Pittsburgh-Corpus Water Route Seen

PITTSBURGH, May 24.—Roy Miller's dream of an all-water route from Pittsburgh, Penn., to Corpus Christi progressed considerably from a vision to the road which likely will lead to reality when directors of the Intracontinental canal planned to advance $25,000,000 a survey of the route from Galveston to Corpus.

Mr. Miller, who is active vice president of the association, in making the announcement said the agreement eventually would repay the money but for the moment private Houston interests had agreed to furnish $25,000,000 of the total and that I. H. Kempner and Harry A. Black of Galveston had undertaken that city's quota of $10,000,000.

The survey, according to Mr. Miller is to begin in June preparatory to construction of the Galveston-Corpus Christi link, government funds for which will become available in June, 1928. Congress at a last session approved it.

The canal is projected through southern Louisiana and Texas and to connect with the Mississippi river and its tributaries at New Orleans.

He expects more than 100 heifers will be exhibited by Polk county big club boys. Wheat Suffering From Dry Weather

LOCKNEY, May 24.—According to reports from farmers of this section, the wheat crop seems to be doomed to be a complete failure on account of the dry weather.

Farmers may that 45 days ago the crop looked as if it would average around 20 bushels per acre, but the present outlook is that if there is a enough wheat harvested in this section to furnish seed for the next year's planting, it will be doing well.

Continued hot winds are sapping the moisture that is in the wheat and causing it to prematurely ripen.

The soil at the present writing is so dry that it is an impossibility to start summer plowing preparatory to the planting of the row crops.

Cooper Is Dashing Western Hero

The newest "Western" hero, already acclaimed one of filmdom's most dashing exponents of the stirring life of the great open spaces, is the Lindsey Theatre today, when Gary Cooper, Paramount star, will be seen in the leading role of "Arizona Bound."

Though Cooper has been in motion pictures but little more than a year, his fascinating screen presence and his real ability as an actor have already served to elevate him to a coveted position in the screen world. Raised on a Montana ranch, he is an accomplished horseman, and a typical product of the Great West.

For two years Cooper "rode herd" with the cowboys on his father's ranch, following the chuck wagon on the great round-ups, sleeping on the ground at night, and acquiring a muscular development which, combined with his height of six feet, two inches, makes him an ideal type for his role.

A competent judge of horse-flesh, the new star brings to the screen an entire company which he is acclaimed as the most beautiful horse ever seen in motion pictures. This cream-colored Arabian stallion, and in addition to his beauty and animation, is an actor of unusual accomplishments, rivaling Tony, Silver King and Rex.

For his first starring vehicle, Paramount has secured "Arizona Bound," a swift-moving story filled with suspense and thrilling situations. The direction of the picture was in the hand of John Waters, who has guided the filming of Paramount's Zane Grey productions.

The fascinating Betty Jewel, "the girl with the violet eyes," is seen in the principal feminine role, with El Brendel, the funny Swede, furnishing a riot of laughs.

UHLE IS VICTIM OF SLASHING TIGER WIN

(By The Associated Press) CLEVELAND, May 24—Detroit knocked George Uhle out of the box in the 4th inning of today's game and defeated Cleveland 5 to 3. The game was halted by rain for 25 minutes in the last half of the 9th when Cleveland had two men on base and 1 out. Stoner was unhelpfully effective until the eighth inning when a triple and a tumble gave Cleveland two runs.

REJUVENATED HUBBERS TO TAKE FIELD HERE SUNDAY AFTERNOON AGAINST GOBER'S PAMPA OILERS

Sunday afternoon the Lubbock Hubbers will enter into their first contest for the 1927 season when they clash with the Pampa Oilers at the Merrill Park. The game will not only be the first game of the season but will be a game played for experiment—will baseball pay in Lubbock from the gate receipts? Should the fans of Lubbock and the South Plains respond to the game properly there will be no difficulty in keeping the home lads with real baseball talent here.

