United States Given Blame For Japanese War-Mad Activities

(By Aosociated Press)

CHICAGO, Dec. 15—U. S. Senator Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota asserted in a speech last night that America, through large expenditures for armament, was "to some degree responsible for Japan's war-mad patriotism."

"The Japs," he said, "saw the United States spending billions for armaments and saw the United States' fleets sent to Asiatic waters for their maneuvers—so they just went wild. Look at them today."

The senator said United States munitions makers were selling war materials, patents and formulae to other nations without restriction. Japan, he said, recently was sold a new explosive formula for $600,000 despite governmental objections.

Arizona Expert Asks Aid From Fellow Scientists In Looking Into The Future Of Weather

(By The Associated Press)

TUCSON, Ariz., Dec. 15—Dr. A. E. Douglass, originator of three-ring chronology, asked fellow scientists today to aid him in "looking into the future" of weather conditions.

He urged that a cooperative group of scientific soothsayers come to his newly established three-ring laboratory here and pool their resources to give the world a peek at what lies ahead in the way of weather.

The future of present-day reclamation projects, drifts of population and even the history of nations would be affected by long-range weather forecasts foretelling the approach of disastrous drouths, Dr. Douglass said.

The University of Arizona astronomer and inventor of the cyclograph—a machine which makes quick calculations of cycles from large masses of data—invited four scientific groups to participate in this new approach "to one of our great economic problems—estimation or prediction of future conditions."

For his "look into the future," Dr. Douglass would combine the work of:

1. The astronomer on all apparent changes in the sun.
2. The physicist on all forms of radiation.
3. The three-ring cyclograph man on the cycles past and present.
4. The meteorologist and his practical knowledge of weather changes about the world.

Sweetwater Crash Claims Trainman

(By The Associated Press)

SWEETWATER, Dec. 15—Two cars of a string of empty oil tankers which crashed into a small herd of cows left the rails and killed Calvin Curtis, a switchman, at a crossing here today.

The accident occurred at a crossing where three weeks ago a Santa Fe engine crashed into a truck and sent another switchman, Gus Bethany, 43, to a Temple hospital in serious condition.

Another Thrown Clear

In the wreck this morning Raymond Fomby, another switchman was thrown clear of the derailed cars and escaped injury.

Bob Cooke, newspaperman, said the empty oil cars apparently were moving at a moderate rate of speed when they struck the cows crossing the track. One of the animals, he said, apparently knocked loose a wheel truck and the car jumped the rail. The second car followed it.

Curtis was thrown under the second car.

A wrecking crew was en route from Brownwood to clear the track.

Announcement had been made that the board would consider collateral for possible application to the R. F. C. for funds for two dormitories; acceptance of a gift from the LaVerne Noyes Foundation of Chicago; and recommendation of Dr. Knapp for appointment to fill vacancy left by death of Dr. W. A. Jackson, head of the government department and dean of the graduate division.

The board convened at 10 o'clock.

Congressional Guns Trained Upon Labor Bill

Strong Moves Against Plan Are Forming

Involved Strategy To Defeat Administration Idea Likely Will Be Brought Into Play

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15—Militant house blocs relied on involved parliamentary strategy today in their attempt to sweep the administration's wage-hour bill into the discard and substitute more rigid legislation.

Administration leaders expressed confidence, however, that they could sidetrack any serious threat to the bill, second item on the special session agenda, and force it to passage late Thursday.

Complicated Situation

This was the complicated situated confronting the house at noon.

Chairman Norton (D-NJ) of the labor committee wanted to substitute a reprinted version of the bill, containing several committee amendments, for the draft originally offered last summer. Democratic chieftains are backing the committee legislation.

Under the rules, any other substitutes had to be voted on before the Norton proposal was disposed of. At least six members, all from the north or west, had substitutes ready. Adoption of any one of them would supplant the committee bill.

Uniform Standards

All but two of the substitutes would impose uniform wage-hour standards on all industries in interstate commerce and leave enforcement either to the justice department or the federal trade commission.

One of them, introduced by Rep. Dockweiler (D-Calif.), had the endorsement of the American Federation of Labor. It provided for a flat 40-cents-an-hour minimum wage and a 40-hour week.

The committee's bill, however, contained flexible provisions empowering a government authority to fix minimum wages up to 40 cents an hour and a work week of 40 hours or more. It would permit consideration of local economic conditions, living costs and freight rates in determining such standards.

Senate Still Debating

While the house debated the controversial wage-hour issue, the senate still was wrangling over crop control, the first item on President Roosevelt's legislative program. Senator Backley of Kentucky, Democratic leader, declared he would force a session tonight unless considerable progress was made during the afternoon.

The senate yesterday defeated, 49 to 23, an amendment by Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) to limit expenditures under the farm program to $500,000,000 a year.

Equal Rights Being Asked For Women

Women Who Picketed The White House And Went To Jail 20 Years Ago Hold Reunion

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15—Women who picketed the White House and went to jail for women's suffrage 20 years ago held their first reunion in the capital today to organize a campaign for passage of an "equal rights" amendment.

Attending the biennial conference of the National Women's party, delegates who had been in jail were recognizable by "prison pins" given them for "distinguished service" in the war-time crusade for women's right to vote.

Jailed Five Times

Their leader in a jail experience "confession" symposium was Betty Gram Swing of New York, a dynamic little woman with bobbed gray hair who was jailed five times and who had been on hunger strikes twice.

Scores of women were arrested in 1917 after demonstrations at the White House. When police broke up the parades, disorders resulted.

Symbol Of Freedom

"Now women have a vote," Mrs. Swing declared, "but it is only a symbol of freedom."

Senator Burke (D-Neb), sponsor of the "equal rights amendment" in the senate, said it would remove the last of jury service restrictions for women, equalize wage-hour standards, and allow women to hold certain public offices from which they now are barred.

Young "Hex" Slayer Is Asking State To Set Him Free That He Might Become An Artist

(By The Associated Press)

HARRISBURG, Pa., Dec. 15—A raw-boned Pennsylvania farmboy, serving a long term for a 1928 "hex" murder, asked the state today to set him free so he might become an artist.

John Curry, who was only 14 the day he stood trembling before a York county court and heard himself sentenced to spend the rest of his days in prison, petitioned the board of pardons for a parole.

Behind the walls of the Eastern State penitentiary, John found that he could draw pictures better than any of his fellow convicts. Then he began to paint. His portraits and landscapes attracted attention on the "outside."

New friends offered to help him. July 24, 1934, his life sentence was reduced to 10 to 20 years.

In the winter of 1928 York county hen houses were being looted. Curry, John H. Blymyer and Wilbert G. Hess decided to get a lock of hair, which "hex doctors" said would prevent the thefts.

They went to the home of a recluse, Nelson D. Rehmeyer. He would not give up the lock of hair. There was a tussle. Rehmeyer was killed.

Curry and Blymyer got life; Hess, 10 to 20 years.

Death Penalty Of One Is Affirmed

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Dec. 15—The court of criminal appeals today affirmed one death case and reversed and remanded one.

The death sentence of Johnnie Banks, given in Brazoria county for the fatal shooting Aug. 16, 1936, of Jewel Smith, was affirmed.

That of Harry Lacy, inflicted in Trinity county for the slaying Dec. 13, 1935, of Edgar Womack, was reversed and remanded.

Improper Testimony

The court reversed the Lacy case because of improper testimony at the trial. It noted that Lacy, a negro, had asked for a change of venue from Grimes county, which had been denied, but said the motion had not been adequately supported.

The killing was the outgrowth of the theft of a hog from Womack in Trinity county. Womack was shot soon after he found the hog about to be dressed.

Lacy admitted the killing but said he was compelled to do it under threats from Bosie Beasley, whom he accused of the hog theft.

Shot In Scuffle

The shooting of Jewel Smith, a young girl, occurred in a bedroom of the J. G. Smith home. Banks claimed the girl was shot in a scuffle with an older sister.

His appeal was based on a claim that trial court should have granted a motion for new trial predicated on alleged discovery he was insane at the time of the killing. The highest court said testimony was insufficient to relieve him of responsibility.

The case of Bassett Rodgers from Walker county, given five years for murder in the slaying of Annuel Smith June 7, 1936, was affirmed.

The court reversed two convictions for driving while drunk because driving privileges were suspended for longer than the six months prescribed for the first offense under the latest law. The court pointed out that a six-months suspension was automatic.

Time is growing short!

Chief Goodfellow, anonymous leader of the campaign to furnish a Merry Christmas to every underprivileged boy and girl in the city, urges citizens of Lubbock to "step on it" in the matter of turning in their contributions. A total of $1,200 is needed to carry on the work which will include Yule packages to approximately 2,200 children between the ages of six months and 15 years, in about 1,000 families residing within the city limits.

Readers who know of needy children are urged to turn to Page 4, Columns 2 and 3 of today's paper, fill out the blank and send it in as directed, so that no child will be overlooked. Junior Welfare leaguers, in charge of locating and listing the children regardless of color, race or creed, ask that readers turning in coupons include, as nearly as possible, ages of the children.

Radio May Put An End To The Shrieking Whistle Of Train

(By The Associated Press)

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 15—Transmission foreican "end-to-end" radio communication on long freights today as a substitute for shrieking whistle signals.

