Personal Journalism—
From Iowa Park—
Butter For Sale—
What of the Farmer?—

OFTEN repeated regrets at the passing of the age of "personal journalism," when editors were crusaders and quite often fighters by necessity, are without cause as long as such men as C. C. Hudson, owner of the Iowa Park Herald, remain in the publishing business.

Whether or not you agree with the conclusions reached by Mr. Hudson in his review of prohibition enforcement in Wichita county, it must be admitted that the figures cited in the Herald's edition of the week-end, and partially reprinted in the Monday Record News, are worthy of consideration. No local article has excited so much comment in and out of official circles in several months.

A discussion of prohibition law enforcement is probably more the goal of Editor Hudson than the converting of any large number of persons to his views. He is seeking to make his readers THINK about law enforcement, and succeeding in that, he probably is not greatly concerned if all do not agree with him.

AS TO why so few accused persons actually serve sentences for violation of the prohibition laws, The Record News is rather inclined to the viewpoint of C. A. Rogers in his letter printed elsewhere today.

State prosecutors cannot be held wholly responsible for some of the surprising verdicts in liquor trials during the last few months. It might be possible that the status of state officers in Wichita county is somewhat similar to the baseball team that is opposed by nine other players and the umpire.

W. D. CURTIS, manager of the Producers Creamery company, thinks Wichita county and Northwest Texas have just started in their progress in the dairying industry, and points to the rapid strides made during the last few months. This company, the first to ship a car load of butter to Chicago, has since rolled two other cars, and now has more than a car ready for shipment on the first favorable market.

A few months ago a large part of the butter sold in Wichita Falls was purchased from out-of-town producers. Now Wichita is producing not only a large amount of butter for local use, but is supplying the product in car lots to the middle western markets.

CONGRESSMAN CHARLES R. CRISP of Georgia is a cotton grower. His father was a democratic speaker of the house of representatives. He was called before the American Cotton Shippers association and this is what he said:

"The farmers are the only representatives of the basic industry not receiving a fair return for their efforts. They are not getting their share of the national income. Railroads were never more prosperous. Manufacturers are declaring the greatest dividends in history. Banks are filled with money seeking investment. All America is prosperous except the farmers."

If the cotton growers of the south produce 18,000,000 bales when 14,000,000 bales will supply the demand of the world, how will it be possible for these southern farmers to win profits or dividends on their investment?

KIMES SLIPS THROUGH TRAP SET BY POLICE

Daring Oklahoma Bandit Escapes Capture In Hot Chase

COMMANDEERS AUTO

Outlaw Last Seen When He Flees Into Woods

PAWHUSKA, Okla., June 6.(AP) Peace officers tonight despaired of finding a man whom they believed to be Matthew Kimes, Oklahoma outlaw, in an extensive wooded tract southeast of Pawhuska, where he had fled in a commandeered automobile after a gunfight.

Harve Freas, Osage county sheriff, declared that it would be almost impossible to make a thorough search of the woods, which were very thick and perhaps 10 miles long and five miles wide. Officers returned from following bloodhounds for three hours through the tangle without having sighted the fugitive.

Uncertainty as to whether the man still was in the woods, however, did not affect the vigilance of the peace officers, who tonight guarded every road in this vicinity.

Kimes was first believed to be surrounded by a posse of officers in the dense timber land about four miles southeast of here today.

After a thrilling chase through the downtown district of Pawhuska the bandit abandoned his car, bullet-riddled, at the outskirts of town. Here he commandeered the car of Red Carter, cattleman. Hugging Carter tightly to prevent the officers from firing Kimes forced him to speed southeast to the Hominy road. Later Carter was ejected from the car and Kimes took the wheel.

When the chase became too hot the bandit left the car and ran into the woods. He was armed with two automatic pistols, Carter told the officers.

Pawhuska banks were being closely guarded today following advices reaching here that the members of the Kimes gang were planning a holdup this afternoon. It was thought that Kimes appeared in the city this morning with the purpose of having officers center their interest in his capture while his confederates looted the local banks.

Kimes Makes Escape

BARTLESVILLE, Okla., June 6.(AP)—Matthew Kimes apparently had slipped through the fingers of the law late Monday, according to advices received here from Pawhuska.

The sheriff's office at Pawhuska said all trace of Kimes was lost after he took to the hills along Birch Creek, sixteen miles southeast of Pawhuska. Sheriff's forces at Pawhuska said that "It looked as if Kimes had made a clean getaway."

Kimes Pals Captured

NOWATA, Okla., June 6.(AP)—Danny Daniels and Howard Lansdon, reputed members of the Kimes bandit gang, were arrested at Nowata late this afternoon after a gun fight. Daniels was shot in the leg.

The men were arrested by Chief of Police H. B. Lowery and Rupert Lemon, a policeman.

Daniels is under seven year sentence to the penitentiary for burglary and is out on appeal bond. Governor Johnston recently refused to honor a requisition from the Governor of Missouri, where Daniels is wanted for bank robbery, for the reason that he is under sentence in Oklahoma.

Fright of Passenger Causes Plane Crash

PERRY, Iowa, June 6. (AP)—Oscar O'Connor and Joe Hanson, both of Perry, were killed last night when an airplane owned by Paul Engles of Ponca City, Okla., and piloted by Ralph Parcaut of Des Moines, crashed here.

Engles declared the two youths asked to be taken into the air for stunts and that investigation showed one of them became frightened and grabbed the gas control, throwing the machine into a nose dive.

Civil War Prisoner Taken by Brothers

SAN ANTONIO, June 6. (AP)—The funeral of Col. Calvin G. Brewster, 83, who died in Laredo Saturday, was held here Sunday afternoon.

Col. Brewster served with the Union forces in the Civil war and was captured by his brothers who were fighting with the Confederacy.

Man Robs Bank But Displays No Weapon

GARY, Ind., May 6. (AP)—A man who displayed no weapon but thrust a note through the teller's cage saying "keep quiet, you are covered," robbed the First Trust & Savings Bank of Calumet City, of $8000 this afternoon. The robber escaped. With his hand in his pocket in which he apparently had a weapon, the robber lined up three employes and then proceeded to loot the cash drawer.

Court Takes Recess Without Oil Action

WASHINGTON, June 6, (AP)—The supreme court recessed today until October 3 without deciding the case involving the validity of the Teapot Dome naval oil leases held by the interests of Harry F. Sinclair.

Wichita Falls Will Fete Ace of Air If Lindbergh Accepts Bid for Visit

Conqueror of Atlantic Due to Visit Texas During Months of July Or August

Charles A. Lindbergh, that modest hero of the air, the water and the earth, is to be sent an invitation to be the guest of the city of Wichita Falls, and will be feted honorce at several celebrations worthy his fame, if hopes of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce and city officials materialize, it was learned Monday.

Reports that Lindbergh will in all probability be in this section of the state sometime in July, occasioned the decision to send an immediate message of welcome to "The City That Faith Built," should the flyer find it possible to spend some of his much sought-after hours here. Hubert M. Harrison, general manager of the chamber of commerce, said. It is believed that Lindbergh's "faith in elements" will constrain him to see the "faith that built a city," and stop here, it was affirmed.

The first non-stop trans-Atlantic passenger will arrive in the United States on June 11. Following various receptions, balls, parades, banquets, etc., at the nation's capitol and other points in the east, he plans a nation-wide tour, and has already made arrangements to visit his old training grounds, Kelly field, at San Antonio, about July 1.

From San Antonio it is believed the triumphal tour will turn northward to Oklahoma, where Lindbergh made Fort Sill famous, and that Wichita Falls will be directly in his path. In such a case, it is more than possible that he will concede to stop here for a few hours or a few days, according to predictions.

So far as could be ascertained, the flyer has made no other definite engagements in Texas.

Officials of the chamber of commerce declared that celebrations befitting the nature of the visit would be made were the invitation be accepted, and that nothing would be left undone to make the hero's visit here an enjoyable one.

FARMER DIES OF INJURIES

Auto Accident Fatal To Valley View Man

Injuries sustained Saturday afternoon as the result of being struck by an automobile caused the death of Lige Holliman, 44, Valley View farmer, who died at 4 p. m. Monday in the Wichita General hospital.

While walking on a road, seven miles southwest of Iowa Park and near Valley View, Holliman was struck by an automobile driven by a Mrs. Myers, who lives on a farm near alley View.

When Mrs. Myers attempted to drive to the side of the road to avoid two oncoming cars, she struck Holliman, who eye-witnesses said walked into the path of the car.

Holliman was taken to Iowa Park for first aid and was brought to Wichita Falls Sunday morning. The accident occurred about 5 p. m. Saturday.

Funeral services for Holliman will be held at 1 p. m. Tuesday in the First Baptist church of Charlie. Interment will be in the Charlie cemetery.

Holliman is survived by his widow, two sons, two daughters and six brothers: B. H. Holliman and M. J. Holliman of Vernon; D. H. Holliman of Oklaunion; W. H. Holliman of Dodsonville; J. F. and C. E. Holliman of Reckdale, and one sister, Mrs. H. C. Curington of Charlie.

BURKBURNETT, Texas, June 6.—K. T. Howell, age 74, died Monday morning at 5:30 o'clock in the home of his daughter, Mrs. Ira Coley. The funeral took place at the residence this afternoon, conducted by Rev. White of Wichita Falls, burial followed in the Burkburnett cemetery, directed by the Owens undertakers. Five adult children survive, three sons and two daughters; J. G. Howell of Big Sandy, Texas; G. H. Howell, Wichital Falls, H. F. Howell, Wichita Falls, Mrs. William Matherson, Straude, Okla.; and Mrs. Coley of this city.

Pigeons Set Record For Sustained Flight

FORT WORTH, June 6. (AP)—Speaking of long flights, here's one of a different feather: Two Pigeons owned by Armin Helfensteller of the Fort Worth Homing Pigeon club, out of 38 entered by club members, were winners in a 540-mile race from El Paso to Fort Worth which ended when the birds arrived Sunday at 10 o'clock in the morning. The birds had been flying since 6 a. m. Saturday.

Ballanca to Sponsor Plane Hop to Rome

NEW YORK, June 6. (AP)—Guiseppe M. Bellanca, designer of the monoplane Columbia, which carried Clarence D. Chamberlin and Charles A. Levine to Germany, today announced that a flight to Rome from New York in a "single motored plane" will be made, probably in October. The names of the pilot, the navigator and the backer, he said, he did not wish to divulge at this time.

Man Hit By Train Dies From Injuries

HOUSTON, June 6. (AP)—Joel Anderson Conaway, 37, of Bryan, died Sunday from injuries received Saturday when a train struck his truck near Navasota. He did not recover consciousness before his death.

The injured man was brought to the Southern Pacific hospital here.

Slayer of Family Sentenced to Chair

STEPHENVILLE, June 6. (AP)—F. M. Snow, convicted of killing his wife, mother-in-law and stepson on November 27, 1925, on a ranch seven miles from here, was today sentenced to die in the electric chair Friday, July 15, by Judge J. B. Keith, who heard evidence in the case.

Man Beats Wife For Going to Worship

SAN ANTONIO, June 6. (AP)—A negro woman, beaten into unconsciousness by her husband last night, told police at a local hospital that her husband beat her up because she wanted to accompany him to church.

—And the Marriage Editor Was Out!

Sunday's Record News carried a story that caused many people to call for the Marriage Editor.

This story should have specified that the Marriage Editor be called Monday morning.

But it was fair for all who called for the Marriage Editor was gone and talked to none of them.

He'll be in the office this morning. So we suggest that if you called Sunday—or failed to call—but are willing to participate in a real public wedding, you call today.

Just call 4121 and ask for the Marriage Editor. We suggest that you call between 9 and 10.

SCHOOL BOND BALLOT TODAY

$250,000 Issue Before Voters For Okeh

A $250,000 school bond issue ordered for the purpose of constructive additions to the present school buildings of Wichita Falls, will be submitted to the taxpayers of this independent school district Tuesday, with voting polls opening at 8 o'clock. Boxes will be at the city hall at Ninth and Ohio, and at the Regan junior high school between 11th and 12th streets on Broad.

The passing of this bond issue will effect no increase in the present tax assessment, according to W. W. Brown, secretary of the Wichita Falls board of education. It is the first proposal submitted to the taxpayers since 1925, and the second issue to be brought up in five years. The money is deemed necessary due to a 15 per cent increase in enrollment in each of the schools, members of the school board affirmed, as some provision must be made for the 3000 school children added to the scholastic census within the past four years.

Definite arrangement on the distribution of the funds, should the issue carry, will be made by the board immediately, and the first appropriations will go for building additions to be available for use at the opening of the 1928-29 terms if possible, it is indicated. Should the issue fail to carry, children will have to be turned away, Mr. Brown said.

Judges at the polls are J. M. Baber at the Reagan box and Walter Robbins at the city hall. Mr. Baber will be assisted by L. P. Welb and J. O. Holland and Mr. Robbins by Walter Reed and James Rachman.

Burglars Take Flight When Owner Returns

Efforts of "second story workers" to rob the home of Mark D. Walker, 1301 Grant, Monday night were frustrated by the arrival of Mr. Walker at his home just as the robbers were preparing to gain an entrance into the house.

Mr. Walker heard two men walking on the tin flooring of a porch, protruding from the second floor of the house. The robbers heard Mr. Walker about the same time. They made a hasty departure, jumping from the porch to the ground and then over a back-yard fence.

Santa Fe Head Sees Slack Grain Freight

NEW YORK, June 6. (AP)—W. B. Storey, president of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe, says that he thinks the road will hardly do as well in 1927 as in 1926. "We know our grain tonnage will not be as heavy as last year," he explained. "The Panhandle of Texas is not in good condition at all and this territory last year produced 20,000,000 barrels of oil, maybe more.

Infant Child Hurt In Traffic Smash

FORT WORTH, June 6. (AP)—Joe Burt, infant son of Mrs. M. J. Burt, was in a hospital this morning suffering from a fractured skull and other injuries from which he was expected to die at any moment as a result of a collision between an automobile and a street car here last night. Mrs. Burt, while seriously injured, probably will recover, physicians at the hospital said.

LINDBERGH TO BE 'COLONEL' AS REWARD

Missouri Governor Awards Promotion in Rank To Aviator

OTHER HONORS TOO

Atlantic Ace Is Named For Langley Medal At Capital

WASHINGTON, June 6. (AP)—Additional high honors were heaped today upon Charles A. Lindbergh as he moved across the Atlantic ocean on the cruiser Memphis, homeward bound after his epochal flight from New York to Paris.

The Smithsonian Institute awarded him the coveted Langley medal which, in the 19 years since its establishment, has been given to only four others, Orville and Wilbur Wright, Glenn H. Curtiss and Gustave Eiffel, a Frenchman. Lindbergh's citation reads:

"For his magnificent non-stop flight from New York to Paris."

Governor Baker of Missouri announced the promotion of the flying hero from his rank of captain to that of colonel in the Missouri national guard, flying service.

Dirigible to Greet Him

The navy decided to honor the young airman further by sending far to sea to greet him the giant dirigible Los Angeles, manned by Lieutenant Commander Charles E. Rassendahl and other heroes of the airship Shenandoah disaster, and have her accompany the Memphis to the Virginia Capes and on to Washington, where she is to dock at noon Saturday.

Down the Potomac, Lindbergh will be greeted from the air by two of his "buddies" of the air mail service, Shirley J. Short, holder of the Harmon trophy, and Harry G. Smith, another of the crack fliers of the air mail. They will fly with the huge convoy of army and navy planes which will accompany the Memphis up the river.

Carrying forward its plans for the entertainment of the distinguished young American, the semi-official reception committee decided today that during his triumphal journey over historic Pennsylvania avenue, Colonel Lindberg will have with him in the automobile only John Hays Hammond, chairman of the committee.

Mr. Hammond will accompany the aviator up the steps to the president's stand at the Washington monument grounds and present him to President Coolidge. The committee chairman then will retire, leaving only the president and the hero of the New York to Paris hop atop the towering platform in the full view of perhaps 200,000 people.

Besides the reception committee and the District of Columbia commissioners, the governing body of Washington, Lindbergh will be met at the navy yard by the cabinet committee of three, Postmaster General New and Secretaries Dwight Davis and Wilbur.

Colonel Lindbergh

President Coolidge is expected to send a White House automobile bearing the seal of the federal government to the president's wharf for the use of Colonel Lindbergh. A similar car also probably will be placed at the disposal of Mrs. Evangeline L. Lindbergh, mother of the flier, when she arrives in Washington early Saturday morning from her home in Detroit. She will go direct from the Union station to the temporary White House on Dupont circle.

During his first day in Washington Colonel Lindbergh is booked for three address, one after the president pins the Distinguished Flying Cross on him at the monument grounds, and the others at receptions to be given him that night by the Minnesota society and the National Press club.

Mytinger to Discuss City Manager Today

An address by J. C. Mytinger on "Advantages of the City Manager Form of Government" will feature the monthly luncheon of the Wichita Bar association at the Wichita club at noon Tuesday. All business men of the city who are interested in hearing the manager plan discussed are invited to attend the luncheon, according to W. E. George, in charge of the program. Special entertainment numbers have also been arranged.

Rosita Forbes, famous woman traveler, whose specialty is exploring remote places, where white women seldom are seen, has just returned to London, her home, from a 1100-mile trip through Persia, India and Abyssinia.

AUTO OWNER PROTESTS FINE

Tools and Gasoline Also Lost, Council Told

Contending that he was fined twice for the same offense and that while in the city jail 11 gallons of gasoline and two new jacks were taken from his automobile, which was being held by the police department, a young man appeared Monday night before the city council to file a protest.

Friend Drove Car.

The man's arrest, according to his statement, came as the result of the apprehension of a friend of the plaintiff, who was driving the complainant's automobile.

The police made the arrest on the allegation that a 1926 license painted over with the 1927 license color, was being used on the car.

The friend was fined $10 for driving an automobile without a license and the owner also plaintiff to the council, was fined $25 in city court for the same offense, he said. He was transferred to the jurisdiction of the county and again fined $25 for changing a license plate. The man told the council that when he bought the car the changed plate was on it.

Decision Delaed.

The plaintiff filed a preliminary complaint with the council a week ago Monday. At that time it was referred to Roy Carter, police commissioner, for investigation.

Due to the absence from the city of commissioner Carter, City Judge W. L. Bass appeared to explain the arraignment of the plaintiff in the corporation court.

After hearing the complainant and Judge Bass the council decided to await the return of commissioner Carter for his recommendation relative to the case.

During his explanation, Judge Bass upheld the right of corporation to fine both the complainant and the friend for the driving of the one car with a changed license.

GIBSON IS DELEGATE

WASHINGTON, June 6. (AP)—Hugh S. Gibson, ambassador to Belgium, was named chairman of the Washington delegation to the Geneva naval arms conference today by President Coolidge.

ATLANTIC HOP SETS NEW GOAL FOR DISTANCE

Daring Fliers are Feted By Germans At Cottbus

COTTBUS, Germany, June 6.—After their first landing at Eisleben, 110 miles from Berlin, where they replenished their gasoline supply, Chamberlin and Levine, after being 44 hours in the air and breaking Capt. Lindbergh's New York-to-Paris record by something like 800 miles, were forced down again in the swampy territory near here. Breaking their propeller as the plane sank into the deep mud.

"We want very much to complete our flight to Berlin in our own plane but our propeller is completely smashed," said Levine when greeted by Counsellor Poole of the American embassy in Berlin, and who was the first American official to reach the heroic aviators who had been promptly taken to the bosom of the hospitable German people of Cottbus.

To Repair Plane

Counsellor Poole was accompanied to Cottbus by Ministerial Air Director Brandenburg. The latter quickly suggested that he would hasten orders to replace the broken propeller, but it was decided that the repairs could be made in time for the flight to be resumed tonight, and the flyers reluctantly agreed to remain as the guests of Cottbus.

The city began immediate preparations for a festival night.

The flyers were too excited, both agreed, and thrilled by their record achievement, to even attempt to sleep. But both were hungry. They were ushered to a hastily prepared banquet, where between answering a flood of questions and granting requests for autographs they polished off a hearty German meal of rich soup, boiled salmon and potatoes.

During the progress of this meal the special government rescue plane arrived, accompanied by a plane carrying Universal Service's correspondent and a representative of the Berlin Lokal Anzeiger.

The flyers both signed the Cottbus golden book which contains the names of most of the great men of Germany who have visited

News accounts received by The Record News over its Universal Service wire from Europe of the Chamberlin-Levine flight took on added interest here Monday when it was discovered that L. P. Knickerbocker, Universal Service writer at Berlin, is a sister-in-law of Mrs. J. A. Heyman of Wichita Falls. Mrs. Heyman's brother, H. R. Knickerbocker, is head of the Universal Service bureau at Berlin. L. P. Knickerbocker (Laura Patrick) is his wife.

HOP IS 3905 MILES

WASHINGTON, June 6 (AP) Chamberlin and Levine were credited with a flight of 3905 miles today by the geological survey which measured the distance from Roosevelt field to Eisleben.

The survey's figures on the Lindbergh flight were 3610 miles. The computation was made at the request of Colonel F. Schory, secretary of the National Aeronautical association.

Prohibition Agents At Work in Austin

FORT WORTH, June 6. (AP)—Two prohibition agents have been temporarily removed from San Antonio and stationed at Austin to facilitate their work in Travis and adjacent counties. Prohibition Administrator Wright said here today. Wright emphasized, however, that a prohibition enforcement bureau has not been opened at Austin.

Court Refuses Review In Choctaw Oil Case

WASHINGTON, June 6. (AP)—R. E. Holmes and son were refused a review by the supreme court on an Oklahoma decision awarding to Viola LaFlor, a Choctaw Indian, certain lands in Choctaw county, which state courts held had been illegally conveyed to them.

Milk-Ice Fund Aids Mother, Fighting Lone Battle For Lives of Three Tots

Every time a dollar donation is turned over to the Milk and Ice fund in Wichita Falls it is followed by some youngster's laugh where there were tears. Every time a $5 donation is received, the donor can well imagine a group of hungry kiddies getting cold water and nourishing milk to drink.

