NJ Mail Men Fired

By The Associated Press

At least 80 striking postal employees have been fired in New Jersey, while in San Francisco union dissidents planned a campaign of roving picketing to show their discontent over a new contract.

Nearly half the morning shift workers at facilities in Jersey City and Kearney refused to work today, and union officials planned an afternoon meeting in New York to decide whether to sanction the wildcat strike, according to Robert Knoloe, a spokesman for the postal workers' union.

Garbage Men Fired

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - About 35 more San Antonio garbage workers refused to work this morning because they said they feared for their safety, leaving the job of garbage collection to about one third of the normal work force.

Assistant City Manager Louis Fox said, "They're (the 35) fired, too. When they walk into the picket line, they're finished."

Saturday, 106 workers were fired after they struck for higher wages. State law prohibits public employees from striking.

Strike Jams Traffic

WASHINGTON (AP) - Commuters began a new week of huge traffic jams in scorching heat today as wildcat strikers continued to cripple the capital's transit system.

The walkout entered its fifth day as bus drivers, subway operators and mechanics defied a federal judge's back-to-work order and advice of their own union leaders to return.

Cody Pfanstiehl, spokesman for the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority, said no more than 20 of the system's 1,600 buses were on the streets for the morning rush hour. Metro's rail system was shut down.

Prisons Tense, Quiet

by The Associated Press

Georgia officials said today that a riot at the State Prison may have been prompted by an uprising one day earlier at an Illinois prison. A total of four guards and two inmates died in the two disturbances.

Both the Georgia institution at Reidsville and the Pontiac Correctional Center in Illinois were quiet today. "Tense but under control" was the description given by one Georgia official after Sunday's riot.

Dollar Below 200 Yen

TOKYO (AP) - The U.S. dollar dropped through the 200-yen level for the first time on the Tokyo foreign exchange market today and closed after very heavy trading at a new record low of 199.05 yen.

The closing quotation was more than two yen below the closing 201.25 Friday.

The Bank of Japan bought an estimated $400 million but was unable to hold the dollar above 200 yen.

"The market won't be changed by intervention," said one trader.

Junta Ousts Leigh

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) - The right-wing military junta that has governed Chile for five years today ousted one of its four members, Air Force commander Gen. Gustavo Leigh, who had publicly called on President Augusto Pinochet to speed up the return to democracy.

The government issued a statement saying Leigh was being stripped of both his military post and his seat on the executive body. It said he was being replaced in both positions by Gen. Fernando Mathei.

The other three members of the junta, which toppled democratically elected Marxist President Salvador Allende in a bloody coup in September 1973, are Pinochet, who is army chief, navy commander Adm. Jose Merino and Gen. Cesar Mendoza of the national police.

Hiccups 56 Years

ANTHON, Iowa. (AP) - Charles Osborne has had hiccups for 56 of his 84 years, but he hasn't given up hope of finding a cure.

"I'd give everything I got in the world if I could get rid of them," says Osborne, including the notoriety that spring from a 1936 appearance on Robert Ripley's "Believe It or Not" radio show and put him in the Guinness Book of World Records.

"I don't know what it would be like not to have them," Osborne said. "I get so sore jerking all the time."

For West Bank, Gaza Strip...

Israel Will Talk Sovereignty

JERUSALEM (AP)-Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan told Parliament today Israel is prepared to discuss the question of the ultimate sovereignty for the West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip.

Israel also is willing to discuss a territorial compromise "if a concrete proposal is submitted," Dayan told the Knesset as he opened a debate on the Mideast situation.

The cabinet on Sunday rejected President Anwar Sadat's proposal that Israel return two areas of the Sinai Desert to Egypt as a good-will gesture, but said it was willing to negotiate a trade for the northern coastal town of El Arish and Mount Sinai.

"Nobody can get something for nothing, and this will be the policy of Israel," Prime Minister Menachem Begin told reporters after the cabinet meeting. "No unilateral step is feasible by any country."

Dayan gave a 45-minute report on his meeting last week in Leeds Castle, England with Egyptian Foreign Minister Mohammed Ibrahim Kamel and U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance.

The Knesset corridors, meanwhile, were abuzz with the news that Commerce Minister Yigal Hurvitz, a hawk on the question of Mideast peace, had tendered his resignation over a budget proposal he regards as inflationary. Begin was trying to change Hurvitz' mind and smooth over the tiff between Hurvitz and Finance Minister Simha Ehrlich.

Dayan said the question of future sovereignty in the West Bank and Gaza is "the central gap between the Arab attitude and ours."

Israel's peace plan offers the Palestinian Arabs in the two occupied territories administrative autonomy, or limited self-rule, with continued presence of the Israeli army in these areas captured in the 1967 Mideast war.

"If Israel's proposal of administrative autonomy is accepted," Dayan said, "Israel is prepared to discuss after five years the question of the sovereignty over Judea and Samaria and the gaza strip." Judea and Samaria are the biblical names for the West Bank.

Egypt demands the return of these lands to Arab sovereignty and the withdrawal of Israeli troops to the pre-1967 borders "with minor rectifications," Dayan said.

Although Israel was willing to discuss a territorial compromise, Dayan said he had asked the Egyptian delegation at Leeds Castle if Egypt would agree to a compromise and they replied, "on no account, of course not."

4.2 Inches At Dermott...

Snyder Area Cooled By Weekend Rainfall

The rodeo-rain legend lives on in Snyder, although it got down to the final hours before it was fulfilled this year.

The rains finally came Saturday afternoon. They didn't really amount to much at the time, except for cooling off the atmosphere in the wake of several days of 100-degree readings, but once the heat barrier was broken, there was more in store Sunday.

The two-day total ranged from a sprinkle to more than four inches, with the area northeast and down the west side of the county apparently catching the most water.

The heaviest rainfall reported during the two-day period was 4.2 inches at Dermott. This was reported by County Commissioner Earl "Hassie" Sneed, who said he measured .90 inch Saturday and 3.3 inches Sunday. He said the heavy rains Sunday fell from Dermott to the southwest across the Hays ranch and on into the Ira area. Rains measuring two inches or more were reported over much of that area.

More than an inch was reported at Fluvanna and 1.2 inches fell at the Lake J.B. Thomas dam. However, there were no reports of any runoff into stream which feed the lake.

County Commissioner Jess Everett reported 1.4 inches at his place south of Snyder just off the Roundtop Road, and total of 1.5 to 2.0 inches were reported in the Ennis Creek area.

Heavy clouds Sunday afternoon appeared to dump most of their moisture northwest and west of Snyder.

The official gauge at the Snyder water treatment plant logged a two-day total of .82 inches, with .24 reported Saturday afternoon and .58 Sunday afternoon.

The Saturday shower fell on Snyder after the thermometer already had hit 99 degrees. The rain helped drop the reading to the low 70s by late afternoon.

It was the first time since July 3 that enough rain had fallen here to register on a gauge. Records show a measurement of .03 on July 3 and prior to that the last time there was enough to measure was on June 6 when .26 inch was recorded.

Stock tanks were replenished where the heavier showers fell over the weekend and it was hoped that crops which had been suffering from the dry, hot weather would be revived.

Forecasts indicated that the area had a chance for more showers late today.

Relief Is Spelled 'R-A-I-N'

By The Associated Press

In Dallas, where residents endured 19 days of 100-degree plus temperatures and 45 days without rain, relief is spelled "r-a-i-n."

The relief came officially Sunday as .49 of an inch fell in Dallas where it had not rained "officially" for 45 days. Some light rain fell in Fort Worth during that period and several sections of Dallas received some light rain Saturday, but none fell until Sunday at the official recording station, the Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport.

The rain also dropped temperatures at Dallas, where the high Sunday only reached 87, prompting National Weather Service meteorologist Dick Elder of Fort Worth to say he believes the "heat wave has pretty well broken down."

Elder was quick to caution residents of North Texas that the relief would likely be short in duration.

"There is another high pressure system headed our way, and we're going to go back up to the upper 90s when it moves into our area," he said.