Short wave stations in the engine cab and in the caboose of the same train also may mean the passing, they expect, of one of the most colorful of railroad figures—the flagman.

The Pennsylvania railroad tried out the sets on a 80-mile run from Philadelphia to Paoli, Pa., in a 30-car freight, and then announced it hoped eventually to install them throughout its system.

The new apparatus consisted of receiving and sending instruments operated similar to a telephone—but without wires.

The radio system worked despite interference from high tension electric lines.

It would be possible to communicate between trains for the transmitters have radius of from three to 10 miles, it was explained.

Good Business Reflected In City Meters

Average Collection Of Over $100 Per Day Seen; Higher Rate Is Being Expected

The rattle of nickels in parking meters emphasizes for the city of Lubbock that the holidays are here.

For more than two weeks according to information given this morning by Ethridge Eagan, assistant city manager, the collections have averaged more than $100 per day, as compared with a normal average of approximately $85 per day.

Business Is Reflected

The figures, especially for the last two weeks, were interested by officials as significantly reflecting the huge business done in Lubbock in comparison with Abilene where collections average less than $50 per day.

The number of meters, officials explained, are approximately the same in the two cities and each has a two-hour parking limit.

Total collections from the meters since they were put into operation last Aug. 27, according to City Auditor D. D. Martin, have been $9,079.75, of which approximately $7,717 has been or will be applied on the purchase price. Total cost of the meters will be approximately $35,000 at $58 per meter if the election to be held Jan. 11 is favorable to the retention of the devices.

Would Lose Thousands

Officials explained that if the election is unfavorable, the approximately $10,000 which will have been paid to the Dual Parking Meter company by that date will be lost to the city, although the devices will be returned to the company without further obligation to Lubbock. The conditional contract provides that 85 per cent of revenue from the devices shall be applied on the purchase price until all are paid for, or until the city commission orders them out.

Further emphasizing the briskness of the business done in Lubbock downtown area, Eagan pointed out, has been the fact that each meter has been producing an average revenue daily of approximately 17 cents. The maximum they could produce would be 22 cents each.

Increase Is Expected

Officials expect the present high revenue to continue and probably increase through the holiday period. A return to the normal $85 to 90 daily then is expected through the winter and spring, followed by a sharp drop through the summer lull.

Collections now are made at two day intervals and those for the recent two day periods, in reverse order, were listed by Eagan as being $214, $212, $210, $192, $214 and 218.

Gunboat Crew Opened Fire Upon Planes

Writer Declares Ships Dropped 12 Bombs And Says That It Was Impossible To Make Mistake

(By The Associated Press)

SHANGHAI, Dec. 15—Jim Marshall, wounded far eastern correspondent of Collier's magazine and first American to give an eye-witness account of the Panay bombing, told the following story today on his arrival here by plane:

"Japanese planes dropped twelve bombs around the Panay and the Standard Oil steamers, coming so low it was impossible for them not to know it was a foreign ship.

Visibility Was Excellent

"The visibility was excellent.

"I was standing on the Panay's stern when a bomb hit the forecastle. When the ship began to sink, the captain ordered it abandoned. All the passengers and crew jumped overside.

"I landed on the deck of the Meian (one of the Standard Oil steamers) and helped the captain pull up anchor and get underway.

"Sandro Sandri (Italian newspaperman) was in the upper ward room of the Panay when he was hit by shrapnel, receiving fatal wounds.

Struck By Shrapnel

"I was aboard the Meian when the ship was bombed. I was struck by shrapnel, receiving wounds in the neck, stomach, shoulder and chest."

Marshall said the Panay opened fire on the Japanese planes at the beginning of the attack and continued firing until she sank.

"After the gun crew fired until the last, Anders (Lieut. Arthur F. Anders), who was wounded and unable to talk, took a piece of white chalk and scribbled on the side of the ship, 'Take to boats. Stay as close to shore as possible. Then swim and send boats back.'

Struggled To Shore

"When the Meian was sunk, I struggled ashore. Hodge (John L. Hodge, Panay fireman) helped me. We walked with Vines (F. Hayden Vines) twenty miles before we were picked up.

"The first night we slept in a Chinese farm house, where we were royally treated. The second night we slept in the quarters of Captain Yone Masunda, Japanese artillery officer at Taiping, who provided us with a truck for Wuhu."

When Marshall arrived in Shanghai he wore a pair of Chinese pajamas and had a Japanese blanket around his neck as a sling to support his arm. He was hoarse and it was extremely difficult for him to speak. He was visibly suffering greatly from his wounds and exposure and immediately went to a hospital.

Debt Payments Are Due U. S.

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15 — The United States expected Hungary today to break the general suspension of war debt payments by depositing a partial remittance—the first in more than five years.

The little Balkan regency would be the first of 12 nations to undertake a resumption of payments which were stopped during or after the Hoover moratorium of 1932.

By far the greater part of the $1,680,170,447 which fell due today on the semi-annual installment date, however, went by default again. Great Britain, France, Italy, Poland and Yugoslavia reiterated in advance that they were not able to pay. The other six defaulters were expected to follow suit.

Finland To Pay Again

Of all the war debtors, only Finland has met its installments fully and promptly, and agreed to do so again today.

Hungary owed a total of $467,673 in current and past due installments. It notified the state department in August that it proposed to resume partial payments at the rate of $9,828 semi-annually for a period of three years, or a total of $58,968. This compares with $258,440 which will fall due during that time.

When a cold strikes . . . don't take needless risks

Treat Colds This PROVED Way

WHY experiment? Vicks VapoRub has been doubly proved for you . . . proved by everyday use in more homes than any other medication of its kind; further proved by the largest clinical tests ever made on colds. (See full details in each VapoRub package.)

Only Vicks give you such proof. VapoRub is the direct external treatment. No "dosing"—no risk of stomach upsets. Simply massage it on the throat, chest and back (as illustrated).

Relief starts almost at once. You begin to feel warm and comfortable as VapoRub starts working direct through the skin like a poultice. At the same time, its medicated vapors—released by the warmth of the body—are carried direct to the irritated air-passages with every breath.

This double action loosens phlegm—relieves irritation and coughing—helps break local congestion.

Repeat treatment at bedtime. After restful sleep comes, VapoRub keeps right on working, hour after hour. Often, by morning the worst of the cold is over.

Great Wonderland Will Be Tapped After Construction Of Modern Oregon Trail

PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 15. (AP)—Wonderlands hidden in the forests of western Oregon mountains since pioneer days soon will be on display for hardy Americans.

Wriggling along the spine of the great Cascade range, a 400-mile trail is being completed under the direction of the U. S. forest service.

Foot Or Horseback

But you'll have to be a dyed-in-the-wool outdoorsman to take advantage of it. It can be traveled only on foot or horse.

Starting near the Bonneville dam on the Columbia river, the trail runs south to magnificent Crater Lake, crossing or following many long-forgotten, brush-hidden trails blazed by pioneers and Indians.

It opens to fishermen 500 trout-teeming lakes, some so remote they never have been named. Wild life is abundant.

Marked By Peaks

Mountain peaks by the hundred mark its course—famed Mt. Hood, towering Jefferson, the almost unconquerable spires of Three-Fingered Jack and Washington, and the stately Three Sisters.

It will skirt the Belknap lava beds, the alpine flower garden of Jefferson park, the Odell wonderland, each seldom seen by man heretofore.

The trail will become part of a 2,300-mile project that will stretch from Northern Washington to Southern California over the tortuous Cascades and Sierras.

Youth Kills His Sister And Seriously Wounds An Aunt

TOPSFIELD, Mass., Dec. 15 (AP)—Oliver Alden Thayer, 24, member of a prominent and wealthy family, last night quietly walked down the stairs of his home, State Police Corporal Arthur T. O'Leary said, shot and killed his sister, Katherine, 32, and seriously wounded his 72-year-old aunt.

"I'll do it again tomorrow if I had to," O'Leary quoted him. Thayer was charged with murder.

O'Leary said that the brown-haired, husky youth dictated and signed a confession and explained that he shot the two women because they "nagged" his parents about "everything."

Large areas of southern England were blotted out by fog, interrupting air service and delaying shipping at Southampton.

Two persons died from exposure, two track workers were killed, four died in a royal air force airplane crash last night and a sailor was washed overboard into the Irish sea.

Scores of automobiles were wrecked through skidding.

Snow drifts blanketed Scotland and northern England.

Laboratory Of Art Planned

DALLAS, Dec. 15. (AP)—The executive board of the Dallas Art association took a definite step toward establishing here a scientific research laboratory for identification and restoration of old paintings by voting recently to investigate its possibilities.

The idea was prompted by the presence in Dallas of Charles Muskavitch of Boston to determine the value and significance of the 34 paintings in a collection of old masters loaned anonymously to the Dallas museum of fine arts for an indefinite display.

The only known laboratories for restoration and authentication of ancient paintings are at Fogg museum, Harvard university, and the Metropolitan museum at New York. Establishment of such a department here, proponents say, would serve the south and west because no service of the kind is available to museums and private collectors in this section of the country.

The art loan to the Dallas museum, valued at $1,500,000, illustrates how the corrosion of time and mistreatment conceals the beauty, value and importance of old paintings. Officials of the Dallas museum said the 34 pictures, formerly in the collection of the Marquis Torre Tagle of Lima, Peru, were sold in 1912 to a relative of the present owner.