And with every $25 donation some family in destitute circumstances may face the summer with a determination to be worthy, and to cling to life where no hope had been.

Many such subscriptions are being received—two $25 donations are now on the list,—and the relief that has been given those in such incredible misery and want is greater than can be imagined.

Investigations of the calls for help at the office have brought many cases of pitiless tragedy to Mrs. Effie McHam. On Monday a story was brought to the office which was immediately looked into and found to be true, that warrants all that can be spared of the cash on hand.

It is the story of children who are housed in a tent on the outskirts of town, trying to cheer a father who is slowly dying of tuberculosis and a mother who is inconsolable over the recent loss of the youngest child. This child died for the want of the very things the milk and ice fund is affording—for good rich milk and water other than from the hot hydrants might have saved the life of one more helpless baby.

Now there are three others, all under eight years of age, that the mother must support by washing, ironing, scrubbing—doing anything she can get to do,—besides trying to buy food and medicine for her husband.

Those who sent in subscriptions over the week-end are:

J. J. Perkins	$25.00

600 ARE GIVEN UNIV. DEGREES

Final Exercises Are Held At Austin Monday

AUSTIN, June 6.(AP)—"Never has our country had severer need for the application of trained intelligence to its problems than at this hour," declared Senator Morris Sheppard, at the graduation exercises of the University of Texas tonight.

Presentation of diplomas to more than 600 graduates by Dr. W. M. W. Splawn, president of the university, concluded the three-day exercises. The address was in the men's gymnasium, rain having prevented use of the large Texas university memorial stadium as planned. Some 2000 visitors were here.

"By the acquirement of such intelligence and its use in the settlement of these problems the students of a college or university may become of invaluable help to the country," Mr. Sheppard said.

Passion For Liberty

"From the formation of this republic liberty has been its overwhelming passion. We must never forget, however, that liberty is something more than a passion, a watchword, an exclamation, that if it is to be preserved, if its embodiment in democracy and self-government is to survive, it must be accompanied by intelligence and reason in its relations to human affairs. Jefferson, our foremost apostle of individual liberty, and of its expression through popular sovereignty and the rule of the majority, suggested the union of knowledge with liberty when he said in his first inaugural address that the will of the majority to the rightful must also be reasonable. It was in this address that he announced his conception of the functions of government, one of which he declared to be the diffusion of information.

"Let it be asserted here that the processes of knowledge and government must be so ordered as to conserve and cultivate to the largest possible extent the qualities of individual initiative and ambition. Thus freedom and efficiency must be united. The highest practicable development of the individual is an imperative essential of all progress. Whatever the individual may best do should never be entrusted to government or to another.

Model of Government

"Any system," governmental, social, educational, financial, or industrial which bars or which impedes the true expression of the individual is a pernicious, hurtful, un-Christian, un-American, fit only for junk heaps and refuse piles of time.

"Recurring to the statement that greater need exists today than ever before for the employment of competent thought and effort, in connection with the tasks of society and government, it may well be said that such employment may be vastly expedited by education of the proper types. Never before have the processes of communication, production and exchange become so complicated, so interwoven, so extensive. To protect the individual in opportunity and acquisition in an age of machinery, of unprecedented increments in population, of gigantic industrial and financial organization, is an undertaking in which education is one of the necessary elements."

Here Mr. Sheppard cited laws made by the United States government which are of aid to education and humanity. He also gave statistics compiled from schools and colleges of this country. He pointed out that in 1924 there was expended for all kinds of education in the country the sum of $2,400,000,000, "or about as much as is spent in this nation every year for jewelry, perfumery, cosmetics, furs, chewing gum and cigarets.

Cites Statistics

"Of this sum only $22,400,000, about nine tenths of one per cent, was spent for technical training, in teaching boys and girls manual work, although 92 per cent of the 41,000,000 people in gainful occupation in the United States earn a living with the labor of their hands. Assuredly we have in the present status of education in our country an instance where more efficiency is demanded in development of an instrument of human welfare. If the highest development of the individual is to continue as our goal, we must omit no effort to place a complete liberal and technical education within the reach of every boy and girl in this republic."

$5000 Will Be Paid To Chamberlin's Wife

NEW YORK, June 6. (AP)—Five thousand dollars will be given Mrs. Wilda Chamberlin by the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce in recognition of her husband's trans-Atlantic flight, Ralph Jonas, president of the organization, said today.

"A gift of some sort will be presented Mrs. Grace Levine, wife of the co-pilot, Mr. Jonas said. Both women are expected to carry their gifts to their husbands when they sail to meet them in Europe.

The Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce sponsored the cancelled New York-to-Paris flight of the Columbia.

Funeral For Pastor Killed in Accident

SAN ANTONIO, June 6. (AP)—Funeral services were held Monday morning at the Church of the Immaculate Heart for the Rev. Wenceslas Fernandez, who died Friday from injuries received in a railroad accident Wednesday. The remains were shipped from Colorado, Texas.

French Fliers Down After 29-Hour Hop

PARIS, June 6. (AP) — Cautain Rignot and Dieudonne Coste, French long distance fliers, who took off from LeBourget Saturday morning for a two-lap air journey to Tokyo, were forced to descend at Tajil, in the Tobolsk region, said a message received today at the aeronautic bureau of the ministry of commerce. They had flown 29 1-2 hours.

Solons Vote Stricter Rules On Wage Loans

AUSTIN, June 6. (AP)—Representative Holland's bill providing stricter regulation of loan brokers who take salaries and household furniture for security, was finally passed by the senate today, carrying a $1000 fine as penalty for some violations.

Three Major Bills Sponsored By Moody Defeated in Legislature

AUSTIN, June 6. (AP)—After conducting a one-man filibuster intermittently since 6 p. m., Senator Joe Moore of Greenville shortly before Monday midnight yielded the floor and let the senate vote to adopt the free conference report of a $3,200,000 compromise with the house on the biennial rural school aid bill.

Moore late this afternoon had carried the senate with him in refusing to adopt the report and asking for re-reference of the bill to conference, which the house refused, inspiring his stand.

He was objecting to the $100,000 annual rural school tuition item added in the conference and the reinstatement of provision for 12 traveling rural school inspectors cut out by his amendment to the original senate bill.

Declaring he would give in "rather than see the school children suffer," Moore yielded the floor, which he had held by a parliamentary 'prior lien" since notice of the house refusal came.

AUSTIN, June 6. (AP)—Governor Dan Moody, contemplating defeat of the three most important pieces of general legislation urged in his special session messages, would not say tonight whether he will call another special session immediately.

Civil service, highway and prison legislation are lost.

After defeat of the civil service bill by senate adjournment without a vote Saturday, the governor said he would not call another session if appropriations get through.

Tonight he said "I have no statement to make."

Opinion of legislators is divided as to whether there will be another session after this one ends Tuesday night. Prevailing sentiment seems to be against it.

The Satterwhite house bill to subject a major prison re-location sales went under late today, along with the administration amendment investing the new nine-member prison board, with plenary power in sales, when the senate tabled both proposition, subject to call.

In the house, the administration favored highway bill was defeated when several members insisted on session-end rules, and the house recessed until Tuesday.

HIGHWAY BILL BACKED BY MOODY DEFEATED.

AUSTIN, June 6 (AP).—All hope of general highway legislation at the special session ending Tuesday night was killed late today when the Wood senate bill prepared under direction of Governor Dan Moody was caught under operation of a session-end rule barring consideration of measure on their second reading.

But for the insistence of several house members on strict adherence to rules, the bill might have been passed. An attempt to extend suspension by viva voce vote of the 72-hour rule abrogated Saturday failed when Representative Tillotson and several others held Speaker R. L. Bobbitt to the rule that a written resolution must be approved by a committee and adopted by the house to abrogate the session-end rule.

Highway legislation was one of the main subjects of the special session. The Wood bill would have defined policies of the highway department and required the commission to give first attention to cardinal highways, 5000 miles of which would have been designated under the measure.

AUSTIN, June 6 (AP).—After stormy scenes, acrimony, personal threats and verbal shots at State Superintendent S. M. N. Marrs, the house late today killed the Witt senate bill to allow county buying of state textbooks now purchased and distributed by the state.

Vote was 71 to 44, after Representative George Purl, warmly defending Superintendent Marrs' opposition to the bill, climaxed several 'hours' heated argument by taking the floor on a point of personal privilege and offering to test his physical prowess against his colleague, Representative Ray Holder, who earlier in the day scathingly attacked Marrs.

AUTO DEALERS PROTEST LAW

City Collision Ordinance Protested

Protest against the enactment of a city ordinance prescribing a penalty for those implicated in a negligent automobile collision was entered Monday night with the city council, by C. C. Randle on behalf of the Wichita Falls Automobile Dealers association.

The ordinance was passed on its first reading at the council meeting held May 30 and was passed on its second reading Monday night. Randle was informed that the council would hear protests against the enactment of the ordinance at the next meeting when the ordinance will be presented for its third and final reading.

Before Mr. Randle could cite the association's objections to the ordinance he was advised to appear at the next meeting.

McClure Given Leave

On objection of Ben D. Donnell a permit for the erection of a root beer stand at 10th and Tilden streets was denied Mr. Donnell said that although he did not represent the citizens living in the community, nevertheless he knew that they also objected to the erection of the stand in the community, which is rated a restricted residential district. Mayor Shepherd advised the councilmen that he had received protests against the erection of the stand from residents in the community.

Fire Chief J. L. McClure was granted a leave of absence by the council to attend the Texas Fire Marshals' association meeting in San Antonio which will be held the latter part of this week.

Paving Ordered

The council ordered the paving of Holiday, from Seventh to Eighth and awarded paving contracts to the L. E. Whitham company for Pecan street, from Mississippi to California, and California, from Pecan to the alley in block No. 13 in the Barwise and Jalonic addition.

The council ordered the closing of Chester street, between the Wichita Valley and Southern railroad tracks to Bluff street and received an application for the closing of Colorado avenue, between Pecan and Oak. The hearing on the application was set for June 20.

An ordinance prescribing a penalty not exceeding a $200 fine for camping on streets, alleys, public property or private property, without the permission of the owner, within the city limits was passed on its first reading by the council.

A petition for the paving of the unpaved portions of Indiana street, between Sixth and Seventh, was filed with the council. The hearing on the petition was set for May 20.

$12,000 For Property

Advised that a man has offered to purchase two blocks near Spudder park, owned by the city, and bought several years ago for a camping ground, the council set a price of $12,500 on the property.

Payment of $26,402.25 to the Morgan Construction company; $11,900 to the Hamilton Plumbing company and $1850 to the Johnson Electrical company for work completed on the municipal auditorium was authorized by the council.

The council also authorized the payment of $17,797.62 to the Callahan, Whitham company for work completed on the city sewerage disposal plant.

Services Held For W. E. Arbuckle, Victim of Street Car Accident

Funeral services for W. E. Arbuckle, 28, victim of a street car accident which occurred at 12:45 o'clock Sunday morning, were held from the Burris-Shepherd funeral home at 3:30 o'clock Monday afternoon. Burial was in Rosemont Burial park.

Mr. Arbuckle, an employe of the People's Ice company, was lying asleep about one foot from the car track at Richardson's crossing on the Lake Wichita line when struck by the car, it was said. His body was not discovered by the motorman until too late to stop, authorities said, and was dragged under the wheels. Justice of the Peace O. L. Gibbs rendered a verdict of "accidental death."

According to friends, Mr. Arbuckle had returned from a fishing party and was to walk home from the crossing. It is believed that while waiting for the car he had fallen asleep and failed to wake when the car approached.

He is survived by his widow, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Arbuckle and a sister, of Butterfield, Mo.; an uncle, T. C. Arbuckle and his grandmother, Mrs. Ella Arbuckle, both of Wichita Falls. Mr. Arbuckle was living at 1307 North Fourth street.

SING-SONG

Public Invited to Affair At Bellevue Park Tonight

A sing-song to which all adults and children in Wichita Falls are invited will be held at 8 p. m. Tuesday at the Bellevue playground under the auspices of the department of recreation, C. C. Bunnenberg, superintendent of parks, announced Monday.

The sing-song will be led by Joel MacGregor. The department is planning to conduct sing-songs twice a week during the summer, Mr. Bunnenberg said.

Joe R. Farabee To Open Insurance Agency

Opening of the Farabee Insurance agency, at 817 Hamilton building, was announced Monday by Joe R. Farabee.

The agency will transact a general insurance business. Mr. Farabee until recently was district manager of the Security Insurance company has had many years of experience in this line of endeavor.

Mr. Farabee has participated in many civic enterprises and is a member of several local organizations.

Kiwanians Take Part In National Program At Out-Door Meet Here

"Zero hour," a period of time set aside by Kiwanis clubs over the United States and Canada in which all members heard the words, "we reaffirm our faith in the principles of the organization and dedicate ourselves anew to the ideals through which our work has grown and prospered," was observed by the local Kiwanis club Monday night in an out-of-doors meeting held on the Municipal Golf links between the hours of 6 and 8 o'clock. Dr. F. R. Collard and Don Haynes had charge of the program, which was heard by more than 100 members and guests.

A group of stunt features arranged by Mr. Haynes preceded the supper, after which Dr. Collard presented the program of the evening, opening with "America" by the assembly and an invocation by Dr. Floyd Bash.

Message From President

Following the introduction of guests and the singing of the Canadian national anthem, Dr. Collard read a message from President Ralph A. Amerman which was heard by every club in the organization at this same hour. The meaning of the zero hour and the principles and ideals of Kiwanis constituted the message.

"It should always be remembered that Kiwanis was never intended to supersede the Church, the Chamber of Commerce or other civic, charitable and philanthropic organizations," the paper stated. It has always been one of our principles that all Kiwanis clubs should assist these organizations in their many activities and urge active participation upon all their members in developing their various programs which are for the advancement of community prosperity and happiness."

Greetings From Delegates

Messages from local delegates to the international convention at Memphis, Tenn., and from Ralph R. Devine of Corpus Christi, president of the Texas-Oklahoma district, were read at the close of the program. The telegram from Wichita Falls delegates follows:

"Four thousand Kiwanis tonight in Memphis down in Dixie are observing with you and 1600 other clubs on the North American continent our annual zero hour in Kiwanis. We your delegates send a message of greeting with every good wish for a most successful program at home. Especially do we send congratulations to our Henrietta club; tell them Governor Smith assured us tonight he would be there June 30th for charter presentation. Signed), J. M. Williams, J. N. Sherrill, Julian Bobo, J. L. Jackson Jr., Paul Pearson."

Three members of the Henrietta club were present for the meeting here.

Boxes of fried chicken with "all the trimmings" were served the Kiwanians and their guests at the meeting by the Peter Pan pantry of Wichita Falls, and dessert of ice cream was furnished by the Colvert Ice Cream company. Drinks were furnished by the Lehi Bottling company. A picture of the group in attendance was made before sundown.

Find Six Keys to the Popularity of Coca-Cola

THIRST

The only real drink is a thirst-quenching drink. Coca-Cola, a pure drink of natural flavors, quenches thirst as nothing else can.

Another of the "six keys" — six outstanding reasons why everybody likes Coca-Cola—is illustrated and presented in the Coca-Cola story above. All "six keys" are being illustrated and presented in Coca-Cola advertising between the first week in May and the middle of August—in the following weeklies, one key to each advertisement: The Saturday Evening Post, Literary Digest, Liberty, Collier's Weekly, and Life, and in posters, outdoor signs; in the show windows and at the stores and stands of the many thousands of places that serve Coca-Cola.

For the correct naming of the "six keys" and the best answers to two simple questions, 635 cash prizes totaling $30,000 will be awarded by The Coca-Cola Company, Atlanta, Ga. The first prize will be $10,000. Contest closes August 25, 1927. Visit our plant and we'll be glad to help you get started if you have not already entered this contest.

THREE BRIDGE OCEAN SPACE

Bellanca Plane Third To Span Atlantic

NEW YORK, June 6 (AP).—A new long-distance flying record of approximately 3790 miles was hung up today by Clarence D. Chamberlin and Charles A. Levine as a mark for airmen to shoot at.

The former record of 3610 miles, established by Captain Charles A. Lindbergh on his New York to Paris flight was shattered by the Bellanca monoplane Columbia shortly after it had passed Boulogne Sur Mer, on the northwestern coast of France.

The new record was established when the plane made its record landing at Eislenben, about 110 miles southeast of Berlin.

The Columbia in its trans-Atlantic flight also came near approaching the world's record for sustained flight, recently established by the same plane with Chamberlin and Bert Acosta, when the pair flew over Long Island for more than 51 hours. The present endurance record is 42 hours, the plane having started from Roosevelt field, Long Island, at 6:05 a. m. Saturday and landing at Eisleben at 5 a. m. or midnight eastern daylight time.

The daring voyage of the Columbia marked the third time the Atlantic has been spanned in nonstop flights by heavier than air machines. Alcock and Brown, Englishmen, flying from Newfoundland to Ireland in 1919, were the original trans-oceanic airplane trail blazers. Lindbergh's great flight came next.

They Travel Slow

Chamberlin and Levine traveled slower than Captain Lindbergh, but their flight was 180 miles longer than that of Lindbergh. The Columbia team was behind the schedule set by Captain Lindbergh throughout the voyage.

The Columbia following a more southerly course than that of Lindbergh's Spirit of St. Louis, covered the 1900-mile water jump from Newfoundland in just 21 hours, three hours and 45 minutes more than that required by Lindbergh.

After flying unsighted through Saturday night the Columbia was seen by the Cunard liner Mauretania 360 miles off the Scilly Islands at 11:30 a. m. yesterday.

All England had remained watchful for sight of the craft. Le-Bourget flying field, outside of Paris, where Captain Lindbergh terminated his trip, was lighted with giant beacons and flying terminals throughout Italy established night signals and made preparations to receive the pair.

The element of uncertainty as to where the Columbia would come down kept all Europe in a high state of excitement as any one of the chief continental cities was considered a prospective landing field for the Columbia.

Interest and enthusiasm resembling that aroused by Captain Lindbergh's flight were created throughout the world by the Chamberlin-Levine team.

Citizens of German origin in New York when reports indicated Berlin was the plane's destination started making plans to celebrate the landing of the airmen and for their reception when they return to New York.

Magistrate Charles A. Oberwager, president of the United German societies, said his organization would sponsor a monster celebration of the first air trip from America to Germany.

"All Germany will unite in an attempt to outdo the reception given Lindbergh in Paris and other continental capitals," said Colonel Jacob Ruppert, owner of the New York Yankees.

Home Town Celebrates

At North Adams, Mass., where Levine, 30-year-old owner of the Columbia, was born, enthusiasm was rampant. After leaving grammar school Levine worked for his father in the junk trade at Green Point, N. Y., to where the family had removed. Two years later he went to work as an apprentice for the Moissant Aviation company on Long Island where he developed his first interest in aviation.

Teterboro, N. J., Chamberlin's home town, a community of 19 adults, began plans to give a rousing reception to its distinguished citizen. "We'll give him a royaling reception to its distinguished welcome," said Edward Shafer, clerk of the borough.

Chamberlin Predicted Atlantic Hop in 1918

GALVESTON, June 6. (AP)—Back in 1918, when he was a ground school aviation cadet at the University of California, Clarence Chamberlin predicted that some day he would hop the Atlantic, according to T. W. Lain, Galveston banker, who was a "buddy" of Chamberlin5s in squadron No. 70 at the school of military aeronautics in Berkeley.

Heavy Rain Breaks San Angelo Drouth

SAN ANGELO, June 6. (AP)—Preceded by a wind and dust storm, rain fell in this section Sunday night, bringing much needed moisture to part of the range country. Here the fall was seventh-eighths of an inch. Sweetwater, Rowena, Christoval and Colorado got an inch each, Eldora, 1 1-4 inches and a half-inch each at Sonora, Carlsbad, Bronte, Mertzon and Broownwood. Showers were spotted in other places, but the oil field area west got no rain at all.

RICH PAIR IN SUICIDE PACT

Retired Grocer Kills His Wife and Self

Special to The Record News.

NEW YORK, June 6.—George B. Underhill, 65, a healthy retired grocer, shot and killed his wife, Jennie, and then placed the revolver behind his right ear and killed himself in the dining room of their apartment, No. 784 Halsey street, Brooklyn, today, according to the police. Detectives after an investigation declared their belief that the deaths were probably the result of a suicide pact.

Mrs. Underhill, who was 60 and had been in ill health for some time was found on the dining room floor with her head on two pillows and two bullet wounds near the heart. A revolver lay near the body of Underhill.

Two notes were found on the table. One read:

"To the Williamsburgh Savings bank: Please pay to bearer $500 and oblige, George B. Underhill."

The second note was addressed to Mrs. Wallace, an upstairs neighbor, who heard the shots and notified the police.

"Dear Mrs. Wallace:

"Please give this bank book and order for $500 to buy a grave for us. Put us in one grave. Give it to United Burial company, 1202 Broadway. George B. Underhill."

"P. S. I have a brother at Hayti, Mo. He is Albert C. Underhill."

Several bank books found on the table near the notes showed total deposits of approximately $50,000, according to the police.

The couple were married 41 years ago and were childless, Mrs. Wallace told the police. They were very devoted to one another, and since Mrs. Underhill suffered a stroke about two years ago, they only left the house for short walks to go to a local moving picture theater, Mrs. Wallace said.

Jealousy Is a Human Disease For Which No Cure Has Been Found

Why Jealousy Cannot Be Cured—The Disgusted Wife Whose Husband Loves to Do Housework. The Silly Business Girl Who Feels Slighted At Not Being Introduced by Her Boss.

Dear Miss Dix—I am very fond of a girl. We have similar tastes in sports and mental interests, but I, a m troubled because she does not like my mother and hurts her with indifferences and small unkindnesses. I have seen her be actually rude to my mother, and, although my mother ignores this for my sake, I know how it wounds I have talked with the girl about it and she says that she is jealous of my mother and resents her interest in me. Do you think I will be happy if I marry this girl? Do you think that she will change her attitude toward my mother?

