His Money Crop— Not Cotton— Call It Politics— Sidewalk Gossip—

J. N. TWEEDY, who lives just outside the city limits on the Iowa Park road, is a business man AND a farmer—that is, Mr. Tweedy considers farming a business, to be conducted as such. Mr. Tweedy is now harvesting his grape crop, and Monday told The Record News this about grape growing:

"I have found grapes the best money crop for this section. I've tried cotton, and I make more clear profit on an acre of grapes than I would on 50 or 100 acres of cotton."

THERE are many problems yet to be solved in connection with grape growing and other new crops in Northwest Texas. Men like Mr. Tweedy, business men and farmers, will solve them, and should eventually make the valley one of the most productive in the nation.

Mr. Tweedy knows about cotton, for he has grown it in the valley. "The last year I raised cotton I made three bales on two and one-half acres, and if you figure my time was worth very much, I lost money on the deal."

Mr. Tweedy is placing additional acreage in grapes as fast as his land is made available from other products, and he would advise other farmers at least to give a small vineyard a trial.

FORMER Representative F. A. Dale of Bonham county will be sent to trial on Nov. 7, in connection with the charges of bribery made during a session of the legislature. There are absent witnesses needed by the state. Former Representative H. H. Moore of Cooper, Delta county, advanced the jeopardy plea, or rather the plea of former jeopardy when his case was called and the representatives of the state dismissed the charge as to the Cooper county lawmaker.

He was defeated for re-election in a special election. Now the friends of Moore say he will be a candidate for the legislative honors in 1928.

Politics is a queer game. Some men never know when they have had enough.

DIFFICULTIES involving the Farmers Elevator company of Electra should not be taken as an indication of poor business conditions in that city, or this section, although many usually apply such a false rule in similar cases.

It is the personal opinion of the writer that the Farmers Elevator case has received more newspaper space and more display than the matter justified from a viewpoint of either importance or interest. One of the largest claimants against the company informed The Record News that it is expected that the loss will be comparatively small, if any.

There have been many rumors involving other firms as a result of the difficulties of the Farmers Elevator company. These rumors when traced down by newspapers interested only in printing facts, have invariably proved false.

Sidewalk gossip has no value as business information, and is worthless as conversation. It is the insidious weapon of the natural-born knocker, and the most deadly, because it cannot be traced or refuted.

Romance Of North Woods

Millionaire New Yorker Will Take Pretty Wood Nymph as Bride at Elaborate Stillman-Wilson Wedding

By Universal Service.

GRANDMERE, Que., July 25.—The wedding here tomorrow of James A. Stillman Jr., and Miss Lena Wilson, is to be the most elaborate ceremony ever witnessed in this part of the world. Important prelates of the diocese are to participate. When the Rev. Ephrem L'Ami, cure of Grande Des Piles, announced today his complete success in composing family differences that for a time threatened to mar the occasion, he told also of ceremonial plans which include the making of a big show for Bud and Lena when they stand at the altar.

The Rev. L'Ami will be aided in the marriage service by the Rev. Luis Phillipe Normand of Three Rivers. The Rev. Desilets, director of Three Rivers seminary, and the Rev. Baril, ceremoniare of Three Rivers.

A Big Send-Off

Not only are the Stillmans determined to give their charming little wood nymph daughter-in-law a send-off the woods country will never forget, but the priests and people of the French-Canadian community are one in their enthusiasm for an epic celebration. There never was a multi-millionaire marriage under conditions and surroundings so romantic.

Social registerite by right of birth, heir to a $60,000,000 estate, young Stillman, bronzed and laughing, is to endow with all his earthly possessions a pretty, simple girl of the forest who speaks English haltingly.

Riches for Bride

It was revealed today that "Bud" Stillman will give Lena "half of all I own." Under the terms of his grandfather's will Bud inherited one-third of a $9,694,571 trust fund in 1919.

James A. Stillman, father of the bridegroom and former president of the National City bank is here for the wedding. He has declined to grant a personal interview in connection with it but refers all questions to Mrs. Stillman. She declares laughingly daddy is "just crazy about Lena." Stillman's yacht is anchored in the river.

Also to be present at the wedding are Mrs. H. P. Davidson, the former Anne Stillman, who married the millionaire son of J. P. Morgan's deceased partner. Mrs. Davidson was accompanied here yesterday by three Princeton classmates of young Stillman.

Council Splits In Vote To Send Two To Convention In Oregon

Over the protest of Mayor R. E. Shepherd, Oral Jones, finance commissioner, and J. W. Hunt, street commissioner, the city council Monday night authorized the payment of expenses for Roy Carter, police and fire commissioner, to the national convention of fire chiefs and executives to be held during August in Portland, Ore.

The motion for the payment of expenses was made by Mr. Carter on behalf of himself and Fire Chief J. L. McClure. The motion was seconded by P. B. Curd, water commissioner, who with A. W. King, park and sanitary commissioner, voted with Mr. Carter in favor of the motion.

Mayor Shepherd asserted that he had no objection to Chief McClure attending the convention as he would probably gain information that would be of value to Wichita Falls. However, Mayor Shepherd declared that as Mr. Carter did not participate in the "fire fighting" and did not direct the policies of the fire department that it would be a useless expense to the city.

Mr. Carter declared that Mr. Curd and Dr. A. H. Douglas, director of the water department, were recently authorized to go to Chicago to attend the national water convention at the city's expense and that he should be allowed to attend the fire convention.

Labor Day Celebration To Eclipse 1926 Jubilee Planned By Unions

Plans which it is believed will result in the greatest Labor Day celebration in the history of Wichita Falls were formulated at a meeting of the committee of the Central Trades Council and associate committees at the Labor Temple Monday night.

A parade large enough to eclipse the mammoth one of 1926 is to be the feature number in the day's celebration. It was decided to inaugurate an industrial division in the parade and to invite merchants of the city to enter floats or to join the movement in any way they see fit.

It was tenatively decided to hold a basket picnic in the afternoon when speakers of state and national note will deliver addresses. Following the activities of the afternoon a big ball and square dance is to be held on the streets. The ball will be held in the Labor Temple in case of inclement weather.

A committee on entertainments composed of P. B. Roberts, Clarence Melton and R. E. McDaniel, was appointed.

W. R. Day, C. R. Gray and C. E. Dressler were named on a committee for celebration organization. Mrs. P. E. Miller was appointed chairman of the Labor Day general committee.

The meeting passed a resolution to notify the retail merchants association that no solicitations for funds to be used in the celebration will be made.

All labor organizations in the Wichita Falls district, bounded by Fort Worth, Amarillo and Abilene, will be invited to attend the celebration. A special representative from the Central Trades Council will call on each organization in the district, it was announced.

ANDREWS FILES BOND OF $2,000

Elevator Manager Says He "Will Pay All"

Declaring that he was in no condition to make a detailed statement regarding the affairs of the Farmers Elevator company of Electra, W. R. Andrews, manager of the company, declared Monday that every cent owed by the company will be paid.

Will Pay All.

Andrews was at Sheriff W. G. Brailey's office for the purpose of perfecting bond of $2000 set after a complain' charging embezzlement of more than $50 was filed against him by Dan Neugwasser, Electra farmer. He was released by Sheriff W. G. Brailey after approving the bond signed by C. W. Coffee, H. T. S. Totten and A. L. Robb, all of Electra.

Andrews insisted that there will be delays to creditors but not necessarily losses. "I will pay every dollar of it if God lets me breathe long enough," he declared.

The present condition of the company, of which J. Milton Erwin of Wichita Falls has been named trustee, was declared by Andrews to be temporary and not caused by criminal acts.

Explanation Later.

Present conditions of the elevator company are due to difficulties experienced several years ago which left debts which had to be paid as money was available, he stated.

Explanation will be made later as to the disposition of approximately 20,000 bushels of grain which it is claimed had been stored at the elevator, Andrews stated.

KNOB KNOCKERS GIVEN LONG PRISON TERMS

Sentences for C. S. Taylor And Frank Davis Total 91 Years

TWO PLEAD GUILTY

Claude Reeves, Accused as Member of Ring, to Fight Charges

Entering pleas of guilty to charges of burglary and theft, C. S. Taylor and Frank Davis, alleged members of a knob-knocking gang recently rounded up by Sheriff W. G. Brailey, received Monday in the 30th district court before Judge E. G. Thornton, sentences totalling 99 years in the penitentiary.

Davis received 18 years and Davis 81.

Reeves Changes Plea.

Claude Reeves, another alleged member of the gang, first entered a plea of guilty to charges of burglary and theft withdrew the plea and entered one of not guilty. He will be brought to trial during the week, E. F. Fruechte and Sam Spence, assistant district attorneys, who are prosecuting the cases announced.

Rush Stell and John Berry, other alleged members of the gang, who are under indictment for burglary and theft, will also be brought to trial during this week, according to the prosecutors.

The jury in Taylor's case assessed his punishment at two years each in seven cases of burglary and two cases of theft. In Davis' cases the punishment was eight years for each in eight cases of burglary; five years each in three cases of theft and two years in one case of receiving and concealing stolen property.

Juror Is Witness.

Judge Thornton said after Taylor's and Davis' trials were concluded that he had not definitely decided as to whether he would run any of the sentences imposed on Taylor and Davis concurrently.

Davis' trial threatened to come to a sudden ending Monday when it was discovered that one of the state's witnesses was a member of the jury. However, Davis consented to the witness withdrawing from the jury and the selection of another one.

If Davis had refused to consent to the withdrawal of the witness from the jury it would have been necessary to try the case before the juror-witness and then have the verdict set aside by the court, if it had been one of guilty, which would have necessitated an entirely new trial.

SLAYER MUST PAY IN DEATH OF STEPSON

F. M. Snow Scheduled to Go to Electric Chair August 12

INSANITY PLEADED

Board of Pardons Also Against Commutation Of Sentence

AUSTIN, July 25. (AP) — F. M. Snow, under death sentence for the slaying of his stepson, Bernie Connally, today was denied commutation of the sentence to life imprisonment by Governor Moody.

Snow is scheduled to be electrocuted August 12, when his 28-day reprieve expires.

The governor accepted the adverse recommendation of the pardon board which held Snow not insane, contrary to the defense plea. The board recited that the criminal appeals court did not find Snow insane, and expressed the opinion that Snow was capable of distinguishing between right and wrong when the murder occurred.

Connaly's headless body was found on a mountainside near Stephenville. The head, wrapped in a sack, was discovered in a cellar.

Snow was claimed by the state to have confessed to the slaying of his wife and mother-in-law and burning their bodies in a farm house fireplace.

Defense counsel recently presented affidavits of two Fort Worth physicians that Snow is a "moron" not above mental age of 12 which the pardon board answered by claiming Snow showed intelligence in his alleged disposal of the bodies.

COUNCIL HEARS ZONING LAW

Members to Study New State Statute

Possibility that during August the time limit on parking of cars in city streets would be abandoned loomed Monday night when the city council took under advisement a recommendation made by Roy Carter, police and fire commissioner, that such action be taken.

Meanwhile, Watch Out.

Mr. Carter said that many citizens had suggested the abandonment of the time limit and that he was in favor of "trying it out" during August. In the meanwhile, the ordinance will be strictly enforced, Mr. Carter said.

Contracts for the city depository for the ensuing year; for the construction of a concrete base for the west side water tower and for the printing of city legal notices were awarded by the city council.

