So This Is Texas

Age of Mergers—
Lumber Has Stage—
Texas Is Involved—
How Folks Make Money.

By H. N. Fitzgerald.

THERE are many lumber kings in the south. There are some few in Texas.

There was a time when the timber districts of Texas captured the imagination.

* * *

THERE is a tremendous woodland area regardless of the flight of time and the ax of the foremost newspapers of America recently carried a story that a worldwide lumber merger is reported near.

* * *

ACCORDING to the Sun story consolidation of important lumber companies in the United States and Germany and other countries to form the largest corporation of its kind in the world, is under consideration.

* * *

AND the Long-Bell Lumber company, a $100,000,000 American company, is mentioned in Wall street reports as the nucleus of the proposed corporation.

Furthermore, the Sun says the companies which would be included in this combination control one-third of the Douglas fir of the world. This is an interesting excerpt from the Sun article.

* * *

A REPORT has been going the rounds of the inner circles of Wall street for several days and while withholding the names of the companies that would enter the combination, it mentioned the basis of Stock Exchange and the amount of financing that would be required.

A loan of $100,000,000 is said to be a part of the plan.

* * *

NOT long ago all the steel companies on the continent of Europe merged and Judge Elbert H. Gary of the American house of steel, made the interesting comment that there was a possibility of a gentleman's agreement which would bind the steel interest of Europe and the steel interest of America in one formidable whole.

He did not use the word formidable.

* * *

IF the steel interests of the world get together and the lumber interests of the world merge, it will form a most interesting picture of one phase of the civilization which was born when the old civilization was shot to pieces on Flander's field.

* * *

TEXAS is a great lumber producing state, an exporter of lumber and Texans who read and think will watch for the next chapter of the story let loose by the commercial editor of the New York newspaper.

* * *

IF the steel interests of the world can combine and work together harmoniously and the lumber interests of the world are able to merge, why shouldn't the cotton growers of America be able to get together and fix the price of American cotton by acreage reduction, market restriction and the selling of cotton all the year round instead of marketing the crop in sixty or ninety days, a custom which has prevailed in the south since the abolition of slavery by a victory of the sword.

* * *

DOWN in the Magic valley the growers of citrus fruits and the growers of vegetables know the value of thorough organization and co-operative effort.

They are organized.

They have their own marketing system and they know how to handle it.

* * *

AN exchange tells the story that citrus fruit production increased from about 100 car loads in 1922 and '23 to more than 1000 car loads in the winter of 1925 and '26.

In 1926-27 the production will be much larger, and the prediction is made that in less than ten years the annual shipments will exceed 20,000 car loads.

* * *

THIS means that millions of dollars will fall into the pockets of growers of citrus fruit this year.

* * *

MOREOVER it is said that the growers of spinach will receive $2,000,000 for the yield of the fall and winter of 1926, and other early truck crops will place an additional $20,000,000 in the pockets of these scientific gardners of the valley.

They are scientific.

They are not croppers down in the valley.

They do not cling to the one crop harbinger of poverty.

They own small tracts of land.

They have their own marketing or selling agents.

They have their icing plants near by.

* * *

THIS for the owners of land and the tillers of the soil in the irrigated sections of Texas beyond the pale of the valley called Magic.

LEAHY'S TRIAL GIVEN TO JURY THURSDAY EVE

State Demands Accused Man Be Given Death Or Acquittal

'HORSE SENSE' PLEA

Defense Asks Jurors to Give Common Sense Study To Testimony

GEORGE WEST, Texas, Nov. 25.—(AP)—The case of Harry J. Leahy charged with slaying Dr. J. A. Ramsey May 20, was given the jury late today.

The jury retired at the completion of the closing address for the state by A. C. Hartman of Cuero, who followed the closing speech for the defense made by Martin Arnold of San Antonio. The entire day was devoted to arguments which had begun late Wednesday afternoon when N. M. Crain of Cuero opened for the state.

Arnold closed the defense case with a plea for "horse sense" in arriving at a verdict, declaring there had been "unseen influences" behind the prosecution.

Hartman like all the state attorneys asked the jury to fix the death penalty and stated that Leahy should be either freed or given the extreme penalty.

"RIM AMERICA" HOP DATE SET

Fliers Will Leave Texas On December 15 to Circle South America

SAN ANTONIO, Nov. 25.(AP)—The date for the army's Pan-American flight which was recently postponed from December 15 to sometime in January was changed back today to the original date.

No explanation for the change was given when the announcement was made at flight headquarters here, but it was presumed that arrangements had been made to obtain the flight planes earlier than was thought possible a week ago.

Two of the planes are already at Duncan Field where they are being assembled and turned for the flight and the others are expected to arrive soon.

Capt. A. B. McDaniel and Capt. C. F. Woolsey, who are flying the practice plane of the expedition to San Antonio, left Pensacola today, according to advices to the field.

Scientist To Go To Sea Bottom

Explorer Plans to Dive Into Ocean Mile Down To Study Contents

NEW YORK, Nov. 25. (AP)—William Beepe, scientist and explorer of the New York zoological society, is planning to descent in a steel cylinder into that strange world Jules Verne wrote about in "Forty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea."

Dr. Beepe hopes to go a mile or more beneat hthe ocean's surface so he can observe deep sea fishes. Some of these fishes have organs which emit a powerful light so the explorer has decided not to equip his diving cylinder with lights. Later, however, he says he may take a searchlight below with him so he can take motion pictures. He will also be equipped with a water proof telephone over which he will dictate his observations to a stenographer. Dr. Beebe's plans are dependant largely upon tests he will make this winter off the coast of Haiti.

The bullet hits right in the center of the circle of light, John says, and he gets more possums with it in one night than a gang of men and dogs can in a week.

FAILURE BARS FLIERS EFFORT

Non-Stop Hop to Panama Is Unsuccessful When Gas Supply Fails

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25. (AP)—The shade of John Rodgers smiled encouragement today to his former mates as they rested and contemplated their failure to write a new chapter to the annals of aeronautics.

The feat of the valiant commander, who had 15 months before led an expedition across the Pacific which brought him and his crew down a record distance of 1841 miles from the starting point to drift nine days before a submarine found them off the island of Kauai, remains the greatest non-stop performance for navy fliers in seaplanes.

Two PN-10 seaplanes, improved in design and construction over those which Rodgers and his companions flew, were down today. They took off at twilight Tuesday on a non-stop venture intended to take them 2060 miles from Hampton Roads, Va., to Colon, Canal Zone.

Inventory of Flight.

That of Lieut. Com. H. T. Bartlett, the PN-10 No. 2, was taking inventory today of her flight at Siguana bay, Isle of Pines, preparatory to resuming the voyage. Bartlett, with Lieuts. H. C. Rodd and C. H. Schildhauer and Aviation Chief Machinist's Mate Charles J. Sutter, went down at Nueva Gerona, Isle of Pines, at 6:30 a. m., yesterday, their oil supply being exhausted.

He wired today that repairs could be made in time to take off at 6 a. m., tomorrow for the final 769 mile hop to Colon and requested a destroyer to stand guard along the route. If none is avail-

TEXAS CONVICT FIGHTS POLICE

Several Wounded In Battle Of Guns At New Orleans Thursday

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 25. (AP) Cleveland Owens, former New Orleans contractor, alleged escaped convict from Huntsville, Texas, was captured here early today after a gun fight with police in which he shot an officer three times and himself received three bullet wounds.

The shooting started when Owens and another man with women companions were stopped on the street by policemen who located a stolen automobile in front of a restaurant. During the questioning Owens seized a policeman and took his revolver, firing over his shoulder at the other officer who was holding his companion.

In the shooting Owens' companion escaped and he broke away only to be captured in a vacant lot shortly afterward.

Police said Owens escaped from the Huntsville penitentiary a month ago and that he was believed implicated in a number of recent holdups and robberies here. They reported finding a quantity of burglar's tools in his room at a boarding house.

Much Speculation Over New Strain In Relations Of U. S. And Mexico

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 25. (AP)—Speculation on future developments in the relations between Mexico and the United States has increased since the newspapers printed the final installments of the notes exchanged between the two governments on the Mexican oil and alien land laws, and the Mexican government let it be known, although in a statement not labelled official, that it has said all it has to say on the subject and sees no necessity for further notes.

Apparently the editorial declaration of El Universal that Mexico is only maintaining her sovereign rights represents a widespread popular conviction. President Calles in receiving expressions of support from the various political groups both regarding the oil and land laws and Nicaraguan affairs.

With no present prospects of either Mexico or the United States changing its position, some think that the situation will simmer along until January, when the Mexican government, in accordance with the laws then put into effect, confiscates the land of foreigners who have not renounced the protection of their governments with regard to such property.

Foreign Secretary Saenz said today that the matter now rested with the Washington government which may declare whether it is satisfied with Mexico's explanations.

PLAINVIEW TO TAKE 'LID' OFF FOR BIG FETE

West Texas Metropolis Makes Ready For Festival On Rail Victory

10,000 TO VISIT CITY

Wichita Falls and Other Big Texas Cities Send Delegations

PLAINVIEW, Nov. 25.—Plainview was abuzz tonight with last minute preparations for the deluge Friday.

Undaunted by the prospects of wintry weather, barbecue pits were being fired up, streets decorated and entertainment features perfected for the thousands who will come in tomorrow to aid in celebration of the Fort Worth and Denver South Plains railway extension from Estelline westward. Thursday night reports indicated that, if anything, the incoming crowds would be larger than at first expected. Special trains and special cars will come from as far away as Fort Worth and Dallas, while the territory immediately adjacent to Plainview will be represented almost 100 per cent. Fully 10,000 persons will throng to town, weather permitting.

Elaborate Plans

The board of city development of Plainview has made extensive and elaborate preparations. Welcoming committees will meet all special trains and automobiles and the keys to the city will be turned over to the visitors. A parade rivaling that of West Texas chamber of Commerce conventions will be staged Friday morning and will be followed by a free barbecue for all in town. Dinners and other entertainment features—with some other novel surprises—will be in order throughout the afternoon.

At night dances will enliven all the proceedings. Provisions have been made for the over-night entertainment of about as many as can stay, although most of the visitors will leave the city during the evening. The Wichita Falls, Fort Worth and Dallas delegations will return to Amarillo in time to catch southbound night trains.

Lid Declared off

City officials and heads of the board of development tonight issued last minute avowals of welcome and greeting.

"The lid is off," they said. "We want all our West Texas visitors and friends to come as our guests, to partake of our hospitality, to share our elation and profit with us in our new acquisition."

Herrin Strife Renewed With Machine Gun Attack On Trio After Dynamite Fails To Wreck Home of Birger Rivals

HARRISBURG, Ills., Nov. 25. (AP)—Assailants who early today attempted to take the life of Virgil Hundsacker by dynamiting his home, tonight made a machine gun attack on Hundsacker and two friends as they were returning to their home here.

Hundsacker, his father-in-law, Albert Robinson, and a friend, Milburn Vinson were attacked as they were driving on a state road a mile and a half west of here. Hundsacker was shot three times, once in the neck, shoulder and arm and Robinson was shot once in the leg. Vinson was not injured. Hundsacker's condition is considered critical.

The three men were riding in a coupe. Vinson reported that as they started to turn off on a detour, a large touring car overtook them and opened fire, raking their automobile with machine gun bullets as they passed. The touring car slackened speed only a moment during the broadside and then sped on in the direction of Harrisburg. No one here reports seeing the automobile pass through town.

When officers reached the scene of the shooting they found a machine gun, two rifles and a revolver in Hundsacker's machine.

Early today Hundsacker's home here, which is near that of Charles Birger, gang leader, was damaged by a dynamiting attack which shattered windows in the house. Hundsacker and his family were in the house at the time but none of them were injured.

Reason for the attacks on Hundsacker is unknown since he has not been known to figure in recent gang strife in southern Illinois. It was believed that the attack on his home was intended for the home of Birger, but officers tonight were unable to ascribe a reason for the machine gunning.

Belief that Birger was implicated in tonight's attack was denied by the gang leader who declared that he was in Duquoin, a neighboring town, at the time.

All of the men are coal miners.

SANTA MONICA, Calif., Nov. 25.(AP)—With their exact destination shrouded in mystery eight Douglas-built P-2 type airplanes left Clover Field today for delivery to the Mexican government. They were expected to cross the international boundary line at an early hour.

The shipment will be followed by an order for 36 others, either to be purchased from the Douglas Aircraft company or other American plants, according to information here. The utmost secrecy prevailed during the building of the planes as to the identity of the purchaser. This was explained in a semi-official report to the effect that revolutionists across the border would employ every means to prevent the planes from entering Mexico if they learned of their existence.

Joy Girl's Heart Breaks When Lover Departs; Rest Comes In Little Casket

DALLAS, Nov. 25. (AP)—It may be Thanksgiving for other folks but it was just Thursday to this girl's mother wherever she is.

Her little girl's romance started in Chicago two years ago. It ended today in a Dallas graveyard.

She was a "joy girl." Broadway knew her, and New Orleans, and Havana and the other pleasure capitals where good fellows get together.

Then she met him.

He was a world wanderer, too and many ports knew him—Philadelphia's Broad street, the cherry blossoms of Japan—the revolutions of Central America. He had a bank roll. The musical comedy she was with went on the rocks and he was in Chicago ready to move on.

They came to Dallas just before last Christmas. With part of his bank roll they bought a house—white with green roof and shutters—just the sort a tired little girl might dream of. They were happy, neighbors said and loved each other dearly. But a few weeks ago he took her in his arms and said: "I can't help it, honey, I've got to go. Maybe I'll come back, but I won't promise. You'll be better off without me. Find a steady, sober man." Goodbye.

A week later came a postcard saying he was leaving on a tramp schooner from San Francisco bound for Hong Kong.

She was peaceful today in her little white coffin and only one friend followed it to the grave.

"The doctors call it pneumonia, but I guess I know a broken heart," the friend whose eyes were wet said.

Another group of Amarillo and Lubbock men are expected to be here Monday to choose a site for an eight story hotel. The building of a new railroad from here to Lubbock and Plainview is causing much property to change hands.

GREEN-MC CULLUM WILDCAT PROMISE NEW POOL IN COOKE

WELL BELIEVED SURE PRODUCER AT 1251 FEET

Humble Test In Throckmorton Blows In For 1000 Barrels

A new oil pool for Cooke county is believed to have been discovered in the wildcat test of W. J. Green and J. H. Bonner, about three miles northwest of Muenster in Cooke county on the McCollum farm. Operations on the well were suspended Thursday in observance of Thanksgiving but pipe is to be set Friday or Saturday to test out a sand at 1218 to 1251 feet. W. J. Green declared that it was his belief that the test would make a producer.

The McCollum well is located 150 feet each way from the southwest corner of the east 57 acres of the Cromwell and Hawley survey. It is approximately five miles from the Stahl and Lynch 800-foot production and about 12 miles northeast of the Hooser pool which produces from a 1200-foot sand. It is said, however, that the Hooser sand was passed at 800 feet and the new sand is thought to be the Strawn pay.

Throckmorton Gusher

Another test attracting considerable attention is the Humble Oil and Refining company's No. 1 M. K. Graham in southeast Throckmorton county, which topped a sand at 1725 feet and blew in with an initial production estimated at 1000 barrels. This test is in block 992 of the Premium survey and about one-half mile south of the Humble-Stubblefield pool in section 991. It is four miles north and east of Woodson. This is a new pay horizon for that section, all other production coming from below 3000 feet.

'Panther Claw' Is Seymour Paper

High School Students Prepare Thanksgiving Issue Of School Paper

SEYMOUR, Nov. 25.—The first issue of the "Panther Claw," the new high school paper appeared on Wednesday with a special Thanksgiving number.

George Mickey is editor-in-chief of this new sheet and it is largely through his interest and efforts that the paper is to be realized. He is assisted by the following staff: Glen McDaniel, managing editor; Richard Morris, advertising manager; Claudia Lee Bailes, art editor with Maxine Rickert, George Cowan and Edward Lakey as assistants; head typist, John Mollifett; typists, Harwell Wharton, Maurice Hammers; foreman, Pat McDavid; chief operator, Jarrell Davis; sports editor, W. T. Humphreys; assistant, Earnest Hayley; joke editors, Vera Allen and Mary Grace Milam; circulation manager, Ethleen Craddock; assistant, Thomas Lewis Lively; exchange editor, Frances Cooper; files editor, Inez Armstrong; freshman representative, Flo Richmond; sophomore, Walter Francis Kirkland; junior, Nellie Mae Bryan; senior, Sarah Wheat; faculty sponsor, Mrs. W. A. Baker; faculty advisor, Miss Ruby Lee Shipp.

The pupils at the high school have been submitting names all the week for the paper. On Friday at noon the "name box" was opened by the staff and faculty and after hot debates the name, Panther Claw was chosen. The Seymour football team is called the Panthers so Panther Claw was thought to be fitting.

The name was submitted by Mac Harris of the sophomore class. He will receive a year's subscription to the paper free.

PRISONERS FREED

Thanksgiving was more than just another day to all of the prisoners at the city hall, except one man, who is wanted on a felony investigation.

Corporation Judge W. L. Bass took occasion of the day to release every prisoner in the lock-up, except the one man, and after delivering a good lecture passed them to freedom.

Three drunks, taken up during the day, were also treated with much leniency and were dismissed, after a reprimand.

The only prisoners on hand Thursday were a few men held on minor charges or for investigation, it was stated, and this discharging of prisoners has been a custom on Thanksgiving and Christmas day.

LITTLE GIRL DIES

Opal Jean Ray, 4, Succumbs On Thanksgiving Day

Opla Jean Ray, little four-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Ray, died at the home of her parents, 1303 North Fifth street, Thursday. Funeral arrangements have not yet been made.

"Blue eyes and sunny gold hair,
Cheeks so ping and skin so fair,
Fairy form of wondrous grace,
Laughing, dimpled baby face,
Our Jean.
Too pure on earth with us to stay,
Angels bore our babe away;
God called her, but she's only gone
To point the way and lead us on
To Him."

Chicago Renews Gangster Strife

Machine Guns Spit Out Lead Slugs and Fell Trio Of Gang Chiefs

CHICAGO, Nov. 25. (AP)—The rat-a-tat-tat of a gangster machine gun and shot guns broke the Thanksgiving quiet of the southside tonight, and when the smoke of the battle had cleared away, two notorious gangsters and a bystander lay wounded in the street, the result of a renewal of the war of extermination between rival bands of bootleggers and gangsters.

The victims of tonight's outbreak were Thomas and Charles O'Donnell, bootlegging gangster brothers of Edward "Spike" O'Donnell, who engaged in the beer racket here. The bystander, who was wounded, was Charles Barrett and standing only a few feet from the scene of the shooting was John Conroy, county assessor, who was unhurt.

The battle was as spectacular as that staged in State street on the north side a few weeks ago when several gangsters were shot by rivals hidden in an apartment building armed with a machine gun.

HAND TORN OFF

LUBBOCK, Nov. 25. (AP)—When Harold Ward, 21, caught his right hand in the machinery of the gin where he is employed at Idalou, at 8 o'clock tonight, the hand was torn off six inches above the wrist.

