Kay in Eloquent Plea for Broader Religious Views

Christ's Teaching Too Big For Petty Debates, He Declared

RAPS ARGUMENTS

Ignorance Is Main Cause of Theological Fusses, He Thinks

In an eloquent sermon that many of his class termed the finest they had ever heard him deliver, Judge John L. Kay plead earnestly Sunday morning at his Bible class for a religious tolerance and broad, unprejudiced conception of christianity that would be far above the petty bickerings of those who seek to make Christ's teachings a subject of debate.

"God is a great God and He thinks great ideas and big, broad ideas; and Jesus Christ's religion and his salvation is big, big—the biggest and brightest idea that was ever born into the world," Judge Kay told the 368 men present for his lecture.

His complete address was as follows:

We Misread.

"It is one of the habits of humanity to misread and to misinterpret what they read, and what they hear. You will often hear a man say that the declaration of independence declares that all men are equal. Every other man, nearly, will so tell you. It does not say that—never did say it, but, it says that they are created equal. Now, the writer of that little sentence in the declaration of independence was not thinking about social or moral, or religious equality. He was not thinking about wealth, or poverty, or fame. He was not thinking about the kingdom of the mind, or the differences of men in their menial equipment, nor any of these things. What he meant was that all men ought to be equal before the law, because that is what he was writing about, the proposed law of his country.

They Sometimes Err.

"Now, that is not, in itself, overly true. We lawyers who minister about the altar of the law like to teach, and like to believe that the law treats all men alike, and it does. But, the men who administer it, the lawyers who wait upon it, are human, and they make differences in law that, in itself, would make men equal. There is a peculiar thing about that, which I might say was a natural, rather than a legal difficulty. The law cannot treat all men alike, although it undertakes to do so, because it doesn't fit all men alike. That great French [illegible]ole France, writing in [illegible]g about for the moment, said, that 'men are equal before the law.' That it was just as much harm in the eyes of the law for a millionaire to steal a loaf of bread as it was for a beggar, and that is true, only he doesn't need the bread. And, he said, it was just as much harm, and just as much a crime in the eyes of the law, for the president of France to sleep under a bridge on a frosty night, as it was for a hobo, and that is true only the hobo sometimes has to sleep there and the president of France never does.

Leading Up to Lesson.

"I have said these things, leading up to this lesson.

"The world likes to talk about democracy. Many men have talked about it who failed to understand it. Humanity never had, and it seems that it can never have a democracy. Whether man is one of those creatures that is not capable of democracy, I do not know. The birds have a perfect democracy. Everyone builds his nest exactly alike from day to day, and from age to age. But, the honey bees have a perfect, absolute monarchy, and there is no citizenship, no voting, no power in the people of the honey bees, but they all respond to the edict and the will of the one bee. I have watched these little red ants here in Texas. They have some form of absolute monarchy. You can watch them running along the little roads that they make through the grass, carrying seeds home to their nest—hurrying—hurrying. The next time you get to complaining, and say: 'I have to work too hard,' go down and watch one of those little six-legged rascals at work. And, if he stops with his burden, if he stops for but a moment with his load, they have a sentinel sitting off about six inches to the side of the road that runs up to him, and says, 'Here, what is the

Aviator Wrecks His Plane, Gets Rebate On Unused Gasoline

SAN ANTONIO, June 7.—An airplane reported to have been flown from Stinson field here, was wrecked in trees and fences surrounding a cotton field two miles northeast of Floresville when the aviator attempted to ascend after stopping for a supply of gasoline.

The pilot explained to the garage man from whom he bought the gasoline that he only had $5 and asked a refund on the gas which he hadn't been able to use. The refund was made and the pilot left.

Who Was It Said —To See Ourselves As Others See Us?

DALLAS, Texas, June 7.—(AP) It's not what you put in a glass so much as the way you serve it, and the kind of a smile that goes with it that counts with the men. This is the opinion expressed by the young woman in charge of a cold drink fountain here where girls are employed exclusively to dispense drinks. This "head soda jerker," as she is termed, declared there is no place like a soda fountain for observing human nature. And probably there is no person like a woman employed behind the soda counter for observing the peculiarities and character of customers of the opposite sex.

"I have divided men into four classes," she said. "There is the jellybean, the old bachelor, the married man and the boy under 15. Men as a whole are very disgusting at times. After enduring their attempts at flirtation I am often led to believe that marriage is a big hoax, for married men carry on more with the girls than do their free brothers."

NEW PARKING LAWS AN AID TO MERCHANTS

Biggest Saturday Night Crowd Attests Approval Of Changes

Wichita Falls has made no mistake in going back to the two-hour parking limit in the down-town sections, if retail business in the city Saturday night is any criterion by which to judge.

Local merchants watched with glee Saturday evening as one of the biggest crowds in history flocked to the retail section. They attributed this, too, at least in large part to the fact that the change had been made in the traffic regulations.

One man who operates a large establishment on Indiana avenue voiced positive conviction that the big crowd was in a measure attributed to an easing upon the stringent parking rules. "We haven't had a crowd like this in weeks," he declared, "and I think one reason they are here is because they can breathe easy about their cars while they are shopping."

Saturday was the first Saturday night since the two-hour parking limit went into effect.

Altus Approves Of Gas Proposition

ALTUS, Okla., June 7.—The offer of Moseley and Myers, Oklahoma City natural gas distributors, to pipe gas from the Sayre fields to Altus and install a distributing plant in exchange for a time franchise has been endorsed by the Altus chamber of commerce.

It is expected that pipe lines will be laid large enough to take care of many cities in southwestern Oklahoma and Frederick, Tipton, Hobart and Clinton have signified their intention to exchange franchises for gas. According to the agreement gas for domestic use will cost 60 cents per 1000 feet and 25 cents for industrial use.

Two Are Burned To Death in Airplane

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo., June 7. (AP)—Pearl Bayfinger, 20, and Grace Lamer, 25, both of Cobden, Ill., were burned to death and John Hunter, St. Louis, Mo., was injured when an airplane in which they were riding fell to the ground and burst into flames here today. The machine fell from a height of 40 or 50 feet.

ALL WANT A LOOK AT MA.

Tourists From All Parts of Country Flock Into Austin.

AUSTIN, June 7.—Scores of tourists wearing everything from overalls to silk pongee are visiting the Texas capital every day in hopes of seeing the first woman governor of Texas, Miriam A. Ferguson. One woman, who recently was received by Governor Ferguson, remarked that she had visited nearly every governor west of the Mississippi river.

Nearly any day automobiles bearing license tags from the west coast to New England states and Florida can be seen parked in the capital driveway.

HOLCOMB IN AUSTIN.

AUSTIN, Texas, June 7.—Guy R. Holcom, Wichita Falls attorney, is here to appear before the highway commission Monday on road matters. He was a caller at the governor's office Saturday.

TEXAS LIFTS A BURDEN OF NEW BILLS JUNE 18

That Date to Be An Important One for Laws Of State

90 DAYS EXPIRE

And Measures Passed By 39th Legislature Come Into Effect

AUSTIN, Texas, June 7.—(AP)—June 18, this year assumes a degree of importance rarely accorded a single unit of Father Time's calendar year, for on this day the 90 day period imposed by the state constitution before bills of a session of the legislature can go into effect, expires, and more than 100 laws enacted by the thirty-ninth legislature make their debut for guidance of Texas citizens.

A Wide Range.

The new laws, which range from a radical revision of the care of the insane state wards to more severe penalties for criminal offenses, balanced by statutes providing for clemency for convicts, and bills of particular interest to Texas business men, represent the disposed of business of Texas solons in their record breaking 66 day session under the guidance of Texas' first woman governor.

At the top of the new laws can be found the noted Wallace Eleemosynary reform bill, house bill 249, which was accorded the undisputed place as the most constructive bit of the Teer tion following the veto of the Teer and Chitwood penitentiary relocation bill. The Wallace bill changes the names of the state eleemosynary institutions so as to eliminate the objectional descriptive words, such as "insane," "feeble-minded," "epileptic," and "lunatic." Henceforth the state insane asylum will be known as "state hospitals," named after the towns in which they are located, such as the "Terrell State Hospital," the "San Antonio State Hospital," while the "Colony for Feeble-Minded" will become the Austin State School.

Hospitals Established.

This bill also provides for the establishment of psychopathic hospitals at Galveston in conjunction with the state medical college, and at Dallas, it permits temporary and emergency treatment for persons afflicted with mental diseases, and a psychopathic ward in each of the institutions. Throughout it stresses "cure" in preference to "incarceration." The bill cannot be put into effect in its entirety because of the failure of the legislature to make sufficient appropriations, but interested persons expect the board of control, in its recommendations for the bi-ennium beginning September 1, 1927, to provide for all of its provisions.

The bill to permit legislative clemency for convicts is the Irwin indefinite

Cline Renamed To Imperial Committee

Official word was received late last night by Maskat Potentate W. W. Gardner of the reappointment of Walter D. Cline t othe imperial council committee on dispensations and charities by the new Imperial Potentate Berger. This is the third year that Mr. Cline has received this appointment.

A new potentate was born into Maskat Shrinedom yesterday afternoon when William Robert Gardner, Jr., arrived. Young William Robert is scheduled to take over the reins of the Maskateers at once, according to announcement from headquarters last night.

NO CIVIL WAR FEARED.

U. S. Commander in China Not Alarmed at Disturbances.

TOKIO, June 7.—(AP)—Brigadier General William D. Connor, commander in chief of the United States military forces in China, who arrived here last night for a fortnight's stay, said that while numerous local disturbances are anticipated, in China, no civil war is expected, at least this year, and that there is little probability that there will be in the near future, actual conflict between Feng Yu-Hsiang and Chang Tso-Lin.

TWO ASPHYXIATED IN MINES.

Hydrogen Sulphide Pockets in New York Take Toll.

BATAVIA, N. Y., June 7.—(AP)—Two men were killed and three others seriously affected by hydrogen sulphide gas in the mines of the United States Gypsum company at Oakfield, six miles from here today.

Leo Snyder and Shannon Hilchey were the men working in the lower mine when they struck a gas pocket and were overcome.

T. U. COMMENCEMENT STARTS.

Annual Baccalaureate Sermon Preached to Six Hundred Seniors.

AUSTIN, June 7.—Bishop Edwin D. Mouzon, presiding over the Nashville conference of the Southern Methodist church, opened the two-day program of commencement at the University of Texas by delivering the annual baccalaureate sermon to six hundred graduates in the memorial stadium Sunday night. The baccalaureate sermon was the only meeting of graduates Sunday.

Ruggles Takes Secretaryship of Texas-Exes

AUSTIN, June 7.—William B. Ruggles of Dallas Sunday accepted appointment as secretary of the University Ex-students association which was tendered him by the executive council of the association following a meeting of that group here Saturday.

No information was given out as to the salary that Ruggles will receive but it is believed that the office carries with it a stipend of $5,000 a year and traveling expenses.

Acceptance of the position means Ruggles will terminate his career as sports editor of the Dallas Morning News and also statistician of the Texas league. Ruggles will also make his residence in Austin since the position will demand that the new secretary spend the major portion of his time in the office.

Ruggles is one of the best known men in the southwest and enjoys a wide acquaintance among the graduates of the university and other institutions. He was prior to his service wit hthe Dallas News in Chicago for the sports department of the Houston Post and also served at one time as secretary of the Dallas Automobile club.

He is also the author of "The Passing Hour," a column of poetry and sport paragraphs on sports which has been running for the past five years on the sport page of the Dallas News.

FIGHT STARTS ALONG CHINESE FRONT SUNDAY

Hostilities Rage for A Time And Then They Subside

CANTON, June 7.—(AP)—Fighting commenced at four o'clock Sunday afternoon between troops of the Yunnanese Generals, Yang-Hsi-Min and Lau Chaun-Wau and the Cantonese troops.

A gun boat steamed up the river past Shameen for Honan, firing on the Bund there. There was machine gun and rifle firing on both sides of the river, but it ceased at 5:30 p. m. All the Hongkong steamers left during the fighting.

Claim Loyalty.

While protesting loyalty to the principles of the late Dr. Sun Yat-Sen and the Kuomi-Tang party, the Yuannanese generals presented a demand to the authorities to order a cessation of troop movements in the east and north river districts, saying that otherwise they would take the necessary measures to resist.

The authorities replied denouncing their insubordination and dismissing them and appointing General Chu Pei-Teh, acting commander of the Yuannanese forces which was a virtual declaration of war.

BEAUMONT STUDENT DROWNS

Sixteen Year Old Boy Steps Off Sand Bar.

BEAUMONT, June 7.—Albert Thomas Fuller, 16-year-old school boy was drowned while swimming in Willard Lake, about 20 miles from here at 11:30 o'clock this morning. Fuller was a member of a family picnic party and is believed to have lost his life when he stepped off a sand bar, being an inexperienced swimmer.

1 KILLED IN TRUCK WRECK.

Car Loaded With Oil Well Supplies Leaves Road On Curve.

BEAUMONT, June 7.—One man was killed and three others were injured when a truck laden with oil well supplies turned over in a curve two miles from Bathen in the Saratoga road at 8:30 o'clock yesterday morning. The dead man is Gerald Warden Kesner, 19 years old, who was crushed to death.

MUSIC FEDERATION OPENS.

PORTLAND, Ore., June 7.—The convention of the national federation of music clubs opened here tonight at the public auditorium with an official attendance of 800 representing every state.

Interest centered today in the young artists' contest, preliminaries being held in piano and violin.

TERRELL FEARS COTTON FACING GLOOMY SEASON

Conditions Worst I've Ever Seen, Agricultural Head Says

AUSTIN, Texas, June 7.—A 67 per cent cotton crop prospect, with "conditions the worst I have ever known," was predicted by Texas Agricultural Commissioner George B. Terrell based on condition and acreage reports to him from over 200 counties, including every section where cotton is grown. This is five per cent below the federal bureau estimate.

Condition of other crops ranges from 89 per cent for rice and tomatoes, to 39 per cent for wheat; with the pointed reservation that unless rains fall, much of Texas' crop this year will fail.

This year the planting of cotton will run 7 per cent above the average, with 17,333,186 acres in cotton, and far ahead of last year, according to agricultural commissioner's reports. Rice will run 10 per cent over, tomatoes 7 and sorghums 4 per cent above the average planting. Other crops are short.

Condition of other crops as compared with the average or normal crop as given by Terrell for June 1 follows:

Corn 61 per cent, oats 43, wheat 39, rice 89, hay 78, tomatoes 89, sorghums 61, peanuts 73, sweet potatoes 73, syrup sorghums 69, ribbon cane 64 per cent.