Gober Bosses Oilers
The Pampa Oilers are managed by a former veteran of the Hubber aggregation and a former resident of this city—Emmer E. B. Gober. Gober has a well organized crew and has been putting them through some real games. They have defeated most everything in the Panhandle and are now stretching out over a more vast region—Including the South Plains in his challenge. The personnel of the Oiler nine is not known but reports sent out from the Panhandle city indicate that their personnel will take care of itself. Gober is well known to the fans of both Lubbock and the South Plains and he is known to be a man that is capable of handling real baseball players—and he has them.

The Hubbers for 1927 only lack Gibson Fred Allen to have the old original line-up. With the return of Gilbert Jackson together with the rest of the lads that have been here the Hubbers have practically their same crew. Jackson, Shepard, Hensley, Sanders, Hamilton, Terry, and "Red" Gaither consist of the Hubber vets. This group of Hubbers have around them young blood that will put the punch and fight in the game in Cecil Hardwick, Raymond Ater, "Tuba" Nicholas, Rigney, Kaufman, "Chub" DeWitt, and others that will try-out with the lads.

Grady Higginbotham, veteran of the game and assistant coach of the Texas Tech college, will handle the line after the first two games. Gilbert Jackson will be at the helm for the first game but will arrive here for the Sunday game with the Lamesa Lobos on June 5. Merchants of Lubbock have donated uniforms for the club. These uniforms will not be here in time for the first game but will arrive here for the Sunday game with the Lamesa Lobos on June 5. Equally disappointing to Hubbert J. Fugassy, Rickard's met rival, was the board's decision that the match between "Honey Boy" Finegan and Red Chapman, crack Boston featherweights could not be labeled a title affair when the pair square off at the Polo Grounds here June 3. Fugassy hoped that the winner would receive official recognition as the successor of Louis (Kid) Kaplan, who gave up the 123 pound crown last year because of difficulty making the weight. The commission decided the bout could be advertised only as a "featherweight elimination contest."

LAUGHTERS MIDAS

THIS HAS HAPPENED
T. Q. CURTIS takes BILLY WELLS, NYDA LOMAX and WINNIE SHELTON, employees from his department store, into his home for a year as his wards, because he wants to help them further their ambitions which he expressed.

Billy, who wants to become a concert violinist, is the only one sincerely ambitious. The other two like to enjoy the old man's generosity.

The girls accidentally learn that he intends adopting one of them when the year is up. A battle ensues for his affections. Billy is unwillingly drawn into the game, and this, together with her infatuation for DAI, ROMAIN, nephew of MRS. MEADOWS, hastens to cause her to lose interest in her violin.

Dai makes ardent love to Billy but asks her to keep their engagement a secret. Much to her hurt surprise, she learns he is also "playing" Winnie. She leaves Ralph TRUMAN take Billy through his father's automobile factory. There Billy sees again CLAY CURTIS, son of her benefactor. Billy first meets Clay when he disinherits himself and comes to live with the Wells family in the rear section of the town working in the factory by day and writing music at night. Clay's sensitive face is drawn in nervous agony as he works before an only, noisy machine. Billy speaks to him, pointing out the rhythm and cadence in the noise of the big machinery. The idea for Clay's symphony, "The Song of Toil," is born.

During the factory tour, Ralph warns Billy against Dai. Romaine Billy is so hurt, she leaves Ralph and, finding Clay in the crowd of departing workmen, rides to town on the bus with him. He proposes to Billy, but she refuses, saying she could not now marry a laboring man. Clay believes her precipitation into sudden wealth has ruined her and leaves her disgusted. Billy goes home to find a note from Dai Romaine.

Now go on with the story
CHAPTER XXXIV
On Tuesday evening, while the other members of the Curtis household were at dinner, Viola, the maid, brought Billy's tray to her bedside, bringing with it a note.

