Liquor Vote Due in '70

AUSTIN (UPI) — Liquor by the drink, prohibited in Texas for the last 50 years, has finally passed the Legislature but it may be two years before the first mixed drink is legally sold —if then.

A 10-year legislative battle, escalated in the past three years, ended Thursday when the House voted 102-44 to submit a constitutional amendment to legalize local option sale of mixed drinks.

The Senate pproved the amendment 21-10 last month. A constitutional amendment does not require the governor's signature.

But the amendment will not be submitted to voters until Nov. 3, 1970.

Needs Law

If voters approve it, there will be another delay while the Legislature writes an enabling law setting forth the conditions under which mixed drinks can be sold.

The enabling legislation could be passed this session, contingent upon passage of the amendment. But no such legislation has been introduced, and Rep. Cletus A. Davis, D-Houston, said he doubts it will be.

Unless the governor calls a special session, the legislature will not have another chance to put liquor by the drink into operation until it meets again in regular session in January, 1971.

Then, after the enabling act is passed, local elections would have to be held before mixed drinks could be sold.

Voter's Choice

Defeat of the amendment at the polls, of course would put an end to the whole thing and leave the liquor laws exactly as they are now.

But Davis and other liquor by the drink proponents are optimistic the amendment will pass. In a straw vote last year, Texans approved the principle of local option mixed drinks 789,215 to 749,546.

The general election ballot next year will carry this proposition:

"For or against repeal of the prohibition against open saloons found in Section 20, Article XVI of the Constitution of Texas."

That ban has been in the constitution since 1935. Mixed drinks have been prohibited even longer than that, however.

Mystery Surrounds Air Crash

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (UPI) — Six persons died in the crash of their private plane. Why the plane crashed probably will be determined. Why it was in the air in the first place may never be known.

One theory comes to mind but it is discounted. Another idea is proposed then eliminated.

And the questions remain:

—Why did a pilot who never flys without glasses leave them in his car before the flight in which he and five others died Thursday?

Flight Unauthorized

—Why did a pilot, held in the highest regard by everyone he worked with including the state government agency for which he flew, pilot an unauthorized flight?

—Why was everyone apparently in such a hurry to leave?

The pilot, John Crawford, worked for the Department of Corrections as its chief pilot, ferrying prisoners and prison personnel to and from the state's main prison in Huntsville.

Dr. George Beto, director of the State Department of Corrections, was as puzzled by all the unanswered questions as anybody:

Has Beto Disturbed

"It baffles me and has me disturbed. There are so many questions to be answered here and no way to learn the answers because everyone involved is dead."

The bodies of Crawford, 46; George R. Clark, 36, manager of the Huntsville airport; Charles H. Greene, 34, operator of an oil company in Huntsville which operated as a distributing agent for Phillips 66; his wife Barbara, 32; and their two children Charlotte, 7, and Charles H. Greene Jr., 11, were found Wednesday in the wreckage of the plane.

Armed Police Patrol Streets In Prague

PRAGUE (UPI)—Armed police and soldiers moved to Wenceslas Square today to enforce the ouster of Alexander Dubcek as Communist party secretary. His leadership brought Czechoslovakia reforms that permited freedoms unprecedented under Stalinist communism.

The police and troops chased 200 youths from the vast square in Prague's center, where they tried to protest Dubcek's replacement. The demonstrators hooted and jeered police.

In addition, news reports said the Communist leadership, cracking down at Moscow's behest, had detained thousands of persons in an attempt "to find out criminal and antisocial elements." It cancelled civilian flights out of the country.

President Ludvik Svoboda went on television Thursday night to tell the nation Dubcek had been replaced as Communist party first secretary by Gustav Husak, a conservative regarded as acceptable to the Soviet Union. Svoboda said Dubcek had resigned.

The Communist central committee issued a proclamation that said the change was made because "opposition currents appeared which tried to achieve not the development but the disintegration of Socialist society."

Husak appeared on television next. He was long-faced and almost apologetic, his wispy hair neatly combed above his customary wire-rimmed spectacles. He promised the nation would not fall back into the repressive Stalinist control which the Dubcek administration replaced on Jan. 5, 1968.

"I can assure you . . . that neither I nor anyone from the new party leadership would give our consent to anything like that," Husak said.

A communique of the Communist party central committee said Dubcek would remain in the party presidium and will be given "an important government position."

Husak, 56, as head of the Slovak Communist party has long been known as a conservative. He had for months criticized the nation's press, radio and television, accusing them of antisocialist and distorted reporting."

Husak promised the reforms Dubcek began will not be totally abandoned.

Prague Airport was closed to all but military traffic Thursday night.

Quake Party A Big Hit With San Fran Residents

By MICHAEL HUDSON

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Who says earth quakes can't be fun?

The entire population of the San Francisco Bay area was invited to turn out today to watch the city be destroyed by a giant rolling earthquake and leveling fire.

Fortunately, the devastation was nothing more than the recreation of the 1906 earthquake and fire which almost destroyed the city. The giant outdoor party in Civic Center was the inspiration of Mayor Joseph Alioto to quiet jumpy nerves of some area residents.

Alioto decided on the 5:13 a.m. celebration of the quake's 63rd anniversary after rumors of impending devastation sometime during April were spread by mystics, seers and assorted prophets of gloom.

Although scientists assured Californians the predictions of doomsday had no basis in fact, neither could they deny the possibility of a quake, and the rumors refused to die.

The mayor's commemorative celebration included a wax figure of Enrico Caruso standing on the city hall balcony singing from Carmen, just as the famed opera star did on the night before the 1906 quake. MGM made available its classic "San Francisco" with the famed quake scene.

Spy Plane Talks Over In A Hurry

PANMUNJOM, Korea (UPI) —The United States today accused North Korea of a "calculated act of aggression" in shooting down an American spy plane and told the Communists they must "account for the consequences."

The first face-to-face meeting of U.S. and North Korean officials since the plane went down with 31 men aboard Tuesday pitted U.S. Air Force Maj. Gen. James B. Knapp against North Korean Maj. Gen. Ri Choon-Sung at this truce village between the two Koreas.

It ended abruptly 42 minutes after it began. Knapp stalked out of the quonset hut meeting with Ri demanding to know: "What was the belonging of the EC121 aircraft? . . . Why do you not tell us the belonging? . . . Tell us the belonging."

Headed South

Apparently under orders not to debate the incident, Knapp climbed into his car and headed south, his statement delivered. It said the U.S. Navy EC121 reconnaissance plane was well outside North Korean territory, posed no threat to the Communists and was engaged in a "completely legitimate" operation.

"It was not attacking you or preparing to attack you or supporting an attack on you," Knapp's statement said. "The shooting down of this United States plane was not an act of self-defense. It was a calculated act of aggression.

"This act cannot be justified under international law. On the contrary, the centuries-old tradition of freedom of the seas and the newer principle regarding freedom of the airspace over international waters clearly make your action illegal.

"International law and custom call you to account for the consequences of your violation of these principles."

Concluded Statement

Knapp referred to the North Koreans' seizure of the U.S. ship Pueblo in January of 1968 as evidence of the Communists "aggression." He concluded his statement with:

"We of course expect that you

Nixon Issues Stern Warning to Koreans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon today said U.S. aerial reconnaissance flights over international waters along the North Korean coast will continue and that they will be protected.

"This is not a threat," Nixon told a news conference in his first public comment on the shooting down of a U.S. reconnaissance plane Tuesday by North Korean MIG's in in the Sea of Japan. He added, "This simply is a statement of fact."

He said that as President he could not ask 56,000 American troops stationed in South Korea to be endangered by not having intelligence knowledge which he said the unarmed reconnaissance flights provide.

Nixon said flights off North Korea were discontinued immediately after the EC121 with 31 men aboard was shot down.

But he said that today he ordered that such flights be resumed with protection.

Presumably, the new flights will have jet fighters flying protective cover.

Nixon said the downing of the EC121 was "unprovoked, deliberate and without warning."

This was similar to the language used by the United States in a protest given the North Koreans Thursday night at Panmunjom.

Nixon stressed that the U.S. plane was an unarmed propeller-driven craft. He said its mission was reconnaissance and at no time did it go closer than 40 miles to the coast.

At the time it was shot down, he said, the plane, according to all available evidence, was 90 miles from shore, headed out to sea. He said the plane had aborted its mission following orders.

He said the United States knew this from its radar and the North Koreans must also have known it.

The President, in his first news conference since March 14, also made these points:

The chances for peace in Southeast Asia have "significantly improved" since his administration came into office. He said that the prospects for a Vietnam peace settlement were due to developments "clearly beyond the Paris peace talks."

He is not considering a unilateral withdrawal of American troops from South Vietnam. He said he saw little prospect of reducing the American commitment there until significant progress had been made in reducing the level of fighting, training the South Vietnamese army to assume more of the burden of fighting the war, and reaching an accommodation at the peace talks.

He said the level of U.S. casualties in Vietnam was down "either because the

Crew's Gear Turned Over

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The skipper of a Russian destroyer turned over to an American naval captain today several pieces of wreckage and personal gear picked up in the Sea of Japan while helping search for the U.S. Navy plane shot down by North Korea.

The Pentagon said the transfer took place at 1 a.m. CST (4 p.m. Korean time) and the captain of the Russian ship, identified as the Vdoknovenny, passed on his "sincere condolences."

No hope is held that any of the 31 men on the EC121, a four-engine, propeller-driven reconnaissance plane shot down by North Korean MIGs, will be found alive. Two bodies were picked up Thursday by the USS Tucker, the same destroyer that today rendezvoused with the Vdoknovenny and took aboard debris picked from the sea by the Russian vessel.

The Pentagon said the items included one of the several rubber life rafts from the EC121, three leather jackets, a parachute, some aircraft seats and two "exposure suits" of the type that the men would don, if they had time, in event of a landing in the sea.

The Tucker's captain, Cmdr. Sheldon D. Kully of San Francisco, thanked his Russian counterpart for his expression of condolences and for the help that the Vodknovenny and a second Russian destroyer had lent in the search, the Pentagon said.

Major Feels Reds Fight Headline War

U. S. Bombers Hit Commie Bivouacs

SAIGON (UPI)—U.S. B52 bombers in their heaviest raids in two weeks today hammered Communist bivouacs on approach routes to South Vietnam's two largest cities. An American battlefield commander said the Communists were now only fighting a headline war.