Wichita Falls, one of several other hot spots in North Texas in recent weeks, also got welcome relief from the heat. It was 75 there Sunday afternoon, compared with a high of 114 there just eight days earlier at the peak of the heat wave.

Rain also fell Sunday across much of the state. Portions of the South Plains and Permian Basin got locally heavy rainfall.

Ask Us

Why don't local 3-4-day events such as the tractor pull, arts and crafts, etc., get as much coverage as the adjoining cities' activities such as the C-City rodeo? Is the SDN trying to increase its circulation in the adjoining cities? Last year the tractor pull paid for the entire 4th of July celebration including fireworks which everyone enjoyed. This year's revenue was well over $7,000 at the tractor pull alone. There was a lot of money spent in Snyder by tractor pullers and arts and crafts people and very poor news coverage. Why?

A--A check of our files shows that we devoted 131 column inches of news space to the two performances of the tractor pull, including seven pictures and results of the competition; that we devoted 127 column inches to three performances of the C-City Junior Rodeo, including four pictures.

We devoted some 450 column inches this year to the July 4th celebration in Snyder, which this newspaper helped promote back in 1961 and has continued to support in succeeding years.

Yes, the SDN definitely is trying to increase its circulation in adjoining cities as well as in and around Snyder.

Champions Crowned In Scurry's 43rd Rodeo

When the dust had cleared from the coliseum floor following the last ride of the 43rd annual Scurry County Rodeo, not a single cowboy or cowgirl from Snyder or Scurry County had managed to rank in the top three spots of any event, although several contestants from area towns did.

The competition ended Saturday night after a four-day run. Contestants came from Texas, New Mexico and Oklahoma.

Some $28,000 in prize money was given to the top winners. Areas of competition included bareback riding, tiedown calf roping, saddle bronc riding, barrel racing, team roping, and bull riding.

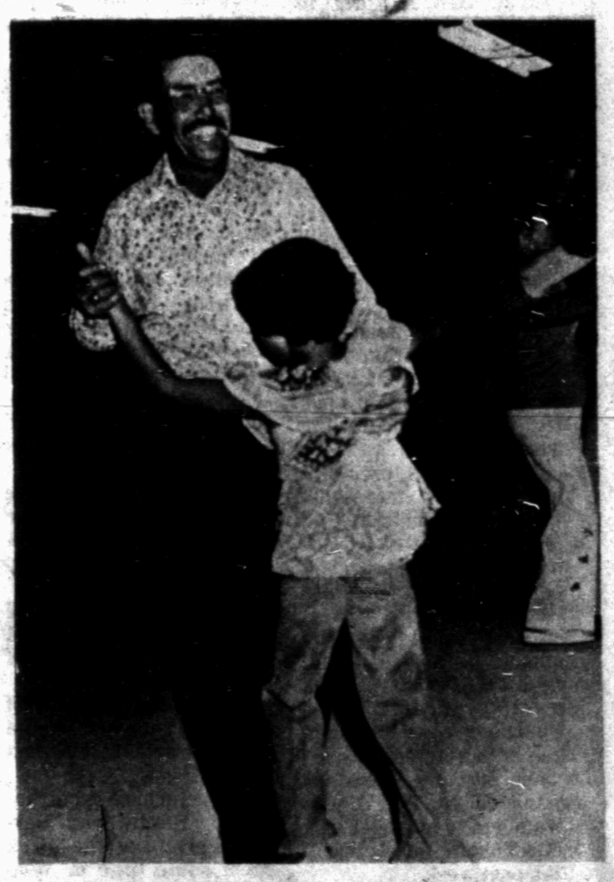

First place in the bareback riding went to Danny Ingleman of Beaver, Okla., who scored a 70-point ride. Second place went to a Belton cowboy, Bobby Ribble, with a 67 score.

Bob Doty of Big Spring and Tommy Cockran of Beaver, Okla., tied for third and fourth places in the bareback riding. Each had a 64 score.

Champion tiedown calf roper was John Itchebery of Carlsbad, N.M., who was clocked in at 7.6 seconds. Second place went to a Stephenville cowboy, William Burris, who had a time of 8.5 seconds. Third in the event was Pat Shelton of Vernon with a 8.7-second time.

A 70-point score in the saddle bronc riding won Ron Chalupek a first-place rating. Gary Cromwell of Keller trailed with a 65 score. Mike Randolph of Slaton came in third with 63.

The champion barrel racer was Kathy McCauley of Cypress with a time of 14.52 seconds. Mayme McLaurey of Post won second place with her time of 14.64. Third place went to Rose Minter, also of Cypress, with a time of 14.88.

THE ODD-COUPLE - Spectators and contestants alike crowded into the Agricultural Annex to unwind after each night's rodeo performance. The difference between age and size did not cramp this couple's style Saturday night. (SDN Staff Photo)

Champion team ropers were the Del Rio pair of Mack Altizer and Olin Smith who had a 5.5-second time. A 5.8-second time won for Russell Freeman and Darrell Sullivan a second place rating. Trailing only slightly behind them were Jackie Stevenson and Jack Stevenson of San Marcos with a 5.9.

Alex Bell of Amarillo won first place in bull riding with his score of 69. A second and third place tie went to Cabell Mackey of Big Spring and Lance Haynes of Round Mountain. Each of them had a 67.

The only special award presented Saturday night was from Joe York to A.B. Owens. Owens was the oldest roper participating in the rodeo to have a posted score.

Judges for the 43rd annual Scurry rodeo were Jeff Matsler of Lubbock and Russ Baize of Stamford. Stock producer was Smokey Davis of Missouri City.

The results of Saturday night's rodeo are as fol-

hatchet-burying trip

Ronald Reagan and Gerald Ford will apparently bury the hatchet long enough to promote the cause of party unity in Texas, one of the states the Republicans have targeted for special attention this fall.

Reagan and Ford will make at least one, and possibly more, joint appearances in the Lone Star state in September to stir up enthusiasm for GOP gubernatorial nominee William Clements and other Republican candidates.

George Bush, the former CIA director and U.S. liaison to China, will probably join the festivities, if only to keep an eye on the two biggest obstacles to his own presidential aspirations.

While in Texas, Reagan may also put in an appearance - if he is wanted - for Bush's son, George W. Bush, who is running for Congress in the 19th district in West Texas after defeating a Reagan-backed candidate in the primary run-off last month.

Both Bush Jr. and his father were infuriated by Reagan's verbal and financial support of Jim Reese in the GOP primary, and Reagan is reportedly anxious to mend his fences.

unresolved problem

Lack of Administration influence on Capitol Hill was demonstrated once more when the Commerce Committee of the House of Representatives voted to remove mandatory cost-control provisions from a hospital cost-containment bill. Retained were portions calling for voluntary programs by hospitals designed to lower the general level of hospital care.

The revised measure authorizes Federal aid to state cost-control programs and calls for creation of a national commission to study the problem.

This means, of course, a definite rebuff for President Carter, who recently described skyrocketing costs of health service as a national scandal.

What Congress and the President can do about it is another one of those $128 questions. In case the reader doesn't quite understand, a $64 question is rarely answered and a $128 query is never answered. Plain for any observant person to see, however, is that the rise in cost of health service at more than twice the rate of increase in the general price level is building up popular support for a national program in the not-distant future.

at wits end

by erma bombeck

The young mother had never sent a son to camp before. She felt apprehensive, sad, old, and a little lonely already.

"Stuff your pajamas under your pillow each morning," she cautioned "and you'll know where they are."

Her son took pajamas out of the suitcase, threw them back in the drawer and groaned, "No one wears pajamas."

"The list mentions rain gear and I've got it all folded inside this little packet."

"Mom! I am not taking a raincoat to camp."

"Your soap and all your other toiletries are in this little zippered bag so you can take it to the shower with you."

He threw it on the bed. "If you think I'm going to take a bath at camp, you're cuckoo."

"Here are the extra pair of shoes they mentioned, in case you need dry ones for church or something."

