Cold water 'heats up' sheriff's day

From Staff Reports

Cold days are usually slow days at the Midland County Sheriff's Office, because low temperatures tend to keep people at home and out of mischief. But things were jumping at the Sheriff's Office Friday afternoon after the cold caused a water pipe to burst.

"All of a sudden I heard a roar," said Dispatcher Ken Ellis. "I looked up and saw it coming down — it was coming down almost like a waterfall there for awhile."

The pipe was in the ceiling near the after-hours door of the Sheriff's Office on the first floor of the Midland County Courthouse. It burst about 2 p.m. and gushed for 15-20 minutes before being shut off.

"It was a three-quarter-inch copper pipe, but water was coming out like it was a four-incher," said Sheriff Gary Painter. "It got all the way back into the Criminal Investigation Division" at the end of the hall.

The water got into some filing cabinets and dampened some administrative records. It seeped under a wall into the dispatcher's office, forcing Ellis to do his dispatching with wet feet. It ruined several ceiling panels.

"And I got wet trying to reach up and shut it off," said Painter.

By late afternoon, maintenance men had squeegeed the water out the door and down a drain.

"But we won't know what the damage is for a couple of days," Painter said.

What will groundhog see?

PUNXSUTAWNEY, Pa. (AP) — Punxsutawney Phil, the pampered groundhog who has become the nation's furry forecaster of spring, is to emerge from his burrow today for the 98th annual prediction on whether winter will last another six weeks.

"I think everybody's waiting to see what he's going to say," Groundhog Club President James Means said Friday.

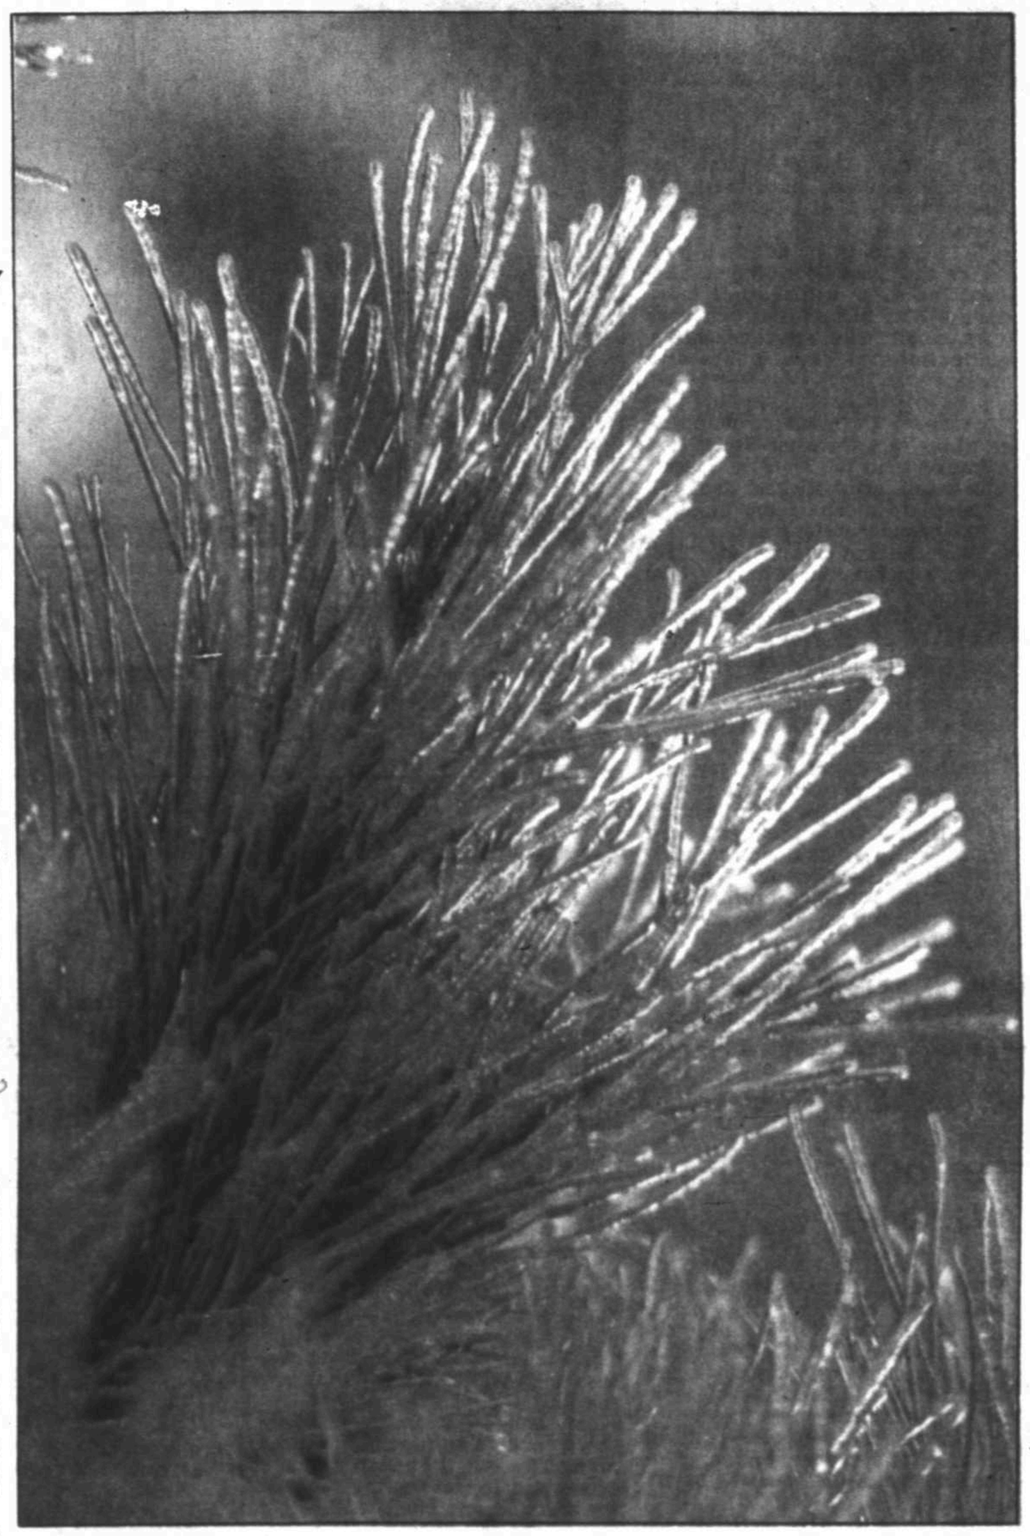

Folklore dictates that if Phil sees his shadow, six more weeks of cold weather follow. If he doesn't, spring arrives soon.

Groundhog Day has grown into an American tradition since local connoisseurs of barbecued groundhog adapted the old German view of the spiny-coated hedgehog as an oracle of spring.

The date, Feb. 2, is linked to Candlemas, a Catholic feast day, and the Scottish saying that "If Candlemas be fair, there be two winters in the year."

Phil and his predecessors have seen their shadows all but five times since the tradition began.

Similar ceremonies are planned for Phil's rivals, Octorara Orphie in Quarryville, and Peanuts at the Philadelphia Zoo.

Needling cold

Ice-encrusted pine needles should start sticking out of the snow today with warmer temperatures and partly cloudy skies in the forecast.

Temperature could reach record -11

From Staff and Wire Reports

Despite five inches of snow on the ground and closed school doors, Midland children seemed to have had trouble traipsing outside Friday because of the confining cold.

Although the all-time low for Midland is -11 degrees, weather service specialists at the National Weather Service said Friday, "we've got a crack at it tonight" with an expected low of -10. The sub-freezing temperatures early this morning should have shattered 1951's record low for this date of -1.

Between 8 p.m. and 10 p.m. Friday, the mercury had dropped from -3 to -7 degrees. "It's been going back and forth," said a NWS spokesman.

With a high today expected to climb into the upper 20s, commercial airline flights are expected to slide back into action late this morning, according to Tracy Lincoln, Midland Regional Airport operations agent.

Three runways had been cleared by the time crews stopped at 4 p.m. Friday, allowing some access for general aviation and private planes, Lincoln said.

"They started (clearing runways) at 5:30 this morning and stopped at 4 p.m.," he said Friday night. "They worked here a long time out there in that cold."

Commercial flights, stranded because runways did not meet minimum safety standards, could start flying this morning. "They"ll start clearing the runways at 8 a.m.," he said.

Icy roads kept Midland police busy investigating "well over 100" minor accidents between 8 a.m. and 9 p.m. Friday, according to a Midland police department officer. The Department of Public Safety said, however, traffic troubles had dropped compared to those reported the first day of snow Thursday.

"They've all been minors," a DPS spokesman said Friday. "It's better than yesterday — especially around here in Midland. Odessa's had a few."

The one-lane traffic on Interstate 20 moved slowly but without any major problems, reports said.

Glasscock County Sheriff's Office reported the worst accident Friday with a 12:30 p.m. head-on collision in Garden City which resulted in a broken arm and leg for one motorist. But for most area towns, slick roads and no school made residents stay inside.

"We've had quite a few fender-benders," said a Howard County Sheriff's Office dispatcher in Big Spring.

"We've got quite a bit of snow and it sure is cold," reported a spokeswoman for Upton County in Rankin.

Although school was let out early in Lamesa and cancelled in Odessa, Stanton, Rankin, Big Lake, Big Spring and Crane, students in Andrews shoved through the snow to a full day of classes.

"I think we're the only ones in the Basin that did go to school today," an Andrews County Sheriff's Office dispatcher said. "Some of 'em were bad-mouthing it."

The students?

"No, it was the parents," she said, laughing.

No utility problems were reported to Energas or TESCO officials and the city's emergency service only reported "a couple" of calls about broken water pipes although more are expected when ice begins to thaw.

Part of the first floor of the Midland County Sheriff's Office was flooded at about 2 p.m. Friday after a water pipe burst above the front of the radio room and Midland firemen emptied water from the pumps of trucks late Friday night to prevent damage.

While Friday's high of 12 degrees was well below the record high for that date of 80, set in 1963, temperatures are expected to improve during the week-end.

Tax service's failure to pay could cost Midlanders

By SUSAN LINDSAY
Business-Oil Writer

Hundreds of Midland County residents expecting to use their 1984 property taxes as an income tax deduction will be in for a bitter disappointment because of a Dallas tax service's failure to pay the taxes, county officials said Friday.

Frances Shuffield, Midland County tax assessor/collector, said Ticor Realty Tax Service had not submitted the property tax payment for Gibraltar Savings accounts by Dec. 31, 1984.

Although the affected residents are not at fault, the Internal Revenue Service will not allow them to claim the deduction in 1984.

"The general rule is if you're a cash basis taxpayer, items are deductible in the year they are paid," Larry Batdorf, spokesman for the IRS national office in Washington, said in an Associated Press story.

Ms. Shuffield said not only will this problem hurt people when completing their income taxes, but they could be penalized for late payment of the taxes if payment was not made before midnight Thursday, the Jan. 31 deadline.

As of this deadline, the Gibraltar accounts were the only ones which had not paid the taxes, Ms. Shuffield said.

In at least some cases, however, Gibraltar customers found that their 1984 state and county taxes had been paid, but taxes for other taxing entities (city, school, etc.) had not been paid.

Ms. Shuffield said she did not know who would pay the late fees but in her opinion, the tax company should have to bear the burden.

It is unknown at this time how many people are affected by the problem.

Tirco's main office is located in Los Angeles, where new accounts are processed. Christy Perez, customer service representative for the main office, said all Texas property taxes are handled out of the Dallas office.

When the company failed to submit the property taxes, the county office mailed late notices to affected Midland residents to inform them of the problem, Ms. Shuffield said.

Mrs. M. Mitchell of Midland, who contacted the Reporter-Telegram, said she was one of the persons who received a letter from the county office.

$40 billion in spending cuts to be proposed

Reagan readies his budget for fiscal 1986

By DAVID ESPO
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — President Reagan will propose a $974 billion budget for the 1986 fiscal year that calls for nearly $40 billion in new spending cuts from domestic programs while recommending an increase of $30 billion for the Pentagon, administration officials said Friday.

Under the president's proposals, the federal government would have its first trillion-dollar budget in fiscal 1987. The documents project that spending would rise to $1.027 trillion that year.

The president's plan calls for declining budget deficits through the end of the decade, but the red ink would not fall below $100 billion until 1990, well after the end of the Reagan presidency.

The plan forecasts revenues of $794 billion and a deficit of about $180 billion, added officials, who spoke only on condition they not be identified. But that assumes the president's budget is accepted in its entirety by Congress, where opposition already is forming to many of the proposals.

The budget — the first of Reagan's second term — contains no call for a tax increase, and the president is expected to send Congress a plan later this year to simplify the income tax code.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said the overall plan is in keeping with the president's wishes to freeze overall government spending.

The $973.7 billion figure would represent an increase of only 1.5 percent over the current year, the smallest rise in years. The administration currently estimates total spending for the fiscal year ending Sept. 30 at $959.1 billion.

"It's a programmatic freeze, a freeze on program outlays," after adjusting for an increase in interest payments, Speakes said. He said the government would pay about $145 billion next year as interest on the national debt.

The president's decision to raise Pentagon spending by nearly $30 billion within the context of a near-freeze overall means a reduction of an estimated $38.8 billion in domestic costs, including a freeze in numerous domestic programs and outright cuts and cancellations in others.

For the eight remaining months of the current fiscal year, the president will recommend a relatively small cut of $1.4 billion, leaving a deficit estimated at $222 billion.

Officials have said previously the president would recommend a sharp reduction in student loans and farm programs, a 5 percent pay cut for federal workers, elimination of federal subsidies for Amtrak and other transportation programs, and canceling programs such as revenue sharing for cities and counties and the Urban Development Action Grant program.

The proposals, which run through 26 pages of program listings, also are expected to include denial of cost-of-living increases next year in federal pension programs. Food stamps and SSI, which provides aid to the very poor, would not be affected. Nor would Social Security benefits be frozen, although Reagan has said he would "look" at a recommendation to cancel that increase, as well, if Congress recommends it.

Another proposal would trim Medicare and Medicaid by $3.7 billion in 1986 and $16.6 billion over three years, according to a list of program cuts that Budget Director David A. Stockman distributed earlier in the week at a meeting with Democratic members of Congress.

One policy shift Reagan is expected to propose is a halt to the Export-Import Bank's $3.8 billion program of loaning funds to foreign countries to enable them to buy U.S.-made industrial products. Officials say the administration will propose instead a program to pay interest subsidies to commercial banks that make export loans.

The budget proposals are certain to set off a confrontation between the White House and Congress, where many Senate Republicans have taken the lead in urging the president to accept less spending for defense than he wants as a way of winning support for some of the more controversial cuts he is proposing in domestic programs.

Working under the direction of Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, the new majority leader, Republicans have been working for weeks on a plan to reduce the deficit by even more than Reagan's recommendations. Party leaders say there is widespread support to enact many of the domestic cuts the president favors, but only if that is coupled with a reduction in the Pentagon buildup.

MIDLAND CENTENNIAL 1885-1985

WEATHER SUMMARY

National Weather Service NOAA, U.S. Dept. of Commerce
AP Laserphoto Map

The National Weather Service predicts snow today for parts of the West, Midwest, Southeast, New York and Pennsylvania. Rain is forecast for parts of the Southeast.

COLD

Skies in the Midland area should remain partly cloudy through Sunday with no mention of snow in the forecast, according to the NWS.

Lows tonight should drop only into middle 20s with highs Sunday expected to rise into the middle 40s.

STATE

A major winter storm fueled by a blast of arctic air dubbed the "Siberian Express" dropped temperatures to bone-chilling lows across Texas and dumped up to 8 inches of snow over northwestern sections of the state Friday.

Forecasters warned of the possibility of more snow as winter storm watches and warnings were posted for most of Texas. Four to 6 inches of snow were forecast for the Dallas-Fort Worth area, while sleet and freezing rain were expected to cripple Houston.

Snow was possible through early Saturday as far south as Victoria, Laredo and Beeville, the National Weather Service said.

A band of snowfall between 3 and 5 inches extended Friday from the Permian Basin from Abilene to the Wichita Falls area, where up to 8 inches fell and drifts of 3 to 5 feet accumulated.

Forecasters said that despite sunny skies that reigned over Wichita Falls at midday Friday, more snow was on the way.

"It makes you think things are going to improve, but they are not going to," said a weather service spokesman.

Travel was impaired over some areas, but temperatures far below freezing resulted in dry snow that did not stick to pavements over much of the northern half of Texas, the weather service said.

State highway crews were busy sanding, salting and plowing highways and roads across Northwest Texas, said Bill Presson, a highway department maintenance supervisor in Wichita Falls.

Over Southeast Texas, a mixture of sleet and freezing rain coated roadways with a dangerous layer of ice.

NATION

About a dozen record low temperatures for the date were broken Friday from Illinois to Idaho, and snow fell from northern Texas to New England.

The coldest was tiny Maybell, Colo., which broke the all-time record for the state with a low of 62 degrees below zero.

At 2 p.m. EST the temperature at San Antonio, Texas, was 23 degrees, compared with 24 at Anchorage, Alaska. Honolulu reached 54 degrees Friday morning, close to the record low temperature for the date of 53.

Snow extended from New England across the lower Great Lakes and Kentucky through northern Tennessee into southern Arkansas, and from northern Texas across southern and eastern New Mexico. Rain along the northern Pacific Coast changed to snow in the mountains and across eastern Washington.

Winter storm warnings extended over central Kentucky, the western two-thirds of Tennessee, much of Mississippi, the northern half of Louisiana and northern Texas.

Travelers' advisories warning of snow and freezing rain reached from southern New Mexico through the central Appalchians. Travelers' advisories warning of snow were posted over the interior portion of western Washington, all of Oregon and the Tahoe Basin.

Substation fire puts Denver in dark

Associated Press

DENVER — A utility substation exploded Friday, cutting electric power to about 360,000 customers in a 36-square-mile area already socked by 11-below zero temperatures.

Three public schools closed, their buildings cold and dark after the blast and fire shortly after 7 a.m.

Power was restored within 30 minutes to 240,000 customers, and was restored to the others by 1:30 p.m., said Larry Pierce, a spokesman for Public Service Co. of Colorado.

Firefighters put out the smoky blaze 1½ hours after being summoned to the Leetsdale substation at 7:25 a.m. No one was injured.

The explosion was due to an equipment failure "and we may never know exactly what it was," said Pierce. The subzero cold did not appear to be a contributing factor, he said.

Temperatures hovered at 4 degrees below zero most of the day, and residents who found their homes without electricity worried about water pipes freezing.

The Red Cross made contingency plans for nursing homes in the area that might have to be evacuated, said Red Cross director J.P. Smith.

Shortly after the fire began, smoke from the blaze rose 2,000 feet into the air above the substation and Denver police called in every available officer to rout rush-hour traffic around the area.

Besides snarling traffic in the area near the fire, the explosion caused widespread problems at intersections throughout southeast Denver because of darkened traffic signals. Police officers directed traffic at major intersections.

The fire began in a substation transformer, said another PSC spokesman Neal Linkon, adding that officials do not know for sure what happened. The transformer exploded, sending smoke and flames hundreds of feet into the air.

The Leetsdale substation is located near George Washington High School, which was evacuated about 45 minutes after the explosion. The school has about 1,500 students and 150 faculty and staff members.

"We have no lights or power, and it is too cold to have students here under these conditions," said school secretary Shirley Weller.

Hill Middle School and Place Middle School also were closed because they were without power.

Nearby businesses were ordered evacuated for a short time as firefighters evaluated the threat from the burning substation. The businesses were allowed to reopen later in the morning.

It originally was feared that polychlorinated biphenyls, a toxic substance suspected to be cancer-causing and often found in power transformers, might be involved. But officials later said the transformer contained mineral oil, not PCBs.

Public Service Co. spokesman Mark Seiverts said the substation contained three banks of transformers, and one of them was lost in the fire.

Customized cars shown

From Staff Reports

A pickup truck called "Frankenstein." A Corvette that would make even the most frightful of monsters shake in his shoes.

It's all part of the Darryl Starbird 1985 Annual National Rod and Custom Car Show scheduled today and Sunday at the Midland College Chaparral Center.

Scheduled from noon-11 p.m. today and from noon-10 p.m. Sunday, the show will feature more than 100 hot rods, custom cars, race cars, motorcycles, street machines, experimental cars, boats and antiques.

Also scheduled both days are performances by monster machine crushing cars "Monster Vette" and "Frankenstein the Monster Truck;" plus escape artist Michael Kent will attempt to escape from under a 12,000 pound monster truck.

Other feature cars include "Trik Truk," a pickup that features a dual controlled cockpit and four front wheels; "TRM 32," Street Rodder Magazine's project roadster designed by Tom McMullen; and "Stuckey's Radical Merc," a nostalgic approach to a modern custom car built from a 1951 Mercury.

Concert performances by the Bop Cats from 3-8 p.m. Saturday and from 2-5 p.m. Sunday; stage performances featuring Michael the Magician from 2-7 p.m. Saturday and from 1-5 p.m. Sunday; and the International English Leather Calendar Contest at 7:30 p.m. Saturday and again at 2:30 p.m. Sunday also are scheduled.

Tickets are available at $6 for adults, $4 for juniors (ages 10-14) and $2 for children (ages 6-9). Children five years and under are admitted free if accompanied by an adult.

Stereo system reported stolen

From Staff Reports

A Midland man told police his $1,000 stereo system was stolen from a friend's apartment Thursday.

Howard Dorn, 2438 Whitmire, Apt. 17-A, said three men came to the door of apartment 18-E at 8 a.m. and told his friend they were there to pick up the stereo.

Dorn said his friend allowed them to take the stereo because he thought one of the men was Dorn's cousin.

Also taken was $180 worth of record albums and cassette tapes, according to reports.

