, claiming it was that of Jesse James."

After that the outlaw lived as a peaceable citizen under the name of the man he killed, the aging Goodwin declared.

"How do I know?" Goodwin anticipated the inevitable question. "I saw Jesse and talked to him in Brownwood long after his funeral was held. He was a prosperous and respected business man at Brownwood."

According to the version of his former playmate Jesse James died with his boots off in a lined bed at Brownwood in 1898.

Goodwin is positive of the identity of the famous desperado: "Frank James, his brother, was with me at the time. We went to Brownwood for the very purpose of seeing Jesse. Besides, when I was a kid back in Clay county, Missouri, I played with Frank and Jesse."

A Robin Hood code of ethics was one of the virtues seen by Goodwin in the most publicized highwaymen who ever held up a Southwestern stage coach.

He recalled how the James brothers, touched by sight of a Weatherford widow's tears, inquired the cause of her sorrow and learned that a mortgage was to be foreclosed because she was unable to meet a $600 payment.

Jesse, according to Goodwin, gave the widow money to pay the mortgage when the sheriff called, then lay in wait and robbed the officer.

"How do I know?" asked Uncle Bill. "Well, I was somewhere thereabouts."

Goodwin has lived here 50 years, acting as marshal of the town through the 90's. During the Civil war his father was shot to death by Missouri bushwhackers. Goodwin set out to find the slayer.

Was he successful? He prefers not to say, but he is no longer on the hunt.

WOODRUFF TO CONTEST RIGHT TO TAKE OFFICE

Senate To Vote Monday On Supplying Vote Count To Governor.

AUSTIN, Feb. 25.—Bond of Frank Denison of Temple as member of the state highway commission was on file today in the office of comptroller, George Sheppard.

The bond reached the office last night after comptroller Sheppard had left.

The oath of office was taken at 11:40 a. m. yesterday, before a notary public, it was learned today. The bond was approved by Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson, the document showed.

His right to office is disputed by State Senator Grady Woodruff who has threatened quo warranto proceedings if Denison attempts to serve without being confirmed by a two-thirds vote of the senate.

Gov. Ferguson contends only a majority vote is necessary to confirm and has called on the senate to advise what the vote was on confirmation. Unofficial reports make it 18 for confirmation and 13 against.

The senate is to decide Monday if it will give the governor the information. Its rules committee has recommended that the vote be disclosed.

Denison succeeds Cone Johnson of Tyler, whose appointment expired Feb. 15.

Denison has asked for a conference here Monday with Commissioners W. R. Ely and D. K. Martin. Today he advised Comptroller Sheppard that warrants issued on highway department claims must bear Denison's signature.

School Fund to Be Cut to $8.00

AUSTIN, Feb. 25.—Not more than $8 per capita will be available in the state school fund for the next scholastic year, unless new revenue measures are adopted. H. W. Stilwell, Texas state superintendent of schools and president of the Texas State Teachers association, predicted today.

Stilwell said that his estimates on reports of the state auditor, who estimated an apportionment of $9.67.

"I can't help but feel the auditor is optimistic," Stilwell said. "It is possible the ad valorem tax will not yield more than $6,000,000 next year against more than $11,000,000 last year." The average allotment per capita for the past several years has been $15.

Boys Charged In Death of Sheriff

By United Press

MARFA, Texas, Feb. 25.—Three youths were charged today in the slaying of F. L. Sproul, sheriff of El Davis county, who was fatally shot near Fort Davis yesterday.

Complaints alleged J. T. Farmer, of Brokston, Texas, farm boy, shot and killed the veteran peace officer, and that Paul and Albert Weinberg, brothers, from Sterling, Ark., were accomplices.

All three were charged also with robbery.

The boys were brought here from Fort Davis when mob action was threatened against them there, feeling ran high here last night, and had subsided today.