Stored In Vault

They were stored in a vault and lost to the art world for a quarter of a century. The owner communicated with Richard Foster Howard, director of the Dallas museum of fine arts, who obtained the services of Muskavitch through recommendations of the Fogg museum. His research thus far has revealed canvases by the Spanish master, Valesquez, the Flemish painter, Rubens, and the Italians, Tintoretto, Giovanni Bellini and Correggio.

Muskavitch now is restoring a Bronzino, which he considers one of the finest by the great court painter of the Medicis, that has reached this country. (The Italian government for many years has prohibited removal of old paintings from the country.)

Muskavitch developed his technique through chemical engineering.

Detailed microscopic study, radiography, ultra-violet examination, infra-red photography and microchemical examinations, he said, all lend themselves to answering specific questions vital to the curator in establishing the authenticity of a work of art. Likewise the restorer benefits in obtaining information concerning the state of preservation, structure, mediums, varnish and other elements of a picture prior to starting restoration.

Low-power microscopic examination, he said, reveals skinned and repainted surfaces. "The most reliable method of fixing the date of a painting and detecting forgeries is in the identification of the pigments because different pigments have been used at various periods in the history of painting."

"Scientific research in fine arts," he explained, "has in recent years found its place along with medicine and surgery. The conservation of pictures is the work of the scientist, not the craftsman."

George Stout, who established the technical research department at Fogg museum, coined the word "conservator" to distinguish the scientific restorer from the craftsman.

Charm And Spirit Of Mexico's Dances Are Being Revived

MONTERREY, Mexico, Dec. 15. (AP)—Mexico, for some time self-conscious about her native fiestas and dances, apparently has come to realize they are part of the charm and spirit of the people and alcaldes in small towns have stopped trying to suppress them. Among the most interesting of the early winter fiestas celebrated everywhere in Mexico is that of Our Lady of Guadalupe, Mexico's patron saint, Dec. 12, and supplemented nine days before Christmas by the charming old custom of "Las Posadas," which culminates in the "mass of cockcrow," or midnight mass, Christmas morning.

The day of the dead, another popular fiesta celebrated Nov. 1, was observed quietly in the past, everyone conducted himself as if paying a visit to the beloved departed and including them once more in the pleasures and joys of this life. Picnics and music were held in the cemeteries, children played and shouted among the graves, and a spirit of remembrance and love for the dead, untouched by sorrow, characterized the day. The day no longer is so celebrated in the large cities, although bakeries make and sell special "dead man's bread" (a sweet loaf made with eggs), and flour shops sell out all their blooms to decorate the graves.

Of Great Interest

Guadalupe day marks the appearance of Matachin dancers in a fiesta which came from Spain by way of the Arabic Moors, and which has been, during years in Mexico, modified by Indian tradition and customs. The result is a native dance of great interest.

The dancers meet before the first mass Guadalupe day in the plaza in front of Guadalupe church (there is a church of Our Lady of Guadalupe in every Mexican town) and dance a peculiar little hopping step with changing partners, while a strange tune is played endlessly on violins, flutes, and drums until after the last mass at 12, and sometimes longer.

The custom was brought to the Americas by the Spanish conquistadors and taught the Indians. The original costumes were modified by the Indians, and added to until they are a strange and fanciful mixture. Feathered headdresses, European masks, and the bells and mirrors of European court fools of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries are worn with the sandals and cotton trousers of the Mexican native.

Plea Of Guilty Is Announced

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 15 (AP)—A 23-year-old married man who was arrested by G-men after Jackson county officers questioned and released him pleaded guilty today to charges he shot a federal agent who attempted to trap him in a $600 extortion.

The federal arrest yesterday of Woodrow Wilson Price, father of two children, and his blunt "I plead guilty" today capped a case that drew heated criticism of the F. B. I. from Sheriff James L. Williams.

Price was ordered held for grand jury action after entering his plea at an arraignment. His arrest first was disclosed at Washington by J. Edgar Hoover who said Price confessed seriously wounding Agent Henry A. Snow with a shotgun at Independence, Mo., the night of Dec. 6. Snow was one of several agents who set a trap for a man who had demanded money from Haward B. Jacobs, Independence coal dealer, under threat of harming Jacobs' daughter.

Field Brothers Get Contract On Project At Ropesville

Field brothers of Lubbock have been awarded contract to grub and break 8,400 acres of land in Ropesville resettlement project, according to word received here Tuesday from L. H. Hauter of Amarillo, regional RA director.

Actual work will begin within 10 days. The contract calls for a completed job within 120 working days.

Preparation of this land is the first definite step toward the expansion of the Ropesville federal project, calling for 48 new farm units. There are 33 units on the present project.

Terracing the land and the construction of houses and outbuildings are being let under separate contracts. These are expected to be announced soon.

Family selection of those who will occupy the new homes will not begin for some time, according to officials of this federal agency.

It Takes A Great Deal Of Patience To Get A Pearl

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 15. (AP)—Given a real chance, an oyster can produce a real pearl.

Such was gem experts' explanation of the "Star of the Orient," a cultured pearl allowed to remain in its host's shell for 30 years. The pearl, on display here, weighs 50 grains and is valued at $35,000.

Cultured pearls, produced chiefly by the Japanese, are made by inserting a tiny irritant into an oyster's shell, then returning it to the ocean bed for the pearl to develop.

Duel Between Pint-Sized Backs To Feature Schoolboy Grid Tilt

SPORTS

LUBBOCK, TEXAS, WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 15, 1937

New York Yanks Are Rated As 1937's Top Team

Exciting Game Promised For Texas Fans

BY HAROLD V. RATLIFF
Associated Press Sports Writer

DALLAS, Dec. 15—Dick Miller vs Cam (Powder) Harrell.

The thousands who crowd into the stadium at Conroe Saturday will be there to see the pride of South Texas attempt to hurl back the onslaught of Longview's mighty Loboes in the battle for a final spot in the Texas Interscholastic league football race.

Duel Steals Show

But the coming duel of these two pint-sized backs has already stolen the show. Miller and Harrell together weigh little more than one of the hulking tackles that blasts holes for them in the forward wall but their names have become synonymous with all-state wherever critics congregate.

Harrell, a triple-threater, is the current class A schoolboy scoring leader with 163 points. He raced for four touchdowns last week in routing Robstown and has been pulling stunts like that all season. Harrell weighs in the neighborhood of 130 pounds.

Class Of Texas Backs

Miller was heralded as the class of Texas backs two months ago and has done nothing since to mar his rating. He weighs 145 pounds and can do everything with a football. He will lead an impressive team into the lair of the Conroe Tigers for the football "natural" of the schoolboy season and the Loboes will rate favorites to take the game.

The duel between Harrell and Miller, however, is another matter. The fans expect a rip-snorting exhibition of football by both teams with Harrell and Miller each exhibiting his class to perfection. If one of them is stopped it will furnish more conversation than the result of the battle.

No Comparative Records

There are no comparative records capable of disclosing which team actually carries the edge. Remotely they rate Longview a couple of touchdowns better than Conroe. The latter defeated Bryan 14-0. Temple downed Bryan 25-7 and Longview defeated Temple 19-12. But such comparisons mean nothing.

Both teams are undefeated and untied. Longview has won 12 games [illegible] the opposition. Conroe has two distinctions not only are the Tigers holders of the [illegible] scoring mark with [illegible] [illegible] possess [illegible] but 25 points scored against them.

Played Harder Schedule

Admittedly Longview has played a harder schedule and [illegible] in the Lobo [illegible] a 12-6 win over Port Arthur [illegible] as one of the best teams in all Texas. Longview [illegible] team that folds up when [illegible] either. A marvelous comeback in beating Temple last week [illegible].

But the ease with which Conroe has taken the opposition shows the Tigers [illegible] offensively and defensively.

It is expected to be one of the season's best games and a glittering duel between the state's most highly-publicized stars.

Chicago Has Inside Track For Bout Between Max And Joe; Boys With Cash Are Missing

NEW YORK, Dec. 15 (P)—Don't breathe it to a soul, but Chicago has the inside track on the championship brawl between Max Schmeling and Joe Louis next June, with Detroit running a spirited second.

Contrary to snap judgment, the near-capacity crowd that turned out to watch Schmeling paralyze Harry Thomas at the Garden night before last did not cause Promoter Mike Jacobs to turn any handsprings.

Mike on the contrary, looked over the assemblage with the bilious eye of an old ticket-scalper and decided New York positively would not do as a setting for his pugilistic pearl.

What Mike and his keen-eyed advisers noted was the fact that the well-heeled Jewish population, with only a few notable exceptions, was not at the ringside. The cloak-and-suitors who are notorious fight fans even had warned their employees not to watch Herr Schmeling, the nazi, fight under pain of having their salaries amputated.

The big spenders were not there, admitted a prominent member of the Jacobs entourage. "Mike didn't know the faces at the ringside. Yorkville (New York's German section) was there in force to combat the anti-nazi boycott and helped fill the place, but that didn't fool Mike. He couldn't hold the Schmeling-Louis fight here without the big spenders. Bet your bottom dollar that he won't try it."

