'Oops—better wind my watch'

One of the younger residents of the county appears puzzled by the sight of Old Sol on the eastern horizon an hour later than usual. The Hereford calf has a good excuse for his lack of knowledge concerning daylight savings time — after all, he wasn't around this time last year.

Adair men prepare to cap wild well

STAVANGER, Norway (AP) — American experts went ahead today with preparations to cap the runaway well spewing millions of gallons of crude oil into the North Sea. They hoped to do the job by Wednesday and were working against an unfavorable weather forecast.

Our plan for plugging the leakage continues according to schedule, and the weather today is still very good, said a spokesman for the Phillips Petroleum Co. which operates the well 180 miles off the Norwegian coast.

The barge Shoctow is alongside the rig with necessary technical and hydraulic equipment. The two Adair firefighters will enter the rig again later today and start preparations for the plugging work. It may still take some days to complete the dangerous work.

Boots Hansen and Richard Hattenberg, two of famed oil well firefighter Red Adair's men, were put aboard the oil-covered drilling rig atop the well Sunday.

They reported that the leak was on the rig itself and that the underwater portion of the well was undamaged. It was hoped that the flow could be stopped with a device called a Christmas tree, a multi-valve cap that is put atop new wells to stop the oil flow until production plans are decided.

Another spokesman for Phillips estimated the capping operation would take one to three days, depending on the weather.

After blowing 8 to 10 knots from the north and northeast during the weekend, the wind shifted this morning and dropped to a very light two-knot breeze from the south.

But the wind will increase gradually and by midnight it is expected to reach more than 10 knots, the Norwegian Meteorological Institute said. Tuesday and Wednesday we expect it to increase to light gale force from the south and southwest.

This will not have much influence on the drifting of the main oil slick, but it may make working conditions aboard the rig more difficult for the experts.

The company said if the capping effort fails, it would drill another well nearby to relieve some of the pressure so capping would be possible.

Meat quality questioned

Packerland Packing Company and its allied plants, including the facility in Pampa before it stopped operations in February, have sold more than 60 million pounds of ground beef to the national school lunch program this year in spite of "persistent and serious sanitation problems," according to a copyrighted story appearing recently in the Des Moines (Iowa) Register.

Government purchasing of meat from Packerland has persisted despite warnings that ground beef from the company might be contaminated or adulterated, according to the story by James Russer and George Anthon of The Register's Washington Bureau.

Packerland has supplied about 42 per cent of the hamburger purchased for the school program by the USDA. The remaining 58 per cent was supplied by 34 other bidders.

On file in the USDA's inspection department were "hundreds of documents" that indicate a "long standing pattern of sanitary deficiencies and questionable operating practices," the story said.

Henry J. Uhler, contracting officer for the USDA, said he is aware of the problems connected with the Frankenthal firms. But he said as long as inspection has not been cut off at the plants, the firm can continue to bid.

We have to look upon them (the inspectors) as the ones to tell the plant they can produce or not, Uhler said.

The Des Moines newspaper story reported that in June, 1976, the USDA closed the Pampa Packerland plant because of fears for the safety of federal inspectors.

In that month, a federal inspector found "bone and meat scraps several days old, no dust control program, flaking rust in the boning room, a dirty cooler, wooden pallets that were bloody and dirty, maggots on a basement floor and flies," the story said.

The plant was shut down that day. Two days following that incident a federal inspector refused to approve some cattle heads because of contamination.

According to a USDA report the killing floor supervisor threw a rack of cattle heads at the inspector.

Howard Frankenthal, the 23-year-old Pampa plant manager, threw a cattle head on the floor, used "sexual profanity" and said "the head belonged to him and that he would do as he wanted to do," the report said.

In a report to a superior, one federal official said of the Pampa Packerland plant, "I have seldom, if ever, encountered plant management such as in this plant who make it exceedingly difficult for an inspector to do his job and perform his duties."

The Des Moines Register story reported that operations at the Pampa plant were suspended until Siegfried Frankenthal, president of the Frankenthal companies, signed a promise that inspectors would not be threatened or intimidated. He did so under protest.

One inspector at the Pampa plant told The Pampa News that he had once been threatened with a lawsuit by Howard Frankenthal. Young Frankenthal wanted them to work from noon until 11 p.m. with no break for a meal, the inspector said.

When the inspectors left for a meal, as regulations require them to do at no longer than six-hour intervals, Frankenthal made his threat.

The Pampa plant no longer is in operation and reports are that it is being offered for sale.

The State of Texas has a suit pending against the firm for alleged violations of the Texas Clean Air Act in Green Bay, Wis. A Packerland plant was sued for an estimated $500,000 in unpaid sewerage bills.

Siegfried Frankenthal died of a heart attack Dec. 3, just after FBI agents arrested him and his daughter on charges of wiretapping some competing meat packing plants.

Carter not 'over-optimistic' about peace in Middle East

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter welcomed King Hussein of Jordan to the White House today and warned against over-optimism in the search for a Middle East peace settlement.

With the diminutive monarch at his side on the White House south lawn, the President said, "it would be a mistake to be too optimistic" in view of the long-standing divisions between the Arabs and Israelis.

But Hussein, who is on one of his frequent trips to the United States, said "Jordan is ready to play its full part in the quest for a just and lasting settlement" and "a final resolution of the problems of the Middle East."

The welcoming ceremony was abbreviated because this is billed as a working visit. Unlike visits of other foreign leaders to the White House this year, there were no small flags handed out for the crowd on the lawn, and there was no review of military troops.

Carter, who met after the ceremony with Hussein in private in the Oval Office, said he would seek advice and counsel "on how our own country might play a role" in bringing together the opposing factions in the Middle East.

In addition to the meeting today, Carter planned a working dinner for Hussein in the State Dining Room of the White House tonight and another meeting with him on Tuesday.

Hussein, who is in his 25th year on the throne, saluted his country's ties with the United States, which he said were based on convergent interests and shared ideas but said that in the past in the Middle East "we suffered from a gap in communications between the United States and the Arab world."

There was no mention during the ceremony of the problem of resettling Palestinian refugees, one of the key issues in the Middle East dispute affecting Jordan.

Nor did Carter repeat his desire, stated often earlier in the year but not recently, for a reconvening during the second half of 1977 of the Geneva peace talks.

Carter called Hussein one of the "staunch friends and permanent allies" of the United States.

We have a very good group of moderate leaders," Carter told Hussein as they posed for photographs at the start of their meeting in the Oval Office.

However, the President said of efforts to reach a settlement, "If we fail this year, it's going to be very difficult to marshal an effort next year."

Hussein arrived here Sunday evening his plane landing 50 minutes late at Andrews Air Force Base in a raging thunderstorm. He was greeted by Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance before traveling by motorcade to Blair House, the official government guest residence across Pennsylvania Avenue from the White House.

The Jordanian king's trip here follows visits by outgoing Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat. Carter meets in Geneva next month with Syrian President Hafez Assad and then in Washington with Saudi Arabian leaders.

The meetings are part of a series of conferences aimed at achieving a resumption of Middle East peace talks.

Carter reportedly is hoping that after talking to the leaders of all sides in the conflict common ground can be found to reopen the Geneva peace talks, which broke down after only a few days in 1974.

Carter is likely to review for Hussein the general U.S. thinking on the Middle East issues of a permanent peace, borders and the future of the Palestinian people.

State Department officials say that if the talks move in one particular direction, it would be toward the problem of the role the Palestinians would play in Geneva talks and the broader question of what role they can play in an over-all settlement.

The United States favors Jordan as a site for settlement of Palestinian refugees. But nearly all Arab leaders, except Hussein, oppose that idea.

Hussein appeared on a recently taped segment of the CBS television program "60 Minutes" on Sunday. He said he believes an Arab-Israeli peace may be a long way off.

Milton Saltzman resigns

Milton Saltzman, director of personnel and administrative assistant to the city manager, today announced his resignation.

City Manager Mack Wofford said he accepted the resignation — effective July 4 — with mixed emotions.

"I hate to see him go, but I realize he's on the way up," Wofford said.

Saltzman has worked in city administration here almost six years.

A Pampa native, Saltzman told The News today he intends to enroll for the second summer session at Texas Tech to begin work toward a master's degree in management.

"After that," he said, "I'll be looking for employment next fall."

He said he's undecided about whether to stay in the field of municipal government.

"My future plans are indefinite," he summarized, "but I want to keep progressing in life."

Tax bill bogs Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is beginning work on President Carter's energy proposals while still bogged down in debate over his economic stimulus tax bill.

The Senate, in its fifth day of debate on the tax bill, was wrestling today with a Republican proposal that would provide for the kind of permanent cut in individual taxes that Carter has said he will veto.

The GOP plan would provide about $200 in permanent tax cuts for most American families and would cost the federal treasury $7.9 billion a year. Carter wants any substantial permanent changes in the tax code to await a comprehensive reform program he plans to propose later this year.

Meanwhile, CIA Director Stansfield Turner was called before a House commerce subcommittee today to answer questions about a CIA report Carter cited in concluding that world supplies of petroleum have fallen far behind expected demand.

The CIA report says that by 1985 the world will be using more petroleum than it is producing.

The proposals for specific legislation to carry out the tough energy program Carter revealed last week are to reach Congress this week, possibly Tuesday.

Carter's energy chief, James R. Schlesinger, tentatively is scheduled to testify Wednesday before the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee.

