No council meeting Tuesday

The Big Spring City Council will not meet this week, but will meet Tuesday, Nov. 12.

The council meets on the second and fourth Tuesday of each month, according to the city charter.

Since October had five Tuesdays, there will be three weeks instead of the usual two between the last and next council meetings.

City crews plan shutoff

City water crews will be shutting off water to a portion of the city near the Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf.

Water service will be interrupted from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Huggins from Sixth Street to Simler, and on Simler from Warehouse Road to Avenue B.

The purpose of the interruption is to change a valve in the waterline, according to city reports.

New polling place at Knott

Knott residents voting in Tuesday's amendment election will cast their ballots at the volunteer fire station in West Knott, Larry Shaw said today. In previous elections, Knott voters had cast ballots at the community center.

HC official urges voters to say yes to Proposition 13

SPECIAL TO THE HERALD

A Howard College official is urging area voters to vote yes to Proposition 13 when they go to the polls Tuesday.

"Texas voters will be given a rare opportunity when they go to the polls for the Nov. 5 general election: They will have a second chance to keep giving needy college students an even chance," said Ann Duncan, Director of Financial Aid at Howard College.

Proposition 13, if passed, would allow the state to continue to provide education loans to college

"This is not a matter of starting a new program. Rather, it is a matter of continuing the highly successful and efficient Hinson-Hazlewood College Student Loan Program."

Ann Duncan

students. An awkwardly worded version of this same proposed amendment narrowly failed to pass in a statewide election last August. It has been restated — and reinstated for voter consideration.

"This is not a matter of starting a new program. Rather, it is a matter of continuing the highly successful and efficient Hinson-Hazlewood College Student Loan Program," said Duncan.

The quarter-century-old program has provided aid to more than 200,000 young Texans by making available loans totaling some $580 million, Duncan said.

"The problem is, the program is so popular — and so needed as the cost for a college education continues to rise — that almost all of its funds are committed. Without additional financial resources, the fund could dry up by March, 1992," Duncan added.

"Providing additional funds for the Hinson-Hazlewood College Student Loan Program does not mean taking money out of the taxpayers' pockets. Quite to the contrary, the self-supporting Hinson-Hazlewood program is operated at no cost to the taxpayer."

It does, however, require passage of a constitutional amendment that would allow the Texas Legislature to authorize the Texas Higher Education Coordinating

Kollege for Kids teaches creativity

BEAUMONT (AP) — More than 135 children in the Beaumont area forego Saturday cartoons each week for a little extra schooling.

These gifted and talented students, ages 6 to 14, truck off to college — Kollege for Kids, that is.

Lamar University sponsors Kollege for Kids, a program that teaches children imaginative thinking and problem solving by removing them from the typical public school atmosphere.

"The traditional classroom setting in this program is a forgotten thing," said Kay Allen, a first-grade teacher. "Creative thinking and expression are encouraged, and these methods encourage a lot of problem solving and higher thinking."

Ms. Allen, who teaches a class on dinosaurs, said the main thing children learn is how to use imagination and creativity to solve school work problems.

Sessions offer instruction in topics such as logic, graphing, guitar, math, Spanish, sign language, spontaneous writing, psychology, video camera operation, art, and creative word usage.

Area teachers come to the Lamar Education Center to teach the Saturday morning classes each six-week session.

The program is an extension of the Gifted Child Center at the university. The center's director, Dorothy Sisk, said the sessions aim to help gifted and talented students improve in their regular studies.

The concept has proven to be quite popular.

More than 135 children are participating in this fall's session, said director Tia Webb. Some come to Beaumont from as far away as Woodville, nearly 100 miles away.

Debra Goodman Thomas of Beaumont, who has two children in the program, said it's helped her daughter increase her vocabulary.

"I've been really impressed with the program," Mrs. Thomas said. "It enhances a lot of what they get in public schools, and I like that."

Ms. Webb, a Nederland kindergarten teacher, said the success of the program's teaching methods helped the academic enrichment program grow since its start in the spring.

"I'm pleased to say that we've not only increased the number of courses that we offer, but we also have more students enrolled," Ms. Webb said.

In talks, Israelis find Palestinians warm, Syrians icy

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Arch-enemies Israel and Syria concluded a historic round of direct talks on a divisive note today, a sharp contrast with the groundbreaking initial meeting between Israeli and Palestinian officials.

Israel's five hours of talks with Syria, which started late Sunday after much diplomatic wrangling, were characterized as frustrating by the Israelis although the parties agreed to meet again.

Syrian Foreign Minister Farouk al-Sharaa said today the Israelis had been intransigent, speaking "empty words about peace" while refusing to discuss territorial concessions. He said the Israelis did all they could "to make the peace conference and the talks a waste of time."

"The Israelis as a people desire peace," al-Sharaa told reporters. "But the government is a special case. It is more hawkish, more intransigent than its people."

The tenor of Sunday's talks between Palestinians and Israelis was amicable and both sides said they hoped to begin serious negotiations on such issues as Palestinian autonomy within days or weeks.

The Israelis also met Sunday with the Lebanese and Jordanians.

The Israelis agreed to hold further direct talks with all four Arab parties, but left unresolved the question of where and when. Israeli officials said the Lebanese even in-

Israeli Middle East Peace Conference delegate Yosef Ben-Aharon tells reporters in Madrid early Monday that talks between Israel and Syria have broken off. The meeting lasted five hours with the Syrians rejecting every Israeli offer, Ben-Aharon said.

licated the talks might not resume for a few months.

According to the Israelis, Syria insisted that contacts over the short term be made through U.S. intermediaries. By contrast, Jordan and the Palestinians agreed to direct contacts with Israel in negotiating further talks.

There had been indications on Sunday that further contacts could occur in Madrid today, but the Israeli delegation announced plans to leave this afternoon.

The architect of the talks, Secretary of State James A. Baker III, left Sunday. Israeli negotiators said the Syrians, whom they were meeting face to face for the first time in 43 years, refused to budge from their insistence on a full Israeli withdrawal from occupied territory.

The Israelis said every suggestion they raised was flatly rejected. Syria's chief negotiator, Muafaq Alaf, likewise complained that Israel refused to budge on its resistance to territorial concessions.

But the mere fact that the Madrid peace conference reached a second round, with Israelis and Palestinians talking across the negotiating table as equals for the first time, was a U.S. diplomatic triumph.

"The bottom line is, the direct face-to-face negotiations have begun," Baker said before flying home.

Hanan Ashrawi, the Palestinian spokeswoman, said Baker would not have left unless he felt he had set the wheels in motion.

She said the Israelis and Palestinians might resume negotiations in two to three weeks. Israel's deputy foreign minister, Benjamin Netanyahu, didn't set a time for resuming negotiations. Israel agreed to a U.S. request to allow complete freedom of movement in Israeli-controlled territory for members of the Palestinian negotiating team, Israeli officials said.

State office opens probe

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer

Officials from the Texas Attorney General's Office are collecting information for their probe into 25 allegations of police officer misconduct.

The Attorney General's Office was asked, through District Attorney Rick Hamby, to investigate the allegations, but did not confer with city officials during this visit, said City Manager Hal Boyd. "They picked up over 5,000 sheets of copy, but that's about all we know."

"I have not been contacted, nor have I spoken to anyone from the AG's office," said Mayor Max Green.

The information gathering is the first official act of the attorney general's office regarding the allegations against the police department.

The Texas Rangers office, which works in conjunction with the Attorney General's office, gathered the documents.

At the next city council meeting on Nov. 12, members will choose one of four possible consultants to advise city officials in regard to the management of the police department, according to council literature.

Council members also will give names and vote on candidates to man the citizen's review committee, which will work with the city and the police department to review these and any future allegations.

Governor honored by magazine

HOUSTON (AP) — Gov. Ann Richards is one of Glamour Magazine's "Women of the Year" for her role as a political leader.

"We just choose women who, throughout the year, have done exceptional things," a magazine spokeswoman said.

Former Vermont Gov. Madeleine Kunin, who served on an all-female advisory panel that nominated the winners, said Richards was a natural choice.

"She is just one of the role models for women in politics," Ms. Kunin said. "There are not too many members of that club — yet."

Carol Bellamy, a former New York municipal official also on the 29-member advisory panel, said since her election as governor last year, Richards has proved to be more than the national political unknown who gave a biting keynote address at the Democratic National Convention three years ago.

Group plans 18 houses

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — The donation of an entire city block has brought Members of Habitat for Humanity, a group that builds houses for needy families, a step closer to their dream of constructing a large housing development.

About 50 people attended Sunday's dedication of the land, where the organization proposes to build 18 houses.

A widowed Beaumont woman, Gloria Allan, donated the property to two Catholic nuns, Sisters Anne Finnerty and Monica Carroll of the Holy Spirit Convent in San Antonio. The nuns in turn donated the land to Habitat.

"When we got the property, we didn't know Habitat for Humanity was active here," Sister Carroll said. "When Sister Anne and I came to look at it, we dreamed of houses. I know that 18 houses will be built here and very soon. It speaks to me of the graciousness and providence of God."

Grocery store clerk killed

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — An employee was killed at a grocery store across the street from the San Angelo Police Department.

The store manager found Donald James Huisenga Jr., 38, face down in the cashier's box early Sunday. Police reports say the clerk had been bleeding profusely.