Subsequently it was learned that Jacobs had been jawing with his Chicago associates during the day, lining things up. He wants to put Schmeling on in the windy city in February or March as a "test case," and probably will. A projected bout for Schmeling in Miami, as a result, is out.

Cash Registers Ring Loudly As Grid Fans Strike Town

(By The Associated Press)

Uptown cash registers ring in echo to campus touchdowns. The dollar and cents value of football to a college town is in direct proportion to the frequency and importance of the team's scoring.

Crowds follow a winner and desert a loser. And the bigger the crowd the bigger the profit.

That's the answer to the question: What is a winning football team worth to a community?

Pitt, Carnegie Tech and Duquesne's 1937 grid teams attracted enthusiasts who spent an estimated $3,000,000 in Pittsburgh. Credit for $2,000,000 of this went to Pitt. Yale's fine eleven was worth more than half a million dollars to New Haven merchants. Berkeley ledger sheets showed a big increase in profits resulting from California's championship club. Philadelphia authorities place the value of the Army-Navy game at $3,000,000.

HOW A FAN SPENDS MONEY

PITTSBURGH — How does a football dollar go?

Here's how David Olmstead of the Pittsburgh convention bureau estimates visiting gridiron fans spend their dollar:

Thirty cents to hotels, 21 cents to restaurants, 7.5 cents for transportation, garages, parking lots, 15 cents to department stores and other merchants, 10 cents for theater and other amusements, and 12.5 cents to miscellaneous vendors.

Hotels had the S. R. O. sign out during the big games and profited immensely through smaller contests. Restaurants did rushing businesses. Garage storage space was at a premium. Movie houses were filled. Transportation companies required extra equipment. And the snow and rain which hurt some business aided sellers of umbrellas, slickers and overshoes.

Worth $750,000

David Olmstead of the Pittsburgh convention bureau estimated the Pitt-Nebraska game, which drew 71,000, was alone worth $75,000 to steel city merchants.

There is such a thing as too many grid visitors.

"They couldn't get in our door the day of the Nebraska game. We did a 200 per cent increase in business, but we just couldn't handle the mob," explained Phil Kodinsky, Pittsburgh sandwich shop manager.

"It's always worse trying to take care of a mob, giving you the rush act."

And Sam Sacco, a barber near Pitt's stadium, moaned:

"When the big team come the fans park so thick even our regular customers can't park anywhere near here. In fact, on big game days business ain't so hot."

But Allen Jones, Sacco's shine boy, just grinned.

Crowds Looked Good

"Those crowds shore do look good to me. They may not buy shaves but they want their shines."

Frank T. Adams, a filling station man, outsmarted his competitors this way:

"Have your car greased while you see the game," his sign read. "It costs only 25 cents more than if they paid to park, and they get a grease job to boot," he explained.

New Haven merchants figured they would have made another $250,000 had not rain spoiled two games and had not the big Harvard game been played at Cambridge.

"It's a natural that fills the stadium. And those Harvards are the best spenders in the U. S. They're the 'caviar and champagne' crowd," one New Haven businessman said.

An estimated 100,000 out-of-towners saw Yale games. Each, it was figured, spent $5.

Rain costs the schools themselves the most unexpected expense. So many fans use newspapers, rain coats and rubber capes and leave so much debris that stadium-cleaning costs are high.

Strangely, a crowd of 30,000 does more damage than one of 70,000, because there is more room to roam about the stands.

The football traffic causes no great strain on police in the big cities, but provides more of a problem in the smaller towns. Authorities reported little trouble from gamblers or undesirables who attach themselves to victorious teams. Drinking fell off considerably this season at most stadiums. After one 1936 Pitt game 22 truck loads of empty bottles were hauled from the stadium.

The newspaper items about top-ranking teams carrying the date-line of the city are of great advertising value to college towns.

Tech Raiders Gallop In Snow As They Prepare For Tough Sun Bowl Tilt In El Paso

They're the Tech Snowbirds.

Tired of flitting on a slippery basketball court, the Red Raiders turned out full force yesterday and cleated up a gridiron ankle deep in nice white snow.

The workout [illegible] program of preparation for the Sun Bowl game at El Paso on New Year's with University of West Virginia was featured by a [illegible] and frolic in the snow and is something to practice designed to stop the Mountaineers.

At least they got in enough physical exercise to give them for the big feed provided by the Lubbock Lions club at Hilton Hotel last night and the [illegible] among those attending the banquet [illegible] that if the Raiders play [illegible] there's no denying them a national championship.

Coach Pete Cawthon and Smith would have been satisfied with another [illegible] workout yesterday afternoon because of the cold and [illegible] but he found the athletes [illegible] including "long [illegible] their uniforms and [illegible].

[illegible] more than two hours the [illegible] completed after the [illegible] one of the hardest workouts of the season. They seemed ready for the Sun Bowl or any other bowl. Even Mile Chapman, wearing a terrific [illegible] between two heavy layers of tape, result of a collision Monday with Pete Owens on the gymnasium floor, was raring [illegible] determined to [illegible] collegiate career with [illegible] fullbacking against the [illegible] West Virginia crew.

Backs, Linemen Switch

The workout ended with lineman playing backfield positions, backs taking duty in the line. Captain Red Ramsey swapped places with Quarterback Babe Curfman, called signals, while Lee Jones, Pete Owens and Abe Murphy took turn about carrying the ball from backfield position with Elmer Tarbox, Bobby Holmes, Gene Barrett, Charley Calhoun, Edd Smith, Chapman, Buzz Barnard and the other backs blocked and tackled from line positions.

Banquet Given For Gridders

Lubbock Lions entertained royally in honor of the Texas Tech football department last night at a banquet in the hilton hotel ballroom, but the show was almost stolen by Coach Pete Cawthon and his introduction of gridders coming up for special awards.

H. C. Pender of the Tech faculty, took over the toastmaster reins from President Bill Evans of the Lions club, and introduced Head Coach Pete Cawthon who handed out the awards.

From the Tech athletic department went silver footballs to six varsity men, and from the Lions club went a special award to a freshman football star, Johnny Simms, backfield ace from Mineral Wells.

In keeping with annual custom, Cawthon recognized the "best blockers," the best fumble recoverer and other outstanding individuals. To Captain Red Ramsey, highly praised by his coaches, went the trophy for blocking the most punts during the season. Cawthon pointed out that Tech won two games as a direct result of blocking enemy punts. Ramsey batted down a total of five in the eleven games.

Ramsey won another trophy, for recovering the most fumbles. He was tied by Elmer Tarbox, sensational backfield performer, but in a toss for the trophy Ramsey won. Tarbox was rewarded for intercepting the most enemy passes during the season.

For doing the best blocking in the backfield and succeeding Charley Duval of 1936 for this honor, Ed Smith, senior quarterback from Del Rio, was rewarded. For best blocking in the line, Cawthon rewarded the two senior guards, Pete Owens of Brownfield and Lewis Jones of Cleburne. The guards were tied in a vote of squad members for the honor, and duplicate awards were given.

About 200 attended the Lions club banquet, largest of the season for the Red Raiders. Entertainment was provided from the stage by the Wright brothers, colored vocal quartet.

TELL CITY, Ind., Dec. 15 (P)—Gus O. Berlin of the Tell City Grays had put his spiked baseball shoes away for the winter but he dug them out of a trunk today to wear over sleet-coated streets.

The meat of the Byrd South Polar expedition had to be thawed out for two days before it could be cooked. So solidly was it frozen that it would splinter if dropped.

Pitt Panthers Poor Second To Wallopers

(NOTE: This is the third of a series analyzing the Associated Press annual sports poll. It covers replies to the query on the year's out-standing teams.)

BY ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 15—Recognition as the year's outstanding team, on land or water, goes to the world champion New York Yankees by an overwhelming vote of the nation's leading sports experts.

The rulers of professional baseball top the list, covering all sports, for the second successive year and the third time in the seven-year history of the annual Associated Press poll.

Double Nearest Rival

The Yankees were collectively put at the head of the 1937 class by 42 of 50 newspaper experts who signified their three preferences for team honors. On points, tabulated 3-2-1, Gehrig, DiMaggio & company more than doubled the score of their nearest rival, Pittsburgh's football team which rated tops in the collegiate world. The margin was 138 to 62 with only two experts putting the Panthers in the No. 1 spot.

Although America's recapture of the Davis cup in tennis was pretty much a one-man show, featuring Don Budge, the year's No. 1 individual athlete, the United States team collected enough support to beat out Washington's all-conquering varsity crew for third place in the poll, 31 points to 22.

Huskies Rate Fourth

The Husky oarsmen from Seattle rated fourth for the second straight year.

A total of 21 teams or crews in nine separate sports gained mention, including the collegiate football all-stars, who beat the Green Bay Packers at Chicago, and the Scandinavian sailors who did a masterful job aboard Ranger in Harold S. Vanderbilt's successful defense of the America's cup.

SETS NEW RECORD

AUGUSTA, Ga., Dec. 15 (P)—A new feminine record for the Forest Hills golf course is held by Mildred Babe Didrikson.

The Beaumont, Tex., professional toured the 6,500-yard layout yesterday in 74, four under women's par and only three over men's par, in an exhibition with Helen Dettweiler of Washington.

