Official notice was received here this week that the state tax rate for the year has been set at 62 cents, 15 cents less than that of 1933 and 1934, according to W. D. Aldridge, county tax assessor-collector. The state rate for the past two years has been 77 cents.

The county rate has not been set yet, but members of the commission court expect to meet Monday, August 12, and will probably set the county rate at that time.

The bonds will be used to match a WPA allotment of $4,000 in the construction of the building, giving a total of $8,000. Plans include the division of the auditorium in the present building into class rooms as soon as the gym and new auditorium are completed. Board members stated that they hoped the new structure might be finished by

Carl Chaudoin Is Elected To Head New Quail School

Former Loco And Mobeetie Superintendent Accepts Position Here

Has Good Record

Sees Remarkable Future For Largest Rural High School District

Carl Chaudoin of Mobeetie, Monday night accepted the position of Superintendent of the Quail Rural High School district, according to announcements today.

Mr. Chaudoin will replace J. D. Wilson, who resigned as superintendent at Quail last week to accept the position of District Deputy School Supervisor in this section.

Has Remarkable Record

The new Quail superintendent comes to Collingsworth county with a remarkable school record, and is already well known here, having served as the head of the Loco school for four years. Three years ago he moved to Mobeetie as superintendent of the schools there. When Mr. Chaudoin went to Loco, the community had a two teacher school. He went to work toward effecting a consolidation program and when he left there in 1932, he left a seven teacher school.

His work at Mobeetie has been even more commendable. He went into an unclassified eight-teacher school there three years ago, and today the school is affiliated in 21 units and boasts of a staff of 15 teachers. He was re-elected as superintendent at Mobeetie with a two-year contract, but resigned to accept the Quail post.

"I accepted the Quail post solely upon the prospects offered

Cotton Bolls Reported Near Lutie

While a few farmers over the county have been delighted with the appearance of cotton blooms, R. E. Byrd of the Lutie community has had bolls for more than two weeks.

Some of the bolls are more than half grown and Mr. Byrd believes he has an unusually good stand. He is on the place of Mrs. C. E. Thompson, near Lutie. These bolls are believed to be some of the first in this county for 1935.

Surplus Cotton Tax Pool Opens Early This Fall

Loss Of Sales Attributed To Late Opening Of Pool In 1934

Farmers will be given an opportunity to pool their surplus tax-exemption cotton certificates earlier this year than in 1934, according to information received this week in the county agent's office.

Late Last Season

Last year producers were not permitted to pool certificates until their crops had been gathered, partly due to the fact that the national pool had not been set. However, many producers did not get to sell their certificates and in other sections producers paid the ginning tax in order to market their cotton at the time of ginning.

In surveying the situation, O. J. Walker, assistant county agent, said: "The producers of Collingsworth county pooled over seven million pounds in certificates last year, and the pool sold five million pounds for which the producers received over $195,000,000. There would have been returned to the county over two million pounds of certificates, but many of the producers pooled their interests to the extent of over six hundred sixty thousand pounds, or 28 per cent of the surplus, in the Special Pool, of which it is estimated some 80 per cent will be sold. However, at this time the pool manager is unable to give accurate estimates.

"The regular national pool will

Loss Slight As Burglars Break Into Lewis Yard

An attempted robbery failed when thieves entered the Lewis Lumber Company Saturday night, July 27, by breaking out a window. The safe was opened, but Mr. Lewis had removed all the money earlier in the night. The only loss was a radio and 26 cents. Sheriff Claude McKinney is working on the case.

This is the fourth time that the Lewis yard has been entered by thieves in the past two years.

Fire Destroys Farmer's Gin Tuesday Night

Building And Machinery Completely Destroyed Here In Blaze

Loss Was Large

Gin Organized In 1920 And Continued For Past 15 Years

The Farmer's Gin was completely demolished by fire Tuesday night. The alarm was turned in and the Wellington Fire Department answered the call around 12 o'clock.

The loss was estimated around $20,000. The gin, although 15 years old, has been kept in condition from year to year, and new equipment added regularly.

Machinery Ruined

The fire started from an unknown origin and by the time the alarm was turned in the building was blazing to such an extent that it was impossible to quench the flames. Firemen were unable to tell in what portion of the building the blaze started, they said.

A large crowd congregated after the whistle blew and watched the fire demolish the gin. Only a few scattered pieces of lumber remained from the wooden portions of the building, and the heat was so intense that two-inch steel rods were twisted and bent as the floors and braces gave way. In addition to being burned, the machinery was also bent and mutilated in the blaze.

Here Since 1920

The Farmer's Gin was organized here in 1920 and had as its president, A. J. Bradley. Every stock holder in the gin is a resident of Collingsworth County. In 1923 A. V. Coker was employed as cotton buyer for the gin and was made secretary of the organization.

Since 1923 the gin has paid dividends to its stockholders, with the exception of two years, when outstanding stock was purchased from persons who had moved to other places.

Corn-Hog Money To Arrive Here Next Two Weeks

Farmers in Collingsworth county should receive their first corn-hog contract checks within two weeks, according to announcement in the office of the county agent today. The total from this source will be $32,444.55 for this county.

Reports from Washington this week stated that the first Corn-Hog checks for 1935 were mailed July 27. The first payment totaled more than $4,000,000, and represented payments to 33 states; Texas received $27,388.35. The first payment is about two-fifths of the total corn payment and one-half of the total hog payment due for 1935.

In estimating that the first checks would arrive here within two weeks, workers in the agent's office stated that the only persons

Projects Passed By County Board Here This Week

District, State And Federal Boards Have To Pass On Projects

Others Planned

Local Sponsors Expect To Submit Other Projects For Approval

Collingsworth County's Planning Board on WPA projects met Monday afternoon with R. W. Wallace to map out preliminary projects for Collingsworth. The board, which is composed of seven members from various political subdivisions of the county, will act in an advisory capacity on the different projects of the county.

List Eight Projects

Eight projects were recommended Monday, and others will be considered as soon as the sponsors can get their plans outlined. Those projects which were approved were: football stadium for Wellington Independent School District; gymnasium for Dodsonville; gymnasium for Samnorwood; street topping on gravelled streets and graveling of Haskell street for City of Wellington; dam on Chester Fires ranch; sewing room, canning kitchen and library repair for Texas Relief Commission.

Approval by the county board, however, has little bearing on the final approval of the project. After it leaves the county board each

Continued street work, however, will be determined by the WPA program. Mr. Handley does not expect the work to be delayed very long, but said that it would not be continued until it was approved under the new plan.

Primitive Baptists To Hold Annual Meeting At LaHue Grove, Aug. 8-11

The Panhandle and Oklahoma Association of Primitive Baptists will hold their annual meeting at the LaHue grove, three miles east of Wellington, beginning Thursday August 8, through Sunday, August 11, according to announcements today.

The services will begin Thursday evening at 8 o'clock, and will continue through Sunday at noon. Services will be held at 10 o'clock each morning, 3 o'clock each afternoon, and 8 o'clock each evening.

No public table will be provided for the meeting, leaders said, but necessities will be sold at stands on the grounds. Persons attending the services will be allowed to bring their lunches.

A committee will select the preachers when the meeting opens, and a large number of visiting preachers are expected to deliver messages at the gathering. The general public is invited to attend the services, and members of the church were urged to attend.

Young People Stand Against Whiskey

The young people of Collingsworth county will take their stand against whiskey at a meeting to be held Sunday afternoon at the First Methodist church, according to Miss Beulah Mae White, chairman of that division, today. Other rallies are being planned over the county this week, and a gathering will be held on the streets in Wellington, Saturday, S. L. Wood, county chairman, said.

Rev. H. G. Tucker of Pampa, will address the young people's division in the rally Sunday afternoon. Rev. Tucker is educational director of the First Methodist church at Pampa, and has a wide reputation for his ability as a sincere worker and speaker. The meeting will begin at 3 o'clock.