The head janitor of Sam Houston Elementary School, 2000 W. Louisiana Ave., reported a burglary in which $740 in damage was done.

Abel Contreras said the school office was broken into between 7:05 p.m. Thursday and 6:30 a.m. Friday. A small amount of nickels and dimes were taken and a pencil dispenser, computer print-out, glass table top and human skeleton display were damaged.

DEATHS

Bobbie Mosher

SAN BENITO — Funeral services for Bobbie Mosher, 82, formerly of Midland, will be at 4 p.m. Monday at First Presbyterian Church in Midland. She died Wednesday at Valley Baptist Hospital in Harlingen.

Mrs. Mosher was born in Louisiana and had lived in San Benito for the past 10 months.

She is survived by one daughter, Molly M. Arnett of South Padre Island; one brother, Joe P. Bowdlin of Fort Worth; and two neices, Melissa and Susan Bradley of Midland.

The family requsts that memorials be sent to Trinity Towers of Midland.

Congressman's visit canceled

From Staff Reports

A scheduled appearance by former Congressman Kent Hance today in Midland has been canceled due to poor weather conditions.

Hance was to appear at 5 p.m. today at Ramada Inn, 3100 W. Wall St. in Midland, to speak on the future of the Democratic Party in the state. The Texas Young Democrats' convention scheduled to precede Hance's speech has also been canceled.

The convention and speech are to be scheduled for later in the spring, according to Michael Higgins, president of the local Young Democrats chapter.

Oath of office

David Reagan, right, takes the oath as new city attorney from City Secretary Bill Clanton during swearing-in ceremonies Friday afternoon at City Hall. As numerous city employees watched, Reagan became the second city attorney in 25 years, replacing Joe Nuessle who retired Thursday.

Dallas man finds 'hero' glitter 'tarnishing' with all the attention

DALLAS (AP) — For Dick Cockrell, being a hero has its drawbacks — far more than he ever imagined when he came to the aid of a woman and her two daughters and single-handedly beat three would-be assailants into submission.

The luster began to tarnish after his picture appeared in newspapers and Dallas County commissioners passed a resolution honoring him. Strangers began stopping him in public to ask his advice. Women he didn't know asked him out and the phone began ringing in the middle of the night.

In January 1980, at a highway rest area in East Texas, Cockrell came to the aid of a woman and her two young daughters who were being threatened at knifepoint by three men. The barrell-chested truck driver and former Marine subdued the trio and left them writhing in pain on the ground.

Although Cockrell says his life has returned to normal, he says his unexpected celebrity status brought him countless hassles and headaches. He also has expressed sympathy for Bernard Goetz, the gunman who shot four teen-agers after they allegedly demanded money from him in a New York City subway.

"Goetz did what everybody else wishes they had the guts to do," Cockrell said.

Cockrell, who drives a truck for the Kroger supermarket chain, said his experience brought him international attention — and a passel of troubles.

"After the first couple days, the newness wears off, and it's a hassle," Cockrell told the Dallas Times Herald. "There were calls in the middle of the night. I got letters from women who wanted to get married ... and I got letters from the (John) Birch Society. They wanted white supremacy."

Cockrell estimates he received as many as 6,000 letters, most of them from well-wishers and admirers. Some of the telephone calls came from as far away as West Germany and Australia.

"It was just people who said thanks for what you did," he said. "They said, 'I'm glad somebody stood up.' "

Spurred by news reports that some well-wishers had sent him cash gifts as tokens of their admiration, the Internal Revenue Service audited him, Cockrell said. Young toughs tried to fight him and hucksters pestered him to turn his story into a movie — for a fee.

Some even said the heroic event was a fake.

"I don't believe it ever happened," said Van Zandt County Sheriff Wayne Miller.

Miller said his office attempted to locate the three men supposedly beaten and injured, but could not find them.

Four-year-old jacks up truck, saves trapped father's life

WILLIAMSTOWN, Ky. (AP) — A 4-year-old boy who loves tinkering with the jack in the family garage used the device to save his father, who had been pinned under a 2-ton truck.

Charles Bowen, 33, was working under the truck when it fell off the jack, breaking his hip and pressing against his abdomen. He shouted to his son, Brandon, was playing nearby.

"Daddy's trapped son. You're going to have to help me. Get a jack handle," he recalled saying.

While Brandon retrieved a ratchet, his father groped with one arm and slipped the jack under the rear springs.

"I told him he had to jack the truck up. Before I could say anything else, he grabbed a long ratchet I have and put it in the jack handle. He jacked it up a little bit and said, 'I can't jack it any further.'

"I pumped the handle a couple of times, but I was about to pass out and I couldn't go any longer. Then Brandon did it a couple more times and the truck was off me," said Bowen, who was in serious condition Friday at Booth Memorial Hospital.

"He's been around my garage before, and he's always playing with the jack," the father said. "He was real cool about the whole thing. He knew what to do and wasted no time."

The brave boy, who weighs 30 pounds, didn't stop there. Bowen had been lying on a a rolling platform, and the child grabbed his father's foot and pulled him out. Brandon then raced next door to get a neighbor to call for an ambulance.

Ambulance attendants credited Brandon for saving his father's life.

"We were expecting the worst," said Elsie Dever, a member of the rescue squad that answered the call Monday from Bowen's shop in Williamstown.

Father and son were reunited two days after the accident, and again Brandon came to the rescue as Bowen searched for words to thank the boy.

"He came in and stood there about ready to cry," Bowen said. "And then he jumped up here and hugged me. I guess that said it all."

TAXES

She said she called the Gibraltar office in Houston, where a woman told her to send the late notice to the Houston office and she would see to it that her taxes would be paid without late fees.

Mrs. Mitchell said she has not been able to contact the company again.

"I have a feeling that they've made money on our taxes for the last 31 days," she said, adding that she suspects she will have to pay late fees. "I don't believe it's just in Midland or Lubbock. It's everywhere. They (Tirco) can't afford to pay penalties on all of this but someone will."

Another caller to the newspaper said a spokesman at Gibraltar's Houston office told him, "There is nothing Gibraltar can do. We have received many complaints from our customers and we're telling them they will be able to claim the 1984 taxes paid as a deduction on their 1985 tax return."

The caller said the spokesman added, "Actually, you will be able to double up on your deduction for 1985."

Sergeant receives bronze star after wait of 18 years

By BOB ASHLEY

FORT HOOD (AP) — It took a while, almost 18 years, but Sgt. 1st Class Kenneth Stephens has finally received his just reward — the bronze star.

Stephens received the citation, one of the army's highest awards, recently for actions he took on March 21, 1967.

On that day, Stephens and other members of the 3rd Battalion, 22nd Infantry, 3rd Brigade, 4th Armored Division were under attack from the Viet Cong. Stephens, who was then 20 and a specialist four radio operator, received a call from two wounded soldiers who needed help.

While going to help the soldiers, Stephens came under fire. He immediately returned fire, killing several enemy soldiers. He then pulled the two wounded soldiers to safety. In that battle, a total of 649 Viet Cong were killed and 10 captured, while only 33 Americans died. The citation presented to Stephens said his actions demonstrated his "personal bravery and devotion to duty."

Division commander Maj. Gen. Richard Scholtes said it was a special honor to finally present the award to Stephens — now assigned to the 502nd Adjutant Generals Company, 2nd Armored Divison — since he had not personally presented any awards for valor since 1971.

Scholtes said the delay in honoring Stephens came about when the commander of Stephens' old 4th Armored Division ran out of medals for soldiers who had fought in the battle. Stephens was one of those who did not receive the award. And since the unit was being redesignated, the paperwork for his award was lost.

"Back then if they had pinned it on me I would have thrown it over in a corner and it wouldn't have meant anything."
— Sgt. 1st Class Kenneth Stephens

News releases, however, were sent out to his hometown newspaper telling of his heroic acts, and Stephens even received a letter from his state senator congratulating him.

Several months ago at a party, Stephens recounted the story to his superior, Lt. Col. Joseph Simek, the division adjutant general. Simek told him to get any documentation of the event and give it to him.

Simek said he then submitted documentation to officials in Washington, D.C., who studied it for about three months before deciding the award should be presented.

"When somebody does something for the Army, the Army owes the award to them," Scholtes said.

"It feels strange (to receive the award)," Stephens said.

Nicholson's seedy gumshoe may be back in 'Two Jakes'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jake Gittes, Jack Nicholson's seedy gumshoe in "Chinatown," may soon make another appearance in "Two Jakes."

The sequel to "Chinatown" has finally come together in a deal between Nicholson, writer-director Robert Towne and producer Robert Evans in which each of them wears two hats.

Evans, a former actor, will star as the heavy, real estate tycoon Jake Berman. Besides starring as the private eye, Nicholson will also produce with Evans. Towne, who wrote the original and the sequel, will direct. Roman Polanski directed "Chinatown" and played a small-time hood.

"Two Jakes" is set in 1948, 11 years after the first movie. The same piece of real estate that formed the battleground for 'Chinatown" will be fought over again. This time, it involves oil instead of water.

Nicholson, Towne, Evans and executive producer Frank Mancuso Jr. will not be paid for their work, but will gamble on their share of the box office receipts.

Man finds his 'poster is in the mail'

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — City policeman John Heck thought he'd lost his "Hellcats of the Navy" movie poster when he tried to get it autographed by the star of the 1957 submarine melodrama. But the poster has surfaced, and now it bears President Reagan's signature.

"I was very, very lucky," said Heck, who lost track of the reproduction of a "Hellcats" box-office poster during the presidential campaign. It turned up in the mail earlier this week.

Heck, who collects old movie posters, made arrangements to get the autograph Oct. 12, when Reagan launched a whistle-stop tour here.

A friend with access to the train took the poster aboard for Heck. The plan was for Reagan to sign it between cities and send it back at the end of the day.

But Heck didn't get his poster back, and it seemed that it had been lost in the shuffle. Until this week.

Heck said he would give the poster a special place in his collection.

"Of course, it's a one-of-a-kind with his signature," Heck said. "I think it's worth more than the original now."

But the poster may be on the move again. Heck says he's thinking of trying to get the autograph of Reagan's "Hellcats" co-star — Nancy Reagan.

Texas Democrats: Kirk not 'handicap'

By KATHRYN BAKER
Associated Press Writer

STATE

WASHINGTON — State Democratic Chairman Bob Slagle, who lost Friday in his attempt to get former North Carolina Gov. Terry Sanford elected national Democratic chairman, said he hoped the election of Kennedy associate Paul G. Kirk Jr. would not be a "handicap" in Texas.

"We did our best and we didn't make it, so you just go ahead and move forward," said a disappointed Slagle after Kirk won the chairmanship over Sanford by a 203-151 vote of the Democratic National Committee.

Texas' delegation split 6-5 for Sanford.

Slagle was not the only unhappy Texan at the DNC meeting. At a news conference after it adjourned, Houston Congressman Mickey Leland, chairman of the DNC Black Caucus, said Illinois Comptroller Roland Burris, newly elected as national vice chairman, acted like an "Uncle Tom."

"The process that we have is protective of black people's interests," Leland said. "And when you violate the process, you violate the black people's interests. I think the classic term is 'Uncle Tom.'"

Leland said the caucus' black candidate was Gary, Ind., Mayor Richard Hatcher. But he lost to Burris, who campaigned on his own. By doing so, Burris "violated the integrity of the caucus," Leland said in a telephone interview.

"Note, I did not call him an Uncle Tom," Leland said. "I said that was the classic term for someone who would do something like that."

The DNC is holding its first meeting since the party lost to Ronald Reagan in a landslide in November.

Kirk, DNC treasurer, has close ties to Massachusetts Sen. Edward Kennedy. Slagle said he thought it "extremely important" that the party's "first major statement after November be a moderate image by election of a moderate chairman."

Sue Pate, a DNC member from Bridge City, gave a nominating speech for Kirk. She said he had come to Texas and convinced her that "he wants our help in governing the party, and that's what our party needs."

"I think he has the best image, I think he's the best speaker, I think he's a committed man. I'm sold on him," she said.

Ms. Pate predicted that Texas DNC members would unite behind Kirk. Sanford stood at the podium and led the applause for Kirk after the election, but Slagle did not exactly rush to jump on a bandwagon.

"Well, the national chairman's not that relevant to state parties," he said. "We'll do our own thing in the South and we'll keep working and building our parties and hopefully the new chairman will not be a handicap in doing that."

Texas Democrats failed to win a Senate race in November after an extremely close three-way primary race and an even closer runoff between conservative Congressman Kent Hance of Lubbock and liberal Austin State Sen. Lloyd Doggett. Doggett lost by a wide margin to conservative Republican Phil Gramm.

Republicans, profiting from a wave of GOP straight-ticket voting and the Reagan wave, turned four Democratic congressional seats over to the Republican column, picked up 16 seats in the state House, one state Senate seat, and won in many local races that had always been Democratic.

Many Texas Democrats, including Slagle, blamed the losses at least partly on the liberal image of the national party and its national ticket.

Researchers theorize diet of cave men

BOSTON (AP) — Cave men who tracked down mammoths and gathered wild roots ate a high-protein, low-fat diet rich in vitamins and fiber and researchers say this Stone Age cuisine might serve as a model for the fast-food generation.

The researchers reasoned that modern people are genetically programmed to eat the kind of food that was available to their forebears, so they set out to learn the nutritional content of the Cro-Magnon menu.

"I personally think this is a paradigm (model) for an ideal human diet," said Dr. S. Boyd Eaton. "You hear people talk about a natural diet. To them, it's what their grandparents ate. Actually, a natural diet is what our genes are adapted for."

The study, published today in the New England Journal of Medicine, estimates that Stone Age people ate three times as much protein as now but only half as much fat. They also took in twice as much fiber and calcium and four times as much vitamin C.

Eaton noted that genetically, at least, humans have remained virtually unchanged for 40,000 years. But the things they eat are far different.

"While genetic evolution is extraordinarily slow, cultural evolution is extremely fast," he said. "So our genes are now the genes of hunter-gatherers in conflict with the lifestyle and environment of 20th century, industrialized society."

The research, conducted by Eaton and Melvin Konner at Emory University and involving information drawn from 80 studies, tries to reconstruct the nutrition of the Paleolithic period, roughly 10,000 to 1.6 million years ago.

"The diet of our remote ancestors may be a reference standard for modern human nutrition and a model for defense against certain 'diseases of civilization," they wrote.

It's the second recent study to suggest that modern man might learn something from his ancestors when it comes to diet. Dr. Louis Tobian Jr. of the University of Minnesota, recently suggested that the potentially high potassium content of the cave man diet also might be worth copying. Some experts believe potassium can protect people from high blood pressure and other diseases.

At Johns Hopkins University, anthropologist Pat Shipman said the findings are not likely to surprise people who have studied human evolution.

"But medical people are usually not particularly aware of the evolutionary past of our species," she said. "From that point of view, I think it's a very valuable contribution to alert people to the fact that as you explore relationships between diet and health in modern people, you are not only looking at what's going on now. You are looking at what's gone on before, as well."

Eaton and Konner theorize that the Stone Age diet was about 65 percent fruits and vegetables and 35 percent meat. Their meat, though, was far leaner than the beef to which Americans are accustomed.

Modern beef is 25 percent or 30 percent fat, while the wild game that nourished human ancestors was only about 5 percent fat, and the fat was higher in polyunsaturates.

The researchers estimated that the Stone Age diet was 34 percent protein, 45 percent carbohydrate and 21 percent fat. The current American diet is 12 percent protein, 46 percent carbohydrate and 42 percent fat.

The fat eaten today is largely saturated, while the fat in the cave man's diet was primarily polyunsaturated.

Many experts believe that saturated fat contributes to heart disease, which is the leading killer of modern times, while polyunsaturated fat protects against it.

The modern diet might play a role in other diseases, too, such as some forms of cancer, high blood pressure and diabetes. Such links between diet and health are still controversial, but Eaton says his research should give scientists a new point of view as they explore them.

Family members slain near scene of other multiple murder

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON — Four members of a Houston family were brutally slain at their home early Friday, among them a father whose body had been set afire, police said.

The bodies of Henry Lewis Sr., 42; his wife, Mary, 42; and their sons, Henry Jr., 22, and Byron, 13, were discovered by another son when he returned home early Friday, police Sgt. J.C. Mosier said.

Mrs. Lewis and her two sons had been shot at close range and the father possibly had been shot and stabbed before his body was set afire.

There were no signs of a forced entry into the southwest Houston home, which was ransacked, Mosier said. No motive was immediately known. Police said they either let their assailant in or perhaps the house was left unlocked.

Friends and neighbors described the family as "quiet, hardworking Christians."

Reginald Lewis, 20, who discovered the carnage, was being questioned by authorities Friday, Mosier said.

Linda Rideaux, the Lewis' next door neighboor, said she was awakened about 2:40 a.m. by someone screaming outside her bedroom window.

"I saw a figure running out of the house screaming, 'I've got to get my mother out!'" Mrs. Rideaux said.

Arson investigators combed the brick home in a tree-lined, middle-class subdivision on Houston's southwest side.

Jean Price Grant, who described herself as the family's closest friend, huddled outside the home with neighbors.

"This is just like a nightmare," Mrs. Grant said. "I can't believe it. They were such good, hard-working Christian people."

Mosier said at least three of the victims had been shot at close range and were found in different parts of the house.

"According to the son, he came home shortly after 2 a.m. and found his mother, two brothers and his father dead in the house," Mosier said.

Houston Fire Department spokesman Russell Dunnem said firefighters arrived at the Missouri City subdivision shortly after 2:30 a.m. and found the burned body of a man in the hallway.

The body apparently had been doused with a flammable liquid, ignited, and a neighbor extinguished the flames, Dunnem said.

Air Force reviewing drug cases

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The Air Force is notifying hundreds of current and former airmen discharged or disciplined because of drug use that they may win reinstatement or an upgrading of their personnel files because the military has changed its testing standards.

The soldiers were accused of drug use before stricter forensic standards were imposed at Brooks Air Force Base's drug abuse detection laboratory and at other military drug use detection facilities.

The soldiers will be given instructions on how to go about winning re-enlistment or a change in the status of their military records, said Capt. Carlos Roque of the Air Force's Manpower and Personnel Center at Randolph Air Force Base.

The new forensic standards were set after a blue ribbon military panel headed by Maj. Gen. David Einsel reviewed testing at the Brooks lab and at the Army drug test lab in Wiesbaden, West Germany, and at Trippler Army Medical Center in Hawaii.

The tests under review were conducted between April 1982 and November 1983.

The Einsel commission, in issuing its findings in December 1983, said it uncovered no evidence of any false positives at the labs.

STATE in brief

Horses to be auctioned

DALLAS (AP) — The 62 horses in the estate of convicted swindler Peggy Stines are literally eating up the assets — so the federal government plans to put them on the auction block.

"They're multiplying like rabbits," said Richard Hull, appointed receiver for the estate pending resolution of a suit filed against Mrs. Stines by the Securities and Exchange Commission. "They're costing us more every month. They're depleting the assets, and we're not getting anything from them."

The horses — including 15 colts born since last August — will be auctioned off to the highest bidder on Feb. 9, officials say.

Teacher tests ordered

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Education Agency was advised Friday to make all current public school teachers take competency tests, with no exceptions.

The recommendation came from a special advisory committee of seven state and national experts on educational testing standards.

Several members of the advisory group also questioned the need for the examination to find misfit teachers.

The advisory group's recommendation will be made to the personnel committee of the State Board of Education at its Feb. 8 meeting.

Adoption fight ends

FORT WORTH (AP) — A New York City woman says she has run out of money — and the spirit — to continue her legal fight to reclaim the baby she gave up for adoption.

"I don't think I have much of a chance anymore," said Barbara Landry, 20, after learning the Texas Supreme Court had rejected her case Wednesday.

Ms. Landry, who has been fighting the Edna Gladney Home in Fort Worth, once said she would go to the U.S. Supreme Court to regain the girl she delivered on Feb. 10, 1984.

The legal battle began after Ms. Landry attempted to revoke an affidavit terminating her parental rights. She said she wanted her baby, but officials of the Edna Gladney Home said the infant was no longer hers and had been placed with a couple planning to adopt the child.

Ms. Landry said she had been unfairly pressured into giving up her parental rights.

Death ruled homicide

FORT WORTH (AP) — A medical examiner has ruled homicide in the death of a 23-year-old woman whose body was found by a survey crew in far south Fort Worth.

But Dr. Nizam Peerwani refused Thursday to pinpont how Catherine Davis was killed. Ms. Davis was the latest of several missing women from southwest Fort Worth who have been found slain.

"We ruled the manner of death as homicide. We left the cause of death as undetermined," Peerwani said. "In our opinion, it would be wrong to discuss (autopsy results) in depth, but we do have a fair amount of evidence that will come out later."

Peerwani said only that Ms. Davis was not shot to death.

Driver won't be charged

SHEFFIELD (AP) — The driver of a pickup truck that turned over and killed five illegal aliens will not be charged with criminal negligence in connection with the deaths, investigators say.

However, federal authorities have lodged a charge of transporting illegal aliens against the man, who was being held Friday in Del Rio.

Authorities said five other people riding in the truck were injured in the accident near Sheffield. A Dallas man who was driving the vehicle escaped injury.

Three witnesses who reported the wreck at 7:15 p.m. Wednesday told police they saw two men leaving the scene of the accident.

The accident occurred when the pickup descended a steep hill while traveling north on Texas Highway 349. According to police reports, the driver lost control of the vehicle while rounding a sharp curve.

Former Kennedy aide chosen to head Democratic committee

By EVANS WITT
AP Political Writer

Kirk

WASHINGTON — Former Kennedy aide Paul Kirk was elected chairman of the Democratic National Committee on Friday and declared the time has come to end "the soul-searching...the identity crisis of the Democratic Party."