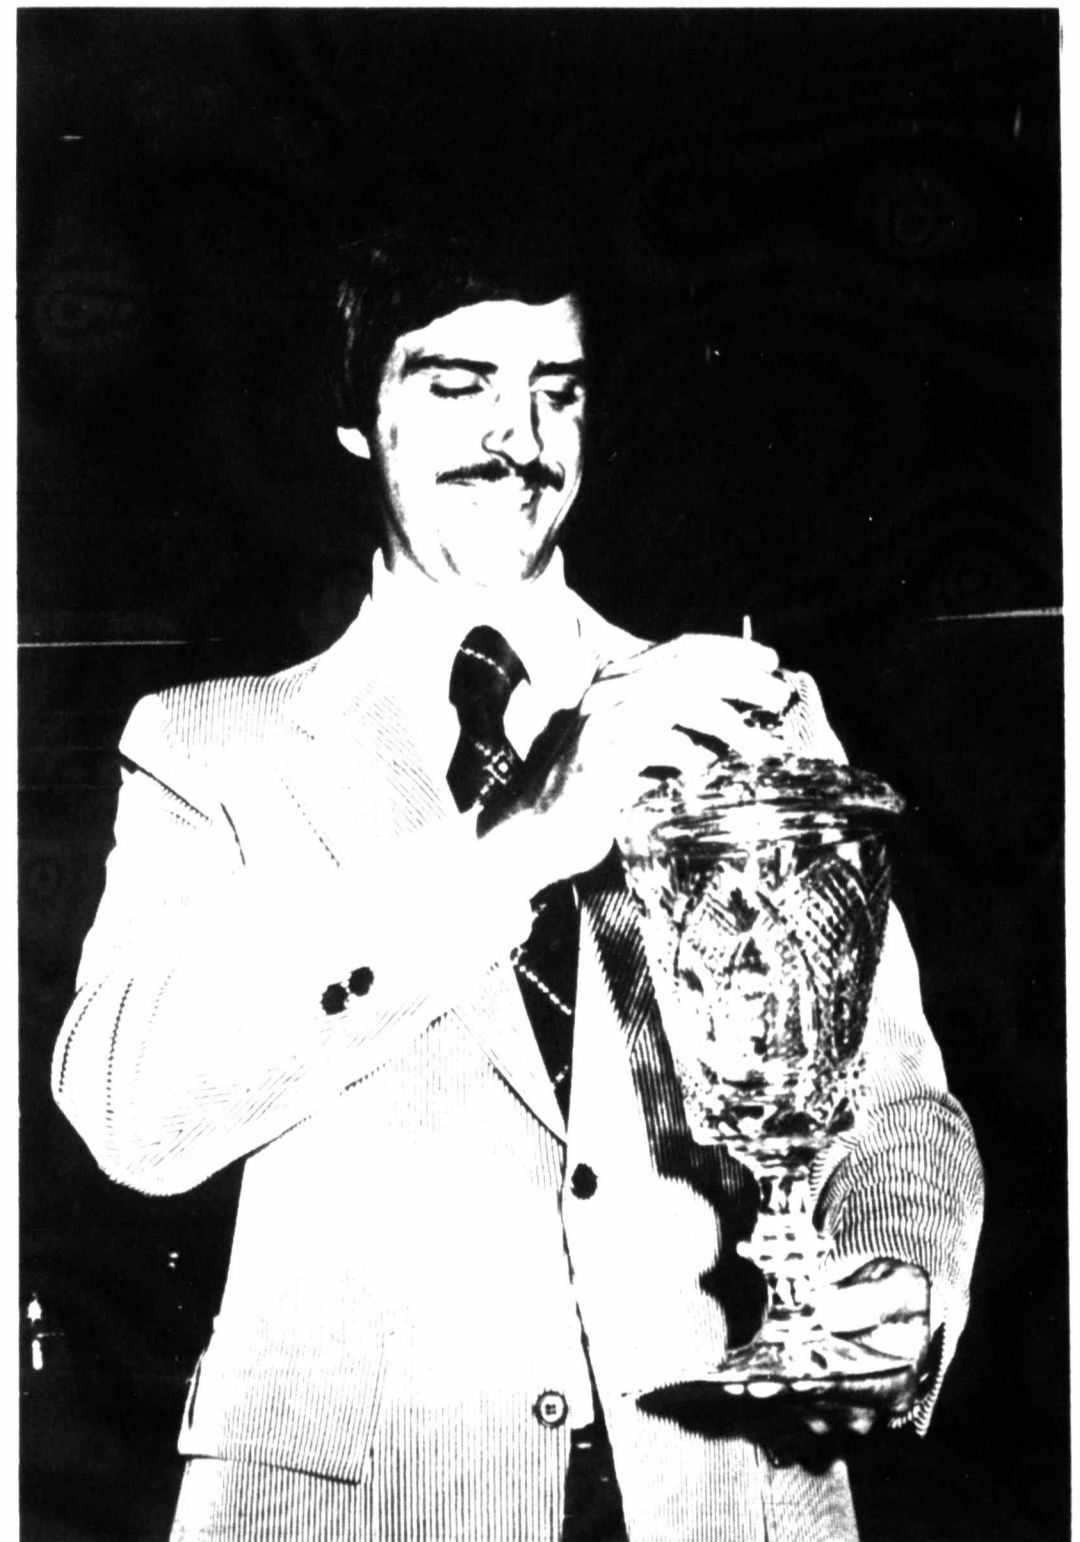

The hearing begins the process of considering Carter's complex plan, which seeks to conserve dwindling supplies of petroleum by raising prices, taxing crude oil and gas-guzzling automobiles and establishing a standby gasoline tax that could reach as much as 50 cents per gallon. The President's program also would provide incentives to get people to insulate their homes.

Schlesinger also may be asked to testify this week before the new special energy committee set up by the House. The panel is scheduled to organize during the week.

The administration bill to create a new Cabinet level Department of Energy, which Schlesinger would head, is expected to be approved during the week by the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee and by a House government operations subcommittee.

Republicans have not yet revealed what they say will be a counterproposal to Carter's energy policy. But they have said it will focus on increasing production and will not involve a gasoline tax.

Director movin' on

Bill Surface, who has been assistant band director in the Pampa Independent School District for two years, has accepted the position of head band director at Artesia, N.M. He has been in Pampa, he has worked with the Pride of Pampa band, Sam Houston Middle School and Wilson Elementary School. His wife, Pat, who teaches music at Artesia, also will teach in Artesia. Surface has a music degree from Southwestern Oklahoma State University in Weatherford and will be awarded a masters degree this summer. He has taught in Spring Lake - Earth and Stratford. One of his first duties will be to hire two assistant band directors in the New Mexico school which enrolls 1,100 students in the top four grades. Surface holds the Crystal trophy which the Pride won in Ireland in March. (Pampa News photo)

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Committing language fraud

By the way, if you mailed in your income tax return, perhaps you shouldn't have.

Take the case of Marvin. In the 2 1/2 years following Jan. 1, 1968, Marvin operated a pornography mill. The firm was incorporated. Marvin held all the stock in the names of himself, four children and wife. In one 12-month period, $562,000 of mail-order and distributors receipts were not recorded in the corporate tax returns or on the books. The same type of omission occurred in a subsequent year to the tune of $298,000. The sums were accounted for as loans from Marvin or from banks, and in other ways. In the same period, Marvin was depositing substantial sums in savings accounts under various names, including those of his beloved family.

Over the same period, the corporation was paying the mortgage on Marvin's domicile and his subscription to the Book-of-The-Month Club, among others. As a result, the busy little firm was a loser on the books. Of course, it didn't pay any tax. Of course, the Internal Revenue Service conducted an audit. Ultimately the free-wheeling pornographer was brought to trial on 24 counts. He was convicted on 22 counts. Twenty-one of the convictions dealt with Marvin's personal and corporate machinations. The remaining offense is the odd duck of the flock.

Get this? Of Marvin was nailed not alone for playing games with the IRS, but for mail fraud. Yep, he had made use of the U.S. Postal Service to send and deliver "false returns. Not many are going to shed tears for a jailed pornographer. Unfortunately the victim here is not Marvin, but the English language and the heritage of anglicized law. The manner of delivery of the tax return was not pertinent to the fraud. The fact that it was delivered by a mailman in a gray uniform was no more and no less instrumental in inducing the IRS to accept the contents of the documents than if same had been dropped by carrier pigeon. Further, as evidenced by the subsequent investigation and prosecution, the IRS was not deceived. Where, then, is the victim?

Lawyers get around this objection to judicial sleight-of-hand by arguing that the mail fraud statute forbids use of the postal system "for the purpose of executing a fraud or attempting so to do." Actually, all Marvin was trying to do was move a few pieces of paper from Point A (his accountant's office) to Point B (the IRS office). The gist is, his intent in using the postal system was not fraud, but the mere physical transportation of a document.

We are advised that courts interpret "purpose" as knowledge or intent. "Intent" it may be, but to claim that a man has purpose solely because he has knowledge is akin to saying he endeavored to get wet just because he was caught in the rain. Knowledge, in other words, can be nothing more than a coincidence.

Inside Washington

World Bank billions scrutinized

By ROBERT S. ALLEN
WASHINGTON, April 19 — That $5.2 billion "replenishment" for the World Bank group steamed through the House by the Carter administration is in trouble in the Senate.

Uncertain at this time is how much, whether the huge foreign giveaway can be rejected outright or sharply pruned.

Prospects for the latter appear better than complete junking.

Senate opponents are mounting a determined fight — admittedly against odds.

The White House and entire State Department bureaucracy are throwing their full weight behind the embattled legislation.

President Carter is personally appealing to Senate Banking committee members and other influential Senators, including Republicans, to support the measure. Secretary Vance is similarly busily lobbying.

That's the way the multi-billion-dollar World Bank "replenishment" was haggled through the House 194 to 156, and the same tactics are being used in the Senate.

From backstage indications, this high-powered pressuring is making headway. But significantly, key Republican members of the Banking Committee, which has jurisdiction over the legislation, believe there is a good chance to whittle it down and will concentrate on that. If this strategy succeeds, a move may then be made to kill the whole bill.

What's Behind It
Curious aspects of the administration's pressure drive are:

(1) Remarkable silence about Robert McNamara, World Bank president and former controversial Defense Secretary, the principal author of the giant "replenishment." Not once during the stormy House discussion of the measure was there the slightest reference to him — although he has long been under fire in Congress.

Similarly, he is not particularly well regarded by the administration — which definitely contemplates eventually replacing him.

Yet, strangely, neither McNamara nor his key role in this multi-billion-dollar foreign giveaway was cited by either side. Understandably, there is good reason for the administration's silence. Why the opposition hasn't zeroed in on him is inexplicable.

(2) Total lack of details or any other data on how the World Bank group will dispense the billions authorized by the "replenishment" measure, that is, who's going to get what and for what.

As far as Congress is concerned, it's "buying a pig in a poke" — shoveling out billions without the slightest idea what will be done with them.

A bureaucratic history lesson

By BUTLER D. SHAFFER

It must be disconcerting to many persons that so much of the development of this country was unattended by political direction. Imagine the millions of people who came to this country, risked their capital, expended their energies, cleared the wilderness, built homes and cities, all without benefit of bureaucratic expertise and control. I like to think myself sensitive enough to the feelings of others to want to alleviate their unnecessary sufferings. Since history is little more than a collection of commonly held lies and delusions anyway, I propose a re-writing of American history to correct any undesirable impressions about the minimal influence of political planning in our nation's past. I have a few modest proposals to offer.

First of all, the Pilgrims did not simply come storming ashore at Plymouth like a bunch of eager tourists; these "illegal aliens" had to be processed through the Immigration and Naturalization Service, and their belongings cleared through Customs. All of this took place at a government processing center on an island known as the "Rock."

Nor were these people allowed to just go in and start cutting trees to build houses; trees could only be cut after a report had been filed with the Environmental Protection Agency, assessing the "impact" of such an action, and home-building was subjected to very stringent zoning ordinances and building codes. We must, after all, have had some system of land-use planning.

Think of all the other bureaucratic involvement in our history that we could concoct. Can you imagine the EPA bringing action against the participants in the "Boston Tea Party" for polluting the harbor? How about the Federal Trade Commission tearing into P.T. Barnum's deceptive advertising practices? Even the Surgeon General could have advised the Indians that "smoking peace pipes may be dangerous to your health" (especially when the 7th Cavalry is standing by.)