He plucked them out of the suitcase and said, "I'm wearing the only pair I'll need."

"Here's postcards with the stamps on them. You will write and let us know how you're doing."

Disgusted, he stuffed the cards in a corner of the suitcase.

"Here, put this lotion where you can find it. It blocks out the sun and a bad burn could ruin your entire week at camp."

He grimaced, "What are you trying to do to me? I am not taking lotion.

The mother re-checked the list. "Where's the towels?"

"I took 'em out."

And the six sets of underwear?"

"That's too many."

"And the mosquito repellent?"

"No one in camp will have his own mosquito repellent."

As they drove to camp, the mother was instructed to stop the car just inside the gate. "You don't have to take me all the way to the door," he said. "Just go on home. And don't kiss me. None of the other guys kiss their mothers."

As the mother turned the car around, she heard a voice, "Hey Mom, I almost forgot! Did you pack my $5 for candy and junk?"

The mother looked at her son blankly with no sign of recognition on her face. "Whatsa matter, kid, did you lose your mother?" She sped off.

commentary

donald f. graff

It wasn't on the agenda.

And it does not, at least directly, have anything to do with economics.

But the agreement on joint action to counter skyjacking could well turn out to be the most meaningful development of the seven-nation Bonn economic summit.

At this point, there really isn't much to it-merely a three-paragraph statement in which the seven leaders express their concern over terrorism and hostage-taking and pledge their governments to halt air traffic to and from countries failing to deliver up skyjackers and skyjacked aircraft promptly.

It could, however, mark the real beginning of an effective international program to bring undet control a problem which so far has defied efforts at solution by international bodies up to and including the United Nations.

There are already in existence a number of multination agreements on air piracy. Specifically, conventions adopted by the International Civil Aviation Organization in Tokyo (1963), The Hague (1970) and Montreal (1971) defined the crime, national jurisdiction and obligations in prosecuting or extraditing offenders.

Their weakness is that the focus is on the countries in which skyjackers seek haven, with compliance remaining voluntary. And, most important, the really crucial nations - those prone to provide shelter - have declined to join the team.

The Bonn declaration is the first to commit its parties to meaningful sanctions. The seven nations do not control world air commerce. But, just as they carry the most economic clout in the non-Communist world, so are they more equal than other in the airways.

Their severing of air connections would not in itself bring the government of Algeria or Libya - to name two countries especially hospitable to skyjackers in recent years, particularly if they happen to be Palestinians or sympathizers - to its knees. But it would hurt, and it would brand an offender as no carefully vague U.N. resolution is likely ever to do.

Details of implementation are still to be worked out. And there is some bad news with the good. It is agreed that to be effective, the compact can allow no exceptions. It must apply to aircraft seized in totalitarian countries by people seeking asylum in the West.

There was no advance preparation. The suggestion was dropped into the Bonn discussions almost off the tops of their heads by Prime Ministers Takeo Fukuda of Japan and Pierre Trudeau of Canada.

It was a particularly gratifying development for the United States, which had been thinking of pushing for similar action in the United Nations but without much hope of getting it through.

Indulging in a bit of diplomatic hyperbole, President Carter sees the skyjacking declaration as alone "worth the entire preparation and conduct of the summit."

Given adequate follow-through and a little luck, he could turn out to be right.

NEWS FROM NAMIBIA

Few Americans know much about South-West Africa and, at this point, probably even fewer care.

Twice the size of Texas, largely desolated and today the home of an estimated 900,000 blacks and 100,000 whites, it was among the leftovers picked up by Imperial Germany during the 19-century carving up of Africa by the European powers. After World War I, it passed to South Africa which in recent years has been less interested in the territory as such than in maintaining a buffer between its own home turf and Black Africa's hostile new nations.

Now, all the interested parties - South Africa, black guerrillas and neighboring states - have accepted a five-nation Western plan for independence with provisions for South Africa's security and economic interests. All indications are that colonial South-West Africa will be transformed into independent Namibia by the end of this year.

If all goes well, there will subsequently be little news from Namibia and Americans will continue to know little about the country. And in this case that will be good news, since big news from that part of the world is generally bad.

Your Birthday

July 25, 1978

This coming year offers much of promise that will come your way with small effort on your part. If you treat these situations too lightly, however, nothing concrete will result.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Make no commitments today or you could run the risk of having your generosity highly abused. Give only your good wishes until you check out the one in need. Find out more about yourself by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Unless you're very explicit about your targets you're going to go off on a tangent and muddle things badly. Understand your objectives.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Take the big news item another will be telling you with a grain of salt. If you don't, you could jump in, only to discover the water's over your head.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Ignore "something for nothing" deals you hear about. The only way to get ahead today is to roll up your sleeves and go to work.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Because you lack the drive required to accomplish your goals today, you're apt to gamble on anything, sight-unseen. It would be a mistake.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your judgment is clouded by unwarranted optimism. You'd be wise to allow more time before committing yourself to something serious.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Double-check all serious work and don't assume others have done things right. If a mistake is made today, it will be a major one.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Promises made today are likely to be broken later so be careful in all your dealings, but especially in those involving money.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Guard against being too opinionated today or you could give an erroneous impression. Listen to all points of view before you state your case.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You could lull yourself into false security today. Where you think you have an ace-in-the-hole, it will be trumped if you play it.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Trying to imitate the way another lives could be costly today. Those who can't accept you for what you are are fair weather friends anyway.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You're going to be caught off-guard today if you rely too heavily on one who promised to help you out in a pinch. He or she won't.

savings questioned

NEW YORK (AP)-Banks do it. Stock brokers do it. Mutual fund and insurance salesmen do it.

What they do is suggest to long-term investors or savers an education for their children or a comfortable retirement, knowing that the leavening of taxes and inflation may make such goals mere fantasy.

In the free enterprise world we tend to accept such hyperbole as a consequence of the competitive effort and the reasonable tendency of competitors to create the happiest picture possible.

But what should we think when Uncle Sam also plays the game through U.S. Savings Bonds, of which there are outstanding some $79 billion worth, owned by 25 million households, or roughly one in three?

"Americans earn over $4 billion in interest yearly on their savings bonds," the Savings Bond Division states. But not a word about 10 percent inflation that reduces it to a multi-billion dollar loss.

"Here's how your dollars for education grow in Series E. Bonds," Uncle Sam announces in a brochure designed to encourage bond purchasers as a way to meet rising tuition costs.

If you buy a $37.50 bond each month from the time your child is born to age 18 you will have accumulated, based on current 6 percent interest, a total of $14,260.94. Before inflation.

What rate of inflation should prevail during the next 18 years? The current rate of about 10 percent seems unlikely. What about half that? Too much? Then let's try 4 percent, a figure likely to be too low.

At 4 percent inflation a year, the purchasing power that $14,260.94 would be cut in half. You would have invested $8,100.

You would have buying power of less than that.

Uncle Sam advertises "A retirement plan that brings you income," it does, of course, but how much? Again, inflation may take away more than the government pays in interest. And federal taxes, however small in retirement, will take away more. Says Uncle Sam in a promotional piece: "You put in $18.75, and five years later you pull out $25. You put in $37.50 and you pull out $50. You put in $75 and pull out-well, that's the idea."

When the magician does it with rabbits he knows that you know it's an illusion. Uncle Sam doesn't look at it that way. He believes, apparently. His promotional message continues:

"No wondering if your money's safe from fire, flood, theft, or fluctuations of the money market. No war of nerves. All peace of mind, with Uncle Sam's safety bond."

In defense of the Savings Bond savings technique, and for that matter, the technique of saving in the bank, it is often said that it's better than not saving at all. But that too is questionable.

As many people have found, money spent now on certain durable items is sometimes a much better way of saving. That is, the items purchased today often are worth more tomorrow, and can be redeemed for cash.

