Dogs, Cats stage cage fight Tuesday nite!

For Gruver and Spearman, sports ushers in 1983, Jan. 4, when Greyhound and Lynx cagers renew 'cross-the-creek contention at Spearman beginning at 4 p.m.

This Tuesday night round of court conflicts will be a warm-up for the all-out, full-bore, hot-boards Varsity Tournament at Canadian, Jan. 6,7,8.

Both schools will have basketeers in the Canadian contest but Gruver will not have any teams attending the Junior Varsity Tournament at Perryton the same three days.

Greyhounds and Lynx take to the court, Tuesday night fairly well matched--unless you put a computer to the season stats so far-- and that doesn't always tell the story. At the high school varsity level of play, speed and accuracy pay off the biggest, leaving some colleges and the pros to hunt a seven-foot-plus pot of gold at the end of their recruiting rainbow.

Neither can it be said this team is a whiz at rebounds or that team is uncanny with drop-in first throws. A quintet that made its showing off rebounds last time out may be up against opponents who are determined there will be no gravy-train stoked with re-bounds.

--Or the team with two or three guys blessed with real hoop-hitting accuracy may, next game, find their "shooting stars" harrassed by some real determined coverage.

--And that is what puts a lot of the suspense in basketball! You don't really know until tip-off what the game will be this time out.

Be sure to check it out Tuesday night!

The Spearman Lynx varsity cagers are not exactly going into the big Canadian tournament rated as chopped liver and the next edition of The PLAINSMAN may have some impressive scores and performances to report.

Ditto the Perryton junior varsity tournament.

Following the tournaments, the Lynx varsity boys face the regulation 10 games remaining in the season against five opponents. The varsity girls have a remaining schedule of eight games; the junior varisty boys eight games and the junior varisty girls four.

The varsity Lynx tomcats will take the court here Jan. 11 against the Boys Ranch quintet and there, Jan. 28. The JV boys will face Boys Ranch counterparts the same dates with the first tip-off here at 6 p.m. and there at 6:30 p.m.

Jan. 14, all squads go to Canadian for a round-robin beginning at 4 p.m. with Canadian back here Feb. 1 for varsity girls and boys court clashes tipping-off at 6 p.m.

Varsity girls and boys will travel to River Road Jan. 18 with play, beginning there at 6 p.m. Then, Feb. 4, River Road comes here for court clashes involving all four Lynx quintets.

Jan. 21, Perryton brings four squads here battle beginning at 4 p.m. Feb. 8, varsity girls and boys play a return engagement at Perryton with first tip-off at 6 p.m.

Dalhart varsity boys and girls come here Jan. 25 with action starting at 6 p.m. then back to Dalhart Feb. 11 for a tilt involving all squads: JV boys and girls and varsity boys and girls. Starting time: 4 p.m.

This big round-robin at Dalhart will be the last games of the Lynx season.

Texas A&M Press publishes images of the Texas cowboy

COLLEGE STATION — For more than a century the imaginations of Americans have been captured by the mystique of the cowboy.

Now that mystique has been captured between the covers of a new book published by the Texas A&M University Press. Through the photographs of Ray Rector, who was himself a cowboy before he became a professional photographer, "Cowboy Life on the Texas Plains" candidly details the life of the men who rode the range and whose activities ranged from roping to square dancing.

Rector, who died in 1933, left a legacy of more than 1,000 photographic negatives of ranch life that are now held by the Humanities Research Center at the University of Texas. The stills appearing in the book were selected and identified by his daughter Margaret.

"Cowboy Life on the Texas Plains: The Photographs of Ray Rector" (hardback $19.95, 119 pages) includes an introductory text by noted Texas author John Graves. Graves' conclusion is that although we will never again see the likes of the old-time cowboys that Rector photographed, their descendants may still be found, more often riding tractors and pick-ups than half-wild ponies, but still working cattle on the West's farms and ranches.

Spearman (Hansford County) Texas — JANUARY 2, 1983
Volume 13 — Number 8

1982 building in city totals $3.5-million

Building permits issued in Spearman in 1982 totaled more than $3.5-million . . . concrete evidence of faith in the future the city and surrounding area.

Of that total, in excess of $2.5-million was business-and-industry -- specifically agri-business.

More than a quarter-million dollars was for residential dwellings, either new construction, expansion or remodeling.

The expansion of Speartex Grain came to a final figure of $2,600,000 and the construction that represents is either completed and in use or very nearly so.

Residential permits totaled $307,000. While this figure falls under that for 1981, it is still considered impressive in the face of continued high interest rates and a faltering economy nationally. It is believed to be slightly above the national averaged for residential and dwelling construcion.

The $2.6-million Speartex project placed the business-and-industry figure well above the 1981 figure. It also represents a very important intangible in the minds of people with eyes on Spearman: an expression of faith in the future growth of the city and the continued productivity of the land round about.

Spearman City Manager Jim Murray noted that while residential permits were down, he felt the city might, in the near future, vastly improve the housing need picture if that much money were invested in construction each year. He said he also felt that, with an upsurge in the economy across the nation and relief in the home finance and construction industry, Spearman would speedily get its needed residential expansion.

For elected officials

Oath of office ceremony set Monday

Monday at 10 a.m. at the courthouse, four officials of Hansford County will be sworn in to begin their terms of office officially.