"I believe the enemy no longer expects a military victory," said Maj. Gen. Ormond R. Simpson, commander of the 1st Marine Division. "He is now fighting a political war for headlines. And he apparently thinks he can maintain this level of violence."

Military spokesmen said the high altitude jet bombers flew seven missions Thursday night and today, pounding Communist troop concentrations, base camps, bunker complexes, weapons positions and staging areas with at least 600 tons of explosives in two parts of the country.

Five of the raids zeroed in on targets from 34 to 38 miles northwest of Saigon where American troops Thursday killed 20 guerrillas who attacked a U.S. armored column from thicket. The Reds in that area pose a threat to Saigon.

The other two raids were directed against Communist positions in Quang Ngai Province, 25 and 26 miles southeast of Da Nang, where Simpson's men operate.

It was the largest number of B52 raids flown over South Vietnam since April 2 when 10 missions were flown.

Military communiques reported that Allied troops killed 148 Communist soldiers in eight fights Thursday and said that Red gunners kept up their rocket and mortar attacks with 20 shellings of bases in South Vietnam Thursday night and early today.

American spokesmen said casualties from the 55th night of nationwide Communist shellings were light.

The B52s, in flights of five to 12 planes, dumped some of their bombs near Dau Tieng, an allied camp northwest of Saigon.

UPI correspondent Nat Gibson said the ground battle five miles from Dau Tieng saw American soldiers of the 11th

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—It is "misleading" to assume that the heavy cash positions of many funds will soon force them into vigorous buying action, lifting stock prices and buttressing the market against tight money, Scheinman Timing Forecasts says. The cash-in rate by fund investors also has been rapidly rising, requiring greater liquidity by the funds, the firm notes. In addition, many funds hold relatively large positions in thinly capitalized issues or even in lettered stock which cannot easily be liquidated. In fact, the firm says, it is even probable that "a few funds are on dangerously thin ice at the present time because of their inability to get liquid."

Many stocks currently are selling at deeply oversold levels of indicated strong support, Hayden, Stone Inc. observes, and the downside pressure during recent periods of price weakness has not been particularly aggressive. A significantly bullish news development or conclusive evidence that a market base has been established probably will be necessary before the current trading rallies develop into something broader and more durable.

Bache & Co. believes that Vietnam developments currently "provide the catalyst for institutional interest." Rumors of possible progress precipitated hedging by funds against the chance of a sudden breakthrough, but when Vietnam progress possibilities "fade from the news," the firm says, there appears to be a concurrent "dry-up of enthusiasm in the market."

Negro Students Searching for Past

By GLORIA WOLFORD

NEW YORK (UPI)—Negroes on campuses are searching for a past that will give them dignity and pride in themselves and their future. Their demands for "black studies" courses may forge dramatic changes in American higher education and new dimensions in career opportunities.

They have opened up a largely unexplored area of American—and world—history by insisting upon learning more about the Negro before and during this nation's development.

"Blacks have never had what we call a usable past," Columbia historian Eric Foner, a white man, says. "They should get one.

"Current texts deal with history as it is perceived by whites. Too little research has been done on black contributions."

Black students are demanding to know, in detail, about Crispus Attucks, a Negro killed in the Boston massacre of 1770; about the 3,000 blacks who fought in the revolutionary war; about the slaves who rallied around Andrew Jackson in New Orleans in the War of 1812; about the black codiscoverer of the North Pole; and about the black man who discovered blood plasma.

They also want to know about Africa. Negroes are the only minority group in the United States who did not come of their own free will and who were not permitted to cling to past traditions and culture until they became established in the United States.

"The problem is that education has been so one-sided, emphasizing only the contributions of white Americans," Stanford sophomore Cynthia Hamilton said. Barbara Smith, 20, a senior at Mount Holyoke in Massachusetts, finds the situation "defeating."

Black novelist James O. Killens, currently teaching a course in black culture at Columbia, says black students are afraid of losing their identity in a "great white fog."

"There is a need for the American Negro to develop a positive concept of himself," says Betty Ann Childers, a student at Spelman College in Atlanta.

To try to supply it, at least 75 colleges and universities out of more than 100 surveyed by UPI reports from coast to coast have or are planning "black studies" courses. The efforts are being made despite shortages of proper textbooks and teachers.

"Despite all the good will in the world, it is difficult to find on most university campuses a faculty or administration that grasps what it means to be black in America or has a deep and sensitive awareness of black history, black culture or black outlook," Chancellor Thomas H. Eliot at Washington University in St. Louis said recently. Eliot hopes to remedy the situation at Washington.

Although many of the schools surveyed by UPI offer courses that fit into the black studies category, some dating back 30 years, few have full programs going.

There are four basic approaches:

Black courses in existing departments such as history, anthropology and sociology.

Development of a program grouping together courses in all phases of Negro history, culture and politics and sometimes leading to a degree.

Establishment of a department carrying enough courses to permit a student to major in black studies and receive a degree.

Development of a separate "institute" which has few ties to the college.

Pennsylvania State University, with 310 Negroes in its student body of 25,000, has no plans to put its scattered courses into a separate program. Syracuse University, with 310 Negroes out of 22,667, is looking into establishing a program as are Temple and the University of Pennsylvania.

Cornell trustees voted April 13 to establish a center for Afro-American studies, allocating $240,000. Th ecenter is to be in operation next year and will offer enough courses to establish a major by 1971.

Only two schools are using the separate institute approach and one of them, small Reed College in Portland, Ore., is setting up such an institute to skirt black demands for "autonomy" which Reed officials feel violate academic freedom. The issue of "autonomy" has led to clashes at some schools such as Brandeis, a small liberal Massachusetts university where students took over the administration building for two weeks.

Harvard University with about 200 blacks out of an enrollment of 15,000, and Federal City College in Washington with 2,00 0 students, 95 per cent of them black, have both announced they will offer a degree in black studies.

But Harvard has no courses yet and Federal City College was unable to come up with a program that suited all factions at the school.

San Francisco State College had one of the better developed programs in black studies but, as one outgrowth of months of campus disturbances, Dr. Nathan Hare, who was hired to run it, refused to approve courses for this semester and the program was canceled until fall.

What brought the militant Hare to San Francisco State was more than 30 courses with titles ranging from "Black History" and "Black Politics" to the "Economics of the Black Community," and the "Development of Black Leadership." It was, Hare said, the first school he had heard of with such fields.

Hare had been on the faculty of Howard University in Washington, D.C. until 1967 when he was fired for supporting student agitators. Howard, a black school, has an "Amos and Andy" administration, he said.

"I would not be caught dead at any so-called Negro university," Hare said.

San Francisco State and Tufts University in Massachusetts are aiming at programs that will have some feedback into the community and develop black leadership. Their courses include "field work" in the black community.

Four Retiring From Lefors School Jobs

LEFORS — Four persons closing out with several years of service in public schools, at the end of 1968 and 1969 school term will be, Mr. and Mrs. G. N. Mounger.

Mounger has been high school principal at Lefors for the past 18 years and Mrs. Mounger has taught the first grade, for 18 years here. They have made plans to move to their new home at Lake Tanglewood by Amarillo, after their retirement. Mounger has 42 years teaching, and Mrs. Mounger has 36 years.

Mrs. Joe Clarke will be ending 34 years of service at Lefors, besides six years of administration before coming to Lefors. Mrs. Clarke plans to work more with her hobby, which is gardening and flowers.

Ernest Taylor has been with the maintenance department 17 years, 10 of them was as bus foreman and driving a school bus; he had a 'no accident record' in those years of driving. He has been in charge of the elementary department maintenance for the past seven years. He has no definite plans for his retirement, but will be doing some of the things he has hoped to do for a few years.

There are 20 seinors, who are making plans for graduation at the close of the school year of 1969. They are Marsha Close, Ethel Denton, Jewell Duckworth, Ann Garrett, Mignon Nickel, Denise Keith, Rhonda Wariner, Karen Stanton, Velda Gifford Hollis, Doug Cates, Jerry Dunn, Dale Finney, Jim Gilbreath, Royce Henderson, Jimmy Jernigan, Robert Maples, Gary Sims, Troy Stanton, David Wells, and Henry Wells.

Making final preparations for their senior trip, which will be in early part of May, the class will be going to Rock-A-Way Beach, in Missouri, for a few days. Their sponsors are Mr. Merray Stroud, high school math teacher, and Mr. H. L. McCarley, high school Industrial Arts teacher.

The "Liberator," first anti-slavery newspaper in America, was founded by William Lloyd Garrison in Boston in 1831.

● Quake

started circulating about six months ago, geologists have been besieged by anxious residents wanting to know when the next big one will hit.

"We try to calm them and explain nationally what the chances are," says L. C. Pakiser, chief of earthquake research for the U.S. Geological Survey in Menlo Park. "Unfortunately, there's no such thing as an absolute anti-earthquake guarantee."

"If you look at the record," says Dr. James N. Brune, "People have been predicting major disasters for years and they've consistently been wrong."

Adds popular San Francisco newspaper columnist Herb Caen:

"We just go on doing what we've always been doing: Drinking too much, eating too well, getting everything but enough sleep, looking for fireplugs to park alongside and so on. We're like the kid in Mad magazine: 'What, me worry'"

Scientists point out that the San Andreas Fault, a huge 600-mile long fracture in the earth's crust has been slipping for more than 100 million years and has probably pushed the state as much as 350 miles out of shape. Current estimates are that Los Angeles and San Francisco are moving closer together at a rate of up to two inches a year.

Most geologists agree that a major quake is inevitable sooner or later. Actually, hundreds of minor tremors are recorded daily.

The San Francisco quake of '06 originated along the San Andreas Fault, one of several in the state. It registered a magnitude of 8.3, left 452 persons dead in the rubble and leveled 460 city blocks.

Today, thousands of houses are built directly over major faults.

Still, the average San Franciscan is acquainted with the danger and wouldn't live anywhere else.

Said Lawrence W. Harris in his famous poem recalling the '06 disaster:

". . . and if they'd all give me my pick of their buildings proud and slick,

"In the damndest, finest ruins, I would rather be a brick."

will take appropriate measures to prevent similar incidents in the future. I have nothing more to say at this time."

As Knapp prepared to speak, his aides set up charts showing the location of the four-engine American aircraft when two North Korean MIGs shot it down. Debris found in the Sea of Japan put the crash site about 90 miles off the Communist nation's shore.