Kirk, treasurer of the party since 1983, defeated former North Carolina Gov. Terry Sanford in the voting by the 378-member DNC at its annual winter meeting. Sanford was the only remaining challenger after two others dropped out at the last minute to support Sanford.

The vote for Kirk was 203.07 to 150.93.

Kirk, who served for eight years on the staff of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., spoke of the need for the party to recover from the series of overwhelming presidential defeats by the Republicans and to try to reclaim the status as the majority party of the country that it has lost to the surging fortunes of the GOP and President Reagan.

"After suffering four out of five defeats at the national level, a little Democratic candor may be good for our soul," he told the DNC after winning. "This is not a cheeringleading speech. It is a time for sober reflection on where we are and where we are going.

"Today, the soul-searching has ended...it is the end of the identity crisis of the Democratic Party. And let today mark the day that the Democratic Party goes back to work to reclaim its rightful and legitimate heritage as the party that speaks to the aspirations of the future for all Americans," he added.

A 1960 graduate of Harvard College and a 1964 graduate of Harvard Law School, Kirk, 46, practiced law in Boston before going to work for Kennedy in 1969. After leaving Kennedy's staff, Kirk went back to work as a lawyer in Washington and Boston. He was chairman of Kennedy's 1980 presidential bid.

Supporters of Kirk's opponents — Sanford, former California state chairman Nancy Pelosi and party professional Robert Keefe — questioned whether Kirk could be independent of Kennedy, particularly as Kennedy is mentioned as a prime contender for the party's presidential nomination in 1988.

But Kirk overcame those doubts and had strong support from union representatives and from the Northeast as well as surprising strength in the West. Much of Sanford's support came from the South, where party office-holders had encouraged and backed his candidacy.

Kirk praised each of his former opponents, and Sanford in turn declared the "true path of the Democratic Party has to be ... unity.

May parole planned for longtime fugitive

By ARTHUR BUCKLER
Associated Press Writer

HARRISBURG, Pa. — A convicted burglar who escaped from prison and led a crime-free life for 12½ years until his recapture last fall will be paroled in May, the state Board of Probation and Parole said Friday.

Gartner

But the inmate's wife and a state senator criticized the decision, saying Richard Gartner should be released immediately from the state prison in nearby Camp Hill.

"I think it's outrageous," said Sen. H. Craig Lewis, who had lobbied for Gartner's freedom.

"I'm upset and I'm mad because he should be home. He should have been able to leave that place and come home," said Jeannie Gartner, who said she's running out of money with her husband absent.

Gartner, now 34, walked away from a prison forestry camp in April 1972, hitchhiked home to Bucks County, started a family and paid state and federal taxes under his own name for more than a decade, he said in a recent interview.

Before the escape, he had served five months of a six-year sentence for a string of burglaries which he said took in less than $300.

No one tried to capture him until his arrest last November by the Fugitive Investigative Strike Team, a federal-state operation that nabbed 3,300 fugitives in the northeast United States over two months.

Since his arrest, Gartner has been in solitary confinement because of the escape charge against him. With the dropping of that charge last month, he probably will be moved to the general population, prison officials said.

While out of prison, Gartner worked for a trash carting firm, then started his own hauling business. He married and had four children, who now range in age from 6 to 10 years old.

Lewis and Mrs. Gartner said they had expected the board to parole Gartner immediately.

"How can they do this?" she asked. "Rick has to come home. We're broke. I've used everything we have."

Mrs. Gartner said she never took a job during their marriage. "Rick's always been a good father and husband," she said.

"By any human and compassionate analysis of the circumstances, all observers agreed that Mr. Gartner should not be incarcerated," Lewis said. "All of the subjective factors that are supposed to go into a parole decision have been totally ignored by the board," he added.

The board insisted it had considered what Gartner called his "self-rehabilitation."

"The board recognizes the 12½ years of satisfactory adjustment subsequent to your escape from the forestry camp," the panel told the inmate in its unsigned decision.

However, the board said it decided to require Gartner to serve slightly more than six months after his arrest Nov. 10 because at the time of his escape he would have been eligible for parole in six months.

The board members refused to speak with reporters about the decision, according to Alva Meader, the board's executive secretary.

Lewis said he expected Gartner's attorney to file an immediate appeal of the decision.

Indiana prisoners take hostages

By JOHN STRAUSS
Associated Press Writer

PENDLETON, Ind. — Inmates with knives attacked guards at a maximum-security prison Friday, taking over a cellblock and holding three officers hostage, officials said. One of the three was released 5½ hours later.

Five guards were hospitalized with stab wounds, four of them in critical condition, authorities said. Two inmates were also injured.

Guard Dana Millstead, 29, of Daleville was released about 2 p.m. Friday, prison officials said.

In return for the release, authorities said, they allowed an inmate suffering from hypertension to go to the prison infirmary.

Inmates were negotiating with correction department officials by telephone, but officials did not discuss their demands. However, in a telephone call to reporters at the reformatory, inmates said they were presenting 22 demands.

Prison guards wearing riot gear and carrying pump shotguns and tear gas cannisters sealed off the Indiana State Reformatory, about 35 miles northeast of Indianapolis, after the disturbance that began about 8:30 a.m. Friday while inmates were being searched for weapons, said Craig A. Hanks, assistant prison superintendent.

Authorities said three inmates were directly involved in the takeover, and about 100 prisoners were in the cellblock.

Callers to local news outlets who identified themselves as inmates said they were armed with knives and other weapons but that the hostages had not been harmed. They also said "about 17" inmates were involved in the siege and that it was sparked by poor treatment by guards.

The demands telephoned to reporters included adequate food and water, an impartial observation committee to monitor their return to cells, amnesty for participants, minimum wages for work, ending censorship and improving education and narcotics programs.

The weapons search stemmed from an incident in which an inmate threw a substance believed to have been bleach on a correction officer, Hanks said.

During the shakedown, Lincoln Love, an inmate in the reformatory's maximum-restraint unit, assaulted a staff member with a knife, Hanks said. Love was subdued, Hanks said.

Four other inmates then went to the shift supervisor's office and assaulted officers there, he said.

The incident spread to the infirmary and then moved to J-Cellblock, where "staff members were taken hostage," Hanks said. "There were some shots fired when the guards saw all this melee in the yard (with the inmates running about)."

"Apparently, the arrest of Love started the incident," Hanks said.

Love, 32, was in good condition at Indianapolis' Wishard Hospital, where a spokeswoman said he suffered from a head wound. Another inmate was in serious condition with knife wounds in the back, a fractured wrist and contusions on the right leg and arm, officials said.

Prison officials identified the remaining hostages as correction counselor John Weist of Indianapolis and officer Carl Ingalls of New Castle.

Four of the injured guards were listed in critical condition and one was in satisfactory condition, said Martin King of St. Johns Medical Center in Anderson. Two others were treated and released, officials said.

Two men who called The Indianapolis News on Friday morning identified themselves as inmates Charles Murphy and Dallas Radford. Authorities said they could not confirm whether the men were inmates.

Radford said two inmates had been beaten, and the action was in response to "repeated" poor treatment of inmates by guards.

Murphy said he believed "about 17" prisoners were involved in the disturbance.

An inmate who also identified himself as Charles Murphy told radio station WTLC an inmate had been beaten Friday "so severely that he was taken to Wishard, according to Mr. Owen. When this was heard in the population, it was decided it was time to retaliate. And the only way to do this was to take hostages to force administration to do something," he said.

NATION IN BRIEF

Soviets building radar?

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan accused the Soviet Union on Friday of constructing an illegal radar in central Siberia and two other violations of arms control agreements with the United States.

Reagan said in a report to Congress the Soviets had failed to correct or explain their actions. He said, however, that he would proceed with arms treaty negotations while insisting that the Soviets change their ways.

"Strict compliance with all provisions of arms control agreements is fundamental, and this administration will not accept anything less," Reagan said.

The report reviewed Soviet practices under a wide range of treaties, including those limiting offensive weapons and defensive systems as well as restricting weapons tests.

Brazil will try to pay

WASHINGTON (AP) — Brazilian President-elect Tancredo Neves, after a meeting with President Reagan, promised Friday that his government will do all it can to repay the nation's $100 billion foreign debt because to do otherwise could mean a "total rupture" of the international financial system.

Speaking to a National Press Club luncheon, Neves said he was making the pledge despite the "very turbulent" impact on the Brazilian economy of fluctuations in U.S. interest rates.

The 74-year-old leader, who was elected two weeks ago, said a one-point increase in the U.S. prime rate means a $400 million increase in Brazil's foreign debt.

Warrant introduced

LAWTON, Okla. (AP) — Special District Judge Allen McCall allowed the prosecution to introduce into evidence Friday a search warrant FBI agents used to check a hotel room where two Lawton men accused of a Geronimo bank robbery were staying.

The warrant was introduced in the fifth day of a preliminary hearing for Jay Wesley Neill, 19, and Robert Grady Johnson, 22, both of Lawton. The two are accused of four counts of first-degree murder in connection with the deaths of four people at the First Bank of Chattanooga branch at Geronimo on Dec. 14. Three people were wounded in the robbery in the farming community south of Lawton.

1960 sit-in recreated

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — One of the four students who ordered coffee and donuts at a segregated lunch counter 25 years ago reenacted on Friday the event that touched off civil rights demonstrations across the South.

"The reception is quite different today," David Richmond, 43, of Greensboro said after ordering an apple pie and coffee — the same items he was refused at the segregated downtown F.W. Woolworth counter on Feb. 1, 1960. "I'm enjoying things now."

The other three former North Carolina A&T State University students who were refused service with Richmond in 1960 did not attend the re-enactment.

They are Franklin McCain, 43, an executive at Celanese Corp. in Charlotte; Joseph McNeil, 42, an Air Force recruiter from New Bedford, N.Y., and Jibreel Khazan, 43, who changed his name from Ezell Blair Jr. when he became an Orthodox Muslim in 1970 and works with disabled adults in New Bedford, Mass.

Abortion clinics blocked

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — A Roman Catholic bishop won a key victory Friday in his court battle to keep two abortion clinics from opening when a judge ruled that the state improperly approved the abortion services.

Albany Roman Catholic Bishop Howard Hubbard's suit to overturn the Health Department approval for the abortion clinics was the first such challenge by a Roman Catholic diocese in the state and possibly in the nation, according to state and church officials.

State lawyers said the case was probably the first in the nation in which an anti-abortion group sought to block the opening of abortion clinics by challenging a state agency's processing of the clinic's application.

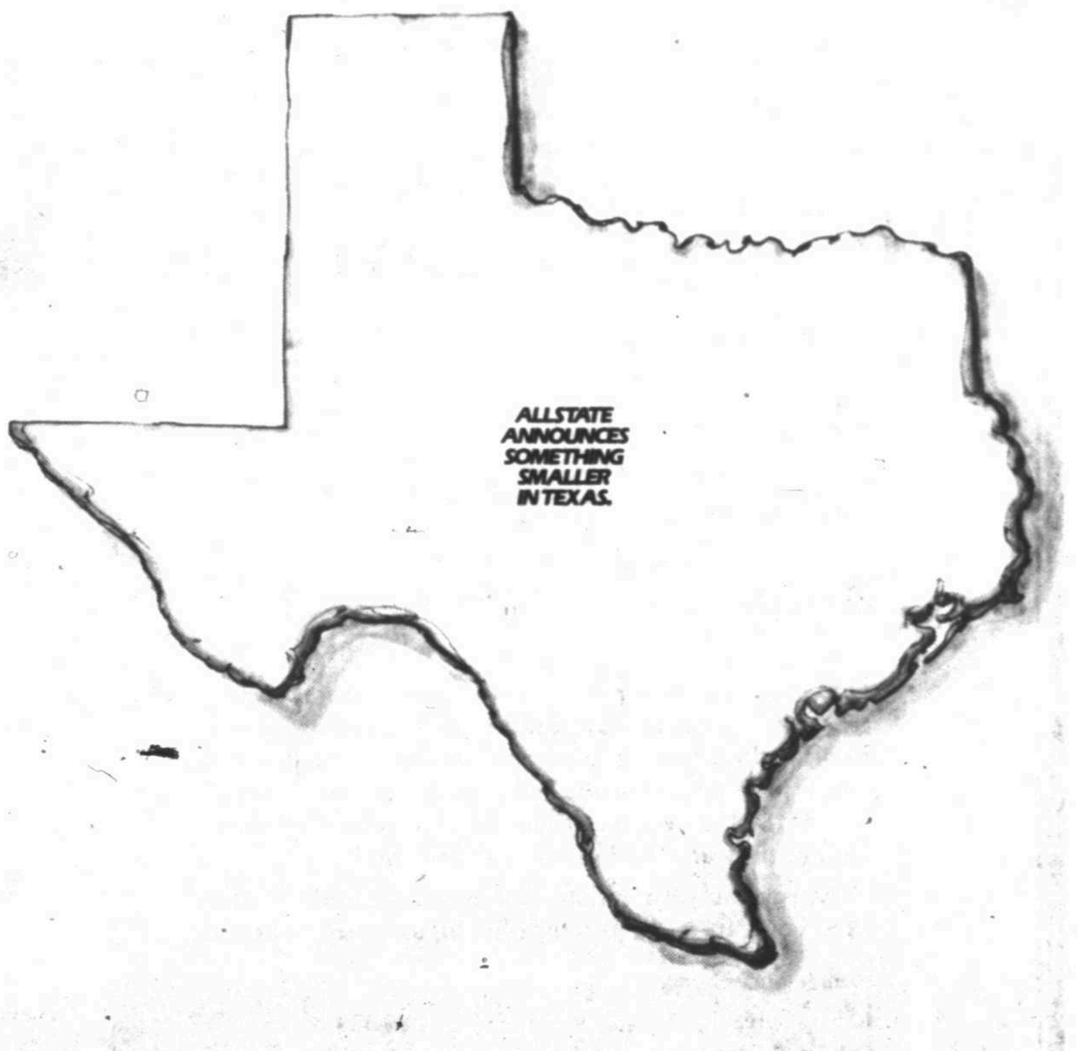

Farmers getting help

WASHINGTON (AP) — Help is on the way for farmers caught in the most severe credit crunch in decades, Reagan administration and congressional leaders said Friday as they pieced together an aid package that includes at least $650 million in farm loan guarantees.

But even Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan., who was a central figure in working out the compromise plan, said it was "a Band-Aid, it's not a solution. There's no way the federal government is going to go out and rescue everyone who may be in difficulty, in agriculture or in any other area."

Sign maker lets creations speak for him

MIDLAND (AP) — Bob Birth is a man of few words.

A neon sign maker and glass blower, he lets his colorful incandescent creations speak for him.

"I was always interested in sign lettering," the 61-year-old semi-retired sign maker said as he heated a length of glass tubing on one of three special burners.

Birth said he has been crafting the signs for 34 years after attending a neon sign school in Denton.

While techniques can be taught, Birth said, years of hands-on experience are necessary to get the feel of shaping the glass.

"Bob is one of the best I've ever seen," said Jack Brady, a Midland sign company owner who uses Birth's services.

Birth sold Brady his sign business about five years ago.

The 34-year-old Brady said the use of neon in signs has ebbed and flowed through the years since Frenchman Georges Claude ushered in the commercial applications of the rare gas in the early 1900s.

The heyday of the large, outdoor animated neon signs was prior to World War II, he said.

Neon sign use continued in the 1950s, but slowly waned, he said.

The advent of plastic signs illuminated by florescent lighting has slowly replaced neon, he said.

BUT NEON is enjoying a renaissance in artistic endeavors, Brady said.

Brady, who does the neon design work that Birth brings to fruition, said he still gets some orders for the old-fashioned "open" and "vacancy" signs.

The bygone days of neon signs are all right with Birth. He said he would rather be playing golf, pitching horseshoes or "wood choppin'" at his house near Cloudcroft, N.M.

"It's just something to do part time," Birth said.

As the demand for neon signs has declined in the wake of plastic, so, too, have the masters of glass bending. "It's hard to find anybody that can do it," he said.

Birth said several people have learned from him.

Birth said a lot of his work is hidden behind plastic letters because there are fewer calls for exposed neon lighting.

He said a neon and glass creation begins with a rendering of lettering or a full-scale sign on a sheet of special paper that can withstand the heat of molten glass.

After marking the glass tubes for the necessary bends, Birth heats the glass by slowly rotating the tube in a natural-gas fire.

ONE DAY last week, peering over half-glasses perched on his nose, Birth watched and felt as the glass heated to the proper temperature for working.

As he shaped the tubing, Birth blew into the glass to maintain its circumference at the bend.

He later fused electrodes at both ends of the tube to allow electricity to pass through the gas.

Before he injected the neon gas into the glass — by using a smaller tubing fused between the glass and the tubing leading to the neon source — Birth purged the inside of the glass of all impurities with 20,000 volts of electricity.

When heated, neon gas turns red, Birth said, and other colors are achieved by coating the insides of the glass tubing with powder.

"It'll burn forever if it doesn't get a leak," he said.

While most neon work concerns commercial signs, Brady said he's had requests to design aesthetic creations.

Neon oil derricks are popular requests, he said, remembering a Midland woman once had him design a sign for her husband's bar at home.

IT INCLUDED a glowing palm tree and sign that said "Mike's Bar and Grill," and cost $2,500, Brady said.

Birth said a neon sign maker's pay is good. "You're not going to get rich, but it's better than wages."

He said he became interested in making signs while working in the potash mines near Carlsbad, N.M.

Having endured a series of strikes, Birth decided to enroll in the school in Denton.

Birth said he laments the demise of the fancy blinking signs that used to signal restaurants and motels in the Permian Basin area.

He recalled a sign he created years ago at a former Midland restaurant — The Ranch House — that included a running cow being roped by a cowboy on horseback.

Birth said now he mostly repairs many of the remaining neon signs in Odessa and Midland.

While other interests occupy Birth's attention, the craftsman said he always will keep his hand at bending glass and filling it with neon.

Harrison Ford turned down 'Beverly Hills Cop'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Not only did Sylvester Stallone turn down "Beverly Hills Cop," the biggest movie hit since "Ghostbusters," but Harrison Ford did also.

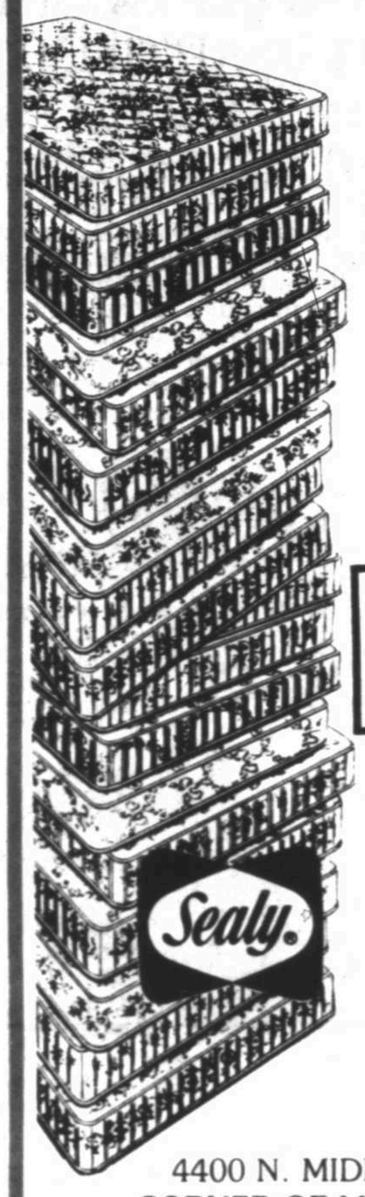

"It was offered to me after Stallone walked out," says Ford, famed as Han Solo and Indiana Jones. "I decided I didn't want to play a tough cop." Instead, he took the role of a Philadelphia detective who hides out with an Amish family in "Witness."

"Beverly Hills Cop" went to Eddie Murphy and has already sold more than $100 million in tickets.

Pope visits Ecuadoran slum area

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador (AP) — Pope John Paul II visited a crowded slum on the outskirts of Ecuador's biggest city on Friday, and made an urgent appeal to the governments of Latin America on behalf of the poor.

Speaking before 30,000 wildly cheering residents of the sprawling shantytown in Ecuador's main seaport, the pontiff expressed his "interest, solidarity and love" for the urban poor. He urged the governments "to seek a greater social equilibrium and to show a greater solidarity" with the needy.

The pope, who met earlier with Ecuadoran Indians and peasants, focused much of the first half of his South American tour on the plight of the hemisphere's Indians and rural poor. Since arriving in Ecuador from Venezuela on Tuesday, John Paul has taken up the issue of agrarian reform, a major problem in the region.

After his 72-hour visit to Ecuador, the pope left for Lima, Peru, a coastal capital where poverty is widespread.

Just hours before his scheduled arrival in Lima, authorities reported that the Maoist rebel group, the Shining Path, dynamited two power towers in the eastern city of Huancayo.

The explosions caused a seven-hour blackout in Huancayo and left residents in some parts of metropolitan Lima without power for 70 minutes, according to officials.

During his four-day visit to Peru, the pope is to stop in Ayacucho, birthplace of the guerrilla group, which has been battling government forces for four years.

The pope leaves Peru on Tuesday for a brief visit to Trinidad and Tobago on the way to Rome.

John Paul, spiritual ruler of the world's approximately 800 million Roman Catholics, arrived in Guayaquil by army helicopter on the seventh day of a 12-day, four-nation trip.

The 64-year-old pontiff received an enthusiastic welcome in El Guasmo and was applauded when he said: "The pope, along with the bishops, wants to reiterate, once again, the church's preferential option for the poor."

He urged the slum dwellers to reject both exploitation and "extremist ideologies that only bring hatred, revenge and atheism."

Hogs holds off A&M rally

Arkansas ups SWC mark to 6-3

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Senior forward Charles Balentine poured in 21 points as the Arkansas Razorbacks held off a late Texas A&M surge to score a 58-53 Southwest Conference basketball victory Friday night.