The Security National bank was designated as depository on a bid of 4.06 per cent on daily balances of city funds. L. H. Lyons was awarded the contract for the building of the concrete base on the lowest bid, of eight, $4060 The Record News received the contract for printing legal notices for the ensuing year on a bid of 65 cents per column inch.

The council cancelled the paving project on North Travis, between Wichita and Warren, due to the objections of property owners, and set hearings on the paving of Warren, between Burnett and North Travis, and Bluff, between Second and Sixth, for August 8.

Request for damages for alleged injuries as a result of falling in a ditch on North Sixth, May 13, filed by A. M. Brown was refused by the council after receiving a report from a committee composed of A. H. Britain, C. A. Cabiness and R. C. Smith, appointed by the council for an investigation.

Consider Zoning.

Petition of property owners in the Sibley-Taylor second addition for the council's aid in having telephones placed in that section of the city was referred to P. B. Curd, water commissioner, for investigation.

Mr. Curd presented the provisions of the new state law regulating city zoning and it was the consensus of the members of the council that further investigation relative to the provisions should be made before an attempt was made to invoke the law in Wichita Falls. Several attorneys in the city have declared the law illegal, among them Thelbert Martin, city attorney, it developed during the discussion.

Burns to Convention.

The council authorized the payment of expenses for the attendance of Frank Burns, chief of police, at the state convention of peace officers to be held August 9 in Denton.

The council ordered the abandonment of Chester street, from Bluff to 19th. The council authorized the sale of the property to Mytinger and Walker for $500.

On recommendation of Roy Carter, police and fire commissioner, the appointment of C. M. Goodwin, night police desk sergeant, as deputy clerk of the corporation court was approved.

Flier Guides Burning Plane To Ground From Altitude of Eight Miles

WASHINGTON, July 25. (AP)—Seeking to shatter the airplane altitude record, Lieut. Carleton C. Champion Jr., of the navy, had a spectacular battle for life high above Washington today as he brought his plane down with a disintegrated and flaming engine.

Champion, who holds the altitude record for seaplanes, reported to the navy that his altimeter showed 47,000 feet, but a preliminary reading of the machine's damaged barograph at the Bureau of Standards led officials there to say that the highest mark they had found indicated an altitude of 39,000 feet. It was emphasized, however, that this reading was by no means final and that a definite announcement must be withheld for 30 hours.

The recognized world's record for airplane altitude is held by a French aviator, Callizo, who climbed to 40,820 feet last August.

Taking off from the Anacostia naval air station near here in the early morning, Champion had climbed with his pane for forty minutes when two of the cylinder heads of his Wasp air-cooled motor blew out. Apparely one of the flying pieces choked the oxygen tube from Champion's mouth as he said that he became unconscious. What happened to the plane then he is unable to say, but when he regained consciousness he was lying on his back with the oxygen tube just above him. He placed it in his mouth and then got his plane under control.

Meantime the engine caught on fire, but a violent sideslip followed by a dive was successful in blowing the fire out. At that time the altimeter indicated a height of 36,000 feet. The engine continued to disintegrate and caught on fire three additional times before the plane, a Wright Apache, finally was brought down on a cornfield near the Anacostia station.

Engine Demolished.

An examination of the machine, Champion said, showed that seven cylinder heads with pistons and connecting rods were missing. One of the two barographs were demolished, presumably by flying parts of the engine, while the other was so badly damaged that the aviator said it probably would be worthless.

Champion's landing was described by the navy department as "exceptionally fine" with no injury to either the pilot or plane. Naval flying officers were quick in their praise of the gallant flyer for the fight he made to get his "ship" back to earth against great odds. At one time Champion had decided to jump and had loosened his safety belt, but believing he had shattered the world's altitude record he determined to fight it out in an effort to save the barographs telling the altitude curve of his flight.

Wreck Cause Unknown.

The cause of the disintegration of the engine has not been definitely cleared up, but it was assumed by navy men that it resulted from a failure of the lubricating system.

BOY DIES IN PISTOL FIGHT

Seven Other Youths Who Escaped from Prison

GRANITE, Okla., July 25.(AP)—Eight boys escaped from the state reformatory here today but were captured a short time later after one of them, Eddie Shaw, 19, had been shot and killed by a Beckham county officer.

Shaw was killed after one of the group of escaped prisoners fired at officers who halted them 12 miles north of Sayre. The officers returned the fire, killing Shaw and slightly injuring two others.

Mrs. W. A. Waters, warden of the reformatory, said that the eight youths, all first termers, were working near the roadside at the prison property, cutting weeds, when suddenly one of the number knocked Bert Johnson, the guard, unconscious.

The boys then rushed to the road where they halted an approaching motorist, forced him from his car at the point of a gun they had taken from Johnson, and drove toward Sayre.

The guard, after regaining consciousness, reported the break and county officers at Sayre immediately started a search.

When officers sighted the car in which the boys were riding they ordered the driver to stop.

Shaw was convicted of burglary in Oklahoma county. His body will be buried in the reformatory cemetery tomorrow.

County And City To Consider Hospital Affairs At Conference

An invitation issued Monday by the county commissioners court to the city council to be held at 1:30 p. m. Wednesday in the commissioners courtroom relative to matters pertaining to the Wichita General hospital was accepted Monday night by the council.

The council also decided to take up at that time the county's recent request that the city pay the county $5,032.62 for the maintenance of indigent patients at the city and county hospital and the county poor farm.

The court's invitation followed an inspection of the hospital and nurses' home made Monday morning by the members of the court. At the conclusion of the inspection dinner was served at the hospital for the court members.

County Judge E. W. Nicholson said following adjournment of the court that he could not make any definite statement that the sale of the hospital would be discussed at the conference but that it was very probable the question would come up during the meeting.

Mayor R. E. Shepherd asserted Monday night that although at one time the city council was in favor of selling the hospital he was not in a position to say at the present time what the council's attitude would be and that as it was a conference at which county officers would preside he was unprepared to make a statement as to whether the sale of the hospital would come up for discussion at the meeting.

The inspection of the hospital by the members of the court followed the issuance of a statement by E. P. Walsh, county auditor, a short time ago in which he pointed out two methods of caring for indigent patients at a lower cost than now prevails due to the maintenance of the hospital.

Before adjourning the commissioner's court instructed Mr. Walsh to advertise for bids for the painting of fences and buildings at the county poor farm. The bids will be opened Aug. 15.

MODISH MITZI — The Goofer Gets Some Exercise — By JAY V. JAY

The Goofer really needs some exercise. He feels that he especially needs the exercise of playing tennis with Mitzi, and playing tennis with Polly isn't at all the same thing—even though Polly looks charming in a yellow crepe dress with pockets trimmed with leather.

This charming girl would also like to help the Goofer get a little exercise playing tennis. She's most appropriately gowned for the sport in a white pique sleeveless dress with a cardigan jacket of printed linen that can be discarded whenever the game or the weather grows hot.

It is quite posible that the young woman who wears the sport coat on which a tennis player is painted would like to help the Goofer get some exercise, too. She rather looks that way, but all kind looks are lost on the Goofer when he is waiting for Mitzi to appear on the horizon.

Mitzi came at last. She came dressed in a sleeveless white crepe tennis dress with a pleated skirt and a striped jacket of linen. It appears, however, that she didn't come to play tennis. She's so sorry, she's late already for an appointment—the Goofer takes his exercise in waiting!

There's a Drastic Cure For Man Who Ridicules Wife In Public

The Modest, Refined Girl Who Finds All Men Cheap Petters—How to Cure the Husband Who Pokes Fun at His Wife Before Company—The Henpecked Husband Whose Wife Forbids Him to See His Family.

Dear Dorothy Dix—Are there any real men left in the world, and if there are, where are they? I have lived in five states and met lots of men and they all seem alike. As soon as they take a girl out they try to pet and if she will not stand for this they call her "prude" and tell her that she is not living in her grandmother's age. Also, they frankly serve notice on her that they do not care to go with her if she isn't a petter. Recently I met a man of education and culture who told me that I had "false modesty," and he thanked God that all women were not like me, because I repulsed his familiarities. Gentleness, intelligence, even physical beauty apparently make only a temporary appeal to men nowadays. But when a man expects a girl to let him fondle her and kiss her because he takes her to a show or comes to see her, it seems to me that he is asking too much for his worthless attention.

TATIANA.

Answer:: Not all men fall under your sweeping indictment of the sex, Tatiana. There are still men who respect women and who hold in reverence womanly purity and honor, and who do not wish to lay desecrating hands upon every young girl who comes within their reach.

There are also men who turn in disgust from the petting, necking, kissing girl, and who would go a long way to find a young woman like yourself who keeps her maidenhood unsmirched. But, alas, I fear these fodern Galahads are few and far between, and I do not know where to tell you to look for one.

I am afraid that most of the youths of today are just as you have painted them—cheap little Lotharios, who feel that for the price of an ice cream soda they have paid for the right to rub the bloom off the peach. For every cent they spend upon a girl they demand their money's worth of liberties, and if she refuses to pay their usurious price, they will have no more to do with her.

In the past, no matter what a man's own morals were, he demanded that a woman's should be above reproach. His past might be as black as ink, but he expected a woman to keep herself unspotted from the world. The lover wanted his kiss to be the first on a girl's lips, his arms the first to enfold her. The husband expected his bride to come to him with an unsullied life. And without doubt this inexorable demand of man's for virtue in women has done much to keep women in the straight and narrow path.

But now men have broken down their own standards. They have smashed the ideal they have created. They are fostering looseness of conduct in girls and put a premium on lack of modesty and feminine reserve. And one wonders what the end will be.

Will these men who have forced so many girls to pet and neck in order to have any attention from men be satisfied themselves to marry girls whose lips have known a thousand kisses? Will they even be content to marry women who have known as many amorous adventures as they have?

Certainly the old slang phrase, "Be good and you'll be lonesome," is proved truly prophetic by the modest, refined girl of today. But she has one ineffable consolation. She has her own self-respect, and if she does marry she gets a man who is worth while.

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—Will you tell me why my husband invariably "picks on me" when we are in company, and holds me up to the ridicule of other persons? When we are at home he is very nice and considerate to me, but let company come in, or let us go anywhere and I immediately become the goat for his stories. ANXIOUS WIFE.

Answer: It's your husband's misdirected sense of humor. Many men are afflicted that way. They think it is funny to hold their wives up to ridicule and make sport of all their little peculiarities and blunders.

There is nothing in the world more cruel or more cowardly that a man can do, because he is taking advantage of the fact that his wife is helpless to defend herself, and that she can't even deny the things he is telling about her without adding point to his joke. And if she gets mad or weeps tears of rage and humiliation, it is funnier than ever.

I have sat at dinner tables and listened to a great big guffawing man tell jokes on his wife that made her seem a perfect imbecile, and watched the poor, quivering creature's agony while she was being flayed alive, until I wondered that she didn't jump up and take the carving knife to him. And if she had, and the assembled company had been empaneled as the jury to try her, it would have brought in a verdict of justifiable homicide without ever leaving its seats.

But here is a suhre way to stop your husband. The next time he does some foolish thing, or gets into some mortifying scrape, just lay the incident away in your memory, and when he finishes telling something funny on you, just tell something amusing about John.

That will make John furious, but he wont risk a repetition of it.

CUPID'S CATEGORY

"An Old-Fashioned Girl for an Old-Fashioned Boy," Says He

Drawn by Dorothy Flack

© 1927, by Int'l Feature Service, Inc.; Great Britain rights reserved.

CUPID is an excellent business man. He looks ahead and plans and keeps categories and inventories and everything. But somehow, things don't always turn out as he plans them.