Knapp's was the first official U.S. rely to North Korea, which in a communique announcing the downing of the place on Tuesday had said the aircraft violated its air space.

Simultaneously, the North Korean News Agency was broadcasting an editorial from the nation's Communist party newspaper accusing the United States of "provoking another war of aggression in Korea." The Rodong Shinmoon editorial said North Korea acted in "self defense" in attacking the American plane.

(Communists') spring offensive has run its course or is at a substantial lull."

A message prosing tax reform will be submitted to Congress Monday or Tuesday. He would not discuss it further.

He replied "no" when asked whether the administration intended to keep the 10 per cent income surtax in effect once the war in Vietnam is over.

On the subject of protective escorts for future U.S. reconnaissance flights, Nixon said the United States so far has not consulted with Japan.

He said that if the United States felt such consultations would be necessary that they would be held. But he declined to disclose what kind of protective escorts the future American reconnaissance missions would have.

The United States has large air units based in Japan, as well as in South Korea.

The President said that Soviet nuclear strength, in both missiles and submarines, had increased 60 per cent since the original decision was made in 1968 to deploy a U.S. antiballistic missile (ABM) system.

He reaffirmed his intention to fight for a limited defense missile system to protect the U.S. retaliatory capability.

Asked whether he felt Republican senators who opposed the ABM should, out of party loyalty, support him, he replied, "I certainly do not."

"I want to make it crystal clear my decision on the ABM wasn't based on Republican vs. Democrat. It was based on what is best for the country."

On the subject of the EC121, Nixon said North Korea had been displaying increased belligerance. He noted that the number of incidents involving North Korean infiltration into South Korea has increased.

Nixon's press secretary, Ronald Ziegler, laid the groundwork for Nixon's first remarks.

By RAYMOND LAHR

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Supreme Court has given the state legislatures another dose of confusion with its latest decision on the one-man, one-vote requirement for charting congressional districts.

After six years of turmoil over population equality of legislative and congressional districts, political party officials thought they had entered a period of quiet to last at least until after the 1970 census. Now they are, not sure.

In one of two congressional apportionment decisions April 7, the Supreme Court ruled that Missouri congressional districts failed to meet adequate standards of equality. The largest district, on the basis of 1960 census figures, was only 3.1 per cent larger than the average population for all districts. The smallest was 2.8 per cent below

Mere shifts in population since 1960 could account for greater discrepancies.

The court's decision said districts must be as closely equal in population as is practical.

Legislative Wrestling

Even before the court applied its one-man, one vote dictrine, first to the state legislatures in 1962, the legislatures were wrestling more than usual with congressional redistricting because of population shifts in the 1950's.

Twenty states redistricted as a result of the 1960 census for the 1962 elections. The court's 1964 decision applying the same principle to congressional districts set off another wave of reapportionment; some states have redistricted two or three times and federal courts did the job when the legislatures could not agree on a plan.

Every redistricting move scares incumbent members of the House because changes in the boundaries can endanger their chances for re-election.

Party officials are uncertain whether more lawsuits will compel further reapportionment before the 1970 elections. The cases last week affected Missouri and New York.

Supervital Elections

Even before the most recent decisions, the legislative elections of 1970 were regarded as "supervital," the term used by one Republican agent, because party control of the legislatures will determine the way congressional districts are drawn in 1972.

Each party now controls both houses in 20 legislatures. Control is divided in eight, and two states do not elect legislators formally identified with the national political parties.

From 1872 to 1929, a federal law required congressional districts to be equal in population as closely as practical. The law never was enforced.

In 1964, the Supreme Court decided that the 14th Amendment compelled that equality. But it has said nothing about the gerrymander—the mapping of districts equal in population to favor the party controlling the legislature.

The House passed a bill in 1967 to require compact and contiguous districts in each state with population deviations among districts no more than 15 per cent above or below the average for each state. The bill got lost in the Senate.

UUA Church Has Many Avowed Atheists

Your neighbor's Faith: Unitarians and Universalists (16th in a series)

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Religion Writer

The Unitarian Universalist Association, formed in 1961 by the merger of two older denominations, has the distinction of being the only church in America which includes in its membership a substantial percentage of avowed atheists.

There are, of course, practical atheists—people who live as if God did not exist—in virtually all churches. But only in the Unitarian Universalist fellowship is one likely to hear atheism frankly and freely professed, by clergy as well as laymen.

You can imagine the shock a Lutheran congregation would sustain if its pastor announced from the pulpit one Sunday that he had decided to dispense with prayer because he no longer believed in a personal God. But there was hardly a ripple when the Rev. Duncan Howlett, pastor of the largest Unitarian Universalist church in Washington, D.C., made that announcement to his congregation not long ago.

No Official Creed

Since the association has no official creed and no creedal test for membership, there are no statistics on how many of its clergy and lay members share Dr. Howlett's theological posture. One estimate, which is probably as good as any available, is that about two-thirds of the 167,000 members are atheists—that is, they hold some concept of a personal God.

Since the early 19th century, when the two movements were separately launched in New England, Unitarians and Universalists have rejected the belief that Jesus is the divine son of God. But they costinued until comparatively recently to regard Jesus as the supreme human teacher of God's will.

Since their merger in 1961, however, they have abandoned the Christian label and no longer claim for Jesus any particular preeminence over other great religious teachers such as Moses, Buddha and Confucius. The present constitution of the association states that its aim is:

Association Aim

"To cherish and spread the universal truths taught by the great prophets and teachers of humanity in every age and tradition, immemorially summarized in the Judeo-Christian heritage as love to God and love to man."

The Unitarian movement flowered in New England after 1819 under the leadership of William Ellery Channing and Ralph Waldo Emerson. It began as a liberal wing of Congregationalism, but soon became a separate denomination.

For a time it threatened to engulf the long-established Congregational churches. Within a few years, 125 of New England's leading Congregational churches, including 20 dating back to the days of the Pilgrims, turned Unitarian. Thomas Jefferson, who was greatly attracted to Unitarian ideas, predicted that within a generation every American would be a Unitarian.

This forecast proved to be quite wide of the mark. The movement never grew larger than 200,000 members, but it enjoyed a prestige far exceeding its size because among its members were such notable leaders of early America as John Adams, John Quincy Adams, Daniel Webster, John Marshall, Oliver Wendell Holmes, Henry David Thoreau, and John Greenleaf Whittier.

Conservative Theology

The theology of these early American Unitarians was rather conservative compared to the views which prevail in the association today. Dr. Channing habitually spoke of Jesus as "Our Savior," and the first constitution of the Unitarian General Conference said that "These churches accept the religion of Jesus."

To be sure, the salvation which Dr. Channing ascribed to Jesus was not a matter of being saved from eternal punishment—in which he did not believe—but of being liberated by Christ's teaching and example from the enslaving power of sin in His life.

But there was room in early Unitarianism for the concept of heaven (as a "state" rather than a place) and for the belief that the Bible, while not infallible, was a trustworthy vehicle of God's self-revelation.

From the start, however, the Unitarian movement placed its primary emphasis on "practical religion" exhibited in compassionate service of mankind, rather than on defining dogmas and enforcing orthodoxies. And that emphasis is still the predominant characteristic of the merged association.

The first Universalist Church in America was organized at Gloucester, Mass., in 1779. Its distinctive gospel was the universal salvation of all men, a belief grounded in the conviction that eternal punishment in hell was inconsistent with God's mercy.

Theology Evolved

Under the leadership of Hosea Ballou, Universalist churches evolved a theology which emphasized faith in God's "all-conquering love" and acknowledged Jesus as the supreme human revealer of God's will and purposes of mankind. From its very inception, however, Universalism sought truth and inspiration from other world religions as well as from the Christian heritage—another emphasis that remains central to the merged association.

For a small denomination, which never had more than 75,000 members, the Universalist churches were remarkably productive in the field of higher education. Among the famous American colleges and universities founded by Universalists are Tufts, St. Lawrence, Goddard, California Institute of Technology, and Lombard (now part of the University of Chicago).

Although they take a laissez-faire attitude toward theological doctrine, Unitarians and Universalists are passionate believers in social justice. No religious group in America has worked longer, harder or more courageously to eliminate war, poverty and racial discrimination. In any liberal organization working for social progress, you are likely to find a dedicated cadre of Unitarians and Universalists.

There are about 1,050 Unitarian Universalist congregations in the nation at present. Although they can be found in all areas, their heaviest concentration is on the East Coast, from New England to Northern Virginia. National headquarters are in Boston.

Christian Church Annual Assembly Set Next Week

FORT WORTH — With just days to go, members of the Christian Church in Texas are getting ready to travel to Lubbock for the 82nd Annual Assembly of the Texas Association of Christian Churches. The dates are April 23-26.

Sessions will be held in the Lubbock Auditorium and Coliseum and at First Christian Church in Lubbock.

In addition to major speeches and sermons, a concert and drama, dialogues, table top confrontations and special dinners and luncheons, there is business to be transacted by official delegates to the assembly.

Resolutions calling for changes in TACC articles of incorporation, constitution and by-laws will be submitted for vote.

It is proposed that the name of the state organization, now designated a region, be changed to Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) in Texas.

Other proposals are: change of top executive officer to executive minister rather than executive director; change from annual to biennial assemblies after 1970 with the first in 1972; terms of office for all elected officers be changed from one to two years; terms of office of members-at-large and district-elected members of the board of directors, commissions and committees be changed from three to four years.

"The Reconstruction" will be the sermon topic for Rev. Martin Hager, First Presbyterian Church pastor, this Sunday at both the 8:30 and 11 a.m. worship services. Genesis 21:1-13 and Ephesians 1:1-14 will be the textual basis for Rev. Hager's sermon. Seminary Intern Daniel Snider will serve as the Pulpit Assistant, this Sunday, at both services.

At the 11 a.m. worship service, the Chancel Choir, under the direction of Mrs. Wm. K. Mackey, Choir Director, will present the Anthem, "O Lord of Life, to Thee We Life" arr. by Williams. Mrs. Fidelis Yoder, Church Organist, will present "Prayer" by Hiller-Asper as the Offertory.

The Junior High Fellowship will meet at the Church at 1:45 p.m. to travel by bus to Palo Duro Canyon for an outing.

The Senior High Fellowship will meet at the home of D.W. Bond, 2228 Aspen, for supper and fellowship at 6 p.m.

Lefors Baptist Revival to Start Sunday

First Baptist Church of Lefors, participating in the Crusade of the Americas, announces a revival service starting Sunday and continuing one week. The Rev. Walter Davis, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church for the sixth year, will be evangelist.