READING, Pa., Nov. 25. (AP) Michael Twardowski, an inmate of the state hospital for the insane at Wernersville, escaped from the institution early today, came to this city and killed with a hatchet Mrs. Catherine Kowalski, mother of seven children.

Twardowski blamed Mrs. Kowalski for giving testimony at a hearing that sent him to the asylum as an insane person.

After the killing, committed in the presence of two of the woman's children, Twardowski hid in the home of his victim until police, summoned by neighbors, arrived and arrested him.

Household Hints

MENU HINT.

In small families, when a fair sized roast is cooked, it is sometimes a little difficult to use it all up. One can serve it once reheated, and once sliced cold with a judiciously planned menu to accompany it, then it may be made into chili con carne, chop suey, hashed and well seasoned with the thickened gravy and served over toast, chopped, seasoned and baked in pepper cases, and plain, old-fashioned hash. Below is another painless way to get your family to finish the roast.

Slices of Roast Beef
Baked Potatoes
Celery Olives
Fruit Gelatine with Whipped Cream
Cheese Wafers Coffee

TODAY'S RECIPES.

Roast Beef.—Eight slices roast beef, one green pepper, one-half cup rice (uncooked) one can tomatoes, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, one teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon mustard, one cup water.

Cook rice in tomato juice and water with salt, pepper and mustard. When rice is soft add tomato pulp, green peppers cut small and roast beef. Continue cooking until beef is thoroughly heated. This serves four persons and takes little more than a half hour to prepare.

GIFTS FOR FATHER.

SUGGESTIONS.
Double Service.

The broiler from the gas range makes an excellent rack on which to cool pies, cakes, etc., when they come from the oven.

Eat Vegetables.

Because of their many valuable properties, vegetables should form a part of every day's diet and should be supplemented by milk and green vegetables, meat, fish and cereals.

Handy Shelf.

One housewife had a shelf built underneath the drainboard in the kitchen just low enough to accommodate her dishpan. Here she keeps her drainer, dishpan and rinsing pan, out of sight, but convenient.

TURK IN AIR.

FORT WORTH, Nov. 25.(AP)—A Texas tom turkey is flying from Fort Worth to Detroit today, but he is in an airplane.

The bird is the gift of Mayor H. C. Meacham to Mayor J. W. Smith of Detroit, his personal friend. Going by air mail the turkey will reach Chicago tonight and arrive in Detroit over the Henry Ford line Thanksgiving morning.

A Double Treatment for Colds

It is an obstinate cold indeed that can resist the direct, double action of Vicks VapoRub. When it is rubbed over throat and chest at bedtime, Vicks acts in two ways at once:

(1) Direct to the inflamed air passages with its medicated vapors, released by the body heat; and

(2) Direct through the skin like an old-fashioned poultice, "drawing out" the tightness, soreness and pain.

Head or chest colds may easily sap your vitality and undermine your health. Don't neglect them.

What Women Are Doing — Sophie Loeb's Chat — Recipes and Latest Fashions

SOPHIE IRENE LOEB Says—

During the war the government authorities of London determined to wipe out the bad housing conditions of the working people.

They began at a cost of $17,000,000. More than $10,000,000 had already been spent on the project and 65 acres of slums had been cleaned, providing sanitary housing for more than 160,000 people.

Sites have been secured adjoining the unsanitary and overcrowded places and better buildings will be put up. The city thus gives to dwellers in the crowded sections an opportunity to rent clean homes at reasonable prices.

This is in the east of London, where I have seen hundreds and hundreds of men, women and children living in a miserable, crowded state, with all the attending unfit and unwholesome conditions of existence.

There is nothing more terrible than these slums of London, and a great day is dawning when they are to be wiped out. The most gladsome tidings are that this work will go on in spite of the war.

Nothing could be more significant than this move to make London slums safe and sanitary and at the same time reasonable in price.

In contrast to this is the attitude of many landlords in our own country, where the law has not gone so far as to permit the taking over of the city's congested areas and doing with them as is being done in London.

It might be well to create public interest in this direction. Our own east side is similar to that of London. Many, many times I have been in congested sections here, and the conditions are harrowing indeed. Hundreds of cellars are the only homes that many know. Lightless rooms are common, and miserable plumbing is the general rule.

Some time ago, in a search for more playgrounds for children, I went down to look at the roofs of some the dwellings in the hope of finding places for the children to play.

I saw blocks of tenements owned by rich men. Most of them were gasless, and the most promitive method of housekeeping was the rule.

I found nearly all the roofs impossible because of the old-time chimney places and piping that had been built many, many years ago.

I spoke to families that lived in these places and the one cry was, "How we would like to get away from here, but where shall we go? The rents are high. Landlords don't want children, and our income makes it impossible to secure more sanitary locations."

And always, always, I found that as soon as the family had accumulated a little money they hurried to better quarters. After all, it is an innate human trait to want better things and to long for sunlight.

Of course there are those who have for so long lived in an improper atmosphere that their souls have been stultified and they are said to "know no better."

That is where "Am I my brother's keeper?" answers itself, and it is up to you and me to teach them to know better—to help kindle the spark of ambition for cleaner and better ways.

But first of all the man who provides the home—the landlord—we must look to him first. Reasonable rates and sanitary surroundings. This is the task in which August Heckscher, philanthropist, is aiming to interest the public.

For after all, the sons of these families are the future citizens. London paved the way. It is high time some such rules are made for the profiteering landlords here. There is no better time than the present.

MAKING MODERN MENUS

The steamed pudding is a favorite at this time of the year and may be substituted for the regular plum pudding at some of the holiday dinners. This variety is more digestible than the rich plum pudding.

STEAMED PUDDING.

Two large cups of stale bread crumbs, 1-2 cup of shortening, 2 beaten eggs, 1-2 teaspoon of salt, 2-3 cup of molasses, 2-3 cup of raisins, 2-3 cup of sour milk, 1 teaspoon of cinnamon, 1-2 teaspoon of all-spice, 1-2 teaspoon of baking powder. Mix in flour enough, about 1-2 a cup, to make a regulation "drop" batter. Mix all the ingredients together well and steam in a well-buttered steamer for about three hours. Serve with hard sauce.

Wassail Punch.

Four cups of water, 4 cups of sugar, 12 whole cloves, 2 or 3 pieces of stick cinnamon, 6 allspice berries, 2 tablespoons of chopped canton ginger, juice of eight lemons, juice of 10 oranges, 1 quart of cider. Make a syrup by boiling the water and sugar together for ten minutes. Add all the ingredients but the lemon and orange juice and the cider and let stand in warm place, covered, for an hour. Strain, add lemon and orange juice and the cider. Bring to boiling point and serve at once. Crab apples which have been roasted until the skkins have burst may be served in the punch. This makes 3 quarts of punch.

Did you ever think of making stick candy? There's no time like the holidays when children think they are deserving of sweets to try it out. It's easy to make, and fine to keep on hand for that moment after the meal when the children say, "Mother, may I have a piece of candy?"

Stick Candy.

One pound of granulated sugar, one cup of water, one-fourth cup of vinegar, or one-half teaspoon of cream of tartar, one small tablespoon of glycerine. Flavor with vanila, lemon, peppermint or wintergreen. Boil together, without flavoring, 20 minutes or half an hour or until brittle when dropped into a little water. Just before pouring on platters to cool pour two teaspoons of flavoring on the top. When partly cool, pull it until very white. Draw it into sticks the size you wish and cut off with shears. It may be colored if desired.

Often the simplest things are the most delicieius and this is true in the case of the dessert given below:

Pineapple Pudding.

Take a well-buttered baking dish and cover the bottom with about three-quarters of an inch of brown sugar. Above the sugar pour over one cup of grated pineapple, do not strain. Above pineapple put any desired recipe of a light cake. Bake as an ordinary cake. When done invert on platter and when ready to serve cover with whipped cream.

Bishop Denies Woman's Claim That She Was Forced to Wed British Duke

Tunic of Black

BY MME. LISBETH.

A black velvet tunic embroidered rather elaborately in gold and pink is here posed over an underdress of two tones of Bagdad rose crepe de chine with deep petal collar.

The tunic has short sleeves and is cut out top and bottom at the front where the embroidery is placed. The sleeves of the underdress are long and loose. Magdeleine des Hayes is the creator.

Afternoon dresses frequently are accompanied by coats of woolen fabrics or of silk. Taffeta, serge and novelty woolens and silk mixtures are included among the materials favored for these coats.

FASHION WHIMSIES.

A number of plain dresses are accompanied by hiplength and three-quarter length straight coats in light colors.

Georgette is much used for collars, yokes and trimmings. Pink sharkskin is also liked on black frock for collar, cuffs and belt.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25. (AP)—Annulment by the Catholic church of the marriage of the Duke Marlborough and the former Consuelo Vanderbilt was characterized as "an unwarranted intrusion and an impertinence," by Bishop William T. Manning at the cathedral of St. John the Divine today.

In a long message concerning the annulment to the diocese of New York the bishop said that he felt it incumbent upon him to express his judgment in the matter "since the marriage thus declared null and void was solemnized at one of our altars in this diocese."

The Vanderbilt - Marlborough wedding took place in St. Thomas Protestant Episcopal church here in 1895.

Manning Takes Issue

Bishop Manning took issue with the statement in Rome that the annulment was granted on the ground that the 17-year-old girl had been forced into marriage against her will by her mother.

"Many who were present at the marriage," he said, "and were associated closely with the Marlboroughs at the time have informed me that they saw no sign whatever that the bride was acting under compulsion, but quite the contrary.

"I have the direct testimony of one who heard his statements that in view of the special circumstances attending the marriage the rector of the church, the Rev. Dr. John Wesley Brown, took great care to assure himself that his young parishioner was acting of her own free consent and that he was entirely satisfied as to this.

"But the facts of this case are sufficient as they stand open in the record and in the light of them the decision announced by the vatican court is a preposterous one."

Mother Forces Rite

Testimony that the mother of Consuelo Vanderbilt threatened to kill Winthrop Rutherford of New York if Consuelo eloped with him served today to intensify gossip in the social world over the annulment by the Catholic church of Consuelo's marriage to the Duke of Marlborough.

Rome dispatches to the Associated Press show that the rota tribunal, which nullified the marriage on the ground of duress, received testimony of the threat to kill. The former Mrs. William Kissam Vanderbilt, now Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, feminist leader, commanded her daughter to marry the duke and fearing that Consuelo might refuse to obey her command placed a guard at her door to prevent her conversing with anyone. Twenty days after the marriage the duke informed the examining body investigating his wife's plea for dissolution of the marriage Consuelo told him she had gone through the marriage ceremony only under compulsion.

Mrs. Belmont is now on board the steamer Berengaria, which has another notable passenger, Queen Marie of Rumania, bound for Europe.

Secret Engagement

According to the finding of the rota, Consuelo was secretly engaged to Rutherford. When her mother learned of this she expressed strong opposition, desiring that Consuelo marry a man with a splendid name, although Rutherford was of fine lineage, being a descendant of Peter Stuyvesant, last Dutch governor of New York.

Mr. Rutherford, who resides in New York, acknowledges that he once was an admirer of Miss Vanderbilt.

"Some 30 years ago," he said, "I knew Miss Vanderbilt and I was one of her great admirers."

Mrs. Vanderbilt met Marlborough in London, says the rota decision, and thought him just the man she was looking for as a spouse for Consuelo, For this reason she invited him to her summer home in Newport and the duke was a guest there for a fortnight in September, 1895.

As he was about to start on a tour of the country he asked for Consuelo's hand.

The evidence in the plea for annulment said Consuelo's tears failed to move her mother.

Threat To Kill

The culminating moment was when Mrs. Vanderbilt said that if Consuelo eloped with Rutherford she would kill him and consequently would be imprisoned and hanged and that Consuelo would bear the responsibility for such a horrible death. The sentence asserts that these statements were confirmed by all witnesses, including Marlborough, and constituted proof that Miss Vanderbilt did not enjoy the necessary liberty to contract valid matrimony.

Coincident with the revelations about the Marlborough-Vanderbilt annulment came a denial and a disavowal of reports concerning Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt II.

A dispatch to the New York World from Paris quotes Mrs. Vanderbilt, the former Virginia Fair, as saying she has started no annulment proceedings and that it is a mystery how the story of her alleged plea for annulment originated in Rome. Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt II have been living apart for a number of years. She is returning to New York immediately because of the death of her sister, Mrs. Herman Oelrichs.

Associated Press dispatches from Rome show that William Marconi, the noted inventor of wireless, is appealing to the rota tribunal for an annulment of his marriage to the Honorable Beatrice O'Brien, daughter of the fourteenth baron Inchiquin.

He alleges that it was agreed prior to their wedding that they might separate when ever they so desired. In the view of the Catholic church since marriage is from its very nature indissoluble, such a condition would make the marriage null in fact. The plea was made to the curia of Westminster, London, which granted nullity and the rota must now pass on the decision.

Frank Dwyer of Akron, Ohio, wants to meet Comstock, who recently downed 62 cups in 10 hours in a drinking bout while A. P. Herndon, managing editor of the "Caller" at Corpus Christi, wired a challenge in behalf of G. Frank Roberts of that city.

"I hold the record of 62 cups," says Comstock, "and if these drinkers want to try for my record let them first get a reputation. Let them drink 62 cups and then I'll drink with any of 'em."

Four Hurt During Frederick Storm

Building Collapses When High Wind Blows Across Oklahoma Town

FREDERICK, Okla., Nov. 25. (AP)—Four men were injured, one probably fatally, when a new cottonseed oil company building collapsed today in a 60-mile wind and sand storm.

Fire, which followed the collapse of the building, destroyed four residences and threatened for a time to destroy the entire business section of the town.

John Ballard, a carpenter, was severely injured when the building upon which he was working, crashed before the wind.

Bert Snyder, R. W. Hoax and W. M. Hanson, who also were working at the building, suffered broken bones and severe cuts. Physicians who were immediately summoned believed all of the men were suffering internal injuries.

Fire broke out in a gin warehouse earlier in the day and after destroying the building and cotton in storage spread to the residence district where four homes were burned.

Burning embers were carried by the high wind to other parts of the city, but the work of the Frederick fire department and many volunteers prevented further damage.

Property damage was estimated at $50,000.

LONGHORN AERIAL OFFENSIVE OVERCOMES LEAD OF FARMERS AND BRINGS STEER VICTORY

Final Score Is 14 to 5 In Orange and White's Favor After Lucky Breaks Give Aggies Five-Point Lead Early In Game

AUSTIN, Nov. 25. AP)—A bewildering aerial attack carried a fighting mad Texas University Longhorn eleven to a 14-5 victory over the Texas Aggies here Thursday before 35,000 fans. Coach "Doc" Stewart's Orange and White Steers turned in by far their best of the season, being brilliant offensive and stubborn on the defensive. They came back after breaks had given the Aggies a five point lead to flash an attack that Coach Dan Bible's gallant Red and White warriors could not turn back.

The Longhorns carried too many guns for the cadets. Captain Mack Saxon, playing his last game for the Orange and White, was a constant threat off tackle and ran his team in masterly fashion. Rufus King rammed the line with all the power that has won for him the nickname of "Ramming Rufus." Bill Ford from Dallas was remarkably accurate with his snatching of forward passes, while Maurice Stallter turned in by far the best of his career.

Whenever the Aggie backs drew in close to stop the line smashing tactics of the Longhorns, they invited into action an aerial game that functioned with great effectiveness.

All the traditional color of Longhorn-Aggie clashes was magnified today, with many Texas notables in the crowd.

From the start the Longhorns, celebrating the completion of their stadium, played with a bit more confidence and dash than did the Red and White gridsters. Even the most bias-- of Aggie supporters were ready to concede Stewart's men had earned their victory.

Two Mighty Lines

Two mighty forward Walls met, with the Longhorn line men having a slight edge. Gooch and Moore, tackles; Olle and Slover, ends; and McCullough, center, all stood out for the Orange and White; while Captain Ox Dietrich, Aggie tackle, and Watts, Aggie center, playing their last game for the Red and White, turned in memorable performances.

The Aggies never were able to solve a basket pass from Rufus King, big fullback, to Clint Slover, slender end. The ball passed back of the line of scrimmage was carried for substantial gains time after time, the Longhorns counting their last touchdown on this play.

Joel Hunt was the outstanding backfield performer of the cadets, but it was his fumble that paved the way for the initial Longhorn touchdown. McCullough recovering for the Steers on the Aggie 43-yard line, and from that point the Longhorns fought through to a touchdown.

A double pass, Saxon to Stallter to Ford gained the last nine yards that scored the touchdown. The play was cleverly masked, and no Aggie was within five yards of "Wild Bill" Ford when he caught the heave.

Steers Show Power

The last touchdown demonstrated just how powerful and smashing was the punch carried by the Longhorns. Seventy yards did the Longhorns march through the fighting farmers. On this advance, Stewart's men unleashed a dazzling, versatile attack that could not be denied. Captain Mack Saxon figured prominently in the steam-roller drive, slashing off tackle for a number of gains and participating in passes that netted 45 yards.

Incidentally the stocky Longhorn captain, who hails from Temple won a place among Longhorn sport immortals by his fighting play, and inspiring leadership.

Joel Hunt's placement goal from the 35-yard line, and a safety imposed on Texas, when Slover stepped back of his end zone in kicking gave the Aggies their fi[ve] points.

In the last few minutes of pl[ay] Joe Hunt led an Aggie rally that carried the ball to the Longhorn 10-yard line, but there the Longhorns smothered the Aggie offensive. In the third quarter, the Aggies had turned back a Longhorn drive on their three yard line.

Strong Air Drive

The Aggies were reputed to have a more formidable aerial offensive than the Longhorns; but the overhead game of Coach Bible's men was almost completely smeared by the alert Longhorns. The Aggies completed only four passes for a total gain of 55 yards, with eight passes incomplete, while the Longhorns completed 11 passes for 161 yards and only two heaves were incomplete.

Several times Hunt was downed for long losses, as the Longhorn forwards rushed through and buried him.

The play of Coach Stewart's Longhorns throughout satisfied the most exacting alumni for the Longhorn attack was as daring and stirring as any ever flashed in the Southwest conference.

LIONS COP, 17-6

VERNON, Nov. 25.— Vernon High school's Lions defeated the powerful Frederick eleven here Thursday afternoon by a 17 to 6 score. Gelhausen and Shorty Key were the leading lights.

KEY TO HAPPINESS

AUSTIN, Nov. 25. (AP)—Highest happiness lies in the translation of truth into a living thing, was the keynote sounded in two principal addresses of the state B. Y. P. U. convention in session Thursday in the senate chamber of the state house.

If Wisconsin wins from Chicago, and Chicago closes its season without one victory, few, if any, letters will be awarded by Stagg.

PONIES SHADE FROGS, 14-13

Mann Passes 30 Yards To Dawson For Victory Rally

DALLAS, Nov. 25. (AP)—Wings which seemingly had been clipped spread in full strength during final minutes of the game to win an expected victory for the Southern Methodist University Mustangs of Dallas by the unexpectedly close score of 14 to 13 over the Texas Christian University Horned Frogs of Fort Worth here Thursday.