Sproul was killed as he and an unstable William Carlton were meeting three youths on suspicion of robbery in a canyon on the ranch of the sheriff's brother. Carlton said Sproul had taken one youth in custody and was calling another to stop when a third fired from behind a rock.

SEN. SHIPSTEAD SOUNDS A WARNING

Henrik Shipstead of Minnesota is the only farm-laborer in the senate of the United States. He was asked to visit New York to attend a luncheon for the League of Industrial Democracy. He accepted. He materialized. He talked. Read his message: "You people in the cities may not think that the plight of the farmer is any concern of yours, but you had better begin thinking of the farmer's plight because his plight is becoming yours. His mortgages are in your savings accounts and your life insurance companies who protect your savings. If the farm mortgages go to the wall and become worthless your savings accounts and your life insurance policies will become worthless too, and then you will have to go out and dig your own potatoes or starve."

All this happened in the shadows of the street called Wall. This farm-laborer from Minnesota declared that industry and finance "took so much of the farmers during the years of paper prosperity that they killed the goose that laid the golden egg." Well, there are no eggs in last year's nests. Now all classes and conditions of the social order are waiting for the mighty or the near-mighty to "lift them out of the ditch." 'Tis well to remind all that they are on the road to plain living, plain thinking, plain hustling, plenty of mental and physical labor and that the young men and women of today will dig their way out of the deep economic ditch just as their fathers and grandfathers and great-grandfathers in the bygone years of history. It is largely a matter of "guts and not gab," to quote from the vocabulary of a Texas cattleman who invaded the Violet Crowned City to witness the inauguration of a new governor in the month of January. In his early youth he had been a cotton picker at 50 cents a day and "furnished his own meals." He is nearing his 80th milestone and hopes to round out a full century under the skies of Texas.

AGAINST DESTRUCTIVENESS

The foremost organization of sportsmen in America has protested attempt of the Pope bill in the Texas legislature to destroy the state game department.

The American Game association, through Seth Gordon, its president, has written Texas senators that sportsmen of the nation and of Texas would keenly regret the backward step proposed by the Pope bill.

Organization of the department conforms to a national model plan whose adoption is now being considered by numerous states and which already has been adopted by 28 other states. Texas, with more wild game, with more millions of acres of gam refuge, with more streams and more fish and more hatcheries, with more coast for propagation of ysters—an industry under supervision of this department—than any other state, has home sportsmen willing to pay the modest license fees to support the conservation-propagation program.

The game department's administration has never cost the taxpayer a cent. Why destroy it?

If you get better acquainted with your neighbors, you will find with delight, no doubt what a fine lot of folks they are.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By EDSON R. WAITE, Shawnee, Oklahoma

CHARLES J. LILLEY, editor of the Sacramento (Calif) Union, says:

"The individual with the new idea plus splendid workmanship is the one who is most successful, whether in advertising or any other business.

"Time Magazine was a new idea and has thrived. Then Time sprang an even newer one with Fortune, and that was a success. Ballyhoo is a more objectionable type of publication, but it met instant favor because it branched into new fields.

"Advertising today must be new and different. The old lre has disgusted the citizen because it has become too lre.

"Observe the successful advertisers and you note that they have violated all rules and conventions, but they've won. Watch the employee with originality, plus resourcefulness, and don't be afraid to use him or his ideas. He's going to succeed and he's going to help you succeed. Each day do something differently than you have ever done it before, even to the manner in which you perch your feet on the desk."

— THIS CURIOUS WORLD —

FROGS and toads prefer living food, and the more lively an insect, the more attractive it is to them. A frog would starve to death, sitting in the midst of a swarm of insects, if they continued to remain motionless. Insects are captured by the snapping out of a long, sticky tongue which is attached at the front end of the frog's mouth.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON.—A rather prodigious effort, possible only to one grimly bent on spreading sweetness and light, is necessary in order to evoke a pleasant thought concerning the work of Congress in the present session.