The Delaware Art Museum says it has acquired Charles Sheeler's "Study after Bucks County Barn," a small watercolor and tempera sketch which was painted in 1938 as the cover for a biography of the artist.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Oswald: "The correct play of a suit may not be the same at different contracts. At one contract you may want to play safe. At another you won't be able to afford that luxury."

Alan: "Here is a hand from an IMP match. The bidding in the box is that of the winning team. I am not sure how they should have bid, but they certainly arrived at the right contract."

Oswald: "I assume that South led a heart to his ace at trick two, dropped the singleton king, went back to dummy to finesse against East's jack and made seven."

Alan: "That's exactly what he did. His line of play was guaranteed to lose not more than one trump trick unless West were to hold king-jack small. In that case, no play would succeed."

Oswald: "What happened at the other table?"

Alan: "South found himself in seven hearts. I am not going to give the bidding except to tell you that it was bad. Playing at seven, South took the best percentage play which was to lead a heart to his queen. West made his king and later on, East made his jack."

Women's Drinking Problem Cited

BOSTON (AP) - "For every 100 alcoholic men in the United States, there are 140 women with a drinking problem," family physicians and psychiatrists attending a medical symposium here were told.

Characteristics of the woman alcoholic are the "green tongue syndrome" produced by breath sweeteners, a sloppy appearance, or complaints of a variety of bodily aches and pains, Dr. Carroll L. Whitten, said. The patient may appear nervous, perhaps hiding an underlying depression.

Dr. Whitten, clinical professor of family practice at the University of Louisville School of Medicine, said that most women dependent on alcohol are in a mid-life crisis, and feel depressed, lonely and sexually unsatisfied.

The symposium on emotional crises in mid-life was sponsored by the psychiatry department of Massachusetts General Hospital, the Massachusetts Academy of Family Physicians, and Geigy Pharmaceuticals.

Women Commit More Crimes

WASHINGTON (AP) - Women are commiting more crimes than ever before and the trend is likely to continue, according to a federally sponsored study released today.

Professor Rita J. Simon, head of the University of Illinois program on law and society, said "As you have more and more women working outside the home, they are getting jobs that place them in a position to embezzle or steal. With this larger female working force, it is simply a question of the law of averages."

Under a grant from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, professor Simon did a statistical survey on crimes commited by women and compared the results with statistics on women in the District of Columbia.

The study showed that women were arrested for 16 percent of the crimes committed nationally in 1975, compared with 10.8 percent in 1953. The percentage of women arrested for economic crimes rose six times in the 22-year period.

In 1953, 4.9 percent of the women arrested for serious crimes were charged with larceny and theft and 1.1 percent with embezzlement and fraud, the study showed. In 1975, the rates were 25.4 percent and 3.3 percent respectively.

The report also showed that women used weapons slightly more frequently than men in committing violent acts, 84 percent for women and 78 percent for men.

But women were less likely than men to use weapons in robberies, in which 32 percent of the women and 46 percent of the men carried weapons.

Many Using Coupons

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Clip and Cash.

That's the motto for millions of Americans who are clipping, collecting and cashing in coupons in an effort to cut grocery bills.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture estimates that four out of five families-80 percent-use coupons today. In 1970, a survey by the Nielsen Clearing House division of the A.C. Nielsen Corp. showed only 65 percent of all households using coupons.

Manufacturers alone are expected to issue almost 7 billion coupons this year, according to the USDA, up from 62 billion in 1977 and 46 billion in 1976.

Those figures do not include the millions of coupons issued by retailers, usually in newspaper advertisements.

The more than two billion coupons redeemed last year had a face value of $500 million, the Agriculture Department says. Handling costs totaled $150 million.

Most manufacturers' coupons - 55 percent - appear in newspapers. Sunday supplements carry 17 percent and magazines have 15 percent. The rest are included in product packages or sent through the mail.

The USDA says the impact of coupons on overall food prices appears to be minimal, even in areas where there is "double couponing," meaning the retailer offers the shopper twice the face value of the manufacturer's coupon.

No one knows whether prices would be lower if coupons were eliminated. The value of coupons last year accounted for only 42 cents out of every $100 of food store sales; $3 of every $100 went for advertising.

Getting the most out of coupons - or any other sale - requires thought and planning. If you buy an item you don't need just because you've got a coupon, you haven't saved money, you've wasted it.

You also should check for strings attached to coupons. Retailers' coupons in particular often require a minimum purchase. A six-pack of soda, for example, may be offered free or at a sharply reduced price if you buy at least $7.50 worth of other items at the store.

Cooperative extension service specialists from Cornell University in Ithaca, N.Y., say that familiarity with food quality and current price levels is essential if you want to get the best deal. Here are some specific suggestions:

-Make sure prices on sale items are competitive with other brands and alternate products.

-Examine meats carefully.

-Keep track of prices on non-sale items. A retailer may mark down one item to lure you into the store,

Legal advice

By Karen Blaker, Ph.D.

In a recent column, I advised a former mental patient to attach letters from several psychiatrists to her job application to avoid being rejected for work because of her psychiatric history.

I suggested that the letters include statements from the doctors attesting to the applicant's mental health, her ability to perform the job and the unlikelihood of her rehospitalization or a recurrence of the mental condition for which she had been treated.

My source for this information was "An American Civil Liberities Union Handbook: The Rights of Mental Patients." I received many letters asking for further information about the handbook.

Written by Bruce Ennis and Loren Siegel, it is part of the American Civil Liberties Union Handbook Series, which includes titles such as "The Rights of Prisoners," "The Rights of Women," "The Rights of Students" and "The Rights of the Very Poor."

These books may be found in your public library. Or you can ask your local book store to order them from the Richard W. Baron Publishing Company.

Among the many responses I received to the column was an informative letter from a lawyer. He suggested consulting an attorney immediately if there is even a remote possibility of infringement of one's civil rights in employment. I had advised asking an lawyer's advice only after a third or fourth rejection.

He writes, "In Kentucky, where I practice law — as in many other states — a call on a toll-free number will put you in touch with the Lawyer Referral Service."

The service, he says, will refer callers to legal experts who have agreed to give 30-minute consultations for a nominal fee, often about $10. Fees for the lawyer's further time and effort are negotiated beween attorney and client.

That sounds like good advice.

The writer also advised the nurse in my previous column or any other person with a psychiatric history to "write an authorization for the prospective employer to obtain for himself her medical records, including psychiatric history.

"If the job is a sensitive one," he adds, "shouldn't the employer bear the expense of obtaining the necessary information on the applicant, like insurance companies do?"

That also sounds like good advice — provided the applicant can convince the would-be employer to pay for the consultations with two additional psychiatrists. (Of course, there would be no charge for a letter from the applicant's present psychiatrist.)

If the employer seems reluctant, the consultation fees might be good financial investments for a prospective worker to make.

Employers take note: To deny a person the means of earning a living because of his or her status as a former patient is to deny due process of law under the 14th Amendment.

There is no rational reason why someone's past medical history should have more predictive value than his or her present performance.

Write to Dr. Blaker in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 475, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. Volume of mail prohibits personal replies, but questions of general interest will be discussed in future columns.

Texas Falls 7 ½ Games From Top...

Rangers Boost Brewers A Notch...

ARLINGTON (AP)-Milwaukee's Brewers refused to fold in the American League Eastern Division race, and it's got Manager George Bamberger dreaming of miracles.

The Brewers edged to a thin five games off the Boston Red Sox Sunday night with a 17-8 victory over the unraveling Texas Rangers behind a club record 21-hit attack.

Larry Hisle and Sal Bando each blasted three-run homers and Gorman Thomas slapped a two-run homer in the rout.

"I think miracles are possible, and if we win it, well, it would be a miracle," said Bamberger. "The attitude on this club is fantastic. The one thing this team has had to have is respect because they've never won. I believe they are starting to get respect."

The Rangers, who were chewed out in the clubhouse by majority owner Brad Corbett after a 2-1 loss Saturday night, got home runs from Bobby Bonds and Rookie Gary Gray, but it wasn't enough to overcome the Brewers ravaging of four Texas pitchers.

