Gas rates hike wins in court

The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON —The Supreme Court Monday refused to hear a legal challenge to a government-approved multi-billion dollar increase in natural gas rates — the largest such price hike in the nation's history.

In a brief order issued without dissent, the justices let stand rate hikes imposed in 1976 that tripled the allowable price for "new" natural gas sold across state lines.

The new rates had been challenged by consumer groups and others as too high. A group of natural gas producers had attacked the rates as too low. According to government estimates, the rate increases are costing users an extra $1.5 billion a year.

The increase in allowable rates was approved by the Federal Power commission — now known as the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC). Under an FPC order, the price ceiling for gas from wells opened on or after Jan 1, 1975, has raised from 52 cents to $1.42 per thousand cubic feet — with provisions for a one-cent increase every three months thereafter.

Under present law, the federal government regulates the price of all natural gas sold in interstate commerce, but not the price of gas sold and consumed within the state where it was produced.

Under President Carter's original energy proposals, the ceiling could be raised to $1.75. But some opponents want the ceiling raised even higher or removed altogether. This question of future pricing policy remains unresolved before a Senate-House conference committee.

The FPC's 1976 action was challenged by consumers on the grounds there was insufficient evidence to justify rate increases. On the other side, natural gas companies claimed the commission's action was too restrictive, saying increases were necessary to cover costs and provide incentive for exploration and production.

In the order issued Monday, the Supreme Court declined to review the appellate court ruling. No opinion was issued

New judge's salary placed at $22,733

By LINDA HILL SCHAFFRINA

Midland County commissioners Monday set the base salary of newly appointed County Court at Law Judge Willie DuBose at $22,733 — the same as that now received by County Judge Barbara Culver.

Judge DuBose also will receive $100 a month for being a member of the county juvenile board. Judge Culver receives $150 a month for being juvenile board chairman and juvenile judge.

The salary was set in a 3 to 1 vote, with lone Republican County Commissioner Win Brown voting against the motion. Brown said after the meeting he still does not think DuBose should have been appointed, and called the move "cronyism."

The three Democratic commissioners voted to approve the salary with little discussion.

A few moments before, the commissioners had adjourned their meeting, but they reconvened after a media representative asked about DuBose's salary.

DuBose was appointed to the court Feb. 13, the same date the commissioners voted to activate the court, which had been authorized by the Legislature.

The appointment sparked political controversy in Midland. Salary for the post became an issue when DuBose said he did not think the $22,000 salary written into the budget was enough. And Commissioner Durward Wright predicted the Commissioners Court would meet with DuBose and "negotiate" the salary.

DuBose was not present at the Monday commissioners' meeting.

A scheduled appearance by Sheriff Dallas Smith before the commissioners to discuss variances to be presented to the Texas Commission on Jail Standards was postponed. Smith told the commissioners he had not received all of the material from the jail commission that he needs to put together his report.

At Monday's meeting, the commissioners heard a proposal from the Communications Corporation of America for a new county telephone system.

Charles Sutton, representing the company, told the court the CCA system, with an extra console for the switchboard operator, would save the county $96,293 during the next 10 years over the present Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. system the county has.

The commissioners asked Sutton to check into the needs of the sheriff's

President asks more money for education

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter asked Congress today to raise federal aid to education by nearly one-fourth and said U.S. dollars should help teach basic skills such as reading, writing and arithmetic.

Carter's proposal would boost federal aid to education by 24 percent to $12.9 billion annually.

The president sent Congress an educational masterplan that he said "will focus our nation's resources on helping our children master the basic skills reading, writing and arithmetic -which remain critical to their ability to function in a complex society."

In his legislative proposals to renew the Elementary and Secondary Education Act, the cornerstone of federal aid to the schools, Carter proposed funneling more aid to school districts "with large numbers of poor children -5,000 or more or large proportions of poor children -20 percent or more."

He also renewed his commitment to creating a separate Department of Education. Most of the government's spending for education now goes through the Office of Education in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

And he promised to seek ways to allow parochial and other private schools to participate more in the programs for the disadvantaged. But he reiterated his opposition to moves in Congress to give parents of private school children a tax credit for the tuition they pay.

Carter revealed in his fiscal 1979 budget proposals in January that he would seek to raise spending for education to $11.6 billion, up from $10.4 billion in the current year. But several weeks ago he announced a new $1.46 billion package of increased aid to college students primarily from the middle class that raised the total to $12.9 billion.

Carter said he will seek $400 million extra for his new program concentrating on schools with large numbers or large percentages of poor students. He said the money would aid 3,500 school districts and increase the number of poor children aided by the program to 6.5 million.

He said two-thirds of the extra money would go to hardpressed center-city schools, while one-third "will flow to rural and suburban school systems which have similar needs."

On basic skills, Carter said he was proposing grants to "encouage state and local demonstration efforts to improve basic skills ... including increased use of achievement testing and the participaton by parents in teaching their children."

More efforts will be made to link school programs "with employers and other resources in the surrounding community," he said, and more emphasis will be put on basic skills.

Horton gets permanent injunction

Midland oil man Ray K. Horton has taken a step toward settling his problems with Texas Attorney General John Hill by agreeing with Hill to a permanent injuntion ordering Horton to pay more than $600,000 restitution and not engage in deceptive trade practices.

Hill's office announced late Monday afternoon that it had approved the permanent injunction against Horton, doing business as Wallace Oil Co.

The permanent injunction replaces a temporary one agreed to in August, shortly after Hill brought suit against Horton and others. That suit alleged the defendants had been involved in fraudulent sale of non-existing oil field steam cleaners.

Also involved in the suit were Midlander Frank J. Fuell and M. L. Copenhaver of Houston, as well as several other companies the three were connected with. But the other defendants are not mentioned in this injunction.

One of those companies, Growth Energy Inc., has begun bankruptcy proceedings in federal court in Midland.

Under the terms of the permanent injunction, tentatively entered by 142nd District Court Judge Perry D. Pickett on Feb. 15, Wallace Oil Co. will pay a total of $604,545 in restitution to three companies with which it contracted for sale or lease of oil well equipment, $4,000 to the state in civil penalties under the Deceptive Trade Practices Act and $351 in court costs.

According to the Attorney General's Office, that amount is the total of current balances owed the three leasing companies and includes all credits and offsets. Horton also is to pay 6 percent interest from 1975 when contracts were signed until date of payment, which was not specified.

The three leasing companies are Borg-Warner Acceptance Corp., which is to receive $320,266; Guardian Leasing Inc., which is scheduled to get $145,962 and Western Lease-Banc, which is to receive $138,317.

Uncovered adages deal with how to get along

Proverbs may guide your life and living, and Psalms may be your consolation when "things" go awry, as they do and will.

Or it may be just vice versa and interchangeable.

There are numerous pithy sayings from the secular world that impart truth. They, too, may be likened to Psalms and Proverbs. But they don't always have the poetic flow of those capital "P" adages.

Prose or poetry, the worth is in the message; how it's said may determine if it's read and for how long.

Coming now is the message: Saws on learning.

Roustin' About just happened on to a pleasant series of adages found among papers that could have been discarded and never missed.

Nevertheless, the adages were uncovered, and they now read as if they might have been fillers in "McGuffey's Eclectic Reader."

Certainly, Roustin' About of all people intends no sermonizing. Maybe you'll find them relaxing and worthy of a ponder or so.

Here goes:

•

"Sooner or later a person, if he is wise, discovers that life is a mixture of good days and bad, victory and defeat, give and take."

"He learns that it doesn't pay to be a sensitive soul — that he should let some things go over his head like water off a duck's back."

"He learns that he who loses his temper usually loses."

"He learns that all men have burnt toast for breakfast now and then, and

No Estes indictment

WICHITA FALLS (AP) — A federal grand jury investigating Billie Sol Estes will reconvene in Abilene in April after returning no indictments Monday against the convicted West Texas swindler.

The grand jury had subpoenaed Estes-related records from the Texas attorney general's office. A spokesman for Attorney General John Hill said Monday the office supplied the necessary documents but that no personnel were to appear.

Hill had said earlier he would supply information obtained in the state's investigation of Estes by his economic crime unit.

The Internal Revenue Service, the FBI and Postal Service are reportedly interested in Estes' alleged business dealings since his parole from federal prison. Estes now lives Abilene.

Terms of his parole prohibit the one-time West Texas wheeler-dealer, who used phantom fertilizer tanks as collateral for multi-million dollar loans until he was caught in 1962, from engaging in any self-employed or promotional type activities.

He was sentenced in 1963 to 15 years in prison and was paroled in 1971 after serving six years.

The grand jury also investigated records of Ray Horton, a Midland businessman, and J. N. Patterson a Houston real estate salesman and former Abilene businessman.

Television commercials for children FTC target

WASHINGTON (AP) — After months of anticipation, the federal government is ready to take on Tony the Tiger, Cap'n Crunch and other heroes of commercials for sugar-coated cereals.

The clash between the Federal Trade Commission and television advertising aimed at children is being joined today as the FTC takes up staff proposals to sharply curtail such ads.

The commission has before it proposals to :

—Ban all television advertising directed at "very young" children.

—End advertisements aimed at children under age 12 for sugared products likely to cause tooth decay.

—Require that television advertising directed at children below that age for other sugared products be balanced by dental and nutritional messages.

Such controls are some time off, however. The staff recommended that the commission hold hearings on its proposals, a procedure that could take months.

And legal appeals from the cereal and broadcasting industries, which have been preparing legal defenses, could further delay the effect of commission action.

Commission Chairman Michael Pertschuk has said he is "convinced some action has to be taken" against commercials for products with high sugar contents aimed at young children.

The average American child watches 20,000 television commercials a year and sees more ads for sugared foods than for any other product.

The staff, in recommending that all TV ads aimed at very young audiences be banned, said "the 30-second commercial is the most effective device yet invented for implanting any relatively simple idea in a child's mind. ..."

The staff report said many young children can't differentiate between a

13 dead in Nicaragua violence

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Thirteen persons were reported killed in riots and gun battles following a new refusal by dictator Anastasio Somoza to resign before his term ends in 1981.

About 50 others were wounded. Somoza's National Guard arrested hundreds more.

Three of the dead and two of the wounded were students cut down Monday night by troops firing machine guns and rifles at 1,000 anti-Somoza demonstrators marching out of the University of Nicaragua campus, witnesses said.

The protesters had been driven back into the campus half an hour earlier by the guardsmen shooting over their heads and lobbing tear gas. A second attempt to march from the campus set off the direct attack, the witnesses said.

About half the demonstrators scattered during the shooting, but 500 others fled back to the campus. After several hours of negotiations the guardsmen promised not to shoot them and let them go home.

Seven guerrillas were killed and 15 wounded in fighting earlier in the day in the anti-government stronghold of Diriamba, 37 miles south of Managua, police said.

An eighth fatality was identified as a soldier. The two other dead reported were not identified.

Fifteen more persons were reported wounded in a gunfight between government forces and guerrillas in Masaya, 21 miles southeast of here.

The National Guard cordoned off both Diriamba and Masaya and cut telephone connections with them.

Anti-Somoza demonstrations were reported in the cities of Rivas, Leon, Boaco, and Chinandy.

Carlota Potosme, a resident of an Indian neighborhood called Monimbo in Masaya, said machine-gun fire and teargas bombardment by the National Guard was almost continuous Monday. The Monimbo Indians raided a weapons warehouse last week and took on guardsmen in an all-night shootout.

Little hike seen in food costs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite January's sharp increase in consumer prices, President Carter's advisers predict the cost of food will rise less this year than it did in 1977.

"We're still standing by that," said William Nordhaus, a member of the president's Council of Economic Advisers. "That's still our basic view. There's been no major change."

The Labor Department said Monday the price index for all urban consumers climbed 0.8 percent in January after rising 0.4 percent in each of the last three months. If averaged over a full year, the January increase would lead to an inflation rate of nearly 10 percent.

At the same time, the department said, the average worker's buying power declined by the largest amount on record — 3 percent, the biggest drop since the department began keeping track in 1964.

The decline in real spendable earnings was attributed to higher Social Security taxes, fewer hours worked, changes in the tax laws and rising consumer prices.

Julius Shiskin, commissioner of labor statistics, said the figures are a "cause for concern."

Some of the consumer price increases were caused by short supplies during the severe winter, he said. Nonetheless, Shiskin said, inflation may be worsening because price increases have been showing up at wholesale levels.

However, Jody Powell, the president's press secretary, said January's increase in consumer prices "is not seen as a basic change in the underlying 6 to 6.5 percent inflation rate that we felt was accurate even when the monthly increases were lower."

This year, he said, the administration has predicted nonfood items will go up 6 to 6.5 percent.

