Marriage fight pits Abbott vs. gay friend

AG's law school pal is plaintiff in same-sex union ruling

By Paul J. Weber
Associated Press

WACO — When Greg Abbott was paralyzed by a fallen tree in 1984, Mark Phariss flew 500 miles to his friend's bedside. They were law school pals who swapped stories over dinner, job leads and airport rides, and they still exchange Christmas cards today.

Their friendship is now at an extraordinary junction: Phariss, who is gay, filed the Texas lawsuit that a federal judge used this week to strike down the state's ban on same-sex marriage, which Abbott, Texas' attorney general, has vowed to defend all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Both chalk it up as a remarkable coincidence. Abbott, a Republican who is running for Texas governor, said Friday he still considers Phariss a friend, even though they've lost touch in the past decade.

Phariss, who never told Abbott he was gay, echoed the sentiment — even as Abbott works to uphold what Phariss considers to be discrimination.

"If I was only friends with the people I agreed with, particularly in Texas, I wouldn't have many friends," Phariss told The Associated Press.

Texas joined Oklahoma and Utah as the latest deeply conservative states that want to take its newly quashed gay marriage bans to the Supreme Court. A federal judge in San Antonio ruled Wednesday that Texas had no "rational" reason to deny same-sex couples the right to marry, but declined to enforce his decision pending Abbott's appeal.

Whatever the outcome, the history between Abbott and Phariss adds an intriguing backdrop to one of the most divisive social issues in the U.S.

Abbott made clear at a campaign stop Friday he doesn't approve of Phariss' quest to wed his longtime partner. He also expressed no sympathy at the thought of refusing his old friend the right to marry his partner of 16 years, Victor Holmes, an Air Force veteran.

"When the Constitution is upheld, we're all winners," Abbott said.

Abbott said Friday he only realized Phariss was gay when his name appeared on the lawsuit, and said Phariss'

LOVE IS ... OPEN MIC EVENT

With one in three teens experiencing dating violence, Safe Place of the Permian Basin teamed up with the Midland County Public Library System to hold an after-hours open mic Friday night at the Centennial branch.

The event gave teens the opportunity to share songs, poetry and stories about healthy relationships in honor of Teen Dating Violence Awareness Month.

"It can happen to anyone at anytime," said Renae Arledge, Safe Place volunteer and donations coordinator.

TOP: The event featured a photo booth that allowed participants to print photos taken on their cellphones using a smartphone application. Books, pamphlets, videos and other resources were on hand to teach teens about dating. RIGHT TOP: Participants write down what love means to them on sticky notes, which were placed on a poster in the library's teen room. RIGHT BOTTOM: A table is set up with various books and other tools to help teens navigate the dating world.

City extends filing deadline for at-large council race

■ Robnett, McLelland only candidates to file so far

By Joseph Basco
jbasco@mrt.com

The filing period to run for the vacant City Council at-large seat has been extended to March 10 after the city of Midland discovered that the Friday deadline was not the proper date.

The city found out that for special elections, such as the at-large race, the deadline to file must be 61 days before the election date. In this case, March 10 would be 61 days before the May 10 election date.

City officials originally thought the deadline was 71 days before the election date; hence the original deadline of Friday.

Robnett

McLelland

The special election for the second at-large council seat came about when Mayor Jerry Morales vacated his position after winning the Nov. 5 mayoral election and subsequently assuming office on Jan. 13.

Spencer Robnett, an oil marketer for Plains Marketing, was the first person to file for the at-large race. He filed on Jan. 29, the first day of registration.

His opponent, Keith McLelland, a pastor and senior landman for Total Field Services, filed for candidacy Friday.

Robnett previously ran in the 2013 District 3 race, losing to Sharla Hotchkiss by 24 votes.

McLelland previously ran in the 2013 mayoral election. He received 5.72 percent of the votes, compared to Morales' 60.58 percent.

Robnett used the momentum of his District 3 campaign to announce on Nov. 18 that he would be running for the at-large seat. McLelland, also using the momentum of having recently completing a campaign, did not publicly announce he was going to file before doing so.

The at-large position represents all four city districts. Midland's City Council includes another at-large council person, the four district representatives and the mayor.

The election is set for May 10.

Woman allegedly punches MMH nurse

From staff reports

A Midland woman was arrested Thursday night on suspicion of assaulting a nurse in the Midland Memorial Hospital emergency room.

Kristen C. Corley, 27, allegedly punched a nurse in the face because she was being discharged from the hospital and was upset about it, according to an arrest affidavit.

She was charged with assaulting a public servant, a third-degree felony. Bond has not yet been set.

The nurse was trying to help Corley put on her shoes when the woman punched her, the report said.

Several security guards witnessed the incident and held Corley until the Midland Police Department arrived.

If convicted, Corley could face up to 10 years in prison.

Big Spring officer arrested on theft charge

From staff reports

BIG SPRING — A Big Spring Police Department officer was arrested Friday on suspicion of theft.

Simon Elizondo was arrested and booked into the Howard County Law Enforcement Center on a charge of theft by a public servant, a state felony, according to a press release from BSPD.

The department heard about the allegations involving Elizondo in December and started an internal investigation. The investigation was later turned over to Department of Public Safety Texas Rangers. An arrest warrant was issued Friday, and the officer was arrested later that day.

The investigation is still ongoing and no other details were immediately available, according to the release.

If convicted, Elizondo could face up to two years in prison.

Obituaries

Gary A. Tate

Gary A. Tate, 89, of Midland, went to be with our Lord on Thursday, February 27, 2014 in Midland.

The family will receive friends on Sunday, March 2, 2014 from 3:00 p.m. to 5:00 p.m. at Nalley-Pickle & Welch Funeral Home. Funeral services will be held on Monday, March 3, 2014 at 10:00AM at Golf Course Road Church of Christ in Midland. Interment will be held at Trinity Memorial Park in Big Spring, Texas.

Gary was born December 30, 1924 in Coahoma, Texas to Alvah and Jessie Tate. Gary served in the US Army from 1943-1945 in the China-Burma-India Theatre of World War II. He married Connie Drake on May 25, 1946 in Abilene, Texas. He worked for Texas and Pacific Railroad and later started a new career with AFLAC Insurance. He was an elder at Golf Course Road Church of Christ (GCR) for 28 years.

He was a member of the Missionary Committee and served passionately to help the people of India as a result of his time spent there in the war. He became a man focused on changing the plight of the children who faced unspeakable living conditions. Gary raised funds to help the missions supported by GCR and other organizations: to purchase land, build churches, build three schools, and construct a dormitory to house children who have been rescued from trafficking and/or tragic situations. He changed the direction of many children's lives.

Gary is survived by his wife of 67 years, Connie Tate; son, Jerry Tate and his wife Sarita; son, Steve Tate; grandchildren, Sara and her husband Mike Connors; Leslie Gilman, Jeremy Tate and his wife Erin; Heidi Taylor, Heather Tate, Hunter Tate, and Heston Tate, and 12 great-grandchildren.

He is also survived by four brothers and two sisters.

In lieu of flowers, the family suggests memorials be donated to Golf Course Road Church of Christ, NE India Missions, 3500 West Golf Course Road, Midland, Texas 79703.

Arrangements are under the direction of Nalley-Pickle & Welch Funeral Home & Crematory of Midland.

Patsy Marie Donnell

Patsy Marie Donnell, 74, of Midland, Texas (formerly of Texas City, Texas) went to be with her heavenly Father on February 25, 2014. She was born on July 23, 1939 in Colorado City, Texas to James and Beulah Coker.

She is preceded in death by her parents; husband, Gwindell (Don) Donnell; brothers, Roger and Jimmy; sister, Shirly Ann; her in-laws Wallace and Delores Donnell; brother-in-law, M. E. (Pete) Ellis.

She is survived by her sister and best friend, Fern Ellis of Midland, Texas; daughters, Angela Donnell of Pasadena, Texas, Sherry and Husband Jack Daniel of Texas City, Texas; son, Wayne Donnell of Whitney, Texas; grandchildren, Ray Cyr, II, Tori Cyr and partner Brandi, Melissa Martinez and fiancé Jason Moncier, Ramon Martinez, III and fiancé Ryann Jones, Lauren Martinez and Mia Daniel, Amy Daniel and Brandon Daniel; great-grandchildren, Alana, Matthew, Vance, Kendallyn, Haylee, Ellie, Chloe, and Christopher; two great nieces Jennifer and Kristin Ellis; and numerous nieces.

To one very special nephew and wife, Matt Ellis and Lleyana of Midland, Texas, thank you so much for all the love and support you gave to our mother.

Pat was a blessing to us all. She will be deeply missed by her friends and family.

Mom, you raised us well and loved every one of us unconditionally. We have a huge void now, but we know that one day we will all be together again. We love you and are going to miss you.

A memorial service will be held at 2:00 pm on Sunday, March 2, 2014 at Ellis Funeral Home Chapel.

A committal service will be held on a later date at the Houston National Cemetery in Houston, Texas.

Services are entrusted with Ellis Funeral Home, 801 Andrews Highway, Midland, Texas 79701.

Winnie Lou Chambers

Winnie Lou Chambers, 92, of Midland, passed away at her home in Arlington on February 25, 2014. She was born on August 27, 1921 in Vashti, Texas to James "Jim" Godfrey and Lila Porter Joplin.

Funeral services will be held on Monday, March 3, 2014 at 10:00 a.m. at Nalley-Pickle & Welch Chapel with Mark Taylor of Fannin Terrace Baptist Church, officiating. Interment will follow at Resthaven Memorial Park. A visitation will be held on Sunday from 6:00 p.m.to 8:00 p.m. at the funeral home.

Mrs. Winnie made her commitment to Christ as a 17-year-old young lady, at a "brush arbor" revival meeting that was being held on her parent's property. She graduated from Bellevue High School in Bellevue, Texas in 1939 where she was an avid and excellent volleyball player.

After high school, she worked in Wichita Falls where she met her future husband, Foy. They were married on June 12, 1941 and later moved to Fort Worth. While living in Fort Worth, she became a true "Rosie the Riveter" at Consolidated Aircraft, building airplanes that were used in World War II.

As a true oilfield wife, she relocated many times during her marriage. And, as a true Christian, she was always active in a local Baptist church in every place that the family lived. She served as a Sunday school teacher, Girl's Auxiliary leader, WMU officer and /or Nursery worker in most of the churches.

After many years of moving in and out of Midland, she and Foy made Midland their permanent home. They joined Fannin Terrace Baptist Church in 1978. In her later years, Mrs. Winnie was a member of a singing group, Just Folks, for over 10 years. This group did several "gigs," as she called them, at nursing homes, churches, VA hospitals and other organizations in the Permian Basin area.

She is known by her family and friends for her quick wit and her wonderful cooking. Mother, Grandmother, Great Grandmother, Aunt and Friend, she will be missed by all of those who were part of her life.

Survivors include her daughter, Carolyn Payne of Middleton, Tennessee; granddaughters, Michelle Redden of Arlington and Traci Ray of Arlington; grandson, Roger Payne of Illinois; great granddaughter, Emma Redden of Arlington; and great grandson, Roger Payne, Jr. of Tennessee.

She was preceded in death by her parents, her husband, Foy O. Chambers, a daughter, Kathryn Townsend, three brothers, Sid Godfrey, George Godfrey, and James Leroy Godfrey, two sisters, Lillie Carter and Sue Martin.

Arrangements are under the direction of Nalley-Pickle & Welch Funeral Home & Crematory of Midland.

Online condolences can be made at www.npwelch.com .

Group produces new evidence in case of executed man

Associated Press

AUSTIN — The Innocence Project argued Friday that newly discovered documents undermine the credibility of a key witness against a Texas man executed for the deaths of his three children based in part on arson evidence that has since been deemed faulty.

The New York-based nonprofit said it has discovered a handwritten note that suggests a prosecutor gave a lesser charge to jailhouse informant Johnny Webb, who testified that Cameron Todd Willingham told Webb he killed his daughters in 1991.

That would contradict claims made at trial by Webb and prosecutor John Jackson that Webb did not receive consideration for his testimony.

"It's astonishing that 10 years after Todd Willingham was executed we are still uncovering evidence showing what a grave injustice this case represents," Barry Scheck, the Innocence Project's co-director, said in a statement.

Willingham's case has been scrutinized by advocates who argue the state may have executed a wrongfully convicted man. Fire science experts already have refuted much of the methodology used in his case.

In a new filing Friday with the state pardon board, The Innocence Project said Jackson worked to have Webb's charge reduced from an aggravated offense with a deadly weapon to a second-degree felony. Included in the filing is a handwritten note, found in files turned over by current prosecutors, that mentions a second-degree robbery offense "based on coop in Willingham." The note is not signed or dated.

Jackson, a former prosecutor in Navarro County, south of Dallas, who later became a state district judge, has maintained that Webb did not receive leniency. He told The Associated Press on Friday that he had not seen the note, but believed it was likely referring to efforts he made to get Webb out of prison after Willingham's trial due to threats on Webb's safety.

"The file may certainly reflect that we tried to get sentencing shortened, but it had nothing to do with any agreement relative to the Willingham trial," Jackson said.

Jackson said imprisoned members of the Aryan Brotherhood had threatened Webb because of his role in Willingham's conviction.