But if you regard the session as a rehearsal it is possible to perceive some good in it. Congress has done a splendid job of demonstrating to Mr. Roosevelt and the next Congress how easy it is to get all summer while trying to produce legislation adequate for current complicated and vital problems. Starring persons and farmers about to be evicted probably won't appreciate this, but the trials and errors of the short session seem to assure quicker and more intelligent action by the special session.

Congress has been hearing from the country as it never did before and some important legislation has failed in this session simply because features of it came to seem unwise, unworkable or unpopular.

BOTH the beer bill and the repeal resolution are examples. It seems likely that they will now be made bump-proof by comparison with the original House bills.

There's no sense passing a beer bill if the supreme court is going to declare it unconstitutional and when one was passed as a tax measure plenty of doubt was left as to its constitutionality. The senators mangled the beer proposal otherwise, but they figured out how to avoid supreme court.

BARBS—PI

Captain Hobson sunk the Merimac in Santiago Harbor and waited 35 years for the congressional medal of honor. Nowadays, some folks sink a roll in a campaign fund and hate to wait six months for postmasterships.

That 5-cent dinner Governor Pinchot and Mrs. Pinchot served Mrs. Roosevelt seems to have been quite a success. Maybe the Pinchots wouldn't mind ordering the groceries for state functions at the White House until the first lady catches on.

DERRICK SHADOWS

By V. MARIE STEPHENS

There were 11 pupils out of a class of 35 in a nearby town Friday, all victims of this thing called flu. Some 15 of those present were sniffing and sneezing, and spreading the dread germs throughout the room. What price education.

When you think you can't last through the day, and are desperately afraid you will; when your head aches, and the trees and fences play tag with each other; you hate the sight of people and insist on being in a crowd . . . young fellow, you have the flu.

You and I take turn about playing the role: public nuisance. Of course we are aware we are neither pleasant nor beneficial to society, but our native instincts drag us out . . . and send the other man in. There ought to be a quarantine, a little red flag tacked on the cold and flu victim's door. There's no sense in the malady being so popular.

The quarrel began years ago. One little misinterpreted sentence began it, the stubborn natures of the two girls helped it thrive. I saw them meet yesterday, saw the gleam of hate between them, wondered how they would go on living so near to each other . . . and so far.

The Creator completed his masterpiece of querness when he made man. We deem it wise to make ourselves eternally miserable in order to be proud. Such characteristics are a mixed up. Sometimes I think He must be ashamed to see what little creatures His love produced.

From the divine to the ridiculous, turning fashionward. Just how and where feminine charm and trousers coincide do not know. Now that women have begun circling back to frills and ruffles and puffs, somebody pops up and fits a pair of masculine pants on an influential model. It's up toadies now.

The weaker sex has borrowed the tobacco and liquor habits from the men, stepped into their offices, stolen their professions . . . must we take their trousers, too?

Don't be temperamental. Don't let your hair grow long and your finger nails curl because the depression has hit. Anybody can be spoiled . . . it takes a man to laugh.

The violinist who bends his bow over his pupil's head was once his mother's baby boy. He'll never outgrow the affliction. The artist who throws his tubes at the auditor used to shove his toys under the bed. His parents gave the world a misfit. The business man who screams at his stenographer is as guilty as the rest.

We have no one to pet these days but the market and good earth. As the earth yields, so shall Wall Street sway. For once New York is beginning to believe there is land under her sidewalks . . . somewhere there must not be sidewalks.

We are glad the cities are going earth-conscious. We've always stood them on a pedestal. When their clay feet became obvious in '29 we began to dig for diamonds in our own back yard. Instead, we found so many potatoes and other necessities we ruined the big guys' east. We've got the laugh on each other now, and we're proud of the 50-50 break, bad though it is.