All were victors in the recent general election. One is a "First-termer" while the other three have on-the-job experience.

Val Winger, Gruver, won the county commissioner's seat being vacated by Buddy Lowe. After more that two decades in office, Lowe declined to run for re-election.

Hansford County Treasurer Verna Gail Keim ran for re-election and won a second term to that office.

County-District Clerk Amelia Johnson was elected to her first full term of office. She was appointed to the dual clerk's post Sept. 25, 1981 when incumbent Marie Gould resigned to take an out-of-state job.

She took the job of assistant to Gould in February, 1978.

Another to win re-election -- again -- is a veteran of service to the people of the county. Johnny "Pete" Vernon will be administered the oath as Justice of the Peace and then . . . before that term will be completed, Judge Vernon will have completed three decades -- 30 years -- on the peace justice bench.

He first took offoce in 1955.

To evaluate the importance of this office to the people, consider that the justice of the peace is the only law enforcement officer that 92 percent of the people in any given bailiwick contact in their lifetime.

Consider that Pete Vernon has been returned to the office at regular intervals for 30 years and you get some idea of his value to the office.

Hansford County Judge R.L. McClellan will officiate at the ceremonies.

Chili Supper

The Spearman Music Boosters are having a chili supper at the Jr. Hi Cafeteria from 5 to 7:30 p.m., Tuesday night: A feature of the Gruver-Spearman Basketball game.

Tickets for the chili supper can be bought at the door. Price: Adults - $3.50, Children 8 and under $1.50.

Darlene Howell retirement party

Darlene Howell will be hanging up her hat, so to speak, on Jan. 7 at the Hansford ASCS office where she has worked for the past 29 years.

She bagan her work in December 1983 under Earl Chapman. She then worked under Ellzey Vanderburg from 1955 until 1978 except for a 6 month period under Dan Watson. Her last boss was Martin Chandler, who resigned this past summer.

Mrs. Howell says that the greatest farmers in the world are right here in Hansford County and she has enjoyed working with them.

She plans to start off her retirement with a trip to Hawaii Jan. 13, she also has some plans for some other trips.

Mrs. Howell will continue to live in Spearman. In reply to that question, she said, "You know I wouldn't leave here, Spearman has been my home for too many years."

Mrs. Howell will be honored with a retirement party January 7 from 3 until 7 p.m. She hopes that all of her friends will stop by and visit with her as well as the farmers in the county that she has served so faithfully the past 29 years.

George Marks retires from SCS

Temple, Texas, George C. Marks, State Conservationist for the Soil Conservation Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, has announced his reitrement effective December 29.

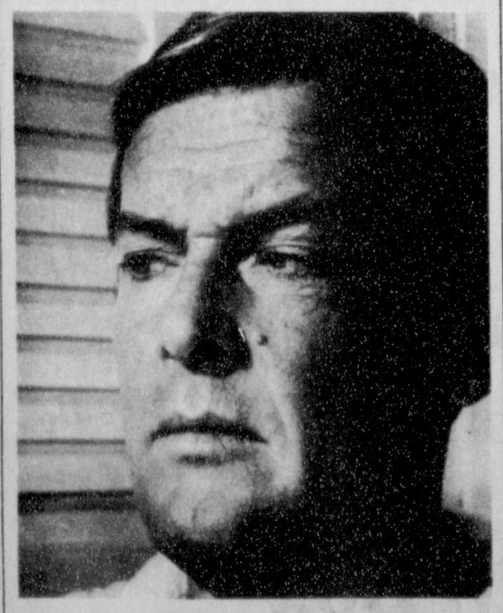

Marks, who is a native of Heidenheimer, Texas (Bell County), is a 1950 graduate of Texas A&M University where he received a B.S. degree in Agronomy.

After working for SCS at Rusk, Sulpher Springs, Winnsboro, Jefferson, New Boston, Corsicana, and Temple, he was promoted to Assistant State Conservationist in Arkansas in 1968. In 1972, he became State Conservationist for SCS in Arizona before assuming his present position in Texas in 1975.

Billy C. Griffin, who is currently serving as Deputy State Conservationist in Mississippi, has been named to fill the position vacated by Marks effective January 9, 1983.

SUNDAY

James Bond (Roger Moore) is up to his neck in his usual adventures, beautiful women, fast cars and constant danger, in "Live and Let Die," to air Sunday, Jan. 2 on ABC.

City gas rate down

Your gas bill will be lower -- rate-wise -- for one month anyway.

--And for those who turned up the heat when the cold moved in, there might be the chance of breaking even.

Spearman City Manager Jim Murray said the rate caught him by surprise, too.

Murray explained that the city must pay the "going" rate the supplying gas company pays for the fuel. Normally, because of the heavy demands during the cold season, the purchase rate is higher than at any time of the year.

Not so for your next billing, according to Murray.

Last month, the gas company had to pay $3.43 per MCF. The city's cost to deliver it to the consumer raised that to $4.35.

For the period covered by the next billing, the gas company had to pay $3.01 -- 42-cents less than the previous billing. The city's cost to deliver the gas to you will be $3.93.

Now . . .even though the city has to add a few cents to pay the delivery cost, you will still be paying 42-cents per MCF LESS than your last billing!

The minimum on that billing was $13.38.