A. B. C.

Answer:

No. I do not think that the girl will ever feel more kindly toward your mother. On the contrary, I think that if you marry her, she will hate your mother more and more all the time, and will become more and more vindicative toward her.

Because her attitude is inspired solely by jealousy, and jealousy grows by what it feeds upon. Every time you spoke to your mother, every time you showed her a particle of filial affection new affront to her, and she would find fresh offense in evry act of your mother's no matter haw tactful or how self-effacing it was

And there would be nothing that you could do to remedy the situation, for jealousy is a form of insanity. It cannot be reasoned with. It cannot be combated by logic, or dispelled by any proof of its groundlessness.

You can see that in your own particular case. The girl's own intelligence must tell her that it is natural and reasonable and human for your mother to love you and be interested in you, and that if you are any sort of a man at all you must love your mother, and be grateful to her and enjoy being with her. There is nothing in this to offend her. Yet she is so unreasonable as to resent your affection for your mother and hers for you.

I should certainly advise you not to marry this girl who has forewarned you by her conduct of what her attitude would be toward your mother, for, believe me, son, you will find no happiness in such a unloh.

No man is ever placed in a crueler position that the one who is driven by the jealous fury of a wife to choose between her and the mother who bore him, the mother he adores, the mother who has sacrificed for him, the mother who has loved him so unselfishly that she has always preferred his good above her own, the mother to whom he is bound by every tie of duty and appreciation.

Only a woman who is mean and selfish and little-souled puts her husband to a test like that. And a man's love does not long survive the disillusion of finding out that his wife is utterly lacking in sympathy and kindliness and generosity.

Moreover, if you marry a woman who is so jealous of your affection for your mother that she cannot be civil to her, consider how green-eyed she will be of every other woman in the world and of every interest that you have. Why, you will not dare even to be courteous to any lady you happen to meet on the street, nor to hire a stenographer under 90. And she will throw fits every time you are five minutes late coming home to dinner, and even be jealous of your business.

Man, man, your Guardian Angel is working overtime to try to save you. You have gotten your warning of what to expect if you marry this woman. Heed it, if you value your happiness!

Dear Dorothy Dix — What is your opinion of a man who just loves to do housework? That's my husband and I am disgusted with him. He is in his glory when he is making beds and washing dishes, or doing the laundry, and he adores baking cakes. Sometimes I feel like spanking him.

LOUISE.

Answer:

Well, I should think that a husband who loved to do housework was a gift direct from heaven, and if he was mine, I shouldn't interfere with his enjoyment in the slightest degree. On the contrary, I should urge him on in the good work, and the more he swept and dusted, the more I should give hime the glad hand.

What's wrong, anyway, with a man liking to do housework? There is nothing unmanly in that. Aren't all the best chefs men? Aren't all the best dressmakers men? Aren't all the inspired designers men? Can any woman polish up furniture or silver like a good butler?

Instead of lambasting your husband for his domestic tastes, why don't you capitalize them and make a fortune? Why don't you start a boarding house or a hotel, and let him exert his talents in the kitchen? Evidently there is where his genius lies and he will find pleasure and profit in exercising them in that way.

All across North Africa there is a chain of the most delightful hotels, in every one of which is a young French couple, who run them. In the kitchen is the husband, who is the chef, and who prepares the most ravishing meals, and in the office is the wife, who runs that end of the business. Why not imitate their example?

Do not look down on cooking, dear lady. It is one of the fine arts and no man demeans himself by following it.

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—I am working in an office where I meet many business and professional men, but my employers never introduces me to them. I am not particularly interested in any one of them, but I feel that he slights me and it makes it embarrassing for me to do secretarial work for some of these men and have to take it for granted that they are Mr. So, and So, and perhaps they don't even know my name. Nor did by employer introduce me to his wife, though she is always very pleasant and calls me by name.

There is one young man who comes into the office who always speaks to me, but he has not been introduced to me, either, and I don't know whether I should speak to him or not, or whether I should go out with him to lunch if he should ask me. What do you say?

JEANNE.

Answer:

I think you are making a mountain out of a mole hill. Business isn't society, nos is a business office a pink tea. It would possibly be more courteous for your employer to introduce you to the men whose work you are to do, but that is immaterial. During business hours you are just part of the working machine.

If you were a clerk, you wouldn't think you had to have a formal introduction to a customer before you sold his a pair of gloves or a necktie, and there is no more reason why you should be introduced to him before you take his dictation for a letter.

The great trouble with women is that they expect to be treated in a business office as they do in a ballroom, and they forget that a different code of manners prevails for each. There is no time for picking up handkerchiefs and handling chairs and the formalities of society in the hurlyburly of commercial life. So forget it.

When men and women work together and see each other every hour of the day, it's ridiculous to think that they have to be introduced in any set form. They get to know each other as men and women never do in society, so you need have no hesitation in accepting the young man's attentions if you have sized him up and found that he is all right.

HORSE SENSE!

TOLEDO, O.—Are horses, in a last effort to compete with the ubiuitous automobile, learning to interpret the traffic signal lights, without aid of their drivers? So says the owner of a delivery wagon who left his horse standing outside the Nasby building. While he was inside the building, the light at Madison avenue and Huron street (which had been set against Huron street) changed and the stream of traffic moved. The unattended horse took one look at the light, say the "Go" signal and started off at a canter. He made the turn on Madison avenue, taking no notice whatever of the shouts of pedestrians, who noticed the driverless vehicle. Reaching Madison avenue and Superior street, the signal was against him and he duly stopped. What might have happened after this will never be known, as the driver arrived and took charge.

CLIMB TO SAVE

BOSTON.—When Ernest Sadler climbed the winding stairway in his stable at Limerick, Me., to pitch down some hay for his horse, he found the animal at the mow in the upper part of the building, contentedly nibbling away. Rising with an unusually keen appetite the horse had climbed upstairs to the ladder. Getting down was something else again, and required the assistance of six strong men.

MODISH MITZI — Mitzi Attends Premet's Opening — By JAY V. JAY

At Premet's long windows look out upon the Place Vendome, tall mirrors at each end of the room and rows and rows of people (mostly makers of the mode for America) line the walls. Mitzi's program lists 150 styles to be worn in the fall. From left to right, the hats at this event are listed among the smartest there. The tight, brimless small crown hat, the irregular brim hat with tiny tucks on top, and the hat with applique of a deeper shade than the felt of which it is made, is quite new. Mitzi's hat with the feather band across the crown joins the elite.

After 149 models have passed her, Mitzi has the impression that side drapery is most important. It begins at the shoulder sometimes. Or at the hip. Spiral effects, made by stitching or fagoting, are often repeated. Many of the manequins wear knee bracelets of gold to match necklace and wristlet!

Sports wear, afternoon and evening gowns all have style details on the side. The dress with the roses in colored beads has a silvery fringe over them and is called, most appropriately, Garden in the Rain. "According to Premet," whispers Mitzi to Polly, "every one is going to wear gray." She's so glad it's becoming!

THE BOOTLEGGERS ALARM

ATTUMWA, Kan.—John Grice, negro, was arrested in his home and accused of illegally possessing liquor. All because of an alarm system. It didn't work. The system consisted of one large Rhode Island red rooster, kept in the basement. Police had previously hidden in the basement to catch Grice, but had been foiled by the rooster's alarm. This time they went in the front door and the alarm didn't go off until after Grice was caught.

Woman's Day Of Work and Play

French women are proving gracious "sisters under the skin." A goodly number of English-speaking French women have volunteered to entertain the wives and children of American Legionnaires in Paris next fall.

Children's theatrical performances, a reception and musical at the Hotel de Ville, the city hall of Paris, and the Comedie Francaise are on the program.

Making the plans for special entertainment is proving a pleasant task of the French woman's organizations, under the leadership of M. Le Comte Dejean of the French foreign office.

Nobody Loves a Skinny Woman

Gain Pounds of Weight in 3 Weeks with New YEAST and IRON—or pay nothing
Folks are amazed at Ironized Yeast. They say 5 to 15 pounds are gained in 3 weeks! Skinny limbs covered with rounded, graceful flesh! Ugly hollows in shoulders filled up! Eyes sparkling with health. They ask—how does Ironized Yeast work so quickly?
How Yeast and Iron Builds Weight
Ironized Yeast is two tonics in one—weight-building and Yeast strengthening Iron. The yeast is the same used in making malt, and which makes malt so beneficial. It is specially cultured yeast, concentrated to give the utmost in flesh-producing value.
This Yeast is treated with pure, vegetable iron the same as in spinach, lettuce and celery. In this form Iron is easily assimilated by the body, making rich, red blood and toning up nerves and muscles.
Only when Yeast is Ironized in this way is it more effective—for Iron is needed to bring out the weight-building, strengthening value of Yeast. By this special formula Ironized Yeast gives you results in half the time required by yeast or iron taken separately. If you are underweight, nervous or tired, you need Ironized Yeast. Start it today. Absolutely harmless. 60 nice, pleasant tasting tablets to a handy bottle. They do not upset the stomach or cause gas or bloating.
Try It On "Money-Back" Offer
Go today to any drug store and get a full size treatment of Ironized Yeast. If not delighted with the quick results, get your money back. If inconvenient to buy from the druggist, send $1.00 direct to the IRONIZED YEAST CO., Atlanta, Ga., Desk 84.

First Christian Women Present Bibical Wedding

A lovely pantomime representing the marriage of the Church of Christ, was given at the meeting of the First Christian Woman's council Monday afternoon. The program was in charge of Mrs. N. A. Ferguson's division and Mrs. A. D. Patillo gave the monologue while the wedding march was played by Mrs. R. E. Strange on the pipe organ. Those taking part included Dr. and Mrs. F. A. Bash, Joe Keevil, Albert Patillo, and Misses Elizabeth and Mary Brown, Charlotte Keevil and Mary Ferguson.

Mrs. W. L. Parker sang, "O Promise Me," and Mrs. N. W. Gaut represented the bride. At the close of the pantomime, the assembly sang.

Mrs. Joe Tyson gave the devotional, telling the Bibical story of Ruth, and this was followed by prayer by D. Bash.

In the business session presided over by the president, Mrs. L. Lem Keevil, 396 visits were reported for the past month, and $295 was given in the offering. The council adjourned to meet again in September, and during the social hour, punch was served by Mrs. Ferguson's division to 125 members.

IS A HEALTHIER STRONGER GIRL

Because She Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

The fertile valleys of Oregon help to supply the tables of America.

This is possible thru the magic of the humble tin can.

In one of the canning establishments, Julia Schmidt was employed. It was complicated work because she did sealing and other parts of the work. It was strenuous work and she was not a strong girl. Often she forced herself to work when she was hardly able to sit at her machine. At times she would have to stay at home for she was so weak she could hardly walk. For five years she was in this weakened condition.

She tried various medicines. At last, a friend of hers spoke of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Miss Schmidt gave it a trial.

"Everyone says I am a healthier and stronger girl," she writes. "I am recommending the Vegetable Compound to all my friends who tell me how they suffer and I am willing to answer letters from women asking about it." Julia Schmidt's address is 113 Willow St., Silverton, Oregon. For sale by all druggists.

Are You Really Free?

The anniversary of our country's independence is just around the corner, which brings us squarely up against the question just how free and independent we really are, as individuals.

Not much, we must confess, if we are spending Tomorrow's Dollar Today, and if our peace of mind is constantly disturbed by visions of what would happen if our earning power should cease and the charge accounts come due.

Paying - Cash - As - You - Go with a bit put aside for the proverbial rainy day, goes far toward giving a man or a woman REAL freedom. You are free to shop where you can get the most value for your dollar with no fear of the First-Of-The-Month blues.

The Brothers in Black

"THE bill intended to re-eliminate the negro from the democratic primary may easily meet the fate of the statute it seeks to repair," editorializes the Dallas News. "Certainly it attempts by indirection what the former law did by specific words and at the same time the proposed law maintains the same point of vulnerability at which the unconstitutional statute succumber and that is the ascertain of state control over the primary of the party. If Texas is running the democratic primary—and that is the theory of the old law and the new—anything done at the primary by authority of state law is chargeable to the state. The forbidance contained in the constitution of the United States is directed against the state."

There is a way to go about it according to the editorial writer of the News and he points the road, "The only way for the exclusion of negroes from the primary to be taken outside of the prohibitory section which nullified the statute is to take the primary management out of the statute and that is precisely what the new measure doesn't do."

Negroes are not democrats. They do not invade democratic primaries in Texas. There are negroes who have voted for democrats at the general election in days gone by. They did it because they thought it was a choice of two evils. As for the republican party in Texas, its leaders are of the lily white variety and they do their level best to bar negroes from their primaries and after the primaries they do their level best to get the brother in black to go to the polls and vote the straight republican ticket or the ticket labeled republican.

Kilgore and His Friends

CHAMPIONS of farm relief are in the saddle away down here in Texas. Dr. W. B. Kilgore of North Carolina is the chairman of the board of the American Cotton Growers exchange. He attended the Austin conference and was one of the principal speakers. In reviewing the farm situation of the last seven years, Dr. Kilgore said the loss to farmers from price depression was not less than $14,000,000,000 or $2,000,000,000 annually while the corresponding increase in the value of manufactured products is shown for the same period. For this reason the chairman of the Cotton Growers exchange is for the Haughen-McNary bill and believes that the federal congress should enact the measure. Dr. Kilgore must be of the opinion that it is possible to create wealth by the enactment of law or laws. How would he go about it?

Mark Sullivan On the Game

MARK SULLIVAN'S latest is that Coolidge's third term talk is only guess work. President Coolidge served an unexpired term and a very short one at that on account of the death of Warren G. Harding. Then the people elected him for a full term. Now he is a candidate for a second term which he hopes will be a full term. There isn't any guess work about Calvin Coolidge. He believes that his policies of government are popular. He believes that the republican party is stronger than ever before and that he has made it stronger. He is the cleverest of politicians and he hasn't talked himself into political death.

Calles Strikes Back

AMBASSADOR JAS. R. SHEFFIELD has confirmed the news that the Mexican government has decreed a boycott on American products heretofore purchased by Mexican governmental departments. Mexico alleges an embargo was placed by the United States on shipment of American goods to Mexico. Of course all intelligent readers of the American press know that the embargo against shipment of arms into Mexico is the only one in existence. President Calles is a trouble maker extraordinary. He thinks he is a Mussolini. He isn't. There is only one Mussolini.

His Picture On the Wall

AND now the picture of Gen. John A. Hulen hangs on the wall beneath the dome of the capitol. This picture was placed there by the former soldiers of Texas. It was placed there in honor of a man who saw service in the Spanish-American war, who won a record for valor in the Philippine war and who carried a brigade to France and returned as the commanding officer of his division.

He won honor in France. On his breast were pinned the highest decorations that can be bestowed by foreign governments for soldierly qualities, heroism under fire and militaristic achievements on the battle field. John A. Hulen, the soldier, is a name known in every household in Texas. John A. Hulen, the civilian, has a record his friends say is just as spotless as the record that he made with the flashing sword.

He is a son of Texas; he is a man of few words; he is not a military autocrat, in or out of army life. He is as hard as nails when there is a duty to be done or a responsibility to assume, but as democratic as an old farmer, as loyal to conviction as any man under Texas skies and admired wherever known.

These are some of the reasons why soldiers and civilians say that the picture of Hulen adorns the walls of the great capitol building of the imperial state of Texas. Flowers for the living. It is well to pass them on to the deserving while the deserving ones are in the land of the living.

Speaking of Home Brew

"THERE is no inherent immorality in the use of liquor in the American home, even if it constitutes a technical violation of the law"—such is the decision of the United States circuit court of appeals, sitting at Kansas City, Mo. Is this a boost for home brewing in the American wheat and corn belts?

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK, June 6. (EFS).—Jennie MacGregor hails from Nova Scotia. She owns up to 26 summers and is lovely as a Peri in a brunette, Canadian way. Her eyes are wide, with long-fringed lashes. She has shell-like ears, and all that sort of thing.

At 4 o'clock the other morning she and a "lady friend," and the "lady friend's husband, were seated in a taxicab drawn up at the curb on upper Broadway. A debate was in progress. Resolved: That a taxi-meter is a mechanical Jesse James.

The driver was supporting the negative end of the argument in what printers call "32-point Old English."

The debate had reached a bitter, almost acrimonious stage, when Patrolman McGillicooley happened along.

* * *

"What's the argument?" queried the policeman, in his rich, southern drawl.

They told him.

He pondered for a brief instant, and then addressed Miss Jenny MacGregor's "lady friend's" husband:

"Pay this man what's comin' to him an' leave him depart. This ain't no time o' th' mornin' to be in th' street arguin'."

The fare was paid and the taxi man drove away; but before departing Miss MacGregor lingered to present Patrolman McGillicooley with a little verbal picture of just how he shaped up in her eyes.

The lady from Nova Scotia stroked with a broad brush.

"Aw, g'wan!" replied McGillicooley, not relinquishing for an instant his marvelous power of felicitous repartee. "G'wan! Beat it!"

* * *

When the average woman owns a wallop, it is usually in her husband's name. Jennie MacGregor, boasting of no husband, packs her own punches.

She took one step toward the policeman, and with curling lip and eyes flashing, swung in his direction with her open palm. She put everything she had in that wallop. It resounded for half a block and the policeman could not stand up under it. He settled to the sidewalk in a sitting posture, and whether it was chagrin, grief, mortification, astonishment, shock, or the terror one experiences when he sits suddenly on the butt-end of his Smith & Wesson .38, will never be known. But there Patrolman McGillicooley sat.

When he regained his feet it was with a cat-like movement, and he promptly took the young woman from Nova Scotia into custody.

* * *

"Was that pretty?" asked the magistrate.

Miss Jenny said she had never before been addressed by a man in the fashion that Patrolman McGillicooley had spoken to her.

"I came down from Canada on a visit," she explained. "I could have gone to Europe, but I preferred to see America first. I wanted to sample the brand of freedom being dispensed here this spring. Undoubtedly the policeman had a right, under the law of the country, to speak to me as he did. He probably mistook me for an American!"

The magistrate bestowed on Miss Jenny a suspended sentence.

"If you come here again on a visit," he told her, "you must bear in mind that nice little girls don't knock big policemen down. It just isn't done."

Miss MacGregor says she will never, hereafter, manicure the finger tips of her right hand without experiencing a nice, comfortable feeling.

As Master Will once remarked: "All's well that ends swell."

My Son's Sweethearts

ILLUSTRATED AND COPYRIGHTED BY JOHNSON FEATURES INC. by IDA McGLONE GIBSON

WHAT HAS HAPPENED.

Both Anne Tracy and Mr. Jones, who is the Tracys' milkman, object to the engagement of Phillip Wynne Tracy IV and Natlee Jones.

Phillip's mother plans to interest her son in other girls and decides to give him a party. She tells him about the impending visit of her old friend, Mrs. Hilliard, and arouses his interest in the woman.

After the first kiss Phillip only lives to be near Lyra Hilliard.

At the party Natlee overhears Phillip making love to Mrs. Hilliard and breaks her engagement. She refuses to be even friends and tells Rodney Maxwell all about it.

On a midnight ride Lyra confesses her love for Phillip.

He sends her a passionate love poem which his mother finds. Lyra and Mrs. Tracy have it out. The whole affair, however, sinks into nothingness because war is declared.

Rod and Phillip enlist together. Natlee tells Rod she is glad he is going with Phil and breaks his heart.

Lyra writes a cruel letter to Phillip and leaves without seeing him. She also says good-bye to Mrs. Tracy by letter.

Natlee visits Mrs. Tracy and Phil's mother tells her "I am sending him to war to save him for you."

Here the story further unfolds—

CHAPTER XXIII.

LYRA BIDS ANNE FAREWELL.

Natlee Jones looked surprised at Mrs. Tracy's confession.

From it she knew that in some way she had learned about Wynne and Lyra, but with the reticence which women always show toward one another over those things which lie nearest to them, she asked no questions and Mrs. Tracy made no explanation. Neither did she ask her to come and see her when Wynne had gone. It seemed to the girl that she would not allow herself to think of that time. However, she kissed her tenderly as she bade her goodbye.

Natlee got out of the room as soon as possible after Mrs. Tracy kissed her. She felt the tears welling up into her eyes and was determined not to cry before Wynne's mother.

As soon as she had gone Anne Tracy rang for Nonnie, and when her maid appeared she asked, "Has Mrs. Hilliard had breakfast yet?"

"Yes, Mrs. Tracy; I think she got it downtown or on the train."

"What do you mean, Nonnie? Mrs. Hilliard has not left the house has she?"

"Yes, Mrs. Tracy. She told me to tell you that because of the declaration of war she had determined to return home immediately. She said that she knew her husband would want her with him, as he would probably wish to place his big cotton mills and their home at the disposal of the government. She particularly requested that we would make no noise to awaken you and finally gave me this note for you."

Anne Tracy took the note as though it burned her and laid it on the table.

Her maid, she knew, was very curious about what had happened, for she busied herself with little things about the room until her mistress said to her, "That will do, Nonnie. I am going out shortly and then you can finish up here. Has Mr. Phillip gone out?"

"Yes, Mrs. Tracy."

"Well, I'll call you if I want you before I leave the house."

The moment she was alone Anne Tracy picked up Lyra Hilliard's note and read:

"I am leaving this morning, dear Anne, without seeing you.

"It is very probable that you will resent this, as you will resent my calling you 'dear Anne.'

"I want you to know, however, that in both going away without personally bidding you good-bye and calling you 'dear,' my motive is perfectly sincere.

"It would do neither of us any good for you to see me again until you had gotten over your surprised shock at my actions and until you could realize that a person might do something that would hurt another grievously and yet love her very dearly. I could never make you believe that you are really dear to me.

"It is all in the point of view, Anne, and ours are as far apart as the poles.

"You think I have scarred your son's soul. I think I have done him no harm except in leaving him.

