Dream deal

NEW YORK — Time Warner Inc. and Ted Turner's cable empire signed off on a $7.5 billion "dream deal" Friday that immediately ran into opposition from consumers and a phone company fearful of the media colossus that would result. Turner, the media maverick who created CNN, will become the No. 2 man at Time Warner when he sells Turner Broadcasting System Inc. in a stock swap that keeps Time Warner on top as the biggest media and entertainment company in the world. O.J. claims innocence, waives right to testify

■ Both sides announce they are resting their cases; Judge to instruct jurors in the law.

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — With his trial nearing its climax, O.J. Simpson rose in court Friday and seized the chance to tell the world, but not his jury: "I did not, could not and would not have committed this crime."

Then, 361 days after jury selection began, lawyers rested their cases and jurors in one of the most sensational murder trials in U.S.

history were read the law.

Exhibiting the confidence and aplomb he learned as a TV sportscaster, Simpson delivered a speech that seemed targeted to the court of public opinion.

Judge Lance Ito had asked Simpson to state for the record his decision not to testify in his own defense. Simpson's lawyers, ever mindful of the TV audience, maneuvered their client into a position to speak out.

Should the jury be unable to reach a decision, odds are that members of the next jury panel saw the statement.

Fall means football

Basin to warm up on first day of fall

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

The cold was chilling but not enough to freeze things up just before dawn on Friday when a new record low temperature of 42 degrees for Sept. 22 was established at the National Weather Service at Midland International Airport.

The temperature dip, which was a 20-plus-degree variance from the previous morning, was credited to an "Arctic outbreak" driven south by air masses.

"I will sure be glad when summer gets here," Midland farmer Vernon Chandler said, who noted that the cold front was unseasonably early and summoned his overcoat.

"I guess that's all right," he said of the cold, which had threatened to bring in a frost in the Texas Panhandle and High Plains. "It will get us (farmers) out of misery in this

Air Force plane crashes, burns, kills all aboard

ELMENDORF AIR FORCE BASE, Alaska (AP) — A huge AWACS battlefield-radar plane carrying 24 military personnel crashed and burned on takeoff Friday, killing everyone aboard.

The bodies of 22 crew members were found, and searchers were looking for the remains of the other two Friday evening, said Maj. Jerome Brown, an Air Force spokesman at the base.

It was the first crash of an Airborne Warning and Control System plane since the Air Force began using them in 1977.

A source speaking on condition of anonymity said the crash may have been caused by about a dozen Canada geese found dead at the departure end of the runway. The Air Force would not speculate on a cause, and said a board of officers would investigate.

The plane exploded on impact about two miles from the end of the runway, deep in the woods and inaccessible to fire engines. Rescuers had to bulldoze a path to the site, which was marked by a plume of smoke that could be seen 30 miles away.

Charges claim wife wired murder-for-hire cash over state lines

By Tonie Miller-Uzzel
Staff writer

Federal murder-for-hire charges were filed late Thursday against an alleged hit man and the woman who reportedly hired him to kill her husband, according to the local supervisor for the FBI.

Nancy Malkiewicz, 40, and Jerald D. "Bo" Underwood, 19, are also charged with attempted murder in state court for the Aug. 24 shooting of Ms. Malkiewicz's husband, Stanley Malkiewicz.

Malkiewicz was shot about 9 p.m. Aug. 24 while standing in his driveway at 6008 FM Road 307 in Greenwood. Malkiewicz, a geologist, transferred to Midland from Houston a few months ago.

Ms. Malkiewicz was arrested in Houston the day after the shooting.

Mother's confession

23-year-old admits she killed 3 of her 5 children

HOUSTON (AP) — A 23-year-old woman was charged with murder Friday after confessing to the suffocation and drowning deaths of three infant sons between 1986 and 1990, the first when she was only 14.

Claudette Kibble was charged only with the February 1990 suffocation death of 9-month-old Quinten Kibble since she was a legal adult at the time of that child's death, authorities said.

The woman was not charged with capital murder because the state law that allows such a charge for killing young children did not go into effect until 1993.

Investigators had long suspected foul play in the deaths of Quinten, the 1988 death of 8-month-old Edward and the 1986 death of 1-year-old Joshua, a child born when Ms. Kibble was 13.

But they couldn't prove the mother was responsible until this week, when Ms. Kibble confessed to her mother, Beverly Dupree, who contacted authorities.

Police said Ms. Kibble on Tuesday admit-

Bosnian government demands demilitarization of Banja Luka

BANJA LUKA, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — The Bosnian government, its offensive on this Serb stronghold stalled, demanded Friday that the city be demilitarized as a step toward a permanent peace treaty.

The call came from Foreign Minister Muhamed Sacirbey as he staked out his position for talks next week in New York with the foreign ministers of Croatia and Serbia, which is negotiating for the Bosnian Serbs rebels.

2 Americans hurt in rescue attempts, NATO officials say

NAPLES, Italy (AP) — The reconnaissance photo was dramatic: a man standing alone in the woods of Bosnia, near a road, pointing to a small clearing.

Drawn into the dirt of the clearing was the crude outline of an aircraft, and the letters E, B and two 3s — part of the call sign of two French fighter pilots shot down Aug. 30 by Bosnian Serbs.

The possibility that the scene was a desperate attempt by the French fliers to signal for a rescue sent NATO commando teams into action three times this month aboard armor-plated helicopters. NATO revealed Friday. But bad weather and Serb gunfire foiled the missions, leaving two American servicemen wounded and the French pilots' whereabouts still unknown.

NATO is pressing its efforts to rescue the fighter pilots, U.S. Adm. Leighton Smith, the alliance's commander for southern Europe, said Friday at a news conference.

The search parties went into action Sept. 6, 7 and 8. The first two attempts were hampered by bad weather and met with some small arms fire, Smith told reporters in Naples.

A barrage of bullets forced the third to turn back in the darkness after 30 minutes over the area. Bullets or metal shards from the fusillade struck the two American crewmen in the leg.

NATO is pressing its efforts to rescue the fighter pilots, U.S. Adm. Leighton Smith, the alliance's commander for southern Europe, said Friday at a news conference.

They continued carrying out their duties despite their wounds, Smith said. NATO warplanes returned fire.

One crewman suffered a "grazing wound" to the knee by a piece of shrapnel and has returned to active duty. The other had a piece of shrapnel embedded in his thigh and was convalescing.

Both are back in the United States at Eglin Air Force base in Hurlburt, Fla. Neither was identified.

The French Mirage 2000 was shot down at the outset of NATO's bombing campaign against the Bosnian Serbs.

A strange scene emerged after intelligence experts examined a photograph from a German reconnaissance plane, said U.S. Navy Capt. Mark Van Dyke, a NATO spokesman.

"In the clearing, there appeared to be a crudely drawn outline of an aircraft, and other figures that appeared to be similar to a call sign of the aircraft," he said. The radio call sign was EBRO 33, and the figures E, B and two 3s apparently could be made out.

"There was potential those symbols could have been drawn by the airmen," Van Dyke said.

Smith said the photograph was part of "convincing evidence" that it was worth sending in rescue teams. No voice contact was made with the French airman, unlike the case of U.S. airman Scott O'Grady, who was plucked out of Bosnia in a dramatic rescue in June after evading Bosnian Serbs for six days.

The United States has no ground troops in Bosnia but participates in NATO air raids and other alliance operations there.

Fifteen or 16 people were on each of the U.S. helicopters, including U.S. Air Force and Army personnel and French air force representatives, Smith said.

France says the pilots are in Serb hands, and Yugoslavia says they are safe but their whereabouts are unknown. Yugoslavia's foreign minister, Milan Milutinovic, said Friday in Paris that one of the pilots had broken a leg.

A farmer in the town of Gornja Sjetina, in the Serb-held area near where the Mirage was believed to have been downed, claimed he captured the fliers and turned them over to Serb police.

"I have no evidence to confirm or deny where these pilots might be right now," Smith said. "It would be a humanitarian gesture, if these pilots are alive, to consign them as soon as possible."

The helicopters used in the rescue mission are modified versions of the HH-60 Super Jolly helicopter used extensively during the Vietnam War.

The armor-plated craft is the Air Force's largest and most powerful helicopter.

It will be the first high-level meeting of the parties to Bosnia's war since they agreed in principle Sept. 8 to divide Bosnia under a U.S.-sponsored peace plan.

Since then, more pieces of an eventual settlement have fallen into place — rebel Serbs have removed their heaviest weapons from around Sarajevo and relinquished territory with little resistance to an assault by the Muslim-led government and its Croatian allies in northwestern Bosnia.

Those losses should make negotiations on land division easier. The peace plan calls for 51 percent of Bosnia to go to the Muslim-led government and allied Bosnian Croats and 49 percent to the Bosnian Serbs. Bosnian Serbs once held about 70 percent of the country, but now have only about 50 percent.

Yugoslav Foreign Minister Milan Milutinovic on Friday suggested a possible breakthrough over Sarajevo, coveted by both the Serbs besieging it and the government forces controlling most of it.

He said in Paris that Sarajevo should remain whole and that "there should be no Berlin Wall" dividing the Muslim and Serb areas, adding that Bosnian Serbs would be content to have outlying suburbs they control integrated into surrounding Serb-held areas.

Underwood was arrested there a few days later. Both remain jailed in lieu of bond. Ms. Malkiewicz's bond has been set at $500,000 and Underwood's at $1 million.

The Malkiewiczes had been married for 18 years and have two daughters, ages 15 and 17, a court official said.

The federal complaint alleges that Ms. Malkiewicz used Western Union to transfer money over state lines to Underwood as consideration for the intended murder of Malkiewicz.

FBI Supervisor Tom Kirspele said conviction of a murder-for-hire charge carries a maximum sentence of 20 years in prison.

Kirspele said the FBI assisted the Midland County Sheriff's Office in this investigation.

Ms. Malkiewicz appeared Friday morning before 142nd District Court Judge Jody Gilles to request a bond reduction. Her husband, who filed for divorce following the shooting, has frozen their assets, she said.

Hal Brockett and David Rogers are representing Ms. Malkiewicz in her divorce proceedings and the bond hearing. Rogers said their representation of Ms. Malkiewicz in the state and federal criminal charges are subject to change.

318th District Court Judge Dean Rucker signed an order preventing Ms. Malkiewicz from any access to the couple's money without a judge's order.

No decision was made and the hearing will continue, possibly some time next week because Malkiewicz's physician said that his patient was not ready physically or emotionally to testify.

Brockett called the bond "oppressive." Rogers patted Ms. Malkiewicz on the back as she quietly sobbed during the proceeding.

Testimony revealed that the district attorney's office is investigating the Malkiewicz daughters as possible suspects in the case.

Rusty Wall, an attorney representing one of the daughters, testified that the girl had been hospitalized at Glenwood for suicidal tendencies. He said from the information he has gathered, Ms. Malkiewicz is not a physical threat to the girl, but is not a good influence on her.

He said the girls are staying with their grandparents and father.

CONFESS: Mother admits she killed children

(From 1A)

ted to drowning Joshua and Edward and suffocating Quinten with a pillow. Sgt. Dave Ferguson refused to discuss further details of the confession, including any motive the mother might have given.

Ms. Kibble, who already was in custody on a charge of attempting to strangle a fourth son, 2-year-old Calvin, appeared Friday before state District Judge Ted Poe. Poe ordered that she undergo a psychiatric evaluation to determine if she is fit to stand trial.

Calvin and his 6-year-old sister, Quintenett, have been in custody of Texas Child Protective Services since July 1994, after Ms. Kibble took Calvin to LBJ Hospital.

CPS spokesman Judy Hay said her department has tried to intervene in the case since before Quinten's death, when it became apparent that the deaths were not natural.

But without a ruling of murder from the medical examiner's office, little could be done, she said.

"I want you to know this is horrifying. It's a living nightmare," Hay said. "From the very beginning we were suspicious. Without evidence, particularly a medical examiner's report, the hands begin to be tied."

Ms. Kibble had taken all the children to hospitals, claiming they were suffering from seizures. The Harris County medical examiner's office ruled that two of the deaths were caused by seizures and left the third cause of death undetermined.

Cecil Wingo, chief investigator for the medical examiner's office, said his office reopened the case several times since 1990 at the request of prosecutors. But the children bore no outward signs of abuse that would allow officials to prove Ms. Kibble had harmed them, Wingo said.

"We knew that something was wrong. We just didn't know where to go to find out," said Wingo. "We don't have a crystal ball."

The causes of death were all changed to murder based on Ms. Kibble's confession. Wingo said autopsy findings were consistent with murder all along, but there wasn't enough evidence to prove it.

Wingo has authorized an internal probe to determine whether the case could have been cracked sooner, but he believes the medical examiner's office performed well.

RECORD: Today to be in upper-70s year's (paltry) crop. In this country, if you are going to farm, you have always got to be optimistic about next year's crop.

(From 1A)

Though the temperature dropped low enough for a record-low reading, it was 10 degrees shy of freezing in Midland.

But the timing for an early freeze was about a month off.

The earliest killing frost on record in Midland came on Oct. 19, 1969. And the average date for autumn's first killing frost is Nov. 9.

The previous record low for Sept. 22 was 46 degrees in 1972, according to the weatherman.

Sept. 23's record low temperature of 45 degrees in 1994 may be overturned in today's pre-dawn hour.

But a warming trend would seem to nix a record-setter for Sunday, when the low temperature is to drop to the low-to-mid 50s. The record low temperature for Sept. 24 is 36 degrees set in 1969.

Tonight's low temperature is to be in the 50s.

So far this month, 1.71 inches of rainfall have been registered at the National Weather Service station in Midland. There is almost an inch to go to catch up with the average monthly rainfall.

September's average rainfall, computed over a 30-year period, is 2.62 inches for Midland, the weatherman said. The year's runner-up rainy month, May, averages 1.98 inches.

The rainfall so far this month has helped to "green up" the rangeland and to fill out cotton bolls.

"The rain will help make them (bolls) a little bigger and heavier," Chandler said.

Even so, "I guess we won't spend a lot of time going to the gin this year."

But as dry as much of this dryland cotton country has been this year, an occasional rainfall is "kind of like pouring water on a hot stove," said Chandler, who has been farming in Midland County since 1951. "It doesn't stay down long."

The year's average rainfall for Midland is 14.96 inches. So far this year, 10.06 inches of falling moisture have been gauged at the weather station.

Rain, at least a 20 percent chance, is in the forecast for Sunday when showers or thunderstorms may pass through the Midland area.

Otherwise, Sunday's high temperature is to be near 80 degrees.

STATE

It was mostly clear and cold across North Texas on Friday, while clouds lingered in other regions in the wake of a Canadian front that dropped temperatures to record levels before sweeping into the Gulf of Mexico.

Corpus Christi's high of 60 broke the record low maximum of 77 degrees set back in 1918. Del Rio's 48 degrees was colder than the record low for the date, 55 degrees set in 1983. And El Paso's low of 47 surpassed the previous record low temperature of 48 set in 1972.

The North Texas forecast is for partly cloudy skies and warmer temperatures Saturday with a high from 70 northeast to 75 west. Increasing cloudiness Saturday night with a low in the 50s. Mostly cloudy Sunday and Sunday night. A slight chance of rain west and central. High Sunday in the 70s and a low Sunday night in the 50s.

The forecast for South Texas is for partly cloudy skies Saturday with highs in the 70s. Lows in the 40s and 50s.

POLICE REPORTS

Robbery

Midland police are continuing their investigation into a Thursday-night robbery in which a 5-foot-8 armed black man, masked in a blue stocking cap with red trim around the eye holes, held up The Casual Male Big & Tall store at 4410 Midkiff Road and robbed the store's two clerks, according to police reports.

The holdup man, brandishing a blue-steel semi-automatic pistol, forced the store's employee to lie on the floor, compelled another employee to lock the store's front door, opened the cash register and then took an undetermined amount of money, according to Midland police spokesman Sgt. David Garcia.

Afterward, the robber forced an employee to unlock the store's back door, got him to lie down and then kicked him twice on the leg and rib cage.

The man then fled the business by way of the back door. He was wearing a gray quilted jacket and either black or navy-blue pants.

The robbery occurred about 7:21 p.m.

REST: Simpson claims innocence, won't take stand

(From 1A)

Simpson said. "As much as I would like to address some of the misrepresentations about myself, and my Nicole, and our life together, I am mindful of the mood and the stamina of this jury."

"I have confidence, a lot more it seems than Miss Clark has, of their integrity and that they will find as the record stands now, that I did not, could not and would not have committed this crime."

Prosecutor Marcia Clark, suggesting a defense plan to manipulate public opinion and perhaps send a message to jurors through their families, had implored the judge not to let Simpson speak.

"This is an attempt to get testimony before the jury without cross-examination," Clark said. "Please don't do this, your honor. I beg you."

He assented to defense attorney Johnnie Cochran Jr.'s plea that "he has a right to speak to the waiver. They can't stop him."

But as Simpson began to talk about his children and how much he misses them, the judge cut him off.

"I have four kids. Two kids I haven't seen in a year. They ask me every week, 'Dad, how much longer... before this trial is over?'"

BURN: Air Force plane crashes killing at least 19

(From 1A)

"Just as he got wheels up, the front left engine started popping and I could see fire shooting out the end," Clay Wallace, an Air National Guard captain who was at Elmendorf Air Force Base, told radio station KENI.

"I said, 'Where the hell did he go?' and all of a sudden down he went in a huge fireball."

The plane, loaded to capacity with 125,000 pounds of fuel, mowed down 200 birch trees as it hit the ground, clearing a black scar 300 yards long and 150 yards wide in the forest.

From a helicopter flying 300 feet overhead, the AWACS looked like metal confetti on the forest floor. The only recognizable pieces were a 6-foot section of fuselage with yellow insulation still attached and the scorched shell of one engine.

The smell of burning forest lingered in the air several hours after the crash.

About two dozen searchers were picking through rubble for remains of the two missing crew members. The Air Force was notifying families of the dead, Brown said at news conference at the base, 10 miles north of Anchorage.

The four-engine E-3B AWACS plane, a $180 million modified Boeing 707 laden with sophisticated radar and other electronic surveillance gear, had set out just after daybreak on a training mission with 22 Americans and two Canadians, the Air Force said.

President Clinton, visiting San Diego, issued a statement expressing his condolences.

"Their loss reminds us how much we owe those who serve our nation's armed forces," Clinton said. "Our hearts and prayers go out to the families, friends and loved ones of those who were killed both in the United States and in Canada."

John Suggs, a member of the P-51 Mustang Pilots Association and his wife, Alice, visited the Confederate Air Force museum Friday.

Pilots salute P-51 Mustang, remember fallen comrades

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

World War II American pilots who flew the revered North American Aviation P-51 Mustang in the war saluted what they deem as the war's premier fighter and commemorated their lost comrades on Friday in the P-51 Mustang Pilots Association's commemorative ceremony at the Confederate Air Force headquarters at Midland International Airport.

"I would like to commemorate everybody who took part (in the war) and everybody who didn't come back (home)," Pete Hardiman, president of the P-51 Mustang Pilots Association, said in a dedication ceremony minutes before three restored P-51s roared overhead in a missing-man formation to honor fallen pilots.

Hardiman, who lives in Oregon, noted that the war's end in 1945 was a "monumental year for most of us in World War II."

"One way or the other, we got home. We know that many of our buddies didn't make it."

About 80 former P-51 pilots of the 1,000-member P-51 Mustang Pilots Association are in Midland this weekend for the association's annual meeting.

"We are here today, in part, to thank God that we are here and to thank God that those buddies of ours did what they did to help us get the job done," Hardiman said. "Without them and without the WASPs (Women's Airforce Service Pilots), for example, we wouldn't have made it."

Otherwise, the war, which raged in Europe from late 1939 until mid-1945, "would have been a long, drawn-out procedure that probably we would have never gotten through."

At CAF headquarters, the P-51 Mustang Pilots Association dedicated a plaque in honor of the "valiant" pilots who flew the long-range fighter and to thank the CAF for preserving examples of the P-51 and other Allied World War II warplanes.

Louise Brown, the P-51 group's chaplain who now lives in Kentucky, ferried the Mustang and other American warplanes in getting them into combat zones.

The P-51 was "probably the most effective fighter airplane the U.S. had," she said.

Col. Frank J. Grenon, the 74-year-old Mustang pilot who founded the P-51 association in 1980, piloted the P-40 Warhawk and the Republic P-47 Thunderbolt in the Mediterranean. Later, he was dispatched to England to fly the P-51, which was the war's primary fighter for escorting Boeing B-17 Flying Fortresses and Consolidated B-24 Liberators on raids into German-occupied Europe.

The Mustang's versatility, particularly as a long-range fighter escort, convinced the Luftwaffe's Hermann Goering that "war was lost" and he so told a disbelieving Adolf Hitler, Der Fuehrer.

Col. Larry March, the P-51 group's vice president who flew B-24 bombers until the war in Europe was over and then flew the Mustang, said that he is endeared to the Mustang.

"My first love is the '51," March said. "You strap it on. Chuck Yeager says the same thing. It's like riding a horse. You are integral to the equipment."

The Mustang's legendary performance at low and high altitudes was launched after the aircraft's American-built Allison engine was replaced with the more powerful British-designed Rolls-Royce power plant.

Like most of his comrades, March, who now lives in Florida, "doesn't fly any more." His eye sight is waning.

"After all, most of these guys are in the third-quarter of the game (of life)," March mused, "and they are all hoping to go into overtime. They are perpetual optimists. We have fabulous camaraderie."

Bert McDowell, a Texan who lives in the Dallas area, was on his 55th mission with the United States Army Air Forces' England-based Eighth Air Force in 1945 when he was shot out of the sky by ground fire while he was strafing a German air field, was captured, and held captive by the enemy.

"It (flying in the war) was a lot of fun until that happened, and when that happened, it was a different ball game," McDowell said, reflecting.

When he wasn't escorting Allied bombers deep into Europe, McDowell, like his fellow pilots, had been "shooting up target of opportunities: air fields, locomotives, radar sites, communications centers, oil tanks - (German) military targets."

Until he was shot down and held as a prisoner of war, McDowell said that he "didn't realize how precious freedom was." Following Victory in Europe in 1945, "Some of us got our freedom back," McDowell said. Others, many fallen comrades, did not return home from the war.

Mediators win backstage victories in wartorn world

By Charles J. Hanley
Associated Press

The guys with the guns get on prime time. But Amhadou Abdullah and Mohamed Sahnoun are winning battles too — quiet, backstage victories for peace in a war-torn world.

As the bloody 1990s wear on, Sahnoun, Abdullah and other specialists in international "preventive diplomacy" are fanning out to trouble spots early, to reason, cajole and pressure, to try to keep the map from growing bloodier still.

Jimmy Carter is the best-known of these peacemakers, a veteran of Haiti and North Korea who this week launched a Cuba mediation effort. But more obscure envoys are taking on challenges just as explosive as those the ex-president tries to defuse.

In just three years, the new U.N. Department of Political Affairs has become the hub for a platoon of globe-trotting conciliators.

Unofficial mediators are proliferating, too: One list counts two dozen groups dedicated to international conflict prevention, from Carter's high-powered International Negotiation Network down to church organizations.