Perhaps the "Chicago fire was bargaining with labor unions. And do you think we can ignore the evils of "discrimination?" Not on your tin-type! The bureaucrats were well aware of the fact that almost all the early settlers were of white, Anglo-Saxon origins, and took steps to rectify this wrong and "affirmative action" program was set up, through the EEOC, to import blacks from Africa in order to provide for a more racially-balanced population. With the assistance of the courts, the bureaucrats established a variety of "boating" plans. That the blacks didn't want to come here, and had to be forced to do menial work when they arrived, is immaterial; after all, personal objections cannot be allowed to stand in the way of racial harmony and "justice."

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Important matters should not be finalized hastily today. In your eagerness to wrap something up you could lose some benefits.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Try to see things today for what they truly are and not what you would like them to be. The only one you're kidding is yourself.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Conditions relating to your resources are very tricky today. You could gain on the one hand, yet lose on the other.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Others are willing to help you today but, unfortunately, they may not be the right ones to open the proper doors.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) There is opportunity around you today, but if it is ineptly handled it may not amount to much.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be careful if doing business with friends today. One of you might wind up feeling they've been had.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Others may throw roadblocks in your path today if you fail to treat them tactfully. Woo your allies, don't wound them.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Second effort isn't your long suit today. It's more likely you'll give up on tasks that you can't breeze right through.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Take nothing for granted in your decision today. Things that look nifty on the surface could be very complicated.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) It might prove very unwise to let someone else make an important decision for you today. Think for yourself.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Taking on more responsibility than you can completely handle could prove extremely frustrating today. Keep your projects to a minimum.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Lady Luck could desert you today in risky financial ventures. Don't put her to the test.

Insulation business expects boom ahead

By RICHARD BUCK
Associated Press Writer
BOSTON (AP) — The folks who make and install insulating materials for homes and other buildings see a booming business ahead, but only partly because of President Carter's energy program.
"Demand has been high since the Arab oil embargo" of 1973, said Robert Dahlberg, a service supervisor at the Owens-Corning Fiberglass Supply Center in Watertown.
"I think people are holding back to find out what the government's actually going to do," he said. "It will be more feasible if they get a tax break."
Carter proposed that home owners get tax breaks of up to $2,000 for weatherizing their homes. And insulating is the most common way to weatherize.
"We just won't be able to handle all the business," said Thomas Osborne of the Edison Insulation Co. of Watertown. "There will be just too much."

Stanley E. Collins of Owens-Corning Fiberglass is more cautious: "We don't think everyone's going to run out tomorrow and buy insulation. We see it as a gradual thing."
Johns-Manville, a major manufacturer of insulation, is operating at full capacity now and plans to double its output in the next four years, said Tony Silva of the firm's insulation center in Denver.
"We have not had enough to meet the demand and have had to allocate it by regions," he said.
At the Toledo, Ohio, headquarters of Owens-Corning, the nation's largest insulation-maker, spokesman Collins said: "Over the past three years, eight million homes have added insulation because of the increase in energy costs."
"We see that Carter's proposals will continue the trend and keep the momentum going forward," he said.
Collins predicts the average new home in 1977 will contain 800 pounds of insulation, up from 450 pounds in 1973. The figure will rise to more than 900 pounds by 1980, he said.

"The thickest insulation we produced last year was six inches. Now we produce one that's 12 inches. Several hundred builders across the country are putting that much in new homes," Collins said.
Since Carter's address to the nation last Tuesday, "We've already gotten a lot of calls," said Helen Anderson, owner of Anderson Insulation Co. in Rockland.
She said those who wait for Congress to enact tax incentives may face higher prices. Fiberglass prices went up 10 percent in March, she said, "and we've been told that they're going up again in August."
"Implementation of Carter's goal to adequately insulate every home will only stimulate the already vigorous growth that is taking place in this business," says Argus Research, a leading investment research organization.

DA threatens Odessa newspaper

ODESSA, Tex. (AP) — The Odessa American has launched a counter-attack against Dist. Atty. John Green of Ector County, who sent executives at the newspaper a letter threatening to file an investigation of alleged wrongdoing.
A long editorial was published in the newspaper Sunday as well as a story on the letter. Publisher Lyle DeBolt accused Green of attempting to intimidate the newspaper and urged him to go ahead with an investigation of four instances of alleged wrongdoing the prosecutor claims involves the paper's two top editors.
In his letter, Green issued a warning to the Odessa American's management that it may be ordered to appear before the Ector County grand jury.
Green wrote, "This notice is hereby given to you in order that you may be prepared to appear before the Ector County grand jury, and any and everyone involved in the above-stated allegations will be requested to appear."

Presumably, the accusations listed by Green apply chiefly to Olin Ashley, editor of the paper (although Green's letter refers to the "managing editor") and to John Slaney, city editor.
The district attorney said the four specific charges included:
—That the district attorney's office has had complaints from members of the Ector County grand jury that the managing editor and the city editor of the paper tried to influence their decisions as members of the grand jury.
—That "there is considerable illegal gambling operating out of the Odessa American" and that city editor Slaney "is involved in this operation and that the managing editor has knowledge of such operation."
—That the managing editor and city editor made "unfounded and untrue" allegations regarding the Ector County district attorney's office and Green.
—That Slaney was "implicated" during an investigation by Green's office for his alleged involvement in an election in which a violation of the law occurred.

In denying all the allegations, Ashley said, "I would invite any fair and impartial agency to look into the entire situation here, but I do not relish the idea of being the guest of honor at John Green's hanging party."
"This is an obvious attempt to intimidate this newspaper because of its vigorous and forthright policies of news reporting, and we do not intend to be intimidated by Mr. Green or anyone else," DeBolt said.
Green has been hostile to the newspaper since last August when it published a story linking him to an ex-convict who allegedly paid Green's expenses on a gambling trip to Las Vegas, DeBolt said.
Earlier, Green had announced that the American was barred from his office and he promised to give "any more news which is newsworthy concerning this office" to radio and television stations and out-of-town newspapers.

$2,500 bid to aid Miss Lillian charity

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Illness kept "Miss Lillian" Carter from attending the auction, but a Texas man paid $2,500 for a set of etchings to establish a fund for a favorite cause of President Carter's mother.
Jerry Thomas of Fort Worth, Tex., made the winning offer Sunday, outlasting Georgia Democratic party Chairman Marge Thurman in the bidding for "Carter Country," a set of six etchings by Phillip Sage of New Orleans.
The proceeds are to establish the Lillian Gordy Carter Scholarship Fund for Nurses at Georgia Southwestern College.
Miss Lillian, a registered nurse who served in India with the Peace Corps, told the audience by telephone that a leg ailment kept her from attending the auction.
"I won't go anywhere unless I can be wheeled in my rocking chair," she said.
The etchings portray the President's mother sitting in a rocking chair, Billy Carter holding a cigarette and a can of beer in the back room of his

Coal slurry bill hits compromise

By TIM PALMER
Pampa News Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — The Legislative Conference Committee has agreed on a compromise bill concerning eminent domain for coal slurry pipelines. The bill has been sent to the House and Senate for reconsideration.
The legislation, by Sen. Max Sherman (D-Amarillo), allows for transportation of coal slurry to the Texas coast to be used for fuel.
The bill went to the committee a month ago when the Senate refused to accept a number of house amendments.
According to Sherman, the committee deleted a House provision to allow judges to award attorney's fees to land owners for property, and accepted an amendment to provide state water for personal use of pipeline workers.
Another Sherman measure met like success last week. Senate bill 1043, which seeks to speed up criminal trial processes, passed the subcommittee on criminal matters.
The measure is like the federal "speedy trial act" under which federal courts now operate.
Sherman said, "It's just a matter of time before federal courts imposed this on the state courts."
He added that he believed his measure has some advantage over the federal act. "The bill tries to address some of the problems that arose in the federal courts. It attempts to speak to those so we don't have those same problems."
The Sherman proposal includes a section allowing a judge to delay a trial for extenuating circumstances unforeseen by the bill's authors.

Another Sherman measure, Senate bill 890, sets up a process of legislative review of proposed rules for state agencies.
The purpose of the legislation, Sherman said, is to "insure that the agencies regulations coincide with statutes that created them. The legislature may authorize an agency to do 'X' and they have rules and regulations allowing them to do 'Z'."
The bill was referred to the Committee on Inter-Governmental Regulations.

A little of this and a lot of that

The Little-Big Shop at 1330 N. Banks came about after its owner, Mrs. Bettye Pilcher, saw a need for a dress shop offering special sizes in Pampa. The store opened at its present location in December, and offers fashions in junior sizes 3 to 11 as well as plus sizes 36 to 52. Mrs. Pilcher's husband, David, is a Pantex employe. The couple has two daughters, Mrs. Rene Fleming of Austin, and Shelly, a freshman at the University of Texas. The Little-Big Shop is open from 9:30 a.m. till 6 p.m. Mondays through Saturdays.

Court refuses White

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today refused to hear the appeal of a condemned Texas murderer who five months ago asked the high court to let him die.

This time, Robert Excell White wanted his death sentence overturned. The justices let stand a Texas appeals court's ruling that White received a fair trial and that his sentence is valid.

White, a 30-year-old drifter from Waco, Tex., was convicted of murder in the 1974 holdup of a rural grocery store near McKinney in Collin County. Three persons, 73-year-old proprietor Preston Broyles and two 18-year-old customers, were shot to death during the robbery.

After waiting in a Texas Death Row cell for two years, White wrote a letter to the Supreme Court telling the justices he was "mentally prepared" to die in the electric chair.

White protested his attorney's attempt to postpone his scheduled Dec. 10 execution, a request granted by the court pending a formal appeal.

Now, White apparently has changed his mind. Included with the papers submitted to the court is a hand-written letter from White asking that he be excused from paying fees for filing an appeal, a privilege the court routinely grants prisoners and other persons who prove they can't afford the fees.

In his Nov. 23 letter, White had said, "I am mentally prepared to accept the judgment of sentence imposed upon me. Any delay now will only inflict needless mental hardship on me."

White's appeal claims that potential jurors for his trial were excused from duty illegally after voicing general reservations about imposition of the death sentence.

It also challenges the constitutionality of the death sentence in White's particular case.

Texas' death penalty law was declared constitutional by the Supreme Court last July.

J.E. Abernathy of McKinney, Tex., White's court-appointed lawyer, said the next legal step would come after the case is returned for resentencing to the state district court where White was originally handed the death decree.

"I assume that the Supreme Court will send the matter back for observation," Abernathy said. "I further assume there will be a necessity for resentencing by the trial court."

Landfill operation to be city topic

City officials will consider approval of an agreement with an operator at the landfill during a commission meeting set for 9:30 a.m. Tuesday.

To comply with state regulations, the city recently contracted with Ignacio Vargas to provide gate attendants at the dump from 8 a.m. till 7 p.m. seven days a week.

Vargas receives $700 per month and full salvage rights.

According to terms of the contract, either Vargas or the city can terminate the agreement on five days written notice.

Other items on the agenda include a second and final reading of an ordinance prohibiting parking on the south side of Kentucky Avenue between Hobart and Coffee Streets. Purpose of the ordinance is to improve the traffic situation near Highland General Hospital.

The resignation of Larry Holmes from the City Electrical Board is to be considered and the appointment of his successor discussed.

