JP investigation still underway

The investigation into Keith Ruddick's handling of the financial affairs for the Justice of the Peace office Precincts 1 and 2 is still under way, said District Attorney Frank Conard.

Although he could not furnish an exact dollar amount, Conard said he felt there were several thousand dollars unaccounted for.

He added that after the investigation it would be up to the discretion of the Mitchell County Grand Jury to pursue criminal charges.

"He would potentially have to face theft or official misconduct charges," Conard said.

He also stated that Ruddick has offered to turn his retirement check over to the county as a form of restitution. The exact dollar amount of restitution was not yet available.

The county commissioners hired Ruddick's former secretary, Wilda Giles, to help go through and arrange his paperwork.

"[Giles] was hired to organize everything in that office so that the appropriate papers can be filed and

Five new homes to be built in C-City

Colorado City is slated to receive more than $350 thousand from the Texas Department of Housing and Community Affairs' HOME Program.

Gladys Gerst, Executive Director for People for Progress said the funds would be used to build five new homes in Colorado City.

These four bedroom homes would be used as rent houses for low income families, with a $250 maximum rent, she said.

City Council member Bob Reily said the houses would be constructed on the north side of town, next to St. Ann's Catholic Church.

Both Reily and Gerst are expecting construction to begin in September.

City applies for sewer line grant

The city of Colorado City is applying for a $250,000 Texas Community Development grant to fund sewer lines.

A requirement for this grant is a survey of residents whose sewer lines are targeted for replacement.

The survey will be conducted by local business volunteers on Saturday, July 30.

Residents living in the area between Main St. north to 17th St. and Cherry St. east to Oak St. are asked to participate.

Names of volunteers may be verified by calling the police station at 728-5294.

"First we'll have to conduct feasibility studies and environmental studies before we can begin the construction," Gerst said.

Reily said that the four taxing entities in Mitchell County would benefit from the construction and rental of the houses.

"The advantage is it's housing that we need and it will also be on

Public hearing to be held by Colorado ISD

The Colorado Independent School District has called a public hearing of the Board of Trustees to discuss the application of Federal Chapter I and II Funds for the 1994-95 school year.

The meeting will take place Monday at 5 p.m. at the Administration Building Board Room, 534 East 11th Street.

School tax assessor and collector Geneva Findley said Chapter I and II Funds are federal funds applied towards the needs of educationally or economically disadvantaged students.

"The number of students [in the Chapter I and II programs] is determined by the number of students on free or reduced price lunches," she said.

According to Findley, there are about 250 students in the funding program.

"These are students who receive

McCollum resigns as CofC manager

Jay McCollum surprised members of the Colorado City Area Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors, Thursday evening, when he resigned as the Board's Executive Vice President and manager.

In a letter submitted to the Board, McCollum said, "My plans are to pursue personal interests in Colorado City and I look forward to being active in the community and Chamber."

In the meeting, McCollum stated that there was no specific reason for his decision to resign.

"I just felt it was time for me to do something else," he said. "I want to re-do my house, work on some rent houses, maybe do some traveling."

McCollum added that he felt the city's economy would be growing in the future and that the Chamber would continue to play a major role in its growth.

"You've got to decide in what direction you want the Chamber to go," he said. "With the new jail coming in and the city growing, there's no better time than now."

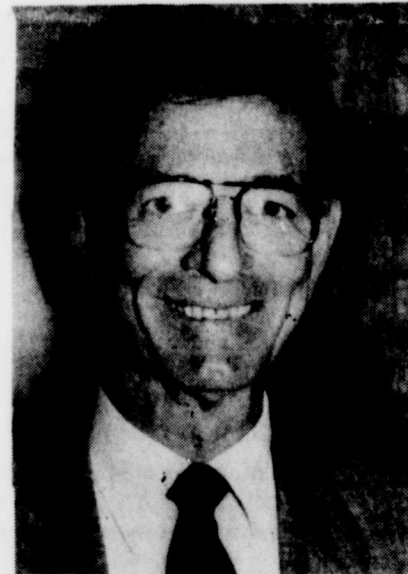

Members of the Board accepted his resignation "with the utmost regret" and expressed their appreciation of McCollum's efforts in the Chamber.

In his letter of resignation, McCollum concluded with the statement, "My time at the Chamber has been an exciting, frustrating, interesting and rewarding experience that I deeply appreciate. My hopes are for the best for the Chamber and all of us, because this community is our future."

Although he is resigning his position with the Board of Directors, McCollum emphasized his intention to stay actively involved with the Chamber.

His resignation will go into effect July 30.

TDH warns against lyme disease

The Texas Department of Health (TDH) wants Texans to be aware of the most common tick-borne illness in the United States.

Although lyme disease was once thought to be confined only to the wooded areas of the east coast, it is now known to occur anywhere in the United States.

Julie Rawlings, of the Texas Department of Health's Zoonosis Control Division, said she feels that lyme disease is a health threat in Texas.