Rain clouds to roll into Basin

Rain clouds were expected to move into the Permian Basin today on the heels of what was expected to be another day with temperatures in the 70s.

According to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal, the unusually warm temperatures of the past several days will drop about 20 degrees on Wednesday when the chance of measureable precipitation will rise to 40 percent.

Chance of rain tonight is 30 percent.

The low tonight is expected to be 40 degrees and the high temperature Wednesday is expected in the upper 50s. The overnight low Monday was 50 degrees.

The National Weather Service reported a trace of rain in Midland Monday.

Clear skies and warm temperatures were reported this morning in Andrews, Lamesa, Stanton, Rankin, Big Lake, Odessa and Crane.

Mark Russell to speak at annual chamber dinner

Mark Russell, Washington's "one-man laugh-in" whose syndicated column appears on the editorial page of The Midland Reporter-Telegram, will bring his act to the Midland Chamber of Commerce's annual membership dinner March 20 at 7:30 p.m. in the Midland Hilton Ballroom.

Russell's brand of stand-up humor is now an established part of the Washington scene where he has been appearing at the Shoreham Hotel.

Russell, who refers to himself as a "confused independent," has been zinging Republicans and Democrats alike since the early days of the New Frontier.

He writes most of his material himself and gets his best ideas from the Washington newspapers. He says, "I look for incongruities, inhumanities to man."

Among his television credits, he lists appearances on The Tonight Show, Merv Griffin Show, Today Show, two David Frost specials and Bill Moyers Journal.

He has four record albums out including "Wild, Weird, Wired World of Watergate" and "Assault with a Deadly Peanut."

Announcements for the dinner are in the mail to all chamber members. Because of limited seating availability at the Hilton, seats will be reserved on a first come, first served, basis. Tickets are $12.50 each.

Students to compete

Approximately 350 students are expected to compete Friday and Saturday at the Youth Leadership Conference and Contest for Vocational Office Education Students in the Midland College fine arts building.

Students from 28 high schools in Area IV, which extends from Abilene to Pecos and south to Fort Stockton, will participate in contest events which include typing, bookkeeping, shorthand, accounting, speech, job interview and parliamentary procedure.

Registration will take place at 8:30 a.m. the first day of the conference, sponsored by the Office Education Association, a national organization for VOE students. Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. and Dr. Raymond Yell of Midland College will welcome students at a general session following registration.

In addition to the competition, Area IV officer elections are scheduled during the conference. Angie Gavia, a Lee High School senior, will run for president. She works for Pennzoil during her off-campus training.

Midland businessmen and staff members from the college will assist with grading and judging competition. The conference will end with an awards breakfast at 9:15 a.m. in the student center.

Peggy Callicoatte of Midland High School and Sara Cason of Lee High organized the event in cooperation with Billy Bell, Texas Education Association consultant from Big Spring.

Midlanders go to session

State Sen. W. E. "Pete" Snelson and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Kloesel will be at New Braunfels Thursday and Friday to attend the 12th annual Texas Legislative Conference, sponsored by the Greater New Braunfels Chamber of Commerce and the Texas State Chamber of Commerce.

Congressman George Mahon of Lubbock will be honored at the opening function Thursday night as "Texan of the Year."

Mahon also will address the conference Friday morning.

United States Sen. Lloyd Bentsen will be the Friday luncheon speaker.

A panel on national issues will be held Friday morning, with another panel, including Sen. Snelson, scheduled to discuss state issues that afternoon.

Kloesel, a director of the Midland Chamber of Commerce, is chairman of the National Affairs Committee of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce and a director of the Texas State Chamber of Commerce.

Horton agrees to permanent injunction

August, Hill charged the three defendants had contracted to sell or lease some 60 steam cleaners for a total of more than $720,000 in contracts. Hill maintained the transactions were in violation of the Texas Deceptive Trade Practices - Consumer Protection Act because "in truth and in fact, no complete and working steam cleaners were manufactured, shipped or received by said defendants."

Hill also accused the defendants of collecting sales taxes and then appropriating the money for their own use.

Horton denied the charges in the petition and attributed "much of his trouble" to "default by firms and individuals who had defaulted on payments of larges sums of money" owed to him.

The permanent injunction bars Horton from making untrue claims that goods have been or will be manufactured, in order to obtain leases for them, or that sales taxes have been or will be collected.

The Attorney General's Office has said it has linked its investigation of Horton to its investigation of Billie Sol Estes.

Horton said in August Estes had at one time been employed by a firm which Horton had at one time owned, "but I only tried to help the man after he was released from prison."

Estes had been convicted and sent to prison for a multi-million swindling scheme.

Jack Bryant, Estes' attorney, told The Reporter-Telegram in August that Estes at that time was employed by Growth Energy as a consultant. Horton denied that he had any business connection with Estes then.

We are all experts in our dream world

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

There's a difference between our dream world and real life. Naturally, I'm referring only to bridge hands, like the one shown today.

You ruff the second heart and, since this is real life, you lesad a diamond to dummy in order to try the trump finesse.

West takes the queen of spades and makes you ruff another heart. You lead your two remaining trumps, but this leaves West with the thirteenth trump. He will eventually ruff a diamond and cash his last heart, thus getting two trumps and two hearts.

That, to coin a phrase, is life.

GOOD ANALYSIS

In your dream world you would see that you can afford to lose two trumps and one heart. You are safe as long as neither opponent has more than four trumps.

After ruffing the second heart you would draw two rounds of trumps with the ace and king. Now abandon the trumps in order to run your side suits.

West would eventually ruff with his low trump. You would ruff his heart return and would still have a trump left. Continue with your side suits and let West ruff with the queen of spades whenever he likes. That is all he can get.

Aren't dreams wonderful!

Texas service award goes to Crane teacher

COLLEGE STATION — Crane High School industrial arts teacher, Thurston L. "Rip" Eggleston, received the Texas Industrial Arts Association's Distinguished Service Award during the association's conference at Texas A&M University this past weekend.

The association, a professional organization of public school and college industrial arts teachers and supervisors, presents this award annually.

Eggleston has taught mechanical drawing, architectural drawing and crafts at Crane High School 14 years. During his teaching career, he has served in several positions of leadership for various teachers' organizations and currently is serving as treasurer of the industrial arts association.

Eggleston earned his bachelor of science degree and his master's degree from North Texas State University. In addition to his membership in the industrial arts association, he belongs to the West Texas Industrial Arts Association, American Industrial Arts Association, National Education Association, Texas State Teachers Association and Texas Classroom Teachers Association.

FTC takes aim at ads for kids

TV program and its commercials and fail to understand that the advertisements are not part of the entertainment.

Millions of advertising dollars are at stake. The Television Bureau of Advertising says 1977 advertising expenditures in two product categories most likely to be seriously affected by any FTC action totaled $487 million.

The industry group could provide no breakdown for children's advertising but reported that confectionary and soft drinks accounted for $315 million in advertising sales. Cereals, both presweetened and unsweetened, accounted for $172 million.

The staff proposals came as a result of petitions to the FTC by two nonprofit groups, Action for Children's Television and the Center for Science in the Public Interest.

In a related development, Action for Children's Television has asked the Federal Communications Commission to ban all advertising from children's TV shows. The FCC in 1974 rejected a similar petition from the Boston-based group.

Either federal commission could act on its own to control advertising aimed at children.

UMW may use television ads to promote contract

WASHINGTON (AP) — United Mine Workers officials, conceding they face a battle in winning ratification of a contract to end the 85-day coal strike, say they're prepared to spend an estimated $40,000 airing television commercials promoting the pact.

And Johnny Paycheck, whose country songs are popular on coal country radio stations, has been enlisted to make radio advertisements if leaders decide his name would be helpful.

Paycheck's latest record, ironically, is titled "Take This Job and Shove It." It was the No. 38-selling single in the nation last week, according to Variety, the entertainment trade weekly.

The half-dozen television commercials and the radio spots are planned for broadcast beginning Wednesday on nine television stations and 50 radio stations in 10 states.

The commercials reflect the union leadership's concern over persuading striking miners to ratify the contract and resume mining coal.

Nervous officials say they are counting on a "silent majority" to ratify the proposed agreement with the Bituminous Coal Operators Association.

The tentative contract calls for maximum wage hikes of $2.40 an hour and provides guaranteed health and pension benefits.

But it also calls for the miners to pay a deductible amount for health care that has been free, includes company-run medical plans for most active miners and allows companies to fire wildcat strike leaders.

Union leader called about 250 UMW members together for an explanation of the proposed contract.

After the meeting, the group dispersed for home to explain the pact to the rank and file. The ratification vote is expected to be held Saturday and Sunday.

UMW President Arnold Miller, whose leadership has come under strong attack within the union, said he spent the day continuing negotiations on a contract covering about 30,000 mine construction workers.

Those negotiations remain a potential obstacle to reopening the mines. Even if miners ratify the main agreement with the Bituminous Coal Operators Association, it is unlikely miners would cross a picket line set up by striking construction workers.

A UMW official said the union and the American Bituminous Contractors Association still were working on resolving "two or three" differences.

Meanwhile, the executives of BCOA member companies met to review the proposed contract, which was accepted last Friday under the threat of strong government intervention to impose a settlement.

Ratification by the coal operators is regarded as a foregone conclusion, although it is unlikely it will be announced before the union's rank and file membership votes.

The strike, which began Dec. 6, has forced power cutbacks in some areas and has resulted in scattered job layoffs.

The deepening effect of the strike led the Carter administration to gradually abandon its policy of "non-intervention" in labor disputes.

Labor Secretary Ray Marshall was personally involved as a mediator in the talks, and President Carter brought negotiators to the White House at one point to encourage them to settle.

When they didn't, and the union later won agreement with an independent company, the administration brought pressure on the coal operators to accept the single-company agreement as a pattern.

Agreement on a tentative contract was announced Friday, only two hours before Carter was prepared to go on nationwide television to announce steps to end the strike.

PBGC gets a home!

Residents of the Tall City are proud of the Midland-based Permian Basin Graduate Center, and they will be even more so when the Center opens the doors of its own building within a matter of weeks now.

Yes sir, work is well under way in remodeling the old Reporter-Telegram building at the corner of Main and Illinois streets, which the Center purchased late last year.

And for the first time in its 10-year existence the Center soon will have its own classrooms, auditorium and staff offices under one roof.

In the past, space has been rented, and occasionally donated, here and there, and the really amazing part of the whole business is how the Center has managed to accomplish what it has under such circumstances. The need certainly had to be there, along with the tremendous desire and determination of its sponsors and supporters to meet that need, in order for it to have achieved the lofty goals which it has.

And now with a fine, modern, adequate building of its own, there is no telling how much more successful it will be in serving residents of this great region.

This is the way Midlanders like it. It has been through the generous support of corporate and individual citizens that the Center has been able to keep its doors open. It hasn't always been easy by any means, but its success has been most rewarding for all concerned.

Dr. Jack Elam, president of the board of directors of the non-profit educational facility, which was chartered in August, 1967, said recently that the Center has grown to the extent that expanded facilities were a must in order for it to continue its program, that of providing a means of continuous education at the professional level in the Permian Basin Empire.

The work includes the offering of non-credit courses, but the Graduate Center also coordinates graduate level courses in geology through The University of Texas System.

The Center also offers the Midland business community a continuous flow of outstanding professors, lecturers and consultants brought to the Tall City to instruct courses, deliver lectures and hold seminars and workshops.

Just notice, if you will, the number and variety of courses announced from week to week by the Center if there is any doubt as to the meaningful job the Center is doing.

The Center's limited staff also carries on the administrative and logistical work of offering courses to more than 1,000 persons a year. Yes, that's correct — more than 1,000 persons a year.

It also is significant that the Permian Basin Graduate Center has operated from its beginning without tax support. Operating funds have been generated through tuitions and contributions from business firms, organizations and private individuals.

A number of professional societies sponsor activities of the Center, along with the Midland and Ector County Independent School Districts.

The Center, incidentally, is governed by a board of 13 directors, all of whom donate their services. An advisory board includes representatives of colleges, universities and prominent citizens of the region.

It is a unique operation and it is serving a specific educational need at this particular level.

It should be mentioned also that the cost of purchasing and renovating the Center's new headquarters is approximately $200,000. This is a substantial amount for a non-profit, non-tax supported organization.

Dr. Elam has made it known that the Center presently is soliciting donations to the building fund in order to keep the mortgage requirements at a mimimum.

