CROPS BLIGHTED BY HAIL STORM

Merchant, Kidnaped Thursday, Found at San Antonio

SAYS MEN HELD HIM FOR MONEY; SEMI-CONSCIOUS Threatened with His Life; Wouldn't Sign Check

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 14. (UP)—H. D. Snell, 42-year-old merchant of Cordell, Okla., kidnaped there yesterday, was found here today. He told police that he was kidnaped by two men and taken in a car to Wichita Falls where he refused to sign a $50,000 check. He was blindfolded and gagged in the rear seat of the car and the kidnapers were in the front seat. He managed to open a door and roll to the highway near here. He was found by police in a semi-conscious condition. Snell said he had received and ignored two demands for $10,000 and was threatened with death by the kidnapers if he failed to sign the check.

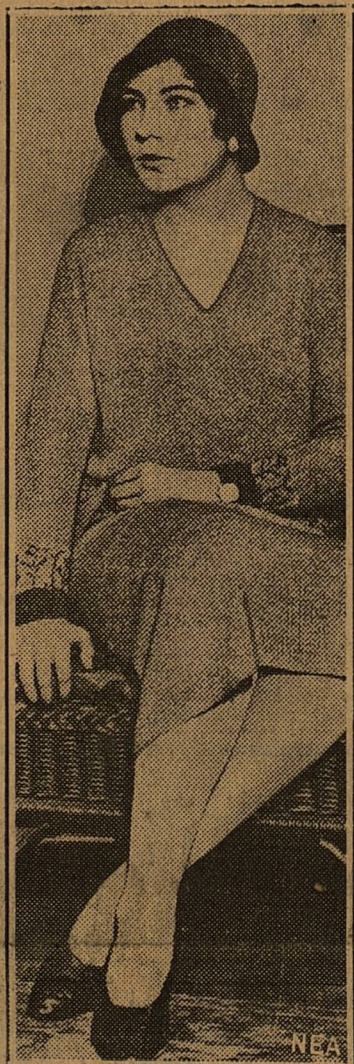

PRISON BOARD TODAY'S TARGET

AUSTIN, Sept. 14. (UP)—House members in the legislature today reprimanded the state prison board for failing to locate a $40,000 dormitory where legislators directed. The board located the building at the Central state prison farm after the legislators had located it at the Darrington or Retriever farms. A condemnatory resolution directed the state board of control to make no construction contract and requested the state treasurer to expend no funds.

Texas Woman, 63, Still Rides Range On Bay City Ranch

BAY CITY, (UP)—Mrs. May Cleveland is 63, a little wisp of a woman, but even now she can twist a lariat, throw a half-breed Brahman or slap Texas cattle over her grandpa's head. "A good cow and a horse, that's all I know," she said. "And I'd rather lead a cow, really, than go out on the range to help in the branding. But from appearances she does not have to worry about that for several years at least. When branding season comes she dons a ten-gallon hat, bit-rowled spurs, high boots and riding pants and goes out on the range to help in the branding. She is one of the last of the old Texas cowboys of the last century, the so-called cattle queen of Cotulla who drove herds of South Texas cattle over prairie trails to northern markets. Mrs. Cleveland comes of hardy stock. Her father was Norman Savage, early day cattleman. Her own grandfather, back in the late 40s, killed an Indian with a rifle down near the old town of Matagorda. She was born and reared in Matagorda county where her grandparents settled during the war with Mexico in 1847. She has known the range all her life. And a short conversation with her is convincing that she inherited a large quantity of her grandmother's qualities. "A good cow pony and a six-shooter, they're the best friend the cattleman ever had," she said. "Then she will relate the story of her 'best cow pony,' how it would keep the mother cow away while Mrs. Cleveland applied the branding iron to the calf. The pony was so adept, she recalled, that only on rarest occasions did the cow ever succeed in putting the woman vaquero to flight. "The calves of the Brahma cross-bred are difficult to handle, because of their strength, especially for a woman. But Mrs. Cleveland 'knows the tricks of the trade.' "She has been in the saddle since childhood, ridden virtually every kind of horse known to the South Texas range and in all her life has never been thrown but once, she said. "Cattle thieves still infest the ranch. Mrs. Cleveland resorts to the old method of handling cattle thieves, the six-shooter, an important bit of the code of the old West. "Somebody has been stealing our calves," she said. "My son's going down to the pasture tonight to lay out and try to catch 'em at it." Then turning to the son, she advised him in that code of the old West: "Take the six-shooter, and if you can just send into town for the undertaker."