Texas dropped 7½ games behind Kansas City in the AL West, as the Rangers dropped their sixth consecutive game.

Andy Replogle picked up his fifth victory in seven decisions in relief of starter Jerry Augustine.

Ranger rookie Steve Comer was the victim of the Brewer onslaught as his record dropped to 3-3.

The Rangers received a heavy booing from the 11,615 fans present, and Hunter said, "They ae entitled to boo."

A's 5, Blue Jays 3

Mitchell Page led off the seventh with his 11th home run of the season and Oakland got another run in the inning when Mario Guerrero doubled and was singled in by Taylor Duncan.

Before the game, A's owner Charlie Finley said he intended to keep the club and was not pursuing any potential buyers.

Tigers 4-3, Angels 3-4

Detroit won the opener with a three-run rally in the bottom of the ninth. Dave LaRoche walked Aurelio Rodriguez with the bases loaded to force in the tying run and Dyar Miller's first pitch in relief of LaRoche sailed off catcher Brian Downing's glove for a passed ball to score the winner.

Joe Rudi, who had a two-run double in the first game, homered in the nightcap in support of Nolan Ryan, 5-8. Ryan struck out 11 and hurled a four-hitter. One of those hits was a three-run homer by Rusty Staub.

Phils 13, Astros 2

Rich Hebner and Garry Maddox each smacked three-run homers and Jerry Martin added another shot to back left-hander Steve Carlton, 9-9, in his 200th career victory.

Braves 3, Mets 0

Atlanta jumped on Mets starter Jerry Koosman, 3-11, for four singles and one run in the first inning and rookie lefthander Larry McWilliams and Gene Garber combined for the shutout.

...Corbett Hopping Mad!

(Owner's Cash Not Buying Class Apparently)

ARLINGTON (AP)-For all of Brad Corbett's millions, he's having trouble buying happiness in the American League.

And the beefy majority owner of the Texas Rangers certainly wasn't a picture of joy early Sunday morning as he sat behind manager Billy Hunter's desk, trying to explain the latest nosedive of his high-priced talent.

Slumped over Hunter's desk after tongue-lashing his millionares who have found it difficult to hit and catch grounders and pop flies, Corbett tried to find some peace within himself before a group of writers he had chased out of Hunter's office earlier.

Corbett has been here before. Last July he threatened to sell the team which he described as "dogs on the field and off the field."

Then he went out and paid millions for Richie Zisk, Al Oliver, Bobby Bonds, Jon Matlack and others. Earlier this year he charged down to the lockeroom with shirttail flying following a tough loss.

This time he kicked Hunter's door open while the calm but frustrated Hunter was trying to explain to the writers Texas' latest loss, a 2-1 freebie to Milwaukee which came courtesy of two 10th-inning errors. The loss sent Texas reeling 6½ games behind Kansas City in the AL West.

Corbett chased the writers out of the dressing room and his voice could be heard in the dugout runway as he chastized his players.

He later said "I apoligize if I was rude...I was p----off at the team because they've got to stop talking about being the best and going out and prove we're the best.

"It's incredible that this team has scored 153 runs less than Kansas City, and it's certainly not because they're not well paid. We've got to start playing with some pride."

Corbett said he offered Hunter a five-year extension on his contract and told his manager: "The first guy you don't want on this ball club, I don't give a damn what kind of a contract he has."

Hunter told newsmen, "I told Brad I just want to play it one year at a time."

Oliver - who was obtained in the off-season from Pittsburgh and has been carrying the team with his .311 batting average - said he had never seen a team unravel like the Rangers with all the potential they possess, at least on paper.

"I've never seen anything quite like this," said Oliver, who later tried to calm Corbett down in the off-limits-to-the-press training room. "This team is playing way below its potential."

Randy Galloway of the Dallas Morning News wrote in a Sunday story on the Rangers: "What they can do, and do better than any team in baseball, is back up to the pay window on the first and 15th of the month and collect paychecks that would make the Rockefellers solvent."

Snyder Teams Begin District Play Tonight

COLORADO CITY--Weather permitting, Snyder's All-Star Teenage League baseball squad will begin district tournament action here at 9:30 p.m. Snyder is scheduled to play the winner of the Colorado City-Sweetwater 4:30 game.

The annual tournament was expected to begin today despite weekend rains, however, today's weather prospects were in a position to hamper regular scheduling.

The double-elimination tourney, which will also include teams from Stamford and Haskell, is expected to stage finals sometime Wednesday.

A win tonight is expected to give Snyder a 7:30 p.m. playing time Tuesday. A loss would put them back on the field at 4:30 tomorrow. The tournament champion will advance to the State Tournament in Port Lovaca next week.

Division IV Hosts Girl's Tournament

The Snyder Area Girls Softball Association, or West Texas State playoffs for Division IV, will be held here beginning at 8 p.m. today.

The two-team tournament, pitting Snyder and Big Spring, will send its champion to the National Tournament next month in Midland.

The area playoff, held at Snyder's Girl's softball field, will be a best of three series, with tomorrow's second game beginning at 6:30 p.m. A third game, if necessary, will follow immediately.

Thursday, the Division III tournament will be held here as Snyder hosts Big Spring at 8 p.m. Winner of the game will play Odessa at 8 p.m. Friday in the four-day meet. A championship game has been scheduled for 8 p.m. Saturday in the double-elimination tourney. A second championship game, if needed, will be held Sunday at 2 p.m.

Locals Lose Two Games

BIG SPRING–Snyder teams were unable to turn up a win here Saturday morning, and fell from the West Texas State Girl's Softball Tournament.

Both Division I and II teams recorded a win and two losses. Snyder's Division I squad noted a pair of victories, but were knocked out of the tournament by Odessa West, 4-1 Saturday morning.

Snyder's lone run came on a Rosie Pena homer in the fifth inning. Michelle Osborn, pitcher, and Becky Natividad also added a base hit each, as did Karen Parmer.

Earlier in the morning Snyder's Division II squad fell to Big Spring 17-14.

Slugging percentage in baseball is determined by dividing a batter's total bases by his times at bat.

Nicklaus Wins Philly

PHILADELPHIA - Jack Nicklaus won the $250,000 Philadelphia Golf Classic by 1 stroke over Gil Morgan with a 72-hole total of 270, 14 under par.

Morgan shot a final-round 67, four under par, and a four-round total of 271, 13-under par.

Three strokes back at 11 under par were Jerry Pate and Hale Irwin. Pate shot 66 and Irwin 67 in the final round to finish at 273.

Stacy Nabs U.S. Open

INDIANAPOLIS - Hollis Stacy shot a 1-over-par 72 on the final round for a 72-hole total of 289 to win her second consecutive U.S. Women's Open golf championship.

JoAnne Carner, who shot a 72 in the final round, and Sally Little of South Africa, who turned in a 65, were tied for second at 290.

Pam Higgins and Jane Blalock were tied for fourth at 293. Higgins matched par-71 in the last round and Blalock shot a 74.

Borg Takes Swedish

BASTAD, Sweden - Bjorn Borg defeated Corrado Barazzutti of Italy 6-1, 6-2 to win his second Swedish Open tennis championship.

Elly Vessirus-Appel of Holland won the women's singles with a 2-6, 6-4, 6-2 triumph over West Germany's Sylvia Hanike.

In other matches, Australians Mark Edmonson and Bob Carmichael beat the Hungarian team of Balasz Taroczy and Peter Szoke 7-5, 6-4 in the doubles final, while Betsy Nagelsen of St. Petersburg, Fla., and Renanta Tomanova of Cezchoslovakia won the women's doubles by defeating Swedes Nina Bohm and Elisabeth Ekblom, 6-1, 6-3.

Connors Beats Dibbs

WASHINGTON - - Jimmy Connors defeated Eddie Dibbs 7-5, 7-5 to win the $24,000 first prize in the Washington Star International men's tennis tournament.

In the doubles final, Arthur Ashe and South African Bob Hewitt beat Raul Ramirez of Mexico and Fred McNair 6-3, 6-4.