For instance, he writes down in his notebook all full of plans, "An old-fashioned girl for an old-fashioned boy," and that's an excellent idea, as anybody with half an eye can see. But the chances are that the old-fashioned boy will be simply enchanted, just swept off his feet into a blissful land of rapt adoration by a darling little bit of the most ultra-modern fluff in the world.

And you just know that the haughty aristocrat, with her patrician nose and clear-cut profile, will worship the red-blooded vitality of her ordinary chauffeur. And you know, too, that that adorable little blonde that is going to lose her heart to some great, big, serious-minded professor of mathematics.

So it goes. And Cupid is never discouraged. He goes right on making his perfectly sensible plans which would save ever so much unhappiness and heartbreak. But the world wouldn't be nearly so exciting or interesting a place to live in if his sensible plans always worked out.

Are Your Hands Restless?

By Lucy Lowell

"SHE is," some one said of her, "the most wearing person in the world.

LUCY LOWELL

"And such a brilliant little thing, too! She can talk on any subject so interestingly that it ought to be a pleasure to hear her. She has a charming personality and she is beautiful to look at.

"What it is about her that fatigues you so I don't know. But after an hour with her I'm simply dead!"

The next time I spent an hour with the charming woman I discovered that I, too, was "simply dead." And I found out why.

It's her hands. Lovely hands, exquisitely shaped and cared for. But never quiet for an instant.

When she tells a story she works it all out with her hands. Of course, her gestures are graceful, and they would be graphic if there were not so many of them.

As it is, they first weary the eye and then confuse the brain, and you find yourself turning and twisting and wishing there were some decent manner in which to get away from that endless panorama of movement.

And when she is not motioning out a story she is fingering her wrist-watch or her rings or her beads. Or pressing little creases into her gown.

And it occurs to me now that this woman is not entirely unique in her hand mannerism.

American hands are, I suppose, the most nervous hands in the world; they come nearest to expressing perpetual motion of any other created thing excepting the American brain.

And what a lot of energy they waste. Energy the whole body requires for proper functioning.

It is easy to learn to cultivate repose of the hands. Drop them in the lap, palms up, for five minutes and see how restful it is. Restful to yourself and to those you talk to.

Try, at any rate, to prevent the activity of your hands marring your own personality as hers do that of the charming woman.

Household Hints

To Clean Furniture.

If mahogany and other furniture that is French polished is dirty and finger-marked, do not hesitate to wash it, or if not too dirty rub it over with a chamois leather dipped in cold water. This will clean it, and not hurt the polish, providing it is dried at once and then well rubbed with furniture cream. Remember, that a dry chamois leather is not suitable for a highly polished surface.

To Clean a Wringer.

Dip a rag in paraffin and go over the cog wheels and all the working parts, cleansing them from grease and dust. Scrub all the woodwork and cleanse the rollers with a rag dipped in turpentine, followed by washing with warm soapy water. Then rinse and dry thoroughly.

The Summer War on Dangerous House Flies

By Chas. A. L. Reed, M. D.,
Former President of the American Medical Association.

YOU must keep down flies, the nasty house fly, in your own house for two reasons. First, you must protect yourself and your family against the disease-carrying propensity of flies. Secondly, you have no right to breed flies in your own house simply to infest your neighbor's house with them. That's the ethics of the fly question.

The adult fly appears and begins to reproduce with the advent of warm weather. The maximum number is reached in August or September, but they may continue to breed until frost comes. Generally, however, they become lethargic in October and begin to get under cover in warm places, such as cookhouses or bakeries. They breed chiefly in horse manure, which provides the necessary moisture and heat. Manure at over 40 degrees C., however, will kill fly larvae by causing fermentation. Flies seldom breed in horse manure that has been dried and spread thinly on the ground, and rarely use cow-dung, because of its wetness. Ordinary garbage is too acid to make a good hatching ground.

The female fly lays about a thousand eggs during the Summer. The rate of development depends upon temperature, facility for breeding and food supplies for the larvae.

Flies are the prey of birds, lizards, toads, wasps, spiders and beetles, besides numerous internal parasites and a microscopic fungus. Fowls and ground-feeding birds eat many larvae in manure heaps, and swallows, martens and chaffinches eat them on the wing. These should, therefore, be protected. Flies probably hibernate in the pupa, not the adult stage.

Flies often have been the cause of epidemics of enteric fever, diarrhoea and dysentery, the germs of which they carry outside and inside their bodies. Development of these germs, with resulting disease, takes ten or twelve days, and life lasts five or six weeks.

Keep flies out of your house by screens. When one gets in, kill it. If the flies do get in and get the start of you, there are several ways to fight them. A one-fortieth solution of formaldehyde in lime water sweetened with molasses and poured on plates painted yellow, with two or three small pieces of bread added, are effective fly traps in hot weather when moisture is scarce. They should be placed on shelves at a convenient height. This solution is not dangerous. It should be neutralized by making up with limewater, a half; water, a half. The plates should have a broad rim, and the most successful form is a saucer placed upside down with the solution put into the shallow central depression. An inclined plane is an irresistible invitation to a fly, but a deep bowl is not popular. This solution is extremely effective.

Another method is sticky wires and paper. Wires about eighteen inches long can be coated with one of the following mixtures: Castor oil, 4 pints; crushed resin, 9½ pounds. Linseed oil, 4 ounces, crushed resin, 7½ ounces. Crushed resin, 63 parts; castor oil, 26 parts; honey, 12 parts, etc. Corks should be fixed at the bottom of the wires to prevent the mixture dropping on the floor.

Flypaper should be non-absorbent, and ordinary paper, if used for the purpose, should first be soaked in a saturated solution of alum. Flypapers act best in the form of an arch. In hospitals flies were killed by sticky twigs placed in plant pots on the table or by sticky matches stuck in potatoes. Wire gauze or leather flyswatters are efficient.

Tomorrow: "To Keep Down House Flies."

-:- Our Rhyming Optimist -:-

By Aline Michaelis.

AT morn the air is filled with song, a myriad silver notes on dawn's fresh wind are borne along from countless joyous throats. Such melody as tells a tale of bliss untouched by care, of wells of joy that never fail, is launched upon the air. All through the golden Summer day, to match the swift wings' flights, liquid and clear, serene and gay, song soars to happy heights, and every note that upward drifts, wrought all of pure delight, some burden from man's spirit lifts and makes some hour more bright. But all who love the feathered clan know rarest madrigals to greet the eager ear of man are heard when twilight falls. For, fearless of the coming night, with notes as sweet as musk, he lends us courage and delight, the bird that sings at dusk.

Self-Government for Children Not Practical

By L. Lamar Matthews

JOHNNY threw a rock and broke a window pane in the school building. So Johnny was brought to trial before the student court. The members of the judiciary were boys and girls between the ages of ten and twelve—and naturally they were quite judicious.

L. LAMAR MATTHEWS

This happened in one of those ultra-modern schools where the experiment of self-government is being tried. Now it won't do any harm to try that experiment; but the mothers and fathers and teachers who have been dealing with little folks for years and years know that there is no way of converting immature children into a self-governing body.

In Johnny's case, everything would have gone as it should, except for the fact that little Ezra, who lives in the same block with the culprit was on the jury. Johnny was the biggest and Ezra always had to give way to him. And it was just human nature that made Ezra grin at Johnny and wiggle his thumb when he had the pleasure of helping sentence him to punishment.

That afternoon Johnny beat up Ezra. So his last state of sin was worse than his first.

As long as human beings are human beings, the elements of spite and favoritism and self-advancement and hasty conclusions and dishonesty will enter into their judgment of their fellows. And when you add to this the unformed character, the undeveloped reasoning powers and the irresponsible ways of youth it is easy to see why a group of children should not be entrusted with the task of governing a school.

This method has been used quite successfully in the management of newsboys' clubs, or of some other group of business boys. That is different. The world has done a lot of things to develop these little fellows that the average school child has escaped. Also they can either abide by the decisions of the governing board or they can get out. Though the advantages of belonging to the club are such that they usually wish to stay in. Besides, a club is one thing and a school teacher is another.

If teachers deem it advisable to teach the subject of government by this laboratory method, it would be better to organize a civics club and demonstrate the rules and procedures of the various departments of government at the meetings.

Children can't govern each other. They can be inspired by the right kind of leaders to control themselves; but there is no reason why they should assume the control of their classmates. The theory is ideal, but it isn't practical.

It might work in a college where most of the students are dutiful and fair-minded. But even in colleges they need the guiding of men with mature judgment.

In a certain college, where this student-government is supposed to have solved the question of discipline, the student-officials leave town during the college dances. They know that some of their classmates are going to get drunk and they refuse the unpleasant duty of arresting them. Yes, that's wrong. But it happens.

Youth needs the guidance, the sympathy, the control of men and women who are big enough and fine enough to lead them in the paths of right-living and learning.

When Manners Are Correct

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman.

Elopement Etiquette.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Please answer this question. A young lady eloped and was married in a neighboring town. Her mother sent out announcements two weeks later. This young lady has an aunt who says that the bride should have written first to tell her of her marriage. The bride says that, after receiving the announcement, the aunt should have sent best wishes to her. The aunt could have gotten the address from her mother, as she is really one of the family. M. K.

THE last clause—"as she really is one of the family"—justifies the point of view of the aunt. Since she is such a close member of the family, I should think that she would be hurt that the bride did not write her a note and tell her of her wedding. For one so closely connected with the family to receive the news of such an important event in this formal way does seem out of order. When the bride decided to tell of her unconventional marriage she should have written notes tell the news to her close relatives and friends. Indeed, socially it was more important that she do this than that she send out announcements.

Bride Presents Them.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

My sister is getting married soon and plans to have six bridesmaids and six ushers.

The question upon which we all differ is: Should the usher pay for his partner's bouquet, or should the groom pay for the six bouquets?

We will be most grateful to you if you will tell us which is correct. HAZEL.

THE ushers are not by any means supposed to send the bouquets to the bridesmaids. Neither is the groom supposed to do this, although he may volunteer to do it. The custom is for the parents of the bride or the bride herself, if she is paying for her own wedding, to present the bouquets to the bridesmaids. They are planned for as part of their costumes, and so it is more convenient for the bride's family to plan for them to harmonize with the costumes and with the church decorations.

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette submitted by readers.)

FOLLY DUANE was very gay and jolly on the return trip to New York. She seemed greatly relieved about something. She seemed to have regained confidence.

ANN LISLE

"Think you're smart because you didn't help me," Bonnie whispered when she was saying good-night. "But you didn't do yourself such a good turn when you wouldn't do me one."

Folly laughed. "Don't know what you're talking about."

But she did. And when she crept into the bed where Jill already lay asleep, Folly put out her hand with an odd gesture that seemed to be eager and yet frightened and she stroked the girl's soft, copper-colored hair almost timidly.

For a long time Folly lay awake and thought about the week-end in Atlantic City. She knew perfectly well that under no circumstances could she hope to have Sam Kerby make her the second Mrs. Kerby. And she loved him with a mid-Summer madness that shook her and frightened her and gave life a zest and a tang she had forgotten it could have.

"But he wouldn't marry me, no matter what somebody brought out against his wife," she thought. "And I don't see why Bonnie Clair should have any better deal than I get. I suppose if things—were fixed to suit Bonnie, and Roy—knew certain things Bonnie would unearth if she had half a clue maybe he really would marry her."