"Here your dinner, Miss Billy, and if you're happy to find a piece of paper folded up in your napkin, I don't know nothing about it."

The delicious dinner was destined to receive not one-tenth of the attention to which it was entitled. As soon as Viola had backed out of the room, Billy snatched up the napkin and shook it out. Out of a blank envelope she drew a single sheet of notepaper, covered with the tiny, beautiful printing which had become so heart-stirringly familiar to her, though she had received only one other specimen of before.

"Mignon, they won't let me see you," the note began abruptly, without a date. "T. Q. has forbidden me to write to you or to send you flowers. But I must see you. Aunt Lucia tells me you are going away for a week. Are you to see me tonight? Oh, Mignon, darling, I'm starving for the sight of you, for the touch of your dear hands. I am willing you to come to me, tonight for just a few precious minutes. I shall be waiting for you in the old summerhouse at eleven. I can't let you go away for so many dreary weeks without telling you goodbye. I love you, Dai."

Her dinner untouched, she lay for a long time, quite still, her body flushed with the fever of anticipation. Magnificently the very sight of his handwriting had wiped out all her sick despair.

Craftiness dictated her first actions after those long minutes of delicious anticipation. She worked with frantic haste for a few minutes—mashing spoonfuls of food upon her plate, scattering crumbs from the teapot, pouring out a cup of the cooling chocolate. Then she disposed of most of the food in the bathroom, leaving just enough to deceive any observer into thinking it did not occur to her to eat the food. The very sight of it was distasteful to her, in her state of frantic anticipation.

She was safely back in bed again when Viola called for the tray, and she smiled demurely when the colored girl exclaimed happily over the amount she had eaten.

T. Q. and Mrs. Meadows paid her visits after dinner, and the old man was quite jubilant over the color in her cheeks and the sparkle in her eyes.

"If I didn't have the doctor's word for it, I'd swear, you'd been playing possum on me," he told her fondly. "Get a good night's sleep now, Billikin, and be ready for your trip tomorrow. Here's a little something for incidentals," he added cheerfully, tucking a folded slip of paper under her pillow.

She kissed her on both cheeks, and she could see that he was surprised and touched when she clung to him, crying breathlessly: "Oh, you're so good to me, so good, so good!"

The check, which she unfolded with a flush of shame and embarrassment, was for five hundred dollars—an extra month's allowance. How Nyda and Winnie would hate her if they knew!

At ten o'clock she locked her door while she dressed with trembling haste, even to shoes and stockings. Then she crept back under a quilted satin dressing gown, and was innocently watching over a book when Mrs. Meadows came to see how she was feeling and to bid her goodnight.

Nyda and Winnie had gone to a picture at the Country Club. Mrs. Meadows told her, and Mr. Curtis was working in the library. At half past ten Billy snatched up the check, laid it above her bed, and lay for long minutes, tense and quivering in the dark, passing the time by reciting Twenty German poems she had memorized in high school. When she was sure that it was nearly eleven, she slipped out of her room, unlocked the door, and crept in the lock and tucking it away safely in the pocket of her spring coat. Her head was swathed in a dark silk scarf. The treads of the servants' stairs creaked under her light steps, but she descended to the first floor without detection.

When she scurried past the butler's pantry, where the butler, was locking up the silver for the night, the butler looked up, peered at her and called out cheerily: "That you, Clara? You know the rules—back by twelve old girl!"

Old girl! Billy chuckled and waved a hand in flippancy, and Mrs. Meadows was satisfied. Evidently he was a far more approachable being where Clara, the parlor maid, was concerned, than he was with the three "young mistresses" of the house. As she sped lightly across the lawn, Billy was surprised to find that her knees were wobbly. And she had thought she could run miles. It those miles led her to Dai Romaine!

"Mignon! God! I thought you weren't coming!" The deep voice that had the power to stir her as had no other sound in the world called out thrillingly to her as she hesitated, panting, at the door of the summerhouse.