Davis is holder of the bachelor of divinity degree from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary and has served several churches in Oklahoma. He formerly was pastor at Groom for five years.

Ralph Edwards, music director for the series, has a master's degree from Southwestern and has served the Calvary Baptist Church, Lubbock, six years. He is the father of two teenaged daughters.

Attendence goal for Sunday School April 27, final day of the series, has been set at 200.

VETERAN

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The Rev. Paul C. Reinhart, president of St. Louis University, has been in office longer than any other Catholic university president.

Father Reinhart, who has been president since 1949, has been named to national educational commissions by every U.S. president since Harry S. Truman.

Gerry Craft

Gerry Craft To Give First Baptist Sermon

The First Baptist Church will have as their guest speaker for the eleven o'clock Morning Worship, Gerry Craft who is president of the Gerry Craft Youth Association International.

Roy Kornegay, minister of education, will direct the church choir in singing the anthem, "My Eternal King" by Marshall, and Miss Eloise Lane, organist, will play "Andante Pastorale" by Alexis for the organ offertory.

The Spurrlows, and group of twenty six college musicians, will present a sacred concert at the seven o'clock evening worship. The group includes an orchestra, men's glee club, a Cappella chorus with featured soloists.

Open House Set Sunday At City Church

The public is invited to attend dedication services Sunday at the Oklahoma Church of Christ, 504 Oklahoma, according to Freddie Graves, spokesman. The church has recently been renovated and redecorated.

Chief speaker will be Guy Caskey of Mary Ellen at Harvester Church of Christ. He will deliver the dedication sermon. Wayne Lemons is minister of the Oklahoma Street church.

The day's schedule begins with open house from 2 to 3 p.m. The service resumes at 3 p.m. with the sermon to follow.

ASSEMBLIES COUNCIL MAY DRAW 14,000

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., (UPI) — Peak attendance at the 33rd General Council of Assemblies of God may reach 14,000 according to the Rev. Warren McPherson, coordinator for the Council.

The Council is scheduled to meet in Memorial Auditorium, Dallas, Tex., Aug. 21-26. The Assemblies of God is a Pentecostal church group of more than 8,500 churches in United States. It has 969 missionaries in 82 foreign countries.

Rev. Doke Sets Sunday Church Topic

The Rev. J. W. Doke will deliver the Morning Message for the Worship Service this Sunday Morning.

He will be joined at the Lecturn by the Rev. Carlton S. Downing. The Choir under the direction of Mrs. John Gill and accompanied by Mrs. Dan King will present the Anthem. Snack Supper will begin at 5:30 p.m. with the Youth Groups meeting at 6 p.m.

The regular Christian Life Curriculum Sessions will be held beginning at 7 p.m.

The Elders of the Church, W. R. Harden, chairman, will meet Wednesday, April 23, 1969, at 7:30 p.m.

Several members of the Church will be traveling to Lubbock, the week Apr. 23-26, to attend the Texas Association Christian Church Assembly which will include all Christian Churches (Disciples of Christ) in the State of Texas.

Those attending from this Church are: Rev. J. W. Doke, Rev. and Mrs. Carlton S. Downing, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Harden, Mr. and Mrs. John King, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stowell, Mrs. Charles Holloway.

Sunday Sermon Set by Christ Scientist Church

"What doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?"

This verse from Micah sets the theme of the Bible-Lesson on "Doctrine of Atonement" which will be heard Sunday in all Christian Science churches.

Services are at 11 a.m. at First Church of Christ, Scientist 901 N. Frost.

A correlative passage from the denominational textbook comments: "Every pang of repentance and suffering, every effort for reform, every good thought and deed, will help us to understand Jesus' atonement for sin and aid its efficacy; but if the sinner continues to pray and repent, sin and be sorry, he has little part in the atonement, — in the at-one-ment with God, — for he lacks the practical repentance, which reforms the heart and enables man to do the will of wisdom" (Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy).

Nearly 9,000 offshore oil wells have been sunk in the world's continental shelves, says the National Geographic.

Jubilee Quartet Here Sunday

"Whitey" Gleason and the Jubilee Quartet, scheduled to be in Pampa for a concert at the Robert E. Lee Junior High School Auditorium Sunday afternoon, will be giving a special service at the Pampa Church of the Nazarene for the Sunday Morning Worship Hour as reported by the local pastor, the Rev. Charles M. Spicer.

"Whitey" Gleason is a native of Kingman, Kansas, and a graduate of Bethany Nazarene College. He has pastored in the Church of the Nazarene and served as an evangelistic preacher and singer. He is a music teacher and plays a number of instruments. In recent years he was pianist for the Blackwood Brothers Quartet, and is now the pianist for the Jubilee Quartet with headquarters in Memphis, Tenn.

The public is invited to enjoy the quartet in gospel singing and music at 10:45 a.m. Sunday at the Church of the Nazarene, 500 N. West St.

Church Mergers Appear Long Way Off

World of Religion
By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

Merger of major Protestant denominations, on a national level, is years away at best. But local churches need not wait. They can begin now to practice Christian unity at the grass roots.

That, in essence, is the position taken by leaders of nine Protestant bodies who are conducting snails-pace merger negotiations in a forum called the Consultation on Church Union (COCU).

At its recent meeting in Atlanta, Ga., COCU adopted a set of guidelines for interchurch action at the local level.

The guidelines suggest ways in which churches of different denominations, serving the same community, may pool their resources or even unite without waiting for their parent bodies to work out all of the details of a national merger.

Joint Programs

One suggestion, which should be fairly easy to put into effect, is for two or more neighboring churches to carry out joint programs of study or service. For example, a Methodist church, an Episcopal church and a Presbyterian church could jointly sponsor an inner city mission which no one of them could handle alone.

Another possibility is for two or more churches of different denominations to share a professional staff member—such as a director of religious education—who would serve the needs of both congregations. Or, going one step further, they could jointly support a clergyman engaged in a special kind of ministry—for example, to unchurched young people in the community, or to residents of homes for the aged.

A third suggestion from COCU calls for joint use of building facilities "to eliminate costly duplication." When two churches stand practically cheek by jowl, it seems wasteful for both of them to build specialized facilities, such as parish halls or kitchens, which are used for only an hour or so each week.

Agreeable Schedules

In fact, with a will to do so, several churches of different denominations could work out mutually agreeable schedules for sharing an entire plant, including the main auditorium or sanctuary in which Sunday worship services are held. The feasibility of this arrangement has already been demonstrated in the new "Model City" of Columbia, Md., and in the ecumenical inner city church jointly sponsored by several denominations in St. Louis, Mo.

Congregations prepared to go farther toward immediate unity are advised by COCU to consider two alternatives:

They could unite their ministries—which means that they would start worshipping together under the same pastor—while maintaining separate membership rolls so that each person in the combined congregation formally would retain his affiliation with his original parent denomination.

Another Generation

The common school of thought is, let one generation prepare the world for the next generation. At the same time the older generation is being blamed by the younger generation for the faults and troubles that are in the world today.

The Biblical facts warrant the statement that every generation will be faced with its problems and tasks lest it fall into mischief and unbelief.

In Judges 2:1-10 there is the sad story of a people coming into a land and possessing the land by battle and hardship. As long as there are leaders, who have been part of that battle and hardship, Israel is going in the prescribed direction of God. The day comes when that generation passes on and there arises another generation. This generation has all of its battles already fought, the land already conquered, the hardships long passed. This generation does not know God and begins to follow after Baalim, the heathen way of life. Then comes the terrible affliction on them by their enemies. Does this not speak to us today in loud clear tones? There must be a battle to be a victory. Without something being conquered there are no conquerors.

The younger generation does not need a world or community free of problems. They need the faith and courage to face the problems and battles that will assail them. That faith and courage can only come by knowing Jesus Christ, the Prince of Peace, personally.

The Pampa Daily News

A Watchful Newspaper

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

Our Capsule Policy

The News believes each and every person would get more satisfaction in the long run if he were permitted to spend what he earns on a volunteer basis rather than having part of it distributed involuntarily.

'Units' In Draft Machine

What is the philosophical attitude of people who support the concept of a government's so-called "right" to draft, kidnap, if you will, individuals into an organization he does not choose to be associated with? As an example of that type of mentality here's a quotation from a news release by the Department of the Army describing a typical induction center:

"An Armed Forces Station (AFEES), popularly known as an Induction Center, touches the life of almost every American male of draft or enlistment age. And to him it is many things. It's a clinic. It's a classroom. It's an interrogation center. It's a papermill. It's a well-oiled machine that takes on (500) units a day in (Los Angeles) alone, passes them along a precision assembly line and turns them out at the other end examined, tested, processed, analyzed and committed. But that isn't the whole story because the units are people."

It is particularly interesting to note the way in which individual human beings are described. Although the news release mentions that the units are people that have "fears and feelings," that fact doesn't seem to impress the people who run the induction centers. The whole induction process sounds more like what is being processed are crates of oranges, not individual human beings.

The news release continues: "during the course of the day, Tommy (a typical inductee) will be probed, pounded, palpated, looked at, listened to and X-rayed. He will have spent two hours or so in a classroom taking tests that will reveal, not so much his IQ as his trainability. It will have been a full day and Tommy will return home wrung out, but it's only the beginning."

So, Tommy will be tested for his trainability. The thing so disturbing in this whole process is that Tommy can't choose what he wants, wishes, or desires. He is forced into involuntary servitude to the state and then ordered to learn whatever the Army wants him to. Compulsion is the order of the day! Who cares what the "unit" thinks! His life is theirs to do with as the Army sees fit. Naturally, it is all for the public interest!

The news release goes on to explain many other revolting procedures about the induction center and then, as if to apologize, ends with the sentence: "Like it or not, it's that kind of a world."

The implication of that statement is far-reaching. I'm sure the Army would like us to accept the principle and attitude that "things are rough, but who am I to do anything about it?" It would make things so easy for them.

It is the power of ideas that changes evil concepts and it is the people who continue to challenge the draft on moral grounds that are going to cause its abolition.

Each individual is the sole owner of his own life and must to be free to act, choose and function in any way he sees fit, as long as he does not infringe on the rights of others. To the extent that people look to political action, which means coercion to solve their problems is the extent that the achievement of individual rights, and therefore freedom, will be prolonged.