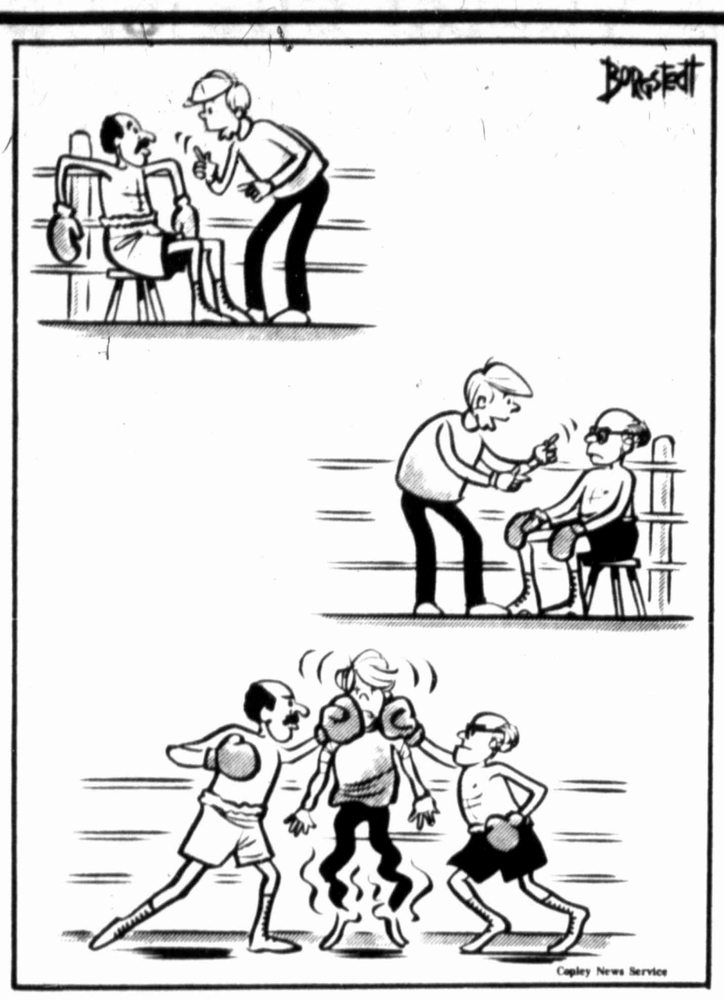

It is a most worthwhile cause, indeed.

ART BUCHWALD

No reunion for members of the old Nixon crowd

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — I think for me the saddest thing about Watergate is that members of the old Nixon gang have turned against each other. Who would have ever dreamed that on the David Frost show former President Nixon would have implicated John Ehrlichman and Bob Haldeman, who he considered his "sons," in the coverup of a third-rate burglary?

Who would have thought that John Ehrlichman would write a fiction novel based on President Nixon showing him in such an unfavorable light? How could anyone have predicted that Bob Haldeman, one of the great White House stonewallers, would let down his hair and blow the whistle on Nixon, Charles Colson and Henry Kissinger?

Whatever they did in the past I always said to my wife, "At least you have to admire them for their loyalty to each other."

I always dreamed the Nixon crowd would meet together on the Tenth Anniversary of Watergate and have a nostalgic reunion, reliving those wonderful days when they were all fighting in the White House bunker. They would kid each other about putting on weight and tell outrageous lies about their Watergate War experiences. It would be a scene out of "White Christmas," with John Dean calling up everybody and saying, "Let's go out to San Clemente and show the old man that, while the rest of the country may have forgotten him, those of us who fought with him still really care."

I could see them gathering on the lawn overlooking the blue Pacific and everyone would break into "Hail to the Chief" as Nixon came out in the suit he wore when he was President. There would be tears in his eyes as he looked at those familiar faces, and then he'd say, "I want you all to shape up. I've never seen such a bunch of sloppy White House aides in my life."

Then they would all sit around the pool drinking California wine and listening to the tapes, once again thinking back on those wonderful days when it was "us" against "them."

But apparently the reunion will never come off. And once again the Nixon Administration people have the media to blame.

If the newspapers, magazines, TV and book publishers hadn't dumped all that money on them, this great group of honorable men might never have ratted on each other.

The tragedy of post-Watergate is that in order to pay their lawyers, all those involved in the break-in and the coverup had to go their own way to make their stories worth the meager-bucks their agents had gotten for them.

It is sad for all of us who sat on the sidelines to see these men who went through so much together now at each other's throats.

Those of us who thought that Watergate was behind us now realize that the wounds are too deep and the book advances too high for any of the people involved to stick together.

My wife has taken it harder than I have. When the Haldeman excerpts from his book were printed, she said tearfully, "How could he have done it to Nixon?"

I said, "How could Nixon have done it to him?"

Then she said, "How could Colson have done it to Haldeman?"

And I said, "How could Dean have done it to all of them?"

Perhaps it's futile for people who weren't there to speculate why these fine, outstanding men would turn against each other at this stage of the game. My own theory is that it never would have happened if Checkers had been alive.

Mark Russell says

Did you ever think you'd see the day when fans of Richard Nixon would tell H.R. Haldeman to stop kicking him around?

•

Doesn't H.R. Haldeman realize that Richard Nixon has suffered enough? Won't these Nixon haters ever let up?

•

In his new book, Haldeman accuses Nixon of everything but starting the Chicago Fire. The publisher denies it, but I think Haldeman is a pen name for George McGovern.

•

In his book, Haldeman says that Nixon attempted to erase the tapes. Preposterous. Who are you going to believe, a former President or a convict?

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Flood's financial finagling told

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — The House Ethics Committee has known about the dubious dealings of Rep. Daniel J. Flood, D-Pa., since October 1972, when we first reported that his office was "deeply involved in fixing contracts." We identified his top assistant, Stephen Eiko, as the intermediary who sought "campaign funds" in return for Flood's intervention.

Two years ago, the Ethics Committee received official notice of Flood's financial finagling. We reported in April 1976, a Senate investigations subcommittee had come across evidence that Flood had stopped the government from cutting off student loans to some unaccredited West Coast schools.

Again we named the ubiquitous Steve Elko, citing evidence that a $15,000 payoff had been laundered through a company he once controlled. We reported that the Senate subcommittee had referred its confidential investgative report to the House Ethics Committee "for any action deemed appropriate."

The committee decided it would be appropriate to ask Elko to leave the House payroll, on the theory that the committee couldn't investigate someone who was no longer employed by the House. No thought was given to investigating the flamboyant Flood, and the scandal was conveniently swept under the congressional carpet.

But the Justice Department made a case against Elko who was convicted last fall of bribery, perjury and obstruction of justice. In exchange for a reduced sentence, he is now providing evidence against his former boss. This has stirred the Ethics Committee belatedly into investigating improprieties it has known about for more than six years.

Favors, of course, are part of a politician's stock in trade. He is expected to produce government jobs, public works projects and government contracts for the people he represents. All of these federal blessings can be arranged within the constraints of the law and ethics.

The people at home are supposed to be grateful and show their appreciation at the ballot box. The congressman, in his turn, can express his gratitude to the agencies by supporting their appropriations. It is sometimes a clumsy system, a throwback to the less artful days of government. But it seems to work.

Flood is skilled in the intricacies of this system. As evidence, his beloved Wilkes-Barre, Pa., is dotted with monuments to his ability to deliver the spoils. Within its boundaries are a Daniel J. Flood Industrial Park, a Daniel J. Flood Elderly Center, a Daniel J. Flood Rural Health Center and a Daniel J. Flood Elementary School. They are as much a measure of his exaltation as are the jewels proffered Oriental monarchs.

Flood has not always been content, however, to wait for election day or the construction of a new Daniel J. Flood facility to bask in the gratitude of his constituents. Our past investigations indicated he sometimes traded favors for cash. There was no set price for his benevolence. Like a doctor or lawyer, he allegedly charged what he felt the petitioner could afford to pay.

The theatrical Flood, with his waxed mustache, slicked-down hair and satin-lined capes, resembles an aging vaudeville villain. But his foppish appearance is deceiving. He is an able legislator, a power in the House. At age 74, he is a 30-year House veteran and a member of its College of Cardinals. This is the nickname given to the 13 powerful Appropriations subcommittee chairmen.

Flood's chairmanship gives him a stranglehold on the Health, Education and Welfare budget. By manipulating the purse strings, he has been able to aid contractors who hungered for a slice of the budget.

The tragedy is that, except for his financial eccentricities, Flood has been a good congressman. He is an unlikely hero of the working classes, with his silly mustache, his wild clothes and his Adolph Menjou manner. Yet Dapper Dan Flood has been a do-or-die champion of his blue-collar constituents.

He has fought to improve their living standards. He bailed them out from the great flood, proclaiming "this is going to be one Flood against another," when the Susquehanna River overflowed its banks and washed away part of Wilkes-Berre in 1972.

It has always been with a touch of sadness, therefore, that we have been obliged to write about his improprieties. With his accustomed bravura, he has denied any wrongdoing. We secretly hope it turns out that he is right and we have been wrong.

•

WASHINGTON WHIRL: It's too late to immunize Americans against the Russian flu this year, but a vaccination drive may be launched next year. This is the confidential report that Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph Califano has given President Carter. Califano reported that he is also meeting Carter's goal of immunizing 90 percent of the population against certain diseases. He notified the president that "1.3 million more children have been vaccinated than last year; measles are down 65 percent; mumps are down 22 percent and rubella is down 24 percent from last year."

— Attorney General Griffin Bell has warned the White House that federal prisons are overcrowded. "There are 6,000 more prisoners than can be accomodated within the existing capacity of federal prisons," he has reported confidentially. A Justice Department study, meanwhile, shows that "83 percent of federal prisoners are recidivists who have committed at least one felony in the past."

NICK THIMMESCH

Must non-union teachers pay 'fees' to the union?

Nick Thimmesch

WASHINGTON — Must teachers pay dues to a union they refuse to join for services they didn't ask for, or want?

The U.S. Supreme Court, in the Abood case, ruled in 1977 that teachers must indeed pay those dues. But the court also said that the union must spend those dues only on services, and not for political or ideological purposes.

Now comes a case where the Michigan State Tenure Commission rules that teachers cannot be fired for refusing to pay "agency shop" fees, in effect, dues, for unions they refuse to join.

This ruling seems to throw the question up in the air again, although the National Education Assn. is confident that once the Michigan case gets into the courts, their view will prevail.

The case involved Kathryn Jackson, a tenure teacher in the Swartz Creek Community School System, who was fired by her school board Jan. 13, 1975, for not paying "agency shop" fees (union dues) to the Swartz Creek Education Assn., the union which represents teachers in that system.

Mrs. Jackson, 63, had refused to pay these fees for the nine years the N.E.A. affiliate represented Swartz Creek teachers, but was not bothered by the union until it formally complained about her to the board. She was and is the only non-member of the union in the Swartz Creek system, according to Wallace K. Sagendorph, of Detroit, the union's lawyer.

The contract between the school district and the union specifies that teachers who refuse to join will be charged "agency shop" fees for representation services performed by the union. Mrs. Jackson, who teaches English and journalism, didn't object to the $200-a-year "fees" as much as she did the compulsion that she pay them.

Though her case began Dec. 9, 1974, the board waited 13 months before giving her a hearing, and then fired her one week later. She was allowed to continue teaching until the Tenure Commission made its decision.

Mrs. Jackson argued to the Commission that her firing was not for a reasonable and just cause, according to Michigan law. The board was "harsh," she declared, in firing her for only one reason — her refusal to pay the fees.

On Feb. 9, 1978, the Tenure Commission, by a 3-2 vote, ruled in favor of Mrs. Jackson, explaining:

"At no time throughout the appeal has the Appellant's moral conduct or ability to teach been questioned. Moreover, she has not been charged with insubordination nor has it been contested that students did not learn. The Commission determines that non-payment of 'agency shop' fees or dues does not meet the standards of reasonable and just cause for discharge within the meaning of the Tenure Act. The action of the Appellee (school board) in discharging Appellant (Mrs. Jackson) was improper, and is reversed accordingly."

Now, the National Right To Work Committee is trumpeting the Swartz Creek decision as possibly having "far-reaching effects." Susan Stabu, head of Concerned Educators Against Forced Unionism (CEAFU), declares: "Tenured teachers all across the country will be able to cite the Michigan ruling as legal precedent for giving tenure predominance over union 'ageny shop' demands. If upheld by the courts, it will be a national Right To Work law for tenured teachers."

Mrs. Jackson, an official of CEAFU, cut loose with a crack at teachers' unions by claiming their "chief concern is collecting 'agency shop' fees, not teaching America's children."

But Mrs. Jackson's joy may not endure. The union will go into Michigan courts to argue the case, drawing heavily on the Supreme Court's Abood ruling which held that public employes, including teachers, could be compelled to pay such fees, even if they didn't join the union.