The minimum on the next billing will be $12.12.

City Manager Murray injected one important reminder: this savings is not a fixed thing. The cost of gas has always varied from month to month but Murray was hopeful that whatever situation created the savings would hold until the cold weather was over.

Texas A&M professor passes on ideas for coal-fueled future

COLLEGE STATION — A seasoned engineering researcher at Texas A&M University is passing on his ideas for coal-fueled engines to younger researchers whom he hopes may make the dreams a reality.

Dr. William Harris, professor of chemical engineering and an expert in alternate fuels such as methanol, says he's figured out "some really neat ways" of designing engines that would burn coal, including one with no sliding parts.

Gifts to Texas A&M totaled $40.7 million

COLLEGE STATION — Gifts to Texas A&M University totaled $40.7 million last year, President Frank Vandiver announced recently, up $5 million over the previous year.

"The significant financial support from outside sources provides the margin of excellence at Texas A&M," Vandiver said. "As a public institution our foundation is built on the rock of public funds. The private support from corporations, foundations and our very generous alumni provides the margin for preeminence. We are state-assisted and privately inspired."

Task force to study conservation of Texas water supply

COLLEGE STATION — A statewide urban water conservation task force has been created to consider methods for conserving dwindling water supplies that could change the appearance of lawns, golf courses, commercial landscapes and city parks.

The changes are necessary because of a serious water scarcity throughout the state, officials said. The task force was created by the Texas Water Resources Institute located at Texas A&M University.

Among its actions, the group is considering using native plants or importing plants that would use much less water than popular ornamental plants.

"We can maintain our quality of life while at the same time conserving a tremendous amount of water," said Dr. Al Turgeon, director of the Texas A&M University Research and Extension Center at Dallas and leader of the task force.

"We're just beginning to explore the opportunities for bringing about a more efficient use of water on our lawns," he said. Texans need to be aware that there's a lack of water and that the expected growth will put a severe strain on our water resources."

NEWS FOR PARENTS

Talking To Your Teenagers About Alcohol

"When it comes to teenage drinking and driving," say Drew Pearson of the Dallas Cowboys and Joe Theismann of the Washington Redskins, "there are no winners. Just teenagers in danger—and parents, worried and confused."

Few subjects generate as much concern—and sometimes conflict—between parents and teenagers as the subject of drinking beverage alcohol. Studies have shown that today's teenagers are likely to experiment with drinking and driving. Your reaction as a parent is extremely important. How should you handle it? What should you say?

All too often, parents and teenagers avoid talking about drinking and driving, yet open and frank discussion about the subject is vital in order to develop healthy and safe practices about alcoholic beverages—and to keep your child from contributing to the grim statistics that result from this dangerous combination.

Here are some things that have helped in talking with teenagers about drinking, according to the liquor industry's trade organization, the Distilled Spirits Council of the United States:

- Honestly explore your own behavior when drinking before you talk with your teenager.
- Be honest in expressing your feelings and in stating your own values and preferences. Encourage the same from your son or daughter.
- Be calm, firm and consistent. Remember that you're sharing ideas and information. Don't put your teenager on the witness stand or demand a confession.
- Tell your teenager you want to hear what he has to say and to learn what he knows about drinking. Be a good listener, even when you may not agree.
- Keep to the point. No matter where the discussion leads, and no matter what kind of reaction you may get or feel, keep forcefully in mind that this discussion concerns only the question of drinking.
- Emphasize that you are concerned with the preciousness of your teenager's life. For a free booklet on this subject, write: "Straight Talk About Alcohol," Box 1197-P, Washington, DC 20013.

Catherine Bach: 'Dukes' will improve — y'hear?

By Peter Meade

Here are a few words to describe Catherine Bach, Daisy Duke of CBS' "The Dukes of Hazzard": attractive, funloving, friendly, tall, musical. Add brave to that list.

After finishing her fourth year on the stunt-filled "Dukes" last season, one would think Miss Bach would choose a quiet, safe, innocuous TV-movie to occupy her vacation time.

Not so. She chose to star in "White Water Rebel," to air Saturday, Jan. 8 on CBS, in which she plays Trish Parker, a right-out-of-college photojournalist whose job, as Miss Bach describes it, is to write "weirdo sports" for a magazine. Sent to do a story about a man who loves to kayak down a dangerous river, she ends up uncovering a cover-up about how commercialism is killing the white-water paradise.

It was a strenuous role that required Miss Bach to work with an Olympic kayak racer. She first began paddling in her pool at home, then in a lake and finally on California's Kern River, where they spent six weeks filming the movie, which also stars James Brolin and Richard Lynch.

Catherine Bach

Life wasn't much easier when Miss Bach returned to "The Dukes" this season. Series stars John Schneider and Tom Wopat had left the popular series due to a contract squabble and their replacements, newcomers Christopher Mayer and Byron Cherry, lacked the public sympathy and charisma it takes to be a creditable Duke.

The show has dived in the ratings. Recently, filming was halted for two weeks after they completed 16 out of the season's 24 shows.

"We've done 37 shows back to back," she explains. "The writers need time to regroup. We've done 100 shows now. Everyone realizes it's hard to not fall into a formula. Now we're trying to get away from it and deal more with human relationships."