Martin May Receive Jackson Treatment

CHICAGO (AP)-New York Yankees Manager Billy Martin, who suspended slugger Reggie Jackson for defiance, may receive similar treatment - or worse - from his boss in the wake of his tirade against Jackson and biting remarks slung at owner George Steinbrenner.

Martin, who held his temper and his tongue when Jackson returned from a five-day suspension Sunday, lost control of both at O'Hare International Airport mere hours after the Yankees had recorded their fifth consecutive victory.

"The two of them deserve each other," Martin told the New York Times, referring to Jackson and Steinbrenner.

"One's a born liar (Jackson), the other's convicted (Steinbrenner)."

"I am stunned," Steinbrenner told the Times when informed of Martin's remark, which apparently referred to Steinbrenner's conviction in 1974 for illegal political contributions.

A clause in Martin's contract with the Yankees prohibits him from making public comments critical of the outspoken New York owner. Martin's statement was in direct contravention of the clause and Steinbrenner told The Associated Press, "I'll have further reaction Monday morning."

That reaction seems certain to include severe punishment, possibly even Martin's firing, in view of the manager's contract violation. The statement came in the manager's second burst of fiery, expletive-filled comments made - apparently without instigation - moments after the team arrived by bus at the airport for a flight to Kansas City.

Jackson was suspended after last Monday night's 9-7 loss to the Royals for bunting after a bunt order had been retracted - by signal and by verbal command - during the 10th inning of the 11-inning defeat.

Ultimately, Jackson popped out while bunting on a 1-2 pitch. Martin insisted the defiance of orders had been intentional though Jackson said Sunday after returning from the suspension: "Knowing what the consequences were, the suspension and the amount of publicity it generated, I probably would have swung. I just figured this would be the best way of moving the runner over, but I'd have rather struck out swinging and avoided the hassle."

Martin maintained, in his first diatribe, that Jackson knew he was being defiant. "I have never, in my career as a manager, given orders to bunt when there were two strikes on the batter.

"He (Jackson) knew it (that he was being defiant intentionally) and every one of the others knew it. Why else would he take his glasses off when he came back to the bench?

"He did that because he expected me to punch him and it took the most control it ever has taken in my life not to," said Martin.

Roby Couple Victims Of Traffic Crash

ROBY–Funeral service has been set for 10 a.m. Tuesday at the Roby Church of Christ for Mr. and Mrs. Julian Loyd Savage, both 71, who died in a traffic mishap Saturday afternoon near Garden City.

They were pronounced dead at the scene by Glasscock County Justice of the Peace Jay Wooten after their car slammed into a farm building after grazing another vehicle at the intersection of Texas Highway 158 and FM 33.

They are survived by two sons, J.L. Savage Jr. of Houston and K.R. Savage of Everett, Wash.; a daughter, Anita Lun of Hugo, Okla; five grandchildren and two great-granchildren.

Drilling Pace Up Slightly

Permian Basin oilfields had 296 rotary drilling rigs in operation last week, an increase of two over the previous week, according to Reed Drilling Equipment's weekly survey.

During the corresponding week last year, the Basin had 287 rigs running.

The leader in drilling activity last week was Eddy County, N.M., with 33 active rigs. The West Texas leader was Pecos with 24.

Scurry County had two rigs running last week, compared to one the previous week.

The rig count for other area counties, with last week and the week before, in order: Borden 8 and 5; Dawson 6 and 7; Fisher 1 and 1; Garza 3 and 3; Howard 5 and 5; Kent 2 and 4; Mitchell 2 and 3; Nolan 1 and 2; Stonewall 5 and 4.

Man Treated For Electrical Shock Here

Vernon Browning of Snyder was released following treatment over the weekend in Cogdell Memorial Hospital for electrical shock.

He was brought to the hospital by Galyean Ambulance Service from the General Crude Oil Co. Salt Creek Gas Plant in Kent County after he came in contact with a 440-volt power line Saturday night.

The electrical jolt knocked Browning loose from the line, but he was reported unconscious for a time.

County Court Plea Is Heard

Jesse Alvarez pleaded guilty this morning in county court to a charge of possession of a criminal instrument.

He received a $100 fine and a 30-day jail term, probated six months, on the misdemeanor charge.

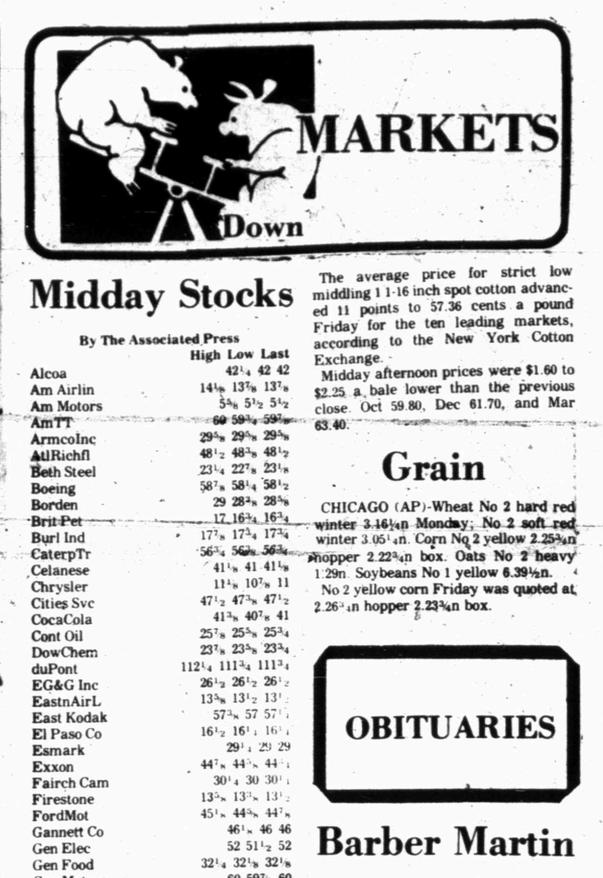

Alvarez is alleged to have had in his possession, sources said, a gaff. A gaff is a metal spur that fits onto the natural spur of a rooster.

Snyderite In ASU Band Camp

SAN ANGELO - Bobby Foust of Snyder participated in the fourth annual Angelo State University Band Camp which attracts high school students and band directors from across Texas.

Over 500 persons are attending this year's camp which offers clinic sessions in band twirling, ensembles, stage bands and drum majoring, among others.

Experienced musicians and band directors from across Texas are included in the band camp faculty and give special instruction in various instruments.

NEW YORK (AP)-Cotton futures No. 2 were lower in midday dealings today.

House Gutted By Blaze Here

A Sunday night fire immediately north of the intersection of 34th St. and Ave. M gutted a house.

The house, reported Fire Chief Alfred Kohl was a part of the estate of the late Frank James.

Kohl speculated that a lighted cigarette may have ignited a sofa in the home. The fire was reported at 10:45 p.m.

The only other weekend fire was Saturday afternoon, reports show.

It was a grass fire reported at 4:10 p.m. at Fullerville.

The average price for strict low middling 1 1-16 inch spot cotton advanced 11 points to 57.36 cents a pound Friday for the ten leading markets, according to the New York Cotton Exchange.

Midday afternoon prices were $1.60 to $2.25 a bale lower than the previous close. Oct 59.80, Dec 61.70, and Mar 63.40.

SNYDER SCOUT ON CRUISE - Boy Scout Robert Turk of Snyder stands on the dock in Norfolk, Va., with the Military Sealift Command transport ship USNS Private John R. Towle in the background. He is one of a group of Explorer Scouts who are on a 35-day cruise on the Towle, which will take them to Greenland. (U.S Navy Photo by Gary Miller)

As Guest Of U.S. Navy...

Snyder Scout Heading For A Cooler Climate

AT THE WHEEL - Robert Turk, Snyder Explorer Scout, takes his turn at the wheel of the USNS Private John R. Towle as it heads for Greenland.