McEun and O'Shea On Ranger Elks Monday Show Card

"Tiger" Billy McEun, the untamable, will meet an opponent next Monday night on the Elks club wrestling and boxing show that will surely tear the "Tiger's" head off. Chief Big Horn, an Osage Indian, from Pawnee, Okla., will be the man that local fans will delight in seeing do the job. Chief Big Horn is a savage when he steps in the ring and always does his favorite "war dance" before swapping holds with anyone. The club will not be responsible for anyone sitting in the first two rows when this event starts.

Sammy McElarren the lad from Philadelphia will meet Irish Eddie O'Shea from New York City. Both boys have appeared here previously, meeting other opponents. O'Shea is the man that beat Benny Wilson for the junior middleweight title several months ago. O'Shea learned his wrestling on the sidewalk walks of New York when just a

Low Fare Set For County Day At Fat Stock Show

Word has been received by Ranger Chamber of Commerce the effect that special rates "Eastland County Day" at the Stock Show had been reduced to $1.50 for the round trip, with special train starting from Clarksburg and stopping at Eastland and Ranger before leaving for Fort Worth. The same price will be available for the residents of Cisco and Eastland provided as many as 30 reservations are made.

No definite date has been designated as Eastland County Day but the committees from the three towns will get together and decide on some day during the show which can be designated as a day to be observed by the citizens of the county at the Fat Stock Show.

Eastland county has been challenged by Bosque county on attendance contest and it is expected that committees from Cisco, Eastland and Ranger can secure as many as 600 to 800 pledges to attend. Several bands along in order that a grand parade can be staged upon arrival in Fort Worth.

HERE--- AND THERE

By ELVIE H. JACKSON

On Feb. 26, 1846, William Frederick Cody was born in Scott county, Iowa. His early boyhood gave no special indication of the spirit of adventure, daring and recklessness, which later marked his entire career, mixed with a shrewd element of calculation and carefulness, the natural outcome of his experience in encountering wild and primitive conditions.

Cody is better known to the world however as the famous Buffalo Bill, a name he earned while employed by the Kansas & Pacific Railway to furnish meat for the teams of laborers.

In 18 months he had the record of having slaughtered 4,280 buffaloes. How thrilling must have been those days, with the wild dash on his trained pony across the dusty open plains, chasing the thundering herd, that belted and plunged ahead, and fell a victim to his lariat or his rifle.

Cody was a great American scout, and a natural born soldier. When but 14 years of age he was a rider in the pony express, and served on the federal side in the Civil war, as a cavalry scout from his 15th to his 19th year.

As a government scout and guide from 1868 to 1872, serving against the Sioux and Cheyenne Indians, his thrilling adventures have filled many books.

In the exciting times during the Sioux war of 1876, in which he was engaged as scout for the government, he killed the Cheyenne chief, Yellow Hand, in a personal encounter, during the Battle of Indian Creek.

His honors came rapidly and kept pace with his fearlessness and recklessness. He served as brigadier general for the Nebraska national guard during the Indian war of 1890 and 1891. This saw the birth of the Wild West show which toured Europe and the United States. In 1901 he became president of the Cody Military college.

CHAPTER XLVIII

SHEILA looked up into Dick's eyes and saw that he was smiling. She could not understand it. "But—the author?" she said. "Dick, it isn't—oh, Dick, is it really true? Are you the author? Are you?"

"You didn't guess?"

Hand in hand they stood before the footlights. Sheila had never been so happy. Dick's play. And there! Dick and Blind Timmy had written it for her!

They were back in the wings a moment later but the applause continued. "Let's get Timmy!" Sheila said. With the blind composer between them they stepped out on the stage once more.

At last it all came to an end. Mandrake, beaming over the evening's success, tapped at the door of Sheila's dressing room. "Well," he said, "were you surprised? Dick insisted you shouldn't know before tonight. We were afraid we couldn't keep it from you. I'm entertaining the whole company and I'd love to have you there but I've a sneaking notion you and Dick will have things to say to each other. If you want to join us later that will be fine."

He drew Dick into the room, stepped back and disappeared. Sheila said to Dick, "You wrote the play for me, didn't you?"