Folly considered this for a long time. She did not bear Bonnie any ill-will, and she wasn't exactly spiteful, but she didn't see why she should pull any chestnuts out of the fire for Bonnie Clair.

One thing was painfully clear: The more Bonnie found out about the things that might give her a chance to supplant Vivian, the less chance Folly would have of landing Sam as a husband—or even holding him as a lover.

"She doesn't deserve it," Folly said to herself. "No use fixing it so everybody suffers for the sake of Bonnie Clair's ambitions. And, anyway, if Roy married her it would break up our nice foursome.

She smiled to herself and went to sleep, satisfied that Bonnie Clair was as far from the truth as Roy Scarlett was—and that was pretty far. And her last thought was:

"I'm pretty decent, no matter what anybody says. I've no call to love Vivian Scarlett. Her mother certainly was the worst enemy I ever had. . . . And poor Jill certainly never got a thing from them, not even a chance, not even a name!" she added.

So Folly and Vivian worked from opposite points of view, and contrived to keep under cover all that might have made life so different for them both if either had been courageous enough to face the truth—until she had to. And when the moment came when the truth forced its way out from under a tissue of lies and evasions, both of them found a desperate, tragic courage that came too late to give either of them what she wanted.

Bonnie Clair made one or two more attempts to pump Folly. She even invited the other adventuress to lunch in her apartment and gave her the best Chloe could cook without bothering to claim she had prepared it. But Folly pretended to be stupid and naive and managed to evade every question Bonnie asked. Folly enjoyed her lunch, but when she was going home her spine prickled nervously as Bonnie said:

"I'd have been your friend if you'd have played ball, Folly. Working together, you and I could have done a lot to—organized society and those haughty dames that give us the once over as if we were something they'd like to put in the garbage pail. But even working alone, I'm not so bad."

"Bonnie, dearest, what do you mean?" Folly gushed.

"Last chance. Dish the dirt about Roy's wife."

"There is none to dish—that I know of," Folly said stubbornly.

"All right. But there is some dirt I know about, all right. And I know how to dish it—and where."

Two days later Mrs. Samuel Kerby received a typewritten letter at her cottage in Maine. It was on ordinary white paper and Mrs. Kerby opened it with the casual curiosity women give to advertisements and concert notices. She galvanized to attention as she read:

"If women stay in Maine and devote themselves to their own good times, why shouldn't their husbands go to Atlantic City and look out for their fun? If you want to know the right answer to this, go to the Xavier Hotel in New York and ask Folly Duane where she was last week-end and with whom. You won't find her on the register of the T——hotel. She is down as Mrs. Dana. But he is really very anxious to meet the wife of 'Samuel Kerr' and see if she can't come to an agreement. Do call. The person who is eager to meet you may turn out to be —— your friend, Folly Duane."

Correction

Someone for some cause seemed bent upon playing a crude joke upon two popular members of the younger set when they telephoned The Record-News society editor Saturday afternoon announcing the engagement and approaching marriage of Jimmy Maxwell and Miss Elizabeth Love of Amarillo, who at present is residing here with relatives.

The person telephoning this item represented herself as Miss Mary Moore, a friend of the couple, stating that the announcement was made at a party given at her home on Tuesday evening.

So well was the plot laid that when questioned as to Miss Love's telephone number that the announcement might be verified, one was promptly given and someone when called responded that the announcement was correct.

The Record-News is glad to correct the erroneous statement.

SURPRISE FOR W. FRISBIE.

Members of the family, who were asleep, could not imagine what had happened until the owner of the tire called to pay for the damage.

Garner and His Record

ACCORDING to the Washington correspondent of the New York Sun John N. Garner's most striking legislative distinction is that in 22 years in the house of representatives he has introduced fewer than 22 bills and resolutions, and he once let five years pass without offering a single bill. Neither (according to the correspondent) has Garner ever asked the privilege of extending his remarks in the congressional record. His district consists of 23 counties, is bordered by the Rio Grande river for an irregular course of about 450 miles and is from 150 to 200 miles across.

Finis J. Garrett of Tennessee is the minority leader in the lower house. He is going to step aside next year and battle for a seat in the senate. This is one of the reasons why Garner of Texas may be selected as the minority leader of the 70th congress, and some day, if the democrats win control, he may weild the gavel of speaker.

His district was known as the "Sage Brush country" 26 years ago when the pride of Uvalde county hustled for a congressional nomination. Now it is the Magic Valley of Texas and the Winter Garden of America.

Bailey On the Tariff

JOSEPH WELDON BAILEY journeyed from Dallas to Kerrville to tell the Sheep and Goat Raisers of Texas that what is needed is a tariff on raw materials on the basis of the tariff on finished products. All the sheep and goat raisers of Texas are for a tariff on wool and mohair. Congressman Claude Hudspeth is their great father in the City of Washington. John M. Garner is another of the great fathers of the industry. There may be free traders in America, but the growth of manufacturing enterprises in the Southern states has produced an army of protective tariff Democrats in commonwealths where the free trade idea had its birth. In days of old Democratic leaders were for a tariff for revenue only. Where are they today?

Texas Cotton in Demand

TEXAS cotton exports for the first three months of 1927 had a value of $126,649,000. Total cotton exports increased from 7,000,000 to 10,000,000 for the first ten months of the present cotton year or from August 1, 1926 to June 1, 1927.

Europe is coming back. Europeans are makers of wealth. This applies to the diggers and delvers and artisans of Europe. For four centuries, after the hideous wars of the past, the survivors returned to work. They accumulated wealth. They practiced thrift. They worked long hours. Really the worker always comes back.

Under the Nose of Cal

A SQUAD of federal pro agents descended on the summer capital of the nation, raided 11 alleged bootleggers and seized a small quanity of corn liquor. This under the nose of Cal, the cautious one whose ten-gallon hat and cowboy suit have made him a citizen of the Black Hills country. Is it possible that moonshiners infest South Dakota? South Dakota has been dry for these many years. All the democrats in South Dakota are dry, all the republicans are dry, all the progressives are dry. Now who buys the illicit liquor?

Dividend Makers for The Farm

THERE are farm dividend makers. In a single year or rather for the crop year which ended June 30, dairy and poultry products on American farms yielded $3,754,000,000; meat animals $2,382,000,000; fruits and vegetables $1,511,000,000; grain $1,456,000,000; cotton and cottonseed $1,292,000,000. Believe it or not, the cow, the sow and the hen are dividend producers the world over. Texas farmers are invited to redouble their efforts along diversification lines.

The old-fashioned "bun" of hair on the neck has appeared among London society women.

Because of the lesser world demand for diamonds, many gem miners in British Guiana are out of work.

Despite hard times in Austria, the government has assured the construction of three railroads.

What the People Need

"WHAT we need is judges who can do more work rather than more judges to do the work which is to be done," remarks former Senator Joseph Weldon Bailey. Sure, if the judicial amendment should win at the polls then the district judges who are ever ahead of the dockets will be given an opportunity to go to the assistance of district judges who are over-worked and are ever behind with their docket.

As it is, every session of the legislature creates additional districts and additional district judges are appointed. Who pays their salaries? Why the property owners of Texas.

Federal judges cover the country. Wherever there is a heavy docket and the regular judge is overworked another federal judge is sent to his assistance. It is a common sense plan. It is an economy and an efficiency plan. It pleases the litigants. It pleases the lawyers. It pleases all who are vitally concerned.

Padding the Rolls

STATE Treasurer W. Gregory Hatcher, in the role of a nemesis, discovered that the rolls of the state highway department were padded to the extent of $20,000 in a single year. Attorney General Claude Pollard followed in the wake of the state treasurer and let the people know that his assistants had uncovered the frauds. Arrests have been made. Indictments have been returned. A vast number of the people are always on the trail of easy money. It isn't easy money if it lands a worker behind the bars of a prison. Now where will the trailers go from here? Where will the alleged padders go?

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By BURTON RASCOE.

NEW YORK, July 25. (EFS)—Undoubtedly the subway shuttle between Times square and the Grand Central station, which connects the east side and west side subway lines, is the most valuable short piece of railroad property in the world. But this alone is not its distinction. Although ostensibly it is merely a convenience, it affords also one of the most expensive rides in the world. It is about three blocks long, rather long blocks to be sure, but in distance it is less than a quarter of a mile. Yet because it is in the heavy traffic center of the city, it is the only quick way to get from Broadway and Forty-second street to Grand Central. It is used, therefore, by thousands of people who do not otherwise use the subway. The fare, to them, comes to about 20 cents a mile.

And this highly-expensive short line is one of the most badly managed of railroads. Although there are tracks laid at the east end of the line as far as Lexington avenue, the trains run only to Vanderbilt avenue, which is two blocks west of Lexington avenue. People who wish to transfer from the Lexington avenue subway line to the Seventh avenue line by way of the shuttle must walk at each end a combined distance nearly equal to the distance they traverse by the shuttle.

There are five separate tracks in the shuttle. Long platforms extend along each one and it seems as though each arriving train chooses a platform the farthest removed from the one you happen to be standing on. There are indicators to tell you on what tracks the next train will arrive; but you had better not depend upon it. The trains pull in with such great speed and depart with such rapidity that if you try to race by the indicator from the first track to the fourth you will not only miss that train, but will miss the next two you try to dash after. The only way to be sure of getting a train is by choosing a platform and staying there until the train pulls up in front of you.

* * *

People who arrive in New York for the first time on Saturday afternoon during the summer are invariably disappointed. They expect to see a frantically crowded city with traffic in a snarl and people moving in swarms. They find many of the principal arteries of traffic—Fifth avenue, Lexington avenue, Park avenue and Broadway—practically deserted. Fifth avenue, especially, looks like Main street in Podunk on a holiday. Its shops are closed at noon, and most New Yorkers try to get out of the city by noon on Saturday for the week-end. In lower Manhattan on Saturday afternoon, you can hear a whisper for two blocks.

On Saturday afternoons during the summer, the expensive soda fountains and tea rooms on the side streets off Fifth avenue are desolate and the proprietors have a mournful air. The table d'hote restaurants serve food only a la carte and have no great variety at that. Many of them frankly close their doors from Saturday noon until Monday morning because of lack of patronage.

The movie palaces of Broadway which are ordinarily packed to the gunwales on Saturday, do very little business. The city in summer becomes a deserted village over the week-end. The heat drives its inhabitants to the sea coast.

Sally's Shoulders

© by BEATRICE BURTON, Author of "HER MAN" "HONEY LOU" "THE HOLLYWOOD GIRL" ETC.

"Thanks for a Beautiful Time," Cooed Mabel.

READ THIS FIRST:

SALLY JEROME, 20 and clever and pretty, is the prop and mainstay of her family in the absence of her father who has been separated from her mother for nine years.

The family consists of Mrs. JEROME; the twins, BEAU and MILLIE; and Sally herself. Mrs. Jerome is a semi-invalid. So Sally does the housework mornings and works in MR. PEEVEY'S office downtown afternoons.

In the flat below the Jerome flat lives young TED SLOAN, who's in love with Sally. Mrs. Jerome is dreadfully afraid that Sally will marry him and leave her to shift for herself, but Sally has no intention. The only man in whom she is interested is JOHN NYE, whose real estate office is across the hall from Mr. Peevey's office. She scarcely knows him, however.

On a hot Monday morning in August Millie drops into Sally's office with the news that she's left her job because the man whose secretary she was "got fresh" with her. Millie is forever quitting her jobs for this reason, although Beau's girl, MABEL WILMOT, says the real reason Millie quits them is that her employers do NOT make love to her. Mabel says that Millie just won't stay on a job unless she's "having a thrill" there.