Don't fret, fans of car crashes, aimless plots and Miss Bach's abbreviated Daisy Duke costume, though scripts for the final shows are being revamped present retooling will not result in the debut of "Hill Street Dukes."

Miss Bach believes the show's currently sagging ratings may be revived by the return of the exiled Duke boys, Schneider and Wopat, who would then team up with Mayer and Cherry.

"The General Lee will be crowded," says Miss Bach of the familiar orange car that many — the series producers included — feel is the real star of the series. "Maybe we'll get a station wagon."

Many historians believe that the Christmas celebration had its origins in ancient Greek and Roman festivities to mark the midwinter change of seasons.

CONSUMER CORNER

Wine By The Glass

Did you know you could order name brand wine by the glass? It's one of the newest trends, following the American wine revolution that saw us buying more wine in 1980 than all spirits combined.

The "in" drink...brand name white wine by the glass.

With today's interest in lower calories and lighter drinking, many people prefer to limit their drinking to just one or two glasses of wine. That's why they like the opportunity to order a brand they know, by the glass.

By specifying a particular name, such as Blue Nun, the wine connoisseur knows what is being served (as opposed to a "house" wine) and is more sure that the drink will always be enjoyable and of high quality.

Such refined tastes fit into today's lifestyles. A glass of good wine is "in" with trend-setting Californians. It's what's happening in Texas where they do the Cotton-Eyed Joe while enjoying a glass of white wine. It's the toast of Florida's marinas and the selection of suave sophisticates among Washington power brokers.

It's the good taste savored by a growing number of Americans.

Ron Carey

'Pump Boys' pilot

What began as a series of cabaret performances, graduated to off-Broadway and then moved to Broadway now takes on a new identity as a one-hour variety pilot for a future NBC series.

The pilot of "Pump Boys and Dinettes," which received a 1982 Tony Award nomination for best musical as well as four Drama Desk nominations, is in production now in Hollywood.

The original Broadway stars will join the pilot — John Foley, Mark Hardwick, Debra Monk, Cass Morgan, John Schimmel and Jim Wann. Singer Tanya Tucker and actor Ron Carey, from "Barney Miller," will guest-star.

"Pump Boys" tells the tale of four gas station workers in North Carolina and two sisters who operate a nearby diner through comedy monologues, music and drama.

Two-career couple

Kate Jackson and Tim Matheson star as a romantically involved couple who work in the same office in "Listen to Your Heart," a TV movie on CBS Tuesday, Jan. 4.

Will Nye, George Coe, Cassie Yates, Ellen J. Smith, Marge Kotlisky and Alison LaPlaca co-star.

Miss Jackson plays a woman who starts a new job at a book publishing house after an unhappy romance with her former employer. At her new job, she meets an editor (Matheson) who, after years of playing the field, is ready for a sincere relationship. Probably the biggest story of the year, weatherwise, was the tornadoes and hail storm which hit our area. Although damage was high, no one was injured. The most tragic scene of the storm was on the Bill Jackson farm where Mike Tucker and his new bride had been moved into their brand new mobile home for one hour of honeymooning when they had to run for their lives. After the storm, two bathroom commodes were the only evidence left standing at the site. Many Spearman homes suffered wind and hail damage and the junior high school had 256 broken panes of glass as a result of the devastating storm. Any car or pickup left out in the open suffered windshield damage.

WASHINGTON, D. C. -- Danny White showed a packed RFK stadium crowd on December 5 why he'll someday be in the Hall of Fame, why Roger Staubach was content to step down and why Dallas is, to a great degree, America's team.

The Washington Redskins, undefeated and really tough, went after the Cowboys from the beginning and the Washington defensive line got the best of the Cowboy line at the outset. But White got his passes off quickly and he dodged the elephants time and again.

After he threw one interception, he was almost flawless. Drew Pearson heaved one into a Redskin's arms but White time after time put the ball on the money, right where it had to be for a completion, and to avoid interception. It was a beautiful exhibition of passing timing and accuracy.

Nothing else would have beaten Washington that day. And even with White passing his best (Tony Dorsett couldn't do anything against that Redskin defense), Washington almost rallied in the last quarter to tie. The Redskins went from 0-17 to 10-17 and had Dallas backed up deep in its own territory. It looked at that point like Washington was likely to tie the game and force an overtime.

White went back to punt near his own goal on 4th down, and cooly ran the ball out twenty yards for a first down! That has to be one of the plays of the year, a gutsy gamble; it saved the game for Dallas. Even Washington fans had to admire that kind of courage. If their team didn't win on the 5th, Redskin fans saw one of the great exhibitions of quarterbacking in recent years.

Know THE Weather

Does a cooling of the air produce clouds?

The air always contains a certain amount of moisture. When there are no clouds in the sky, the moisture is invisible, but it's there. Cooling condenses air and reduces its capacity to retain water.

In doing so, the invisible water particles in the air become relatively greater in content and finally become visible droplets of moisture. A cloud, then, is the result of cooling of air, which changes invisible moisture into visible form.

This cooling process also produces fog--the lowest of the clouds. The sun's heating of the earth, which, in turn, heats the air above it, which rises and is cooled in the higher altitude causing the formation of most clouds.