TEXAN GOES TO LONDON

University of Texas Professor to Represent State At Convention

AUSTIN, June 7.—Dr. Max Handman, professor of sociology in the University of Texas, was elected official representative of the Texas committee on prisons and prison labor at the international prison congress in London, August 3-10, at a committee meeting in the home of Col. R. H. Baker, president, here. Dr Handman will leave Austin Tuesday, June 9.

All officers were re-elected for the coming year.

GERMANY IS RADIO MAD.

New Republic Is No Exception From Rest of World, Say Reports.

BERLIN, June 7.—Germany is as radio mad as the rest of the civilized world. Just now the craze is for small portable outfits for use at seaside resorts. Among the radio novelties on the market is a very small outfit no larger than a small cigar box and weighing only two to three pounds complete. This set is said to be effective, and is a good seller among the many going to the sea.

Cal and His Party in St. Paul; He Takes It Easy On Speeding Train

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 7.—(AP)—President and Mrs. Coolidge arrived here tonight to attend the Norse-American Centennial celebration.

CHICAGO, June 7.—(AP)—President and Mrs. Coolidge passed through Chicago today on their way to Minnesota to attend the Norse-American Centennial celebration. Their special train was running ahead of schedule, less than half an hour being required to make the transfer through a maze of yards from the Baltimore & Ohio to the Chicago & Northwestern tracks.

An overnight drop in temperature made travel enjoyable and the president had in prospect a comfortable day ride from here through Wisconsin to St. Paul, where he will detrain.

A small group of newspaper men, camera men, local officials and others awaited the president's train at the transfer point. The president and Mrs. Coolidge, Secretary of State Kellogg and Secretary Sanders came out and stood on the observation platform while the motion picture cameras clicked.

The president, during the filming, broached the burning subject of the day—the weather.

"How did you pass the night?" He asked one of the newspaper men assigned to his train.

"Very well, thank you, and how did you rest?"

"Quite comfortable," the president returned.

150,000 WATCH BAGS FROM 7 NATIONS LEAVE

Two U. S. Men Rank High In Popular Favor

WEATHER IS GOOD

Intense Heat is Only Mar To Perfect Conditions

BRUSSELS, June 7.—(AP)—Eighteen ballons, representing seven countries, took the air this afternoon and this evening in the first renewal of the Gordon Bennett cup race for lighter than air craft.

The start was made in perfect weather, although the heat was excessive. A light breeze was blowing from the northeast, and if it continued the course of the gas bags was to be over Northern France and southward or westward toward the Atlantic ocean. The balloonist who succeeds in keeping away from the English channel or Atlantic ocean for the longest period will win the race.

Van Orman a Favorite.

Ernest De Muyter, the Belgian champion, who won the original Gordon Bennett trophy; Wade T. Van Orman, United States, and Maurice Bienaime, France, are the favorites to win the race. Van Orman carried with him a wireless outfit and will attempt to raise American stations while in the air.

Approximately 150,000 spectators watched the inflation of the balloons and the start from Sol Boss Plain. The great bags were late in getting away owing to the gas flowing rather slowly into them. It was nearly 8 o'clock this evening when the last of the competitors cast loose.

The starters were De Muyter in the Belgica, Labrousse in the Ville Bruxelles and Veenstras in the Prince Leopold, representing Belgium; Lieutenant Colonel Dunville in the Banshee, Captain C. M. Spencer in the Mirlamar and Johnson in the Elsie, representing Great Britain; Magdelena in the Duro, DeLa Roche in the Hespero Susanas, and Captain Peneranda, Spaniards; Van Orman, with Vallam as an aide, and Lieutenants Flood and McCormick in the two American balloons, Blenaime in the Picardie, Blanchet in the Maroca and Latusgrand in the Charles, representing France; Grass in the Aerostiere, Valles in the Trionfale and Ira in the Ciamino, competing for Italy, and Doctor Bachman in the Hel Vetia, who is Switzerland's lone entry.

Ask Aid to Push Fight on Scopes

CHICAGO, June 7.—(AP)—The Chicago Tribune prints a letter, signed "Walter White, Supt of Rhea county schools and prosecutor of Scopes," appealing for aid in financing the prosecution of the instructor in the Dayton, Tenn., high school indicted under the recently passed Tennessee law forbidding the teaching of the evolutionary theory.

WALTON LEAGUE TO MEET.

Hubby to Speak Before Two-Day Convention at Brady.

BRADY, June 7.—The Texas division, Izaak Walton league, opens its two-day convention here tomorrow. The announced speakers include Turner Hubby, state game and fish commissioner, whose subject will be "educating the public on enforcement of game and fish laws."

EX-SLAVE DIES OF GRIEF.

Negro Follows Former Master to Grave After Few Hours.

TROUP, June 7.—Turner Lacey, negro ex-slave, died here late yesterday a few hours after the death of D. F. Wilkinson, 71, for whom Lacey had worked for nearly forty years. Grief over Wilkinson's passing is believed to have caused the negro's death.

EDUCATOR IS DEAD.

NEW ORLEANS, June 7.—Rev. C. D. Berland, secretary of Jesuit college here and prominent in Jesuit educational circles throughout the south for many years, died here today. He was formerly vice president and professor of moral philosophy, at Springhill college, Mobile. Later he became president of St. John's college in Shreveport.

TO BURY DALLAS PASTOR.

DALLAS, June 7.—Funeral services for the Rev. George S. Tumlin, 73, retired Baptist minister, will be held in Oak Cliff tomorrow. He had been in Texas 35 years and died suddenly Saturday.

THE WEATHER

TEACHER DIES AFTER MYSTERY SCHOOL ATTACK

Face and Chest Split Open With Small Fire Axe

BATON ROUGE, La., June 7.—(AP) — Missing examination papers believed to play an important part in the killing here today of Oscar D. Turner, professor of agronomy at Louisiana State university, which could not be found before and immediately after the tragedy, have been mysteriously returned to Professor Turner's desk in the agronomy building, police announced tonight.

BATON ROUGE, La., June 7.—(AP)—Oscar B. Turner, professor in agronomy at Louisiana State university was today found lying at the foot of a flight of stairs in the agronomy building with his throat and face gashed into unrecognizability, evidently with a small fire axe which was found lying nearby, with blood stained handprint on the handle there only clue to the tragedy.

Professor Turner died shortly afterward without regaining consciousness.

Found By Assistant.

The professor's face was hacked open from the forehead to the chin with numerous gashes about the throat and chest. He was found by R. G. Markham, a senior agricultural student who had been serving as an assistant instructor to Prof. Turner.

Mr. Markham said that papers which were to be used in coming examinations had been missed from the agronomy building, and that he and Prof. Turner were to institute an inquiry on the missing papers this morning.

Purse Found.

The victim's purse and contents were found intact on the body, and police believe the assailant was a student who bore a grudge against the professor.

Officers tonight announced that finger and palm prints would be taken from students in Professor Turner's department of the university, which will be compared with the palm print found on the axe.

CAR WRECKED; MAN KILLED

Fort Worth Man Dies in Accident 3 Miles East of Dallas

DALLAS, June 7.—A. J. Proctor, 31, of Fort Worth, was killed early today when an automobile in which he was riding with three other men turned over three miles east of Dallas. The car plunged over a 10-foot embankment. Proctor was formerly of Salt Lake City and only recently moved to Fort Worth.

PLEAD FOR CHINA RIGHTS.

Chinese Society In America Sends Request to Kellogg.

NEW YORK, June 7.—(AP)—A plea for respect of China's sovereignty and the withdrawal from Shanghai as soon as possible of the United States' armed armies was made in a letter sent to Secretary of State Kellogg by Wington Y. W. Liu, president of the Chinese students' alliance in the United States.

The situation in Shanghai arose from an industrial dispute between laborers and Japanese mill owners.

The letter also said that the members of the organization believe the situation is not so grave as to call for foreign intervention.

STORMS CLAIM VICTIMS OVER A WIDE AREA

Lightning and Heavy Winds Prevail Throughout Middle West

1 DEAD IN OKLAHOMA

2 Feared Lost in Nebraska; Property Damage to Mount High

WRAY, Colo., June 7.—A gale of tornado-like proportions late yesterday swept through an area of about 25 miles in this section, demolishing more than a hundred buildings and injuring a score of persons, reports here indicated. The authorities here received unconfirmed reports of three fatalities in outlying farm communities.

Telephone and telegraph communication facilities were put out of commission.

13 Miles Southeast

The twister started 13 miles southeast of here and passed over an area about 25 miles long and two miles wide. The center of the gale passed a half mile east of Wray and destroyed 10 buildings in the immediate vicinity of this town, causing injuries to four persons, including one woman. While the windstorm passed by Wray, the town was plunged into pitch black darkness.

The windstorm subsided several miles northeast of Wray. The gale reports here indicated, did not strike any town in the section, except Wray. Reports here today indicated that the destructive effects of the gale had been wrecked mainly on outlying farming communities and ranches, razing buildings and killing cattle and sheep. Authorities estimated the damage in the section would total approximately $150,000.

NEBRASKA GIRLS ARE DROWNED BY STORM.

OMAHA, Neb., June 7.—(AP)—Two girls were believed drowned when their boat was capsized by the wind, and plate glass windows were blown out, trees felled and wires snapped when a high wind storm, accompanied by a near cloudburst, swept over Omaha late today.

WOMAN MAY DIE AS RESULT OF INJURIES

MUSKOGEE, Okla., June 7—(AP) Mrs. Mary McConnell was probably fatally injured and two farm houses were blown down by a tornado five miles south of Vian, Okla., late today, according to advices here. An infant in Mrs. McConnell's arms was uninjured.

WIND CONTINUES TO SWEEP WICHITA FALLS.

The wind that for the past ten days has swept Wichita Falls from stem to stern continued unabated Sunday and, as it has in the past, proved a blessing in disguise. But for it, the city would have sweltered under the wilting beams of a sun that beat down with consistent brilliance.

As a whole the day was not so uncomfortable. The breeze kept things fairly cool and there was not enough dust to constitute a serious inconvenience.

LIGHTNING FLASH KILLS OKLAHOMAN.

GUTHRIE, Okla., June 7.—(AP)—F. H. McQuilkin, Enid theatre manager, was instantly killed, a man and a boy were injured and golf players were bowled down like ten pins today, when lightning struck a tree at the Guthrie Country club while a tournament was in progress.

McQuilkin, president of a golf club, headed a party of 25 members of the club who came here for the tournament. A terrific wind and electrical storm came up and the players took shelter under a tree. A minute later a forked bolt of lightning flashed through the party, knocking them right and left.

Frank Kelly, Guthrie oil man, was partially paralyzed by the shock and Forest Billings, a caddie, suffered bad burns. The condition of both is considered serious. Three other men were rendered unconscious for a short time.

11 MORE DEATHS IN NEW YORK CITY

NEW YORK, June 7.—(AP)—Unrelenting in its intensity, the heat wave which has held a large part of the country in its grip entered upon its second week today with a mounting toll of deaths and prostrations. Although New York City and its environs were fanned by faint breezes which gave promise of heralded relief the torrid temperatures and boiling sun had claimed before nightfall more than a score of victims—11 deaths and 15 prostrations.

Flock to Beaches

Thousands of suffering New Yorkers thronged the nearby beaches where the chill waters of the Atlantic provided effective relief. The exodus from the city began in the early morning, swelling the ranks of an army which already had slept through the hottest night of the year on the sands and outlying spaces.

Thousands in the city passed the night on the grassy slopes of Central Park and Riverside Park. Police estimate that more than 20,000 persons spent the night in Central Park alone.

TWO DEAD

ELIZABETH, N. J., June 7.—The extreme heat caused the death of five persons here today and six were overcome. The temperature reached 98 degrees at 5 o'clock.

TWO MORE

BALONNE, N. J., June 7.—(AP) Two deaths were recorded here today from heat, bringing the total to five in the past two days.

JACKSON CO. OPENS FIGHT ON HOPPER HORDE

Altus, Okla., and Other Points Busy With Arsenic

ALTUS, Okla., June 7.—Confronted with the possibility of losing the honor won last year of producing more cotton than any county in the state because of a threatened grasshopper ravage, the farmers of Jackson county are scattering an arsenic poison mixture along practically every fence row.

Already 4,500 pounds of white arsenic, enough to kill every man, woman and child in the United States, has been broadcast for the benefit of hungry grasshappers. In order to take every precaution to safeguard the cotton crop another half carload of arsenic has been ordered.

Spurred on by the necessity of killing the hoppers or sacrificing a large part of this year's crop the Altus chamber of commerce too charge of the grasshopper control work, furnished farmers with arsenic free of charge and supplied ingredients for the poison mixture such as bran, banana oil and molasses at wholesale cost.

With a 12 per cent increase in cotton acreage and due to the fact that eight inches of rain has been received in the last month a cotton crop is predicted by County Agent W. B. Forrester, that will surpass last year's total of 104,350 bales.

matter here? Go whoop 'em up.' You go watch that, and learn something.

"Now, St. Peter, here, was working through a symbol. I sometimes think that every effort we make, and everything we do, means something else other than that that we have in mind.

Religion for Jews.

"St. Peter believed that religion was for the Jews. He believed that even his great Master had come down to earth to serve the people of a little country about 75 miles wide and two or three hundred miles long. He believed that. But, one day there was let down, in a vision to him, a white sheet loaded with all kinds of animals and fowls. A great many of them were such as the Jews wouldn't eat, and couldn't eat under the Mosiac law, and it was said to him: 'Arise and slay and eat.' And that led up against the inequality that he thought was in men, and he said: 'Some of these things are unclean, and common.' Now, it wouldn't have bothered me so much about being unclean, but whenever they tell me that it is common, that lets me out. That is enough to queer anything with most of you.

"Now, if you think that isn't so, you get your wife to go down town and buy a hat or a dress, after she sees one or two other women with that particular kind of a hat or dress on. No! No! No! 'I saw Mrs. Brown over there with one on, and she's too fat.' 'I saw Mrs. Smith with one on, and she's too lean.' And, 'These clothes are getting too common.'