"We certainly had an interest in not seeing a primary witness in the case killed while he was in prison," he said.

Lowell Thompson, the current Navarro County district attorney, confirmed the note was in the files he allowed the Innocence Project to inspect, but did not take a position on whether it indicated anything about the case.

"I've seen it, but I'm not familiar with anything it might mean or it might not mean," Thompson said Friday.

Webb, who currently is being held in the Navarro County Jail on an unrelated aggravated assault case, could not be reached for comment.

A fire destroyed Willingham's home in 1991 and killed his three daughters. A state fire marshal who studied the scene testified at Willingham's 1992 trial that the fire was arson.

Scientists have since refuted much of the methodology used by arson investigators before 1992, including the techniques used by the fire marshal in the Willingham fire. Attorneys submitted new scientific findings to Gov. Rick Perry in 2004 and asked for time to reopen the case, but Perry allowed Willingham's execution to go forward that year. Willingham maintained his innocence until his death.

The Innocence Project has called for a posthumous pardon, but Perry has long declined to reconsider Willingham's guilt, calling him a "monster" who had killed his own children.

Lucy Nashed, a spokeswoman for Perry, said Friday that the governor's position has not changed.

"Todd Willingham was convicted and sentenced to death by a jury of his peers for murdering his three daughters, year-old twins and a two-year-old," Nashed said in an email. She added: "The governor agreed with the numerous state and federal courts that Willingham was guilty and the execution should proceed."

Carlsbad, NM, radiation leak raises concerns

By Susan Montoya Bryan and Matthew Daly
Associated Press

Jeri Clausing/AP

The Waste Isolation Pilot Plant in Carlsbad, N.M., is shown Thursday. Officials held a news conference to discuss preliminary test results that indicate 13 workers were exposed to radiation during a leak Feb. 14 from the nation's first underground nuclear waste dump.

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — The radiation exposure of at least 13 workers at a nuclear dump in a New Mexico salt bed more than 2,000 feet below the ground has brought new attention to the nation's long struggle to find places to dispose of tons of Cold War-era waste.

The above-ground radiation release that exposed the workers during a night shift two weeks ago shut down the facility as authorities investigate the cause and attempt to determine the health effects on the employees. The mishap has also raised questions about a cornerstone of the Department of Energy's $5-billion-a-year program for cleaning up waste scattered across the country from decades of nuclear-bomb making.

With operations at the Waste Isolation Pilot Plant in Carlsbad on hold, so are all shipments, including the last of nearly 4,000 barrels of toxic waste that Los Alamos National Laboratory has been ordered to remove from its campus by the end of June. Other waste from labs in Idaho, Illinois and South Carolina is also without a home while operations are halted.

The dilemma about what to do with the nuclear waste is highly politicized.

The government spent an estimated $15 billion on a proposed nuclear waste dump at Nevada's Yucca Mountain that has not been completed. The Yucca site is fiercely opposed by Nevada lawmakers, including Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid.

By contrast, New Mexico's congressional delegation has largely supported the Waste Isolation Pilot Plant, which has been accepting waste since 1999 and employs about 650 people. The site is limited by law to plutonium waste from making weapons, but experts said salt beds at the site may be suitable for radioactive waste from commercial reactors.

In an example of the dilemma that communities nationwide face over nuclear waste, documents obtained Friday by The Associated Press found that there are "significant construction flaws" in some storage tanks at Washington state's Hanford nuclear waste complex. Taxpayers spend about $2 billion a year to clean up radioactive waste at the site.

Many scientists consider the unique geology of the New Mexico location to be ideal for disposing of tainted materials like tools, gloves, glasses and protective suits. Over decades, with pressure from the ground above, the salt deposits settle around the containers and entomb them.

Edwin Lyman, a nuclear expert at the watchdog group Union of Concerned Scientists, said the accident could curb enthusiasm on Capitol Hill for the underground site.

"I think from a political standpoint this is going to put a damper on some of the more ambitious expansion plans," he said. "The narrative is that facility is super-safe. Now that they've had a serious incident, that's no longer valid."

Officials said they don't yet know what doses of radioactive material the workers absorbed, and that it's too soon to speculate on what the health effects might be.

Tests showed traces of the element americium. Once in the body, americium tends to concentrate in the bone, liver and muscles. It can stay in the body for decades and continue to expose surrounding tissues to radiation, increasing a person's chance of developing cancer.

On Feb. 5, the mine was shut and six workers were sent to the hospital for treatment of smoke inhalation after a truck hauling salt caught fire. Nine days later, a radiation alert activated in the area where newly arrived waste was being stored. Preliminary tests show 13 workers suffered some radiation exposure, and monitors as far as half a mile away have since detected elevated levels of plutonium and americium in the air. Ground and water samples are being analyzed.

Officials said they're confident the incidents are unrelated. And while they emphasize that the levels detected off-site are no more harmful than a dental X-ray, they have not been able to go underground, and have not directly answered questions about how contaminated the tunnels might be.

Don Hancock, director of the Nuclear Waste Safety program at the Southwest Research and Information Center, said the contamination levels will depend on the workers' proximity to the material.

"If you're standing by a 55-gallon drum of plutonium and americium, not much problem. But when you get even a small portion of what's in that drum in the air and you breathe it in, then you do have a problem," he said.

Government officials, politicians, the contractors that run the mine and local officials all say it is too soon to speculate on what the short- or long-term impacts of the shutdown might be, or where else the toxic waste would go.

"A lot of people are just jumping up and down and wanting us to shut down," said Farok Sharif, president of the Nuclear Waste Partnership that runs the site. "But that's not the case here. We've designed this facility to look at these types of accidents, and we've planned on making sure that we continue to protect our employees and we protect the environment. And our system worked as designed."

Per Peterson, a professor of nuclear engineering at the University of California who served on a presidential panel on nuclear waste, said that from what he has read, the radiation exposure suffered by the plant workers was small enough not to be a major health risk.

But he said the nation has a responsibility to clean up contaminated material from the historical U.S. program to make nuclear weapons.

"It would almost be a national tragedy if we were to derail cleanup of the legacy nuclear weapons complex because of this accident," he said.

New Mexico to address medical marijuana shortage

Associated Press

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — The demand for medical marijuana in New Mexico has outpaced production, and state health officials announced Friday they have a plan for tackling the shortage.

The Department of Health is proposing to increase the number of marijuana plants and seedlings that licensed, nonprofit producers can have and open the application process for more producers to become licensed. There are only 23 producers in the state now, but the number of patients is on the rise.

Health Secretary Retta Ward said the state takes the needs of its 10,621 medical marijuana patients seriously. She said her department commissioned a survey of participants last year so that a decision about supply could be made based on data.

"We now have a plan to meet current and future patient needs," she said.

According to the survey, producers were forced to turn away thousands of patients because their supplies could not keep up with demand. With producers running out at unscheduled times, some patients were left to ration their stashes or turn to unknown sources.

After reviewing information about patients' weekly usage and purchases, officials concluded that the program's participants need more than 11,000 pounds of marijuana yearly.

BLM oil and gas lease sale nets more than $31M

Associated Press

SANTA FE, N.M. — The Bureau of Land Management's latest oil and gas lease sale has netted more than $31 million.

The federal agency said the proceeds come from Thursday's sale of 76 leases in New Mexico, Oklahoma, Texas and Kansas.

New Mexico had the most leases sold at 22. The leases cover nearly 7,000 acres.

The state will receive more than $13.8 million from the sale.

Federal officials said that over the past 10 years, New Mexico has received $4.3 billion from energy production on BLM-managed leases. All of that has gone directly to public education.

The leases are awarded for 10 years and for as long thereafter as there is production in paying quantities. The revenue from the sale of the leases is shared between the federal government and the states.

Spellers take stage today for regional spelling bee

From staff reports

Area students are set to compete in the 27th annual Midland Reporter-Telegram Regional Spelling Bee, which is 9:30 a.m. today at Midland College's Allison Fine Arts Building.

Students from Midland and Big Spring will compete for a chance to represent Midland at the 2014 Scripps National Spelling Bee, which is May 28-29 in Washington, D.C.

At the regional bee, five students will receive prizes.

In addition to an all-expense-paid trip to Washington, the champion will receive a Merriam-Webster's Third New International Dictionary, a 2014 U.S. Mint Proof Set, $125 cash, a one-year subscription to Encyclopedia Britannica Online and a trophy.

The runner-up will receive Merriam-Webster's Collegiate Dictionary, $75 cash and a trophy.

Three students will receive a $20 Amazon.com gift card, $25 in cash and a trophy.

sexuality doesn't change his opinion of him.

"It shows that on some of the hot-button issues of the day, we can have a civil discourse without harsh rhetoric," Abbott said.

Phariss and Abbott first met at Vanderbilt Law School. Phariss described two southerners — Phariss is from Oklahoma — and ideological opposites drawn together by their enjoyment of discussing politics over breezy dinners.

After leaving Vanderbilt, Abbott was crushed by a falling tree in Houston while out jogging. He was permanently paralyzed from the waist down, and upon hearing the news, Phariss flew to the hospital and spent two days with Abbott. He bought books to help him pass the time and kept Abbott's wife and mother company. A year later, Phariss said Abbott helped line up a job offer for him.

In the 1990s, when Abbott entered politics and was elected a state judge and later a Texas Supreme Court justice, he flew to San Antonio for a campaign stop. Phariss picked him up at the airport and drove him to meetings and a fundraiser.

Phariss, now 58 and an attorney near Dallas, said he was not openly gay at Vanderbilt. He dated girls and didn't ask out men, and didn't publicly reveal he was gay until his mid-30s.

Phariss said that while he and Abbott never discussed gay rights, he never detected hatred from his friend — who is now one of Texas' most conservative political leaders.

"I don't perceive from him any animus toward gay people," Phariss said. "I do remember, either in law school or after, (talking) about someone we thought might have been gay — we just kind of speculated whether a certain person might be gay. He didn't seem to have an issue with that."

Along with other same-sex couples, Phariss and Holmes sued the state after being denied a wedding license on their anniversary last August.

Phariss said the last time he and Abbott spoke was in Austin around 2004, shortly after Abbott became attorney general. He said Abbott won't get his vote for governor this fall because of his politics, but neither will Democrat Wendy Davis, Phariss said, because he doesn't like the idea of voting against his friend.

Phariss compared his continued embrace of Abbott to family members, including his twin sister, who don't support him but whom he still loves.

When Phariss and Holmes began putting a portrait of themselves on Christmas cards, Phariss said he's made note of which friends and family send a card back the following year — and which don't.

Abbott did.

"I secretly grinned," he said. "I said, 'Good. Not a problem.'"

Report: Too few pilots or too little pay?

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The nation's regional airlines are having trouble hiring enough pilots, the government said, suggesting one reason may be that they simply don't pay enough.

A pool of qualified pilots is available, but it's unclear whether they are willing to work for low entry-level wages, the Government Accountability Office said in a report released Friday.

One key economic indicator supports the emergence of a shortage, something regional airlines have complained of and point to as a reason for limiting service to some small communities. But two other indicators suggest the opposite is true, GAO said. Also, two studies reviewed by the GAO "point to the large number of qualified pilots that exist, but may be working abroad, in the military or in another occupation, as evidence that there is adequate supply," the report said.

The U.S. airline industry will need to hire 1,900 to 4,500 new pilots annually over the next 10 years because of an expected surge in retirements of pilots reaching age 65 and increased demand for air travel, the report said.

Eleven out of 12 regional airlines failed to meet their hiring targets for entry-level pilots last year, the report said. However, no major airlines were experiencing problems finding pilots.

Regional carriers account for about half of all domestic airline flights. One big concern is that communities served only by regional airlines will see their service reduce or eliminated. Five regional airlines told GAO they are already limiting service because of a pilot shortage.

Major airlines generally pay significantly higher salaries than regional carriers and frequently hire pilots from regionals. The average starting salary for first officers, also called co-pilots, at regional airlines is $22,400 a year, according to the Air Line Pilots Association.

Earlier this month, Wyoming-based Great Lakes Airlines ended service in a handful of small towns, citing a dearth of qualified pilots. The pilots association said Great Lakes pays newly hired first officers $16,500 a year.

"Data indicate that a large pool of qualified pilots exists relative to the projected demand, but whether such pilots are willing or available to work at wages being offered is unknown," the report said. And, the size of the pilot pool has remained steady since 2000, the report said.

There are currently 66,000 pilots working for U.S. airlines, but there are 109,465 currently active pilots with a first-class medical certificate who are licensed to fly airline passengers, the report said. An additional 100,000-plus pilots with commercial licenses might at some point choose to pursue an airline career, the report said

The unemployment rate for professional pilots is very low, only 2.7 percent. That would normally indicate a shortage, but that may not be the case, GAO said. Average professional pilot salaries went down 9.5 percent from 2000 to 2012, while the number of pilots employed went up 12 percent. Both trends are inconsistent with a shortage, the report said.

At the same time, pilot qualifications have been ramped up. Both captains and first officers need at least 1,500 hours of flying experience, although there are some exceptions. First officers used to need just 250 hours.

In a statement, the trade group for regional airlines blamed that rule for the pilot shortage and called on Congress to address it. "Its impact has proven more immediate and significant than analysts predicted," said Roger Cohen, president of the Regional Airline Association.