Mann's 30-yard heave to Dawson, who jerked free of two tacklers in running five yards to a touchdown followed by Mann's place kick conversion of the extra point gave victory to S. M. U. when seven minutes were left to play.

Christians In Hard Luck

The Frogs failure for the first time in two years to convert an extra point from a touchdown, robbed the team of a tie, and Wolf's failure in the fourth period to kick a field goal from directly in front of the posts on the 23-yard line cost them a victory.

The Frogs flashed their most imposive offensive of the game with the opening of the fourth period, driving the ball from their own territory to the 15-yard line before they were halted. Wolf dropped back for a placement try at a field goal, the ball going wide. The Methodists then launched their winning attack from their own 20-yard line, culminating their advance when Mann passed to Dawson for 35 yards and a touchdown, Mann place kicking the extra point.

Title Clinched

The Mustangs already had clinched the championship of the Southwest conference but in the Christians they opposed an unbeaten machine who would have clouded the S. M. U. title had they won. It was the final game of the season for each team, S. M. U. closing its campaign victorious in all five of the conference games in which the team has engaged. The Christians tied two, won one and lost one in four conference engagements.

Frogs Back Up.

While the Christians gave the Mustangs the biggest scare of the year, the Methodist machine outplayed the visitors by a considerable margin. Practically all the play was inside the Frog's 35-yard line. Repeatedly the Mustangs pushed inside the ten-yard line, sometimes to be held by a strong defense but more frequently to be deprived of the ball by breaks.

The Christians had few opportunities to score, but they capitalized most of their chances. They got the jump by scoring a touchdown in the first period, when B. Williams, full back, swept around the end of a fake play for 35 yards and a goal.

The Mustangs threatened repeatedly during the period and much of the next one before finally pushing over a touchdown, Mann going over to climax an offensive which started beyond mid-field. Mann place kicked the extra point. Before scoring, the Ponies had fumbled and lost the ball on their own six-yard line.

Shortly after, the Frogs jumped back into the lead when Clark, after returning a punt 18 yards to the 32-yard line, passed to B. Williams for a touchdown. Williams was clear of the field when he snared the bah. Cortemeglia blocked Clark's place kick for the extra point.

Ponies Menace.

The third and fourth periods saw the Mustangs threaten repeatedly but the game was drawing near its close before any of the threats materialized, and then unexpectedly. The Mustangs had started one of their numerous marches, and like its predecessors, seemed doomed to failure when the Ponies needed much yardage for a first down. A long pass was the play called, and Mann heaved 30 yards to Dawson, who made a difficult catch and a brilliant run for the touchdown. Mann converted the point.

The Mustagns were headed toward another touchdown when the game ended soon after. Coach Morrison sent in a drove of substitutes, and lead by Lynch, who displayed ability in a broken field, had marched from their own 20-yard line to the Frogs' 30-yard line when the game ended.

Matthews and Williams were towering figures for the Frogs, Matthews, an end, play displaying brilliance on defensive play. He, more than any other individual, virtually paralyzing the air attack the Mustangs had favored during most of the game.

The line-up:

T. C. U. 13	Position	S. M. U. 14
Matthews	Left end	Parks
Brewster	Left tackle	Brown
Evans	Left guard	Tatum
Washmon	Center	Ford
Wolf	Right guard	Daniel
Scarborough	Right tackle	Roach
Steadman	Right end	Dawson
Carson	Left half	Hume
H. Taylor	Right half	Cortemeglia
B. Williams	Fullback	Wade
Clark	Quarterback	Mann

Score by periods: T. C. U. 7, 6, 0, 0—13; S. M. U. 0, 7, 0, 7—14.

Summary: Scoring—Touchdowns, B. Williams 2, Mann, Dawson.

Points converted: Clark, Mann 2.

Colgate Scraps Brown To Draw

Iron Men Thwarted Thrice In Attempts to Break 10-10 Tie

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 25. (AP)—A rugged Colgate eleven, long a thorn in the side of Brown's championship aspirations in the many years of traditional rivalry, today in a thrilling 10-10 tie again smashed the Bear's hope of an undisputed claim to eastern gridiron supremacy.

The eleven men who had driven Brown to top ranking with nine straight victories this season, fought desperately for victory and unblemished record. But the fire that carried the team to smashing conquests over Harvard, Yale and Dartmouth, died in the face of Colgate's fierce defense, the Maroon's complete subjection of the vaunted Brown forward passing game and Mishel's failure to control his usually reliable toe when three field goal chances offered a chance to break the deadlock in the final period.

Not the least of Brown's troubles was the brilliant kicking of Dumont, husky Colgate guard, who time after time trotted into the back field to hoist twisting spirals 60 yards down the field. Matching Dumont's accomplishments, Williamson, the center twice fell back to drop kick Maroon points, once with a field goal from the 33-yard line.

History Repeats.

Just as history of last year repeated itself when the ancient rivals battled to a 14-14 tie, so were memories freshened of a similar Colgate feat ten years ago when Brown's march to a national title was halted in the final game by an under dog Colgate eleven.

Two spectacular dashes led directly to the Brown and Colgate touchdowns after Mishel had tied the score at three all early in the third period with a sharp angled field goal from the 35-yard line. Lawrence, brilliant Brown halfback, broke around the Maroon end for a sparkling 69-yard run.

Although he completed his journey to the goal line, Lawrence was called back to the seven-yard line where he had stepped outside in his mad race. Ransdall smashed over for the score and Mishel's kick of the point made his 22nd consecutive successful try of the season.

Pass Ties it Up.

The exultant roar of the Brown supporters massed in the 30,000 spectators that jammed the new Brown bowl had hardly died with the period when a neat ten-yard pass over the center of the line from Mehler to Brewer set the shifty Colgate back loose amid the Brown secondary defense. Cutting to the side lines, Brewer broke clear of the last man only to be dragged down from behind by Mishel on the seven-yard line, Shaughnessy needed four tries to carry the ball over.

The fury of the thwarted iron men broke loose in the final period as Colgate fought a dogged defense battle to hold the tie. Three times the Brown forwards drove Colgate back but each time a steadying defense sent Mishel back for the goal try that always failed, from the 20-yard line bounced back from the Colgate goal posts a miss by inches.

PLOWBOYS VICTORS

ARLINGTON, Nov. 25. (AP)—Long-whetted rivalry spurred both sides in the hard-fought game here Thanksgiving day in which the John Tarleton College Plowboys of Stephenville defeated the North Texas Aggies 13 to 0. Four downs were required by the Plowboys to put the ball over two yards for a touchdown in the first quarter and their second touchdown came in the third period, when they ran the ball down the field from the 45-yard line on off-tackle plays and end runs. Williams gained most of the ground, but Houghton put the ball over. Marr being another star performer for Tarleton.

DECATUR BAPTISTS SCAMPER THROUGH FOR HARD-EARNED VICTORY OVER LUDGATE MEN

Ford and Douglas Lead Invaders to 27-14 Win—Stephenson, Rugeley and Boyd Scintillate

BY R. O. JONAS

Wichita Falls Junior college dropped a hard-fought Turkey day battle to the powerful Decatur Baptist college eleven by the score of 27-14. While the Baptists earned almost three times the number of first downs won by their younger opponents, the larger part of the game was fought in midfield or in Decatur territory and the lighter and younger Maroon and Gold team repeatedly carried the attacking threat deep into Decatur defenses. The few times in which the Baptists did approach the local goal found the Wichita Falls team fighting hard and holding or throwing for losses the Baptist ball carriers.

Odd breaks, fumbles and intercepted passes kept the ball in mystery frequently, the breaks falling about equally to the two teams. Once Wichita Falls scored on a break and once Wichita Falls lost a heart-rending one which cost a score and perhaps the chance to tie the count later when a pass bounded out of a Maroon end's hands right on the goal with nothing to prevent a score. Wichita Falls gained far more ground than the first downs, Decatur 16 and Wichita Falls 6, indicate many good gains going to waste when just a little distance lacked on fourth down.

To pick stars would be impossible out of the array of good football talent available. Captain Stephenson of the Wichita Falls team performed like a veteran, while in the game. His injury early in the first period, no doubt meant the difference between possible victory and defeat, for when he got back into it during the second half the Baptists were promptly fighting with their backs to the wall and were forced to yield a touchdown. His spectacular 65-yard dash with the kick-off opening the second half, in which he shook off all tacklers but the safety, started a Maroon onslaught which crossed the goal before it stopped. But his injury soon forced him out again when his ankle refused to work.

Rugeley Flashes

Rugeley played a game far surpassing anything he has done and ran Steve a close second for honors of his backfield. He plunged the heavy Baptist line better than any other man, passed accurately, and handled the difficult defensive task in veteran fashion. McAnich also played the best game of his career on local football teams, plunging well, snatching passes, and kicking splendidly when Steve was out. Harvey and McConnell kept up a strong defensive game which frequently cut off Decatur thrusts through or around the line.

The whole Maroon line from end to end performed better than expected against the veteran Decatur forward wall. If any one is due honors from the line they should go to Jimmie Boyd, who not only took care of his side of the line but who frequently proved the man to stop Baptist thrusts that seemed free and a number of times got through to throw opposing ball-toters for negative results. Patterson at center, signal caller and real cog of the Indian forward wall, matched well the performance of his veteran opponent across the line and led the Maroon team in splendid fashion. Big boy Ricks well earned his letter by consistent hard play and by keeping his head up cheering on his mates when things looked bad. Thompson, Ford and Scoggin at ends and Burks and Gilchrist at tackle completed a well balanced line which performed on practically even terms with the more veteran line in front of them.

Ford Cuts Up

For the Baptists, a brilliant running quarterback tells the superiority of the Baptists over the Maroon team. Ford no doubt deserves the honor of the best individual ground gainer and the best quarterback seen on the local gridiron this year. His end runs were the means of practically all Decatur advances, with the exception of two fake passes out of three attempts, both good for touchdowns. The Baptists, by means of end arounds and tackle arounds, mixed up line and backfield pretty well to keep up a constant threat from many angles. Waller, Taylor and Christian formed a group of first-rate performers to support Ford, especially Taylor. Douglas, from end and sometimes called into the backfield, proved a consistent ground gainer and one of the hardest men to stop on the field. The entire Baptist line performed smoothly.

During the first quarter Decatur carried the greatest threat, seeming to stack up as a far much more seasoned and heavier team than the local eleven, but a furiously fighting Maroon team kept all visiting attacks from becoming really dangerous.

Early in the second period, with stunning suddenness came the first Decatur score. Decatur covered a Wichita Falls fumble, just when the local team seemed to be picking up to get the best of things, and on the next play Ford got through the Wichita Falls left side and sprinted 50 yards for a touchdown. Waller kicked goal. Soon after, while playing in Baptist territory again, Ford heaved a pass over to Eddings on the 40-yard line, with a clear field ahead for the score. The kick was low, making it 13-0. Wichita Falls then opened up with a 15-yard pass, Rugeley to McAninch, and soon after Ford picked up a kick which the Decatur quarter, also Ford, had failed to play when he misinterpreted the play and scored for Wichita Falls. A neat pass, Rugeley to McAninch, made it 13-7. On the first play after kick-off, Ford (the Baptist) passed to Douglas, who ran 40 yards more for touchdown. Douglas also kicked the point, making it 20-7 for Decatur.

Steve Gets Loose

Opening the third quarter Stephenson took the kick-off and ran through the entire Decatur team 65 yards before downed by the Decatur safety. Soon after, Steve's pass to Ford was dropped on the goal line with a score certain, a hard one for Ford to drop. A short time after, when Rugeley and Steve had plunged incessantly, Steve carried it over. A trick play made the Baptists' off-side and made the score 14-20. Wichita Falls threatened several times, but her hope went glimmering when Ford negotiated another furious twist and sprint of 47 yards for the final score. The extra kick made the score 27-14.

The fourth quarter was scoreless, both teams threatening. Decatur plunged down the field to the Wichita Falls 3-yard line, the only time throughout the game when the Baptist plunging attack worked near the local goal. But here Ludgate's lads staged a wonderful goal line stand of the story-book type and the fourth down found the best Decatur efforts pushed several yards further back than from where they started.

The game was marred somewhat by unnecessary roughness on the part of the Baptists, an ejection, a penalty, and numerous warnings from the referee apparently making little difference with the embryo preachers, who kept up a constant stream of profanity throughout the contest.

Clines, Harveys Shoot Big Game

8-Point Buck and Three Turkeys Bagged By Wichitans

The goddess of fortune smiled benignly on a party of Wichitans now hunting in Kerr county—or maybe it was just good hunting; but whatever the cause, Walter Cline, his oldest son, W. D. Jr., and two sons of R. O. Harvey, Ralph and Gene, did big business with their guns.

The elder Cline got an eight-point buck and the Harvey boys between them bagged three huge wild turkeys.

Pittsburgh Puts It On Penn State

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 25. (AP)—An embattled University of Pittsburgh Panther lowered its football curtain here today with a smashing 24-6 victory over the Penn State Lion in the annual Thanksgiving day tilt before a throng of nearly 45,000.

The beasts of Mount Nittany rated as the under dog and thirsty to break Pitts' six-year winning streak fought like true jungle denizens in the first three periods when they completely outplayed the Panther clan at one of the best aerial attacks seen here this season. In the final period, however, the defense of Hugo Bezdek's warriors crumbled under an onslaught which enabled the opposing eleven to pile up 17 of the 24 points.

MONTANA GETS LICKING.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 25.(AP)—Montana university's weak line was splintered to fragments here today and the University of Southern California football team sifted and plunged through it for one of the heaviest scores it ever has chalked up against a conference team, 61 to 0. BLACK LEADS CATS TO WIN ON BURK GRID

Bulldogs Go Down Fighting Before Archer City, 27 to 0

BY BLONDY CROSS

Swirling off-tackle brushes by Black, powerful plunges by Morrison and Lewis and sharp jabs at the line by Hutcheson and Larkin swept the fighting little Burkburnett Bulldogs down to 27-0 defeat Thursday on the wind-tossed Burk gridiron in district one class B semi-final play. Coach Wilson's Wildcats thereby won the right to meet the speedy Decatur eleven in the finals next week.

Black, with a shifty' swerving drive, running low and cutting across when once past the line of scrimmage, was the outstanding performer of the affray. However, Archer City's powerful backs were abetted nobly by Spann and Gholson on one side of the forward wall and Cross and Powell on the other side, this quartet smashing wide gaps in the sturdy Burkburnett defense for the fleeting Wildcat ball carriers to dart through.

On defensive play, Solomon and Robertson proved a strong barrier to the Burk advance.

With Capt. Johnny McDonald, Mitchell Wolfe, Hickam and Tiffin injured early in the game and taken from the field, the Bulldogs were sorely handicapped. Nevertheless, Coach Eaton's lads displayed a sheer nerve and grit that at times came near to tearing the advantage from their opponents where strength and brawn had failed. Especially did Speck Gilmore at a wing and Roy Woods on a guard carry on Burkburnett's fight. This pair, playing on opposite sides of the line, loomed head and shoulders over their mates in defensive work.

Burk Flashes At Start.

The Bulldogs opened with a rush. Plunges by Wolfe and McDonald along with a charge around end by McDonald put the ball in Archer City territory, but the Burk advance halted when Wolfe fumbled a poor pass from center and Hutcheson recovered. From there to the final whistle it was just too much Black. The Wildcat quarter scampered through wide breaches ripped in the Burk forward defense by Spann and Gholson, carrying through almost to the goal line on a series of stabs. Lewis plunged to within shooting distance and then Woods stopped Black on Burk's three-yard line on fourth down, the ball going to Burk just before the quarter closed.

Early in the second period, Wilson's proteges advanced up field on a series of plunges and off-tackle plays with Black doing the bulk of the running. With it Archer's ball and first down, eight yards from the goal Wolfe stopped Hutcheson for no advance. Then Woods halted Black again. Archer City was penalized five yards on the play for offside. Black dropped back, took the ball from center and uncorked a short pass to Larkin who chased the remaining few yards for a touchdown. Try for extra point failed.

Lewis Goes Over.

Burk received and plunges by McDonald and Wolfe scored a brace of first downs but a few seconds later Hull recovered a Burk fumble and the Wildcats launched another steady advance to the goal. Lewis ripped off a series of long gains and Black tagged 13 yards on a dash' over tackle, working the ball 11 yards from the goal on a first down. One attempt at the line failed, then Black went over Burk's left tackle and cut back for a nine-yard gain. Lewis bucked through for the score. Morrison place-kicked the extra point, making the count 13 to 0, Archer City.

The third period went scoreless with Burk's midget backs, Willingham, Griffin, Moore and Dilbeck threatening but falling a wee bit short of the scoring punch.

An exchange of punts placed the ball deep in Burk territory and in Archer City's possession just before the quarter ended. A sharp run by Larkin carried to the 15-yard line. On the first play in the fourth period, Morrison rammed over Burk's left tackle for the touchdown. Morrison kicked the extra point again.

Shortly before the tilt came to a finish, Black, Morrison and Lewis took turn about rushing the Burk line on a steady march to the goal and Lewis took turn about rushing the Burk line on a steady march to the goal with Lewis carrying the oval over. Morrison put on the finishing touches with a place-kick that barely scraped over the bar.

The line-ups:

Archer City	0	13	0	14	—27

Baylor's Bruins Stop Rice Owls In Stiff Contest

Score of 9 to 7 Gives Wacoites Victory In Hard Tilt Thanksgiving

HOUSTON, Nov. 25.(AP)—On the winged heels of Weir Washam, Baylor's flashing quarterback, the Golden Bears sped to a 9 to 7 victory over a determined but unavailing Rice Owl at the institute field Thursday afternoon. The battle marked the end of the season for both teams.

It was Washam's sprint from mid-field to the Owls' 11-yard line in the first period that paved the way for the Bears' first score, while it was two equally brilliant plays that placed the ball in position for Morris' field goal in the fourth quarter.

Just before the third period ended Washam made a 25-yard return of one of Heavy Underwood's punts after recovering at mid-field. At the start of the fourth installment of the engagement Washam repeated the play of the opening quarter. Knifing through Rice's right tackle, he reversed the secondary and sprinted to the Owls' three-yard line, where he went out of bounds.

Rice Line Firm.

Here the Rice line made a determined stand. Two lunges by Big Ox Keyes failed to puncture the forward wall, and on an attempted end play Blondy Roberts threw Kelley for a three-yard loss, but the scrimmage had put the ball squarely in front of the goal posts, and on the fourth down Morris booted the ball between the uprights.

At the time the field goal was made the Owls were leading 7 to 6.

In the third period the Owls, taking advantage of a break, made their first touchdown of their conference season.

Underwood had punted, and the ball bounced against Washam's leg. Loughridge recovered for the Owls on the Bears' 25-yard line. Three forward passes were grounded, and the Owls were penalized ten yards. On the fourth down, a double pass behind the line, with a fling from Schroeder to Hocuil was completed when the Rice halfback made a miraculous catch, the play putting the ball on the Bears' five-yard line. Hocuil, on an off tackle dash, found an opening between Porter and Coates and gained three yards. Comstock then took up the advance, and in two efforts charged the ball over the line.