"The rally is county-wide," Miss White said, "we are urging and expecting the young people to attend, and we invite the older persons to also attend the meeting, which we believe will be well worth their while."

In summarizing the fight against whiskey, Rev. Wood stated, "Our fight against liquor traffic is growing with enthusiasm and interest, we had a number of rallies last week, and have several this week, and plan to be on the streets Saturday afternoon with a great, stirring program. We also invite the public to attend the great rally for the young people Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock."

Mrs. C. D. Damron, in charge of the women's work, is also planning a gathering to be held in the near future.

Lost And Found Service Takes On New Significance

Loss Of Gasoline Is Explained In Free Booklet

It has been a regular service of the Leader to restore lost dogs, watches, wallets and whatnots to anxious owners. But today our attention is called to the fact that we have helped find something the owners did not know they had lost.

"Thanks to the Leader," says H. A. Wynn, local representative of the Gulf Refining Company, "a multitude of motorists have found that they have been losing gallons of good gasoline without realizing it — just as surely as if there was a leak in the gasoline tank."

Mr. Wynn refers to the result of a series of advertisements recently placed in the Leader by his company, offering all motorists the new free booklet, "15 Ways to Save Gasoline Money."

"Soon after the offer appeared in your paper, motorists began to flock to our filling stations to get their copies of the booklet, and the original supply had to be renewed. An enthusiastic demand for them continues," Mr. Wynn states.

Among the 15 simple money-saving hints illustrated in the attractive little Gulf booklet is a pertinent pointer on parking. It explains, to the surprise of most motorists, that a car figuratively "burns up gas" even when it is parked depending on how you park it. Other hints in the booklet that materially increase mileage-per-gallon deal with proper use of the self-starter, accelerator, gear shifting and other ordinary operations of driving, any one of which wastes quantities of gasoline, if carelessly done.

Titled "15 Ways to Save Gasoline Money," the booklet is free for the asking at all Gulf service stations and dealers'.

Dogs Of All Breeds On Parade Here Last "Old Nig" Is Biggest; Other Honors Shared By Pekingese Breed Friday In Kiwanis Club Dog Derby-Parade

Dogs of all calibre, colors, breeds made their appearance here Friday afternoon in the Kiwanis Club dog show. The children congregated at the Cicero Smith Lumber Yard at 5:30 o'clock and led their dogs around the square in parade formation, halting in the shade one half block south of the square in front of the Higdon Motor Company, where the dogs were judged.

Wore Size 18 Collar

"Old Nig," a large black dog belonging to Luther McPherson was awarded first prize as the largest dog in the show. He weighed 92 pounds and wears a size 18 collar. He was awarded a collar as a prize.

The Pekingese breed came in for the remainder of the prizes. "Border Sugg," weighing only eight pounds, was awarded the prize as the smallest dog. He was awarded a collar, but since it was impossible for him to wear a collar no prize was given in this classification. He belongs to Miss Jewell Sugg, and was led in the parade by Jean and Louise Anderson.

"Lady Sugg," another Pekingese was judged as the cutest dog in the show. She was awarded a size 12 collar in this event. Lady Sugg is also owned by Miss Jewell Sugg and was led in the parade by Barbara Ann Wall.

Wins Two Awards

"Little Border Sugg," as if not satisfied with having been awarded a collar — something it was physically impossible for him to wear — came to the front in the contest for "best trained dogs."

He climbed ladders and when he finished, the judges awarded him first prize. Since this classification was considered as the best achievement, he received a set of harness with his name engraved on a metal plate attached to the harness.

However, the judges scratched their heads several times during the show, because so close was the competition that the selection of winners was difficult.

Little Ardis Kern, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harley Kern, led her little dog "Tuffy," in the parade — and had the dog been the specified one year of age, he would have undoubtedly placed either in the "cutest" or "smallest" classification. Tuffy was decorated in a red ruffled collar, which also afforded his muzzle, and little Miss Kern wore a sun suit to match.

Mexican Hairless Dog

Probably the most interesting dog of the group was "Pancho Villa," a Mexican hairless owned by Mr. and Mrs. Guy Clay and led in the show by Neva Clay. In addition to belonging to an unusual breed for this section, Pancho Villa also is a rare specimen of his breed. Most Mexican hairless dogs have no hair at all, but Pancho has a few shoots of hair on the top of his head and a few sprouts of hair on his tail. When Guy got him the Mexicans demanded that he be called "Man," due to the patches of hair on his head and tail. However, as soon as he left Mexico, Guy renamed the dog Pancho Villa, after the famous Mexican leader.

"Billy," a white spitz, led by C. E. Coleman, Jr., was also another well trained and interesting dog. Billy can walk a long distance on his hind legs, and a casual impression is that he is a very sensitive dog.

Dona Earl Larson was in the show with "Boots," another attractive Pekingese. A bystander asked Dana, "Don't they ever grow any smaller than that?" Without hesitation, Dana answered, "This one never has, he has always grown bigger."

Many Fine Dogs

Ray Watson was there with "Jiggs," J. L. Burt, Jr., brought "Jerry," a fine little terrier; Mary Nell Scruggs led "Dandy," a screw-tail bulldog belonging to Lowell Wells; Edward Brown led "Scouty," another interesting pup, which was eliminated due to not being one year of age; Durwood Tracy was present with "Big Ears," bulldog belonging to Dempsey Harrell; Jimmie Gillespie brought his dog "Jerry"; Jean Marie Jefferies led "Elmira," another cute little dog; Floyd McMinn showed "Collie," a clever pup, which belongs to Lois Sherwood Watson; T. E. Graham brought "Bulger," Lloyd McMinn was there with "Muggins," a dog belonging to Tommy Stall.

The dog derby was sponsored by the Kiwanis Club with Ben Hurst, R. J. Duckworth and C. C. Bishop as a committee on arrangements. Joe Thompson, scoutmaster, also assisted. Judges were J. B. Castleberry, M. M. Kern and N. M. Higdon.

and 30 cents is sent to the manufacturers, Dale said.

Deck's DIDACTICS

By H. D. W.

Last week I sat up until eleven o'clock one night trying to write what I thought was a fair and impartial essay on the national cotton situation. I had books piled around me, as well as newspapers and magazines. I worked and I sweated, and finally turned out two columns on the cotton situation. Ordinarily from one to fifty people make some mention of what I have in this space. Do you know what happened last week on the column on which I worked harder than I have in recent weeks? You can guess, but I'll tell you anyway. Not one single person mentioned it, yet cotton is the most important thing there is in this county. From it all of us make our living. I was interested in the reaction. There was none — absolutely none. Finally I asked a particularly intelligent young man in the county agent's office what he thought of it. He had brought me lots of news — some of which said we had not lost any foreign markets for cotton — and I thought that he would be interested in the article. Do you know what I found out? He had noticed the article but he had not had time to read it.

It has cured me from trying to be serious. I think that people want something different from their home paper. They are absolutely fed up with burdening their minds with the problems of the government, when they have plenty of individual worries of their own. I think they want to be entertained and not to be advised. From now on I may lapse at times, but in general I intend to busy myself with trivial things. People want to escape from the stern realities that face them. They are hungry for a peaceful way of life and mode of living. If they can't have that they would rather laugh and forget. It may not be the wise course, but it is the truth nevertheless.

For the past week my wife has been gone, and I have been staying with my mother. My aunt, Mrs. Rhone Hankins, has also been there and they have been taking care of Diane. It has been interesting to see a three-year-old bossing two grandmothers. Both of them are widows. Both lived through privation and struggle in other days in this and in Swisher county. In the midst of all the present day flurry, they pursue the even tenure of their ways. Regardless of what may be happening in the seats of power, they continue to do as they have always done — working, cooking, cleaning house, saving. And in the evening they sit in the back yard and talk in quiet tones. It is a brief interlude of peace before they prepare for the night and another day. It may sound terribly monotonous. In other days I thought that there should be more excitement and more varied entertainment for my mother. Now I wonder if these two old grandmothers are not much happier than many women who flit from one diversion to another.