She fell into his arms, flattened her body against his, flung back her head for his kiss.

"Poor little bit!" he crooned over her, as, through the light fabric of her coat his hands, straining her to him, discovered the almost painful, increased prominence of her ribs and slender blades. "You must not be eating a thing, child. Not sleeping either."

"No," she whispered. "I can't eat. I hate food! Her voice became suddenly violent. "Someone is always trying to make me eat. I don't know how to sleep. Why can't I sleep, Dai?" She clung to him like a forlorn, frightened child.

His voice vibrated on the tender, dramatic note that always stirred her so profoundly. "Let's not talk about food in connection with you. I don't like to see a beautiful woman like you, they're sending you away—so I can't keep you from eating and sleeping!" His voice became light, almost teasing. "Of course I had to see you, darling. You shivered! Are you cold?"

He wrapped her coat, and then his arms, more lightly about her. "Let's sit down." She struggled out of his arms, knowing that she could not talk to him while his thrilling hands were upon her.

"He humored her, taking his place at the extreme end of the narrow bench which had chosen, by the light of the newly risen moon they could look into one another's eyes. A chill breeze lifted her hair from her forehead, which gleamed ghostly white in the moonlight. Whether it was the magic of the moon or the inner glow of a beautiful woman, she did not determine, but his eyes gleamed wide, like disks of black, polished steel.

"Dai, I want you to tell me the truth," she began breathlessly. "First, do you own an interest in Madame Dahome, modest as they are, and then the woman opened on a shoestring. I saw that she had a really marvelous clothes sense, knew how to buy and how to sell, and I put a little capital into the business." He spoke with after candor.

"When? Let's see—very recently. Oh, yes, two weeks ago, today, to be perfectly exact. Oh, I see what's worrying you. I laughed indulgently. "You think I was acting as a sort of 'game-on' man for the firm, don't you? Well, you're quite right. I believe I have. You're quite wrong, darling. My profits—if I make any—will not include a percentage on that sale." His voice was light, casual, but she thought she detected a thin strain of sarcasm running through the careful words.

"Oh! She had to accept his explanation. "I—I hope you will make some money there, Dai—if you need it."

"Don't we all?" His teeth gleamed in an amused smile. "Now why are you bothering the poor little head?"

"Did you really go to Chicago, Dai—and did you go alone?"

"Why, Mignon? I don't understand you. His voice was deep, but of course you're ill, and I'm going to say the obvious things about trusting the man you're engaged to be married to."

"Oh, Dai! I'm sorry! I've been nearly crazy with doubt and suspicion—and lack of sleep—" She flung herself prone on the bench, so that her head lay on his knees. So he had taken it for granted that she was going to be married? What a self-torturing suspicious little fool she had been!

It was twelve o'clock when she crept back across the back lawn toward the house alone. Dai watched her from the shadows of the summerhouse. She paused for a moment to wave to him, before darting into the servant's entrance at the rear of the house. When he had returned her signal, she glanced upward to the rows of windows, to see if a light burned anywhere in the dining room of the mansion, that she saw caused her to freeze so immovably, unable to take a step.

A light burned in Nyda Lomax's room on the third floor, and out of the open window stepped a man, pulling the window shut as he descended to his Fall height upon the small balcony. A fire escape led from the balcony to within a few feet of the ground, a presentation which T. Q. Curtis had insisted upon. Billy watched him vault lightly over the railing of the stone balcony, and begin to descend the fire escape, in a leisurely, accustomed manner, as if he had little or no fear of detection.

Before he had reached the ground, Billy was hurrying on brightened feet up the servant's stairs. A pencil of light under Ny-

BANKERS BEAT AUTO-BARBERS 2 TO 1

The money bankers and loan lenders of the Lubbock City loop defeated the Auto-Barbers in a fast contest yesterday afternoon with a score of 2 to 1. It was the first game since the Auto-Barbers, led by Walter Waller, ex-fifthhander of the flatters, flung the game for the bankers and let the hard hitting mechanics and shavers down with two hits for the classic. Stalunker, city loop's strike out feller allowed the money-changers five hits.