Why Lain Plays At Rice

By Collier Parris

Nice party the Lions tossed for Cawthon's Cavaliers last night, highlight so far in the Mashed Potato League season. . . . Prexy Knapp's warmup speech, one of his best, provided the setting for an evening of informalities thoroughly enjoyed by one and all . . . Cawthon's introduction of players for the annual special awards was typically Cawthonesque . . . meaning good. . . .

Of Captain Red Ramsey, twice decorated last night, Cawthon said: "The best end we've ever coached. . . there'll be none like him for ten years, anyway." . . . Ramsey drew trophies for blocking the most punts—five—and for recovering the most fumbles. . . . Wouldn't dispute that, but we'd wager Sophomore Dixie White, guard, was a close runner-up in the punt-blocking dept. . . .

Folks hereabouts think a heckuvalot of Berl Huffman's 1937 fresh gridders, to repeat for the 407th time, and it was swell of the Lions club to pick a representative last night for a special award . . . Little Johnny Sims, who is not so little, at that, was selected, not altogether because he might be the best freshman football prospect in school, but because he "made good" in a big way after coming to Tech "uninvited and unsolicited," as Lion Tecnie Evans explained . . . The Mineral Wells boy is pretty sure to return after that presentation . . . Wish about 49 other [illegible] could be so honored . . . You'll hear plenty of Sims. . . .

NOW IT CAN BE TOLD, with things established like they are . . . There's the little matter of ethics even in the college drive for top-notch football talent . . . and when it comes to respecting the "ethics of the game," our beret is off to Coach Cawthon. . . . Several persons already know it, but by way of pointing out that Tech doesn't always have to take the "left-overs" of the high school football crop, while the big league teams, so-called, get the cream, let us explain to the others:

But for the matter of "ethics," the highly publisized Ernie Lain of Rice institute fullback fame, probably would be, on Texas Tech's varsity pitching staff next fall. . . . Ernie was about two weeks late reporting to the Rice training camp last September . . . . Reason: He was trying to talk Cawthon into letting him play with Texas Tech—he was here in Lubbock. . . . after serving his freshman year at Rice. . . Came here, at the suggestion of one of Tech's greatest rooters, from Mexia, along with All-State E. J. McKnight (who'll be trying out for Red Ramsey's place next fall) . . . Cawthon wanted him, oh, so badly. . . . but knew Lain was "under contract" at Rice, and almost had to get tough with the lad before he'd go back to Houston . . . . We could cite numerous cases, originating in the camps of other colleges, that wouldn't exactly parallel the Lain-to-Rice-to-Tech-to-Rice situation . . . . with Tech getting the short end in each case. . . .

WHO EVER HEARD of the Washington Redskins—they're a team in the National Professional Football league—before this season? . . . or before one Samuel Baugh hit the national capital? . . . Well, we can always say "we knew him when"—when Jim Neill out-Baughed Baugh at his own game. . . .

Neill, incidentally, is back on the South Plains after a freshman year with the New York Giants of the same league. . . . He's visiting family and friends in Brownfield now . . . . Says he likes pro ball and will go back for another spin at it. . . . Given the same opportunities Baugh had this fall, Neill probably could have kept the Baugh pace. . . . .

El Paso folks seem really anxious to make the Sun Bowl trip a gala occasion for Texas Tech students and Lubbock fans. . . . Letters from prominent persons in the Border city come in every day to Dr. Knapp's, Coach Cawthon's and Bo Williams' offices . . . . The El Paso Chamber of Commerce, Mayor Marvin A. Harlan, Carl Smith, Tech '32, president of the El Paso Tech club, and old Don Burger, manager of the Hilton hotel there, headquarters for the Tech visitors, are among the latest to extend warm welcome and high hopes for a large Lubbock attendance. . . . .

AND WHADDYA THINK of

Fast Pace In Arena Slated

There'll be fast and furious action in the Auditorium ring tonight—unless Jack Hagen, Sailor Moran, Cy Mackey, Andy Tremaine and others fall down on their reputations.

Moran and Hagen clash in the main spasm tonight as the Shreveporter tries a comeback after going to sleep last week in the arms of Tetsura Higami, Japanese buck-and-wing artist.

It's safe to say that both Sailor Moran and Jack Hagen will both be awake at the conclusion of their main event match tonight barring an overzealous head bashing or heart punch. The ex-tar often lets a flying duke land in the vicinity of an opponent's heart, with almost as deadly as result as the Jap's button punch. Hagen hasn't lived up to all the paternal admonitions to treat his playmates gently, either.

From "der vaterland" has emerged Otto Ludwig to try his luck in the American squared circle, so tonight he'll square off with Andy Tremaine in the semi-windup. Both boys are pretty tough and should "push" the main eventers to outdo them.

Cyclone Mackey and Gust Johnson take the bows in the opening match.

Sixth Victim Is Located

PARIS, Dec. 15 (AP)—A cave in Fontainebleau forest Tuesday yielded the body of Mme. Janine Keller, sixth known victim of Eugene Weidmann, confessed executioner of a murder-for-profit syndicate.

Police made the discovery with information supplied by the 29-year-old German ex-convict whose arrest last week disclosed the existence of the murder ring.

The body of Mme. Keller, who disappeared from Strasbourg in August, had been buried under a thin layer of sand in "Brigands' cavern," which police said was a hiding place of highwaymen in the 16th century.

Took Dancing Lessons

Weidmann told police that money obtained from his victims was used to pay for dancing lessons.

Part of the money for the lessons, he said, came from travelers' checks stolen when he strangled Jean de Koven, 22-year-old Brooklyn, N. Y., dancer. Loot from his other murders paid the rest.

Investigating Magistrate Georges Berry ordered detectives to locate the grave of Mme. Keller whose disappearance was explained by Weidmann's statement she had been lured to her death with promise of a job as governess with a wealthy American family.

New Presidents Of Classes At Texas Tech Appointed

Appointments of new presidents of the junior and sophomore classes at Texas Technological college to replace others ruled ineligible were announced Tuesday by the student council.

They are Rufus Ryan of Dallas, junior class president, succeeding Joe Stanley of Brownwood; Tom Coker, jr. of Fort Worth, sophomore class president, succeeding Harold Gierhart of Shamrock.

A sophomore representative to the council from the engineering division will be chosen to take the place of a third member ruled ineligible, James Shortt of Shamrock.

The new class presidents formerly were vice presidents of the classes. Classes will elect vice presidents at their next meetings.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Acid Fruit and MILK SUPERSTITION

Acid fruits cause milk to curdle in the stomach is the objection often raised to taking fruits and milk at the same time. As a matter of fact the first process of digestion is curdling and the gastric juice in the stomach is largely responsible for this change. The curd which results from a mixture of fruit acids and milk is much finer and therefore easier to digest than the milk curd formed with acid found normally in the stomach. The milk and fruit combination is therefore to be desired rather than avoided. Present-day methods of infant feeding disprove the fruit-milk fallacy. One method widely used is that of adding acids directly to the milk before giving it to babies.

RESUSCITATION of the Ferguson Forum gives rise to the suggestion that Farmer Jim will have a "proxy candidate" in the gubernatorial field again next summer.

The Plainsman didn't think there was much chance of that happening until he read the first copy of the new Forum and found an editorial praising the Townsend plan. Then he immediately started believing that Jim is going to be in the campaign up to his neck!

No dummy is Jim Ferguson. He knows the Townsend plan is nothing but a dream; that it is impossible and impracticable.

But he also knows a lot of people—especially old people to whom a suggestion of $200 per month looks like manna from Heaven—have been deluded by it and that speaking kindly of the idea will attract a lot of votes.

Since the Forum is adopting a sympathetic attitude toward the Townsend plan it certainly looks like Jim is going to run somebody in 1938.

★ ★ ★

A WISE newspaper correspondent at Austin reports that Mr. Ferguson believes Governor Allred will run for a third term and if so, Farmer Jim wants to throw Mrs. Ferguson into the campaign. But Mrs. Ferguson, says our Austin informant, is sick of politics and thus far refuses to even consider running.

Jim, we are told, is trying to remedy that situation by sending, one by one, a lot of old friends around to Mrs. Ferguson to try to talk her into being a candidate in his stead.

Mr. Ferguson thought for awhile about running his daughter, Ouida, if Mrs. Ferguson declines to make the race. But after thinking about it he changed his mind because Ouida, who has a lot of her own, would probably insist upon being governor herself if elected.

★ ★ ★

Karl Crowley, whose legal residence is Ft. Worth but who, since the New Deal's ascendency, has been sojourning in Washington as solicitor-general for the Postoffice department, says he's going to run if Governor Allred doesn't try a third term.

To be brutal, Mr. Crowley couldn't get to first base.

Very few people in Texas know him—or his name—and a lot of people would consider him merely a pawn in a Roosevelt-Farley scheme to take over Texas through their appointee, Mr. Crowley.

Somebody ought to slip up to Mr. Crowley and whisper in his ear the bad news that he hasn't a Chinaman's chance.

JOSEPH Kennedy—better known in Wall Street circles as "Hardboiled Joe," because he made the bulls and bears behave when he was boss of the Securities and Exchange commission—is slated to be the next U. S. ambassador to England.

He ought to be a good one.

While he probably will buck like a half-broke cow pony on a frosty morning at wearing knee breeches at the Court of St. James, the red-haired Irisher will insist upon common-sense diplomacy. And that is something not only this country, but the world at large, needs.