Creates Mystery

Virginia E. Gates, (above), daughter of Thomas S. Gates, president of the University of Pennsylvania, became the center of an unusual mystery when her disappearance from a Wyoming ranch was reported. Her family, admitting they did not know her whereabouts, insisted she was enroute to Philadelphia by motor car.

BULLETIN

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 14. (UP)—District Judge W. W. McCrory issued a temporary order restraining state democratic leaders from certifying James V. Allred to the secretary of state as the party's nominee for governor. The order was granted in a suit brought by District Attorney Walter Tynan and Joe Burkett, San Antonio attorney, alleging excessive campaign expenditures.

The order restrains the secretary of state, W. W. Heath, from placing Allred's name on the official ballot for the general election of Nov. 6. No special setting of the case was asked.

The petition sets out places, dates and alleged amounts of contributions to Allred's campaigns, together with names of contributors allegedly involved.

Former Abilenian Among Survivors Morro Castle Fire

ABILENE.—Among the survivors of the Morro Castle disaster, a former Abilenian, Miss Mary Gilmore, is recuperating from shock at the home of an aunt in Brooklyn, New York. In a message to friends here, she said she escaped the ship fire unharmed. Miss Gilmore, a registered nurse, graduated with the 1932 class at the West Texas Baptist sanitarium school of nursing. Her home then was in Ranger, but she has since moved to Brooklyn and is employed in the office of a New York physician.

'Suspicious' Men Town Dignitaries

BORGER, (UP)—In response to a telephone call, that two suspicious-looking men were watching the store waiting for a chance to break in, Borger police hurried down to a grocery to confront two of Borger's most prominent citizens. Not knowing that a meeting scheduled to be held at the store had been postponed, J. C. Knowles, high school coach, and A. M. Minton, insurance man, were sitting in a car waiting for the session to start. After explanations, the excited woman shopkeeper went back to wait on customers. Knowles and Minton drove away, and the police waited the incident down as all in the day's work.

HYDE PARK, Sept. 14. (UP)—Whether President Roosevelt takes a direct hand in the Rhode Island strike depends on a conference tomorrow at Newport with Secretary of War Dorn and Major General Connor, it was announced today. Above: Stretched before the wind, a sail is a thing of beauty, strong and useful; but freed from its clews and tackle it is transformed in an instant into an awkward, writhing menace. This unusual view along the deck of the Rainbow shows the huge mainsail half suspended in air, half on deck. In this situation quick work is required to make it fast, lest a sudden gust of wind entangle it with important halyards and exact a penalty of minutes lost to the rival racing yacht.

HAMPE EXPLAINS NEW DUCK LAW

A copy of proposed migratory game bird seasons has been received by Frank Hampe, game warden for this district. It had been understood new federal regulations would permit of 30 shooting days, spread over a period of not to exceed 13 weeks, but days on which shooting would be allowed had not been made clear.

Subject to the president's signature, Texas hunters may begin shooting ducks, brant and geese Oct. 26, priming their guns only on Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays. The season closes Dec. 30.

Texas hunting of migratory fowl extends over a 10-week period. In New Mexico there will be 14 weeks, hunting allowed on Saturdays and Sundays from Oct. 13 to Jan. 13. Dove hunters are finding birds plentiful, and the game warden says ducks will dot the tanks and lakes. North of the highway in north of Stanton are particularly spots mentioned.