"And, then and there came the great truth to him through a symbol: 'That which God hath cleansed, call thou not unclean or common.' Now, was heaven talking to this man about these birds and beasts that were in that sheet? No! But, He comes along afterward and He explains to Peter in another chapter the real meaning of that vision. And, what was it? That you are not to call your fellowman unclean or common. That Christ came with a great democracy, that He hath made of one blood all nations of men, and that His religion, and His salvation, and His philosophy was for the Jew, and the Greek, and the Roman, and the Barbarian, and whosoever will. That is what the sheet filled with animals meant. St. Peter, you are not to confine your activities to the Jewish people. You are not to go around here with a little, narrow religion that will just serve you and your tribe. But, you are to go out in the big, wide world, as far as the lines of latitude and longitude go, and say to all men that 'this is the risen Christ and that His salvation is for all men.' That is what the lesson, I think, means.

"Was it an important lesson? My, My! The blood that has been spilt, and the effort that has been made to push forward one sect, or one church, or one theological view. How many people in my presence feel like that Jesus Christ hung on the cross on Calvary's mountain, in the sight of the world, for the benefit of one little breed of men, or one little church in each community? That is the thing that heaven was trying to break down in the mind of Peter, that religion is as wide as the world, and that salvation is for any man that comes forward with a contrite spirit and consecrated heart, and seeks to serve his Lord in humility.

"I do not like to think that none are going to be saved except the members of my church. I don't want to be too lonesome up in heaven. I don't like to think that nobody was going to be saved except your church, for if that should happen, you would all be running around up there, saying: 'We are sure right. Everybody else is in hell.' Wouldn't that be a fine heaven to go to? I would rather stay right here in Texas than to go with a bunch like that.

"I want to say to you, as my honest conviction this morning, that theology is not going to save men, and that doctrine is not going to save men, and that these books about religion are not going to save men, and these debates that they have sometimes are not going to save men. Some of these religious debates are the most ignorant things in the world. If they ever have one in your community, you will remember what I say, that it is the sign of an ignorant community, and it takes two ignorant ministers to do it, and, of course, they have the same stripe of a congregation. Because, the old proverb is, 'Like priest, like people.'

"Now, there was a Baptist and a Methodist preacher, away back in the weeds. There was very little timber behind where they were holding forth, most of the woods was out in front, and they were debating about infant baptism. The Baptist preacher said that the phrase 'infant baptism' was not in the Bible. They had one of these big Bibles up on the stand. He made that assertion, and the Methodist minister, as ignorant as the other one, and our people often are, commenced turning the leaves of the big book, when his turn came, and said: 'Now, our brother said that infant baptism is not in the Bible.' This other preacher didn't know but what it was, and he said: 'Hold on there, brother, hold on. What I said was not as I knowed of.'

"Ah, men, men! Don't let any set of teachers, or what-not go out and teach you a narrow, small doctrine, because it takes a narrow, small vessel to hold it. God is a great God and He thinks great ideas and big, broad ideas, and Jesus Christ's religion and His salvation is big, big, and the biggest and brightest idea that was ever born into the world.

"It is to fit each, and all, and every man, whosoever will come with a contrite heart, praying for forgiveness. It is a religion that doesn't deal with small things and small questions. It is a religion that says you must have faith in God and faith in your fellowman, and faith in yourself. Such is my conception of this lesson, and of religion, and I say to you that it is a question big enough, broad enough for any man, and for all men, and I want to get out of your heart, and out of my own heart, for I am sometimes as narrow as any—I want to get out of my own heart that I can save myself by thinking, by planning, by my own brain work, and my own effort, and I want to say at last, that my hope is built on nothing less than Jesus blood and righteousness."

Four Killed When L. and N. Trains Hit

PARIS, Tenn., June 7.—(AP)—Four railroad employes were killed and one was injured perhaps fatally when two freight trains met in headon collision just south of here today on the Louisville and Nashville railroad.

The dead are:

Richard H. Shafer, 42, of Memphis, engineer of the northbound general freight.

J. L. Eason, 30, of Paris, fireman of the local freight, southbound.

Dale Wyatt of Beavers, Tenn., and J. L. Nobarly of Paris, section hands, riding o nthe local.

B. F. Baldwin, 55, of Brownsville, Tenn., engineer of the local is in the hospital here with a crushed arm and internal injuries.

GOMAN GOLF STAR WEDS.

Miss Miriam Burns of Kansas City Bride of Chicago Man.

CHICAGO, June 7.—(AP)—Miss Miriam Burns of Kansas City, woman's western golf champion in 1923 and Joseph Francis Horn of Wilmette, Ill., were married late Saturday afternoon in presence of a small number of friends and relatives.

The former Miss Burns let it be known empratically that her marriage would not cause her to give up golf.

"Golf is fine," she said, "but a husband is better, and a husband and golf are better yet."

TWO TRAPPED IN MINE.

Cave-in Endangers Lives of Pair In Deep Idaho Shaft.

WALLACE, Ida., June 7.—Two men are trapped on the 1,500 foot level of the Hecla mine at Burke tonight as the result of a cave-in which caught six men late today. Two men worked their way out of the cave uninjured and two others were rescued tonight and are at hospital suffering with minor injuries.

Jake Clements, 53, of Butte, Mont. Raymond Vinson, 21, of Gatland, Mo., are the men still trapped

It's Santa Claus for Ma Almost Every Day; But She Also Gives

AUSTIN, June 7.—(AP)—Four months executive econtrol by Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson, Texas' first woman governor, seems to have been a lodestone for the attention of citizens of America and even foreign countries, when guaged by the unusual requests and the many little gifts sent to her.

But to date, people seem more anxious to make the governor the honoree of some little remembrance than to ask things of her.

The unusual request made by Gov. Nellie Tayloe Ross of Wyoming, for a pair of shoes to be kept as a remembrance, has not been dpulicated in Texas, though several out of the state families, who said they were in needy circumstances, have asked Governor Ferguson for cast off clothing to be worn.

When Texas and visiting citizens request things of the governor they are satisfied with similar things, her signature, or her photograph. However, Governor Ferguson has not fulfilled the demand for either, especially the photographs.

Governor Ferguson receives many requests for money, the funds to be used for almost every conceivable purpose. Members of the governor's official family, addicted to statistics, have estimated that should Governor Ferguson answer in full every request for funds made of her, her salary from the state would have to be many times its present size and then she would have to mortgage her personal property to supply the odds and ends.

Some out of the state citizens have intimated they would make good citizens fo rthe Lone Star state if the governor would only send the money for their transportation here. Some similar requests have been received from citizens of foreign countries, who, reading the papers, recognize the name of Governor Ferguson as one American citizen, who can be reached easily.

Then Governor Ferguson many times has been requested for used handkerchiefs, washed and ironed, to be raffled off at church bazaars, and flower shows. One proud citizen called on her recently and declared he had outbit all others for her handkerchief at a church bazaar and had paid $5 for it. The handkerchief is now the honored possession of the man's wife, he said.

Thus requests for signatures, photographs, castoff clothing for wearing purposes, money and handkerchiefs, virtually covers the spread of requests of the governor, but will not begin to circumscribe the range of presents.

terminate sentence law which permits convicts serving an indeterminate sentence to be paroled after serving the minimum sentence assessed when it is more than one-fourth of the minimum sentence is more than one-after serving one-fourth of the maximum sentence when the minimum sentence is less than one-fourth of the maximum. As explained by interested solons, a convict serving a sentence from six to 20 years would be paroled after serving six years because the minimum sentence is more than one fourth of the maximum. A convict serving a sentence of from two to 12 years would be paroled after serving three years because the minimum is less than one-fourth of the maximum in each case providing he has a good prison record.

There are three bills of particular interest to the sportsmen, the game bill declaring all wild game the property of the state and reducing the bag limit and shortening the hunting seasons, the fish bill, regulating commercial fishing in coastal waters and in all streams, and closing certain back bays along the Gulf Coast to seining, and the fur bearing bill, which, for the first time, attempts to regulate by law, hunting and trapping in Texas.

Many Highway Bills.

There are several bills affecting state highways and motorists, topped by senate bill 74, which makes Texas highway regulations conform to the federal regulations, which will insure a continuation of federal aid for highway construction. The legislature also placed a ban on glaring headlights and cutouts, by providing for regulation of one and prohibition of the other. It granted gasoline dealers the privilege of selling gasoline on Sunday, and ordered that highway officers, employed by the counties, must wear distinctive uniforms. All of these bills go into effect June 18.

Two bills which grant additional right of eminent domain to railroads, one for construction of spur tracks, and the other for dredging purposes go into effect. The spur track bill aroused keen oposition in the legislature, and soon will receive a test in the United States supreme court when the Texas and Pacific railroad company presents its complaint against the Santa Fe railroad system building a spur track from Hale into Cement City, an industrial section of Dallas, now served exclusively by the Texas and Pacific.

Two other bills granting eminent domain go into effect. One permits towns of more than 5,000 inhabitants to appropriate land for public purposes and the second gives to counties the right to take land for construction of jails, courthouses, hospitals and other county institutions.

The bill regulating child labor by prohibiting employment of children under 15 in all occupations except farm labor, and under 17 in more hazardous callings, such as machine shops, which the legislature passed after it had refused ratification of the federal child labor constitutional amendment, goes into effect June 18. The bill provides certain exceptions which must be approved by the county judges.

Hard On Kluxers.

The noted 'anti-mask" bill, aimed at the ku klux klan, which was a party platform demand, goes into effect. It provides for a varying line of penalties depending upon the circumstances, but makes assault while masked, a felony, and prohibits appearance in any public place of any masked person and prohibits parades by masked organizations.

The bill prohibiting "bucket shops" and legalizing cotton exchanges and boards of trade, and dealing in cotton futures when the contracts are regularly consummated on the floors of a legal exchange goes into effect June 18.

Issuance of a worthless check becomes prima facia evidence of intent to defraud after June 18 when the bill, which makes issuance of such instruments a felony goes into effect. However, it grants a ten day period in which checks may be redeemed before arrest can be made.

Other bills of importance include two bills affecting free text books, one of which reduces the allotment for purchase of new texts to seven cents on the $100 valuation, and the other permitting gradual introduction of new texts so as to avoid wholesale destruction of old text books which was complained of last year. This bill also provides that a business man shall be included on the text book commission.

Foreign corporations owning stock in Texas corporations will be permitted to vote their stock and participate in the control of the companies concerned just as any individual stockholder.

The minimum sentence for burglary with explosives is fixed at 12 years.

Two bills regulating gathering of evidence are included. One prohibits use of evidence gathered in violation of the state or federal constitutions, and the other requires additional use of search warrants.

The tick bill, which makes the state bear the expense of tick eradication work, instead of the counties, goes into effect. It stipulates a quarantine area which is bounded on the east by the Brazos river to Robertson county and then in a northeasterly line, following the boundaries of counties to the Louisiana state line. This is another bill which will be hampered because of the failure of the legislature to make sufficient appropriation for the work, officials in charge said. The only appropriation available for this work after August 31, is included in the regular quota allotted the livestock sanitary commission, which did not contemplate the increased cost of state cattle fever tick eradication.

The law enacting the constitutional amendment adopted at the general election of 1924 providing for increased pensions for Confederate veterans and their widows, goes into effect in June.

Convicts will be permitted to testify in certain criminal and civil cases also.

Additional funds for establishment of fish hatcheries are provided in the bill placing a minimum price of four cents a ton on gravel, mudshell, marl and sand taken from public streams and bays. Four hatcheries, to be paid for from funds arising under this bill, are now planned.

The final bill of importance, because of the unusual interest at the time is the amnesty bill, permitting impeached governors to hold public office, and passed for the benefit of former Governor James E. Ferguson. This bill virtually fore the house of representatives asunder following the opinion of Attorney General Dan Moody that it is unconstitutional. It was passed to the house from committee without recommendation and then proponents and opponents each accused the other side of parliamentary jockeying, one to hurry consideration and the other to postpone. An agreement was reached to submit the bill on its merits, and after a day of oratory, was passed to third reading and two days later it was finally passed.

GERMAN PEACE PACT PROPOSAL IS CONSIDERED

Nations Discuss Proposal for Future Peace Of Europe

GENEVA, June 7.—(AP)—Consolidation of the peace of Europe through a pact of security as suggested by Germany and operating under the League of Nations, with Germany a member of the league is the object of important conversations begun here today by Austen Chamberlain, British foreign secretary and M. Briand, the French minister.

An accord was reached in principle between Great Britain and France concerning the basis of a pact with Germany with respect to the maintenance of her western frontiers along the lines of the unratified Wilsonian tripartite pact, but precisions must be agreed upon and much must be done relative to Germany's eastern frontiers, where England is disinclined to assume any responsibility other than that implied by the covenant of the League of Nations.

France not only wants a pact covering the Rhine, but seeks some understanding that peace treaties establishing new states and new frontiers like those of Poland and Czecho-Slovakia cannot be revised by Germany and made subject to arbitral decisions. In other words, France is seeking to reassure her two eastern allies and convince these countries that they will not be abandoned, even if France's own territorial integrity is assured.

Sportsmen Plan On Some Law Changes

BRADY, Texas, June 7.—(AP)—Further improvement of the state hunting and fishing code, supplementing the drastic changes authorized by the 39th legislature which go into effect June 18, will be discussed by Texas fishing and hunting enthusiasts at the annual convention of the Izaak Walton league to be held here June 8 and 9. This was the announcement of J. Frank Elder of Waco, secretary.

Among the changes which these sportsmen seek are universal hunting licenses, angler's licenses, a permanent fish fund for fish hatcheries, and more stringent stream pollution regulations.

Mr. Elder estimated that 500 delegates will attend the convention because of the importance of the discussions, and a busy session is expected. Officers will be elected, including a successor to Mr. Elder, it is said, as he expects to retire from his official capacity to devote more time to stream pollution control.

More than one-half of the advertising now being done in Mexico is paid for by foreign firms to increase the sale of foreign goods.

Auxiliary Women Of Lamar Baptist Will Meet This Afternoon

Announcement has been made of the hostesses for the Lamar Avenue Baptist church auxiliary meetings this afternoon. Circle one will meet at the church at 3 o'clock with Mrs. Charles West as leader; Circle two will meet with Mrs. C. F. Summerville, at 3 o'clock, 708 Travis street, with Mrs. R. S. George as leader; Circle three will meet with Mrs. W. O. Fisher, 2124 Avenue K, at 9:30 o'clock with Mrs. H. A. O'Neil as leader; and Circle four will meet at 2 o'clock with Mrs. P. P. Walker as leader at the home of Mrs. L. E. Dodd on Dallas street.

NO SPECIAL SESSION.

AUSTIN, June 7.—A special session of the legislature this year is improbable, Dr. J. H. Florence of Houston, member of the house, declared here Saturday. Dr. Florence stopped over in Austin for the day on his way home from San Antonio, and paid a social call at the governor's office.