★ ★ ★

Critics of Mr. Kennedy say he hasn't enough polish to be our ambassador to the most important of the world capitals, but that criticism sounds like praise to The Plainsman.

If Mr. Kennedy makes the British hew to the line, dot all the "i's" and cross all the "t's" so there can be no mistakes in their dealings with us, he will be worth plenty to his country.

We need somebody in London—and all the other world capitals—who'll use horse sense in their dealings and who'll refuse to be flimflammed.

From all indications, Mr. Kennedy fits the bill.

LUBBOCK folks seem to be progressing slowly on their residential Christmas decorations.

Maybe it's a little early to get worried, but The Plainsman hopes we'll have a lot of well-lit houses to scatter the Yule spirit around and about parts of the city outlying the brilliantly lighted retail section.

Nothing makes a city more Christmasy.

★ ★ ★

There's always a silver lining to every cloud—if we'll just recognize it.

The Plainsman read a story about William Howard Taft the other day that illustrates the point.

When the present Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth was a harem-scarem young girl—she's now a harem-scarem middle-aged woman—Mr. Taft was commissioned by her father, the then President Theodore Roosevelt, to chaperone her on a trip to Hawaii.

During the sea voyage someone rushed up to Mr. Taft with the cry:

"Oh, Mr. Taft! The worst thing imaginable has happened. Alice Roosevelt has dived into the ship's swimming pool with all her clothes on."

Mr. Taft smiled his famous smile and chuckled his never-to-be-forgotten chuckle.

"That," he observed serenely, "is not the worst thing imaginable. I'm glad to hear she dived in with her clothes ON."

THOSE who follow the Tech football team to El Paso for the New Year's day Sun Bowl game will see a lot more besides a football game.

They'll see the Sun Bowl parade which, according to all reports, will be well worth viewing.

Dorrance Roderick, formerly of Lubbock and now publisher of the El Paso Times, writes that this year's parade will rival, if not surpass, the parade at the Tournament of Roses in Pasadena which precedes every Rose Bowl tilt.

Mr. Roderick says he's never seen a Rose Bowl parade but that friends who have tell him that Sun Bowl parades of the past have been fully as beautiful and colorful as those similar events in Pasadena.

This year's Sun Bowl parade will be bigger, better and longer than ever before.

ATTRACTIVE, agreeable Mrs. M. H. Benson, who is heading up the Junior Welfare league's canvass of underprivileged boys and girls to be visited on Christmas by the Goodfellows, is pleading for more public co-operation.

"Please, please ask your readers to fill out the blanks in the Avalanche and Journal and send them in, so we won't miss a single needy boy and girl," she said. "We have more than 500 to date, but we know there must be between 2,000 and 2,500 in the city limits. If the public doesn't lend a hand, we're going to miss just a lot of boys and girls who, as a result, will have no Christmas or at the best, a mighty slim one."

Mrs. Benson also asks that those sending in the blanks note the ages—or approximate ages—of children listed. She wants the name of every needy boy and girl from six months of age through 14 years—regardless of color, creed or race.

A blank to be filled out may be found elsewhere in today's Journal.

Out Of The Night

PRISCILLA PIERCE — heroine, young woman attorney.
AMY KERR—Cilly's roommate and murderer's victim.
JIM KERRIGAN—Cilly's fiance.
HARRY HUTCHINS — Amy's strange visitor.
SERGEANT DOLAN—officer assigned to solve the murder of Amy Kerr.

* * *

Yesterday: Cilly is saved at the last possible second when Sergeant Dolan enters Mrs. Elliot's apartment. But her attacker escapes. She is returned to her apartment to await police protection for the night. And then three sharp rings at the door—Jim's ring!

CHAPTER XXIX

"Cilly! Oh my darling. I never knew what happened . . . I never knew . . . I didn't see a newspaper until half an hour ago . . ."

Jim's arms were around her, a bulwark against fear and uncertainty and death itself and Cilly was sobbing hysterically on his shoulders. Sobbing with wild abandon because she was so utterly, supremely relieved. No matter what might occur now, Jim was here, at last.

"There's so much to explain, dear," he went on, "so much that I couldn't tell you before."

"And so much that I wanted to tell you," Cilly replied.

Her sobs stopped abruptly. Briefly she recounted the developments of the last few days, the search for Jim.

"My God, Cilly," he cried desperately, "it terrifies me to think what the law can do to an innocent man . . . Where would I be now if the Perrys had not met me? In jail like my poor father, only I'd be a murderer. Listen to me, Cilly. I've got to tell you the whole story.

"My father was an officer in the bank—you probably heard that much straight. You couldn't have heard that he was the squarest, finest man that ever lived. He never did a crooked thing, he never thought a crooked scheme. Never. He lost a great deal of money. It bothered him more than he let on to Amy or me. Then out of a clear sky these bonds were stolen — negotiable bonds, which were as good as cash anywhere. My father was accused. I can't tell you what a shock it was. All my life I'd assumed blindly that you can look a man in the eye and tell whether he's honest. I laughed when they came to arrest Dad. The judge would throw the case out of court.

"But it wasn't that way at all. Those lawyers, the state's lawyers, built up the most intricate, the most infallible case! Step by step, they proved my father guilty . . . step by step, yet we knew, Amy and Dad and I, that none of it was true! We were helpless, hopeless. It drove me mad at times. There were days when I wanted to choke the breath out of those lawyers for their insinuations, their tricky sarcasm . . . ."

* * *

Cilly nodded understandingly. The court record said Jim went wild.

"Well, Dad was convicted. We hadn't a shred of evidence to save him—at least nothing that would stand a chance in court. There was only one thing — one intangible fragment of Amy's imagination, our lawyer called it. Nevertheless, she stuck to it, she followed her one little clew right through — to the end, for her."

"What was that clew, Jim?"

"The day before the theft, she was visiting some friends in Ogden — that's about 30 miles from Bluefield. One of the girls was leaving for the East, and Amy went to the airport to see her off. There, in the ticket office, she heard a man order a ticket on the regular plane three days later — a ticket for Chicago. The man's voice sounded familiar to her. She remembered it as one which had answered Dad's wire at the bank. We decided it must have been a fellow named Worth — a new man at the bank—the only one Amy would not have recognized by sight. . . ."

"Where is he now?"

"That's the joker. The very night of the robbery Worth's body was found in a ravine some few miles out of Bluefields, pinned under his overturned car. He'd been burned pretty badly, but the body was identified to the satisfaction of the court. Call it woman's intuition or what you will, Amy believed that Worth had taken the bonds and skipped to Chicago. True, the court said there was no sign of the stolen bonds in the burned car. And whose body was it if not Worth's? People don't just disappear in a town like Bluefields.

"So Amy went to Chicago on a wild goose chase, our lawyer said. Imagine tracing a voice! By this time my father was serving a sentence. He was badly shaken by the trial, and I seemed to be the one who disturbed him most. He begged, he pleaded with me to leave Utah and start life somewhere else — where I wouldn't be linked with him. The police were still watching me, day and night, trying to trace the bonds through me. They've never been found."

* * *

Jim caught his breath a second, then went on.

"Naturally, I wouldn't listen to Dad at first, then it got to a point where he made such a fuss every time I visited him that the prison authorities refused me admission. Finally, our family doctor urged me to go away, for a time at least, if for no other reason than to set father's mind at rest. I did. Through a friend in Chicago I got this job in New York. I disappeared completely. Not even Amy knew where I was. I kept in touch with Dad only through Dr. Blythe. That left Amy working on her own, but she wanted it that way. It was only a will-o'-the-wisp she was following, and she felt it would be better for her if her relationship to me or to Bluefields were not known by anyone. Her only hope of ever getting this fellow Worth, if indeed he were still alive, was in his believing himself absolutely clear. Remember, Amy's suspicion never came out at the trial."

"Then you think Amy followed him here to New York?"

"I'm sure of that. When you first spoke of Amy Kerr, I wondered if it could be my Amy, but it didn't seem likely. The world is a big place . . . Then I saw her here Sunday night! Cilly, I can't tell you how happy I was . . . we'd been outcasts so long. I wanted to tell you then and there, but Amy warned me. Anyway, I slipped her that note your sergeant found and I met her upstairs on the roof as soon as I left you. There was so much I wanted to know . . ."

"Did she really find Worth?"

"She did. What's more, she gathered enough evidence to send him to prison. There was only one thing . . . she had to be able to prove he was Worth. The man had been declared legally dead, you know. However, last Saturday she saw an item in a Bluefields newspaper — she got them regularly — which finally opened her eyes. Some old hermit in the mountains for months. Amy felt sure it was his body which had been mistaken for Worth's . . ."

* * *

"I found that clipping, Jim," Cilly cried. "It was still in Amy's hand when I reached her." She explained how and why she had burned it.

"It was the final link, apparently in Amy's chain of evidence against Worth. That is—if her suspicion were true. That's why she sent me to Bluefields immediately, to check for her, while she kept her eye on Worth here in New York. She was so terribly afraid he'd begin to get suspicious . . ."

"What did you find out in Bluefields?"