Like so much else in today's world, the growth in preventive diplomacy began with the Cold War's end.

For decades, U.S. and Soviet diplomats did the preventive work, stoking and cooling world hot spots to suit their needs. When superpower rivalry faded but small-scale conflict did not, a law of diplomatic supply and demand kicked in: Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali rushed to fill the gap, establishing Political Affairs and declaring preventive diplomacy "the most important issue facing us today."

His and other mediators, though often overshadowed by such debates as Bosnia, Somalia and Rwanda, have logged thousands of miles and a growing list of successes.

Just this month, U.N. envoy Cyrus Vance, former secretary of state, brokered a deal easing tensions between the former Yugoslav republic of Macedonia and its neighbor Greece. On Macedonia's northern border, U.S. and other troops are "preventively" deployed under the U.N. flag to guard against a spillover of ethnic violence from Serbia.

In Burundi, central Africa, where Hutu-Tutsi violence threatens to explode into genocide like Rwanda's, Mauritanian diplomat Abdullah has won the trust of all sides as his eight-member U.N. team has helped keep the lid on for the past 22 months.

In Congo in 1993, Sahnoun, an Algerian diplomat dispatched by the Organization of African Unity, helped avert an ethnic war over disputed election results.

That same year, the secretary-general of the Organization of American States, Joao Baena Soares, flew to Guatemala and helped peacefully undo an anti-democratic coup.

Quiet backroom diplomacy by U.N. officials, also in 1993, led Estonian and Russian leaders to back down at the 11th hour in a dangerous face-off over Russian minority rights in the Baltic state.

A scholar of preventive diplomacy, Michael S. Lund, said Estonia showed the effectiveness of the diplomatic full-court press:

Carter, U.S. senators, European envoys all communicated their concerns to the two sides.

"When you have a critical mass of outside parties like that, all wanting a peaceful resolution, it seems to weigh in as a kind of pressure on the parties to work it out," said Lund, of Washington's U.S. Institute of Peace.

Another winning ingredient: the ability big powers have, and through them the United Nations, to threaten sanctions or promise financial aid to keep a costly war from breaking out.

The experts' next candidate for a full-court press: Nigeria, where the military keeps democracy shackled.

Skeptics say preventive diplomacy is being oversold. The hard cases will simply not submit, says Stephen John Stedman, an Africa specialist at Johns Hopkins University.

"The humanitarian tragedies of today were caused mainly by leaders who were interested in neither reaching nonviolent resolutions to conflicts nor making concessions," Stedman wrote recently.

But some skeptics may be coming around.

The Wall Street Journal's conservative editorial page this week noted that "we generally frown" on international mediation, but went on to suggest the time has come to try the U.N. hand at breaking the India-Pakistan impasse over Kashmir.

Marrack Goulding, the U.N. undersecretary-general who heads Political Affairs, sounds realistic about the global challenges.

"The problem with preventive action is that it's almost the norm that one or another of the parties to the conflict ... don't want the United Nations or some other international organization to get involved," he said in an interview.

Failures crowd the map, including Somalia, where U.N. mediator James Jonah made little headway in trying to avert catastrophe in

Goulding, a seasoned British diplomat, is strengthening his staff's abilities to analyze far-off political crises, and is expanding a database of available diplomats and others with special skills for special problems.

Setbacks are inevitable in the business of preventive diplomacy, he said, "but there's much to be said in its favor. ... It can save a lot of lives."

Prosecutors to file charges in Japan exposure case

TOKYO (AP) — The American military swallowed a double dose of embarrassment Friday as prosecutors prepared to file charges against a sailor for allegedly exposing himself to a schoolgirl and hundreds of women protested the alleged rape of a 12-year-old by three servicemen.

Both cases aggravated the often-high tension between Japanese and the 45,000 U.S. servicemen stationed in their country.

Nagasaki's deputy police chief Kunitoshi Horie said the indecent exposure case against the sailor had been sent to prosecutors. Under the Japanese system, that means charges must be filed within 30 days or dropped, but cases are rarely sent to prosecutors unless there is strong evidence for charges.

Horie said the sailor is assigned to the USS Blue Ridge and that the alleged incident occurred last Saturday during a port call of the flagship of the 7th Fleet.

The sailor is being held at the U.S. naval base in Sasebo, 600 miles southwest of Tokyo. A security agreement allows U.S. authorities to hold servicemen accused of off-base crimes until local prosecutors file charges.

On Okinawa, the island that is one of the United States' most important Pacific military outposts, the protesting women decried the rape and called for U.S. withdrawal.

"If you're a human being, it should be obvious that you don't do such a thing," Chizu Akamine, chairwoman of the Okinawa Women's Association, told the protesters.

U.S. military officials say Americans on Okinawa have received threats of violence since the rape case first came to light last week. The girl was raped Sept. 4, police say.

The three servicemen accused in the rape are being held in a military jail on Okinawa. Authorities have been granting Japanese investigators access to them.

Russian soldiers force power company to keep the juice flowing — at gunpoint

■ Electricity was cut to a nuclear submarine base because the company, Kolenergo, says the Russian Northern Fleet owes it $4.5 million.

Associated Press

MOSCOW — It's the sort of thing many a beleaguered bill-payer has probably dreamed of doing: Getting a gun and making the electric company turn the power back on.

Russia's Northern Fleet sent heavily armed sailors to do just that after the power was cut to one of its nuclear submarine bases, saying it had to act to prevent an "emergency" situation.

This week's "power struggle" was but the latest in a series of similar incidents nationwide, reflecting just how cash-strapped Russia's military has become since the 1991 Soviet collapse.

The central command of the Strategic Rocket Forces, which control Russia's intercontinental ballistic missiles, and a base used for space launches both had their electricity cut off in the past year because of overdue bills.

State electric companies even cut power to a flight control center in southern Russia last year while dozens of planes, including President Yeltsin's, were in the air.

The military newspaper, Krasnaya Zvezda (Red Star), ran an outraged story on its front page Friday saying Russia's strategic forces are so desperate for cash that they hire out soldiers for menial work like digging potatoes.

As a result, it said, some nuclear missile sites are so short-handed that crews often work double shifts, spending 18 days at a stretch at their underground posts instead of nine.

'The fact that military people can come to our premises and dictate their terms at gunpoint causes great indignation and anxiety. They'll still have to pay for electricity. Their bills are enormous. We have to settle this one way or another.'

— Viktor Krivtsov, spokesman for Kolenergo

News reports said power was cut off to the Northern Fleet several times over the past few days, leaving several aging subs without outside power. The on-board cooling system on one failed and its reactors were in danger of overheating, according to the reports.

The navy later hotly denied there was any danger of a nuclear accident.

But fleet spokesman Vladimir Kondriyenko said Friday that "switching off the power for even a few minutes can cause an emergency." He refused to elaborate.

The silver-haired fleet commander, Adm. Oleg Yerofeyev, told Russian television that he considered the local power authority's action to be "an act of sabotage."

The company, Kolenergo, said it turned off the juice because the fleet owes it $4.5 million.

Heavily armed sailors in bullet-proof vests showed up Thursday at two substations and forced the duty engineers to switch on the juice — at gunpoint.

The fleet also took over all the electrical substations serving its nuclear installations on the Kola Peninsula, which lies above the Arctic Circle on Russia's borders with Finland and Norway.

Kondriyenko refused to comment on the substation takeovers, calling them "a military secret."

"It's true the fleet owes the company a lot of money," he admitted in a telephone interview.

"But almost every state-run organization, including the military, has some debts."

A spokesman for Kolenergo, Viktor Krivtsov, said the power company filed a written protest with the fleet command.

"The fact that military people can come to our premises and dictate their terms at gunpoint causes great indignation and anxiety," he said. "They'll still have to pay for electricity. Their bills are enormous. We have to settle this one way or another."

Since 1992, there have been 16 cases of power being cut to military installations for non-payment of bills. In each case, the power was eventually turned back on after at least a partial payment was made.

In one case in the Far East, a base commander used a tank to get his power back on quicker.

Defense officials say the state treasury is often months behind in disbursing funds. The military has lobbied for a ban on power cutoffs to strategic installations without success.

"These troubles are not the fleet's fault," Kondriyenko said. "The government owes us a lot of money."

Senate GOP plan calls for rise in Medicare deductible

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress' fierce Medicare debate spilled across the Capitol on Friday as Democrats staged a protest hearing in the rain and Senate Republicans proposed gradually raising the eligibility age from 65 to 67.

Under the Senate GOP plan, seniors would be required to pay the first $150 in doctor bills next year — up from the current $100 deductible — with annual increases of $10 through 2002. That would bring the deductible to $210 that year.

"We know that if the Republicans would only drop their trickle-down tax breaks, they simply wouldn't need to ravage Medicare," said House Minority Leader Dick Gephardt, presiding over the soggy outdoor session.

But Speaker Newt Gingrich said the Democrats had nothing constructive to offer. "Instead of meeting in a room and doing the hard work of trying to save our parents and our grandparents and make sure their Medicare is okay, all they've got are press conferences and a great deal of nasty attacks," he said on NBC's "Today" program.

Undeterred by the criticism, Republicans pressed ahead with other elements of their plan to balance the budget over seven years.

The House Commerce Committee passed legislation that would force $182 billion in savings from Medicaid and end the federal guarantee of health care for the poor and disabled. Only one Democrat voted in favor of the GOP plan to convert the program to a "block grant" to be run by the states.

"We are on the verge of transforming the fastest-growing entitlement program in America," said Rep. Thomas J. Bliley, Jr., chairman of the panel.

But Rep. Henry Waxman, D-Calif., protested that without the federal guarantees in place, the number of Americans without health insurance could skyrocket to 80 million.

Republicans on the Senate Finance Committee detailed their blueprint for saving $270 billion from Medicare over seven years. It is similar to the proposal backed by Gingrich in the House, but differs in certain key aspects.

The Senate Finance Committee plan would raise Medicare Part B premiums — for doctor and other non-hospital care — for all seniors faster than current law, and would require wealthier beneficiaries to pay up to three times as much. That's in keeping with the House proposal.

The House would leave the current $100 deductible untouched while the Senate would raise it to $150.

The Senate plan had a surprise: boosting the eligibility age in steps from 65 to 67 between 2003 and 2027, as full Social Security eligibility rises. As a result, everyone born since 1938 would have to wait longer for Medicare; those born since 1960 would have to wait until age 67.

The Senate plan also would allow seniors to pocket up to 75 percent of the savings in cash if they joined health maintenance organizations or other plans that cost Medicare less. That is a more generous rebate provision than the House version.

Senate aides said their plan looks to save $70 billion from beneficiaries, $50 billion by encouraging seniors to move to private health plans and $150 billion from providers.

Elsewhere: ■ The Senate Governmental Affairs Committee approved $9.8 billion in deficit cuts, including an increase in the contribution that federal employees must make toward their own retirement. The provision would apply to Postal Service employees as well, and is expected to raise $3.6 billion over seven years.

■ Republican efforts to impose a new student loan fee on colleges and universities was stalled for a second day in a Senate committee. The panel meets again next week.

■ To dramatize their complaints that Republicans are merely trying to finance a tax cut for the rich, Senate Democrats proposed a non-binding provision to deny a tax break to anyone earning more than $100,000. The GOP killed it, 54-43, on a near party-line vote.

Political theater blended with policy on Medicare, the largest single element of the GOP budget-balancing effort and the most politically sensitive of the programs Republicans have targeted for deficit savings.

Publishing tycoon makes 1996 bid for White House

WASHINGTON (AP) — Publishing tycoon Steve Forbes announced a latecomer bid for the Republican presidential nomination Friday, promising lower taxes to free the American economy from "political repression."

Surveying the already crowded GOP field, Forbes said there was "an empty feeling in the campaign so far." The 48-year-old president of Forbes Inc. said other candidates were limited by a "narrow, cramped and constricted" view of what the nation can accomplish.

Forbes, widely viewed as a long shot, is focusing his self-financed campaign on an optimistic view of the country's growth potential. Emphasizing tax cuts over deficit reduction, he predicts an economic boom would flow from his proposals for a flat income tax and using a type of gold standard to stabilize the dollar.

"I see an American economy that is the most innovative and productive and technologically advanced in the world, hamstrung by high taxes and counterproductive regulations," Forbes said in an announcement speech at the National Press Club. His address touched only lightly on the cultural themes that have dominated the GOP race.

"I mean to free the mighty American economy from political repression," he said.

Formally known as Malcolm S. Forbes Jr. after his late father, Forbes is a multimillionaire Princeton graduate and father of five daughters. He is taking a leave of absence from the presidency of Forbes Inc. but will continue to write his wide-ranging editorial column for Forbes magazine.

Carrying the pro-growth message advanced by supply-side devotees including his friend and economic theorist Jude Wanniski, Forbes said he would not have considered running had not supply-sider Jack Kemp decided to sit out the race.

Consumers, phone companies oppose huge 'dream deal'

NEW YORK (AP) — Time Warner Inc. and Ted Turner's cable empire signed off on a $7.5 billion "dream deal" Friday that immediately ran into opposition from consumers and a phone company fearful of the media colossus that would result.

Turner, the media maverick who created CNN, will become the No. 2 man at Time Warner when he sells Turner Broadcasting System Inc. in a stock swap that keeps Time Warner on top as the biggest media and entertainment company in the world.

"I want to see what it's like to be big for a while," Turner joked at a news conference.

The deal — the third media megamerge in the two months — was approved by the boards of both companies but needs the go-ahead from regulators and shareholders.

The Consumers Union promptly said it would ask federal regulators to block the deal because it could mean higher cable prices and prevent some cable programs from reaching viewers.

And Time Warner's telephone partner, U S West, sued to block the deal, claiming the combination would improperly compete with the Warner Bros. moviemaking and HBO services that the utility owns with Time Warner.

The merger is a bold gamble by Gerald Levin, Time Warner's chairman. He is betting that the combination of Turner's globally recognized cable networks with Time Warner's vast entertainment, media production and distribution systems will boost earnings and revive the company's listless stock.

"This is far and away the dream deal," Levin said.

Time Warner includes Time and Sports Illustrated magazines, record companies, HBO and the makers of the "Batman" movies. In addition to CNN, Turner Broadcasting includes the makers of such movies as "When Harry Met Sally" and TV's "Seinfeld," and baseball's Atlanta Braves.

A combined Time Warner-Turner company would have had revenue of more than $18.7 billion last year.

The deal — a reaffirmation of the belief that size and scope lead to success in the entertainment industry — came in the same week in which AT&T Corp. decided to split in three because it had become too big.

In the past two months, Walt Disney Co. struck a deal to buy Capital Cities-ABC for $19 billion, and Westinghouse Electric Corp. agreed to acquire CBS for $5.4 billion.

Disney would have overtaken Time Warner if not for the Turner deal. Time Warner's move to remain No. 1 means it will be hard for American households to avoid the company when they seek news or entertainment.

Republicans see political shift at Texas A&M

AUSTIN (AP) — Republican presidential hopeful Phil Gramm announced his candidacy at the school. Former President George Bush, a Republican, chose the school as the site of his presidential library. And the school has the nation's largest College Republicans organization.

But to hear some Republicans tell it, a political shift to the left is crumbling Texas A&M University's conservative foundation.

"People assume A&M is the conservative institution it once was," Texas Republican Party Chairman Tom Pauken told the Austin American-Statesman.

"But in fact, a group of people who are hostile to conservatives have moved into the faculty and administration. They are pushing their intolerance and liberal agenda under the name of political correctness," he said.

Pierce Cantrell, speaker of the Faculty Senate, said Friday he would hesitate to characterize the faculty as left-wing.

"There's probably a pretty big cross-section of the whole political spectrum if we look at the faculty as a whole," Cantrell said.

The comments came as the university is preparing to hold a disciplinary hearing regarding a fund-raising letter the College Republicans sent to A&M alumni.

The letter asks alumni for donations to fund a fight against a university-wide multicultural class requirement. Texas A&M has debated since 1993 a proposal to require classes that underscore the history and achievements of women, blacks, Hispanics and others. Students majoring in the liberal arts are already required to take the classes.

"The Texas A&M College Republicans are almost solely responsible for the fact that multiculturalism has not yet been signed by President (Ray) Bowen. However, President Bowen got his job by promising to sign this multiculturalism bill, and the left-wing professors who hired him are getting restless because he is dragging his feet," outgoing College Republicans President Lydia Percival wrote in the letter.

She said her group needed money to oppose the requirement by paying speakers, producing policy sheets and contacting "every single former student we can find."

"We are prepared to do whatever it takes to protect Texas A&M," she wrote.

The university administration, however, balked at the fund-raising letter by the 2,000-strong College Republicans, saying it broke school policy.

Texas A&M officials said the letter contained erroneous and distorted information, and that the students failed to act "in a manner that reflects the highest ideals of the university."

"The president's office got a number of calls and complaints about the letter," said Christi Moore, the school administrator who heads the hearing board.

School policy requires that students coordinate fund-raising efforts with the administration. The College Republicans did not tell the administration about the June letter campaign.

Pauken said the university's reaction to the letter showed an effort to break A&M's conservative tradition.

Youths brag about their arrests for beating death of quarter horse

SILSBEE (AP) — Even as the youngsters were escorted to jail, they continued to snicker about thrashing a prize quarter horse to death and to brag about their arrest at school, police say.

"None of them appeared to be upset. They were laughing about it," said Hardin County Sheriff H.R. "Mike" Holzapfel. "It was like you put a feather in their hat for getting busted."

The eight boys and one girl, none older than 14, were arrested on felony criminal mischief charges Wednesday at junior high and elementary schools after others overheard them boasting. Seven were held Friday at the county's juvenile detention center. Two were released, one for medical reasons, the other for lack of evidence.

Two other suspects were never detained because at ages 8 and 9, the boys are too young to be charged.

Authorities say the youngsters have confessed to chasing the horse, Mr. Wilson Boy, into a barbed-wire fence, where he became entangled and broke a leg. They then allegedly smacked the wounded horse with sticks until it died; one even stuck a stick up the animal's nostril.

"A couple of them started hitting it and the rest of them followed. It was what some call a mob mentality," Holzapfel said. He added the children cannot give a reason for the Sept. 14 attack.

"When they were brought in and locked up, several of them were still laughing about it and talking about how cool it was to get arrested at the schoolhouse," he said.

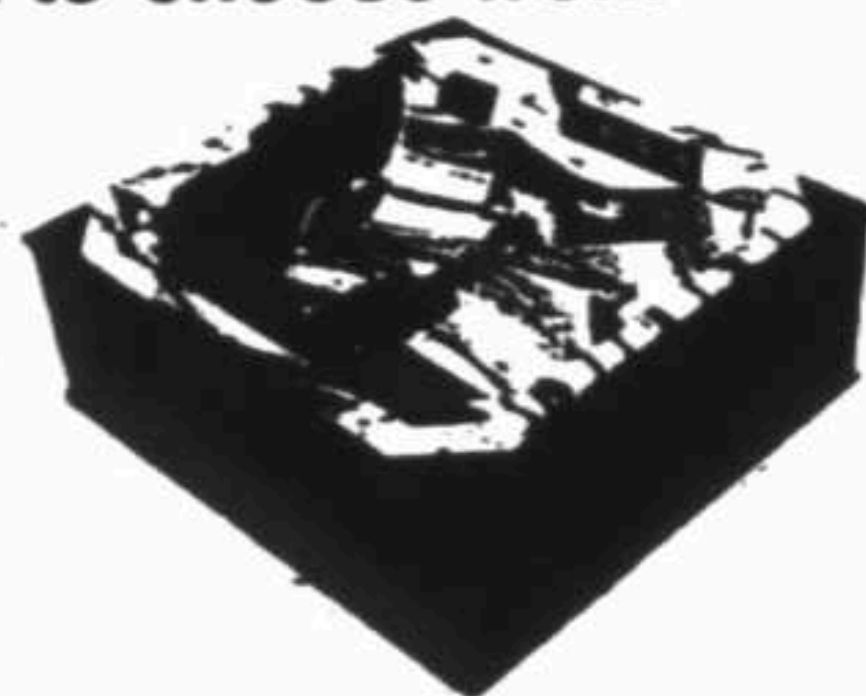

Joyce Wallace, a resident in this town of 6,400 about 100 miles northeast of Houston, said she was horrified.

"Regardless of the age of the children, they need to be punished for it," she said.

Woman preserved father's dignity, her attorney says

EL PASO (AP) — Efrain Tellez was moving inexorably toward death, his kidneys and other organs having already failed, when Martha Thiele removed her 88-year-old father's oxygen mask, her attorney says.

It was, attorney Jim Darnell said Friday, an attempt to preserve Tellez's dignity in his final moments.

"She's a courageous woman who allowed her father to die naturally and peacefully," Darnell said.

The district attorney calls it something else.

Ms. Thiele, a 53-year-old registered nurse from Dallas, was arrested on a murder charge Thursday morning at her father's home and later released from the county jail on $10,000 bond.

She reportedly was still in El Paso Friday, but could not immediately be reached for comment.

Authorities have accused her of cutting off Tellez's oxygen supply while he lay in his hospital bed Wednesday at Columbia Medical Center-West, causing his death.

District Attorney Jaime Esparza said Friday that he expects to be able to present a murder case to a grand jury within the next couple of weeks.

Esparza said no one else will be charged, although police and Darnell indicated other family members were in the room at the time Tellez's oxygen mask was removed.

Darnell took issue with the decision to pursue a murder charge.

"I don't think Martha, under any definition, committed murder," he said.

According to the attorney, Tellez, who had been hospitalized since Sept. 11, was in the terminal stages of diabetes and was experiencing numerous problems and several of his organs had already failed when he died.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

Choir dedication set

St. Luke's United Methodist Church will celebrate Choir Dedication Day at the 10:50 a.m. service Sunday.

Participating choirs include the Cherub, Angel, Carol, Wesley, Chapel and Chancel groups.

The Cherub Choir, ages 3-5, will sing "Little Samuel Grew" by James Ritchie, and the combined choirs will sing "Today, Tomorrow and Everyday" by Paul Sjolund.

About 300 people are active in the choral and instrumental programs of The Music Ministry at St. Luke's UMC. For more information regarding rehearsal schedule, call the music office, 694-2571.

Class series offered

A series of classes that study spiritual tools, "Master Keys to Creative Living," is being presented at Permian Church of Religious Science, 2311 Elizabeth Ave.

The topics to be discussed include goals, goal setting, fears and strengths. Prayer partners will support one another throughout the process.

The hour classes are held at 9:30 a.m. Sunday, 7 p.m. Tuesday and 10:30 a.m. Wednesday.

They are offered on a love-offering basis. The public is invited. For more information, call 684-4230.

Special dinner set

Calvary Assembly of God Church will host a dinner in honor of pastors Gayle and Nova Lena Reeves Sunday following the morning worship.

Members' cost per plate is $6.50 for adults and $3.60 for children.

Gospel concert set

Asbury United Methodist, 106 W. Dakota St., is hosting a Bluegrass Gospel Concert featuring Cherry Creek at 11 a.m. Sunday.

Members are Tom and Nancy Moore, Gary Cordle and Calvin Jones, all of Odessa. For more information, call the church's pastor, the Rev. Jerry Cheshire, 684-4061.