The new regulations stem from an aviation safety law Congress passed more than three years ago following the 2009 crash of a regional airliner near Buffalo, N.Y., that was blamed on pilot error. All 49 people on board and a man on the ground were killed. An investigation revealed that the first officer had been paid only about $16,000 the previous year, her first year at the airline. The captain was earning about $63,000.

Texan incompetent for trial in pentagram incident

Associated Press

FORT WORTH — A North Texas man charged with carving a pentagram into his 6-year-old son's back has been declared incompetent for trial.

Prosecutors in Tarrant County on Thursday announced Brent Troy Bartel, of Richland Hills, has been committed to a state mental health facility for at least a year.

Authorities said Bartel in December 2012 called 911, made religious comments and said he etched a pentagram on his son. Investigators believe the father used a box cutter to wound the boy.

Bartel was arrested and charged with aggravated assault with a deadly weapon.

The district attorney's office said doctors last year told a judge that Bartel was diagnosed as paranoid schizophrenic.

Dr. Timothy Nyberg, in an evaluation in January, indicated Bartel has a pattern of making bizarre religious assertions.

Texas Democratic Party head: Don't vote for Rogers

Associated Press

AUSTIN — The head of the Texas Democratic Party is taking the unusual step of urging voters not to support one of the candidates on his party's primary ballot.

Activist Kesha Rogers is one of five little-known hopefuls vying for the Democratic U.S. Senate nomination in Tuesday's primary. But she supports impeaching President Barack Obama.

Party Chairman Gilberto Hinojosa wrote in a mass e-mail this week: "Kesha Rogers is not a Democrat."

Rogers

A perennial candidate, Rogers secured the Democratic nomination during unsuccessful runs for Congress from a suburban Houston district in 2010 and 2012. She's allied with political extremist and conspiracy theorist Lyndon LaRouche.

Hinojosa called Rogers' candidacy an insult, noting she has "paraded around Texas with a poster of the president with a Hitler mustache" and "advocated for colonizing Mars."

Appeals court sides with paralyzed cheerleader

OMAHA — A federal appeals court has upheld judgment in favor of a former cheerleader paralyzed in a tumbling accident who sued Nebraska-based insurance company Mutual of Omaha for refusing to pay his claim.

The lawsuit focuses on an insurance policy bought by Prairie View A&M University in Texas to cover its athletes. Wesley Patterson, of Houston, was a cheerleader at the school in 2008 when he was injured.

Wesley's lawsuit said Mutual of Omaha reneged on a promise to cover serious injuries like his that result from the school's negligence. The insurer argued it shouldn't have to cover Wesley's injuries because they occurred in a gym class taught by the cheerleading coach, not at an official cheerleading practice session.

On Friday, the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals sided with Wesley.

NEW YORK

Official: Hoffman died from toxic mix of drugs

Philip Seymour Hoffman died from taking a combination of heroin, cocaine and other drugs, the New York City medical examiner ruled Friday, a toxic mix that addiction specialists said is not uncommon in the tens of thousands of overdose deaths in the U.S. each year.

Hoffman, 46, who was found Feb. 2 with a needle in his arm on the floor of his Manhattan apartment, also had taken amphetamines and benzodiazepines, which are drugs such as Xanax and Valium that are widely prescribed for anxiety, insomnia and other problems, said a spokeswoman for the medical examiner. The death was ruled accidental.

The medical examiner didn't provide the names of the drugs or the amounts found in the actor's system, making it impossible to determine which drug was the major factor, said Dr. Charles McKay, a medical toxicologist for Hartford Hospital in Connecticut and a spokesman for the American College of Medical Toxicology.

"There's a difference between a stimulant death, which would be cocaine and the amphetamines, and a narcotic death, like heroin," he said.

Police had been investigating Hoffman's death as a suspected drug overdose. Tests found heroin in samples from at least 50 packets in his Manhattan apartment. Authorities also found unused syringes, a charred spoon and various prescription medications, including a drug used to treat heroin addiction, a blood-pressure medication and a muscle relaxant.

Hoffman, who won an Oscar for "Capote" and starred in numerous other movies, as well as New York stage productions, had been frank about struggling with substance abuse. He told CBS' "60 Minutes" in 2006 that had he used "anything I could get my hands on" before getting clean at age 22. But in interviews last year, he said he'd relapsed, had developed a heroin problem and had gone to rehab for a time.

MAINE

Bridge proves tougher than expected to demo

NEW SHARON — A century-old Maine bridge deemed in danger of collapsing proved tougher than expected when the state tried to demolish it.

The bridge across the Sandy River in New Sharon was built in 1916 but hasn't been used since the 1990s. The Maine Department of Transportation told New Sharon officials in November that it was in danger of collapsing and that the state would pay to remove it.

An initial blast of explosives failed to bring the structure down as planned Thursday afternoon, because there were steel beams in the abutments that officials weren't aware of, the Morning Sentinel reported.

"It's an old bridge and there just wasn't a lot of information available about its construction," said project manager Andy McPherson of CPM Constructors.

The bridge eventually came down about three hours after the blast, and an excavator finished the job.

Documents show Clintons' health care concerns

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Bill Clinton's aides revealed concern early in his presidency about the health care overhaul effort led by his wife, Hillary Rodham Clinton, and later about what they saw as a need to soften her image, according to documents released Friday. Mrs. Clinton now is a potential 2016 presidential contender.

The National Archives released about 4,000 pages of previously confidential documents involving the former president's administration, providing a glimpse into the ultimately unsuccessful struggles of his health care task force, led by the first lady, and other Clinton priorities such as the U.S. economy and a major trade agreement.

Hillary Clinton's potential White House campaign has increased interest in Clinton Presidential Library documents from her husband's administration during the 1990s and her own decades in public service. A former secretary of state and New York senator, Mrs. Clinton is the leading Democratic contender to succeed President Barack Obama, though she has not said whether she will run.

Friday's documents included memos related to the former president's ill-fated health care reform proposal in 1993 and 1994, a plan that failed to win support in Congress and turned into a rallying cry for Republicans in the 1994 midterm elections. As first lady, Hillary Clinton chaired her husband's health care task force, largely meeting in secret to develop a plan to provide universal health insurance coverage.

White House aides expressed initial optimism about her ability to help craft and enact a major overhaul of U.S. health care.

"The first lady's months of meetings with the Congress has produced a significant amount of trust and confidence by the members in her ability to help produce a viable health reform legislative product with the president," said an undated and unsigned document, which was cataloged with others from April 1993. The document urged quick action, warning that enthusiasm for health reform "will fade over time."

But the documents also showed the growing concerns among Clinton's fellow Democrats in Congress. Lawmakers, it said, "going to their home districts for the August break are petrified about having difficult health care reform issues/questions thrown at them."

Administration officials also wanted to distance Hillary Clinton from a staff meeting on the touchy subject of making health care cost projections appear reasonable. Top aides wrote an April 1993 memo saying pessimistic cost-savings projections from the nonpartisan Congressional Budget Office were "petrifying an already scared Congress."

"CBO has the very real potential to sink an already leaking health reform ship," said the memo, signed by Clinton aides Chris Jennings and Steve Ricchetti, the latter now a top aide to Vice President Joe Biden. A White House and congressional meeting meant to "align budget assumptions with CBO" would be "all staff," the memo said, so "we do not believe it appropriate that Mrs. Clinton attend."

The documents also include detailed media strategy memos written as aides tried to soften Mrs. Clinton's image.

Her press secretary, Lisa Caputo, encouraged the Clintons to capitalize on their 20th wedding anniversary as "a wonderful opportunity for Hillary" and also suggested she spend more time doing White House events celebrating first ladies of the past.

Placing Clinton in a historical context "may help to round out her image and make what she is doing seem less extreme or different in the eyes of the media," Caputo wrote in a lengthy August 1995 memo about courting better press coverage as the president looked toward re-election. It noted the first lady had an "aversion to the national Washington media."

Caputo also proposed the "wild idea" of having Clinton do a guest appearance on a popular sitcom of the day, "Home Improvement."

As the first lady began her bid for a Senate seat from New York in July 1999, adviser Mandy Grunwald coached her with "style pointers" and tips for handling "annoying questions" from the media without appearing testy. Grunwald said she was sure to be asked about her husband's Senate impeachment trial earlier that year.

The advice: "Be real" and acknowledge "that of course last year was rough."

As for Clinton himself, by the end of his presidency he showed frustration with his proposed farewell speech to the nation. He told aides that he didn't think the drafts included enough of his administration's accomplishments.

"Doesn't anybody care about me?" he asked aides during his final days in office.

On the health care effort, by September 1993, Mrs. Clinton acknowledged the obstacles in a Capitol Hill meeting with House and Senate Democratic leaders and committee chairs. "I think that, unfortunately, in the glare of the public political process, we may not have as much time as we need for that kind of thoughtful reflection and research," the first lady said, citing "this period of challenge."

The meetings also showed that Mrs. Clinton was doubtful that a health care law with a universal mandate — requiring people to carry health insurance — would be approved.

Gadget watch: Fastlane in Nokia X shows promise

■ REVIEW

By Anick Jesdanun
Associated Press

Manu Fernandez/AP

A woman shows the new Nokia XL at the Mobile World Congress, the world's largest mobile phone trade show in Barcelona, Spain, on Wednesday. The global wireless show that wrapped up Thursday has seen a push to get mobile devices cheap enough to reach emerging markets without sacrificing so much performance. While the affluent crave the latest iPhones or Android phones, most of the world can't afford the hundreds of dollars they cost.

BARCELONA, Spain — By design, Nokia's new Android smartphones will underwhelm users of high-end phones. The Nokia X line was created with emerging markets in mind, so the company emphasized keeping prices low, meaning the user interface is relatively simple.

The home screen resembles the one on Nokia's Windows-based Lumia phones, even though it's Android underneath. But Nokia Corp. added a Fastlane feature, a screen with quick access to your most-used apps. You get to it by swiping from the left or right edge of the home screen or tapping the back button at the bottom.

The basic Nokia X phone costs $122 and has a 4-inch screen, measured diagonally, and a 3 megapixel camera. A X+ version with an SD storage card costs $137, while an XL with a 5-inch screen and 5 megapixel camera goes for $150.

In the brief time I've had with the Nokia X at this week's Mobile World Congress wireless show in Barcelona, Spain, I have found the Fastlane feature to be a good start. It's something I would like to see on more phones, including Nokia's Windows devices.

I hate to spend time customizing gadgets, getting the icons for the most-used apps on the main home screen. The nice thing about Fastlane is that you don't have to spend any time on that. Your favorite apps are just one swipe away — sort of.

The top of Fastlane shows you what's coming up, whether that's alarms about to ring or future events in your calendar. Below that are your recently used apps. The ones you just used will be at the top, so you don't have to scroll down.

For some apps, you get information that normally comes with notifications, such as previews of text messages or alerts that three people have tried to reach you on WeChat, a Chinese social network. You see small versions of recent photos and can tap for the larger version in the photo gallery app. You see calls you missed, songs you heard and websites you visited.

It could get overwhelming, so you can block certain apps and certain notifications from appearing in Fastlane. In the settings, you can also add a shortcut to one social network, such as Facebook or Twitter.

That's where Fastlane can improve — understanding better which apps I use most over a period of days or months and creating a section at the top for those.

This week, for example, I was too busy to check Facebook, but that doesn't mean I don't use it regularly. But in Fastlane, Facebook would drop toward the bottom in a matter of days, unless I happen to choose it as my one shortcut.

Why not make sure the most-used apps are stored as favorites at the top of the screen? Nokia said it's considering that.

Likewise, if I haven't used something for months after using it daily, Fastlane can assume I've grown tired of it and automatically remove it. Myspace anyone?

Nokia doesn't plan to make Fastlane for its Windows phones, and I doubt it'll extend it to rival Android phones, such as my Samsung Galaxy S III. It's something it wants to keep exclusive to its own phones to compete.

That's understandable, yet a shame.

Push for Web addresses still strong in era of search, apps

By Anick Jesdanun
Associated Press

BARCELONA, Spain — In the early days, you typed in a domain name address to reach a website. Then came the ability to reach websites directly through a search engine. The mobile era brought us phone apps for accessing services without either.

Yet the organization in charge of Internet addresses is pushing a major expansion in domain name suffixes. At least 160 suffixes have been added since October to join the ranks of ".com," ".org" and scores of country-specific ones such as ".uk" for the United Kingdom. Hundreds of other proposals are being reviewed.

Why bother in this mobile-heavy era?

"Finding what you need on the Web will take many paths," said Fadi Chehade, head of the Internet Corporation for Assigned Names and Numbers, or ICANN.

Even if you're using search, domain names might make search engines smarter, Chehade said in an interview at the Mobile World Congress wireless show, which ended Thursday in Barcelona, Spain.

For instance, a search engine might be able to classify something as a dating site because it carries the suffix ".dating." Before, it would have to infer from text on the site, and search results might inadvertently include general discussions on dating.

Likewise, a search engine might favor restaurants ending in ".berlin" when you're looking for food options there, rather than bloggers discussing what they ate during visits to Berlin.

He said domain names will also be useful for marketing and branding:

■ An Internet address is easier to include on a business card or advertisement.

■ Companies can give different services distinctive addresses, such as "sales.samsung" and "repairs.samsung," so that customers don't have to hunt for that on the main website.