The game was won in the first half of the fourth inning after Hardwick had reached first on a hit, Waller sent a high fly to left center that Ater muffed. Hardwick taking third and Waller second. Ater struck out. On the squeeze, Mitchell bunted perfect, Stalunker and Waller scored. 2-1.

Strolling Down Sports Lane JAMES R. DOW

Around the blocks of the Hub City you can hear him: "Who are the Hubbers, I thought that they would not have baseball here this summer." But Sunday and Monday evenings, they will be talking differently. Baseball is in Lubbock and will continue to be if the fans of the city are willing to attend and support the game with their regular patronage to the games scheduled here.

"Why, the line-up for the game with the Pump crew is the old original 'Hubbers', one fellow remarked yesterday afternoon, on the street. Certainly is not with the added strength of the bats that have brightened up matters with the Tech since the Hubbers will be stepping in."

Pump has a first crew—Pump, they are the line on the Pump. Pump is set their wits for bringing a story setting. The Pump lads have been setting the world on fire in the name of Americanism on the Pump. But the Hubbers will "hub" that flaming crew and attempt to quiet the lads from the Panhandle down. They have toured long enough.

E. B. "Emmer" Gohler, who held down the torch corner for the Hubbers in the West Texas League during the year 1922, "Emmer" is popular with the fans of Lubbock and the South Plains. He will get a good hand when he appears here Sunday and Monday.

"Think the Hubbers haven't got the material when they have? Speaking of that stuff valuable recruits that will work out for the Hubbers look this list over and put your approval stamp on them— "Chick" Bennett, Philoza, "Chick" Taylor, "Woman" Sanders, Frank Wright, Queffron Dilsey.

When the uniforms arrive and the Hubbers blossom out in them, the Hubbers will turn out sure enough. It's a long time since Lubbock has seen their lads dressed out in sparkling new frocks. Look at them when they come, head the stuff on the back of their uniforms and know what baseball means in Lubbock.

Help the Hubbers get over. It will be an easy task for the lads to have a stopping aggregation in Lubbock if the fans will walk through the turnstiles to have a look at the Hubbers. No one will be present for donations, contributions—just be a regular patron to the lads at their home games.

Lubbock will say yes or no Sunday and Monday for baseball here this summer—big crowd says yes and a small one no. What will the answer be? Here's hoping that they will come in here and long in favor of the Hubbers.

DAILY MARKETS

NEW YORK COTTON Provisions averaged lower as a result of packers selling, but this was partly offset by relative cheapness of lard compared with other commodities.

NEW YORK RAW SUGAR NEW YORK, May 24 (AP)—With little more liberal and demand limited, the raw sugar market today developed an easier tone with prices declining 1-3/4 of a cent. The only sale recorded was 21,000 bags of Cuban for first half June shipment to an operator at 4.32, duty paid.

May liquidation and increased offerings in the spot market caused a lower ruling in raw sugar futures. Issuance of 40 May notices trading in which position ceased today caused a decline of six points in that month early, but part of this was regained later on covering. May going out at 2.97, or 3 points net lower. Later positions closed at net lower of 1 to 2 points. Approximate sales 22,500 tons. July closed 2.87; September 2.83; December 2.80; January 2.85; March 2.89; May 2.96. Only light inquiry was reported for refined sugar, but prices were unchanged at 6.02, to 6.29 for the granulated.

Trading was stimulated by the government report pointing to a greater emergency of bull wheat, as well as the forecast for showers or thunder-showers more or less generally over the south, except for West Texas. For a time the market showed considerable strength, all positions making new high ground for the movement. July sold up to 42 1/2, December to 17 1/2 and January to 17 1/2, net advances of 7 to 10 points. Some of the early sellers appeared to be covering on the advance. Offerings increased at the advance, however, and reports of rains in northwest Texas, widely brought in, a considerable selling during the afternoon, when prices declined to 16 1/2 for July and 18 1/4 for December, or about 18 to 25 points net lower on the general list. The close was several points up from the lowest on covering.