Commissioners will consider setting May 24 as the date to receive bids on surplus valves, fittings and miscellaneous equipment removed from the waste water plant.

A zoning change in the Country Club Addition also is on the council's agenda.

Commissioners will consider May 24 as the date to hold a hearing on a proposed zoning change from SF-2 to Commercial on Lots 11 through 20 in Block 1 of the addition.

Police report: Police investigated four non-injury accidents, two burglaries, a theft, a criminal mischief report and an attempted arson during the weekend. One resident was arrested on a charge of driving while his license was suspended.

An officer on routine patrol stopped a motorist whose vehicle was moving at a high rate of speed. The driver, Paul Mendez Comancho of 521 N. Warren, was arrested for DWLS.

Accidents occurred on North Hobart, South Dwight and East Francis Streets, as well as a three car pileup at the intersection of Starkweather and Craven. There were minor damages to vehicles involved.

The resident of 612 N. Dwight told police someone lit a bundle of newspapers and started a fire under his vehicle, parked at his home. The blaze was extinguished before damage to the car occurred.

A Pampa man reported theft of a .38 caliber revolver from his home while he was in jail. A theft was reported from 314 E. Tyng. Missing were a cassette player, 2 CB walkie talkies and a 14-channel radio.

The resident of 221 18th St. told officers two bicycles were taken from the front porch of his home. A criminal mischief report was received from 902 E. Francis, where unknown subjects removed the gas cap from a parked vehicle. Sugar was spilled nearby, and more sugar was found on the spout of the gas tank.

Texas weather: By The Associated Press. All of Texas enjoyed mild spring weather today. Occasional showers fell in the Panhandle and there also were a few clouds in far West Texas. Skies were mostly clear elsewhere.

National weather: By The Associated Press. Rains were expected to continue over New England with showers scattered over the central Appalachians and North Carolina, into Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana and much of Michigan.

Shows were also forecast for the southern Rockies and along the Pacific Northwest coast. The rest of the nation was expected to have mostly sunny skies and unseasonably warm temperatures were predicted for eastern Montana and the northern Rockies.

Below average temperatures were expected in the Ohio Valley, central Appalachian states and lower Great Lakes region. A dawn of temperatures ranged from 27 degrees in Warroad, Minn., to 80 in City, Calif.

Frost was expected early today in Minnesota and Iowa, as well as in the Northwest, which had temperatures in the 80s and 90s a few days ago. Flood warnings were out in Midland decision stands: WASHINGTON (AP) — A group of Texas parents today lost their bid for Supreme Court review of a lower court decision denying them an opportunity to challenge a desegregation plan for the Midland Independent School District.

The lower court denied the parents' petition without comment. Opposing the parents' request for Supreme Court review, the

US leaves Ethiopia

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP) — Three hundred Americans were expected to begin leaving Ethiopia today in the wake of the leftist military government's closure of five U.S. consulates.

U.S. State Department officials said about 100 American staff members and 200 wives and children would leave via commercial flights.

The Americans have been given until Wednesday to leave the country, but a State Department spokesman in Washington said:

"We have been informed that time would not be a problem and that there would be no pressure to meet the deadline. We were also informed that we would have access to the affected facilities and security would be provided wherever we requested it."

The government ordered the United States to close the U.S. Information Service center, the Military Assistance Advisory Group and the Naval Medical Research Center, all in Addis Ababa, and the Kagnew radio communications center and the U.S. Consulate in Asmara, the capital of Eritrea province, where the government is fighting guerrillas of the Eritrean Liberation Front.

The Italian and Sudanese consulates in Asmara and the honorary British, French and Belgian consulates there were also ordered closed.

The government gave no explanation for the closing of the consulates, but it said the U.S. information, military and naval medical offices and the Kagnew radio center contradicted the goals of the Ethiopian socialist revolution and its "nonaligned" foreign policy.

Ethiopia while it was ruled by the late Emperor Haile Selassie got all its military equipment from the United States, but the military officers who overthrew the emperor have moved steadily closer to the Soviet Union.

The Carter administration in February halted a $6 million military aid program for Ethiopia, charging violations of human rights. Since then, the Soviet Union is reported to have shipped the government 31 T-34 tanks, 40 armored personnel carriers and six anti-aircraft guns.

There was no explanation of the closing of the consulates in Asmara. However, the Eritrean Liberation Front said earlier this month they were closing in on the provincial capital and would "liberate" the province this year.

Two men plead guilty: Timothy Lynn Pettit, 20, of 2108 Coffee was sentenced to 30 days in jail, probated to six months, and fined $200 Friday in County Court when he entered a plea of guilty to a charge of driving while intoxicated.

David Lee Jenkins, 22, of 333 N. Perry Street, also pleaded guilty to a DWI charge and was sentenced to 30 days in jail, probated to six months, and fined $200.

Gray County Judge Don Hinton was on the bench.

Two escape burning boat on Greenbelt: A gasoline tank explosion set off a fire Sunday on a boat in the middle of Greenbelt Lake, destroying the boat but leaving its two occupants unharmed.

Lake security officer Troy Welty said the boat, owned by Clifford Beavers of Dimmit, was destroyed by fire from a battery shorting out after touching the gasoline tank.

Welty and his companion, whom authorities did not identify, jumped overboard after failing to douse the flames with a fire extinguisher.

The boat fire, which occurred about 2:30 p.m., was the first in the lake's history.

Bhutto rounds up leaders of opposition

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto's police rounded up more leaders of the campaign demanding his resignation, but the opposition defied him by calling for a protest march on the National Assembly.

Bhutto jailed 48 more persons Sunday in his counteroffensive against the six-week-old campaign to oust him. Most top leaders of the opposition Pakistan National Alliance (PNA) were already in jail, and the roundup brought in the acting PNA head, Nawabzada Nasrullah Khan, and second-echelon leaders in major cities.

The new assembly meets for the first time on Tuesday, but the PNA refuses to take its seats.

4-H compete in demonstrations: Twenty-eight Gray County 4-H'ers competing in demonstrations at the Gray County Courthouse Annex Saturday qualified for District 1 4-H contests in Canyon, Marilyn Tate, assistant Gray County Extension agent, announced today.

Senior 4-H members receiving blue ribbons for their efforts were Beth Smitherman for clothing demonstration and Berkeley Brainard and Sally Brainard for a beef cattle symposium.

Four juniors won blue ribbons. The judges awarded blue ribbons to Robbie Cochran and Lance Brooks for a dairy demonstration and Bryan Smitherman received a blue ribbon for his family resources demonstration. Lynn Knutson and Becky Sanford for a presentation on companion animals, Swasey Brainard for junior boys public speaking and Sena Brainard for junior girls public speaking.

Mrs. Tate said there was one entry in the "Share the Fun" division which included skits. The eight juniors at the cast received white ribbons and they were Melinda Hanover, Sandy Alvarez, Donna Taylor, Tammy Bromlow, Marilyn Moriel, Rosalee Hamrin, Hermelinda Portillo and Ramona Fortillo.

Judges for the county competition were Sue Kusch, home and community teacher under Pampa High School's coordinated vocational and academic education program;

Randy Williams, cooperative agriculture teacher at Pampa High School; Ken Kensing, agriculture teacher at White Deer High School, and Perry Hogue of KGRO.

Mrs. Tate said every 4-H'er who competed here qualified for the District I contest. The Gray County 4-H members will go to West Texas State University in Canyon Saturday to compete against 4-H'ers from a 20-county area of the Texas Panhandle.

Senior members placing first or second at the District level will be eligible to compete in the State 4-H Roundup at Texas A&M University in June. Mrs. Tate added.

Senior members are those who were at least 14 years old on Jan. 1.

Advice

Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: The widow of a physician complained because two years after her husband's death, his unpaid bills totalled $11,000. Your suggestion was: "It's a wise dentist who collects his fee while the tooth is still aching"—in other words, payment in advance. This would limit health care to those who can afford it.

An example of how unfair that would be is the case of the woman who was refused admission to four hospitals just south of the U.S.-Canadian border because she was on welfare. The poor woman finally gave birth in a cab.

Under a government health plan, as we have in Canada, the doctor submits his bills to the government, so when he dies, no one owes him anything for health care. Your rebuttal to this will probably entail all the bad things (mostly untrue) that you've heard about government health care.

In Manitoba we don't even pay premiums, so only the taxpayers pay for health care—according to income. Unfortunately for the U.S., such plans are labeled "communist" (again untrue), so the poor of your country will continue to go untreated adequately, and dedicated physicians like the widow's husband will go unpaid.

CANADIAN

DEAR CANADIAN: You make socialized medicine sound ideal. But whenever private enterprise is replaced by a government institution, incentive is thwarted and the quality of services usually deteriorates.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a person who at age 26 has his last NAME legally changed?

When I asked him why he changed his name, he said, "For business reasons." Care to comment?

N.Y. READER

DEAR READER: Yes. It's HIS business.

—DEAR ABBY: Thanks for constantly reminding your readers to have their dogs and cats neutered in order to keep them from running wild, being killed in the streets or reproducing at such a rapid rate that thousands of unwanted animals are destroyed each year.

I enclose some recent figures from the Orange County Animal Shelter:
Total live animals received at their shelter annually: 62,000
Total dead received: 12,800
Total dogs destroyed: 23,000
Total cats destroyed: 17,400

Ask Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB—Please tell me the difference between hypoglycemia and hyperinsulinism. For several years I had spells of passing out and was out for three hours one day and taken to the hospital. After a lot of tests my blood sugar was down to 40. I am on a high protein, no sugar, low carbohydrate diet and am okay as long as I stay on it. My doctor told me and put on all my papers that I had hyperinsulinism but someone else said it was just hypoglycemia.

DEAR READER—If that someone else had your problem he might not think it was just hypoglycemia. Hypoglycemia (low blood sugar) can be caused by many factors. Liver disease is one cause. A rebound type of reaction that occurs from rapid emptying of the stomach is another cause, as may occur after a stomach operation. It can occur after drinking too much alcohol or from a variety of complex enzyme disturbances. It can also occur because of disease of the adrenal glands. Low blood sugar is a symptom not a diagnosis.

One of the causes of hypoglycemia is an overproduction of insulin. The abnormality and hence the diagnosis then is hyperinsulinism and it causes hypoglycemia. The excess insulin production lowers the blood sugar. So hyperinsulinism can cause hypoglycemia but not all cases of hypoglycemia are caused by hyperinsulinism. Regardless of the cause, a severe case of true hypoglycemia that causes the problems you describe can be an important medical problem.

I am sending you The Health Letter, number 39, Low Blood Sugar; Hypoglycemia. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Just write to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB—In accordance with your Health Letter on exercise I started my exercise by walking. At first I walked slowly and gradually increased speed and distance. I am now walking five miles in 75 minutes each day. I just noticed that about the center of my right calf a half inch bubble bulged out. It looks like a varicose vein. It disappears when I elevate the leg.

I am neither obese nor pregnant nor do I think that I have an abdominal tumor. What do I do now; decrease my walking, slow it up; stop it altogether or use an elastic bandage and keep on walking as I am doing now?