■ Neighborhoods can form around suffixes such as ".berlin" and ".tokyo." Restaurants, florists and transit systems would use city suffixes rather than a generic ".com." There are so many sites already under ".com" that getting an easy-to-remember name is difficult. With some of the new ones, congestion isn't a problem.

There have been nearly 2,000 proposals for new domain names, though about 150 have been withdrawn for various reasons. More than 1,000 have been approved and are either in the system already or are awaiting signed contracts between their backers and ICANN. More than 600 are being held up because of multiple bids for the same suffix.

The ones in the system include ".dating," ".berlin" and ".tokyo." Samsung's new suffix is in Korean, one of 18 additions to use non-English characters. Others include ".cab," ".ceo," ".dance," ".futbol," ".mango" and ".sexy."

Chehade said websites using these suffixes could start appearing in April.

Jay Sullivan, chief operating officer of the group behind the Firefox Web browser and operating system for phones, said the new suffixes might push even more people to search.

ENERGY BRIEF

FROM STAFF REPORTS

HOUSTON

US rig count down two this week to 1,769

The number of rigs exploring for oil and natural gas in the U.S. decreased two this week to 1,769, according to a report released Friday by Houston-based oilfield services company Baker Hughes.

There were 1,430 rigs listed as searching for oil, up five; 335 for natural gas, down seven; and four as miscellaneous, unchanged. A year ago this week there were 1,333 oil rigs and 420 gas rigs.

By trajectory, there were 391 vertical drilling rigs, down one; 1,181 horizontal drilling rigs, down one; and 197 directional drilling rigs, unchanged.

At this time last year there were 1,757 rigs in the U.S.

The number of rigs exploring for oil and natural gas in Texas decreased two this week to 844. There were 841 rigs in Texas a year ago this week.

The Permian Basin added six rigs, ending the week at 493. At this time last year there 478 rigs in the Permian Basin.

The Eagle Ford and Barnett held steady at 221 and 30 rigs, respectively. The Granite Wash lost three rigs, ending the week with 51.

The top five basins by rig count this week were the Permian; the Eagle Ford; the Williston with 176 rigs, up two; the Marcellus with 78 rigs, down four; and the Mississippian with 71 rigs, down three.

The top five states by rig count this week were Texas; Oklahoma with 181, unchanged; North Dakota with 168, up two; Louisiana with 102, down three; and New Mexico with 82; up one.

In the U.S. there were 1,696 rigs listed as on land, unchanged; 18 in inland water, unchanged; and 55 offshore, down two. There were 53 rigs in the Gulf of Mexico, down two.

The number of rigs exploring for oil and natural gas in Canada decreased six this week to 626. There were 423 rigs listed as searching for oil, up one; 203 for natural gas, down seven; and zero as miscellaneous, unchanged. A year ago this week there were 655 rigs in Canada.

The total number of rigs exploring for oil and natural gas in North America — which includes the U.S. and Canada — decreased eight this week to 2,395. At this time last year there were 2,412 rigs in North America.

Report showing slower power demand growth lights up debate

By Emily Pickrell
Houston Chronicle

Emily Pickrell/Houston Chronicle

Workers monitor the state's electric power use in the control room of the Electric Reliability Council of Texas, which operates much of the state's electric grid, during ERCOT's media day on May 28, 2013.

Texas electricity use on blazing summer days is growing more slowly than expected, according to a report Friday that drew quick response from both sides in a debate over the future course of the state's power market.

The report from the Electric Reliability Council of Texas, which manages most of the Texas grid, shows that the reserve margin for power generation — the safety net designed to keep air conditioners running when demand soars or plants go down unexpectedly — will grow to 16 percent by August. That's well above the current target of 13.75 percent.

Previous ERCOT projections saw reserve margins as low as 10 percent by the end of the decade, and spurred fears that capacity might fall short and black out parts of the grid during high demand times.

Friday's projections are contained in the latest version of a periodic study called the Capacity, Demand and Reserve Report, which measures expected growth in demand for electricity and in the state's capacity to generate power.

The newest report uses a revised formula to forecast demand. The calculations take into account improved energy efficiency of lighting and appliances, which the study suggests largely offsets new demand arising from population growth.

"While we continue to expect strong economic growth in the region resulting in strong growth in overall consumption, our view is that growth at the peak time will not be as strong as we have forecasted in the past," Warren Lasher, ERCOT director of system planning, told reporters in a conference call Friday.

The new report will inform a debate on whether policymakers should revamp the Texas electricity market to ensure that power companies build and maintain sufficient capacity.

It follows a study by the Brattle Group consulting firm for the Public Utility Commission, which oversees the Reliability Council.

That study, released Jan. 31, found that a 10.2 percent reserve margin would be the cheapest for customers, while a 14 percent cushion would reduce the risk of a power outage in extreme weather to once in 10 years. State regulators have indicated that the two reports will be central to their deliberations about future plans for the grid.

The Texas grid, deregulated more than a decade ago to create a competitive wholesale and retail power system in most areas, is the nation's only energy-only market — one in which generators are paid only for electricity they produce.

Wholesale prices rise dramatically as demand approaches capacity, providing an incentive for companies to build costly plants to generate power they can sell at the near-peak prices.

Regulators have discussed adopting another approach, called a capacity market, which pays generators for developing power plants that only run when demand spikes.

The head of NRG Energy, one of the state's largest generators and a strong proponent of a capacity market, questioned the reduced peak demand growth projections in Friday's report.

"Texas was up 3.4 percent for the quarter, so why someone thinks Texas is going to suddenly stop-go down to 1 percent — you tell me," said NRG Chief Executive David Crane, when asked about the report during a conference call to discuss fourth-quarter earnings.

"We would be planning for more robust growth."

Industrial and manufacturing interests, many of which oppose a capacity market because they fear it will raise their power costs, welcomed Friday's report.

"The state's reserve levels are more than adequate to reliably and economically serve customers' needs into the foreseeable future," said Tony Bennett, president of the Texas Association of Manufacturers, in a written statement.

The report "reinforces that reserves in Texas are in good shape," he said.

The debate is complicated by the fact that actual generation on the grid is scheduled day by day and can vary when power plants are down for planned maintenance or emergencies.

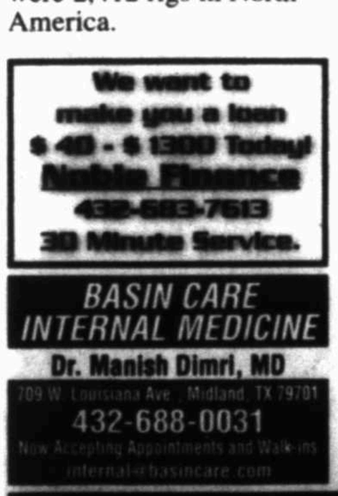
Ed Hirs, an energy economics professor at the University of Houston who closely follows the state's reserve margin sufficiency, said the most recent rolling blackouts, in February 2011, occurred when the Reliability Council maintained higher reserve margin targets than it does now.

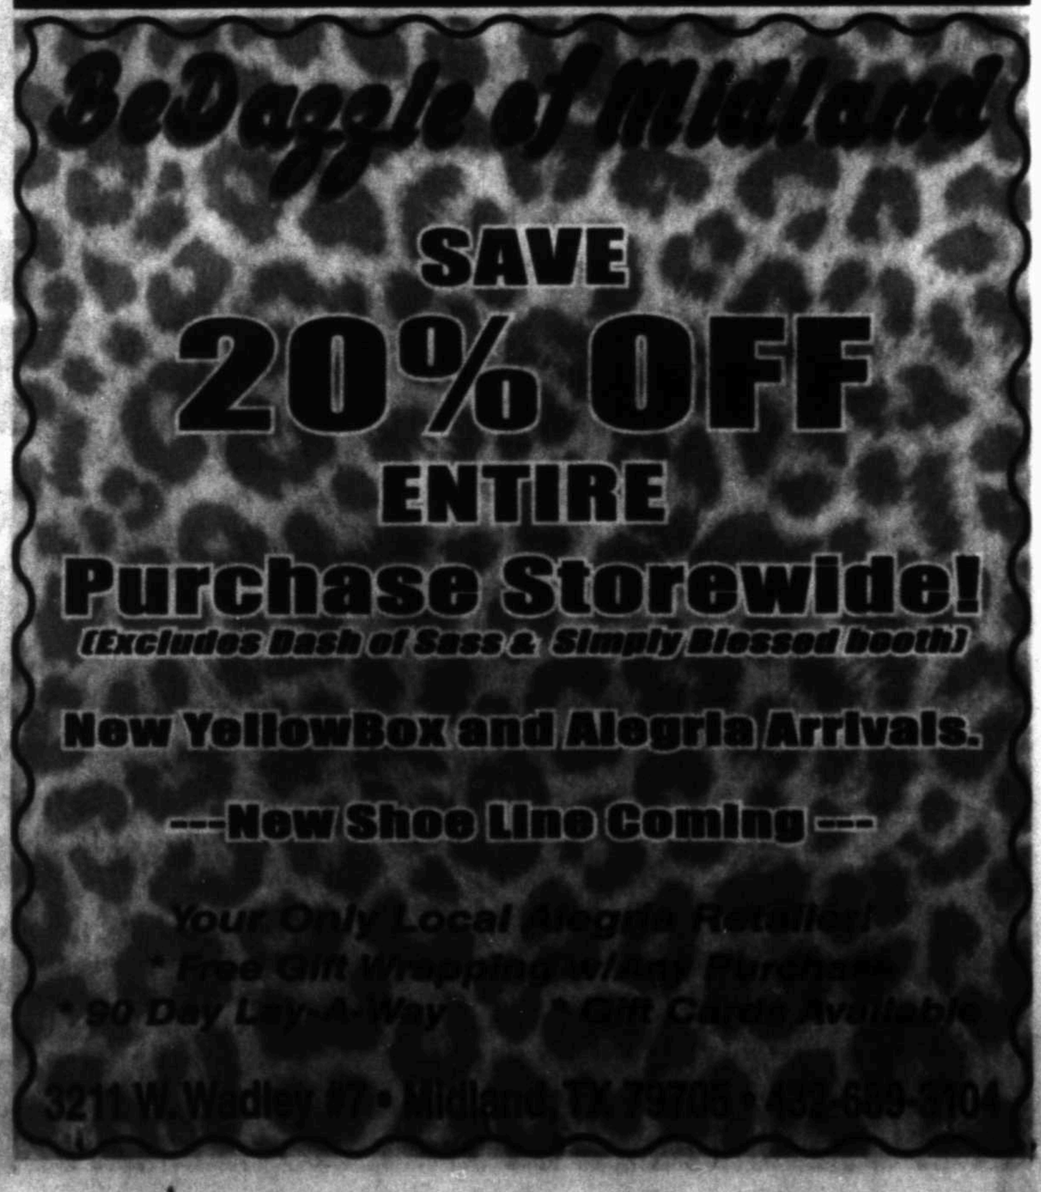
"The shortages were instead due to poor maintenance of facilities and poor management by ERCOT," Hirs said.

And the 2011 blackouts didn't occur during that year's record-hot summer, but during a winter cold snap that pushed heating demand up when the available generation capacity was well below what it is in summer months.

Cold spells this year also have tested the grid, as a combination of winter power plant mothballing and unexpected plant failures led to emergency conservation alerts but no blackouts.

"This capacity forecast assumes the hottest day and all equipment functioning at 100 percent," Hirs said. "But the generators and ERCOT have shown they cannot prevent these events even during non-peak load operations."





Obama could pull Russia trip amid Ukraine tumult

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — U.S. officials said Friday that President Barack Obama may scrap plans to attend an international summit in Russia this summer and could also halt discussions on deepening trade ties with Moscow, raising specific possible consequences if Russia should intervene in Ukraine. Obama himself bluntly warned of unspecified "costs" for Russia.

"Any violation of Ukraine's sovereignty and territorial integrity would be deeply destabilizing," Obama declared. Such action by Russia would represent a "profound interference" in matters that must be decided by the Ukrainian people, he said.

While the president spoke only of "reports" of military movements inside Ukraine, the officials said the U.S does believe that Russia is intervening.

Separately, Defense Secretary Chuck Hagel said he would not address specific U.S. options, "but this could be a very dangerous situation if this continues in a provocative way." Asked about options in a CBS News interview, he said that "we're trying to deal with a diplomatic focus, that's the appropriate, responsible approach."

As Obama prepared to speak late Friday, a spokesman for the Ukrainian border service said eight Russian transport planes had landed with unknown cargo in Crimea. Serhiy Astakhov told The Associated Press that the Il-76 planes arrived unexpectedly and were given permission to land, one after the other, at Gvardeiskoye air base. The State Department urged U.S. citizens to defer nonessential travel plans in the country because of "the potential for instability."

In Washington, it was unclear whether the administration's threats to pull trade talks or cancel presidential travel might have any impact on Russia's calculations. Obama canceled a bilateral meeting with President Vladimir Putin last year after Russia granted asylum to National Security Agency leaker Edward Snowden, though Obama still attended a separate international meeting in Russia.

Putin is scheduled to host the Group of Eight economic summit in June in Sochi, the site of the recently completed Winter Olympics. The U.S. is in discussions about the summit with European partners and it is difficult to see how some of those leaders would attend the summit if Russia has forces in Crimea, according to the administration officials. They were not authorized to discuss the situation by name and spoke only on condition of anonymity.