The Owls played almost listlessly in the first period. The Bear backs werd gaining repeatedly through the line, while the Baptist forwards were smothering the Rice offensive efforts before the play was well started. In this quarter the invaders recorded seven first downs, while Rice registered none.

But in the last three periods the Owls had the advantage in downs, eight to six, and kept the Bears playing a defensive game most of the route.

The line-ups:

Baylor	Po.	Rice.
Coates	Left End.	Joseph
Porter	Left Tackle.	Knipple
Weed	Left Guard. Center.	Blackstone
Riley	Right Guard	Carmichael
Taylor	Right Tackle.	Hyder
Halley	Right End.	Roberts
Washam	Quarter.	Schroeder
Morris (c)	Left Half.	Hochuli
Noble	Right Half.	Comstocu
Keyes	Full Back.	Herting

Score by quarters:

Baylor	3	0	0	6	9
Rice	0	0	7	0	7

Quaker Rally Averts Defeat

Cornell Battles Red and Blue Eleven to 10-10 Score

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 25.(AP)—Pennsylvania and Cornell teams battled to a 10-10 deadlock in their Thanksgiving day football game on Franklin field.

The Pennsylvanians outplayed until the last period, and with the score 10 to 0, against them, suddenly took a tremendous brace and swept Cornell from her feet. The recovery from what seemed a listless game on the part of the Red and Blue was startling to the Pennsylvania and Cornell rooters alike and with the score a tie the Quakers were battling desperately to break the deadlock when the final whistle blew.

Eighty thousand persons saw the battle, the largest crowd that ever saw a football game in this city. All tickets were five dollars each and it is believed that the "gate," estimated at nearly $400,000 was the largest ever taken in at a football game.

Each team scored a touchdown and field goal. The spectacular plays of the game were a forward pass, Balderston to Bolinet, which gained 30 yards for Cornell and led to her touchdown, and a 65-yard run by Fullback Wascolonis of Pennsylvania, for a touchdown.

Molinet scored Cornell's touchdown and Captain Carey kicked the point after touchdown and made a placement kick in the third period. Paul Scull kicked Penn's field goal.

Pennsylvania's touchdown was the only one she scored in the last four contests and for the third successive game it was Paul Scull's toe that either won or saved Pennsylvania from defeat. The tie score was the second in the long history of Pennsylvania-Cornell Thanksgiving day football games, the only other tie occurring 20 years ago when neither team scored.

Dugan, Newest Bantam Menace, Hardest Mauler to Figure Out

By ROY GROVE

Up from the south there comes the newest menace to the bantam weight crown. He's Leroy Dougan, who has licked everyone the champions have met and in a more pleasing style.

Dougan is the hardest battler to dope out who ever crowled through the strings. You watch him in the gym, look at him on the street, talk to him, get everything all set but pouring the gravy and then something creeps over you to make you foolish.

What it is nobody seems to know. There's no fancy stuff for Leroy, he just takes a sock and steps back lightly and the dope and his opponent look ridiculous. He's got "it," whatever that "it" is. Don't ask Dougan, like we did, he'll tell you to use your noodle, like he does, upsetting some more of your dope.

No referee has ever given a count over him and he has fought the best of the survivors. Dougan beat Pal Moore at his own game, twice; that's something to begin with, isn't it? Also Tommy Ryan, that's something else, very much; Kid Lencho and a host of entertainers who were doped to push the lad over the posts.

* * *

And Ryan Is Good.

When anyone licks Tommy Ryan they are going some, and that's this story. The last time we saw Tommy it was in a mix-up with Bud Taylor at Louisville, during the Kentucky Derby and Bud was traveling some that night.

"I have never had a tough fight," remarks the lad in his southern brawl. "They're all easy. I have taken some punches but I have never though of getting licked. I know if there is anyone anywhere near my size and weight he is going to have a hot time. My style; I never thought I had a style; just natural, I suppose. Hadn't paid much attention to it until you spoke of it.

"Just watch the hand of the other fellow and you will know what the racket is all about; that's all he has to hit you with and that is all you need to watch. These boring-in type of fighters, most of them are in the bantam class, and the faster they come the better I like it.

"The greatest kick I get out of the game is watching the other fellow miss. I am not so crazy about smacking them out. They just drop and the fight is over. If I had my way about the battles I have fought I would just like to side step every blow aimed at me in the ring. It's either me that's going to look foolish or them.

* * *

Just Be Calm.

"Then there's another thing," Dougan begins to open up, "I can't get this idea of a fellow getting mad in a ring. I have had them come at me like bulls. Oh, boy, so fired mad they could kill my whole family. I like to see them like that, then they get easy.

"The fellow who stands off and disregards your boxing and punching ability is the bloke who gets my goat. He belittles me into thinking I'm a punk. If I can get a guy thinking like that he'll go out of the picture the next round. Either belittle him or get him mad.

"Those two factors have ruined more fighters than any punch in the game, and if you will just reflect back a little you'll find that it is those two essentials that made all the champions in the game.

"Benny Leonard was that way as well as Kilbane and the new champion, Gene Tunney. You couldn't fuss any one of those boys for a second and those kind of guys last a long time, records show. The same holds true of Bud Taylor. He's a hard boy to figure and his headiness is the real reason for his success.

"The flighty ones don't last. If they do it's only for the next guy."

Syracuse Rips Columbia, 19-2

Hanson and Archoska Top Field In Victory Drive

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.(AP)—Under the impetus of two powerful wings, Syracuse swooped over the Polo Grounds this afternoon to its fourt successive gridiron triumph at the expense of Columbia, 19 to 2.

Captain Vic Hanson and Julius Archoska, ends of orange eleven led the triumphant dash contributing to all of Syracuse's three touchdowns.

Hanson brought off a spectacular 20-yard dash for the first. Syracuse touchdown in the opening period after a long punting duel between Reiger of Columbia and Bayley of Syracuse. Cook failed to add the extra point.

The second and third touchdowns followed in quick succession after the opening of the second quarter. Columbia halted Syracuse's aerial march on its five-yard line only to have Captain Madden fumble on an attempt to rush the ball out of the danger zone. Archoska got the ball and lugged it across for the second touchdown.

Once more Columbia frustrated Cook's try for the extra point. On the third play after the next kick-off, Captain Hanson recovered a blocked punt on Columbia's 25-yard line and stiff armed a half dozen tacklers to reach the Columbia goal line, but the play was called back to the 20-yard mark where it was ruled he had stepped out of bounds. On the next play, Barbuti skirted Columbia's right end for 18 yards, being thrown out of bounds near the end zone. A line smash by Clark took the ball over. Whippet Carr, injured Syracuse backfield star was rushed in the line-up to make good the additional point on a placement kick.

Nitros to Tackle Winners of Coyote-Lubbock Game

CISCO, Nov. 25. (AP)—Ranger high school won the championship of district 2 in the interscolastic race here Thanksgiving day by defeating Cisco 3 to 0.

The game was fought out in a typical West Texas sandstorm, making it impossible for the Lobo punters to get yardage and barely allowing Mills of the Ranger team to kick a field goal.

Ranger will play the winner of the Wichita Falls-Lubbock game of next Saturday for the bi-district championship.

SPORT a la CARTE

BY ROY GROVE

Charlie Hoff, of Norway, the young gentleman so much in question over a certain amateur standing, has been denied all the world records he hung up in pole vaulting during the past winter.

This is the action taken by the Amateur Athletic union officials.

It strikes us as a very severe situation and someone will be made to answer for it after the news is discussed.

Hoff worked hard all winter long and made many record-breaking marks with amateur clubs allied with the Amateur Athletic union. This was the only way he would work and it seems most ungrateful of the officials, to say the least.

All Hoff's records were made in actual competition and under the most careful and cautious conditions. There were times when these very officers or their representatives went to a great deal of trouble to measure the exact height so records could be established.

Hoff received a great deal of credit for these records and tons of publicity came forth with due credit to the A. A. U. Many people paid good money to see these records made and were previously thrilled to think they were paying to see Hoff establish a new record for the coming evening.

* * *

Now these folks find they have been humswaggled. That the records made were nothing but a sham. It is the ruling.

The Amateur Athletic union capitalized Hoff's skill as a pole advertised in his record flight. Hoff was an amateur and, under amateur ruling, receiving nothing in comparison to the benefits the A. A. U. derived from his tour of the country.

The whole affair seems unjust. His records have been absolutely ignored which to me is a gross reflection on the honesty of the Athletic union. Hoff came over here at the invitation of the union and as an amateur of high standing. All his records were made under that supervising body.

Hoff blames his suit for the action of the A. A. U. He is suing them for $500,000. The trouble rose when he was charged with violating a contract, when he failed to show for a set of games arranged by the A. A. U. in California. However, they must be recognized some time, as the records were made when he was in good standing with the association.

* * *

He would like to see N. Y. U. or Brown and line up against one of their unbeaten elevens. The type and style of the game would be as interesting as the result.

The east is beginning to realize there is something out there worth while. California, Southern California, Stanford, Washington and the like, are powerful elevens, when one mentions great football teams.

"They beat each other out there and must be plenty good to do that. An unbeaten coast squad could just about clean up everything in the east," is the way one of the best of eastern coaches puts it.

Out there they give Walter Camp the credit for starting something in football, although they have the best the east could produce working now.

Camp went out to Stanford some years ago and put the Yale system into being. He met with great success and Stanford established a long string of victories over the University of California, which was a bigger university.

* * *

The officials agreed that the only way to stop humiliation was to get a Yale man like Stanford did and Yale sent out Butterworth, famous as a Blue quarterback, but he only succeeded socially. He was followed by Heffelfinger. The giant Heff immediately put on his togs and went to work slamming the boys around the lot in true Yale style.

Heffelfinger actually had to take every one of the boys and let them dive into him head first before he could get over the idea that the game was one that should be held for no fear.

That started the eastern ball rolling out in California. Camp was still strong for them and about that time Princeton whipped Yale, so California sent for a Princeton man. Cochrane was captain at the time and so the thing to do was to get the newest thing in eastern ideas, so away went Cochrane. He produced a winning team with all the spirit of Princeton.

Since that time the west has been quick to adopt eastern methods and specialize in new tricks. The middlewest has been strong to adopt new methods where the east wouldn't tolerate them. It took Iowa, several years ago, to beat Yale, followed by Chicago winning over Princeton, and Notre Dame stopping West Point.

COWBOYS CHAMPS

Simmons Defeats Howard Payne Eleven by 13-6 Score.

BROWNWOOD, Nov. 25. (AP)—Around 7000 fans saw the Simmons university Cowboys from Abilene win the Texas association championship with a 13 to 6 victory over the Howard Payne Yellow Jackets here Thanksgiving day. A special train brought 600 Abilene rooters and the remainder of the "atmosphere" was furnished by a West Texas sandstorm which raged throughout the game.

The Jackets drew first blood when Boyd place-kicked goal from the 20-yard line early in the second quarter. The half ended with Howard Payne still in the lead 3 to 0. Early in the third the Jackets added another three points. The lead was wiped out soon afterward when Cox of Simmons intercepted a pass and ran 35 yards for a touchdown, Hyde kicking goal. About the middle of the final period Hyde intercepted a pass and ran 60 yards for six more points.

HARD ON PROPHETS

That sly gentleman commonly known as Mr. Dope caught a few kicks in the pants Turkey day and narrowly avoided getting the seat of his breeches burned out. Pre-game prognostications meant very little as a majority of the nation's elevens made their last grand gestures of the year.

* * *

The Brown Bear, nomered this season the "Iron Men," ran into unexpectedly stubborn resistance in Colgate and struggled through with a 10-10 tie marring an otherwise brilliant season. The Bear had been picked to win, 20 to 0.

* * *

Pittsburgh's jinx over Penn State held up, the Lions falling before a 24 to 6 score. A majority of guessers had picked Pittsburgh in the first place. The writer guessed with Penn. Perhaps next time he will string with the majority.

* * *

Syracuse, chosen to tumble Columbia by a 10-0 score, went a touchdown better, winning, 19 to 2.

* * *

Pennsylvania, selected to nose out Cornell, 7-0(was held to a 10-10 deadlock. Your prophet these days has no honor anywhere, much less in his home town. So much for the important frolics in the east.

* * *

TULSA SURPRISES

In the south Tulsa university kicked Arkansas over, 14 to 7. The Porkers should have won by two or three touchdowns. 'Twas an exceptionally dirty upset. Alabama ran true to form, walloping Georgia, 33 to 6. That was better than expected.

* * *

The southwest saw no upsets but came so very near to it that Old Man Dope was kept on edge throughout the various battles. S. M. U., picked to beat the Frogs, 13 to 3, skimped through on the Christians for a 14-13 victory.

LONGHORNS HOLD UP

Texas, selected to defeat the Aggies by a 14-7 score, didn't agree with the prophecy, so it beat the Farmers, 14 to 5. That was a terrible guess.

* * *

The pre-game Baylor-Rice score was 7-0 Baylor. However, the Bears were hard-pressed to down the Owls, 9 to 7.

* * *

The Oklahoma Aggies were predicted a three-point victory over Oklahoma university, but the Sooners battled the Farmers to a 14-14 tie.

* * *

Nebraska should have defeated Washington by two touchdowns, according to the dope, but the Pacific coast eleven came through on top, 10 to 6.

* * *

The Decatur Baptists, chosen to defeat Wichita Falls junior college by a 12-point margin, scored 13 points more than the Indians.

* * *

Archer City was the favorite in the Burkburnett game but the Wildcats' 27-0 victory came as a surprise. Wilson's men were rated a touchdown or so stronger than the Bulldogs.

* * *

THAT "FIGHT"

When the fight game in Wichita Falls will be placed back on the plane it stood more than a year ago appears more and more a question that cannot be answered. The sport(?) practically was dead prior to the Tramel-"Dempsey" debacle Wednesday night. Then Wednesday it turned up its toes for a surety and passed right on out. It's doubtful if "Wild Bill" ever had a glove on before unless it was a riding glove or a cotton work glove worn by many plough hands and section workers. Duke, it is said, in reality held Bill up through the first round but became bored in the second frame and during a moment of laxity let him fall down.

THANKS

Among other things Thursday we were thankful for even if it was a heavy day from a sports angle and this writer had to stick pretty close to the old grind occurred during the dinner hour. We were ramming down a hurried nonetheless enjoyable lunch preparatory to chasing over to the Burk-Archer City melee. The scene was a downtown restuarant. Half way through the repast we made a mistake of looking up and glancing across to the opposite counter. There we beheld a comely malden stowing away in large hunks a hefty slice of chocolate cake with a beef steak knife. Many folks are more or less adept at shoveling in the nourishment with the cutting utensils instead of a fork or perhaps spoon, but this young lady was not so proficient. She handled the sharpened instrument quite awkwardly and it appeared was on the verge any second of coming to great harm. We sat there aghast, as it were, prepared at a second's notice to render first aid treatment, but the alarm was false. Somehow or other she rocked through the ordeal unscathed, whereupon we gave up fervent thanks. The sight of blood usually has quite an ill effect on us, especially during a meal.

ARMY VS. NAVY GRID FEATURE FOR SATURDAY

Navy Favored to Win But Fans Also Sing Praise of Army Team

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.(AP)—In a dripping fog which overhung the city, football squads of the United States military and naval academies came to Chicago today and viewed the huge stadium where 100,000 persons will watch them battle Saturday.

The navy squad detrained at the Englewood suburban station, and went from its hotel to Soldiers field to get its bearings. The men ran up and down the field a few times, and then went to the hotel Windermer for the Thanksgiving dinner that awaited them.

Army Fans Arrive.

The Army contingent, reaching the city on the heels of the Midshipment also quit its train outside the business district to avoid the ovation which was waiting downtown and was taken late in the afternoon to see the scene of Saturday's game. Then the Cadets hastened to the south shore country club, not to emerge until they start to the stadium Saturday.

Tomorrow morning the student bodies of the two schools will arrive to find themselves in the center of two days of festivity occasioned by the game. They will take part tomorrow in the dedication of Soldiers field, at which Vice-President Charles G. Dawes will make the principal address

Governors, senators, cabinet officials and other notable guests will come to the city tomorrow. Many of them will attend the dinner dance tendered tomorrow night by the city to the visiting service men of the two schools.

Other guests at the game will be coaches and football teams from several institutions, the latter being thus rewarded for hard work and the former making the game an aftermath to the annual western conference schedule meeting here Friday.

Reports that counterfeit tickets are floating about the city for the contest drew today from officials the news that they long since prepared to combat the use of bogus certificates of admission. A hundred expert engravers will stand at the gates to pass judgment on tickets of doubtful authencity.

Chicago for Army.

Despite the navy's defeatless season and the tendency of the "experts" to regard it as a favorite, Chicago sentiment favors the army and betting odds are in the Cadets favor though only slightly.

Mayor William E Dever met, both football squads today and assured them of the city's desire to make their stay a pleasant one. Army fans were scouting about tonight for a mule to symbolize the Cadet host at the game. The navy, more fortunate, is bringing its goat along and if the favored animal suffers from the trip several navy adherents here are prepared to substitute animals which they are holding in leash.

BURK CAGERS WIN

National Guard Quintet Goes Down In Hard Game.

The basketball squad of the headquarters company, Texas national guard, stationed here, played the teachers team of the Burkburnett High school Wednesday night at the Burkburnett High school court. A very good game was played in view of the fact that neither team had had any workouts to amount to anything, and the Army team used some men who virtually had not played at all before. The first half ended with a score of four to five for the Burks. Burkburnett took the long end of the 8-18 final score.

The headquarters team expects to enter the city league.

PEACOCK BEATS DUMMIES

AUSTIN, Nov. 25. (AP)—The Peacock military academy of San Antonio romped through the State Deaf and Dumb Institute eleven here today with a score of 17 to 6. The visitors outclassed the dummies in every phase of the game.

WHOLE TEAM.

Capt. Jack Lorch, of the Columbia basketball team, which won the intercollegiate league championship last year, was the only player to report to Coach Dan Meenan, among the 31 candidates on the first day of practice. However, Jack Rothenfeld, all-league forward, is expected to report later.

Leroy Garrison will make his first professional appearance in New York at the six-day race next month. Garrison won the all-round amateur championship last summer.

Bugs Raymond Was Most Ludicrous Ball Player

BY GEORGE MORIARTY

Bugs Raymond, the eccentric spitball star of 20 years ago, once proved that a good intention can have a very bad ending. Bugs was one of the famous playboys of baseball. Like his illustrious prototype, "Rube" Waddell, Bugs got a big kick out of pulling ludicrous stunts on and off the ball field, and therefore, was a source of worry to every manager he worked for.

The strictest penalties seldom made the intended impressions upon Raymond. He became good for a while, and then reverted to his happy-go-lucky ways. But he could pitch gilt-edged baseball, and his erratic make-up was tolerated for that reason.

* * *

Bill Byron, the ex-National league umpire, who several years ago discarded the indicator, unfolded this unusual tale about Raymond. "I was umpiring in the South Atlantic league several years ago," said Byron, "and Raymond was pitching for Savannah in that circuit. Leaving the park after a game one day, Raymond invited me to dine and spend the evening with him. At first, I flatly refused because umpires and ballplayers seldom indulge socially. Bugs, however, explained the situation by saying that he had promised to pitch a double-header the following day, and wanted to keep out of mischief, so I consented to go along with him.