NORFOLK, Va. - While most Snyder residents are enjoying the warmth of summer and the outdoor activities associated with this time of the year, Robert Turk expects to spend the summer exploring glaciers and braving icebergs and snowblindess in a land few people ever see.

Turk, 17, the son of Mr. and Mrs. T.R. Turk, is a Boy Scout embarked on the Military Sealift Command (MSC) transport ship USNS Private John R. Towle.

"The expectation of going to Greenland is what interested me about this trip," said the graduate of Snyder High School.

The Towle is headed for Thule and Sondrestrom in Greenland. Both are sites of U.S. military installations located above the Arctic Circle.

During the 35-day cruise, Turk and his fellow Explorers and Scouts anticipate that they will observe icebergs, fjords, whales, glaciers, seals and other aspects of the Arctic environment.

The young men will also learn about shipboard life. They will be working with the civil service mariners that man the Towle. Each Scout will take a turn at working on the deck, on the bridge, in the gallery and in the engine room.

The Towle's journey began at the Military Ocean Terminal, Bayonne, N.J. on July 6. Although the trip was originally scheduled to begin June 30, the delay turned out to be an advantage to the Scouts. They spent their additional days in the Bayonne area touring Navy and MSC ships that were also berthed at the terminal as well as utilizing the base's recreational facilities.

Seven of the Scouts, including Turk, took the opportunity to visit New York City guided by the Navy escort officer assigned to the scouting group, Ensign David Price. There they visited such sites as the Empire State Building, the Statue of Liberty and the World Trade Center. The Scouts also had the chance to observe stevedores loading the Towle with a variety of supplies for the installations in Greenland including a 50-ton landing craft and a tug boat.

Once loaded, the Towle headed for Norfolk. There, while the ship took on aviation fuel, the Scouts visited Virginia Beach, Va., toured the Naval Station where the Towle was berthed, and visited NASA facilities at Langley Air Force Base, Newport News, Va.

The Towle departed Norfolk for Sondrestrom, Greenland. It is during the 13 days at sea that the young men get their first exposure to the various aspects of the mariner's life.

Turk and his fellow Scouts' presence on the Towle is possible as the result of a program of cooperation between the Boy Scouts of America, the Navy Recruiting Command, and the Navy's Military Sealift Command. Through this program, begun seven years ago, outstanding Scouts and Explorers from throughout the United States are given the opportunity to sail aboard ships like the Towle headed for the Arctic.

Each year since then, select MSC ships making a summer cruise to Greenland have carried Scouts with them.

"I'm really looking forward to visiting the ice cave and meeting the people of Greenland," Turk said.

Turk is a member of Boy Scout Troop 185 where he has served as junior assistant scout master, patrol leader, senior patrol leader and scribe.

Five Hunted In AmbushKilling

RICHMOND, Mo. (AP) - A Sunday predawn ambush left one country music promoter dead and another wounded, and ignited a search for five assailants.

Dead with a small-caliber bullet wound in the back is George Barnett, 49, who police said moved into a trailer in rural Ray County less than a month ago from Richardson, Texas.

In stable condition at Ray County Memorial Hospital with a wound in the ribs is Donald D. Crumpley, believed to be in his late 30s. The police said Crumpley, who lives in Warrensburg, is a music promoter with Heritage Records and may have planned promotions with Barnett, who had country music ties in the Southwest.

George McBroom of the Missouri Rural Crimes Squad said the shootings may have been drug related. He said a substance believed to be marijuana was found in the trailer where the shootings took place.

The five suspects were believed to be from Texas, McBroom said.

Police said the two men were in bed when the five men attacked the trailer. Police said Crumpley was able to escape in his pickup and awaken a farmer at a home two miles away.

"He rung the doorbell and he was beating on the door with his fist like he was really wantin' attention," said Everett Yoakum, the farmer. "I went to the door and this fellow was standing there and he said, 'I've been shot and they shot the other guy.'"

Yoakum said two pickup trucks drove up and Crumpley said, "There they are. Turn off the lights and let me in."

Yoakum said he called the police and Crumpley sat with a towel pressed against his wound for an hour until help came.

Industry Buzz-Word...

World Car Developing

By DONALD WOUTAT
Associated Press Writer

DETROIT (AP)-If all those boxy, little cars are starting to look alike, you are not hallucinating. You might be getting an early glimpse of "world car."

World Car? It is an industry buzz-word as fuel gets scarce and costly and automakers look to the fast-growing market in developing nations.

The result could be cars from Kenosha that look pretty much like those from Nairobi. It could also be that some cars that do not make the grade will go the way of the Henry J, the Studebaker and the Pierce Arrow.

One European economist warns that the sheer wealth of General Motors Corp. and Ford Motor Co. makes them a threat to major automakers worldwide as they aim toward developing a universal car.

Ford, GM and Chrysler Corp. already build nearly half the 30.8 million cars turned out annually around the world.

The trend toward a world car already is causing global reverberations as industry giants seek to expand, governments rush to make their countries attractive as plant locations and labor unions hold meetings to talk about worldwide collective bargaining.

It is hard to find two people who agree on a definition of the world car. But they agree it is not a new idea - it is 67 years old, in fact.

The Model T appeared in Detroit in 1908 and was being assembled in England just three years later. By 1920, the sturdy little cars were being put together in Brazil, India, Denmark and Spain.

The auto industry has been international ever since. In 1967, for the first time, more cars were built outside than inside North America.

And today's supposed world cars - the Volkswagen Rabbit, Ford Fiesta and Chevrolet Chevette are cited - come closer than the Model T to being international products. While the overseas Model T was largely built with U.S. parts, the Fiesta is the product of 16 parts and assembly plants in six European nations, coordinated from Dearborn.

VW's Rabbit-Gulf-Caribe sequel to the Beetle-the second world car - is made in West Germany, the United States, Mexico, Indonesia and Yugoslavia. The Chevette is the same basic car as GM subsidiaries build in England, Germany, Brazil, Australia and Japan.

Chrysler this year combined features of its French-built cars and introduced the first U.S.-built front-wheel-drive small cars, the twin Dodge Omni-Plymouth Horizon - and at the same time started building the identical Simca Horizon in France.

Most versions of these similarly styled international cars are put together with at least some locally produced parts that would fit the models built in other countries.

Such across-the-border standardization of parts, as opposed to identical cars worldwide, is regarded as the test of a world car.

"The story isn't so much identical cars as engineering cooperation and components exchange," says a Ford analyst.

"The world car just doesn't exist in the image people want it to exist."

How did everybody come up with a boxy design? Because of the fuel shortages that sent prices up and prompted a U.S. requirement for gasoline economy - which translates into a need for smaller cars.

"You can get more in a box than a ball," says a Ford research man.

Likewise, the trend toward front-wheel drive means the drive train is up front, eliminating the transmission hump on the floor and allowing a lower floor and more interior room. It is also easier to sell front-wheel drive in Europe, where it is old hat.

It appears clear that U.S. companies can sell in Europe. The Fiesta quickly became the best-selling new car ever in Europe after its introduction there in 1976.

Ford of Europe is now the biggest single seller of cars in all of Western Europe, and the parent company got 42 percent of its 1977 profits from overseas.

On the other side of the world car street, VW started building Rabbits this year in Pennsylvania and is pondering a California plant. French government-owned Renault plans to build cars in American Motors plants in Wisconsin and sell AMC Jeeps in Europe.

Japanese automaker Datsun is looking for a site for a U.S. assembly plant. Honda is virtually certain to build cars next to its Ohio motorcycle plant now being built. Toyota, Japan's No. 1 automaker, is "studying" the prospect of building cars in this country.

GM and Ford, however, seem to have the jump on the real growth markets of South America, Africa, the Middle East and Asia, analysts say.

Political reality dictates use of both local labor and locally made parts when foreign plants are opened. This means that foreign governments seek the plants as employers of their citizens.

When Ford of Europe decided last year to build a $33 million engine plant in Europe, Britain, Spain, Ireland and West Germany came up with offers of tax breaks, job training and other incentives.