The administration's warning that trade talks could be halted came as Russian officials were in Washington for economic discussions with Obama advisers.

For the U.S., levying punishments on Russia is complicated by the myriad of issues on which the White House needs Moscow's help. Among them: ending the bloodshed in Syria, negotiating a nuclear agreement with Iran, and transporting U.S. military troops and equipment out of Afghanistan through Russian supply routes.

At the White House, a somber Obama decried the situation in Ukraine and warned about deeper outside intervention.

"Just days after the world came to Russia for the Olympic Games, that would invite the condemnation of nations around the world," he said. "The United States will stand with the international community in affirming that there will be costs for any military intervention in Ukraine."

Political turmoil in Ukraine has pushed President Viktor Yanukovych from office. Yanukovych held a news conference in southern Russia Friday in which he said he was not asking Moscow for military assistance and called military action "unacceptable."

In his appearance before reporters, however, Yanukovych, who still regards himself the president, also vowed to "keep fighting for the future of Ukraine" and blamed the U.S. and the West for encouraging the rebellion that forced him to flee last weekend.

Expectations high as MC enters conference play

By Oscar LeRoy
oleroy@mrt.com

Caleb Koedyker said there is no need for the Midland College baseball team to talk about defending its Western Junior College Athletic Conference title because expectations go much higher.

"That's what every team is going to expect when they go in (to the season)," said Koedyker, the sophomore outfielder and catcher for the Chaparrals. "The ultimate goal is to win a national championship, it's not really conference."

After making their first appearance in the Juco World Series last year, who could blame the Chaparrals for wanting more? But the first step to a long baseball season is playing conference games, and the Chaps (8-4 overall) begin WJCAC play this weekend with a four-game series against Frank Phillips College (5-6) at Christensen Stadium. The first doubleheader begins at 1 p.m. today, with the second beginning at noon Sunday.

The Chaps have a little bit of momentum going into this weekend after winning three out of four games against Kansas jucos Colby Community College and Seward County last weekend.

"I think we're kind of getting on a roll right now, and that's the biggest thing," Koedyker said. "We got some big wins (last weekend) and got some confidence going into conference."

Added MC coach David Coleman, "I think we've got a lot of questions answered in pre-conference and feel good about where we're at. Our hitters have been good, have given us some quality at-bats and have scored quite a few runs. And our starting pitching has been good."

It seems like Koedyker is one of those players who's gaining confidence with both experience and success.

Coming from Seminole High School last year, where he was a standout in both football and baseball, Koedyker had to adjust to college baseball. Because Koedyker had to play behind a strong and talented group of sophomores last year, his playing time was limited and only hit .208 with three RBI in 24 at-bats and appeared in just 15 games.

However, this year Koedyker has a more prominent role, has played in 11 of the 12 games, and is hitting .351 with one home run, three triples, two doubles and 10 RBI.

"It's slowing down," Koedyker said. "I'm feeling good at the plate and starting to have some confidence

Frenship excited about competition in 6A

By Len Hayward
lhayward@mrt.com

The move to Class 6A for Wolfforth Frenship was certainly expected, and with that move the Tigers are inevitably ready for the competition that awaits them in the state's highest classification in every sport in the future.

But Frenship might be facing the most fierce competition in baseball. The Tigers have a playoff pedigree and have built a reputation as one of West Texas's top baseball programs, regardless of classification.

Beginning next season, though, Tigers will add to a sport in West Texas, and Region I overall, that is already deep. Frenship will be in the newly created District 2-6A, beginning in 2014, playing rivals Lubbock Monterey and Lubbock Coronado, along with Amarillo High and Amarillo Tascosa.

"I tell you what, baseball is what really stands out as far as a really strong competitive district," Frenship coach Chad Reynolds said. "You've got four teams going to playoffs; there could be any team every year left not going. It's going to be a battle week in and week out."

The Tigers have had a solid start to the Schlumberger Tournament of Champions, going 3-0 through the first two days with victories against El Paso El Dorado (5-4) and Midland High (2-0) on Friday night.

And the Tigers are facing off against competition they could see in the playoffs in the future in Class 6A. Along with El Dorado and Midland High, the Tigers will take on Odessa Permian today to finish the tournament.

"Region I puts out some really good baseball, and we are proud to be a part of that," Reynolds said. "We are excited about the move up. I know of course we'd like to stay where we are, and we feel good about where we are. But we know our district is growing like it is, and we knew there was no way (we'd stay down). Our kids are excited about it, and we've seen these guys for a long time."

Reynolds returns a team that advanced to the Class 4A regional semifinals a year ago, falling to Cleburne in a three-game series. The Tigers are already in a district

How local teams fared Friday

MHS LOSES TWICE

The Bulldogs remained winless in the tournament after losing to El Paso Hanks 3-2 in the first game of the day at Christensen Stadium, and then lost to Frenship 2-0 at Security Bank Ballpark.

Midland High held a 2-0 lead after scoring single runs in the third and fourth innings, but the Knights came back to score two in the fifth to tie the game. The Knights then scored the game-winning run in the top of the seventh.

Jason Raughton was 3 for 3, and Browning Houser was 1 for 3 with an RBI in the game.

Travis Wilbanks had a solid outing on the hill for Midland High as he pitched seven innings, giving up three runs on six hits with six strikeouts.

The Bulldogs (5-6) then struggled in the second game to hit the ball as Frenship scored a pair of late runs to win.

LEE FALLS IN LONE GAME

The Rebels were held to three hits as El Paso Montwood beat them 7-4 in Lee's lone game on Saturday at the tournament.

The Rams took a 2-1 lead in fourth inning, but Lee came back to score a pair of runs in the bottom half of the inning. But then Montwood scored three in the fifth to take the lead for good.

The Rams then added single runs in the sixth and seventh to end the game.

Tristian Martinez had one of Lee's three hits and had two RBI, and Blake Blessie, who was 1 for 3, also had an RBI. The Rebels also were plagued by six errors.

Lee is now 3-6 on the season and will face Lubbock High and Canyon Randall today.

SA Central's Cummings leads after first day of golf invite

By Oscar LeRoy
oleroy@mrt.com

Kamryn Cummings admitted that she had played Green Tree Country Club a handful of times, but she played like a regular member during the first round of the Midland Girls Golf Invitational on Friday afternoon.

The San Angelo Central senior shot a 75 to help lead her team into first place as the Lady Bobcats finished with a 348, which is 10 strokes ahead of Lubbock High's 358.

"Knowing the course helps a lot," she said. "Sometimes it doesn't because you know it too well. I haven't played this course a lot but the fact that I know little things, like where to put the ball, helps out a lot."

Cummings, who is a Texas Tech commitment, leads the individual standings by two strokes over Lubbock High's Alexandria Massie. Two of Cummings' teammates are also in the top 10 individually. Sarah Falcon is eighth with an 88, and Lauren Barta is in a tie for ninth with an 89.

"They played well, and Kamryn played really well," Central coach Kevin Crane said. "They played tough out there with the wind. They did a good job of keeping the ball in play and tried to keep the ball below the holes. The roughs weren't quite good today, but I think we played them well and that was a key."

Cummings said she had to overcome three double bogeys with a pair of birdies.

"Coming back and shooting 75 was pretty solid," she said. "Everything I messed up, I knew exactly what it was. I just have to work on that, but I played really well today. I was putting good, and my approach shots were really good. I was putting with good intensity, and that gave me a chance to get those birdies. I just need to get out there tomorrow and shoot the best I can."

Central is expected to be one of the favorites in District 2-5A play, and at least after Friday's first round, the Lady Bobcats showed why. However, Odessa Permian's two teams are in the hunt. Permian's second team in third with a 364, while Permian's first team was fourth with a 366. Abilene Cooper is fifth with a 378, followed by Odessa High with a 384 in sixth. Lee's first team in seventh with a 385 and Midland High in ninth with a 398.

Berryhill, Machen win pole vault at Tall City Invitational

By Chris Gove
Odessa American

It could've been quite a showdown Friday in the Tall City Invitational track and field meet.

Alas, El Paso Franklin's Elise Machen and Midland Christian's Kami Berryhill simply sparkled on their own while competing in separate girls pole vault competitions at Memorial Stadium's Hightower Track and Field Complex.

Both seniors definitely put on a show, with Machen producing a big-time personal best of 13 feet, 6 inches, which is tied for the best high school outdoor girls pole vault mark of the season in the nation.

"I felt really good," Machen said. "Definitely traveling this far I wanted to make it count."

Machen won the Division I girls title, which was the opening of three competitions and one Berryhill hoped to compete in for a higher level of difficulty.

It was something that had been done in years past for Berryhill, who simply jumped with Division I vaulters while still scoring for Midland Christian in the Division II rankings.

She and the other Division II vaulters this time were flighted with Division III competitors, and Berryhill didn't enter the competition until everyone else had been knocked out.

That meant more than four hours of waiting before starting at 11-6. Berryhill cleared 11-6 and 12-0 on her first two tries, made 12-6 on her second and then gave solid first and third efforts before bowing out at 13-0.

"It would've been nice to have someone to compete with," Berryhill said. "It would've been a lot of fun. But, hey, it wasn't meant to be."

Berryhill has signed to compete for NCAA Division I program Abilene Christian University, where her older sister Angie Aguilar was twice a national vaulting champion and where Angie's husband, Crane native Cory Aguilar, is the vault coach.

In Berryhill's previous three high school seasons, she was coached by Cory Aguilar at Midland Christian. She's been traveling to Abilene twice a week for practice sessions to supplement her training with the Mustangs program and was pleased with her performance in front of many family members — including

HIGH SCHOOL SOCCER CAPSULES

Boys

ODESSA HIGH AT LEE

When/where: Noon today, Grande Communications Stadium

Records: Lee 9-4-1, 5-3-1 (16 points) in District 2-5A; Odessa High 8-5-2, 4-4-2 (14 points)

Last district game: Lee 8, Lubbock Coronado 1; Odessa High 4, San Angelo Central 1

Last meeting: Lee 2, Odessa High 0 on Feb. 1

Notes: Today's game is pivotal for both teams as the playoff race in the 2-5A boys standings begins to heat up. The Rebels had Tuesday off and will now take on one of their chief rivals looking to bolster their position. Lee is in third spot in the 2-5A standings, five points behind rival Midland High and two ahead of Abilene Cooper and the Bronchos. A win would keep the Rebels in the upper tier of the standings, while a loss could make things stressful during the stretch run. ... Odessa High has been hot lately, winning its last three games by a total score 18-3. In an 8-2 win against Abilene High, Jorge Murillo scored six goals. ... Darius Strambler scored both goals for Lee in its victory against Odessa High at Ratliff Stadium.

Next: Lee at San Angelo Central, 5 p.m. Tuesday; Midland High at Odessa High, Noon Saturday, March 8

MIDLAND HIGH AT LUBBOCK CORONADO

When/where: Noon today, McCool Stadium, Lubbock

Records: Midland High 8-3-3, 6-1-3 (21 points) in District 2-5A; Lubbock Coronado 2-13-0, 1-9-0 (3 points)

Last district game: Midland High 4, Abilene High 1; Amarillo Tascosa 6, Lubbock Coronado 1

Last meeting: Midland High 2, Lubbock Coronado 1 on Feb. 1

Notes: The Bulldogs head to Lubbock sitting in second place in the standings and will look to bolster that position today. Midland High won its first district game against Lubbock Coronado on Feb. 1 as Homero Vazquez scored both goals in the victory. Vazquez has gone on to score 12 goals this season for the Bulldogs. ... Lubbock Coronado has struggled this season since a district-opening win against Amarillo Tascosa on Jan. 21. The Mustangs have lost nine games in a row.

Next: Midland High at Odessa High, Noon Saturday, March 8; Abilene Cooper at Lubbock Coronado, 5 p.m. Tuesday

Girls

ODESSA HIGH AT LEE

When/where: 2 p.m. today, Grande Communications Stadium

Records: Lee 4-5-4, 2-4-3 (9 points) in District 2-5A; Odessa High 7-4-4, 6-2-2 (20 points)

Last district game: Lee 1, Lubbock Coronado 0; Odessa High 2, San Angelo Central 0

Last meeting: Odessa High 4, Lee 1 on Feb. 1

Notes: The Lady Rebels are likely in playoff mode as they get set for a key stretch of games that could decide their playoff fate. Lee picked up a victory against Lubbock Coronado last week Saturday, which was its second of the 2-5A season. The other victory was also against the Lady Mustangs. Lee is 11 points out of third place right now, and another loss likely will diminish their playoff hopes. ... Odessa High is in fourth place and is looking for a win to keep pace with Midland High, Odessa Permian and San Angelo Central. ... The Lady Bronchos beat San Angelo Central for the second time this season on Tuesday.