The slaying occurred some time between midnight Saturday and shortly after 2 a.m. Sunday, police said.

Colored cotton increases return for farmers

LUBBOCK (AP) — Call it agricultural fashion: colored cotton grown specially for non-dyed jeans.

South Plains crops are capitalizing this year on clothing whims. Several farmers are growing brown cotton, a preferred fiber for tan jeans, in a new project.

"We're excited about it. It yields about 80 percent of what we expect from white cotton. But we get a premium that makes the price about double that of regular cotton," said Eugene Bednarz, who farms near the communities of Slaton and Wilson.

"We're excited about it. It yields about 80 percent of what we expect from white cotton. But we get a premium that makes the price about double that of regular cotton."

Eugene Bednarz

Bednarz told the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal that some 40 growers in Texas planted the brown cotton on 1,200 acres this year. He is the state production coordinator.

"We're able to produce cotton with the preferable colors in this area," Bednarz said. "The color is exceptional, and they (the users) are really tickled about that."

Sally Fox, owner of Natural Cotton Colors Inc. at Wasco, Calif., is the entrepreneur and plant breeder behind the project. She contracts with farmers to grow the cotton from seed and the brown fiber is sent to the manufacturers. It is then used to make non-dyed tan jeans.

The project started on a 2-acre test plot in 1988 and was expanded to five growers last year. John and Henry Kveton of Abilene, 20 miles north of Lubbock, were the first to plant colored cotton.

Some farmers in Arizona also are participating in the project. "Colored cottons have been around for centuries," Bednarz said. "Some years ago, Ms. Fox improved the cottons through plant breeding to make them spinnable."

Seed from the wild plants has been used in public and private cotton-breeding programs for years, but usually to impart traits other than color. Ms. Fox initially studied colored cottons for insect resistance.

The cotton is spun into yarn at the American Cotton Growers denim mill at Littlefield.

EPA turns to smaller sites in Texas

HOUSTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency says it will be shifting its focus from the major pollution sites in Texas to the more obscure targets.

EPA officials said the agency will be looking at thousands of old landfills, chemical plants, transformer storage yards and other light industrial sites and small businesses that may be contaminated.

A total of 2,470 of these sites have been identified in Texas by the EPA.

However, most will probably be found to pose no health or environmental threat, said David Bary, a spokesman for the EPA's Region 6 office in Dallas, which runs the waste cleanup program in Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana.

Only a few are expected to end up on the Superfund list, a compilation of the nation's worst dump sites, Bary told the Houston Chronicle.

Bary said the EPA must establish priorities and deal first with sites that it believes constitute an "imminent and substantial danger" to health or the environment.

Superfund has collected more than $4 billion in cleanup costs from waste disposers or contributors and has taken emergency cleanup action on some 2,600 sites nationwide. It has treated or properly disposed of enough contaminated soil and debris to cover a football field a mile high, and collected more than 1 billion gallons of liquid hazardous waste, an agency spokesman said.

The workload that lies ahead for Region 6 is daunting. The EPA knows of about 4,300 sites in the five-state area that must be evaluated, Bary said.

Names in the news

Jilted Hill?

NEW YORK (AP) — Supreme Court Justice Clarence Thomas' wife says Anita Hill accused him of sexual harassment because she was in love with him and "never got what she wanted."

Virginia Thomas also said faith helped her and Thomas through his stormy Senate confirmation hearings.

"It was spiritual warfare," Mrs.

Thomas said in People magazine. "Good versus evil. . . We shut the kitchen blinds and turned on Christian praise music to survive the worst days."

Mrs. Thomas said she believes Hill's allegations were "obviously political" because of their timing. Hill claimed during the confirmation process that Thomas harassed her when she worked for him in the early 1980s.

Back to work

RADNOR, Pa. (AP) — Johnny Carson already is working on one of his first post-"Tonight Show" projects — a TV special on political humor.

It will air as the 1992 presidential campaign starts, he said in TV Guide. Carson steps down as host of "The Tonight Show" in May.

The special will contain political humor "going all the way back to President Coolidge and will also have a lot of new material about current politicians," he said.

"After 35 years of daily work on the tube — five years with a daytime show and 30 years with 'Tonight' — I am looking forward to slowing down a bit and taking time to smell the flowers," he said. "But I am definitely not retiring."

Imelda celebrates her homecoming

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Former first lady Imelda Marcos drank champagne and sang songs to celebrate her return home today, nearly six years after the "people power revolution" drove her and her late husband into exile.

Thousands of people, including supporters and the curious, lined streets and gathered at the hotel where Mrs. Marcos was staying.

Crowds surged forward as her vehicle moved slowly along the crowded streets. She waved and smiled at the people, many of whom were wearing red, white and blue, the colors of the Marcos political movement. Several people in the crowd exploded firecrackers in celebration, and many of them chanted "Imelda! Imelda!" in what appeared to be a show of genuine affection.

Crowds of supporters jammed the lobby of the Plaza as she arrived, escorted by American private security guards brought by Mrs. Marcos.

Mrs. Marcos, 61, told supporters she had come home to unite the country and vindicate her husband, who died in exile in Hawaii in 1989.

Former Philippine first lady Imelda Marcos belts out a song after her arrival at a Manila hotel today. Marcos spent nearly six years in exile.

"Your smiles wiped away my pains and frustrations," she said upon arriving.

But Mrs. Marcos still has some problems ahead.

She faces tax fraud and other charges in connection with allegations she and her husband, former President Ferdinand Marcos, pillaged the treasury before their February 1986 exile.

The government says they stole up to $10 billion from the Philippine people during Marcos' 20-year rule.

But the criminal charges are not that serious, mainly technical violations of the tax code, and there is talk that Mrs. Marcos may return to politics.

Political surveys in the Philippines are notoriously unreliable, and it is unclear how much support remains for her. But national political power in the Philippines is based on a network of alliances with regional leaders, many of whom were closely associated with Marcos for 20 years.

If a significant number of them throw their support to Marcos' widow, then she could become a major political force.

Mrs. Marcos arrived on a chartered Boeing 747 from Hawaii with 250 supporters, staff and journalists. She booked the $2,000-a-night Imperial Suite at the luxurious Philippine Plaza Hotel for herself, and about 60 others rooms for a week, hotel staff said.

As Mrs. Marcos' plane neared Manila, she sipped champagne and dabbed some behind her ear and those of her supporters for good luck.

Bomb planted under operating room

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — An IRA bomb that killed two people and injured 10 at a Belfast hospital was planted under an operating room, Britain's senior official for Northern Ireland says.

But the Irish Republican Army said it was not targeting the hospital's medical facilities and that the bomb was placed in a restricted military zone — a bar in the military wing of Musgrave Park Hospital.

The explosion Saturday blew out walls, knocked down ceilings and a staircase and destroyed an operating room. In the newly opened children's wing, shattered glass, debris and damaged toys littered the floors.

The two dead were identified as soldiers who had been working in an office near the bar, where people were watching a rugby match on television.

Seven others in the military wing and three in the civilian wing were injured. They included a 4-month-old girl who suffered smoke inhalation and a 5-year-old girl who was slightly burned.

"Where that bomb was placed, was inevitably going to do extreme damage to the civilian side," Needham said. "That really is sinking to the pits."

Chinese hail Baker's planned visit

BEIJING (AP) — China today hailed Secretary of State James A. Baker III's forthcoming visit this month as an "important event" in the two countries' relations, which are at their lowest level since ties were restored in 1979.

China had long sought the visit as the United States lagged conspicuously behind the other major industrialized nations in re-establishing high-level contacts, halted when the army fired on pro-democracy protesters in 1989.

Japan, Britain and Italy sent their prime ministers to Beijing this year; Spain and France sent their foreign ministers. Baker will be the highest level U.S. official to visit China since President Bush traveled here in early 1989.

Most Western countries remain dissatisfied with China's human rights record, but nowhere has China come in for a heavier bashing than in Washington, where Congress has criticized its missile sales, nuclear technology transfers, trade barriers, exports of prison-made goods and inadequate copyright protection.

Gates confirmation likely this week

WASHINGTON (AP) — Robert Gates is headed for virtually certain confirmation this week as CIA director, but he faces challenges and scrutiny in a job that may be tougher than the Senate examination he has undergone.

If approved by the Senate on Tuesday, Gates will take command of an agency that has become accustomed to ever-increasing budgets, yet now faces cuts of up to 25 percent in the next two to three years.

The nominee, a career specialist in Soviet affairs, also will have to reshape America's intelligence apparatus to focus away from Moscow's military and on to entirely different threats: economic espionage, terrorism, Third World political instability.

And Gates will do all of this under the eyes of a Congress that still feels substantial jitters about his past.

"His credibility has been damaged," said Rep. Dave McCurdy, D-Okla., chairman of the House Intelligence Committee.

Nader opposes hike in postal rates

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer advocate Ralph Nader says any more increases in postal rates are unjustified and is urging the Postal Service to reject any rate-hike attempts.

"The 29-cent first-class stamp is already too expensive, and any additional increase is totally unjustified," Nader said in a statement released Sunday.

The board of governors last year applied for a five-cent hike in the cost of a first-class stamp, raising the cost to 30 cents. But the independent Postal Rate Commission approved only four cents as part of a complex package that affected virtually all classes of mail. Those increases took effect in February.