Back To Bible In Schools

In 1966, three years after the U.S. Supreme Court outlawed Bible reading and other relivious proceedings in the public schools, nearly 13 per cent of the nation's schools (and 50 per cent of those in the South were continuing the practice, according to one investigator.

In the three years since 1966, the percentage has, if anything, increased. Many schools never abandoned their traditional practices, but lately others have resumed them in direct defiance of the court's ruling.

One such is the public school in Clairton, Pa., south of Pittsburgh, where the school board's decision to reinstitute daily prayer and Bible reading has sparked similar revolts in communities across the state.

The Supreme Court banned prescribed devotional services, whether or not attendance was compulsory for pupils. In Clairton, they are both prescribed and compulsory.

"In a time of turmoil in the country, our parents think the loss of Bible reading in school has contributed to the deterioration of the United States," explains Clairton school superintendent Dr. Robert LaFrankie whose advice against the action was ignored by the school board and PTA.

"This is not only an act of defiance," says LaFrankie, "it is an attempt to survive."

Put in those term, the back-to-the-Bible movement in Pennsylvania is understandable, although outside the East and South, Bible reading was never a widespread practice in schools.

What may not be so understandable, says Newspaper Enterprise Assn.'s Don Oakley, is why so few schools, in any state have taken up the challenge offered by the court's ruling:

They may not teach religion but they may teach about religion; they may not force children to listen to the Bible being read, but they may show them how the Bible—and the Koran and the Torah and so on—came to be; they may not inculcate generalized moral precepts through rote recitation, but they may inquire how these precepts arose in the courts of human history and were expressed in the different religions and how they have influenced the development of civilization.

Parents delude themselves, and in the end shirk their own responsibilities, if they think that hearing the Bible read for a few minutes in school five days a week will ever instill morality in a child who does not receive supplementary instruction.

Union No Worker Protection

Frequently defenders of compulsory unionism object to our statements that union officials do not really defend the rights of individual union members, but seem more devoted to protecting the union officials than helping the members.

Last week the U.S. Supreme Court upheld the authority of a union to fine members for exceeding a union-imposed quota on production. Several workers did exceed the output quota because they wanted to work harder and receive more money and because the employer wanted the additional production. So they were fined by the union.

Justice White, who wrote the majority decision, said that if ambitious workers are frustrated by union ceilings on production, they are "free to leave the union." But he did not say also that when they exercise that "freedom" to leave the union, they also must quit their jobs. Congress has authorized the unions to have union-shop contracts, which require an employe to pay dues to the union even though he opposes it or be forced out of his employment.

One of the most dictatorial unions in the country is the Typographical Union which will not make any but a closed-shop contract where all workers must join and be subject to union boss restrictions.

This case shows again that unions do not protect the workers, and is another strong point which no doubt will be used by the National Right to Work Committee in its campaign for a national right to work law and end compulsory union membership.

WASHINGTON:

N. Korea Tries To Force U.S. Flight of Plane

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Some men who should know say North Korea's Kim Il Sung has a compulsion.

He must keep striking at American ships, troops and planes until the United States reacts.

Then he must get Washington to keep on reacting.

His capture of the Pueblo failed. He had to try again.

These are projections of the private feelings of former upper-echelon North Korean officials this reporter talked to at length on a recent trip to Korea.

These men say Kim has prepared himself well for the kind of reaction he expects from the United States — air or coastal bombing.

In the years since the Cuban missile crisis, he has tunneled hundreds of miles of the North Korean coast, burrowed key facilities underground in scores of factories, built hidden submarine pens by carving waterways into coastal mountain slopes, constructed thousands of shelters, mobilized all available men and women into a vast parttime, self-defense militia.

With his defenses now at the ready, these former associates of the North Korean dictator believe Kim has these basic aims in baiting the United States:

—He wants to blackmail the Russians, so Moscow will give him more-sophisticated weapons.

—He wants to establish himself in the limelight as an influence in the international Communist party.

—He wants to co-operate with North Vietnam's Ho Chi Minh by creating incidents that will intensify war weariness in the United States.

—He wants to stiffen his own tired people, using the American "threat" to egg them on, waving one "incident" after another to divert his people from thinking about South Korea's prosperity and North Korea's misery.

—South Korea is Kim Il Sung's "West Berlin." In his own way, Kim is attempting to emulate the East German-Russian harassment of the former German capital. Kim wants to weaken the confidence and the stability of the south.

The results of the Cuban missile crisis, the Israeli-Arab conflict and Ho Chi Minh's war with the United States have not been lost on the North Korean chief.

Cuba convinced Kim Moscow wouldn't back him up with its armies in a showdown. Vietnam and the Middle East war confirmed this belief. But Russian arms are a differenct matter. Moscow resupplied Egypt's Nasser with superior weapons when the fight with Israel left him naked. The more Ho heated up the war with the United States, the more sophisticated the weapons Moscow supplied. Cuba came out of the showdown with Washington with hundreds of millions of dollars in aid and an array of useful arms.

Kim noted, too, that the more Ho defies the United States, the more influence Ho carries in the Communist world. Moscow and Peking are divided but both woo Ho. Ho's name is shouted by demonstrators in the United States, Latin America, Europe, Africa and Southeast Asia.

The thought of being another Ho is heady wine for Kim, a man whose whole life has been devoted to self-publicity. Even his name is false. As a young man, he stole it from a dead "hero" in the underground to give himself a reflected glory.

"THE THINGS WE FORGET WITH"

Someone asked a little boy if he knew what his memory was. He said, "My memory is the thing I forget with." What an accurate definition that is of the memory of some of us in regard to the blessings and benefits of Almighty God. Benisons are poured out upon us. We quickly forget. One finds abundant evidence of the tendencies of man to forget God's goodness as he reads the history of Israel in the old Testament. God brought Israel out of Egypt.

He overthrew the power of Pharaoh, the mighty monarch, ruler of a great nation; sent plagues upon the land in order to set them free. Pharaoh and his army were destroyed in the Red Sea. Surely, these happenings were evidence enough that the God Who brought them out of Egypt was a God Who was abundantly able to protect His own chosen people and give them the land which He had appointed for them; but when they sent spies into the land, they came back with stories of walled cities, "fenced up to heaven," of giants in the land, powerful, mighty men. All the spies except Caleb and Joshua advised Israel not to attempt to capture the land. They forgot the power of God, so impressed were they with the physique of the giants. The people accepted their advice, and the fear which the spies felt became the fear of the whole nation. For 40 years Isreal wandered in the wilderness until the entire generation died off because they forgot the mercy and power of God manifested in their delivery from Egypt.

No wonder then in the book of Deuteronomy the Lord urged Israel to "well remember what the Lord thy God did unto Pharaoh, and unto all Egypt" (Deuteronomy 7:18). The very laws which God instituted, the very ceremonies which He established for the government of His people and for their worship of Him, were to remind them of His power and His grace and His love. God said to them, "When thy son asketh thee in time to come, saying, What mean the testimonies, and the statutes, and the judgments, which the Lord our God hath commanded you? Then thou shalt say into thy son, We were Pharoah's bondmen in Egypt; and the Lord brought us out of Egypt with a mighty hand" (Deuteronomy 6:20, 21).

God is faithful and never forgets His own. How His heart must be grieved at our forgetting Him. Over and over again He has proved that His grace is sufficient to meet all our needs, yet new trials bring new fears unassuaged by the memory of past blessing. How much happier we would be, how strong to meet the responsibilities of each day, if we would take as our motto and put into practice those words in the fourth verse of the first chapter of the Song of Solomon, "We will remember thy love."

The Doctor Says:

By DR. WAYNE BRANDSTADT

The Farm Is No Longer World's Quietest Place

The farm used to be one of the quietest places in the world except at thrashing time. Now the noise from tractors and other modern equipment is so great as to constitute a real threat to hearing.

E. W. Simpson Jr. of the University of Nebraska placed a specially designed microphone near the ear of a tractor operator. A total of 55 tractors were used in the study and the quietest one gave off 97 decibels while the loudest gave off 114. Sound levels in excess of 85 decibels over a prolonged period are sufficient to cause a permanent loss of hearing. Other types of farm equipment, including power saw, combine, corn picker, grain elevator and hammer mill, gave off 90 to 113.5 decibels.

Loud noise, long recognized as an environmental problem, is estimated to be doubling every 10 years. Not only has it invaded the farm, the formerly tranquil lake resorts are fast becoming filled with the sound of outboard motors and transistor radios. Avenues of escape are vanishing like the buffalo and the buffalo nickel. Only aroused public opinion can force the application of adequate control measures.

Q—In a recent answer about psoriasis, you advised against excessive bathing. What do you consider excessive? How often should a person bathe?

A—People's bathing requirements vary, depending on how much natural oil is present in their skin and on the nature of their work. Although a daily bath with soap and water is considered a necessity by many persons, this amount of bathing removes the protective oils from the skin and aggravates such diseases as psoriasis, eczema and ichthyosis. Persons with these diseases may need to bathe no more than every six or seven days. For the average person, under normal conditions, two baths a week in winter and three a week in summer is usually sufficient.

Q—I crave ice all the time. I even take a jar of ice cubes to work with me. Is this harmful?

A—Sucking ice is less likely to chill your stomach than gulping ice cold drinks and should not be harmful. Do not follow the ice too closely with a hot drink or you may crack the enamel of your teeth.

The Almanac

By United Press International

Today is Friday, April 18, the 108th day of 1969 with 257 to follow.

The moon is between its new phase and first quarter.

The morning stars are Venus, Saturn, Mars and Jupiter.

The evening star is Mercury.

On this day in history:

In 1775 American patriot, Paul Revere, began his famed ride through the Massachusetts countryside, calling . . . "The British are coming."

In 1906 the San Francisco earthquake began. When it ended, 3 days later, 500 persons were dead.

In 1942 Lt. Col. James Doolite and a squadron of 16 B25's bombed Japan for the first time.

In 1964 17 servicemen were killed when two troop planes collided over Ohio.

A though for the day: John Selden said, "They that govern the most make the least noise."

Well, there is at least one feller who decided to tell it like it is. He's named Charlie and he runs a gas station down in South Carolina.

Charlie got tired of having some customers who were deadbeats so he decided to operate his own collection agency. Those who did not pay their bills got their names painted in three inch black letters on a slab of plywood in front of the station. The head read, "Bad Credit."

Charlie says he only posts those he figures won't pay anyway. But the sign has aroused a lot of interest and besides has brought in some new business.