I am afraid that I still do not understand, but sometimes I get a faint inkling of the truth. They are still on the lookout for interesting things to do. And do you know what interests them most. It is enlarging on the work that they have already done for their children. They are still mothers of the type that is dear to the hearts and memory of every person who has lived in this Panhandle country for any number of years. Knowing this, you can imagine how eagerly they assumed charge of my daughter. They even divided the work. Mamma feeds and bathes Diane and Aunt Doll fixes her hair and puts on her clothes. Some people may think that I am imposing on them, but I know better. One glance at Aunt Doll's face while she is combing Diane's hair would be enough to convince the most skeptical. Regardless of what may happen in government and in business they know that life must go on and that children must be trained. It is a familiar task to them and a dear one.

And what is the result on the child, the modern mother may ask. All I can say is that the child is in perfect health. She is more contented than she has ever been in her life, and she minds her grandmother much better than she does me. I have to get a switch ever so often. They merely talk and get better results. Children seem to absorb something of the spirit of the people they are around. Ordinarily Diane wants to go visit some one every time I talk to her. Now she plays by herself. My own nervous discontent has left her and she has absorbed some of the peace of soul of her grandmother. Next week she will visit her maternal grandmother in Wheeler county, and I confidently believe that these two weeks may have something to do with how she will think and act and feel when she is grown. All of which is a way of admitting that I am a very poor father, but that I have a great esteem for the work of grandmothers.

It is easier to write this than it is about cotton, but I still have cotton on my mind. I had a most illuminating talk with S. K. Parsons about the situation this morning. I don't intend to repeat any of his statements, because apparently people in this cotton county are not interested in cotton, but if anyone is by any chance, I invite you to sit down and talk to S. K. Parsons for thirty minutes. He is fair minded, liberal in his attitudes concerning the farmers' rights, but at the same time, he realizes clearly the decision that must be reached in our agricultural program. And while I am on cotton, I want to remind you again that Secretary Wallace will speak in Amarillo on August 5.

I have a whole sack of sumac seed that I gathered from my yard. I will be glad to give some of the seed to anyone who wants to plant them this fall. It is a dark green plant that turns to a beautiful red in the fall when the frost touches the leaves. They are drought resisting, and will grow well in Collingsworth county. I think lilacs are a more desirable plant, but the sumac will grow much quicker. It will make an ideal plant for beautifying highways and dry spots, and I will be glad to give any person some of the seed.

Duane Scott, who was for years foreman of The Leader, came up this week from Dodgeville to help while Herschel Combs is on his vacation. Duane is now in the hardware business, and although he has not used a type setting machine for many months, he is still one of the best printers I ever saw. I never will forget the days when he and Lela Kelly and I put out a semi-weekly paper by ourselves. Now The Leader uses seven people to publish a weekly. The Leader in the old days wouldn't look so good when compared with that of today, but it certainly did provide us with plenty of work. Those might have been the good old days for some people, but when I look back on them I had just as soon take Roosevelt—depression and all.

And while I am on the subject of Leader business, I want to mention one other thing. This year as for several years past, The Leader has paid out more in salaries than all local merchants spent for advertising. The difference is made up by national advertising, but it does show that The Leader brings money to Wellington instead of sending it out.

Academy Listings Will Be Based On Examinations

Applicants From District To Take Preliminary Examinations

The Eighteenth District of Texas will have for appointment to the Military Academy, for entrance in 1936, two cadets, and to the Naval Academy, two midshipmen.

In order to afford equal opportunity to all young men in the district who are interested in entering these institutions, appointments for the Eighteenth District will be made on the basis of a preliminary competitive examination which will be held under the direction of the War and Navy departments on October 26, 1935.

For each vacancy which exists at the military academy there will be appointed one principal and three alternates; and at the naval academy, one principal and three alternates. These appointments will be made strictly in accordance with the ratings made by the applicants on the examination.

It must be understood that this preliminary examination is simply for the purpose of determining to whom the appointments will be given, and that nominees must then meet the entrance requirements of the academies. This is done by taking the regular entrance examination for the military academy in March, 1936, or for the Naval academy in February, 1936; or, in lieu thereof, submitting educational certificates with or without validating examinations in English and Mathematics, according to the character of certificate submitted. In addition to mental examination each candidate is required to pass a rigid physical examination.

Candidates for the military academy must be between the ages of 17 and 22 at the time of entrance, which will be the first week day in July, 1936. Candidates for the naval academy must be not less than 16 nor more than 20 years of age on April 1, 1936. This has been construed to mean that the candidate must not yet have reached the age of 20 on that date.

The preliminary examination as well as the entrance examination is a difficult one and announcement of these vacancies is being made at this time in order than any prospective candidates may have an opportunity to prepare themselves for the preliminary examination during the coming months.

Zeck Experiments With Soybeans On Four Acre Tract South of Town

An experiment that may have a decided bearing on the future crops in Collingsworth County is now being carried on by R. E. Zeck on the farm of P. E. Keenan which is located just south of the city park in the city limits. This experimental crop is soybeans. Mr. Zeck planted 4 1-3 acres the first week of June and it will be harvested this fall by a row binder. By grinding the bean stalks and all together, this soybean makes an ideal milk feed because it contains both protein and roughage. Besides making an excellent feed this crop builds up the land, has many by-products, and is a good cash crop.

Mr. Keenan has had previous experience in raising this crop in Missouri. He raised a crop of soybeans in 1929, and, although the rabbits destroyed a part of the crop, his mules, cows, and horses thrived on the soybean as feed. Mr. Keenan thinks that the soybean will soon replace many kinds of feed in Collingsworth County because it is such a cheap, all-purpose feed and because it seems to grow heartily in this section of the country.

Victor H. Schoffelmayer, agricultural editor of The Dallas News, has written a number of articles on the growing of soybeans. In the following article Mr. Schoffelmayer interviews C. M. Knight, county agent of Red River County, Texas, where a number of farmers planted soybeans this year and where a few farmers have been growing the beans for three or four years. It follows:

The purpose of these articles is to awaken Texas farmers to the need for thinking in terms of other cash crops than cotton. The idea is not to encourage soybean production this season because it always takes time to make the needed preparations for growing new crops, and furthermore because Texas cotton oil mills are not quite ready to take the farmers' beans and crush them, but they are getting ready for next season. It is too late to plant soybeans at this time of year, although on rich bottom land, free from cotton root rot and having a fine season in the ground, small experimental plantings may be justified even now just to determine what the crop will do.

Seven Years Experience
"We have been growing soybeans in Red River county during the last seven years," said Mr. Knight. "They have been raised mostly as a hay crop, but nevertheless we know a lot about these beans because our farmers have kept at it and are learning how to handle the crop. We like soybeans immensely as a hay crop. They must be cut before the beans mature, of course, or they will shatter. A little watching of the crop will show when it is time."

"We raise mostly mammoth yellow. I want to impress upon the farmers, however, to be sure to get yellow seed and not green seed. The yellow color means that the beans are mature and will sprout promptly; the green ones are shriveled and immature and will give trouble."

Must Inoculate Soybean Soil
"Be sure to inoculate the soil on which soybeans are to be grown. You can obtain from your local seed dealer commercial inoculants which will supply the proper bacteria. This usually comes in a bottle, the contents of which are mixed according to directions with water and poured over the beans in a tub or on a tarpaulin, and stirring well. Planting should follow promptly after inoculation. The inoculated seed should not be exposed to the sun."