Austin Boy, 8, Wizard at Calculus and Does Freshman Math with Careless Ease

AUSTIN, (UP)—Martin Grossman, 8-year-old boy, is going to school only half the time, but already works intricate mathematical problems and will enter the tenth grade shortly after he celebrates his ninth birthday, October 5. He is the son of Dr. H. J. Ettlinger, professor of mathematics at the University of Texas.

Dr. Ettlinger little dreamed when he announced to his mathematics class in 1925 that he was father of a new-born son, that the youngster would follow in his footsteps and work difficult calculus problems before he was nine years old. The boy has developed so rapidly that he is allowed to attend school only half the time.

The youngster will enter the University of Texas as a freshman when he is 11, even though he still will be restricted in the time spent in school. His father already has arranged for the boy to enter the university when he completes high school work.

The youngster has read all the children's classics and adventure stories and now occasionally turns to heavier literature which might cause trouble to more mature minds. He is almost as well rounded as other children in his other developments. Scholastically, he surpasses them easily and has made straight A grades in all subjects.

Ching Outlawed by Friends as Skunk Runs at His Heels

They are not so glad to see Ching Ramsey, those who haven't been told. Everywhere Ching goes a polecat follows him. "He's offensive," Ching reassures. But few are within hailing distance by that time. "Guess I'll have to put a sign on his back," Ching says. "I'm getting lonesome to talk to people, but I can't run 'em down."

He captured the 3-month-old cat at Fort Stockton, along with two others. Their musk bags were removed. "The best ratlers you can find," Ching says.

The average for the state, as shown by the records of 223 stations, was 1.28 inches, which is 1.16 inches below normal. GRAPELAND, (UP)—Dr. E. W. Solomon, 84 year old pastor of the Grapeland Methodist church, captured the guest championship of the Grapeland Country Club lake recently when he caught 13 pounds of black bass at "one sitting." The largest weighed five pounds eight ounces and the next largest four pounds eight ounces. Doctor Solomon stated the other two were in the pound-and-a-half class but he put them back into the water as he didn't need them. In size of his advanced age Dr. Solomon is an enthusiastic fisherman and angles for bass exclusively. He uses a rod and reel with artificial lures. He fishes alone and rows his own boat.

10 SQUARE MILES HIT; 3 PERSONS SLIGHTLY HURT

Poultry Killed and Other Damage Is Reported

Cotton and late feed crops were laid bare, poultry were killed, at least three persons injured and other damage done late Thursday evening when blighting hail accompanied a heavy half-hour down-pour east of Midland. Hail and rain also fell in the western end of the county. R. O. Taggart, relief administrator, said damage done east of the city was tremendous. "The hail absolutely cleaned out the crops, battering the cotton bolls from the stalks and ruining the feed," he said. "Special work relief will be given farmers whose only hope in getting by was ruined last night."

Hail the size of hen eggs pelted two children and a hired man at the C. M. Mills farm. His 15-year-old son, Charles, was injured about the head, and Mildred, daughter, was forced to take refuge under a binder. Both were at work in the field when the hail started. The hired man, Jimmy Nichols, was dazed by the heavy stone and got to shelter only after much effort. Mills said. The man was not able to work this morning.

O. H. Raggett was driving a cultivator. His mules ran away with the plow and it was only after an exciting race to the turnrows that he could get them stopped long enough to climb off and get his head under the iron seat for protection from the pellets.

Farmers throughout the strip, two miles wide and five miles long, ate chickens this morning for breakfast. Poultry of all kinds was killed. Car tops, some roofs and other property were badly damaged.

Places struck by the blast of ice include the Bud West, Charles Lowke, Leon Amett, Oswald Raggett, O. H. Raggett, D. A. Casbeer (north place), W. E. Pigg, Ira Livingston (Troy Elland place), O'Neal, Tom Mock, C. M. Mills, J. M. Livingston, Hughes brothers (John Andrews place) and Homer Wren farms.

Damage could not be estimated, but it will run into thousands of dollars.