Next: Lee at San Angelo Central, 7 p.m. Tuesday; Midland High at Odessa High, 2 p.m. Saturday, March 8

MIDLAND HIGH AT LUBBOCK CORONADO

When/where: 2 p.m. today, McCool Stadium, Lubbock

Records: Midland High 7-5-2, 6-2-2 (20 points) in District 2-5A; Lubbock Coronado 3-11-1, 1-9-0 (3 points)

Last district game: Midland High 4, Abilene High 1; Amarillo Tascosa 2, Lubbock Coronado 0

Last meeting: Midland High 5, Lubbock Coronado 1 on Feb. 1

Notes: The Lady Bulldogs head to Lubbock looking for a chance to stay in the thick of the playoff race and within in striking distance of a district title. Midland High is currently tied with Odessa High for third and one point behind second place San Angelo Central. ... In the last meeting between these two teams, four different Lady Bulldogs scored in the victory. Adrienne Almodova scored two goals, and Sammi Garibay, Kaitlyn Wells and Selena Campos-Macha also scored.

CHAPS

I'm enjoying it. I know I'm enjoying it a lot. This year there might be a little more pressure on me, knowing some of the freshmen might be looking up to me. I feel I have to set an example and I know I might have a role on how the game is going to play out."

Koedyker said he learned a lot from last year's team and added that last year's success serves as a big boost for the program.

"It's helped a lot because we know what it's going to take to get there," he said. "I think the biggest thing is staying in the moment, live for what's happening right now and not worrying what's going to happen. Coach Coleman always says, 'Worry about the process and not the results.' As long as we're mentally focused and good that day and living pitch by pitch, I think we'll have a successful season."

With that kind of approach, these Chaps might have a chance to duplicate or better last year's magical run.

FRANK PHILLIPS COLLEGE AT MIDLAND COLLEGE

When/where: Doubleheaders beginning at 1 p.m. today and noon Sunday, Christensen Stadium

Records: Midland College 8-4, 0-0 in Western Junior College Athletic Conference; Frank Phillips 5-6, 0-0

Notes & quotes: Both Midland College and Frank Phillips come into the series on a three-game winning streak. ... MC coach David Coleman said Frank Phillips should once again be a scrappy team as the Plainsmen return the most veterans out of any WJCAC team. "We'll have our hands full," Coleman said. ... The Chaparrals' are expected to start sophomore RHP Thomas McIlraith (2-1, 2.20 ERA) and sophomore RHP Michael Brosig (2-0, 1.13) in today's doubleheader, followed by sophomore right-handers Jayden O'Dell (1-1, 4.91) and Brandon Courville (1-1, 4.15) on Sunday. ...Coleman said sophomore C Chris Shaw should be available to play this weekend after sitting out about a week and a half because of knee inflammation. Freshman Bryndan Arredondo filled in at catcher most of the time in Shaw's absence and rankes fifth in the WJCAC with a .464 batting average. ... The Chaps are expected to continue to use several players in different positions because of its depth. "That quality depth enables us to rotate some guys, leave some hot guys in and give some guys some days off when they need it," Coleman said.

Lady Chaps win two games at AFCA Lead-Off Classic

From staff reports

COLUMBUS, Ga. — The Midland College softball team won a pair of games on Friday during the first day of the AFCA Lead-Off Classic.

The Lady Chaparrals (11-4) beat Seminole 6-3 in the first game of the day and then defeated Florence-Darlington College 3-2 in the second game.

Midland College rallied from an early one-run deficit to take the lead at 4-3 when Kelcey Gomez hit a three-run home run in the sixth inning. The Lady Chaps added two more in the seventh to complete the victory.

Gomez was 1 for 3 with three RBI, and Tyneesha Houkamu was 3 for 3 with an RBI. Shelby Weissenbach was also 2 for 2 and struck out seven in picking up the pitching victory.

In the second game, the Lady Chaparrals scored all three of their runs in the sixth to take the victory. Gomez was 2 for 3 with two RBI, and Dominique Alcocer had nine strikeouts and allowed five hits in picking up the win.

Midland College will take on Lakeland College at 11:30 a.m. today.

with Lubbock Monterey, and Reynolds said playing Lubbock Coronado for a district game won't be much different than playing them in a non-district game.

But he did say that his squad feels like it still has some unfinished business in Class 4A. The Tigers have gone to the playoffs nine straight years but have yet to make a trip to the state tournament.

And they would like nothing more than to leave the class with a trip to Austin.

"Hopefully our guys can keep the thing going," Reynolds said. "We are hungry. They way our season ended last year, knowing that we were that close, it leaves a little hunger inside for our returning guys. They want to end it on a good note."

Belfort gives up title shot after Nevada bans TRT

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Vitor Belfort dropped out of his upcoming UFC middleweight title shot on Thursday a few hours after the Nevada Athletic Commission banned testosterone replacement therapy.

Belfort was scheduled to fight 185-pound champion Chris Weidman at UFC 173 on May 24. His title shot was given to Lyoto Machida by UFC President Dana White.

UFC 173 is the next major card in Las Vegas, the UFC's hometown. The influential Nevada commission voted unanimously on Thursday to stop granting therapeutic use exemptions for TRT, closing a widely criticized loophole that allowed mixed martial arts fighters to compete on steroids.

"As other jurisdictions may follow suit, I am going to drop my TRT program and compete in MMA without it," Belfort said in a statement provided to Fox, the UFC's broadcast partner. "Given the time constraints involved between now and my proposed next bout in May, I have determined not to apply for a license to fight in Nevada at this time."

Associated Press

Brad Keselowski gives a thumb-up Friday after winning the pole for Sunday's NASCAR Sprint Cup Series race in Avondale, Ariz.

Keselowski to start on pole at Phoenix

Associated Press

AVONDALE, Ariz. — A few drivers, like Brad Keselowski and Joey Logano, raced onto the track to get in their qualifying sessions. Others waited, some nearly 10 minutes before heading out for the first time.

There were long stretches with almost no activity followed by mad scrambles to get runs in before time ran out. Car raced past each other at close to a 100 mph difference.

No doubt, this first round of NASCAR's new knockout qualifying was a little strange and will take some getting used to.

Brad Keselowski earned the first Sprint Cup pole under NASCAR's new format, edging Joey Logano with a track-record top speed of 139.384 mph at Phoenix International Raceway on Friday.

"It's a lot more nerve-racking," Keselowski said. "Usually a pretty good rule of thumb is that If it's more nerve-racking for the drivers, it's a lot more fun for our fans and partners and all those things, and that's a good thing. I more interested in feedback from our fans to see if they liked it."

Keselowski was one of the first drivers to go out in the first session and finished behind Logano. He trumped his teammate in the shorter, second session to earn his fourth career pole and a spot on the front row for Sunday's 312-mile race.

Jamie McMurray qualified third, defending Sprint Cup champion Jimmie Johnson was fourth and Daytona 500 champion Dale Earnhardt Jr. will start fifth next to Greg Biffle.

"The qualifying format was before because I felt like I was one of those guys it was exciting for me because I wasn't in, I made another run, I got in," McMurray said. "The excitement was there."

NASCAR made numerous changes for this season, including a tweaked qualifying process in an effort to liven up what had become a monotonous part of race weekend.

Instead of going out one at a time, the entire field gets a 30-minute session to post their fastest lap, with the top 12 moving on to a 10-minute second round. On bigger tracks, the qualifying will have three sessions, with the field cut to 24 then 12.

NASCAR got a glimpse of the new system at Daytona last week, but it didn't last long; the Nationwide series was able to get in one round before rain washed out the rest of the qualifying and for the Truck Series.

The Daytona 500 didn't use the new qualifying process, so Phoenix was the inaugural go-round.

No one knew quite what to expect and there was a bit of concern about drivers intentionally blocking each other to prevent fast lap times, something NASCAR officials planned to keep an eye on.

Instead, the action on the track was sparse for long stretches, with some drivers racing out to get qualifying laps in right away while several others waited several minutes to get their first lap in.

One issue while there were multiple cars on the track were the speeds.

NASCAR decided against allowing teams to have cool down units in their pit stalls, so most of the drivers in the field put in one fast lap and one that was much slower to cool their engines, creating differences of up to 100 mph between the cars.

"We've got a really good dialogue with all of our competitors," said Robin Pemberton, NASCAR's vice president for competition and racing development.

FALCONS SPLIT WITH ST. EDWARD'S

ODESSA — The UTPB baseball team split a doubleheader against St. Edward's at Roden Field, winning the first game in nine innings 2-1, before losing 7-1.

With the first game tied at 1 in the bottom of the ninth, Daniel Andrade drew a two-out walk then went to second on an error by the St. Edward's pitcher. Andrade then scored when Colin Kowal's hit resulted in an error by the shortstop.

Neil Madsen, Ryan Arrick and Andrade each had two hits for the Falcons.

Bryan Paramapoonya (3-0) got the win in relief for UTPB.

In the second game, St. Edward's starter Collin Sherrod held the Falcons (9-9, 1-1 in Heartland Conference) to two hits over seven innings of work.

St. Edward's (10-6, 1-1) had 11 hits against the Falcons and had a four-run third inning.

Brian Woody (0-2) took the loss for UTPB.

LADY FALCONS SPLIT WITH OCU

ODESSA — The UTPB softball team split a doubleheader with Oklahoma Christian University on Friday, losing the first game 3-0, before bouncing back and winning 3-0 in the second game.

The Lady Falcons were held to just one hit by OCU pitcher Shea Coats (5-2), while St. Edward's had five hits against UTPB pitcher Desiree Valero (1-9).

Despite getting out-hit 6-3 in the second game, UTPB (4-15, 1-1 in Heartland Conference) got all the runs it needed in the first inning to back up a solid pitching performance by Holly Herrington (3-5).

Jennifer Quam started the rally in the bottom of the first with a leadoff double to left and then advanced to third on a ground out. Nikki Brailsford then reached on a fielding error by the right fielder, allowing Quam to score. Taleas Marble then followed with a two-run home run to left for the 3-0 advantage.

Golfer Rory McIlroy hits out of a sand trap on the 13th hole Friday during the second round of the Honda Classic golf tournament in Palm Beach Gardens, Fla.

McIlroy soars; Woods nearly misses cut

Associated Press

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. — Golf is starting to feel easy again for Rory McIlroy, who bounced back from a sloppy start Friday in the Honda Classic for a 4-under 66 that gave him his first 36-hole lead on the PGA Tour in 18 months.

Tiger Woods is making it look hard.

McIlroy recovered from two early bogeys by running off six birdies in a 10-hole stretch. He looked solid from tee-to-green, hit putts with growing confidence and wound up with a one-shot lead over Brendon de Jonge.

"I knew that with the way I'm playing and the confidence in my ability, I would be able to get those shots back," McIlroy said. "I didn't panic. I didn't try to do anything different. Just tried to keep playing the way I was."

He was at 11-under 129.

Woods felt fortunate to still be playing. He was over the cut line after scrambling for a bogey on the 11th hole and wound up with a 69 to make the cut on the number. Woods hit only two greens over his last nine holes. His lone birdie on the back nine was a chip-in on the 13th after he missed the green with a wedge.

"It was a grind, there's no doubt about it," Woods said. "I didn't hit it very good. Just one of those days where I fought out a number, which was good."

Because 79 players made the cut, there will be another cut to top 70 and ties today. Woods missed the 54-hole cut the last time he played on the PGA Tour at Torrey Pines.

And at least he's still playing the weekend. That wasn't the case for Phil Mickelson. Playing the Honda Classic for the first time in 12 years, he had a 71 to miss the cut. So did Henrik Stenson, the No. 3 player in the world, with rounds of 73-76.

McIlroy knew the feeling a year ago, when he took a steep fall from No. 1 in the world while changing equipment and trying to live up to high expectations, leading to his snap decision to walk off the course after 26 holes last year at the Honda Classic.

A growing gallery in warm sunshine at PGA National saw a familiar game — the McIlroy who won the Honda Classic two years ago.

Swinging freely and putting beautifully, McIlroy hit his stride on his back nine with four birdies in five holes, including the par-5 third when he smashed a drive some 35 yards past Adam Scott and had only a 6-iron into the green on the 539-yard hole.

De Jonge, who has never won on the PGA Tour, played early in the afternoon when the wind picked up and put eight birdies on his card in a 64. He was tied for the lead when he missed the green with a wedge on No. 9 and made bogey. Even so, he'll be in the last group today with McIlroy.

"I think I might have got a little bit of switch in the wind," de Jonge said.

Russell Henley had a 68 and was three shots behind. Russell Knox of Scotland had the low round Friday at 63 and was four shots back along with Lee Westwood (65).

But the focus is clearly on McIlroy, who each week looks to be getting better.

"This year is obviously a lot different," McIlroy said. "Got off to a good start. I'm confident. I'm playing well. This is the second straight tournament I've opened with a 63, so if I can keep building on these good starts, then hopefully I can start converting."

After a 63 in Dubai, he said he was pressing too much in the final round and wound up in a tie for ninth.

Friday was another step in the right direction, despite two errant tee shots on the 11th and 12th holes that led to bogeys. His round changed with a tee shot into 6 feet on the 16th hole for a birdie, and then a 12-foot birdie on the 18th to wrap up his front nine and earn back the two shots he had dropped.

BERRYHILL

her parents, Angie and older brother Jamison, a former football standout at Permian who went on to play for the University of Texas.

"I'm going to praise God on that," Berryhill said of her finish. "I want to help the team with as many points as I can. It's not just about the vault. I really want to encourage my team, because after this (season) I'm gone. I definitely want to leave a legacy and leave something for them to work for."