Exports today 18,988, making 18,224,000 so far this season. Port receipts 15,901. U. S. Port stocks 1,705,621.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON NEW ORLEANS, May 24 (AP)—The cotton market today decidedly active today and prices fluctuated broadly. The West Texas drought continued to dominate trading although the early advance was helped somewhat by a bullish bull wheat emergency report by the government. July traded up to 16.32, but selling and realizing checked the advance, that option dropping to 16.26 and closing at 16.30. The general market closed steady at net declines of 5 to 13 points.

Overnight reports of rain in the drought section strengthened the opening here and trades here showed gains of 1 to 7 points. Near the end of the first hour the market turned easier on private reports of rains and before the offerings were absorbed prices had been 18 to 20 points up with July at 16.28, October 14.55 and December 16.74, later in the morning, however, the official forecast for fair and cool weather in West Texas and showers in most other portions of the belt caused a sharp rally. July traded up to 16.32, October 16.32 and December 17.00, 24 to 27 points above the lows.

Liberal liquidation and selling here and in New York due probably to the strained relations between Great Britain and Russia, plunged prices to their earlier lows. Trading quieted down near the end and the close was within five points of the day's lows. Exports totaled 18,988 bales.

BOSTON WOOL BOSTON, May 24 (AP)—Wool trading shows a slight tendency to expand. Some mills that have not been buyers of late are taking moderate quantities. Sales generally are inclined to be small, partly because of stocks and selections available and partly because there are indications to anticipate needs, although there is growing confidence in present values. Prices, however, are still somewhat uneven.

FORT WORTH LIVESTOCK FORT WORTH, May 24 (AP)—The hog trade continued its downward slide today, a decline of around 25 cents being recorded. The sheep and cattle markets were generally steady.

Receipts were posted at 2,700 grown cattle, 700 calves, 700 pigs and 500 sheep.

NEW YORK COFFEE NEW YORK, May 24 (AP)—Coffee futures opened today at an advance of 3 to 18 points on covering by near month shorts and a little European buying. The market closed net 3 points lower to 2 points higher. Estimated sales 20,000 bags. Closing quotations: May 19.29; July 18.12; September 15.75; December 15.12; January 11.35; March 11.27; May (1928) 11.15.

Spot coffee quiet. Rio 7 1/2 to 10-10-1/2; Santos 4 1/2 to 16 1/2.

CHICAGO GRAIN CHICAGO, May 24 (AP)—In the largest trading seen in many a day, wheat, corn and oats all found buyers today to new high price records for the season. Rushes to buy were simultaneous with British government announcement of a diplomatic break with Russia, but abnormal weather and crop conditions as well as a sentiment of Chicago supplies being short and eye

NEW YORK, May 24 (AP)—Cotton seed oil was moderately active and irregular today, being sensitive to their movements in local and cotton.

NEW YORK COTTON GOODS

NEW YORK, May 24 (AP)—Cotton goods were quiet in the gray goods division today, with prices steady. Burials were easier in Calcutta and in the local trade.

"Lucky" Lindbergh—Son Of The "Red Gods"

Captain Charles A. Lindbergh in the cockpit of his plane—Atlantic flight plane, "Spirit of St. Louis." Flight controls of every variety decorate the instrument board in front of him.

BY GENE COHN NEA Service Writer NEW YORK, May 24.—Adventure, the veteran victims of its lure will tell you, is like the tide. Ever so many moons it pulls upon the blood of certain men. They cannot resist.

Such, the old prophets will go on, is the heritage of "Lucky" Charles Lindbergh. His Odyssey has begun.