Texas A&M's late rally saw a 12-point Arkansas lead shrink to five with 3:48 left to play. But the Aggies, led by reserve guard Don Marbury's 23 points — 17 in the second half, were unable to cut the lead to less than five.

The win pushed Arkansas' record to 15-7 and 6-3 in SWC play. Texas A&M is 14-6 overall and 6-3 in conference action.

BALENTINE, who broke a 19-straight freethrow streak late in the game, led Arkansas to a 32-21 advantage at the half.

The Razorbacks were without reserve guard Mike Ratliff who did not dress out for the game. Guard Scott Rose went out with a sprained ankle early in the first half.

Freshman guard Kenny Hutchinson scored a career-high 11 points for Arkansas while senior center Joe Kleine and freshman Andrew Lang added 10 points apiece.

Junior guard Kenny Brown had 11 points for A&M and Winston Crite and Marbury each hauled in 10 rebounds.

"It was a big win for us, because it keeps us in the league race," Arkansas coach Eddie Sutton said. "Had we not won, we would've had no chance catching SMU. Now, if we can beat SMU here, we'll be only a game behind them and we've been to the toughest places to play in the conference."

But the Razorback coach noted a victory over SMU next week doesn't mean his team can coast the rest of the season.

"That doesn't mean we can't lose at TCU, which has beaten Texas Tech and Houston on the road, or at Texas or Rice, but we've already been to the toughest places," he said. "Kenny Hutchinson and Andrew Lang are no longer freshman. Tonight, they came of age and played like seasoned verterans."

ARKANSAS takes on No. 2 Georgetown on Sunday in Washington D.C.

"We're going to Georgetown with the thought of winning," Sutton said. "Last year about this time, we beat SMU and North Carolina back-to-back when North Carolina was ranked No. 1. Georgetown is the best team in college basketball and I'm sure John Thompson will have them ready after two losses, but we have a chance to beat Georgetown. We would've had no chance had we lost tonight."

Bird, Ainge lead Celtic binge

From Wire Reports

BOSTON — Larry Bird scored 38 points and guard Danny Ainge hit for a career-high 26 Friday night as the Boston Celtics rode a 78-point first half to a 142-123 NBA victory over Kansas City.

While improving their record to 38-9, including 22-2 at Boston Garden, the Celtics gave K.C. Jones his 100th victory in less than two seasons as Boston head coach.

Ainge scored 12 points and Bird 11 as the Celtics charged to a 40-29 first-period lead. Bird scored 15 as Boston increased its advantage to 78-65 at the half.

Dennis Johnson had 20 points, Kevin McHale 19 and Robert Parish 15 as Boston handed Kansas City its ninth consecutive road loss.

Jazz 121, Mavericks 109

DALLAS — Darrell Griffith scored 30 points to lead the Utah Jazz as Rickey Green contributed 17 assists and Mark Eaton blocked 10 shots before an estimated crowd of 7,000 in snow-blanketed Dallas.

Adrian Dentley, the NBA's third leading scorer who has averaged 27.6 points per game, was benched by Utah coach Frank Layden after he missed two Jazz practices this week. He is, however, scheduled to start in Sunday's All-Star game.

Dallas, now 24-23, lost its second straight and fourth in six games despite 38 points from Mark Aguirre.

Utah, now 21-26, also got 24 points from Green and 20 from Jeff Wilkins en route to its fifth road game win in 22 tries. The Jazz hit all 21 of their free throws and grabbed a season-high-tying 59 rebounds.

Sixers 121, Bulls 110

PHILADELPHIA — Moses Malone scored 23 points and pulled down nine rebounds and Julius Erving added 19 points as the 76ers fought off a late Chicago Bulls rally.

The 76ers, who led by 15 at 99-84 with 8:52 left in the game, had their lead cut to only three at 107-104 with 3:50 on the clock. The Bulls were sparked by rookie Michael Jordan, who scored 31 points and handed out five assists.

But Maurice Cheeks hit a basket at 3:35 to start a 76ers eight-point surge that made the lead 11 points, at 115-104, with little more than two minutes left.

Quintin Dailey scored 18 and Sydney Green 16 with 11 rebounds for the Bulls, who lost their second straight. The Bulls played without high-scoring Orlando Woolridge, who is suffering from back spasms.

NBA

nine points to lead 49-42 and were ahead 55-49 at halftime.

The 76ers at the start of the third period scored seven straight to take a 15-point lead at 64-49 with 9:32 to play. The Bulls reduced the lead to nine four times, the last as the quarter ended with Philadelphia ahead 87-76.

Pacers 102, Bullets 95

INIANAPOLIS — Clark Kellogg scored 29 points and Herb Williams added 22 points and an outstanding fourth-quarter defensive effort Friday night, leading the Indiana Pacers.

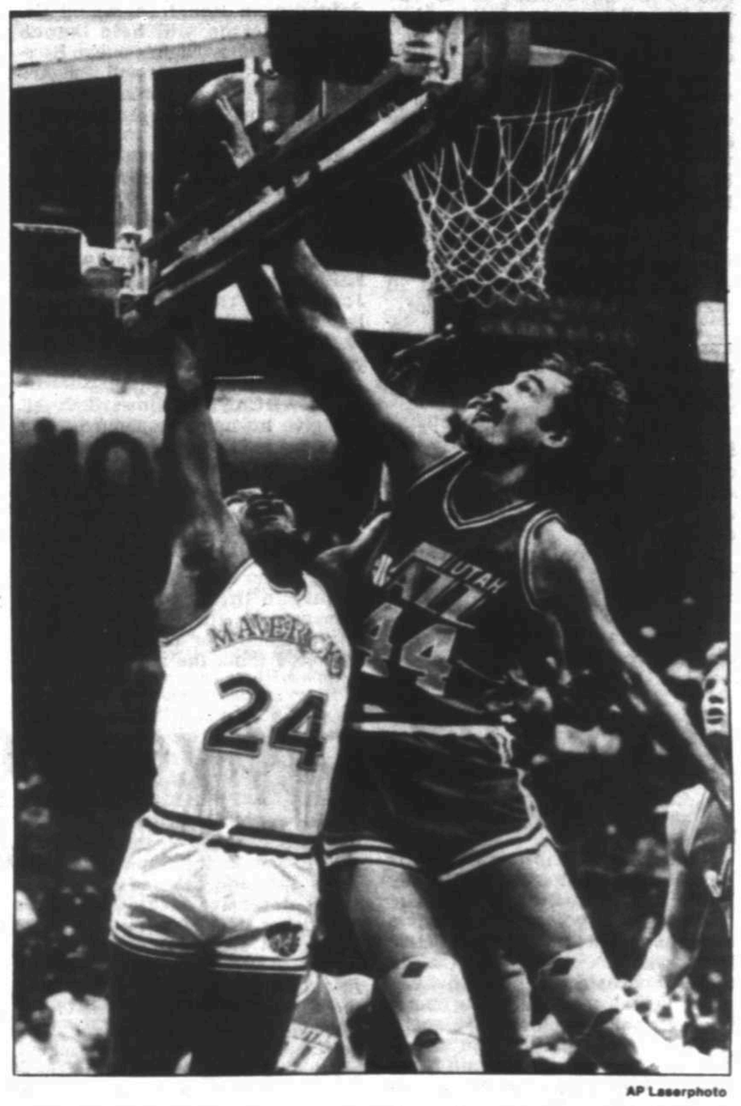

Williams, the Pacers' 6-foot-11 power forward, blocked six shots, including two straight with 1:30 to go after his own three-point play ended the Bullets' final rally.

Jim Thomas added 20 points for the Pacers, who beat the Bullets for the first time in four meetings this season. Washington, which trailed 56-52 at halftime, was led by Gus Williams with 23 points, including 16 in the first quarter, and Malone with 20.

Hawks 126, Cavaliers 108

ATLANTA — Atlanta's Dominique Wilkins scored 34 points as the Atlanta Hawks while World B. Free scored 27 for Cleveland.

Eddie Johnson added 23 points for the Hawks. Doc Rivers had 19 and Randy Wittman 11. Mel Turpin and Roy Hinson each scored 17 points for Cleveland. Phil Hubbard added 14.

Horned Frogs stun Cougs, 85-80

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas Christian's Dennis Nutt scored 22 of his game-high 28 points in the second half and Greg Grissom, getting his first start of the season, sank four free throws in the final 10 seconds en route to an 85-80 Southwest Conference victory over Houston Friday night.

The victory snapped Houston's 43-game home winning streak and dropped the Cougars to a 13-7 season record and 5-3 in SWC games.

TCU, which improved its record to 12-8 and 4-5, took the lead for good on a basket by Nutt with 2:17 left in the game giving the Frogs a 74-72 lead.

The Cougars pulled within one point three times in the final 58 seconds of the game but pressure baskets by Norman Naderson, Carven Holcombe and Grissom kept the Horned Frogs in the lead.

Houston was led by guard Alvin Franklin with 21 points, Eric Dickens with 16 and Braxton Clark with 14. Carven Holcombe scored 18 points, and Tracy Mitchell hit 11 points for TCU.

Franklin converted a double technical foul against TCU Coach Jim Killingsworth midway in the second half to give the Cougars a 61-58 lead but Nutt continued to hit jump shots from the outside to brunt any Cougar comeback attempt.

TEXAS CHRISTIAN was deadly from the free throw line, hitting 15 of 16 attempts. Grissom and Nutt were perfect at the line with four shots each.

Grissom's four free throws all came in the closing final seconds.

"He's a good free throw shooter under pressure," Killingsworth said. "We just saved our free throws for the end. The big man came through at the end with the big free throws."

Houston tried to press the Frogs in the closing seconds but TCU took advantage of the foul opportunities.

"We've got good ballhandlers and we're tough to press," Killingsworth said. "Nobody's pressed wall against us this year."

Franklin praised the outside shooting efforts of the Frogs.

Tiffany Chin clings to figure skating lead

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Tiffany Chin held onto her lead in the women's competition Friday at the U.S. Figure Skating Championships despite two costly mistakes in a short program that was inferior to the one she skated at the Sarajevo Olympics.

In second place was Debi Thomas, 17, of San Jose, followed by Caryn Kadavy, 17, of Colorado Springs, Colo.

Chin, 17, missed the required combination jump in the two-minute program. She fell out of a triple toe walley but completed a double toe loop. Then, she lost her balance on the tail end of a change-of-foot sit spin for another deduction.

Her marks for technical merit from nine judges ranged from 5.0 to 5.4 of a possible 6.0. She got higher marks for presentation, ranging from 5.5 to 5.8.

The errors brought murmurs from the crowd at the half-filled Kemper Arena, site of the weeklong championships, which conclude Saturday.

Chin of Toluca Lake, Calif., the runner-up to champion Rosalynn Sumners last year, still is favored to win the title.

She was clearly disappointed with her performance, lowering her head to collect herself after leaving the ice with coach John Nicks.

"It's been a little ragged in practice this week," she said of the short program. "I don't think I handled the pressure the way I should. Hopefully, tomorrow I can get this out of my system and then out of my mind."

Syracuse whips Villanova

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Guard Dwayne Washington led six Syracuse players in double figures with 25 points Friday night as the No. 9 Orangemen stampeded 18th-ranked Big East Conference rival Villanova 92-79 before the largest on-campus basketball crowd in history.

The announced crowd of 32,520 broke a two-year-old record of 32,382 set when St. John's visited the Carrier Dome.

Syracuse improved its record to 14-3 and dropped the Wildcats to 14-5 with the victory, which reversed an 82-70 loss to Villanova earlier this season. Both teams emerged from the contest with 6-3 Big East records.

Rafael Addison poured in 21 points for the Orangemen — 11 of them in the last five minutes of the game — Michael Brown added 14 and Andre Hawkins, Rony Siekaly and Wendell Alexis had 10 apiece.

Ed Pinckney, whose inside play kept the Wildcats in the game, led his team with 23 points, while Dwight Wilbur contributed 14 and Gary McLain 12.

The Orangemen accelerated from a 41-32 halftime lead by virtue of the coast-to-coast play of Washington, who scored his team's last two baskets of the first half and the first of the second half and had two assists in 14-8 run which gave the Orange a 55-40 lead with 13:36 to play.

OC complex small on purpose

James Gilliland writes to inform that the Odessa College gym seats 1,500 fans, not 3,500, a fact of which so many Midland College fans have informed me so frequently in the last week that I take cover everytime I see one coming.

I'm not sure where I got the 3,500 figure but I do know it must have been on a Sunday, because obviously I accepted it as gospel.

Gilliland, a member of the Odessa College Board of Trustees, notes, "Your assumption to the contrary, the seating capacity was not a 'miscalculation.' When we planned the building, we knew the gymnasium would be too small for the Midland game. However, that fact did not justify the use of money for additional seating to accommodate only one game.

"Instead, we chose to use additional funds to build racket ball courts, a swimming pool and an indoor jogging track. All of the aforementioned benefit a greater number of people than those who attend a single basketball game. Furthermore, because of our decisions, the Odessa College Sports Center ranks among the finest athletic facilities in the nation."

In reporting the crowd, the 3,800-overflow estimate was high by a couple of thousand fans. So while, the OC complex was sold out for the MC game and much was made of the size of the crowd, it really wasn't as large as an ordinary turnout for a game against South Plains or Clarendon at Chap Center.

GILLILAND concludes his remarks, "As a member of the Odessa Chuck Wagon Gang, may I remind you that we serve only top grade boneless beef—not chicken." The remark may seem somewhat inflammatory, but I'm sure the Chaparrals will take it in the spirit in which it was intended and will bear no malice. The reference, apparently, has to do with the comment here that some MC fans came away from the game with the feeling that the Chaparrals were the entree on an Odessa Chuck Wagon menu.

Then, Gilliland throws down the gauntlet, "I don't care if Jess Parrish referees the next game between Midland College and Odessa College. We are coming over and, in the words of Vice-President Bush....", he concludes with a famous Texas football indelicacy about kicking something other than field goals.

As a matter of fact, I've seen Dr. Parrish out jogging, and it seemed like he was muttering something about "getting in shape to run up and down the floor with those young kids."...

In any case, fans in Midland were looking forward to a Chap Center sellout for the return meeting when the teams met to determine first place in the WJCAC. However, if the Wranglers play like they did in Hobbs the other night, it could ruin the crowd, even if Dr. Parrish officiates.

COLLEGE BASEBALL comes to Midland March 13 when Texas Tech and Wichita State square off at Angels Stadium. Wichita is the same school that produced Joe Carter, the former Midland Cub, now with Cleveland, and the Raiders still show the bruises from Carter's bat. As one wag put it, "He batted in a season's worth of runs against Tech." Well, enough to be named College Baseball's Player of the Year...

Remember former Cubs, Phillies infielder Tony Taylor? He's the new manager for Reading of the Class AA Eastern League. Incidentally, the Eastern is adopting an interesting All-Star game format....National League teams vs. the American League teams...

Ex Midland Cubs Bill Johnson, relief pitcher; shortstop Shawon Dunston; third baseman Tony Woods; outfielder Darrin Jackson; infielders Dave Owen and Dan Rohn are on the Chicago winter roster and will report with the big club later this month...

Another ex-Cub, Fritz Connally, now San Diego property, hit .350 in the Dominican Republic Winter League...

Skaters, skiers take over video

TV Sports

Skiers and ice skaters, including Olympic gold medalist Bill Johnson and Tiffany Chin, whose nifty jumps nearly won a bronze at the Sarajevo Winter Games, will be featured this weekend during ABC's "Wide World of Sports."

Frank Gifford and Bob Beattie will narrate Sunday's men's downhill in the World Alpine Ski Championships from Bormio, Italy, over a course being used for the first time in competition.

"I've been talking to some of the racers and they say this is one of the toughest downhills they've ever raced on," Beattie, former head of the U.S. Ski Team, said in an interview from Bormio. "And because it's so tough, I think it will lend itself to a lot of surprises.

"As far as Johnson is concerned, he has only cracked the top 10 twice this season. He'll really have his work cut out for him.

"As far as the favored person, that's got to be Pirmin Zurbriggen. I think he's the new superstar of Alpine skiing. He's the first person since Jean-Claude Killy in '68 who can win all three events (downhill, giant slalom and slalom) and he's only 21 years old."

Same-day satellite coverage of the women's downhill will be featured on "Wide World of Sports" today along with live coverage of the women's competition from the U.S. Figure Skating Championships in Kansas City, Mo.

BEATTIE picks Michela Figini to win the downhill event, being held in Santa Caterina, Italy, about 20 minutes up the road from Bormio.

"It would almost certainly be an upset if she didn't win it. She's already won a whole bunch of downhills (three) this season," he said.

Jim McKay, Dick Button and Peggy Fleming will report from rinkside at the skating championships, where the first strides toward the 1988 Calgary Olympics will be taken.

With the retirements of Olympic medalists Scott Hamilton, Rosalynn Sumners and Kitty and Peter Carruthers, U.S. figure skating is rebuilding and Button, for one, sees that as pure excitment.

'What viewers will see is the bare bones outline of who is good and who is going to be good," Button said. "It's like picking out from a bunch of young colts who has talent, stamina and strength, artistry and personality. You see all these elements that end of being the basis for someone's style."

On Sunday, ABC will televise portions of the men's and ice dancing competition.

ABC'S KICKOFF game for the 1985 United States Football League season will be the Doug Fluties ... also known as the New Jersey Generals against the Stallions in Birmingham on Feb. 24.

The network also announced it was dropping regional telecasts and would televise only one USFL game each Sunday through June 23.

ABC also will televise the league playoffs and the championship game, scheduled for July 14.

NETWORK television's only weekly college baseball schedule will premier Feb. 10 at78 p.m. and defending national champion Cal State-Fullerton will help launch "ESPN's Sunday Night College Baseball" series. The Titans will visit Arizona State in the opening game of the live, prime-time 15-game regular-season schedule.

ESPN also will televise the 1985 series from Omaha, Neb., beginning May 31.

Play-by-play will be handled by Pittsburgh Pirates' television broadcaster John Sanders, as well as ESPN's Sam Rosen and Sam Smith. Joe Torre, the former Atlanta Braves manager, and Jim Price, the ex-Detroit Tiger catcher will do analysis.

BROADCASTER Howard Cosell will give his opinions about boxing as a sport in "Down for the Count," a documentary to be aired on public television's "Frontline" on Feb. 19.

"Boxing is the only sports in the world," says Cosell, "where the clear intention is for one person to inflict bodily harm upon the other person, mainly to the head where brain damage must ensue ... I don't think improvements or controls are the answer. I think the answer is abolition."

What snow? MSA plans for softball

From Staff Reports

The Midland Softball Association board of directors will hold its 1985 annual meeting 7 p.m. Feb. 25 at the Midland Center, Main and Wall.

Teams planning to play during the 1985 spring and summer season should have a representative at the meeting. Team sponsor fee for the season has been set at $375 and are due along with the team registration card at the Feb. 25 meeting.

Players fees for the season are $15 per player for Midland residents and $28 for non-residents. Players fees are not due until 5 p.m. April 8.

The following tournaments have been scheduled for 1985 by the MSA: March 30-31—The Athletic Dept. Invitational; April 20-21—Permian Basin Umpires' Association; May 18-19—Stadium Sports May Classic; June 8-9—Coors June Classic; June 22-23—MSA Co-Ed; July 13-14—MSA 17th annual July Invitational; July 20-21—ASA District 26 Qualifying; Aug. 10-11—ASA Men's Class C State tournament.

Those desiring additional information should contact MSA executive director Chuck Swallow (683 8741).

Bath costly to Miller

Crosby Golf

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Despite an errant shot into Carmel Bay, Johnny Miller salvaged a 71 and retained a share of the lead Friday after the second round of the 44th Bing Crosby National Pro-Am Golf Tournament.

"There was beautiful weather for golf today. No excuses. It just wasn't that fine a round," said Miller, who had the lead alone until he hooked his tee shot down among the seals frollicking in the water along the 18th fairway at Pebble Beach.

It cost him a bogey and sole control of the top spot.

Miller, the first round leader, reached the tournament halfway point with a 139 total, 5-under-par, and was tied with 45-year-old veteran George Archer. Archer, who won this title in 1969, had a 70 at Cypress Point.

Tour sophomore Brad Faxon was one stroke back at 140 after a 68 at Cypress Point, which played much, much easier than in the cold, howling winds that produced such high scores in Thursday's opening round.

Ken Brown of Scotland, with a 70 at Pebble Beach, was next at 141.

Greg Norman of Australia, winner of two titles last year, shot a 68 at Spyglass and led the international group at 142.

Also at that figure were Mark O'Meara, Doug Tewell, D.A. Weibring, Kikuo Arai of Japan and T.C. Chen of Taiwan. Arai had a 69, Chen 73 and O'Meara 72, all at Pebble Beach, while Tewell shot 70 and Weibring 69 at Cypress Point.