An earlier Michigan case involving a teacher who was fired for refusing to pay the fees, wound up with a state court ordering her re-instatement and payment of damages for lost pay by the school board.

One consequence of that case was that Michigan and many other states enacted laws allowing the "agency shop" fees system, one much appreciated by unions, but there are challenging suits in several states.

The Supreme Court seems to have said it is okay to have the "agency shop" fees system, so long as the union doesn't use dues money to evangelize for causes like federally funded abortion, gay rights, school busing, or a host of other patently political or ideological issues.

The United Auto Workers got into a jam a while back for sponsoring an ad promoting liberalized abortion and paying for it with members' dues. Other unions now risk trouble by running stories in their publications promoting the more controversial aspects of the women's liberation movement.

Indeed, why should a union member, say a Mormon, pay dues to a union whose publication links the Mormon Church with Nazis, Communists and the Ku Klux Klan, as one major union has?

That's another story. Meanwhile, pro and anti-union teachers will be watching the case of Kathryn Jackson and her tentative victory over the Swartz Creek community school system.

Sentiment against Palestinians mounting in Egypt

By NICOLAS B. TATRO

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Anti-Palestinian feeling is running high in Egypt because of the assassination in Cyprus of one of Egypt's leading newspaper editors.

Sentiment is building up to abandon the Palestinian cause and make a separate peace with Israel. The government took steps Monday to reduce the special tax and travel privileges of the 150,000 Palestinians living in Egypt.

The two killers of Al Ahram editor Youssef Sebaei were Palestinians, and Egyptian newspapers have played up reports of Palestinian complicity in the gun battle in which 15 Egyptian commandos lost their lives at the Larnaca Airport.

Palestinian guerrillas are known to have been present at Larnaca. But there has been no proof that they joined the Cypriot National Guard in firing on the commandos trying to storm the Cypriot plane in which the two assassins were holding 11 Arabs hostage.

However, if emotions continue to rise or there are new terrorist acts aimed at Egypt, observers say President Anwar Sadat could divorce himself from the Palestine Liberation Organization and might be tempted to make a separate peace with Israel despite his repeated statements that he would not do that.

Ibrahim Saada, a columnist for the newspaper Akhbar el Yom, wrote that if it was proved that Palestinians were firing at the Egyptian commandos, "we would ask our government to immediately enter serious negotiations with the Israeli foe to restore Sinai alone."

A prominent political science professor agreed, saying, "If Sadat wanted to make a separate agreement, this would be his chance."

The PLO condemned the murder of Sebaei and insisted the killers had no connection with it. But recent Egyptian editorials have been especially critical of the organization's leaders. This indicates that Egypt may use the Cyprus incident to try to replace Yasser Arafat as PLO chairman or withdraw recognition of the PLO in favor of Palestinians in the West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip.

However, Sadat has made no move so far to disassociate himself from the PLO or modify his insistence on the right of self-determination for Palestinians as part of a peace settlement with Israel.

An undercurrent of anti-Palestinian sentiment has long existed in Egypt, based on the feeling that the PLO is ungrateful for the sacrifices Egypt has made for their cause.

There was an upsurge of anti-Palestinian feeling when Syria and the PLO attacked Sadat as a traitor following his trip to Israel last November. Egypt closed down the Voice of Palestine radio.

Stock market loses

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices sustained a broad loss today, faced with renewed weakness in the dollar and expectations of a negative signal on the economic outlook.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which fell 7.89 on Monday to a new 34-month low, dropped another 2.25 to 746.10 by noontime today.

Losers outpaced gainers by close to a 3-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The slumping dollar, which has been a subject of continuing concern on Wall Street, lost more ground against leading European currencies today.

Analysts also noted expectations of some negative news in the government's report on the index of leading economic indicators for January, due out later in the day.

Economists recently have pointed to evidence that the index, which is designed as a kind of crystal ball of business trends, might be headed for a downturn.

Datapoint, which announced plans for an offering of 600,000 shares, fell 1½ to 37⅛.

The NYSE's composite common-stock index dropped .24 to 48.57. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off .43 at 122.91.

Volume on the Big Board came to 8.79 million shares by noontime, against 8.92 million at the same point on Monday.

Poll reveals unhappiness with Carter

NEW YORK (AP) — Half the American people say President Carter has broken his promise to appoint U.S. attorneys and judges without regard for political considerations, an Associated Press-NBC News poll shows.

Carter's firing of Republican David Marston as U.S. attorney in Philadelphia appears to have been a major factor in shaping the public perception that Carter has failed to live up to his campaign pledge.

Fifty-two percent of those interviewed last week said Carter had not kept his promise. Only 20 percent said the president has kept his word, with 28 percent uncertain.

Even among members of his own party, Carter is viewed as having failed to live up to his word by a 44-29 percent margin.

Carter's pledge was outlined in a campaign position paper that said: "All federal judges and prosecutors should be appointed strictly on the basis of merit, without any consideration of political aspect or influence."

Hickman's paper is titled "The Changing Federal Budget Process."

A Midland College faculty member since September 1975, Hickman received his B.A. degree from Oklahoma State University and his M.A. degree from the University of Tulsa. He was awarded a D.A degree from Idaho State University.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Breast biopsies

Dear Dr. Solomon: A close friend of mine noticed a lump in her breast about a month ago. It turned out to be malignant and required a mastectomy. The surgeon did the biopsy and the operation all in one fell swoop. Is there any reason why the biopsy couldn't be done separately, with the operation a few days later, so a person can have a chance to get used to the idea?—Gladys K.

Dear Gladys: A traditional method has been to do a biopsy under general anesthesia, and then have a frozen sample of the suspicious lump in the breat examined under a microscope by a pathologist. Most of the time, it turns out to be benign—in which case the patient is simply allowed to wake up and have the good news.

If, however, the sample is definitely cancerous, the surgeon proceeds with the mastectomy while the patients is still asleep. Of course, this whole procedure has been explained to the patient ahead of time and her written consent has been obtained.

The reasoning behind this system is that the patient only has to be hospitalized and be given general anesthesia once. There is, however, a trend to have the biopsy done by itself, often under local anesthesia. Then, if an operation is necessary, it is done separately at a later date.

Dr. R. R. Baker of Johns Hopkins recently reported on a series of 153 biopsies performed successfully under local anesthesia. He says that an increasing number of women do not like to be anesthetized not knowing what the diagnosis will be and whether they will wake up with one breast or two. Breast biopsies under local anesthesia avoid a good deal of the psychological strain, he says, and give the surgeon more time to plan therapy.

The two-stage procedure is really essential if the lump in the breast in very small—because it may then be extremely difficult to decide whether or not it is cancerous. In some cases reviewed recently by the National Institutes of Health, it was found that a mistaken diagnosis was apparently made with these tiny lesions and a breast removed unnecessarily.

To avoid such tragic mistakes, experts now recommend that when the lump is less than one centimenter (about half an inch), that no operation be done until the findings of the hospital pathologist have been reviewed by two consultant pathologists.

In any case, a woman who wants to know what the results of a biopsy are before being operated on should simply request a two-stage procedure.

PBRPC meeting set Wednesday

Among the items for consideration are a $82,835 grant for continuing the Community Alchoholism Drying Out and Intermediate Care Facilities in Midland.

The commissioners will also consider an application by the city of Odessa for Community Development funds totaling $1,437,000 which would be supplied by the federal government.

In other matters, the commission will consider a request by the city of Stanton for low-rent public housing.

Postman finds body of boy in snowbank

UXBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — For 20 days, townspeople scoured the countryside for 10-year-old Peter Gosselin after he disappeared while playing in a blizzard. They found his body in a melting snowbank — five feet from his front door.

Although Peter was the object of daily searching by many of this town's 8,500 residents, the postman who discovered the boy's body Monday wished somebody else had found him.

"I've been delivering mail there for the past three years. But I hoped to heck I wouldn't be the one to find him," Leo J. Lussier, 53, said.

"As I turned away, I saw just the tip of a mitten. At first I didn't think anything of it. I reached over and shook it slightly, and the whole mound of snow seemed to move a little.

"Then I saw a boot, and I ran next door to call the police."

Hundreds of police, firemen and volunteers had hunted for Peter for miles around this central Massachusetts community, Police Chief John Emerick said.

Searchers had used a metal detector at the Gosselin home on Sunday without finding a trace of the boy who last was seen Feb. 7 frolicking during a storm that dumped more than two feet of snow across New England.

More trade proposed

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — The relaxation of trade barriers in the United States against Mexican products would help solve serious problems of both countries, Mexico's undersecretary for foreign affairs has told Texas newspaper editors meeting here.

Jose Juan Olloqui spoke Monday at a meeting of the Texas Daily Newspaper Association.

Olloqui urged editors and the U.S. press to creat a "conscience of vicinity" between the two countries and to emphasize similarities instead of differences. These actions, Olloqui said, would help equalize the lopside U.S.-Mexico balance of payments and solve the lengthy problems concerning illegal aliens.

Olloqui said his nation's trade deficit with the United States represents about five percent of Mexico's gross national product.

In order to solve the problem of illegal Mexican aliens holding down jobs in the United States, Olloqui said, there must be markets for the items produced in Mexico.

Tentative agreement made in Roloff suit

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — A tenative, out-of-court settlement has been reached in a $4.2 million damage suit brought against evangelist Lester Roloff by a former resident of one of his South Texas children's homes.

"We haven't reduced it (settlement) to writing yet, but I think it's fair to both sides," Tony Pletcher, one of Roloff's attorneys, said after State District Judge Jack R. Blackmon dismissed the jury for the trial of the suit.

Pletcher said he doubted if the terms of the settlement would ever be made public.

Roloff scurried from the courtroom before reporters could interview him.

The suit was brought by Robert Grimsley, 19, who was injured in a diving accident in July 1976. The suit alleges that Roloff Enterprises was negligent in not providing a qualified water safety supervisor or adequate first aid.

Grimsley was a resident of Roloff's Lighthouse home for boys. The accident occurred in a dormitory, which was a renovated barge anchored in Laguna Madre in Kleburg County, south of Corpus Christi.

He is paralyzed from the neck down and lives in a hospital room at the Memorial Medical Center.

He asked for damages for his pain and mental anguish and for loss of his physical powers.

The Nueces County Hospital District has paid the largest share of Grimsley's medical expenses to date. A records clerk testified at an earlier trial, which ended in a mistrial, that the youth's bill totaled $177,861 since October 1977.

Epilepsy drug gets OK

By MICHAEL PUTZEL

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration announced today it has granted its approval of the anti-seizure drug valproic acid for the treatment of petit mal epilepsy.

The drug will be sold in the United States by Abbott Laboratories under the brand name Depakene. It is chemically similar to sodium valproate, which is widely used in other countries and which the Epilepsy Foundation of America has been campaigning for in recent months.

The FDA, which gave the drug unusually quick consideration, said it had found valproic acid "likely to be useful in the treatment of a significant number of epileptic patients who do not respond well to currently available drugs."

Valproic acid is expected to be used most often in the treatment of petit mal or absence seizures, which are characterized by staring episodes, inattentiveness or momentary loss of consciousness.

It also has been approved for use in conjunction with other epilepsy drugs in the treatment of partial and multiple seizure types of epilepsy.

An estimated 1.5 million to 2 million persons in the United States suffer from epilepsy in its various forms. Epilepsy is a brain disorder that usually develops during childhood, often as a result of fetal brain damage, lead poisoning or accidental head injury.

About half of all diagnosed epilepsy cases can be controlled by drugs.

U.S. Surgeon General Julius Richmond said: "Children and young adults with epilepsy especially stand to benefit because the kind of seizures for which valproate is most effective often interupts the learning process or makes it impossible."

Richmond, who in his second role as assistant secretary for health in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare oversees the FDA, congratulated the regulatory agency for "working efficiently and objectively in the face of strong emotions and partisan pressures."

The Epilepsy Foundation had been calling publicly for approval of sodium valproate even before Abbott submitted its new drug application to the FDA.

The agency urged the Chicago pharmaceutical firm to speed up its application and promised to consider the various clinical studies of the drug as soon as each one was completed, rather than following the usual course of waiting for the manufacturer to assemble and submit all its scientific data at once.

In December, three months after Abbott submitted its application for Depakene, the FDA rejected as inconclusive or unreliable several of the scientific studies that appeared to show the effectiveness of the drug.

Abbott submitted a new study conducted by Dr. B. J. Wilder of the University of Florida, and the FDA accepted that as the final piece of information necessary to establish the drug's effectiveness.

Mahon blasts Sheats

U.S. Rep. George Mahon blasted congressional candidate Morris Sheats Monday for unauthorized use of a picture of the candidate and the congressman in a political advertisement.