"But you made it a success."

"No, you did that. Dick, this is all so wonderful for you! It means you can do whatever you want now. You've made a name for yourself."

"And haven't you?"

"It's our play! Oh, Dick—!"

"Don't forget Blind Timmy."

"I'll never forget him. And I've never been so happy. Dick, I could cry!"

But she did not. She let him take her in his arms and when he kissed her she knew that all the applause and excitement of the performance were unimportant. It was Dick who counted. Only Dick!

LATER, driving across the city, they sat hand in hand, utterly happy.

"How did you like the red geraniums I sent?" Dick asked, grinning.

"I loved them."

"I have something else I want to show you. Like to see it tonight?"

"Of course."

He leaned forward and gave the driver some instructions. The car veered about a corner and shot across Fifth Avenue.

"What are you going to show me?"

He smiled. "It's a secret. You'll have to wait until you see it."

and International Academy of Rough Riders, Wyoming.

Tales galore of his adventures and romances furnish the most exciting reading, many of these being written by himself, and one of the best, the story "Wild West and Camp Fire Chats" was issued in 1888. In 1904 this was followed by "Adventures of Buffalo Bill." Four years later, "True Tales of the Plains," the final epic of the vanishing west, may be found between the lids of the book, "Turning the Trackless Plains into an Empire," published in 1916.

But his honors were not complete even yet, for he was Judge Advocate General of the Wyoming national guard, and president of the Shoshone Irrigation company, helping to bring through his knowledge of the western country the life-giving waters to irrigate vast plains and open the country up for the hardy settler.

Cody, one of the most famous cow towns of Nebraska, was named for this truly American hero.

In appearance Bill Cody was romantic in the extreme. We remember as a little girl seeing him at the head of one of his wild west show processions, swinging lazily along on his piebald pony, with his fringed leather chaps flying in the breeze, his picturesque red scarf knotted around his lean brown throat, and his ovel brown face framed in a great wide brimmed sombrero, graced with a magnificent twisted silver hat band. His face was lean, haggard, and he wore a mustache and goatee. In appearance he was more the typical buccannering Frenchman or Spaniard, than the honest-to-goodness American that sprang from pioneer American stock.

With the passing of Buffalo Bill in 1917, there vanished from the scene the most outstanding virile and romantic figure that has helped to make pages in America's history. . . . and today is his birthday.

They rode on into a quiet street. Neither of them spoke. They were near the East River and the sounds of boats reached them. Sheila watched the bridge, its lights swaying like a chain of glittering jewels.

"Here we are," Dick said as the car stopped suddenly. They stepped out on the sidewalk.

"You aren't taking me to a party are you?" Sheila asked in dismay. "I'm too tired for that. I wanted to celebrate just with you!"

"But famous stars have obligations to their public," he returned, pinching her cheek. Dick led the way into the building before them. It was a luxurious apartment house.

The West Indian boy at the telephone desk smiled as they entered and said, "Good evening, Mr. Stanley."

"Evening, Jim."

The elevator door opened and Sheila and Dick stepped into the car. They rose swiftly to the top floor. "Who lives here?" Sheila asked as they stood in the corridor.

"Dick, where in the world are you taking me? This isn't fair! My nose probably needs powdering."

"It needs kissing," he told her. "It's the dearest little nose in the world. Maybe you didn't know that." He kissed her, looking so solemn that Sheila laughed.

THEN Dick pressed a button and the door before them opened. Lucy, Sheila's maid, stood facing them, smiling.

"Way, Lucy!" Sheila exclaimed. "How did you get here? What in the world—?"

"We have to walk the last night," Dick announced, brushing past Lucy and leading the way. "I told you I had a surprise for you, didn't I? Come on!"

The stairway led to the roof of the building. It was only the top of an apartment house but a miracle had been achieved. The roof was covered with soft grass. There were four tiny trees, their branches rustled by the East River breeze. And in the center of this fairy land there stood a cottage. It was a real cottage with a veranda. It was painted white and it had green shutters. There were ruffled curtains at the windows and bright lights shining indoors.