"Just this. Amy knew the old hermit pretty well. Frequently she rode out through the mountains and stopped at his shack. She'd been kind to him. The day of the robbery she saw him in town. She told him of some old suits of mine which he might have if he wanted to stop for them. He did, that afternoon. It was getting late and she suggested that he sleep in the room over our garage for the night. But he was in a hurry to get home, he

A GOOD EVENING READING HABIT

Most folks, even the worst of us, may have habits or practices from which others might benefit.

This discourse relates to one followed by an average sort of fellow, neither better than worse than most of us. One of the staff of The Evening Journal has tried it out for several weeks and passes it along in his belief it is worthwhile.

The last thing the particular individual does before turning out his light for the night is to pick up the Bible, open it at random, read a while and then repose himself to slumber. He sets no particular reading stint—sometimes a verse or two, sometimes several chapters. The man to whom reference is made is not particularly religious, though a church member; his language and stories often would not do for mixed company; his pastor would not condone many of his habits.

Yet it is a practice, if one individual's experience is a test, from which anyone will benefit. That experience has demonstrated that the reading provokes consoling thoughts of the type which lead to slumber and blend pleasantly into dreams. And those who do not make a practice of opening the Bible frequently may be surprised to discover how often they read several chapters when they had expected to read not more than a few verses.

A Thought . .

Hollywood Chit-Chat

BY PAUL HARRISON
Journal Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 15—It's a striking coincidence that "Stage Door," which dealt with the lives and struggles of a lot of young actresses looking for a break, has provided a break for five of the little-known girls who appeared in it.

Of course it wasn't all coincidence; I don't want to belittle a swell job of casting. Nevertheless "Stage Door" seems to have done more for more people than any other picture made here since the screen found its voice.

Lucille Ball had been around Hollywood four years. Just around. Worked in 20 pictures, but in small parts. Everybody liked her; everybody said that Ball girl was sure to go places, and that opportunity would be along any time now. These reassurances didn't make her happy, for she was ambitious.

A fairly meaty comedy role in "That Girl From Paris" looked like her first real chance, but the picture didn't attract much attention. Then came her portrayal of the wise-cracking chorus girl in "Stage Door." Miss Ball was called into the front office and saw her contract torn up. Then they handed her a new one, with an imposing increase in salary. Her next picture on the road to stardom is "Broadway After Midnight."

* * *

Raised The Ante

Phyllis Kennedy is an ex-chorus girl who three years ago suffered a broken back. Even after regaining her health the going was tough until Ginger Rogers got her a place in the RKO Little Theater where players are trained and where Ginger's mother, Mrs. Lela Rogers, is the coach.

Miss Kennedy did well in a farce and Mrs. Rogers urged Director Gregory La Cava to test her for the comedy part of the boarding-house slavey in "Stage Door."

At that time Miss Kennedy gladly would have signed for $75 a week. Now she has a contract at $300 and a part in "Vivacious Lady."

In her first two pictures Ann Miller was just a better-than-average hoofer. In "Stage Door" she started out to be the dancing partner of Miss Rogers.

But most of the dancing was cut out of the picture and it then was realized that the Miller kid could act. So they let her do that.

Next came a straight part in "Having Wonderful Time." And now she has been named as feminine lead in "Radio City Revels." Nice going.

* * *

Stock Went Up

Remember Eve Arden, the gal with the cat? That was a small role in "Stage Door," but she made it so outstanding that a much bigger one was waiting for her in "Having Wonderful Time." She had had varied experience in stock companies, but not much in Hollywood.

"Stage Door" also opened the way from oblivion to triumph for Andrea Leeds. She had refused an assignment as the gold-digger in "Woman Chases Man." Didn't think it suited her. Samuel Goldwyn suspended her forthwith and she was languishing in idleness when RKO asked her to come over and be a tragic idle actress in their picture.

Miss Leeds' portrayal set the critics to burbling. Also it melted the resolute and autocratic Mr. Goldwyn, who sent word that Andrea had better hurry right back because he was saving the feminine lead for her in the super-hyper-stupendous "Goldwyn Follies."

And there you have five success stories from a single picture. But it doesn't complete the coincidence because we've still got Ginger Rogers and Katharine Hepburn.

There were a lot of people who doubted that Miss Rogers could act. Oh, well enough, of course, if bolstered by her dancing and the presence of Fred Astaire. But scarcely anybody dreamed that she could act like that! She came out of "Stage Door" an emancipated personality.

It is my own belief that Miss Hepburn profited more than anybody else from the picture. It is no secret that her popularity had slumped dangerously. "Stage Door" must have reassured a great many movie-goers that Miss Hepburn is a human being and a grand actress. I, for one, am willing to forget even "Mary of Scotland."

Fascism In Brazil Topic Of Much Discussion In U. S. State Department, Dutcher Reports

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
Journal Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15—Dapper Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles has just essayed the role of a fellow who publicly defends his girl friend against . . . criticism. In this case the gal happens to be Brazil. But Welles really is whistling in the dark.

In rebuking a large section of the American press for accusing promptly that the new system of government established by Brazil's President Getulio Vargas was essentially fascist, Welles was right at least to the extent that he denied by implication reports that the new Vargas regime was intimately or even loosely associated with or promoted by the Italian fascist or German nazi governments.

Rodney Dutcher.

The motive was to say something sweet and pretty which would please Miss Brazil, who admittedly has Hitler and Mussolini among her suitors. Locally, however, the effect was to please the fascist-minded group in the State department and to distress those who dislike anything which appears to be an official encouragement of fascism.

* * *

U. S. Wooing Brazil's Favor

The State department, realizing that it has competition for Brazilian affections, feels that it must overlook certain imperfections—as Roosevelt did in his pious tributes to the Latin-American democratic tradition while visiting the land of Latin-American dictatorships.

Totalitarian principles are inherent in the new Brazilian set-up. The new constitution carries provisions vividly reminiscent of Mussolini and Hitler, especially as they apply to supervision over industry. "Freedom of the press in Brazil means that a newspaper can print whatever it likes just as long as President Vargas and his crowd do not consider its criticisms dangerous to the regime."

Mr. Vargas, however, has been actuated by a fondness for his job and a desire to hang onto it indefinitely, rather than by influences of fascist and nazi organizations in his own country. Confidential State department advices indicate that he declared a crusade against communists, whom he accused of imperiling the Brazilian form of government, in much the same manner that American politicians often do the same thing.

In short, it appears that Vargas is a demagog in his own right rather than a Hitler or Mussolini pal.

* * *

Brazil Fears Border Attacks

Traditionally, relations of the United States with Brazil have been closer than with any South American republic. These two nations and Canada are the only non-Spanish speaking countries in the western hemisphere (Brazilians speak Portuguese).

Brazil, whose vast and loosely controlled territory touches every South American country except Chile, always has feared attack by some combination of Spanish-speaking countries which might result in detachment of some of her outlying states. Hence has arisen what amounts in effect to a Brazilian-American alliance.

Brazil is still anxious to maintain that alliance and so is the United States. The Vargas government is much more pro-Washington than pro-Berlin or pro-Rome. Just the same, Vargas can hardly help but observe the success of Mussolini and Hitler in retaining their places.

* * *

Many Europeans In Brazil

In Brazil there are 1,500,000 citizens and 800,000 German citizens, all under pressure from homeland governments desiring to establish new spheres of influence. And Vargas, in his foreign relations, is in a position to play both ends against the middle.

The Vargas government previously has played with and used the fascist Integralista party, which was in close league—money, policy and leadership—with Germany and Italy.

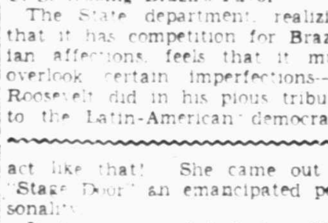

But the State department was delighted to note that Vargas threw the Integralistas overboard after his last campaign and has now made them take off their green shirts by abolishing all political parties. The Integralistas are very sore.

Christmas Greetings From Texas Auction & Commission Co.

The old year is rapidly drawing to a close and we are facing the New Year with bright prospects. We want to take this opportunity of thanking you personally for your business in the past and assure you that we want to do everything in our power to keep you with us during the coming year.

We will have our regular sale the 17th and 21st, but we know that everyone will be busy Friday, the 24th, so we have planned not to have a sale on that date, but every Tuesday and Friday thereafter.

During the holidays the need for good cattle will be greater than ever so we need your help in supplying this demand.

Are quoting you the prices we had at our auction Tuesday, 14th. Good bald face cows, $5 to $5.50; good Jersey cows, $3.50 to $4.50; good bald face calves, $6.00 to $7.00; cutter cows, $2.50 to $3.50; canner cows, $1.50 to $2.00; Jersey yearlings, $3.50 to $4.00; springer and milk cows in demand selling $40.00 to $60.00; good bald face bulls, $4.50 to $5.50; light Jersey bulls, $4.00 to $4.50; mixed butcher cattle, ... from $4.00 to $5.00. Market all over the country looks stronger for Holidays.

Our New Year Resolution: We shall be prepared and equipped to serve you better in 1938 than we have in 1937. Remember we are bonded for your protection. The little business is just as important to us as big business, but we can take care of either.

Their appearance does not mean anything so far as the justice's general condition is concerned which is good. They will merely delay his return to the bench."