"I am the one who suffers most, for I really care for Wynne. He is a wonderful youth—a son of you may be proud.

"It almost broke my heart to write him the letter I did this morning. However, some day, after the storm and stress of life which the years will bring him, he will remember it with kindness, if not satisfaction, and in this, dear Anne, is a truth that most of us would forget if we could. 'Men remember the pleasure longer than the pleasure giver.' That's not an original opinion of mine, but one that has come down the ages from a very celebrated Grecian philosopher and has been proven since by the world of men of every country and in every clime.

"The only regret that I have, Anne, is that I have by leaving Wynne before he tired of me—for he would have tired—made him for the time being hate all women.

"Of course I shall always have a poignant sorrow—after today I will never be able to sign a letter to you 'your sincere loving friend.'

"I can see your lips curl scornfully as you read the above, but nevertheless, dear Anne, truthfully I can still sign myself,

"Your sincere, loving friend,

"Lyra."

Anne Huntington Tracy quietly laid that frank letter down and wondered how there could be such women in the world—women who deceived themselves with plausible excuses.

Not for one moment did she doubt Lyra Hilliard's sincerity, but she marveled at her perverted mind.

With a sigh she locked the letter in a private drawer in her secretary and tried to tell herself that whatever came, Lyra Hilliard would henceforth be dead to her.

Phillip had stopped next door to see Rodney.

In his own mind he had determined to say nothing about the tragic ending of his first love. But the moment Rod looked at his face he knew that something momentous had happened to his friend.

Naturally, his first thought was of Natlee, and he asked, "Have you seen Nat since you enlisted?"

"No."

"Is your mother going to give her consent to your going?"

"Of course she is."

"Well, then, what's the matter? Are you sorry you signed up?"

"Certainly not. Do you think I can change my mind as quickly and easily as a woman?

"If I had not enlisted yesterday I would do so today. You and I, Rod, should be thankful that we live at a time that will give us the greatest thrill that has ever come to men in any age. Men must fight to prove themselves men."

"But what of the women they leave behind?" asked Rodney, still thinking of the grief-drawn face of Natlee as he had seen it last.

"Oh, women!" answered Phillip, as if they were not worth considering. "I fancy there will always be enough males who call themselves men who will stay at home merely to console them."

"Do you think that any other man will be able to console your mother, Wynne?" asked Rodney.

Phillip's tense face broke up, its hard lines became soft and boyish, a tear rolled down his cheek.

"Mothers are different, Rod," he said. "When a woman has a baby she is no longer a woman—she is just mother."

"Something has happened between that Hilliard woman and Phil," thought Rodney, but being a man before he was a friend, he asked no questions.

After a moment Phil said, laying his arm about Rod's shoulders, "I can not tell you, old man, what a comfort it will be for me to know that you and I will be together. After all, Rod, there must be something in friendship that is greater than all this mushy love between a man and woman that so many people talk about as being the only thing in the world.

"If a man is sensible and uses his bean a little it will not be hard for him to get the right idea of and the proper place to put woman. One man friend—a real friend like you, Rod—is worth a dozen sweethearts.

"Let them come if they want to and speed their going after you tire of their silly ways. That's the conclusion that every man must come to who is in the least experienced in the sex."

Although Rod was very sad he smiled inside of himself, for even though it had never happened to him he knew that Wynne's self-esteem had been sat upon until it was like a flat tire which was making him bump along most uncomfortably.

"My guardian was here this morning and I sketched out a plan for my will."

"Good Lord, Rod, you do not expect to die at this war do you?"

"Well, thus far, Wynne, about two million men, more or less, have died."

"You're not afraid, are you, Rod?"

"I don't know yet."

"Well, you'd better snap out of it if you are. Don't you know that what you look forward to you get? Hold the thought of coming back, Rod, for riding up Fifth avenue will be hell to me if you are not there to see the fireworks when we return."

Both boys were silent for a moment and then Phillip questioned, "I wonder if I ought to make a will?"

"I think so," answered Rodney, soberly. "You can come with me. My guardian will tell you all about it."

"Yes, that will be all O. K. I wouldn't want to hurt mother when she's been such a sport, to let me go. I don't want her to think that there is the slightest danger of my not coming back."

The two boys went out together, for the moment depressed by the first great reality that had come into their carefree lives.

Notwithstanding Phillip's brave talk, death, that untoward event which is never in the thoughts of the young, now stared him in the face.

Shortly, however, among the hubbub and excitement of getting ready to leave, everything else was forgotten.

(To Be Continued.)

Phil and Rod are excited at their prospects. More about how their womenfolk feel about it will be related in the next installment.

Buying a Sail Boat -:- By Montague

The nice thing about our club is the friendly and helpful spirit of the members. They take a deep personal interest in all your little enterprises and affairs, and go to any lengths to supply the advice that they think you need. I have never had to ask the professional a single question about my stance or style since I joined the club, for everything I needed in the way of suggestions was supplied by my brother members. And although I have only been in the organization a little more than five years I can go around in a hundred already—which is pretty good for nine holes—for a beginner, of course.

The matter of the sailboat came up one day when the locker boy told me that a boat builder wanted to talk to me on the telephone. It was just before lunch time, and most of the boys had finished the first eighteen and come in to rest before eating. They were all intrigued when they heard a boat builder wanted to talk to me, and immediately asked me what kind of a cabin cruiser I was having made, and why didn't I advertise and get one second hand, which would be much cheaper.

Some of them offered me boats of their own which has been laid up in various ways since they took up golf. Bill was particularly kind in his suggestion, which was not to get any boat at all. "Lay off them altogether," he said. "They are a lot of trouble, these motor boats, and a big expense, not as bad as the old time sail boats used to be, of course, but still—"

I cleared my throat loudly to keep him from going any further and embarrassing me, if not himself. "It's a sail boat I'm buying," I said.

"Quit kidding," replied Bill. "You aren't any good at it. I suppose you're going to get a high bicycle and a pair of roller skates to use when there isn't wind. "He'd have to if he wants to get back to the sail boat era," said Egbert. "And he'll probably be installing a battledore and shuttlecock in his back yard to take the place of golf, and invite the neighbors in once a week to play Mah Jongg. Don't you know that this is 1927?"

I told him rather irritably that I occasionally glanced at the calendar, and added that there were people, quite modern and up to date people, who owned sailboats. I had seen hundreds of them out on the sound the last time I crossed on the ferry.

"Yes," said George, "and you'll see lots of kiddie cars and perambulators in the park if you go there of an afternoon, and maybe two or three carrousels. But at your age, and with your opportunities to pick up information by association with fellows like us, you ought to know, by this time, that the last full grown man who had a sail boat got rid of it the year after the Spanish war. Those boats you see on the sound are just the playthings of the children of the idle rich. Cancel that order and take up golf in earnest. You'll never be worth a rap at it, but it will provide you with plenty of out door exercise."

Well, I had made up my mind to buy a sailboat, and furthermore, I had made an initial payment on the one I had ordered, so I announced that I was definitely committed to a policy, and having, figuratively speaking, put my hand to the tiller, I would not turn back.

Then Egbert came over and sat beside me and began to talk to me seriously.

"Did you ever sail a boat?" he asked.

"When I was about fourteen years old, yes."

"Where?"

"Out on a little lake in Iowa."

"Then you don't know anything about salt water sailing?"

"Does the composition of the water make any difference in navigation?"

"Don't be frivolous, I'm telling you something that will probably save your life, and I won't get any Carnegie medal for it. I'm doing it out of the kindness of my heart.

"I used to sail a boat when I was a kid. I used to go out on the sound now and then, and I never did it that I wasn't becalmed as soon as I got right in the steamboat channel."

"Well, there was always help handy."

"Help handy? Those steamship captains must get a bounty for every sailboat they run down. The navigation companies hate them and want them removed. Moreover, you know what it means when a calm falls on the sound, don't you?"

"No, not exactly."

"It means that the devil of a thunder storm is coming up, and that you will have to lie there helpless.

"Can't you take in sail—or whatever they call it?"

"Not before the storm hits you, and then there is always the danger of the lightning hitting the mainmast or mushrooming out over the water and setting the hull on fire. Besides that, there is the chance of running on a rock."

"In the ship channel?"

"You'll have drifted out of the channel by that time."

"Are there any more difficulties ahead of me?"

"Well, of course, a sailboat has to be painted every month, and as the club attendants are always too busy to do it, you'll have to do it yourself, and get a lot of copper paint in your lungs, which will shorten your life.

"Besides the boat has to be pulled out in the winter, and now-a-days that costs more than her original price. If you want to get a boat I'll sell you my motorboat for a thousand dollars, and then you'll at lease have something you can depend on."

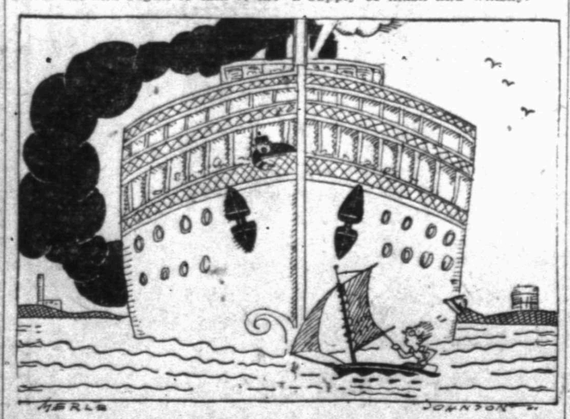

"I thought you gave it up five years ago."

"That was because my wife did not like it. She preferred to have me play golf, so I would be home more."

"But she told me the other day that since you started playing golf she had to write you postals to tell you how the children were getting along."

"Oh, all right, if you're going to get a sailboat, get one. But it will be a return to the cave days. And when you're going down for the third time, with the boat capsized by a gale and the breakers all around you, don't say I didn't warn you."

The sailboat is now on her moorings. I haven't tried her yet. And for some reason or other, I do not look forward to the adventure as eagerly as I did.

"Help handy? Those Steamship Captains must get a Bonus For Every Sailboat They Run Down."

Floral Heights Society Has Picnic At Park

Members of the Floral Heights Missionary society enjoyed a bountiful picnic spread at Boone's park Monday noon when the organization celebrated with the annual all-day outdoor meeting. During the afternoon a business session was held presided over by Mrs. T. R. Boone, devotional service in charge of Mrs. W. H. Roper and a song service led by Mrs. Luella B. Thompson.

The following officers and chairmen gave reports: Mesdames W. B. Chauncey, Leon Deaton, C. M. Goodwin, M. E. Faulk and T. J. Waggoner.

Mrs. J. A. Gardner reported 185 paid subscribers to "The Missionary Voice," Mrs. A. F. Leach reported on the work of the Mission Study class and Mrs. Will Ellis gave a report from the Federated Missionary societies of the city. In this report it was stated that each affiliated society in the federation is required to give one month to sewing for the charity wards of the General hospital.

Miss Treda Schoolfield gave the following social service report: Visitors, 936; trays, 142; bouquets, 439; cash, $2460; magazines, 402; hours spent in social service work, 617, with two fruit showers to the hospital, seven dozen muffins to the Mexican school and a three-piece living room suite to a parsonage home in the district.

Mrs. John Kay dismissed the society with prayer. Out-of-town guests were Mrs. J. A. Baughn, Greenville, S. C.; Mrs. S. C. Mays, Atlanta, Texas; Mrs. J. W. Colvert, Norman, Okla, and Mrs. L. J. Renfro, Brownsville, Texas.

Highland Heights Woman's Council Holds Meeting

The Woman's council of the Highland Christian church met at the church at 2:30 o'clock Monday afternoon with 76 women present. The meeting was opened with songs, and prayer by Dr. Paul Henry Packard, pastor.

The president, Mrs. P. B. Curd, gave an interesting talk on the work of the past year. Talks were also made by Mrs. Paul Henry Packard and Mrs. Paul Seeds. Mrs. J. M. Spoonts reported $500 in the treasury at present. Mrs. B. D. Sartin's circle served iced drinks to those present.

"I see where a scientist says oysters change their sex," says perusing Pearl, "but for that matter the human race has feminists."

Have You Planned Your Sunday Dinner?

What could be easier than just writing down TODAY what you plan to have for Sunday dinner?

Every good housewife should plan her meals for the future—especially that event for the entire family—Sunday dinner. Your menu, submitted to The Record News with recipes for the chief dishes, may win you one of the prizes being given for the best planned menus.

First prize is $5, second prize $2.50, and other menus or recipes published, will be paid for at the rate of $1 each.

Just write your menu, tell why you have selected it, and send it in before Thursday noon to

The reunion will continue through four days this fall instead of five as has been customary, it was said. A large class is expected to attend from this section, officials said.

HENRIETTA SOCIETY

HENRIETTA, June 6.—Through the efforts of Mrs. C. B. McDonald, a Lyceum number was given Tuesday evening at the high school auditorium for the benefit of the local athletic association.

Ethel Allen Nelson and his string symphony, assisted by William Young, baritone, and Annette Walsh, pianist, presented the program.

The artists were all from Wichita Falls. Each number was beautifully rendered to a most appreciative audience.

Sunday morning at 8 o'clock at the home of the bride's father, Mr. J. D. McLester, Miss Eva McLester and Mr. Ben Ingram were united in marriage, Rev. R. R. Jackson of the Christian church officiating. Miss Fay McConley of Wichita Falls and Mr. Jack Fulgham were attendants. Mrs. Ingram is a graduate of the Henrietta high school and has a large circle of friends here. Mr. Ingram is a native of Henrietta and has scores of friends here. The couple left immediately following the ceremony for Texas points for a weeks' visit.

Mrs. C. B. McDonald presented her music pupils in recital Thursday evening at the First Baptist church. The Henrietta public school harmonia band directed by Mrs. McDonald, was quite an addition to the evening's program, which was as follows:

PECAN CINNAMON ROLLS

One pint milk, half cup butter, three-fourths cup sugar, two eggs, one yeast cake, flour, one teaspoon salf, two cups brown sugar, two tablespoons cinnamon, one-third cup butter, one-third cup water, half cup pecan nuts, chopped.

Scald the milk, add fat and sugar. Pour the mixture into a bowl, add two well beaten eggs and enough flour to make a sponge. Crumb the yeast and put into a cup with one-half cup lukewarm water. When the sponge is luke warm add the yeast to it; let rise, beat down, let rise again; beat down and add enough flour to knead, let rise.

Mix the brown sugar, cinnamon, butter and water, and heat until the sugar is dissolved. Cool mixture. When the dough is very light, roll it out to one-half inch thickness, spread with the cooled sugar mixture and sprinkle with the nuts. Roll the dough as for a jelly roll and cut one-inch slices. Place slices with cut edge on bottom of well-oiled muffin pan; let rise and bake in a moderate oven over 30 minutes. This makes three dozen rolls.

LINDY TO GET OFFICIAL 'HAND'

Washington Plans Great Reception For Ace

WASHINGTON, June 6.— (AP)— Rested by a long sea voyage on the cruiser Memphis after his strenuous two weeks in Europe, Captain Charles A. Lindbergh will find upon his arrival here at noon next Saturday a fast moving program in connection with his official welcome by President Coolidge on behalf of the American people.

There will be the reception of the hero of the New York to Paris flight at the president's wharf at the navy yard; a long automobile ride over Pennsylvania avenue, part of it with a long military escort; the president's welcome at the Washington mounment grounds; his decoration with the distinguished flying cross; another motor ride to the temporary White House; a cabinet dinner; a visit to the Minnesota society reception at the Willard hotel, and finally entertainment by the National Press club.

On Sunday Lindbergh will slip back into his role of private citizen and will find time to be with his mother, Mrs. Charles L. Lindbergh, his inspiration and encouragement in his great adventure, who also is to be the guest of the President and Mrs. Coolidge at the temporary White House during her stay in Washington.

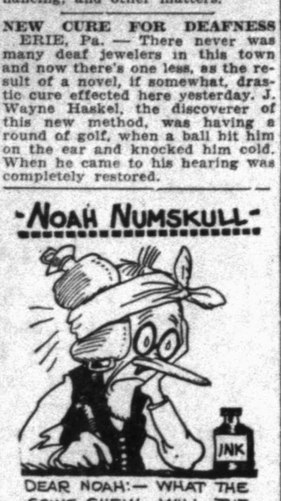

After attending church services with Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge and his mother, Lindbergh will go to Arlington to lay a wreath on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier and then will motor some 15 miles to Walter Reed hospital, where he will greet the sick and wounded service men, many of them veterans of the World war.

Washingtonians will have their first and only opportunity to see Lindbergh in his favorite role of pilot after he boards the Spirit of St. Louis, his trans-Atlantic monoplane for the hop to his starting place in New York. Before turning toward Baltimore the young aviator is expected to do some stunt flying over the capital.

The cabinet and semi-official reception committees which have charge of the arrangements for Lindbergh's reception will resume their work tomorrow with a view to having everything completed by mid-week at the latest. Various sub-committees are handling the details of the parade, policing, financing, and other matters.

NEW CURE FOR DEAFNESS

ERIE, Pa. — There never was many deaf jewelers in this town and now there's one less, as the result of a novel, if somewhat, drastic cure effected here yesterday. J. Wayne Haskel, the discoverer of this new method, was having a round of golf, when a ball hit him on the ear and knocked him cold. When he came to his hearing was completely restored.

KID DUGAN — By Dick Dorgan

Friend Al,

With these ball clubs nowadays, it is hard to tell whether you're a pitcher or a clown because they count the customers, and, if there are a lot of people not there, they try to think of tricks to get them in the park. It's certainly a business. Now Bush wants me to dress up like a woman and advertise me as the great female pitcher. When Dugan and I was playin' in vaudeville, we met the Champion Woman Bag Puncher of the World on the same bill and she didn't stick to punchin' bags. I saw her knock one stage hand goofy who tried to get fresh and some day I'm goin' to invite her out to meet these ball players and umpires who think they look like Ramon Novarro, for she ain't a bad looker, and if she isn't knock them when they start something, then Lindbergh didn't fly to Paris.

Your friend,
Jack Keefe.

SENATE KILLS PRISON BILLS

Deadfall Develops Over Relocation Plan

AUSTIN, June 6 (AP).—The senate today killed both the administration prison reform bill and the Satterwhite house measure on the same schedule by laying them, without opposition, on table subject to call.

A two-thirds vote would be necessary to bring the measures up again. Action to table was taken after Bailey of Cuero pointed out that the bill was dead in any event, since should it be engrossed, four-fifths vote would be necessary to suspend rules and place it on final passage, or, in the other alternative of its passage to engrossment today, two-thirds vote would be necessary tomorrow to suspend the 24 hours' rule and put it up for passage.

KEEPING RECORD STRAIGHT.

By HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD

AUSTIN, June 6.—It is well to keep the record straight. Responding to a state-wide demand on the part of the people for prison reform, the 39th legislature enacted what is known as the relocation bill. This bill made sweeping changes in management and it cut to the roots of the evils which existed in the old system and which no doubt exist today. It was an attempt on the part of the lawmakers to rid the state of the three-headed system, to rid the state of farms that never produced dividends, to rid the state of costly hang-overs passed on from one administration to another, to put an end to brutalities and to make it possible for a system that would be a credit and not a disgrace to the commonwealth of Texas.

The gentleman from the Panhandle, Mr. Lee Satterwhite, was the speaker of the 39th. He was for reform then. He did not agree with the policies, political or otherwise of the Fergusons. That very admirable bill was sent to the Fergusons and the governor promptly vetoed it, giving substantially the same reasons for the veto that has been made since by those who say that they are for prison reform and that to without delay. An amendment was submitted to the people to live the 40th legislature a free hand in a legislative way in order to make the new system that would not make the taxpayers go down in their pockets every year for vast sums of money it carried.

Satterwhite Plan.

There is the Satterwhite plan and the plan of the governor and those who agree with him. Really the Satterwhite plan is the old Ferguson argument plan. The house preferred the Satterwhite plan. This happened Friday. The next best step for the administration followers to take was to send the Satterwhite plan to the senate. This was done by practically unanimous vote. Now the senate has the bill. Now the senate has a record of its own and that record is in direct opposition to the Satterwhite plan which was the Ferguson plan as announced in the Ferguson veto message of the act of the 39th.

It is well to recall these matters in an effort to keep the records straight for the people of Texas and all concerned. If the senate sticks to its own plan of procedure in reorganizing the system, in order to take the penitentiary system out of the hands of inefficiency and indebtedness and non self-sustaining farm and prison management, then the senate bill will be substituted for the Satterwhite house bill with its Ferguson trimmings, and then it will go to conference.

If the senate should adopt the Satterwhite plan with its Ferguson trimmings and send it to the governor, in the light of the past and in the light of the present, it would be the duty of the governor with the record that has been made as a constructive statesman and advocate of the reforms that are needed to place Texas on the right road to veto the bill. As for the Satterwhite plan with its Ferguson trimmings, if it should be permitted to become a law it will delay the work of prison reorganization and prison management for two or three years, and the people will be just where they were when the Fergusons, by veto, repudiated the act of the 39th legislature in defiance of the will and the wishes of the people of the commonwealth.

It is neecssary to take and keep the state highway commission out of politics. It is necessary to take and keep the prison commission out of politics. It is necessary that there should be a classified civil service for the hundreds of minor employes of Texas—that is, if the people are to be given efficient service, if they are to be given an economical expenditure of their money and receive 100 cents for every dollar in labor or material that is taken from their pockets by the tax collector. It is to be the expert-efficiency or the spoils system.