A barbecue meal will follow the concert. Both the concert and the meal are free of charge.

All are invited to attend.

Revival scheduled

Holy Trinity Church of God in Christ, 1301 E. Cowden St., is having a revival beginning Sunday.

Service times are 7:30 p.m. Sunday through Thursday. Elder J.T. Cotton of Abilene will be conducting the services.

The host pastor, the Rev. A.L. Jackson, invites the public to attend.

Choir benefit set

Greater Mount Rose Baptist Church, 211 N. Tyler, is hosting a Texas Tech Gospel Choir Benefit Show at 7:30 p.m. today.

The Vision of Light gospel choir is directed by the Rev. Cory Powell and has recorded with Cornell Butler.

Benefactor for the show is Southeast Outreach.

Carwash planned

The Women of Greater Mount Rose Baptist Church are sponsoring a carwash today.

The carwash will be conducted at two locations — Taco Bell, 2111 N. Big Spring St., and Leodis Henderson, corner of Lamesa and Scharbauer Drive.

In addition, the church's Annual Women's Day will be held at 3 p.m. Sept. 23 at the church, 211 N. Tyler.

Fall schedule set

Hope Lutheran Church, 2003 N. A St., has its fall schedule in place.

Sunday services are at 8:30 and 10:30 a.m. Sunday School is at 9:20 a.m. The church's pastor, the Rev. Jim Pearson, invites the public to attend services.

Workshop planned

The Mt. Calvary Missionary Sanctuary Choir is hosting a gospel workshop beginning at 9 a.m. today at the church, 303 E. Shandon.

Registration is $5 per person. The workshop will be conducted by Donnell Hill of New Hope Baptist Church, Amarillo. A banquet is scheduled for Furr's Cafeteria at 7 p.m. Sept. 23.

The workshop musical will be held at the church at 2:30 p.m. Sunday. For more information, call 683-6756.

Special service set

"Covenant Accountability" will be the topic of the Rev. Jerry Kelly's sermon at Trinity Presbyterian Church Sunday.

The worship service will begin at 10:55 a.m. Sunday school starts at 9:30 a.m.

In addition to classes for children ages 18 months through sixth grade, the junior high class will be "Building Christian Relationships" and senior high youth will be studying "Luke: Good News for the Good, The Bad and the Ugly." Adults will have a choice of two Bible study courses and the CLER Ministries adult study of human sexuality from a Christian perspective.

In addition, the children's choirs are still looking for participants ages 3 years old through sixth grade. Rehearsals are held from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m. Wednesdays. It's not necessary to be members of the church to participate. The children's choirs will sing at Sunday's service.

Also, Trinity Presbyterian's Monday Morning Bible Study, "Search for Significance," meets from 9 to 10:30 a.m. weekly. A nursery will be available. For more information, call Brenda Garrett, 697-7636.

Women's Circles will meet at 2 and 7:30 p.m. Tuesdays to study "Glimpses of Promise" by Eugenia Gamble.

Wednesday night fellowship begins with dinner at 5:15 p.m. Reservations are required and may be made by calling 682-2514 weekdays. Cost is $4 for adults and $2 for children, with a maximum of $12 for a family. Adults have a choice of two classes — "Speaking the Truth in Love: Being an Assertive Christian" and "In the Name of Jesus."

Singles' meeting set

Fairmont Park Church of Christ is hosting a Singles' Conference beginning at 8:30 a.m. today.

The guest speaker will be Randy Thomas of Richland Hills Church of Christ, Fort Worth. The conference will look at singles who are "Going Against the Flow" and how they relate to the outside world, their community of faith and to their personal spirituality.

For more information and a registration form, call the church office, 699-7064.

Men's breakfast set

Cuthbert Avenue Baptist Church will have a Men's Monthly Fellowship Breakfast at Green's Restaurant, Village Shopping Center, at 8:30 a.m. Sunday.

Midland High shuts out Pecos

■ Bulldogs get confidence booster, improve to 2-1 as they prepare for 4-5A opener.

By Stewart Doreen
Sports Writer

PECOS — Friday night's game with Pecos might have been just what the Midland High football team needed. The Bulldogs got much needed offense, a good performance out of their defense and most importantly the much needed confidence that has been lacking for the first part of the season in the Bulldogs' 24-0 win over the Eagles.

"We needed a positive deal," said Midland High coach Ronnie Reeger. "We showed we could get points up there. It was a good football night. We liked it."

Reeger knows that having a confidence-boosting game like this is important with District 4-5A and Midland Lee around the corner.

"We're fixing to play a quality team," said Reeger, whose team moves to 2-1. "We understand that. They will be the best team we will have played. We need to stay patient and and correct the things we need to."

Offensively, Reeger's team did move the ball with performances from many runners. Demetrius Lee, Jerome Eldridge, Jeffrey Arnold, Sam Powell and Russell Dunlavy made it a group effort as the Bulldogs rushed for 186 yards on 40 carries. The Bulldogs also mixed in two completions for 59 yards. Lee was the leading rusher with 49 yards on nine carries. One important factor is that the Bulldogs had 190 yards of total offense in the first half when Dunlavy was the quarterback. He was replaced in the second as Reeger wanted to get more kids work.

For the third straight week, the Bulldogs got a bend-but-will-not-break effort out of their defense. The Eagles, 0-3, did have 171 yards on the ground and 61 in the air, but Pecos could not score despite finding the red zone on a few occasions. The Eagles did have a solid performance out of senior tailback Wade Dodson. Dodson had 104 rushing, 20 yards receiving and 14 passing.

"Wade is a competitor," said Pecos head coach Felix Urias. "He will give it all he's got."

Urias also felt his team had a good

BIG SPRING — Turnovers, turnovers, turnovers. Even in a game without them, it's a change of possession play that winds up making the difference.

Big Spring outplayed Lubbock Estacado Friday for almost three quarters. But a blocked punt returned for a touchdown tied the game, reversed the momentum and led to the Matadors 16-13 win. Mark Montemayer's 31-yard field goal with 4:50 left in the game was the game winner.

The Steers (0-3) easily played its best game of the year, out-rushing Estacado 206 yards to 144, getting seven more first downs and holding the ball for more than 18 minutes more. But as it has done the last three seasons, the Steers found a way to fall to the Matadors (2-1) late in the game. The Steers have now lost to Estacado the last three years by three, four and eight points.

"I'd rather get blown out 55-0," Steers coach Dwight Butler said. "This is sickening. I guess this is where they say you build character."

Big Spring built a 13-6 third quarter lead on the strength of sophomore tailback Antwone Edwards' running. Filling in for the injured Toma McVea, Edwards rushed for 179 yards on 30 carries. His 2-yard touchdown with 6:53 left in the third period put the Steers up by seven.

But facing fourth down and nine from their own 22, Steer punter Todd McAdams' kick was blocked by Antowin Barber, who lined up on the end of the defensive line on the left side and deflected the ball with his stomach. Barber picked up the

Rangers wear out Mustangs

GREENWOOD — Bruised and battered, the Greenwood Rangers played an inspirational game in front of their homecoming crowd and wore down the Denver City Mustangs 31-14 Friday night.

The 3-0 Rangers have experienced devastating injuries to key players in the last couple of weeks and could have laid down against the Mustangs.

Instead, they came out hitting hard on defense, which led to four Denver City turnovers which were converted into easy scores.

"This will give them (players) a lift, positive things happen everytime you win," said Rangers coach Bob Purser.

The Rangers definitely accomplished a lot of positive things against the Mustangs (2-1).

First and foremost was the Greenwood defense. They allowed Denver City 91 yards of total offense in the first half, and it was that same defense that led to the game's first score.

With the Mustangs punting from their own 46, Greenwood recovered a Denver City high snap at the Mustang 23. Three plays later Brandon Hunicutt ran in from 9 yards out for a 7-0 first quarter

Stanton on top early, holds on to beat Merkel

By Sean Wallace

STANTON — The Stanton offense built up a big early lead and banked on its defense to keep it.

The Buffaloes scored on their first three possessions Friday night then held on for a 26-20 win over Merkel in a non-district football game at Buffalo Stadium.

"I told the kids it wasn't pretty, but we got the win and that's what counts," Stanton coach Mark Cotton said. "I really didn't feel like we were ready in pregame (warmups), and then they came out here and showed me up."

The win moves the Class 6-2A Buffaloes to 3-0 on the season with another non-district game against Colorado City next week. The Badgers, who had been undefeated as well, dropped to 2-1.

Stanton took control of the game from the opening kickoff as Nicky Sanchez took a handoff at the Stanton 20 and raced up the sideline for an 80-yard touchdown return.

"That's the second game in a row he's done that," Cotton said. "Everyone always goes towards Leo (McCalister) and forgets about Nicky and you can't do that."

Stanton took a 26-12 lead into the second half when the Buffalo defense kept Merkel from getting back into the game until late in the fourth quarter when Stanton's Chris Carroll (20) goes up over Merkel's Randy Dudley (72) and Brandon Cobb (25) during the Buffaloes' 26-20 win Friday night in Stanton.

Merkel scored to make the game close. Badgers' quarterback Justin Goldsmith engineered a seven-play, 56-yard drive with 10:14 left in the game which ended in a 6-yard touchdown run by Justin Davis. The Badgers missed the Bronchos romp past Eastwood

ODESSA — LaQueency Williams scored four touchdowns, three in the second half, to bring the Odessa High Bronchos from behind and an easy 49-25 win over El Paso Eastwood at Ratliff Stadium Friday night.

Eastwood scored 17 unanswered points in the second period for a 17-14 lead at the half, but the Bronchos erupted for 35 points in the second half to coast to the win.

OHS remains unbeaten at 3-0 and will take on cross town rival Odessa Permian next Friday to open District 4-5A play. Permian is also unbeaten at 3-0.

Williams rushed for 178 yards in the victory.

Monterey tough on 4-5A

ABILENE — For the third week in a row Lubbock Monterey has beaten a District 4-5A team. The Plainsmen shocked Abilene Cooper here Friday with a 21-7 upset.

Monterey led 21-0 before Cooper scored in the fourth quarter. Cooper falls to 1-2 on the year, losing for the second week in a row after scoring 57 points in its opener against Brownwood.

Cooper will face cross town rival Abilene High next week in the District 4-5A opener for both teams.
Monterey's Jeff Horn threw two touchdowns pass for Monterey while J.R. Mize rushed for one. Horn passed for 121 yards.

effort against the Bulldogs.

"I saw improvement that says the kids will get better," said Urias. "We're young and we made mistakes that caused us to lose the game."

Pecos did have the mistakes and no where was that more apparent than with sophomore quarterback Eric Aguilar, who was 4-for-19 with three interceptions. The big one coming in the fourth quarter as Marcus Carlisle took an Aguilar pass and returned it for a score. That score immediately followed Arnold's 14-yard touchdown run and made the score 24-0. Ky Edwards and Dunlavy also had an interception while Will Wilson recovered two fumbles.

For Carlisle and the Midland

High defense, Friday night showed they are capable of making those big plays but also showed there is more work to do.

"We played well and still have work to do," said Carlisle. "We have to be ready to beat teams from the get-go. We have to keep fighting."

In the first half, Midland moved the ball with virtually no problems but mistakes as the Bulldogs entered Pecos territory would. Midland's top effort came in the second quarter on a seven-play drive that covered 55 yards. Dunlavy came up big with three carries for 39 yards, including a 11 run around right end for a touchdown that made the score 10-0.

"We were running the ball hard and the backs hit the ball hard," said Dunlavy. "This is the best blocking we've had. The line did a great job."

"The guys believe in me and I'm also believing in myself."

Midland High made things hard for themselves early on with costly turnovers in the first half.

The teams exchanged turnovers midway through the first quarter as Dunlavy hit Cody Glass for 42 yards down the right side of the field, but the senior was caught by David Mata, who stripped the ball from Glass. The fumble was recovered by Pecos' Peter Dominguez. MHS, however, would get the ball right back as the Eagles' Arnulfo Granado never could get a solid grasp on the ball. The resulting fumble was picked up by Wilson and gave the ball to the Bulldogs on Pecos' 15.

Senior kicker David Leaverton put the first points on the board four plays later with a 32-yard field goal.

The Bulldogs drove the ball at will against a porous Pecos defense on MHS' next possession. Dunlavy, Eldridge, Powell and Lee pounded away with the run. The foursome rushed for five first downs and 78 yards on the ground but Lee's fumble into the Pecos' end zone forced MHS to go away from the eight-play drive without a point.

No. 2 Permian avoids second upset by Amarillo Sandies, 14-11

(Staff Report)

AMARILLO — Odessa scored two touchdowns in the first half, one from its defense, and then held on to beat a stubborn Amarillo High team 14-11 here at Dick Bivins Stadium.

The Golden Sandies upset the Panthers a year ago in Odessa. Permian is now 3-0, the same as cross town rival Odessa High, who the Panthers meet next week to open 4-5A play.

Permian only had 157 yards of offense, but allowed only 110 yards to AHS.

Ja'Quay Wilburn scored from six yards out for Permian's first score and Marteis Rogers returned an interception 41 yards for the Panthers' second score as they took a 14-0 lead at halftime.

Amarillo High came back with a field goal just before the half and then got a second half touchdown on a 78-yard interception return from Shaun Hancock. The Sandies went for two points and made it to cut the Permian margin to 14-11.

Amarillo High had a chance late in the game to win it, but an incomplete pass fell at the five-yard line to end the game.

Permian now faces OHS in what could be a Ratliff Stadium thriller next week.

LEE: Rebels could punish Don defense that has given up 90-plus points

(From 1B)

We have to cut down on the fumbles.

Palo Duro has lost seven fumbles in two games. The Dons trailed Hereford last week by a narrow 14-7 margin at the half and fumbles set up a 27-point third quarter run by Hereford on the way to a 54-7 victory.

"We had 10 fumbles against Hereford (lost six) and I had never seen anything like that in all my coaching career," Culwell said. "I was told that Palo Duro always has fumbled the ball a lot, and my first impression is that we ought to quit doing that."

For Lee coach John Parchman, also making his coaching debut with the Rebels, life has been sweet as a bed of roses. About his only problem is finding enough playing time for his starting unit. Lee has scored so quickly, and often, against its opposition this season that the first team has had a lot of pine time.

That doesn't seem to be a major concern for Parchman.

"We think everything is perfect for us right now," Parchman says. "We came into this season really thin and playing all our kids has allowed us to find a few players we now know we can depend on. If someone does go down this year, we're going to have some people come in who have been there and performed."

"Obviously, we found a running back (sophomore Josh Norman, who leads District 4-5A in rushing with 354 yards as a backup to starter Alex Strambler)," Parchman said. "Matthew Jewett, an offensive tackle, and Brian Boyd, a tight end, also have looked very good when they've had a chance to play. Also, David Smith and John Sosa, our backup quarterbacks, have been able to play and they can now come in with some experience behind them. Plus, our first team is completely healthy because no one has had to play a full game."

As far as Palo Duro is concerned, Parchman doesn't know exactly what to expect.

"They have been able to move the ball some," he said. "They run more offensive sets, shifts and motion than any team I've seen in 24 years of coaching. They've also used something like seven or eight guys at tackle on offense. They're trying to get the right combination in there. It's been a real learning week for our defense because our No. 1 priority at Lee is to get people lined up correctly and that's a hard thing to do against Palo Duro with all their shifts."

This is the second long road trip for Lee. Lee played in San Antonio on Saturday, spending Friday night in San Antonio.

"It was a long time until game time and we did a lot of sitting around. It wasn't fun for anybody," Parchman said of the experience. "We went through warmups like a bunch of robots. I'm really surprised that we played as well as we did."

Whatever the formula, Lee is flying high right now. And Palo Duro will try to wade in the same water today. Some people should never go into water that is over their heads.

No. 10 Sooners hope to hang one on UNT

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Howard Schnellenberger wasn't about to take the bait.

A reporter familiar with the North Texas football team mentioned to the Oklahoma coach that his 10th-ranked Sooners, bigger and better across the board, would have a chance Saturday to "hang a bunch of points on the board."

Schnellenberger opted for the safe way out.

"We hope we hang one more than they do," he said.

If that happens, the fans who have welcomed him enthusiastically will be howling louder than they were last weekend, when Oklahoma only beat Southern Methodist by 14. The Sooners were favored by twice that amount, and this week they're five-touchdown favorites.

Schnellenberger warned fans, before the season not to bet on his team, and repeated himself this week.

"I believe this football team has the ability to go out and win each game. But I don't think it has the ability to go out and score 56 points. We're not at that stage," he said.

"If we win by one point for the rest of the year I'll be happy as hell, because we'll play for the national championship on Jan. 1." Through two games, the Sooners look a long way removed from any national championship. The defense has played well in victories over San Diego State and SMU, but the offense has sputtered in both games.

The Sooners committed 14 penalties against SMU, 11 of those against the offense. They committed 10 offensive penalties in the opener.

Schnellenberger hasn't liked what he has seen, but believes the mistakes will lessen as the season progresses.

"The defense has made it very easy to score enough points to win because they've played very proficiently through the first two games," he said. "If we can put all those things together ... I truly believe we have the experience first, the talent second and the system third to compete against anybody we play with a legitimate chance to win."

"We will have enough talent and experience to win the North Texas University game. We will have enough talent to defeat the University of Colorado. But that's not a given. We have to do that on the field."

North Texas (1-2) is playing its third Big Eight team of the year. The Eagles, making the move up to Division I this year, have lost to Kansas and Missouri by a combined score of 55-17.

Oklahoma should be much better than those two teams, and North Texas coach Matt Simon knows it.

"The Sooners are very, very fast. I think they're the fastest football team we'll see and as explosive and as dominating on defense as I've seen," he said.

North Texas would appear to be the perfect tuneup for the Sooners as they look forward to next week's game with No. 7 Colorado. The Eagles have allowed 464 yards per game, 287 of those on the ground.

On offense, they are averaging only 255 yards per game, the large majority of that through the air. Quarterback Jason Mills has completed 46 percent of his passes and has thrown 10 interceptions.

Reagan County tops Lamesa by 1

BIG LAKE — Cody Walts converted a two-point conversion with 1:10 left in the game to give Reagan County a come-from-behind 22-21 win over Lamesa in a non-district game Friday night.

The win moves Reagan County to 2-1 on the year. Lamesa falls to 1-2, having lost its last two games after beating Pecos in its season opener.

The Golden Tornadoes led 21-14 late in the fourth quarter when Reagan County quarterback Jarrod Morrison hit Servando Carrasco with a 20-yard scoring pass to pull the Owls within one. Walts then scored the conversion which gave Reagan County the win.

Suicide funeral draws attention

By Peter Jackson
Associated Press Writer

LEWISTON, Maine — More than 1,500 classmates, friends and neighbors gathered Friday to bid an uneasy farewell to Scott Croteau, whose suicide became apparent only after a 10-day search for the honor student and football co-captain.

Teen-agers and adults sobbed and comforted each other as they mourned the loss of the 17-year-old Lewiston High School senior, who was remembered at his funeral as loving and likeable.

"The nicest guy I ever met," senior Corey Gagnier said.

"The kind of person who'd walk down the hallway and have to say 'hi' to everyone," he met senior Andy Resnick said.

"Very kind, sweet, loving," said Donna Roy, a sophomore who knew Croteau through her older sister and fondly recalled his visits to their home.

The mourners packed Holy Family Church to attend the Roman Catholic funeral Mass exactly two weeks after Scott shot and hanged himself.

They filled not only the cavernous main sanctuary, but the choir loft and hundreds of portable chairs in the basement, where the service was carried over closed-circuit television.

Cheerleaders wearing the blue and white of the Lewiston Devils somberly lined the front steps of the church. Some of Croteau's football teammates served as pallbearers; the rest sat together in the front of the sanctuary.

Red and yellow single-stem roses, each bearing a brief handwritten message, were provided for mourners by the high school's class of 1996. Copies of poems by students eulogizing Croteau also were distributed.

Croteau's older brother, Brian, was the only family member who spoke during the service.

"No one in this world is perfect, but he was as close as one could get," said Brian, 23, who shared a home with Scott and their father. "He was a role model for many and should still be one. I miss everything about him and always will."

It was the final chapter in a tragic and unsettling story that began Sept. 8, the day of Lewiston's opening home football game, when Croteau was discovered missing from his home.

His disappearance prompted an intensive search that involved hundreds of people. The FBI stepped in to aid state and local police in trying to unravel the mystery.

Family members and acquaintances were interviewed repeatedly, and the home was searched intensively, as various clues failed to pan out.

It was not until Sunday that searchers found Scott's body hanging from a tree in heavy woods about 500 yards from his home. Police said he had climbed the tree, put the rope around his neck and shot himself in the head with his father's .22-caliber pistol.

He left no suicide note. The reasons why Croteau killed himself remained unanswered, at least to the public, even as a hearse carried his casket to St. Peter's Cemetery.

Prairie View has one more chance

PRAIRIE VIEW (AP) — Prairie View A&M has one more chance to avoid college football infamy.

The Panthers, losers of 49 consecutive games dating to October 1989, are on the road Saturday against winless Tarleton State with perhaps their best chance for victory this season.

If they fail, the Panthers will tie Division III Macalester of St. Paul, Minn., for the longest losing streak in college football history. They would almost certainly break the record next week in Dallas against Southwestern Athletic Conference foe Grambling State.

"A lot of teams playing would like to win a championship," Prairie View sports information director Harlan Robinson told the Stephenville Empire-Tribune this week. "We'd just like to win one. We're not greedy."

Even against 0-3 Tarleton State, the Panthers will have a difficult time. The Texans, of the Lone Star Conference, won two teams' only other meeting 70-20 last year. With that loss, Prairie View tied the Division I-AA record with 44 consecutive defeats.

The last Prairie View victory was Oct. 28, 1989, when the Panthers beat Mississippi Valley 21-12.

BUFFS: Stanton takes 3 TD lead in first quarter two-point conversion but crept back to within a touchdown of taking the lead at 26-20.

"We got up early and then we lost our intensity. We lost all our intensity and we never got it back," Cotton said. "They're a good football team."

Merkel got the ball back twice late in the game, but never got close to the end zone on two fourth-down attempts.

Stanton jumped on Merkel in the first quarter with three scores to take a 20-0 lead.

On Stanton's first offensive possession following the opening kick-off, Taylor Looney hit Nick Hull on a 34-yard scoring pass, the first of his three touchdown passes on the night. Looney finished the night by completing 10 of 17 passes for 194 yards without an interception.

Stanton got the ball back and wasted no time getting back into the end zone. The Buffaloes recovered a fumble by the Badgers' Davis on Merkel's 30-yard line and three plays later, Looney found Mark Carrillo behind the Merkel secondary for a 32-yard score and a 20-0 lead for Stanton.

The Buffaloes stretched it to 26-0 early in the second when Looney threw his third TD of the half, a 27-yarder to Merkel.

Merkel scored both an offensive and defensive touchdown in the second quarter to cut into Stanton's lead.

Kory Doan caught a 23-yard scoring pass from Goldsmith with 7:33 left in the half to make it 26-6, then Brandon Cobb picked up a Stanton fumble with one minute left in the half and raced 22 yards for another score which cut the lead to 26-12.

ball at the 8-yard line and scored, tying the game at 13-13.