The GILDED ROSE

by May Christie

Who's Who in the Story.

Rosilyn Ridgeway learns on her wedding day from idle gossip that she has been married for her money. Before her enormous fortune has left her, she had been an over-worked little drudge in her father's inn.

Landis Ridgeway, her husband is a brilliant, fascinating man, who was forced into the marriage by his mother. Rosilyn, loving her husband, knows he is still in love with

Lydia Harbook, a beautiful, cold society girl who is bent on marrying

Stevie Van Vorst, a wealthy old roue, although she is really fond of Ridgeway.

Rupert Briscoe, a dissipated man of the world, has seen Rosilyn ——— but once, and yet is deeply interested in her. Lydia learns of this interest, and she and Briscoe concoct a plot whereby Rosilyn and Briscoe will see a great deal of each other, and Lydia will have a chance to exert her wiles upon Landis. The plan works, and Landis, finding himself often alone with Lydia falls under her spell once more.

Van Vorst, however hungering for her love, decides to use

Marietta Fernandez a dancer and sweetheart of Briscoe's in connection with a scheme. These two come to New York where Marietta begins to vamp Landis away from Lydia, leaving a clear field for the elderly schemer.

In the country at the Ridgeway place, Rosylin, in a fever of jealousy and anxiety over the protracted disappearance of her husband seeks the solace of the countryside. After an exciting adventure she is rescued by Briscoe who tells a "fishy" store to account for his proximity to the scene. Landis disapproves heartily of the whole affair but conscious stricken at his neglect of Rosilyn invites her to attend a stage garden party with him. She joyfully accepts.

At the party Landis becomes his old lovable self again.

He apologizes for past misunderstandings and Rosilyn feels happier than ever before.

"Our marriage isn't the ordinary one. You remember—our agreement? Then why should I interfere with your enjoyment?"

There was a silence. The music of the band came fitfully, and a warm little wind blew through the foliage of the trees.

Then Landis, in rather a hoarse voice, said—

"Remember, Rosilyn, that I am always glad to have you with me. And I want to apologize for many things, if you'll be generous enough and sweet enough to allow me? I know I'm not nearly good enough for you."

Her breath caught in her throat. Was she asleep and dreaming? Could these wonderful words really have come from the man she so adored? Was it really possible he had some genuine feeling for her?

"Shall we walk on for a bit?" She rose from the grass, brushing her bunchy skirts as though her appearance were of more importance than her husband's last remarks, although her heart was hammering in her bosom. "We've both finished tea, haven't we?"

"Yes, let us move on." He thought her abrupt change of subject was a running away from any intimacy between them, and that indeed she had no personal sentiment for him—

But as they walked through the crowded gardens, the girl kept close ing little gesture—she placed her hand beside him, and once—with a confid- for a moment or two upon his arm.

"Enjoying yourself, Rosilyn?" They had paused in front of a gaily decorated booth where certain articles were being "auctioned off," and he plunged into the little crowd, his wife beside him. "See, I'm going to buy something for you, as a little souvenir of a delightful afternoon. It's to be the forerunner, I hope, of lots of other jolly times—together." He laid stress on the last word.

"Oh! How amusing!" Rosilyn clapped her two hands together, like a delightful child when Landis secured an absurd French doll. "Look at the curly red wig! Look at the long, slanty eyes! They're as old as Egypt, Landis, and as wise!"

After that they "did" the sideshows and suitably fleeced. Then they had their pictures taken "while you wait," and then the "cocoanut-shies" did a brisk business with them.

"You throw just like a boy," commented Landis, gaily, when his young wife won a prize.

"I feel just like a kid today," said Rosilyn, her heart a-thrill with a pulsating happiness.

CHAPTER LVII.
Lydia Invites Herself

Lydia Harbrook, seated on the balcony of a "week-end country cottage," listened wide-eyed to a curiously disturbing story related with great gusto by a female friend.

"Rather odd, itsn't it, my dear? And really an enormous 'sell' for your former flame, although of course every cloud has a silver lining, and this particular lining is of gold! But isn't it too bad that he didn't delay that impossible marriage of his just a few months, for then it wouldn't have taken place at all! There's where you'd have come in, Lydia—you wouldn't have turned down a definite ten thousand per, would you? Not that it's a great sum, but the caiptal's all there, and handy! And of course we all know that Landis simply adored you!"

Lydia interrupted with a curt—

"You're certain of your facts?"

The other woman nodded, fingering an open letter.

"It's from my relatives in Australia. They knew young Ridgeway's uncle intimately. They're also mentioned in the will, in a minor way. But it seems the old man was always rather keen on Landis. Now he's left him all this cash."

"Amazing!" Lydia's adjectives could not cope with the occasion. Her brain was not working with its usual celerity.

But give her time——

The problem was—how to win Landis back to her forever? How to get rid of his present irritating "encumbrance?"

There wasn't any time to lose.

It was a matter of but an hour or two for clever Lydia to invent some plausible excuse, pack up her luggage and depart for town Arriving there, she dispatched a lengthy telegram to Mrs. Ridgeway senior, giving no address to which a reply might come, for fear that lady "double crossed" her.

She then went through her wardrobe, packing the very prettiest of her gowns.

And finally she caught the 4:15 and arrived at Royal Cliff just as the guests—for a merry house party was in progress—were thinking of retiring to their rooms to dress for dinner.

"Do forgive my presumption in inviting myself down—but indeed your son did say that whenever the place was opened, I had a standing invitation!"

"I received your telegram, but you made a mistake, surely, in addressing it to me. Landis' wife is naturally the hostess."

No whit daunted, Lydia apologized. "I shall never get accustomed to the fact that you're not in charge!" (A sweet sympathy would doubtless do the trick.)

"Nonsense!" The older woman's manner was still stiff and distant. "Rosilyn does splendidly. It's remarkable how clever she is turning out, considering her youth."

Mrs. Ridgeway then sent a maid to show her to the room that was prepared for her. Usually the good lady took that office to herself.

When beautiful Miss Harbrook trailed her irridescent draperies down the wide staircase leading to the hall, she was the somewhat disconcerted witness of a very charming picture. Landis—who was in profile and was quite unaware of her arrival—had just filled his glass with some potent pre-dinner "appetizer" and, standing beside his young wife, was drinking her health and happiness. Rosilyn wore a corsage, evidently a recent present from her husband.

Why had he done this little deed of gallantry? thought Lydia.

Had it been planned to show his wife that, even though he was now financially independent of her, he really did admire her and was fond of her and wished to give her pleasure?

But of course Rosilyn's money still was the inducement. Ten thousand dollars a year wasn't a great fortune—but it did put Landis' value still higher in Lydia's predatory eyes——

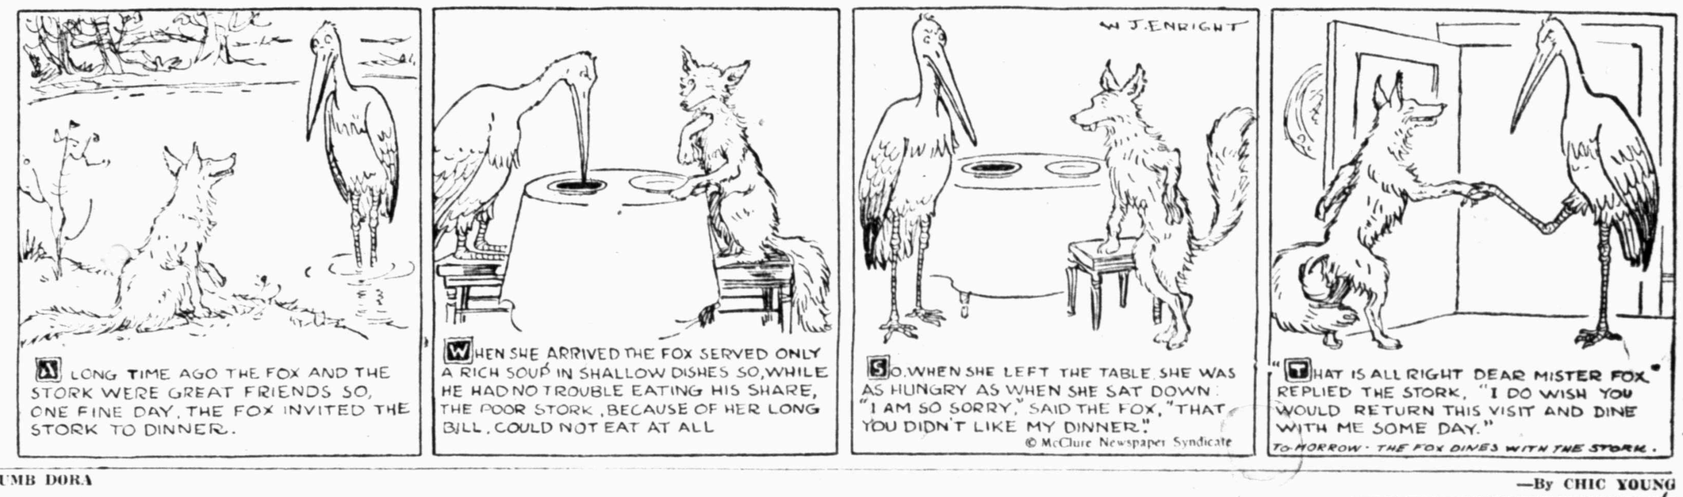

She coughed as a gentle hint to indicate her presence.

Both wheeled round.

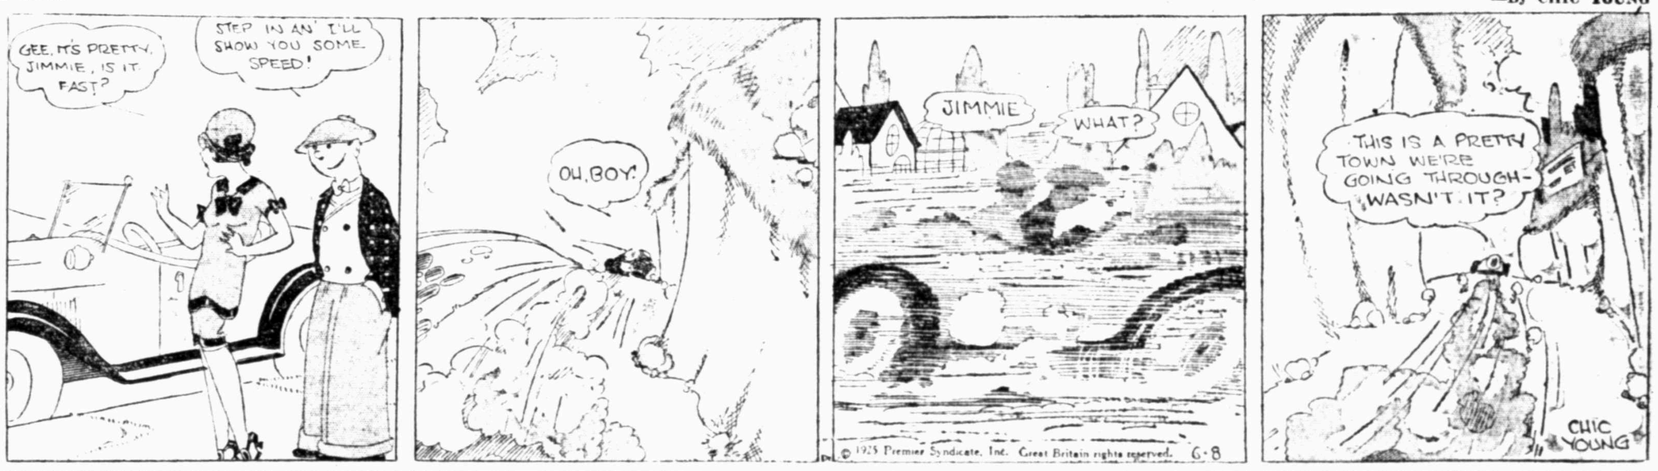

Landis llooked startled and disquited.

CONSOLIDATION TAKING ITS OWN WAY.

The interstate commerce commission must be somewhat dismayed at the progress of the consolidation movement which it started. In hardly a single instance have is plans been exactly carried out, but if it has not been obeyed to the letter, it has been obeyed in the spirit. It has completely converted our railroads to the gospel of consolidation. Where opinion was divided, railroad executives are now almost unanimously in favor of consolidation. Each railroad head, however, reserves to himself the right to say just how consolidation shall be carried out in regard to his own road.

As a result of the independent attitude of railroad executives our railroad map is being made over without being marred. Combinations are shaped by executives who are experts on traffic problems, instead of being theoretically plotted by professors of economics and forwarded by commission officials whose minds are fixed upon revenues rather than upon transportation. Traffic needs, instead of financial requirements, rule the situation. Along with such needs, goes competition in railroading, despite the fact that competition has been doomed by the commission. Railroad managements are out to get the traffic, and in order to secure it they must be in better position to compete.

Accordingly, the railroad heads are trying to build their systems up to the level of the strongest lines. They want no liabilities in the form of alliances with weak roads. They are seeking efficient units to fit into their combinations. Especially do they wish to avoid over-building and the acquisition of dead bulk. Thus competition is enlivening consolidation and at the same time putting a natural limit to it.

The greatest systems do not seem eager to merge with others as they are apt to be the losers. They are content as they are. The smaller systems are most actively engaged in strengthening themselves through consolidation. The old areas on the railroad map are not being so prominently featured as the new ones. The west and south, rather than the east and north, are to be the scenes of the most important combinations. When our traffic routes have been thoroughly revised, the old weak lines should be replaced by strong ones, territories formerly almost unserved should be occupied by new roads, and our various systems balanced under a consolidation not destructive of healthy competition.

NELSON A. MILES.

General Nelson A. Miles has gone to his reward. He was a product of New England, a famous fighting man. He had served in the civil war, the Indian wars and the Spanish-American war and was ambitious to serve, as an active participant in the field in the world war, but that ambition was not gratified.

He came from civil life. He was not a West Pointer. He held a clerical position when the civil war came. He rose from the ranks and was one of the few warriors of America ever honored with the title lieutenant general. There was a time when the name of General Nelson A. Miles was execrated in the south. His critics said of him that he had ordered shackles placed on the limbs of Jefferson Davis, then a helpless prisoner of war.

Indeed in one of his books Jefferson Davis afterwards referred to the noted soldier as a "heartless vulgarian." All this was in the long ago. General Miles struck back at his critics. He said he was a soldier and obeyed orders and those who were familiar with the inside facts declared that the order to place Jefferson Davis in irons had been issued by Andrew Johnson, then president of the United States.