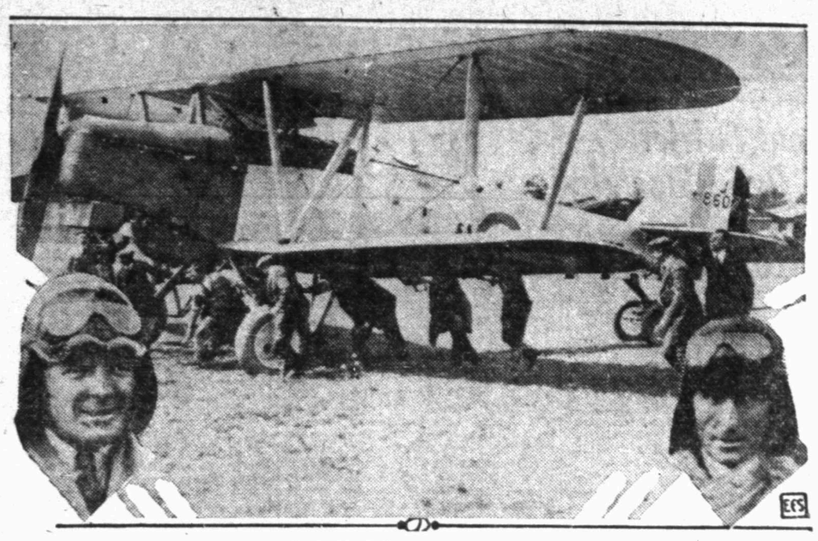

Oil Great Industry.

A great industry of Texas is the oil and gas industry. It is a billion dollar industry and the way it is handled by state regulation is of vital interest to the people who pay taxes and who wish to see their state go forward on the right road. H. E. Bell is the supervisor of the oil and gas division of the state railroad commission. He introduced or had introduced a bill which called for civil service by competitive examination of state employes in his department.

Two of his superiors, railroad commissioners appeared before the committee and fought the Bell bill. He tendered his resignation. He sent a courtly letter to the commission that with conditions as they are he did not care to continue in office. He did not say it, but his friends say it for him, that he was weary of being supervisor of a department where technical knowledge was required on the part of the workers and he had no voice in their selection.

This is his side of it. He was appointed to office by Pat Morris Neff. His record is said to be unassailable. It is not the individual—it is the spoils of the system—that is largely responsible for inefficiency in government in Texas and in some of the other states. Now the offices of a great people are not political rewards for their servants of high estate or rather those who hold the major offices. There should be efficiency above all things. There should be honesty of purpose and loyalty to duty. There should be a willingness at all times to return faithful service for the stipen received. Texas is going forward. Mark that.

England to India Fliers Forced Down

Flight-Lieutenants C. R. Carr and L. S. M. Gillman attempting to fly from England to India without a stop, were forced down by storms to alight in the Persian Gulf. Their plane was wrecked, and the aviators were picked up by a passing ship, after 34 hours and 33 minutes flying time, during which they covered 3400 miles. FARM RELIEF STRIFE SEEN

Coolidge Plan to Face Bitter Attack

BY FREDERICK WILLIAM WILE

Exclusive Dispatch, Copyright, 1927

WASHINGTON, June 6.—President Coolidge has no sooner signalized his intention to spend the summer in the heart of the farming west than there comes from that region a warning that the administration's agricultural credits policy is to be subjected in the next congress to furnious attack. The same groups which demanded McNary-Haugen farm relief legislation are preparing to assail, hip and thigh, the recent reorganization of the federal farm loan board. The appointments of Eugene Meyer Jr., as head of the beard, and Floyd R. Harrison and George R. Cooksey as members of the board, are to be the targets at which the farm opposition will shoot. Messrs. Meyer, Harrison and Cooksey having been transferred bodily from the directorate of the war finance corporation, leaders of agricultural organizations are charging that the federal farm credits system has now come under the "domination" of Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the treasury. Dating from the time Mr. Mellon publicy assailed McNary-Haugenism, he has ranged as one of the chief aversions of the farm politicians.

• • •

Appointments Open Hostilities.

According to plans now under discussion among agricultural leaders, and freely commented upon in their official publications, hostilities at Washington will open when the president submits the appointments of Messrs. Meyer, Haarrison and Cooksey to the senate for confirmation. These new farm loan board members supersede Edward E. Jones, of Pennsylvania; Robert A. Cooner, of South Carolina, and Elmer S. Landes, of Ohio. One of the foremost farm editors in the country has just said to this writer: "There is sure to be a big row over the shake-up in the farm loan board, though it will not reach its peak until next winter when congress meets. It is my private opinion that unless the reorganization is publicy explained, and in a manner satisfactory to farmers, it will be a threat to the administration and the republican party almost, if not quite, as serious as the veto of the McNary-Haugen bill. Farmers were divided on the latter controversy, but they will be found practically unanimous in condemning changes in the vast agricultural credits organization, unless these can be justified to the farming world."

• • •

Coolidge for Efficiency.

The administration's attitude toward these "warnings" and toward the accusations that cause them is that President Coolidge and Secretary Mellon deemed the time had come to put rigid business efficiency into the federal farm loan system. This is now a concern with an annual turnover of roundly $2,000,000,000. Although nominally "farmer-owned" to a large extent, as far as the joint-stock land banks and other rural institutions for farm credits are concerned, supervisory responsibility for them is vested in the federal government. For some time the treasury department has felt that the management of the federal farm loan board, which is in general control of the whole scheme, was not being conducted on the best possible lines. In particular, treasury officials were of opinion that methods of examination of farm banks were not as thoroughgoing as they should be. It was considered that in many directions there was lack of system and sound grasp on the far-flung farm credits scheme.

• • •

Change Bitterly Opposed.

Strong representations were made at the White House by farm forces against the reorganization which has meantime taker place. Agricultural organizations and their leaders feel a jealous pride and sense of proprietorship in the land bank system, and they bitterly oppose any movement, the result of which is to remove the land banks further away from control by farm representatives. Messrs. Meyer, Harrison and Cooksey are under fire as being typically representative of "Wall Street," rather than of "dirt farmers," in whose interest the federal farm loan board acts.

• • •

May Frustrate Appointments.

Some agricultural authorities express the opinion that a combined republican progressive-democratic opposition in the seventieth congress will easily be able to frustrate confirmation of the reorganized farm loan board. The opposition, it is predicted, practically assures congressional investigation of the whole farm loan system.

One of those who is fomenting the movement in that direction asserts that the investigation will naturally "turn the light upon the interest of certain persons in having the system brought under the domination of the treasury department." The same authority claims that such an investigation was held in check last winter only by the efforts of former friends of the farm loan system, who feared a possible reaction on farm loan and bond sales. These friends are said now to feel that the time for hesitation is past. With nearly 500,000 farmer-stockholders owning the entire federal land bank system, and chafing because they claim they are now excluded from any effective voice in its management, the political barometer seems set for stormy weather on Capitol Hill next year. The effect upon the 1928 presidential campaign, it is obvious, might be considerable.

Farm leaders declare Messrs. Jones, Cooper and Landes were ousted from the farm loan board because of their opposition to a treasury proposal which would have required farm loan banks to foreclose on any farm borrower more than 90 days delinquent in interest.

FRECKLES

Tells How to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots and Have a Beautiful Complexion.

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as Othine — double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an ounce of Othine from any drug or department store and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than an ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine, as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove your freckles.—Adv

FOR Acid Stomach PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia

Instead of soda hereafter take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

BETTER THAN SODA

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. Besides, it neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges this souring waste from the system without purging. It is far more pleasant to take than soda.

TRY A 25-CENT BOTTLE

Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent and 50-cent bottles, any drug store. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered trade mark of the Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor, Charles H. Phillips, since 1875.—Adv.

Love's Madness

IT WAS under a summer's moon that Lorraine gave her heart into George Miller's keeping. Never were two souls more rapturously happy. Then the handsome, fascinating, devil-may-care Captain Stephens came into her life.

At first she accepted his attentions as a mere diversion. Had she only foreseen the disaster that lay just ahead!

But she went blindly ahead until one night she found herself entangled in a most fearful adventure—as helpless as a bit of driftwood, lashed and driven by the fury of the storm.

And that was only the beginning. The anguish, the pathetic hopelessness of the days that followed are grippingly described by Lorraine in "My Soldier Lover"—one of the sixteen big features in July True Story Magazine. Don't miss it!

"HE TRIED TO GRAB ME IN HIS ARMS. Enraged, I flung him off, but he had been drinking and—"

The Most Heart-Stirring Stories Ever Told

SAID a literary novice to a great master: "Where shall I find stories that stir men's souls?" And the master replied: "Look into your own heart!"

The human heart contains stories more thrilling than any that come from the fictionist's pen — dramatic, soul-stirring narratives — stories that grip the imagination, and paint a convincing picture of life. These are the real epics of adventure and romance — told by men and women who have been at grips with life, and are writing from experience. That is why True Story is the favorite Magazine among over eight million readers. In the July issue there are sixteen profoundly absorbing features. Now on sale at all newsstands. DESPAIRED OF EVER HAVING GOOD COMPLEXION

Pimples relieved after trying well known remedy

Spokane, Wash., Jan. 31:—"My skin had been very clear up to a while ago when blackheads and then pimples developed. They spread rapidly and I was terribly annoyed. I used several suggested remedies without good results, and was disgusted and just ready to give up hope of ever having a good complexion again when I saw one of your advertisements. At the same time, a friend recommended Resinol Soap and Ointment so I began to use them. After a few applications my trouble was relieved, and I now keep these products always on hand. They are so soothing and refreshing and I find the ointment so good for the scalp and for chapped hands."—(Signed) Miss Carmel De Felice, E. 1723 Third Avenue.

RUNYON SAYS

City Takes Fighter—
Matter of Civic Pride—
He Is R. Hoot Burger—
Belongs to Dodge City—
Masterson's Old Town—

By DAMON RUNYON.

The first pair of scrambled ears to be made a matter of community interest—a civic proposition, so to speak—are appended to the noble bean of one Mr. Roy Hoot Burger of Dodge City, Kan. I believe this is one for the book, as we say at the club.

I am advised that some 46 voters and taxpayers of Dodge City, Kan., have clubbed together and purchased the contract of Mr. Roy Hoot Burger to prevent him being moved from that city. Dodge City, Kan., is the old home of the late Bat Masterson, who sojourned there in the days when the lads picked their teeth with bowie knives and the bark of six-guns was music to their ears.

I can imagine that the shade of Bat Masterson is getting a great kick out of this new municipal enterprise of his old home town. Well, they always did do things different down in Kansas.

Mr. Roy Hoot Burger is a young heavyweight. He attracted some attention by knocking over some 27 out of 29 opponents. Not long ago they took him into Ponca City, Okla., to meet one Mike Arnold of Denver, a 19-year-old boy who had been poked around somewhat by Mr. Jack Dempsey in his training camp and Mike batted Mr. Roy Hoot out after a desperate struggle.

I am glad to note that this unfortunate incident in no wise chilled the ardor of the home folks for Roy Hoot. Only too often some of the home guard rejoices when a fellow citizen who is climbing to the heights takes a tumble. The good people of Dodge City said never mind, Roy Hoot would be the heavyweight champion of the world just the same.

But the managers of Roy Hoot, Harold Ripple, a well known jockey of twenty years back, and one Mike Curran, who may be none other than that Mickey Curran of eastern pugilistic note, were in the race horse racket, and they decided to sell the fighter down the river, as it were, that they might devote their entire attention to the gallopers.

When they announced that they were dickering with eastern and western managers for the disposal of Roy Hoot's contract, there was a municipal upheaval. The citizens wished to keep Roy Hoot right there at home. He was something of a local asset. His exploits advertised the community, and moreover he afforded the residents no little pleasure by the way he knocked off the visiting pugilistic firemen.

So they held a meeting at the Elks' club, and raised $12,500 in cash which was paid to Messrs. Ripple and Curran, who also retained their managerial cut on Burger's next three fights. It was figured that this would give them a total of about $20,000.

It seems that a lot of business men were in on the proposition—bankers, brokers, hotel men, doctors, the postmaster, the mayor, the sheriff, and an undertaker. Three business and professional women, and one housewife bought Burger stock. I insist that this is one for the book.

I do not know just how the company intends managing Roy Hoot. Perhaps his matches will be passed on by a board of directors and he will be seconded by holders of preferred stock. It is easy to see that there is apt to be much fluctuation in Burger stock on the Dodge City curb as he goes up or down in the roped arena.

I can see how a heavy stockholder might become no little perturbed when the referee counts two over Roy Hoot, and how there is likely to be a veritable panic as the folks try to unload at eight, and think of the feelings of a man who has bought in plenty of Burger if he should chance upon Roy Hoot coming out of a speakeasy some evening wiping his mouth with the back of his hand!

A heavyweight prospect is probably one of the most uncertain propositions in the world, especially as a stock market investment. A stomach ache can cause a drop of 50 points. An instant's hesitation in ducking a right hand swing can practically ruin the market. Out of over 100,000,000 inmates of the U. S. A., only ONE can be heavyweight champion at one time.

They tell me Roy Hoot, who is a farmer boy, is a great natural hitter with both hands, but even so I would say that $12,500 cash money is a neat price for a heavyweight prospect. I know of only one or two prospects in the land who strike me as worth that figure. And at 53 1-3 per cent, the managerial take, you have to gross quite a sum of money before getting a dividend on a $12,500 investment.

But I can see Dodge City's point. Roy Hoot may achieve such prominence in fisticuffs as to bring the attention of world to the advantages of Eat Masterson's old town as a place of residence, and for the development of scrambled ears. The money will be well spent.

Newark, New Jersey, got a lot of advertising out of her well known Adonis, Mr. Charles Weinert, that didn't cost her a quarter, and who shall say that Manassa, Colorado, hasn't had plenty of free ballyhoo from its most famous—in fact, almost its only citizen, Mr. Jack Dempsey?

Lowrance vs. Burns.
Rowley vs. Cain.
Time—8:30 p. m. Tuesday.
Place—Ross stadium, between 10th and 11th. on Indiana.

What wrestling fans class as one of the best cards booked in many a day for Wichita Falls has been scheduled for Tuesday night by Promoter Alex Ross, when Count Zarynoff, 193 pounds, meets Joe Travis, 190 pounds, in the main match of a four-tilt program.

The first preliminary will be between two Wichita Falls welterweights, Henry Rowley and Bill Cain, followed by Jess Lowrance and Jess Burns, local welters, in the second prelim.

The semi-windup promises to be a fast match. Promoter Ross has booked Howard Jeffrey of Lawton to meet Larry Johnson of Oklahoma City. Both are fast coming welterweights and promise to put on a real match.

Joe Travis, the Kansas City heavyweight, carded for the main match, was late Monday on his way to Wichita Falls from Kansas City, according to a telegram received by Promoter Ross. Count Zarynoff, who hails from Russia, is already in Wichita Falls, having appeared here last week in a victory over Link Decker, the British Columbia salmon.

On Wednesday night at the Ross arena, a benefit boxing card featuring negro fighters will be held for the Colored Day nursery fund. The main event will be between Tiger Moore, 143 pounds and Kid Norford, 145 pounds, to go over a 10-round route. The semi-final features Fighting Sam and Battling Dummy in 10 rounds.

SPORT a la CARTE

BY ROY GROVE

Lee Meadows had his winning record saved when, after pitching four full victories for the Pirates, he was pasted by the Cardinals for five runs in two innings. But the bold Bucs, trailing at one time, 7-1, pulled the game out of the bag with three in the sixth, four in the seventh, one in the eighth and two in the ninth for an 11-10 decision.

In starting his hunt for new pitching strength, McGraw is on the trial of Cuban Luque again. He was stopped in the initial negotiations by Jack Hendricks who announced he would accept Kent Greenfield and nothing else.

Regardless of what the future has in store for the White Sox, Ray Schalk will not forget his team put together the longest run of victories in the American league when seven games were won in a row.

It isn't what you were with George Moriarty Heinie Manush was the leading American league fence-hitter in 1926 with an average of .377, and he started the new season as the third place batter. But Heinie isn't hitting 'em on the seam this spring and he has been dropped to sixth place by Moriarty.

The Giants won six straight and then were stopped by the Superbas. The Superbas started a spurt that netted five victories in a row and they were checked by the Giants. Fair enough.

Pennant clubs save many games at the finish. The Giants so far have pulled three out of the bag. They beat the Braves 11-10 in 11 innings by tieing the score with one run in the ninth April 18; they scored two in the ninth to nip the Braves 8-7, April 30 and beat the Superbas 4-3 with one in the tenth after tieing the score with three runs in the ninth, May 4.

Trade negotiations between the Superbas and Reds with George Kelly leading the deal have been called off by Wilbert Robinson. "Babe" Herman socked three home runs and two triples against the Giants and Robby decided he did not need Kelly to bolster his Dodgers.

A major league franchise is a play-house for many millionaires. Jake Ruppert, for instance. The colonel sat on the bench with his champions in a recent game and became inquisitive when Miller Huggins thumbed a signal to Herb Pennock to pitch only wide curves no fast ones, to First Baseman Branom.

"How do you know he can't hit a curve?" said Ruppert, seriously.

"You sign our checks," smiled Huggins, "and we'll handle this end of your business."

With the Yankees now in the west the magnates who were rained out of many choice dates for the first four weeks, will hear the jingle of the money bag. The Babe remains th ebiggest individual card in the game today.

In the shift of stars during the past winter the east now holds the leading attractions. Ruth leads the parade with the Yankees, Tris Speaker is the case with the Senators, while Cobb and Collins form a box office stampede when the Athletics are in town.

Winning streaks by three members of Bob O'Farrell's pitching staff were shattered in the east. Alexander had won three in a row when the Giants nipped him, 3-2, in 11 innings, Rhem had three straight when he was crushed by the Phillies and Haines owned five decisions when he was routed by the Giants.

It's the close games that count. Of the first 18 victories for the Giants, eight were by one run. McGraw says he would rather win a game by one run than a one-sided affair. "Those close ones break the spirit of the opposition," smiles McGraw.

Frank Snyder, in catching, has been a capable assistant to O'Farrell, but he has a batting average of .81. Not many runs sprout from that pace.

Giant Twirler Defies Hornsby

And Thereby Hangs Tale Of Lost Game

NEW YORK, June 6. (AP)—John McGraw is on the warpath as a result of the disappointing start his Giants have made on their western trip. According to dispatches from correspondents with the team, his first move in a threatened shakeup is an effort to trade Hughie McQuillan, temperamental right-handed pitcher, to the Cincinnati Reds for Adolfo Luque or Carl Mays.

McQuillan, the dispatches report, disobeyed Captain Rogers Hornsby's instructions in yesterday's game with the Reds. Instead of pitching a low curve to Zitzsman, as ordered by Hornsby, McQuillan tossed a high one inside and the Red outfielder clouted it for a double that won the game.

Camp followers report that Kent Greenfield, young righthander, who has failed to repeat his good work of 1926, and Heinie Mueller, outfielder, who came from the Cardinals in exchange for Bill Southworth, also may be put on the block.

Eddie Roush's continued failure to hit has caused him to be dropped to seventh in the batting order for the first time in his big league career.

NEGRO IS KILLED

DALLAS, June 6. (AP)—While attempting to enter a house occupied by another negro, Chester Washington, 20, negro, was shot and killed Sunday night.

With GEORGE MORIARTY

When Bill Carrigan was manager of the champion Boston Red Sox team he used to tell his pitchers before each Detroit-Boston game:

"All I am asking of you is to pitch three innings. Bear down on Cobb, Crawford, Veach and Burns. Get them out of the way and you can go along eased up until they come to bat again."

Carrigan meant that his pitchers had to really work on only four batsmen. Cobb, Crawford, Veach and Burns were lumped in the Detroit batting order. They were four of the toughest batters any pitcher ever had to face. But if he got by them he did not have to worry about the remainder of the batting order. The rest of it was a rather simple pitching problem.

• • •

When pitching against New York every pitcher bears down on Ruth. But this bearing down on Ruth has its disadvantages. Ahead of Ruth and behind Ruth are able batters. Pitchers are likely to ease up just before Ruth comes to bat and pitch themselves into a hole. Or, if they put every ounce behind their pitching efforts when Ruth is up, they will let down after Ruth is disposed of and again they are likely to land in a tough spot. Both these things have frequently happened.

Some pitchers try to solve the situation by bearing down on the two or three batters that precede Ruth in any inning that he comes to bat, making an extra effort to have bases clear when he comes up and then they can take their chances on Ruth.

Intelligent pitchers gauge their efforts according to the situation and the batter. They do not down on every batter who comes up. They do not pitch the same in all situations.

The leading pitchers of the majors save themselves wherever possible. They conserve energy for tight situations.

Herbert Pennock is one of the best pitchers of all time, a pitcher who has baseball greatness. I remember what Eddie Collins told me about Pennock on one occasion. He said:

"That fellow looks like the worst pitcher in the world when you're up there with nobody on and with New York in the lead, but when you're at bat with men on bases and the score tight, this same Pennock looks like the greatest pitcher that ever faced a batter. He will show you stuff that you never suspected him of having.

Pennock makes himself more valuable by pitching loosely when he can afford to, taking chances when the result will have no material bearing on the ultimate outcome of the game. He is then able to catch the batter off stride when the batter faces him in a pinch.

• • •

Good pitchers watch the score and not the hit column. In the year when Cleveland won the pennant and world championship, back in 1920, Jim Bagby was Cleveland's pitching ace. I remember distinctly how often I heard players remark that year on Bagby's luck. They called him "lucky stuff" and marvelled on how he got by. But if you watched Bagby closely the reason for his success was no secret. He was a veteran and he knew how to pitch. He used a half speed ball mostly and he would "slop along," letting the opposition hit, letting the opposition get many on bases but seldom letting the opposition score.

• • •

Any time the opposition threatened, Bagby would put the screws on. Equipped with splendid control, he would put the ball in just the opposite spot where the batter expected to see it and the batter was constantly crossed up by Bagby.

I will venture to say that the teams Bagby pitched against in 1920 had more men left on bases than the teams that ever opposed any other pitcher in a single year.

"Save your stuff so that you'll have it when you need it," is good advice for any pitcher. It does not pay to waste it.

EXPORTERS 13, BEARS 11.

BEAUMONT, June 6 (AP).—A sloppy field and sloppier fielding produced a weird 13-11 affair here this afternoon, the Exporters taking the first game from the Bears when the game was called in the seventh on account of darkness. Galloway poled his twelfth home run of the season and Edington his seventh. Three pitchers were used by each side. In the fifth inning the Bears scored seven earned runs on four hits, Pillette's wildness being largely responsible. Score:

HOUSTON 1, WACO 0.