"After dinner, following a suggestion from Bugs, we went to a big amusement park that offered games and pleasure devices as attractions. The magnet that caught Bugs' fancy was the merry-go-round. In his boyish glee, he bought a ticket, and pulled a Douglass Fairbanks in mounting one of the wooden horses. Everything went well till the fellow began whirling the device which held the brass ring. Bugs knew that the rider who grabbed the ring was entitled to a free ride, and each time around he lunged at it like an outfielder going after a line drive.

"'I'll get it the next time around,' he yelled to me after several futile attempts to snare the brass loop. In preparation for the next effort to clutch the ring, Bugs was leaning far out of his stirrups when suddenly the rider directly in front of him, calmly reached out and grabbed the ring. Bugs, however, had started his desperate lunge at the device, and his right thumb became so lodged in the hole which held the ring, that he sustained a clean break of that member.

* * *

"The manager of the club was at first inclined to doubt Bugs' story of the accident, but Byron came to the rescue as an eye witness, and the eccentric pitcher was neither chastised nor fined. Bugs didn't pitch for over a month, and during the interim, he proclaimed to the wide world that he was through with merry-go-rounds for the rest of his life."

Yaqui Takes On Chief Wow Wow

Grip Battles Vincent Next Week In Twin Main Event

Another one of these mixed type of wrestling bouts is billed for the Majestic next week under direction of the Wichita Falls wrestling association, it was announced yesterday. However, the announcer did not admit the battle would be of the "mixed" variety. But one can draw his own conclusions when he is told Yaqui Joe, the Sonora Indian, tangles with Chief Wow Wow, the Oklahoma Indian, in a finish match.

Wow Wow has shown himself a rather smart, exceptionally speedy grappler in matches on the local mat, but he has not displayed to Wichita Falls fans his boxing talents. And Wow Wow has 'em. The Sooner matman took up fighting little more than a year ago and developed into a classier glovester than many who have appeared on Wichita Falls' fight cards. He ranks with such biffers as Speedy Sparks and the coterie of Oklahoma slammers who have been cavorting in the state just across the Red river the past several months.

Yaqui has displayed his boxing ability more than once here and there is little doubt but that if given a free reign against Wow Wow he will mix his wrestling with fighting. In that case, the melee should prove a rough and tumble affair for Wow Wow can step fistically with the best of 'em.

Matchmaker A. Ross says he will present a double main event with Charley Grip tackling the hefty Jack Vincent of Lawton in the other bout. The Grip-Vincent affair is to be to a finish, also.

KANGAROOS WIN

Austin Routs Southwestern Pirates By 18-6 Score

SHERMAN, Nov. 25. (AP)—The Austin college Kangaroos defeated the Pirates of Southwestern university 18 to 6, here Thanksgiving day. It was the only conference victory for the Kangaroos and forced the Pirates into the cellar with out a game won. Nelson, Kangagoo half, playing his last college game, starred for Austin, making a 58-yard run and three touchdowns. Brannen took a short pass from Blackburn in the third quarter and scored a touchdown for Southwestern. A high wind made punting and passing difficult.

Austin college made 10 first downs to 5 by Southwestern.

MIDDIES OFF FOR CHI

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 25.(AP) Sixteen hundred midshipmen entrained at 1:20 p. m. today for Chicago, with two bands, a bugle corps and the navy goat. The goat, destined to bleat defiance to Army's mule on Soldiers' field Saturday had a baggage car all his own. The Middies, divided equally between the Baltimore and Ohio and Pennsylvania railroads, occupied 66 sleepers. Rifles and equipment were shipped on the same trains.

TWO SEASONS.

Randolph V. I. Miller of Homer, N. Y., was elected captain of the Amherst football team for next year. Miller has played two seasons with the Little Three champions, winning his letters at guard and center, and is a letter man in track at weight events.

HUSKERS HALTED

SEATTLE, Nov. 25. (AP)—The University of Washington football team defeated the University of Nebraska football team here today, 19 to 6. With only 10 seconds to play Howell failed to dive over the line for a touchdown for the Corn Huskers after they had pushed the pigskin to Washington's three-yard line. Nebraska had marched from its own 20-yard line.

TRINITY TIGERS WHIP TEACHERS

Two Touchdowns Coupled With Safety Bring Victory To Trinity

DENTON, Nov. 25. (AP)—Trinity university defeated North Texas State Teachers college 14 to 7 in the final game of the season for both teams here Thanksgiving day. Trinity's two touchdowns came through a pass to Allen and a line plunge by Whitaker. Goal was not kicked either time, but the Tigers made two additional points on a safety when Browning, Teacher half, was tackled behind his own goal line.

The Teachers' touchdown came when Captain Carl Miller, veteran end, blocked a punt, and Thompson, North Texas tackle, grabbed the ball and ran 25 yards for the counter. A record crowd watched the game in a sandstorm which kept the field in a haze.

GREENVILLE 7, SHERMAN 0

GREENVILLE, Nov. 25. (AP)—Greenville High school defeated Sherman High 7 to 0 here Thanksgiving day when Polk, Greenville half, intercepted a pass on his own 15-yard line and ran 85 yards for a touchdown in the fourth quarter.

Why the U.S.N. Dirigible "Los Angeles" cruises with

ETHYL

THE UNITED STATES NAVY is using Ethyl Gasoline as the fuel for its dirigible "Los Angeles" . . . because Ethyl Gasoline prevents "knocking" and thereby maintains the power of the huge airship's motors under all the conditions of cruising.

Sustained power depends upon maximum R. P. M. (revolutions of a motor per minute). When "knocking" begins, the revolutions drop . . . with loss of power, and risk of control and the safety of the ship.

The motor of your automobile, like the motor of an airship, is designed to deliver a certain number of revolutions per minute to give maximum power and response under all conditions. As carbon forms, that "knock" occurs, the motor revolutions drop and power is lost on hills and pick-up in traffic.

Humble Ethyl Gasoline will knock out that "knock" in your motor, just as it does in an airplane engine . . . and the carbon that causes that "knock" will become the means of still more power . . . because carbon increases pressure . . . and increased pressure means increased power.

Humble Ethyl Gasoline has no substitute as an "anti-knock" fuel. No other fuel is comparable. It was developed after years of research by General Motors. It has passed every test. Try it today.

Boston Man Seeks Rehearing In Fight Against Extradition

AUSTIN, Nov. 25. (AP) — Charles Ponzi's motion for rehearing before the court of criminal appeals Wednesday was set for December 22. The court has held that Ponzi must be returned to Massachusetts to serve a sentence of from seven to nine years as a "common and notorious theif."

Ponzi is in the Harris county jail, where he has been for several months during the fight against extradition. His attorney, H. E. Kahn of Houston was here.

Mr. Kahn has announced that Ponzi's fight, as a final appeal, would be taken to the U. S. supreme court.

A Grocery Clerk Who Became Successful

As little Tommy Lipton, then only 11 years old, the now famous Sir Thomas Lipton, began work as a messenger boy in Glasgow, Scotland—running errands, sweeping out the shop, helping to wash the windows; for the sum of four shillings a week—he began laying the keel for the Shamrock. At the time Sir Thomas got his first position as a messenger boy, he was living with his mother and father in the tenement section of Glasgow city, on Rutherglen Road. "They were fine, wee houses," Sir Thomas said, "two rooms and a kitchen—12 pounds a year." Humble, hard days they were, with never enough to eat, but fine days nevertheless, so Sir Thomas says. "Some day," mother," cried Tommy Lipton, the messenger boy, "some day, I'll buy you a carriage and you can ride in it like a great lady. And you'll have a bonnie house and a servant to wait on you, too. You won't have to soil your fingers. I'll work so hard mother. Just you wait and see."

SIR THOMAS LIPTON

And later to a friend, young Tommy Lipton, then 13, said, "Some day I mean to be the largest provision merchant in the whole world."

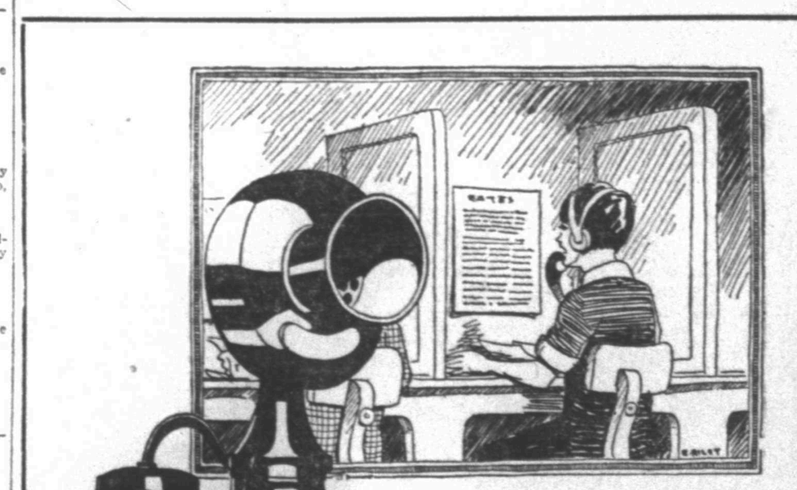

Sir Thomas Lipton, when telling of his successes, is proud to state that the impelling motive of his life was his mother. She was his inspiration, and gave him the grit and ambition which carried him on from one success to another.

As a stowaway in the hull of a ship, when Tom was only 14, he left Glasgow for America, which to him was the land both of liberty and of opportunity. He traveled all through the states, generally without tickets, usually "riding the rods." He was looking for an opportunity. As a clerk in a big store in New Orleans, and later among the rice fields of Carolina, he had several hard and disappointing years, so he once more shipped as a stowaway, this time on board a steamer running from Charlestown to New York.

It was his dream to amass sufficient money to take him back to Scotland and there start a business which would be profitable and to lift his parents out of poverty. When finally he was able to get together $500, he bought a ticket back to Scotland, and when only 13 years old—after the most trying experiences throughout the United States—he started a little grocery shop in Glasgow.

Sir Thomas Lipton's success since then is known throughout the world—4 shillings a week at the age of 11, a millionaire before he was 30. His is a grocery clerk's career with a vengeance.

CITY OBSERVES QUIET THANKSGIVING CELEBRATION

BUSINESS AT STANDSTILL; SPORTS RULE

High Wind and Sandstorm Makes Things Grimy In Afternoon

Wichita Falls took its Thanksgiving turkey with a liberal accompaniment of dust and wind Thursday, but the obstreperous elements distracted but little from the solemnity of a day that was observed quietly and thoroughly here.

Churches in which special Thanksgiving services were held drew good sized crowds to the morning hours. At the First Presbyterian church, where Rev. Townsend of the Lamar Avenue Baptist church delivered the sermon, a crowd that nearly filled the big auditorium was present. Many ministers of the city took part in the service, which included prayers, music and the address of the spirit, meaning an observance of Thanksgiving day, which Rev. Townsend delivered. Music was led by Alva Willgus.

Churches Filled

Other churches which held special services reported good sized crowds and inspirational messages.

The city generally was closed up for the day. Most of the business houses, the banks, of course, the office buildings and public offices of the city and county had locked doors throughout the day. The post office was closed except for handling of special delivery mail.

In the afternoon, the Junior college-Decatur football battle drew a big throng to Spudder park, while at the same time a number of Wichitans journeyed to Burkburnett for the Burkburnett-Archer City dispute. A scattering of sport fans from this city went to Dallas for the S. M. U.-T. C. U. game and there was a good representation at the Longhorn-Aggie clash in Austin.

Bad Weather

The day was not particularly inviting from a climatic point of view. The morning hours were hot and sultry, but at noon a roaring south wind heavy laden with dust descended and covered the whole territory with a grimy, gritty blanket. The wind prevailed until about 4 o'clock when it died about as suddenly as it appeared. The skies cleared but the temperature was high.

TOWNSEND DELIVERS THANKSGIVING SERMON

Declaring that America owed her physical wealth and prosperity to our avowed faith in God and that the hope of the future of this nation rests with the loyalty we continue to have for God, the Rev. W. H. Townsend, pastor of the Lamar Avenue Baptist church, preached a very interesting sermon at the Union Thanksgiving service which was held at the First Presbyterian church Thursday morning.

The scripture lesson was from the 147th Psalm, and the text was taken from the 40th verse which reads: "He Hath Not Dealt so With any Nation."

Rev. Townsend explained the intent of the text which was spoken of the nation of Israel and which conveyed the information that at that time no other nation had been so prospered and so preserved as had the Israelites.

"God's Hand in American History," was the title of the sermon and consisted of a comparison of the prosperity of the then nation of Israel with that of the United States of today.

Richest of Nations

"We are the richest nation in the world," the pastor said, with Great Britain owing us more than four billion, France four billion, Italy more than two billion and Russia more than two millions of dollars, and we have a vast amount of material wealth in this nation.

"But I am not referring so much to the material wealth of our country, but to the wonderful spiritual development. All of these things have made America great, and I want to emphasize the four outstanding factors that have created such a nation:

"Democracy has been the keynote of success, for closely knit within its tenets faith and loyalty to God and a close adherence to the Golden Rule.

"Education, with our wonderful schools that have helped to perpetuate the Christian religion.

"Homes that have developed the body, mind and soul of our children, and

"Churches which have carried on the spoken Word and have increased the spirituality of the nation through the years."

The service was well attended by members of all denominations in the city, and a special musical program was a feature of the service.

Thanksgiving Crowd Jams Into Vodvil House To See Holiday Card

By BARTENE VON STRUVE.

There may be a few people in Wichita who were not at the Majestic celebrating Thanksgiving, but I did not see them—I was there. Standing in line. I don't know how many were in front of me. I counted until my arithmetic gave out and still there were more people.

It is highly probable that a large part of the damage from the wind today was caused by the gusty sighs heaved by the "waiters-in-line."

The picture was just a picture (aren't those cute) the Vodvil bill was something else again. The opening number was an improvement over the usual marionette act in that the characters were easily recognized as stars of the screen. They were all there and then some. Charlie Chaplin with his baby, Mary with her juvenile pigtails, Doug with his pirate costume, Andy Gump calling for Min, Mutt and Jeff, and last but not least, for he was larger than any of the others, came Felix. And then Fred Hughes.

He was a pleasant change from the usual slim waisted, tuxedoed matinee idol. He was a very substantial looking man (a suggestion of a bay window in an ordinary business suit. He said he was rather hoarse and didn't know what caused it. He didn't know that his neck was only full of sand. He received a very enthusiastic encore and sang several good numbers.

"Myrtle of the Movies" was introduced by a man who said he was a director. I doubt it. He did not have on riding breeches and puttees. Myrtle said she had on golf stockings—they had eighteen holes in them. Her caddy said he was 72 years old, and looked it, but he could certainly dance. Myrtle and her imitation director had nothing on him there.

The Stedmans were the same old Stedmans, doing nothing, but getting by with it in great style. More laughs than the rest of the bill put together. They can sing, dance, and play the piano—I guess. They don't do very much of any of them. I wonder if they have their mouths insured against stretching too far.

The Spaniards, if any, were excellent dancers and quite easy on the eyes. Tillis and La Rue gave a couple of very pretty interpretations.

That's all on the front page of the program and the back is blank so able he will undertake the flight with the cruiser Raleigh trailing him at 25 knots.

The companion craft, PN-10 No. 1, Lieut. Byron J. Connell commanding, was plowing along today under tow of the light cruiser Cincinnati, 13 miles south of the point where she was picked up last night by the Cincinnati, headed for Guantanamo bay at a speed of eight knots.

All Fliers Well.

Lieutenant Connell reported that all members of the crew were well. He said the plane would need a new starboard engine and asked that equipment be sent him at Guantanamo to install the engine. A connecting rod in his motor had broken after the crew had struggled against a feverish oil pressure, forcing the ship down 245 miles south of the Isle of Pines.

Strangely enough, two of the crew of the PN-10 No. 1, which was hunted for 14 1-2 hours yesterday before the Cincinnati picked her up at 9:35 last night, had shared privation with John Rodgers on the memorable Honolulu flight. They were Lieutenants Connell and Skiles R. Pope, aviation pilot.

With only meager details in their possession aeronautic officials were at loss today to explain why the No. 1 ceased communication with her guard ship, and why the No. 2 ran out of lubricating oil. The navy bureau of aeronautics was inclined to assign the failure of the PN-10's to insufficiency of seaplane motor power to meet the requirements imposed by the staunchness and weight of hydro-aero construction.

Fliers Tried Best.

So far as could be told from the laconic messages signalled from the planes as they sped south, the navigators were doing all they could to get maximum performance from their motors. Bartlett steered his plane 1186 miles before descending and when Connell was forced down it was calculated he traversed 1448 miles.

Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the naval bureau of aeronautics, not the least discouraged by the results, said today that the flight showed the navy had to solve certain problems in engine building to increase the range of her heavy planes.

"We'll keep trying," he said. "It will be noticed the new planes performed beautifully as to sea worthiness. None of our boys were any the worse off for his adventure."

Nearly half of all the ships being built in the world are motor vessels.

HUFF LOSES RIGHT LEG

Local Abstract Man Goes Under Knife In Dallas Hospital

Thomas A. Huff of 1605 Tenth, manager of the Wichita County Abstract company was operated upon late Thursday at Baylor hospital in Dallas, his right leg being amputated above the knee. The operation was made necessary as a result of a condition which developed from an injury which Mr. Huff sustained six years ago, a blood clot forming in an artery.

Reports from the hospital late Thursday night were that Mr. Huff was resting well, with good chances for recovery.

Mr. Huff had been visiting relatives in Scottsboro, Ala., and was enroute home to spend Thanksgiving when he reached Dallas, and was suffering so that he was unable to continue the journey.

His brother, Judge R. E. Huff, went to Dallas Thursday afternoon, accompanied by Mrs. Huff, R. E. Huff Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Huff.

plant building was completely demolished.

Other damage was being reported, houses being unroofed and moved from foundations.

It is estimated that 5000 bales of cotton were blown away and destroyed in Hockley county alone. Texas Utilities offices here said Thursday that lights will be on tomorrow night.

Lubbock ate its Thanksgiving turkey today generously interspersed with grit as a sweeping sandstorm, which began shortly after 4 o'clock in morning, and continued throughout the day, enveloped the south plains.

Automobile tops were demolished, cars were blown from parking spaces out into the middle of the streets and signs were blown down but no serious damage was done.

ONE MAN DYING AT FREDERICK, OKLAHOMA.

FREDERICK, Okla., Nov. 25.—John Ballard is dying at a local hospital, and four others are seriously injured as a result of a windstorm which struck Frederick shortly before noon today. The injured are R. W. Houx, Bert Snider and Charles Hansen. These with Ballard were working on a building which collapsed when struck by a 50-mile wind.

Following the storm fire broke out in the cotton house of the Frederick cotton oil mill and did approximately $12,000 damage. Residences were also damaged by the wind.

In another accident incident to the storm, Marcus Wilson, high line worker, was seriously injured in a fall from a power line pole after receiving a shock when a green limb, detached from a nearby tree by the wind, fell across the power line while touching Wilson's clothing.