"I was shocked to learn that one of the candidates for Congress in our district had, without my knowledge or consent, placed a picture of him and me in a political advertisement," Mahon said in a prepared statement.

"The picture implies my endorsement of his candidacy. I emphatically disavow this implication. I have not endorsed his candidacy.

"I had thought that citizens generally, and candidates in particular, knew of my often repeated statement that I would not seek to influence the people of our district in the selection of my successor," Mahon said.

"I deplore the unauthorized use of my picture and the implication which it suggests."

Mahon never mentioned Sheats by name, but the statement apparently refers to an ad supplement Sheats placed in many West Texas newspapers Sunday.

Mahon had inscribed the picture, "To recall the Washington visit and extend best wishes." The photograph appeared next to a story praising Mahon.

Kent Hance, Sheats' opponent in the Democratic primary, said Monday he had called Mahon and asked if the picture had been authorized in Sheats' advertising. But, Hance said, he did not ask Mahon to take action in response to the picture.

Sheats responded to Mahon's statement by saying the story and photograph were "intended only as a tribute to the Honorable George Mahon. It was not intended to imply an endorsement. He has said repeatedly that he will not endorse any candidate."

Sheats said he understood the picture was a "common courtesy Congressman Mahon extends to all of his constituents visiting him in Washington."

Mime troupe trial in limbo

BARCELONA, Spain (AP) — The Spanish army postponed the trial of six members of a leading theatrical troupe today on a technicality and under obvious pressure from the embarrassed government of Premier Adolfo Suarez.

The army said it would not go ahead with the trial of the Catalan troupe of mimes called the Jugglers because all of the defendants were not present to answer the charges. But on Monday, after the director of the group escaped from police custody, it had said it would try those who did not show up in absentia.

After a lieutenant colonel announced the postponement, defense lawyer Jose Maria Loperena shouted that four of the six defendants were on hand and ready to stand trial.

A new trial date was not announced.

The director of the troupe, four actors and an actress had been ordered to stand trial under a Franco law authorizing the army to try civilians accused of offenses against the military. They were charged with insulting the armed forces in one of their pantomimes although the play was approved by the civilian minister of culture.

The indictment of the six in December touched off a nationwide theater strike. Political leaders in Barcelona appealed to Defense Minister Manuel Gutierrez Mellado to call off the trial. Leftists threatened to take to the streets to protest. The trade unions, liberals and centrists, including some members of the premier's party, opposed the trial.

The Suarez government was silent. But it was obvious that it had forced the army to back down to save the democratic image Suarez and King Juan Carlos have been cultivating for post-Franco Spain.

Albert Boadella, the 34-yearold director of the troupe and the only defendant in custody, escaped Monday through a bathroom window at a hospital where he was held under police guard.

The other five defendants were free on bail. The military prosecutor had said he would ask for a three-year sentence for each of them and 4½ years for Boadella.

The prosecution of the troupe was ordered by Lt. Gen. Francisco Coloma Gallegos, the commander of the Barcelona military region. The play to which he objected, and which he never saw, was based on the army's execution by garroting of a Polish vagrant and a Spanish anarchist in 1974, while the general was Franco's army minister.

A military court sentenced the vagrant to death for killing a member of the Guardia Civil, the paramilitary national police, who came to arrest him in a saloon. The play depicted him as a nonpolitical criminal put to death by the garrote instead of the firing squad because of the Franco regime's anger over the assassination of Premier Luis Carrero Blanco by Basque separatists three months earlier.

Garroting is a medieval method of execution in which an iron collar is tightened on the condemned person until a spike severs the spinal cord.

Mennonites receive $75,000 loan offer

SEMINOLE — Financially troubled Mennonites here got the help of an anonymous Good Samaritan today. A man who read in the newspaper that the Mennonites needed $75,000 to meet a Wednesday loan date offered to make the sect a loan in that amount, according to Seminole Mayor Bob Clark.

The Mennonites immigrated here last year from Mexico and Canada, hoping to set up a church-centered, farm-oriented community. There are 550 of them here.

They bought 6,400 acres of farmland and equipment for $1.7 million, making about a half-million dollar down payment. But problems over their visa status and crop losses of the kind suffered by American farmers put them in a financial bind.

Of the anonymous loan offer, Mayor Clark said: "You're glad to know there are people like this in the world."

Kermit man found dead

PHOENIX, Ariz. — A 30-year-old Kermit man wanted by Midland County Sheriff's Office in connection with the theft of an automobile was found stabbed to death here, Phoenix detectives said Monday.

George Thompson, head of the Midland sheriff's office criminal investigative division, said Monday afternoon that Phoenix police telephoned him earlier in the day.

According to Thompson, William Joseph Yates leased a car from Rogers Ford, 4200 W. Highway 80. Under the lease, the car should have been returned Jan. 28. On Feb. 20, charges were filed by Rogers Ford, Thompson said.

About 2 a.m. Jan. 28, Phoenix police were called to a Phoenix residence. According to a spokesman for the police, Yates had been stabbed following a domestic argument. He was taken to a Phoenix hospital, where he died.

Although Yates died Jan. 28, Phoenix police only recently discovered that the vehicle Yates was driving was stolen, and that Yates was wanted by Midland sheriff's deputies, Thompson said.

Charges of armed voluntary manslaughter were filed Jan. 31 in Phoenix against Pamela Yates.

DEAR ABBY

His 25-year marriage guarantee not realistic

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married for three months and we just had our first big fight.

It all started when I mentioned to him that I had read that the longest marriage on record was 86 years! My husband then replied that 25 years is our limit—and no more.

Abby, I got married for life and I hoped that he did, too, so this really got me upset.

Then he said, "You should be pleased with a guarantee of 25 years."

What do you say, Abby?—V. V.

DEAR V.: Nobody has a "guarantee" that he'll wake up tomorrow morning, so your husband's "guarantee" of a 25-year-long marriage doesn't mean much.

Live your life one day at a time, and if your husband tells you after 25 years that your "guarantee" has run out, write again, and if I'm still around (and I hope I am), I'll help you deal with it.

DEAR ABBY: I have a boyfriend who has three favorite sayings: "I'm starved," "I'm tired" and "I'm broke." I can't see why he should always be starved. He lives at home. And he shouldn't be tired since he sleeps every chance he gets. And he shouldn't be broke either since he has a job.

He comes over every Friday night, and when I ask him to take me to a movie, he says he's broke. When I suggest going somewhere else, he says he's too tired. I don't understand why I want to marry him, but I do. What's wrong with him?—SUZIE Q.

DEAR SUZIE Q: He needs someone who will feed him, give him an allowance, and tuck him in every night. (A mother.) He's for adopting—not marrying.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 45-year-old widow in love with a 47-year-old widower I'll call Bill.

Bill's wife died four years ago and left him with a daughter who is now 12. (I'll call her Betsy.) The problem is the way Betsy feels about me. She's insanely jealous. Bill once kissed the back of my neck while helping me on with my coat and Betsy became hysterical. She yelled and screamed and cursed me, saying, "You will NEVER take my mother's place!" It took Bill an hour to calm her down.

Whenever we three drive anywhere, Betsy has to sit between us. When we three are together, Betsy sulks and looks at me with hate in her eyes. Until recently, Betsy slept with her father, but I told him I thought it was very unhealthy so he stopped it.

Bill is begging me to marry him. He says Betsy will outgrow her jealousy after we're married, and she will learn to love me, but I'm afraid to take a chance. I really love Bill and don't want to give him up. Please help me.——NEEDS HELP

DEAR NEEDS: Tell Bill that unless (and until) he gets Betsy to a psychotherapist for some counseling, and her sick attitude changes, marriage between you would be a disaster. (He could also use some therapy.) Under no circumstances should you marry Bill with the situation that now exists. If he doesn't agree to getting help for Betsy, say goodbye. And don't look back.

"Thanks, boss!"

Almost three million Texans are grateful and happy that their companies provide Blue Cross and Blue Shield Insurance.

Why?

Because they know it's the best group health insurance coverage... and the best group health insurance value. They know it offers a complete insurance package—not just health care coverage. They know that claims filing is easy, and that claims are paid promptly. And they know their familiar I.D. card is instantly recognized by doctors and hospitals everywhere.

Best of all, almost three million Texans know their companies think enough of them to provide the best health care insurance.

That's something they can be really thankful for. And their companies can feel really good about.

Briscoe urges president to 're-examine the facts'

By MILLER BONNER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter Administration must move quickly to amend its national energy policy in order to "keep America from becoming an economic satellite of the OPEC nations," claims Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe.

Briscoe said Monday that he had urged President Carter to "re-examine the facts" concerning the energy policy and outlined proposals Briscoe says will ease the energy crisis.

Following a 90-minute energy production conference with the president as part of the National Governors' Association winter meetings, Briscoe said:

"It is the belief of many of us that the proposed plan would not work and that the plan will not meet its own production goals and will in fact discourage domestic energy production," Briscoe read from the statement he had delivered during the governors' meeting with the president. "Therefore, we urge you to re-examine the facts, reject policies that will not work and adopt those policies that will increase energy production."

"Lessons of the months since the (energy) plan was presented should make it clear that greater incentives for domestic production should be provided than those provided in the plan and unless the United States' production is increased dramatically, the nation could face imports of 15 million barrels a day or more by 1985 which is almost doubling the current rate of imports and imports of this magnitude could make America an economic satellite of the OPEC nations."

The proposals Briscoe presented to Carter, Energy Secretary James Schlesinger, and Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus were:

—deregulate natural gas prices;

—allow newly-discovered oil to sell for world market prices and establish incentives for increased production from existing wells;

—revise existing federal government leasing procedures "so that the federal domain can provide its fair share of the nation's oil, gas, coal, uranium and geothermal resources which it is now not doing;"

—and abolish the crude oil equilization tax and the oil and gas user's tax. "These taxes would discourage production, have a highly regionalized impact on consumers and such taxes would increase the cost of living, the cost of doing business and therefore would be highly inflationary."

"A study by the University of Texas indicated that the national energy plan is based on unreal assumptions about oil and gas finding rates and the availability of drilling rigs," Briscoe said. "The net result is that the plan projects more oil and gas production than is realistically possible."

Briscoe said he and Oklahoma Gov. David Boren made the report on behalf of the oil and gas subcommittee of the National Governors' Association.

Operators acquire identities

DENVER (AP) — Telephone operators have their problems, too.

One official of Mountain Bell Co. says many operators look at themselves as "nobodies, as nameless, faceless non-persons."

That has changed under a 3month-old "Operation Identification" program.

Dial "O" and you may hear:

"This is Suzanne, directory assistance. What city, please?"

Or: "Operator Mary, may I help you?"

Hopkins leaves MHS to take Sonora job

By PAUL DOMOWITCH

Midland High football coach Jerry Hopkins, who guided little Sonora High School to eight district and three state titles during the 1960's, has decided to return to the town he put on the Texas football map. The 43-year-old Hopkins resigned Tuesday to take over the head grid job and athletic directorship at the District 7-AA school.

Hopkins informed Midland Independent School District athletic director Sam Cox of his decision late Monday after meeting with Sonora officials, and handed in his official resignation earlier today. His resignation will become effective March 28.

HOPKINS' DECISION forces Cox to begin yet another search for a new football coach. Gil Bartosh was just recently hired to take over the Lee High program after former coach Jim Acree resigned under pressure on Dec. 13.

"We will accept applications for the Midland job," Cox explained. "But after going through the whole process of searching for a Lee coach the last few months, I'm pretty well aware of who's available across the state, and so we'll do some active recruiting of our own right away."

•

Cox would not mention any specific individuals he might be considering for the Bulldog post.

HOPKINS STILL has a year left on his Midland contract, but MISD officials are not going to hold him to it. Cox admitted however, that he was very sorry to see him go.

"I knew he was going down there to talk with the Sonora people," Cox admitted. "But I was hoping that nothing would come of it. Unfortunately, something did.

"Jerry's a fine football coach and an even finer man and I hate to lose him. But I wish him well. I only regret that he didn't stay long enough to fully implement his program here, because if he had been able to do so, I'm confident that the results would have been outstanding — just as they have been everywhere else he's been."

HOPKINS MET with his team and coaching staff earlier this afternoon and told them in a private meeting of his decision to leave Midland.

Earlier in the day, he explained his reasons for leaving: "There were family and personal considerations that I felt made this the right thing to do," he said someberly. "It's a move I just had to make."

Hopkins wasn't sure how many of his present assistants might be going with him to Sonora. "That's still up in the air," he said. "I haven't had time to negotiate those factors yet. I don't know exactly what the situation is down there (Sonora). I don't know how many assistants will be going with the old coach and how many will want to stay, so I really can't shed any light on that yet."