"A couple of people have sent me word — no money — just word that they do not like having their names up there," Charlie says.

"I just tell them to pay up and I'll take their name off. If they don't pay after complaining I just get my brush and make that name a little blacker."

So far, 10 names have gone up and four of those on the list have paid. Now that would be a good idea for the hallowed halls of the legislators. The politicians who didn't live up to their wild promises would get their names on a "Bad Credit" board.

The only trouble is, there would be so many names crowded on the board you would need a magnifying glass the size of Palomar to read them.

Maxomum homing distance of a homing pigeon is in the neighborhood of 1,200 miles.

Question Box

QUESTION: "My question pertains to those who subscribe to the belief that schooling should be paid for by those who go to school or their parents and receive no aid from the government. This approach leads one to believe that all schools would then be private.

"Private schools are and always have been extremely expensive. Where would the education level of Americans be if they had been forced to pay for all the education received from their personal pockets? Surely we contribute to the government in the form of taxes so the money does come from our pockets, but not in the quantity necessary for anything further than a sixth grade education."

R.W.P.

ANSWER: We believe Mr. Page is mistaken when he says that private schools are and always have been extremely expensive. Before the states got into the school business, schools were paid for by the people who wanted them, and the cost was not prohibitive. That schools were too expensive for all people is a myth that the tax-supported schools have fostered to try to justify their existence.

The system of tax-supported, compulsory schools was started in this country when the general mode of transportation was the horse, and only people of some means could afford a horse, and a carriage was reserved for those who had wealth. In the hands of private, free enterprise, nearly everyone now can own an automobile, a quite different and vastly superior form of transportation to the horse.

Had schools been left in the hands of private, free enterprise, there no doubt would have been a corresponding development in the quantity, quality and variety of schooling available to all people.

The trouble with government tax-supported schools is that they do not set a good example, and as Albert Schweitzer said, most people learn not by reason, but by example. So people have followed the example of living by a double standard that is set by the government schools and that is the cause of all the troubles we are in.

We can think of no person who would agree that any man has a right to force his neighbor to pay for the kind of schooling the man thinks the neighbor's children should have. Yet nearly everyone will agree to turn the training or instruction or indoctrination or whatever you want to call it of all children over to the politicians and let them select the text books and the teachers and force all children to have that kind of schooling and force all people to pay for it. If the individu man has no right to do tha how can the politicians have th right to do it?

Tax-supported schools com from the belief that people ca get something for nothin Preto, the great Italia philosopher, said that the whol world is suffering fro emotional sympathy.

Of course we'd like to se everybody educated that wa capable of getting an educatio because education, real educa tion, benefits everybody. Just a adding to the wealth of th world benefits everybody. A Bastiat says, "the gain of on is the gain of all. And the los of one is the loss of all."

But what the governmen schools supply is not a rea education. It's training, and t a degree is valuable. For jus training it is inefficient an terribly expensive. But th worst harm is to lead people to believe they are educate just because they have gone through so many years o school, when they are only trained and indoctrinated.

We have repeatedly offere any superintendent of schools i any county in which we publish a newspaper $500 if he would answer a few questions t determine whether tax-supported schools violate the stealing commandment or not. And we offer to give anybody $500 who is able to get the superintendent in counties we publish a paper to do so. So far, no superintendent of schools has ever agreed to answer questions. We wouldn't let him make a long speech—we would not give him a penny for speeches — but he must answer each question without evasion or contradiction within a set time limit.

So if no superintendent of schools believes in tax-supported schools enough to accept this chance to make $500 and enlighten us and the public, that the tax-supported schools are what they claim they are, there must be a reason. The reason is that they would be embarrassed. We were told by one man that he wouldn't do it for $500 but he would do it for a million.

A newspaper that does not take a stand against tax-supported schools—which help miseducate our youth and which indoctrinate and teach socialism by example — can't be helpful to mankind.

Every dictator gets control of the minds of the youth of the land and that is what our trouble is. For over four generations we have misinformed and indoctrinated the children rather than to get them to use their own minds and develop their own mental and spiritual faculties to understand God's or nature's laws and learn to live by them.

PAUL HARVEY NEWS

Vietnam, Tragic Mistake

By PAUL HARVEY

Did you hear about the college freshman on a soapbox, agitating: "Join me and clean up the world"?

His father, paying an unexpected visit to the campus, strode forward, applauding, then grabbed his son by the arm and said, "Let's get started by cleaning up your room!"

If you're over 40, that's funny. If you are under 25, it's not very.

And the problem is that too many of us adults have been trying to "clean up the world" while neglecting our own home front.

I believe that is going to change.

Former State Secretary Dean Rusk says he sees "on the horizon the first signs of a return to isolationism." So do I.

In Congress there is increasingly outspoken opposition to the Vietnamese war. Rep. Paul Findley (R-Ill.) calls for "immediate withdrawal of U.S. troops."

He says he is aware that some would consider withdrawal a "camouflaged surrender unworthy of our nation." On the contrary, says Congressman Findley, "it is an unworthy war and additional casualties will not erase our mistake."

Sen. Mark Hatfield (R-Ore.) respectfully withheld criticism during the first months of the Nixon Administration. Now he urges our President "not to do anything which would prolong or intensify this tragic, senseless and costly war."

Never in American history has the foreign policy of our "government of the people" been so generally opposed by "the people."

Even within our armed forces, opposition borders on mutiny.

Nine soldiers at Fort Jackson, S.C., court-martialed for participating in an antiwar protest meeting, revealed that they were part of a national organization of "GIs united against the war in Vietnam."

At Fort Belvoir, Va., several enlisted men are publishing and distributing an antiwar newspaper. The soldier-editors report increasing acceptance of their paper among GIs on the base.

This reaction is apparent beyond our own borders.

In Russia, a prominent intellectual, Ivan Yakhimovich, dared to speak out against Soviet occupation of Czechoslovakia. Russia, less lenient with dissenters than we, promptly arrested and jailed Yakhimovich for "slandering the Soviet Union."

So the resentment and restiveness of today's enlightened school-agers cannot all be blamed on Reds or Blacks — though they do use this grievance to increase agitation for their own objectives.

What we are witnessing worldwide is what Mr. Rusk called a "return to isolationism." I prefer to think of it as renaissance of enlightened self-interest.

We've been long enough trying to "clean up the world" without each of us first cleaning up his own room.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Will you please say a few kind words in your column for the thousands of respectable, mature men who wear beards?

I, myself, have a neatly trimmed beard, over which some of my friends have expressed much envy. They would like to grow one, but say their employers won't allow it. While my employer tolerates my beard, he hasn't forbidden me to wear one.

I am sick and tired of the snide remarks one hears from those who associate beards with hippies, yippies, beatniks, and subversive characters.

It takes time and effort and manliness to grow a beard, and not every male is endowed by nature with enough hair to develop a presentable looking one.

Perhaps if some prominent figure would grow a beard, he'd get the ball rolling. President Nixon would be a natural! He has a five o'clock shadow at noon, and he'd only be following the example set by another great Republican leader, Abraham Lincoln!

Come on, Abby, give us bearded ones a break.

KELLY

DEAR KELLY: You rattled the right cage! I happen to appreciate CLEAN, beautifully sculptured, well-kept beards. In fact, the men who have contributed most to my happiness were bearded. Moses, Freud, my grandfather, Uncle Sam, Santa Claus — and my husband!

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the man who got jealous because his elderly wife was kissed by her elderly cousin while preparing breakfast (both in their night clothes) prompts me to write about my problem.

We recently rented a furnished room to a divorced man in his mid-forties. I have learned that my wife, who is attractive, friendly and out-going, has invited this man to have coffee with her in the morning. Because of the early hour, she is in her housecoat and he is in his bathrobe.

The other night, before retiring, I heard him call to her, "Goodnight, Sweetheart."

My wife insists that this was only a harmless gesture of friendship, and I am jealous over nothing. Far as I know she has been loyal for 28 years. What do you think?

LONG ISLANDER

DEAR ISLANDER: I think if your wife were actually this man's "sweetheart," he'd be careful what he called her while you were around. But tell your wife to dress up when she gets up, or cut out the coffee-klatches with the roomer, as rumors do fly.

DEAR ABBY: My mother didn't write a "Dear John" letter to my boyfriend, but I wish she had. I am now "John's wife." I left a comfortable home and a mother and father who loved me to get married at 16.

I am 18 now, broke and unhappy. I live in a hole in the wall with no conveniences, no new clothes, and no car to drive.

I agree with that mother who wrote and asked John to wait until he could offer her daughter something better before proposing marriage.

If I could do it over again, I wouldn't have married so young. I would have waited until we both worked and saved a while. It's too late now because I'm pregnant.

Please, Dear Abby, tell girls who think they are in love to wait for a man who thinks enough of them to provide them with a decent future. Love does fly out the window when poverty comes in the door.

He said he loved me but I didn't even get a valentine.

SAD FROM SEATTLE

DEAR SAD: Your letter said it better than I. Thanks for the benefit of your experience. Perhaps other 16-year-olds will brush the star-dust out of their eyes and view the realities of life more clearly.

DEAR ABBY: Is a fifth cousin far enough away for marriage?

ELOISE

DEAR ELOISE: Genetically speaking, yes.

JEANE DIXON

SATURDAY, APRIL 19

YOUR BIRTHDAY Saturday; Expanding interest in people and how you relate to them tend to take up more of time this year. Romantic urges will come on stronger and deeper. Saturday's natives frequently are visionary, pursuing ideals beyond the norm of our times. Many of them have been reform leaders, and sudden changes of position characterize their lives.

ARIES (March 21-April 19); If you will look again at doors which were closed to you before, you find more than one of them open to you now. Use the opportunity while it lasts. Discover what you did wrong before and learn to do better.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20;) There is no point in squalling over upset plans, as yours are almost certain to be Saturday. Review in your mind what you have been doing lately and what the likely consequence must be.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20); Handle situations in your own fashion before they have a chance to develop too far. You can get plenty of help for any reasonable activity just by asking with tact and mutual self-respect.