Since then, the Postal Service has asked the rate commission twice to reconsider its decision and grant it the extra penny, saying it would lose $800 million without it.

However, the rate commission rejected that proposal both times.

Five presidents meet for library dedication

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush is leading the tributes at the dedication of Ronald Reagan's new library in Simi Valley, Calif., an event that will bring together five American presidents for the first time.

Bush was joining his four immediate predecessors — Richard Nixon, Gerald Ford, Jimmy Carter and Reagan — at the ceremonial opening of the $70 million Reagan Presidential Library and Center today.

Secretary of State James A. Baker III, just back from the Middle East peace conference in Madrid, also planned to fly to California to honor the man he served as White House chief of staff and treasury secretary.

Carter missed last year's inaugural of the Nixon library in Yorba Linda, Calif., which the other presidents attended, but he returned from election-monitoring duties in Zambia to be on hand this time. Reagan helped dedicate Carter's library in Atlanta in 1985.

"I think it's proper that all the presidents be there and I think it's going to be a very nice event," Bush said Sunday. He praised Carter's "extraordinary effort to be there."

The Reagan facility, built with private donations, already houses 55 million documents, a miniature White House, a replica of the Oval Office and a three-ton chunk of the Berlin Wall. It is the nation's tenth presidential library.

Who is to decide what a "quality life" entails? Who has the right to play God with the lives of others? Jack Kevorkian thinks he does.

Although Kevorkian holds the title of "doctor," it is difficult to see how this man is one who "heals or mends." Kevorkian is the inventor of the so-called "suicide machine."

What looks like a harmless intravenous feeding tube is actually an instrument of death.

By combining several potent drugs, a waiting patient has only to push a button to administer a lethal dose to end his life.

Death comes quickly.

Kevorkian thinks he is an angel of mercy.

In reality, his is an ugly philosophy, repugnant to the beauty and dignity of human life.

Kevorkian is no quiet bystander, even if he wants society to think he is.

He actually allows and encourages suicides to occur through his "assistance."

What doctor of medicine could possibly believe it is morally right to cure his patient by killing the patient?

Treat all companies fairly

Getting more miles to the gallon is a must if America is to reduce its dependence on foreign oil. It's also a necessity in order to cut harmful carbon dioxide emissions. Yet that doesn't mean fuel efficiency legislation now before Congress is the way to accomplish that goal.

Congress is considering a bill introduced by Sen. Richard Bryan, D-Nev., that orders each car manufacturer to raise its Corporate Average Fuel Economy standard 40 percent by model year 2001. Now all car manufacturers must meet a CAFE standard of a 27.5 mpg across their model lines or else face significant penalties.

Detroit is doing the predictable song and dance against the bill. This is nothing new. Car manufacturers said they couldn't meet CAFE standards when they were introduced in the '70s, but they did.

But what really should concern people about the bill is the way it mandates fuel-efficiency standards to increase. Instead of setting one industrywide standard, as is now the case, it would vary the standard by manufacturer. The percentage increase would be based on each manufacturer's current CAFE figure.

As a result, some manufacturers would have to meet a CAFE standard of 45 mpg; other manufacturers, which have been less diligent on working on fuel efficiency, would only have to meet a 33 mpg standard.

Varying CAFE standards this way just isn't fair. It would reward companies that have done the least to make their cars more fuel efficient.

Higher CAFE standards are needed. . . . Let Congress go back to the drawing board and come up with fuel-efficiency legislation that increases CAFE standards but that treats all auto manufacturers fairly.

Time to cut out pork barrel

President Bush and Congress should take firm, prompt action to get the economy moving again. There is a lot of unhappiness out there and compounding that unhappiness is the prospect that things might not improve as soon as expected.

Unfortunately, economic recovery efforts have been held up in Washington by the long-running dispute between the White House and Congress over the best cure for the lingering recession. The White House, with much justification, emphasizes a cut in the capital gains tax; many in Congress, also with reason, focus on income tax relief for middle-income people. And yet the fact is that we need both of these reductions.

And yet any such moves will, in the long run, accomplish nothing if they are not accompanied by offsetting revenue increases elsewhere and/or cuts in spending.

So barring major cutbacks in government programs, any tax cut for middle-income citizens would have to be paired with an increase in the rates for the wealthy. But that would largely offset the benefits from the aforementioned reduction in the capital gains levy. So we can only hope that President Bush has the political clout, and the public support, to convince Congress to summon the wisdom and courage to cut into the out-of-control pork barrel and entitlement programs.

A lynch mob that won't go home

James J. Kilpatrick

WASHINGTON — In the aftermath of the hearings on Judge Clarence Thomas, we are witnessing an atmosphere of virulence beyond anything I can recall in recent years. A poisonous smog has settled. Thomas has now been sworn in as an associate justice of the Supreme Court, but his enemies won't let go.

This is unlike Washington. The unrelenting hostility to Thomas violates all the canons of civility and protocol by which the capital lives. Grudges are expensive. At the centers of power one cannot afford to keep them long. When the Senate rejected Robert Bork four years ago, the wounds were deep and painful, but once the vote was taken the smoke of battle lifted and the city went on about its business.

This is different. It is as if some long-festering boil on the body politic had been lanced. All the pus has erupted. Old infections bubble up. Ted Kennedy goes to Massachusetts publicly to confess his sins. In Wyoming, Alan Simpson says mea culpa, mea culpa, my fault, my fault.

This city serves as headquarters, or at least as rallying ground, for resurgent, militant feminism. The major black organizations are here. The principal news media are here. Professional, full-time advocates of civil rights are here. These are talented people, highly paid. They lost in the Senate, and they bitterly hate to lose. A spirit of vindictiveness animates them now.

Hendrik Hertzberg, Washington diarist for The New Republic, spouted venom in his dispatch for Nov. 4. Thomas "has forfeited his honor and besmirched his country," Thomas conspired in "a deliberate lie." Thomas embraced a "poisonous accusation" against Anita Hill. Thomas displayed "a coarse contempt for the very concept of evidence."

That last charge is of interest. In his uncontained fury Hertzberg asserts that Hill's veracity was "indisputably proved" by the supportive testimony of four persons in whom she had confided a decade ago. Bosh! The testimony proved nothing. It was "evidence" of the flimsiest kind.

The four witnesses testified — we may assume they testified truthfully — that Anita Hill told them certain things. Asked for independent corroboration, each of the four confessed to having none. All they knew was what Hill told them.

Hertzberg recalls the strange case of Tawana Brawley, and attempts to fashion a parallel. The attempt fails. Brawley is the black girl who faked a story several years ago of being kidnapped and abused by whites. Comparing Thomas to Brawley, Hertzberg says that Brawley "began with a relatively small lie." Then the lie grew, as she sought to distract attention from its inconsistencies. Finally the small lie became a big lie, as outsiders applied pressure. In the end "an entire community was riven by racial bitterness and demagoguery."

The supposed parallel might with equal application be reversed. More than half the country, according to polls of public opinion, believes that Anita Hill, not Clarence Thomas, is the "Tawana Brawley" of this affair.

It is entirely plausible that in a conscious or subconscious effort to claim a spotlight, to be the object of sympathy and attention, Hill long ago embroidered a petty incident. She tells four friends, adding stitches. Poor Anita! He said that? He really did? The creep! How can you stand to be near him? Anita becomes an object of compassion. She enjoys the solicitude. Curiously, when Thomas is nominated for the Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, the most powerful of all the circuit courts, she says nothing.

Now Thomas is nominated for the high court. Rumors of her confidences begin to circulate. The four friends are talking. The FBI calls. The little lie, the small embroidery, is getting huge. She proposes to tell her tale to the committee, but on condition: She cannot be identified. Chairman Joe Biden refuses; he will not tolerate a shot from ambush. Calamity ensues. Sir Walter Scott said it all: "Oh, what a tangled web we weave, when first we practice to deceive!"

I don't know that it happened that way. No one knows but Anita Hill. The Senate disbelieved her 52-48. May we have an armistice? Let us stop the bloodshed!

Little balls in hopper solve nothing

By BETTY JOHANSEN
Copy Editor

Once upon a time, in our liberated world, a brilliant woman executive met and married a gorgeous hunk. Her hunk wasn't much inclined to work, but that was OK because she made so much money. So the groom passed his days in leisure, spending her money.

He spent so much that soon the couple was in financial trouble. The wife began to worry and threatened to cut up the credit cards. So her crafty hunk went out and "bought" her an expensive sports car. She was thrilled! And their finances were more burdened than ever.

That's when she hit on a solution to her money worries. She announced to the large corporation she headed that she was instituting a lottery to generate extra funds. Then her husband could buy the yacht he had his heart set on, and they could keep their credit cards.

Normal people, I think, would have cut back on spending to resolve a problem like that, but not this fictional couple. And not some Texas legislators.

In a comment for Citizen magazine, Oct. 1991, State Rep. John Carona, Dallas, said, "The real debate centers around runaway spending, not the lottery. The lottery is merely setting the stage for a much broader agenda. The lottery is another device by which state government can continue to feed and grow in the same addictive pattern of the past."