NEWS Of Housing

Building A Modular Home

A crane hoists a section of a factory-built house onto an already prepared foundation, and the result, for the home's buyer, will be a lower price tag combined with superior construction quality. Some 5,000 families in six states now live in such modular homes built by a leader in the housing industry, North American Housing Corp. The homes are built in the company's factory, then brought to the building site in several sections on trucks. For the house to properly fit on the foundation, both must be built to exact specifications. These homes cost less to build because parts are bought in quantity and constructed under controlled conditions. Speed of construction is also a big factor. Quality is improved because construction is overseen in the factory by quality control experts, and the home is not open to the weather during construction. For a free packet explaining modular houses and a list of experienced builders, write to: North American Housing Corp., P.O. Box 145, Point of Rocks, MD 21777.

The New Year in old Japan was the time for everyone to don new clothes, take three days off from work and visit friends. Gateposts were adorned with pines.

Faye's Daze

I spent last week at my son's home at Southlake near Dallas and the weather was beautiful up until Christmas Day when it got a little cold. Then I come home to these frigid temperatures, ice and all that good stuff, wish I'd stayed but I guess it got a little bad down there too.

Anyway I had a wonderful Christmas enjoying my granddaughter's first Christmas with her. I couldn't decide what to get her for Christmas because everything I could think of I thought would be too big for her so I finally decided I'd wait until I got there and see what Santa Claus had planned for her. After all this consideration I ended up buying her a red wagon., which she really likes to be pulled aroung in. She can't get in it by herself, but she goes up to it and tries and you get the idea what she wants to do. Her daddy said he thought he would rig up a remote control for it so he could keep her happy.

One present I took her was a pink and white hand knitted sweater and legging set complete with cap and mittens, and when we opened it up for her she grabbed the sweater and loved it like she does her Teddy bear. That made Grandma feel pretty good.

I visited in Fort Worth with relatives as well, and really enjoyed my stay.

***

I don't usually make New Year's resolutions figuring I probably wouldn't keep them anyway, but with the last days of 1982 upon us, I've decided that I am going to try to get myself a little more organized in 1983. Right now my house needs attention badly. I still have my Christmas decorations up, haven't unpacked from my trip, etc. If someone were to come in, they wouldn't know weather I was leaving or staying. Surely I'll get some things done this weekend.

***

My wish for all of you is a happy, healthy, prosperous New Year.

PORTS OF CALL

...FOR TRAVEL AND ADVENTURE

By Stanley James

Most airlines are losing money, here and abroad, and fare wars continue--as various lines scramble vigorously for business. After many successive years of profits Delta has gone into the red--for the first time in several decades. Too complacent at the top?

Sensible travelers know the airlines must make money to survive; nevertheless the present period offers smart shoppers exceptional airline bargains. From Florida to New York or Washington is $79 as this is written. In recent months several airlines have been offering coast to coast tickets at $99 (to L.A. or San Francisco).

The holiday season ended many of the bargains but they're certain to be back in the business lull following the holidays. They include a $29 fare for dependents on Piedmont, to any city it flies to.

There are bonus programs also, in which frequent travelers can win free trips or 1st class seating at economy price. Eastern has been doing this for a year.

British Airways has just cut prices for transatlantic travel, and BA service at reduced fare is a singular bargain. BA is offering, from January 5, round trip fares to London from New York $449, from Miami $499 and from Chicago $549.

Vacation ski packages are good bargains this year. Icelandair annually offers one and two week packages to Kitzbuhel--a real fun spot for skiers, with an international flavor matched by few resorts in the Alps.

Icelandair also offers Super Apex roundtrip fare to Luxembourg for $399, having reduced these fares in recent weeks. The low-cost roundtrip fare is good through March 18 for those who buy tickets before any fare change is announced.

A stronger dollar has brought the price of European fares down considerably. Bargain one-year valid tickets to Scandinavia now cost less than $500 if bought there in kroner. A tricky gimmick used by SAS, and others, however, is a charge of $50 extra if the traveler changes his week of return. Who can know a year in advance the exact week of return? So they usually get $50 more.

BA and Air France continue to offer Concorde service for the discriminating, without doubt the mod, chic way to cross, and BA recently cut Concorde fares.

Pan Am, however , continues to charge arrivals from Europe, at Kennedy, $107 for an economy ticket to Washington--having some arrivals at its mercy, for there are few late flights from Kennedy to National Airport. That fare is too steep, in these times.

TV COMMENTARY

By Bente Christensen

THE martyr who got himself killed at the Washington Monument earlier this month accomplished something else. He showed how overeager Ted Koppel is in his top ABC news spot.

KOPPEL was substituting for Frank Reynolds on the evening news that week and, apparently, had rather wide latitude in interrupting programming. He acted as if Pearl Harbor had been attacked again, repeating ad infinitum, interrupting programming every few minutes--with no major news.

IT was fairly likely from the beginning that the whole thing might be a hoax but Ted and Betinna Gregory, and others, acted as if they had the story of the century.

ALL of which shows how little news there has been in recent weeks. The networks have played every feature they could sensationalize out of proportion, as a result, including the Tylenol scare, the artificial heart implant, etc.

JACK Palance makes watching Ripley's Believe It Or Not likeable because of his slick handling of subjects (ABC); the show was renewed recently.

MERV Griffin and his talk show may be looking at the writing on the wall. The show's format will be changed to that of a magazine, from a celebrity talk show. Mike Douglas, who may have been even better as a host, wouldn't change his format. That show was dropped.