HOUSTON, June 6 (AP).—With one away in the ninth, and the count two and two on him, Ray Powell clouted the ball over the right field wall to win, 1-0, for the Buffs over the Waco Cubs here Monday. The instant that Powell's foot touched home plate Fred Frankhouse hugged him. The clout put Frankhouse on the long end of the tightest mound duel this season at West End park. Earl Caldwell, promising young right-hander of Derrill Pratt's crew, pitched so well and so courageously that even the most rabid Buff fans conceded it was tough that he had to lose. Score:

Connie Revamps Lineup And Wins Game

PHILADELPHIA, June 6 (AP).—With a revamped lineup the Athletics today defeated Cleveland, 4-1, scoring three runs on Buckeye, the Indian pitcher, in the first inning. Ehmke was invincible for eight innings.

Manager Connie Mack replaced Pool, his first baseman, with Fox, third string catcher, and benched Bill Lamar, left fielder, in favor of the veteran Zack Wheat. Fox and Wheat came through with run-producing hits and Wheat made a spectacular catch with the bases filled in the eighth. Score:

LYONS TWIRLS 10TH VICTORY

White Sox Take Fourth Straight Game

BOSTON, June 6 (AP).—Ted Lyons pitched his second victory of the series and the tenth of the season today and Chicago defeated Boston, 10 to 2. It was the fourth straight win for the White Sox, cleaning up their first series played here this year. They have now won twelve out of their last fourteen starts. Lyons' record for the season now is ten wins and two defeats, the same as that of his teammate, Thomas. Clancy made five hits in five times up. Score:

Chicago Probe Reveals Crooked Doings In Wrestling

CHICAGO, June 6. (AP)—William Demetral, a professional wrestler for 20 years, testified Monday that he was forced to put up $5000 and give a quit claim deed to his home in Chicago as a guarantee that he would not throw Ed "Strangler" Lewis in their two matches decided at Cleveland within the last year.

Demetral's startling revelation was made at the resumption of the legislative inquiry into the Illinois athletic state commission and the boxing situation in Chicago.

Demetral testified that he was a member of the ring in control of wrestling, that he engaged in fake matches, but finally broke with the ring after his second match with Lewis.

Joe Dundee Signs Up As American Citizen

BALTIMORE, June 6. (AP)—Joe Dundee, new welterweight champion, will become a citizen of the United States Monday in federal court. He also will officially change his name from Samuel Lazzaro to Joe Dundee.

The naturalization papers, filed in November, 1923, show he was born in Rome, Italy, August 16, 1903, arrived in New York on December 1, 1905, and immediately became a resident of Baltimore.

The Fortune Seeker

Cupid Knows Her Fate Is Deep Down in Her Own Heart

Drawn by Dorothy Flack

© 1927, by Int'l Feature Service, Inc. Great Britain rights reserved.

"TELL me, pretty gypsy," she pleads, and the look in her eyes is just a bit terrified. Suppose the crystal ball will tell her that there's a blond man in her future!

She just wants the gypsy to tell her that the man is dark and young and slender—that he's thinking of her at that very moment—in fact that he's sitting right back of her puffing at a cigarette and lost in dreams.

Wouldn't it be terrible if the crystal ball were to say something different—something that she didn't expect. Oh, how she would feel.

And Dan just stifles a broad, deep yawn at these silly proceedings. He knows that her fate isn't in any crystal ball in the world. It's deep down in her heart where she's been holding it close, cherishing it this long while. And she just wants reassurance to bring it out in the daylight and laugh over it a bit—and cry over it a bit—and stand wide-eyed before the unbelievable glory of it.

Love Must Have Freedom

By Lucy Lowell.

IN order to hold the thing we love, it sometimes is necessary to give it up.

Impossible, you say—an equivocal statement, contrary to every rationalistic concept of devotion.

LUCY LOWELL

But is it? Think. Consider what arouses in you the truest, highest affection of which you are capable. What, besides affection, often is your emotional reaction?

Honestly, now—this is between you and yourself—isn't it fear?

Fear that this shining thing may one day cease to shine; that time and tumult, circumstances and environment, the shifting of human feeling, may come between you and that and sweep it from you?

Human love at best is selfish; its dearest dream is complete possession. Ever and always it strives to throw up a wall of protection about its object: to keep from that object whatever seems to it unworthy; whatever may alienate it from itself.

It would crush that it might hold; it would destroy that it might save. In a vast, insensate ignorance it would do this.

But affection is a delicate thing; it has been likened to the glowing, exquisite blossoms some call the "I-love-you" roses.

Gather those in your arms, hold them close in a passion of possession and they fade. Their beauty goes out; they drop into a sad little huddle of petals.

Like the roses, love cannot live without freedom. Each thing—each human being—is an entity which none may dominate, nor whose individuality none may transgress. When transgression is attempted, fear steps in.

"Perfect love casteth out fear." Yes. But love is perfect only when separated from the will to possess.

"Loose it and let it go." Give it up. Bring in freedom. Do this for the thing you love—if you love enough.

Our Rhyming Optimist

By Aline Michaelis

WHY sigh for courts of eastern kings with all their splendor, all their show, their gardens where the bulbul sings, their founts where perfumed waters flow? Why dream of wonders far away beyond the gaze of longing eyes, when down the orchard's paths today glad Spring her glowing banner flies? In all the world no fairer sight can ever greet the happy gaze than all these petals pink and white which make this place a fairy maze. Above, the sky's unclouded blue, the golden sunlight's warm caress, and here the pink and pearly hue of all this pulsing loveliness. No rarer sight could ever be than all this beauty drifted down to rest awhile on every tree, the orchard's promise and its crown.

Water Supply from the "Old Oaken Bucket"

By Chas. A. L. Reed, M. D., Former President of the American Medical Association.

THE water that the old oaken bucket brings dripping from the well, however refreshing, may or may not be good water. Many a well of clear, good drinking water has been the means of establishing disastrous epidemics of typhoid fever, anthrax, foot and mouth disease and tuberculosis in animals.

CHARLES A. L. REED, M.D.

Wells, the chief source of country water supplies, are classified by sanitarians as deep wells and shallow wells.

Some laboratories have adopted an arbitrary figure of 100 feet as the boundary between a deep well and a shallow well. A well of unknown depth is usually shallow.

There is a general opinion that a deep well is always safe, and this is to a certain extent true, for popular opinion calls a well deep if it has been driven or drilled.

The geologist probably would say that a deep well was one that took its water from a water-bearing formation that was separated by an impervious layer from the water percolating downward from the surface, but not all deep wells conform to this definition.

Deep wells, however, especially driven wells, usually have the advantage of being lined with metal casings or stones which are relatively tight at the surface of the ground.

Shallow wells are often lined with rough rock, poor brickwork, wooden planks, or tiles set without cement filling. Statistics show that of shallow wells only 18 per cent are satisfactory, and of springs 29 per cent, but that deep wells give a figure of 68 per cent from which the water supply is pure.

It is unfortunately rather common to find the top of the metallic casing of a deep well cut off close to the bottom of a pump pit, and that the opening between the pump pipe and the ground is not closed. Any water which accumulates in the pump pit may run down through this unprotected space. At least one typhoid epidemic in a small town was caused by sewage water entering a 200-foot well in this way. It is usually better to carry the casing of a well above the level of the ground, and then make sure that the drop pipe from the pump makes a watertight joint with the casing. Sometimes the well water eats holes in the metallic casing and lets polluted water enter. Some wells may penetrate solution passages or cavities in limestone, and these passages may be joined to sink holes which are receiving polluted surface waters. This is not so common, however, as contamination through the open upper end of the casing.

Deep wells are fed by water veins that are far underground. When one of these veins happen to reach the surface, discharging its water by more or less regular flow, it is a spring. On many farms these springs are provided with shallow wells that act as catch basins for the outflow. These catch basins, unless properly constructed, are liable to be contaminated by surface water. But springs may be polluted far from the point of their emergence.

You can understand this when you remember that most springs are formed by water percolating downward through loose earth, or mantle rock, until it strikes a bed of impervious material along which it is forced to run to the point of emergence. If the surface water is fairly pure before it starts to percolate, and if it is amply filtered by its passage through the earth, it should be safe to use at the point of appearance. Most contamination of Spring water, however, takes place after it emerges from the earth.

Nevertheless, its safety may sometimes be improved by cleaning up the uplands back of the spring and seeing that privies and other sources of dangerous wastes are removed to a lower level. The spring basin must, of course, be protected against surface water and contamination by stock or other animals.

About the best precaution is to ensure the source of any drinking supply on a level higher than any possible source of contamination by drainage.

Fashion Fads and Fancies

SEEING Stars—as a new embroidery motif, many Viennese designers are using them, embroidered in gold thread, on semi-tailored afternoon frocks of heavy crepe de Chine.

Striking a Happy Combination—the latest undergarment of taffeta radium combines snugly fitting bandeau brassiere with bloomers abbreviated to reach far above the knee.

Brimming Over With Style are the double brim hats of crochet or ballibunti straw, with a contrasting shade of belting ribbon laid under the brim. The effect of ribbon softens the harsh effect of the straw, giving a flatteringly air to otherwise severely tailored models.

Burnt Children Fear Fire, but the new felt hats, which have designs burnt instead of embroidered upon them, need fear no fire of criticism from the most exacting style critics. Geometric patterns are greatly favored in this type of decoration, which strikes one of the most original notes in the season's millinery modes.

As Your Child Thinks, So Will He Be!

By L. Lamar Matthews.

DUNCAN was riding along on his bicycle one day, when an automobile backed suddenly out of an alleyway and knocked the boy senseless. He was carried to a hospital, where he suffered agonies with his head for several days.

L. LAMAR MATTHEWS

At the end of the week he was removed to his home, where he was the centre of the family group and the neighborhood circle. "He is all right," said his mother, "except that he goes blind every time he tries to stoop over or does anything that strains his eyes."

That created consternation among the friends and relatives and they kept talking about those spells of blindness that threatened the boy's vision. He did not take the matter seriously at first and rather exulted in being able to furnish a sensation for the neighborhood. Everybody who dropped in had something to say about Duncan's eyes and the boy felt an urge to exaggerate his spells of blindness just a little.

The more they talked, the more Duncan thought about his eyes. Occasionally he feigned an attack of blindness, just for the satisfaction of causing a stir. And because his nerves had not recovered from the shock of the accident and because the lick on his head had really caused a slight injury to his eyesight, it was very easy for the boy to believe that his attacks were worse than they were.

It has been six months since Duncan was struck by the automobile, but the family will not let him forget that his eyes were injured beyond repair. He has the thought firmly fixed in his mind by this time and he spends entirely too much time feeling sorry for himself. It is quite true that his eyes were affected by the fall upon the hard pavement, but the chances are that he would have recovered much sooner if less had been said about the matter.

Make your children understand that THOUGHT is a very powerful force and that thinking results in action or in speech. There is nothing new about that statement. It is as old as the Bible itself. For it is the Holy Scripture that says, "As a man thinketh, so is he."

An intelligent woman said recently: "I used to believe that it did not matter what I thought, so long as I told nobody what I was thinking. I recall that I spent hours in hating certain people and planning different sorts of punishment that I should like to see brought upon the offenders.

"I know now that my thoughts betrayed me at the most unexpected moments and that other people found out how I felt toward those hated persons. But I was young then and imagined that I was keeping my secret hidden in my own soul."

Children, and especially imaginative children, do a lot of day dreaming. It is highly advisable that they be given helpful and pleasant subjects to dwell upon while they are doing their thinking.

If your child is one of these quiet, thoughtful little fellows, you will do well to furnish something worth while for that busy brain to ponder.

Avoid subjects of conversation, in his presence, that you would not wish him to think about when he is alone in the dark at night. There are plenty of interesting and cheerful and constructive things to talk about when he is around, and there are books and magazines that will please his fancy and supply good material for his silent thinking.

You may not be able to control your child's thoughts entirely, but if you are keen about it, you can keep his mind filled with ideas that will make him happier and better than most little folks really are.

Folly's Daughter

A Thrilling New Mystery of New York Night Life

By Ann Lisle

Jill Calls On Shannon

MACNEIL SHANNON had known a great many amusing and amazing experiences in his thirty odd years of rich living. They did not include having anyone freely return what had been offered as a free gift.

ANN LISLE

He looked at the tall, pretty, slim, red-haired youngster in her little tan hat and plain blue serge dress and wondered what under the high canopy her game was. A curious smile tugged at the corners of his stern lips. His steel grey eyes crinkled in a smile. But he didn't say a word or make a gesture that revealed anything to the girl who was so intent on the pin-seal bag with which she was fumbling.

Jill was longing to shove the fifty dollars into his hands and explain that of course she knew perfectly well he had thought it was a five or maybe a one, and that she was very happy to find she was returning it before he had a chance to miss it. She felt that a sum as great as the bill she had wrapped so carefully inside her own crumpled dollar bill would worry any man. She had no idea that a man whose offices were a magnificent suite of rooms in a hotel that bore his name might consider fifty dollars a trifle. It was a fortune to her. And she wanted to return that fortune to its owner.

Jill tossed her head as she snapped open the inner compartment of her purse where she had so cunningly hidden MacNeil Shannon's money inside a wrapping of her own meagre wealth. She lifted up her dollar and unfolded it. She stared. She fumbled in her purse. But there was nothing there but that single dollar. Nothing!

Jill lifted her eyes to meet the quizzical glance of the man who had seized her in his arms only a moment ago. With terrifying self-consciousness she realized that he had just—kissed her. Odd prickles that were like little hot drops ran up and down her spine. Her lips behaved oddly. Her eyes fluttered. She felt her hands get cold and damp.

"It isn't there!" she said. "I meant to return it. That is why I came—"

"It's quite all right," he said, beginning to think he understood this odd young woman and her attempts to be subtle. "I told you to keep the change, you know."

"But it was fifty dollars," Jill told him. "I guess you thought it was one or maybe five. I knew you'd be worried about it."

A little wrinkle appeared between MacNeil Shannon's brows. It deepened to a furrow. What the deuce was she driving at?

"I can't think where it is gone," she went on simply. "I folded it inside this dollar bill and put the little package inside this inner compartment of my purse and put that in my bureau. And this morning when I took out the change that was there and paid for—my breakfast, I saw the folded dollar just as I had put it away. So of course I can hardly believe even now that the fifty dollars has gotten away . . . . I'm sure I'll—find it."

"I'm sure you will," he said gravely. "And when you do please keep it without any more fuss."

"You meant me to have it?" Jill asked. She took a step toward him and lifted her long amber eyes. "But why should you give me such an enormous tip? The cigarettes were only 35 cents."

"What?" he asked inanely and explosively.

"I thought that was a lot myself. They're only a quarter outside. But, of course, people don't seem to mind paying more for things at Beppo's. And even a 65-cent tip would be a lot——"

"You're not real!"

"Why—what do you mean?"

This time it was Mac who took a step nearer. He put out his hand, and when it was almost on her young shoulder he drew it back with sudden fierceness.

"How old are you, Carmen?" he asked, with an odd little quirk to his lips.

"Almost eighteen," she said with sudden, strange wisdom.

"Seventeen," he corrected severely. "Run along. Run along, little Carmen. I gave you the money in good faith last night. I rather thought I'd get value received. Last night you were a pretty cigarette girl who looked a lot like an oriental-eyed woman with the wisdom of the ages in her smile. Today—Well, today I've got a lot of work to do."

"And you want me to go?"

"I want you to be the honest little girl you look. I want you to quit play-acting. I want you to keep the money. It hasn't a single string tied to it. A minute ago you showed that you didn't want me to touch you. All right. That doesn't alter a thing. You can keep your kisses. And you may keep the fifty, too. . . . Only run along——"

"Do you really want me to go?" Jill asked. "And don't you even remember my name?"

Her lips parted. Her eyes widened. And a little pulse beat in her white throat as she came so close that she could put her hand over his as it lay clenched upon his desk.

When Manners Are Correct

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Several weeks ago a wonderful young man took me out for an evening's entertainment. We had a lovely time, and when he brought me home I told him I had a wonderful evening.

Now, Mrs. Beeckman, do you think I offended this young man in any way? My brother said I ought to have thanked him. Do you think he is right?

C. B.

IF you told him that you had a "wonderful evening," he undoubtedly interpreted this as at least a part thank you. You did express your appreciation even though you didn't definitely say the words "thank you." I am glad your brother is carrying on the society for the propagation of expressing thank yous.

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette submitted by readers.)

GAS RIVALS OIL IN VALUE

Once Worthless, It Now Brings Revenue

SAN ANTONIO, Jun 6. (AP)—New York stock exchange figures on southwestern gas companies reveal an evolution in the oil industry in Texas, which has made the once despised gas well almost as valuable as oil property.

Five months ago the stock of the Houston Oil company was selling on the exchange for about $60. Recently it has raced above the century mark and sold for as high as $127.50, although that company has not had the luck to open a big oil pool, or "sit in" on a pool discovered by some one else. Gas is the answer.

Was Worthless

Gas was once almost worthless because there was no satisfactory way of utilizing gas in this section of Texas. Now the Houston company is marketing about 75,000,000 feet daily from the Cartwright field in Live Oak county, which it discovered.

The value of securities of other companies having an interest in gas wells has increased at the same time, although they are not listed on the exchange and the price of their stock is not public property.

Glad to Get Gas

In the old days the wildcatter "went home to cry" when he got a basser, but now he is jubilant almost as if he had found a rich oil pool. Pipe lines have been built and more are projected or under construction. It is now possible to market gas at a profit.

The man who gets a gas well is fortunate. There is no cost of production. Once he is hooked to a pipe line he makes his money by taking checks to the bank or clipping coupons. Furthermore, gas has been the forerunner of oil at Mexia, Wortham, Powell and a number of other fields and the discovery of gas increases the value of property as an oil prospect.

Airman Champion

'Lucky' Lindbergh's exploit has directed attention to the airmail service, pointing the remarkable record of Captain Maurice Graham (above) who, flying mail between Los Angeles and Salt Lake City covered 125,000 miles in 13 months, without default or accident and without regard to weather.

Gasoline Shipments Above Consumption During Past Month

Shipments of gasoline were greater than production from the 124 active mid-continent refineries during the four weeks of May 6 to May 27, so the National Petroleum News indicates.

The 124 refineries manufactured 142,977,000 gallons of gasoline and shipments approximated 149,049,000 gallons.

There was in storage on May 27, for the period in question, 97,287,000 gallons of gasoline. The 41 North Texas refineries ran to stocks a total of 18,932,000 gallons.

The 124 refineries also manufactured 26,297,000 gallons of kerosene; 3,529,000 gallons of stove distillate; 31,528,000 gallons of gas oil, and 118,136,000 gallons of fuel oil.

Both the domestic and export refinery markets are improving, North Texas and Panhandle refiners report. The starting of the tourist season and the export demand for high test motor fuels is responsible for the improvement.

The United States (58-60 gravity) motor grade materials is quoted firm at 6 1-2 cents in North Texas and 8 1-2 cents at Amarillo-Borger. Spot prices at the refinery in tank car lots appeared to be as follows:

(a) Naphtha—48-52, 450 e.p., 8 1-4 cents.

(a) Gasoline—56-58, 450 e.p., 8 1-4 cents; 58-60, 450 e.p., 8 1-4 cents; 56-58, U. S. motor, 8 1-4 cents; 58-60, U. S. motor, 8 1-4 cents; 64-66, 390 e.p., 8 3-4 cents; 64-66, 375 e.p., 8 7-8 cents-9 cents; 68-70, 350-360 e.p., 9 1-4-9 1-2 cents.

(b) Burning Oils—40-42, w.w. kerosene, 4-4 1-8 cents; 41-43, w.w. kerosene, 4 1-3-4 3-8 cents; 38-40, prime white distillate, 3-3 1-4 cents; 32-36 straight run gas oil, 2 5-8 cents; 32-36, cracked gas oil, 2 5-8-2 3-4 cents.

(a) Fuel Oil—24-26 gravity, in barrels, 90-95 cents.

(c) Natural Gasoline — Grades AA and A, 5 3-4-6 cents; grades BB and B, 5 1-4-5 1-3 cents; grade C, 5 1-4-4-38 cents.

(a) Amarillo - Borger. (b) Note—(a) Amarillo-Borger. (b) Wichita Falls. (c) Breckenridge.

Seminole Field Gains Without New Gushers

TULSA, June 6. (AP)—Seminole's daily production continues climbing, thereby reaching a new peak in the 24 hours ended Saturday morning, despite the fact that there were no gusher producers drilled in. The total for that period was 373,180 barrels, which is 5371 barrels more than Friday morning's production. The Bowlegs pool produced 146,855 barrels; Earlsboro, 65,950 barrels; Seminole City, 124,685 barrels, and Searight, 35,680 barrels. The total number of wells producing yesterday was 488.

Marland Increases Refinery Forces by 50

PONCA CITY, Okla., June 6. (AP)—Marland Refining company announces that 50 men have been added to the pay roll at its Ponca City plant since June 1. This plant is now running 80 per cent capacity, working day and night, using three shifts of men daily. Company officials announce that this program will continue for an indefinite period.

WOOL MARKET

BOSTON, June 6.(AP)—The volume of imports of foreign wool continues to run considerably lower than last year, especially lines used for clothing purposes in competition with home-grown wools. The major portion of imports of foreign wool consists of lines used in goods which are a specialty. Carpet wool imports are 50 per cent greater to date than for the same period last year.

FOARD WELL RESUMES WORK

Crowell Citizens See Oil Boom Coming

Special to The Record News.

CROWELL, Texas, June 6.—Drilling on the Roxana Fain-McGaha Matthews No. 1 test, twelve miles northeast of Crowell, was resumed Saturday after a shut-down of drilling operations since Wednesday when 4,000,000 feet of gas was struck at the shallow depth of 855 feet.