Nobody, not even Ann Richards, claims a lottery would put off a state income tax permanently. In "Texas Town Meeting: The Lottery," aired on KMID-TV last Tuesday night, Bernard Weinstein of the Center for Economic Development said, "But regardless of whether the lottery passes, the revenue needs of this state are so enormous that we're going to be looking at an income tax in the next two to three years. And every member of the legislature knows that. The governor knows that. . . . And we've got to face up to that fact."

I dread the idea of a state income tax. Another deduction from my meager paycheck would be a real hardship, and I have no inclination to waste money gambling on the lottery. So it seems I would be smart to support the lottery and hope for its phenomenal success. But I've been a Texan all my life and on Tuesday I want to vote for Texas' best interests, because, in the end, what's best for Texas is best for Texans.

On the TV special, Jim Moore of Sacramento, in presenting the lottery situation in California said, "Thirty-four states now have lotteries. They also have complicated government problems. And putting little numbered balls in a hopper has yet to solve a one of them."

Here are some of the reasons I oppose a lottery in Texas:

- Gambling is inefficient and unreliable. The numbers vary, but generally states receive thirty-something percent of lottery money with around 50 percent going to players and the rest to support the game. Income depends on the whim of the players; if participation lags, the state gets less money. And more money goes to promotion.
- According to U.S. News & World Report, Sept. 19, 1988, 34 percent of ticket sales in California, by law, go to education. "Bill Honig, California's superintendent of public schools, goes so far as to say his schools would have been better off without the lottery."
- Because people have a perception that education is "sitting on a pile of dough," it is difficult to get funding from the regular, (reliable) budget.
- Legalized gambling weakens the moral fabric of society. Time magazine, July 10, 1989, reported, "Legal gambling also prompts more illegal wagering . . . the illegal games usually flourish alongside the legal ones and sometimes even piggyback on them."

The book "When Luck Runs Out" agrees that " . . . there has been a great expansion in legal gambling throughout the country, and with it, an inevitable increase in the number of compulsive gamblers."

A related concern comes from "Texas Town Meeting," which reported that Louisiana commercial vendors noted a 30 percent increase in grocery and gas sales after they began selling lottery tickets. One of the finest men I've ever known was in the grocery business for decades, but the time came when he could not remain competitive without selling beer. His conscience would not let him sell beer, so he had to give up his lifelong livelihood.

Now, vendors are being put in the same situation regarding lottery tickets. I deeply resent a law that makes it necessary for a person to violate his conscience in order to stay in business.

- A mind is a terrible thing to waste. In the Time article, Edward Stanek, commissioner of the Iowa lottery, said he considers a lottery not gambling, but entertainment. Players "can spend $1 and then spend the rest of the week dreaming what they would do if they actually won."
- Wonderful! Now we can spend 30 hours a week, according to a recent Associated Press story, sitting in front of the mindless drivel generated by television producers, and the rest of our time dreaming how to blow an imaginary fortune. It seems to me there must be more constructive uses for our minds.
- George F. Will wrote in Newsweek, May 8, 1989: "States spend $200 million advertising their lotteries, creating and inflaming gamblers . . . Government is not ineffective when the task is to turn citizens into lemmings."
- What are lemmings? Rodents that multiply by the millions. When the population exceeds the food supply, a vast migration begins. They move across country, eating and being eaten by everything in their path.
- When they reach the ocean, they plunge in to swim across, their vision being too poor to realize they can't make it. And so, all perish.
- It's not often I can say this, but our legislators have been wise in defeating the lottery year after year. Now they have given the decision to us. I hope we'll prove to be as wise.

Seniors are smiling, but biases continue

DALE SUMMIT, Pa. (AP) — A satisfied "McGranny" plays a featured role in McDonald's new advertising campaign, but some researchers say her sweet smile masks biases that many older workers still face in the food industry.

Despite the graying of the population and the increased use of older workers, many service industry managers refuse to shake unfounded biases toward them, according to research done at the Florida State and Penn State universities.

"They know some of the positive factors about older workers, but yet they still decide against them," said Ray Kavanaugh, director of technology for the American Hotel and Motel Association in Lansing, Mich.

Managers in the hotel and restaurant business often assume that older workers are clumsy, set in their ways and ill-prepared for promotions, said Kavanaugh, formerly with Florida State.

"Actually, it's the opposite," said Fred DeMicco, an assistant professor in Penn State's school of hotel, restaurant and institutional management.

McDonald's, founded in 1955 by then-52-year-old Ray Kroc, seems to lead the way in hiring older workers, according to a labor economist with the American Association for Retired Persons.

The 8,600-restaurant chain employs 5,000 to 6,000 people over 50 nationwide, the company said, and its television commercials tout its investment in the elderly. In recent commercials, which seem like miniseries complete with acting credits at the end, at least one features a "McGranny."

But the advertising campaign may have sent a message validating the low pay and few responsibilities given to most fast-food restaurant employees, said the AARP's Judy Hushbeck.

"There are a lot of people who enjoy meeting the people and work just for the social aspect of it," she said. "But take someone who has been reasonably well paid (at previous jobs) and have them do the work teen-agers are doing for minimum wage."

At its suburban Chicago headquarters, McDonald's runs a "McMasters" program to train older workers for all jobs, including management positions.

While "most 65-year-olds are not going to be on the fast track," Hushbeck said, older workers who want to advance face prejudices.

"Studies going back to the 1950s show bias toward older workers," DeMicco said. "One of the (recent) studies found more bias on the part of managers than non-management. I find that very, very disturbing."

His work did not involve McDonald's in particular, but the researchers said there were potential problems throughout the food and hotel industry.

Older workers are considered more reliable, safer and easier to train, DeMicco said. However, the Penn State-Florida State study of juniors in the schools' hospitality departments found most students would choose younger workers for promotions.

"We were comparing attitudes to known facts about older workers, and we were still getting these responses," Kavanaugh said.

The researchers found that of 200 people polled originally, 48 percent believed older people cooperate more than younger employees and 35 percent agreed older employees did better work.

Still, only 23 percent said they would promote the older worker if a younger worker up for the same job produced work of the same quality.

Paul Rittenhouse, the operator of four McDonald's restaurants around State College, Pa., said he finds his older workers setting examples for younger ones.

"They're some of my better workers," Rittenhouse said. "They give our younger workers a different outlook. Some have to try hard to keep up with them."

Blanchette Heaton, 61, of Lamar, Pa. poses inside a McDonald's in Dale Summit, Pa. According to the American Association for Retired Persons, McDonald's seems to be leading the way in hiring older workers.

SUMMARY OF PROPOSED CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS

For the November 5, 1991, Election
John Hannah, Jr., Secretary of State

This November, Texans will have the opportunity to vote on 13 proposed amendments to the Texas Constitution. To help you make informed decisions on these propositions, we present the following summaries of the proposed amendments. Below you will find the proposition as it will appear on the ballot followed by a brief description of the effect the proposition will have if it is passed.

Proposition 1:

"The constitutional amendment allowing home-rule cities with a population of 5,000 or less to amend their charters by popular vote."

Summary: A home-rule city is a city that is able to govern itself, generally through the actions of a city council or commission. To become a home-rule city, a city must have a population of at least 5,000, it must hold an election to become a home-rule city, and the measure must pass by a majority vote. Once a city becomes a home-rule city, it may adopt a charter, and this charter may be amended through an election every two years. However, under current law, if the population of a home-rule city falls below 5,000, the city is no longer allowed to amend its charter. If passed, this amendment would allow home-rule cities whose populations have fallen below 5,000 to continue to amend their charters through elections.

Proposition 2:

"The constitutional amendment mandating the repayment to the Department of Transportation of monies expended to assist the Texas Turnpike Authority in the construction, maintenance, and operation of turnpikes, toll roads, and toll bridges."

Summary: If passed, this amendment will allow the legislature to authorize the Texas Department of Transportation to spend money on turnpikes, toll roads, or toll bridges of the Texas Turnpike Authority. The Department of Transportation may use any available money that it has for this purpose. However, if the Department of Transportation uses money from the state highway fund, this money must be replaced by money collected by the Texas Turnpike Authority from tolls and turnpike revenue. Currently, the state is not allowed to use any public money to build or maintain toll roads or turnpikes.

Proposition 3:

"The constitutional amendment to authorize the legislature to further implement and enhance the administration of the veterans' housing assistance and land programs and to expand the investment authority of the Veterans' Land Board."

Summary: If passed, this amendment would ease the restrictions on how the Veterans' Land Board can invest money from the Veterans' Land Fund and the Veterans' Housing Assistance Fund. The board may invest any money that is not to be used for the payment of principal and interest on bonds, the purchase of lands, or the payment of expenses. In addition, the board is no longer limited to investing this money in bonds or securities of the federal government.

Proposition 4:

"The constitutional amendment authorizing the issuance of up to $1.1 billion in general obligation bonds for acquiring, constructing, or equipping new prisons or other punishment facilities to confine criminals, mental health and mental retardation institutions, and youth corrections institutions, for major repair or renovation of existing facilities of the institutions, and for the acquisition of, major repair to, or renovation of other facilities for use as state prisons or other punishment facilities."

Summary: If passed, this amendment will allow the state to issue up to $1.1 billion in general obligation bonds. The money from selling these bonds will be used to acquire, construct, or equip new prisons and substance abuse facilities, mental health and mental retardation institutions, and youth corrections institutions. This money will also be used to repair and renovate existing facilities. The bonds and interest on the bonds will be paid from the first money coming into the state treasury that is not set aside by the state constitution for other purposes.