Men From All Over Here drift in from the world, the men who conquer the Arctic, who battle the jungle, who scale the mountains, heights and skin the clouds.

They talk about daring do as Wall Street brokers talk about a move in the market. Says Captain Felix Rosenburg, himself a skipper of the seven seas, writer, and a secretary of the Explorers' club, who from his secretarial seat, has come to know them all.

A Study in Life and Time "Adventure, past, present or future, is their stock in trade. It is a great study in values, in life, and in time to be lived, usually realizing some exploit which, in its day, rivaled the Lindbergh exploit.

They Never Get Away "One thing is sure—they never get away from adventure. I have seen a few go into business, but their feet still itch, and their minds still dream."

There is, for instance, Anthony Flah, who went with the Ziegler expedition into the Arctic and went in search of the River of Doubt. Today he has perhaps the sole out-fitting post for explorations.

BRITISH ROW

(Continued from Page 1) Describing how the missing document from the Berlin office had been photographed and sent to Moscow, Mr. Baldwin told of the police invasion of a photostat office in Soviet house, which was used exactly to descriptions previously given to the police and which was occupied by a senior clerk. An agent known to be connected with the activities of the secret agents, Miller, advised the private office of Mr. Khinchuk, head of the trade delegation. When the office was entered, Miller was found burning secret documents. The premier gave details of how men employed by the trade delegation were also secret service agents engaged in communicating information and instructions from the Red international and red trade unions to communist organizations in England and America all of most recent date. He quoted letters and documents showing, as he said, that the trade delegation had been habitually used as a clearing house for subversive correspondence dealing with "hands off China" movement and the distribution of communist propaganda in the United States.

LINDBERGH

(Continued from Page 1) In New York it was during that time that the famous Frenchman Nungesser and Colli left France as I have said before on a much greater flight from France to America, because they were knowledgeably going into greater difficulties on account of wind and weather than America to France. Unfortunately, they probably met on the western coast with a bad weather conditions as ever existed. During four days I was tied up in San Diego awaiting clearer weather to go to New York. Finally we left San Diego one evening flying over the mountains during the night, and arrived in St. Louis. Then from St. Louis we went to New York. In New York we were delayed by weather conditions and it was necessary to check the motor and the plane. The machine had already done 6,200 miles—over 61 hours. I think this demonstrates the reliability of the commercial motor of today and demonstrates also the reliability of planes of modern construction. We finally decided to leave New York upon receiving fairly good weather reports, and after working on the plane and making ready for the flight, we left New York at 7:30 in the morning (Friday, May 20). Lindbergh habitually reports to himself and his plane as "WE I."

AGGIES TO LOSE SIX MEN BY GRADUATION

(By The Associated Press) COLLEGE STATION, May 24.—The recent Lindbergh-Aggie exploit has marked the end of college careers for six members of the A and M baseball team, boys who have played their part in the regalia of the Aggie. Captain Hollis Tucker of Houston, shortstop of the team; Hill of Mount Cain, spit pitcher; A. C. Bryant of Moorehead, pitcher; E. A. Clark, Waltham, outfielder and first baseman; H. W. Scheuermann of Pank Baker of Fort Worth, really regarded as the team's valuable player. Scheuermann Good Man Scheuermann always will be remembered as one of the best catchers the Aggies have known. His all-around playing and aggressiveness will be sorely missed by the team. His modesty and spirit has been one of the best assets. Pitcher Hill, who was rated conference's best hurler in 1925, has a star pitcher in 1925, has flourished consistently this year, though in native ability he is far above his mates. From his member his lightning speed and dangerous ball, and they presided over a career for him in personal baseball. A. C. Bryant has been large victim of unusual circumstances. Although possessing more than average ability, there were two or three other hurlers on of greater promise, and Bryant's only chance to show himself was his pitching has been found largely to the bull pen, never so news of his his more fortunate contemporaries occupied the spotlight.