The eyes of the oil world in the southwest have been focused on this test since the striking gas. An effort had been made since Wednesday to stop the gas flow, which threw water into the air six to eight feet through a twelve-inch casing continuously for over two days. Mud was pumped into the well and the flow finally stopped Saturday morning.

Oil scouts believe this test is the beginning of the Crowell oil field and that conditions are extremely favorable for striking an oil sand at less than 2000 feet. Considerable excitement in Crowell has resulted from this test and with half of Foard county already leased to 32 major Texas companies, Crowell citizens cannot help but believe that this city will soon be an oil center. This is the second test in Foard county, where a strong flow of gas has been encountered. The Humble gas well in the western part of the county is furnishing fuel for the drilling of another test by the Humble company. Texas and Sun have also started tests in Foard county.

NOCONA SOCIETY

Special to The Record News.

NOCONA, June 6. — Another pretty compliment was paid Miss Laura Bratcher, whose engagement was recently announced to Mr. E. C. Hall, on Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Winie Curlin, the matron of honor, and Miss Linnie Morgan, the bridesmaid, entertained with a lovely rosebud shower at Mrs. Curlin's home.

The house was charming with soft lights and pink rosebuds; in the dining room the table was exquisite with a large hand made pink rose as a center-piece, and smaller ones around the edge. Miss Freda Wilton presided over the guest book.

Two dainty little maids, June Smith and Marcelle Foster, dressed as pink rosebuds, attached pink streamers to the bride-to-be, and led her to a large pink and white decorated chair in the living room. Over this chair hung a huge pink and white wedding bell. As Miss Bratcher was seated in the chair, a shower of confetti descended upon her from the bell.

Then guests indulged in the laughter provoking game of "Old Maid" for a while. Following this came a musical contest. Several drew for the prize, with Mrs. Patterson as winner in the draw. Then Miss Bratcher was charmed by Mrs. Patterson's clever line of advice.

Quite unique was the hunt for the gifts which Miss Bratcher pursued in ques tof her presents.

A plate was served the guests—cream was in pink rosebud molds and individual cakes were iced in orchid and pink.

There was a sweet toast to the bride-to-be by Mrs. Jack McDaniel, also a clever one for the groom by Mrs. Stripling; one for the lonely "Girls Left Behind," by Miss Bill March, and a beautiful tribute to the bride's mother by Mrs. G. W. Humphreys.

Mrs. Curlin and Miss Morgan were assisted in serving by Miss Freda Wilton and Mesdames I. E. Matlock, Grady West and Jack McDaniel.

Guests included Mesdames W. J. Bowdry, G. W. Humphreys, R. R. Alexander, C. E. Quillen, J. A. Elliott, G. Anderson, F. R. Foster, Jack Foster, J. L. Stelzer, C. E. Collins, W. B. Patterson, C. W. Haggerton, Harold H. Hamilton, Gene Keller, Mary Bratcher, Horace Wells, Grady West, Jack McDaniel, Orville Kilcrease, John White, J. R. Modrall, W. E. Wilton, J. K. Alexander, Grady Fooshee, J. P. Leseur, A. A. Stripling, Bonnie Croxton, I. E. Matlock, and Misses Vera Thomason, Freda Wilton, Bill March, Rowena Newman, Margaret McIntire, Lucy Davis, Lula Harwell and Ruth Wilson.

Latest Well In Pecos Flows 175 An Hour After Being Deepened

SAN ANGELO, Texas, June 4.—Deepened to 1271 feet, Mid-Kansas and Transcontinental No. 1 Smith Taylor, in eastern Pecos county, Saturday flowed 175 barrels of oil hourly.

Humble No. 5 Ricker and Dodson in M. S. Denton survey in Upton county, stood 1800 feet in fluid drilling at 2187 feet, thirteen feet in lime and bentonite. It is 2000 feet south of Humble No. 4 Ricker and Dodson, the nearest producer.

Humble No. 9 University, in the southwest quarter of section 38, block 30, Crane county, topped the pay at 2890 feet, drilled to 2907 and stood 1000 feet in oil.

Texas No. 1 J. W. Perry, in the southwestern corner of section No. 3, G., C. S. F. Ry. Co. survey, Upton county, made 42 barrels in three heads and was flowing every four hours, drilling at 1993 feet. Topping the pay Friday at 1965 feet, it extended the hurdle area one-half mile east and slightly south.

The Smith-Taylor well in Pecos came in May 25 at 1234 feet for eighty-five barrels hourly, extending the field 1600 feet west from No. 4-A Yates.

Cotton

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, June 6.(AP)—Reports of rains in the drouthy section of West Texas were followed today by heavy selling in the cotton market and a sharp break in prices. October sold off to 16.41, a net decline of 45 points, and closed steady, at net declines of 40 to 43 points.

The market opened easy at a decline of 17 to 25 points in response to private reports of rains in the southwest which were confirmed to some extent by Sunday's weather map. Active months soon showed net losses of 24 to 26 points, but there seemed some doubt as to the adequacy of the West Texas rainfall, while the decline brought in considerable realizing by recent sellers for a reaction.

A partial recovery developed in the forenoon, October selling up from 16.60 to 16.72, or within 14 points of Saturday's closing quotation. The bulk of the demand, however, was attributed to covering by recent sellers, and the market weakened again after publication of the official weather details.

All months made new lows for the day and stop orders were uncovered on the break which carried July off to 16.06 and January to 16.72, or 43 to 49 points below the closing quotation Saturday. The pressure subsided to some extent at these figures, and covering caused closing rallies of a few points from the lowest.

Exports today 21,563, making 10,448,934 so far this season. Port receipts 9276; U. S. port stocks 1,559,090.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, June 6. (AP)—Cotton prices declined nearly $2.25 a bale today mainly due to reports of rain in the drouth section of West Texas. December dropped to 16.55, but rallied to 16.77, near the end and closed at that figure. The general market closed steady at net declines of 40 to 45 points.

The market was without incentive from Liverpool, that market remaining closed for the Whitsuntide holidays, but reports of rains in Texas caused a loss of 15 to 22 points at the opening here. Prices continued to ease off during the morning until July traded at 16.27, October 16.55, and December 16.77, 23 to 25 points below Saturday's close.

The detailed weather report failed to show the Texas rains and near mid-session prices rallied 10 to 13 points with July at 16.37, October 16.68, and December 16.87. Prices, however, turned easier again in the afternoon on official confirmation of private reports of rains in the drouth section.

The market continued to ease off during the late trading until July traded at 16.07, October 16.35, and December 16.56, 43 to 47 points below the previous close. There was some covering near the end and prices rallied a few points at the close.

Exports totalled 21,563 bales.

COTTON GOODS

NEW YORK, June 6.(AP)—Cotton goods in the gray were quiet today following the easing in cotton. Raw silk was stronger at Yokohoma and advanced a little here. Burlaps were slightly higher in Calcutta and in the local markets. Yarns were firmer.

COTTONSEED OIL

NEW YORK, June 6.(AP)—Cottonseed oil was easy today under southern and commission house selling owing to the decline in lard and cotton. Final prices were four of 21 points net lower, with near months relatively steady due to buying of July, supposedly for short account or refining interests. Sales 12,400 barrels. Prime crude nominal; prime December 99.80; January 99.85.

Roxana to Drill Eight Miles North of Lockhart

LOCKHART, June 6. (AP)—An oil test will be made northwest of Lockhart about eight miles by the Roxana Oil company. The drilling crew will be under Bill Hinton, who has the contract for the well. The location has not been announced.

L. B. Wright and associates have located a test on the Brown tract, near the vicinity of Brownsboro, eight miles southeast of Lockhart, and about three miles southeast of the Callahan.

Active Stocks Are Strong On New York Exchange And Close Day With Good Gains

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, June 6.—Active stocks were strong today and closed with good gains. Considerable covering developed in such issues as Houston Oil and Baldwin but elsewhere in the list the ubying was genuine, particularly in the standard stocks.

One feature of the present market is that new leaders are being brought to the front when others show a disposition to tire. That the steel industry gives evidence of improving accounts for the buying of such stocks; the western merger is another factor which is directing attention to the steels.

Wall street is not laying much stress on the dropping off of railroad earnings in April. It should be remembered that 1926 was a phenominal year and there was no coal strike nor flood to hamper shipments on the transportation lines.

Brokers loans for the week showed an increase of approximately $97,000,000. This is due mostly to the U. S. Steel stock dividend. The loans are not taken seriously in a 4 1-2 per cent money market. Easy money conditions are expected to continue until the fall demands for trade make their appearance.

Heavy selling developed in the commodity markets with consequent sharp declines. Foreign exchange trading remained quiet.

Delaware & Hudson was the feature of the rails, rising seven points to a ne whigh at 230 in the closing dealings. As pointed out in this column last week steps may be taken shortly toward segrating the coal properties from the railroad. Directors are said to be making progress since receiving authority, first to sell the coal properties to a corporation, all the stocks of which should be owned by the Delaware & Hudson, and later, to transfer the railroad to a corporation, all the stock of which will be owned by the Delaware & Hudson. Profit-taking was in evidence toward the close.

General Motors sold at a new high price. This stock is expected to be the next to "hop off." Earnings are running beyond the expectation of insiders at a time when the short interest is large. Bankers are understood to be buying this stock and steel.

Rumors were current in Wall street that the General Motors planned to enter the airplane and motor boating business. It is thought in the street that General Motors has some connection with the Wright Airplane company, whose Wright whirling motor has proved a success in the international flight. If General Motors is interested in this business it would afford another avenue of earnings for the big corporation.

Traders are turning their attention to stocks not selling in the 150s and 200s. Gabriel Snubbers was strong on earnings for the second quarter which are likely to cover the full year's dividend requirements. Earnings for the twelve months may approximate $8 a share, according to those close to the company. Making 70 per cent of the shock absorbers now sold, entry of the new Ford car is expected to double the field for these appliances. European business is expanding, Fiat of Italy having recently bought 20,000 sets and sales and service abroad are being organized on a large scale.

Another stock coming into favor is American Drug syndicate which is now under Schulte management, which also controls Park & Tilford. The fact thtat the medicinal whiskey supply of the country is getting low has resulted in plans to sell Park & Tilford's overhold whiskey through the American Drug syndicate. The latter will retail it for P. & T.

Westinghouse Air Brakes was higher. W. A. B. is another of the split-up issues. Under plans now under consideration an offering of four shares for one is expected. The new shares may go on a $3 annual dividend basis which would make $12 a share for the present stock which now pays $7. Atlantic Refining was in demand at higher prices. This company has not been hit as some of the producing companies by the over-supply of oil. Pittsburgh Coal soared eight points on rumors that the company would figure in a consolidation with the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal and the Pittsburgh & West Virginia Railway, making the new corporation the largest coal company in the world. Wright Airplane became active at higher prices on the success of the company's motor used in the international flight. Foundation was inactive on rumors of adverse dividend action.

Grain

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW

CHICAGO, June 6.(AP)—Fire that the Kessinger bill in the Illinois legislature will be advanced tomorrow had a depressing effect on grain values today, especially in the late dealings, neither bulls nor bears showed much disposition to take the initiative, and with speculative trade small, compared to what has recently been the rule, prices underwent an all-around sag.

Corn closed unsettled, 1⅜ to 1⅝c net lower, wheat 1⅛ to 1⅝c off, oats ⅜ to 1⅛c down and provisions showing 10 to 32 cents decline.

Beneficial rains west and southwest together with bearish aspects of the Illinois legislative situation put the wheat market on the downgrade even when corn tended upward. Dry weather northwest and warmer temperatures in Canada were construed as favoring spring wheat growth.

Oats ruled easy, incluenced chiefly by other grain.

Provisions went lower with hogs and on selling ascribed to packers.

Livestock

TEXAS LIVSETOCK

FORT WORTH, June 6.(AP)—Declines in beef cattle, she stock and hogs featured today's livestock market here.

Indications were for 25 cents lower in prices of beef cattle. She stock had a decline of 15 cents in spots. Hogs lost 25 cents on rail and 20 cents on truckers.

Bulk of beef cattle came as grassers. A shipper took a small draft of 950-pound cattle at $7.25 and $7.50.

Bulk of she stuff moved as butchers at $4.25 to $5.50. Canners fairly active at $3.25 to $4.

Heifers took an early top at $9.50, some selling at $9.

Calves were considered about steady with heavy calves at $8.25 to $8.35. Movement in this trade was slack.

Bulls steady ranging from $4.25 for little bulls to $5.65 for a beefy sort.

Hogs showed the incluence of the decline at western points. Day's top was $8.85 for rail hogs, $8.80 for truckers. Bulk of rail hogs $8.50 to $8.70; bulk of truckers $8.65 and down. Packing sows 25 cents lower; best smooth sort $7.75.

Bulk of the sheep supply came as shorn wethers. Some made $7.75 and a few sold at $7.40. Fat yearlings $10@$10.50. Market steady.

Cattle: Receipts 8300 including 1300 calves, market steady, beeves $5.50@10.50, stockers $5@7.75; fat cows $4.25@6, cutters $2.50@4, canners $3.50@3.75; heifers and yearlings $5@10.50, bulls $3.50@6; calves $5@9.50.

N. Y. Stocks

NEW YORK, June 6.(AP)—Railroad shares resumed the leadership of the stock market today which continued under control of speculators for the advance. Heavy selling for both accounts brought out in a number of the industrials and specialties, but offerings generally were well absorbed. Trading fell off perceptibly in volume, the day's sales running just above 2,000,000 shares.

From a stock market standpoint one of the most important developments of the day was the announcement of brokers' loans after the close of the session. The New York stock exchange figures showed an increase of $116,659,182 in May, bringing the total at the end of the month to $3,457,869,029, as against the record of $3,935,590,321 at the end of February, 1926. The federal reserve bank statement showed an increase of $97,211,000 in the week ended last Wednesday, making the total $3,016,891,000 as against the peak figure of $3,141,125,000 in the first week of 1926.

Banks called about $10,000,000 or more in loans during the day, probably to repair the deficit shown in last Saturday's clearing house statement. Call money held steady at 4½ per cent.

Western Maryland common was the sensational feature in the rail group, soaring 8⅝ points to a new high record at 65½. Deleware and Hudson jumped more than seven points to a new peak at 230 on buying influence by a revival of rumors regarding an early segregation of the coal properties, but president L. F. Loree declined to comment.

New peak prices also were attained by nearly a dozen other rails, including Texas and Pacific.

General Motors was again in the forefront of the industrials, touching another new high record ground at 202½. Public utilities and railroad equipments also presented several points of strength. More than two score industrials reached new high ground.

There were a few soft spots, the most conspicuous of which was United States Rubber, which sank below $43 a share to the lowest price in four years.

The money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchange trading was quiet with rates holding fairly steady. Demand sterling was quoted around $4.85 5-16 and French francs around 3.91 cents.

Texas Company Gets Producer in Upton

Special to The Record News.

SAN ANGELO, June 6.—Texas company No. 1 J. M. Perry, in the southeast corner of section 3, G., C. & S. F. Co. survey, today became the best produced in the southeastern extension of the Upton county field, when it began flowing 30 to 35 barrels hourly upon deepening to 2037 feet. Previously it gauged 315 barrels in 24 hours.

WHEAT HOLDS STUBBORN AIR

Price Rules Lower Most Of Day's Trade

By CHARLES J. LEYDEN
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

CHICAGO, June 6.—Political influence was felt in the grain markets today and it created a feeling of uncertainty. Some long lines were unloaded late in the session on fear that the Kessinger bill would be advanced to third reading when the state legislature meets today. Although ruling lower most of the day, the wheat market was stubborn on declines.

July wheat opened at $1.43¼@1.43⅜, dropped to $1.42⅜, rallied to $1.43⅜, reacted and closed at $1.42⅜@1.42½. September opened at $1.41⅛@1.41⅜, broke to $1.40⅜, advanced to $1.42, dropped to $1.40⅞ and closed at $1.40⅞@1.41.

Export business continues quiet. Aside from moderate quantities of wheat worked to Mediterranean countries foreign demand was flat because of the holiday at Liverpool. It was reported that there was some inquiry for rye in the market.

Locally, wheat closed 1¼@1⅜c lower, corn 1⅜@1½c lower, oats 1@1¼c lower and rye ⅞@1⅛c lower.

Corn displayed strength much of the session but developed decided weakness in the final hour when some of the local longs sold out and liquidation and stop-loss selling set in. Local bulls gave the market good support early and commission houses were on both sides of the market. Weather conditions were improved.

Long liquidation developed in the oats market after the corn market became so weak, prices declining sharply.

Rye was weaker with other grains.

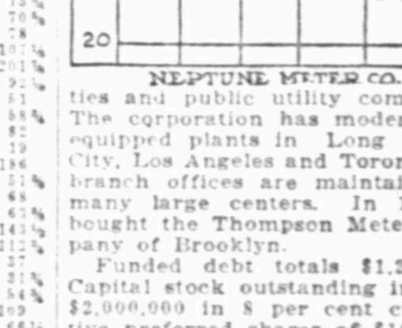

NEPTUNE METER CO.

5-Year Record

Water meters are the product which command the activities of the Neptune Meter company. The company was first organized in 1893. It is one of the largest water meter makers of the world and its product ranges from a small house service size to a fire service meter. Over 2,000,000 of the company's meters are in use.

All but about 10 per cent of the output is sold to municipalities and public utility companies.

NEPTUNE METER CO.

The corporation has modern well equipped plants in Long Island City, Los Angeles and Toronto and branch offices are maintained at many large centers. In 1925 it bought the Thompson Meter company of Brooklyn.

Funded debt totals $1,224,000. Capital stock outstanding includes $2,000,000 in 8 per cent cumulative preferred shares of $100 par, 200,000 shares of class A no par common and 50,000 shares of class B no par common. Class A and class B share equally as to assets and dividends but class A elects one-third of the directors and class B two-thirds. Outside electing directors and voting on consolidations and mergers all other voting power rests with the class B stock.

Dividends have been paid in full on the preferred in 1925 and 1926 and so far this year. The rate on class A and class B since March 1925 has been 50 cents a share quarterly. Net income in 1926 was $896,403 or $44.95 on each share of preferred and $296 on each share of common. As of Dec. 31, 1926, current assets totaled $2,699,501, current liabilities $590,664, net working capital $2,108,837 and book value on the class A and class B common $6.34 a share.

ATLANTIC FLIGHTS: CHAMBERLIN TAKING OFF; LINDBERGH PICTURES; NUNGESSER AND COLI HUNT STARTS

Equipped with a newly constructed Fokker monoplane, fitted with pontoons for work on the open water, Cyrus Caldwell (left) and F. Sidney Cotton are headed for Newfoundland in an effort to locate Nungesses and Coli, the lost French airmen. Their plane, the "Jeanne D'Arc," is shown above.

Lindy's decision to return to the United States on the fast cruiser Memphis was good news for Commander William L. Beck (top) and Captain Ellis Lackey (below), who as chief officers of the ship, are hosts to the famous flier on the return trip.

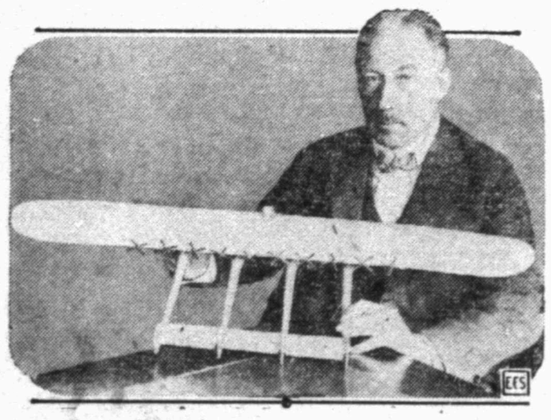

Headed for Berlin, or "as long as the gas lasts," these intrepid aviators followed the trail blazed by Captain Lindbergh. Picture shows the Wright-engined Bellanca airplane at start of runway of Rouseville Field, as they hopped off at 5:05 a. m. Saturday. Sent from Rouseville by telephoto.

Even the blase boys of the press who were assigned to meet and talk to Captain Lindbergh when he landed in Paris, were unable to resist the popular impulse to clamor for a handshake. Here he is, crowded for an interview at the American embassy.

Linton Wells, holder of the around-the-world air, land and water record, who, with Lieut. Leigh Wade, will attempt to girdle the globe by airplane, late in July.

Dr. Edmund Rumpler, a leading German aeronautical engineer, is shown above with a model of his new 10,000 horse power, 10-motored airplane, designed for transoceanic passenger traffic. The machine, its inventor claims, will carry 170 passengers, 37 tons of fuel and six tons of baggage at a speed of 200 miles an hour. Four pontoons are designed to enable the machine to ride out the severest storms in the event of a forced landing.

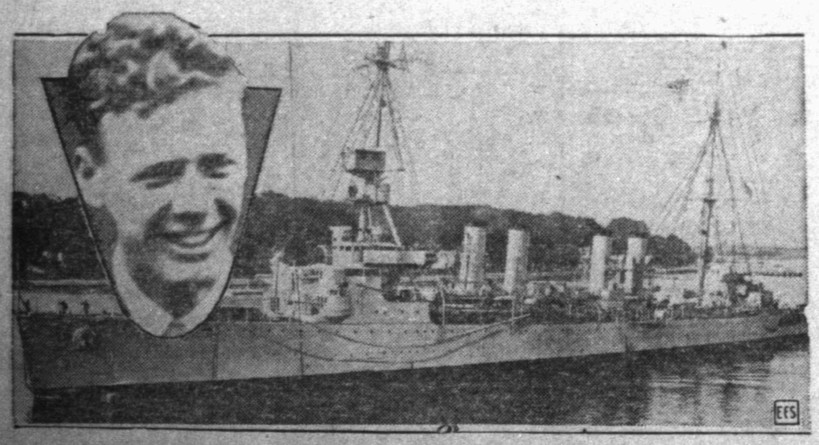

Most pictures of the young flier who at the moment finds himself the most famous man in the world, show his boyish countenance from the front, for he faces cameras with all the nonchalance with which he faced the north Atlantic. This exceptionally fine profile picture was made in Paris on the day after he completed his sensational flight.