Sheila stood wide-eyed before this vision. She had seen pent houses but never anything like this before. It was her dream house, exactly as she had imagined it. It seemed too lovely to be real!

Dick caught her hand. "We'll go in a minute," he said, "but first I want you to see something else."

They skirted the lawn in the moonlight, walking along a prim little pathway. It might have led to a home in a town 1,000 miles from the roar of Manhattan traffic.

"See there," Dick said proudly. And Sheila saw. It was a kitchen doorway. There were red checked gingham curtains hanging at the windows and bright geraniums in dark green boxes nodding from the sills.

She could only cry out, "Oh, Dick!" and stand in admiration.

HALF an hour later Dick was explaining. "You see," he said, "I knew this was what you wanted and I made up my mind you should have it." They had finished inspecting the whole house. "I didn't furnish it because I thought it would be fun to do that together. I didn't want to take the least little bit of pleasure from you in selecting exactly what you want for each room. I didn't want to put anything in it unless you were sure it was just right. But I was sure about the curtains—and the geraniums in the windows."

They were sitting on the window seat in the living room. "But it's perfect!" Sheila insisted. She had repeated that again and again. "Everything about it is perfect!" She snuggled contentedly against his shoulder. "We'll go shopping tomorrow. Oh, no—we can't! It's matinee day. Well then, we'll go Thursday."

"Lucy is tossing together a little lunch in the kitchen," Dick said. "Shall we go out there?"

They arose but at that moment Lucy appeared in the doorway. She was smiling broadly and carrying a tray. There were sandwiches and salad, tiny cakes and steaming cups of coffee. Lucy set the tray down and disappeared.

Excitedly planning as they ate, Sheila and Dick were more like two eager children than a famous star and a young playwright celebrating their joint success. "How does it feel to be famous, Miss Shayne?" Dick asked. "Oh, that reminds me! We're going to be married tomorrow, matinee or no matinee." He fished in his pocket and produced a small box. From the box came a ring.

"Like it?" he asked.

She loved it.

"I thought you would. Jappy thought you would. Tillie and Eve said the same thing. Trevor and Dorothy—"

"Stop! You didn't announce all this from the housepots, did you?"

"Just about. Why not? I've never been married before."

And again he kissed her. Sheila's head rested against Dick's shoulder in deep content. It was all like a dream. She was the star of a Broadway play and that fame had come to her because she had wanted so to help Blind Timmy. She had money, too. Her salary seemed a fortune. She had fame, wealth and, above all, Dick's love.

It was not a dream. It was all true. They would live here, high above the turmoil of the streets, close to the stars. They would work together and theirs would be a happy marriage. Gravely Sheila reminded herself that were it mistaken. Everyone dreamed it. Sheila was not disturbed. She knew that for her and Dick the dream would come true.

Standard Training School

Closes With Fine Record

The Eastland Standard Training school closed their sixth and last day Friday with a brilliant record, and one that brought 46 credits out of the 49 that enrolled for the course, the highest percentage of credit in any standard training school in the Central Texas conference it was stated. The closing exercises were held in the auditorium of the Methodist church at 9 p. m., before a large audience.

Following the final study course Rev. G. A. Schlueter, presiding chairman, called on the teachers of departments, Mrs. A. C. Amsler, Mrs. A. W. Hall, Rev. C. M. Norton, Mrs. Gid J. Bryan, to award credits to classes.

These are certificates of credit with the general board of education in Nashville, Tenn.

One student unable to attend Friday evening will secure her credit from the office in Nashville. Eastland had the largest enrollment of any town in this district, ranking first in credit, Cisco second, and Ranger third in number of credits.

Announcements of other training schools and workers conferences were made.

A significant fact was that 18 of the 46 credits issued, were awarded members of young people's division.