Court Rules On Property Titles

(By The Associated Press)

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 15 — state supreme court gave Oklahoma City clear title today to a sector of a $4,000,000 downtown strip on which it built its municipal auditorium, but handed to heirs of '89ers a block on which the county erected a skyscraper courthouse.

The opinion modified an order of the tribunal in February of 1935 which held for the Rock Island and Frisco Railway and not for the men who staked their claims on the downtown tract when the land was opened to settlement.

Rulings In Three Suits

In three suits the court ruled:

1. Oklahoma City was entitled to undisputed possession of the auditorium property claimed by heirs of the late Dr. Robert W. Higgins.

2. George W. Noble, an '89er, had clear title to the north forty feet of a 24-foot lot between Robinson and Harvey avenues on which no buildings were erected in Oklahoma City's costly new civic center.

3. Heirs of the late O. E. Dobbins had clear title to the north 40 feet of lots in a block between Hudson and Walker avenues, a block on which the courthouse is located.

Given Clear Title

The 1935 decision which gave Oklahoma City clear title to the property followed payment by Oklahoma City of $4,000,000 to the Rock Island and Frisco railways, which claimed title to the property.

The heirs appealed to the United States Supreme court and the case was remanded in March of 1936. Last February the state supreme court announced an opinion which held uniformly for the heirs of the '89ers.

The heirs contended the property was theirs, and not the railroads' because of a reversion clause in the deeds which provided that should the railroads ever abandon the rights-of-way, the property should revert to the original owners.

Counsel for Oklahoma City filed a petition for rehearing and today's opinion modified the previous opinion.

Profits 'Turned Back' By Sloan

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Dec. 15 — One of America's wealthiest industrialists, Alfred P. Sloan, jr., chairman of General Motors corporation, has "turned back" $10,000,000 in personal profits to advance "the interests of the community at large" and to promote a wider knowledge of "basic economic truths."

Almost unprecedented in its specifically stated action of "turning back" privately-earned wealth to what he described as the general welfare of the masses, Sloan's gift will be distributed through the Alfred P. Sloan foundation.

The noted capitalist emphasized that the donation was "entirely a personal matter" having "nothing whatsoever to do with General Motors corporation or my official relationship with same."

Sloan said the fund would be used to achieve "more things for more people, everywhere."

Jesse Jones Invited To Speak At Dinner

DALLAS, Dec. 15 (AP)—Myron G. Blalock of Marshall, state Democratic chairman, said here today Jesse Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, had been invited to be chief speaker at the Jackson day dinner here January 8.

Blalock said the dinner would culminate a drive in Texas to raise $50,000 toward paying off the national Democratic party deficit.

He said invitations would be given every Democrat who had donated $25 or more.

Governor James V. Allred and other state officials are expected to attend the dinner, which will be the only one in the state.

Suit Challenging Regulation Of Holding Companies In Tribunal

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15 (AP) — A suit challenging the Roosevelt administration's attempt to regulate, split up, or abolish holding companies controlling billions of dollars of interstate gas and electric properties reached the Supreme court today.

It came in the form of an appeal by the Electric Bond and Share company, which called the 1935 utility holding company act unconstitutional.

The department of justice has agreed validity of the statute should be tested by this litigation. There were strong indications the government would seek a prompt decision.

City Councilman J. P. Elder Of Fort Worth Resigns Post

FORT WORTH, Dec. 15 (AP) — City Councilman J. P. Elder today submitted his resignation to Mayor W. J. Hammond.

The resignation left Fort Worth with a seven-member council, T. J. Harrel having resigned Sept. 1, and no successor having been appointed due to deadlock existing between factions on the body.

Elder's resignation left the progressive league with a 4 to 3 edge. Five votes, however, are needed to select a new member.

BROOKFIELD, Mo., Dec. 15 (AP)—Hazel Banning, a telephone operator here, fainted at the switchboard last night when she plugged in a number and heard a neighbor announce the death of her father, Gene Banning, 74-year-old retired farmer. He had not been ill.

Hearings Slated On ACCA Probe

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15 — Chairman Smith (D-SC) announced today the senate agriculture committee would hold hearings in January on the question of continuing an investigation of the American Cotton Cooperative association.

Smith has asked the committee to vote an additional $25,000 to extend the survey into charges that cotton growers lost heavily in cotton handled for them by the ACCA in connection with government loans and pools.

Westbrook Criticized

Senator Ellender (D-La) has opposed voting additional funds until officials of the cooperative have been heard. Ellender also criticized employment of Colonel Lawrence Westbrook, former WPA official, as chief investigator. He said Westbrook previously was associated with the cooperative.

Smith, in a statement, said the "full committee" would "look into any instances where coercion or political influence may have been improperly used to influence the investigation, and will take appropriate action in any such situation warranted by the circumstances."

Because Of Expert Knowledge

Westbrook, Smith said, was "retained by the committee because of his expert knowledge of the technicalities of cotton and because of his standing and reputation both in his professional capacity and as a former high official of the federal government.

"He did not solicit appointment. . .

"Since his resignation six years ago as one of the executive officials of the American Cotton Cooperative association, he has occupied almost continuously positions of great responsibility and importance in state and federal service. The committee has every reason to feel that he will carry out the task assigned him with impartiality and efficiency."

Farm Tempo Set By Export Group

(By The Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Dec. 15—Theodore W. Schultz, head of the department of economics and sociology at Iowa State college, said today that the "tempo of American agriculture is set by the export group" of farm products.

Schultz, in an address prepared for delivery at the 19th annual meeting of the American Farm Bureau federation, said only three alternatives were open to agriculture. They were:

Shrinking the productive plant to fit domestic needs; shifting from the export group such as cotton and wheat, to other fields, such as dairying, selling products abroad.

Shrinking Production Doubtful

Asserting that shrinking production was "an absolute necessity" a few years ago, he said its desirability, beyond the present need for conservation of resources, was "extremely doubtful," and added:

"It is highly improbable that domestic agriculture can be shrunk and kept at a domestic basis."

Schultz said the "peculiar character of our resources" demands that "we continue to sell a substantial amount of farm products abroad."

Grave Anxieties Held By Pope

(By The Associated Press)

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 15—Pope Pius Monday expressed his "grave anxieties" because of the wars in China and Spain at a secret consistory in which he created five new cardinals.

The pontiff read from the papal throne an allocution in which he asked God's assistance in his efforts to evert the perils of war.

"Looking toward the Far East" an official abstract of the address said, "the Pope sees what great damages have been sustained there by the heralds of the gospel and by flourishing Christian communities; and what even greater damages may be feared for the future because of the upheavals which are the natural concommitants of armed conflicts."

Points To Germany, Russia

"And then looking toward Europe," the abstract quoted the aged Pius, "we see with no less sadness the impious and atrocious things which are being perpetuated in Russia and which are being prepared to the danger of the Christian life in Germany.

"The people of Christ in Spain, who are most dear to us, are still agitated by sad and harrowing events, although one begins to see a hope of better times."

The pope referred briefly to his "long illness" and added he was grateful that he "never lacked heavenly aid."

Carried On Portable Throne

The pope, sitting erect despite his infirmities, was carried to the consistory hall on a portable throne with an escort of his guardsmen in their medieval uniforms.

As soon as he was aided to the throne, where 31 scarlet clad cardinals awaited him with the five to be made princes of the church, all attendants left. The doors were closed and barred.

The pope was said to feel the five cardinals he created today might be the last he would live to raise to the purple.

Christmas Notes
by Carolyn the Co-ed

Mercy! Mercy! ... we were all-a-dither this morning when we realized how Christmas was slipping upon us so we started our snooping in earnest . . . our first find was a sumptuous evening dress which had yards and yards of filmy white net and chains of gold sequins. It would make a rapturous gift for daughter and her formal moments ---------- $64.85

Then we discovered a perfectly ravishing pink satin gown except for Columbus we rank first for discovering astonishing finds. There was no peer for the loveliness found in this alluring lace trimmed garment. Original designer detailed shoulder straps compliment its beauty. My oh my, I wonder who the lucky girl will be . . . its price is ---------- $10.95

Coming into the piece goods department we found hoards of beautiful gold antique jewelry. A particularly attractive bracelet that captured our interest was ornamented with the gold leaves. It reflected all of the rich charm found in the romantic Victorian period. This group of jewelry was all priced $1.

Over on the adjoining table stunning comb and brush sets were displayed in appealing satin lined chests. This reminded us that our outspoken friend had candidly admitted that he was expecting such a set for Christmas, so to insure her happiness we shall buy her a ... set with chromium ... ith ---------- $2.98

Snooping through the men's department we found some gadgets called Doop Kit. Fancy flexible frame and zipped down the middle. They're perfect for cosmetics or shaving cream while traveling. They come in leather with either oiled or silk linings—a clever gift for those who go-places-and-do-things ---- $2.95

In the luggage department we examined one of those handsome new Val-A-Pacs sometimes called the "Traveling Valet." And it's certainly an ideal gift for the modern Marco Polo who likes his conveniences. In it he can put three suits on the special hangers and then hang the bag inside his car. . . . Or he can fold it and make it look like a gladstone ------ $22.50

We couldn't leave the department without noticing a genuine wicker picnic bag. Now everyone goes on a picnic many times a year. And these sets come fitted with all equipment necessary for the convenience of those festive occasions. Plenty of room is left for other things too. This would make an ideal gift for a family ---------- $12.50