WHEN HOPKINS came to Midland two years ago from Seguin, he brought along assistants Denny Hays, Grosse Mohler and Ted Harris. Harris resigned after last season to take over the head coaching job at Nocona, a AA school near Wichita Falls. He was replaced by Eddie Howell, a Sonora High grad.

Hopkins was making $23,750 per annum at Midland, and it was uncertain whether Sonora matched that figure.

Hopkins, who is married and has three children, began his coaching career in 1957 as a junior high coach in San Antonio. He later spent three years as an assistant at San Angelo Lakeview and one more at Cameron before taking over the head position at Sonora where he worked his magic.

HE LEFT Sonora in 1971 for Seguin, and in five years at the Southeast Texas school, he won three 29-AAAA titles. He came to Midland in 1976, and in the two years he has been here, his teams won 9, lost 10 and tied one.

Bulldogs, Rebels in season openers

The 1978 high school baseball season officially opens here Wednesday afternoon.

Both the Robert E. Lee Rebels and Midland Bulldogs open the campaign at home against Hobbs, N.M. and Snyder.

Coach Ernie Johnson starts his 18th season at Lee and will send Doug Schmidt to the mound against the New Mexico team while Midland Coach Larry Peel will call upon Bud Brigham to throw against the Claas AAA Tigers at the Memorial Stadium diamond.

Joining Schmidt in the starting lineup for the Rebels will be Danny Brenner at first base; Don Rasure at second base; Steve Pitts at shortstop and two-year letter winner Mike Richard will be at third base.

The outfield will have Todd Clements in left; Pat Moore in center and John White on right with Craig Van Horn handling the catching chores. Johnson will use either handling the catching chores: Johnson will use either Richard Josefy or Clay Calhoun at the designated hitter slot.

Midland'e lineup against Snyder will include Mark Mead at first base; Steve Cole at second base; Tracy Gann, shortstop and Archie Booth at third to round out the infield.

Rick Foster, Ricky Goode and Joe Mowels will patrol the outfield while James Allen will be behind the plate, catching. The designated hitter will be Jimmie Zachry.

Midland plays Lubbock Monterey here Friday while Lee travels to Hobbs. Then on Saturday, Lee entertains Lubbock Coronado in a doubleheader and MHS takes on Lubbock High in a twin bill in

Kentucky returns again as nation's No. 1 team

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — Returning to the No. 1 position in The Associated Press college basketball poll didn't have much effect on the Kentucky Wildcats, the team that resided there most of the season.

"It's nice," said Coach Joe Hall, "but it doesn't mean anything. We would just as soon not have it.

"More important is how we'll play in the tournament," Hall added.

He means the National Collegiate Athletic Association tournament that will settle college basketball's national championship. Kentucky, having wrapped up its 31st Southeastern Conference title, will open its post-season action in the Mideast Regional at Knoxville, Tenn., March 11.

The Wildcats settled their return to the top after a two-week absence by downing Georgia 78-67 Monday night for their 23rd victory in 25 games.

Kentucky received 39 first place votes and 1,044 points, jumping from second to replace defending national champion Marquette, which was upset by Notre Dame Sunday.

The Wildcats had fallen to third two weeks ago after losing to Louisiana State. Arkansas bolted to the top that time, but held it only one week, losing to Houston and opening the door for Marquette.

UCLA, a perennial power, moved into second place with 13 first-place votes and 964 points and Marquette dropped to third.

Rounding out the Top Ten in order were Arkansas, Kansas, DePaul, Notre Dame, New Mexico, Michigan State and North Carolina. DePaul was named on two ballots as the No. 1 team.

"It's a great honor to be ranked No. 1," said Kentucky power forward Rick Robey.

Wildcats nail down SEC basketball title

By The Associated Press

From top to bottom, college basketball's Top Twenty has a Kentucky flavor and that may mean indigestion for opponents when post-season play rolls around.

The University of Kentucky celebrated its return to the head of the Associated Press ratings Monday night by clinching the Southeastern Conference championship with a 78-67 victory over Georgia. The flustricken Wildcats hit their first nine shots en route to a 56 percent shooting night.

Meanwhile, 20th-ranked Louisville warmed up for the Metro 7 Conference tournament by polishing off St. Louis 94-59.

In between No. 1 and No. 20, 11th-ranked Florida State rallied to defeat Oral Roberts 80-76 in overtime, No. 14 Syracuse bombed Canisius 100-59, No. 16 Detroit trounced Chicago Loyola 89-69 and No. 18 Providence wore down Long Island U. 85-62.

KENTUCKY OPENED a 19-point first-half lead over Georgia and coasted to its 23rd victory in 25 games as Jack Givens and Rick Robey split 30 points. Walter Daniels scored 25 for Georgia.

"It looked like we got tired and held on for survival in the second half," said Coach Joe Hall. "We just ran out of gas, but we gave the effort and played, I guess, about as well as we could play under the circumstances."

The Wildcats had 11 players down with the flu recently.

Louisville was led by Darrell Griffith and Rick Wilson with 20 points apiece. A 23-6 burst early in the second half shot the Cardinals from a 48-34 lead to a 71-40 bulge and the advantage grew to 41 points on two occasions.

"It was just an awesome performance by Louisville," said St. Louis Coach Ron Coleman. "We could have played perfect and we still wouldn't have beaten them. I see Lousville and Florida State in the finals of the Metro 7 tournament. It'll be a heck of a game."

Griffith not only shot 10-for-17, but also passed off for seven assists.

"That's a pretty darn good night," said Coach Denny Crum. "You just can't do much more than that."

Florida State may have been looking ahead to the tournament. Harry Davis scored eight of his game-high 24 points late in the second half to key the Seminoles' rally against Oral Roberts.

ORU led by 13 points with 10:41 left in regulation play but Davis and Murray Brown did most of the heavy work to pull Florida State into a tie at 74. The Seminoles finished the regular season 22-4.

Syracuse also wound up 22-4, crushing Canisius as Marty Byrnes scored 17 points and grabbed 15 rebounds. It was the Orangemen's 29th consecutive home-court victory, longest in the nation.

Detroit did even better, boosting its record to 24-2 against outmanned Loyola. Terry Duerod hit 13 of 22 shots and scored 26 points while Kevin Smith came off the bench to score 22.

The Titans conclude their regular season Saturday against defending national champion Marquette.

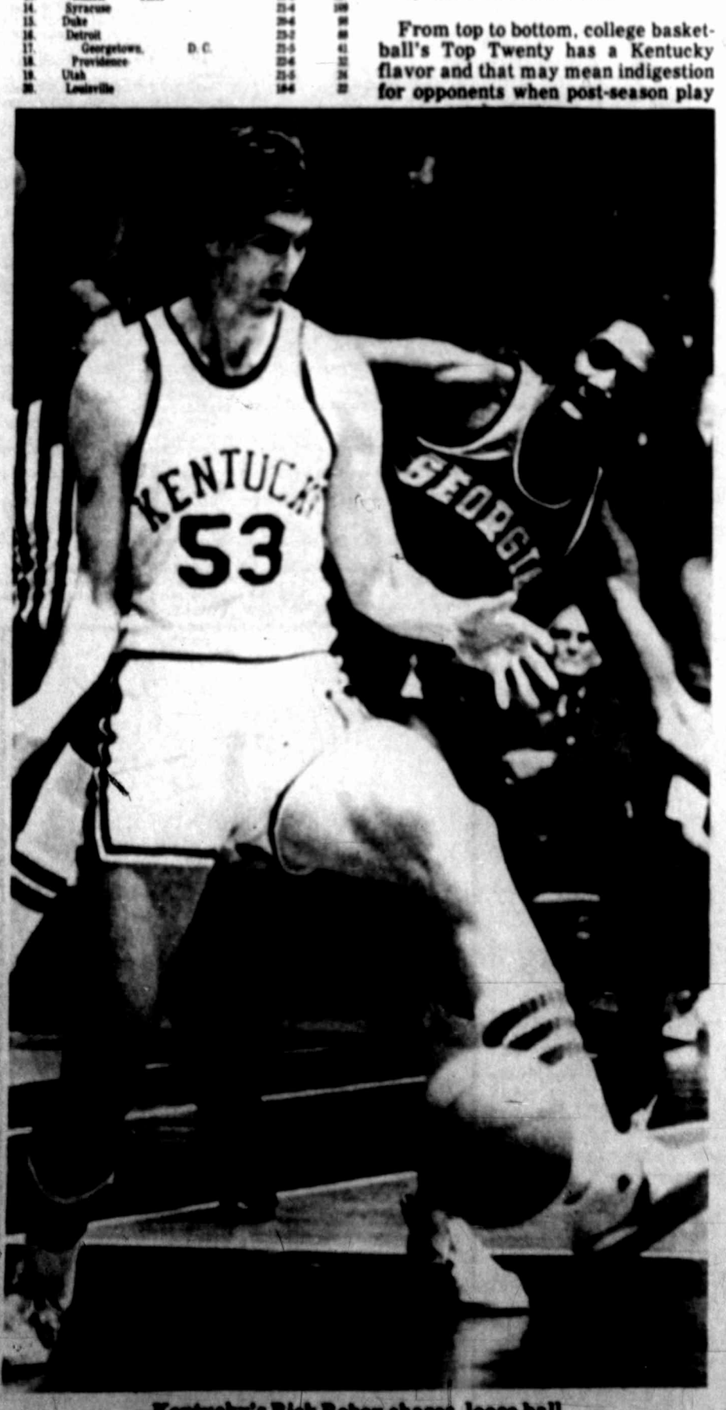

Providence led LIU by only 38-37 at the half as the losers shot 58 percent, but pulled away after the intermission. A 15-2 spurt made it a rout as Bill Eason and Bruce Campbell scored 15 points apiece.

Back in the SEC, runnerup Mississippi State needed six free throws in the final minute of overtime to edge Auburn 83-82. Gary Hooker led the winners with 20 points while Auburn got 31 from Mike Mitchell and 26 from Stan Pietkiewicz. State's Ray White sent the game into overtime when he stole the ball and dunked it with 1:23 left.

Elsewhere in the SEC, Reginald King led the way with 18 points and 12 rebounds as Alabama trimmed Florida 81-70 and Tennessee beat Vanderbilt 59-46 although Mike Rhodes set a Vandy freshman-year record of 483 points.

Ronnie Perry scored 32 points, including a short jump shot with two seconds left in overtime to lift Holy Cross over Boston College 99-98. The winners erased an eight-point deficit in the final 1:43 of regulation play.

McNeese State pulled within one-half game of Lamar in the Southland Conference by edging the Cardinals 84-80 in double overtime

Goolagong takes win with ease

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Second-seeded Evonne Goolagong of Australia soundly toppled Nancy Richey to lead seven players into the second round of a $100,000 professional women's tennis tournament.

Five other ranked players, including top-seeded Martina Navratilova, see their first action today.

Goolagong, who is making a strong comeback after sitting out the 1977 tour season, beat Richey 6-0, 6-1 in a match that barely lasted 40 minutes. Other seeded players advancing Monday night included fifth-ranked Rosie Casals, who downed Katja Ebbinghaas of West Germany 6-0, 6-2 and Sue Barker of England, the sixth seed, who topped Virginia Ruzici of Romania 6-1, 7-5.

Regina Marsikova of Czechosovakia upset JoAnne Russell 7-6, 6-3 to highlight the opening session of the tournament Monday afternoon.

In other first-round matches, Brigette Cuypers of South Africa defeated fellow South African Marise Kruger 6-2, 6-4; Mima Jausovec of Yugoslavia trounced Carrie Meyer 6-1, 6-2, and Sharon Walsh downed Renata Tomanova 6-4, 6-3.

The ease of Goolagong's victory came as a surprise to her.

"She's (Richey) usually a very consistent player," Goolagong said. "I really expected a tougher match. I didn't expect to be this quick."

Goolagong took advantage of Richey's lack of mobility, continuously hitting shots beyond the reach of her veteran opponent.

OU faces jinx with Wildcats

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Kansas State was worried about the law — of averages.

If there such a thing — and mathematicians who work with theories of probability say there's not — then Oklahoma should have an advantage tonight. The Sooners, who travel to Kansas State tonight for the first round of the Big Eight's post-season tournament, haven't won in Manhattan in 30 straight attempts.

"I believe," K-State Coach Jack Hartman said after his team dispatched Oklahoma in Norman last Saturday, "the team that loses last has a psychological advantage."

Other first-round postseason matchups tonight find Colorado at conference champion Kansas, Missouri at Iowa State and Oklahoma State at Nebraska.

The four winners advance to the semifinals Friday night at Kemper Arena in Kansas City,

Lone Star finals today

BROWNWOOD, Texas (AP) — It will be a rematch of last year's Lone Star Conference tournament finals tonight when East Texas State and Howard Payne clash for the LSC postseason basketball tourney crown.