TILLMAN COUNTY GIN FIRE LOSS $18,000.

DAVIDSON, Okla., Nov. 25.—The Tillman county gin and a nearby residence were destroyed at a loss of $18,000 in a fire which broke out during a high wind storm Thursday afternoon.

WIND REACHES VELOCITY OF 44 MILES HOUR HERE.

A wind that reached a maximum velocity of 44 miles per hour whipped Wichita Falls with boistrous fury Thursday afternoon, blanketed the city with a thick coating of dust and set the stage in approved fashion for the impending cold wave headed this way.

That a severe norther would strike this section before Friday night was the warning of the weather man. A stormy area that developed in the mountains and headed southeast promised to reach Texas within the next 24 hours. Indications were that it would be unusually severe.

Thursday's gale developed just after noon and reached the heights around 2 o'clock. Sweeping in straight from the west it carried a cloud of dust that enveloped the city in a murky haze and played plain havoc with houses tidied up for Thanksgiving. The sky was cloud white, the wind was underway, but it rapidly cleared off when the breeze subsided just before dark. Thursday night was comparatively quiet and warm.

No damage of any consequence was done in the city, so far as could be learned last night. A number of signs were blown down and some movable furniture on front porches emulated a Hallowe'en season. Otherwise nothing much happened.

The 44-mile figure as recorded by the electric company's observation station is the highest reached here in many months.

Noted Dramatic Actor Cheered

Edwin Whitney, Impersonator of Note, Appears Here Thursday

Embodying to perfection the every mannerism of each of the thirteen characters in the play "The Fortune Hunter," by Wendell Smith, and portraying the giggling heiress with apparently as much ease as the uncouth deputy sheriff, Edwin M. Whitney, famous dramatic impersonator, captivated his audience at the Junior college Thursday evening, when presented by the Teachers' association.

Characters ranging in peculiarities from a "down and out" fortune hunter to a pompous small town banker were included in the presentation of the four-act play, and facial expression, peculiar gait and tone of voice were all so finely distinctive as to completely distinguish each character. Quickness of changes made and alertness in showing emotional reactions also showed the proficiency of Mr. Whitney in his line, due not only to his evident talent and ability, but also to his years of experience.

Mr. Whitney was introduced by A. K. Presson, president of the Teachers' association. Announcement was made concerning the meeting of the Teachers' association to be held at the Reagan Junior high next Thursday night, and also with reference to the coming attraction to be presented by the same organization on December 15.

Thanksgiving No 'Pipe' For Firemen

Thursday Proves Busiest of Day's For Members of Fire Department

Thursday was one of the busiest days of the year for the city fire department, notwithstanding the fact that it was Thanksgiving and that the force had been somewhat depleted with several firemen taking off for the holiday.

Seven fire alarms were handled during the day, four of them being exceptionally long runs.

There were two runs on the Iowa Park road in the morning, one on the Burkburnett road and a fourth to the home of Dr. Lucey on the Henrietta road. All of these fires were either grass or feed stack fires and the damage done was very little.

A blaze was extinguished in a building at the corner of Collins and Brooks streets before much damage had been done and another place in the 900 block on Yale was also checked with little damage resulting.

At 9:30 in the evening trucks from the central station and No. 4 station were called to a negro cafe and barber shop in the 100 block on Lake street, and managed to check the flames and hold the damage to the one building. The cafe was practically destroyed by the flames.

NEGRO CAPTURED

Man Wanted Here For Theft Arrested At Gainesville.

Chief of Police George Hodgins was notified by officers at Gainesville Thursday that they had captured a negro wanted here for theft of over $50. The officers stated that the negro had been captured after a long chase, and that he had also been identified as having once been in the toils of the law in both Dallas and Fort Worth.

The negro is wanted here on charges of having stolen $75 from a negro woman here several months ago. When captured the negro had a large quantity of plumbing supplies and some hand saws, which it is believed he had stolen from some town adjacent to Gainesville.

TRAIN KILLS GIRL

GEORGETOWN, Nov. 25.(AP)—Miss Aucile Hyman, 19, Southwestern university student from Rosebud, was killed near here Thursday, when she was knocked from a trestle bridge by a special train bearing a large number of football fans to the Texas university-Texas A. and M. game at Austin.

KNIFE AFFRAYS COST ONE LIFE

Thanksgiving Day Proves Bloody Festival In Negro District

Darktown denizens wound up Thanksgiving day celebrations with fireworks, as it were, and two cutting affrays Thursday night. A conflagration nearly destroyed a Lake street building and as a result of one of the knife battles Hallie Bolden is dead with her jugular vein severed and Hattie Hunter is in a hospital suffering from face and neck wounds.

The second strife was carried into the up-city district, Clarence Byas and Amos Gaskins engaging in a razor argument, according to the cops, in the middle of Ninth street in the 1500 block. The former still was at large last night while the latter was suffering from body injuries.

BOY RECOVERING

Willard Ard, Unconscious For Days Awakes Thanksgiving

Weakened from an unconscious condition that has lasted for six days, Willard Ard, 21-year-old boy who suffered a concussion of the brain in an automobile accident on Lamar street November 18, was able to enjoy to some extent his Thanksgiving dinner upon regaining consciousness Wednesday afternoon.

The boy seemed to be in excellent spirits and enjoyed his dinner, notwithstanding the fact that his condition is still quite serious from the blow he received on the head.

SAYS HARDING SOUGHT BREAK

President Before His Death Was Ready to Oust Fall, Says Friend

NEW YORK, Nov. 25. (AP)—President Harding just before his death in 1923 was planning a new "political gospel" which represented a complete break with the policies, rather than the personalities, of Albert B. Fall, Charles R. Forbe and the "old crowd," John A. Stewart, president of the Republican League of clubs, said today.

Mr. Stewart explained that in speaking extemporaneously before a league luncheon yesterday he had said that at the time of his death Harding had been on the point of forcing the retirement of Fall as secretary of the interior and Forbes as head of the Veterans' bureau.

Resignation Accepted.

Mr. Fall's resignation actually was accepted by the president several months before his death and Secretary Work took office March 4, 1923. Mr. Forbes' withdrawal occurred in February, 1923.

"I visited the president in Washington once a week for a long time before he undertook the Alaskan trip," Mr. Stewart explained. "A reorientation of mind was taking place with him before the resignation of either Forbes or Fall. He told me before Forbes resigned that Forbes would resign. This conversation probably occurred in the winter of 1922, and not in June, 1923, as I said in my speech yesterday.

"In the June conversation President Harding did not say he was breaking with Fall as an individual, but with Fall's policies, and that he was going to Alaska to draw up material for an exposition of a new policy in which ruthless exploitation would be fought."

GRACE IMPROVES

SAN ANTONIO, Nov. 25. (AP)—Dick Grace, movie stunt man with the "Wings" company here, whose neck was broken last Friday when he crashed his twenty-third airplane, was reported improving at the station hospital, Fort Sam Houston, Wednesday.

Grace's neck was set in a plaster cast Tuesday after he had gone about his work for three days without knowing that his neck was broken.

PROTECTION GUARANTEED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—Here is a case of doubt as to what to do with seized liquor. A freighter Effingham sent a radio inquiry when puzzled about a motorboat full of liquor it had picked up off Florida. The shipping board ordered the captain to proceed to Europe with as much of the liquor as he thought he could protect.

FOUR DAY WORK CYCLE URGED BY ENGINEER

Takes Issue With Ford on Proposition of a Five Day Week

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—A challenge to Henry Ford on his five-day week is issued by Dr. Walter N. Polakov, consulting engineer, author of scientific books and former power experts of the United States Emergency Fleet corporation.

Dr. Polakov asserts a cycle of four days and then one day of rest would increase productivity more than five days' work and two days' rest, and reduce fatigue to a minimum. He bases his assertion upon tests made by himself in industrial plants.

"I discovered a long time ago that the last two days of the week are literally the fag-end of the working week period," Dr. Polakov says. "I had an opportunity to study the facts between 1913 and 1914 from the data on industrial power and consumption in central Pennsylvania, where I studied the problems of production and fatigue.

"I found there was at least a seven per cent drop in the average production on Friday and Saturday from the average obtained for the first four days. The drop was so noticeable that a chart of the decline convinced any open mind that after the fourth day a rest period of a day was more advisable. The quick recovery that followed this rest day was more marked than on a Monday following a week-end rest period of a day and a half.

"After all, the four-day work and one day rest cycle is based upon a definite principle seen in athletics. It takes a longer period to recuperate from a five-mile run than from shorter runs, at the same rate of speed, with intervening rest periods. The fatigue is not so noticeable and the recovery is quicker."

Dr. Polakov points out that, under his plan, there would be 292 work days in a year, instead of only 260 work days which would prevail under Mr. Ford's plan. Industry would gain 32 days' production thereby. "But labor would not object to this, because the value of leisure time is only significant when the worker is able, physically and mentally, to enjoy it." Dr. Polakov adds. "However, the true usefulness of vacations never has been solved, and experiments might be made with the additional 32 days to see how best they might contribute to the mutual advantage of the worker and the industry."

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 25(AP)—Gene Howe, editor of the Amarillo Globe, Amarillo, Texas, and son of Ed Howe, the sage of Potato Hill at Atchinson, Kan., came to town today and revealed how close he and several Kansas friends came to becoming owners of a going oil well.

A Kansas group pooled $50,000 to sink a well in the Texas Panhandle which produced 100 barrels the first day. Then they discovered that the well had been sunk a few inches over the lease line and was another man's property.

"But one mistake," Mr. Howe said, "is forgotten among a hundred successes."

SAYS CHURCH "SELLING OUT"

Evangelist Charges He Was Kicked Out of M. E. Conference

FORT WORTH, Nov. 25. (AP) Charges that the Methodist church are selling out to modernism were aired here last night at a meeting before which William E. Hawkins, Jr. fundamentalist evangelist related how he was "virtually thrown out" of the Central Texas conference at last week's Waco meeting.

Some of the Rev. Mr. Hawkins' friends and supporters met with him at his home. He charged indirectly that his trouble was caused by his stand on modernism but declared that no charges were lodged against him at the Waco meeting.

"The presiding elders just said they had no place for me," the evangelist related, "and I was located" which means I was virtually thrown out of the church."

The Rev. Mr. Hawkins' non-attendance at the Waco meeting is said to have figured remarks made before the session by Bishop John M. Moore of Dallas, to whom the evangelist will apply for explanation, he said Tuesday. Attendance was said to be compulsory for conference members. The Rev. Mr. Hawkins said he wrote Bishop Moore twice "that I was in a meeting which I felt like I should not leave."

HONEY LOU—The Story of a Modern Girl In a Modern Setting—By Beatrice Burton

READ THIS FIRST:

HONEY LOU HUNTLEY is private secretary to old "GRUMPY" WALLACK, head of the Wallack Fabric Mills. Honey Lou likes everyone at the mills except JOE MEADOWS, the shipping clerk, who makes love to her against her will.

JACK WALLACK, who comes to his father's mills to learn the business, falls in love with Honey Lou the minute he sees her. Brought up by an old-fashioned mother, Honey Lou is a mixture of flapper and clinging vine.

Honey Lou goes to work with Margret in the office of Holy Cross hospital. One day she goes to tea with the wily Angela, and meets Jack's mother, whom Jack calls The Head, because she manages everything at home. She tells Honey Lou that "Grumpy" is not satisfied with his new secretary, ANN LUDLOW, the office vamp. Jack asks Honey Lou to work for his father, who is at home sick with lumbago, and Honey Lou promises that she will.

Honey Lou meets Angela, who tells her that Jack Wallack is taking her out to dance that evening. Honey Lou calls up TIM DONEGAL, determined to have him take her to the same place.

Honey Lou goes with Tim to the restaurant and he has been drinking. The place is raided by dry agents and Honey Lou escapes with Jack Wallack. Jack tells Honey Lou that he thought she was tricking him and ends by telling her that he loves her and wants her to marry him.

Honey Lou tells her mother that she is to marry Jack Wallack the next day but her mother asks her to wait and have a wedding. Honey Lou's engagement is announced and plans are made for the wedding.

She meets Angela downtown and she persuades her to open a charge account under the name of Mrs. Jack Wallack, Jr., and to put the shoes she is buying, along with some lingerie, on the account. But at home with Margret, who sees through Angela, she decides to take back the lingerie and Margret pays for the shoes for a wedding gift.

Jack and Honey Lou have a quiet home wedding and spend their honeymoon camping at Lake Tamay. In the meantime Steve visits the flat and breaks under the realization that Honey Lou is lost to him now.

Jack and Honey Lou return from their honeymoon and stay with the Wallacks while looking for a flat for themselves. Honey Lou tells Angela that they are anxious to start housekeeping. They find a s[illegible] flat on the next street to the Wallacks and The Head says Angela told her Honey Lou could not wait to get away from them. This angers Honey Lou and she cannot understand why Jack's mother is so cool toward her. Honey Lou starts shopping for furniture. She stops at the Wallack Mills office to see Ann Ludlow.

Ann tells Honey Lou why she sent for her. Honey Lou sees Joe Meadows and tells him he must marry Ann Ludlow at once and he agrees to do so.

Honey Lou and Jack settle down in their own flat with Mary Delaney, the cook. Margret comes home with Honey Lou for dinner and Steve Mayhew calls to take her home.

Angela comes over to help Honey Lou prepare dinner on Mary's night out. Jack phones he will not be home and Angela says she will call Tim Donegal and ask him to play cards with them, much against Honey Lou's wishes.

Angela has her way and Tim comes over. Later they meet at Sabine's, but Honey Lou refuses his invitation to tea. On the way over to spend the evening with The Head, Honey Lou stops to see Angela. Angela asks her if she told Jack about seeing Donegal. The Head sends Jack upstairs to see his father and tells Honey Lou she wants to talk to her.

The Head shows Honey Lou the bill for the shoes and lingerie she charged to Mrs. Jack Wallack Jr., before her marriage. She scolds Honey Lou for the money she has spent furnishing her house. Honey Lou makes up her mind she must not spend so much, but the next day Honey Lou goes to the beauty parlor to have her hair done and then goes shopping with Suzanne Clemens. On the way home Honey Lou stops to see Angela.

Angela tells Honey Lou she is going to have a party for her and Jack Saturday night. Honey Lou goes home and finds Jack reading poems about little houses in the country filled with love and happiness. Honey Lou decides to let Mary go in the morning, do her own work, and try to make the kind of home Jack wants. The next morning Angela calls and asks Honey Lou to go to town with her to pick out a new dress for the party. Honey Lou sees a dress she would like to buy.

Influenced by Angela, Honey Lou buys a dress which she knows she cannot afford. Angela tells Honey Lou Jack seems very much interested in his new secretary, Miss Ayres.

At the party Margret overhears Angela talking to Jack of Honey Lou.

Margaret overhears Angela telling Jack she tried to stop Honey Lou from buying the dress because she knew he could not afford it.

Tim Donegal tells of the card parties he has had with Honey Lou which angers Jack and he forbids Honey Lou to have Donegal in their home.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLIII

Honey Lou followed Margret into the shabby white bedroom when she went in to hang up her wraps and tie a frilly little apron around her waist.

"Margy," she said to her as soon as they were alone, "tell me about this Miss Ayres, down at the office. Is she pretty?"

Margret gave her a puzzled stare. "Pretty—Why, no, I would not say so," she answered. "Why?"

Honey Lou shrugged her shoulders. "Oh nothing," she said. "What does she look like? Blond? Dark? Thin? Fat?"

Margret burst out laughing. "Why you remember Jane Ayres!" she cried. "She worked down at Holy Cross hospital with me. She's plump and nice, but her best friend wouldn't call her a beauty What's the matter with you, Honey Lou?"

"I'm right as rain. I just wondered about her," Honey Lou answered. She was sitting on the broad window-sill that overlooked a court that ran along behind the building.

"What funny things people throw away, don't they?" she asked absently, gazing down into the narrow lane-like place "There's an old red silk umbrella down there, and a perfectly good book all swollen with the rain and a cream pitcher with a handle off."

"I threw the perfectly good book down there," Margret surprised her by saying. "It's the book Angela gave you to read on your wedding trip. Remember?"

Honey Lou nodded. "What did you do that for?"

"Because I didn't think it was any kind of book for a bride to read," Margret replied, throwing her chin up with a sort of defiance. "That's why I did it. It's the story of a man who is in love with a woman like Angela and marries a woman like you. I didn't want her putting ideas into your head."

"What, what are you talking about?" Honey Lou looked at her, frowning.

"I'm talking about your dear friend, Angela Allen," Margret's voice was sharp with sarcasm. "I think she'd do anything she could to make trouble between you and Jack. I think she's just crazy about him still. In fact, I know it!"

"How do you know it?" Honey Lou was all attention now. Her eyes were alight, and her breath came quickly from between her parted lips.

"Never mind how I know it, but I do," her sister replied, her hand on the door knob. "I'll bet you anything it was Angela who told you about Jane Ayres being at the office, too. Now wasn't it?"

Honey Lou had to admit that it was.

"Well, don't waste your time being jealous of her!" Margret said keenly. "She'll never bother you. You'd better go home and keep your eye on Angela Allen, if you want to know what I think."

Honey Lou made up her mind not to stay for dinner, after all. She would go home to Jack, and tell him that she'd never have Tim Donegal in the house again—that she's never speak to Tim Donegal again.

"I'm going home, Mumsie," she said to Mrs. Huntley, when she went into the kitchen with her red hat on. "Steve is going to drive me home."

Mrs. Huntley looked up from the chicken she was basting.

"I'm glad, Honey Lou," she replied gently. "After all, it's a woman's business to do whatever her husband wants her to do isn't it? To keep things pleasant and happy is the wife's job, just as it's the husband's job to bring home the money. And you have everything in your own hands, Honey Lou, Jack's in love with you and he's a good man. You're not like some women who've had husbands who drank and gambled and—" She put her white apron up to her eyes, and Honey Lou knew that she was thinking of her own husband—the bedonair and good-looking scoundrel who had married her and wrecked her life.

"That's true," Honey Lou observed in a cold voice. She was so deeply stirred by the sight of her mother's tears that it was hard for her to keep from breaking down.

Stephen Mayhew was waiting for her in his car down in the street.

"Red bird!" he said when she came running out of the front door with her eyes sparkling and her hair blowing in little gold-tipped curls under the scarlet brim. She was as vivid as a cardinal flashing through winter-time woods against the background of dingy houses that lined Arbor street.

He held the door open for her, and she jumped in.

Just as they turned the corner of the street another car came swerving into it from the opposite direction. Honey Lou gave a little smothered cry and grasped Steve by his arm.

"There's Jack! He's seen us!" she groaned.

He had. After one furious glance at them, he had stepped on the gas and his black-and-nickel car tore down the street and out of sight.

"Take me home," Honey Lou moaned and sank back in her seat. All the lovely color and sparkling light had faded from her face.

"That's where I am taking you, of course," Steve answered, and his foot came down hard on his own gas.

Jack did not come home until 10 o'clock that night. A hundred times during the afternoon Honey Lou went to the kitchen window of the flat to see if he was coming through the gate between their own yard and the yard of his father's house.

She had fallen asleep over a magazine when he came in, and she did not waken until he stood before her, gravely looking down at her.