"Soybeans in Red River county on heavy black land grow to a height of two or three feet. They can be planted here in June when the ground is warm and will require about 150 days to mature. If planted after July 1 they will mature in less time. It is important not to cover the beans more than one inch on heavy clay soil or about two inches on sandy land. After heavy rains a crust may be formed on heavy land on which the beans will have trouble in getting through. It is well to harrow and break the crust."

"Our farmers usually plant about 15 pounds of seed per acre, in rows three feet wide, using cotton or corn planters adjusted to the soybean seed. When planted alone the beans can be harvested for sale to oil mills which may want to crush them. They sometimes are planted in alternate double rows of corn and soybeans and are then gathered by cattle and hogs. Soybeans may be grown and sudan grass and the whole crop mowed for hay and stored like alfalfa or prairie hay. When broadcast alone as a hay crop about 60 to 90 pounds are used to the acre, depending on the size of the beans, as varieties vary greatly in size."

"I want to warn farmers not to plant soybeans on land where cotton dies from root rot as the beans can stand less of the disease than cotton can."

Soybeans Make Crop in Hurry
"Soybeans may go along most of the summer and look as if they would not set any beans, but when they get ready to do so they put on a crop quickly. In Red River County the beans start blooming usually early in September or late in August. The beans set close to the main stalk and literally cover it."

"Our average yield is about 20 bushels per acre on average land."

We have had considerably higher yields at times and on very rich land. During my trip to Lake County, Tennessee, I found that farmers there obtain as high as 50 to 80 bushels of soybeans per acre on rich alluvial land.

"We found that in Illinois, which is the leading soybean state, the farmers are using a specially built soybean combine which scatters the straw back on the land and thus helps to enrich it. We need this kind of machine in our section to get best results, perhaps."

Is Great Enricher of Soil
"If our farmers never get a nickel for their beans and would feed them to their livestock and keep on raising the crop along with their cotton and corn they would be better off in a few years because of the increased fertility of the land through the storing of nitrogen in the nodules on the roots. We county agents in this section are for soybeans and consider them to be a badly needed crop from an agricultural angle alone. Our more or less worn-out thin soils can be built up again by fitting soybeans into the crop rotation. Soybeans fit perfectly into our crop rotation plans."

"It is my observation that soybeans can stand more cold than cowpeas, and that they resist the drought as well as cotton does. Strange to relate they also are not greatly bothered about wet springs for we had 41 inches of rainfall already this year and our soybeans are doing well in spite of it. They are largely foolproof and will respond to good soil and good tillage. Our farmers use their cotton planters and other machinery to grow the crop. They harvest them as hay with mowers and use binders when they intend to thresh the beans."

"In my travels I found that Tennessee oil mills were paying a premium of from $3 to 5 a ton for soybeans over cottonseed. This was based upon the higher protein content of the soybeans."

Large Audiences Hear Evangelist In Tent Revival

Bible School Division Also Attracts Wide Attention Here

The Assembly of God revival meeting that began July 14 under the direction of Helen Mann is still gathering tremendous crowds. The people are extremely interested in the revival, and the meeting promises to be a great success.

Miss Martha Schoonover is conducting a very interesting Daily Vacation Bible School for children between the ages of five and fifteen. The children are enjoying this class immensely because Miss Schoonover does not stress doctrinal points, but tells the children of her experiences in India where she was born.

The meetings are being conducted under a large tent seating between 600 and 700 people, and will be continued indefinitely.

ber of the recent antarctic expedition conducted by Admiral Richard E. Byrd. He also served as the personal aide of Admiral Byrd, and after arriving at Little America was placed in the tractor division.

In addition to his talk, which has met with enthusiastic reception at every point where he has appeared, Hill will also show slides and feature pictures taken on the expedition. "Neeka," an Eskimo husky, which went east with the party into Marie Byrd land, will also be brought here by Hill in connection with his lecture.

Roy Horn and Dr. Chas. B. Jones, members of the Kiwanis club who arranged for the appearance, stated that they believed Hill's talk would be one of the most entertaining and educational presentations here during the entire year.

In reviewing Hill's appearance, high tribute has been paid to him by many outstanding personalities over West Texas. Dean R. P. Jarrett, dean of West Texas State Teacher's College, Canyon, said: "Joe Hill's story is given in simple, yet interesting, narrative style and is based upon those phases of the expedition which will give to the audience a bird's eye view of various sections of the journey, of a number of items of interest in connection with Little America itself, and of an interesting account of various expeditions made from the main base."

Olin Hinkle, managing editor of the Pampa Daily News, said, "Young Joe Hill, Jr., tells an unusually interesting story well—the story of high adventure in a little known land. Adding immeasurably to the charm of telling is his own youthful enthusiasm, which was not dimmed by the rigorous experiences which the Byrd expedition made necessary."

Local Ambulance Has Novel Sponge Rubber Mattress

Dewey Ellis of the Ellis Funeral Home today announced the purchase of a new rubber mattress to be used in the ambulance.

"In addition to a strictly modern ambulance we have the best available cot," Mr. Ellis said, "and have purchased a Sea Island Rubber Sponge mattress. The novel construction of this mattress offers from 300 to 500 per cent more riding comfort than the ordinary cotton mattress."

The mattress in Wellington is one of the few to be found in the entire Panhandle, Amarillo ambulances having adopted the new mattress during the past few days.

through its being the largest rural high school district in the state," Mr. Chaudoin said. "I have always been interested in that particular form of consolidated education, and I believe it will become even more widespread in the future."

Mr. Chaudoin was selected as superintendent from 53 applicants and did not even apply for the post, but was asked to accept by the board after they had reviewed his record.

He stated that the new school would probably employ between 20 and 23 teachers and said that they would be hired within the next two weeks. More than 200 applications have already been filed for positions in the school. He also said that other arrangements for the school were to be worked out in the near future, and would be announced in August.

Mr. Chaudoin, in addition to seven years experience in schools in this section of the state, completed his college work at Canyon, and is considered one of the best organizers and school men in the Panhandle.

Miller Family To Leave Here After 15 Years

School Man And Preacher Held High Regards Of Aberdeen Neighbors

By MRS. JAS. L. LIGHT

E. W. Miller, prominent citizen of the Aberdeen community, sold his store to Joe Roundtree, who plans to entirely restock the general merchandise store and take charge of the post office August 15. Mr. and Mrs. Miller plan to move, probably to a college town, in order to send their children, Carra Bliss and Carroll Miller, to school.

Mr. and Mrs. Miller have been residents of Aberdeen for nearly fifteen years, having moved there from Grayson county. They were first employed as teachers in the Aberdeen school for several years before buying the store and the post office. Mr. Miller has also served very efficiently in the capacity of secretary of the Samnorwood high school since its organization. Mr. Miller also served as pastor of the Church of Christ of the Aberdeen community.

The people of the Aberdeen community regret very much that they are going to lose such a valuable and useful citizen. His work has been instrumental in building up the Samnorwood school, and in addition he has performed wedding ceremonies and conducted funeral services, always serving the people and the community when the occasion demanded.

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Holt and daughter, Melva Joyce of Seagraves visited Mrs. Holt's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dean Hobbs over the week end.

In a parochial school in Stuart, Neb., there are 19 pupils having the surname of Kaup, out of a total enrollment of 92.

Bar Transients In Relief Work

AUSTIN.—The Texas transient bureau no longer will extend aid to state transients, it has been announced by Mrs. Zuleika B. Hicks, assistant director of social service for the Texas Relief Commission.

The regulation, which became effective July 10, is in accordance with a resolution adopted by the State Board of Control, designed to stop transiency in Texas. Hereafter, Texas transients will be urged to return to their legal residences and settle down in order to become eligible for local work opportunities, either under increasingly improved commercial conditions, or under the Works Progress Administration program.

County administrators have been directed to urge all such transients to return home, and not to grant any relief to a transient except when absolutely essential.