Underwood and Underwood

There is little spare space in England, which may be the reason why a British inventor thought up this Moth biplane, successfully piloted from London to Berlin by Major Barbe and Captain Broad (inset,) its designers. A four-cylinder motor suppliesthe power and wings fold, making it possible to tuc k the Moth into bed in an ordinary suburban garage when there's no flying to be done.

No ordinary liner, but a United States warship is bringing Captain Charles Lindbergh home to his native soil. This is a picture of the U. S. cruiser Memphis, designated to carry the young air hero directly to Washington for an official welcome by President Coolidge.

Chamberlin Flies 3900 Miles Without Stop

the city in the last century or more, and the mayor announced that tonight the city would be illuminated and that the town council would entertain the fliers and the entire population in a huge celebration.

The American fliers, so far as their present plans indicate, probably will reach Berlin tomorrow. It was planned tonight to pull the giant Columbia from the mud, and make repairs. The American embassy is co-operating in securing a new propeller for the plane, and once the Columbia is in proper condition, Chamberlin and Levine will hop off for the German capital at once.

In the meantime, the two Americans are guests of honor here. The best suites in the Hotel Ansorge have been put at their disposal.

Lands in Mud

When the supply of gasoline became exhausted, the Columbia was forced to land about two miles Cottbus. Unfortunately the craft came down in a mud hole and sank so deep in the mire that the propeller blades broke under the weight.

Officials at the Lufthansa flying field immediately got to the fliers in automobiles, and took them to the Hotel Ansorge.

The entire population succumbed to the general excitement, and the welcome to the Americans, as the news spread of their arrival, was overwhelming. The Burgomaster and the city counsel met in a special session, and a ceremonial lunch was speedily arranged for the fliers.

This was the first food of which the fliers had partaken since they crossed the European coast.

Both Chamberlin and Levine looked as though they might have been working late at night, but showed few signs of the terrific strain.

Chamberlin looked quite tired, but Levine showed scarcely any trace of the epochal flight.

Greeted by American

The men were glad to be greeted by an American, the first human being, they said, they could understand in Germany.

Chamberlin and Levine were discovered in the dining room of the Hotel Ansorge, seated at a lodge table. The mayor sat at the head of the table, with Chamberlin on his right and Levine at his left.

Both Americans were busy eating tomato soup. Their German host could not speak English, but indicated by his actions and in "sign language," how delighted he was to occupy the head of the table at such an auspicious time.

Chamberlin and Levine were bombarded with postal cards to autograph. They smilingly acceded to each request, between spoonfuls of soup. About every two minutes the mayor arose and proposed the health of his guests with foaming seidels of Pilsener. The airmen responded, acknowledging the toast by touching their lips to the "bead." However, both consumed great quantities of fresh water.

Levine was inclined to deprecate his feat. When congratulated, he said:

"It was not as good as it ought to have been. We should have got to Berlin."

Chamberlin was quietly apologetic.

"I'm awfully sorry we didn't get to Berlin," he said. "If it hadn't been for that storm, we would have been in Berlin last night.

"But, you know, we didn't even have a map of Germany, and we ran into a pretty bad storm just about the time the Mauretania sighted us."

Levine interrupted.

"What news did you have about us?" he asked the newspaper correspondent.

Upon being informed that the Mauretania dispatch and one report of his present over Plymouth were about the only tangible report of his presence over Plymouth til the Columbia was sighted over Boulogne and later, over Rotterdam, Amsterdam and Dortmund, he said:

"That's funny. We saw a boat not far from England which we thought was the Pennsylvania, and we also glimpsed several other vessels on our route."

Fog Hid Plane

"Yes," said Chamberlin, "but you know that the fog was so bad after we passed the Mauretania that it was impossible either for us to be seen or for us to see anybody.

"The fog was so thick and the night so dark that I had no idea how I was going. My course was lost. Finally I decided to go above the fog and stay there until morning.

"So we got about the 1000-foot altitude and found fog everywhere. We went higher, I steered east, knowing that if I kept to that course long, we would be bound to hit land.

"When the sun came out in the morning, we dropped down through the clouds, and lo! and behold, we were over a large coast city, which I took to be Bremen. It may have been Boulogne. There were about five or six big factories, underneath.

Map Fails

"Then we tried to steer by our map, and our map was no good. I know absolutely nothing about the way Germany looks from the air."

"Aren't you awfully tired?" Chamberlin was asked.

"No," he replied. "I'm not very tired; only a little bit. We did not really get to sleep at all, although we relieved each other at the steering wheel. It was impossible —we got only a few cat-naps. We did not eat very much, either. I found it better to do without eating and sleeping and carry the whole thing through on reserve strength. I would like to send a cable to my folks," he added, with a wan smile.

Chamberlin made a gesture, indicating a stack of cards lying in front of him, awaiting his signature. A crowd of 50 or 60 German dignitaries of Cottbus jammed the dining room, until Chamberlin and Levine could hardly breathe.

LEVINE APOLOGIZES TO WIFE FOR HIS ACTION
By Universal Service.

COTTBUS, Germany, June 6.—Charles Levine was very much surprised to be informed, upon his arrival here with Clarence D. Chamberlin in the Bellanca-Wright plane Columbia from New York, that his wife had fainted when the plane hopped off at Roosevelt field for its journey.

"I did not know she did that," he said. "I saw she had a worried look on her face, but I did not know it would affect her so violently.

"But, you know, if I had told her, I could never have made the trip. She would not have let me, and that would have crabbed the whole party."

One of Levine's first acts was to send a cablegram, as follows, to Mrs. Charles Levine, Belle Harbor, Long Island, N. Y.:

"Trust you and children well. Please overlook my action leaving without telling. Know you would not sanction such thing. Had great trip, would not have missed experience. Communications will reach me care American embassy, Berlin. Love, Charles."

BELLANCA'S PILOT WORLD WAR VETERAN
By Universal Service.

SAN ANTONIO, June 6.—Clarence Chamberlin, pilot of the Bellanca monoplane, Columbia, who shattered Capt. Charles Lindbergh's sustained flight record when he brought his trans-Atlantic plane down in the marshes near Cottbus, Germany early today, missed getting into the "big show" in France by only a few days.

Chamberlin's record at Kelly field, where he became one of Uncle Sam's most expert pursuit fliers, reveals that the Bellanca pilot was ready to embark at Hoboken, N. J., Nov. 9, 1918, but when the armistice was signed two days later, his sialing orders were revoked.

Chamberlin enlisted in the balloon section of the air service at Fort Omaha, Neb., Nov. 28, 1917. On May 9, 1918, he was transferred to the heavier-than-air section and was ordered to the school of aeronautics at the University of Illinois.

Upon graduating at the head of his class he was sent to Chanute Field, Ill., for practical training. He was commissioned a second lieutenant of reserves in June.

From Chanute field, Chamberlin was sent to Camp Dix and then to Wilbur Wright field, Ohio, for a course in aerial gunnery. The Bellanca pilot obtained his advanced flying at Payne field, West Point, Miss., and in February, 1919, was transferred to Kelly field as an instructor. In May he was transferred to Newport News, Va., where he was discharged from the service.

Chamberlin had only one crack-up at Kelly field when motor trouble forced him to land in a small field. He demolished a fence and two wooden buildings in landing.

CHAMBERLIN WILL GET DISTINGUISHED HONORS
By Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—The distinguished flying cross, the highest honor which this government may confer upon a flyer, will be awarded to Clarence Chamberlin for New York to Germany flight, it was learned tonight.

He also will be recommended for the congressional medal of honor and will have a warship placed at his disposal to return to the United States, it was decided in in formal conferences among officials.

The status of Charles Levine, backed by the venture and the first passenger on a trans-Atlantic flight, is by no means so certain. While he will share with Chamberlin all the public honors for the remarkable achievement, officials expressed doubt that he could be officially decorated by the government, since he was passenger and not pilot on the flight.

Chamberlin himself, being a civilian and not a member of the army reserves, is not eligible under the regulations to receive the distinguished flying cross. It was indicated, however, that technicalities will be awarded. The Congressional Act establishing the decoration provides that it may be awarded to flyers actually in the service of the army at the time a flight is made.

In the case of Lindberg this technicality was waived on the ground that while Lindberg was not actually in government service at the time, he is an officer in the reserve. In the case of Chamberlin it is understood that it will be waived on the ground that Chamberlin was a flyer in the United States army during the world war.

Chamberlin will not be received in Washington with the official pomp and ceremony now being arranged for Lindberg. It is because President Coolidge is departing for his summer vacation in the Black Hills of South Dakota Monday and will not be here to receive him. Chamberlin will, however, be invited to the Black Hills White House, it is stated.

CHAMBERLIN RELATES HIS STORY OF FLIGHT
By Universal Service.

COTTBUS, Germany, June 6.—Clarence D. Chamberlin today gave his own story of the difficulties he and Charles A. Levine encountered in their trans-Atlantic flight. Mr. Chamberlin said:

"The fog was so bad after we passed the Mauretania that it was almost impossible for us to be seen or to see anyone. After we circled the Mauretania we encountered a storm, but we had power enough to breast it and keep on an eastward course, escaping the storm. The fog again became so thick and the night so dark that I had no idea how I was going on my course.

"I finally decided to go above the fog and stay there until morning. So we went above 11,000 feet and found the fog everywhere. Then we went even higher.

"I steered east, knowing if I went long enough on that course, we were bound to hit land.

"When the sun finally came out this morning we dropped down through the clouds and lo and behold we were over a large city which I took to be Bremen. It may have been Boulogne. Anyhow, I knew there were five or six big factories underneath.

"Then we tried to steer by our map, but our map was no good. I know absolutely nothing about the way Germany looks from the air.

"I am not very tired, only a little sleepy. We really did not sleep at all although we relieved each other at the stick.

"It was impossible really to sleep. We only succeeded in getting a few short catnaps. We didn't eat very much either. I found it better to do without eating or sleeping and carry the whole thing through on reserve strength."

LEVINE SAYS LINDY WAS LUCKY ON HOP
By CHARLES T. LEVINE
(Financial Backer of the Chamberlin Flight and the First "Passenger" in an Ocean Airplane Flight.)
(Copyright, 1927, By Universal Service.)

COTTBUS, Germany, June 6.—Lindbergh was lucky and we were not. If we had had one-tenth of Lindbergh's luck we would have done much better.

The wind was against us 75 per cent of the way. When we struck the heavy fog we had to go 22,000 feet high. I can tell you that was not comfortable.

On account of our detour, which we made to avoid the storm centers, our gas ran out just at the moment when Berlin was within our grasp.

We were forced to come down for lack of gas near Eisleben at 5:55 this morning. We got a new supply of gas from the nearest Lufthansa station but we did not take on enough. We were in such a hurry to get to Berlin that we did not stop long enough to fill our tanks.

After we left Eisleben our magneto began to give us trouble and just as luck would have it we were compelled to come down when we were over a big stretch of swampy land.

It was impossible to find a decent landing place, when we arrived at Cottbus at 11:30.

Still, we flew for 44 hours, and covered 4400 miles as against Lindbergh's 33 1-2 hours and 3500 miles, but Lindbergh was lucky and we were not.

CARTER ACCEPTS 99-YEAR SENTENCE FOR ROBBERY HERE

MOTHER MAKES PLEA TO JURY

Defense Offers Her as Only Witness

The road of life for Jack Carter came to a decided turn Monday when a jury sentenced him to serve 99 years in the penitentiary for the alleged robbery of the Gulf Refining company filling station at Eighth and Brook streets, March 29.

Quick Verdict

Although under one sentence of 99 years imposed by a Dallas jury for a similar offense, alleged to have been commited in that city, the sentence received Monday by Carter practically assures his incarceration in the penitentiary for life.

Except in few instances, according to county officials and attorneys in the court house Monday, has a governor paroled or pardoned a convicted person serving two 99-year sentences concurrently.

Carter received his sentence Monday calmly and smiled when his attorney announced that no appeal from the sentence would be filed.

The jury returned with its verdict approximately two hours after the cast had been called to trial in the 89th district court before Judge P. A. Martin.

The defense only presented one witness and that was the mother of the defendant, who in a faltering voice, choked with emotion, told the jurors that "her Jack had been a good boy until he got into trouble.

The state introduced Charles Henson and Wallace Faulkner, employes of the filling station, and Constable Frank Morgan and C. W. Jenson, city officer.

Few Witnesses

Henson and Faulkner testified as to the robbery and the gun battle with Carter as he was leaving the station. Faulkner and Carter were both wounded during the battle.

Constable Morgan testified as to capturing Carter in Oklahoma City a few days after the robbery and Jenson told the jury the details of finding the bullet-riddled car which Carter had driven to and from the filling station. The car was found by Jenson the day following the robbery within the Wichita Falls city limits where it had been abandoned by Carter.

Shriners Leave Today For Imperial Council

Several nobles from Maskat temple will leave at 11:55 o'clock Tuesday morning over the Fort Worth and Denver railway for Atlantic City where they will attend sessions of the Imperial council, according to announcement from Al Ellis, recorder of the temple. Several stops will be made at various points en route where special entertainment and sight seeing tours have been arranged for the delegates.

Shriners from Wichita Falls will join those of Hella temple at Dallas who are to attend the council, and will occupy a special train to Atlantic City. Return trips have been arranged over different routes and many centers of interest will be visited by the group, it was said.

30 Smallpox Cases Quarantined in Week

Thirty cases of smallpox were quarantined in Wichita Falls during the past week, according to a report issued Monday by the city health department.

The high number of smallpox cases, according to officials of the department, was caused by the contact of people during the crowded condition of Wichita Falls streets during the various conventions that were held here during May.

Other cases quarantined were: Measles, 12; mumps, two, and chickenpox, one. There were five deaths reported.

Private Detectives Held On Forgery Charge

Indicted by the last grand jury for forgery in connection with the alleged passing of a worthless check to a rent car company, J. H. Doyle, private detective, was arrested Monday by Warren Belcher, deputy sheriff.

The whereabouts of Doyle since the returning of the indictment was unknown until Monday.

Man Arrested After Court Forfeits Bond

County officers took into custody Monday C. E. Chapman, whose bond of $1000 was forfeited several days ago when he failed to appear for trial in the 89th district court on a charge of violating the state prohibition law.

Chapman was arrested Sunday by city officers and transferred Monday to county jurisdiction.

Camp Fire Guardians Meet Tuesday Night

The Wichita Falls Camp Fire Guardians' association will meet at the home of Mrs. A. A. Brackett, 2011 Eighth street, Tuesday evening at 7:45 o'clock, according to announcement.

Miss Mary McIlheran also announced that all girls who did not receive their membership tags at the camp rally for the 15 cent rate at Havener's pool may call at headquarters for them.

TO NEW YORK BY AUTO

N. A. Ferguson, of Miller-Ferguson Co., Inc., with his wife and two daughters left Monday by auto for New York. They will go by St. Louis, Chicago and across by the Great Lakes to Niagara Falls and down the Hudson to the big city, where Mr. Ferguson will spend several weeks in the women's wear markets looking up the new fall styles in coats, dresses and millinery, and placing orders for his firm's needs. They will return via Washington and southern route about July 10 to 15.

FALL CEREMONIAL

The fall ceremonial of Maskat temple will be held here on Nov. 23, it was announced by Guy Rogers at the regular meeting of the organization Monday night. Plans are being made for an elaborate affair and for the largest class of notices ever initiated in this territory.

Writer Blames Public's Attitude For Escape of Liquor Violators

June 6, 1927.

To The Record News:

I have read with interest quotations from Mr. C. C. Hudson, editor of the Iowa Park Herald, regarding the lack of enforcement of the liquor law in this county. I join with him in lamenting this fact, but we will have to part company if he is to lay the blame at the feet of our state's prosecutors. I believe these gentlemen are doing everything possible to bring these liquor cases to trial and to justice.

I am wondering why the editor in his comments does not get to the bottom of the question and point out the actual existing conditions and those who are to blame for them. The supply of any community is only in answer to a demand. It is a fundamental economic law that the ultimate consumer is directly responsible for any business and without him no such business will exist. Unless Mr. Hudson's community is an exception there are many leading citizens, members of the churches, lodges and other organizations of his community, who are in effect the financial backers of the prosperous bootlegger to whom he refers. The law does not protect me in the event I purchase stolen property when I knew at the time it was stolen. The purchaser of bootleg liquor which is an illegitimate commodity, is in a day protected through the necessary technicalities of the law, but morally he is just as much a violator as the seller. When public sentiment will frown in an uncompromising manner upon the good citizens, the responsible leaders of the community and very often officials in the church, who are making possible the existence of the bootlegger and permitting him to go free through technicalities, we will then see public sentiment of the kind that is required and indispensible if our state's attorneys are to be really successful on the whole in the prosecution of these cases.

The policeman who is chasing a burglar down the street will never catch him if all the bystanders are trying to trip the policeman, and clearing the way for the burglar to make his escape. Why in such case should the editor place the blame on the policeman?

And if we should come to the point where reverence for the constitution is no longer a vital element in the character of the American people, then the liquor question at its very worst would only be one of our lessor problems.

C. A. ROGERS.

Today { At the Theaters

By Ruth Morrison

Majestic: "Rookies," with Karl Dane, comedy, Topics of the Day and Pathe News.

Olympic: Zane Grey's "Drums of the Desert," comedy and Fox News.

Mission: "Tarzan and the Golden Lion," with an all-star cast; also comedy.

Garden: Buster Keaton in "Battling Butler," a western picture and comedy.

Gem: Jackie Coogan in "Johnny Get Your Haircut," and a Mack Sennett comedy.

If you want to laugh and thrill alternately a good place to do both is at the Majestic Theater, where "Rookies," a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer comedy is being shown. The picture, which was made with the cooperation of the government, is laid against a background of life at one of Uncle Sam's military training camps for civilians. Karl Dane, one of the heroes of "The Big Parade," has the role of a sergeant and George K. Arthur, famous as a film comedian, is seen as the greenest of recruits. The complication arises when both fall in love with Marceline Day. Louise Loraine, Tom O'Brien and Frank Currier have prominent roles and the picture is one of Director Sam Wood's thrilling comedies. It is an original story from the pen of Byron Morgan, author of Red Grange's "One Minute to Go," and other red blooded film stories.

County Lets Contract For Pauper Burials

Contract for the burial of paupers was awarded Monday by the county commissioners court to the O. W. Hines mortuary. The contract which is for a period of two years specifies that the county will pay $11.85 for the burial of men or women and $2 for every ambulance call made for the county.

After Smith, Allred company, auditors retained by the county to conduct a 10-year audit of county records, had posted a $14,875 bond, the court instructed County Judge E. W. Nicholson to sign the contract on behalf of the county.

The annual report made by Guy Raley, county tax collector, was approved by the court.

The court was adjourned at 3:30 p. m. and the commissioners convened as a board of tax equalization for the remainder of the day.

GRAY POSTS AIR FORFEIT

Aviator Leaves Wichita For Dallas

Entrance fee of $50 for the proposed Dallas-Hongkong airplane flight for which William Easterwood, Dallas chewing gum magnate, has posted a $25,000 prize will be posted Tuesday by Lieut. Robt. H. Gray, who hopped off Monday from Wichita Falls for Dallas.

Lieut. Gray, who was the guest of Raymond Alfred, attorney, during his visit to Wichita Falls, came to the city in an effort to have local capitalists furnish the funds for the Dallas-China flight.

The negotiations between Lieut. Gray and the capitalists came to a halt Friday when the flier learned that it would be difficult to obtain an airplane due to the advance orders on the files of the manufacturers.

However, Lieut. Gray, of the opinion that he will eventually be able to obtain an airplane, decided to post his forfeit for the proposed flight.

He is expected to return to Wichita Falls within the next few days.

Metal Research Far Advanced, Says Expert

Research work relative to metals in the United States has reached a point since the World war where this country is far advanced in this line of work over other countries on the globe, D. M. Brydie, prominent American metallurgist, said Monday, after arriving in Wichita Falls.

Mr. Brydie, who lives in St. Louis, is the guest of Dick Levy, manager of the Texan hotel, while in the city.

During the war Mr. Brydie was overseas in the capacity of a metal expert attached to the Emergency Flee corporation. His duies consisted of inspecting all materials used in the construction of fighting equipment for the United States army.

Business Women Hold Annual Picnic Tonight

The annual picnic of the Business and Professional Women's club will be held at Lake Wichita Tuesday night, according to announcement. All members are asked to meet at the Y. W. C. A. at 6 o'clock where transportation will be furnished.

A special program with several feature numbers has been arranged, after which a picnic spread will be given.

City Auditorium Now One-Fifth Completed

Approximately one-fifth of the municipal auditorium has been completed, according to the record of payments made to the Joe Morgan Construction company, contractors.

The contract price was $500,000 and to date the city has paid the Morgan company approximately $100,000 for completed work.

The walls and floors of the wings to the auditorium are expected to be completed by July 1. The entire structure is expected to be opened to the public on the night of Oct. 6 when the queen of the Texas-Oklahoma fair will be crowned in the building.

For Accumulation Or For Borrowing—

The "North Texas" Plans Benefit You Most

For the average man or woman, the Building and Loan Association method is the best for accumulating a reserve through small but regular payments. For your money earns a good return—it is absolutely safe—and it may be withdrawn at any time.

For the home owner or the individual anxious to acquire a home, the Building and Loan offers the safest, most convenient, most productive plan of borrowing. You can acquire the property you want—and pay for it by regular installments that "just fit" your particular case.

Operating as a cooperative organization, and headed by men familiar with Wichita Falls, its prospects and its values, the North Texas Building and Loan Association presents the best and safest way to make your money bring you the returns you want.

Stop in—we'll gladly go into details.

We Can Do For You What We Have Done For Others

One pleasing feature of our method of building homes is that you don't need to own a lot, to begin with.

We can do for you what we've done for scores of others — finance the purchase of the lot, on easy terms, just as we finance construction of the home for you.

No other plan is as easy to get started with — or as easy to keep going.