East Texas, now 20-8, won last year's finals meeting 66-64.

East Texas, with Gerald Batty hitting a shot with five seconds left — while his coach was trying to call time out — nicked Angelo State 68-66 in Monday night's first semifinal game.

Pete Patterson scored 16 points as Howard Payne whipped Texas A&I 70-60 in the other semifinal.

Batty's game-winner was his only basket of the night and gave the Lions their fourth consecutive 20-win season.

The Lions were down 39-29 at halftime after trailing by as many as 14 points in the first half. The Rams got off only five shots in the first eight minutes of the second half and ETSU tied the score at 41-41 with 13:10 remaining.

Billy Roberson and Jeff Granger paced ETSU with 18 points each, while Robert Criner led the Rams with 16.

The game ended a 29-year coaching career at ASU for Phil George, who compiled a 512-273 record for the Rams on the junior college and senior college level.

"We leave this dressing room with our heads up, but with a lot of hurt in our hearts," said George, whose team finished its season at 9-19.

Texas A&I, the darkhorse in the seven-team LSC tournament, came from 14 points down to forge a 31-31 tie at halftime. Patterson's basket early in the second half gave Howard Payne a 33-31 lead and the Yellow Jackets never trailed.

Texas A&I's James Johnson finished with 19 points, 15 in the first half.

Howard Payne, the LSC's regular-season champion, ran its season mark to 21-5, while Texas A&I finished at 13-15.

Former NCAA field investigator says that staff bribed athletes

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former NCAA field investigator has charged that the National Collegiate Athletic Association's enforcement staff routinely cajoled — and even bribed — student-athletes to gain information from them.

J. Brent Clark, a 29-year-old attorney who worked for the NCAA for 2½ years before resigning Dec. 30, also told a House Interstate and Foreign Commerce subcommittee that the athletes are threatened with a loss of their eligibility if they do not cooperate with the investigators.

CLARK WAS the initial witness Monday in a public Congressional probe of the NCAA, particularly the organization's enforcement procedures, which most likely will last all spring.

The hearings continued today with representatives of Mississippi State University and Michigan State Univerity and Jack Fusak, a past NCAA president, scheduled to tesify.

Almost as soon as the hearing got underway, the subcommittee split along political party lines with the Democrats, including chairman John Moss, D-Calif., and Rep. Jim Santini, D-Nev., attacking the NCAA, while Republicans, including Norman F. Lent, R-N. Y., and Marc L. Marks, R-Ohio, closely questioning Clark, now a subcommittee staff member.

After he read his seven page statement, Clark was asked by Marks to give specific examples of the bribery he alleged.

In his statement, Clark had said: "Bribe is a strong word, Mr. Chairman, but I mean it."

He then told Marks and the panel that one of his NCAA superiors, Bill Hunt, head of the enforcement unit, once suggested that he obtain an interview with a young athlete by telling him he could get a tryout with a professional basketball team, the Kansas City Kings.

The athlete involved, he said, was a Major Jones who was then playing for Allentown in the Eastern League.

He said he declined to carry out his superiors orders.

In another case, he said, an athlete at the University of Mississippi, James Jordan, had provided an investigator, Jim Delaney, "with the services of a young lady."

DELANEY THEN went to Mississippi coach Kent Cooper and told him that he wouldn't turn in data on Jordan to his superiors because he did not want them to learn about the young lady.

Tom Hansen, an assistant NCAA executive director, attended the hearing and told newsmen "the trouble with Brent is that he is talking about things he knows little or nothing about."

THE CONGRESSONAL probe was initiated by Santini last fall after two schools in his state, the University of Nevada at Las Vegas and at Reno, were placed on punished by the NCAA.

At the hearing, Santini said the NCAA suffered from such a "power paranoia" that after he called for the Congressional probe of the organization, the NCAA started an investigation of him.

"There is the potential for investigatory abuse, power abuse," said Santini. "It is significant of the kind of mentalitiy we are dealing with in trying to get some changes. This is the power paranoia response against those who are seeking change."

Lent questioned Clark on his political ambitions (he has them), about whether he ever thought about writing an expose on the NCAA (he did) and his main reason for the leaving the NCAA (he tried to make changes but couldn't).

IN HIS formal statement, Clark said, "I believe that the NCAA enforcement machinery allows NCAA personnel to inflict selective punishment upon institutions, selections based no on reports of violations so huch as politics and balance sheets.

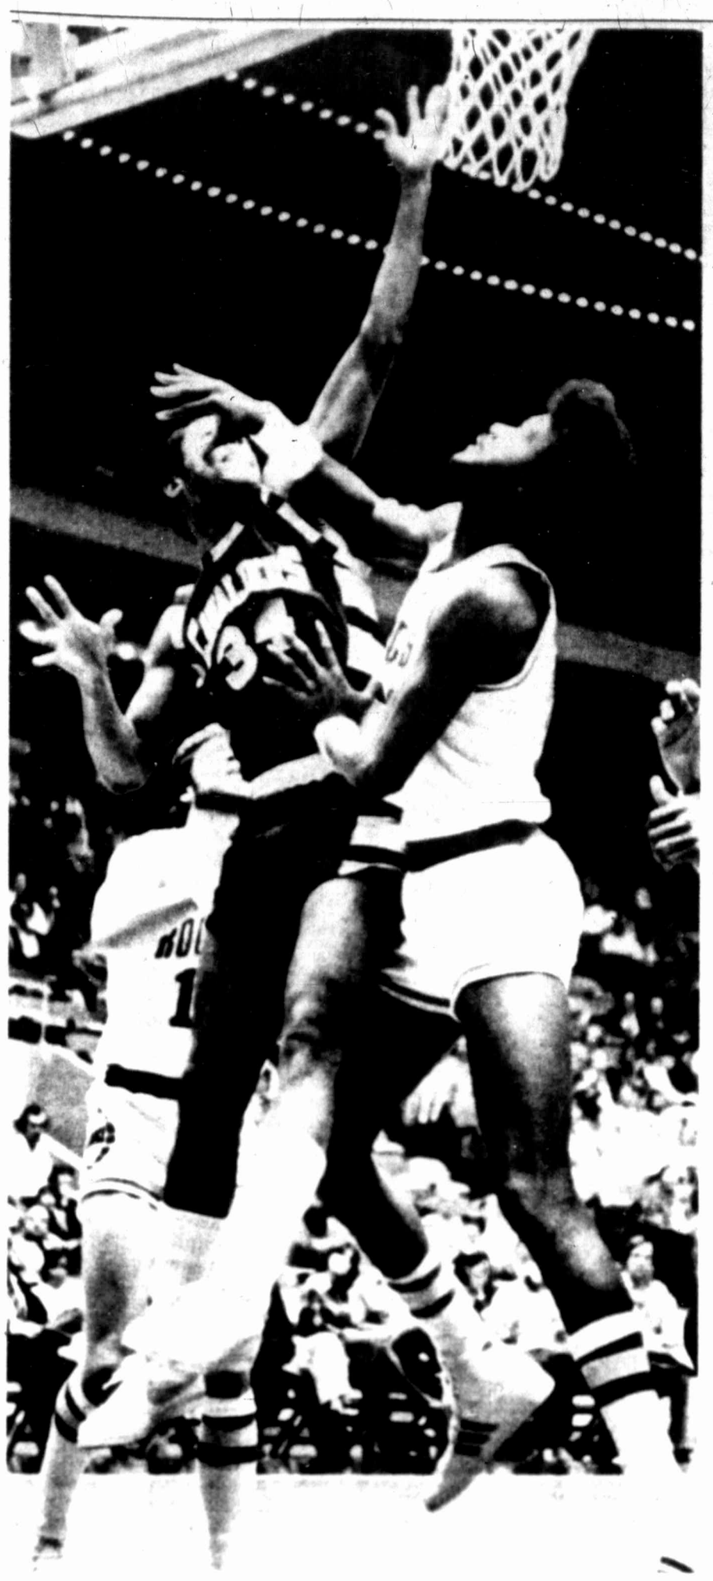

"The NCAA enforcement machinery operates through a staff-infractions committee union acting as prosecutor, judge, jury and executioner. The NCAA enforcement machinery deprives its member institutions of having the tools to defend themselves against unfounded charges in the face of an NCAA staff with almost unbridled power.

"The fact is, Mr. Chairman, something approaching a tyranny seems to exist over the members of the NCAA, and it affects not only student athletes but every American who believes in the concept of learning through participation," said Clark.

IN HIS opening statement, Moss, noting that he is not an avid sports fan, said the world of intercollegiate sports is wholly novel to the subcommittee.

"The overriding issue we examine, however, is not novel at all," he said. "Quite simply, it is fairness. Does the organization that regulates and polices virtually all serious intercollegiate athletic activity in the country operate in a way that does not offend our sense of fair play?

"That questions has not been asked and answerd in a Congressional or any public forum in three-quarters of a century," said Moss.

Person upset victim during Life Begins at 40 tourney

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) — Curtis Person, the nation's top-ranked senior amateur golfer, said his loss in the Life Begins at 40 Tournament here was just a matter of not being able to make up for lost strokes.

The Memphis, Tenn., golfer was upset Monday by Andy Manning of Richardson in 2 and 1 match play score.

"He made three deuces and I just couldn't catch up," Person, a four-time winner here, said.

Also in opening day competition, defending champ Jack Williams of Plainview shot even par over 16 holes to beat Bill St. Clair of Muleshoe by 3 and 2.

The field for the 26th annual event includes 256 golfers over 40. The championship field includes 32 4-handicap or better players.

In other Monday rssults, Maurice Wilson of Dallas, a three-time winner here, beat 1972 cham-Jim Cason of Harlingen 1-up; Billy Bob Coffey of Fort Worth, a two-time winner, took a 1-up decision from Bill Lowe of Corpus Christi; and 1976 champ Roy Peden of Kermit advanced by beating Ace Ellis of Chicago, 4 and 3.

Today's pairings included Peden and Coffey, Williams and Glen Detmore of Longview, and Manning and local golfer George Bennet.

Matlack likes Texas Rangers

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Newly-acquired lefthander Jon Matlack says he doesn't see any weakness in the 1978 Texas Rangers.

Matlack, who came to Texas last December in a four-team, 11-player blockbuster deal, said "When I look at the players we've got, I know I won't have to be picture-perfect every day to win."

Matlack, who had injury problems last year, was 7-15 with the New York Mets and posted a 4.21 earned run average. In 1976, he was 17-10 with a 2.95 ERA.

Manager Billy Hunter said of Matlack: "He's got great stuff. With the stuff he has I don't see how he had the kind of year he did a year ago. And I hope I don't find out this year."

Hunter said Matlack's arm is sound.

Matlack said "The important thing right now is just to get off on a good foot. Last year I got behind the eight-ball early and could never get out from behind it."

The full Ranger squad was scheduled to report today.

Snyder golf tourney set for this weekend

Johnny Jones out of meet

LAREDO, Texas (AP) — Thirty Border Olympics points are up for grabs again as officials here said the University of Texas' Johnny Jones will not run in the weekend track meet.

Jones, an Olympic gold medal sprinter who would have been favored to help the Horns garner 30 points, is still nursing a pulled hamstring, UT Coach Cleburne Price told officials.

The Lampassas native injured his leg in the Longhorns' Cotton Bowl loss to Notre Dame.

Meet officials also said Monday that Southern Methodist sprinter Cole Doty will also miss the meet. Doty, who won the 220-yard run here last year, will return to his native Canada this weekend to take dental school exams.

Jones' withdrawal leaves Texas A&M and Baylor as co-favorites in the university division. His absence also prevents a possible confrontation with the Aggies' Curtis Dickey, a gridder-sprinter who zipped to an impressive 60-yard dash win at the recent Southwest Conference indoor meet.

Lasorda optimistic about his '78 LA Dodgers

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — There's a guy who sounds more confident than rookie Manager Tommy Lasorda before the 1977 Los Angeles Dodgers blasted off with victories in 22 of their first 26 games on the way to the National League baseball championship.

It's Lasorda talking about the 1978 Dodgers.

The team opening spring training drills today is potentially stronger than the National League baseball championship team of last year, Lasorda says.

The Dodgers finished 10 games ahead of the Cincinnati Reds in the NL West Division last fall. Lasorda has heard the World Series champion Reds of 1975 and 1976 claim it is because the Reds had an off season.

"My response is that we are the better team and we earned everything we got," Lasorda says.

"Our people are talented enough and young enough to be more productive than they were in 1977. They know what the rewards are and they want it even more than before."

Lasorda doesn't, however, talk about returning to the World Series.