Butler said McAdams took too long to get the punt off. Estacado coach Luis Kelley said the play took him by surprise.

"The kid did it on his own," Kelley said. "We had worked on blocking punts up the middle. We always have the green light to go for the block if it's the right moment. It was the turning point of the ball game. He's just a sharp kid."

That play came with 39 seconds left in the third quarter. Big Spring managed only one first down on three possessions after that. Quarterback Bucky Crenshaw's pass fell incomplete on fourth and five from the Estacado 33-yard line with 1:57 to play.

"After the blocked punt that just rejuvenated them," Butler said. "We were taking it to them. When you get them down you have to bury them."

Matador running back Tyson Gatewood picked up a punt on one bounce and returned it 29 yards to the Steer 31 to set up Estacado's game-winning drive. The Matadors drove only 16 yards before Montemayor's kick.

Big Spring missed a great chance to score at the end of the first half ahead 7-6. The Steers drove to the Estacado 3-yard line with the help of a Crenshaw pass of 26 yards to tight end Daniel "Bubba" Franks. On first and goal from the three with eight seconds left, Crenshaw was sacked by Kenneth McCullough and the clock ran out.

"He was told when he went into the huddle to either throw it to Bubba or throw it away," Butler said. "Maybe this was a lesson he needed to learn."

The Steers scored first when Crenshaw hit Franks for a 21-yard score and Tim Rios' extra point made it 7-0. Gatewood's 18-yard run put the score at 7-6.

Big Spring plays at Snyder Friday.

"They (the Steers) are building," Butler said. "They just better not go backwards."

lead. Then early in the second period, the defense set up another Ranger score when they forced the Mustangs to turn the ball over on the Greenwood 36.

The Ranger offensive machine got into the act by going 64 yards on eight plays. The drive was culminated on a Bucky Smith 34-yard run into the endzone.

Not ready to layoff yet, the Ranger defense batted a Josh Smith pass in the air, Greenwood's Casey Otto snatched up the wounded duck, picked up his blocks and scampered 55 yards for a touchdown and a 21-0 lead. But Otto was not through, because with :21 left in the half, he intercepted another Smith pass, this time going 90 yards for the score.

Denver City was all but dead and with next of kin notified. Greenwood added a 30-yard field goal by Scott Reed, and Denver City scored 14 cosmetic points in the second half.

Purser, however, remains concerned but confident that the walking wounded will be ready for district play in two weeks. "It's chaos when you have to play sophmores, but we'll get three linemen back soon," he said.

For Purser and the Rangers, the sooner the better.

Greenwood will play at Alpine on Friday.

Dallas Stars beat the Blues in preseason hockey

DALLAS (AP) — Brett Hull and Denis Chassé each scored on 2-on-1 breaks and Guy Carboneau added an empty-net goal to lead the St. Louis Blues to their first victory of the preseason, 3-1 over Dallas Stars on Friday night.

St. Louis (1-2-0) trailed 1-0 midway through the first period when the puck got past Dallas defenseman Paul Cavallini and Roman Vopat led a break by skating down the left side.

Vopat's shot was blocked by Stars goaltender Andy Moog, but Hull was there for the rebound. He slapped the puck out of the air and into the net to tie the game 1-1 at 12:52 of the first.

The Blues went ahead 2-1 at 6:34 of the second period on another break, this time during a Stars' power play. Carboneau fed Chassé and he slid the puck beneath Moog's stick.

Moog's replacement, rookie Manny Fernandez, stopped all 17 shots he faced. But as he was leaving the ice to give the Stars a man advantage, Carboneau scored from just before the blue line at 19:19 of the third period.

The Stars (1-2-0) scored their only goal at 10:26 of the first period when Jamie Langenbrunner found Jim Storm.

■ A&M coach R.C. Slocum says his team's schedule tougher than casual observer might think.

By John Moesman
AP Sports Writer

BOULDER, Colo. — R.C. Slocum bristles when critics suggest his Texas A&M team is playing a one-game schedule this year.

"I'd say those people haven't studied college football very carefully," he said.

He has a point. Heading into the season, the third-ranked Aggies figured to have one rigorous test — which comes up today at Folsom Field against No. 7 Colorado — along with 10 pushovers. But several other A&M opponents now look to be considerably stronger than when the year began.

"We played LSU in our opening game," Slocum said, "and the next week LSU beat Mississippi State pretty handily and last week they beat Auburn, the No. 5 team in the country."

The upset of Auburn vaulted LSU from also-ran status to No. 18 this week.

"Who knows what the rest of them (opponents) down the road will do?" Slocum said. "Texas Tech played at Penn State when they were No. 4 in the nation and played them down to the last play of the ballgame. So right now it looks like at least three of them are pretty good. And Texas (now ranked No. 13) has demonstrated they have a pretty good team."

"I think it might end up being more than a one-game schedule."

That's not to say that Slocum and his Aggies are focusing on anything but Colorado this week.

Today's game should have an early bearing on the national championship.

"If we have any aspirations beyond winning a conference championship," Slocum said, "then this game becomes a must game — for both teams."

Echoed Colorado defensive tackle Kerry Hicks, "With the caliber of teams out there this year, you can't lose and realistically win a national championship."

Both teams have legitimate national title hopes.

After wins over LSU and Tulsa, the Aggies rank seventh nationally in total offense (499.0) and fourth in total defense (217.0).

After beating Wisconsin, Colorado State and Northeast Louisiana, the Buffaloes rank fourth nationally in total offense (575.3) and 33rd in total defense (316.7).

A&M running back Leeland McElroy is the early-season leader in the unofficial Heisman Trophy derby.

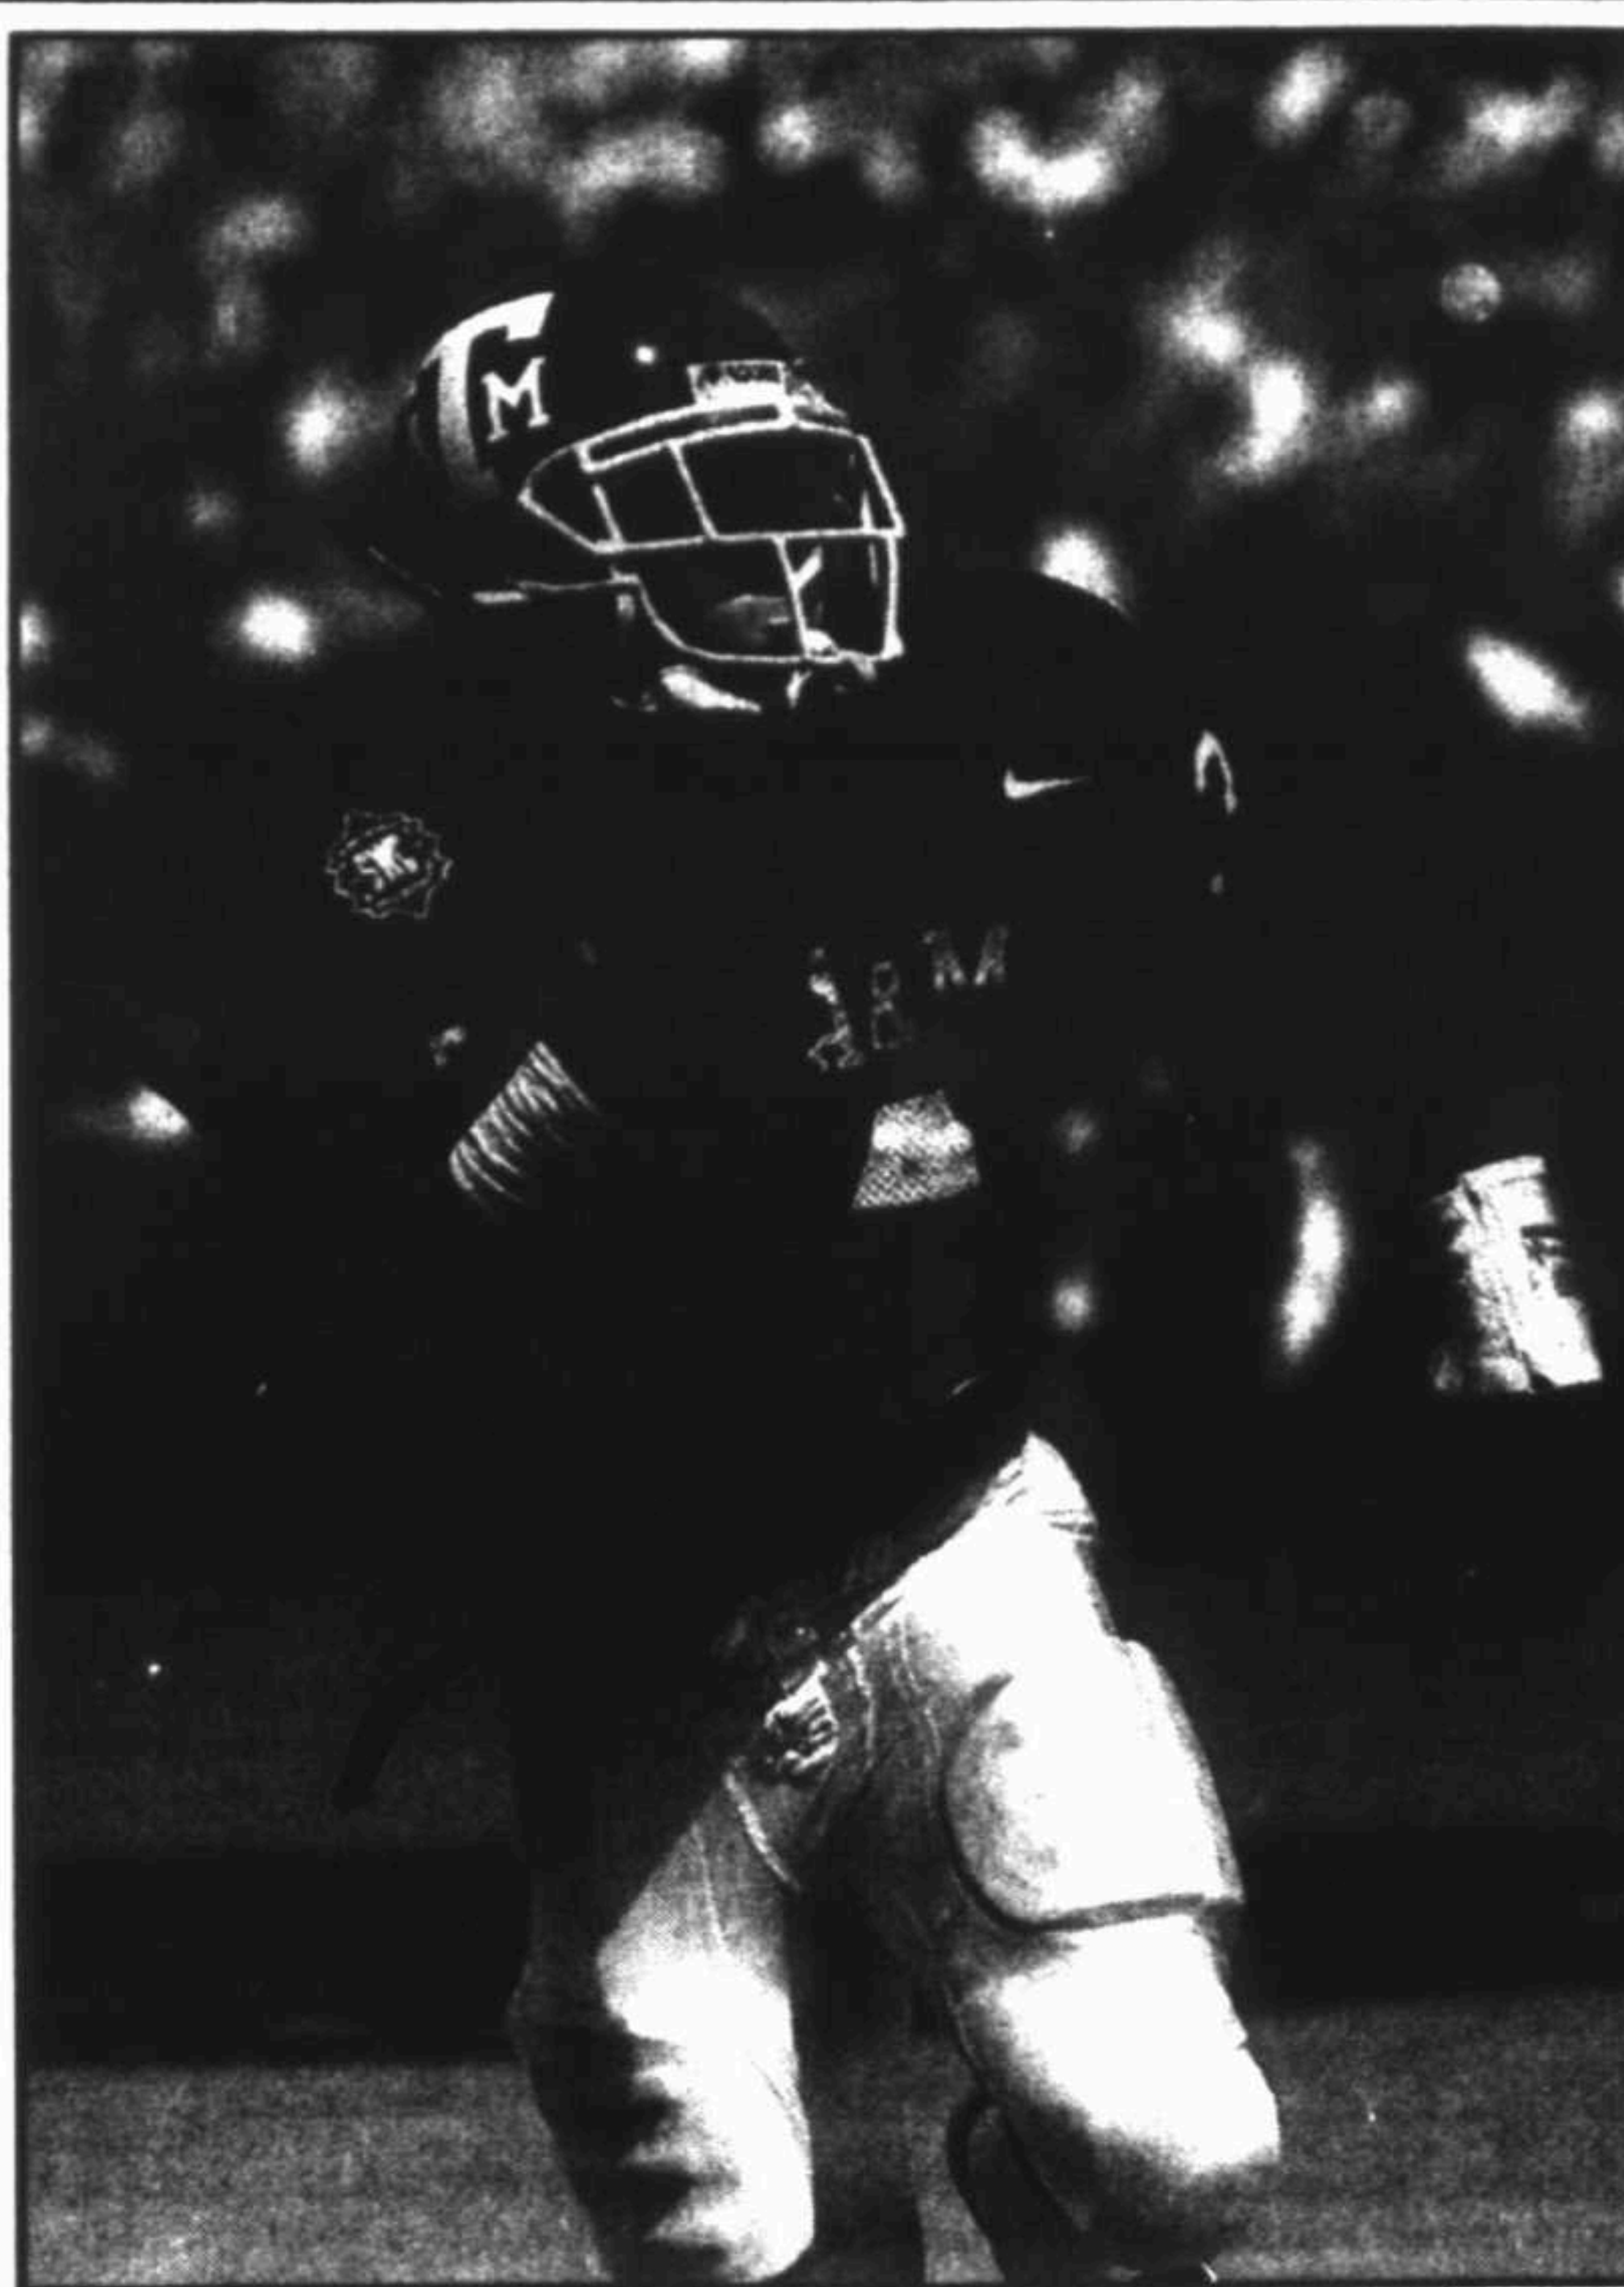

The 5-foot-11, 202-pound McElroy has rushed for 345 yards in two games and leads the nation in all-purpose yards (322.0 per game) and scoring (21.0). He has a career kickoff return average of 39.0, which would easily eclipse the NCAA record of 35.1 set by USC's Anthony Davis (1972-74).

Slocum says McElroy's style reminds him of Detroit Lions star Barry Sanders.

"We've had good backs here over the years," Slocum said. "When you look at good players, they all have some outstanding quality that you look at — speed, toughness, balance, size or whatever. I think Leeland really is a combination of a lot of those factors. He's as fast as any back we've ever had here, he's as elusive as any back we've had, and he's got great balance and strength — everything you look for."

Gang tackling may be the only way to contain McElroy.

"He's obviously as good as any back in the nation," said Colorado defensive end Daryl Price, a former high school teammate of McElroy's in Beaumont, Texas. "It's awfully hard to get him down with one person, so we have to make sure we get to him with a lot of people."

Texas A&M's Leeland McElroy, shown running for a 57-yard touchdown last Saturday against Tulsa, and Colorado quarterback Koy Detmer, brother of Heisman Trophy winner Ty Detmer of Brigham Young, will battle each other today in a preview of two Heisman candidates.

McElroy isn't the Aggies' only threat. Senior quarterback Corey Pulling completed his first 11 passes and finished with 272 yards in last week's 52-9 romp over Tulsa.

Colorado will counter with junior quarterback Koy Detmer, whose 205.2 passer rating leads the nation. Detmer, also a former Texas high school star, threw for a school-record 426 yards (19 for 27) and tied a school mark with four TD passes in last week's 66-14 romp over Northeast Louisiana.

After three games he already has 948 yards and eight TDs. His lone interception was thrown Saturday, snapping a streak of 59 attempts without a pickoff.

"Despite the numbers, Koy and I both know he's not as good as he's going to be," CU coach Rick Neuheisel said. "He may not have the strength or size or footspeed of some other guys, but he's a natural."

The Buffs lost Heisman Trophy winner Rashaan Salaam to the NFL, but three sophomore tailbacks have filled the void admirably. Last year after three games, Salaam had 410 yards and nine TDs. This year, Herchell Troutman, Marlon Barnes and Lendon Henry have combined for 413 yards and nine TDs.

No. 13 Texas on verge of cracking Top 10 with win over Notre Dame

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — If playing Notre Dame is supposed to intimidate opponents, someone forgot to tell the Texas Longhorns. "This is just another game," Texas safety Tre Thomas said. "A win would help us get up in the rankings, but a conference game against Texas Tech, TCU or (Texas) A&M is much more important."

There's no denying today's game at Notre Dame Stadium is a big one for both teams, though.

No. 13 Texas (2-0) is in a rebuilding phase, and is on the verge of cracking the Top 10 for the first time since 1990. No. 21 Notre Dame (2-1) hasn't beaten a ranked team since Texas A&M in the 1994 Cotton Bowl, and the Irish are heading into back-to-back away dates at No. 8 Ohio State and No. 22 Washington.

"I would expect Notre Dame to play their best football game of the year, and we have to be ready for that," Texas coach John Mackovic said.

Both teams are strong offensively, so the game will come down to who's better on defense. That could be a problem for inconsistent Notre Dame.

After dismal games against Northwestern and Purdue, the defense held Vanderbilt to just 94 yards in last week's 41-0 rout. Notre Dame had one interception and forced four fumbles, including one that safety Jarvis Edison returned for a touchdown.

If Notre Dame is having an off day, the Texas offense is going to take advantage. Quarterback James Brown is averaging 277 yards a game in total offense, and is expected play today despite some soreness in his right (throwing) shoulder.

Freshman Ricky Williams has rushed for 161 yards in two games and Shon Mitchell has 147, both averaging 6.7 yards per carry. Wide receiver Mike Adams is averaging 18.6 yards a catch and is probably the best receiver Notre Dame will face all season besides Southern Cal's Keyshawn Johnson, interim Irish coach Bob Davie said.

"They are going to gain some yards and they are going to make some throws and make some catches, but we have got to keep them from running with the football after they catch it," said Davie, Notre Dame's defensive coordinator. "That is my biggest concern."

Offensively, Notre Dame is on a roll. Ron Powilus tied the school record with four touchdown passes against Purdue, then threw for 200 yards last week.

Tailback Randy Kinder is coming off back-to-back 100-yard games, while freshman Autry Denson gained 110 yards in two games at tailback.

"Offensively we really do have a chance to be pretty dominant and be a pretty darn good offense," Davie said.

The Longhorns will play without defensive end Tony Brackens, their pass-rush specialist who is out with a knee injury. They have plenty of other weapons, though, as Pittsburgh learned last week.

Texas intercepted five passes including three by Thomas, the national leader, in a 38-27 victory. Inside linebacker Tyson King had 15 tackles and two sacks.

"Notre Dame is a physical running team, but I hope they put it in the air against us," Thomas said.

That's probably going to be up to coach Lou Holtz. Holtz missed last week's game after surgery to relieve pressure on his spinal cord, but is expected to be in the press box today calling plays.

Notre Dame won last week's game for Holtz, and Texas players know some of that emotion will carry over into this week.

But defensive end Brian Vasek said it won't be a factor.

"I am sure they will come up with some kind of motivational tactic to boost them, but we just need to stay focused," he said. "We can't get caught up in the hype."

DiNardo hopes No. 18 Tigers keep focus on Rice

The Associated Press

BATON ROUGE, La. — LSU coach Gerry DiNardo would like his team to ignore its No. 18 ranking, disregard its upset of Auburn, forget about the fawning fans and concentrate on Rice.

Otherwise, DiNardo said, there won't be anything to celebrate in Tiger Stadium this weekend.

"We have as big a challenge getting ready for this game as any other week," DiNardo said.

Bigger in some ways. LSU (2-1) upset No. 5 Auburn, a team the Tigers were very familiar with, 12-6. In Rice they face a very unfamiliar triple option offense.

"The option is a great talent equalizer," DiNardo said. "You can have less talent than your opponent and still move the football. The hardest thing to do in football is to move the ball. It reduces the amount of defenses you can give someone."