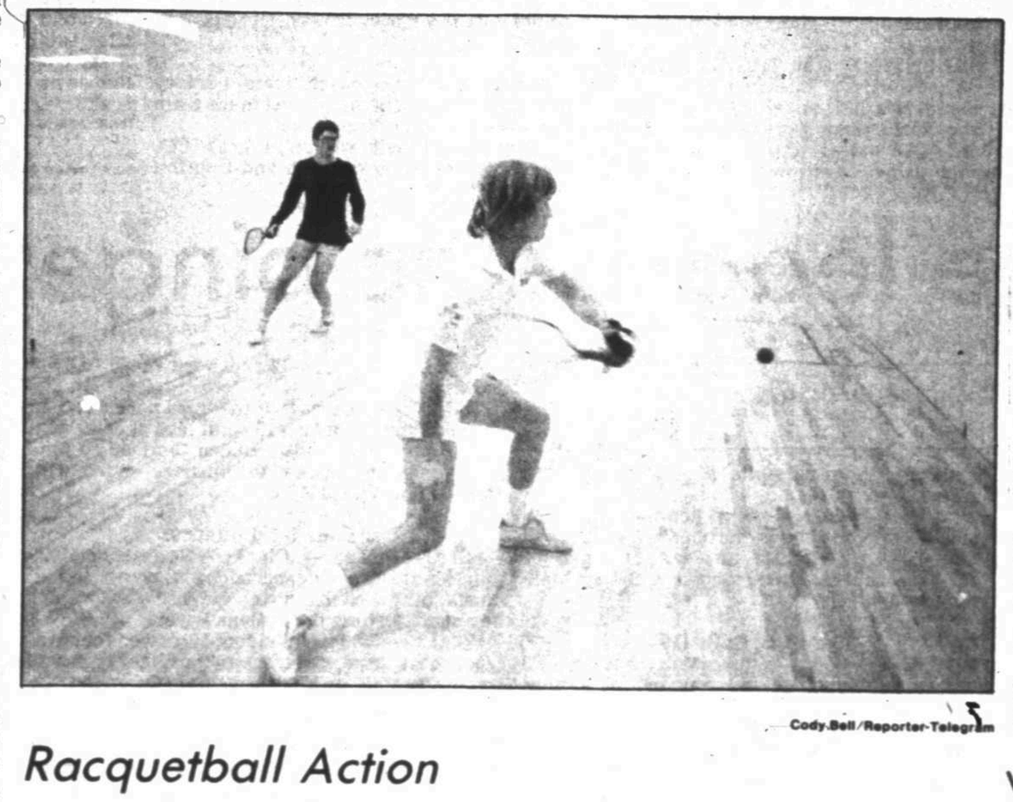

Hal Sutton was among the game's glamour names who were subjected to the fierce winds at Cypress Point on Thursday and played a more sedate Spyglass Friday. He took advantage of the improved weather to go from a career-worst (an opening round of 87) to a career-first. He scored his first hole in one with a 7-iron on the third hole on the way to a 71.

Bob Murphy improved even more, going from an opening 88 to a 69, a one-day improvement of 19 shots.

Also at Spyglass were Tom Watson, 71-146; Lanny Wadkins, a 2-time winner this season, 74-147; PGA champion Lee Trevino, 73-148; Jack Nicklaus 72-148; Masters champion Ben Crenshaw, 81-160.

Miller, playing erratically at Pebble Beach, matched three birdies on his first six holes with three bogeys on the next four.

He birdied the 14th from about 12 feet and went to six under par with a wide-breaking 20-foot putt on the 16th.

Steers line up 23 prospects

From Wire Reports

AUSTIN (AP) — Running back Stephan Howland of Tyler Lee and defensive tackle Robert Charanza of Arlington Sam Houston have said they will play football for the Texas Longhorns.

Texas now has 23 commitments or signees this recruiting season, and Coach Fred Akers has said he plans to give out only 25 scholarships. Signing date is Feb. 13.

Howland, the brother of former Longhorn basketball starter Virdell Howland, and Charanza are ranked by Texas Football magazine as among the top 100 schoolboy players in the state.

Howland, 5-foot-11 and 192 pounds with 4.4 speed, rushed for a school-record 1,390 yards on 221 carries as a senior for a 6.3-yard average. His career total of 2,278 yards also was a school record.

He had a 239-yard game against Dallas Bryan Adams and 178 yards against Dallas White.

Charanza, 6-3 and 250, has 4.8 speed and was the defensive player of the year in District 7-5A. He made 88 tackles in seven games, missing three with an ankle injury.

Wharton may drop football

WHARTON — Wharton County Junior College announced Friday that legislative financial cuts will force the school to drop its varsity football, baseball and golf programs during the upcoming school year.

The college's board of directors made the decision after learning reduced state funding will saddle the school with a $1 million budget shortfall, officials said.

"The board felt that because the essential function of the institution is instruction, these cuts had to be made," said Chuck Schwartzkopf, a spokesman for the college. "It was felt that a program like football, which is very expensive to conduct, would be a good place to start making necessary cuts."

School officials estimated the sports cuts will save them more than $270,000 for the upcoming school year. But Schwartzkopf warned more cuts may be required.

269 NFL players now free

By Associated Press

Some 269 National Football League players, headed by Randy White and John Riggins, officially became free agents Friday. But a combination of the NFL's restrictive free agent rules and the United States Football League's financial problems left most with little choice but re-signing with their old teams.

White, the Dallas Cowboys' defensive tackle, was one of four first-team all-Pros on the list. The others were linebacker E.J. Junior of the St. Louis Cardinals and defensive backs Mark Haynes of the New York Giants and Deron Cherry of the Kansas City Chiefs.

But the free agents also include a number of other key players, including Riggins, the 35-year-old Washington fullback who was the Most Valuable Player in the Super Bowl two years ago, and his Redskins teammates defensive tackle Dave Butz and kicker Mark Moseley.

The list also included quarterbacks Steve Bartkowski of the Atlanta Falcons and Phil Simms of the Giants; safety Todd Bell of the Chicago Bears; wide receiver John Jefferson of the Green Bay Packers; tight end Doug Marsh and tackle Luis Sharpe of the Cardinals, and three of Miami's "Killer B's" — defensive backs Glenn and Lyle Blackwood and linebacker Bob Brudzinski.

The other name of note among the free agents is wide receiver Cris Collinsworth of the Cincinnati Bengals, who two years ago signed a futures contract with the USFL's Tampa Bay Bandits. On Thursday, Bandits owner John Bassett said that if Collinsworth wished, he could return to the Bengals in return for his $500,000 signing bonus.

That, in fact, was only one reflection that the USFL's financial pinch had closed what once had been a wedge in negotiations for NFL players.

NFL teams almost never sign free agents because of prohibitive compensation requirements. Only one player has jumped from one NFL team to another in the more than a decade the rules have been in effect.

Those rules specify that if a team signs a player entering his third year for $280,000 or up, it owes his

Gretzky player of month

MONTREAL (AP) — Center Wayne Gretzky of the Edmonton Oilers scored 13 goals and added 24 assists for 37 points in 15 games to win his third straight National Hockey League player-of-the-month award, the league announced Friday.

Gretzky beat out Marcel Dionne of the Los Angeles Kings, who moved past Bobby Hull into third place on the all-time NHL goal-scoring list, and goaltender Pat Riggin of the Capitals, who backstopped Washington to seven victories in nine starts last month.

Dionne scored six goals, giving him 613 in his 14 seasons, and added 23 assists for 29 points in 14 games. Riggin posted a goals-against average of 2.33 and a save percentage of .905.

Pedroza puts title on line

From Wire Reports

BOXING— Eusebio Pedroza defends his WBA featherweight title for the 19th time when he fights top-ranked Jorge Lujan, a former WBA bantamweight champion, today (3:30 p.m. NBC-TV) in Panama City, Pan. Pedroza's last bout was in June, 1984, when he stopped Gerald Hayes in the 10tj round of a non-title fight. Lujan outpointed Prudencio Cardona of Colombia in 10 rounds last June. Pedroza, if he wins, will press for a fight against Rocky Lockridge, the WBA junior lightweight champion, or WBC featherweight champion Azumah Nelson.

BASEBALL— In a 4-for-1 trade, St. Louis acquired outfielder Jack Clark from San Francise for pitcher Dave LaPoint, first basemen David Green and Gary Rajsich, and shortstop Jose Gonzalez. Clark, 29, has hit 20 or more home runs in five of the last seven seasons. In 1984, he had a .320 batting average with 11 home runs and 44 RBI through June 26, when he injured his right knee and underwent surgery that sidelined him the rest of the season...

The two world champions were only seconds apart when an admitted error by navigator Harryman cost Vatanen eight minutes of penalties, putting the Peuegot four mintues, 21 seconds behind Rohrl — a major gap in rally terms...

GENERAL— University presidents will meet March in Miami next month to study the NCAA in hopes of reforming the mechanism that controls their student athletes. "I became convinced in the last year through consulting with scores of college presidents that the key to reform of major intercollegiate athletics was a significant reform of the structure itself," said U. of Miami President Edward Foote, who called the meeting for March 1-2. He hopes his colleagues from around the country can develop a game plan for reorganizing intercollegiate athletics so major universities have more direct control over the academic and business aspects of sports.

"We will focus on how we do business and how we can do it better," he said. Foote, a longtime critic of the rules that govern major college sports, says if the NCAA cannot meet the challenges raised by the universities, then Foote said he is ready to lead an exodus to a new athletic association...

Cage van overturns

UTICA, N.Y. (AP) — A van carrying eight basketball players from a Massachusetts college overturned on the New York State Thruway near here Friday, leaving one person with a fractured spine, officials said.

The players were traveling from Eastern Nazarene College in Quincy, Mass., to Rochester for a Saturday game, said Carol Sullivan, a spokeswoman for St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Utica. The team was scheduled to play Roberts Wesleyan College.

The van overturned just west of Utica in the town of Westmoreland at about 2 p.m.

Kickoff Classic books BYU, BC

New York Times Service

NEW YORK — Boston College has just received the word: There is indeed life after Doug Flutie. The quarterback, who signed with the New Jersey Generals of the United States Football League for perhaps $7 million over five years, may be gone, but he is far from forgotten. His alma mater has been informed that Boston College has been selected to play Brigham Young in the third annual Kickoff Classic next Aug. 29 in Giants Stadium. The Classic, which had been played on the last Monday in August, will now be on the last Thursday of the month.

Officials of the Meadowlands Sports Complex in New Jersey would not confirm reports of the matchup. But William J. Flynn, the athletic director at Boston College, acknowledged Thursday that his school had been picked to face the undefeated national champion in the game that will kick off the 1985 college season.

"We won't have The Quarterback," Flynn said, "but we've got five quarterbacks who sat on the bench waiting for a chance. And although we lost seven or eight starters, we'll have a good team back."

Boston College will be guaranteed at least $550,000 for appearing in the game, even without its renowned quarterback.

WHEN THE varsity plays the alumni at most schools, the old grads usually show up with plenty of paunch. But not at the University of Texas. Fourteen of its baseball alumni are now in the big leagues, and most of them will return next week for the annual baseball game against the varsity team.

The varsity players are no slouches, either. Last year, the team was the runner-up in the college World Series. And Greg Swindell, the best pitcher on a strong staff, figures to be one of the first players drafted by the major league teams when he graduates.

But he will be pitching on Feb. 9 against some uncommon alumni: Keith Moreland of the Chicago Cubs, Burt Hooton of the Texas Rangers, Andre Robertson of the Yankees, Roger Clemens of the Boston Red Sox, Spike Owen of the Seattle Mariners, Jim Acker of the Toronto Blue Jays and Ron Gardenhire and Calvin Schiraldi of the Mets.

Gardenhire was at home Thursday in Wichita, Kan., thinking about his college reunion and found it a warming thought, partly because the temperature was zero outside his home.

"I read in the paper that it was 71 in San Antonio, about an hour from Austin," he reported by telephone. "That's for me. The wind here is howling at 25 miles an hour, and this is the land of no trees. But I won't go into the alumni game cold, so to speak. I've been working out at Wichita State, even though you can't use the batting cages until 9:15 at night.

"The alumni game at Texas isn't your typical one. The school is probably equal to Arizona State and Southern Cal in turning out ballplayers. So, when they called to invite me to play, I started to pack. It's almost like making an all-star game."

THE MCBURNEY School on West 63d Street includes among its graduates J.D. Salinger, Felix Rohatyn, Ted Koppel and Henry Winkler. But for the sixth straight year, they will gather Friday night at the school and remember Harry Lois, the three-letter star and all-city athlete who collapsed and died without warning in 1978 at the age of 20.

Harry's mother, Rosemary, will prepare dinner for the McBurney and Xaverian High School basketball teams. Other parents will serve a candlelight dinner to the guests. The school chorus will sing. Dave DeBusschere, executive vice president of the Knicks, will be the chief speaker. The McBurney and Xaverian teams will play a game in the gym. And Harry's father, George Lois, an advertising executive, will present the Harry Lois Trophy to the winner.

The money collected will be added to the $60,000 already raised for a new gymnasium for the school. But the emphasis will be on the short and dramatic life of Harry Lois.

"A most unusual young man," Joe Puggelli, his football coach, said Thursday. "He had every reason not to be as dedicated as he was, coming from an affluent family. But he worked harder than anyone, and he was tough. He played linebacker on defense and center on offense, and even fullback for a few games when other boys were hurt. A most unusual young man."

Marshall becomes CFL's highest paid

OTTAWA (AP) — Defensive end Greg Marshall has become the highest-paid defensive player in Ottawa Rough Riders history.

Announcing the Riders had signed the Canadian Football League all-star and 1983 defensive player of the year for the next two years plus an option year, General Manager Don Holtby said:

"He's a leader and the kind of player we want on the field. We felt he should be paid accordingly."

Details of the contract were not announced, but Holtby called the 28-year-old Oregon State graduate "the backbone of our defense."

Originally with the Baltimore Colts of the National Football League, the 6-foot-4, 240-pound Marshall is entering his sixth year as a Rider.

Holtby also announced that Tom Dimitroff has rejoined the club as director of player personnel.

Dimitroff, a graduate of the University of Miami of Ohio, has had a long history with the Riders, joining them as a quarterback for the 1957 and 1958 seasons. He also was offensive coordinator of the Riders from 1974 through 1977.

No rocker yet for A.J. Foyt

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A.J. Foyt says he is well aware that someday soon he is going to have to start thinking about retirement. But not yet.

The 50-year-old race driver, whose victories include four Indianapolis 500s, a Daytona 500, the 24 Hours of LeMans and the 24 Hours of Daytona, said he is contemplating his busiest season in some time.

Foyt is here this weekend to drive in the Daytona SunBank 24-Hours sports car endurance race. He also is scheduled to drive in the Daytona 500 on Feb. 17 and the Lowenbrau Grand Prix of Miami sports car race on Feb. 24.

"THOSE ARE the only races I'm really sure about," said Foyt, who is trying to fight off a case of flu. "But we're planning to do maybe six or eight NASCAR (Grand National stock car) races and I'm thinking real serious about doing the whole CART (Indy-car) circuit. And Preston (sports car owner Preston Henn) is trying to get me back to LeMans.

"I know there's gonna come a day, probably pretty soon, when I have to call it quits. But it ain't here yet."

Foyt said he will campaign a new Oldsmobile in the NASCAR races and has bought two Marches and two Lolas to go Indy-car racing in 1985.

"I just want to get away from Houston," said Foyt, who makes his home in that Texas city. "And I want to get back in the swing of things. I haven't really given my racing the time I should have in the last couple of years."

FOYT HAS been hit hard in the last three years by the deaths of both his mother and his father. He said that double blow has been very hard to put aside.

"You know, both of them died in May on qualifying weekend at Indianapolis," the often hard-boiled Foyt explained. "Each time qualifying was rained out and I flew home and Momma and Daddy died just after I got there. It was like they was waiting for me to get home."

He pointed out that he was so close to his father, Anthony Joseph Foyt Sr., that his battle against cancer and subsequent death in May 1973 was particularly hard to handle.

"He had a big, beautiful home there in Houston, right near me, and I haven't had the heart to sell it off yet," Foyt said. "We have somebody go over there and clean it once in a while. I'd almost rather burn it down to the ground than just sell it and have it sitting there to see."

But Foyt noted that it was a direct reaction to his father's illness that brought him back to endurance racing at Daytona in 1983 after a 16-year absence.

Beauty contest marks auto show at Chap

From Staff Reports

Nineteen women from Midland, Odessa, Kermit and Pecos will be in the semi-finals and finals of a regional beauty contest in Midland College's Chaparral Center today and Sunday.

The contest will be at the two-day National Custom Car and Hot Rod Show, which opens at noon both days. At the show, "monster trucks" equipped with six-foot tires will be crushing automobiles, a monster 1985 Corvette will be on exhibit, and a rock 'n'roll band will perform.

"This is a big, big show," said Danny Danklefs, contest director, of Odessa's KWES radio.

The winner of the beauty contest will vie against nominees from 47 other regional contests in the National Motorsports/English Leather Calendar Girl Pageant Oct. 21 in the Frontier Hotel in Las Vegas, Nev., according to Danklefs.

Contestants in today's semi-finals were selected in a swimsuit contest at Cheers, an Odessa nightclub.

The contestants are Ora Rabb, 23, Tammy Howell, 26, and Linda Walker, 32, all of Midland; Toni Clements, 25, of Kermit; Mary Burkholder, 21, of Pecos; and Sandra Mitchell, 20, Norma King Scutt, 24, Melissa Lee, 20, Debra Overman, 21, Tracy Magar, 23, Shelly Meyers, 27, Sharrell Nickson, 19, Ginger Sumner, 21, Cindi Busby, 23, Sintery Campbell, 21, Jeannette Stelzig, 19, Joanna Hellekson, 27, Sandra Hernandez, 27, and Sheryl Cornelison, 20, all of Odessa.

The semi-finals are at 8 p.m. tonight in Chaparral Center. Six contestants will be selected for the finals at 3 p.m. Sunday. The winner will be named on the basis of her personality, dress and poise.

National Motorsports magazine is owner of the national pageant, and English Leather, maker of a men's cologne, is sponsoring the pageant.

The winner will be featured as a cover girl on the National Motorsports magazine and will be spotlighted in the annual calendar. Twelve additional women in the national pageant will be selected to represent the 12 months in the year in the 1986 calendar, which has a seven million circulation, Danklefs said.

Producer of the auto show is Daryl Starbird of Kansas City, Kan.

KWES's "waking-up" team, John Welch and Tinsel, will broadcast the show live 1 to 4 p.m. today.

Beauty show judges will be Mike Deardorff, general manager of KWES radio in Odessa; Marissa Morris, anchor person for KMID-TV; Christy Danklefs, sales manager of Water Wonderland; Steve Oliver of Nell Brown & Associates, Odessa Realtors, and Ed Todd, reporter-columnist for The Midland Reporter-Telegram.

Rozier gives USFL Bulls trio of Heisman cups

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — The Jacksonville Bulls signed running back Mike Rozier to a multiyear contract Friday and became the first professional football team to have the owners of three Heisman Trophies on the same squad, a club spokesman said.

Rozier, 23, formerly of the University of Nebraska and the defunct Pittsburgh Maulers of the United States Footballe League, will join two-time Heisman winner Archie Griffin, formerly of Ohio State and the Cincinnati Bengals of the National Football League, in the Jacksonville backfield.

"I'm real excited to get back on the field," said Rozier. He said that since leaving Pittsburgh, he's kept in shape by working out in Nebraska. He was scheduled to begin working out with the Bulls Saturday.

Neither Rozier nor the Bulls would reveal the terms of the contract, but earlier he had rejected a one-year deal for $250,000.

When asked if signing Rozier meant the Bulls were finished looking for additional players, Coach Linday Infante replied, "Financially, it certainly does."

The 5-foot-10, 210-pound Rozier said he wanted to remain in the USFL. He said one of the reasons he chose Jacksonville was "the sunshine."

He said the delay in signing with the Bulls was an attempt to guarantee his future.

"I was looking for security as every young player is. I never wanted to leave the USFL. I didn't leave football, the Pittsburgh Maulers folded," he said.

Infante said Rozier could be the "game-breaking type of back" Jacksonville needs to bolster its offense.

Rozier, who played much of last season for the Maulers with an ankle injury suffered in the 1984 Orange Bowl game, rushed 223 times for 792 yards and scored three touchdowns.

Knight's charm won over Giomi

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

Mike Giomi was 16, perhaps 17 years old when he first met Bobby Knight. It was, as you might expect, overwhelming.

The high school in Newark, Ohio, where Giomi was breaking all sorts of records, was holding a basketball banquet and the honored guest was the coach from Indiana University.

How convenient.

Doug Giomi, Mike's father,remembers Knight turning on the charm. "He had good things to say. Mike was impressed — no, make it awed. So was I. He singled Mike out, talked to him in front of the whole town."

AND JUST like that, before beginning his senior year at Newark High, Mike Giomi decided he was going to be an Indiana Hoosier and play for Bobby Knight.

The bidding from every major school in the country for the Ohio Player of the Year was shut off. "Mike wanted to be able to play that last year for Newark High with no hassles, so he made his decision early," his dad said.

Father and son discussed the choice. They were aware of Knight's drill-sergeant reputation. "I told Mike it would have to be his decision," Doug Giomi said. "I could not make it for him or influence him. He knew the situation. He wanted to play for Indiana."

Mike Giomi's college grades were ordinary — not penthouse, not basement. "I expected an average student, not Einstein," his father said. "And that's what Mike was. He was coming along good. I was not upset with his grades in any respect. I was satisfied."

BOBBY KNIGHT, however, was not.

Last summer, Mike Giomi took a two courses at IU, missed a few hours in math and failed. He was not the first student-athlete to find an F on his transcript; he will not be the last. Nevertheless, he was informed that the transgression would cost him his scholarship.

"He was beside himself," Doug Giomi said. "He came home and we talked it over. He decided he wanted to go back to school. He considered himself an Indiana Hoosier."

With no scholarship, Mike Giomi needed a student loan for tuition. When basketball tryouts were announced, he showed up as a walk-on. "That took a lot of guts," his father said. "He didn't even have a locker. That was for the scholarship players. He carried his stuff back and forth."

NOT SURPRISINGLY, this particular 6-foot-7 walk-on made the team and was Indiana's leading rebounder this season. But Knight's pressure was relentless. He criticized Mike Giomi and wouldn't allow him to take the team plane home from the Ohio State game two weeks ago. He rode with the team doctor to the next game at Purdue and didn't play. He didn't even make the trip last Sunday to Illinois, where Knight started four freshmen.

Then this week came the announcement that the Giomi was off the team, dropped when he admitted to the coach that he had missed two history classes and a speech class since the start of the semester. Cutting classes is an indiscretion that Bobby Knight simply will not endure.