Resolutions presented by Rev. Gid J. Bryan of Ranger that were read and adopted, will be sent the senators and representatives at Austin, from this district, stated: First, to vote against the race track gambling bill; second, asking support for the Puri-Woodward bill. This provides for an election of delegates to convention, and which will vote on question of repeal of eighteenth amendment.

A vote of appreciation of the work of the faculty was presented and a vote thanking the Eastland church for hospitality.

The session closed with the hymn, "When the Roll Is Called Up Yonder," and prayer of dismissal by presiding elder, Rev. C. Q. Smith.

Rev. Sam G. Thompson has been assiduous in his attention as pastor host to the training school, and the board of managers formed the background to this splendid instruction.

Arrangements were carefully attended to by F. J. Nicholson and the enrollment faithfully kept by Mrs. B. E. McGlamery. The school closes with success and an outstanding record.

The condition was a peculiar one and Mr. Childress is known to medical fraternity as a "bleeder."

He suffered from an infected tooth, and had the lower jaw gum lanced, and from this hemorrhages were so frequent that great fear was entertained for his condition.

Mr. Childress was taken to the Payne hospital the middle of the week, and at last accounts it was planned to take him to his home, yesterday.

Beautiful Banquet Affair

Is Largely Attended

The J. O. Y. Sunday school class of the Central Baptist church met in Sunday school or class banquet at the Gholson hotel in the green room on the evening of Feb. 23, and it was voted by all present to be a very enjoyable affair.

A beautiful setting of flags and patriotic colors helped to carry out a Washington birthday program, and in the beginning, after a few songs were sung, all faced the flag and sang "America."

Moorman Wagner, one of the class members was master of ceremonies for the evening, and he acted the part so beautifully that he is in line for many more such events in the future.

Several quartettes, duets and musical numbers, also readings were rendered by members of the class, and there was plenty of four and mirth mingled with serious thoughts of loyalty, gratitude and the higher and nobler things which make life worth-while.

Mrs. H. H. Stevens, superintendent of the young people's department, made a very inspiring talk in which she expressed her appreciation of the loyalty of the department, also the teachers, and said to work with such people was the greatest joy of her life, and as we believe in "Scattering flowers now," Mrs. Stevens may know that her efforts are not in vain, and this class appreciates her much more than she will ever know.

Rev. Stevens also said some very nice things about the young people, and asked that if any time they needed a friend in any way that he be allowed to help them in every way possible.

The teacher, Mrs. Alice True, in her gracious manner told the class and visitors that this class was one of the greatest inspirations in her life, that she asked nothing more than to know that her influence might be such that their lives might be made richer and sweeter because she had been their teacher and friend, and that in their hearts she hoped they would be able to say: "Life is sweeter and my life has been enriched because I have known you."

The Gholson Coffee shop served a lovely dinner consisting of fruit cocktail, a turkey dinner and dessert of cherry pie with whipped cream, and the class wishes to thank them especially for the wonderful service and the lovely dinner which was served, and which made all present hope that another such meeting would be arranged in the near future.

Judge Clyde Garrett and his wife from Eastland were special guests of the evening, and the class feels that Judge Garrett is their very own, all were delighted with his spirited talk of some 30 minutes which had plenty of fun and mirth, but the golden thread running through it all spoke of the higher and better things of life, and the men and women and their traits who really make the world a better place in which to live, and the big thing which he pointed out to these young Sunday school class workers was that "Service Spells Success."

Those attending this lovely affair were:

Misses Louise Davis, Joe Burch, Rose McEver, Lois Landroop, Ruth Shirley, Winnie Snyder, Marion Nixon, Louise Moore, Lora Jones, Opal Carter, Myrtle Stiles, V. Marie Stephens, Miriam Ridgeway, Gadsden, Ala. Messrs. Clarence Moss, Garland Powell, Roy Taylor, James Nixon, C. L. Long, J. M. Wagner, Morris Jeffries R.