Preparing for an offense they have not faced before helped the team better prepare for Rice (1-1), DiNardo said.

"I thought we had a good week," DiNardo said. "They had to learn something entirely new and they've been good — really attentive."

Rice, which is coming off a 17-15 upset by Tulane, is shuffling the backfield for LSU. Jamey Whitlock will start at fullback in place of Spencer George, and Rodd Newhouse will start at halfback in place of Byron Godfrey.

"We think we need to get more physical in those two positions," said Rice coach Ken Hatfield. "Jamey has really been playing well. He's running strong, and we think he deserves to be first team."

The Owls will be without All-American guard Chris Cooley, who tore a triceps tendon, and line-backer Joe Davis, perhaps their best defensive player. Davis injured an ankle in the opener and did not play last week.

Baylor at N.C. State
RALEIGH, N.C. — Chuck Reedy views this season's non-conference schedule as a prelude to stiffer competition once Baylor moves to the Big 12 next season.

The Bears (1-1) came up short against Mississippi State last weekend, but will try to beat the Bulldogs 1995 Peach Bowl opponent — North Carolina State — on the road today. Baylor also has a road game in early November at No. 17 Miami.

"I've said from day one that we still have to prove we can go beat some good football teams. This presents us with another opportunity to do that," said Reedy, in his third season as Baylor coach.

The Bears shared the Southwest Conference title in 1994, but next year's switch in leagues will bring competition like Nebraska, Colorado and Oklahoma.

"I think you go through stages," Reedy added. "Certainly, that's where we are now. We are a winning football team, we're a good football team, we're not to that next level yet. We're not going to be there until we go out and beat good football teams. Getting over that hump is tough. That's the next step we have to make."

Houston at Kansas
LAWRENCE, Kan. — One of the most important things any head coach does is pick out and manage good assistants.

On this score, Kansas' Glen Mason might be the early leader for Big Eight coach of the year. Dissatisfied with his defense after last season's 6-5 campaign, Mason made wholesale staff changes.

Among the most significant were on defense, where Mike Hankwitz was brought in from Colorado as defensive coordinator and David Gibbs was hired from the same Colorado staff to take charge of the defensive secondary.

In addition, several offensive coaches were moved around.

"I thought there was a need for change," Mason said. "Normally, if I'm going to make changes, I make wholesale changes."

The results have been better than Mason, who hosts winless Houston this week, could hope for. The Jayhawks are 3-0 and, while the offense has sputtered at times, the defense has more than carried its share of the load.

The Cougars (0-3) will be trying to stop Kansas (3-0) from its third 4-0 start in history, and first since 1981. Their biggest problem on defense could be the rushing game the Jayhawks discovered a week ago Thursday night while bombing TCU 38-20.

TCU at Vanderbilt
NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Sophomore Damian Allen will start as Vanderbilt's quarterback against Texas Christian. And he'll stay there, at least until he loses the ball.

Knowing that one interception or fumble could put him on the bench might make a player hesitant. But with 10 turnovers in two losses, Vandy coach Rod Dowhower says he's not changing his mind.

"They make me be tentative, and I'd rather them be tentative than me be tentative," Dowhower said.

"I don't care what anyone else thinks, and I know it ends up in points for the other team and it hurts us. ... If it's blatant, I'm not going to put up with it."

Strong words maybe. Dowhower, though, is trying to calm down an offense that has stumbled in its first two games and managed only 94 total yards in a 41-0 rout by Notre Dame.

Vanderbilt will meet Texas Christian (1-1) for the first time ever tonight trying to avoid an 0-3 start.

Horned Frogs coach Pat Sullivan also is expecting the Commodore team that forced four Alabama turnovers and held the Tide to 13 yards in the third.

"They forced five (actually three) interceptions against Alabama, and they should've beaten Alabama. No way should they have lost to Alabama," Sullivan said.

SMU at Wisconsin
MADISON, Wis. — The Wisconsin Badgers have started off slowly despite sophomore tailback Carl McCullough's swift start.

McCullough is the nation's second-leading rusher with a 177.5-yard average, but the Badgers are 0-1-1 heading into today's game against Southern Methodist at Camp Randall Stadium.

McCullough carried 28 times for 151 yards in a 43-7 loss to Colorado in his debut as a starter. Then, he rushed for a collegiate-high 204 yards and a touchdown on 34 carries in a 24-24 tie with Stanford last week.

"I really don't look at myself individually," McCullough said. "I don't focus on my performance at all. It's a team effort. ... I'm just like the team. We're a young team and I'm a young running back."

Wisconsin has six new starters on offense and six on defense. SMU provides just the opportunity for the Badgers to get untracked before they begin Big Ten play next weekend at Penn State.

The Mustangs (1-2) have lost three of their top inside defenders to injury and are allowing 257.3 rushing yards per game.

The Badgers are 20-point favorites, mainly because oddsmakers don't see the Mustangs slowing McCullough, the most notable recruit in Wisconsin's history.

SMU, which will join the Western Athletic Conference after the Southwest Conference disbands at the end of the season, is led by sophomore quarterback Chris James, who took over when Ramon Flanigan sustained a season-ending hip injury on his first snap this year.

Reds clinch NL Central off field

The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — For the first time in history, a major league baseball team won a division title without even knowing it.

■ NL Roundup

The Cincinnati Reds found out Friday night that they had clinched the NL Central championship by virtue of baseball's new tiebreaker system — more than 18 hours after it had become official.

The clinching came around 1 a.m. EDT Friday when the Los Angeles Dodgers lost to the San Diego Padres 5-1. But it wasn't until the Elias Sports Bureau, which keeps the major league statistics, figured out the formula that the Reds and everyone else knew they were champions.

"I don't believe in all that," Reds owner Marge Schott said when reached at her home in suburban Cincinnati. "I don't understand it. I don't think anyone understands. The whole team doesn't understand it."

"It's too confusing, honey. How can they say we won?"

Reds manager Davey Johnson learned of the clinching minutes before Friday night's game began in Philadelphia.

Cardinals 3, Astros 0

HOUSTON — Allen Watson allowed four hits in eight innings and Ray Lankford hit a two-run homer as St. Louis beat Houston 3-0 and slowed the Astros' bid for a wild-card spot.

Watson (7-8) retired 13 of his first 14 batters, allowing only a double in the third to Doug Drabek (10-9). Watson struck out four, walked one and didn't allow a runner past second. He is 2-0 with 15 shutout innings in two games against the Astros this season.

Tom Henke pitched a perfect ninth for his 34th save in 36 chances, sending Houston to its third loss in five games. The Astros, who had won five of their previous six games, began the night a half-game behind Los Angeles in the wild-card race.

Marlins 3, Mets 0

MIAMI — Pat Rapp pitched his second straight shutout and tied a club record with his eighth consecutive victory as Florida beat the New York.

Rapp (13-7) allowed four hits in 7 2-3 innings. Following a rain delay of 1 hour, 34 minutes, the game was called with the Mets at bat, two outs and nobody on in the eighth inning.

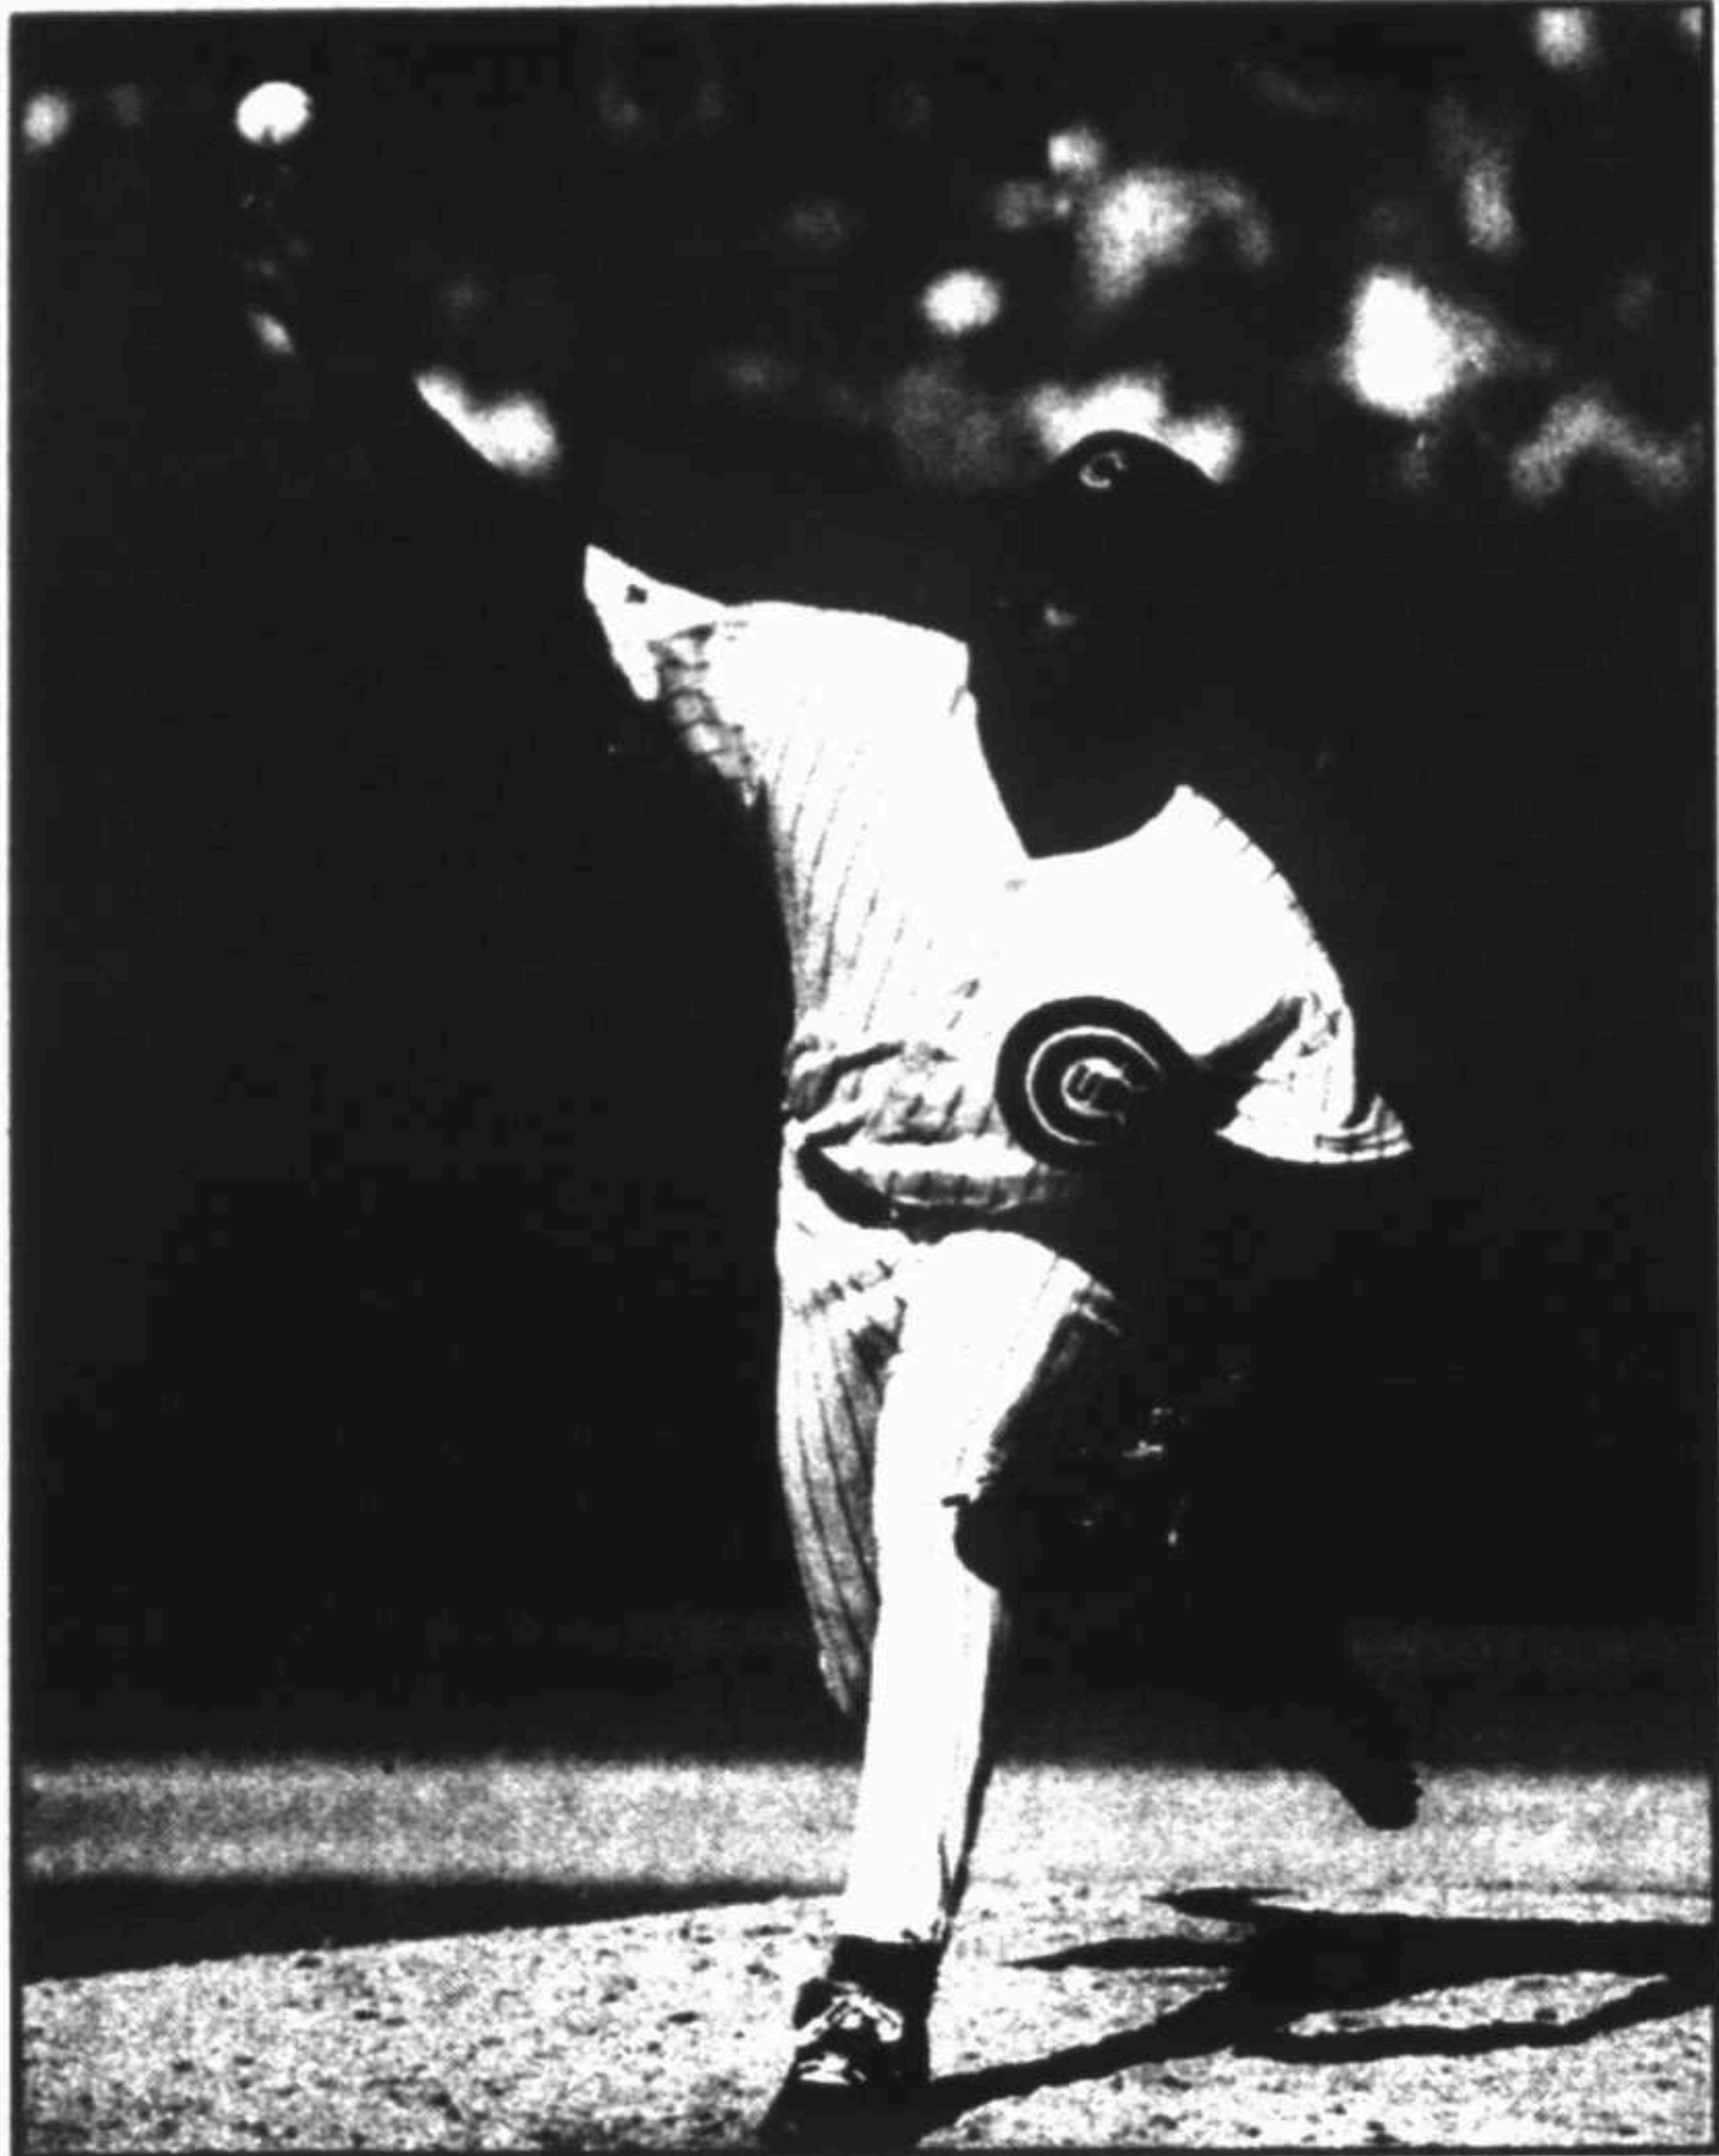

Rapp, who pitched a one-hit shutout Sunday in a 17-0 victory at Colorado, tied Chris Hammond's 1993 club record for consecutive wins.

The Marlins may have lost second baseman Quilvio Vera for the rest of the season because of a pulled left hamstring. Vera, who leads the major leagues with 56 stolen bases, left after he stumbled over first base trying to beat out a grounder. Florida's training staff said it's doubtful he'll play again this year.

Braves 5, Expos 1

ATLANTA — Tom Glavine allowed four hits seven innings to earn his 16th victory, and four Montreal errors led to three unearned runs as Atlanta beat the Expos.

David Justice hit a solo home run — his 24th — and Glavine contributed an RBI squeeze bunt in a three-run fourth against Carlos Perez (10-8). He is 0-5 with three no-decisions since Aug. 6.

Chicago's Kevin Foster allowed two hits in eight innings as the Cubs went on to defeat Pittsburgh 6-3 Friday afternoon at Wrigley Field.

Glavine (16-6) walked three and struck out three. He is 11-2 in 17 starts since June 26.

Montreal scored in the fourth when Rondell White singled off the glove of Atlanta first baseman Fred McGriff.

Justice homered with one out in the bottom half. Javy Lopez followed with a single and took third when shortstop Mark Grudzielanek booted Ryan Klesko's grounder for an error.

Cubs 6, Pirates 3

CHICAGO — Kevin Foster allowed just two hits in eight innings, and Scott Servais hit a go-ahead, two-run double as Chicago Cubs beat Pittsburgh.

Foster (11-11) walked two and struck out six in eight innings on a chilly day at Wrigley Field, where a 48-degree game-time temperature was accompanied by a biting 16 mph wind.

Both hits Foster yielded were singles and came in the fourth when Pittsburgh drew both of its walks and scored all three of its runs. Foster retired the final 13 batters he faced.

Rangers hand Angels eighth-straight loss

The Associated Press

ARLINGTON — The California Angels lost their eighth straight game Friday night and dropped out of first place in the AL

■ AL Roundup

West, falling to the Texas Rangers 8-3.

California began the game tied with Seattle, which played later at home against Oakland. The Angels had been in first place for the last 79 days.

The Angels' 26th loss in 34 games also dropped them into a tie with New York for the wild-card spot. The Yankees were rained out Friday night.

The win helped the Rangers stay in the wild-card chase. They started the day four games behind the Angels and Seattle in the wild-card chase.

Juan Gonzalez hit a three-run double during a five-run seventh inning that broke a 3-all tie. The Angels have not led in their last 66 innings.

Kenny Rogers (15-7) gave up seven hits in his third complete game. Mark Langston (15-6) left during the Rangers' big inning.

Benji Gil, battling an 0-for-14 slump, led off the seventh with a single and moved to second on a passed ball. Otis Nixon hit an RBI single and took second on the throw home.

Langston walked the next two batters and was relieved by Mike James, who gave up Gonzalez's bases-clearing double. Two groundouts scored Gonzalez.

Doubles by Mickey Tettleton, Ivan Rodriguez, Candy Maldonado plus a single by Craig Worthington gave the Rangers a 3-0 lead in the second inning.

Rogers couldn't hold the lead, giving up a solo homer to Jim Edmonds in the third, his 32nd, and a two-run homer to pinch-hitter Eduardo Perez in the seventh. It was the first pinch-hit homer of the season for the Angels and came after Damon Easley had singled.

White Sox 5, Twins 4

MINNEAPOLIS — Two Minnesota errors in the 10th inning set up Lance Johnson for the game-winning hit as Chicago beat the Twins.

With one out, third baseman Scott Leius threw wildly to first on a soft grounder by Ron Karkovics. Pinch runner Norberto Martin stole second and went to third on a throwing error by catcher Matt Walbeck. Johnson followed with a soft line single to right off Pat Mahomes (4-10) as the White Sox remained perfect in seven games against the Twins this season.

Kirk McCaskill (6-4) pitched four innings of relief for the win, and Roberto Hernandez pitched the 10th for his 32nd saves in 42 chances. After giving up just one run in his previous 9 2-3 innings, Chicago starter Mike Sirotko spotted Minnesota a 2-0 lead in the first.

Indians 5, Royals 3

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Orel Hershisier won his eighth game in his last 10 starts and Cleveland beat Kansas City for its 94th victory, their highest win total in 20 years.

The AL Central champion Indians surpassed the victory total by the 1955 club, which went 93-61.

Kansas City lost its fifth in a row, all at home. The Royals began the day four games behind in the wild-card race.

The Indians took a 4-3 lead in the eighth inning on a sacrifice fly by pinch-hitter Paul Sorrento. Eddie Murray led off with a single and pinch-runner Jeromy Burnitz moved to third on a single by Manny Ramirez off Gregg Olson (3-3).

Albert Belle added a sacrifice fly in the ninth.