MILLIONS of viewers are fearful the FCC's recent action, in freeing the commercial networks to air as many commercials as they wish per hour, will eventually lead to more and more program interruptions--of which there're already too many.

THE Sugar Bowl (New Orleans) has the college football bowl game of the season --Georgia vs. Penn State, eight p.m. January 1 (ABC).

Andrew Johnson

One of the presidents who experienced a difficult time in office was Andrew Johnson, a self-educated man of great perseverance, born December 29, 1808, in Raleigh, North Carolina.

Johnson also lived in South Carolina a time and then moved to Tennessee, which he made his home. He was a member of the Senate when the Civil War began. Unlike most Southerners, he remained in the Senate--infuriating many back home. Lincoln liked him and he ran with Lincoln in 1864 and was elected vice president. When Lincoln was assassinated, he became president.

Like Lincoln, he assumed the southern states had never been out of the Union, that their secession ordinances were invalid. And like Lincoln, he wished to ease their way back into the Union and restore unity and good will. But he was assailed constantly by vindictive northern political leaders, who finally had him tried on impeachment charges in the Senate, the Chief Justice presiding.

Only by a bare one-vote margin was he saved from impeachment. He did not seek re-election but went home to Tennessee and ran for the Senate. He was defeated. He then ran for a House at-large seat in Tennessee but was defeated again. But in 1874 the Tennessee legislature elected him to the Senate again, which was fortunate, for he died in 1875, having devoted most of his life to an effort to moderate the nation's divisions and restore unity.

IT'S A FACT!

America's Social Security system is expected to run into large deficits soon.

Then, as the baby-boom generation retires after the turn of the century, greater Social Security costs will have to be borne by fewer workers. Congress has the option of either increasing payments into the system or reducing benefits and beneficiaries.

Experts, including many members of the actuarial profession, have suggested some possible remedies to Social Security's funding problems. First, instead of indexing cost of living increases to the Consumer Price Index, these increases could be limited to wage increases.

Second, requiring all currently uncovered government workers to participate in the Social Security system would go a long way toward improving the program's funding status.

Finally, many advocate gradually increasing the retirement age from 65 to 68, a recommendation which would help lessen the strain on the system that the baby-boom generation will have when it retires.

The American Academy of Actuaries, a non-profit professional association devoted to increasing public awareness of actuarial issues, has recommended a range of solutions to Congress. The Academy believes that Congress must act soon if the system is to be put back on track and public confidence restored.

We wish you a great holiday, much success and good health all through the year.

Gruver woman wins first with wall hanging

"FOR BETTER OR FOR WORSE," Harletta Carthel entered the wall hanging she gave her husband for their tenth wedding anniversary in the nationwide contest. Harletta took first place in the Wall Hangings division of the "Farm Wife News" Arts and Crafts Contest with her counted cross-stitch project.

The Gruver woman used dozens of symbols to highlight special moments from the years since she and her husband, Dan, had married. Harletta began with figures representing herself and Dan and stitched "Sun and rain and growing grain"--lyrics from the song "The Merry Farmer"--beneath them.

Symbols for their first tractor and their first two children appear on the sampler. (At the time of the contest, Harletta and Dan had another baby on the way!) The brightly colored wall hanging also shows the kids' first school bus.

"I love to do needlework, and I love making things," Harletta said. "It adds a special dimension to my life!" "Farm Wife News" awarded her $125 for first prize in the Wall Hangings division.

All entries in the Wall Hangings category had to portray one or more family occasions. Harletta gave her counted cross-stitch sampler a unifying theme by stitching the family name across the top and finishing with a rainbow accompanied by the words, "God's promises are eternal."

"Farm Wife News" accepted embroidered, quilted, appliqued, woven, glued, and other types of wall hangings to allow contestants to work with their favorite techniques and materials. Women could also combine a variety of techniques.

Judges selected three winners in each of seven arts and crafts cateogories on the basis of originality and design, use of color and textures, manner of presentation, and workmanship and finishing details. Stories about all of the winners, with photos of their projects, appear in the special arts and crafts issue of "Farm Wife News" for January.

Harletta and her husband raise Chianina cattle, calves, rabbits, chickens, cows, and a few horses. As shown by a bright apple labeled "4th grade" on the winning wall hanging, Harletta formerly was a full-time teacher. She later went to only substitute teaching.

In addition, Harletta enjoys cooking, sewing, and yardwork, and is active in her church. "And antiques make me tingle," she said. She and several friends make items for crafts bazaars throughout the year, too.

All female subscribers to "Farm Wife News" at least 18 years of age could enter the Arts and Crafts Contest. "Farm Wife News", which is a full-color magazine especially for rural women, now has some 330,000 subscribers nationwide.

"Farm Wife" publishes crafts, stories, recipes, photos, poetry, household and decorating hints, and a variety of other material--much of which comes from subscribers themselves. National news of special interest to the agricultural community, features on farm finances and tax topics, and contemporary subjects such as coping with stress also find a place in "Farm Wife News."

Second place in the Wall Hangings went to Joanne Gustin, of Decatur, Illinois, for her appliqued birth announcement. Verna Wendinger, of Sleepy Eye, Minnesota, captured third place with her pieced and embroidered "Sunbonnet Girl" wall hanging.