"It is not the desire of the Board of Control to make it hard for state transients," Mrs. Hicks said, "but it is recognized that because opportunities for work are greater in a client's home community, there is no social advantage to be gained in moving aimlessly from county to county. It is for the transient's own benefit that he is urged to stay at home."

The regulation does not affect the procedure in handling federal transients. The federal program will continue to function as it has in the past.

CHICKENS COME CHEAP

REFUGIO.—W. G. Keilers, Refugio county, bought 155 Silver Lace Anconas in February, built a brooder house and stoves at a cost of $2 and raised 152 chickens to frying size.

The brooder house including the floor was made from scrap tin. A trench big enough to hold two bracket lamps for heat was dug under the floor. The floor was then covered with two inches of sand which helped hold the heat. Midway of the house, between the back and the door, Keilers hung a pair of old wool trousers to help retain the heat in the back part. The two lamps were kept burning 24 hours a day at a cost of a few cents a week.

Dynamite Is Tied To Mad Dog

REVAL, Estonia.—A mad dog with a stick of dynamite tied to his collar, fuse ignited, caused a minor panic in a village near here recently.

The dog's owner, a factory worker, took the dog outside the town and tied the dynamite to the collar to dispose of the diseased animal. The dog, frightened, broke away and dashed toward his master's house in the village. Villagers scurried for shelter. The dog was killed before it reached the house, however, being blown to bits in the middle of the road. The explosion damaged a number of fences.

Divorced Teachers Live With Spouses

LOS ANGELES.—Charges that many women school teachers throughout the United States are divorcing their husbands to hold their jobs but are maintaining marital relations with them were made by several speakers last week at the closing session of the National Association of Women Lawyers.

Percilla Lawyer Randolph of Los Angeles, newly-elected president of the association, said in California many teachers conceal their marriage, while others obtain divorces to escape discrimination against married women.

"An appalling number of women teachers come to Nevada for convenient divorces," said Felice Cohn, only woman lawyer in Nevada. "Five came in on the day I left Reno. Four of them told me they wanted such divorces. Most of them intend at some time, to remarry their divorced husbands. They made no secret of the fact that they intend to continue marital relations with them."

Texas Reported Under Seven Flags And Not Six As Popularly Supposed

AUSTIN, Texas.—"Among the flags that waved over Texas have never been mentioned the standard of the sun and the blood-red banner of the Comancharia," Mrs. Mary Jordan Atkinson, author of a volume on Texas Indians which is soon to be released by the Baylor Publishing Company, writes. In delving into dusty archives and ancient Spanish Government records in the University of Texas library, she has brought to light the fact that Texas has been under the flags of seven ruling nations instead of six as heretofore recorded in history. She has found that the Camanches who rose to control over a large part of what is now embraced in the area of this State had their own flag which was unfurled over the villages in their barbaric empire. The Indians of Texas were sun worshippers. The theme of the sun runs through all of the Indian lore unearthed by Mrs. At-

"Christian missionaries from Mexico," she writes, "preceded by the banner of the cross—gold on white—and the mystic intaglio of the Virgin of Guadalupe, crossing the Texas wilderness, eager to introduce baptism in the sun temples beyond the Trinity River, found their path blocked by sun standards—buffalo skins, tanned as smooth as parchment and emblazoned from edge to edge with holy sun rays.

"The Karankawa, house-boating on the coastal lagoons, gorging on alligators and carrion and human flesh, worshipped the sun.

"The Tonkawa, clad in a breech-cloth, a feather, and a pair of moccasins, slipping over the chalk-hills after the deer, worshipped the sun and his women tattooed their breasts in its image for the sake of magic medicine. The civilized Mound Builder—the Caddo and the Asinai—living in straw houses said by astounded explorers to have been a hundred feet high, built temples in the piney woods to house the sacred fire—servant of the sun. Even the fierce Apache, foregoing out of the Mexican mountains, struggling for control of the buffalo range, enemy of the Karankawa and the Tonkawa, of the Asinai and the Caddo—even he, worshipped the sun."

TRAGEDY AS TEACHER

It seems that it often takes an appalling tragedy to impress mankind with the necessity for ordinary safety precautions, and even tragedy fails to teach its lesson in most cases.

The first systematic efforts to make theatres fireproof followed the Iroquois fire in Chicago in 1903, when 574 persons lost their lives, although 600 had died in a theatre fire in Trenton N. J., as far back as 1872, and 283 had met a similar fate in Brooklyn in 1876.

A new policy of constructing munitions depots in unsettled areas followed the explosion of the Lake Denmark arsenal in 1926. The sinking of the Vestris has brought about the adoption of a new code of safety at sea, framed by representatives of 18 nations. The explosion of X-ray films in the Cleveland Clinic, causing the loss of more than 200 lives, has resulted in a survey of conditions in hospitals through the country in an effort to prevent similar disasters in future.

Thus great tragedies sometimes serve to teach their costly lessons; too late, however, to do their victims any good.

DA VINCI'S WHEELBARROW

Leonardo da Vinci, born in 1452, the illegitimate son of a Florentine lawyer, is considered by many to have been the most universal genius in that the world has ever produced. His activities embraced all the fields of art and science in his day.

While he is best known as the painter of Mona Lisa and The Last Supper, he was also accomplished beyond his contemporaries as sculptor, musician, military engineer, astronomer, botanist, anatomist, geologist and what not.

But great as were his contributions to art and science, the most lasting benefits which he conferred upon mankind were probably in the line of mechanical invention, although many of his conceptions were not developed practically until centuries later. It is said that he invented a flying machine which would have been a success with a modern motor, for which the world had to wait another 400 years.

One of his inventions was the wheelbarrow, which, simple as it appears to us, has been one of the greatest labor-savers ever devised through the application of pure mechanics. It seems strange to us that so many centuries elapsed between the invention of the wheel and that of the wheelbarrow.

That da Vinci was the first to hit upon this humble but most useful means of transportation is added proof of his genius.

TOO LITTLE OR TOO BIG?

He was just a dirty little street urchin, bedraggled, grimy and ill-kept. When we saw him the other day he was selling newspapers on a downtown Colorado Springs business corner.

There are lots of dirty little street urchins—in Colorado Springs and elsewhere. One sees them every day—sees and feels sorry for them. But we noticed this young chap in particular—noticed him and felt sorry to a degree more than normal—for there was something about him that particularly attracted our attention. It was the fact that he was wearing a regulation O. D. army blouse.

—yes, a soldier's blouse was hanging about the upper part of his body. It struck him half way to the knees. Only his fingers protruded from the lengthy sleeves. The blouse flapped in the cold breezes—flapped as though it were on a scarecrow in some farmer's corn field. It was much too big for the little newsie. He was lost in it.

We looked at the boy. We wondered. We became sorry all over again. Hard times these that force American youngsters and American grownups, too, to wear cast-off clothing too large for them—or too small; or too ragged. Not enough to wear in a land that produces too much. No wonder we were sorry.

The youth was a pitiful figure. And we thought of the lad, of the blouse that was too big and of war—for the blouse was a garment of war. It was not difficult to think of war. Weren't the very papers that they telling of war clouds hovering over Europe? Yes—of war and of threats of war. Dictators and leaders, politicians, common citizens—most everyone talked of the possibilities of war. Many feared the race of armaments would end in conflict—maybe not now, perhaps not within the next two or three years; but in the not far distant future.

War looms. That seems certain. By this time we had passed by the newsboy with the army blouse that was too big. But we thought of him again. Two or three or four or five years from now—would he by that time have grown into the garment? A few years and it would fit him? No, we couldn't figure it that way.

Another thought came. The blouse isn't too big for American youth—whether their ages be 15, 16, 20 or 25. The garment of war is too little for the boys of this nation and every other. The youth of today have outgrown war blouses. They are the ones who are too big—too big for the tunic of war; too big for war itself.