CANCER (June 21-July 22); The day tends to drift into doldrums if you're seeking excitement. Get busy ferreting out hidden items in old jobs left uncompleted. Clear out unused or abandoned materials from your desk and work table. Make up a list of chores yet to do.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22); You and your work come under scrutiny by people of some importance. Put all your energy into presenting a good public image, and trust your loved ones to adjust peacefully to the shift in your attentions. Make amends as soon as you are out of the public eye.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22); Pursue your most original ideas calmly. Try some of them out without fanfare. Use occasional breaks in your experiments for brief meditations.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22); Communicate with distant people, technical experts, high authorities. If you are in litigation, file for appeal or review or postponements Saturday, according to the merits of your case. Personal hobbies provide a fluent, enjoyable evening.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21); Personal relations are somewhat obscured by emotional interchanges, discrepancies. Stick to the facts, gently, and wait for others to realize where they are. Delay reaction to any rash opinion.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21); Ratings, testings, classifications are promised. You are about to begin use of new skills to do things you have never done before. Get ready!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19); On ballance the day tends to turn out average, with something done for everybody besides yourself. Brood another day over an original idea, seeking a better way of expressing it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18); Health and your activities go along smoothly. Put your best skills forward just as if the day were critical; see the definitely improved results.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20); Saturday's events are likely to give you cause to change your ideas of what to do and how to go about it. Be willing to swing along with the prevailing tides of reality. This evening relax, digest the impact of the information.

Gardening Group Has Texas Park Study At Meeting

Pampa Garden Club members attended an April meeting recently with Mrs. Milo Carlson and Mrs. Raymond Darsey as hostesses.

During the business meeting, presided by Mrs. Lee Moore, president, Mrs. James McCune was named delegate to the April district convention in Lubbock, with Mrs. Melvin Stephens as alternate.

Mrs. Thelma Bray reported 15 rose bushes were planted and one tree was replaced in the Harvester and Duncan Streets park.

Mrs. Charles Barkley of Borger presented the program, a color film slide of the Alabates Quarry north of Amarillo. The park was proclaimed by President Johnson during his administration as the first Texas national monument. The slides showed rock formations, cacti in full bloom, and homes of dwellers of that age. Mrs. Barkley also displayed her collection of rock and crystal formations.

"The Alibates dolemites were named from a cowboy bearing that name," Mrs. Barkley said in her report of the history she has collected on the location.

Refreshments were served from a table decorated with Spring flowers and colors. Another meeting is slated April 21 with Mrs. Fred Hart as hostess, and Mrs. Lee Harrah presenting the program.

In 1457, golf was prohibited in Scotland because it diverted men from archery which was needed for defense, according to Collier's Encyclopedia.

Dodgers Want Wills Back Home

By MILTON RICHMAN

NEW YORK (UPI)—Maury Wills never was one to pussyfoot.

He has something to say, he says it. Discretion may be the better part of volor but it was never the better part of Maury Wills. He believes in himself and also in what he says and although some people don't always like what he has to say, he never backs down.

There have been reports lately that Wills' old club, the Los Angeles Dodgers, would like to have him back and are trying to make a deal for him with the Montreal Expos. Wills did not leave the Dodgers under the happiest possible circumstances during the winter of 1966. The Dodgers nearly fell all over themselves getting rid of him, in fact, after he had a falling out with owner Walter O'Malley over a banjo, of all things.

Now that the Dodgers have expressed an interest in getting him back, Wills could start laughing behind his glove if that was his nature. That isn't though, and he's not laughing.

Play Anywhere

Wills had been in professional baseball 18 years or long enough for him not to get all worked up about rumors. He has heard and read that the Dodgers would gladly take him back and regards that as, well, nice. In other words, he isn't jumping up and down in sheer ecstacy nor is he violently objecting.

"I've made a commitment to play baseball this season and I'm looking forward to playing in Montreal," he says. "But if they sent me to Manila I wouldn't quit. I'd play there. The same thing goes if they send me to Los Angeles. It would be like going back home in a way."

The breach between Wills and O'Malley came about while the Dodgers were touring Japan in 1966 after Baltimore had beaten them four straight in the World Series.

Wills suddenly took of from Tokyo and the next time he was located he was playing the banjo with a Dixieland group in Hawaii. O'Malley was quite angry over the banjo, the episode and everything else. He seemed to have good reason. He said Wills had left without notifying anybody and by his impulsive action he had, among other things, insulted the Japanese Premier.

That was news to Wills, who felt he hadn't insulted anybody and said he was anxious to get back to the U.S. for treatment of a knee injury although that didn't explain the banjo in Hawaii.

Anyway, in no time at all, the Dodgers traded Wills off to the Pirates for whom he played two season before Montreal picked him in the expansion draft and that brings us up to an incident at Vero Beach this spring.

The Expos were scheduled for an exhibition game with the Dodgers there and Wills visited the Dodger clubhouse to see some of his old teammates. When he was through talking with them, he turned to leave and saw Walter O'Malley about five feet away.

O'Malley also saw Wills, who walked over to him. Both men extended their hands at the same time and spoke to one another for the first time in more than two years.

"I certainly have no ill feelings toward Mr. O'Malley," Wills says, and when Wills says that you can believe him. He wouldn't hold anything back if he did.

By the same token, O'Malley believes in forgiving, too. Time heals most wounds if not all.

Wills, at 36, feels as if he's 26.

"Physically, I feel great," he said. "I had trouble with my legs in 1966 and 1967 but not last year or this one. If I don't steal at least 10 bases this year I'll be disappointed."

Wills failed to come up with a ball against the Cardinals the other day and felt that cost Montreal the ball game.

"The fans booed me somewhat and I deserved it," he says. "I was embarrassed. I feel I lost the game for 'em, but for every one I lose I'll win 10.

So I owe 'em 10."

Mrs. Matson Satisfactory

An Amarillo television station said Thursday night that Mrs. C.W. Matson, Mother of world's champion shot putter Randy Matson was in Highland General Hospital in serious condition.

A check at the hospital this morning found that Mrs. Matson was doing 'satisfactorily' after an operation.

The station also reported that Randy would not compete this weekend in the Kansas Relays.

An attempt to contact him proved futile.

Stoneman Too 'Big' for Phils

By United Press International

Billy Stoneman may have found the formula for instant growth—it's called no-hitter.

Stoneman, labeled "too short" to be a major league starting pitcher, turned the tables on the experts Thursday night when he pitched the first no-hitter of the 1969 season as the Montreal Expos ripped the Philadelphia Phils, 7-0.

He made his third start of the season and only the fifth of his career a memorable one by becoming the first pitcher for an expansion team to compile nohitter in his team's maiden season.

Stoneman said that he was "very happy to win it for Gene's (Mauch) homecoming. Mauch, the Montreal manager fired as boss of the Phils a ago, was making his first appearance at Philadelphia's Connie Mack Stadium since being ousted.

Staub drove in three runs and scored two others with three doubles and a home run in five at-bats besides making a knee-high, one-handed catch of Tony Taylor's looping liner in the second inning. In all, the Phils managed only six balls out of the infield against Stoneman, who had pitched only one complete game in the majors prior to Thursday night.

Elsewhere in the National League, Chicago blanked St. Louis, 3-0, Atlanta ripped Houston, 9-3, San Francisco edged San Diego, 5-4 and Pittsburgh shut out New York, 3-0 in the only games scheduled.

Bill Hands and Phil Regan combined for a four-hitter as the Cubs blanked St. Louis for the second straight night.

The victory was the Cubs' ninth in 10 games this season and dropped the Cards to 4-6.

Sonny Jackson drove in three runs—two with an inside the-park-homer — to power Atlanta over the Astros.

WALTER ALSTON, above, dean of major league baseball managers, started 16th season with the Los Angeles Dodgers with sliding demonstrations for players at Vero Beach, Fla., training camp.

Lotz Leads By 2 Shots

CARLSBAD, Calif. (UPI)—Thirty thousand bucks is more than Dick Lotz made all last year as a golf pro but he's got a line on that kind of dough all in one lump sum today.

Anything can happen—like a big earthquake—before Sunday when the $150,000, 72-hole Tournament of Champions ends but Lotz, 26, a stocky, handsome 26-year-old from Hayward, Calif., is champion of champions pro tem going into the second round.

He shot a five-under-par 67 for a two-stroke lead over such golfing VIPs as Arnold Palmer, Dave Stockton, Tom Weiskopf, Julius Boros and Gary Player, all at 69.

George Archer, the Masters champion, shot a double bogey six on the first hole when he pushed his tee shot into the right rough. He tried to lash the ball out onto the fairway but ended up in the rough on the other side. Then he was in a trap with his third shot, hit a good chip but two-putted from eight feet.

He was smiling, however, and came out of the round with a one-under-par 71. At the same figure were Steve Reid, a newcomer to this tourrament who got in by winning the Azalea open; defending champion Don January, and Billy Casper, top money winner last year.

Murcer Slams Pair As Yanks Split With Sens

By United Press International

The line on the Baltimore Orioles is that they'll go as far as the Robinsons can take them.

If Thursday's game and the first 10 days of the season are any indication, that may be a long way in 1969.

Both Robinsons homered (Frank collecting his fifth of the young season and Brooks his second) as the Orioles clobbered the Boston Red Sox, 9-5, to remain in first place in the Eastern Division of the American League with a 7-3 record.

Jim Palmer, who hadn't done much since he beat Sandy Koufax in Koufax's last game, boosted his record to 2-0 with an 8 2-3 inning stint. Eddie Watt finished up.

Elsewhere in the Amerian League, Detroit beat Cleveland, 7-6, and New York won the first game of a doubleheader from Washington, 7-3, in 10 innings but lost the second game, 5-2.

Bobby Murcer's three-run homer in the first inning and Joe Pepitone's grand slam in the 10th with two out gave New York the victory over Washington in the first game. Washington had tied the game in the ninth when Frank Howard doubled and Mike Epstein homered but Pepitone's slam off Dennis Higgins decided it. Mel Stottlemyre, now 3-0, picked up the victory.

In the second game, Murcer homered again for his fifth of the season but Gary Holman's pinch-hit double snapped a 2-2 tie in the eighth and gave Washington the victory.

Lakers Go 2-Up in NBA Playoffs

ATLANTA (UPI)—The Atlanta Hawks now face an task in their playoff with the Los Angeles Lakers for the National Basketball Association's Western Division championship.

The Hawks are down 1-3 in the best-of-seven series and they meet the Lakers in Los Angeles Sunday afternoon in the fifth game. Atlanta dropped the first two games on the Lakers home court.

The Hawks desperately needed a victory Thursday night to keep from having their backs to the wall, but Wilt Chamberlain and Jerry West frustrated them with a 100-85 victory.