Machen said she fell in love with vaulting as a freshman and was a sixth-place finisher at the regional meet last year with what then equaled her personal best of 11-6.

She broke the 12-foot barrier over the summer and hit 12-10 at an indoor meet in January in Reno. But she cleared 13-0 for the first time Friday — easily — and then hit 13-6 on her second try before bowing out at 13-9.

"I want to help the team with as many points as I can. It's not just about the vault. I really want to encourage my team, because after this (season) I'm gone. I definitely want to leave a legacy and leave something for them to work for.

Kami Berryhill

"We had anticipated her clearing at least the 13-footer," Franklin girls head coach Jesse Aguilar said. "Then 13-6 is just amazing. I mean, her approach is great, her mechanics were perfect and it was a perfect day to jump nice and high. She had some great jumps back home, and we thought the change of pace and change of environment would bring out the best in her."

It brought out her best, and then some.

MCS falls to rival Lubbock Trinity in 2 OTs

By Randy Duncan
MRT Correspondent

MANSFIELD — The Midland Christian girls basketball team saw its state title hopes come to a heartbreaking end in the TAPPS 4A State Semifinals.

It took two overtimes, but TAPPS 1-4A rival Lubbock Trinity used its depth and 40 minutes of pressure defense to prevail, 50-43, Friday afternoon at Lake Ridge High School.

"I thought we played our best defensive game of the season," Midland Christian coach Chris Ryburn said. "I told them how proud I was of them, and that they played like champions. What did Trinity have in regulation, 36 points? I doubt anyone held them to that all season. They are a really good offensive team."

One Lady Lion player was particularly effective. Ashtyn Thorne scored 20 points, including 10 of their 14 points in the combined overtimes. In the key sequence of the second extra period, and the game tied at 43-43, she drew the fifth foul on MCS freshman guard Megan Ashton.

Thorne made both free throws with 1:56 left, then stole a pass 30 seconds later for a layup for a four-point Lady Lions (29-12) lead. MCS did not score again.

But it doesn't negate a marvelous effort by the Mustang girls. Perhaps it was facing the team they had beaten once in their history, with a trip to the state title game on the line. They found themselves down 9-2 when Coach Ryburn called time out 3:49 left in the first quarter.

"We don't worry about the score.

Lady Lions	50
Lady Mustangs	43 (2OT)

It's about focusing on the next possession and just doing what we're supposed to do," Ryburn said.

Whatever he added, it worked. Morgan Ashton, a senior in her last game, scored on a set play to make it 9-4. After Lindsey Mills drilled her first 3-pointer, Morgan, who led MCS (27-8) with 12 points, scored again, and with 1:03 left in the quarter the game was tied at 9.

Trinity got the lead back to 13-9 with a basket and steal with 37 seconds remaining in the first quarter. That was the largest lead for either team for the rest of regulation.

The Falcons, after having won three of four games during the Byron Johnston Holiday Classic in December, returned to the Chap Center on Friday for the Region I-2A Semifinals, and handed Wall its first loss of the season.

Taylor Cornelius scored 20 points and Tate Smalligan added 19 as the Falcons pulled away to defeat the Hawks, 66-54. The Falcons will meet Brownfield at 1 p.m. today in the Region I-2A final.

Bushland coach Steve Rhodes believes having experience at Chaparral Center helped his team.

"I'd be lying if I said that's not why we came up here (last December)," Rhodes said. "We're not satisfied by any means. It's going to be a tough test (today)."

In a game that shifted within a three-point range most of the way, Bushland started to pull away late in the third quarter.

With Bushland (26-8) leading, 39-37, with 4:12 left in the third, the Falcons got hot as Smalligan scored nine of Bushland's last 11 points in the quarter. Smalligan's bucket with 43.4 seconds left in the third quarter gave the Falcons a 49-40 lead.

"Transition, we got out and got a lot of points off of that," Smalligan said.

The Hawks cut the Falcons' lead to five before the end of the third quarter, however, the Falcons continued to grind away as a combination of solid defense and some fortunate bounces allowed Bushland to extend its lead to double digits.

"We knew it was going to be a tough game," Cornelius said. "Since they're here at regionals we knew they were going to be a good team."

However, at the beginning of the game, it appeared Wall (17-1) might have the edge.

Brent Matschek hit three 3-pointers in the first quarter, including back to back 3-pointers with the game tied at 8 to push Wall out to a 14-8 lead.

However, after that spurt, the outside shots stopped falling for the Hawks, including for Matschek, who only had one more 3-pointer after the first quarter.

"We knew we were going to have to hit some outside shots because they have so much size inside the paint," Wall coach Trey Watts, a former Midland High head coach, said. "They play really good defense inside. They do a really good job of clogging the paint inside. You're going to get open looks outside

Brownfield uses team effort to stop Buckaroos

Brownfield's Sha' Colby Hill sees plenty of attention from opposing teams when he's on the floor.

Luckily for the Cubs, they had a few other players step up to carry the load, especially in the first half.

Jordan Demps and Jezreel Griffin scored 16 of the Cubs' 34 first-half points, then Hill was able to take over in the second half as the Cubs went on to defeat Breckenridge, 62-57, on Friday night during a Region I-2A semifinal at Chaparral Center.

"If somebody is scouting us, (Hill) is the guy at the top of the list," Brownfield coach Dustin Faught said. "I think it really was good for us to come out and have some success in the first half with him struggling a little bit."

With Hill only having three points in the first half, the Cubs still pulled out to a 34-29 halftime lead.

Brownfield used a smothering defense to jump out to a 21-11 first-quarter lead.

Breckenridge, which never led in the game, cut the lead down to one point twice in the second quarter.

Lady Knights top Lake Country, headed to TAPPS 3A state final

From staff reports

FORT WORTH — Kayla Beattie scored a game-high 21 points to help the Midland Classical girls basketball team reach the TAPPS 3A state championship game after a 51-31 victory over Fort Worth Lake Country on Friday at Nolan Catholic High School.

With the victory, MCA (21-8) will play Austin Brentwood Christian, which defeated Houston Cypress in the other semifinal game, for the state title at Mansfield Legacy High School at 5 p.m. today.

The Lady Knights will be shooting for their first state title since the 2008 season when they were a TAPPS Class 2A program.

Lady Knights	51
Lady Eagles	31

MCA jumped out to a 10-3 lead in the first quarter and had a 31-15 halftime advantage.

"This was the hardest fought game that we played this year," MCA co-head coach Carla Cunneen said. "Our kids played as hard as they could have played in every possession of the game. Every loose ball was ours and (the Lady Knights) challenged every shot."

Cunneen added that her team did a good job of slowing down Lake Country's top player, Julianne Leeper, who was held to 10 points.

"It surprised us that we won by that much," Cunneen said. "Reviewing the game film (on Lake Country), we thought they were very stoppable, we knew Leeper was a great inside player, but we knew they had some weaknesses on the perimeter, and we just exposed those weaknesses."

In addition to Beattie's 21,

Nazareth beats Grady in regional semi

LEVELLAND — The season for the Grady boys basketball team came to an end Friday with a 38-33 loss to Nazareth in a Region I-A Division II semifinal played at the Texan Dome.

Grady (23-7) struggled with its shooting as the Wildcats shot just 22.2 percent for the game, including 4 of 26 from 3-point range.

Nazareth led for most of the game, including 25-15 at the half.

Beau Lucas led Grady with 11 points.

Nazareth was led by Troy Gerber's game-high 12 points.

Nazareth advances to play Texline, a 60-50 winner over Sands, in today's 2 p.m. regional final.

GIRLS STATE TOURNEY ROUNDUP

CLASS 5A
DUNCANVILLE 80
SA WAGNER 57

AUSTIN — Sophomore center Ciera Johnson had 21 points and 16 rebounds and Duncanville's unbeaten march back to the state title game rolled on Friday with an 80-57 win over San Antonio Wagner in the Class 5A semifinals.

Tasia Foman scored 28 and Ariel Atkins added 18 points for Duncanville (35-0). Atkins was 8 of 11 shooting in the first half.

MANVEL 69
PLANO WEST 38

AUSTIN — Brianna Turner scored 22 points and had 15 rebounds as Manvel overwhelmed Plano West 69-38 Friday night in the Class 5A state semifinals.

Turner, a Notre Dame-bound senior forward who is rated one of the top players in the country, had a double-double by early in the second quarter. Manvel held Plano West to 23 percent shooting and dominated rebounding 58-25.

WALL 59
HALLETTSVILLE 44

AUSTIN — Six-foot-tall sisters Maddi and Bobbi Chitsey combined for 37 points and 11 rebounds to lead Wall (34-4) past Hallettsville (34-4) 59-44 in UIL Class 2A state semifinal action.

Junior Bobbi Chitsey led all scorers with 20 points while sophomore sister Maddi added 17 points. Wall outscored Hallettsville 29-18 in the second half.

BROCK 78
FRANKLIN 38

AUSTIN — Brock (35-2) moved one step away from a record sixth straight girls basketball championship and ninth overall after winning 78-38 over Franklin (30-6) in a Class 2A semifinal.

Lexi Ducat led Brock with 18 points, 12 rebounds, three blocked shots and two assists in 18 minutes. Rachel Williams added 13 points and six rebounds, and Rachel Harrell collected 11 points and nine rebounds.

CLASS A DIVISION II
NAZARETH 57
LIPAN 41

AUSTIN — Rebekah Van Dijk had 21 points and 16 rebounds and Nazareth beat Lipan 57-41 in the Class 1A Division II semifinals Friday night as the Swiftettes chase their 19th state championship.

Mackenzie Gerber added 16 points for Nazareth (35-2), which advanced to its first title game since its last championship in 2007.

Nazareth outscored Lipan 37-17 in the second half and dominated rebounding 52-22 even while committing 30 turnovers. Van Dijk, who is 6-foot-4 and has signed with Texas-Arlington, was 8 of 17 shooting.

CALVERT 53
ROSCOE HIGHLAND 45

AUSTIN — Jaylonn Walker scored 30 points, hitting six 3-pointers, to send Calvert to a 53-45 win over Roscoe Highland on Friday in the Class 1A Division II state semifinals.

Walker made five 3-pointers in the first quarter and finished just one shy of the state tournament record of seven held by Dallas Lincoln's Taylor Morrow and Nazareth's Heidi Ramaekers. Walker's 3-pointers in the first quarter accounted for all of her team's field goals in the period.

Walker opened the third with her sixth 3-pointer to give Calvert a 33-26 lead.

Cubs

got to within one trailing 27-26, Demps nailed a 3-pointer with 2:13 left in the half to push the Cubs back out to a 30-26 lead.

Then, after a couple of missed 3-point attempts by Breckenridge, Demps showed up again with a two to extend the lead back out to six points.

"Yeah, I kind of felt it in the first half and (Hill) kind of felt it in the second half," Demps said."

Hill started to take over in the third quarter. After the Buckaroos cut the lead down to two, 34-32, to start the third, Hill scored back to back buckets for the Cubs to push the lead back out to six points.

Hill ended up scoring 12 of the Cubs' 17 third-quarter points to give his team a 51-40 lead

"When I'm not having a good night, they step up for me," Hill said. "I just got my legs under me and tried to get into a rhythm. I wasn't in a rhythm in the first half. I was nervous a little bit. I've never been in this position before, I've never made it to the regional tournament. I just tried to stick with the game plan and play hard and trust in my teammates."

Hill then opened up the scoring in the fourth quarter with a 3-pointer to increase the Cub lead to 14 points, the largest lead of the game. Hill ended the game with 24 points to lead all scorers.

However, the Buckaroos weren't through yet.

With the Cubs leading 60-52, Mateo Ramirez nailed a 3-pointer with 59 seconds left to get the Buckaroos to within five points.

Breckenridge then almost forced a turnover at midcourt, however, Demps was able to get open and received a pass and scored to get his team back in front by five.

After the Buckaroos cut the lead back down to three one more time, Hill iced the game with two free throws with 13 seconds left.

"We kind of got a little bit of cushion in the third quarter and we needed every bit of that cushion because they came storming back in the end and we made some bad decisions late both offensively and defensively," Faught, a former assistant coach at Midland High said. "Luckily we were up enough at that point and didn't hurt us and cost us. We're going to have to play much better (today).

Breckenridge was led by Caleb Spoon with 20 points.

Ray Carlin/Special to the MRT

Midland Christian coach Chris Ryburn talks with his team prior to the first overtime during a TAPPS 4A state semifinal against Lubbock Trinity at Lake Ridge High School in Mansfield on Friday.

Falcons

From 1C

Everybody who's played against them gets open looks. You've just got to knock them down.

Matschek finished the game with 18 points to lead the Hawks.

"I like to think maybe we bothered him just a little bit," Rhodes said. "We just tried to get our kids on the perimeter, know where the shooters are, and stretched them."

Rhodes said he expects as much of a challenge from Brownfield as his team faced in Wall.

"Right now everybody's good," Rhodes said. "Brownfield is plenty good. Mr. (Sha'Colby) Hill is a heck of a basketball player. Coach (Dustin) Faught does a great job. They've got some complement to go with Hill, so we're going to have to play."

MCS

pressure fairly well in the first half. Midland Christian took its first lead when Megan Ashton scored the last basket of the first half at 0:23 for a 23-22 lead.