"Well, you certainly are the pink limit!" she cried, instantly wide awake, "to stay away from me all day long for nothing at all Why do you sulk all the time when you get sore at me? Why don't you chew a few nails, slam a few doors and get over it? Now, what made you so peeved today when you saw me with Steve Mayhew? He was just bringing me home to you. I'd asked him to!"

Jack shook his blond head. "I guess I can't help it, Honey Lou," he told her. "I can't help being jealous of you. I can't go on living with you this way. Either you'll have to stop seeing Donegal and Mayhew and any other men you know, or you'll have to stop seeing me. I'm sorry—but I'm made that way."

"Well, then, I guess you'll just have to leave me then." Honey Lou answered airily, "because I'm not going to live like a harem woman for you or anybody like you!"

She never would have said it, if she had not been angry to start with. But the long lonely day of waiting for him to come home had made her nerves ragged and her temper uncertain.

It flamed up now.

"I know why you've been razzing me so for the last week And don't think I don't know it!" she all but shouted at him. "You're in love with that fat Miss Ayres down at the mills, and you can't see me for dust any more! Don't think I don't know it!"

And she burst into wild and noisy tears.

"And this is the end of a perfect day." Jack quoted aloud, and vanished into the bedroom. What was it Margret had called him last night.—The Great American Husband, who spoiled his wife and made a baby and a doll of her!—Well, he wouldn't spoil his, any longer, by jove!

(TO BE CONTINUED)

Buying on the Spoken Word

THE FAITH THAT MEN HAVE in each other is evidenced nowhere as strongly as the dependence that is nowadays placed on the spoken word.

The seller in a distant city hears a voice over the telephone and though a record of details goes out with the hanging up of the receiver, thousands of dollars of goods are rushed to fill the needs of the man who has asked for them. Faith that the man will stand by his message is seldom, if ever, misplaced.

Without this faith the telephone would lose its effectiveness in business. But with it the mouth-piece on your desk puts you in immediate touch with the great sources of supply and brings to your office such service and assistance as you may desire.

Is it any wonder, then, that the telephone, in daily touch with this evidence of the faith of men, is anxious to serve its users and serve them well.

POTOTO CROPS VERY POOR

AND interesting story is told in a bulletin sent out by the federal department of agriculture. A generally poor potato crop in the producing countries of the world is announced. Although the American crop was said to be 35,000,000 bushels more than last year, it still is 34,000,000 bushels below the five-year average. Furthermore the Candaian crop, while 2,000,000 bushels more than in 1925, was placed at 19,000,000 bushels below the five-year average, and the estimated production in Europe, exclusive of Russia, will be about 15 per cent less, with quality not favorable.

In England, Wales and northern Ireland, rotting was reported as well as diseased and small tubers. Rain in Germany has retarded crops there. Switzerland and Czecho Slovakia have taken steps to obtain foreign potatoes to meet the shortage. Texas should be a great producer of Irish potatoes. Texas is a great producer of the sweet potato.

Joseph A. Kemp, who has made a study of soils and crops that can be produced under the skies of Texas has demonstrated that the Irish potato can be produced in large quantity in the irrigated fields of the Wichita valley river. Not the soft member of the tuber family which is of a perishable nature, but the hard or solid member of the family which is not perishable and can be kept over season in the cellars of Texas or adjoining states.

There is ever a great demand for the Irish potato. If the father of irrigation in Texas is successful in pushing his program, the irrigated lands in his section of the state will become the favorite home of the tuber. This calls for crop rotation and for the fertilization of soil. An Ohio farmer three years ago, sold his holdings in the Buckeye state and moved self and family to the Magic Valley of Texas. He has been a grower of Irish potatoes.

Now Irish potatoes has not been grown in the Magic Valley, but the transplanted Buckeye saw no reason why he should not embark in the production of this favorite table food. He planted 21 acres and garnered a very large crop. His product came in early and was sold in the twinkling of an eye. This convinced him that the climate and the soil of the valley made it possible for an Irish potato grower to make big money in a land where it is possible to plant from three to four crops a year.

There is a place called Greeley in Colorado. It was founded by Horace Greeley, the famous editor of the New York Tribune, this, many years ago. Greeley became famous for its Irish potatoes. scientific farmers did the planting and the harvesting and they made big money. A visit to Greeley taught the Texan whose name and fame is linked with irrigation in this commonwealth, the value of the Irish potato as a dividend maker for the tiller of the soil. He has visited Greeley many times. He has tested the soil of his section with amazing results.

This is one of the reasons why the growing of the Irish potato may become one of the great money making industries in the irrigated sections of the west, speaking of West Texas. There is a county in Maine, Aroostock, that produces more Irish potatoes than any county in any state of the United States. Indeed, the potato is the wealth-making crop of this section of New England.

California is another producer of potatoes. In the sun garden of the western coast huge potatoes are grown and they are found on menu cards in all the leading hotels and cafes. California farmers, who favor the tuber as a dividend maker, are said to be prosperous at all times. And there is the humble carrot, sold by the train loads in the great cities of America and other centers of population where foreign born citizens and their progeny are to be found. In all European countries the carrot is the price favorite and the masses know its value as a life giver and a beautifier.

Go down to the Magic Valley for a close up and the visitor will see more carrots in gathering time than he had ever imagined ever could be devoured by the population of the United States. And yet there is ever a brisk demand for carrots and the growers are not money losers. They earn dividends on their land and labor.

There are winter and summer gardens in Texas and some day Texas will lead all American states or sections in the production of fruits and berries and the truck or garden stuff which feed the mouths of the hundred and ten millions of people who for the most part, eat to live and do not live to eat.

TOWN TALK—By H. F. J.

THE TRAIT OF GENIUS

George Bernard Shaw, having declined the cash award that goes with the Noble Prize, gives an insight into the idiosyncracies of genius.

It appears that in common with some of his other literary conferees he is savagaely inclined on all things pertaining to the telephone. Like Rudyard Kipling and Sir James Barrie, he refuses to use one of the things unless it is absolutely necessary. Barrie, we are told, loathes the phone so much he has his registered in his butler's name and carries on all wire conversation with his hired lackey acting as his spokesman.

These traits of the great appear foolish, even ridiculous to the average person. And, perhaps they are. The average man, concerned with average problems in business and social life, finds the telephone an indespensible utility. But Shaw and Kipling and Barrie are not of the average. They are—Shaw and Kipling and Barrie—men of literary attainments few can rival—geniuses.

We of the average class, accordingly, may afford to overlook these left-handed quirks of the distinguished—and perhaps we can be thankful in this thanksgiving season that the external evidences of mental brilliance are confined to so harmless a pastime as consigning the telephone to those regions ruled by his satanic majesty.

Sound Philosophy—Expert Advice On Perplexing Problems

First Note Whether the Girl Is Sweet or High Tempered; Watch How She Treats Her Family; Check Upon Her Brain Power and Test Her For Nagging—But, Above All, Find Out Whether She Loves You Before Herself.

"Can you tell me any sort of a thirty-third degree test that you can apply to a girl before marriage that will reveal if she has the objectionable traits that put the kibosh on things later?" asks a man.

You cannot tell with absolute certainty, son, what kind of a wife a girl will make, because occasionally a sweet young thing does turn a complete mental and moral somersault on the way from the altar, and reverses all of her ways and habits and previous records.

I have seen butterflies turn into grubs. I have seen lazy, selfish girls, who never had a thought for anybody but themselves, make of themselves doormats for their husbands and children. I have seen girls who threw papa's money away as if it were water become nickel nursers when it became their own money they were spending.

So you never can tell. Miracles do happen every now and then, but if I were a man I would not take any chance on one being worked in my behalf. I should try to be my own guardian angel, and when I went to pick out a life companion I should watch these points:

First, I should ascertain whether the girl was sweet-tempered or high-tempered, for the wife's temper is the barometer of the home. There is sunshine and fair weather in it if she is jolly and good-natured, and there are storms and hurricanes that makes a man want to set sail for another port if she is peevish and cross.

Watch out, then, for the girl who is nervous and whose voice gets a razor edge on it; who is irritated by little things, and who takes offense at trifles. She will make the sort of a wife who is cross and fretful, and who keeps her husband walking on eggs for fear of offending her.

If you marry her, you will have to wipe your feet on the mat before you enter your own doorway; you will have to punch the time clock on the dot, or get a bawling out for being late. You will have to furnish an alibi for every hour you are away from home and live in a state of perpetual apoligie for the things that you have left undone that you should have done.

But the girl who takes life as it comes, the bitter with the sweet, who laughs when things go wrong, who can scratch up a substitute meal and get fun out of any situation, and whose quality even thaws out grouches, will make the kind of a wife who turns matrimony into a pleasure jaunt, instead of an endurance test.

Her husband will never be afraid to bring a friend home to dinner. Her husband will never have to lie to her. Her husband will never have to live in the dread of precipitating a scene, and every time he thinks about being married to a woman who is a reasonable human being instead of a bunch of nerves and temper, he feels like burning joss sticks to his luck.

The next thing I should consider was how much ballast in the way of brains the lady carried. If she were brilliant and talented and highly educated, so much to the good, but what would concern me most was how much good, hard, horse sense she had.

Only fools are hopeless. If a woman has intelligence, she can be reasoned with. She can be brought to see her mistakes. She can be changed. She can adapt herself to any environment. But the less sense she has, the more set in her ways she is, the more convinced she is that her narrow viewpoint is the only outlook, and the more impossible it is to change her.

Next, I should try to determine whether the girl carried any real line of interesting converation, or whether she just twittered like a canary bird.

The reason why most men wander from their own firesides is because they are bored to death by wives who have nothing on earth to talk about but the children, and the cost of meat and the back-door gossip of the neighborhood. And it is the man's own fault that he has this kind of a wife. He picked her out.

Therefore, if I were a man who was seeking a woman with whom I expected to spend many thousands of evenings I would be very sure that I had one who made me sit up and take notice when she opened her mouth, and who was so entertaining that I was for thinking up things to talk over with her when I was away from her.

Next I should observe a girl in the bosom of her family, and see if her mother and sisters and brothers were afraid of her. If Angelina corrected mother's grammar and told mother where she got on and off about things generally.

If Angelina did not permit father to wear his slippers or smoke in the parlor, and if little brother and sister slunk out of the room when Angelina entered it, I should go also while the going was good.

For the girl who bosses her own family will boss her husband, and I should not care to be one of the meek, henpecked husbands whose wives always walk in front and tell them where they are going and where to sit in the street cars.

Finally, in picking out a wife I should take particular note of whether a girl can say a thing once and let it alone. For therein lies the acid test of the nagger.

And although a woman has all other charms and virtues, they are as the crackling of thorns under a pot if she nags.

And most of all would I notice whether the girl loved me well enough to put my happiness before her own, for, after all, that is the great thing in marriage.

KELLYGRAMS . . . . . By Fred C. Kelly

HOW MANY SONGS DO YOU KNOW?

I attended a vaudeville show recently in which one performer sits blindfolded by a piano on the stage while the other member of the team goes into the audience and asks people, one at a time, to whisper the name of a favorite tune or song. Then he mysteriously moves his hands as if mesmerizing the pianist who immediately begins to play the song asked for.

During the intermission, a group of us discussed how the clever feat was probably accomplished. We assumed that the man's motions with his hands are silent signals in code to somebody behind the scenes who then communicates such signal to the pianist.

"But," asked one of our group, "how could they memorize code signals for all the songs people might mention? Suppose that there are 1,000 people in the audience and no two would have in mind the same favorite song?"

Of course the answer is that it would be impossible to find 1,000 people or even 100 people each with a favorite song different from all the rest. There would be many duplications. Thousands of songs have been published, but the one which sunk deepest into your own memory had a quality which made them remembered by other people. Such songs are not numerous. The same is true of books. Look at the list of new books published every week and then consider how few, even of the best sellers, will make any lasting impression. When several hundred college students are asked for their favorite books, surprising few different titles are mentioned.

We even use fewer different words in conversation or writing than we think. A careful tabulation of several thousand letters, including both business and love letters, showed that a list of 2,000 words would cover nine-tenths of the vocabulary of an average person.

We might be surprised then at how few books or songs we know by name, in spite of the thousands that we have to choose from. And perhaps still more surprising is the fact that those we do know are mostly the same ones that the neighbors do. Indeed, this statement might even be broadened to say that most of our knowledge on any subject whatever is the scant bit that we share with nearly everybody.

BO BROADWAY . . . . . By Josef Van Raalte

NEW YORK, N. Y.—(EFS)— A New Yorker is what Kipling calls a "Cosmapalause." So is a Londoner. The difference between a Londoner and a New Yorker is that the former cherishes a fierce pride in Briton and all things British, while his cousin on Manhattan Isle is obsessed by the idea that nothing really valid is created on this side of the ocean and that excellence makes its home in Thames Town.

Thus we have headline writers in New York referring to elevators as "lifts," trolleys as "trams," and railroad engineers as "engine drivers." Baggage is becoming "luggage," and the funny old derby hat is no longer a derby hat. It's a bloomin' "bowler."

"Men's bowlers," advertises one of the Fifth avenue Boob Bazaars, "presented in a variety of smart shapes by the foremost English makers."

A derby hat used to cost at the top $5. Since it's become a "bowler" the price has jumped to 15 bucks.

* * *

You can judge the soul of a town by the character of its local advertising.

When the advertising is simple and direct and clean it's a simple, direct, clean town.

When the advertising is fluffy and fatuous, starched and perfumed—overlaid with pink tea adjectives and verbal gimcracks, that town's sincerity is on a par with a bartender's handshake.

Some surly-haired gentlemen with eager eyes who conduct a hat, stick, coat and glove shop in the vicinity of the Library, wishing to direct public attention to derby hats, thus proclaim their wares in the advertising columns of a leading New York morning newspaper:

"The bowler occupies the same place in a man's wardrobe that a town car does in his garage. Both have the formal touch!"

And further along the Avenue is a department store that advertises Christmas cards in the following fashion:

"The Greeting Cards of the Royal Family of England—Christmas Cards used by England's Royal Family, reproduced by the gracious permission of each member!"

Christmas, as I understand it, is celebrated as the birthdate of Christ. Of course, if New York department shop owners wish to shove the Infant Messiah out of the picture that's their own affair; but why substitute in His stead England's Royal Family?

Bootleggers and their wives, whose limousines crowd the Avenue, will see nothing untoward in the new dispensation; but the idea doesn't hit a responsive chord in a lot of us who were reared on the old traditions.

If Christmas is going to be set aside as a day for the glorification of England's Royal Family, let us shift the date to April First, and celebrate the two great anniversaries in one.

The operator on the switchboard of a downtown office building has an engaging habit of coaxing unidentified males on the other end of the wire, into converse sweet, and so adroitly manipulating the syllabic contact that the Gullible Goof invariably ends by inviting the lady to luncheon or dinner.

The other day fate caught up with her. A bird came on the wire and his voice provoked instant appeal. With her usual agility and grace she directed the conversation until a dinner date at the Biltmore had been effected.

She presented herself at the place appointed, to find that she had made rendezvous with her own father.

It sounds phoney, but it's a true tale, which is the only thing that can be said in its disparagement.

NATIONAL POLITICS . . . . . By F. W. Wile

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.(EFS) Politicians are wondering whether next year or 1928 will witness the launching of an "Anti-Third Term League." Such an organization was founded and flourished in 1911. It was aimed at the ambitions of the late Theodore Roosevelt to be renominated for president in the year of the Bull Moose bust-up.

The prime mover in the league was the late Henry W. Blair, United States senator from New Hampshire between 1879 and 1891. Blair was an ardent supporter of William Howard Taft, and fought "Teddy's" ambitions tooth and nail.

To this observer comes the divertin gword that a certain distinguished republican, now in high federal office, was a member of a New England branch of the "Anti-Third Term League," and that the fact may be trumped up against him if certain things come to pass two years hence.

Hoover in Demand.

No Coolidge cabinet officer is in such demand for public speeches as the secretary of commerce. On November 29 the administration handyman goes to New York, to talk about the future of aviation, civilian and otherwise, before the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce. Hoover's oratorical style has improved enormously during the last two or three years. Thought, not speech, was always his longer suit. He has bettered his speaking manner to no inconsiderable extent by frequent appearances before the broadcasting microphone.

"Teapot Dome" Alumnus.

"Teapot Dome" is the ominous legend that adorns a red-and-white pennant that hangs serenely on the wall of the office of Senator C. C. Dill, democrat, of Washington. Dill says it's the banner of his "Alma Mater."

The truth is that the bachelor Adonis from Spokane has a friend, an M. D., who lives in the town of Teapot Dome, Wyo., seat of the most famous oil fields in history. When the investigations over the naval reserve oil were completed in 1924, Dill's medic admirer sent him the town flag in appreciation of th esenator's part in the oil quiz. He is a member of the committee on public lands, which probed the Teapot Dome and allied scandals.

$260,000 Antique for Sale.

APhiladelphia collector of autographs and manuscripts is the owner of the celebrated fac-simile of the Declaration of Independence. It is the handwritten draft prepared before the official declaration was finally adopted and autographed by its immortal "signers." Although devoid of the signatures of John Hancock and the rest of them, the possessor holds the document to be worth $260,000, and he's advertising it for sale at that price.

Experts assert the price is "wild," particularly as the fac-simile was purchased by its present proprietor for $180,000. Gwinnett signature—that one among the declaration signers' autographs which is priceless because of its great rarity—will be offered at auction in New York soon.

After-Dinner Talks Decline.

A toastmaster who has just presided with grace at an important national banquet in Washington realizes the danger of springing after-dinner gags that are too subtle. Several that were launched on the occasion here under discussion failed signally to explode with promptness. In fact, diagrammatic explanations were required, to amplify them—and not in a microphonic sense, either. The functionary in question did score with an allusion to his plight, when he observed, drily: "Well, that is after all a rather long banqueting hall, and I see that it takes some time for jokes to travel the whole distance."

It is the experience of hardened post-prandial orators in the United States that prohibition has, in a manner of speaking, put after-dinner within dry dock. People laugh far less freely than they did prior to 1920.

Reed's Return Awaited Eagerly.

It's a long time since the advent of a member of congress after a recess was awaited with such gusto as is on ice in anticipation of "Jim" Reed's return for the senate session impending. The Missourian's arrival is expected, primarily, to set alight a whole train of events in connection with the Pennsylvania and Illinois slush fund affairs. The case of Senator-elect Vare is likely to receive very early attention at the hands of the hammer-blow statesman from the Kaw.

Reed has a new hobby in addition to investigations. Recently he bought himself a mansion on the outskirts of Kansas City. It has spacious grounds, but its distinguishing mark is a front porch. Reed's admirers in the home town insist the place, on that account, would lend itself ideally for a presidential campaign.

Annulment Shows Forced Marriage Of Vanderbilt Girl and English Duke

ROME, Nov. 25. (AP)—Annulment of the marriage in 1895 of Consuelo Vanderbilt and the Duke of Marlborough was based on evidence that the young society girl, then but 17, was torn from an American sweetheart and forced into the Marlborough marriage by her mother, now Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont.