Atlanta had fallen behind at the start, grabbed a lead at the half and hen trailed by four points, 67-63, after three quarters. Then Atlanta took a three-point lead early in the final period and appeared on its way to another Hawks' closing surge.

But West and Chamberlain combined to outscore the Hawks 12-0 within the next few minutes and the Lakers had a nine-point margin. A full-court press by the Hawks closed the gap to four points, but West tossed in five points to assure the Lakers the victory.

The loss was Atlanta's first on its home court in 12 games.

Chamberlain, who had been soundly defeated in Atlanta's Monday night win, scored 25 points and West had 22.

Lou Hudson, who hit 16 field goals and three foul shots, led all scorers with 35 points. Joe Caldwell, who had averaged 18 points for the Hawks during the playoffs, got in foul trouble early and did not score.

Television In Review

By RICK DUBROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Style is a very rare commodity on television. Not too many shows have it. But a number of video stars do, and make their series bearable simply because of this personal quality.

Dean Martin, of course, is a triumph of style over everything. Robert Wagner of "It Takes a Thief" has it. He glides through his series with just the right attitude — not making everything a big deal. It is no surprise that Fred Astaire, the standard for style, has agreed to play Wagner's father in some of the series' episodes next season.

Is Stylish Fellow

Patrick MacNee of "The Avengers" is a stylish fellow. Brian Keith of "Family Affair" delivers his own brand of style in a quiet, manly way. And his costar, Sebastian Cabot, is a British gentleman to the hilt. Lucille Ball has an incomparable personal style, and so do the stars of "Gunsmoke," James Arness, Amanda Blake, Milburn Stone and Ken Curtis.

Frances Bavier of "Mayberry R.F.D." has a gentle grace that translates into style. Dan Rowan, the straight man of Rowan and Martin's "Laugh-in," is pretty stylish too. Wayne Maunder of "Lancer" has an understated manliness that reveals a touch of civility. And Diahann Carroll of "Julia" is right out of the fashion magazines.

Eddie Albert of "Green Acres" is a strange case. In movies, he used to be known as a very stylish fellow. But since appearing in this hayseed series, and also doing a number of hard-to-take commercials, he seems to have lost this touch.

Wears Carnation

Jackie Gleason has what might be termed an overpowering personal style. No one else on television has the guts or grace to wear a carnation in his lapel. Fred MacMurray of "My Three Sons"-has a gentle style that goes a long way.

Ed Sullivan has a wonderful enthusiasm about his work that reveals style of a very different sort—but, nonetheless, style. Barbara Bain of "Mission: Impossible" has the sultry, sexy, glamorous style of a woman who is just about keeping herself in check—until the right moment. Dan Blocker of "Bonanza" has the mammoth yet gentle style of a moder-day Wallace Beery or Victor McLaglen.

Watching for the too rare moments of style on television, one is reminded of what someone once said about charm: If you have it, you don't need much f anything else. And if you don't have it, it doesn't make much difference what else you have.

Foreign News Commentary

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst
Window on the World:

Bad Wheat Year:

The Soviet Union will be in the market again this year to buy wheat from Canada, the United States or Australia. This is the result of near-disastrous winter winds which blew snow away and caused soil erosion in some of the most important bread-basket areas.

U.S.-Soviet Talks:

Diplomats in London expect U.S.-Soviet arms control talks to start at a high level soon, probably in June. The Russians are keen for reasons of their own and the United States is anxious to explore Soviet intentions.

Tough British Budget:

The British Labor government's hopes for an economic upswing have not materialized, and all signs point to another austerity budget and more belt tightening for the British people. Exports, Britain's life blood, still are lagging and the experts say the only possible budget message Chancellor of the Exchequer Roy Jenkins can present to Parliament on Tuesday will point to a tough year ahead and no hope of tax cuts in 1969-70.

Grim Outlook for Nigeria:

Despite recent federal advances British officials expect no early end to the Nigerian civil war. The federals are moving with extreme caution so as not to extend their tenuous supply lines dangerously. They may even postpone capture of Umauhia, the last sizeable town in Biafra, and concentrate on taking Uli airstrip, the Biafrans' last air link with the outside world.

Private Eye:

This probably should be taken with a grain of salt, but sources very close to Philippine President Ferdinand E. Marcos say he did a little private sleuthing on his own after attending funeral services for the late President Eisenhower in Washington. These sources say Marcos made discreet inquiries whether it was true the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) was grooming any opposition Filipino politician to take over his job in next November's presidential elections. The sources say the findings were negative.

LDS Church Announces Plans For 25 Story General Building

SALT LAKE CITY — Decision to begin construction this summer of a new 25-story general Church office building in Salt Lake City was announced Wednesday by the First Presidency of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

The high-rise building will be located on the same block and immediately north of the present Church Administration Bldg. It will be erected under the supervision and direction of the Church Building Committee.

Committee chairman Mark B. Garff reported that plans and specifications will be ready for distribution by May 15 to invited bidders. It's expected that bids will be received back within 60 days with a bid opening scheduled for July 15. Garff explained that it is the intent to award the construction job to the legitimate low bidder complying with the contract documents.

The building is for single occupancy — to be used exclusively for Church departments and auxiliaries, which are now housed in the Church Administration Building and many other buildings about the city. Among the departments to be housed in the new structure will be the building committee, financial department, genealogical society library and departments, the Church Historian's offices and library, Church welfare department and all Church auxiliaries excepting the Relief Society which occupies its own building on the northwest corner of the same block.

The General Authorities, including the First Presidency, Council of the Twelve Apostles, Assistants to the Twelve, Patriarch to the Church, the First Council of Seventy and the Presiding Bishopric, will continue to occupy the present Church Administration Building at 47 E. South Temple St.

George Cannon Young, prominent Salt Lake architect, is designer of the modern structure. The building will be erected over the three-story underground parking plaza. When the plaza was constructed in 1964-65, the footings and steel columns upon which the new office building will be built were installed.

The building will include wings four-story high to the east and west of the center tower. Construction will be of welded steel, with a facing of precast stone in white quartzite. Floors will be of cellular steel, with a concrete wearing surface.

The double-T, hollow-core construction of the exterior surface of the building will provide built-in sun control.

The building will have two fronts — north and south — with the columns of the colonade on each side being four stories high. The main front of the building will be to the south facing a landscaped plaza between the new structure and the Church Administration Bldg.

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Two events conjoined this week into what was for me a fortunate coincidence. Which is not the way that coincidences usually turn out.

Item one—a botanical company sent me a small collection of its carnivorous house plants, including the voracious Venus's flytrap.

Item two—Mrs. Betty Ross, a nice lady known hereabouts as "The Little Shepherdess of the Shoreham," sent me an article in which a botanist claims that plants have emotions.

According to the article, plants may show a "rudimentary affection for their owners," or may "even dislike you."

Fortunate Coincidence

You can immediately see why this coincidence was fortunate. If you are going to have meat-eating plants in your house, it is nice to be forewarned that they may dislike you.

There is, as far as I know, no record of a Venus's flytrap ever having munched a man. Their diet is customarily confined to insects. But it always pays to be on the safe side.

As long as I am linving in the same house with a carnivorous plant. I am going to do my best to make friends with it.

Unfortunately, there is no great body of literature available to which you can turn for instructions on how to cultivate the friendship of a Venus's flytrap.

I have always gotten along well with petunias, and some of my best friends are geraniums. But these are mild-mannered plants that wouldn't harm a fly.

There was no guarantee that a carnivorous plant would respond to my adorable personality the way petunias and geraniums do. So I had to sort of play it by ear.

It is important, I found, to get off on the right foot. Let a Venus's flytrap know right away that you are the boss. But temper firmness with kindness.

Win Respect

If you can win a Venus's flytrap's respect, you are over the first big hurdle. But if the plant senses that you are afraid of it, you can never worm your way into its affections.

The first thing I did when I opened the box in which the carnivorous plants were shipped was make a little welcoming speech.

"Consider yourself part of the family," I said. "I'm sure we'll become great friends, once we get to know each other. But don't try any funny stuff or you'll soon find out why I was awarded a black belt in karate class."

This approach has worked beautifully thus far. Tthe plants have been as docile as daffodils and I have them eating out of my hand.

If this keeps up, I may oepn a Venus's flytrap obedience school.

SKELLYTOWN — In Skellytown city election, Bill J. Houghton was re-elected to the mayor's position. The two aldermen elected, unopposed, were Irvin Brown and Leroy Snodgrass.

U.S. Says North Viets Guilty of War

PARIS (UPI)—The United States today submitted to the Vietnam peace conference evidence it said legally backed its stand that North Vietnam is guilty of "armed aggression" against South Vietnam.

President Nixon's chief negotiator, Henry Cabot Lodge, made the move at today's 13th negotiating session of the talks.

Lodge disclosed his negotiating strategy while talking to newsmen minutes before the start of the Majestic Hotel session.

Lodge said the United States felt that the conference must clearly deal with the legal aspect of the conflict—"North Vietnam's armed attack on South Vietnam."

"This is a fundamental aspect of this whole thing, and something that must be covered," Lodge said.

Lodge did not reveal details of his brief. Observers believed he had laid before the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong negotiators circumstantial evidence based on the presence of North Vietnamese troops in the south in violation of the 1954 Geneva agreements.

The Geneva Accords called for the temporary partition of Vietnam along the 17th Parallel, the withdrawal north of the line of all Communist troops, and established a Demilitarized Zone along the partition line in the wake of the French defeat in the 1946-54 Indochina War. The Allies say that Hanoi had violated all key provisions of the agreements.

South Vietnamese officials said Cambodia's agreement to resume diplomatic relations with Washington and the Saigon government's offer to negotiate directly with the Viet Cong outside the Paris talks provided optimism.

In fact, they said, the two developments gave the Allies hopes that the Communist negotiators might agree to secret talks "within a matter of weeks."

The policy the United States has long outlined in the talks was that any eventual settlement must include Cambodia and Laos. U.S. negotiators have always insisted that Communist forces must withdraw from the two neutral countries.

A U.S. official expressed interest in a statement by Prince Norodom Sihanouk that he would demand a seat at the talks "when the time comes."

The United States is also interested in Sihanouk's remark that re-establishment of U.S. diplomats in Phnom Penh will permit the United States to make investigations of incidents along the Cambodian border.

U.S. delegation officials have said privately they do not expect the issue of Cambodia to figure prominently in the talks until progress has been made towards ending the war itself.