Despite the constant full court pressure, and essentially playing a six-player rotation, MCS played a strong second half. Bailey Wright tied the game at 25, after Lion sub Ashton Duncan hit a 3 to start the second half. Morgan Ashton's layup put MCS back up 27-25, but Trinity scored the last six points of the quarter to go up 31-27, on four free throws and a snowbird layup.

"I thought fatigue was a factor," Ryburn said.

But the Mustangs wouldn't go away.

Early in the fourth, Midland Christian trailed 33-29 after Morgan Ashton made two free throws to take it 35-31 with 7:10 left in regulation. Caroline Hammond, who scored four points and was particularly stellar in the final quarter and both overtimes, hit two free throws to cut the lead to two. Then Mills hit from behind the arc for the third time to put the Mustangs up 36-35 with 1:10 remaining in regulation.

Trinity tied the game when guard Breklyn Wentz made one of two free throws with 19.7 left, and then missed a tough shot just before the buzzer, sending the game to overtime.

Hammond scored first in the overtime and after Sarah Jane Leaverton's 3-pointer gave Trinity back the lead at 39-38, Wright scored with 2:22 left for the last MCS lead, 40-39. Thorne's free throw tied it to send it to a second overtime.

But Mills' fourth 3-pointer was the Mustangs' only score of the second overtime. It tied the game at 43-43 with 2:11 remaining. But Trinity (29-12) scored the last seven points of the game.

Mills scored 12 points on four 3-pointers.

MCA

From 1C

Delanie Griffin added 12 points.

After a dominating perfomance, the Lady Knights turn their focus to Brentwood Christian.

"We just played well as a team," Cunneen said. "We hit some shots, and it was one of those deals where you could tell our kids wanted it more than they did."

Woman discovers old flame blew smoke about his past

DEAR ABBY

Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069. Her column is distributed by Universal Press Syndicate.

DEAR ABBY: I have been single for five years. I recently reconnected with a man I lost contact with 13 years ago. We went out a few times and it was wonderful.

Out of curiosity, I began checking him out online, starting with his mother, who he had mentioned was a surgeon. When I could find no information on her, I started looking up other things. Abby, I could find nothing about him or his family. His mother does not have a medical license, and there are no property records or any record of a marriage license to his second wife.

When I confronted him, he was furious and accused me of not trusting him. Now he doesn't want anything to do with me. I'm heartbroken. I loved him years ago and thought this was for real.

I feel guilty for not trusting him, even though I know he hasn't been honest with me. Is it wrong to do background checks on people you date? — DATING A MAN WHO DOESN'T EXIST

DEAR DATING: It isn't wrong to do some checking. In fact, these days it's very common. But I wonder, having known this man years ago, what made you curious enough to double-check? Also, how good are you at research? And when you "confronted" him, were you hostile, which would have made him react defensively?

Please do not waste another minute feeling guilty about this. If he isn't the person he portrayed himself to be, you may have dodged a bullet.

DEAR ABBY: My 7-year-old son is a great winner when we play games, but he's a terrible loser. When he loses a game, he loses control. He screams, yells, hits and sometimes bites. Is there a way to stop this behavior or am I stuck with a son who hates to lose? — LOSING THE BATTLE AT HOME

DEAR LOSING THE BATTLE: You have described a child who is unable to handle frustration or control his emotions. When a child is 2 or 3, this kind of behavior is understandable. But by age 7, your son should have learned to manage his frustration more appropriately.

If his poor sportsmanship continues, it will cause problems with his peers. You should discuss this with him while he is rational, BEFORE you play any games with him. Explain that games are supposed to be fun, and "when we lose, we are given the chance to learn from our mistake." The same is true in sports. Athletes use their mistakes to improve their skills.

It might also be helpful to impose consequences when your son acts out. But if that doesn't help him, then you should have him evaluated physically and neurologically to make sure there is nothing medically wrong with him.

DEAR ABBY: I'm an 11-year-old girl, and my mom has a boyfriend who lives with us. Mom said that he comes first in her life. When she told me that, I felt like she didn't love me anymore. He tries to be my father, acts like he owns the house and gets me in deep trouble. I have considered moving in with my dad. What should I do? — PRETEEN IN FLORIDA

DEAR PRETEEN: Now that your mother has made her priorities clear, I think it is time you discussed this with your father. If he is willing and able to take care of you, you might be better off living with him.

JACQUELINE BIGAR'S STARS

The stars show the kind of day you'll have: 5-dynamic; 4-positive; 3-average; 2-so-so; 1-difficult

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, March 1, 2014:

This year you have a New Moon on your birthday, which points to an exciting, dynamic year, where new beginnings become possible. Creativity marks your actions. Remember to be sensitive to those around you. If you are single, your magnetism attracts many people. You might choose to date a lot, or perhaps you will focus your attention on one person. If you are attached, remember that a relationship is about two people. As excited as you might be about your life this year, remember to make time for your significant other. A fellow PISCES is as emotional as you are, but he or she expresses it differently.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) ★★★ You could be out of sorts. Your ruling planet, Mars, goes retrograde today for several months. At the moment, you could feel as though you're experiencing a bad hair day. Do whatever you need to do in order to feel better, even if you choose to be alone. Tonight: Close to home.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) ★★★★★ Zero in on making a situation better. This even might result in a new beginning for a key relationship or friendship. You'll need to revise your opinions, which sometimes border on rigidity. A key person in your life could be hostile or difficult. Tonight: Defer to someone else.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) ★★★ Pressure builds, and you'll need to deal with a loved one. Your ability to get past a problem will be emphasized. Take your time in making a decision. A friend could become difficult at best. Tonight: Where the action is.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) ★★★★★ News from a distance heralds a new beginning or possibility. You will see what is happening from a different point of view. You might decide to schedule a trip in the near future, and a close friend might want to join you. Tonight: Music sets the tone.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) ★★★★ You could decide to head in a new direction because of a partner's feelings. Do not push if you have difficulty grasping the totality of a certain situation. Asking questions at this time could result in a disagreement. Tonight: Go along with a family member's plans.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) ★★★★ You'll get a different perspective and a sense of commitment from a key person in your life. You could have an opportunity for a new beginning, but not as quickly as you might think. A conversation has a serious undertone that needs to be honored. Tonight: Dinner at a favorite spot.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) ★★★ You could have a project in mind that you feel you must follow through on. Recognize someone's frustration, as this person might have hoped to get together for a fun happening. Do a better job of listening. Tonight: If you want to keep the peace, adjust your plans.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) ★★★★ You can't stop your innate creativity from flowing, nor will you want to. A loved one enjoys it when you express this quality. Make a point of getting some exercise to help you relax, so that you will be able to enjoy your loved ones. Tonight: Add some spice to the moment.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) ★★★ A new beginning will become possible. You might want to head in a new direction and do something totally different. You could be taken aback by how irritated a friend becomes as a result. Be sensitive about a changing financial situation. Tonight: Entertain at home.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) ★★★★ You could make a big difference with a friend who often resents you, yet also admires you. A new beginning in how you communicate might become possible. A friend, parent or older relative will challenge your limits. Tonight: A must appearance.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) ★★★ Be aware of how you are spending your money and why. For some of you, a long-term goal might be in mind, whereas others' reasons might not be so grounded. Greet a new beginning financially. You will have some tough choices to make. Tonight: Your treat.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) ★★★★★ A new beginning could create a lot of happiness and excitement. You might wonder what would be best for a friend. Make decisions only for you, and try not to get caught up in the moment. Avoid an argument with a loved one. Tonight: Whatever pleases you.

Ask the Guys

Dear Classified Guys,
My husband and I are both dog lovers, but our son took to liking cats. Despite our best efforts to convert him, he always wanted a feline friend. Last year for his birthday, we broke down and gave him a cat named Sparky as a gift. Immediately, they were buddies. Although Sparky lived inside, my son would take him outside for a walk on a leash. One day while out, my son tripped on the curb and fell, accidentally letting go of the leash. By the time he picked himself up, Sparky had run off. I thought a neighbor or someone would have spotted the cat running with a leash in tow, but no one saw him. I've taken out several classified ads and posted signs around town, but no luck. This is totally devastating to our son and I'm a wreck seeing him so sad. Is there anything else you can suggest to locate Sparky or help my son cope. He's feeling very guilty about dropping the leash.

Carry: It's tragic anytime a pet is lost from its owners. You're on the right track by posting signs in the area, talking with neighbors and taking out a classified ad. The more people that know Sparky is lost, the better your chances are for finding him.

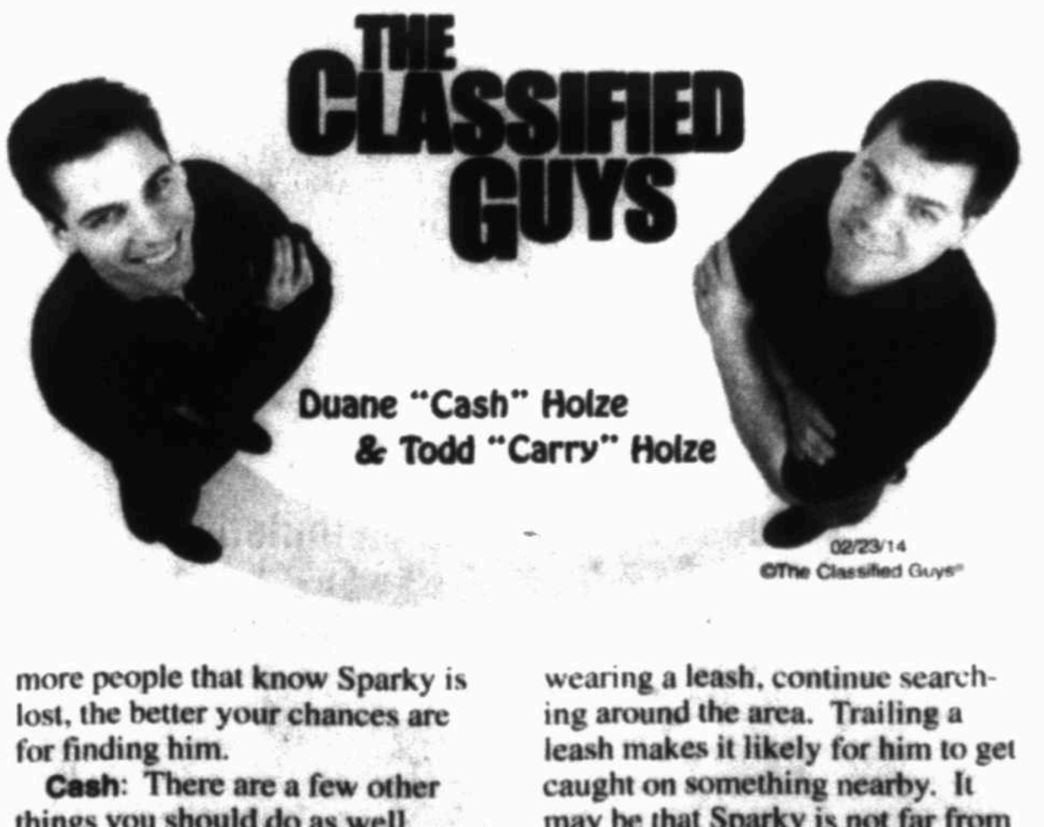
Cash: There are a few other things you should do as well. First, continue reading the classified ads. It's common for people to take out their own ad when they find a lost animal and not realize you placed one.

Carry: Also, check with the animal shelters in the area and leave them one of your flyers. Sometimes lost animals are found and brought to them. And be sure to check back frequently as they can get busy and may not recognize your cat.

Cash: Since Sparky was lost wearing a leash, continue searching around the area. Trailing a leash makes it likely for him to get caught on something nearby. It may be that Sparky is not far from home and just needs to be found.

Carry: As for your son, dealing with the grief of losing the cat will be difficult, and unfortunately, there is no quick fix. It's important you get him to talk about what happened. He needs to express his grief. Eventually, he may come to understand that accidents can happen.

Cash: And remember to never give up hope. Sometimes cats have a unique way of showing up when you least expect them.



Fast Facts

Weather Conditions

Most cat lovers agree that having a feline friend can enhance your household. However, there's much debate on whether cats should live inside or outside. According to leading animal associations, the average lifespan of an indoor cat is about 14 to 18 years. Keeping them indoors protects the animal from many diseases and dangers from other predatory animals. Although an outdoor cat can help with controlling mice, rats or other rodents, their life span averages only 3 to 5 years.

Dare to Compare

Cats and people have a lot in common. We each have a distinct look and personality. And let's face it, who doesn't enjoy a good nap in the sun? But those traits are just the beginning. We each have a unique fingerprint as well. However, a cat's "fingerprint" is on their nose! That's right. Each of the more than 75 million cats around today have ridges on their nose that make them completely unique from every other cat. The only question is: how do you get their noseprint?

Packed Tight

My friends often make fun of me for how much I keep in my purse, but I'm absolutely lost without it. That's why I was devastated when I left it on the train the other day. Fortunately, a young man called to tell me he found it.

When I went to his house, he handed me a plastic garbage bag. I could see it had my empty purse and all of it's contents loosely tossed about inside it.

Realizing I was rather upset, he quickly tried to explain, "I had to empty your purse to find your phone number." Sounding desperate, he continued, "And no matter how hard I tried, I couldn't get all of your stuff to fit back in!"