Annette Gohlke, "Farm Wife News" food editor; Doris Schaffer, "FWN" art associate; and Ruth Benedict, "FWN" managing editor, judged the Wall Hangings division.

Two Free Walt Disney Moveis Planned

In order to help give the mothers more free time to prepare for a Happy New Year's Celebration, the community Bible Church will be sponsoring two Free Walt Disney Movies on December 31st.

The first showing will be from 9-12 a.m. and a second showing will be from 2-5 p.m. The two movies shown will be "Million Dollar Dixie Deliverance" and "The Treasure of Montecomb Bay".

If you miss the morning session, both movies will be repeated that afternoon. Free popcorn and drinks will be provided for the children.

Both adults and children are invited.

Holiday Hints

Swift And Savvy Seasonal Treats

Here's a quick and easy holiday entertaining tip that will add an elegant touch to an impromptu soiree or become the piece de resistance at a formal sit-down dinner.

Simply pour Waterford Cream, authentic Irish Cream Liqueur, into small chocolate cups wrapped in decorative foil. The 1½ ounces, premade cups are available at many supermarkets.

Serve these mouth-watering delicacies on a silver tray with coffee and allow your guests to savor a sensationally sweet experience.

Know THE Weather

Why does a weather change so often affect the sinuses or the ears?