Hershisier (15-6) gave up three runs on six hits in seven innings. He is 8-1 in his last 10 starts.

Orioles 10, Brewers 3

MILWAUKEE — Cal Ripken homered and drove in a season-high five runs and Harold Baines hit his 300th career homer in Baltimore's rout of Milwaukee.

Bobby Bonilla and Rafael Palmeiro also homered for Baltimore, which won its third straight.

Palmeiro led off the ninth with his career-high 38th home run off Sid Roberson. His 38th home run is the most by an Orioles hitter since Frank Robinson hit 49 in 1966.

Ripken had an RBI single in the first and a three-run homer, his 16th, in the second off rookie left-hander Brian Givens (5-6).

Ripken added a run-scoring single off Roberson in the eighth. Ripken got three hits for the second straight day; prior to that, he had been in a 3-for-44 slump since breaking Lou Gehrig's record for consecutive games played.

Kevin Brown (9-9) gave up three runs on eight hits in 6 2-3 innings. He walked one and struck out six.

Ripken, who has more homers (18) and RBIs (69) at County Stadium than at any other opponent's ballpark, hit a full-count fastball into the left-center field seats with two outs in the second to make it 6-0.

Bonilla followed Ripken's RBI single in the first with his 10th homer for a 3-0 lead. It was Bonilla's second home run in four career at-bats off Givens, who lost his fourth straight game.

Rain washes out Goody's 500 qualifying

MARTINSVILLE, Va. (AP) — Rain on Friday washed away first-round qualifying for Sunday's Goody's 500 NASCAR stock car race at Martinsville Speedway.

After trying to wait out the wet weather, NASCAR finally called it off at 5:45 p.m. EDT, rescheduling time trials for Saturday. The 37-car lineup will still be determined in two rounds of qualifying, with a practice in between.

Friday's qualifying, which was to set the top 25 qualifiers, had been scheduled for 3 p.m.

The Winston Cup cars did get in several hours of practice between rain showers, with Bobby Hamilton turning the fastest laps in a Pontiac Grand Prix.

Terry Labonte was the only driver to get onto the half-mile track during the rain, making the first laps on an oval with the experimental Goodyear rain tires that were also tried briefly earlier this season on the road course at Watkins Glen, N.Y.

Labonte made a half-dozen laps with a top speed of about 70 mph. The track qualifying record of 94.129 mph was set last September by Ted Musgrave.

"That's why those Formula One guys make so much money," Labonte said of his wet-track experience. "That's the car I'm going to race next weekend at North Wilkesboro, so I had to be careful."

The 3,400-pound Winston Cup stock cars normally run on slick tires that cannot tolerate a wet surface. The tires Labonte used Friday are grooved.

"They're trying to come up with a tire that'll work when the track isn't as wet as it is right now so the race can start on time," Labonte said as a heavy shower pelted down.

"Then, when the track gets drier, you could go back to another tire," he added. "It's just an experiment right now. It felt like you were on ice. You'd go in the corner and it wouldn't turn very good. You get in the throttle and think it wasn't bad, then it would break loose."

"We could have gone a little faster than that, but the weather conditions were a little wetter than we wanted them to be," the 1984 Winston Cup champion said. "It's hard to say if it can work or not because it's never been tried. With television and everything and all the races being sold out, they've got to look for ways for the show to go on when conditions aren't ideal."

No Winston Cup races have been postponed by rain this season, but nine straight events and 10 of the last 11, dating to July, have been effected by wet weather sometime during the week-end. The start of races at Indianapolis, Bristol, Tenn., and Dover, Del., have all been delayed by rain. But all three were run to completion.

Qualifying for Saturday's Goody's 150 SuperTruck event also was rained out and rescheduled for Saturday morning.

Ali returns to site of controversial Liston bout to celebrate bicentennial LEWISTON, Maine (AP) — Muhammad Ali returned Friday to the site of one of his most famous and controversial victories to join in this central Maine city's bicentennial celebration.

Ali drew cheers from about 200 people attending a bicentennial banquet prior to appearing at ring-side during a six-bout boxing show at the Central Maine Civic Center.

The arena, then known as the Central Maine Youth Center, was the setting for Ali's first-round knockout of Sonny Liston in a heavyweight championship fight on May 25, 1965.

In the first defense of the title he wrested from Liston 15 months earlier, Ali ended the bout with a right that skeptics labeled the "phantom punch."

Ali's eyes lit up Friday when master of ceremonies Bruce Glasier recited a poem that Ali, then known as Cassius Clay, wrote before the bout that predicted a "total eclipse of the Sonny."

Although his speech has been slowed by Parkinson's syndrome, Ali demonstrated that he has not lost his sense of humor.

After receiving a gold pen as a gift from Lewiston Mayor John Jenkins, the 53-year-old former champ quipped, "I come all the way to Maine, and this is all I get?"

Besides the so-called "phantom punch," Ali's title defense against against Liston is remembered for referee Jersey Joe Walcott's mis-handled count and singer Robert Goulet's mangling of the words of the national anthem.

Goulet was unable to attend the bicentennial banquet because of a prior commitment, but organizers of the event said he sent a videotape that shows him singing the anthem without a hitch.

Others who took part in the celebration included former heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson, promoter Sam Michael and former Gov. John Reed, who was in office when Maine accepted the bout that was passed up by larger venues.

Charles Henry Clay Sr. came to the banquet from Merrimack, N.H., with his son, Cassius Marc-cellus Clay.

Clay arrived early to see Ali's arrival at a local hotel. "This was the first time I've seen him since '76, when he was in Korea," said Clay, a long-time fan of the champ.

The First Environmentalists Are Still The Best

America's First Environmentalists* Are Still The Best

Each Conservation Dollar Provided By State Taxpayers Is Matched By Over Nine Dollars From Hunters and Anglers.

- Hunters' and anglers' $1.4 billion yearly contribution comes from purchases of licenses, tags, permits and stamps, payment of excise taxes on their equipment and other sources.
- Conservation programs managed by the state wildlife agencies have returned many species to healthy, abundant populations, including the Canada goose, wild turkey, elk and white-tailed deer.
- These conservation programs also seek to improve the condition of all America's wildlife, including hundreds of non-game species.
- Money provided by hunters and anglers is also used to purchase and maintain millions of acres of wildlife habitat, used and enjoyed by all Americans.

- Wild Turkey
Then: In the early 1900s, there were under 100,000 turkeys in the U.S.
Now: Restoration programs have increased the population to 4,500,000.
- Pronghorn Antelope
Then: 50 years ago, the pronghorn population had been reduced to under 12,000.
Now: Transplanting and restocking have brought it back to 1,000,000.
- Canada Goose
Then: In the late 1940s, there were about 1,000,000 Canada Geese in the U.S.
Now: The population has increased to 3,760,000.
- White-tailed Deer
Then: In 1900, it was estimated that the deer population was below 500,000.
Now: Wildlife management programs have restored this number to some 18,000,000.
- Rocky Mountain Elk
Then: In the early 1900s, elk populations reached a low of some 41,000.
Now: The elk population has grown to about 800,000.
- Wood Duck
Then: The wood duck was nearing extinction in 1915.
Now: They are the most abundant breeding waterfowl in the eastern U.S.
- Trumpeter Swan
Then: In 1935 only 73 remained.
Now: Thriving populations. Removed from endangered species list in the late 1960s.

BECAUSE SPORTSMEN PAY OVER $3 MILLION EACH DAY FOR CONSERVATION...

America's "Un-endangered Species"

WILD TURKEY

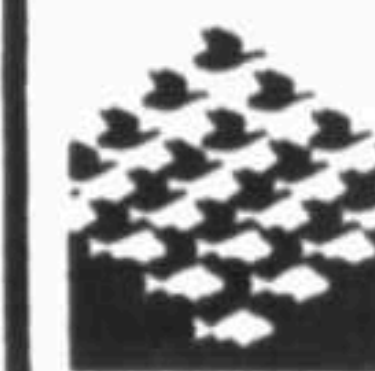

IN 1905: Encroaching civilization and habitat loss had reduced the number of wild turkeys in the U.S. to under 100,000.

TODAY: There are more than 4.5 million wild turkeys in our forests—thanks to conservation programs financed primarily by hunters and anglers.

Many Americans don't realize the pioneering role hunters and anglers have played—and continue to play—in the nation's organized conservation movement. Or the fact that these sportsmen and women have contributed more than $18 billion to date for wildlife restoration and conservation programs.

Virtually every species of American wildlife—from songbirds and chipmunks to bald eagles and whooping cranes—benefits from wildlife conservation programs supported through the sale of hunting and fishing licenses and proceeds from special excise taxes on hunting and fishing equipment.

To recognize these contributions to protect our wildlife and the environment, Congress established National Hunting & Fishing Day in 1972, to be celebrated the fourth Saturday of September each year. This year, on Saturday, September 23, join America's hunters and anglers in supporting conservation.

1995 DAVIS CUP

Sampras, Agassi roll to wins over Sweden

LAS VEGAS (AP) — With Andre Agassi playing at home and Pete Sampras playing at his best, the United States is on the verge of turning its Davis Cup semifinal against Sweden into a rout.

Agassi and Sampras rolled to wins Friday on an outdoor court in the shadow of the glittering Las Vegas Strip to give the U.S. team a commanding 2-0 lead after the first day of the best-of-5 match competition.

Agassi beat 31-year-old Mats Wilander 7-6 (7-5), 6-2, 6-2 while Sampras needed one more set to dispose of Thomas Enqvist, 6-3, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3, to move the United States within one win of the Davis Cup final with three matches remaining.

"We have three great chances to put this away," Agassi said. "I like our chances of getting one of them."

Agassi, who grew up and still lives in Las Vegas, overcame some first-set jitters before a partisan, flag-waving crowd at Caesars Palace to overpower Wilander, the world's 47th-ranked player.

It was the first time the top-ranked Agassi had played competitively before the hometown fans, and it showed early as he made numerous unforced errors before rallying to take the first set in a tiebreaker.

"It's real difficult coming out here the first time and playing in your hometown," Agassi said. "It was hard to get comfortable. I had to really step it up."

Agassi blew a 4-0 lead while serving and tied 5-5 in the first set, then managed to break Wilander's serve to tie the set 6-6.

The turning point came, however, when Wilander's first serve of the tiebreaker split the middle and was ruled in. Agassi screamed an obscenity at the linesman and paced the court, fuming. He began hitting the ball more forcefully and won the final four points of the tiebreaker to take the set.

"It wasn't until I got upset with myself and started hitting hard on the ball that I loosened up," Agassi said. "I think part of that was because I was playing in Las Vegas."

Agassi, who admitted being apprehensive prior to the match about playing in his hometown, said he tried to concentrate on what was happening on the court and forget about the fact he was in Las Vegas.

"I would do good at that until I would get on one side of the court and toss the ball up and see the Caesars Palace sign off in the distance," he said.

Once Agassi got in his rhythm, however, Wilander had little chance. Agassi was simply overpowering as he moved Wilander around the court with his backhand and handled his serve easily.

The outcome of the match had long been determined by the time Agassi drilled a two-fisted backhand down the line past Wilander to make the win official.

Agassi, who has hosted his U.S. teammates for several Las Vegas functions during the week, then smiled broadly and blew a kiss to his girlfriend, Brooke Shields.

The United States was already up 1-0 when Agassi took the court, courtesy of Sampras, who beat Agassi two weeks ago for the U.S. Open title and is playing at the top of his game.

Sampras used a blistering serve to score 24 aces in the match, overcoming some points lost on the five occasions he broke strings on his racquet to put the United States up 1-0.

"When he's serving like he did today, nobody in the world is beating him," Enqvist said. "He was serving unbelievably almost the whole match."

Lehman putt saves U.S. Ryder day

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — They played the European games in European weather but it was the United States that came out on top after the first day of the Ryder Cup.

With a steady rain falling and the outcome of the morning alternate-shot matches looking as dreary as the weather for the U.S. team, Corey Pavin and Tom Lehman won the last hole to beat Nick Faldo and Colin Montgomerie 1-up.

"To win it this way is a thrill," Lehman said after he waited for water to be sponged from the 18th green and then rolled in a 4-foot putt to take the match. "They gave us an opening on the last hole and we took advantage of it."

That crucial win against Europe's best pairing saved a 2-2 split in the four alternate-shot matches. The U.S. then played brilliant golf in winning three of the four afternoon better-ball matches — a format usually dominated by the Europeans — to take a 5-3 lead into Saturday's second round at Oak Hill Country Club.

Loren Roberts, who teamed with fellow Ryder Cup rookie Jeff Maggert to overwhelm Sam Torrance and Costantino Rocca 6 and 5, showed no signs of first-time jitters. He made four birdies in 12 holes and missed only one fairway as the rain stopped in the afternoon and temperatures fell.

"I had a great partner today," Maggert said. "Loren played unbelievable."

Roberts shot a 32 on the front nine, including a chip-in from the rough on No. 9, capping a three-hole run that made them 4-up at the turn.

"I was pretty pumped up today," Roberts said. "I played great from tee to green."

It was a strong start for an American team that is much better in singles play than it is in alternate-shot and better-ball. The U.S. team combined was only 4-14-6 in better-ball play before Friday's 3-1 romp.

When the U.S. team won the Cup in 1993 it trailed 4 1/2-3 1/2 after the first day.

No match was more important on this soggy Friday than the Pavin-Lehman alternate-shot contest against Faldo-Montgomerie.

Tom Lehman celebrates sinking a putt on No. 18 as he and Corey Pavin defeated Nike Faldo and Colin Montgomerie in Friday's Ryder Cup play.

The Americans were 4-up after five holes but Montgomerie made a 15-foot birdie on No. 6 to give the European duo the first of three consecutive holes that cut the lead to 1-up.

"We came out of the box strong and then at 6 I hit a putt I thought was dead in and it didn't drop and then he made his," Lehman said. "The momentum switches quickly out there."

Pavin and Lehman stayed 1-up until Faldo rolled in a 45-foot birdie putt on No. 13 to square the match. At the time the U.S. was losing two other matches and it looked like Europe could come away from the morning up 3-1.

But Pavin showed the leadership captain Lanny Wadkins expected from him, making a 35-foot birdie putt on No. 14 and saving par with a 40-yard wedge to 2 feet on No. 16.

It was an absolutely huge win. Fred Couples and Jay Haas lost to Rocca and Torrance 3 and 2 and Ben Crenshaw and Curtis Strange dropped their match to Bernhard Langer and Per-Ulrik Johansson on the last hole after coming from 3-down with six to play.

Davis Love and Maggert handled Mark James and Howard Clark easily, winning 4 and 3.

The win by Pavin and Lehman sent the U.S. team into the afternoon matches on an emotional high and they were nearly unstoppable.

Couples and Love handed Faldo and Montgomerie their second loss of the day, 3 and 2. And Pavin teamed with Phil Mickelson to defeat Langer and Johansson 6 and 4, winning the first four holes.

Europe's lone point of the afternoon came as David Gilford carried Seve Ballesteros past Brad Faxon and Peter Jacobsen 4 and 3.

Saturday will be a repeat of Friday's schedule with eight points at stake, four alternate-shot matches in the morning and four better-ball matches in the afternoon.

One fear for the American team was how it's five rookies would hold up. Of the five — Faxon, Roberts, Mickelson, Maggert and Lehman — only Faxon lost a point.

And none fought his nerves more determinedly than Lehman. He started strong, buckled when Faldo and Montgomerie made their charge, then collected himself to hit a solid 5-iron 200 yards to the 18th green and then rolled in the putt that won the match.

"Before I hit the shot I said, 'Corey, I need a pep talk. I'm not hitting it too well,'" Lehman said about the approach shot on No. 18. "He said, 'Pick your best club, get committed and swing really hard.'"

"After I hit it, I'm thinking, 'Don't make me putt,'" Lehman said. "But I think maybe I needed to make a 3- or 4-foot putt to win a match to know I can do it."

Friday's strong showing may have had that effect on the entire inexperienced U.S. team.

Weibring's 6-under in native Illinois ties for Quad City

The Associated Press

COAL VALLEY, Ill. — D.A. Weibring, who saved his best round of the year on the PGA Tour for his native Illinois.

Golf Roundup

shot a 6-under-par 64 Friday to share the first-round lead of the rain-delayed Quad City Classic.

Russ Cochran and Jim McGovern also shot 64s on the 6,762-yard Oakwood Country Club course. Each started on the back nine of the course and shot nines of 31 and 33.

Rain stopped play after a few hours Thursday, prompting the PGA Tour to shorten the event to 54 holes. The cut will be made after Saturday's second round.

Scott Verplank was one shot back of the leaders at 65.

Four others were at 66, including Curt Byrum, the 1989 Quad Cities winner. Also at 4-under were Joel Edwards, Chris Perry and Michael Allen.

Weibring, who hails from Quincy and now lives in Plano, Texas, won the tournament in 1991, when it was known as the Hardee's Classic.

At 67 were Greg Kraft, Ted Schulz and Jonathan Kaye, all of whom played in Friday's morning group, and J.P. Hayes.

Defending champ Mark McCumber shot 69.

LPGA Heartland ST. LOUIS — U.S. Open champion Annika Sorenstam had her second straight bogey-free round

Friday to take a six-stroke lead in the GHP Heartland Classic.

The 24-year-old Swedish star, who had a 5-under-par 67 for an 8-under 136 total on the Forest Hills Country Club, hit 16 greens in regulation in the second round after reaching 17 on Thursday.

Page Dunlap shot a 71 for a 2-under 142 total and defending champion Liselotte Neumann, first-round leader Tracy Hanson, Renee Heiken and Michele Redman followed at 143.

Sorenstam overcame the second straight day of unseasonably cold weather. The temperature was in the low 40s when play began Friday and never reached 60. But predicted rain held off and there was little wind.

Bank One Senior Classic LEXINGTON, Ky. — Jim Dent and Bruce Devlin overcame dreary weather to shoot 3-under-par 69s Friday and share the first-round lead in the Bank One Senior Classic.

Of the 78 players competing in the $600,000 event, only six broke par on the Kearney Hill Links as temperatures dropped into the mid-40s when the first group started in the morning.

A drizzle and cool breeze contributed to a wind-chill factor of 39 degrees, the coolest on the Senior PGA Tour since The Vantage at The Dominion tournament at San Antonio, Texas, in March 1993.

Dent, playing in his second tournament since taking an eight-week break because of a back injury, finished the round with six birdies and three bogeys. Devlin was more consistent with one bogey and four birdies, including three on the back nine.

Despite the adverse conditions, Dent got off to a good start with a 10-foot birdie putt on the first hole, and added birdie putts of three feet on No. 6, two feet on No. 7 and eight feet on No. 9.

Senior Tour ends relationship with Dallas pro-am

DALLAS (AP) — The Senior PGA Tour will no longer be stopping in Dallas, ending an 11-year relationship.

Officials with the Dallas Reunion Pro-Am and the Communities Foundation of Texas, the sponsoring charity for the last six years, were told about the decision earlier this week. The 1996 event had been scheduled for June 3-9.

"The cancellation was purely economics," said Reunion tournament founder Joe Denton. "We haven't had a title sponsor for the last two years and our prize money has remained at around $600,000."

Denton said even though his event had been negotiating with possible title sponsors, he was told the tour had a bigger payday elsewhere.

"The Senior Tour had a chance to book a tournament with a $1 million purse in our time spot and took it," Denton said.

The Dallas Reunion Pro-Am, which was among the first 20 senior events, was unique because it featured amateurs along with pros throughout the 54-hole championship.

Rolling like Mississippi, Rams face real test

The Associated Press

The St. Louis Rams aren't playing as if they belong in St. Louis and they're not playing like Rams either — at least not like Los Angeles Rams.

These Rams in their first year in St. Louis are rolling like the Mississippi and are 3-0 going into Sunday's home game against the Chicago Bears.

It's the Rams' best start since they began 3-0 at Los Angeles and finished 11-5 in 1989.

That also was their last winning season in LA. This season's 3-0 start has to be a bonus for fans in St. Louis, who suffered through seven losing NFL seasons in the final 10 years the Cardinals played there before moving to Phoenix in 1988.

Other Sunday games are Kansas City at Cleveland, Arizona at Dallas, New Orleans at the New York Giants, Minnesota at Pittsburgh, Denver at San Diego, Philadelphia at Oakland, the New York Jets at Atlanta, Houston at Cincinnati, Washington at Tampa Bay, and Green Bay at Jacksonville.

Chiefs at Browns
The next rushing touchdown for Marcus Allen of the Chiefs (3-0) will be the 100th of his career. It should be tough to get, however, because the Browns (2-1) have allowed only nine TDs in the past 10 games at Cleveland Stadium, where they have a 200-112-5 record since 1950.

Cardinals at Cowboys
Two things the Cardinals (1-2) need to do to upset the Cowboys (3-0) are to stop Emmitt Smith, the NFL's No. 1 rusher (427 yards), and Michael Irvin, the NFC's No. 2 receiver (21 catches for 310 yards).

Saints at Giants
At least the Saints should score in this battle of 0-3 teams. They have scored in 180 straight games, the second-longest active streak, behind San Francisco's 277, in the NFL. The Giants have produced a total of two touchdowns and three field goals in their three losses.

Vikings at Steelers
Minnesota's Warren Moon needs to throw for 158 yards to become the first pro quarterback to pass for 60,000 yards (21,228 in the CFL and 38,614 in the NFL). The Vikings (1-2) will need Moon's passing. The Steelers (2-1) are second in rushing defense in the AFC with a 68.7 average.

Broncos at Chargers
As any team that plays the Broncos (2-1) has to do, the Chargers (2-1) will have to be on guard against quarterback John Elway's end-of-game heroics. Elway led his 35th career fourth-quarter comeback with a 43-yard touchdown pass on the final play of last Sunday's 38-31 victory over Washington. The Chargers have the AFC's second-best pass defense, with a 138.7 average.

Eagles at Raiders
The Eagles (1-2) have the NFC's third-best rushing offense (139.0), but need consistency from quarterback Randall Cunningham. The AFC Raiders (2-1) are 7-2 against NFC teams since 1993.

Jets at Falcons
The Jets (1-2) needed a visit from expansion Jacksonville last week to get their first victory. Now they face an Atlanta team (2-1) that has come from behind for both victories and is led by quarterback Jeff George, who has directed the NFC No. 2 pass offense (284.3).

Oilers at Bengals
The Oilers (1-2) have the NFL's No. 1 overall defense and No. 1 pass defense (102.0). The Bengals (2-1) count on the passing of Jeff Blake. Quarterback Will Furrer probably will make his second NFL start for Houston in place of Chris Chandler (injured shoulder).

NFL Roundup

Redskins at Buccaneers
Each club won its opener and hasn't won since. Terry Allen of the Redskins can run — 272 yards, third best in the NFC. Linebacker Hardy Nickerson of the Bucs can tackle. He has led or tied for the club lead in tackles in 27 of 33 games and had 12 against the Bears last Sunday.

Packers at Jacksonville
Quarterback Brett Favre figures to improve greatly on his NFC second-best statistics of 752 passing yards and seven TD passes. The Jaguars are at their best when it's too late, having scored 17 of their 30 total points in the fourth quarter.