DEAR READER—That bubble which disappears when you elevate the leg is a varicose vein. Such spots are usually where a vein connects the superficial veins you can see to the deep veins inside the leg muscles. They can become over-distended into a varicosity also and sometimes are called "blow-outs."

Your walking did not cause the blow-out. The muscular contractions from walking milks the blood out of the deep veins and empties them as well as the connecting branches. Standing still would allow pressure to develop and could aggravate varicose vein problems.

You can use an elastic bandage or support stocking. It is most important when you are standing still or sitting, not while you are walking.

If the blow-out bothers you then you should see your doctor and see if he wants to tie off that vein.

One doesn't have to be fat, female, or have a tumor in the abdomen to develop varicose veins even though these factors do increase the tendency to develop them.

Polly's pointers

By Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY—My Pet Peeve is with the makers of girdles as they put the supporters directly on the back of the garments so as to make it difficult, if not impossible, for one to fasten the rear supporters without a dislocation of the sacroiliac.

When pressing open seams in knitted fabrics or wool and you wish to remove a crease, split open a brown paper bag, place over surface to be pressed, dampen paper bag and press with a hot iron. Crease will disappear like magic—I have never had a failure.—MRS. P.F.

DEAR POLLY—I would like to pass on some ways I use vinegar. Some of our closets used to be musty smelling and mold would appear around the lower part of walls and furniture. We found this was due to water under the house so a plastic covering was put under it, but I still had the musty odor and mold to get rid of. I washed the walls and backs of the furniture with vinegar in the water and then went over them with a cloth wrung out of full strength vinegar. This did the job. Now I always use vinegar when I spring and fall house clean. After washing a closet be sure it is dry before putting the clothes back and also do not push furniture against the wall until it is dry.

MRS. CARTER'S CHOICE: a long turquoise dress in cotton jersey with a matching scarf. By Dominic Rompolo.

By Ellie Grossman

NEW YORK — (NEA) — The secret service called Dominic Rompolo, a few weeks ago and said, listen, Dom, clear your calendar next Wednesday between 4:30 and 5:30 because we're bringing Miz Carter in to pick up a couple of things for summer.

Keep the windows shut and the drapes pulled when we get there and don't worry if we nose around every little crook, uh, nook and cranny. We do that with everyone. Just let us mind the exits and entrances and there won't be any problem. Thanks, Dom. Come Wednesday, sure enough Rosalynn Carter, her press secretary, and her sister-in-law, Ruth Carter Stapleton, appeared at the designer's showroom at 530 Seventh Avenue with perhaps five serious, watchful men.

Rompolo, a short, rapid-speaking man who looks just the slightest bit like a prairie dog, is getting to be an old hand at this sort of thing. He was dealing with Rosalynn Carter before Jimmy became President. Just about a month before, as a matter of fact.

"In December," he says, "she was choosing clothes through a store in Americus, Ga., and they called me and told me to make some sketches for an inaugural costume for her, and a wrap to cover the dress she was wearing that night."

So he did, the store liked them and she liked them. "At that point, I was told to go ahead and they gave me her measurements which come out to a perfect size six." (Truth be told, he had to shorten the sleeves and length a little.)

Anyway, he made up a "beautiful" wool crepe dress in green and a double faced wool coat with a big fringe shawl for the inauguration, and a long hooded cape in blue wool to match her old chiffon gown.

"After these things were completed, I went to Plains to see if anything else was needed," he says. "I was a little apprehensive at first, but Mrs. Carter was terribly warm and relaxing, and she liked the clothes even better than the sketches."

She's just a lovely woman, he says, so unpretentious, so concerned about not being the center of attention and not being made a fuss over.

Don't you get telling people what I spend on clothes, she told him (between $100 and $300 per item), and don't you go making sketches for the press. I'm just plain folks — you ask Jimmy — just one of your customers who likes clean silhouettes, solids, no prints, divine colors instead of neutrals.

"She also likes emphasis on the figure," Rompolo says, "and her arms and neck usually covered."

'Don't you tell the cost'

Size 6 fits Rosalynn

She and her lady friends had a grand time trying things on in Rompolo's office while the large men stood guard outside. And when they were finished, everyone had bought something.

The President's lady selected two little striped cotton jersey day dresses for summer, a one-piece in "peanut" and white (read that "brown"), and a two-piece in apricot and white. Both short-sleeved and round necked.

Just to have something to wear until the weather really turns warm, she took home a long sleeved, belted, A-line pale mauve wool dress with a fringe shawl.

She added a "banana" colored linen jumper with two big pockets and a fitted waist. "Banana" refers to the part you eat, not the part you peel.

"She also chose a couple of long things for evening," Rompolo says. "One turquoise full length T-shirt with short sleeves, a blouse waist and matching scarf. And a sleeveless dress and coat, in white."

That last outfit comes with a matching head scarf but it'll take more than a cold day in Washington for Rosalynn to put a hat on her head. "She doesn't like hats, she's never worn them and doesn't see any reason to change," he says.

Obviously she likes Rompolo's clothes, but that afternoon she also visited a few other designers — Jerry Silverman, Kasper, one or two others. Still, Rompolo just may be her main man which pleases him no end.

"I'm from Detroit and Betty Ford was from Detroit and when she chose Albert Capraro to do her clothes, I thought it was a little unjust."

Strange thing was, he and Capraro were the only two boys in the class of '64 at Parsons School of Design.

"He's a terrific guy," Rompolo says. And now that he and Betty are retired, so to speak, and Rosalynn is boosting business, Rompolo likes him even better.

SUPERMAN

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Even Superman gets older. Kirk Alyn, who played Superman in 30 movie serials in the late 1940s and early 1950s is now 66 years old and drawing Social Security checks.

"But I feel like I'm 39," the actor said. "And I wish they would stop offering me the same roles."

For years after producers stopped making the serials, Alyn found it difficult to get acting parts. Movie-makers felt the public wouldn't believe him as anybody other than Superman.

"Now I get offers, but it's only for detective roles," he lamented. "I just turned down two such parts. For one thing, I can't get used to the language they want you to use today."

At wit's end

By ERMA BOMBECK

If President Carter ever considers spending the night at our house, maybe I should give him the tip line.

There's a plaque in our spare bedroom that reads: "If we get to drinking Sunday afternoon and start insisting that you stay over until Tuesday, please remember we don't mean it."

That's a close to being the "Nation's Innkeeper" as we get. Friends of our children who have "slept over" will tell you on a scale of Motel Six, we're about a three and a half.

I read an article once that told you how you make your guests more comfortable. They had a checklist that consisted of luggage racks, writing paper, envelopes, pens, sachets in drawers, extra light bulbs, hangers, shoe polish, spot remover, needle and thread, dental floss, nasal spray, non-prescription laxatives, cotton-tipped swabs, eye drops, foot powder, terry bathrobe, magnifying mirror, hair dryer and throat lozenges.

Half of those things I've never seen myself.

Possibly the only plus we have to offer is that you are treated like a member of the family. That is why we advise:

Don't lock your door at night. You'll just have to get up out of bed and unlock it early the next morning when the child whose room you are occupying rummages through the doors and closets after his clothes.

Don't ask for extra towels. After the kids have used one for their body, one for their hair, one for the left leg, one for the right leg, one to stand on, and one to throw over their neck, that's it. There are no more towels.

Check for messages. They will be posted (a) on the refrigerator door, (b) on the back of the milk bill, (c) on the envelope of yesterday's mail, (d) etched in the kitty litter.

Report for meals promptly. The Bombeck Hilton is strictly family style. Members have not been trained to hold back and have been known to cross forks and draw blood over the last chop.

Although the television is in the family room, reading in the guest room is permitted and reading material is furnished. (Please refrain from smart remarks about the selection of books as they were all written by me.)

Please do not ask us to accept pets. We don't have enough traps for the ones we got.

Air bags back again

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Air bags are back in the spotlight again, despite a December ruling that deflated supporters of the controversial devices.

The federal government is conducting a new study to determine whether the bags should be required equipment on cars of the future.

A public hearing on the issue is scheduled in Washington on Wednesday. Written comments can be sent to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) up until May 27.

The hearing is being held in the department auditorium, between 12th and 14th Sts on Constitution Avenue. Written comments should be sent to the administration, Room 5108, 400 7th St., S.W., Washington, D.C. 20590. Writers should refer to Docket No. 74-14, Notice 08.

At issue is whether the government should require some sort of passive restraint system, such as air bags, to protect automobile occupants in case of accidents — even if the individuals take no action to help themselves.

Air bags are balloon-like devices that inflate automatically and almost instantly during a frontal crash. They begin deflating in less than a second. Another type of passive restraint systems is a belt that is attached to the door of the car and automatically wraps itself about the driver when the door is closed.

William T. Coleman, then the secretary of transportation, ruled against mandatory air bags Dec. 6, although he did say they were technologically feasible. Coleman ordered further research to determine whether there was some way to increase seat belt usage.

Coleman's successor, Brock Adams, decided in February to reexamine the entire air bag issue.

Adams said he favors some type of passive restraint system, but added "I haven't prejudged what should be done or when or how." He said the lighter, smaller cars of the future might not be safe enough without additional built-in protection.

Opponents of air bags say that seat belts — required since 1968 — provide adequate protection. They say air bags would boost the price of cars by as much as $300 and would limit consumers' freedom of choice. The opponents also argue that more tests are needed to determine the effectiveness of the air bags in actual traffic accidents and to make sure the bags cannot inflate accidentally.

Supporters contend that many people do not use the seat belts properly. The safety administration estimates that no more than 20 to 30 per cent of drivers and passengers buckle up. They claim almost 12,000 lives could be saved every year if air bags were required and say that mandatory mass production would cut costs. Adams has said he believes automakers could install air bags in all new cars by 1980 or 1981 at a cost to consumers of $100 to $150.

Hill vows prostitution probe

FORT WORTH (AP) — Texas Atty. Gen. John Hill has authorized a special investigation after a report prepared for the state Organized Crime Prevention Council said that prostitution activities have increased significantly in the last five years.

"Virtually all metropolitan areas of the state indicated they are experiencing some amount of prostitution, either through the presence of individual, unorganized prostitutes, through organized operations or a combination of both types of activity," the report said.

The Fort Worth Star Telegram reported in a copyrighted story Sunday that Hill has authorized the special investigation. The newspaper said the investigation will include prostitution connections with organized crime and white slavery.

The newspaper said that the openness of prostitution in Texas — in major cities as well as small communities — is a major problem in the state.

Asked to comment about the investigation, Hill told the Star

Telegram, "This is premature and I can't comment on it at this time."

Hill did say, however, the prostitution problem is increasing in Texas and he sees increased involvement from organized crime elements in prostitution activities.

"Many people only speak of the Dixie Mafia or the Italian Mafia," Hill said. "But criminal activities exist whether or not they are related directly to these groups. We speak of organized crime as also meaning any group of two or more engaged in these illegal activities."