"Nearly 1,500 possible cases have been reported in Texas since 1986," she said. "Of these, at least 409 have met the case criteria of the U.S. Centers for Disease Controls and Prevention's definition of the illness."

She said the disease has been reported among pet owners, campers, hunters and others who work outdoors or with animals.

Dr. Dee Roach, Chief of Staff for the Mitchell County Hospital District, said there are three major stages of the disease.

The first stage begins with a skin rash at the site of the tick bite. The rash is usually red, flat and has problems scaling. It also increases in size with time and is accompanied with flu-like symptoms, including aches, pains, fever and chills.

The second stage is termed late manifestations. It involves cardiac or neurologic complications that may set in weeks to months after the early symptoms are detected.

The final stage is called delayed manifestations. These involve joint pain and swelling and may not be detected for up to two years after the first signs of lyme disease.

According to Dr. Roach, a careful examination and physical exam can help detect the specific antibody responsible for the disease.

"The organism responds to various antibiotics," he said. "But a full course treatment may require three weeks to complete."

If left untreated, this disease can leave painful and permanent damage to joints or the nervous system.

To reduce the risk of catching lyme disease, Dr. Roach suggests controlling the tick population and early recognition and treatment of the signs and symptoms, as two helpful factors in prevention.

TDH officials suggest that when outdoors in wooded areas or tall grass you wear light colored clothing so that ticks may be more visible, use insect repellent containing DEET or permethrin on clothing and shoes but not on the skin, avoid high grass and foliage, keep your pets out of infested areas and inspect them often for ticks.

If you have any questions about this disease call TDH's Lyme Disease Information Helpline at (512) 458-7288.

an audit can begin," Conard said.

Since Ruddick officially resigned his position as JP for Mitchell County Precincts 2 and 3, there has been some question as to who will take his place.

According to Joan Beach, Mitchell County Clerk, the Democratic and Republican parties may nominate one candidate each by 5 p.m. September 9.

All write-in candidates must submit their applications to County Judge Ray Mayo between August 10 and September 9, she said.

Judge Mayo confirmed that Ruddick has taken his name off the ballot as the incumbent Democratic candidate for the November election.

Woody Anderson, Mitchell County Democratic Chairman said that his party has not yet chosen a candidate to run on the November ballot.

"We will probably put someone on the ballot," he said. "We'll be meeting in a few of days to decide what we're going to do."

Perry speaks to TPGA

Speaking at the 73rd annual Texas Pecan Growers Association conference, Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry said that agriculture plays a major role in the economics of many communities and in the overall economy of Texas.

"Agribusinesses in your community provide jobs," Perry said at the opening of the conference's educational session.

"They contribute to the tax base that provides education for the young people and public services for the townsfolk."

Agriculture is the state's second largest industry, Perry noted.

It earns about $12 billion in cash receipts every year and generates more than $36 billion in economic activity.

"Here at home and across the globe, new opportunities are springing up and markets are... demanding not only basic raw agricultural commodities but processed food and fiber products as well," Perry said.

Although the national average for in-state ag processing is 20 percent, Texas processes only 8 percent of its raw agricultural wealth.

Through the Texas Agricultural Finance Authority (TAF), banks are being encouraged to make ag processing loans.

Beta Epsilon members attend conference in Amarillo

Three members of the Beta Epsilon Chapter of the Delta Kappa Gamma Society International recently attended the 65th Annual State Conference in Amarillo.

She will be incoming first vice president and editor of the chapter newsletter, Beta Bits.

Mrs. Hanks, a member of the state communication committee, helped Mrs. Eleanor Scott of Seabrook present the state communication workshop.

Janet Mayo, first grade teacher at Kelley Elementary, also attended the conference.

Texas producers praised at Sheep & Goat Raisers' Assoc. convention

Speaking at the Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers' Association annual convention in Kerrville, Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry praised Texas producers.

"Even though the current administration eliminated wool incentive payments that helped keep many of you in business, you continue to look for ways to survive as sheep and goat producers," Perry said.

He told them the Texas Department of Agriculture, as well as other groups, are working to get legislation passed that would allow state inspected meat and poultry to be shipped across state lines.

"States with approved meat and poultry inspection programs should be allowed to move their products in interstate commerce."

"These programs are certified by the U.S. Department of Agriculture to be equal to the federal inspection program," Perry said.

Perry discussed the Naturally TEXAS marketing program, which endorses products inspired by Texas natural fibers.

He cited Levelland Knitting Mills, which began operation in April and Naturally Out West Inc. in Uvalde, which opened in June.

These mills "are producing sweaters, socks and other items made from wool and mohair for some of the top designers in the country," Perry said.

Texas leads the nation in wool and mohair production. Annually, the wool and mohair industry has a $500 million impact on the Texas economy, accounting for 15,000 direct and 45,000 indirect jobs.