Note: A general obligation bond is a bond that is repaid from the State's general revenue fund. Most of the money in this fund comes from state taxes and fees.

Proposition 5:

"The constitutional amendment authorizing the exemption for ad valorem taxes of certain property in an enterprise zone."

Summary: This amendment deals with property owned by an individual or organization that does business in an enterprise zone. If passed, this amendment would allow a county, a junior college district, or a municipality to exempt certain personal property from ad valorem taxation. To be exempt from this tax, the following conditions must be met: (1) the property must be acquired or brought into the state in an enterprise zone to be forwarded outside the state; (2) the property must be assembled, stored, repaired, maintained, manufactured, processed, or fabricated in the enterprise zone; (3) the property must be transported outside the state within 175 days after being acquired or brought into an enterprise zone; and (4) the person who acquired or brought the property into an enterprise zone is in a qualified business.

The purpose of this amendment is to encourage economic development in enterprise zones. Because some personal property will not be taxed, it will be less costly to operate a business in an enterprise zone.

Notes: An ad valorem tax is a tax imposed on the value of property. An enterprise zone is an area that has substantial poverty, unemployment, and economic distress. A qualified business is a business that is actively engaged in a new business in the enterprise zone or is expanding a business that is already active in the enterprise zone. "Enterprise zones" and "qualified businesses" are designated by the Texas Department of Commerce.

Proposition 6:

"The constitutional amendment creating the Texas Ethics Commission and authorizing the commission to recommend the salary for members of the legislature and the lieutenant governor, subject to voter approval, and to set the per diem for those officials, subject to a limit."

Summary: If passed, this amendment will create a Texas Ethics Commission that is established by the Texas Constitution. The commission will consist of eight appointed members. These members will be selected by the Governor, the Lieutenant Governor, and the Speaker of the House from lists of names submitted by legislators from each major political party. This commission can recommend the salary of the members of the legislature. It can also recommend that the salary of the Speaker of the House and the Lieutenant Governor be higher than the salary of the other members. If the commission recommends a change in salary, the voters of the state will be able to accept or reject the salary change at the next general election for state and county officers. If the voters approve the recommended salary, the salary will take effect on January 1st of the next odd-numbered year. If the voters reject the salary, the salaries would remain the same. In addition, the commission can set the per diem of the members of the legislature and of the Lieutenant Governor. This per diem could be raised or lowered every two years, as necessary. The commission will also have other powers and duties as provided by Senate Bill 1, 72nd Legislature, Regular Session (the ethics bill). Finally, this amendment provides that an increase in the Lieutenant Governor's salary will not disqualify a legislator from becoming Lieutenant Governor.

If this amendment does not pass, there will still be a Texas Ethics Commission that is established by statute. This commission could not set the per diem of the members of the legislature.

Note: A commission that is established by the Texas Constitution can only be repealed by the voters. A commission that is created by statute can be repealed by the legislature.

Proposition 7:

"The constitutional amendment to allow the board of trustees of a statewide public retirement system to invest the funds of the system in a manner that the board considers prudent."

Summary: If passed, this amendment will change the way in which the board of trustees of each statewide public retirement system can invest the system's funds. Currently, a board can only invest its retirement funds in securities (stocks, bonds, etc.). However, if this amendment passes, a board may invest its retirement funds in any way that it thinks is prudent.

Proposition 8:

"The constitutional amendment authorizing the voters of this state to consider state debt questions in the form of ballot propositions that must clearly describe the amounts, purposes, and sources of payment of the debt only after approval of the propositions by a two-thirds vote of each house of the legislature."

Summary: This amendment deals with the way that voters will vote on legislative action that would create a debt for the State. Currently, all propositions that create state debt must be approved by two-thirds of each house of the legislature and by a majority of voters during a constitutional amendment election. When these propositions are passed, they actually become part of the state constitution.

If passed, this proposition would still require propositions that create debt to be approved by a two-thirds vote of the legislature and a majority of the voters. However, when these propositions are passed, they will not become part of the state constitution. Instead, they will be enacted by statute. In addition, when the proposition is placed on the ballot, it must clearly describe the purpose of the debt, the cost of the debt, and how the debt will be repaid. The amount of the debt in the proposition can not be exceeded or renewed unless the proposition says that the debt can be exceeded or renewed.

Note: Creating a debt for the State means spending money that the State does not currently have. Selling bonds is one way that State debt is created.

Proposition 9:

"The constitutional amendment authorizing the commissioner of the General Land Office to issue patents for certain public free school land held in good faith under color of title for at least 50 years."

Summary: This amendment deals with lands that are technically owned by the state of Texas. In some cases, people have purchased or acquired this land from someone other than the State. While the State still technically owns this land, some people who purchased or acquired the land did not know that the land was owned by the state. From the time that these people purchased or acquired this land, they have believed that they are the legal owners.

If passed, this amendment will allow the Land Commissioner to give the legal title for this land (called public free school land) to certain people. A person is entitled to receive a legal title to this land if: (1) the land is surveyed public free school land; (2) the person could not gain the land's title under previous law; (3) when the person acquired the land, he or she did not know that the land was legally owned by the state and has believed that he or she has owned the land since January 1, 1941; (4) the person has a recorded deed on file in the county courthouse and has claimed the land for at least 50 years as of January 1, 1991; and (5) all taxes on the land, including any interest and penalties for late tax payments, have been paid for at least 50 years.

Note: Public free school fund land is owned by the State. Any revenue that this land generates (through sale, rent, etc.) is placed in the Permanent School Fund.

Proposition 10:

"The constitutional amendment authorizing the legislature to exempt from ad valorem taxes certain property of a nonprofit corporation that supplies water or provides wastewater service."

Summary: This amendment deals with property owned by a nonprofit corporation that supplies water or provides wastewater services. If passed, this amendment will allow the legislature to exempt property that is owned by these corporations from ad valorem taxes. In order for this property to be exempted, the nonprofit corporation must meet the following conditions: (1) the corporation's bylaws must say that, if the corporation stops operating, any leftover assets must be transferred to an organization that provides water supply, wastewater service, or both; (2) the leftover assets must be property that can be used for water supply and wastewater services.

Note: An ad valorem tax is a tax imposed on the value of property.

Proposition 11:

"The constitutional amendment authorizing a state lottery."

Summary: If passed, this amendment will allow the State to operate lotteries. The State would also be able to contract with other organizations that would operate lotteries on the State's behalf.

Proposition 12:

"The constitutional amendment to increase from 20 percent to 50 percent the percentage of Texas water development bonds previously authorized by Texas voters that may be issued for economically distressed areas."

Summary: This amendment deals with reallocating a percentage of the $500 million of Texas water development bonds that were approved by Texas voters in 1989. These bonds were to be issued to fund water supply, water quality, and flood control projects. Currently, the board is limited to issuing 20% of the $500 million (or $100 million) of these bonds to provide water and wastewater facilities to economically distressed areas of the state. If passed, this amendment will allow the board to issue up to 50% of the $500 million (or $250 million) of these bonds for this purpose.

Proposition 13:

"The constitutional amendment providing for the issuance of general obligation bonds not to exceed $300,000,000 to continue existing programs to provide educational loans to students, with repayments of student loans applied toward retirement of the bonds."

Summary: If passed, this amendment will allow the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board to issue up to $300 million in general obligation bonds. The money from selling these bonds will be used to finance educational loans to students. In the past, all bonds in this program have been retired through repayments from student borrowers, not the taxpayer.

Adele Stone, who turned 90 in May, answers the phone in her Co-op City apartment in New York. A computer-generated phone system calls her each morning to ask, "Are you OK?" The system may have saved Stone's life last year when she passed out in her empty bathtub.

System asks; are you ok?

NEW YORK (AP) — Adele Stone turned 90 in May. It's a milestone she might have missed if not for the computer-generated phone system that calls her apartment each morning to ask, "Are You OK?"

Most mornings Mrs. Stone just hangs up, an all-is-well signal to security officers monitoring the system at the huge Co-op City complex in the Bronx. But one morning last February it was not.

Mrs. Stone answered her daily call. Later when she went to take a shower she suddenly felt weak and crawled into the tub.

"I don't remember how long I was there and whether I did pass out," she said. "The next thing I knew a neighbor, who is a nurse, and the security people were there."

Co-op City police were alerted after Mrs. Stone missed the next day's morning call and four subsequent calls to her apartment. "We found her in the locked bathroom, inside the tub with no water. She had been there at least 20 hours," said Co-op City Sgt. John Reggio.

If not for the check-in system, chances are Mrs. Stone — who lives alone and has no living relatives — would not have been found for days. Instead she was rushed to a hospital, treated for dehydration and released.

"We like to think we had something to do with her turning 90," says Bill Schwarz, general manager of the Riverbay Corp., which operates the 300-acre complex that is home to some 55,000 people.

With an aging population and many elderly residents who, like Mrs. Stone, live alone, the Are You OK system provides an added layer of protection.

Designed in 1988 by St. Paul, Minn. businessman Bruce Johnson, owner of Northland Innovation Corp., Are You OK systems are on line at 120 sites in the United States and Canada.

It is primarily used by police and sheriffs' offices in cities and hamlets — from small towns like Osage, Iowa, with a population of 3,900 to Sun City, Ariz., with a senior population of about 85,000.