Millie catches a glimpse of John Nye and decides to run over and ask him if he needs a stenographer. Sally stops her, but that night Nye asks her if she knows a good secretary who's out of a job. He needs one for the girl who has been working for him is to be married. Reluctantly Sally tells him about Millie. She hates the thought of that young siren working for the only man she cares a snap of her fingers for.

Millie's not home when she gets there. Beau is, however, and he asks her to make preparations for a party that his Mabel wants to give at their flat the next night. Sally promises that she will provide sandwiches and fruit punch, expecting Mabel to pay for it, of course. At midnight Millie comes home from an evening's pleasure, and Sally begins to tell her about Nye's job.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

* * *

CHAPTER VI

Millie was pleased as Punch at the prospect of going to work for John Nye. But because she was pleased, she pretended not to be. She was full of such tricks.

She stood before her toilet glass, seemingly in deep, dark thought, while she wiped the "Chinese black" from her eyelashes and brows with a wad of wet cotton.

She wasn't half so pretty by the time she had finished. For her lashes and brows were even lighter than her hair, naturally, and gave her an insipid look.

"We—ell," she began doubtfully, "I'm not so sure that I want to work for your good looking friend, Nye, now that I have the chance to. For one thing, I don't know how much he pays a girl. I certainly am not going to work for a cent less than thirty smackers a week, and that's THAT!"

"Shall I tell him so?" Sally asked, with a twinkle in her eyes. She knew that nothing could keep Millie from taking that job.

Millie shook her head with its mop of honey-gold curls.

"You needn't bother. I'll go and see him myself, in the morning," she said with a great show of indifference. She yawned lazily. "Of course, I hate to work in a little one-horse office. I'd raather be in a big place like Bursall's where there are a lot of girls. It's more fun."

Sally knew that this was not true. She knew perfectly well that Millie could have more "fun" in an office containing one good-looking man than in a hundred offices filled with girls. Millie had no interest on girl-friends. She was a man's woman, pure and simple.

"Well, then, why didn't you stay on at Bursall's?" Sally asked quietly.

"You know why I didn't stay!" Millie snapped at her, all the lazy sweet drawl gone from her voice. "Haven't I told you a dozen times how old Bursall tried to get gay with me, the fresh old bird?—You think this Nye will behave himself, don't you?"

Sally did not answer. She wondered if John Nye would want to behave himself with Millie in the office. Millie, who was all allure and invitation from the golden crown of her head to the soles of her little satin-shod feet. . . . Would any man want to behave himself with Millie? Especially if Millie didn't want him to behave himself!

"Well, it all depends on what you mean by 'behaving' himself," she answered slowly, "I think he's going to fall in love with you, if that's what you're talking about."

She was sure that John Nye would fall in love with her, and she fell asleep an hour later with a very heavy heart.

The next morning Sally was up with the early sun.

She hurried with her work, feet flying, fingers flying. Breakfast over and out of the way. Dishes done. Beds made. Furniture dusted. Ferns and geraniums watered. Beau's ties pressed.

At ten o'clock Sally dressed herself in her plain little blue linen business dress, and went down to Porter street market to get the things for Mabel's party that night. Sandwich bread, sweet butter, boiled ham, and fruit for the punch.

When she got home, Millie was gone to keep her appointment with John Nye. Her nightgown lay where she had stepped out of it on the bedroom floor. Her bed was unmade, and her dressing-table was littered with flesh-colored powder, open rouge boxes, combings, and soiled handkerchief. The tiny bottle of "Chinese black" had tipped over and there was a large stain of it on the white linen cover.

"Pete's sake!" said Sally under her breath, whipping off the cover and putting the stopper in the little bottle.

She thought of Millie, rolling her blue eyes with their fringe of blackened lashes at John Nye by this time no doubt. Smiling at him with the soft scarlet bow of her mouth. Talking to him in that silky slow voice of hers.

"Oh, misery!" said Sally aloud, and there was very real misery in the sound of her voice.

She went out into the kitchen to squeeze lemons and oranges for Mabel's punch, and the fest that were usually so light and swift dragged a little.

That noon when Sally reached the top floor of the Nye-Naylor building, she went straight to the door of John Nye's office and turned the knob.

It did not open. It was locked.

"Well, of all things!" Sally said it aloud, and then knocked smartly on the door.

There was no answer.

She knocked again. Still no answer.

Then, as Sally was turning away to go into Mr. Peevey's little room, a sudden illuminating thought came to her . . . John Nye and Millie had gone out to lunch together! That must be why the door was locked and the office empty. That must be why——

"Good morning," she said to Mr. Peevey so spiritlessly that he looked up at her in alarm, thinking that she must be ill. But he didn't ask her if she was. He didn't believe in petting the people who worked for him . . . asking after their health and giving them raises in their salary and such fool things! Not he!

There was more work than usual that afternoon, as it happened, and the shadows were long and blue before Sally started home at seven.

As she opened the door of the flat with her latch-key and stepped into the hall she could hear Beau talking on the telephone.

His voice was loud and deep, and it resounded through the small rooms. "Yeah, and bring along a cork-screw," he was saying joyfully. "It's going to be that kind of a party. Get me?"

"Oh, Beau, I hope you're not going to have anything to drink tonight," she said to him when he hung up the receiver.

He laughed down at her from his height. "Hello, Katy Kill-joy!" was all he said in answer to that. Then he went on:

"Ted Sloan was up here a minute ago to tell you that he couldn't keep some date or other he had with you tonight."

"Yes, and let me tell you what your friend, Nye, pulled on me today!" added Millie, coming out of her mother's bedroom in a flowing cotton kimono and house-slippers. "I went down to see him bright and early, and he was just locking up his office. It seems his mother's been taken sick at some resort or other where she's spending the summer, and he had about two seconds to make his train. He was going to her, he said, and didn't know when he'd be back. He was awfully sorry—but I told him I'd wait 'til he came back to town. I need a rest, anyway, for a coupla week in this awful weather."

Millie was always taking little rests and vacations.

"Well, I'm glad I don't have to go out with Ted, anyway, tonight," sighed Sally thankfully. She followed Millie into their bedroom and got into her own house-slippers and her pink calico apron.

"We'll have just a pick-up supper," she decided, "because I've got to make all those sandwiches and the punch for the party. . . . Beau, PLEASE don't put any liquor into the punch. You know Mother won't like it."

But Beau, struggling with a new collar and a too-thick necktie before the chiffrobe in his room, pretended not to hear.

The party was a noisy affair.

Sally, lying in bed with a book, could hear bursts of shrill wild laughter every now and then above the music of the phonograph. Once Millie screamed at the top of her voice, and there came the distant sound of a glass crashing to pieces on the kitchen floor.

"There's fifty cents gone for good!" thought Sally, who had to pay for these things usually, "Oh, dear, I hope they're not drinking! They shouldn't——"

But she fell asleep soon after ten o'clock with all the noise and clamor at its height around her. She had been up for sixteen hours, and she was worn out.

She didn't know what time it was when a sudden flood of bright light woke her up. Blinking and confused, she opened her eyes.

Beau's girl, Mabel, had come into the room and was leaning over her.

"Time to say goodnight, darling," she said thickly, and as she spoke Sally caught the odor of gin on her breath, "Too bad you were too tired to come to the party, and thanks for a beautiful time. The punch and the sandwiches were wonderful."

Sally was wide awake now. "That reminds me," she said clearly, "I kept the grocer's bill so I could show you how much I spent. It's right here in my purse——"

"Oh, don't bother me with it, ple-ease!" begged Mabel prettily, "Beau will pay you. He said he would——" And she danced out of the room rather unsteadily, banging herself against the edge of the door as she went.

"Wait a minute! Mabel, wait a minute!" Sally called to her in distress, "Wait a minute, Mabel! I've got to see you!"

Didn't Mabel know that Beau never paid for anything? Not even his laundry? . . .

But Mabel was gone. The sound of her gay voice chattering to Beau, died away as she left the little flat and went down the stairs that led to the street.

ALL ON SEVENTY CENTS

POTTSTOWN, Pa.—Mrs. Anna Perry appeared before Squire John D. March the other day and said she used to be housekeeper for Edgar Chapman. The job of being housekeeper for Edgar Chapman was an all right job, Mrs. Perry said, until Edgar brought home a ginger ale bottle full of some yellowish liquid, which he drank, and promptly went cuckoo. One of his first acts after absorbing the contents of the ginger ale bottle, said Mrs. Perry, was to throw her through a window, breaking the glass, cutting her hands, and bruising her feelings. The squire said that would be a $11.15 fine. Chapman swore at the news and was promptly mulcted an extra 67 cents, which was turned over to the Salvation Army.

HOW MRS. WEAVER WAS HELPED

By Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

As Mrs. Weaver herself says, "I was never very strong." This is a mild statement describing her condition, for, according to her letters, she was subjected to no small amount of ill health. Fortunately, her sister was familiar with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and begged Mrs. Weaver to try it. "After three or four weeks," writes Mrs. Weaver, "I felt a great difference in myself. I would go to bed and sleep sound, and although I could not do very much work, I seemed stronger. I kept on taking it and now I am well and strong, do my work and take care of three children. I sure do tell my friends about your wonderful medicine, and I will answer any letters from women asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Lawrence Weaver, East Smithfield St., Mt. Pleasant, Pa.

If you knew that thousands of women suffering from troubles similar to those you are enduring had improved their health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, wouldn't you think it was worth a trial?

USE PLENTY OF ICE

Only a few years ago ice was considered a great luxury, where now it is recognized as a necessity. The important part it has played in the general health improvement of those people living in civilized communities is immeasurable, and today there is to be found throughout the United States and Canada a plentiful supply, either in the natural or artificial form.

In the interior tropical countries like Mexico, the infant mortality rate is very high because of the lack of ice and proper refrigerating systems. Milk is plentiful in these warm countries, but unless it is sufficiently cooled immediately after milking, various form of disease germs and putrefactive bacteria develop and make the milk unwholesome. It is true that the infant death rate in Alaska is also very high but this is because with all their ice, cow's milk is a scarcity.

Practically every city in North America with one hundred inhabitants has a system of ice distribution which is effective, at least, during the summer months. Where the natural ice is inaccessible, the supply is controlled by the artificial product, huge plants for the manufacturing of which are in operation throughout the year.

The public is pretty well educated on the subject of antiseptics, and thoroughly schooled in the knowledge that harmful bacteria, when allowed to develop, must be destroyed. Yet, many do not realize that even the most wholesome food will undergo harmful changes if not kept at the proper temperature. There are many foods that cannot be sterilized so they will keep without refrigeration, and it has not proved possible to use strong antiseptics on foodstuffs without incurring great risk. Consequently, ice offers the ultimate solution to the problem of preserving good food until it is ready for the table.

Many people make the mistake of trying to keep the ice "budget" low by using ice only during the summer months, but this is not wise economy. It is better by far to buy ice the year round, for the benefit derived from the use of foods kept at an even temperature is worth much more than the extra ice.

In summer it is a good plan to pack your picnic lunches in such a way that the food will be surrounded by cracked ice, which will assure against any derogative changes, for even freshly cooked chicken or other meat will actually undergo some harmful changes in two or three hours if allowed to remain in a high temperature. A few cents' worth of ice taken along with your picnic lunch may save needless sickness and unnecessary doctor bills.