Perry said producers are exploring the meat goat market and that TDA is working to secure two grants to improve knowledge in that area.

He told the ranchers they must adjust to changing consumer demands but also work to eliminate government restrictions that hinder their livelihoods.

"We've got to look at workers' comp laws, taxes, education, private property rights, anything that affects whether businesses want to settle in our state.

"We must make Texas the most attractive and competitive place to do business," Perry said.

Peach products available all year

Late June and early July are known as the peak of peach season, but a Hill Country area co-op plans to supply peach products all year.

They will also reduce the crop amount that must be dumped because of quick ripening.

"What we're trying to do is provide the taste of peaches the entire year and not just for three months," said Jimmy Duecker, president of the Gillespie County Fruit Growers Co-op.

The co-op represents five peach growers in the Stonewall and Fredericksburg area.

Most of the co-op's crop, estimated to be about 60,000 bushels this year, is sold as fresh fruit wholesale and retail at supermarkets throughout Texas.

However, because of a short shelf life for peaches picked ripe, in the past about ten percent of the co-op's production has had to be dumped.

Last year the co-op began hiring workers to hand-peel peaches and freeze them to sell to jam and jelly makers.

In addition, the co-op has begun selling peach dessert toppings, jams, jellies and butters manufactured by New Canaan Farms in Dripping Springs and sold under the co-op label, Texas Hill Country.

The jams and other products are gaining the co-op an entry into the specialty food market and allowing growers to earn more for their crops.

Processing the peaches adds an additional $28 to $30 to the value of a half bushel of peaches that sells for about $8 to $9 when consumed as fresh fruit, Duecker said.

Texas Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry said that processing is the key for earning more dollars and creating more jobs in Texas agriculture.

"From mom and pop peach stands selling preserves made by following family recipes to larger scale processing like the co-op is doing, it is clear that our farmers can earn more from their crops by adding value to their produce," Perry said.

In addition to its six label products, the co-op sells gift boxes of its jarred products and bags of frozen, chopped peaches that are ready for baking, preserving or mixing with sugar to use as an ice cream topping.

SLT presents The Fantasticks

The Sweetwater Little Theatre is having an opening gala for its summer musical, The Fantasticks, on July 19 at 7 p.m. Curtain is at 8 p.m.

This is the second opening night gala for an SLT production. It is a fun-filled evening with hors d'oeuvres and musical entertainment.

The Fantasticks' ingredients are simple: a boy, a girl, two fathers and a wall. The stage is a wooden platform and the scenery is a tattered cardboard moon.

With just the bare essentials, the author and composer tell an age-old tale of innocence, love and knowledge.

The Fantasticks is directed by Marc Culver, who recently directed Barefoot in the Park.

The musical stars are Jessica Wortham, Marc Culver, J.T. Deadman, Rachel Musgrove, Jim Wortham, Lance Rivera, Jeff Stein and Chastity Hodges.

Musical accompaniment is provided by Kathy Long, Kirk Stroman and Bob Brookshire.

Performances will continue on July 30 at 8 p.m., July 31 at 2 p.m. and August 5 and 6 at 8 p.m.

Tickets are available at the door each night of the performance. The opening night gala ticket price is $12.

Ticket prices are $8 for adults and $5 for students and senior citizens for all other performances and after 7:30 p.m. on opening night.

Mom & Pop stores have success in Lottery sales

A "homegrown" convenience store north of Wichita Falls has become the 200th member of the Lottery's Million Dollar Retailer Club, Nora Linares, Executive Director of the Texas Lottery Commission has announced.

"We're proud to welcome the Snappy Stop on East 3rd St. in Burkburnett to the Million Dollar Retailer Club.

Snappy Stop is owned by two sons of a man who settled in Burkburnett during the oil boom of 1919.

They have sold Texas Lottery tickets since the May 29, 1992 startup.

"It's amazing to me that 200 retailers have each sold $1 million or more in Texas Lottery tickets in slightly more than two years of operation," Linares said.

In total, the 200 retailers have sold $270 million in scratch, Lotto Texas and Pick 3 tickets, amounting to 6 percent of the $4.8 billion sold to date at the roughly 15,000 Lottery outlets around the state.

They've earned $13.5 million in Lottery commissions and another $1.7 million in bonuses for selling jackpot-winning Lotto Texas tickets.

Members of the Club include corporate retailers such as Shop N Go, 7-Eleven and Diamond Shamrock, as well as mom-and-pop independents such as Snappy Stop.

Most are convenience stores, groceries or gas stations, but others are unique outlets such as Hughes Auto Parts in Farwell, Dave's Ski & Tackle in Denison and Loretta's Hair in Clarksville.

"Despite this great variety, all of these stores share one important bond. They take the time to teach their customers how to play Lottery games.

"They regularly redeem all winning tickets up to $599, participate in Lottery-related promotions and routinely post the latest Lottery signs, banners and posters," Linares said.