Giomi's mother said her son had a 2.41 grade-point average last semester, up from the 1.91 after the summer failure and good enough under Indiana and NCAA standards. Knight, though, has his own standards.

"THEY ALL know that the only way they can lose their scholarship is if they aren't doing what they should be doing academically," Knight told New York Daily News columnist Mike Lupica. "I tell them when they're still in high school: 'The only problem you'll encounter with me as far as the scholarship is concerned is if you don't go to class.'"

Madlock questions future in Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Third baseman Bill Madlock wonders if the up-for-sale Pittsburgh Pirates can afford to stay in the city where they have lost millions of dollars each season.

Madlock, appearing at a Pirates' news media caravan this week in Charleston, W.Va., said he would "hate" to leave Pittsburgh but questions how much longer the team can continue to operate in the red.

The Pirates are for sale by their owners of 38 years, the John W. Galbreath family. They lost a reported $6 million last season while finishing last in the National League East and attracting a league low 773,500 fans.

Pirates President Dan Galbreath said the team hasn't made a profit since 1971, reportedly losing $20 million in the 14 seasons since then.

Madlock is uncertain if the Pirates will ever attract the kind of crowds needed to turn a profit, even if they again start fielding winning teams.

"Pittsburgh is a little different," he said. "They say if you win, they will fill it (Three Rivers Stdaium) up, but that's just not the case."

Russians miss Dallas meet

DALLAS (AP) — Multiple Olympic gold medal winners Carl Lewis and Valerie Brisco-Hooks of the United States will be at Reunion Arena tonight for the Dallas Times Herald Invitational track and field meet, but the Russians won't be there.

A six-member Soviet contingent, including Irina Podyalovskaya, one of the top women's 800-meter runners in the world, decided to begin a four-meet American tour Feb. 9 at Los Angeles.

"It takes the international edge off the meet," said Ted McLaughlin, the meet director. "But we still have an excellent field. Romania will be here."

Romania's gold medal winners from the 1984 Olympic Games who will compete include Maricica Puica in the 3,000 meters, Doina Melinte in the 800 meters and Anisoara Cusmir-Stanciu in the long jump.

Lewis won four gold medals at Los Angeles and Brisco-Hooks earned three gold medals.

Brisco-Hooks will run in the 440, while Lewis will compete in the 60-yard dash. Lewis established a world best in the 60 of 6.02 seconds in this meet in 1983.

Lewis was booed in New York like he was at the Olympics when he didn't take all of his jumps in last week's Millrose Games.

Lewis didn't have much more success earlier this week in Dallas, showing up late for a press conference after all the media had left.

John Paul, Jr., pleads innocent on indictment

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — John Paul Jr., who will be starting from the pole position in the Daytona SunBank 24-hour endurance sports car race, pleaded innocent Friday to a four-count federal indictment alleging conspiracy and racketeering in a marijuana smuggling ring.

Paul, accompanied by attorney Edward Garland of Atlanta, answered several questions from U.S. Magistrate Howard Snyder with a polite "yes, sir" and "no, sir."

Garland entered the innocent plea on Paul's behalf. If convicted of the charges and given maximum sentencing, Paul could get up to 50 years in prison and $80,000 in fines.

PAUL ALSO signed a waiver so Garland also could represent his father, fellow race-car driver John Paul Sr., who is awaiting extradition from Geneva, Switzerland to face federal drug smuggling and racketeering charges and a state charge of attempted murder.

Snyder explained to the 24-year-old driver that since both he and his father were charged in the same indictment, there could be a conflict for the same attorney or law firm to represent both men. Paul Jr.'s trial was tentatively set to begin March 11 before U.S. District Judge Susan Black.

He is charged with five other people in an alleged operation that brought 200,000 pounds of pot into the United States from Colombia.

Paul put aside his off-track problems long enough Thursday to win the pole position for the 24-hour race at the Daytona International Speedway that begins at 2:30 p.m. today.

WHEN ASKED after his court appearance if his legal problems would hurt his chances in the race, Paul replied softly, "No."

"I haven't been proven guilty yet ... When I'm in a race car, I can shove this all behind me and concentrate on racing," he said Thursday.

The former International Motor Sports Association Camel GT champion, who co-drove the winning car in this race in 1982, broke the speedway's qualifying record Thursday.

Paul is under orders from his attorney not to answer questions directly relating to his case.

He did say Thursday, however, "I'd like to get it all behind me as soon as possible. Whatever happens in court won't happen until the end of the year, I guess. I'm looking at racing the whole year (13 IMSA races)."

Question Box

By RAY CORIO
N.Y. Times News Service

QUESTION: I recall a baseball game in New York during World War II in which the Yankees, Dodgers and Giants played against each other. Could you supply some details?

The game was an exhibition at the Polo Grounds during a Monday night off for the three New York City teams, June 26, 1944. It was staged as part of an effort to sell war bonds, and fans were admitted only by purchasing such bonds. More than 50,000 people showed up, raising about $6.5 million just from admission fees. What the fans saw were pre-game contests such as fungo hitting (won by Cal McLish, the Dodger pitcher, at 416 feet 5 inches), entertainment by Milton Berle and Al Schacht, the appearance of old-timers like Zack Wheat and Roger Bresnahan, and a ball game with the following result:

Dodgers 5 runs, 9 hits, 1 error.
Yankees 1 run, 4 hits, 0 errors.
Giants 0 runs 2 hits, 2 errors.

Paul A. Smith, a professor of mathematics at Columbia University, devised the setup for the game: the teams batted, played the field and watched from the bench six times apiece during the nine innings. In the first inning, the Yankees, managed by Joe McCarthy, batted against the Dodgers, managed by Leo Durocher, while Mel Ott's Giants watched, then the Dodgers batted against the Yankees, scoring one run. In the second inning, the Giants batted, the Dodgers were in the field and the Yankees were benched, then the Giants took the field while the Dodgers were up, scoring twice more. In the third, the Yankees and Giants played.

Eddie Stanky knocked in two runs for the Dodgers, who pitched Hal Gregg, Les Webber and Ralph Branca. The Yankees, who scored twice in the ninth on two errors by the Giant shortstop Buddy Kerr, used Al Lyons and Joe Page on the mound. The Giant pitchers were Johnny Allen and Frank Seward.

The game took only 2 hours 5 minutes, and the Yankees and Dodgers, who would become bitter World Series rivals in six of the next 12 years, co-existed in the visiting team dugout the entire time.

QUESTION: When Lou Brock was elected to the Hall of Fame a couple of weeks ago, among the achievements cited was the fact that he was one of three players to hit a home run into the centerfield bleachers at the Polo Grounds during a regular-season game. Who were the other two players and who were the pitchers victimized by the homers?

Besides Brock, a left-handed batter, two right-handed batters from the Milwaukee Braves — Joe Adcock and Henry Aaron — reached the bleachers, with Aaron's coming the day after Brock did it on June 17, 1962. Adcock's homer was hit off Jim Hearn of the New York Giants on April 29, 1953, a two-run shot in the third inning of a 3-1 victory by Warren Spahn of Milwaukee. The homer traveled about 475 feet into the left-center seats. On June 18, 1962, Aaron clubbed a pitch from Jay Hook of the New York Mets about 460 feet to the same area. The homer came with the bases filled in a 7-1 victory by Bob Shaw of Milwaukee. Brock drove a two-run shot off Alvin Jackson of the Mets roughly 460 feet to the right-center seats in the first inning of a game the Chicago Cubs won, 8-7, the opener of a doubleheader sweep.

QUESTION: Team A has runners on second and third with one out. With Team B's infielders playing in to cut off the run at the plate, the batter grounds slowly enough to the second baseman that the runner on third is tempted to score. However, he changes his mind midway toward home and scrambles back to third base, only to find his teammate from second standing on the bag. Meanwhile, the batter has reached first base safely. If the second baseman throws the ball to the third baseman, in what sequence should the runners be tagged in order for Team B to pull a double play that would end the inning?

There can be no double play if both runners remain on the base. Unless a force play is in effect, the base always belongs to the original occupant. In this case, no matter in which order the runners on third are tagged, the runner from second will be declared out because he is not entitled to the base.

QUESTION: If a batter draws a walk with the bases full and two out in the bottom of the ninth of a scoreless game, must he touch first base or is the game over once the runner from third crosses the plate?

The batter must touch first base or the home-plate umpire will call him out, disallowing the run and prolonging the game. The batter also will be charged with a time at bat. If the same thing had happened with less than two out, the batter would be out, but the run would count.

QUESTION: Who scored more points in his pro basketball career, Jerry West or Oscar Robertson? Which of the two guards fouled out of a game most often?

West and Robertson played in the National Basketball Association during the same 14-season span of 1960-74, and in that time, Robertson scored 1,518 more points (26,710 to 25,192), but West had the better average per game (27.0 to 25.7). Robertson played in 108 more games (1,040 to 932), but fouled out of games only once more than West did (18 to 17).

In playoff comparisons, West has the upper hand, primarily because he spent his entire career with highly successful Los Angeles Laker teams. West appeared in the playoffs in 13 of his 14 seasons, averaging a playoff record 29.1 points a game and fouling out of only three of 153 games. Robertson, who spent 10 years with the moderately successful Cincinnati Royals and four with the Milwaukee Bucks, averaged 22.2 points in 86 playoff games. He also fouled out three times.

NYSE Report

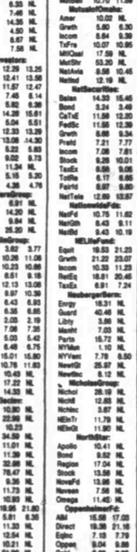

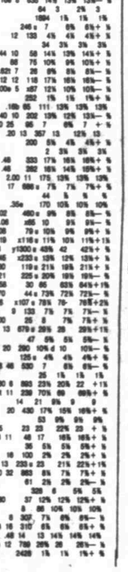

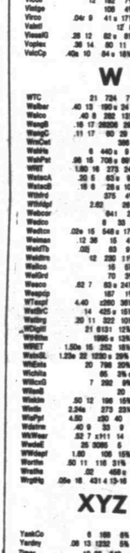

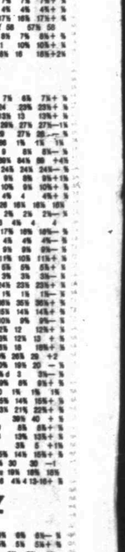

Civilian joblessness up some in January

Associated Press

The U.S. civilian jobless rate climbed to 7.4 percent in January from 7.2 percent the previous month, the Labor Department said Friday.

Construction spending, meanwhile, rose 0.9 percent in December and 19 percent for all of 1984 — the biggest annual increase in 33 years, the Commerce Department said.

And prices of some fresh fruits and vegetables should rise sharply this month because of a severe cold snap in January, but the long-term effects on inflation should be negligible, economists said.

While the unemployment rate rose in January, analysts said the economy's underlying strength was evident in the creation of 350,000 new jobs.

The ranks of the jobless grew by 300,000 to a record 8.5 million, the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics said.

Many of the 300,000 were laid-off Christmas workers who failed to find new jobs. That was reflected in an increase in the jobless rate for women from 6.4 percent to 6.8 percent.

However, the number of Americans holding jobs rose about 120,000 to a record 106.4 million and a separate survey of business establishments showed that there actually were 350,000 new jobs created last month, almost entirely in the service area of the economy.

"The increase in jobs growth was well above what had been expected," said Allen Sinai, chief economist and managing director of Shearson Lehman Brothers Inc.

But the 13.8 million-member AFL-CIO noted that last month's jobless rate was only a tenth of a percentage point below last May's 7.5 percent rate.

"There is little hope for the 8.5 million unemployed unless major efforts are undertaken to provide job opportunities for those who want to work and cannot find a job," the AFL-CIO said.

Spending on new construction projects totaled $311.9 billion in 1984, up from $262.2 billion in 1983, the Commerce Department said.

It was the biggest gain since a 26 percent increase in 1950 and was much higher than analysts had expected when 1984 began.

"It was an excellent year and we think 1985 will show more improvement," said Michael Sumichrast, chief economist for the National Association of Home Builders, and he predicted construction spending would rise between 8 percent and 10 percent this year.

Herring Coe, 77, can render predator and prey into a work of art. Some of his creations are imaginative blends of science and art.

Sculptor creates strange animals that 'might have been'

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — Oddly shaped creatures with cumbersome tails and unicorn-type horns exist deep in the recesses of Herring Coe's imagination. But sometimes one escapes in the form of a small figurine. Those that do depart Coe's subconscious now sit on a hallway shelf or hang on the walls of his home deep in the Old Town District.

Coe, 77, a nationally known sculptor, calls these peculiar animals "might have beens," or "may yet be's."

He explains his terminology, saying that evolution could have molded these strange characteristics or that maybe these forms still could appear. Coe's intellect is that of a scientist, but critics term his work as sensitive and delicate art.

"I've been said to have a scientific mind, instead of an artistic mind," Coe says, as he sits on his couch surrounded by past works. "They (the concepts) are terribly different, but they're both creative."

Indeed, his home portrays this dichotomy of stark science and creative clutter. No curtains hang at the windows, allowing the sunlight to dominate the rooms, giving Coe the light he requires for his intricate carvings. His work is everywhere, covering his walls and tables. One room, almost entirely surrounded by windows, contains just an easel and used pieces of clay. In another room, old art books and pamphlets surround a design table. Any disorder, though, seems to be planned, and neatly in place.

Coe, best known for his bronze statue of Dick Dowling situated in the Sabine Pass Battlegrounds and his monument to the children and teachers who died in the New London, Texas, fire, says he originally wanted to be an astronomer. By the time he was graduated from high school, Coe determined his career would be electrical engineering.

He attended South Park College, forerunner of Lamar University, for two years, studying engineering. But one day, watching his two younger sisters construct mud pies, he picked up a piece of clay and shaped a small Buddha. From there, Coe says he worked for a quarry, creating stone figures for architects.

Eventually, he earned the commission for the Dowling monument as part of the Texas Centennial celebration. His next major project consisted of memorializing the tragic deaths of 297 students and teachers who died when an explosion caused by a gas leak destroyed the school just 15 minutes before the final bell rang. "I showed the pupils going from one assignment to the other," Coe says. "One side showed them turning in their papers, symbolic of them leaving this world and going on to the next one. That's what most people want to think about death."

Coe transformed people's feelings about unidentified flying objects into a medallion, which the Society of Medalists chose to send to its members. A replica of the model sits on Coe's coffee table. On it, Coe carved mermaids and fishes. It reads "Beyond the sky, beneath the sea are known but to God and to fantasy," a saying Coe thought of to parallel flying saucers and mythical mermaids.

Coe also displays a small bust of what looks like a young woman, hands gripping her temples. But the other side depicts the face of an old wrinkled man. Coe calls this piece "Memories." "It's a man thinking of his sweetheart while he was young," Coe says. "It could be (a memory of his own), but doesn't everybody have memories?"

At an age when most people choose to retire, Coe is thinking of possible projects he could commission. Or, he works on his theory of cosmology, the creation of the universe. He digs out an old ledger book from one of his filing cabinets and reads from his own theory of the beginning of knowledge.

He begins with his concept of "being," then his idea of "being in time," followed by "being in a world outside myself." The papers of his composition book are old and worn, but Coe says he often thinks of more detail for his theory. "I've been working on the theory a long time, since before I was interested in sculpture," he says. "My intention was to have it as a rival theory to Einstein's theory of relativity. It can be, as far as I'm concerned."

Coe concentrates a lot on his scientific studies, maybe because he believes his art form is slowly ebbing because of the influx of modern architecture the type that emphasizes glass and chrome over chunks of stone. "There was more of it (sculpture) in those days than there is now," Coe says. "All these glass buildings, they just build glass boxes. Let's just say it (sculpture) is sick right now, I wouldn't say it was dying."

Poets gather to recite cowboy verse

ELKO, Nev. (AP) — The poets of the purple sage have come in off the range for the first Cowboy Poetry Gathering.

Poets from 15 Western states are reciting their range rhymes in this desert town in displaying a traditional but little-known art overshadowed for years by the public's fascination with the "singing cowboy."

The gathering, which began Thursday and ends today, also features songs, stories and artwork by or about cowboys.

The idea for the gathering first came up about 10 years ago at a meeting of folklorists at the Library of Congress in Washington.

Greek mythology has the image of time being like a man with long hair in front and bald in back. The picture is of one you must catch coming toward you, because once it has passed, nothing is left to grab.

About to capsize

Albatross is sailing at a sharp angle to the wind. Her sails are "fighting" the wind, turning its energy to a contradictory course.

The unseen hero in this drama is a keel weighing tons. Without it the Albatross couldn't even carry her rigging, let alone face sea and wind. Her keel is the counterbalance to all shifting forces.

Faith serves exactly this function during one's voyage through life. The person whose beliefs are firm can hold a true course when the winds of circumstance drive others to and fro. A person stands up to forces that would otherwise capsize them. They use them constructively to reach their destiny.

The first thing people do in building a ship is to lay the keel. In the building of human society our churches and our church schools are involved in that essential first step — the planting of FAITH.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

Church will have guest minister

Dr. Thomas B. Tyndall will preach at the 11 a.m. Sunday worship service at the First Presbyterian Church, 800 W. Texas Ave.

Tyndall is with the Highland Park Presbyterian Church, Dallas, where he has been minister to the college and young adult groups for 5½ years. He now is minister of congregational care.

Born and raised in Florida, he attended the University of Florida, Columbia Seminary and received his doctorate from Fuller Theological Seminary. In the summer of 1977, he was one of two ministers designated Outstanding Small Church Pastors in the Denomination while he was at College Hills Presbyterian Church, Oxford, Miss.

He and his wife, Betty, have three daughters, ages 10, 12 and 13.

The public is invited.

Mormon Church will have meeting

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints is having its semi-annual area conference from 1 to 3 p.m. Sunday in the Midland Chapel, 2101 Tarleton St.

This is the 52nd semi-annual conference for the Midland-Odessa Stake, which has about 3,000 members attending in 13 wards (congregations) throughout the area. The Midland area has three wards with about 1,200 members.

Speakers will include Stake President L. Royce Griffin, and the combined ward choir will sing.

The general public is invited to attend.

Church to celebrate communion

The Rev. Jean Pierre Meshew, archdeacon of the Diocese of the Southwest of the American Anglican Church, will celebrate Holy Communion for St. Paul's American Episcopal Church at 10 a.m. Sunday.

Services are held in the chapel of Ellis Funeral Home. The 1928 Book of Common Prayer is used by the congregation for all services.

Church will meet at clubhouse

The Rev. Robert Netherland announces that Christ Church Today will meet at the Sandstone Apartments Clubhouse, 4315 Neely Ave., beginning Sunday.

Worship service begins at 11 a.m. and the Crossfire Discussion Group at 7:30 p.m. The public is invited to attend.

Town loses hope of finding friar's remains

LAMPAZOS, Mexico (AP) — Any hope of finding the remains of Friar Diego de Salazar, founder of this quaint, remote, Mexican village of 6,000, remained scattered among the nearly 300-year-old bones unearthed here this spring.

The skeletons were discovered beneath the flooring of a church located within the walls of this city's oldest structure, Mision de Santa Maria de los Dolores, established in 1698 by Friar Salazar.

When the discovery was made, excited workers ran through the village to a site where architects busied themselves over the restoration plans of three other structures in the city.

Work was immediately halted and a team of archeologists was called in from Mexico City.

Meanwhile, speculation ran high among villagers that the bones might be those of the much revered Salazar, whose burial place has been the object of decades of search by villagers who still venerate him as no less than a saint.

RELIGION

When archeologists arrived, they spent less than two hours at the site. Much to the disappointment of the community, no instruments were available to sieve through the fine sand. No attempt was made to bring in other equipment which might have separated the thousands of bits of debris.

Workers continued excavating with shovels and pick axes. Hundreds more bones were found and many beautiful but rotted pieces of pecan and walnut casket wood were uncovered. A tiny silver crucifix depicting a girl kneeling at prayer was stumbled upon by a Mexican boy no more than 15 years old. He turned the piece over to the village priest.

Workers also ran into a mammoth boulder some 20 feet in circumference. Shovels struck on its surface produced a distinct hollow sound. But attempts to search below its surface were abandoned when even the combined efforts of the workers were insufficient to budge the huge rock.

However, excavation down one edge of the boulder turned up another skeleton. Curiously, the body had been buried in an upright position, the only one so discovered.

Of the nearly 100-foot long by 45-foot wide section of flooring removed, an area no larger than 30 by 45 feet was searched. The remaining 70 by 45-foot section was left untouched, poured over with packing sand and laced with reinforcement bars. By week's end it would be buried under a solid slab of concrete nearly three feet thick.

And except for several daily visits by the resident architect, neither the archeologists nor the architects in charge of operations remained behind to supervise any of the work. This despite the fact that the village's rich history included its maraudering on several occasions by Pancho Villa.

In fact, during Mexico's revolutionary years, Lampazos was also raided by the famed rebel forces of Don Venustiano Caranza.

In 1912, a band of Carranza's army occupied the mission. Nuns' quarters were overtaken and used to store ammunitions, gunpowder and hay for the horses.

And then one night they burned it to the ground.

That brought memories to one of Lampazo's older residents, Dona Maria Refugio Guajardo Vda. de Alejandro.

"Dona Maria," as she insists on being called, recalled days when the mission was a "veritable paradise." Beautiful trees and immense courtyards were surrounded by the convent walls. Children sat at the feet of nuns and learned Latin and Greek.

Young and old giving to famine relief funds

Associated Press

"I am doing this to help the children. Because I know I could have been one of them. And I would want help." So wrote a young girl, Manda, sending her $26 of bank savings for Ethiopian relief.

"It is nice to help," she wrote to Lutheran World Relief. "Feed as many children as you can. God bless the children."

The letter and gift typified the spontaneous outpouring of compassion and generosity that church agencies say has welled among American people, young and old, to ease the travail in sub-Sahara Africa.