Cut down on other expenses if you must, but don't try to economize on ice.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

QUESTION: R. S. writes: "I have been reading your interesting talks on health and diet. You recently mentioned the fruit juice cure for tumor growths. Would you please give instructions how to take the fruit juice cure, and what fruits to use?"

ANSWER: In the article to which you refer I only mentioned the results I frequently had in my practice. It would not be wise for me to attempt to give you instructions about such a serious trouble through the columns of the newspaper.

QUESTION: H. M. C. writes: "My boy, aged nine, has a sort of quivering in his body when asleep, sometimes in his limbs, then his stomach. Sometimes he is very restless, and then again not so much. He is never cross or tired, always happy, looks healthy, and is four pounds overweight."

ANSWER: Your boy is probably troubled with occasional spells of indigestion which occur during his sleep. Keep him on the health menus I recommend in this column, and see if his trouble does not quickly disappear.

QUESTION: Mrs. Helen M. C. writes: "My daughter, 18, has a swelling in her hands when awakening. Her tonsils are large but not diseased. Sometimes she complains of her limbs feeling numb. What is causing the trouble:"

ANSWER: Your daughter may have some kind of functional heart trouble which would produce the swelling in her hands and the numbness of her limbs. Of course, I cannot diagnose her disorder through this column, I am only able to make a guess as to the cause.

This beats, by three eggs, the former best in the state, and the ordinary hens can't talk to that white leghorn now, she's so high hat.

WICHITA FALLS HAS WON 13 GAMES THIS SEASON FROM SHREVEPORT AND LOST SIX.

The Spudders with that double victory Monday closed a 20-game home stand 17 of which went on the victory side of the ledger. They lost three games, Waco, Houston and Shreveport each winning one contest from the Williams outfit.

Yesterday's triumphs composed Fussell's seventeenth and Kiefer's eleventh.

Jenkins and his Big Black Bertha returned to form in the second game Monday, the brunet pair pasting Brown for three hits in three times at bat.

The Shreveport-Wichita Falls series was the lowest-score series of the year. Five games were played. The scores: Wichita Falls, 1-0; Wichita Falls, 2-1; Shreveport, 2-1; Wichita Falls, 2-0, and 2-1.

The Spudders are 12 1-2 games ahead of Houston in second place.

Maderas, in the series just over, looked like the best shortstop in this league. That bow-legged little bozo played REAL baseball. But how he gets around on those under-pins without falling on his mush is a mystery.

THIS AND THAT

"Some day I'm gonna get in a league and they're going to play a double header and I'm gonna pitch the short game," gesticulated the great Fussell. "When I was on the coast I hadda get up before breakfast and pitch all the morning games. At that, it looked like they were the only ones I could win. I never worked in a double header yet that I got to throw the seven-inning game."

"Aw, shuddup," replied the great Kiefer, "You're the ace ain't yuh?"

THE OTHER SIDE

"And they don't make errors in this league any more. They're all base hits," cogitated the eminent portsider. "These infielders gripe about the scorers giving them errors. Can yuh feature that?"

"Yeah, kicked five behind me the other day in Houston and the scorer gave 'em ALL as base hits," solemnly announced Harlem Joe, and the two great men, one a wronghander, the other a righthander, gravely nodded at each other, a perfect understanding between them, martyrs in the same cause.

The galloping Mr. Griffin loped all over that center pasture in the third chukker of the first game yesterday. He went back at a mad pace to pull in Hayworth's long rocket to right center. A moment later he charged in behind second like a fullback hitting the line and plucked from the air within seven (or maybe it was seven and one-half) inches of the turf Mederas' pop Boist to short center. A great athlete, this Griffin. A spectacular gent, too.

Swenson is developing a rep as a foul fly shagger. He scooted back around the left end of the grandstand in the second round of the opener and pulled down Moore's aviation when it looked like the Swede didn't stand a chance of making the play.

PORTSIDE LOGIC

Grady Adkins, the Shreveport top pitching hand, arises with the startling info Steengrafe is the only first class heaver the Spudders boast and that Payne, Fussell and Estell are not only dumb throwers but should be playing in a class D league or some similar bushy section. Just lucky, these guys.

When this story got to Fussell, the famous portsider remarked with a chuckle, "Well, well, I always thought this Adkins was a pretty good pitcher myself. Maybe he's right. But I'd rather be lucky and dumb any day than smart and unlucky."

In the history of the Texas league there has been only one infielder who fusses as much or more than our own Pete Turgeon when he's charged with an error. That fellow was Bernie Devireros, former Beaumont shortstop.

CERTAINLY

One day a couple of years ago during a Shipper-Spudder game, a Wichita Falls runner scored from second when Bernie let a throw from the outfield go between his legs like a croquet ball through a wicket and into the home dugout. Bernie was debited with an error. Two days later there came a letter to the official scorer from Devireros who was in Fort Worth at the time, denying ever having made an error, declaring the outfielder had thrown the ball away, that it had gone clear over his (Bernie's) head without being touched and had hopped into the dugout on first bounce.

RED SOX 10, INDIANS 7.

BOSTON, July 25. (AP)—Boston hammered Uhle's pitching hard in the first five innings today and took the first game of the series from Cleveland, 10 to 7. Summa drove a home run into the right field bleachers with one on in the third. Nick Cullop, ordinarily an outfielder for Cleveland, pitched the eighth inning against Boston. The Sox made 14 hits, all the players except the two pitchers participating in the batting bee. The score:

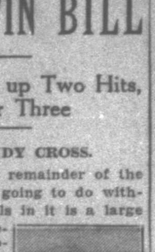
FRED AND JOE COP TWIN BILL

Fusell Gives up Two Hits, Kiefer Three

By BLONDY CROSS.

Just what the remainder of the Texas league is going to do without Wichita Falls in it is a large question laid before Doak Roberts and seven other club owners today.



KIEFER

For Wichita Falls quit the league Monday, ran clear off and left it all alone away back there somewhere or other along the trail of broken pennant hopes with Houston, the nearest club, 12 and one-half games behind.

S. Fred Fussell, the world's most eminent lefthanded thinker and baseball pitcher as a hobby, put the forkhand thumb screws on Dugan 'Phelan's Shreveport team for a 2-0 triumph in the first game of a double header at Spudder park. Then Harlem Joe Kelfer, the short-arm righthander, buzzed the Shreveporters for a 2-1 victory in the seven-stanza added attraction. The double victory by our own two leading citizens while Houston was taking a spanking from Waco, gave us a game and a half advance on the second-rungers and made it four victories out of five games played in three days with the Sports! Some speed!

FUSSELL

Fussell Allows Two Hits

Yesterday afternoon was entirely a pitcher's party. The customers were entertained not by any surreptious uprising usually staged as a climaxer by stern, beetle-browed bludgeoners. It was strictly an outre afternoon for the hitters.

The famous Fussell displayed more of the twirling form known as "stuff" than he has allowed the gaping public to gaze on all season. It was a matter of three up and three down most of the way with the crooked-arm bending the ball so adroitly that the enemy combed but a mere two base hits, singles by Taylor and Harris in separate stanzas, and got on the runways otherwise only when the industrious wronghander found himself at the mercy of an umpire and was plugged for a base on balls. Four four-ball donations did Fussell release. Our side played errorlessly on the defense and Flail 'Em Freddy didn't hit anybody, so only six batteries saw first base. Not one of these athletes advanced as far as the keystone. In other words, that first game was very much Mr. Fussell and very little anybody else.

However, being as Fussell didn't drive both our two runs, there had to be another hero or so to that first game, towit, one Lyman (Lucy) Lamb. But had not Lucy driven in a run during the initial frame, Mr. Fussell would have won regardless, for he, himself and none other, sent a runner across in the sixth.

How We Scored.

George LaFayette opened the Spudder first with a base on balls. Turgeon sacrificed him to second, bunting out to Moore unassisted. Griffin grounded out with no advance and ther Larruping Lambie shot a single to right, scoring LaFayette. Jenkins walked, but Rabbit lined out to port. Benton got well in the sixth, however, whipping a one-baser to right. He advanced a sack on Swenson's safe infield tap, went to third on Lapan's sacrifice bunt and scored after the catch when Fussell hoisted a soaring drive to center. That's about all on that first game. Karpp hurled no mean ball himself, holding the Spudders to six safeties, two of which the noble Swede connected for. Turgeon, Griffin, Lamb and Benton got the other four pokes. There wasn't an extra base blow.

Kiefer chunked almost as spectacular ball in the aftermath as did Fussell in the starter. Pudgy Joe gave up three hits, a single by Maderas, double by Gill and home run over the left field fence in the sixth by Brown, the pitcher who wasn't supposed to hit but picked on a fat cripple duffed in there by Joe during an unguarded moment.

Jenkins Gets Rough.

Kiefer struck out six in seven couplets. Fussell fanned eight in nine.

The mighty Jenkins produced the largest noise in the nightcap. He pummeled Brown for three hits in three and figured in both Spudder runs. T. N. T. Tom tagged Brown for a single in the second and when it began to look like his mates weren't going to knock him off first base, stole second. Frank Tobin followed with two out and manufactured the money smash, a ripping one-baser to the mid-sector. The swarthy one scored standing up. LaFayette drew a walk at the start of the third. He got an advance on Turgeon's infield safety and with two away scored on Jenkins' single to center. Turgeon was cut down at third on the play.

That's all for 15 days. The gang pulled out last night for a tour of Texas.

Oh yes, the mighty midget, one Pewee Turgeon, got three hits in three tries during that second game.

PHILADELPHIA, July 25. (AP)—Jimmy Dykes' home run drive on Stoner's first pitch in the 13th inning today gave the Athletics the first game of their series with Detroit by a 6-5 score. Dykes' hit came as the end of an uphill struggle in which the Mackmen fought from behind, finally tying the count in the ninth inning on a double by French and Lamar's pinch single. The score:

THUMBS DOWN ON EX-CHAMP

Dempsey's War Record Up Before Chi Council

By Universal Service.

CHICAGO, July 25. — Jack Dempsey's war record, revived in the city council here today, was thrown up at him by the councillors as they discussed the proposal to stage the Tunney-Dempsey world's championship bout here next fall.

The aldermen took turns to say what they thought of the ex-champ for doing his share of the fighting in the World war in a ship yard instead of at the battle front.

The general criticism followed the introduction of resolutions by Alderman Nelson, extending the city's thanks to Mayor Thompson's advisory committee, headed by George Getz, millionaire coal man, because of its reported success in getting the Tunney-Dempsey battle for Chicago.

Alderman Chapman of the 40th ward, an ex-service man, said:

"It would be a travesty to stage this fight on Soldiers field. This stadium in Grant park was dedicated to the heroes of the World war, and for the city council to give its moral support to one of the men who is to fight in this proposed contest, is, I maintain, a travesty."

The resolutions which also requested the mayor to appoint a committee of five to work with the mayor's advisory committee in bringing the bout here, were finally passed.

BURK-BURNETT, July 25. — The Burk-Humble baseball team continued its perfect record in the second half of the Cotton Oil league by trouncing the Grandfield, Okla., team Sunday afternoon by the score of 15 to 5. The Burk team drove out 15 safe blows with "Jughead" Johnson and Farquhar leading the attack. Grandfield obtained nine hits off of the great Stevhenson. WELL?

The experts should cease experting. Over the circuit this year they told you and me that any old afternoon the slambanging Spudder attack failed to would be just too bad. Said our flingers needed eight and nine runs to win.

* * *

LAUGH AT THAT.