Ford decided on Wales, and it was estimated that the company got government aid and incentives for $125 million of the $330 million capital cost. The payoff will be 2,000 jobs in Wales by 1980.

During Sweltering Heat...

Employees Working On Sleds Think Snow

By TIM PETTIT
Associated Press Writer

DUNCANNON, Pa. (AP)-While most everyone is thinking about the seashore or swimming pools, just one thing is on the minds of employees sweltering in 90-degree heat at Standard Novelty Works - snow.

Standard is bustling 16 hours a day to meet a daily quota of 1,000 sleds to fill a blizzard of orders.

"When it snows hard like last winter, the snow is still fresh in the retailers' minds," said Norman Rosen, president of Standard, one of the three remaining sled producers in the country.

Rosen and his competitors - Blazon Flexible Flyer in West Point, Miss., and Gladding Corp. in South Paris, Maine - are trying to make sure they avoid a repeat of last year, when heavy snows created a demand for sleds that the firms were unable to meet.

Rosen's firm quickly sold out its 100,000 Lightning Guider and Challenger sleds, but there wasn't even a sled slat left for additional orders.

"It really hurt," said Rosen, dwarfed by 20-foot-high stacks of sleds. "I had to cancel a stack of orders like this," he said, holding his hands six inches apart.

At Flexible Flyer, which manufactures the granddaddy of all sleds, a half million sleds were sold. And marketing vice president Robert Mayhall said he could have sold more.

Where are all the sleds going?

"I don't know. I think a lot get run over in the driveway," Mayhall said with a chuckle in a telephone interview.

After S.L. Allen, a farm implement manufacturer in Philadelphia, made what is considered the first sled in 1889 for his granddaughter, the popular winter toy has not changed much.

"The last major change was in 1897, when Flexible Flyer invented the steering bar," said Rosen.

Minor, technical changes have followed, like the paint that almost derailed Rosen's sales last winter.

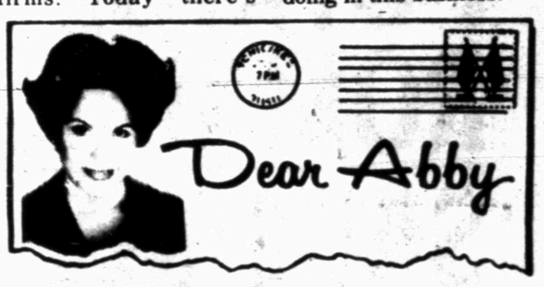

The federal government said the red paint on his sled runners contained lead and therefore was illegal. Rosen would have had to recall tens of thousands of sleds.

"Kids don't bite their sleds," Rosen argued, and three days before Christmas, Rosen's lawyers won a one-year exemption to sell those sleds. Now Rosen uses a more expensive, unleaded paint.

Sitting in a small, cluttered office next to this central Pennsylvania town's railroad tracks, Rosen gleefully talked about what last winter's blizzards will do for this year's sales.

"But remember, 10 years ago there were eight sled firms. Today there's three. It's a good business as long as it snows," he said.

"When there's not much snow for five or six years, you wonder what...you're doing in this business.

Teen's Mother Fears She's Lost Control

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My 14-year-old daughter wants to be "trusted" and I would like nothing better than to trust her, but she has lied to me so many times I have lost count.

Last Friday she asked if she could spend the night at a girlfriend's house, so I let her. When I checked with the friend's mother, she told me that HER daughter was supposed to be staying HERE!

My daughter lies to me about where she goes, who she's been with, and just about everything she does. I am worried sick about her. I have tried to get her to go to a counselor, but she won't go.

I am a divorcee, work full time, and have cut my own social life to a minimum in order to be here when she wants me. But she's never around, and I am completely shut out. Please help me.

HELPLESS MOM

DEAR HELPLESS. You are not helpless. Counseling is available for parents who have lost control. You need to learn how to deal with a child who learned long ago how to manipulate you. Your local Family Service Association offers excellent counseling. And if there's a Parents Anonymous in your area, contact them, too.

DEAR ABBY: I love to play Bingo, and I play every chance I get. I hardly ever win, and it really runs into money when you play as often as I do.

My landlord told me if I wanted to win at Bingo, I should get myself a book and study up on it.

I have never heard of a book on Bingo, but if there is such a book, can you tell me where I can buy a copy?

E.B.: WINONA, MINN.

DEAR E. B.: I think your landlord is putting you on. Bingo is strictly a game of chance, and if there is a book on how to win at Bingo, I've never seen it.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter was married in a church. We went to a great deal of expense and effort to make her wedding as lovely as possible, and it would have been perfect, had it not been spoiled by a crying baby!

The baby's parents insisted on bringing their 10-month-old child to the ceremony, and when she started to cry and fuss, instead of taking her out of the room immediately, they allowed her to cry until her cries became hysterical screams! It was terribly distracting for those who were trying to keep their attention on the ceremony. Needless to say, it wasn't the baby's fault.

It's too late for us, because my daughter's wedding ceremony has already been ruined, but I hope you will print this so others will realize that children who are too young to understand the importance of keeping quiet do not belong at a church wedding.

MOTHER OF THE BRIDE

DEAR MOTHER: I have mentioned this in my column several times, and the number of letters I have received saying, "Babies belong in church" was astonishing.

(P.S. I've visited the Mormon church and congratulated them on the good manners and respectfulness of their wee ones.)

CONFIDENTIAL TO "DAFT" (DEAR ABBY FANS TOGETHER): Your loyalty is deeply appreciated, but your devotion is embarrassing. I don't deserve it. Enough, please.

Are your problems too heavy to handle alone? Let Abby help you. For a personal, unpublished reply, write: Abby: Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Limit all types of fats

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I read in one of your writings that some fish contain polyunsaturated fats. I wonder if you could name the fish for me.

DEAR READER — As a generalization, about one third of the fat in fish of all types is polyunsaturated fat. Some fish are very low-fat fish, for example the flat fishes such as flounder. In these fish, since there is almost no fat to begin with, you won't find much polyunsaturated fat in them.

By contrast salmon, which contains quite a bit of fat, will have a reasonable amount of polyunsaturated fat. The evidence that a marked increase in polyunsaturated fats in the diet prevents fatty cholesterol build-up is rather meager. It is better to limit all types of fat and particularly the saturated fats.

Since only about a third of the fat in fish is saturated fat, fish makes an ideal source of meat protein. The polyunsaturated fat in fish in unique. It is much more unsaturated than the polyunsaturated fats found in vegetables and cereals. Some people think the presence of such highly polyunsaturated fats in the diet is helpful in lowering the blood cholesterol levels.

To give you more information on fish, along with tables to provide the fat values and cholesterol values in different fishes I am sending you The Health Letter number 11-12, Fish and Shellfish As A Health Food. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 326, San Antonio, TX 78292.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am especially interested in what causes bursitis. Will it clear up eventually? Is there anything to do for it except take aspirin? I have had it for about nine months now. I have had two shots but they only gave relief for about 24 hours. I am going on 70 and a female. I do a lot of yard and garden work besides housekeeping.

DEAR READER — Bursa are little sacs filled with fluid. The material that forms the sac looks about the same as the plastic wrap material you have in the kitchen.

These little fluid-filled sacs are cushions around bony prominences, tendons and in the joints and they are there literally to cushion the effects of movement and protect tendons and joints from wear and tear. They can become irritated by injury or a number of different infections, but a high percentage of cases of bursitis occur with no known cause and they're not all easy to treat.

It's common to rest the joint involved to avoid additional physical trauma. In your case if the joints involved are used extensively for yard and garden work when you have bursitis you probably should avoid doing too much of that. Heat is sometimes used to provide some muscle relaxation and relief.

Aspirin is commonly used to help control the pain and when these general measures are not useful, stronger medicines are used including the injection of steriods into the joints. This is very effective in some cases and not so successful in others. A diagnosis of chronic bursitis depends on how long it lasts.