Andrew Johnson did not relish the accusation. His friends denied it for him. Time mellowed the angry disputants. Jefferson Davis grew mellow as he grew older and before death claimed him he eliminated the word "heartless vulgarian" from his writings.

General Miles was a man of letters as well as a man of actions. He lived true to his teachings and he came from Puritan ancestry. Many wars have been fought since the civil war and in those wars the sons and grandsons of the men who wore the blue and the men who wore the grey followed Old Glory and defended the principles which the flag of the fathers represent.

Gone are the animosities of the civil war, but not its memories. There is one country now, one flag now, one constitution now for all Americans to defend and uphold. 'Tis well that it is so.

PREPARING FOR THE BATTLE.

The republicans are preparing more than a year in advance to win the congressional elections of 1926. Senator Butler, chairman of the republican national committee, is authority for the statement that majority party chieftains will gather in different sections during the coming autumn to lay plans to increase their party's strength in congress. According to the senator, the outworn call to "stand by the president" will be brushed up again and used as a slogan to rally the forces of republicanism.

Mr. Coolidge remains the great asset of his party. In fact he is practically the only asset which it possesses at present. His influence is to be capitalized to win an election which will be a prelude to the large political contest of 1928 in which he can take no part. The tremendous majority given him in the late presidential election may seem to many voters a convincing reason for selecting a congress that will support his policies. At any rate, the republican leaders intend to make the most of the president's apparent popularity. If they can win in the congressional election their chances for continuing in power after they lose Mr. Coolidge will be much improved.

But, in the recent past, the voters have not selected congressmen on the basis of pleasing the popular choice for president. After the late Coolidge landslide the democrats were found enjoying a strong position in congress, while the republicans remained as much divided as ever. A new group of progressives now holds the balance of power in the senate and the republican margin in the house is small enough to be completely wiped out by another

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE.

Hard Starters.

Here are a few words of encouragement for the youth who after three or four years of work finds himself no farther than he was when he left school.

I talked the other day with an old friend who is widely known as a writer of sea stories—not a Conrad, but a man who can rouse the interest of his readers and hold it.

If he were a genius, his story would be of little value. For genius breaks all rules. But he is just a plain persistent digging sort of a man who had about the same native ability for writing that almost everybody has for some particular activity.

"For the first four years of my life in business," he said, "I was the most hopeless youngster you ever knew.

"I had to leave school at eighteen, and managed to get a job by day which paid for a course in stenography in a business school at night.

"After I learned to be a fairly good stenographer I went to work as the secretary for a shipping man, who paid me but a little more than I had received before I learned my new calling.

"I spent four years in that place, because there was no other place for me to get. I counted them as four profitless years, and when gradually I became a better stenographer, and at last found work in a newspaper office I said to myself, 'I will forget those four years. They are a black spot in my life.'

"Well, when I was thirty, and still not doing very well, I read a story about the sea which reminded me of some of the stories my boss, the shipping master, had told his cronies who came into the office where I was typewriting.

"It occurred to me that perhaps if I tried I could write some of those stories in fiction form, and that perhaps some editor might be found to pay me for them.

"I wrote one, and it came back to me as soon as I sent it out. I wrote twenty. They all came back in the next mail.

"But I kept on, and sold the twenty-second one—for a small sum. The subsequent stories brought better prices, and today I make an excellent living.

"And that entire living comes from those four years I thought I had wasted, for every story I have ever written is founded on those told me by my old boss.

"I am what they call a late starter. I was looked on by my family as an utter failure till I was thirty. Sometimes I almost thought I was a failure too. But I kept on digging and working, and learning to write, and now those four years I can see clearly were the most profitable four years of my life, and the other years of failure were also profitable, for I am drawing big dividends on all the time I invested in them."

This is a true story, without names, and with changes in the language in which it was told to me. It shows that the time of the start does not matter so much so long as when it is made it is in the right direction, and that the starter, once he is on his way, keeps going.

If it cheers and encourages any late starter in life its setting down here will be very well worth while.

LANDOWNERS AND OIL RIGHTS.

From the careless manner in which some newspapers have handled the decision of the fourth court of civil appeals on the rights of oil companies in the sinking of wells, it might be supposed that the court revived the question of a severance of mineral rights from land ownership. The decision, however, does not leave this impression when it is carefully studied.

"It is well settled," observed the court, "that oil, when in its fugitive nature, ceaselessly moving about in the bowels of the earth, can never be the subject of sale or barter or ownership until brought to the surface and reduced to physical possession. The owner of one producing tract cannot complain if later operations drain all oil from both tracts and destroys the first well. The owner of the surface owns no oil until he first reduces it to his possession. So long as it is in its fugitive state it is subject to capture by any person seeking it from his own premises as a base and when once captured, the title vests in the captor."

It should be clear from this language that one who would capture the fugitive oil must operate from land which he owns or controls and that title to that land is the guarantee of his privilege to seek oil. He can only reduce the oil to physical possession on his land. Then the two kinds of ownership grants title to the other. Thus oil and land are become one, and title to the one form of property united and there can be no severance of mineral rights from agricultural or other rights. But this does not mean that an exclusive right to a pool of oil can be claimed. Oil must be brought to the surface before it can be possessed. Its source remains a matter of conjecture, and any attempt to locate and take possession of large deposits must be purely adventurous. Anyone has a right to make the try, provided he operates from a point at which he enjoys ownership, or is granted privilege under ownership.

THE WORLD WAGS ON.

All of us think that we are of considerable importance and we acquire the impression that affairs could not get along without us.

Sometimes we seem to be very necessary in the eyes of others. It is singular how when death comes we observe the world moving smoothly on.

A Lincoln or a Garfield may be removed. Some hearts are broken, but in the majority of homes life continues as usual.

We throw a pebble into a pool. There are a few ripples, but soon the surface is calm again. Somehow or other this world has a way of wagging on. It moved long years before we came and it will move along after we are gone.

If anyone thinks he is somewhat, it is a good plan for him to go to the cemetery once in a while and see what will become of him.

William Feather says, "Lincoln Steffens, after years of activity in behalf of civilization, rested from his labors, and finally made a public confession in which he said it was a shock to discover that the world did not fall to pieces when he let go."

It may be right for us to take hold and do our share, but we should not think too highly of ourselves. Even if we do not do our share sustenance will come from some other place.

You remember what Mordecai said to Esther: "If thou altogether holdest thy peace at this time, doubtless deliverance and enlargement shall arrive to the Jews from another place, but thou and thy father's house shall be destroyed."

Sometimes we get an idea that we are holding up the sky or that the universe depends upon us.

We are but little specks that come and go, and the processes of the suns will go on without our assistance.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE
GEMINI.

The aspects of today, viewed from a planetary point of view, do not counsel the exercise of any exceptional effort—either in the home or in business. Rather day they call for the carrying out of only routine duties, and even to discourage these in a satisfactory manner, you will, in all probability, have to make demands on your reserve of will-power. The signs indicate a lethargical condition, with little or no desire to make things "hum." After sundown, a noticeable change will be observed, and you will feel an urge—and a very decided one—to "get busy" and do something that has been neglected for some long time. It will be well to take full advantage, if practicable, of this favorable influence.

The prospects of a child born today are very good, both from a physical and a moral standpoint. It may, of course, suffer from some of the slight ailments so common, as a rule, to children, but such illnesses will be of short duration, and never assume any special gravity. Its disposition will be extremely cheerful and happy, and its character—frank, loyal and truthful—will, at no time, afford any excuse for worry or anxiety. While not particularly apt at average school studies, it promises to become more than well-versed in everything relating to outdoor life, and it should never in the course of its career, be confined to sedentary or indoor occupations.

You, whose birthday is today, are exceptionally shrewd, and this quality is often to lead you into ways that are devious, and methods that are cunning, and cannot apparently give people credit for honesty of purpose and integrity of action. A slight gesture, an idle word, or a trivial act, which, to others, would mean nothing, assume in your eyes an exaggerated importance, and a disproportionate value.

You are very stubborn, and, even when convinced beyond the preadventure of doubt, that you are in the wrong, yield grudgingly and with bad grace. In spite, however, of such glaring defects, you possess many admirable characteristics, and are ambitious, loyal to your love, and very persevering.

HOW IT STARTED

"In His Tracks."

"They followed in his tracks" would be said today about anyone who was followed or pursued. It might be in a big city that the way lay, through streets and over pavements that would show no tracks. Not so, however, the early travels in which the phrase had its origin.

The expression "in his tracks" and "making tracks" comes to us from the far west, where not so long ago men literally did blaze trails and make tracks.

The specific circumstance in which the latter phrase was first used was when a squatter deserted his claim and set out toexplore an unknown region. Then it was said that he was making tracks," and the expression, though no longer literal, has survived in our language until this day.

ALTUS MAY BUILD DAM.

Water Impounding Project Under Consideration by City.

ALTUS, Okla., June 7.—To prevent future water famines such as occurred this spring plans are under way by the city council, aided by a recently appointed citizens water committee, to augment the city water system of Altus by building a dam east of the present city reservoir to hold the water that falls during the rainy season.

If the proposed dam does not cost more than $50,000 it can be built without a bond issue as that amount can be raised through regular taxation above ordinary expenses of government.

The Old Spelling Trouble.

Was spelling an awful bugbear to you, when you studied at school? Yes, it probably was, as it is to every normal girl. And a great bore, too. Nothing so uninteresting in the world as that endless spelling class.

It seems strange that a funny, prosy old thing like spelling should have any connection whatsoever with the problems of you girls in your endeavors to be real belles.

And yet here is an actual incident which took place right here in New York, and about which I heard of last Sunday.

Estelle was socially ambitious, and extremely anxious to land a nice, wealthy boy who would pay her bills for her, and give her a comfortable decorative home.

Consequently when Dick Stoddard hove in view, very much the eligible boy from head to foot—Estelle made straight for him, and it was soon apparent that she had done the trick.

Dick saw nothing else in the world but Estelle for two weeks, and when he finally had to go back to college, he left with many tender vows and protestations.

Now here's the catch—Estelle's family had never been exactly what you'd call cultured people. They were good, honest, hard working folk not over-educated but immensely kind hearted. Dick's family were out of Estelle's class entirely as far as education went. Estelle was a clever talker, though, and she had a smattering of "culture" that deceived most people. She certainly took Dick in.

Well, the months went by while Dick and Estelle corresponded feverishly—letters every day and all that sort of thing.

Toward the end of the spring term a rumor spread abroad that Dick's letters were growing more infrequent—and that he might not return to New York at all. He never did come back—at least not to see Estelle.

And when I, with my usual impertinence, asked Dick's roommate, an old friend of mine, just where the trouble lay in the whole affair, I was simply amazed at the answer. "Funny thing about Dick and Estelle. Do you know what got his goat with that girl. He thought she was a peach all right until she began the old correspondence. She wrote the most terrific letters in the world—every word misspelled. Dick said he didn't mind her misspelling a word occasionally all girls did that, and it was kind of cute. But good Lord, she couldn't even spell 'cat' without erasing it half a dozen times. Honestly it sounded as if she weren't very well educated."

So there you are—a funny old thing like spelling just ruined Estelle's best chance. You can never tell which will be the weakest point in your armor—so it's better to strengthen yourself in every way.

Brush up on your spelling, girls—and never, never write to the Special Man without doing a little proof reading, and making sure that at least three out of five words are spelled correctly.

"WONDERFUL GENERATION"

Cathedral Rector Speaks to Graduating Class At Dallas

DALLAS, June 7.—This is the "most wonderful generation in the history of civilization," the very Rev. Robert S. Chalmers, dean of St. Matthews' cathedral, told the graduating class of Highland Park high school here today. He urged the young men and women to take an active part in politics and to have fun.

"God wants you to have fun," he said, but "not the kind that will leave a bad taste in your mouth the next morning."

RAINING AT AMARILLO

Period of High Winds Gives Way to Storm Early Sunday

AMARILLO, June 7.—Following five days of high winds, rain began falling about 1 o'clock this morning. About one-quarter an inch had fallen and still raining.

The rain came at an opportune time and the moisture will be of great benefit to row crops which are just beginning to come up.

Irrigation

How Irrigation Can Affect City Population

Yesterday we pointed out the possible increase in the population of the irrigation project if the land is ever broken up and sold as farms to farmers.

It is a fact that on western irrigation projects the proportion of those living in the towns to those residing on the farms is about two and one-half to one in favor of the towns.

In other words it takes two and one-half persons in the towns to do business for ecah person engaged or living on a farm.

It would not be reasonable to expect any such increase of population here. Business is already established. There are doctors, dentists, lawyers and other professional men in sufficient numbers to take care of a considerable increase in population without any trouble.

Nevertheless we can expect a considerable increase in the number of people in this city and the surrounding towns. There will be at least one additional person in the towns for each one on the project.

As we saw yesterday there can easily be an increase of 2,000 people on the project. Two thousand people in the towns will help considerably.

Under ordinary conditions the larger the town the larger proportion of such additional people it would attract. However on account of its central location in relation to the irrigation project it is likely that Iowa Park will benefit to a greater proportionate degree than any other town.

Women Members Of Texas U. Faculty Quit by Wholesale

AUSTIN, Texas, June 7.—Eighteen women members of Texas university's faculty have resigned recently for various reasons. Their resignations will become effective September 1.

Dorothy Dix's Letter Box

NO ONE KNOWS WHICH WAY A FLAPPER WIFE WILL FLAP, BUT BENEATH HER HARD-BOILED EXTERIOR THERE IS OFTEN A WARM HEART AND A COOL HEAD THAT WILL FUNCTION AFTER MARRIAGE.

A mother says to me: "My boy is 21, and he thinks himself in love with Gloria, who is a beautiful flapper. She has bobbed hair. Her face is calcimined with paint and powder. She wears next to no clothes, and she goes about all day long with a jazz tune on her lips and a dance step in her walk.

"When you ask her a sane question, she answers: 'Well, I should kiss a bee's knee' or 'Isn't that the snake's hips?' or something just as meaningless.

"Sometimes I think I can see some good in Gloria. Sometimes I think that I could love her, but I don't know whether to trust her as a housekeeper for my boy or not.

"Gloria is wild to marry charles. She thinks it would be such a thrill. Nothing in life without a thrill to it interests her. But I am wondering if she will find married life as thrilling in 1935 and 1945 as she thinks it will be in 1925. And what will she do when she finds that matrimony is more duty than thrills, anyway?