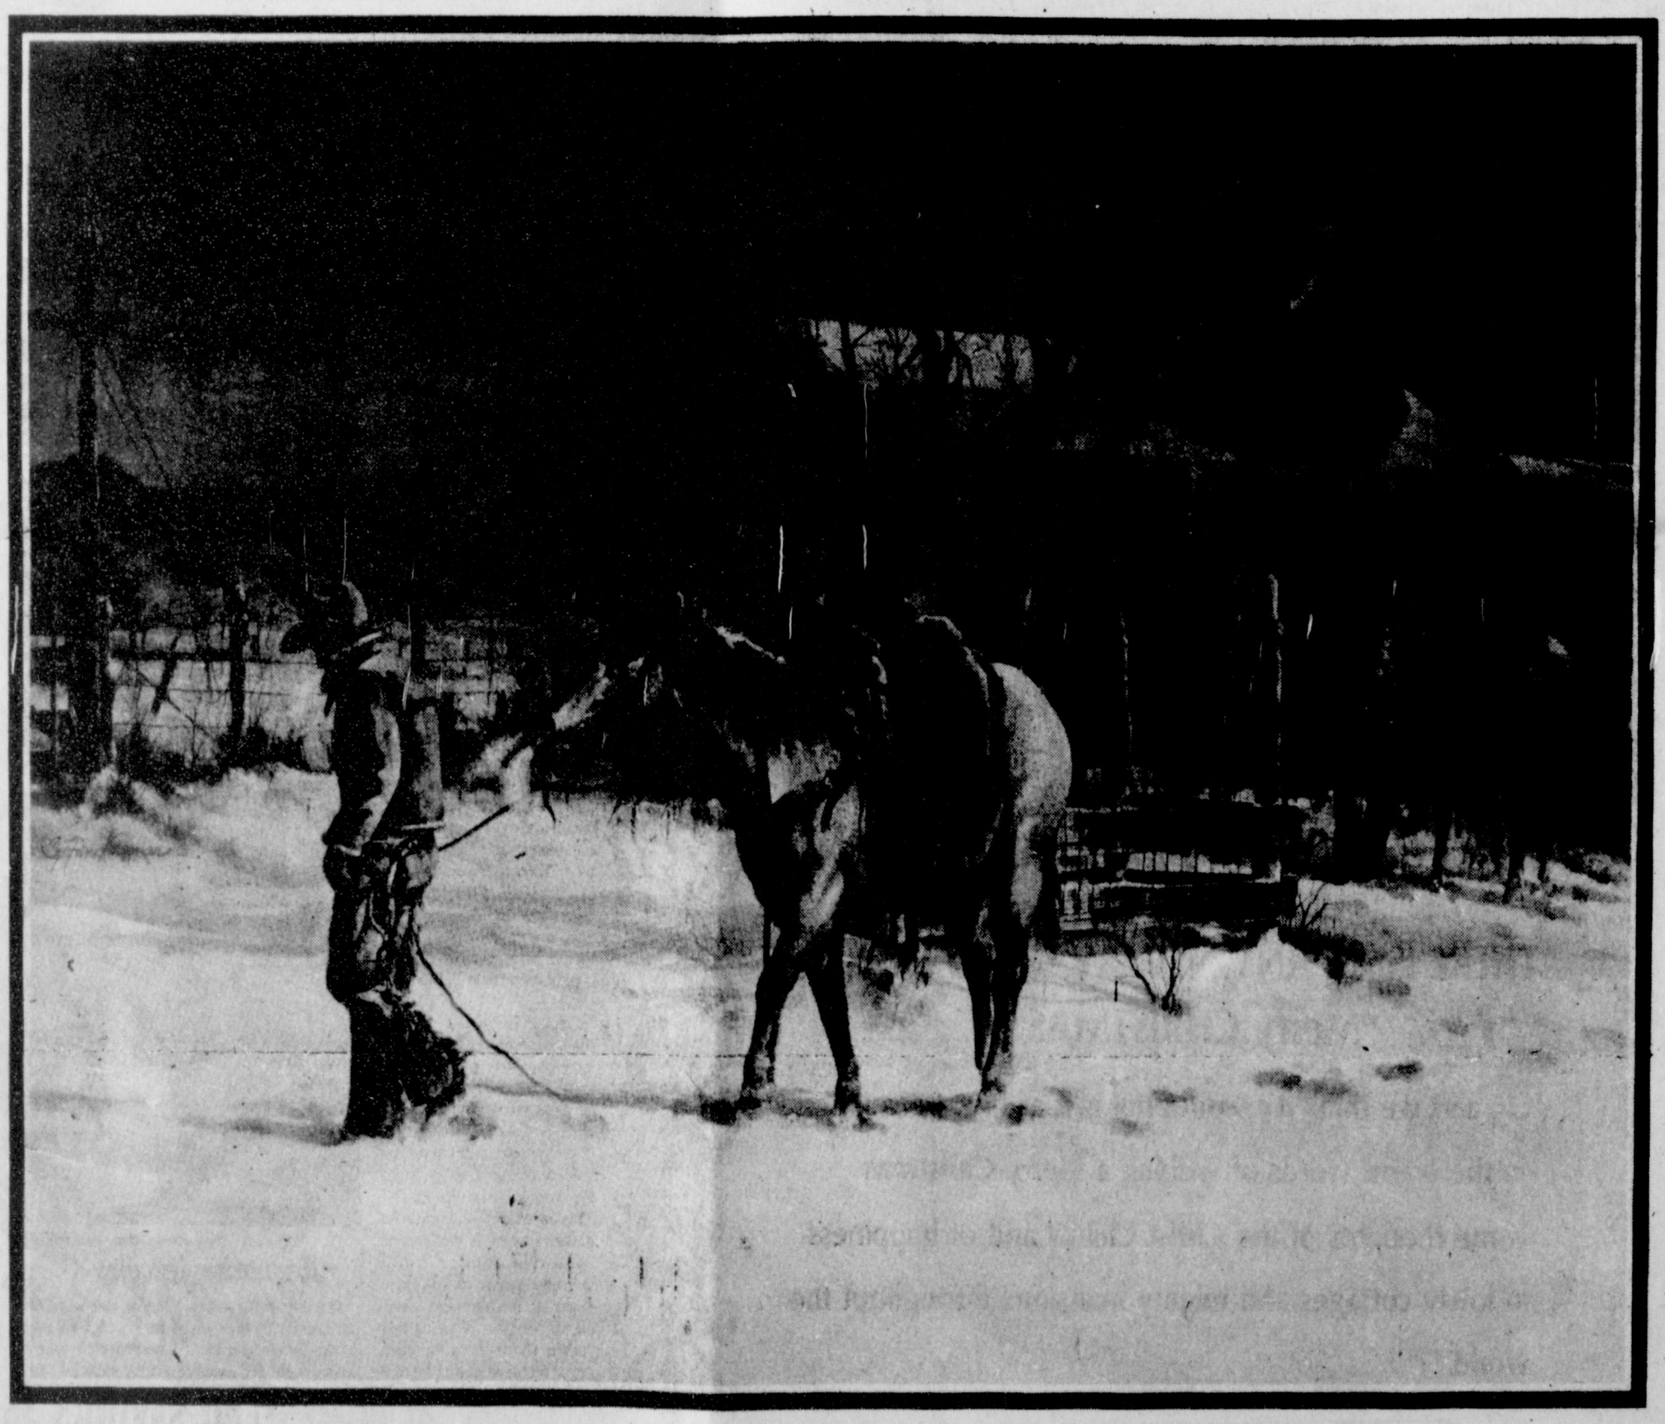

When the weather changes, the pressure also changes, as a usual thing. When a clear spell comes to an end and rainy, low-pressure weather begins, those who experience ear or sinus trouble often experience discomfort.

This is because there are pockets of air in our head, or sinuses, which become blocked off. The pressure inside becomes greater than outside when the barometer falls (and a low-pressure system arrives overhead) and expands the pockets.

A doctor will open them up, or equalize the pressure. The eustachian tube in the ear is a natural safety value to allow air in and out of the ear. If it is closed by a swelling or a bad cold, then you risk puncturing your ear drum if you fly at a high altitude.

The Panhandle State University Rifle Team of Goodwell, Oklahoma, scored a victory in their first match of the year by defeating the Oklahoma State University squad. The match, held in Stillwater, ended with the PSU team on top 1982 to 1891. The win places the Panhandle State unit in good position for the Tri-State Series that will conclude in April. Members of the PSU team are pictured above. Left to right, front row, are: Nickie Shelburne, Dalhart, Tx.; Anita Fisher, Wayne Oklahoma; Duane Greene, Del Norte, Colorado; Stanley Gruver, Gruver, Texas; and Robert Freeman, Boise City, Oklahoma. Standing is the coach of the rifle team, SFC Michael Johnson, Instructor of Military Science.

HAVING A PARTY?

If you're having guests over to welcome the New Year, do yourself a favor and don't serve up any gooey foods or gravies.

Stick with cold cuts, nuts, cheese cubes, crackers and fruits.

This will avoid your having to play a guessing game when the rug cleaner asks you to identify the stains you would like him to remove from the dining room carpet.