"The only thing we're talking about is getting ready for the National League," Lasorda says. "We'll get ready the same way we did last year and hope we can start just as fast."

Lasorda began saying the Dodgers would win the pennant on the day he was named manager in the fall of 1976.

Back again is the entire five-man starting pitcher rotation. Led by Tommy John, Don Sutton, Doug Rau, Rick Rhoden and Burt Hooton, the Dodgers had the league's lowest earned run average.

Among Lasorda's reasons for thinking the Dodgers of 1978 may be better is acquisition of relief pitcher Terry Forster from Pittsburgh to ease the lead on knuckleball specialist Charlie Hough. The Dodgers also hope to have healthier years from centerfielder Rick Monday, second baseman Dave Lopes and super-sub Teddy Martinez.

Brock presents shoes to hall

NEW YORK (AP) — Lou Brock, a base-stealing specialist, foresees the day that baseball will become strictly a sport of specialists — but no Olympic gold medalist is going to grab his record cheaply.

"It would take even the best Olympic sprinter five years to undergo the proper test," the St. Louis Cardinals' sleek outfielder said.

"Speed is only one minor facet of successful base-stealing. There are other important factors — the mechanical phase of it, weight shifting, acceleration, the element of surprise. I would like to see a guy like Bruce Jenner out there on base. It's a lot different than running down a track against the clock."

Brock used Jenner as an example because his decathlon victory at Montreal in 1976 and his subsequent TV commercials for a favorite cereal have made him virtually the symbol of Olympic track prowess.

IT MIGHT HAVE been more appropriate if Lou had illustrated his point by using the name of Houston McTear, only last week the world record-setter in the 60-yard dash and currently recognized as "the world's fastest human."

"I don't care whether he runs the 100 in 9.5 or 10 flat, it's still going to take him 3.4 seconds to get from first to second base (90 feet)," the 38-year-old outfielder insisted. "Whether he's safe or out depends on a lot of intangibles not found on a stopwatch."

Brock, en route to St. Petersburg, Fla., to begin his 18th major league campaign, stopped off in New York Monday to make a presentation to baseball's Hall of Fame.

He presented the red cleated shoes with which he slid into base last August, breaking Ty Cobb's 50-year record of 892 career stolen bases.

Edward W. Stack, president of the Hall of Fame, accepted the trophy and gave Brock a gilded replica as a personal trophy for his tremendous feat.

Brock was dapper in a blue suede suit with white shirt and blue-and-red striped tie. He looked lean and fit enough to step into the lineup without any further conditioning.

"I weigh about 175," he said. "I never have much trouble keeping in shape. I eat everything in sight. I never work out in the off-season. I stay about the same. I play at around 172."

SOMEONE ASKED if that was his ideal weight.

"I'd rather weigh 185," he said. "Then maybe I could pump some of those balls out of the park."

Brock predicted that the greatest threat to his basestealing records — he now has 900 for his career and 118 for a single season — might in the distant future come from gold medal sprinters fresh out of the Olympics.

"Platoon baseball is coming," he said. "We already have the designated hitter in the American League and they're pushing for the designated runner. Some day we will have offensive and defensive platoons just as they have in football. It's almost that now in the seventh and eighth innings of a tight game."

Brock admitted that his legs "felt like rubber" when he went after Maury Wills' single season and Cobb's career records. "Second base looked 1,000 miles away," he said. "I wanted to call a cab."

THE CARDINALS' speedster said he carries on private little wars with rival catchers — principally Steve Yeager, Johnny Bench and Barry Foote, whom he rates the toughest — although the pitcher is his real foil. "You use every strategem of sight and sound," he said.

Brock also is approaching two other baseball marks. He is 166 hits away from becoming the 13th player in history to get 3,000 and he needs only 53 strikeouts to to break Mickey Mantle's dubious honor.

"Hitting," Lou philosophized, "is the bread and butter of the game. Base stealing is optional.

"As for the strikeout record, no, I don't consider it negative. After all, Mantle struck out 1,710 times and made the Hall of Fame."

Flames capture win over Rangers, 5-3

NEW YORK (AP) — There is a method to killing penalties — a combination of theory and practice which, properly executed, results in a hockey marvel known as the shorthanded goal.

Bill Clement of the Atlanta Flames has honed his method to a scientific extreme, and it resulted in a shorthanded goal Monday night.

Just nine seconds after Flames defenseman Miles Zaharko was penalized for hooking, the puck skimmed to New York defenseman Carol Vadnais. That's when Clement put his theories into action.

"I knew Vadnais was going to try to lift the puck over my stick," said Clement. "I put my stick on the ice, so he'd try to lift it over me. Then I lifted my stick to the place I thought he'd put it."

The defenseman put the puck exactly where Clement wanted it: on the Flames center's stick. A couple of fakes later, Clement's 10-foot backhander was past New York goalie Hardy Astrom and the game was tied 2-2 with 57 seconds left in the second period.

Don Murdoch gave the Rangers their third lead of the game at 52 seconds of the third period. But then, as Murdoch put it, "We panicked."

Ken Houston tied it for the Flames at 3:48, Willi Plett made it 4-3 at 7:56, and Richard Mulhern added insurance at 9:31. The Flames had a 5-3 triumph and their 11th victory over the Rangers, with two ties, in the teams' last 14 meetings.

In the other National Hockey League game, Cleveland and Vancouver skated to a 3-3 tie.

The victory, which ended a seven-game Atlanta winless streak, was the Flames' fourth over the Rangers in as many games. Each time, Atlanta entered the third period either trailing or tied.

"When they got ahead 3-2," said Atlanta left wing Eric Vail, "We said, 'Listen. We don't have to open it up. Let's just keep working.' See, we've beaten them so much, we just have a confidence."

They had the confidence to come back three times. Ron Duguay put New York ahead at 16:56 of the first period, but Guy Chouinard tied it 11 seconds later. Steve Vickers made it 2-1 Rangers at 17:22 of the second, Clement tied it 1:41 later.

The loss ruined the New York debut of goalie Hardy Astrom, who ended Montreal's record 28-game unbeaten streak Saturday night in his first major league appearance.

"It was a really big game for us and we lose it. That's no good," said the Swedish netminder. "I gave up five goals and I gave them (the Flames) two points. I feel bad."

Barons 3, Canucks 3

Kris Manery scored with six seconds left to cap a three-goal Cleveland third period and give the Barons their tie with Vancouver. Mike Fidler and Rick Hampton also scored for Cleveland. Pit Martin had two goals and Mike Walton one for the Canucks.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates National League have announced the signing of outfielders John Milner and Mike Easler.

Milner, 28, acquired with pitcher Bert Blyleven from Texas, played with the Mets last year, batting .255 with 12 home runs and 57 RBI, the club announced Monday. Milner also plays first base.

Easler, 27, played last season with the Pirates' Columbus farm club, batting .302 with 18 home runs and 75 RBI. He played 10 games for the Pirates last September.

OAKLAND (AP) — Goalie Shep Messing has been signed to a one-year contract with the expansion Oakland Stompers of the North American Soccer League.

Terms of the contract were not disclosed, but Stompers General Manager Dick Berg said the agreement was "the highest contract any American has ever signed" in the NASL.

Messing's contract with the New York Cosmos expired Jan. 1. His career goals against average, 1.29 for five years, is the best among active goalies and second on the all-time list.

CLEVELAND (AP) — Gene Dusan has been named to manage the Portland Beavers, the Cleveland Indians' new Pacific Coast League affiliate.

The 28-year-old Dusan led the Indians' Batavia club to a New York-Penn League Western Division title in his first year at Batavia last year.

The Indians also announced the signing of veteran outfielder Bill Sharp to a Portland contract. Sharp formerly played for the Chicago White Sox and the Milwaukee Brewers but was sidelined most of last season with a knee injury.

Dusan, a catcher, was a player-coach at Cleveland's Oklahoma City affiliate in 1975 and at San Jose in 1976.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Drury College of Springfield was ranked No.1 in the final basketball poll of the National Association of Intercollegiate Atletics today.

The ranking gives Drury an automatic berth in the NAIA's national basketball tournament March 13-18 in Kansas City.

Drury, 25-2, collected 22 of 31 first-place votes in the final coaches poll and had 346 points. Two North Carolina colleges — Winston-Salem and Gardner-Webb — finished in a tie for second in the final poll with 275 points each.

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Invitation Tournament, the nation's oldest post-season tourney, will name its most valuable player award after Ned Irish, the man generally hailed as the "father" of big-time college basketball.

Irish, who brought national attention to the sport when he began promoting college doubleheaders at the old Madison Square Garden in 1934, also played a major role in the formation of professional basketball as it is known today.

The semifinals and finals of the 41st NIT will be played at Madison Square Garden on March 19-21. The opening round will be played at regional sites yet to be announced.

GREENVILLE, N.C. (AP) — East Carolina University basketball coach Larry Gillman, under fire for his team's poor performance this season, says he is weighing a job offer with the Chicago Bulls of the National Basketball Association.

Gillman, whose pirates are 9-16 with one game remaining, said he expects to make an announcement about his future sometime this week. Gillman said last week he is considering resigning, even though ECU Chancellor Leo Jenkins said the two remaining years on Gillman's contract would be honored.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Dudley B. "Dud" Perkins, one of the country's first daredevil motorcyclists, died here Sunday at the age of 84.

Perkins earned his reputation on the motorcycle by winning his first of 12 California Hillclimb championships in 1915. He continued to compete in the sport until 1943, when he turned 50.

NEW YORK (AP) — Defending champions Kathy Johnson of the United States and Mitsuo Tsukahara of Japan will try to repeat their 1977 victories when they compete in the third annual American Cup International Gymnastics Competition at Madison Square Garden March 11-12.

Johnson and Tsukahara will be among the 44 athletes from 15 countries who will compete. The American Cup, one of the largest international invitational gymnastics competition in the world, will have representatives from all of the sport's major powers, including the Soviet Union, Romania and Japan.

The U.S. team will be comprised of Johnson, Donna Turnbow, Kurt Thomas and Bart Conner.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — Oaklawn Park announced Monday that the purses for two upcoming stake races had been raised from $25,000 to $50,000 each.

The purse increase applies to the Magnolia Stakes March 15 and the Bachelor Stakes March 27.

The Magnolia is a 6-furlong event for 3-year-old fillies and is a prep for the $100,000 added Fantasy Stakes on March 25.

The Bachelor is a 6-furlong event for 3-year-old colts and geldings.

Alpine team weak

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — Hank Tauber, the director of the U.S. Alpine Ski Team, will readily admit the team's llaring weakness is in men's downhill.

No American male has ever won a World Cup downhill race and none has matched the second in 1972 at Crystal Mountain, Wash., by Mike Lafferty.

Andy Mill, a 25-year-old from Aspen Colo., has been the top man on the men's downhill team for the past several years. He finished sixth in the Olympics and has done no better than 11th this season on the World Cup tour.

"A lot of factors make the development of a downhill skiers difficult," said Tauber, 36, the team director since 1974. "For one thing, there was a period there of about four or five years where we had no good snow in the United States, beginning with about 1974.

"Also, it's very difficult to get an area with the money to close a trail, prepare a downhill course and let the skiers train on it," Tauber said. "It's a very expensive event. It costs about twice as much to develop a downhill racer as a slalom or giant slalom racer. We haven't spent the money. We don't have it."

Tauber said the Canadian team, which has developed a strong men's downhill program, spends about 75 percent of its budget on downhill. "We should have a group of 20 or 30 people in a downhill program. That's a matter of about $1.5 million a year. We don't have the money now.

"What we've been doing is taking four or five guys and giving them a lot of training, sending them to Europe to compete, but that way you don't get any depth or breadth," said Tauber. "Then you get injuries and a guy life Eric (former downhiller Eric Wilson who turned to giant slalom) who decides he can do better in another discipline."

Tauber, who has been readying the men and women for today's U.S. National Alpine Championships downhill races, said he could "guarantee that with the proper investment, we could have guys in the top two or three in the world in a matter o' a few years.

"There is a portion of thought in the United States that we should drop out of downhill. I totally disagree. We've got a lot of potentially good downhillers here. There have to be individuals in America who can be world class downhillers. Obviously, we've got them in slalom and giant slalom — we know that. And we've got downhillers, too."

Mill has been the fastest man in training Sunday and Monday for the national downhill. He had a time of 1 minute, 55.14 seconds over the 3,620-meter course Monday. Karl Anderson of Greene, Maine, clocked 1:53.38 but missed a gate.

Cindy Nelson, an Olympic bronze medalist from Lutsen, Minn., has been the strongest woman. She had a time of 1:49.28 in Monday's trials over the 3,247-meter women's course.