Which takes us back again over the last five melees staged on the home lot: That rough-and-ready Spudder slugging attack melted away almost entirely. But it wasn't "just too bad." Our throwers gave up exactly zero in the first game, one run in the next, two runs in the next, zero again in number four and a lone tally in number five. We won four of the five.

* * *

After that batting slump, you can look for the Williams wallopers to break out almost any hour on the road jaunt which starts Tuesday afternoon and murder a few on foreign soil.

* * *

Zero in sports: That feeling when you get hold of one solidly, think you've plunked a home run and settle into an easy jog along the runways merely to be told by the umpire as you round second that the drive went foul. You couldn't be blamed if you walked right back to the plate and struck out on the next pitch.

* * *

Joe Pate is returning to the Cats. Don't wax overheated. Joe probably is a ruined crooked-arm. That's usually the way they come back after being worked to a frazzle under the big top. In the case of young fellows, if they're able to recuperate at all it takes two or three seasons. But an old man like Pate will be needing a wheel chair by that time.

* * *

Habits of great men: A. Mitcham, observing to the world, "I told you so"—about that Dempsey-Sharkey affair.

* * *

THERE WILL BE GORE.

You may gurgle over your "fixed" wrestling matches all you wish, but you won't be able to call the impending Gorman-Reed bout a "frame." Somebody's been ribbing Jack about Mike having said he can trim him twice in 20 minutes until the rugged little Dutchman is mad enough to spank the Bulgar with a baseball bat.

* * *

The Yaqui-Hansen scrap is the "main event" Friday, but the Reed-Gorman tussle will be the real attraction. Gorman comes not to wrestle, but to fight. He probably will endeavor to kick a few ribs out with his feet and jar loose a few molars with his fists. You've got to hand it to that guy for getting in there and pitching to the limit. It's no tea party when Gorman is in the ring.

* * *

The unusual in sports: An umpire like Sabrie who gets in the way of runners at first base with such regularity as does he and yet comes up "un-crippeled."

* * *

YUS, YUS.

I have a letter from Jack Reynolds calling somebody a "cheese champion, four-flushing Matsuda," and still offering $100 to the bird who will get the somebody into a finish match with him.

Kearns Hounds Dempsey Again

NEW YORK, July 25.(AP)—Unless there is a settlement of his financial differences with Jack Dempsey, the latter's former manager, Jack Kearns, will take legal steps to block the proposed Dempsey-Tunney return fight in September.

Kearns made this announcement Monday before leaving for Chicago where he said he will prepare his legal cards and be ready to meet the fight "with a brand new set of injunctions and law suits," if necessary, in his effort to recover about $600,000 he claims Dempsey owes him under their old contract.

Prospects of a settlement, however, were seen in the disclosure that Kearns conferred Sunday with Leo P. Flynn, Dempsey's manager, during a golf match.

Of the conference with Flynn, Kearns said it was an "accident" and that their conversation was chiefly with matching Dave Shade, Flynn's crack middleweight, with Mickey Walker, the world's champion, who is under Kearns' wing.

"I'm in no mood right now to talk settlement." Kearns said in reference to the Dempsey tangle, "but I am at all times ready to meet the situation on a fair and square basis. Dempsey will have a lot more trouble collecting his end of a Tunney fight than he did last fall. I'd have caused him a lot more trouble before the match with Jack Sharkey last week if I had returned in time from Europe. I'll be ready for Dempsey this time if he comes out to Chicago."

JIM FERGUSON LABELS MOODY

He Says Governor Soon 'Political Orphan'

AUSTIN, July 25.(AP)—Governor Moody is the "political child of certain Texas wealthy newspaper owners supporting the proposed constitutional amendments to be voted on August 1, but will look like a political orphan," when the returns come in next Monday, former Governor James E. Ferguson, in an attack on the amendments, said today.

"I appeal to every friend I ever had in Texas and vote against all these amendments. Those of you who voted for my wife last year told the people that a mistake was being made. And, therefore, I appeal to our friends everywhere to go to the polls and let us meet these politicians at the ballot box on the issue of "Fergusonism against Moodyism." Let us not falter. Let us meet the enemy.

"Regardless of past political differences I am ready to join hands with any voter and march with him to the polls to vote against the Moody amendments for the honor of Texas and the protection of our homes and firesides," Ferguson said.

He declared amendment support is waning.

"Nobody of any prominence now is speaking for the amendments except Governor Moody adn George Terrell, commissioner of agriculture. These two gentlemen have formed a political combination in which Governor Dan has agreed to furnish the good looks and George has agreed to furnish the brains which they both claim to have and by the influence of which they expect these amendments to carry. George Terrell has quit his farmer friends and joined the higher-education crowd, headed by Moody, to deceive the people. The time has come when Governor Moody will get his and George Terrell has played this farmer stuff long enough. The farmers ought to begin right now to pluck his tail feathers next summer."

He claimed that the effect of every one of the proposed amendments would be to raise taxes.

Mayor R. E. Shepherd of Wichita Falls will probably be one of the principal entertainers. Shepherd is being advertised as the "singing mayor" in connection with the affair. The Masonic picnic was to be held July 14, but was postponed on account of rain. It is an annual event in Cotton county, and consists of an old-fashioned basket picnic, with speaking by prominent state masons, and a barbecue donated by the Masons of Walters.

"This new package" experts say, "is an almost perfect seal for tobacco condition"

REMEMBER how the soft foil cigarette package replaced the pasteboard box! Well, here's the same idea applied to pipe tobacco:

A heavy foil pouch, sealed in an extra wrapper of glassine

Experts say it is more "air-tight" than the ordinary pocket tin . . . it keeps Granger in perfect condition . . . fresh and full-flavored indefinitely! Another thing:

Foil costs less than a tin hence Granger's popular price

APPEAL TO COOLIDGE FOR REGULATION OF PETROLEUM TRADE

CLAIMS SUPPLY NEARLY GONE

Californian Declares Federal Supervision Necesary

By JOHN T. LAMBERT
Universal Service Staff.

RAPID CITY, S. D., July 25.—An appeal to President Coolidge to force complete government regulation of the petroleum industry in order to save America's rapidly dwindling oil supply was made here today by Ralph Arnold of Los Angeles.

Arnold, a geologist of note and and oil prospector who has recently brought in three new fields in Montana, reiterated to President Coolidge the federal oil commission's belief that the oil supply extractible by known process will have been exhausted in seven years. He declared:

Foreign Protection.

"The protection of our country from future foreign foes demands the conservation of oil by every method within reach.

"Our future safety depends upon our air forces. They can't be operated without oil. A nation whose oil supply is exhausted will be at the mercy of any aggressor. If transportation fails great cities would starve to death.

"All my life I have been opposed to government regulation, but at last I am convinced of its necessity because the petroleum industry will not regulate itself.

Should Limit Boring.

"The government should limit the number of borings in order that precious oil may not be wasted by reckless borings. It should join with the states in compelling regulations against the wastage of the gas that is necessary to bring oil to the surface. It should encourage every possible system of oil conservation, including the abandonment of oil-burning by railroads, by domestic heaters and by any industry that can get along with coal or other fuels than oil.

"Just because an oil field is brought in now and then should be no source of encouragement. If our coal fields were as close to exhaustion as our oil deposits this country would be in a panic."

Arnold, who is chairman of the republican committee of Los Angeles county, said he confidently believes that President Coolidge will be a candidate for re-election.

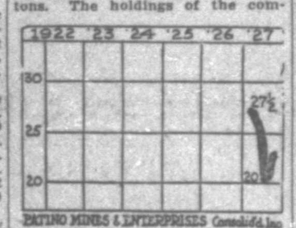
Five-Year Period

Seven per cent of all the tin mined in the world is produced by the Patino Mines and Enterprises Consolidated, Inc. It also produces bismuth and other metals. The two mines of the company, the Uncia and Llallagua in Bolivia, were combined in 1924. The company has extensive water rights and other holdings as well as a railroad and power sites. Ore reserves are estimated at 1,060,000 tons. The holdings of the company exceed $000 acres. The power plant of the corporation is sufficient for its ordinary needs, but during periods of drouth auxiliary power is supplied by Diesel engines.



The only funded debt is a mortgage of 657,044 pounds sterling or approximately $3,193,234 in American money. Capital stock outstanding consists of $27,606,320 in shares of $20 par. Ore reserves are estimated to contain 50,289 tons of tin and it is possible that a very large amount may be recovered from old dumps. In the last year the amount of tin ore blocked out is estimated to contain 2761 tons of tin more than was contained in the ore mined.

ISN'T THAT NICE?

CHICAGO, July 25.—Reformers oppose the Dempsey-Tunney fight in Chicago but nothing will be done about it because preachers are on vacation, it was revealed today.

Rev. L. P. Jensen, director of religious for the Baptist church in Chicago spoke:

"The attitude of the church apparently will have to be one of passive disapproval. Too many churches are closed for the vacation season and too many pulpits are filled by visiting clergymen for anything definite to be done."

Steel Common Takes Market Leadership Monday As Wall Street Buys Shares

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, July 25.—As forecast in this column last week steel common assumed market leadership today. Allowing for the stock dividend steel sold at the highest price on record. General Motors also reached a new peak and Baldwin changed hands at 250.

An indication of the prosperity of the country is found in the big purchases of jewelry, which is a luxury. In the last 12 months the net imports reached $148,000,000. In addition the American gold mines have produced $47,000,000, making a total of $195,000,000. The treasury report discloses that the total monetary gold on June 30 last shows an increase of only $65,000,000. This means that $130,000,000 of the new supply was used in manufacturing jewelry and other luxuries.

Buying of stocks today was of an excellent character and the rise in a number of issues foreshadows favorable earnings reports for the second quarter.

Money remained easy at 3 3-4 per cent. Cotton reached new high prices for the season. Wheat was steady and foreign exchange quiet.

Rails were quiet although some issues enjoyed a good demand during the day. Reading was higher and Gulf Mobile moved upward on a few transactions. Car loadings on the latter road for the second week of July show an increase of 40 per cent over the same period last year.

One reason for the inactivity of the rails is due to the belief that the four system plan of consolidations in the east have been abandoned by the railway executives. Developments are now understood to be under way which will definitely lead to an agreement among executives of the eastern railroad managers of a fifth, or Loree line, to be allowed. With the give and take spirit among the rail men it is believed that they will come to a decision this fall. Wall street believes that a number of mergers will go through along the lines laid down by President Coolidge.

One member of the interstate commerce commission, it is rumored, intends to resign from the commission and the term of another expires next December. It is believed that President Coolidge will have to appoint new members to fill these vacancies—members who are expected to be in accord with his plan of consolidating the nation's railroads.

Specialties were strong with American Chicle selling into new high ground. American Chicle is going into the candy business in five and ten cent packages. Coca Cola was quiet, although the stock is expected to pay $6 in October. A drive was made against Gabriel Snubbers in the late trading when sponsors refused to confirm or deny the Ford contract. But from semi-official sources it was said that negotiations are on.

A specialty soon to come into the limelight is Equitable office building. This stock is regarded as an investment and selling behind the list as a $7 issue.

General motors crossed 220 for a new high. In the next few days an announcement is expected that will be bullish on the stock. Steel and the independents moved higher. Inland is expected to figure in a western merger. Steel common is beginning to feel the effect of accumulation that has taken place for several weeks, by New York and and Pittsburgh groups or the Morgan and Melon interests. Small investors throughout the middle west have also been buyers. The buying of steel by the big interests is for the long pull and big profits.