Twenty years ago there were war clouds in Europe. And war came—the most devastating conflict in all history. America entered that war to make the world safe for Democracy. That war failed, as all wars fail. With the clouds of war again hovering over the European horizon—it behooves America, Europe and all nations to shun armed conflicts that the world may be made safe this time for Democracy's most precious possession: Youth—youth that is too big for war.—Colorado Springs Farm News, Colorado Springs, Colo.

OUR PAST

By C. C. BISHOP

Just thirteen days after the battle of the Alamo, Fannin, with 350 men began his retreat from Goliad. He had been too long delayed and had only gone seven miles when his small army was surrounded by Mexican General Urrea, with an army of 1500 men.

They were on a prairie absolutely without natural protection of any sort, and without water. The unequal combat began and continued that evening, through that night and into the next day.

The cannons of the Texans soon became utterly useless because of the lack of water to sponge them. Fannin had lost already seven killed and sixty wounded. The Mexicans, however, had lost between 200 and 300 killed and wounded.

Fannin surrendered. Articles of agreement were in writing. By the terms, the men were to be treated as prisoners of war. They were soon to be paroled and sent home. They were marched back to Goliad and a few days later, March 27, in treacherous violation of his sacred covenant Urrea ordered them led out and had them brutally shot. From the first to last, and in various ways, something like 82 escaped.

In the last group that was marched out to be killed were two preachers who went on exhorting their comrades. When they had reached the place where they were to suffer the eldest called upon his companions to join him in prayer. Not one refused. Even many of the Mexicans, though unable to understand his language, fell on their knees in imitation of the Texans.

Then with an enthusiasm of which it is impossible for any one who was not an eye-witness to form an idea, the elder called upon God.

In an old book published in 1842, only six years after the events above described took place, was published the prayer and we give it as published.

"We return unto thee, O Almighty Being, who from high heaven directeth all things for thy greatest glory. This body which thou gavest us is now a falling sacrifice because we have asserted the rights of freemen and the liberty of the Holy Gospel; but O vouchsafe thou to receive our spirits into thy bosom, and grant true freedom to this land which has drunk the blood of our companions in arms. Deliver it from the darkness that overshadows it, and inspire the people with repentance for their deeds of cruelty. Thy martyrs we are, but we lay it not to their charge. Let not our death be visited upon them. We, who bleed beneath their knife, beg of thee."

Here he was interrupted by the voice of the commander, who in a rage called out in Spanish: "Fire! Fire! Finish them!"

But yet, as the bullets whistled, and his companions fell around him, the preacher lifted up toward heaven his arms, now reddened with gore, and said:

"We come into thee, We come, O Lord! O Lord! O Lord of heaven, look down upon us. In thee we die. He had no time to continue, for one of the dragoons, running up to him, cleft his head at one single stroke, and this assassin was followed by his comrades, who frightfully hacking the dying and the dead, soon achieved what their guns had left unfinished.

Josiah And His Reforms

Text: II Kings 23:1-5; 21-23
The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for August 4.

A Good king was Josiah; likewise was he a religious reformer. He came to the throne of Judah at the age of 8, and as a consequence much has depended to a great extent on good advisers. But unless there be a good spirit in himself, even a youthful king sooner or later is likely to shun the good advice of his counselors.

Josiah's course as a reformer is all the more remarkable because his father had not set him any example of goodness. Fortunately, the young king had a good mother.

Conditions had become very bad in the kingdom. Idolatry, which meant association with evil and corrupt practices, had become rampant and there was little regard for a religion of holiness and purity.

Josiah began his reforms very sensibly. He did not seek to effect a change simply by passing laws or by exercising his own arbitrary authority.

He called the leaders of Judah together, priests, prophets, and people, "both small and great," and here in their company he read to them the words of the Book of the Covenant—that is, a portion of the Bible, our Book of Deuteronomy, that had been discovered after years of neglect in the temple.

It must have been an impressive scene as the king, now a young man of 26, stood by the pillar reading the Book and making a covenant with Jehovah to keep his commandments, testimonies and statutes, and with all heart and soul to live according to the words of the covenant written in the Book.

The covenant, also, was not something imposed upon the people; it was, first of all, something the king took to himself; and all the people stood in recognition of their assent.

Every great reform has two aspects. It seeks to build the new upon better foundations and at the same time it sweeps away the old and corrupt things that have brought disaster and trouble. So one of the first evidences of this reform was destruction of the vessels and symbols of idolatrous worship and suppression of the idolatrous priests.

It was a new day in Judah. The great religious experiences of the past were restored to their true meaning.

The permanent lessons of such a story are not difficult to emphasize. All great reform begins in true character and purpose, and in the acceptance, explicitly or implicitly, of a covenant to do right.

A true ruler will covenant with God and his people, and the people in turn will covenant to observe faithfully the laws and principles that make for maintenance of order and welfare in society. No real reform can be built upon the false and decaying things that have brought destruction upon society.

These lessons are profoundly needed in these days in America, recovery and rebuilding. Have we shown sufficient intelligence in renouncing the things that have brought about economic depression and moral and social evil?

Are we not in a large measure trying to build the new society without sufficient regard for the new spirit and the new materials?

Crop Reduction Acreage May Be In Shelterbelt

A. A. A. To Cooperate With Forest Service in Securing Lands

A cooperative arrangement has recently been made between Chester A. Davis, AAA administrator, and F. A. Silcox, Chief of the Forest Service, to use lands included in crop-reduction contracts for strip-planting by the Forest Service, whenever an agreement may be reached with the land owner for the planting of trees and shrubs under the Shelterbelt Project.

Under the above arrangement and agreement with the landowner, the trees may be planted on either contracted acreage or on other lands selected in lieu of such acreage, if soil types, location, or for other reasons the selected lands are better suited for Shelterbelt planting than the original contracted acreage. The Forest Service will at the same time enter into a separate lease or option agreement with the land owner, which will provide for immediate occupancy by the Forest Service, and will insure control of the land used for Shelterbelt purposes after the expiration of the crop-reduction contract. This agreement, with the owner, will further provide for purchase or extension of the lease of the selected land at a stipulated price, should the government later wish to take this course.

During the life of the AAA contract, no rental will be paid the farmer by the Forest Service for the use of the lands, since he is compensated for that period by the AAA. It is believed by local officials in charge of the Shelterbelt Project that all land needed for next year's planting can be secured in this manner, and it is proposed largely to confine acquisition to this method.

Lands for Shelterbelt strip-planting may also be secured under the present procedure; that is, by donations or by leases, with an option for an extension of the lease or to purchase later at an agreed price. Because of the recognized value of Shelterbelt plantings to the individual farm owner, it is expected that many of the strips will be secured by donations.

Texas History Series

Story Of Gideon Lincecum, Pioneer Physician, Explorer, Teacher And Naturalist

frontier teacher, Indian trader, county commissioner, pioneer physician, explorer, naturalist, Gideon Lincecum was one of the unique individuals who sought Texas as a new frontier in the thirties and forties. Apprenticed in the profession of medicine, Lincecum was not scientifically trained and frequently quarreled with his colleagues, learned from the Alikehi Chito or "Great Indian Doctor" of the Choctaws. However, according to Samuel Wood Geiser, whose sketch of Lincecum appeared in The Southwest Review in 1929, "There is no question that among his fellow members of the profession, he was the chief recipient of popular esteem and approval." Lincecum was an acutely observant naturalist and his researches, at times published in scientific journals, received the attention, sometimes favorable, sometimes adversely critical, of scientists of his day. His correspondents included Charles Darwin, Louis Agassiz, Alexander von Humboldt, and Dr. Elias Durand.

Lincecum came to Texas for the first time in 1835, and located a league of land near Long Point, where he later settled when he returned in 1848 to make his home in the Lone Star State.