Much of the response has come unexpectedly from individuals and groups rather than through regular church channels, simply people stirred in their consciences to do something.

"It has been truly overwhelming," says Norma Kehrberg, head of the United Methodist Committee on Relief.

That impression of a wave of instinctive, active goodheartedness of people across the country, wanting to help, has been reported by the various major church relief organizations.

"American generosity has been overwhelming," says Lawrence A. Pezzullo, executive director of Catholic Relief Services, which says people have donated $25 million to its Ethopian Emergency Fund in the last two months.

Altogether, Ethiopian aid by Catholic Relief Services, Lutheran World Relief and Church World Service, relief arm of the National Council of Churches embracing most major Protestant and Eastern Orthodox Churches, last year totaled more than $30 million.

Administrative or overhead costs for these major church agencies average less than 5 percent, far less than for most aid organizations. The church agencies also have local channels, coordinated in Ethiopia by a joint association.

The crisis there stirred various initiatives at America grass roots.

An Iowa statewide fund-raising drive backed by Gov. Terry Branstad and spearheaded by a major newspaper, the Des Moines Register, collected $668,000 for CWS and CRS, $334,000 each.

Local minister heads famine relief committee

Lathan

The Rev. Robert Lathan of Mt. Calvary Baptist Church is heading a local famine relief fund committee to raise money for the starving people in Ethiopia.

Lathan said he was contacted by people who want to do something to provide food and shelter for the people of Ethiopia. "I was happy to know others felt the same as me about the tragedy and that something could and should be done by people in this area to help."

The idea was presented to the Midland Ministerial Alliance, which agreed to sponsor the project. Subsequently, Lathan was named to head a committee.

The project is called Operation STEP — Save the Ethiopian People — by Pastor Shearod. He and his wife, Alice, as well as Sylvia Sims and Virginia Davis are some of the people in addition to local ministers who are involved.

Letters are being mailed to churches, businesses, clubs and civic organizations asking their help. Individual citizens also are encouraged to donate.

"Together we can help provide food, shelter and medical supplies to the starving, homeless people of that drought-stricken region of Africa," Lathan said. He pointed out that if each church gave $10-20 a week the amount would add up to a sizeable sum.

"On an average day 70 people are dying from lack of food and shelter and medical attention. When this number is multiplied by seven, (one week), 490 people have died and by the end of the year 25,480 people will be dead unless we act to change the direction of their lives."

The American Red Cross will be used to distribute the funds.

More information can be obtained by contacting Lathan, P.O. Box 10067, Midland, 79701.

Other ministers and churches assisting with the project are the Rev. C.L. Boyd, Greater St. Luke AME Church; the Rev. Johnny Mitchell, Mt. Carmel Baptist Church, the Rev. John Campbell, New Jerusaleum Baptist Church; the Rev. Joseph Williams, Greater New Hope Baptist Church; the Rev. Hadley Edwards, Hollowell United Methodist Church; the Revs. Alford Gaton, Tony Lightfoot, LeRoy Griffin and John Hudson of Mt. Calvary Baptist Church; the Rev. Leroy Hunt, Bethel Baptist Church the Rev. Wilbert Bledsoe of Hollowell United Methodist Church.

POSITIVE THINKING

Success will come if you keep trying

Elbert Hubbard, the American author and editor, said: "There is no failure except in no longer trying. There is no defeat except from within, no really insurmountable barrier save our own inherent weakness of purpose."

Let me tell you about a student who was labeled the least likely to succeed. But his failure became tiny footnotes in a vast volume of brilliant achievement. He lived in Munich, Germany, and at 15, his teacher told his father, "This boy is wasting his time in school. He seems to lack interest and I think he should be dismissed."

This boy, however, was convinced that he could do something with mathematics, but when he took the entrance exams for a polytechnical school, he was refused for not having the proper qualifications. He tried another school and this time managed to graduate, but at the bottom of his class.

Hoping to become a teacher, he applied for a job as an assistant but was rejected because he didn't seem very promising. Finally he got a position as a tutor in a boy's school, but six months later he was fired as inadequate.

Finally, with the help of family contacts, he was able to get work in the international patent office in Switzerland where he received a miserly salary and lived in poverty for a number of years. Between chores he scribbled mathematical ideas on bits of paper. He served as a technical clerk, but all the time he kept working on his mathematics, pondering the great scientific problems of his time.

This man, who lived through such a string of dismal failures, at the age 26 discovered the principles that made television and worldwide communication possible. He lifted the curtain that brought in the atomic age and developed theories that led to a unified explanation of the whole physical nature of the universe.

His name, of course, was Albert Einstein, the greatest mathematician the world has produced in modern times. Success came because he believed in himself and never stopped trying.

Einstein could have complained that the world was against him. He could have used failure as an excuse. But instead here's what he said: "The man who regards his own life and that of his fellow creatures as meaningless is not merely unfortunate, but almost disqualified for life."

Each of us has been given some talent. And it is important that we make full use of that talent and never lose faith in it. Integrity and pride in oneself is so very important. Keep your attitudes bright and positive. Above all, never stop trying.

'The Prodigal' to show at UA Cine IV

"The Prodigal," a modern-day allegory of the Biblical story, opens Friday at the UA Cine IV and will run through Feb. 14.

The movie, which intimately probes the interactions of an American family, is set in a contemporary urban framework. Writer-director James F. Collier's screenplay examines the gradual spiritual and emotional breakdown of the Stuart family as each member searches for his identity in a world of conflicting values and changing life-styles.

John Hammond, who plays the prodigal, starred in the television mini-series "The Blue and the Gray." The mother is played by Hope Lange, who won two consecutive Emmy awards as Best Actress for her television series, "The Ghost and Mrs. Muir." The father is played by Broadway award-winning actor John Cullum. The other brother is played by Arliss Howard, who makes his motion picture debut in this film.

Rated PG, the film is produced by World Wide Pictures, Billy Graham's film organization.

The Midland showing is sponsored by 35 Midland churches and local groups including Faith Alliance Church, Midland Christian Fellowship, St. Paul Methodist Women, Antioch Baptist Church, Christian Life Center, Midland Lutheran Church, Cuthbert Avenue Baptist Church, St. Nicholas Episcopal Church, First Presbyterian Church, Emmanuel Baptist Church, Latin Free Methodist Church, Wilshire Park Church, Church of the Dayspring, Alamo Heights Baptist Church, Calvary Assembly of God Church, Bellview Baptist Church, First Assembly of God Church, Midland Bible Church, Petroplex Covenant church, Trinity Presbyterian Church, Kelview Heights Baptist Church, Templo la Biblia Abierta Church, First Baptist Church, Greater Ideal Baptist Church, Northwestern Baptist Church, Fannin Terrace Baptist Church, Fairmont Park Church of Christ, Westside Church of Christ, Midessa Heights Baptist church, Holy Trinity Episcopal Church, Ranchland Heights baptist Church, Crestview Baptist Church Young Life, Girl Scouts, Crisis Center, Juvenille Probation Department, Radio Station KKKK, Fellowship of Christian Athletics, Boys Club, Community Bible Study, Midland/Lee Youth Centers, Teen Challenge and Palmer Drug Abuse Program.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Sunday, February 3, 1985

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: American illustrator-artist Norman Rockwell and writer Gertrude Stein were born on this date. Also sharing your birthday: author James Michener, Morgan Fairchild Joey Bishop, Senator Paul Sarbanes (D-Md.), golf's Carol Mann and football's Fran Tarkenton. Take a winter vacation; it will do you and your business a world of good! Financial worries disappear if you are patient and conservative. Steer clear of risky investments. Romance will fade unless you and mate can agree on a mutually rewarding lifestyle. Devote more time to your intellectual interests. Taking a refresher course at a university could lead to a new job.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Your standing in the community rises when you take a stand on an important matter. Ask for mate's support. Together, you can accomplish a miracle! State your goals clearly.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You receive inspiration from an unexpected source. Romance plays a major role in today's plan. A candid discussion wipes away any doubts or fears. Speak from the heart.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Make the most of any new opportunities. You and your family are about to make it big! Plan recreational activities that both the young and the old will enjoy.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Spending today with your family brings special joy. Going on a small shopping spree is fine if you can afford to pay the bills. Look for good buys in antique stores.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Be careful not to let down someone who is counting on you. Advocate a return to old-fashioned values within the family circle. New ideas abound. Be selective.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): An informal family gathering will produce valuable information and several happy surprises. An athletic event captures your attention. Include children in your social plans. Mate appreciates your thoughtfulness.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Make room for a family member who needs a change of environment. Your kindness will be richly rewarded. Offer your help, but do not intrude. Romance bursts into full bloom.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Quick thinking averts an accident or quarrel. Your organizational skills finally rub off on a brother or sister. Call home frequently when traveling. Otherwise, loved ones could feel neglected.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You meet someone with real influence today. Put your best foot forward. Be prepared to take on additional family responsibilities when emergencies arise. A young person needs more guidance.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Rushing into action now could be a mistake. Move cautiously and listen to others. Someone with a volatile temper could upset your plans. Protect yourself. Guard against deception.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your powers of persuasion are strong. Be bold when presenting your ideas to family and friends. Deal with an emotional problem that threatens an important relationship. Separate fact from fantasy.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): The future looks much brighter after you discover what a young person is trying to accomplish. Be generous. Give this individual a new forum in which to express his or her ideas.

Cathy Smith posts bail, leaves jail

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Former rock singer Cathy Evelyn Smith was freed on bail Friday after a judge told her attorney to decide by Feb. 11 whether she will accept a plea bargain on murder and drug charges in the death of comedian John Belushi.

Ms. Smith, using a bail bondsman, posted $5,000, 10 percent of her $50,000 bail after a judge refused to reduce the figure. She was hustled out of the criminal courts building by her attorney, Howard Weitzman.

She had been at Sybil Brand Institute for Women since Jan. 22 when she voluntarily returned to Los Angeles from Canada.

Ms. Smith, a Canadian citizen, dropped her fight against extradition last month and returned to Los Angeles after her Canadian lawyer arranged a bargain for her to plead guilty to lesser charges.

But Weitzman, who won John Z. De Lorean's acquittal last year, took over the case and immediately questioned the deal. He said Ms. Smith might not be guilty of anything and probably should serve no jail time.

Weitzman, who has said he might advise Ms. Smith to abandon her plea bargain, told reporters earlier he still has not made up his mind whether to seek a preliminary hearing in the case or allow her to plead guilty to involuntary manslaughter and three drug charges.

"I'm not 100 percent comfortable with the bargain offered," he said Friday. "That doesn't mean we're not going to accept the bargain."

"It's a real dilemma for me," he said. "I have some personal convictions about whether a homicide charge should be involved in this case."

"I think there are some legitimate issues about who the person was who caused John Belushi's death," he added. "I have real reservations about advising my client to admit she was responsible."

Rockettes win Disney fight

NEW YORK (AP) — Walt Disney Productions wrote a fairy tale ending to the Rockettes saga Friday by dropping all objections to using the precision dance troupe in its summer show at Radio City Music Hall.

It was a major victory for the dancers, who had been picketing the hall daily since Radio City announced three weeks ago that they would be missing from the show for the first time in 54 years.

All 36 regular Rockettes will appear in the show and a second troupe of 18 new Rockettes will be featured in shows at Disney World near Orlando, Fla., the Music Hall announced.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Charlie Daniels says he doesn't expect to be nervous Saturday night when he plays to the biggest audience of his career — a potential 100 million around the world.

Daniels and his country-rock band will be performing in their 11th annual Volunteer Jam concert for medical charities, but this time the event will be broadcast on short-wave radio by the Voice of America.

The band and two dozen surprise guests will perform in English, but Voice of America announcers on various frequencies will translate remarks into 11 languages: Chinese, Uzbek, Hindi, Spanish, Bengali, Armenian, Georgian, Ukrainian, Russian, Arabic, and Polish.

"It's a gratifying feeling," Daniels said. "It's great. Overwhelming. I don't get intimidated; I'd like to play for every man, woman and child in the planet.

AMHERST, Mass. (AP) — Comparing the plight of Cambodians to the Holocaust, the wife of Massachusetts's governor says she will urge the federal government to speed American intake of refugees from Southeast Asian camps.

Kitty Dukakis was reporting to a meeting of Cambodians here on her visit to refugee camps in Thailand two weeks ago.About 6,500 Cambodians live in Massachusetts.

She said a delay in relocating refugees from continued strife in Cambodia reminded her of the failure of efforts to save Jews from the Nazis in World War II.

Mrs. Dukakis, who serves on a national committee to commemorate the Holocaust, said she felt kinship with the refugees.

"I am of Jewish background, and six million of my people were killed during the second World War," she said.

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — School officials say they will adjust Miss San Antonio's high school class schedule so she can make a trip to Mexico without breaking the state's mandatory attendance rule.

Kristen Green, 17, a senior at Clark High School, ran into difficulty earlier this week when plans for an eight-day trip to the Pacific resort of Mazatlan ran head-on into a new state law allowing only five unexcused absences a semester.

But Thursday, Miss Green and her parents met with a Miss San Antonio pageant official and Northside school superintendent Jack Jordan and resolved it by adjusting her schedule so she would miss only five days of classes.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Director's Guild of America announced its nominees Friday for achievement in film direction in 1984, and four of the five — including Golden Globe winner Milos Forman — were foreigners.

Czech-born Forman was nominated for "Amadeus," which picked up four Golden Globes, including the award for best directing, from the Hollywood Foreign Press Association last Saturday.

The other nominees were Britisher David Lean for "A Passage to India," his countryman Roland Joffe for "The Killing Fields," Canadian Norman Jewison for "A Soldier's Story" and American Robert Benton for "Places in the Heart."

The Director's Guild award, to be presented March 9 in New York and Beverly Hills, often is a bellwether for the annual Academy Awards. Only twice in the 37 years of the Director's Guild award has the winner failed to take home the Oscar for film direction.

DALLAS (AP) — A. Earl Cullum Jr., a pioneering engineer and a former director of A.H. Belo Corp. has died at the age of 75.

Cullum died Thursday after suffering a heart attack at his home. Funeral services were pending.

A native of Abilene, Cullum came to Dallas in 1911 and was a member of the technical staff of WFAA radio from 1924 to 1927. In 1936, he founded A. Earl Cullum & Associates, a radio and television engineering company.

Cullum joined the board of directors of Belo in 1960 — a post he held for 20 years.

Cullum received a bachelor of science degree from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1931. In 1948, he was awarded a Presidential Certificate of Merit for service in radio and electronics.

Cullum was a fellow of the Institute of Electrical and Electronic Engineers and a member of the National Academy of Engineering.

Avant-garde director's stage productions unorthodox

WASHINGTON (AP) — Peter Sellars, the avant-garde young director who once had Mozart's Don Giovanni eating a McDonald's hamburger and French fries on stage, is ready to give American theater a startling new look — and won't mind if his audiences are outraged.

The 27-year-old "boy wonder" has announced his plans for the newly formed American National Theater at the Kennedy Center. Sellars, who shoots off ideas like a Fourth of July sparkler, will have a $6 million annual budget and three theaters to try them out as the company's director.

For starters, an Americanized version of Shakespeare's historical classic, "Henry IV, Part I," will open March 23 for a six-week run in the Eisenhower Theater. Sellars says it will be "quite an opening flourish."

Productions for the first full season starting in September will be announced later, but meanwhile Sellars promises to shake up Eisenhower Theater audiences long accustomed to Broadway-bound tryouts and revivals starring big-name casts.

After all, he once set Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Mikado" in a modern Japan jangling with advertisements for Coca-Cola, Sony and Seiko. He used a trailer park at Cape Canaveral, complete with astronauts and pink flamingos, as the locale for a space-age version of Handel's opera, "Orlando."

His "King Lear," with sets by Edward Gorey, featured a Lincoln Continental, and his "Antony and Cleopatra" was performed in a swimming pool at Harvard University.

More often than not, Sellars looks like he just stepped out of one of his own unconventional plays. He wears only black and white Japanese hapi coats, his hair seems to have been combed with an egg beater and his observations are punctuated with a braying, hee-haw sort of giggle.

He said in an interview that he wants to make the theater "a center of creation and not just an expensive roadhouse."

"I want the Kennedy Center to be a place where there's a kind of buzz in the air, not a theater of self-congratulation or admiration of the obvious but of real dramatic confrontation, a place that really shakes you up," he said.

"I'd like people to kind of say, 'wait a minute, I didn't think of that. Hold it. Stop. Wait a minute, this is too much.' I'd like to return to that element of surprise in the theater, where people feel either that they hate it, or they love it, but one way or another they have to see it.

"I want them to argue about it at cocktail parties, not (to have) given them something that by the time you've reached your car you've forgotten," he said.

Sellars was artistic director of the Boston Shakespeare Company when he was hired by Kennedy Center Chairman Roger L. Stevens last summer. Stevens, 74, said he was giving Sellars "carte blanche" to create a resident national theater company comparable to the National Theater of Great Britain or the Comedie Francaise in Paris.

Stevens said that "the theater has come to a big halt, and there's nothing to see in New York, so we've got to find some other way." That is the task he entrusted to Sellars as someone "young and adventuresome."

One of Sellars first moves was to slash ticket prices for his Eisenhower Theater productions to a range of $20 to $10, with students, the elderly and the handicapped admitted for as little as $7.50 a seat. Current prices range from $14.50 to $30 or more.

The company will receive $2 million annually from the Kennedy Center and the American National Theater and Academy, split evenly. Ticket sales are expected to provide one-third of Sellars' $6 million budget, and the balance will have to come from private contributions.

Ustinov to film documentary

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Peter Ustinov is about to start work on a six-part documentary on the Soviet Union, but don't expect a restaurant guide.

The documentary, "Peter Ustinov's Russia," will be based on his 1983 book, "My Russia." Ustinov will be host of the series and translate the interviews.

As one who has has spent a lot of time in the Soviet Union, Ustinov is quite familiar with its problems, including food.

Ustinov said he was forced to return the main dish twice at a restaurant. It was inedible.

Faintings called hoax

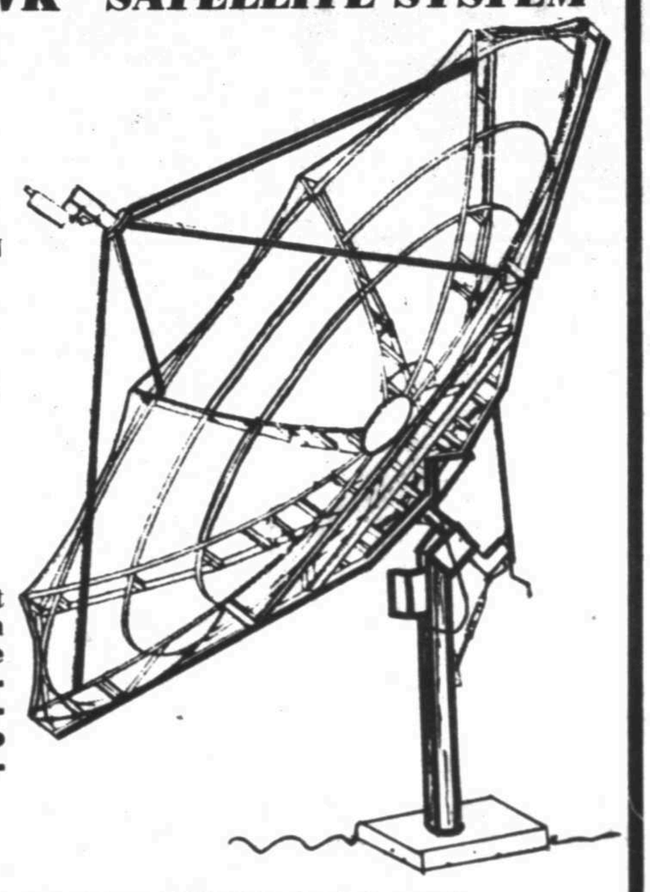

NEW YORK (AP) — A young actress on Friday described as a hoax an incident last month in which seven members of the studio audience fainted while watching Phil Donahue's television show.

Deborah Harmon told the WNBC-TV show "Live at Five" that those who swooned were planted in the audience at "Donahue" by Alan Abel, a veteran hoaxer who had previously tricked television stations and newspapers.

Abel said the incident was staged by a group called FAINT — Fight Against Idiotic Neurotic Television — to protest the quality of television, which he described as "the pits."

Book contains words, lyrics, trivia of TV shows' theme songs

Hearts News Service

NEW YORK — Many people can whistle the theme song from "The Andy Griffith Show," but how many know the song was originally written with words, or can remember them?

John Javna does. He is the author of the "TV Theme Song Sing-Along Song Book," a compilation of many favorites. The book contains music, lyrics, interesting facts and trivia about many familar TV sitcoms, westerns, spy and detective programs, cartoons and even a few commercials.

Stretching back 34 years, the book includes such gems as "The Ballad of Jed Clampett" ("come'n lis–ten to a stor–y 'bout a man named Jed"), the theme from "Petticoat Junction" ("Come ride the lit–tle train that is rol–lin' down the tracks at the junc–tion"), "George of the Jungle" ("George, George, George of the jungle, friend to you and me. Watch out for that Tree!").

A catchy theme song doesn't guarantee a hit series, says Javna. It's pretty difficult to find a person who can't sing, hum, or mumble, some portion of a theme from a list comprised of "Mr. Ed," "The Monkeys," "Secret Agent," "The Brady Bunch" or "Star Trek," but, according to the book, none of these shows ever ranked in the top 25 shows of the year.

Asked about the meaning of the songs, Javna says: "People really like the stuff. Forget about what it means. The important thing is they have fun with it. The shows were milestones in people's lives, important as a mark of time in our memories. These are the shows the televison generation grew up with."