The sentence of the Roman Catholic holy tribunal of Rota, as made public today, states that Consuelo's mother herself admitted before the examining body that she had commanded her daughter to marry the duke.

The name of Consuelo's youthful sweetheart was given simply as "Rutherford."

On one occasion the sentence says the then Mrs. Vanderbilt threatened that if Consuelo eloped with Rutherford she would kill him on the first occasion and would be imprisoned and hanged for the crime, her daughter being thus responsible for the tragedy. At another time, Consuelo's mother declared that she would die if her daughter did not marry Marlborough.

The decision of Rota also reveals that Consuelo's mother, fearing at the last moment that her daughter might refuse outright to marry the duke placed a person at her door to prevent any one from approaching or speaking to her. The Duke of Marlborough himself told the examining body that scarcely 20 days after the marriage Consuelo had told him that she married him only because she had been compelled to.

All of these circumstances, the sentence found, indicated that Consuelo did not have the necessary liberty to contract a valid marriage and consequently an annulment was justified.

DALLAS, Nov. 25. (AP)—Houston is far ahead of Dallas in actual cash collections of stock subscriptions in the $5,000,00 Texas cotton finance corporation that Texas bankers are organizing to hold 1,250,000 bales for better prices. J. A. Pandrom, organization committee chairman, said today.

"We have received $850,000 actual collections from Houston," Mr. Pondrom said, and will soon have the $150,000 additional necessary to make up that city's $1,000,000 quota.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch.

ALTOGETHER.

And then I said to myself, said I,
When the first snow fell from the gray sky,
"Well, what's a cloud, or a change of weather?
The sky's been blue for a long, long while,
The sun has warmed me many a mile,
So it's been a good sky, altogether,
I don't intend to forget about
The days I had with the snow left out."

And then I said to myself, said I,
"When a thing you sell or a thing you buy,
There must be times when you can't tell whether
You are going to lose or going to win,
But a lot of deals had a profit in,
So it's been a good year, altogether,
I don't intend to forget the time
That I made a lot, when I lose a dime."

And then I said to myself, said I,
"When a sudden grief makes a fellow sigh,
I'll keep my heart as light as light as a feather,
I have had some loss, I have some wrong,
But a lot of joy as I went along,
So it's been a good life, altogether,
I don't intend to forget about
The days I had with the snow left out."

U.S.-MEXICAN CRISIS SERIOUS, OFFICIALS SAY

Bleak Silence Meets All Queries, But Question Grows Grave

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.(AP)—While bleak official silence met every attempt to disclose the Washington administration's intentions in the Mexican crisis. Senator Borah of Idaho, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee today published his view on the situation, declaring his disbelief that there "is going to be any break with Mexico."

The publication of the oil and land law correspondence spoke for itself, the Idaho senator said after reading the correspondence and said that he had found "no threat of any ultimatum."

Other Statements.

Senator Fess, republican, Ohio, and Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, also issued brief statements. The Ohioan said if American rights in Mexico are placed in jeopardy "we should severe relations," but he added that so far "they are not placed in jeopardy." Senator Norris declared he did not believe the "stern attitude of the state department was justified."

The only hint at the state department was that it looked upon the Mexican demand for "concrete cases," as referring to future specific instances which may arise when enforcement of the Mexican law becomes effective in January. Whether the Mexican invitation for further diplomatic exchanges would lead to renewed correspondence and more drastic steps of protest by the United States was not revealed.

Relations Strained.

No attempt was made in official quarter to soften the impression that relations are strained almost to the breaking point and that any definite act of enforcement of the nationalization policy against Americans by Mexico might serve to precipitate a rupture.

In Latin-American diplomatic circles, a tendency was indicated to regard the situation as one suited to arbitrational treatment at the Hague. None of the diplomats would be quoted at the missions however.

Secretary Kellogg went to the White House twice during the day to confer with President Coolidge but it was indicated that his visits were not related to the Mexican crisis. He saw Ambassador Telles in the afternoon just before his second trip to the White House.

FISH BRING REVENUE

California, the Golden State, Profits From Waterways.

SACRAMENTO, Calif., Nov. 25. (AP)—California, still called the golden state, gets twice as much money for her fish as for her gold. Figures announced by the state department of agriculture show the production of fish in 1925 totalled 415,000,000 pounds with a value of 325,000,000 or the equivalent of California's gold production for two years combined.

MURDER CHARGED

Mexican Official Alleges Nationals Were Tortured.

SAN ANTONIO, Nov. 24.(AP)—Charges that two Mexican nationals have been murdered in Willacy county in the last three months, that at least one of them was painfully mistreated before his death and that a grand jury investigation of the incident was not legally or properly carried out are contained in a report mailed to the Mexican embassy in Washington.

Five prisoners were killed near Jose Valenzuela, Mexican vice consul here, announced today.

Raymondsville September 7. A coroner's jury held that they were killed when five officers accompanying them were ambushed by friends of the prisoners.

Valenzuela's report denies that the men who were with the prisoners were officers and says that an examination of the bodies shows that at least some of the prisoners had been mistreated. It calls attention to the fact that none of the supposed officers were wounded in the ambuscade.

SAN ANTONIO, Nov. 25.(AP)—Thomas J. Owens, superintendent of transportation of the San Antonio Public Service company was the victim of a sudden and fatal attack of acute indigestion at his home here Wednesday morning.

AVALON, Santa Catalina Island, Cal., Nov. 25. (AP)— Raymond Kouthey of Pasadena, marooned for three days on a ledge of a cliff 300 feet above the sea near here was rescued yesterday after a boat crew had seen his frantic distress signals.

A group of secuers from Avalon dashed to the scene on horseback and lowered Kouthey by ropes to a boat waiting at the foot of the cliff. He said he slipped over the cliff and landed on the ledge while hiking. His food supply for the three days consisted of two apples. A rain yesterday refreshed him.

GIRL IS MISSING

Wealthy Indian Warden Disappears On Birthday.

MIAMI, Okla., Nov. 25. (AP)—Rumors—and few of them—were the sole result today of efforts to throw light on the continued absence of Maude Lee Mudd, wealthy Indian girl, who obtained her majority yesterday and inherited an estate variously estimated at from $500,000 to $1,000,000.

J. L. Suffecool, superintendent of the Quapaw Indian agency here, reiterated he had no knowledge of the girl's whereabouts and assigned no reason as to why the heiress wished to "hide out,"—if she does.

"I AND GEORGE"

—By—
Nina Wilcox Putnam

As Platt du Jour, the great restaurantkeeper, said in his popular cookbook, "A really good meal is worth any price, provided you can get away without paying the check."

And the profoundness of this saying come over me strongly the other day when the subject of Thanksgiving turkeys come up between I and George, that's my husband. It seems Geo. had made up his mind that this yr. Thanksgiving turkeys was out, so far as our family was concerned. For all of Geo. the Turks could remain in the great open spaces where men keep the elastic band on their pocketbooks and turkeys keep the original stuffing with which they were born. The only gobbling to be done in connection with turkeys was to be done by the birds themselves in freedom, and not by the George Jules family at any dinner table to the accompanyment of cranberry or other kind of sauce.

George come to this conclusion after I had interviewed the butcher on the subject of prices and turkeys, and found out where prime birds was to be ninety cents per pound, dead weight, meaning you would be dead of the shock when you seen what they come to when weighed. I say Geo. come to his decision against turkeys in general at this news, but to remark that he jumped to his decision would be nearer the truth, on account as a matter of fact he not only jumped, but he made it in one leap.

Geo. Reads the Riot Act.

Why! he says, for the luvva tripe, he says, what does that butcher think we are, millionaires, or saps? he says, the idea of asking ninety cents a lb. for a mere fowl, he says, it's a outrage; it's a scandal, that feller ain't any butcher, he's a gunman or a humorist or something. Almost a dollar a pound, he says! At that rate, why all the turkey we could afford, well, we might as well shoot a sparrow instead and be done with it, for with what our money would buy, nobody could tell the difference!

So I says, well, then, I am to understand you don't want me to buy a turkey for Thanksgiving? And he says if you don't understand, I will explain all over again. See here, he says, if we get a fourteen pounder that will be $13.30, and we can't get any smaller a one of account your mother and my mother is all of them coming to dinner, not to mention old General Bluster who I invited the other day. And so, says George, I want you to get corned beef and cabbage instead; talk brilliantly at the table, and perhaps they will never notice the difference. So I says all right, dear, but what is Thanksgiving without a turkey? And Geo. says it's a darned sight more economical, that's it is!

But that wasn't all. About that time what would ring only the doorbell and the ringee turned out to be that Joe Bush of the Howthorne Club, and as is usual wish my husband's best friends, he brought a bum idea along with him.

Joe Has a Great Idea.

Hey, George, he shouted in his 100 per cent American way the minute he was inside the house: Hey, George, wanner get a fourteen pound turkey for fifty cents? And Geo., who as a rule is pretty sensible business man, says right away, you bet your sweet life I do, old man, that's just about my price, now you are talking turkey! And Joe Bush says well, come on over to the Hawthorne Club with me and buy a chance. They are raffling off a turkey there for a benefit. And Geo. says whose benefit, the customer's?

Joe says sure, but also for the benefit of some fund, I believe it is for a Home for Homeless Oysters who have lost their jobs—in the pearl industry owing to the introduction of artificial pearls into the jewelry market. And Geo. says well, that is a noble cause, and besides I'd risk 50c on a turkey any day. And Joe says yeh, it's a lot better chance than risking a twenty dollar bill on a chicken, and then the two of them went on out together and I got a chance to think over this Thanksgiving business a little, quietly by myself.

As far as I could figure it out, in the old, original days, Thanksgiving was invented by the Puritans as a day in which to give thanks for all the wonderful crops they had raised during the past autumn and also the great good luck they had had and etc. In those old original days it was an occasion for praying, not merely eating, and it has been the custom for a long time to have the president write a piece in the papers about it, called a Thanksgiving message.

When Puritans Gave Thanks.

Of course them early presidents or governors had a pretty soft snap, thinking up what to write. They could put in about how the crop of stones up in New England had been bigger and better than ever before; how the crop of witches was fine, and how many had been barbecued, also that the antique crop showed great promise, what with the spinning-wheels, slat-backed chairs, four-poster beds, and other household goods that was being manufactured, and all of them bound to be genuine antiques of great value one of these days.

Then I suppose the early Thanksgiving message had words to the effect that the Puritans had certainly been shot with luck because the hold-up season hadn't been at it, of course, but only 60 per cent of the population had been gyped by them as against 90 per cent last yr., or something like that. Also that the tax-scalpers from England had only taken everything that wasn't nailed down, but fortunately quite a lot had been nailed down, so the tax-collectors had not got absolutely everything, which was something yet again to be thankful for.

The governor might of added that the country ought to be thankful that they didn't live in modern times with all its dangers, such as gun-men, auto-accidents, money-madness and jazz. But I really don't know did he think to put that in, on account I have never really read any of those old Thanksgiving messages.

The First Tea-Fight.

I do suppose, though, that the one which was wrote the first yr. of the American Revolution had something in it about tea. Believe you me, the fuss they made over having their mere tea interfered with in those old days makes me wonder how their descendants ever stood for having their liquor interfered with the way they did! Unless, of course, the fellers which dumped the tea into Boston harbor was tea-prohibition agents.

Well, anyways, in the alleged good old days, the Gov. or [illegible] got at this message and then all the Puritans read it, and I suppose made comments on the style it was written in, and called the author by his first name, and then they went out and shot a turkey or a witch, put it in the oven and then went to church.

It must of been a pretty sight to see them old-fashioned Puritans going to church on Thanksgiving. I personally myself have seen a lot of paintings on the subject, and they are real sweet. To judge by the evidence, there was always a beautiful coat of snow on the ground on Thanksgiving in them days of antiquity, never any slush or rain, but only an ideal type of snow. The clothes they wore was almost as cute as the landscape which they wor e'em in, the men having their hair bobbed in the same style as the pony-ballet and wearing buckles on their shoes, not only, in fact, on their shoes, but on the front of their hat as well.

Those Lucky Puritans.

As for the girls, they looked more like trained nurses then anything else I can think of. At least they wore caps like that, and the dress wasn't far different. Anyways, it was a cute rig, although not exactly snappy, and their skirts was so long nobody could tell did they have no unbuckled articles or not.

Take it all in all, Thanksgiving in them days must of been a real remarkable occasion, and the most extraordinary thing about it was that they didn't haf to pay out a nickel for a turkey—not if they were any kind of a shot.

But nowadays things is certainly different. And when I got to wondering and thinking about it, I also commenced to figure what I would of written this year, if I was Cal and had to do the Thanksgiving piece for the papers and public. And first off I thought that if I was to write it I would have a hrad time thinking up something to be thankful for. Because of course the condition of the country has a lot of weak spots in it.

When it comes to crops, why I am afraid that the first crop springs to my mind is the big crop of criminals we had this yr. The second is the big crop of mud the politicians threw at each other just before election, and the third is the large crop of storms, floods and tornadoes. Also the crop of automobile accidents and bad debts to European countries. But as I thought of this first thought, I also had a second thought, which concerned the newspapers and their headlines.

Jennie Counts Her Blessings.

And when this comes over me I realized where naturally bad news and scandals is the thing which folks read most excitedly and which gets printed large, because people get a big kick out of it. But after all, it don't constitute the real, nor the whole condition of the country. And I guess if I was the President and had the Thanksgiving message to write, I could state quite a few honest reasons for being grateful.

For a sample, I am thankful that I am raising my child in a land where I got every sanitary condition in his favor, and the most wide spread net of good doctors and dentists in the world. That I got the best average of schools, that don't cost a nickel, the cleanest, safest streets for him to play on, and the complete lack of neighboring countries that are likely to pounce down on Dinglewood and take all this away.

Also I am thankful I live in a country where work for good wages is not alone plentiful, but where no type of work is considered a disgrace or a hurt to your social position just tso long as it is honest work. In England, France or Italy, or any other country you want to name, if a gentleman out-of-luck drives a taxi or washes dishes rather than be dependent he is disgraced. In America he is complimented on his character and sportsmanship, and I am thankful I live i na country where they have ideas lik ethat.

A Good Word for America.

I am beside all this thankful for the easy way we live, with plumbing, washing machines and electricity and all like that, which foreign climes don't have except in limited spots. I am thankful for charge-accounts, installment plans, attractive advertising, Royal visitors, slang, gay music, clean good, decent drinking water, and the American language, instead of having to jabber a lot of foreign languages I can't understand. I am also thankful for the finest theatrical productions in the world and the best movies. As a matter of fact, I guess I am just thankful to be an American and live in America. And when I realized this, why I also realized where if I was the Pres. and had to write his Thanksgiving message, why my trouble would be not in making the list of thankful things long enough, but of knowing when to stop.

And just about as I come to this conclusion, who would appear of all people only George, and Hot Bozo! he had the fourteen pound turkey! Well for cryin' out loud! I says, George Jules, do you mean to tell me you actually won that girl in the raffle at 50c a chance, do you? And Geo. says you bet I mean just that, ain't it a beaut? And I says it sure is, hurrah, now we will have a turkey for our Thanksgiving dinner. Then a awful suspicion come over me, and I says George, how many chances at 50c a throw did you take?

And he says, kinda shame-faced, well I took thirty chances, but you know it's for charity. And I didn't say a word. After all, give him credit, maybe Geo. forgot where charity is supposed to begin!

FOOLS THE COPS

Denver Woman Dressed in Men's Clothes Booked As Vag.

BUTTE, Mont., Nov. 25 (AP)—A young woman who gave her name as "Jacques Moret," and her home as Denver, Colo., faced sentence here today on a charge of vagrancy which did not have to do so much with vagrancy as with her masquerading in men's clothes.

The girl, arraigned yesterday in police court, admitted she had been successful in her masquerading for two months in Butte and declared she had appeared in male attire in every state in the union.

WHERE WEALTH IS

LONDON, Nov. 25.—American billionaires now seem to have enormously wealthy potentates of India as rivals. Commenting on surprisingly high prices realized at an auction of Lord Michaelham's art treasures the Westminster Gazette says mysterious bidders who surpassed continental and American buyers are supposed to be acting for maharajahs.

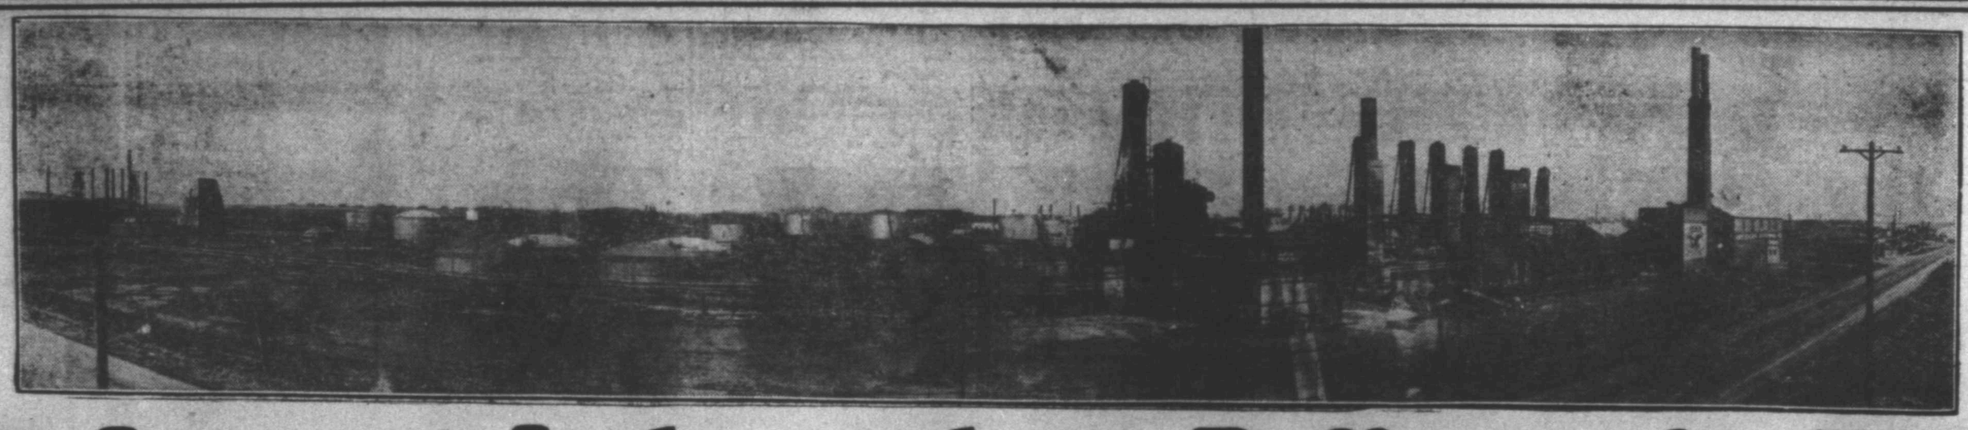

YOUTH IS SERVED

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—There's some young blood in the recognized Milwaukee railroad. John J. McCloy, a lawyer in his early thirties, is president; Gordon E. Youngman, 21, is secretary and treasurer. Their jobs are only temporary, however. They will just sign a few papers till the receivership is lifted.