He made early and tremendously valuable collections of Texas herbs, one of which, containing over a thousand specimens, he sent to Dr. Durand, who later turned them over to the Herbarium of the Jardin des Plantes, in Paris. Again, he presented a similar collection to the Philadelphia Academy. After the Civil War he sent fourteen different collections to the Smithsonian Institution, the materials consisting of mammals, fossils, shells, birds, insects, alcoholic specimens, and one negro skull. He also sent some two thousand specimens of Texas butterflies to a New York natural history society. His principal study, however, was his research on the Agricultural or Red Ant, a piece of work for which he was once well known.

Papers of Gideon Lincecum, including a letter press and some of his recipes for herbal remedies, as well as notes on various Texas herbs, were deposited in the University of Texas library by his grandsons, C. B. Doran and F. L. Doran of Hempstead.

Almost any page of his diary, unpublished, provides interesting reading. A few samples will illustrate the painstaking researches of this early scientist, and the flavor of the language in which he propounds his theories of cures.

Of wild lemon balm he wrote: "Fragrant, Stomachic, Carminative, Diaphoretic, Tonic. I discovered this beautiful little sweet plant during the summer of 1848.

It is found abundant on the high, dry, rocky points in the prairies of Texas—as far as I am familiar between the Brazos and Colorado.

"I have used it extensively, and find it a very agreeable diaphoretic in fevers, pleurisy, colds, &c. It seems to be peculiarly adapted to the diseases of infants and small children and may be freely given, both by the mouth and by injections—I consider it one of the very best vehicles to administer the lobelia Tincture, or antispasmodic Tincture in, particularly to children and delicate females. Add to a teaspoonful of the tea made very sweet, 4 or 5 teaspoonfuls of the tincture of Lobelia and one teaspoonful of antispas-modic Tincture, stir it till it is mixed and you have the best preparation for croup known to the profession. A small portion of the antispasmodic tincture in the sweetened tea of this herb, makes a good injection for children.

"This plant combines the properties of Balm, catnip and lemon, and possesses a considerable quantity of essential oil.

"Dr. East, who has just returned from Mexico, informs me that it grows abundantly beyond the Rio Grande, and as far west as he went."

The rosemary, fabled as a token "for remembrance," possesses remedial qualities, Lincecum wrote:

"The plant—aromatic, Stomachic. Contains a very fine extractive oil—which is a good article in liniments for Rheumatism.

"A mattress made of the dried herb, make an excellent bed for feeble patients to sleep on. In this way it possesses considerable restorative powers.

"It is used for many purposes and is a pretty good article of medicine.

"A few sprigs of it put into the lard tubs while the lard is cooling, will prevent it from becoming rancid."

The spikenard is "good in female weakness, in coughs, and as a general tonic," Lincecum wrote. "It is taken in decoction or syrup.

"The Choctaws use it for many complaints among their children. In all cases where we would use the pargoric, Bateman's drops, Godfrey's cordial &c. They use the spikenard, and it a superior article. For this purpose they boil a little of the root in clear water, sweeten the decoction and give it pretty freely to children of any age, who are troubled with gripes, colic &c. It is an excellent article, I have tried it often.

"In bad cases of putrid sore eyes, the choctaws boil up a quantity of the root, and while it is boiling hot steam their eyes over it. Two or three applications generally cures them.

"It makes an excellent cough medicine, and may be resorted to with advantage in almost all forms of cough."

"A tea of the Roots of the angelica is a pretty good medicine for the gripes in suckling children," he added. "Dried and pulverized, it is a good flour to roll pills in, and it gives them a pleasant odor. It is not often used as a medicine."

Lincecum's notations are all scientifically made, listing the class and order of each herb, its natural order, popular name, scientific name, family and species, and its medicinal effect.

Dry Leader Says Repeal Failure, Crime Increases

Bootlegging and Crime Show Increase Rather Than Decrease

"If on August 24th Texas votes to legalize liquor and on August 25 each citizen in Texas should begin to drink liquor and drink it daily for five years, Texas Democracy could degenerate into a drunken Mobocracy. Drunkenness and Democracy do not go hand in hand," according to Rev. E. A. Maness, Panhandle District Chairman of the Texas League Against Whiskey, who is leading in a vigorous campaign against repeal in Texas on August 24.

Mr. Maness said: "The Call of the Hour is a call to vote against repeal because repeal has failed. Three years ago the wets said vote for national repeal, and that national repeal would decrease taxes. But Congress is now voting to raise taxes higher than at any time in the close of the World War.

"The wets said vote for the repeal of the 18th amendment in order to decrease our national indebtedness. But in three years after national repeal the national debt has been increased to the amount of $14,000,000,000.

"The wets said vote for repeal and bring about real temperance and decrease drunkenness. But drinking and drunkenness has doubled since we voted to repeal the 18th amendment.

"The wets said vote for repeal and decrease bootlegging. We voted for repeal all right but the treasury department of the U. S. says that bootlegging has increased. A statement was recently given to the press of the nation that more bootleg liquor is being sold in America at this time than legal liquor. More than half of the liquor being drunk in America today is being illegally sold, according to the report of the Federal government. Just to the extent that a state licenses the sale of liquor it increases bootlegging, because where liquor is legally sold it is well nigh impossible to catch and convict a bootlegger for selling it.

"The wets said vote for repeal and save the boys and girls from drink. But in place of saving our boys and girls from drink, repeal has made bar tenders and bar maids of them. Half of the wine, beer and liquor that is being sold in America today, it is said, is being sold to boys and girls between the ages of 14 and 21. Under the regime of repeal, liquor is becoming more damnation to their environment than the time saloon bar.

"Do not be misled by the pleas of the wets, like that made by C. L. Wakefield, chairman of the Dallas county repeal forces, in the Dallas News of Sunday, July 21. He says: 'Revenue to be gained from the millions of dollars worth of liquor now being sold in the state would enable us to have our burdens eased.' National repeal has not eased anybody's tax burden. Any man or woman who is bootlegging liquor in Texas today will bootleg it after the election.

"If Texas votes for repeal and loses $10,000,000 as a liquor tax, then take $20,000,000 in taxes to enforce the new liquor laws for the added increase in crime bill of the state, and the accidental loss of life and property. Repeal means to increase in place of decreasing them. Illustration of this is seen in states of New York and Kansas. New York collects more liquor than any state in the nation, has at this time a $90,000,000 budget, a dry state, the first in the union, has balanced state budget and lowered its ote against repeal, for repeal failed to decrease automobile accidents. 5000 more people are killed annually in automobile accidents than when we had the amendment," said Maness.

PROPOSED AMENDMENTS to the Constitution of Texas, to be voted on August 24th

(Editor's Note: This is the second of a series in which The Leader will publish explanations of seven proposed amendments, which will be voted upon by the people of Texas on Saturday, August 24th. The articles were written by Gerald C. Mann, secretary of state, and are presented merely as general explanations of the contents of the proposed amendments, and are not presented in such a manner as to influence the opinions of voters. The idea of the articles is for people to cast their ballots as they choose—but to present a clear content of each proposed amendment in common, everyday language. The articles will be published each week until the series is concluded.)

PROPOSED AMENDMENT NO. 3

Probably chief interest in the August 24th election on the seven proposed Constitutional Amendments will center on Proposition Number 3 on the ballot—the repeal of Prohibition, according to Secretary of State Gerald C. Mann.

The Constitution, at present, prohibits the sale, manufacture and transportation of alcoholic liquors (except 3.2 beer). This prohibition would be stricken out by adoption of the Repeal Amendment.

The proposed amendment specifically prohibits the return of the open saloon—and it would be up to the Legislature to define the term "open saloon."

No machinery is set up for the sale of liquor. The legislature would have the authority to determine just who and just how liquor is to be sold. This could be done by State monopoly or through private channels. The legislature would have the authority to pass laws regulating local option elections.