The newspaper estimated that $137 million is generated annually through organized prostitution activities. That does not include the money raised by prostitutes who work for themselves.

The report showed that 29 per cent of the prosecutors and judges and 34 per cent of the business community representatives interviewed believe the problems are on the increase. While prostitution activities in massage parlors are on the rise in 16 metropolitan areas in Texas, street walking still comprises the major means of solicitation, the report continued.

Examples given of how syndicated crime groups organize prostitution activities were through massage parlors, night club chains and providing prostitutes for exclusive parties or resort locations.

Texas' $15.7 billion bill may take bruising in House

By LEE JONES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — State representatives had their carving knives ready when they began work this afternoon on a $15.7 billion general appropriation bill.

The bill is fair game because trimming it is about the only way funds can be obtained for giving teachers a respectable pay raise and improved retirement.

And the bill isn't all that generous to begin with. A number of agencies would not get enough money to stay abreast of inflation, nor would their employees. State workers would get 34 per cent annual raises, while inflation once again is moving at a double-digit pace.

Look for efforts to eliminate proposed increases in welfare grants and part of the $150 million in new construction proposed by the House Appropriations Committee.

"If we adopt House Bill 510 (the budget bill), we would have $765 million left," said Lynn Moak, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby's fiscal expert.

The House has passed a $696 million school finance bill, heavy on relief for school districts and their taxpayers. A $263 million teacher pay raise bill is out of committee, and a sizeable teacher retirement bill also is in the works.

Callie Smith, executive secretary of the Texas State Teachers Association disavows any effort to beef up teacher pay at the expense of welfare recipients.

He says he is worried, however, because the bill doesn't contain the traditional guarantee of automatic funding of the Foundation School Program even if its costs exceed the $43 billion provided by appropriation.

It would be a tremendous obstacle for the public schools of the state to come in each year and compete for money in the general appropriation bill," Smith said.

Rep. Mickey Leland, who represents a Houston ghetto, said he feared there would be an effort to the proposed increase in the average monthly Aid to Families with Dependent Children grant from $32 to $40. Two-year cost would be $75 million.

Committee chairman Bill Prensall, D-Bryan, would not object to removing the AFDC increases.

One in nine doctors may be dope, booze addict

By MARC WILSON
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — The chances are nearly one in nine, says the Illinois Medical Society, that your doctor is an alcoholic or narcotics addict.

And the American Medical Association, realizing the seriousness of the problem, is encouraging state medical societies to start campaigns to detect "impaired" doctors. The Illinois Medical Society announced formation of its detection program at its state convention this week.

"This is a very serious problem and for the first time we are really beginning to search out and treat such physicians," said Dr. James W. West, who is chairman of the IMS Panel for the Impaired Physician.

The president of the AMA, Dr. Richard E. Palmer, estimated earlier this year that about 17,000 of the 408,000 doctors — one in 24 — registered nationally are "impaired."

But the IMS believes the figure is more like one in nine.

The state society estimates that of the state's 14,630 practicing physicians, 11.5 per cent may have a severe drinking problem; while 584 Illinois doctors are narcotics addicts.

Alcoholism and narcotics addiction in the medical profession are "higher than average because of the pressure doctors are under, dealing with life and death situations every day," Frank Chappell of the AMA said in an interview Sunday. He added that doctors have a greater than average chance of becoming drug addicts because they have easy access to drugs.

But patients shouldn't worry too much, Chappell said, "because most of these guys don't do anything until after office hours."

Many doctors are alcoholics or drug addicts and don't know it, Chappell said.

"The big problem in this area is to get the doctors to realize they have a problem," he said. "What we've got to do is identify these doctors and make them aware of their problem before they do any damage."

Chappell said that both the AMA and the IMS encourage doctors and relatives of doctors with problems to tell their local medical societies

Texas death toll 25

By The Associated Press

An upsurge in fatal traffic accidents helped to swell the violent death toll in Texas during the weekend.

The Associated Press tabulated reports of 25 deaths between 6 p.m. Friday and midnight Sunday, including 19 on streets and highways, four homicides, an electrocution and a fire death.

These were among the victims:

Motorcycle accidents Sunday killed three young men stationed at Dyess Air Force Base near Abilene. State police reported E.A. Bounds and Leslie C. Smith, 22, died before dawn when their vehicle hit a bridge south of Tye near the base and Donald E. Tindell, 18, shortly before midnight Saturday when his motorcycle struck a curb beside an Abilene parking lot.

Michael Metcalf, 19, of Burleson suffered fatal injuries Sunday in a collision of his pickup and a heavy truck there Sunday.

A car skidded off a farm road into a ditch one-half mile south of Brownwood and the crash killed David Morton, 18, and Marvin Brasher, 17, of Brownwood early Sunday A third youth was injured. Officers said their car apparently was trying to pass another vehicle.

Juanita Carroll, 60, was found dead Sunday in her Abilene home. Investigators said there was a strong smell of gas and she apparently was asphyxiated.

Four persons who died in an accident Friday night on IH 10 at San Antonio. Officers said an automobile went out of control after swerving to avoid another car and slammed into a guard rail. The victims were identified as Christopher B. Skinner, 31; Barbara Beckwith Thames, 30; and Kay Musgrave, 30, all of San Antonio, and Louis C. Brasher, 29, of Houston.

Three unidentified persons died Saturday when an automobile hit a guard rail on U.S. 287 at Fort Worth. Officers said the vehicle landed upside down and flew across a street intersection before landing against a retaining wall.

Mary Tinsley-Argenbright died and three other persons were critically injured Saturday in a head-on collision on Texas 289 near the Collin and Grayson county lines.

James Richard Duncan, 31, died in a two-car accident Sunday in McAllen. Police said the accident occurred on FM2061.

An unidentified man was found dead in his car on Nine-Mile Road in Galveston. Police said there was a hole in the car's windshield and they recorded the death as a traffic fatality.

Clyde Walker, 72, of Omaha, Tex., died Saturday when he was shot while working in the yard of his home. Morris County authorities said they took a person into custody.

An Orange man died Saturday in a car-truck accident on a Houston freeway. He was Jesse Harold Bray, 41. Officers said the truck Bray was driving slammed into a bridge support after being involved in a collision with an automobile.

Enrique C. Trevino, 31, of Houston, was attempting to untangle a kite from some electric power lines near his home Saturday when he was accidentally electrocuted. Officers said the man was standing on an aluminum ladder when he came into contact with a high voltage line.

George Stanley Patchell, 21, of Spring died Saturday in a car-truck accident south of Conroe.

A one-car accident near Amarillo Saturday claimed the life of Dana Lynne Lane, 19, of Amarillo.

Boyd Studensky, 20, was stabbed to death Friday night at a Waco club.

Ditka plays last game this time as alumni

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Mike Ditka says he's played his last football game for the University of Pittsburgh—something he thought he did 16 years ago.

"If I come back next year I'm strictly going to coach," the 38-year-old Ditka said Saturday after he and about 80 fellow alumni were beaten 28-12 by the current Pitt team in a gimmick game that ended spring drills.

Unlike many of the alumni, Ditka arrived with more hair than he had as a bruising, crewcut end at Pitt. He now has a moustache, sideburns and a full head of dark locks.

"Still thick-necked and slimwasted, he played defensive end with the same toughness he showed as a youth."

"Mike's competitive no matter what he does, and he keeps himself in super condition," said Dr. Darrell Lewis, alumni coach.

Ditka, who played 12 pro seasons as a standout tight end, now coaches at Dallas.

"I wasn't ready to play and I came here with the idea of just coaching, but I got kind of talked into playing," he said as the losers celebrated that fact that none was seriously hurt.

"This is a good thing because it's a chance to get back together again. But, like I said, if I'm back next year I'm just coaching."

The alumni used as many as 15 players at a time on defense in the final minutes as the officials, also Pitt grads, looked the other way.

Yet the alumni had moments of recaptured glory and actually took a 12-6 halftime lead as crowd of 7,500 watched in a steady drizzle.

Most alumni work was done by players from recent years, such as quarterback Billy Daniels and defensive back Bryant Salter of the Miami Dolphin.

The participation of some older alumni was ceremonial. They were announced as they trotted, or waddled, onto the field for a play or two, and none was seriously belted.

At one time, the alumni backfield had Dr. Bob Bazylak at quarterback, lawyer Paul Martha at halfback and dentist Rick Leeson at fullback.

On the sideline in street clothes was Tony Dorsett, the Heisman Trophy winner who led Pitt to the No. 1 ranking last season.

Dorsett, currently awaiting the pro draft and choosing not to risk injury, cheered in the first quarter when alumni tackle Glen Hyde recovered a blocked punt for a touchdown.

The extra-point kick failed, and the varsity took a 7-6 lead on a three-year touchdown run by Larry Sims before the alumni managed its 12-6 halftime lead on a one-yard run by Bill Englert, Class of '74.

The varsity, which used its first defense on only one series in the first half, took command with a pair of third quarter touchdowns on a three-yard run by Elliott Walker and a 51-yard run by Greg McCray.

"It was nice coming back," said alumni defensive tackle Dave Jancin, Class of '73.

"It's nice hearing your name announced and seeing your old friends."

"But I got killed on every play. I'm just glad nobody got seriously hurt."

Simons wins in New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Three unlikely birdies put unheralded Jim Simons in the lead, but it took a late bogey, of all things, to shake his nearest challenger in the $175,000 New Orleans Open Golf Tournament.

Simons caved out consecutive 67s Sunday for a 15-under-par total of 273 in posting his first victory on the pro tour.

The golfers had to play 36 holes because rain had washed out an earlier round on the 7,080-yard Lakewood Country Club course.

Savoring his three-stroke victory over equally obscure Stan Lee, Simons pointed to two chip-ins and a 70-foot putt as the keys to his success.

Lee could point only to his putter and shake his head. After Simons bogeyed No. 17, Lee needed only to par the final three holes to force a playoff. Instead, he three-putted all three holes for bogeys and second place.

Lee carded a 70 and 69 Sunday. Third was Masters champion Tom Watson, who shot 71-70 for 277. Next, at 278, were Lou Graham (69-69) and Ben Crenshaw (71-69).

Simons was three strokes behind Watson and two behind Lee going into Sunday's play. After the third round, he held a one-shot lead over Lee, Watson and Ed Dougherty.

Simons said he started thinking about winning the tournament after chipping in for birdies twice in his first round Sunday.

"I was just trying to get close and it went in from 25 feet on the 16th," recalled the fifth-year pro from Tequesta, Fla. "On the 18th, I hit a little low pitching wedge from about 50 feet and it went in like it had eyes."

He felt he wrapped it up with a birdie on No. 9 during the final 18.

"It was a 70-footer with a double break—right, then left again," he said. "It went right in."

Lee, a second-year pro, carded eight birdies and five bogeys in his final 69. He had rapped in four straight birdies, on holes 12-15, when he saw Simons miss the green on the par-three 17th.

"At 16, I had a 25-footer to make," Lee said. "Just before I putted, I noticed that Simons had bogeyed 17 so I was tied for the lead. For the first time in the tournament, I became a defensive putter."