But is also increasingly popular with vertical cities like Co-op City and Rochdale Village in the borough of Queens.

Co-op City installed its system in September 1990 and regularly checks on 186 seniors. Spokesman Al Zezula said the co-op board realized the need after noticing that security police were being called daily to check on seniors.

"They'd get phone calls saying, 'I haven't seen Mrs. so-and-so in a couple of days. Can you check on her, please?'" Zezula says. "That's when we began to explore ways to prevent people from getting lost in this huge community of ours."

"The concept is simple," says Johnson. "It assumes you're OK if you're able to answer the telephone. When the computer calls and gets no answer police then go out and find out why."

Drug convicts released early

DALLAS (AP) — The public outrage about drugs and crime has not led to longer sentences for those convicted of drug offenses, state officials and parole statistics indicate.

"It doesn't make the old saw about 'crime doesn't pay' ring very true," said Tom Krampitz, executive director of the Texas District and County Attorneys Association.

"If I were a drug trafficker, I'd look at the cost-benefit analysis, and a few months in the pen isn't much of a deterrent. It's the cost of doing business."

Verlean Crow was convicted of dealing cocaine in Dallas, and prosecutors wanted him to spend several years behind bars.

Last June, the 47-year-old felon received a 15-year prison sentence on four counts of selling cocaine.

But like thousands of others convicted on drug offenses, Crow's sentence didn't mean much. He was paroled last month after serving only 18 months.

Crow's case isn't the exception in Texas — it's the rule, according to a study by The Dallas Morning News. Results of the study were published in the newspaper's Sunday editions.

The study involved 635 inmates released from state prisons during the week Sept. 9-13.

The problem has not gone unnoticed by state officials, who say the early releases are part of an overloaded criminal justice system that is constantly trying to make room for new inmates.

"In order for the prisons to accept more people, someone has to be released," said Raven Cazen, spokeswoman for the state Board of Pardons and Parole. "It doesn't surprise me that (drug offenders) are the first people getting released when you've got to consider that they're non-assaultive persons.

"I can't say they're the best (release prospects), but we're also looking at it from victims of violent crimes' point of view, and I'd say they posed the lesser threat to the community than someone who is a rapist, armed robber or serial killer," she said.

State law requires drug offenders to serve one-fourth of their sentence, but "good time" awards could allow someone sentenced to five years to become eligible for parole within six months.

Dallas Police Chief Bill Rathburn said he sees regular reminders of an imperfect legal system.

"That kind of an actual sentence served is not a deterrent to anybody."

Board to sell bonds that would generate up to $300 million for the program.

"Thousands of young men and women — from both low-income and middle-income families — would be adversely affected if Proposition 13 fails to pass," Duncan said. "Among the most adversely affected would be the very students who have been historically under-represented in higher education and who are being especially encouraged to think about and plan for college careers: African-Americans and Hispanics."

The Hinson-Hazelwood loan program makes available four types of loans: the Stafford (formerly Guaranteed) Student Loan, Supplemental Loans for Students, Health Education Assistance Loans and the College Access Loan.

Commercial lenders and other financial institutions also provide funds for college loans, but they do so at higher interest rates.

Historically, commercial lenders also tend to enter and exit the student loan market on the basis of economic conditions and profitability in processing loans.

Hinson-Hazelwood, however, has been a steady and much-needed source of funding throughout its 25-year existence, Duncan said. With cutbacks in federal student aid programs coupled with rising college education costs, demand for CAL and the other Hinson-Hazelwood loan programs has increased nearly five-fold in the past three years.

Middle-income families, served by the CAL program, would also be hard hit if Hinson-Hazelwood fails to be funded with the proposed new bond issue, she said.

"Voting 'yes' on Proposition 13 does not mean that taxpayers will have to pay for retiring the bonds. The bonded indebtedness will be covered by repayment of the loans by the students or their parents. Since the program's inception, no state funds have been used to repay student loan bonds," said Duncan.

"Additionally, the students and their families who have participated in the Hinson-Hazelwood loan program have compiled an enviable record for repayment. The program has an extraordinarily low 6 percent default rate, compared to a nationwide rate of 16 percent for similar programs."

Since 1965, the Hinson-Hazelwood program has produced $362 million in revenues through successful management of investment returns, federal subsidies and interest from loans.

While $287 million has been used to retire loan bonds, the remaining $75 million has provided funding for additional students loans beyond the state's original expectations.

"Beyond the dollars and cents, Texas has gained immeasurably from the thousands of students who were able to attend our state's colleges and universities by virtue of Hinson-Hazelwood loans," Duncan said.

"In addition to having enriched lives, those students have almost certainly become more productive citizens — and contributing taxpayers — as a result of that assistance at a time of special need," she added.

Zaire out of AIDS testing agents

KINSHASA, Zaire (AP) — In a city with one of the world's highest known AIDS rates, the main blood bank has run out of testing agents for the virus and some hospitals are dispensing untested blood.

"It's criminal. They are giving transfusions without knowing, and they know some of the blood is contaminated. But they have no choice. It's die now, or die later," said Dr. Manzila Tarande.

Manzila is the Zairean doctor left in charge of Project AIDS, a U.S.-funded and run research program until September, when American doctors fled amid domestic political turmoil.

Foreign governments and relief agencies had supplied AIDS testing kits and funds to hospitals in Kinshasa. But when they pulled their personnel out because of riots triggered by a mutiny by President Mobutu Sese Seko's poorly paid troops, the money and supplies went with them.

Soldiers have stolen much of the supplies the foreign aid organizations left behind, according to Dr. Pelagie Maholo, blood bank director of Mama Yemo Hospital, and Dr. Bernard Hody, chief of Doctors Without Borders-Zaire.

"When donors arrive we just ask them what blood group they are and take the blood. We have no facilities for testing it and no choice but to give it," lamented Dr. Oma Lok at Kalembe-Lembe Hospital, the city's main children's hospital.

Mama Yemo Hospital, the city's main hospital, hasn't been forced to give blood without testing it. "But it's a day-to-day affair. Each day we go from one place to another looking for someone who can give us the test agents," said Maholo.

Transfusions of infected blood is a major cause of AIDS in Zaire.

"I shudder to think what will happen if we have new riots. We certainly will have to give blood directly without testing it," Maholo said.

On Saturday, Mama Yemo hospital didn't even have enough blood for its normal operations. "We have 24 units. It's the same as having nothing," said Maholo.

A technician said the hospital normally provides blood for 40 transfusions daily, and supplies other hospitals in the city.

Maholo went on Zairean television and radio Saturday to appeal for donors.

McColgan, who won the world 10,000-meter champion at Tokyo in August, finished in 2:27:22.

Washington skins Oilers in overtime

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Washington Redskins found a way to stop the Houston Oilers' run-and-shoot offense: Keep Warren Moon and Co. on the sidelines.

The Redskins, the NFL's only unbeaten team, improved to 9-0 with a 16-13 overtime victory over the Oilers (7-2) on Sunday. Afterward, Washington coach Joe Gibbs rejoiced that his ball-control offense scheme worked.

"I think we had some good, long drives in there, which is what we were trying to do," Gibbs said. "Then at the end, it winds up getting close and we opened it up a bit. But we wanted to keep the ball."

They did. When the game was over, Washington had held the ball for 37:07, compared to 26:54 for Houston.

"It was a classic game and a disappointing loss," Houston coach Jack Pardee said. "We're both ball-control teams, and you can't waste series."

But other factors came into play, like making the most of opportunities.

"We moved the ball pretty well, but we didn't execute in some crucial situations, and then we had the turnovers," said Houston quarterback Warren Moon, whose 25-for-44, 250-yard effort was overshadowed by the interception he threw to Darrell Green, setting up Chip Lohmiller's 41-yard game-winning field goal with 4:01 gone in overtime.

Green and Lohmiller only had a chance to become heroes thanks to Houston's Ian Howfield, who missed a 33-yard attempt with one second left in regulation.

"It was elation," Green said of the missed kick. "We felt very positive going into overtime ... like we had a chance."

"You never know until it's over," Moon said. "Our kicker has had some problems lately, so you never know."

Because of Washington's ball-

WASHINGTON — Washington Redskins running back Gerald Riggs (37) is stopped by Houston Oilers cornerback Cris Dishman during third quarter action Sunday at RFK Stadium.

control strategy — an approach Pardee was forced to imitate in order to get his defensive unit some rest — the game turned into a defensive struggle that was decided by a few big plays.

Trailing 6-3 at the half, Washington took 9:04 to set up

Lohmiller's 20-yard field goal that tied the game with 20 seconds left in the third quarter. That drive was Washington's second-longest of the season — the longest came in the first quarter, with the Redskins using 10:36 to set up Lohmiller's 24-yard field goal.

Gibbs explained that but for injuries to starting offensive tackles Joe Jacoby and Jim Lachey, he might have kept the ball on the ground even more.

"But with (Russ) Grimm and (Mark) Adickes in there, I felt more comfortable passing," Gibbs said. "We were already thin there."

But they kept the ball on the ground long enough to open a 13-6 lead when Earnest Byner rumbled 23 yards for a touchdown with 14 minutes to go.

That score, too, was set up by a turnover: Defensive end Fred Stokes scooped up Lorenzo White's fumble at the Houston 31 two plays before Byner's touchdown.