"I am not one of the doting mothers who thinks it is her duty to pick her son's wife for him, but if a flapper wife isn't safe for a good boy, I want to know about it now, before it is too late.

"Will you tell me? Is a flapper wife a safe investment for a boy to make?"

There is no sure thing in matrimony. There is no prophet with a sufficiently inspired vision to foretell what kind of a wife any woman will make. When a man marries he literally pays his money, and takes his chance, and the results are on the knees of the gods.

Matrimony has always been the greatest gamble on earth, and nobody will deny that its risks are greater today than they ever were before. They have been jazzed up, so to speak, and that is why mothers and fathers contemplating the flapper and the cake-eaters that their sons and daughters are about to wed wonder if they have even a hundred-to-one shot at happiness, and if anything short of a miracle can keep them off the matrimonial rocks.

Certainly no one can blame a mother for fearing to trust her darling boy's digestion, that she has always so carefully guarded, to a girl who has not even a bowing acquaintance with the gas range, and whose idea of a perfectly balanced meal is a cocktail, a cigarette and a caviar sandwich. Nor can you wonder that mother gets cold feet when she apprehends what a girl, who spends every cent she can get her hands upon on her back, will do to her son's pocketbook?

Neither can you wonder that mothers heart quails within her as she tries to forecast the kind of a dance a cabaret-mad, pleasure-mad, speed-mad girl may lead her son through the years of matrimoy.

For, on the face of it, the flapper has none of the qualities that fit her to be a good wife. She knows nothing of domesticity. She recognizes no law but her own sweet will. Her one aim in life is to have a good time. She is idle extravagant, selfish. She has no ideal of duty. She considers all the old wifey virtues of patience, self-sacrifice and self-abnegation as passe as hoop skirts. And she frankly marries with one eye on the altar and the other on the divorce court.

But the situation is not so desperate as it appears, nor is the flapper as red as she is painted. Somewhere in her life attenuated body there still beats a heart. Under the bobbed hair there is an unsuspected brain, and often there even remains the rudiments of a moral sense that has been atrophied, but not killed, by kissing and necking and petting parties.

So it not infrequently happens that after marriage the flapper does a lightning-change act, and becomes a sensible and helpful wife. Having had all the gay times she wants, she is ready to settle down to the serious business of life. The French say that the reformed roue makes the best husband, and the flapper proves that this theory may apply to the feminine sex also.

Certainly we have all seen frivolous girls turn sedate as soon as they married; jazzy girls, who danced their slippers off their feet every night, and who never thought it was late until it was early, turn into home bodies who didn't even care to go to the movies. We have seen joy-riding girls pushing perambulators, and extravagant ones turn stingy when it was their own money they had to spend, so there is no telling which way a flapper is going to flap after marriage.

Other times, other manners. Perhaps the flapper, just because she is hard-boiled, is better fitted to cope with men than the old-fashioned, soft, sentimental woman. Perhaps just because she won't stand any sidestepping on the part of her husband, she will hold her husband up to the mark and make him a better husband than his father was.

No one can tell what sort of a wife a flapper will make, but she is the kind of a wife the modern young man seems to want. And his mother will have to let it go at that.

Through A Woman's Eyes

WHAT'S A SMILE WORTH?

A jury has just awarded a young girl damages of $25,000 for an injury which resulted in the loss of her smile.

A year ago May—for that is her name—was a little girl with flashing eyes and lips that laughed their echo.

Then happened the dreadful accident, followed by weeks when her life was despaired of. Finally the happy day came when she was able to go home—well.

So, happy, she smiled. Her mother cried. And when May looked into a mirror she knew the reason. She could not really smile. When she tried the eyes that used to laugh were set in one strained expression; the lips that had drawn back over pretty, flashing teeth were immobile. She had lost her smile! And a jury gave her $25,000 for it.

"It was strange to learn that I wasn't smiling at all," says May, "though it seemed to me that I was, because I was so happy. But course I was, too, inside of me. That is the way I always smile now." And during al lthose long weeks in the hospital when her fate was not yet known, May told the jurors, she was smiling "inside."

Perhaps there was something in that that caused them to put a high value on her outer smile. It has been said that the smile is the light of the soul, as the face is its window. And the soul of a very young girl that keeps right on smiling inside, no matter what happens, has a light that is clear and fine and bright. With that smile gone something was lost to the world, and the girl who lost the power of bestowing it on the world cannot be too highly compensated—can, indeed, hardly be compensated in dollars and cents.

Does it make you think about your own smile, what you would take for it and how highly others would value it? It's a big question, that—"What's a smile worth?"

Run-Getting Wallops Come In First—Sports Lucky To Score

By BLONDY CROSS.

Big Bill Prough, huge Shreveport right hander, was in great form, but Dick Morgan, Spudder starboarder, was a wee bit better. The Tanner outfit broke into the win column again, taking the Sabbathday tilt and series' final from the Sports, 2 to 1.

Eulas, the Great, was never in any appreciable danger with exception of the third couplet when a pop single to center by Rabbitt, a base on balls, and a duplicate swat to the mid sector by Ostergard netted the Louisiana gang its orphan tally.

Morgan was touched up for the surprisingly huge total of six safe wallops, one of which was a bloomer, two with the mange, and another a rattling two-cushioner to right center by Ostergard. Ostergard's double occurred in the opening round after there were two away. Bonowitz followed with a pop foul, but the wind blew the ball back over third base and Dorman bumped Ostergard in an effort to snare the swerving pill. The aviation went for a base hit. Wisterzil sent a bristling one-baser to center in the fifth. Benton bingled through short in the sixth. That and the third inning bingles comprised Shreveport's safe wallops for the afternoon.

Cal and George.

Prough was unfortunate in that Distel singled past second to start the last half of the initial frame, and Callaghan followed with a round-trip ticket slam to starboard. The sphere hit the top of the doubled decked parapet in right and then slithered on to the desert regions beyond. Then with two gone, Dorman whipped a hair-raising bingle to right center, but Golvin hoisted out to McGaffigan in short right. Prough breezed through in scintillating style the rest of the way.

The Tanner squad menaced mildly in the third after there were two gone when Bodie got on on low throw to first by Benton, and Fitzgerald followed up with a brutal bust to right for a base. But, Dorman bounded out to McGaffigan. Morgan led away in the fifth with a base clout at short. Distel popped to McGaffigan. Callaghan hoisted out to Burns. Bodie drew four-balls transportation, but Fritz fouled to the catcher.

Walks Query Twice.

Dorman zipped a singing single to left to open the Spud half of the sixth. Golvin laid down a perfect sacrifice, going out, Wisterzil to Schick. White, attempting to dodge a wild pitch, accidentally rolled out to first unassisted. Dorman advanced to third. Prough chunked four wide ones in rapid order to Query, and then bore down on Morgan who biffed one at the box for a near safety. The big pitcher deflected the ball to his right, and Benton, coming in speedily, scooped her up and hurled to first on the read run to cut Eulas away, and stave off the marker. The seventh Spudder safety was bounced to left off the slashing bludgeon of Marty Callaghan. Cal attempted to stretch the blow into a double, and was chopped off at second on perfect throw to McGaffigan by Rabbitt. Ostergard backed up against the right field boards in the eighth to pull down with one mitt hefty punch by Fitzgerald. Dorman then came through for his third crack and the Spudders' last for the matinee. 'Twas a saccharine swat to the middle pasture for one cushion. Golvin aviated to Bonowitz. Dorman absconded with the keystone. White walked, and Prough again passed Querry to get at Morgan. The Spudder hurler, though insulted highly, could do no better than bounce out to McGaffigan.

BEARS BOUNCE BEAUMONT, 16-10.

BEAUMONT, June 7.—San Antonio again downed the Exporters today by a count of 16-10 mainly through a fourth inning attack on Jacobus which netted 7 runs after the home team had taken an early lead with a deadly attack on Jim Lindsey. After Jacobus was driven out by a barrage of hits, Pinto went to the mound, apparently not suspended for his run-in with Bob Coleman during the Saturday game. Coleman did not appear with his team, remaining at his hotel and entrusting the club to Bob Couchman. Chief Nason was chased from the game in the ninth over a disputed strike and Collard, his successor, was the only member of the visiting team who did not hit safely at least once and he did not bat.

Spear Wins Texas Muny Links Title

HOUSTON, June 7.—Jack Spear, local municipal champion, added the Texas muny title to his list of wins this afternoon when he turned in a 77 for the final round of the annual state tournament. During the morning he played the Herman Park course, 2 above par but on the afternoon 18 he dropped four strokes above this number. His total for the two rounds was 150.

Running second was W. G. McHenry of Houston, 15 strokes behind Spear. Claude Starkey another Houston player was third with 167, while Joe Rice and Nolan Cox, both of Houston, tied for fourth place with 168.

Jimmy McGonagill, youthful Dallas player, had the lowest score turned in by a visitor. He tallied 169 for the two rounds.

REDS WIN THIRD FROM BRAVES

CINCINNATI, June 7.—The Cincinnati Reds won their third consecutive extra inning game from Boston when they took today's 12 innings contest 3 to 2. What is believed to be a record was established when ten double plays were executed, each one killing off a batting rally. Score:

Newtown Nine Beats Refiners

NEWTOWN, June 7.—The Newtown Terrors today defeated the American Refiners of the Wichita Falls Twilight league by a score of 5 to 3. The kame was not won until the last half of the ninth when the homelings rallied and hammered over a pair of scores. Both clubs played in rare form with but one error to each side. Gregory and Blanket, the former of the Wichitans and the latter of Newtown, hurled wonderful ball and fans were greatly pleased with the battle.

Tank Horton, refinery catcher, played an excellent game for the visitors despite his one error in the field which was merely a poor throw to the middle station.

COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, June 7.—(AP)—The leading feature of the past week in cotton was the publication Tuesday of the initial condition report of the government marketing the condition May 25, 76.6 per cent of normal.

The trade had expected a high average but not so high by two full points. The first effect of this was a sharp slump in prices. October contracts declining about 73 points.

Not only was the condition average of the government considered bearish, but a bearish view also was taken of the upward revision of the cotton acreage for 1924 to 42,641,000 acres.

Traders figured that the average increase in acreage represented by the private bureaus pointed to an acreage for 1925 of 45,000,000 which might mean a crop as large of 15,000,000 bales.

The slump of Tuesday following the bureau report was succeeded later in the week by a sharp advance which recorded the decline and more at the high point of Friday. October traded 145 points above the low point Tuesday. This was due to the continued drouth not only in Texas, where it is severe, but in most of the other states.

Another stimulating influence was the strong spot situation and uneasiness July shorts were displaying on the final liquidation of holdings in that month.

With certificated stocks here and in New York diminishing, and supplies in the interior reduced practically to famine basis, the supply situation took on a very bullish appearance and the upward trend of prices was helped accordingly.

The close attention being paid to weather developments led to a reaction of 30 points Saturday because of moderate showers in the eastern belt and in the Panhandle of Texas.

BUSINESS REVIEW.

NEW YORK, June 7.—(AP)—Emerging from a period of rather restricted spring activity, business has entered upon its summer cycle with conditions in most lines of industry generally described as fair. Conflicts of opinion have developed as to what the hot weather season holds in store. Some lines of trade, notably the textile industry, have seen promise of improvement; others, including motor manufacturers, feel that the peak of their trade has passed.

Possibilities of a drastic summer recession in business, which have been more or less common in recent years, are considered remote. The extremely moderate expansion in trade activity this year and the absence of speculative excesses are held to be adequate safeguards against sudden reaction. The impression prevails in the financial centers that business will continue its process of readjustment but maintain an even keel, with a fairly high average of operations.

The latest surveys of the steel situation offered encouragement to this view. The fact that for three weeks the country's steel production had held close to seventy per cent of capacity, the weekly reviews explained, might be taken as the measure of a nearly stabilized market in contrast to the abrupt decline in operations a year ago. Another decrease in the United States Steel corporation's unfilled tonnage is admittedly in prospect when the May report is published this week, but the anticipated decline so far has occasioned little concern.

Hopes that foreign developments would speed up European recovery were not fully realized. With the establishment of a $50,000,000 exchange stabilization credit for the lira, it was felt that Italy had taken a long step toward a return to a gold basis and ultimate revelation of the currency and had strengthened her position for probable debt funding negotiations. France, however, was threatened with another financial crisis as the franc dropped to the lowest level in more than a year, and Germany was warned by the allies that she had failed to live up to all the provisions of the peace treaty.

BONDS

NEW YORK, June 7.—(AP)—An insatiable demand for new bonds, reflected in ready subscription of approximately $135,000,000 in offerings, and a rise in the price average of listed securities to a new high level, were the outstanding features of the last week's investment market.

After establishing many new records, prices reacted mildly late in the week but the undertone of the market remained firm and there was an absence of concerted selling pressure.

Most of the buying was of an investment character, with speculative operations retarded somewhat by the unsettled tone of the stock market.

Foreign development played an important part in the week's activities. With the establishment of a $50,000,000 banking credit for the protection of the lira, considered the first step in Italy's return to a gold basis, the financial district took a bullish view of the foreign financial situation and bought European bonds in large volume. German and Hungarian issues were among those which scaled new peaks.

This brightening picture was clouded later when alarm over a heavy increase in the French note circulation and a share drop in the franc to the year's lowest level threatened to precipitate another financial crisis at Paris. French bonds were heavily sold and a sympathetic reaction in other foreign obligations followed.

The investing public's appetite for new foreign loans was unusually good. A $30,000,000 Norwegian bond issue was about three times over-subscribed and a $45,000,000 Argentine loan, offered the following day, found equally good response.

The reorganization plan outlined for the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railway last week provided a topic of absorbing interest for investment circles. Plans for overhauling the road's financial structure, Wall Street generally agreed, were essentially sound and should permit an early termination of the receivership. Some opposition to the reorganization developed, but it was based less on the proposed terms than on underlying phases of the readjustment one objecting group holding that a revision of the northwestern rate structure should be awaited before attempting a rehabilitation of the road.

The fundamental ease of money conditions contributed to the strength of United States government obligations, with both treasury and liberty bonds working into new high ground. Some of the buying was ascribed to reports that the government would be able to command unusually attractive terms for its forthcoming treasury financing.

Oil company liens gave an outstanding exhibition of group strength, keeping pace with a rise in petroleum stocks, based on reports of expanding gasoline consumption.

CHURCH BELL RINGS AGAIN.

Austin Chime Tolls First Time In Half Century.