Defensive, indeed. He three-putted from 25 feet on 16, from 35 feet on 17 and from 50 feet on 18, knocking himself out of the running.

Simons, whose best previous finish was a tie for third at Tallahassee last week, earned $35,000 for the victory. Lee, who had won $203 before Sunday, received $19,950.

Sunday hone run day

By Associated Press

When a player for the Atlanta Braves hits a home run, Chief Noc-A-Homa does a "run" dance at Atlanta Stadium.

When a visiting player hits one over the fence, he sits it out.

Well, the Atlanta mascot was really on his toes Sunday—but he did more sitting than standing while watching his Braves engage the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The Dodgers and Braves combined for an astronomical total of nine homers. But the Dodgers hit one more and after the dust had cleared at the hitter's paradise known as the "Launching Pad," they had a 16-6 victory.

"They got theirs with men on, and we got ours," said Atlanta Manager Dave Bristol. "That was the difference."

Specifically, three of the five Dodger home runs were hit with men on base, including a grand slam by Ron Cey in a seven-run eighth inning. Atlanta's four homers were all struck with the bases empty.

"We hit everything they threw up," noted Steve Garvey, who contributed a three-run homer to the Dodger cause. "It was an ideal condition for balls hit up in the air."

The Dodger homers started with Garvey's blast in the third inning. Cey's slam and Dusty Baker's two-run shot highlighted the eighth. Then Lee Lacy and relief pitcher Charlie Hough, two unlikely long-ball hitters, smashed solo homers in the ninth.

The nine homers were one short of the Atlanta Stadium record set by the Braves and Cincinnati Reds in 1971.

In other National League games Sunday, the Philadelphia Phillies beat the St. Louis Cardinals 6-3; the Chicago Cubs routed Cincinnati 7-1; the San Francisco Giants

Texas tennis takes trophy

By MILLER BONNER
Associated Press Writer

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP)—The last time Texas won the Southwest Conference tennis championship, Longhorn coach Farrah Fawcett had yet to meet her Six-Million Dollar Man.

But after a 10-year absence, Texas triumphantly returned to the throne room Sunday with Kevin Curren playing the leading role.

Curren captured the No. 3 singles title and clinched the team trophy for Texas before SMU could mount a serious charge.

The Longhorn sophomore also teamed with Gary Plock to win the No. 2 doubles title, thus stealing some of the limelight from TCU, which came within two points of sweeping both the No. 1 singles and doubles.

TCU's Randy Crawford, following the footsteps of his father, rallied from almost certain defeat to claim the singles championship with a 4-6, 6-4, 7-6 decision over Houston's Dan Valentincic.

Ken Crawford, Randy's father, won his first SWC singles title in 1945 and following World War II, returned to SMU and added championships in 1950-51.

Rick Meyers and Tom Mott of TCU tried to duplicate Crawford's dazzling victory but fell to the Texas duo of Plock and Curren by a 2-6, 6-2, 7-6 count, losing the decisive nine-point tiebreaker 5-3.

Texas compiled 85 points to runner-up SMU's 79. TCU followed with 56 trailed by Arkansas, 54, Houston, 42, Rice, 23, Texas A&M, 22, Texas Tech, 14, and Baylor, 12.

Going into Sunday's finals, Texas needed but one victory to lock up the championship and Curren quickly responded, whipping Arkansas' Brian Sakey in straight sets.

Crawford and Valentincic, both of whom played their high school tennis in Fort Worth, split the first two sets of their center-court match.

The Cougar sophomore, however, opened a commanding 5-2 advantage in the third set before Crawford, voted the meets outstanding performer, began his comeback.

"He was taking my serve away," said the power-hitting Crawford of his quick opponent. "I knew I had nothing to lose so I quit worrying about my serve."

His attitude change brought the sun-splashed crowd of about 400 to life.

He won four straight games to even the match at 6-6, setting the stage for another tiebreaker.

He crushed Valentincic, capturing the first five points.

Borge takes Denver tourney despite serve

By The Associated Press

Toppin specialist Bjorn Borg met serve-and-volley ace Brian Gottfried and had to worry about his serve.

"The way I served today bothers me," the 20-year-old Swede said Sunday after faulting on more than half his first serves. But with a steady game at the baseline, Borg defeated Gottfried 7-5, 6-2 in the final of a $100,000 Grand Prix tennis tournament at Denver.

In other tennis action, the Nastase of Romania beat Guillermo Vilas of Argentina 6-2, 6-4 at Chicago in a special match to benefit Romanian earthquake victims. Italian Corrado Barazzutti won his first World Championship Tennis title, downing Eddie Dibbs of Miami Beach 7-6, 6-0.

In World Team Tennis, Françoise Durr and Frew McMillan of the Golden Gaters teamed to beat Olga Morozova and Alex Metreveli of the new WTT Soviets 4-6, 6-3, 6-4, 4-6, 7-5 in the WTT Mixed Doubles Tournament at Woodlands, Tex.

Borg got his break in the 11th game of the first set at 6-5 after he and Gottfried, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., had broken service twice. Borg double-faulted on two straight points in the next game, but again Gottfried netted a chip shot and an approach, giving Borg the set.

Gottfried swept all four points in the opening game of the second set, then took a 40-0 advantage in the second game. But Borg battled back, forcing Gottfried into two return errors and a netted approach, then won the game with a service ace.

Borg thus avenged a 6-1, 6-1 loss to Gottfried at last month's

Cantrell bird wins 'A' race from Henrietta

Birds belonging to Jim Cantrell took the three top spots in Saturday's 200-mile "A" race from Henrietta.

There were 70 birds from 11 lofts in the Top-O-Texas Racing Pigeon Club event. The birds were released at 7 a.m. Weather was clear with variable winds of 10 to 15 miles per hour.

Conditions were the same at 8 a.m. when the 80 birds in the "B" race were liberated.

A blue check cock belonging to R.W. McPhillips was first back with a blue check cock of Jim Cantrell's coming in second. Jerry Mirabella took third with a blue check hen.

To meet Sandies today

The Harvesters are expected to have their hands full today when the Amarillo High Sandies, pre-season 3-AAAA favorites, come over to play a baseball game that has been postponed three times because of bad weather.

"Most of their kids are back from last year," said Harvester coach Bill Balcom. "We'll have to play one of our best games to win."

Pitching for Pampa will be Curtis Haynes and wearing the round mitt and wire mask, will be Keith Fisher.

The contest was to begin at 4 p.m. with much at stake—especially for the Sandies who must have victory to tie the Palo Duro for top honors in the first half of district play. A Harvester win will give the title unshared to Palo Duro.

Baseball standings

Junior Kim Sargent will pitch for the Amarillo team today. He has completed four games of five starts this season, giving up 21 hits and 12 runs in 29 innings.

The Sandies stand at 0-1 in the second half of league competition after dropping 5-4 to Caprock on Friday.

Harvesters have 1-2 for the first half and 1-1 in the second with 8-9 overall.

ABA aims legal clinic at middle income people

By KEN ALLEN
Associated Press Writer
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The American Bar Association has turned a two-story row house in West Philadelphia into an experiment that could revolutionize the legal profession.

The building is the home of the ABA's first legal clinic. Robert T. Richards and a staff of two operate the clinic. They also advertise, despite the fact that advertising is still a controversial issue within the legal profession.

The 59th Street Legal Clinic is an 18-month experiment that began last November to try to bring legal services to middle-income people who make too much to qualify for free legal aid, but don't make enough to afford an expensive lawyer.

"The clinic concept is the most efficient way to provide legal services to the middle-income people," Richards said. "The poor have free legal aid. The rich people have the big law firms. But where does the guy who works go? The middle-income people have been greatly overlooked."

The clinic has a limited practice in areas in which the ABA thinks middle-income people most need legal help. It handles real estate transactions, actions in small claims court, uncontested divorces, defenses of mortgage foreclosures and legal "checkups" which include wills.

Prices range from $10 for the initial consultation fee to $350 for an uncontested divorce. Most of the work can be done in one visit with the lawyer and one or two follow-up visits with a paralegal assistant.

Richards, who used to practice with a downtown Philadelphia firm, said the clinic's prices were about half what large law firms charge. Smaller firms and attorneys in individual practice may charge fees comparable to the clinic's, he said.

That's where the controversial advertising comes in, said Robert Cohen, chairman of the company that owns the clinic.

"The legal profession is in the throes of a dilemma with advertising," Cohen said. "It would appear that without advertising, the clinic won't make it. But what kind of advertising and what should it say?"

For the time being, advertising for the clinic is being handled by the Philadelphia Bar Association, which has been placing discreet ads in neighborhood publications, listing the type of services and cost of the initial visit.

Legal clinics are not new. But the problems inherent in making the public aware of their services has kept down the number of legal clinics in the country and those that have opened have run into problems.

The California Bar Association has recommended that the Legal Clinic of Jacoby and Meyers have its name changed and that Leonard Jacoby and Steven Meyers, who run the clinic, be suspended from the bar for 45 days.

The Bar held that the two men had engaged in a form of advertising in talking with reporters about the clinic. The California Supreme Court is considering that recommendation.

The U.S. Supreme Court is expected to rule before June on a case in Phoenix, Ariz., involving John Bates and Van O'Steen, who took out an ad in a Phoenix newspaper to publicize their clinic. The Arizona Bar recommended that the two lawyers be publicly censured.

Since the 59th Street Legal Clinic is sponsored by the ABA, Richards thinks it will avoid these pitfalls.

For one thing, while lawyers are prevented from advertising, the ABA Code of Ethics makes no mention of advertising by Bar Associations. And since the 59th Street Clinic is an experiment, Richards thinks he may be able to get away with things that private attorneys cannot.

The Philadelphia Bar Association has taken out small ads in neighborhood newspapers giving the name of the clinic, specialties and initial consultation fee.

"Who knows? We may try some radio and TV spots. What we need is a laboratory. We need to try some things and ask ourselves, 'Does this demean the profession?'" Richards said.

Gary Huckaby of Huntsville, Ala., is chairman of the ABA's Special Committee on Delivery of Services and has been overseeing the 59th Street Clinic for the ABA.

"That clinic is an experiment. What we're trying to discover is whether the clinic concept will be received by the public," Huckaby said. He said part of the experiment is seeing how advertising fits into the picture.

One of the objections by established lawyers to advertising is that it may foster competition between attorneys.

Richards claims that the 59th Street Legal Clinic is not competition for established lawyers

He lets cabinet members fight

Carter's first 100 days

Editors: Following is part one of a five-part series on the first 100 days of the Carter administration.

By RICHARD E. MEYER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Jimmy Carter's Cabinet fights. Not that public accounts of its "show and tell" meetings give the slightest hint. But members of the Cabinet have what Cabinet Secretary Jack Watson calls "disputes and disagreements." The President calls them "quite heated discussions."

Both say it stops short of acrimony.

But the occasional disharmony gives insight into how James Earl Carter III has run his Cabinet during his first 100 days as president of the United States.