But the Oilers, who had the ball for just 1:45 in the third quarter, finally got going with 5:04 left.

An interference call on Washington's Martin Mayhew gave the Oilers 24 yards from their own 37 to the Washington 39. Then Moon hit Drew Hill for 19 yards, and the Oilers methodically punched it in from there, capping the 10-play, 79-yard drive with a 1-yard touchdown run by White with 1:42 left.

The Oilers had a chance to win it when they recovered Brian Mitchell's fumble at the Washington 28 on the ensuing kickoff.

But Howfield, who missed three extra points in Houston's 35-3 win over Cincinnati last week, sailed his 33-yard attempt wide to the left to force the extra period.

Washington won the toss and got the ball in overtime. But the Redskins failed to get a first down and Kelly Goodburn was forced to punt. On Houston's second play, Green stepped in front of Haywood Jeffries, caught the ball and fell to the 31.

"Great players make great plays and Darrell Green is a great player," Gibbs said.

"Just as I threw the ball I got bumped a little bit, and Jeffries got bumped a little bit, and Green made the catch," Moon said.

Three runs by Byner, who carried 21 times for 112 yards, set up Lohmiller.

"Maybe the difference," Lohmiller said, "was the power of positive thinking."

Cowboys off to best start since 1986

IRVING (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys are off to their best start since 1986 and it hasn't hurt any to have played the Phoenix Cardinals twice.

In fact, Emmitt Smith puts on a happy face when he sees the Cardinals on the schedule.

Smith has scored nine touchdowns in his last three games against the Cardinals and got three more scores in a 27-7 victory on Sunday.

Dallas increased its record to 6-3, the club's best start since the 1986 team opened with the same mark.

Phoenix dropped to 4-6.

Smith scored twice on 3-yard runs and again on a 1-yard run. He scored twice earlier this season in a 17-9 Dallas victory at Tempe and made four touchdowns against Phoenix last December.

Smith said coach Jimmy Johnson gave the team a tough talk at halftime when Dallas led only 10-7.

Wide receiver Michael Irvin said he hasn't seen Johnson so mad since he played for him at the University of Miami.

Irvin said "that sounded like a threat so we stepped it up."

Smith will have to be hale and hearty for the Cowboys down the stretch drive. Backup Ricky Blake suffered a fractured right hip on the last play of the game and could be lost for the season.

Robert Williams blocked a Rich Camarillo punt on the Phoenix 38 in the third period and Smith scored on a dive from the one-yard line to put the Cardinals out of reach at 17-7.

Williams said "I just took off and the Cardinals got mixed up in their assignments. I was right there to block the punt and nobody touched me. I think they were looking for Ike Holt."

Johnson gave Williams a game ball for his efforts.

Phoenix coach Joe Bugel said errors killed his Cardinals whose only score came on a one-yard run by Johnny Johnson, who out rushed Smith with 89 yards.

"We had our opportunities but bad things, ugly things happened in critical situations," Bugel said.

It's no surprise why the Colts are so bad — they have not scored a touchdown in 53 possessions over 20 quarters.

Tonight, the New York Giants play in Philadelphia.

Dolphins 10, Colts 6
Mark Duper caught a 12-yard TD pass on Miami's first possession, and that was enough to win at the Hoosier Dome. Duper caught three passes for 64 yards and matched Nat Moore's team record of 7,547 receiving yards.

Indianapolis moved to midfield in the final two minutes, but turned the ball over on downs when Jeff George threw incomplete on fourth-and-5. The Dolphins (4-5) ran out the clock.

Falcons 17, 49ers 14
Michael Haynes caught a Hail Mary pass for a 44-yard touchdown with 1 second left as Atlanta stunned San Francisco. Haynes out-jumped seven other players in the end zone and grabbed Billy Joe Tolliver's lob.

The host Falcons (5-4) moved 80 yards in the last 53 seconds after the 49ers (4-5) went ahead on a 30-yard TD pass from Steve Bono to John Taylor. Bono took over after Steve Young, who earlier threw a 97-yard touchdown pass to Taylor, left with a strained left knee.

NFL Roundup

Atlanta, which won at San Francisco 39-34 three weeks ago, swept the two-game series from the 49ers for the first time since 1980.

Bengals 23, Browns 21
Cincinnati won for the first time this season when Cleveland kicker Matt Stover missed twice in the last two minutes.

Stover, who had made his previous 10 tries, hit the upright on a 47-yard attempt with 1:56 left. His 34-yard kick with one second remaining was blocked.

Boomer Esiason rallied the Bengals (1-8) from a 14-3 deficit with a pair of touchdown passes, and Jim Breech's 38-yard field goal early in the fourth quarter put the host team ahead.

Kevin Mack scored three touchdowns for the Browns (4-5), but fumbled at the Bengals' 16 with five minutes left.

Saints 24, Rams 17
Steve Walsh, subbing for the injured Bobby Hebert, threw for 269 yards and two touchdowns as New Orleans won at Anaheim Stadium.

The Saints bounced back from their only loss of the season, a 20-17 defeat by Chicago last week in which Hebert's right shoulder was hurt, to hold off Jim Everett and the Rams (3-6).

Vince Buck intercepted Everett's first pass of the game. He also picked off Everett's desperation throw into the end zone on the final play.

Bears 20, Lions 10
Jim Harbaugh sparked the Bears with two touchdown passes to Wendell Davis in the second half as Chicago rallied to win and take over the NFC Central lead.

Detroit and the Bears had not met while tied for first place since 1956. Playing in a minus-8 wind-chill factor at Soldier Field, the Lions (6-3) led 10-3 at halftime before Chicago (7-2) rallied.

Bills 22, Patriots 17
Thurman Thomas ran for 126 yards and Buffalo won its 16th straight game at Rich Stadium.

The Bills (8-1) could not pull away from New England (3-6). But three field goals by Buffalo's Scott Norwood and two misses by Jason Stauvrosky were the difference.

Jets 19, Packers 16
Pat Leahy atoned for a big miss early this season by kicking a 37-yard field goal with 5:20 left in overtime as New York won at home.

Chris Jacke tied a team record with a 53-yard field goal for Green Bay (2-7), but missed a 42-yard try in overtime. The Jets (5-4) won after recovering a fumbled punt by Vai Sikahema.

Vikings 28, Buccaneers 13
Terry Allen replaced the ineffective Herschel Walker and ran for a career-high 127 yards and two touchdowns for Minnesota. Just 35,737 fans — the Vikings' smallest non-strike crowd since 1964 — watched at the Metrodome.

Broncos 20, Steelers 13
John Elway and Greg Lewis ran for touchdowns as the Broncos scored on four straight possessions and held on to hand the Steelers their fourth consecutive loss.

Denver (7-2), winning for the sixth time in its last seven games, moved into a one-game lead in the AFC West over idle Kansas City.

CINCINNATI — Cincinnati Bengals defensive back David Fulcher celebrates with his teammates after Cleveland Browns kicker Matt Stover missed a field goal with two minutes left in the game.

Stadler ends dry spell

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Craig Stadler was the model of decorum throughout the Tour Championship. Even in victory, his emotions were in check.

"You spend so much energy accomplishing something for so many years, and when it happens, it's not really the element of surprise, it's just more a matter of shock and it takes a while to sink in that you've really done what you've been trying to accomplish," said Stadler, who birdied the second playoff hole to beat Russ Cochran on Sunday.

Stadler won his first tournament on U.S. soil since 1984. During the tournament he said his play was not great, but it held up throughout the weekend at Pinehurst No. 2. He even admitted that his patience, which often taxes him, was kept under control.

Even is where the tournament stood at the end of the fourth round. Stadler and Cochran were tied after 72 holes at 5-under-par 279 on the rain-dampened Pinehurst course. The pair played the last round of the last official 1991 event in even-par 71.

After each player two-putted for birdie 4 at the 16th hole to begin the playoff, they went to the par-3 17th. Stadler hit his tee shot within 8 feet to set up the victory, and he flipped his club to his caddy, almost as if he was saying to Cochran, "Match that one, pal."

Cochran tried, but somewhere between his backswing and his shot, someone in the bleachers adjacent to the tee box jumped and made a noise.

"But the timing on that person was pretty good."

The shot barely made the green, and Cochran's chip was short of the hole. Stadler birdied to take home $360,000, moving him up to second on the money list. Cochran won't go home hungry, however. He won $216,000.

Fred Couples dropped behind Stadler into third on the money list, a spot he needed to keep in order to tie Corey Pavin on the points list that determines the PGA of America's player of the year. Pavin won both titles despite a final-round 72 for a 10th-place tie at 287.

Pavin led the money list with $979,430, the first time in four seasons the leader did not go over $1 million. He also is the likely choice for the PGA Tour's player of the year, determined by voting by the players.

Couples went 5-over on his first five holes, struggled to a 78 and finished at 289, nine shots back and two points behind Pavin in the PGA of America's player of the year standings (58-56) and was third on the money list at $791,750. Couples did capture the Vardon Trophy.

the second playoff hole to win the Tour Championship Sunday.

Player releases tapes of Auburn violations

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) — Secret tape recordings made by former Auburn football player Eric Ramsey show assistant coaches gave him cash, made his car payments and funneled money to him from alumni.