Pass The Torch

Chevron has just completed their most successful campaign for United Way. It began with a Kickoff Rally held on August 3. CNN (Chevron News Network) reporter Doug Johnson hosted a live broadcast depicting Torchbearer Oscar Grado running at several locations around Midland, and finishing with an Olympic entrance to Chevron's Claydesta building. The Torch was passed to Oil Profit Center Manager Ed McKinnon who vowed to carry it on to Wickett and several other of Chevron's field offices. He challenged Gas Profit Center Manager Joe Bandema to climb the building with the Torch if we met our United Way Fundraising Goal of $70,000. The Rally concluded with an Ice Cream Social, put on by the Employees club.

Three fundraising events were held during August. Two floors of the Chevron building were transformed into a Miniature Golf course for a day-long tournament. The Downtown Lion's Club helped prepare a Pancake Breakfast, where 175 employees and guests, including Campaign Chairman Bob Ireland of Conoco, feasted on pancakes and sausage. A lunch time Atrium Fair offered 18 booths with games and food, including a jail, dunking booth, paper airplane contest and chili cook-off. Many area merchants donated prizes, including Radio Station KNFM, who raffled off a Gold Compact Disc.

Five United Way agency speakers were featured at employee meetings through the month. Employees discovered how their contributions are put to work through Mitch Moore of Palmer Drug Abuse Program, Debbie Salyers of the Visiting Nurse Service, Ellen Smith of Southeast Senior Center, Mike Harrell of Big Brothers/Big Sisters, and Doris Richardson of Freewill Foster Home. Texaco Loaned Executives Charles Sadler and Connie Greenlee served as liaisons to United Way throughout the campaign.

In keeping with the theme of the United Way Of Midland's Pacesetter Campaign, Chevron employees passed two symbolic torches (flashlights) from person to person throughout the month, sharing thoughts and questions about United Way. Since one of every three Midlanders is helped in some way each year by United Way agencies, chances were that with each passing of the torch, someone would have a personal experience to share. The torches were passed 365 times. Chevron donated $1 for each passing of the torch.

The campaign was successful in generating $65,500 in donations and pledges. This represented a 21% increase in employee gifts of $36,135. Chevron's pledge was $30,365. In addition, the Abell-Hanger Foundation pledged to match all donations from new givers and increased givers of more than $50. These amounted to over $17,000 for the Chevron Campaign. Although the goal of $70,000 was not quite reached, the campaign objectives of 1) having fun, 2) good participation, and 3) raising awareness and funds for United Way were surpassed. The matching funds even encouraged Joe Bandema to make the climb at the Final Rally held on August 31 (Joe is pictured above making the climb).

The Hearst Corp., parent company of the Midland Reporter-Telegram, is ranked 153rd in the MIT Information Week 500 Study, a ranking of the top corporate investors in and users of information technology.

AT&T headed the magazine's list, which was released prior to AT&T's announcement this week that it was breaking up and abandoning its computer effort. The remaining Top 10 were General Electric, General Motors, Columbia/HCA Healthcare Corp., IBM, Lockheed Martin, GTE, ITT, AlliedSignal and the Ford Motor Co.

"The top organizations in our rankings," according to Information Week, "have combined computers with new strategies and structures to generate more wealth than their competitors."

The complete rankings are listed in the magazine's Sept. 18 issue.

SEATTLE—What's the loneliest address around these parts? Try <http://www.morsonet.com/firstdatabank/ebill.html>. It's the address of Microsoft Chairman Bill Gates' new mansion. And it's one he and his wife, Melinda, would prefer you didn't visit.

It's not a street address, but a site on the Internet's World Wide Web set up by Morsonet/Edison Communications, a Seattle-area public relations firm that specializes in high-tech clients.

The company plans to publish pictures, updated every other week, of the Gateses' $50 million, 40,000-square-foot mansion under construction on Lake Washington.

The photos will all be shot from the water, company President Dan McFadden said Tuesday. "We don't want to be intrusive," he said.

The Gateses declined to comment on the photos Tuesday. So did a spokeswoman, except to offer a reminder that the house is on private property.

Hard drive Talk

G. I own a Macintosh LC II with a 40-megabyte internal hard drive, and I am currently at 38 megabytes. What hard drive options are available?

A. If you've survived this long on a paltry 40 megs, you're in for a pleasant surprise. Hard drives have become much less expensive in the past year, so you can get quite a bit for your money.

In upgrading, you basically have two options: You can buy a new internal drive to replace the one you have, or you can simply plug an external drive into your SCSI port. SCSI stands for Small Computer System Interface, by the way.

Anyway, if you want the easiest route, just buy an external drive. You simply plug it into the back of your computer and off you go. Plus, you can continue to use your internal drive, which allows you to brag about your dual-drive system. You should be able to pick up a 540-meg external drive for about $350 — less if you shop around.

The Rev. Thomas Thompson briefs the press recently about the Virgin Mary Page. Browsers on the World Wide Web are able to find answers to 10 frequently asked questions about the Mother of Christ.

The Virgin Mary joins the information revolution

Associated Press

DAYTON, Ohio — The Virgin Mary is getting her own homepage.

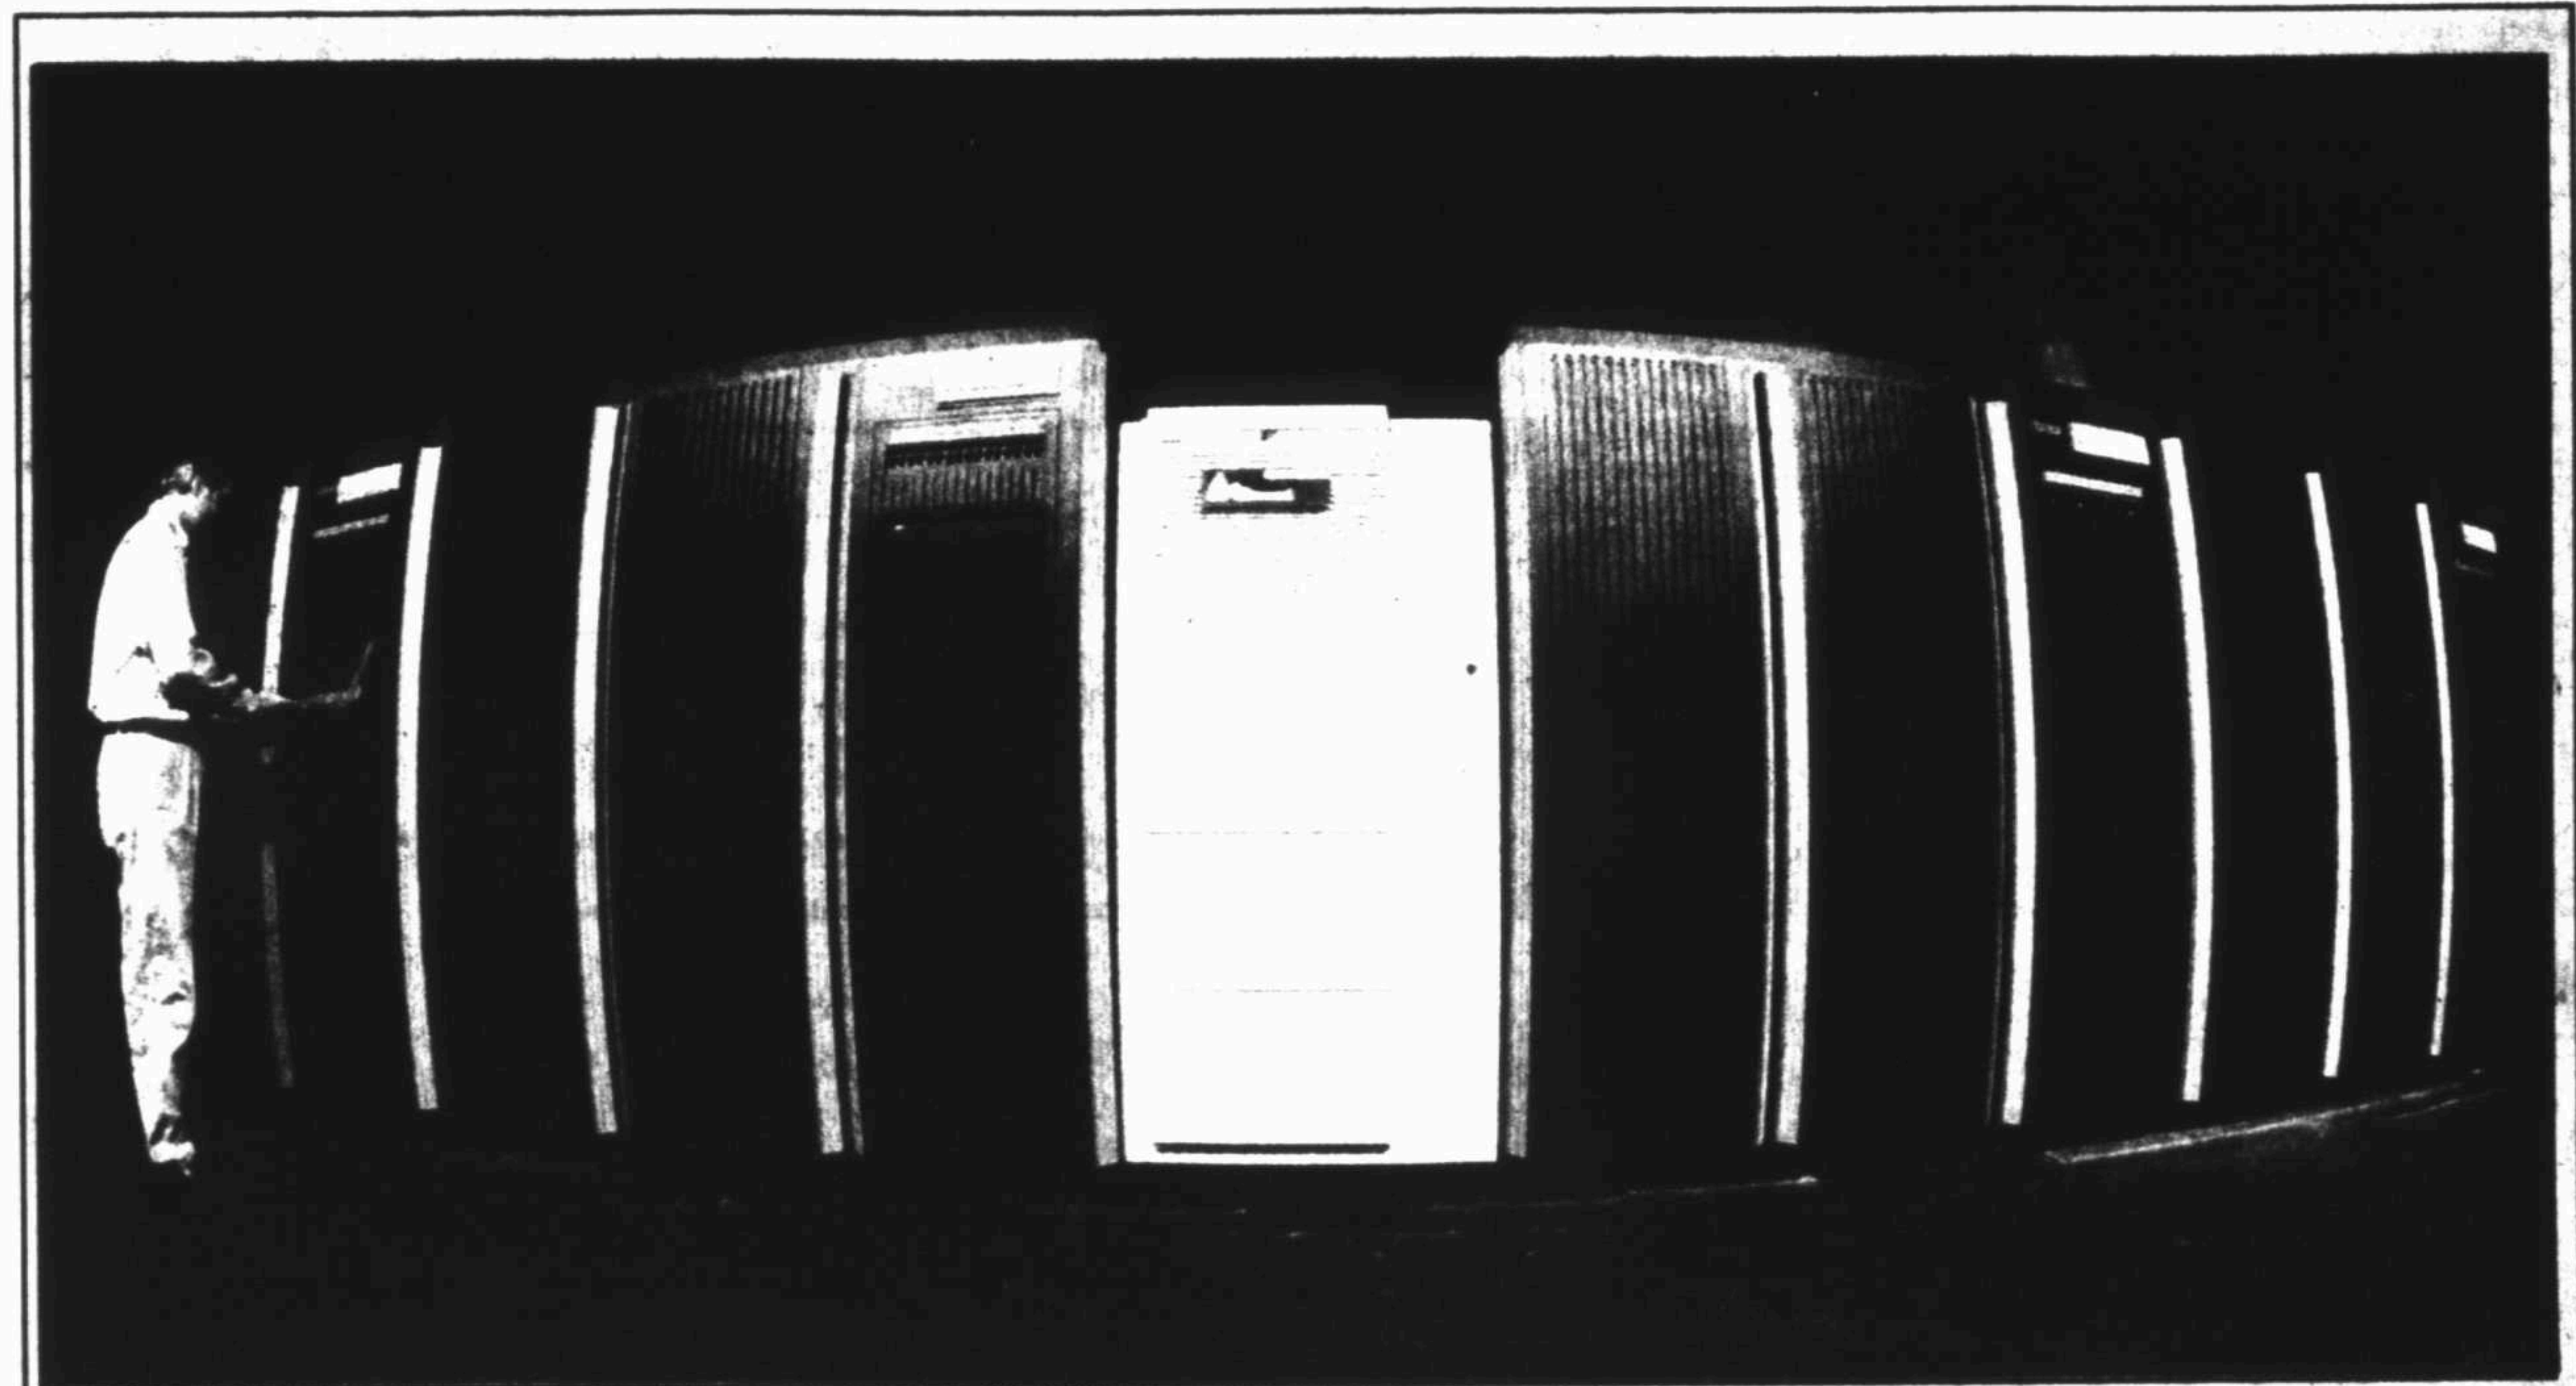

Those who tap into The Mary Page on the Internet's World Wide Web will be able to find the answers to 10 frequently asked questions about the mother of Christ, as well as illustrations.

The computer page is sponsored by the Marian Library-International Marian Research Institute at the University of Dayton.

"We need to use any form of communication that makes her better known and understood," said the Rev. Bertrand Buby, assistant professor of religious studies at Dayton.

Network users will learn that Mary is usually portrayed wearing blue or red because blue calls to mind the color of the sky and red is the color of kings.

They also will learn that apocryphal writings identify Mary's parents as Joachim and Anne, an aging couple who had been childless.

World's largest data base

The world's largest data warehouse is unveiled in Philadelphia this week. A computer configuration capable of holding four terabytes, the equivalent of two billion pages of text or 160-thousand four-drawer filing cabinets of information, was demonstrated to thousands of people attending International Oracle Users Week. The largest commercially-viable data warehouse was developed jointly by Oracle, Hewlett Packard and EMC Corp. at EMC's Open Storage Group Research Lab in Milford, Mass. The system is comprised of an HP9000 T500 processor (center), which is flanked by four EMC Symmetrix 3500 Integrated Cached Disk Array Storage Systems running Oracle 7 release 7.3 software. Each symmetrix system is capable of storing 1 terabyte, or one trillion characters of information. The three companies developed the system using standard components. Industries such as retail, financial services, government and manufacturing will use the system to store and retrieve massive amounts of information for analyses of trends and decision support.

Security flaw located in Netscape software

By John Markoff

N.Y. Times News Service

SAN FRANCISCO — A serious security flaw has been discovered in Netscape, the most popular software used for computer transactions over the Internet's World Wide Web, threatening to cast a chill over the emerging market for electronic commerce.

The flaw, which could enable a knowledgeable criminal to use a computer to break Netscape's security coding system in less than a minute, means that no one using the software can be certain of protecting credit card information, bank account numbers or other types of information that Netscape is supposed to keep private during on-line transactions.

The weakness was identified by two first-year graduate students in computer science at the University of California at Berkeley, who published their findings on an Internet mailing list Sunday evening.

Although Netscape Communications Corp., which produces the software, said Monday that the flaw could be fixed and that new copies of the software would be distributed as early as next week, Internet experts said the discovery underscored the danger of assuming that any computer security system was safe.

"There needs to be much more public auditability in the way these financial security systems are designed and implemented," said Eric Hughes, president of Open Financial Networks, a company in Berkeley that is developing Internet commerce systems.

The Netscape software is already used by an estimated eight million people for navigating the World Wide Web portion of the Internet. On the Web, thousands of companies offer text, images, video and audio information, much of it as a way of advertising or directly selling goods and services.

Because the Netscape software is not only easy to use but has also been promoted as a secure way of dealing with

Benefits of CD ROM drives enormous

By Mark Singh

CD ROM (Computer Disc — Read Only Memory) drives have become very popular features of personal computer systems. In fact, they are now offered standard in many desktop and server computers as well as in some notebook models. In the last three years, there have been major advances in performance while prices have dropped dramatically and a plethora of software on compact discs has become available. From the single speed (150 kilobytes per second data transfer rate) models, the industry has moved to quad-speed and six-speed (600 and 900 Kb/sec.) models, even making motion video feasible.

The CD ROM drive allows the computer to read compact discs, each of which typically stores up to 650 Megabytes (Mb), equivalent to about 325,000 type-written pages of information. These CD's may contain very large reference databases such as encyclopedias, price lists, product catalogs, or technical support reference libraries, as well as graphics and sound files, complex games, or large programs.

Some vendors are distributing certain software (the leading network operating system, Novell Netware 4.1, for example) only on CD. Others are giving customers a choice of diskettes or CD's. The CD version is usually cheaper because one CD holds the entire program and documentation while the diskette version has many diskettes and several manuals. Some programs that incorporate extensive graphics and sound (for example encyclopedias) can only feasibly be distributed on CD. Not surprisingly, Microsoft Corporation has become the leading encyclopedia company because of its award-winning CD program Encarta.

Individual users generally buy a CD ROM drive with a sound card and speakers in order to make use of the sound features in educational programs and games. Many CD ROM drives also have external controls to play music CD's. Systems with CD ROM drives, sound cards, and speakers are generally referred to as multimedia systems. Some users also add microphones, headphones and video input devices. The speakers are usually battery-powered, but an inexpensive A/D adapter is an investment that quickly pays for itself.

Libraries and other organizations have found it useful to have CD changers which typically hold six or seven CD's at the same time. While data access is not as fast as in a CD tower, the changer provides a relatively cheap way of accessing several gigabytes of information without the user having to change CD's.

Businesses can place CD ROM drives on individual computers or have them shared in a network. Towers containing multiple CD ROM drives may be incorporated into the network to provide rapid access to a wealth of information. Prices are also coming down on rewritable CD drives that businesses can use to create CD's for distribution or for archival purposes.

If you are planning to buy a new computer, consider getting it with a CD ROM system. If you already have a computer without a CD ROM drive, consider upgrading it. The benefits are enormous.

NETSCAPE: Flaw to be removed before new software shipped personal and financial information, it has been seen as the emerging de facto standard for on-line commerce.

Already, a diverse group of companies — including Wells Fargo Bank, MCI Communications, Internet Shopping Network and Virtual Vineyards — have adopted Netscape as the vehicle for checking bank balances, catalogue shopping or buying wine on line.

Although Internet experts agreed with the company's assessment that the flaw could be fixed and that it posed no risk to people who use the World Wide Web only to retrieve nonsensitive data, the security problem's disclosure may represent a public relations setback for Netscape Communications and an inconvenience to millions of people who may feel a need to replace the version of Netscape installed on their computers.

Last month the company's shares began public trading and had one of the most successful first days in Wall Street history, largely on the resounding popularity of the Netscape software.

Monday, as word of the security flaw circulated only within fairly small circles of Internet users, Netscape's stock closed with a slight loss, down 75 cents, to $52.50, in low Nasdaq trading volume.

The company said it would release a repaired version of the software within a week. Users will be able to download it free over the Internet, through the Netscape site on the World Wide Web (<http://home.netscape.com>).

The company had previously announced a next-generation version of Netscape that it said would be more secure than the original, and it said Monday that it would release this updated version within the next few weeks. But first it will remove the newly disclosed flaw, which is currently in the new version.

"The good news and the bad news of the Internet is that when you put something up there, many more people can test it," said Mike Homer, the vice president of marketing at Netscape. "You also give yourself the opportunity of having people point things out which you can fix quickly."

The company so far has distributed most copies of its program free over the Internet, under a strategy of making its money from commercial customers who use Netscape to provide services or for other business applications over the World Wide Web. So replacing the copies will not be an expensive undertaking.

Instead, for Netscape Communications and for other companies betting their futures on the Internet, the real cost of this disclosure may be in the public's shaken confidence in the ability of computer companies to insure privacy and security for on-line commerce.

The weakness in Netscape's security was discovered by Ian Goldberg, 22, and David Wagner, 21, two computer science students who share an office at the university and who also share an interest in the arcane science of cryptography, which is becoming increasingly important for business as companies begin to explore electronic commerce.