AUSTIN, June 7.—(AP)—For the first time in half a century the first church bell in Austin rang Sunday at special sercive comemorating the founding of the First Presbyterian church, 75 years ago, on May 28, 1850 by W. M. Baker, father of the famous Dr. Daniel Baker, who visited here in 1848 and who used his influence in organizing the institution. Rev. L. D. Grafton, present and fourth pastor of the church conducted the services.

The historic old bell, now cracked and weather beaten, was placed on exhibition at the entrance of the present church building, which was constructed in 1874. How old it is and from whence it came, the oldest member of the church does not know. It bears no date or the name of its maker. However, J. W. Graham, old resident of Austin, said that it must have been molded and tuned before 1850.

Historic Paper Is Added to Museum

CANYON, Texas, June 7.—A copy of the Daily Citizen, published at Vicksburg, Mississippi, July 2, 1863, has been added to the Plains-Panhandle Historical Society's collection of newspapers. It is printed on wall paper, no newsprint being available. It was the last edition of the "Daily Citizen" and the editor's note follows:

"July 4th, 1863. Two days bring about great changes. The banner of the Union floats over Vicksburg. General Grant has 'caught the rabbit'; he has dined in Vicksburg, and he did bring his dinner with him. The 'Citizen' lives to see the day. For the last time it appears on wall-paper. No more will it eulogize the luxury of mule meat and fricassed kitten—urge southern warriors to such a diet nevermore. This is the last wall-paper 'Citizen' and is, excepting this note, from the types as we found them. It will be valuable hereafter as a curiosity."

Mrs. M. V. Dye of Plainview, Texas, formerly owned the paper.

Good Fight Card Promised at Lake

Fistic followers are promised a good fight card Tuesday night at the Lake Wichita arena, by the Bruce Cobb post, Iowa Park, of the American Legion, under whose auspices the fight is being held.

The final go will be a clash between the well known darky heavy weight, Rattlesnake Kid and the equally well known Schoolboy, who arrived in town yesterday. There will also be two eight-round bouts between local favorites and a 15-minute wrestling match.

Ludlam and Riggs Team Noses Out on Wichita Falls Electrics

DAVIS SINGLES IN NINTH FOR GAME MARGIN

Dub Leads Hitters—Smith Stars at Third—Losers Pole 15 Hits

By MACK TURNER.

Dub Davis' single in the ninth won Ludlam and Riggs' second game of the season Sunday afternoon on the Twilight diamond when this hit gave them a 6 to 5 margin on the Wichita Falls Electrics. Griffin was the victorious heaver.

After whiffing the first time at bat the Ludlam and Riggs' skipper collected four straight singles to lead the hitters. Herb Brown, Ludlam and Riggs' centerfielder, poled three clean singles in four times at the pan and walked the fifth time up. Glenn Coolidge collected a pair of doubles and a single in five trips for the Electrics. Len Smith had a great day at third base with several fast and flashing plays despite his two errors. Len found the peg to first a bit hard and late in the game developed a lame whip. Johnson the new first sack custodian of the Electrics looked mighty good on first. He made many a sweet stop at the initial bag.

The Electrics took off with a three-run lead in the first four innings and things were looking glum for the clothing store players. In the fifth, Ludlam and Riggs tied the count. After Shaw had whiffed, Shipley singled and Griffin walked. Both advanced on a passed ball and scored on Brown's single to right. Singles by Davis and Randel sent Brown over the pan with the tieing marker.

Infield hits by Ramsey and Ivy, and Coolidge's double to right put the Electrics' in the lead again in the sixth.

Ludlam and Riggs took the lead in the seventh. Mathis reached the middle station by an error. Davis smacked his third single to center and the runner scored. Davis took second on the throw in. Randel smashed a single to right and Davis scored.

The Electrics again tied the count in the eighth. Kollman led off with a double to center, and took third on Norwood's infield out. Smith juggled Ivy's grounder and Kollman scored.

The game was undecided until the ninth when Ludlam and Riggs put over the winning count. Brown was passed on four wide ones. Fat Mathis laid down a neat sacrifice bunt that sent him to second. Then Dub Davis' fourth single sent Brown over the pan for the winning tally.

CHANGING FRENCH GUARDS NOT LIKED BY HERRIOT

PARIS, June 7.—Former Premier Herriot is essentially a man of peace and dislikes all military pomp and display. He has always found it hard to assume a military carriage, and when he took over the presidency of the chamber of deputies recently he underwent several days of special training in order to learn how properly to salute the officer in charge of the platoon of soldiers which lines the corridors from his private residence to the entrance of parliament.

"Why do they change officers every day?" M. Herriot asked the general secretary, Eugene Pierre. "It would be easier to salute correctly an officer whose face I know."

M. Pierre, 80 years of age and connected with the chamber's bureau since the days of the second empire, replied:

"Daily changes in officers are made to guard against a possible coup d'etat. It would make the work of conspirators easier if they knew in advance who was designated to command the military forces in the chamber on a given date."

Cardinals Show Real Fire All Of Sudden in Nat'l

Boston and Yanks Reverse Form in American Race

NEW YORK, June 7.—(AP)—New hope tonight tinged the background of a pennantless past for St. Louis baseball teams as they started with new zest into the major league races under the inspiring leadership of two infield idols.

Turning their backs on a disappointing start which kept them in last place for several weeks, the Cardinals rallied under their new manager, Rogers Hornsby, to out-hit and out-score the entire National league field for the best performance of the eighth playing week. Shattered Cincinnati ranks broke in full rout before the spurt as St. Louis players swept the series and then topped off the week with a decision over the champion Giants.

Backed up by the brilliant pitching of Haines, Dickerman, Rhem and Sherbel, the Cardinals, established a convincing offensive behind the league range fire of Hornsby and Bottomley, winning five of their seven games in good style.

Browns Recover

Hardly less impressive was the sharp recovery of the Browns under Sisler. While in the point of games won and lost, the St. Louis Americans were forced to share second place for the week with New York and Boston, the team thundered a warning of future rebellion with a salvo of more than 100 hits and the week's high total of runs for both circuits at 66.

Sharp form reversals under heavy hitting marked the week's efforts of two other clubs in the American—Boston and New York. A general shakeup and the return of Babe Ruth had their effect on the Yankees in greatly improved morale, while Bob Meusel led the team with sensational extra base hitting.

The Boston Red Sox, third of the American league second division teams to revolt, failed to vault from last place in spite of a determined push and indications tonight were that it would take another week of sustained assault by the clubs in the lower half of the standing to effect a shakeup in the race.

Nats Closing In

Washington, last week's American leader, with five trumphs and two defeats, picked up two games on the Athletics, whose drive was apparently affected seriously by the absence of the injured pitching sensation, Sam Gray. Rommel land Harriss were effective, but Walberg was roughly handled by Boston and Retroit batters, while Lefty Groves appeared still too uncertain for Mack to use him with confidence.

Still unaffected by the crippled condition of the team and the absence of Manager McGraw, the New York Giants, breezed easily along at the head of National league pack on their reserve power. Terry and Snyder inserted telling smashes at the crucial points of the doubtful games while Jack Scott turned in the week's pitching gems for the champions. break to cut around the Reds and re-

The Phillies needed only an even gain third place as the Cincinnati club tumbled before the St. Louis uprising. All the other National league teams trailed contentedly along in order.

RADIO IN KING'S CASTLE

Famous Old Tower of Feudal Days Gets Modern Device.

LONDON, June 7.—Beautiful old Windsr Castle, one of the world's historic homes of kings has come under the spell of the radio. When King George and Queen Mary motored a few days ago to Windsor, where they will spend three weeks entertaining intimate friends during Ascot Season, a special automobile carried a six-valve radio set of which their Majesties are particularly fond.

King George is a regular radio fan although one of the royal household electricians looks after the technical operation of the set the king takes great pride in operating alone in their apartments in Buckingham Palace listening in to their hearts' content.

The royal radio apparatus is among the most elaborate sets in Europe. The batteries, head phones and loud speaker are contained with the set in a beautiful mahogany cabinet with ebony panels inlaid with ivory and mounted upon an ebony stand. The panel carrying the valves and controls is contained in a silk screened compartment on the left hand side of the cabinet. In a similar compartment on the right hand side are the loud speaker and four sets of head phones.

The royal set will be brought back to Buckingham Palace when its season at Windsor is finished.

CUBIST PICTURES BANNED

French Officials Order Removal From Gallery of Modernist Offerings.

PARIS, June 7.—Modern art can be too modern, it seems to the officials of the present international exposition. It all depends where specimens of such art are placed.

Two cubist panels by Ferdinand Leger and Robert Delauncy, were ordered removed by Fernand David, commissioner general of the exposition when he made his final visit to France's exhibit of a "model embassy." The artists protested, arguing that the exposition was intended to show only new ideas and that therefore their canvasses could not be judged by any antique conventional ideas.

The pictures were removed, nevertheless and now the cubist school and other modernist sympathizers are petitioning the government for their restoration.

EASY TO RAISE CORN

Plan of Improved Soil Fertility Suggested By Government Man.

HOUSTON, Texas, June 7. — (AP)—Two hundred bushels of corn or two bales of cotton to the acre on good land and with an improved plan of good fertility would be "no trick at all" in the opinion of a Schulenberg correspondent of H. H. Schultz, government statistician here.

The correspondent quit raising cotton when it went to six cents per pound about the time the World War broke out. He planted corn. In 1915 and 1916, both drouth years, he produced 102 2-3 and 117½ bushels per acre, he declared. For twenty years he maintained an experimental patch.

WOMAN CABBY SUCCESSFUL

German Driver Says There Is Good Living In Business, If—.

BERLIN, June 7.—Martha Bamberg, a woman cab driver of Berlin, does not share the current opinion of her male colleagues that a cabby's profession isn't a paying one.

"Horse cab drivers are not as badly off as generally is claimed,' she said. "If a driver does not drink and does not permit his cab to become so dilapidated that people are ashamed to use it, there is a comfortable living in the business. I always earn enough to support my parents, for I keep my horses well fed and my cab in good repair."

Martha entered the cab business when her father, who was a vegetable dealer, became ill with an incurable disease. Although a cripple, having only one leg, she decided to support the family by acquiring a carriage and horse. She says she is interested in her work because she is fond of horses.

POPE NOT IN FAVOR OF DECOLLETE WOMEN'S GOWNS

BERLIN, June 7.—German Catholics have expressed gratification over the pope's recent condemnation of women's decollete gowns, voiced during a reception of four thousand "daughters of Mary."

It has been recalled in Germany in this connection that Archbishop Bertram of Breslau launched an attack upon modern women's fashions in a pastoral letter several months ago. His example was followed by several other high church dignitaries.

Border Club Offers Aid to Americans

ROBSTON, Texas, June 7.—Blacklanders, Inc., a border civic organization, will co-operate in every possible way with the American Border chamber of commerce which was recently organized at El Paso by representatives from agricultural and commercial organizations from Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and California, the Blacklanders' president, S. Maston Nixon, said after returning recently from a meeting in El Paso in interest of the organization.

During the past 15 years a strong feeling of goodwill and friendship has been fostered between the border states and Mexico and representatives at the El Paso meeting readily realized the value of such feeling, Mr. Nixon said. As a result the Border chamber was organized for the purpose to oppose any form of immigration restriction that will have a tendency to break down this feeling of friendship and good will, he continued.

States on both the Mexican and Canadian border are expected to become members of the American Border chamber of commerce when the organization is sufficiently expanded and it is believed, according to Mr. Nixon, that other chambers of commerce will become members of the organization.

ALL WANT MA TO SPEAK

And So She Turns Down All Fourth of July Invitations.

AUSTIN, Texas, June 7.—So many invitations to speak at Fourth of July celebrations have been received by Governor Miriam A. Ferguson that she will accept none, the executive states to the Associated Press.

Some of the invitations request her presence, others both the governor and former Governor Jim Ferguson and a few ask Mr. Ferguson in case the governor cannot come, Governor Ferguson said.

Governor Ferguson said, Jim, her husband, has had to make so many speeches and visits that he has been compelled to neglect the family's ranch and home at Temple, Texas. She said invitations for her to speak are so numerous that it is impossible to consider all of them.

Your Better

will tell you to buy this home. Brand new, well built, five good size rooms, built-in features, pavement, garage and driveway. Built like you would build it yourself and price is only $4,250. Pay $500 cash, move in and pay the rest like rent.

Have one of the most attractive duplexes in town, on a popular street, every built-in feature, lovely mantle, fine floors, and expensive wall paper and light fixtures. The price is only $5,600, pay $500 cash and pay the balance at $20 less per month than it rents for. That's fair enough, isn't it?

BUILT for a home—This home was built less than two years ago by the present owner and is not a contract house or one built for sale. To see this home is enough to convince anyone that it is an unusual opportunity to acquire a real home for a very reasonable price. It consists of five nice size rooms and a dandy breakfast room, beautiful floors and high class fixtures throughout. This home is located on top of the hill in Floral Heights on a full size lot and the location and view is extra fine. If you can make a down payment of $1,500.00 we can arrange the balance on very easy terms and will sell you this desirable home for $5,500 or less. Call us for an appointment. J. C. A WONDERFUL BUY—Have you been looking the town over for an honest to goodness home, that you can buy worth the money? Let us have your attention concerning this beautiful home located on the pavement in a fine location in Floral Heights. This home was built about four years ago by Reid & Costley at a cost of $9,250 and the material and workmanship is first class in every respect. It is equal to any six-room floor plan and consists of a large living room, dining room, kitchen with lovely built-in features, a real breakfast room, with two large bedrooms on the south, also hall and bath. Has lots of closets and a lovely mantle and fire place with built-in book cases in the living room, has a large front porch and a very desirable back yard and garage. Lots of fine fruit trees, shrubbery and flowers. The house has just had three coats of paint and the whole interior has been redecorated and everything looks just like new. Just think of buying this house for $6,300 with only $1,500.00 cash and terms to suit you. We will take a great deal of pleasure in showing this home to you if you are desirous of buying a real good home. J. C. Crane Realty Co. Phone 3377.

LEGAL NOTICE

NOTICE OF SCHOOL BOND ELECTION.

The State of Texas)
County of Wichita)

Wichita Falls Independent School District, of Wichita County, Texas.