And in one taped conversation, Ramsey told an assistant coach that he received money from head coach Pat Dye.

The Birmingham News published a copyrighted story Sunday that detailed the contents of a second batch of tapes released by Ramsey and his attorney.

The NCAA and Auburn are investigating Ramsey's allegations, which could result in penalties against the football program. But Dye, who also serves as athletic director, has said his department would escape sanctions.

"I still can't see any (penalty) after everything is told," Dye said after the newspaper disclosed a first batch of tapes. Ramsey's conversations with an Auburn booster, on Oct. 20.

Last week, an NCAA investigator listened to the tapes of assistant coaches under an agreement with Ramsey's attorney, Donald Watkins.

"There's no question it elevates the seriousness of this matter," Watkins said of the second batch of tapes. "Not only are you on campus but you're in the athletic department in the offices of the coaches."

In one taped conversation released Sunday, Ramsey told secondary coach Steve Dennis that Dye gave him money. In others, former assistant coach Larry Blakeney, now head coach at Troy State, agreed to help Ramsey arrange a payment from Birmingham advertising executive Don Kirkpatrick, an Auburn booster.

Blakeney refused to comment. Kirkpatrick denied giving money to Ramsey.

Additional tapes include former recruiting coordinator Frank Young meeting Ramsey to give him $300 in cash, one of the payments Ramsey claims he received monthly. Young declined to comment.

In the taped conversation with Dennis, the coach agreed to make a $319 payment on Ramsey's Chevrolet Beretta. Dennis refused to comment.

The first tapes were of conversations between Ramsey and booster Bill "Corky" Frost of Lilburn, Ga., who discussed paying Ramsey's car notes and insurance and giving him cash, steaks to help him gain weight and performance bonuses. Frost said through his lawyer, Dudley Perry Sr., that he was not representing the athletic department.

Ramsey, 23, was cut from the Kansas City Chiefs earlier this year after being drafted in the 10th round. The release of the tapes comes weeks after he first went public with allegations of cheating in the Auburn football program. Ramsey said he began secretly recording talks in the spring of 1987 with boosters and Auburn coaches.

Watkins said Dye should tell what he knows about Ramsey's allegations.

"The bottom-line question is whether Pat Dye as athletic director and head coach knew or participated in a scheme to distribute extra benefits to Eric Ramsey and other players," Watkins said.

"I know the answer to that question, and Pat Dye knows the answer to that question. I'll give him the first opportunity to answer publicly," he said. "If he refuses to answer it ... or does not come clean, I'll let the Pat Dye tapes provide the answer."

Watkins said three tapes of conversations between Dye and Ramsey would be made public in two weeks.

Dye said his position hasn't changed.

"Put all the tapes on the table. If you got something on me, on Auburn, let's put them out there," he said. "But don't piecemeal it. Don't orchestrate this like some big ceremony."

He said it would be easier for Auburn to defend itself before NCAA if all the evidence was made public. "We want to defend ourselves, but we're not going to defend ourselves in a piecemeal fashion."

Dye, however, has responded to some specific allegations brought up in the tapes.

During the taped conversation with Dennis in early 1988, Ramsey asked for help with a late car payment. Dennis told Ramsey he was spending too much money.

"Coach Young has given me money. Coach Dye has given me money ... but coach Young said he can't do anything for me right now," Ramsey said.

Dennis told Ramsey he would try to help with the car payment.

In an interview, Ramsey said the first time he received money from Auburn coaches was when Dye gave him $300 through Blakeney for a wedding present. Dye denied giving Ramsey cash for a wedding gift.

In late 1989, Ramsey talked to then-assistant coach Blakeney at his office about getting money from Kirkpatrick.

"I don't have a job or anything. I need help with some bills," Ramsey said. "Mr. Kirkpatrick, he sent me that $200 one time and he said he would send me another $800 later. I'd like to receive it again."

Blakeney said he would talk to Kirkpatrick the following Monday. Ramsey called that day and Blakeney said he had talked to the booster.

"It sounds like everything is going to be fine," said Blakeney. "I'll be talking to him this weekend, or Monday night. I've got to be up there this weekend."

Ramsey said in an interview that Kirkpatrick gave him about $1,200 through Blakeney.

But Kirkpatrick, who is a former officer of the Jefferson County Auburn Club, denied the allegation. "That's totally ludicrous. Absolutely not," he said. "Eric probably called me 40 times begging for money. Each time I told him no."

Blakeney and Ramsey also discussed the possibility of a bank loan for the player based on his potential as a professional football player. Blakeney told Ramsey to see Dye about the loan.

"Go by and visit with coach about that particular situation," Blakeney said. "Main thing, you keep this quiet and don't talk to anybody."

Ramsey agreed. Blakeney refused to discuss the taped conversations. "At the proper time I'll answer whatever questions I need to answer," he said. "I've said I will cooperate with any investigation by Auburn and the NCAA and I intend to stick to that."

The NHL is back on the ice. Fastest scores, complete updates.

CONTEST RULES

ROLES: Pick the team you think will win from each advertiser' block. The score is only necessary in the last "Tie Breaker" box. Write your picks in the center box. Each contestant must pick from each block. Do not miss any games.

Winners will be announced in the next Tuesday Herald. Winners may pick up prize money at the Herald office, 710 Scurry, Big Spring, Tx. Prizes will be awarded in "Herald Football Bucks" which can only be spent with the merchants on this page. Herald employees cannot participate. Must be 18 or older to play. Only 2 entries per person, per week. Must be entered on original contest entry form.

In the event of a tie, a drawing will be held to determine the winner. When using the tie-breaker, the closest guess to the winner's score will be judged the winning entry.

*All entries must be received by 3 p.m. Friday evening to the Herald office, no exceptions.

Time to remember our servicemen

DEAR ABBY: It is again time for the Operation Dear Abby/America Remembers Campaign and the great work it does for our servicemen and women stationed overseas — and, for the first time, here at home.

From my years of experience as a Navy fighter pilot, I know the importance of the Operation Dear Abby/America Remembers Campaign. A supportive card or letter to a young man or woman serving our nation can make all the difference in the world.

Operation Dear Abby/America Remembers played a major role during Operation Desert Storm, and we need to keep the momentum going with the America Remembers "Adopt a Unit" program.

Dear Abby

For years, schools, groups and communities have been able to "adopt" U.S. military units stationed overseas. Now, for the first time ever, thanks to the Armed Services YMCA, local units in the United States can be "adopted." (Not all the troops stationed here in the United States get to go home for the holidays.)

School groups and communities can "adopt" a ship or unit for the holidays by sending a stamped, self-addressed business-sized envelope (No. 10 envelope) to: Operation Dear Abby/America Remembers, co Taco Bell Corp., 17901 Von Karmen, Irvine, Calif. 92714.

Each group will receive a newsletter and other materials on the unit it "adopts." Once again, dozens of volunteers from Taco Bell will process the incoming material.

As the first honorary national chairman of the America Remembers Campaign, I want to say "well done" to America Remembers, Taco Bell, and to you and your readers. RANDY "DUKE" CUNNINGHAM, HONORARY NATIONAL CHAIRMAN, 1991 AMERICA REMEMBERS CAMPAIGN

DENNIS THE MENACE

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: A financial burden will be lifted sooner than you think. Be prepared to move quickly on an unusual business opportunity next month. A real estate deal that is proposed in January could be just what you have wanted. Love and financial backing come from an unexpected quarter in early spring of 1992. Romance takes a dramatic turn in May. Next summer, be careful not to ask for more than you are willing to give in return.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: singer Paul Simon, actor Sam Shepard, rock star Bryan Adams, actress Tatum O'Neal.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Greater diplomacy will help you make new gains. An older person is your strongest ally. Visitors or messages from far-flung places are featured.

CALVIN AND HOBBS

Shoppers can find great bargains. TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Your career gets a welcome boost, thanks to a friend. Give yourself adequate time to complete one project before taking on another. A psychic experience may be difficult to interpret at first.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A special project receives new support today. Teamwork boosts profits. A flirtation could cause trouble unless you are very discreet. Do nothing to jeopardize an older person's trust in you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Hard-to-find items become easier to purchase, and at an attractive price. Someone could try to interfere in your domestic affairs. Refuse to let outsiders disrupt your family life.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Phone calls and messages give new meaning to your efforts. Better financial planning will result in big savings. A courtship gets off to a flying start. Do nothing to rock the boat.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 21): Taking an overly aggressive approach could cause strife. Steer clear of people who gossip. Your best rapport is with someone of the same sex.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Exercise more caution than usual in your financial and real estate dealings.

Consult experts. Although a change in social plans is upsetting, you could meet an attractive newcomer.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): New business opportunities arise. Success is closer than you think. A phone call or unexpected visit opens the door to a promotion or better job. A good friend rallies to your side.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Inertia is the only thing that could come between you and success this week. Get moving. Extra study will prove very worthwhile. Although a competition makes you edgy, you win.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Curb your temper today. Taking a walk or breaking with your regular routine will put you in good humor. Come to terms with a loved one. Spend a quiet evening at home.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You will be able to accomplish more once you reduce the stress in your life. The arrival of a check could be delayed another few days. Mate supports your efforts. Be appreciative!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You have a chance to move up at your place of employment. Share a financial burden with other family members. A health matter deserves prompt attention. Develop your athletic potential.