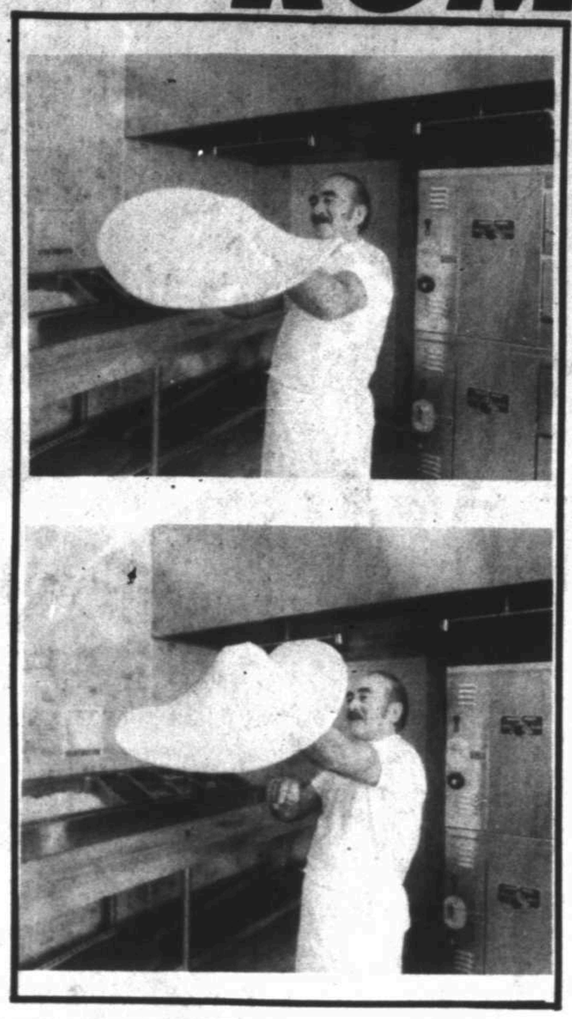

Javna is quick to note the shows celebrated cultural values. As an example, Javna says of "The Beverly Hillbillies": "Look at Jed Clampett, he was a good old country guy. Money didn't change him. He embodied all the great American values — he was fair, kind and filthy rich."

Javna hopes to organize a TV theme song sing-along chorus in which the singers will dress as their favorite TV character.

The book was an adventure in "finding something yet uncovered," Javna says, citing the discovery of the "Leave It to Beaver" lyrics as an example. He also unearthed the words to the theme from "I Love Lucy" (released as a disco tune in 1977; a major flop, Javna says), "Lassie," "Bewitched" and "Bonanza."

Theme songs without words included in the book are: "Dragnet," "Perry Mason" and "Alfred Hitchcock Presents."

'Black spot' policy will be reviewed

By TOM BALDWIN
Associated Press Writer

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — The government said Friday it would partially suspend one of the most hated policies of racial segregation — the forced resettlement of black communities to tribal homelands away from South Africa's white population.

The announcement capped a week of unusual government moves on its racial separation policies — a week in which President P.W. Botha offered terms for the release of imprisoned black leader Nelson Mandela, and South Africa's new, three-chamber segregated Parliament conducted its first working session.

Botha's National Party, which has controlled the white-minority government since 1948, said it was offering the 22-million member black majority a new deal.

Gerrit Viljoen, minister of cooperation, development and education, told foreign reporters the government will review the planned resettlement of hundreds of thousands of blacks who are to be moved to tribal homelands from land set aside for whites.

Under South African law, blacks are considered citizens of 10 homelands, with political rights there rather than in South Africa.

Viljoen, one of the National Party's leading theorists, said the government would continue resettling black communities if their leaders agreed.

The practical effect of the review remained unclear because the government often is accused of appointing black leaders who go along with the government's wishes and lack support from the people.

The review will include 25 to 30 rural "black spot" villages in white areas and about the same number of urban black townships, Viljoen said. He said he was not sure how many people were involved, but it was at least hundreds of thousands.

Viljoen mentioned in particular KwaNgema and Driefontein, two rural black areas in eastern South Africa that have been the targets of foreign critics. The review of the policy was initiated because "the government is sensitive to the general critical attitude toward resettlement," he said.

An estimated 3 million blacks and a handful of whites have been moved during the 30 years since the policy was implemented.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Industrial leader slain

Zimmermann

GAUTING, West Germany (AP) — Two terrorists forced their way into the home of a prominent West German industrialist near Munich today and shot him in the head, critically wounding him, federal investigators said.

The left-wing Red Army Faction claimed responsibility in a phone call to a local newspaper, police reported.

Ernst Zimmermann, 55, chairman of the giant Motoren-Und Turbinen-Union of Munich, was shot after being tied up by a man and woman armed with a submachine gun who burst into his home at 7:20 a.m., the Federal Prosecutor's Office said.

The couple escaped after leaving Zimmermann's wife bound with her mouth taped shut on the living room floor, the office said.

Jamaica sets conference

KINGSTON, Jamaica (NYT) — With encouragement from the Reagan administration, Jamaica is organizing an international youth conference and festival for early April as a show of solidarity among young people in the non-Communist world.

But the event, which Jamaican officials say "stands in stark contrast" to youth festivals regularly sponsored by the Soviet Union, is in financial trouble and is going to have to be significantly reduced in scale if $5 million is not raised in the next eight weeks.

This week, Jamaican officials have been trying to obtain money and services for the event from businessmen and entertainers in the United States and from governments and foundations in Europe and West Africa. They are also trying to sell the television rights to the festival, which is to include several popular and classical music concerts, dance presentations and a film competition.

Beirut mosque bombed

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A car bomb exploded in front of a packed mosque in the northern port of Tripoli today — the Moslem holy day — and state radio said at least 12 people were killed and 58 wounded.

Police said the blast at 12:45 p.m. punched a "huge hole" in the wall of Imam Ali mosque on Tripoli's Jummeizat street and heavily damaged scores of buildings in a 500-yard radius. The radio said 10 people were killed outright and two injured people later died in a hospital, updating the earlier police toll of 10 dead and 60 wounded.

The Lebanese Red Cross appealed for blood donations to help the victims in Tripoli, Lebanon's second largest city with a population of a half million 50 miles north of Beirut.

Iraq repulses attack

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — Iraq said Friday its armed forces beat back an Iranian counterattack on positions in the central part the warfront that Iraq claims to have captured earlier in the week.

"The attacking Iranian forces were turned into dust and the few survivors fled, leaving behind their arms," a military spokesman said on Baghdad radio. Government-controlled news media paid tribute to Iraqi soldiers for scoring "heartening victories over the (Iranian) enemy."

Iran has insisted that Iraqi offensives on Monday and Thursday were a "total failure," but said nothing about Iraq's report Friday of an Iranian counterattack.

Ver pleads innocent

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Gen. Fabian C. Ver, once the Philippines' most powerful military man, and 25 other defendants pleaded innocent Friday to charges that they were involved in the killing of opposition leader Benigno Aquino and a man the military said was Aquino's assassin.

Soldiers accused in the case rose to attention as the general, dressed in civilian clothes, arrived in the small courtroom to enter his plea. Ver, 65, who is on leave from his post as armed forces chief of staff, snapped a salute in return.

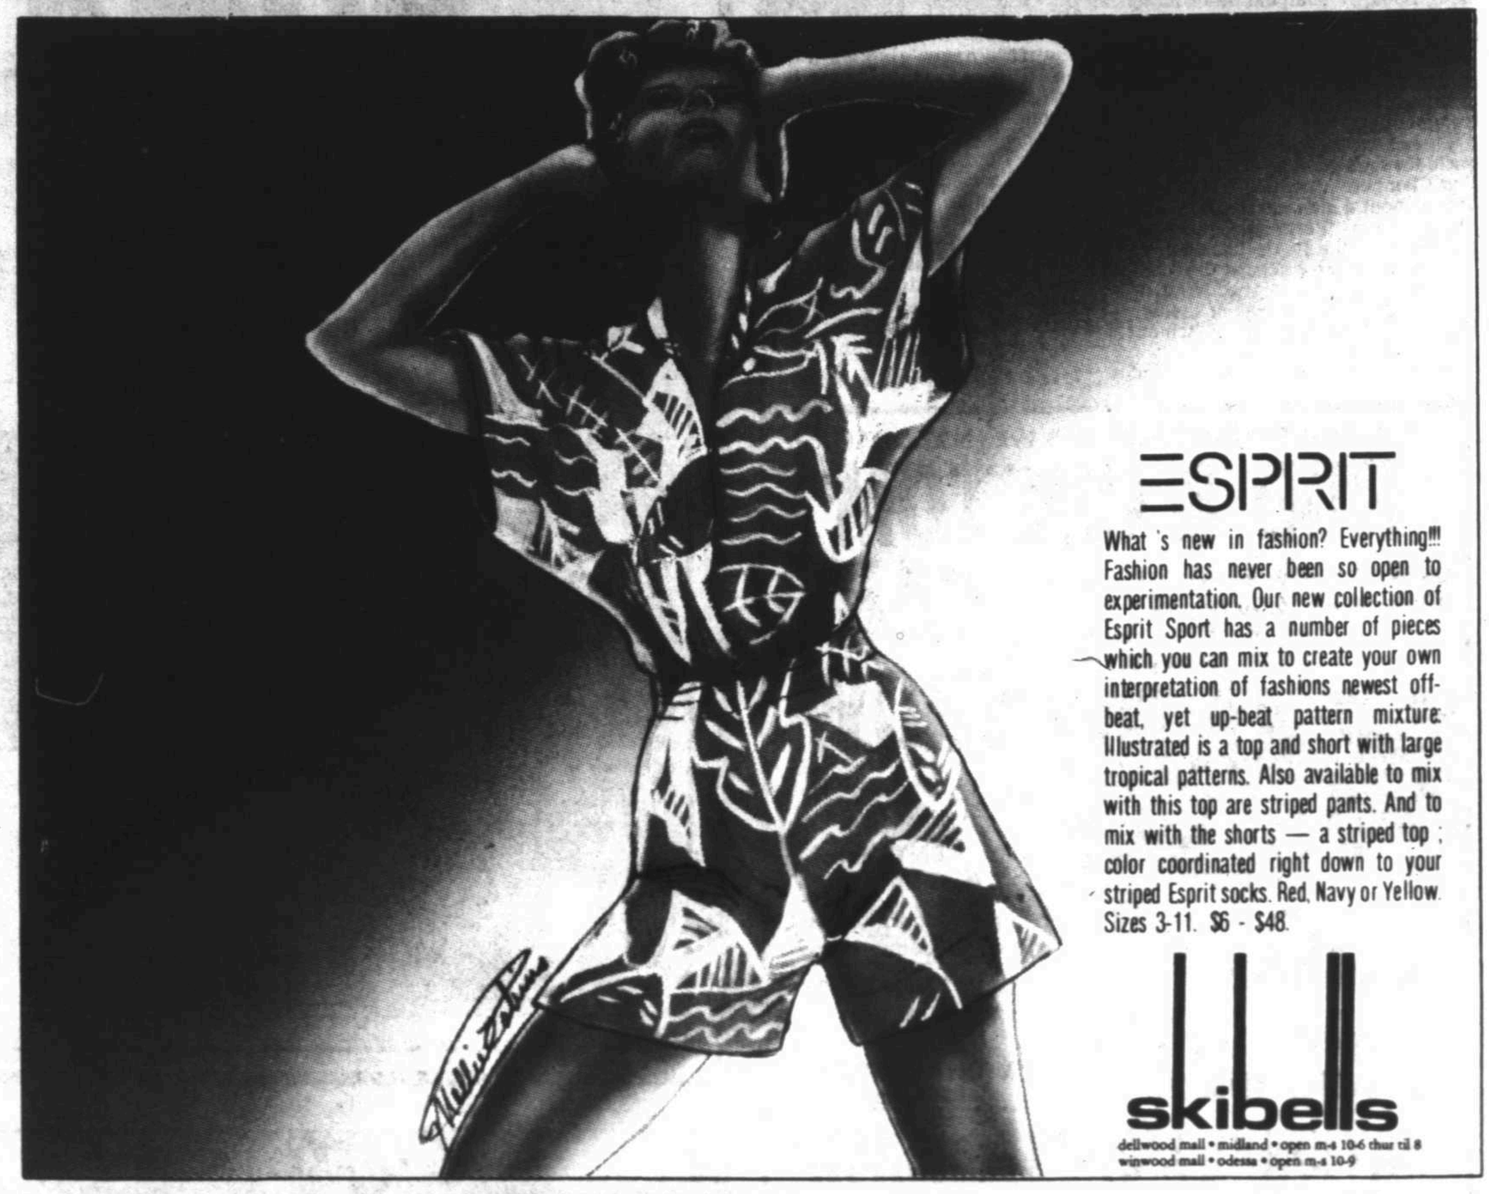

Each of the 26 defendants — 25 military men and one civilian — answered "not guilty" when asked for their plea on each of two charges.

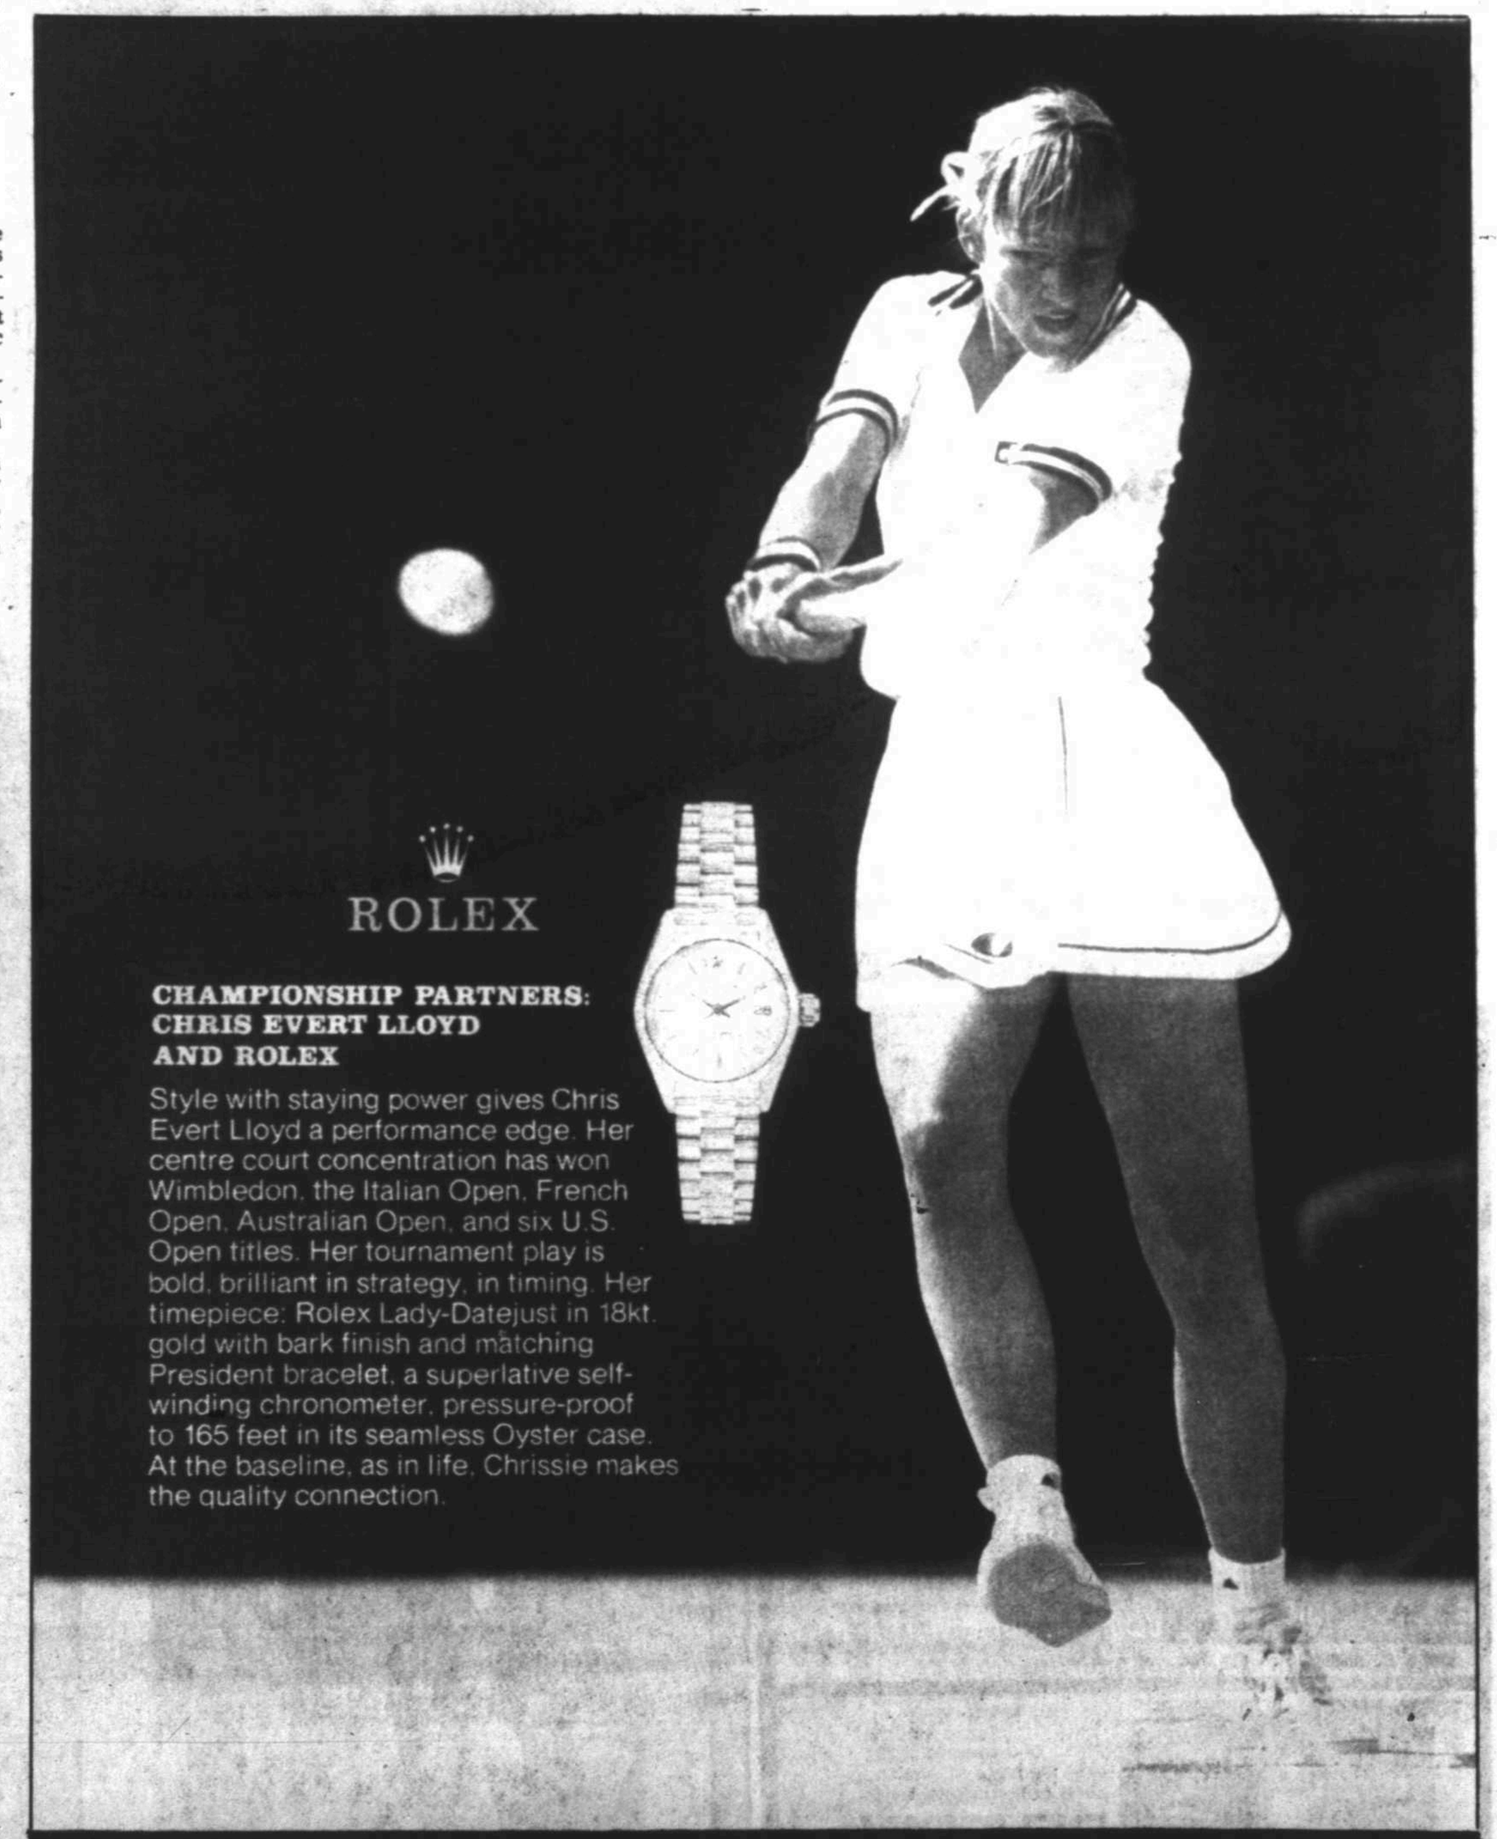

Polish trial stirs tension

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The trial of four secret police officers charged in the slaying of a pro-Solidarity priest is creating new tensions between Poland's Communist government and Roman Catholic Church.

It also has pointed up the complexities of the Polish church's delicate 40-year relationship with an officially atheist state.

The month-long trial has been a forum for attacks on the church by the defendants and the prosecution, prompting one Catholic lawyer to remark that it seemed the church itself had been put in the dock.