One example of a tremendous profit is the amount Morgan & Company have made in the acquisition of the old General Motors stock at $10. A share some years ago. This stock has been changed one for four and this profit is larger than the firm made in any of the biggest syndicates it participated in; it goes up into the hundreds of millions.

Tobaccos were higher. Liggett & Myers and the Anglo-American tobaccos are expected to close in the next few weeks a contract with some European countries concerning a tobacco monopoly.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW

CHICAGO, July 25.(AP)—Corn scored a rapid advance in price today and at times attracted more attention than wheat. There was much talk that the corn crop, especially in Illinois is not making up for its lateness. Corn closed strong, 2⅛ to 2 cents net higher, with wheat showing ⅝ to 1⅛c decline, oats unchanged to ⅛c up, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 15 cents.

Wheat dragged owing in particular to heavy receipts here, estimated finally at 931 cars, an amount away in excess of the total a week ago.

Oats derived firmness from the corn market.

Provisions were affected by the action both of hog values and of corn.

CHICAGO FUTURES

CHICAGO, July 25.(AP)—Cotton futures closed: July 18.36; October 18.93; December 18.38; January 19.35.

N. Y. Stocks

NEW YORK, July 25.(AP)—Speculation for the advance broadened out considerably in today's stock market as hitherto neglected groups of stocks were taken in hand by pools and bid up to new high prices. Sporadic bear selling and profit taking impeded the advance at times, but selling orders generally were well absorbed, many of the leaders recording their best prices of the day in the last hour. Net gains in the popular issues ran from 1 to 5 points with a scattering of gains running as high as 6½ points.

Although midsummer dullness continues to characterize net most of business, signs of a quickening in demand are apparent in some of the tasic industries. The export price of copper was advanced another 10 points to 13.25 cents a pound today. Easy credit conditions, however, continue to provide stimulus to the "bull" movement. Call money renewed at 4 per cent today as against 2½ Saturday, but dropped to 3½ again in the late afternoon. A slight stiffening is expected later in the week in connection with the heavy month-end demand for funds. The money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Expectations that the United States Steel corporation at its quarterly meeting tomorrow would show earnings in excess of the $48,584,000 reported to the first quarter, or well above earlier estimates, accelerated the rise in that stock, which crossed 128 to the highest price since the distribution of the 40 per cent stock dividend. Bethlehem, Republican, Vanadium, Inland and other so-called "independent" steels also recorded substantial gains.

Announcement of new models by several of the large manufacturers, rumors of special dividend action on General Motors and reports of large current earnings furnished the back ground for the advance in the motor stocks. General Motors sold up to a new high for all time at 220½, making the seventh successive day in which the stock has exceeded its previous best price. Studebaker reported earnings of $2.63 a share in the second quarter as against $2.44 for the second quarter of 19.26.

Merchandising and textile issues presented several points of strength. Woolworth was bid up more than 5 points to 155¾, the highest price since the declaration of the 50 per cent stock dividend last year.

VENUE CHANGE ASKED BY TWO

Marshall Flogging Cases Called to Trial

MARSHALL, Texas, July 25.(AP)—After consuming virtually all day with testimony attempting to show that Cain Anderson and Dewitt Osborn could not obtain a fair trial in Harrison county, the defense in the flogging case rested at 4:30 p. m. Monday. The state will offer no testimony, it was announced.

The defense has filed application for a change of venue. In the trial here today it was ruled that reference in testimony could be made to both cases, but each would be acted upon separately.

Anderson, a wealthy dairy farmer, and Osborne, tenant on the Anderson farm, are charged jointly on seven indictments for violating the state anti-mask law and one misdemeanor charge. Anderson also is under bond on a charge of bribery in connection with an alleged offer of money and automobile made to one of the victims of the floggings.

Those who testified prior to the afternoon session were: S. H. Jones, Jim Casey, B. R. Lindsay, J. T. Jones, W. T. Cox, and Will Killingsworth. Other witnesses called include: Rena Moseley, John Nobles, Edith Akin, Eudora Akin, Gus Noble, Dewitt Osborne, Tom Weems, Joe Weems, Mrs. Weems, Miss Beulah Anderson, Mrs. Cain Anderson, Jewell Anderson, Jewell Anderson, Jr., Earl Craig, Mrs. Earl Craig, Charley Hearthill, Elizabeth Duke, C. H. Gilstrap, Jess Jones, John Sanderson, B. F. Findley, Lee Hawley, Roney Moore, Hobart Key, Mrs. I. A. Morgan, Lamar Jones, A. L. Hendricks, N. H. Levy, J. B. Furrh, D. C. Driskell, Bert Bergson, F. Wood, Will Winston, Dora Price, Robert Green, Frank Rogers and Raymond King.

Court wil be reconvened at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning.

Auto Thieves Return Car With Note of Appreciation

Car thieves in Wichita Falls are becoming very polite if the manner of operation of thieves who stole a car on Grace street Sunday night is to be made a practice. The automobile was not only returned to the spot from which it was stolen but a note of gratitude was found by the owner Monday morning in the car.

During the time the automobile was stolen property it was damaged somewhat, apparently by being backed into a building, police were told. The switch keys were left in the car by the thieves.

The note left in the seat started off with "thanks for the car," and ended with "it's a ——— of a good Ford," according to Officer Seph Gardner who read the missive.

FALL BUYERS TO MARKETS

They Go in Good Old Summer Time Now

As each season rolls around, Milady seems to be rushing the styles more eagerly than hitherto evidenced. Straw hats in December, summer hats in March, fall hats in July—herein is the speed of the generation reflected.

Buyers for fall merchandise are traveling to and from their stores to the New York markets—placing orders for the latest creations in ready-to-wear and millinery so that back in the home town the extremist may have her velvet or velour or satin hat in the middle of the summer instead of what used to be the so-called proper time for heavier fabrics and autumn colors—September.

Wichita Falls is well served in this respect. Eight buyers from Perkins-Timberlake have completed their marketing trips in the east or are now beginning their selections. Frocks and coats have been purchased by Mrs. F. M. Harbison, buyer of the ladies' ready-to-wear. Mrs. Harbison returned recently from her buying trip. Mrs. R. K. Henderson will leave in a short time to select the latest in chapeaux. She is manager and buyer for the millinery department. F. L. Mercer, manager and buyer of the boys' and men's department, including all clothing, hats and haberdashery recently spent about three weeks in the east. C. H. Aldrich, manager and buyer of the shoe department, has returned after a complete study of the new styles and makes of footwear.

R. M. Tittle has just left to purchase toilet goods, hosiery, gloves, notions, novelties and basement store stock. H. O. Bowman, buyer for the yard goods, luggage and linens, is also on his way to New York.

R. D. Kennedy, manager of the local store, and F. P. Timberlake, general manager for the Perkins-Timberlake syndicate, are expected back some time this week after an extended trip of about six weeks throughout the east.

Auto Owners Have Last Chance to Assess Cars

Cards notifying automobile owners in Wichita Falls who have failed to render their cars for taxation that August 15 would be the last day on which the owner's valuation would be received by the city, were mailed Monday by Ralph Hyer, city tax collector and assessor.

After August 15, according to Mr. Hyer, the valuation on the cars will be set by the tax assessor.

FIVE CASES QUARANTINED.

Majestic: "Tillie the Toiler," with Marian Davies; Fables, Topics of the Day and Pathe News.

Olympic: Dorothy MacKail in "Convoy," comedy and Fox news.

Mission: Clara Bow in "It," comedy and Musical comedy, Honey Hank Harris and His Honey Girls.

Garden: "The Desert Toll," with Jack Luden; western picture and comedy.

Monroe: Monte Blue in "Wolf's Clothing," with Patsy Ruth Miller and comedy.

Richard Dix has hit a pace that few stars in the history of pictures have been able to approach—he has made 14 big successes in a row. In "Man Power" his new Paramount feature coming to the Majestic theater he is said to make them laugh, cry and cheer. And what more could be expected of a star?

It's a film for these boys and girls of all ages who like action. "Man Power" is no parlor picture; it opens with Dix unshaven and untidy in a box car, but he gets onto his feet in the first reel. The action hits a fast pace when he begins showing up the machinations of a crooked manager of a tractor factory; it keeps right on going when it is apparent he intends to win the daughter of the company's president, and it hits the heights of melodramatic thrills when he drives a huge tractor through a driving rain up a mountain to save a dam which is in danger of being washed out.

* * *

The launching of Clara Bow as a star and the return of Elinor Glyn to Paramount is, from the public's standpoint, one of those fortunate things that occur all too rarely in motion pictures. And what was an even more fortunate stroke was the uniting of the famous flapper and the distinguished English novelist in a single film.

Played by Clara Bow.

A vivacious shop-girl possessing the unusual power of "IT," an invisible emanation said to exude from certain human beings making them irresistible to all with whom they come in contact, is the picture's central figure. With the aid of this strange power she wins the attention of the president of the department store in which she works and causes him to fall in love with her.

Richard Dix in "Man Power," with Mary Brian showing at the Majestic Theater Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

Police Release Man In Sunday Robbery

Earl Keith, employe of the Lamar Street Pharmacy who was slugged by a hi-jacker who robbed him of $11 at 1 o'clock Sunday morning, was removed to his home late Monday from the Wichita General hospital where he was taken Sunday. His condition was reported much improved.

Mr. Keith had just left a restaurant on his way home when the hi-jacker accosted him. It was while he was getting his money out of his pockets that the man struck him on the head with a rock, it was reported to police.

No arrests were made in the case Monday. A man arrested Sunday as a suspect was later released.

WOMAN STRICKEN IN BANK

Mrs. J. H. Davisson, 1509 Tenth street, is in the Wichita Falls Clinic hospital suffering from the effects of a heart attack which occurred while she was in the Wichita State bank shortly before 3 o'clock Monday afternoon.

Physicians stated late Saturday that her recovery is expected although her condition is considered serious. Mrs. Davisson was rushed to the Clinic hospital in a Merkle ambulance after a physician had been summoned to the bank where she had gone unaccompanied.

BLAME FRIGHT IN AIR CRASH

Boy, Alarmed, 'Freezes' To Control Stick

CHICAGO, July 25. (AP)—Seizing of a dual control on an airplane by a youth taking his first ride in the skies may have caused the accident that hurtled two men to their death near here last evening and seriously injured a third.

The victims, Ray Westphall, 21, of Chicago, and Irwin Hybell, 22, of Dundee, Ill., were killed instantly, while the pilot of the plane, Carl Hawkinson, 24, was burned and injured internally.

Roy Ahearn, a pilot who witnessed the crash on a field conducted by the North Shore Aviation club at Mortion Grove, a suburb, laid the accident to the fact that there was an auxiliary control stick in the forward seat occupied by the passengers.

"Everything points to the fact that one of the men seized the stick and pulled it," he said. "The effect was to head the nose of the plane straight up. Naturally it wouldn't go up at the low starting speed. Instead, with the wings elevated, it fell down on the tail."

PROGRESS

A newspaper is of value to its advertisers only in so far as it is of interest to its readers. Reader-interest promotes growth—the only basis upon which any publication should be estimated.

The circulation of a newspaper which is practically at a standstill cannot be as productive as a healthy circulation that shows constant and rapid growth.

Circulation INCREASES today are more significant than laurels achieved yesterday.

The Record News has had an increase in circulation of 131% within the past four years. This is PRESENT DAY GROWTH of the kind that is profitable to advertisers.

The Record News is read in thousands of homes that read no other Wichita Falls newspaper!