If the amendment is adopted all counties and precincts that were dry in 1919 when state-wide prohibition was adopted would be dry now—at least until local option elections were held to determine otherwise.

It is well to remember, Secretary Mann pointed out, that there will be an election next year in November to determine whether the State shall sell liquor through a State Monopoly system. If the repeal amendment is adopted in August the State MAY establish a state control and monopoly system. If the repeal amendment is defeated in August, it will in effect be submitted again in November, 1936, in the State Monopoly Amendment which says the State SHALL have a liquor monopoly. To retain the present dry status both the August 24th Amendment and the November 1936 Amendment must be defeated. Passage of either will repeal the present prohibition section of the Constitution.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT NO. 4

At present the Legislature can submit proposed changes in the Constitution only at regular sessions—held every 2 years.

Proposal Number four on the ballot for the August 24th election would revise the Constitution to permit the submission of amendments at special sessions. It is pointed out that in emergency cases, particularly on relief matters, that it might be necessary for Texas voters to vote on an emergency measure at a time, when the regular session of the Legislature is quite far distant in the future.

The original purpose of the provision which makes submission possible only at regular sessions, was to make the fundamental law hard to amend and change. Two schools of thought are at variance here. The one believing that the Constitution should be easy to change—particularly in emergency cases, and the other that every safeguard should be placed around it to make it difficult to change.

If the proposed amendment is adopted the legislature in any special session can submit proposed amendments to the voters—provided such amendments are submitted by the Governor for the Legislature's consideration. If the amendment is rejected the present system will obtain; that is, constitutional amendments can be submitted to the people only at regular sessions of the legislature.

The 44th Legislature submitted thirteen amendments to the voters—seven in August of this year and six in November of 1936. These were all submitted during the regular session. Under the proposed change the 44th might yet submit additional amendments for the voter's consideration.

Owners Warned To Keep Stock Off Highways

District Engineer Lists Dangers Of Allowing Stock On Roads

By J. B. NABERS
State Highway Division Engineer

During the past few years livestock roaming at large on the State Highways have become a dangerous menace to the traveling public. Because of carelessness and neglect of those who own or control such livestock, numerous accidents have resulted by reason of the collision with such livestock by automobiles lawfully operated upon the said highways, and a large number of people have been killed and others have been seriously injured as to be maimed for life. In addition, untold property damage has resulted.

The State Highway Department asks every citizen in this locality to cooperate with this department with the local peace officers and with the State Highway Patrol in the enforcement of the new stock law passed by the last legislature to the end that the State highways in this locality may be made more safe for the traveling public.

The Legislature of the State of Texas this year passed a law providing that any person owning or controlling any horse, mule, donkey, cow, bull, steer, hog, sheep, goat or any livestock, who permits the same to run at large unattended on that portion of any designated State highway in this state which is enclosed by fences on both sides shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. Each day such livestock are allowed or permitted to run at large is a separate offense. The punishment for each offense shall be a fine of any sum not more than Two Hundred Dollars ($200). The law further provides that State Highway Patrolmen as well as local Sheriffs and other local officers shall have the power to enforce said law.

This law will become effective on August 10, 1935, and thereafter will be strictly enforced upon the complaint of any citizen of Texas.

project must be passed on by district, state and federal boards. While more latitude is allowed in the purchase of materials under the new plan, the requirements are more rigid as to plans and specifications. It will require three weeks to one month to secure approval of plans after they have been completed.

R. W. Wallace, district engineer, advised the county and those political subdivisions who could afford to do so to hire an engineer to draw up plans and specifications. It was his opinion that such a course would be necessary if the county is to receive any substantial grants. As in the past, preference will be given those projects in which the local sponsors are putting up their own money to match the federal appropriations. As an instance, Samnorwood's gymnasium is expected to meet with quick approval due to the fact that the school district voted bonds Tuesday to match the federal money. The continuation of the street work in Wellington is also expected to meet with favor for the same reason.

It is believed, however, that many of the other projects in which the sponsors are spending only a small amount of their own money will eventually be approved.

$21 Monthly Wage

Practically all local sponsors who appeared before the planning board were perturbed over the uncertainty of keeping the work going forward regularly under the present ruling. The new set-up calls for the payment of $21 a month to each worker who will be worked 140 hours for that amount. It is believed that this figure will cause practically all the relief workers to quit the relief rolls as soon as cotton picking starts. And while this is exactly the set purpose of the WPA program, it also means that the sponsors of the projects will have no certainty as to how long the work can be continued at any one time. Relief workers who quit to accept work can be reinstated for WPA work as soon as their jobs play out. This means that little work will be done after cotton picking starts, but that plenty of labor will be available after February. When relief labor is insufficient, the project will be shut down. Mr. Wallace advised the board.

Collingsworth's planning board consists of Luther Gribble, Bud Manzer, Tobe Deahl, Deskins Wells, Floyd Thompson, T. C. Crabtree and Logan Cummings. Frank Coleman has been acting for T. C. Crabtree at recent meetings.

Those who met with the board Monday were: J. D. Hill, W. C. Ketner, M. F. Hunter, W. M. Davis, Chester Fires, Bura Handley and Miss Katherine Boverie.

lieved that his skull was possibly fractured.

He came to this section about 1895 and is remembered by many old timers who still reside here today. He reared his family in this section and 18 years ago moved to Texline, where he resides today. His two sons, Dave Walker and Benton Walker, still reside in this county and left Saturday following the arrival of the message announcing the accident; they were accompanied by Jess Deger.

Mr. Walker's brother, John Walker, also still resides in the Aberdeen community; his nephew, O. J. Walker, is assistant county agent, and he has two brothers, B. B. Walker and Smith Walker, who reside in Shamrock.

Mr. Walker sold his cattle interests here in 1917, when he left this county. He served as county commissioner, however, and was a director of the First National bank for a number of years.

open some time in the early part of the fall, will close near the end of the year, and will liquidate early in 1936. Therefore, the surplus certificate holders will be given assurance of a greater sale in event the cotton production estimates hold true through the next few months.

"The producers who did not sell through the national pool last year will be given a chance to sell this year along with certificates in the pool now. In event the producer predicts a cotton failure on his farm or farms, he will be permitted to enter all his certificates for sale in the pool, just as soon as it is open for buying and selling. The producer who buys or sells certificates this year will be governed absolutely by the regulations of the pool this year and will pay cash and receive cash at the rate of 5 cents per pound for all certificates bought or sold, and no certificates can be bought, transferred or sold unless it is handled by the county agent or assistant in the cotton adjustment."

Lee Roy, two. Junior Montague, S. A. Combs, Aaron Hurst and Jimmie Cochran were approved for Second Class Scouts at the session.

Bert Newman is scoutmaster of Troop 31, and Charles Crews is assistant. Joe Thompson is scoutmaster of troop 32, and Dewey Ellis is assistant.

who will receive checks at that time are those included in Group I, or farmers who had Corn-Hog contracts last year. Group II, and Group III signers, those who signed contracts for the first time in 1935, or made a change in their acreage and thereby changed their base, in all probability will not receive their checks before September.

"The corn compliance for Collingsworth county is to be completed by August 1, and any assistance the producer might render the supervisor in the measuring of his corn acreage will be to his interest and will expedite the clearing of his contract," workers said.

"The hog compliance will not be taken until December, but all contract signers should remember that they must have at least 25 per cent of their market base at the time the compliance is made, and also remember to keep a complete record of all hogs bought or sold in order that their record will be complete when the full compliance is taken in December."

the opening of the school in September of 1936.

Plans will be drawn for the new structure as soon as possible and application will be made for the additional WPA grant of $4,000. The grant has already been approved by the county planning board, but still has to go through state and federal channels for approval.

W. C. Ketner was elected to fill the unexpired term of E. W. Miller on the board of trustees in the Samnorwood Rural High School District. John Coleman was elected as secretary of the board.