Interviews with administration officials show: —Cabinet members have full freedom to disagree among themselves and with the President in the formulation of administration policies and programs.

—Cabinet members have more clout in the Carter administration than many of their predecessors in previous administrations had.

—The effectiveness of their departments is diminished by a number of vacancies in top jobs. About 35 per cent of them remain unfilled.

—Carter's Cabinet, counted as fresh faces but including former government officials such as Cyrus R. Vance and Joseph A. Califano Jr., holds at least one full-blown meeting a week.

Every Monday morning, members sit down with Carter in the Cabinet Room at the White House. A White House spokesman sits in and gives reporters an account of the meeting afterward.

By those accounts, Cabinet members, one by one, tell each other and the President what their departments are doing at the moment. Most are bland recitations, ranging from efforts to cut paperwork to vaccinating school children.

Exchanges among Cabinet members are rare, and lively debate on specific points of a Cabinet member's presentation is even rarer. Not one report by the White House spokesman has ever mentioned a heated argument.

But that's deceiving. There are other meetings, some of them by Cabinet groups, and that's where much of the real work gets done. The Monday Cabinet meetings are not usually decision meetings, Watson says.

Cabinet groups, whose sessions are attended by members of the White House staff, are headed by specific Cabinet members, whom Watson calls "lead persons." And here is where Cabinet members get some of their clout.

"The lead person on transportation is Brock Adams," says Watson. "On tax reform it's Mike Blumenthal, and on welfare reform it's Joe Califano." Adams is secretary of transportation; Blumenthal is secretary of the Treasury; and Califano is secretary of health, education and welfare.

Carter recently named Patricia Harris, secretary of housing and urban development, as the "lead person" for a new Cabinet group to develop a strategy for dealing with urban and regional problems. Blumenthal and Califano are members.

"It's fair to call the Monday meeting a 'show and tell,'" Watson says. "But it can be a very valuable 'show and tell.' It mitigates forces operating to separate people, throw people out into separate orbits with strong jurisdictional concerns. Those forces are fed by lack of information and appreciation of what all the other people are doing."

Watson recalls two instances when Cabinet members were split on decisions. On one issue, which he declined to identify, Watson says the split was three and three, with one member more or less undecided. Carter made the final decision. On the other, discussion eliminated options, Watson says, and Carter approved the general concepts in the group's report.

"The decision-making process is generally very collaborative," Watson says. "But sometimes it's not that easy, and there are disputes and disagreements. But I can report to my own knowledge it has worked without acrimony."

Carter told a group of reporters after his April 15 news conference: "At the Cabinet meetings, we have quite heated discussions. And then, when we get down to the final stages, for instance, of evolving energy policy, we get the proposals routed to all of the Cabinet members, and they quite often disagree quite strongly in writing."

"And I get the options and either make a judgment then or meet with them for consultation. There have been some very heated discussions between Dr. (James R.) Schlesinger (Carter's chief energy adviser) for instance, Charlie Schultz (Carter's chief economic adviser), Mike Blumenthal, (secretary of labor) Ray Marshall and others, which I do welcome."

"But I think if we can resolve the differences within the administration, with me making the final decision, that's the best way to resolve it."

Cabinet members get additional clout from their dominance over the White House staff.

"When you talk about power and dominance, you are talking, I think, at least in government terms, primarily about the ability to command," says Watson. "The capacity to demand and direct an individual or a group of people toward a predetermined goal."

"The people who have that authority as direct delegates of the President, that is to say, as the persons chosen to express and extend the President's own authority to and throughout the executive branch of government, are his command leaders — the secretaries of the Cabinet and other major agency heads."

"They are not his White House staff."

Carter's Cabinet departments, however, are less effective than they might be because top jobs under the Cabinet and subcommittee levels are still vacant.

"We're current for the most part," says Hamilton Jordan, the President's top political adviser, who was a key Carter consultant on Cabinet appointments.

"There are some positions, a few positions in each department, which are not filled, mainly because the Cabinet officers have decided to leave them vacant for some reason — they're going to abolish them after reorganization or whatever."

Officials of the Presidential Personnel Office say that as of mid-April 88 of approximately 250 top jobs (not including U.S. attorneys, ambassadors or federal marshals) were still vacant.

The Justice Department, for instance, still needed heads for its Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, Lands Division, Tax Division, Community Relations Service and Office of Legal Counsel.

Some Justice officials said work wasn't getting done because of it.

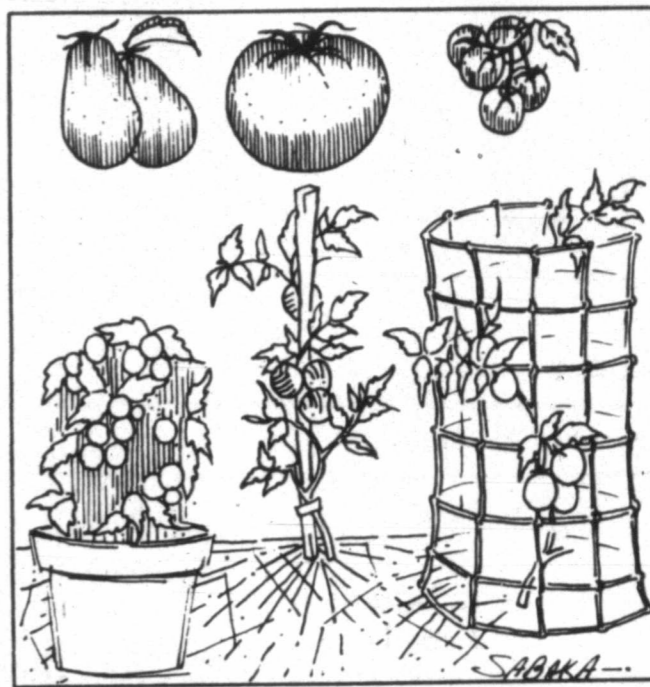

"I haven't heard that," Jordan said. "Judge Bell (Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell) had trouble finding an LEAA administrator, for example. But for good reason: He's trying to find the right person. But I don't know of many situations like that."

Of the 162 positions the personnel office lists as filled, 119 were filled with men and 17 with women. Eighteen are blacks and five are Hispanic.

"I'm not satisfied," Jordan said. "I'm sure those groups are not satisfied. But it's a vast improvement over previous administrations."

Tomatoes taste tastier

(Second in a Series)
By Allan and Sheila Swenson
NEA Garden Columnists

Tomatoes are America's favorite vegetable. Every year they get better. Plant breeders continue to hybridize super new tomatoes that yield more, produce bigger fruits, have even more delicious flavor, resist disease problems and produce more abundantly in home gardens.

There are several reasons home grown tomatoes are really tastier and more nutritious than store-bought types. First, commercial growers must grow varieties that mature at one time for efficient mechanical harvesting, have tougher skins to avoid bruising during handling and shipping and that can be picked underripe. That's great for them, but too often these store-bought, barely pink tomatoes have virtually no flavor left in them.

Varieties available for home growing, however, are sweeter, juicier, ripen over longer periods and have that happy ability to produce, plump, juicy fruit right on your vines. Even in short growing seasons, you can start certain varieties indoors, get a jump on spring, grow them to perfection and harvest most of the crop before the early fall frost arrives. Here are some of the best varieties we have grown.

Parks Whopper VFN is resistant to verticillium and fusarium wilts. It has large, firm, delicious fruits, yields heavily over a long season. Beefmaster is huge, up to 2 lbs each fruit. Better Boy, Spring Giant, an all-America selection, Burpee's Big Girl hybrid, Big Boy Giant hybrid, Big Early and Delicious are all fine too.

For greatest success buy seeds and start them indoors in pots, peat pellets or trays. Although garden centers sell prestarted good varieties, you have a much wider choice when you start your own from seeds.

Use sterile starting mix to avoid damping off disease which occurs often in garden soil that may kill seedlings. Peat pots or Jiffy 7 pellets are better because roots can grow right through pot sides when planted in the garden. Follow seed packet planting directions carefully. After seeds sprout, pinch off smaller, weaker ones in pots and thin in trays or flats to give plants two-inch room each way to develop.

When seedlings are six to eight inches tall and frost free outdoor planting time is about two weeks away, harden off the seedlings. Move them to a cooler area, about 55 degrees. This hardens and prepares them for outdoor life. If plants become leggy or excessively tall, don't worry. Tomato plants do root along stems. Simply plant them on a slant, bending stems carefully and covering with soil, leaving just the leafy top portion above ground. This lets new roots supplement those which developed originally on the plants for faster growth and eventual earlier harvest.

Tomatoes like to climb. Stake them up by tying to posts as they grow. They're easier to tend that way and you save ground growing room. Tomatoes can be trained up fences too by tying to the wires. A wire cylinder is even better. Branches grow out to support the plant as it develops. Growing up keeps fruit off wet ground, makes it easier to see and pick and lets the sun put that sugar sweetness in each fruit.

$2 million would offset loss of Big Spring base

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Big Spring needs another $2 million in economic aid to offset the loss of Webb Air Force Base. The Texas Industrial Commission says.

The commission voted Friday to ask the legislature for the additional $2 million after a delegation led by Big Spring councilman Ralph McLaughlin appeared at the quarterly meeting.

McLaughlin said the $2 million would be used as "seed money" in seeking federal aid to convert the air force base to private use for housing, industry and advertising for plant sites.

He also said Big Spring citizens are raising $350,000 themselves to purchase an additional 200 acres of land adjacent to the base for a local industrial foundation. McLaughlin said Webb officials have said the base will be deserted by Oct. 1.

The Air Force impact statement predicted Big Spring's unemployment would rise 12.8 per cent and its retail sales would dip by $20.2 million. The Air Force statement said up to 2,928 houses will be vacated.

"We now hope to rebuild Big Spring from this disaster that has happened," McLaughlin said.

In other action Friday, the industrial commission was told Tenneco Inc. of Houston has completed negotiations on a $1 billion contract with the government of Sudan concerning agricultural development of 775,000 acres of Sudanese land.

The plan includes the development of regional electric power and transportation facilities, as well as water and waste-water systems to support the agriculture program.

Jim Harwell, executive director of the commission, also told commission members that Texas cannot possibly meet the 1985 deadline President Carter has set on his new energy package.

Canyon father offers reward in girl's death

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — A $5,000 reward is being offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the killer of Bernice Kuhlman, 20.

Alvin Kuhlman of Canyon, Tex., the young woman's father, offered the reward Sunday and said he hopes the fund will grow with contributions from Tulsa residents.

Miss Kuhlman moved here last summer from Canyon and found work with a travel agency. Her nude body was found in a creek in west Tulsa Jan. 15. Police said she has been beaten, raped and strangled.

"This (reward fund) is her education fund," Kuhlman said from his home Sunday night. "We'd saved a little bit every year since the day she was born."

He said he established the college fund by selling "three calves a year for the past 20 years" from the family ranch.

Authorities report no leads in the investigation of Miss Kuhlman's death.

Kansas City, Mo., has "electrified caves" up to 600 feet underground which contain more than 100 million square feet of warehouses, offices and factories.