The two students said they had decided to put the software to a test in an effort to raise public concern about placing too much trust in unproved electronic security systems.

"I'm definitely concerned about people trusting insecure systems that promote the use of cryptography but don't give you real security," Goldberg said. "They are worse than if you don't have any security at all."

The two students began their investigation after Wagner, studying reference documents that Netscape Communications provides to outside software developers, noticed what seemed to be a potential weakness in the security system.

Netscape's security is based on a type of coding technology known generically as public key cryptography in which users exchange mathematically generated numbers — or keys — to encode or decode information.

In such systems, a new key is created for each information exchange, based on a mathematical formula that is combined with numbers supposedly known only to the sender or recipient.

The students found that by determining how Netscape's formula generated the number used as a starting point for creating a key, they were able to greatly reduce the potential combinations that would unlock the code.

The starting-point number turned out to be based on the time and date of the transaction, combined with several other unique bits of information taken from a user's computer system — bits of information that an electronic intruder could determine, if he were intent on intercepting a Netscape user's transactions.

Knowing how the starting-point number was created greatly reduced the other possible components of the formula — and the students found they were able to break the code in a matter of seconds using a standard computer work station.

Netscape officials said Monday that they would strengthen the system, by making it significantly harder to determine the random number at the heart of their coding system. They said they would no longer disclose what data would be used to generate the random numbers.

The announcement of the flaw was posted Sunday night on a computer network mailing list maintained by an informal group known as Cypherpunks. The group, which is made up of mathematicians, computer experts and privacy advocates, has been campaigning for more effective electronic security systems.

Netscape Communications bases its security system on technology that was developed by RSA Data Security Inc. of Redwood City, Calif.

With a chip and a program, computers can make magic

By Bill Husted

N.Y. Times News Service

ATLANTA — What if I showed you a photograph of a Ferrari and said — if you believe in magic — you can climb into this picture and drive away?

Now imagine I hand you a slip of paper with these words on it: "This is gasoline. Put this slip of paper on the photograph of the Ferrari and it will run."

If I did that, you'd probably recommend I take a break from the keyboard and go fishing. That's not a bad idea, but the examples I gave are closer to the truth than you know.

Today we will take a break from hard disks and monitors to explore a topic they don't talk about at the computer store: Computers are magic.

The examples of the Ferrari and the slip of paper are very much like the way computers work. What I'll tell you today won't help you run Windows 95 any better, but it will help you understand just how magical a computer really is.

For relatively old folks such as myself, that magic was the basis for our fascination with computers. Early on, unlike today, home computers weren't useful at all. My first computer didn't even have a keyboard, just toggle switches.

So instead of helping me compile the grocery list, it was a magical creation — useless but a miracle nonetheless.

There's a practical reason to understand that magic of computing. Once you do, you may be more tolerant when your computer makes its next electronic belch.

You see, owning a computer is like having a pig that can sing. A singing pig is a marvel, even when it can't carry a tune. The miracle is that it can sing at all.

Let's look at the magic that makes your computer sing.

We'll start with the microprocessor — the chip that furnishes the computer's brains. It falls into the category of hardware.

A microprocessor is literally a photograph, reduced to the size of your thumbnail, containing tiny images of millions of transistors.

The photograph is reproduced on what is called "doped" silicon. Silicon is like glass. It doesn't do a good job of conducting electricity. But the "dope" consists of chemical elements that do conduct. The photographs of the transistors are formed of nonconductive silicon and conductive dope. That creates the electrical reason for electrons to flow, creating a tiny and functional transistor.

Now, let's talk about the piece of paper, the one that claimed to be gasoline. It's software — the gasoline that runs a computer.

A computer program is made up of lines of computer "code." That's just words that tell the silicon what to do. These words are written in the precise language of a computer program.

Some languages are made up of words like the ones you and I use. Other, more complex, use terms and numbers that seem exotic and foreign. But, no matter how strange, they're just words.

These are words that tell the microprocessor everything it needs to know to create a program that can write a letter, figure a spreadsheet or play a game.

I'm glad home computers finally really have become useful tools.

I wouldn't want to go back to a typewriter, a mechanical 10-key calculator and trying to decipher the handwriting in an appointment book.

But it helps to know that — with all the useful features — that beige box on your desk runs on magic — on words and photographs.

Students say benefits of new technology worth a bundle

EDITOR'S NOTE — With the information highway now reaching the college campus and databases proliferating worldwide, a freshman student can summon up information in minutes it would have taken a doctoral student years to research just 15 years ago. Is this changing the very nature of education? Here's what some professors and students at Vassar College have to say.

By John Barbour
AP Newsfeatures Writer

POUGHKEEPSIE, N.Y. — This working-class town harbors prestigious Vassar College, known for its high regard for the arts and sciences. The old-fashioned way. Fetch a book, read it, come to class and discuss it, write a paper.

But now, behind the Gothic arches and flying buttresses, electronic wizardry is changing all that. Long a boon to science and math, the computer is now being used in the teaching of literature and the humanities in ways not dreamed of a few years ago. Shakespeare is devoured, sorted and autopsied by limitless digital appetites.

The late Pulitzer Prize-winning poet Elizabeth Bishop, a most private person in life, is dissected by database.

Students peer intently into the archives of Greek and Latin literature and can summon up the sounds, the art and sculpture, the archaeology and the words of antiquity with a flick of the wrist on their own private screens.

It is part of a national trend, largely experimental, a new way of coping with shy students who wouldn't raise their hands in class, but who do not hesitate to address an analytic community forum on the screen. It's a new way of capturing the attention of youngsters raised on a diet of sitcoms, MTV and sound bites.

It is also a useful tool for scholars studying the work of Homer or Shakespeare, digitized on CD-Roms and Internet, taken apart word by word, to offer clues to the personality of genius.

New textbooks are now published simultaneously in ink and CD-Rom editions.

This multimedia, computerized educational menu is growing worldwide so fast no one can count the programs. Still educators applaud it as progress, and some traditionalists say this may be the way to get back the waning attention of youngsters unused to the discipline of college life.

Because Internet is not much more than a phone line, the fabled information highway, a world where anyone can give and anyone receive, it is a hodgepodge of information sources as diverse as human curiosity.

"Daily you see more and more things coming up," says Charles Henry, curator of the Vassar College library.

In a modest, almost book-free office in a graceful building, Henry sits, like most librarians, at the local intersection of the information highway.

"One of the major roles that we play is to mediate the highways, the thousands of databases out there, the thousands of catalogs, things coming up all the time," he says. "The introduction of the worldwide web makes things fascinating and more complicated."

For instance, there is a program reachable by Internet called Perseus, after the ancient Greek warrior. It offers Greek literature, a Greek-to-English dictionary, pronunciation guides, thousands of images of Greek architecture, Greek sculpture, Greek painting and vases, hundreds and hundreds of images of archaeological excavations and audio of the ancient lines being read aloud.

"So, say you're reading Homer, and Odysseus," explains Henry, "and you come across some reference to olive. You get a dictionary definition, you get cross-references of where olive occurs ... you find out it was associated with the goddess Athena. It was her plant."

And the student or scholar discovers that when Odysseus sleeps under an olive tree on the island of Ithaca, it presages his meeting with the goddess in the next book, and by keying in the appropriate instructions one can see on the screen archaeological digs on Ithaca.

In short, says Henry, a freshman can summon up information in minutes it would have taken a doctoral student six years to research 15 years ago.

Is it better than opening up a volume of Homer? Says Henry, "Coming from a classical background I can say yes. It gets much better. ... This is different and it makes you think in ways you hadn't thought before."

Barbara Page, chairman of the English department, says students take to computer-assisted programs with a great deal of spontaneity, and admires the swiftness of communication via e-mail, which does not interrupt the way a telephone does, and is yet more complete and sensitive.

"I think it is clearly a gain for the teacher."

The students communicate with each other and everyone can see everyone else's comments on the screen. More thinking is going on than Page realized.

"There is discussion," she says, "and there is heightened attention and concentration."

The library and professor are the license to drive on the information highway. The computer and the rapid interchange of ideas is the local teaching tool.

There is an enormous catalog of data available on Internet.

Cornell University is expanding its "vast American architecture project," Henry says. The University of California at Berkeley is compiling another project from its collections. Vassar will probably compile projects on anthropologist Ruth Benedict and naturalist John Burroughs.

At the top of entry level

The newest entry from Plymouth - the Plymouth Breeze compact sedan - is more than just a product introduction, it is further confirmation that Plymouth is taking aim at the affordable entry level market. With Breeze, the new Plymouth lineup now offers young singles, couples and families an exciting choice of affordable cars and mini-vans.

Breeze supports the entry-level positioning of Plymouth by giving the brand a significant, new option for young couples and families seeking an affordably priced four-door sedan that offers utility and space without sacrificing personality. With the latest in cab-forward architecture, comfort, handling and style, for much less money than simpler subcompacts and compacts, Breeze offers the perfect combination of features and benefits for younger buyers with on active lifestyle.

Available in the first quarter of 1996, the Breeze will come equipped with a standard 2.0-liter 16-valve, SOHC four-cylinder engine mated to a five-speed manual transmission, four-speed electronically-controlled automatic transmission will also be available.

Breeze distinguishes itself from the competition by offering class-leading room, numerous storage compartments in both front and rear seats, the largest trunk (15.7 cubic feet) in its class with lockable pass-through, and many other standard comfort and safety features.

Standard equipment will include driver and passenger air bags, air conditioning, AM/FM stereo radio, tilt steering column, electric rear window defroster, full-folding rear seat, remote trunk release and tinted glass.

Anti-lock brakes, power windows, locks and mirrors, on integrated child safety seat, personal security group and either cassette or compact disc player will be optional equipment.

Breeze will meet all 1997 federal dynamic side impact stan-

Plymouth has introduced a new marketing concept to compliment the new line of vehicles. Showrooms called 'Plymouth Place' have been introduced. These are full of interactive computers and customer advisors who can help customers with the 'just looking' phase of car buying.

dards. Breeze supports the philosophy of providing vehicles for important life stages, specifically young people who have recently married or have a small family, said Steve Torok, Chrysler-Plymouth General Manager. Along with Neon and Voyager, they now can welcome the entry level buyer at any stage.

Breeze makes an important connection in the stair-step buying process for a good portion of car buyers. Plymouth's research shows that 45 percent of people trading out of sub-compact cars graduate to a compact/mid-size car, while 30 percent of compact/midsize traders move on to a minivan.

We no longer run the risk of losing our owners coming out of subcompacts, Torok said. With Breeze, Neon owners can now find a compact sedan with the same kind of style and personality they enjoyed so much.

Plymouth's efforts to reach the entry-level market go beyond building fun, youthful cars and mini-vans. They involve breaking down the apprehensions of first-time buyers who are hesitant about entering the shopping process.

Over the past six months, Plymouth has been test-marketing several concepts aimed at providing customers with practical, helpful information before they enter a dealership. This has included information centers and vehicle displays in shopping malls, where consumers cannot buy a car, but they can get pricing information, study options and color choices and design the Plymouth vehicle they want before entering a showroom. The in-mall showroom - known as Plymouth Place - features vehicle displays, interactive computers and customer advisors to answer any questions.

In addition to Plymouth Place, the brand is developing on-line shopping services, designed to provide the some information for home computer users.

There is an important part of the buying process, the "just looking phase," when many consumers believe they are unprepared to talk to a salesperson, Torok said. By providing them with things like prices and options before they go into the showroom, our Plymouth Place visitors have told us they are much more informed.

After more test marketing this year, Plymouth hopes to develop a national program to help consumers in the shopping process.

1969 Mangusta

Back in 1969, my wife and I were driving from San Jose to Sacramento, and on the hilly portion of the highway east of Livermore we were passed by an exotic yellow car. We were curious, and sped up a bit in order to follow the car. We discovered that we had just seen our first De Tomaso Mangusta!

This unusual Italian vehicle was conceived by Alessandro De Tomaso, who was also in charge of Carrozzeria Ghia (Ghia Body Co.) of Turin. The Ghia body was designed by Giorgio Giugiaro, one of Italy's famed stylists. These cars were always scarce. Production averaged but one car a day in 1969.

From '71 to '74, but Panteras were built before Ford Motor Co. officially "disowned" them in August 1974. The much-improved new Pantera 3.2 (to replace the

The Mangusta was developed in 1966 and reviewed in the automotive press in 1967. At that time, it used an aluminum-block V8 engine by De Tomaso. That 477-cu. V8 delivered 214, 237, or 256 HP, depending on carburetor or fuel injection system used.

By 1969, the Mangusta had switched to Ford V8 engines, which were much easier to service with parts available everywhere.

In a Road and Track test, a '69 Mangusta did an easy 118 to a fifth gear run, and in an average of four runs through a measured mile, the Mangusta reached 142 m.p.h. - more typical of an exotic speed car than a mere 118!

Mangusta production began in earnest during the autumn of '69, but in 1970, De Tomaso introduced a new 121 "Scimitar," the Pantera. The Pantera used a 314 HP, 331 c.i.d. Ford V8, and was slated to be sold in the United States through "selected" Lincoln-Mercury dealers, priced in the $19,000 range. From '71 to '74, but Panteras were built before Ford Motor Co. officially "disowned" them in August 1974. The much-improved new Pantera 3.2 (to replace the De Tomaso had acquired Maserati, and was also building new Panteras for sale outside the United States. And De Tomaso built a series of Deauville luxury sedans until 1983 (less than 300 built, and only about a dozen exported to the United States). The Deauville was eclipsed by De Tomaso's better-known Maserati Quattroporte (four-door) sedan. Starting 1973, De Tomaso also produced a "Longchamp" sports coupe, which was priced for the United States in 1981 at $97,000 and up.

Of the De Tomaso automobiles, the Pantera is the best known. But the Mangusta is a more "exotic" and "rare" sports car. How many other cars can you name that fold down the middle?

Ford's radical design makes Taurus fun to drive

Just as the first Ford Taurus revolutionized the look of four-door sedans and wagons in 1986, the strikingly innovative 1996 Taurus represents a leap-ahead design destined to establish another new styling standard.

"We're confident that the head-turning design and customer-friendly advancements of the 1996 Taurus sedans and wagons will attract not only the large body of current Taurus owners, but younger and import buyers, as well," says Ross Roberts, Ford Motor Company vice president and Ford Division general manager.

"Everything is designed to make the new Taurus look and perform better than ever before," adds Jack Telnack, vice president, Design for Ford Automotive Operations, who had overall design responsibility. "Its highly aerodynamic shape enhances fuel economy and road handling, while reducing wind noise, for example. And the elliptical headlights, with their jewel-like complex reflectors, project a broader, brighter field of light for better visibility."

The front design features a dramatic arching hood line with aggressively styled air inlets and sporty headlights. The rear design presents a unique rounded back window, a low-liftover trunk and integrated taillights that blend into the body. The side view is accented by three-dimensional sculpting, six flush-glass side windows, and a sweeping roof line.

Telnack notes that while the rounded design may give the impression that the new model is more compact than its predecessors, the 1996 Taurus sedan is more than five inches longer, almost two inches wider, with more interior room than the 1995 Taurus. The wagon is more than six inches longer and nearly two inches wider than the model it replaces.

Powering the new Taurus models are a choice of two V-6 engines, each with a 100,000-mile tune-up interval under normal driving conditions with routine fluid and filter changes (except for the Flexible Fuel Version). Standard on the LX is the all-new, high-performance 3.0-liter, 24-valve DOHC V-6 Duratec engine. This newest member of Ford's family of advanced technology modular engines is rated at 200 horsepower. The second engine is a significantly improved version of the 3.0-liter overhead-valve V-6 Vulcan that has been the base powerplant in Taurus models. Standard on the GL, it has a 145-h.p. rating.

Both Taurus V-6 engines are "managed" by an advanced EEC-V electronic engine controller with a built-in diagnostic system that monitors performance and allows dealerships to quickly identify service needs in the engines or in either of the two four-speed electronically controlled overdrive transmissions.

Ford has focused on putting user-friendly design elements and features throughout the new Taurus. One example is the Ford-patented three-way center seating/storage system available on six-passenger models. It quickly converts from a center-front seating position with its own safety belts to a comfortable armrest and to a console with room for cups, coins, audiocassettes and other items.

Another interior innovation is the Integrated Control Panel, which puts climate and audio controls into a single easy-to-use, oval-shaped unit. Research shows that drivers can learn to use these controls faster and with fewer errors because of their unique design and larger size.

A 60/40 split-fold rear seat, resembling those found in wagon and hatchback models, adds flexibility in meeting varying passenger and/or cargo needs.

The 1996 Taurus also provides

The dramatic arching hood and new, sports headlights help to make the overall appearance of the new Ford Taurus as exciting to look at as it is to drive rear-seat air-conditioning and heating ducts, (available on models with five-passenger seating configurations), heated outside power mirrors, Ford-patented Solar Tint glass that greatly reduces the sun's heat inside the car, and height adjusters on the outer front safety belts for greater comfort.

Ford's Dynamic Safety Engineering System helps make the 1996 model even safer than the 1995 Taurus. The system consists of active safety features designed to help avoid an accident and passive safety features to provide protection if an accident occurs.

A high-performance Taurus SHO model, equipped with a new 3.4-liter, 32-valve all-aluminum V-8 engine and sport-tuned suspension, will be introduced next spring, joining the GL and LX models.

Dear Doctor: I own a 1987 Dodge 600 with a fuel injected four-cylinder engine. Sometimes when I start the engine, it races very fast. I have to shut off the engine and restart it, then the idle will usually come down to normal. This happens in hot or cold weather. No one can fix the problem. Bruno R.

Dear Bruno: The idle speed is controlled by the computer via an idle speed motor. The computer needs information from the throttle position sensor (TPS), engine temperature, manifold pressure sensor and other factors. Check the TPS with a lab scope, and the idle speed motor for binding before buying an updated/revised computer (Logic Module). Chrysler has released Technical Service Bulletin #18-11-88. This bulletin refers to a revised computer logic module that has a larger tolerance window, so if everything else has been checked, the revised computer should take care of the idle problem.

Dear Doctor: I own a 1984 Corvette 350 with cross fire fuel injection and automatic transmission with 16,000 miles. My problem is when I begin to drive the car when the engine is cold, it backfires. Once the engine is warm, it runs fine. Do you have any ideas? Pat B.

Dear Pat: Has anyone checked for trouble codes? Check the resistance of the coolant sensor, and vacuum leaks, especially around the rear of the right valve cover. Another critical area is to have both throttle bodies checked for proper balance.

Dear Doctor: I own a 1988 Honda Civic. When I first start driving, the air conditioning is very cold. After driving a while, the air conditioner starts to blow warm. If I stop for a while then restart the car the air blows cool. If the car sits for a few hours, the air conditioner will again blow cold for a short time. What do you think? M.L.

Dear M.L.: Here are a few items to have your technician check. Check the sight glass on the receiver dryer for air bubbles with the air conditioner on. Second, make sure the condenser cooling fan is working. Third, check the operation of the heater blend door and heater control valve, to make sure neither is sticking open. The problem does not sound like an air conditioning system problem. I would lean more to the heater system's not shutting down completely even though the heater controls are in the off position.

Dear Doctor: I drive a 1991 Dodge Club pickup, automatic transmission, V-6 engine with 50,000 miles. Twenty thousand miles ago, when the temperature got around 35 degrees, the transmission would not shift into overdrive until I had driven about a quarter mile or so. Last month, I left the truck parked for 24 hours in 90 degree weather and it took three miles for the transmission to shift into overdrive. What is the problem? AL K.

Dear Al: For the transmission to shift into overdrive, the engine coolant must be warm. This is for emissions and driveability. Second, there have been a few problems with the engine controller which also controls overdrive engagement (Technical Service Bulletin #18-16-91). Check with the dealer or local transmission shop.

Dear Doctor: I own a 1983 Mercury Cougar V-6. The cruise control will cut out after a few miles of driving. I have taken it to a local repair shop and he cannot find the source of the problem. Do you have any idea what is causing this? Keri W.

Dear Keri: Before a repair shop can fix a problem, the technician would have to know how the system operates. There is a certain procedure that needs to be followed to be examine the system. You should allow about three hours of diagnostic labor time to locate the problem. I have found a lot of connection problems inside the steering column under the steering wheel where the brass slip rings are located. You may have to find a more experienced technician to troubleshoot the problem. The cruise control system is designed for safety and as soon as there is any malfunction it will shut down.

TEXAS NATURAL RESOURCE CONSERVATION COMMISSION
NOTICE OF PUBLIC MEETING

The Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission will hold public meetings at:

9:00 a.m., September 28, 1995

Auditorium
Midland S & WC District
1307 East Wadley
Midland, Texas

and

7:00 p.m., September 27, 1995
Andrews County Courthouse
District Courtroom
2nd Floor

to present information pertaining to proposed TNRCC rules 30 Texas Administrative Code §§ 294.30 - 294.32. These new sections were proposed in response to a landowner petition submitted on August 4, 1993 in accordance with Texas Water Code, §52.024 and will expand the boundaries of Subdivision No. 4 of the Underground Water Reservoir in the Ogallala Formation, South of the Canadian River (hence Subdivision No. 4). The proposed rule and a notice of public hearing were published in the August 4, 1995 edition of the Texas Register (20 TexReg 5854 & 5845 respectively). A public hearing on the proposed rule was held on August 23, 1995 in Lamesa for the receipt of oral testimony. An extension of deadline for written comments was published in the September 12, 1995 edition of the Texas Register (20 TexReg 7230 - attached). The written comment period has been extended until 5:00 p.m., October 23, 1995.

Landowners within Andrews, Borden, Ector, Gaines, Howard, Martin, Midland, Terry, and Yoakum counties petitioned the Executive Director to consider their need to preserve, conserve, and protect the quantity and quality of their ground-water supply on a regional basis. The proposed rule is a boundary description which alters the boundaries of Subdivision No. 4 to coincide with the mapped southern extent of the Ogallala aquifer. Subdivision No. 4 was delineated by the Texas Board of Water Engineers on May 8, 1956 in a portion of the area lying in Andrews, Cochran, Dawson, Gaines, Lynn, Terry, and Yoakum counties. The proposed rule will expand the boundaries of Subdivision No. 4 to include all of the area lying in Andrews, Dawson, Gaines, Lynn, Terry, and Yoakum counties. It includes the portion of the area overlying the Ogallala aquifer in Borden, Ector, Howard, and Midland counties; and eliminate the area previously delineated in Cochran and Lynn counties. The proposed situation will effectively complete Subdivision No. 2 of the Underground Water Reservoir in the Ogallala Formation, South of the Canadian River, delineated by the Board of Water Engineers in a portion of Martin County on March 20, 1951, into Subdivision No. 4 and create a new management area that will encompass both previously delineated areas.

The proposed rule and a map depicting the current and proposed boundaries of Subdivision NO. 4 are available for examination in several locations in the affected area including: the offices of the Mesa (Lamesa), Permian Basin (Stanton), Sandy Land (Plains), and South Plains (Brownfield) Underground Water Conservation Districts; the offices of the Andrews and Gaines County Clerks; and the Commission's Odessa and Lubbock Regional Offices.