To: The resident property tax paying voters of Wichita Falls Independent school district:

Take notice that an election will be held on the 20th day of June, 1925, within said district, in obedience to an order duly entered by the Board of Trustees on the 18th day of May, 1925 which is as follows:

On this, the 18th day of May, 1925 the Board of Trustees of Wichita Falls Independent school district, of Wichita County, Texas convened in regular session with the following members present:

W. B. Chauncey, president, C. H. Clark, vice president, Mrs. L. R. Buchanan, Mrs. W. W. Silk, W. Daniel and among other proceedings had by said Board of Trustees was the following:

There came on to be considered the petition of Burton Stayton and 26 other persons asking that an election be ordered upon the question of issuing the bonds of said school district to the amount of Five Hundred Thousand ($500,000.00) Dollars for the purpose of constructing and equipping Public Free school buildings of brick material, and making permanent repairs, and purchasing sites therefor, within said district; and

It appearing to the satisfaction of the Board of Trustees that said petition is signed by at least 20 qualified resident property taxpaying voters of said school district, and is otherwise in conformity with law, the board is of the opinion that said petition should be granted, and said election as prayed for should be ordered:

Therefore, be it ordered by the Board of Trustees of Wichita Falls Independent school district, of Wichita County, Texas:

That an election be held in said Wichita Falls Independent school district of Wichita County, Texas, on the 20th day of June, 1925, which is not less than 30 days from the date of this order, at which election in accordance with said petition, the following proposition shall be submitted to the resident qualified property taxpaying voters of said school district for their action thereupon:

"Shall the Board of Trustees Wichita Falls Independent school district of Wichita County, Texas, be authorized to issue the bonds of said school district to the amount of Five Hundred Thousand ($500,000.00) Dollars to become due and payable serially, as follows, to-wit: Twelve thousand ($12,000.00) dollars one year from the date of said bonds and twelve thousand ($12,000.00) dollars each year thereafter up to and including the year 1945; and thirteen thousand ($13,000.00) dollars each year thereafter during the years 1946 and 1965 both inclusive, and bearing interest at the rate of five per centum per annum, and interest payable semi-annually, for the purpose of constructing and equipping public free school buildings of brick material, and making permanent repairs, and purchasing sites therefor, within said district; and if there shall be annually levied and collected on all the taxable property in said school district for the current year and annually thereafter while said bonds, or any of them, are outstanding, a tax sufficient to pay the current interest on said bonds and to pay the principal thereof as the same becomes due."

The said election shall be held at the two several voting places named below in the said district, and the following named persons are hereby appointed officers of said election at the respective voting places as follows:

One of the two voting places at which the said election shall be held shall be at the county court house of Wichita county, Texas, in the city of Wichita Falls, Texas, within said district, and the following named persons are hereby appointed officers of said election for the said voting places in said district: J. M. Baber, judge; A. C. Cook, clerk; R. S. Dunaway, clerk.

And one of the two voting places at which the said election shall be held shall be at the Junior high school building on corner of Eleventh and Broad streets in the city of Wichita Falls, Texas, within said district, and the following named persons are hereby appointed officers of said election for the said voting place in said district: George Simmons, judge; J. O. Holland, clerk; O. J. Didzun, clerk.

The ballots for said election shall have written or printed thereon the following:

"For the issuance of the bonds and the levying of the tax in payment thereof."

"Against the issuance of the bonds and the levying of the tax in payment thereof."

Each voter shall mark out with black ink or black pencil one of the above expressions, thus leaving the other as indicating his vote.

None but resident qualified property taxpaying voters of said Wichita Falls independent school district shall be allowed to vote at said election.

The secretary of this board of trustees shall forthwith issue a notice of said election stating in substance the contents of this election order and the time and place of said election, and the said secretary shall post a copy of such notice at three different places within the boundaries of said Wichita Falls independent school district, which posting shall be done not less than three weeks prior to the date fixed for said election. The said secretary shall also give notice of said election by causing the said notice of election to be published in some newspaper of general circulation in said school district once each week for three successive weeks prior to the date of said election, the date of first publication to be not less than twenty-one full days prior to the date fixed for said election.

Immediately after said election has been held, the officers holding the same shall make returns of the result thereof to the board of trustees of said school district, and return the ballot box to the secretary of said board for safe keeping.

The manner of holding the said election shall be governed as near as may be, by the general election laws of this state, except as modified by chapter 24, of the general laws passed by the thirty-seventh legislature at its regular session, 1921, and this board of trustees will furnish all necessary ballots and other election supplies requisite to said election.

(Seal) W. W. BROWN,
Secretary board of trustees
Wichita Falls independent school district.

PLANNING 1926 AMENDMENTS TO BASIC LAW

Proponents of School Bill Already At Work To Insure Success

AUSTIN, June 7.—(AP)—Though the general election of 1926, when proposed amendments to the state constitution will be submitted to the electorate for approval, is yet 18 months away, state officials are mapping their campaign to insure the adoption of one of them. This is the amendment which will take from the legislature the task of creating common and independent school districts, which officials insists is a purely local matter now transacted by the state.

This amendment, as will no other, will find members of the legislature massed in its support, with the official of the state department giving a helping hand. The joint resolution authorizing its submission passed the legislature with only two dissenting votes, both in the house.

People to Vote.

The change would be made, officials declare, because the people affected in the creation of special school districts will have opportunity to pass upon the matter themselves and the legislature and its clerical staff will be relieved of an unnecessary burden in the perfunctory passage of the numerous bills which are jammed through with little or no consideration on the floor.

Of the 441 laws enacted by the 39th legislature, 190 dealt with school districts. In the rapid passage of "local bills" 110 roll calls were completed in one hour in the house of representatives by means of the electric voting machine. Under the joint rules of the house and several local measures are set for consideration at a certain hour and are disposed of at a rapid fire rate with seldom, if ever, any opposition.

"The change is made necessary by the great expansion of the Texas free public school system since the adoption of the constitution of 1876," declared S. M. N. Marrs, state superintendent of public instruction. "The desire of many localities to levy an additional local tax to the apportionment prescribed b ythe constitution has flooded the legislature with so many of these bills that it has no time to consider them and the interests of those affected sometimes suffer.

Inequitable Apportioned

"The constitution of 1876 apportioned only one-fourth of the general fund and one dollar of the poll tax for maintenance of the free public school system. One-fourth as the maximum and no minimum was named.

"Ten years after its adoption the constitution was amended to authorize creation of special districts by legislative enactment to permit citizens to tax themselves locally for better schools. Then development of the free school idea was so rapid that the legislature passed a general law authorizing creation of independent districts by local election but provided that the proposed districts should contain as a nucleus a village of not less than 200 inhabitants and a maximum area of 25 square miles.

"The districts continued to increase and hundreds that did not have the required village or that wanted to take in more area that 25 miles sought creation through legislative authority. This practice is defeating the wishes of the majority of tax-payers in some districts. Where it is now possible for small groups, fearing opposition, to put an act forming a district through the legislature, it would be impossible under the proposed amendment to create an independent district without the consent of the majority of the resident voters."

Air excursions between Paris and London have become so popular that extra planes often are necessary to carry the passengers.

The Eyes Have It

The most tragic eyes in the world, belong, it is claimed, to Vera Vratislav, Russian dancer who is now attracting attention in European capitals with her repertoire of classical dances. She may be casting her doleful orbs on America soon.

Jack Hears French Money, Can't See It

PARIS, June 7.—Since his arrival in Paris Jack Dempsey has been pestered by would-be promoters making verbal offers of millions of francs for his appearance in sparring bouts or exhibitions.

The heavyweight champion invariably receives these offers with great courtesy, allowing the boxing impresarios to finish their stories and taking apparent interest in the procession of verbal millions displayed for his benefit.

Then he cuts in with a businesslike: "How about a little deposit of 500,000 francs to clinch this?"

Some of the Frenchmen have frankly admitted they were unable to produce such a sum, while others have left hurriedly for the "bank" never to return.

Recently Dempsey broke in upon a promoter's talk of huge sums, took a slip of paper from his pocket and handed it to the Frenchman. It was a certified check for $5,000 dated in Berlin, and accompanied by the announcement that $10,000 additional was on deposit at the champion's order in the Berlin branch of an American bank, the advance payment on the champion's contract for his coming appearance in Germany.

"These Germans can afford to pay Dempsey in advance," the Frenchman told the reporters later. "They have never paid anyone else since the war."

MAN FINED FOR HEROISM

Frenchman Drowns Trying to Save Another, Insurance Is Refused.

PARIS, June 7.—(AP)—Heroism in giving up one's life to save another is just plain suicide in the opinion of the French insurance companies—a contention in which they have just been upheld by the French courts.

Henri Rouet of Issoulun jumped into the River Cher to rescue a young girl bather from drowning but failed in the attempt and both were drowned. Rouet's widow received a medal from the authorities, but the company in which her husband was insured refused to meet a policy of $2,500.

"He had no business doing it," the company pleaded. "It was not an accident, but a voluntary act."

The case was fought in a lower court which rejected the widow's claim. She appealed but now a higher tribunal has confirmed the original judgment.

"It is a premium on cowardice," was the comment of the widow's lawyer.

RIFF LEADER MUSTERS MEN

PARIS, June 7.—(AP)—Undeterred by the severe defeat administered by his best troops at Taounat by the French, Abd-El-Krim, pretender to the Moroccan throne, continues to concentrate his men for another offensive against the French in that sector.

U. S. TREASURY DEP'T OPENS FINANCE PLAN

June Announcement Made By Federal Reserve Bank At Dallas

DALLAS, June 7. The federal reserve bank of Dallas, Texas, gives notice of announcement by the treasury department announcing today its June financing which takes the form of a one year treasury certificate of indebtedness offered at par and accrued interest bearing interest of three per cent dated June 15, 1925, due June 15 1926.

The other offering is for $125,000,000 or thereabouts, the certificates are tax certificates treasury notes series C-195 due June 15, 1925, are acceptable in payment and treated as cash subscriptions. About $400,000,000 treasury notes become payable on June 15, 1925. The present offering is intended with the balances already on hand and the June tax receipts to cover the treasury's further cash requirements until September when further financing will be necessary.

La Coste Believes Tilden's Game Has No Very Weak Spots

PARIS, June 7. — Rene LaCoste, France's youthful lawn tennis champion has made his favorite pastime his life work, and conducts his playing along the lines of bank clerk or librarian.

He has a filing system of cards, on which are listed the names of his past opponents and probable future ones. Opposite the names are comments on the style of each man's play, and suggestions as to the style LaCoste himself must adopt when meeting him.

When witnessing a match in which a player whom he has never met is participating, LaCoste sets down notes concerning the man's play for transcription into his filing system.

A youth of wealth, LaCoste abandoned his studies in an egineering course to devote himself entirely to fulfilling his ambition of becoming lawn tennis champion of the world.

Against William M. Johnston's name in his card index is the notation: "Backhand most vulnerable. Play sharply to it."

On Vincent Richard's card is the advice: "Keep the ball on the ground as close as possible to his feet."

Asked as to what he had written opposite the name ow William T. Tilden, LaCoste produced the American champion's card with a smile. It bore only a huge question mark.

ENGLISH COPS STUDY SLAVIC.

Scotland Yard Officers Undertake to Learn Language.

LONDON, June 7.—(AP)—Scotland Yard detectives of future fiction may be expected to voice torrents of polysyllabic Slavonic if the occasion arises, and if writers follow life, for a number of men from the "yard" have been assigned to the task of learning Russian.

This has been necessitated by the increased vigilance of British police authorities against communists. Recently threatening letters have been received both by the accredited Soviet representatives here and by czarist emigers.

Scotland Yard men for three weeks have been guarding day and night the home of Ex-Grand Duke Michael, in Cambridge Gate, Regents Park. The grand duke has not been active in politics lately. He livees very quietly but nevertheless every now and then he receives threatening letters that make him exceedingly nervous.

In some districts of London where there are many Russians, Scotland Yard detectives, although easily gaining access to the houses, restaurants and safes frequented by Russians, have not been able to obtain all the information they desire because of their inability while listening to the language to have any idea of what the conversation is all about. Hence, the order to study Russian.

OLD FASHIONED GARTER IS STYLISH AGAIN, IS REPORT

LONDON, June 7.—The old fashioned garter is stylish again and reports from seaside resorts and other places where outdoor sports are popular are that short skirts, bathing costumes and tennis dresses are being designed so they will not hide its elastic beauty. For the new garters are attractive as well as useful. They are wide bands of colorful elastic and are made so firmly that they withstand the most strenuous laundering.

This type of garter has become so popular that doctors who are ever ready to point out the dangers of prevailing ads have cautioned the girls of old England against wearing them too tightly. Tight elastics make tired limbs, they say, but it is conceded if worn loosely girls may show their individuality by wearing as many and as colorful garters as they please.

Missing Shepherd Witness

Defense attorneys are denying bribery charges being hurled at them following the disappearance of two of the state's important witnesses in the trial in Chicago of William D. Shepherd, alleged "germ murderer," Estelle Gehling (left), nurse with whom Shepherd is said to have had an "affair," and (right) Robert R. White, the only man prepared to testify that Shepherd studied garms in a Chicago school, are the missing persons.

Epworth Leagues Do Much Work in Year Ending This Month

Senior Epworth league No. 1 of the First Methodist church of this city held a short business session at the close of their devotional service last night in order to start the new year, which begins the first of June. The retiring president, J. W. Thorne, gave a brief report of the work that this league has done during the past six years.

In addition to contributing some 13,470 for home and foreign missions during this period, they have also contributed liberally to the Methodist orphanage at Waco, scholarship fund at Texas Woman's college and various other local benevolences. Pledges were taken at this meeting on a budget which calls for $2,500 for the work of the league during the coming year.

The league is sending a large delegation to the annual assembly at Sherman, which opens with a banquet on Tuesday night. A meeting of all delegates will be held at the church Monday night at 7:30 at which time final details as to transportation, etc., will be worked out.

During the past six years this league has supported a missionary and his last night it was voted unanimously to wife in the Beelgian-Congo, Africa and name this league in honor of their representative in Africa. Henceforth it will be known as the Ansil Lynn Epworth league.

EIGHT EGYPTIANS TO DIE

Were Connected With Death of Sir Lee Stack.

CARIO, Egypt, June 7.—(AP)—Eight of the men convicted of participation in the assination last November of Sir Lee Stack, sirdar of the Egyptian army, have been sentenced to death.

The chauffeur Mamhad Saled who drove the car in which the assassins escaped was sentenced to two years imprisonment.

After the sentences were read, some of the prisoners were removed from the dock struggling and shrieking.

On Her Wedding Anniversary Flowers

For her wedding anniversary every year. How sweet is even the thought of it. How truly appreciative SHE would be. How wonderful it would be for her as she looks at her wedding gown and remembers with pride when she walked up the church aisle with you; to be able to say that "Every year he sends me flowers."