THE LAUGH IS ON US

Jesse L. Livermore, speculator who holds the title of "the boy plunger of Wall Street," went into bankruptcy early this summer. Now he has paid off his $2,000,000 debts and has a comfortable fortune for himself.

Honest toil and careful frugality have rescued many a man from financial disaster. In this case, however, it was a combination of the drought and the Chicago wheat pit that did the trick. Mr. Livermore played the market in wheat, and rode up with the rising prices. The result was a very tidy profit indeed.

The ordinary citizen is occasionally a bit puzzled as to the exact nature of the social service which is performed by the speculator in commodities. This feat of Mr. Livermore's, however gratifying it may be to that gentleman and to his creditors, will do little to clear up such confusion.

Home, Sweet Home!

The Town Quack

(Reserves the right to "quack" about everything with taking a stand on anything.)

They are telling today about Midland cowmen driving down the road and seeing Bill Gates and Young Lee, leisurely moving 15 head of old worn out bulls, riding and driving four old worn out horses, from up around Andrews. They say it took six days for the trip. Please note that I didn't say Bill Gates and Young Lee were old worn out cowpunchers.

Farmers and stockmen may be interested in the following from The Jewell (Kansas) Republican: "In years gone by we have heard much as to using Russian thistles for hay with no thought of having to come to it ourselves. Many of these weeds are now being stored in stacks, silos and come baled. As to the feeding value we don't know, but have a good chance to find out. As to eating this feed we found this: We put some corn fodder in a feed rack for the cows, following up with fodder and thistles at the 50-50 rate run through the ensilage cutter and put in another bunk and in a short time all the cows were eating the fodder-thistle menu in preference to the fodder. This was followed by thistles alone run through the cutter. This also was eaten, but not as freely as the fodder-thistle. Being relished before it goes through the curing process in the silo, it will be all the more palatable after the heating process and there will be no question as to the stock eating it. Should I want to stack some my guess is to stack as soon as cut and add some salt as it will soften the stems."

Even back in the 16th Century the women folks started to sort of working on their hair and it didn't please that class of people who always think the world is going to hell. A distinguished but fanatical Englishman by the name of Sir William Pryme crusaded against bobbed hair three centuries ago. The following is something he wrote: "English gentlemen are now grown so far past shame, past modesty, grace and nature, as to clip their hair like men with backs and foretops, and to make this out the very guise and fashion of the times. Even nature herself abhors to see a woman shorn or polled; a woman with cut hair is a filthy spectacle, and much like a monster, it being natural and comely to women to nourish their hair, which even God and nature have given them for a covering, a token of subjection, and a natural badge to distinguish them from man."

Jim felt himself seized in a pair of strong arms. For all his squinting and struggling he could not free himself. His captor was Tom Morgan, while Dick held high the lantern that cast its light full upon Jim's face.
"So, here's Jim Hawkins," smiled Silver, while the parrot hopped to his shoulder. "Dropped in like, eh Jim? Well, come I take that friendly." He sat down on a keg, took out his pipe and filled it. "Settle yourself, gentlemen. You needn't stand for Mr. Hawkins. He'll excuse you. Well, Jim, this is a pleasant surprise for old John-lay to that!"
The eyes of all the pirates save those of Long John glared viciously at Jim.
"What . . . what have you done with my friends?" he blurted out. "Have you killed them?"
"Blood spilling's over with, Jim. We made a treaty, Jim . . . after we all found the ship had gone. Where've you been, matey?"
"Probably dragged her anchor, back."

"WAS TAKING EVERY KIND OF DRUG FOR CONSTIPATION"

Then ALL-BRAN Brought Relief

Read this very enthusiastic letter:

"I am 34 years old and as far back in my life I have been constipated. I was so bad that I had one bowel movement every five or six days. I was taking every kind of drug known for constipation."

"Now for the last two months I have been eating a little ALL-BRAN, night and morning and I have at least two to three bowel movements each day."—Mr. Frank Piratzky, 40-66 98th St., Corona, Long Island, New York.

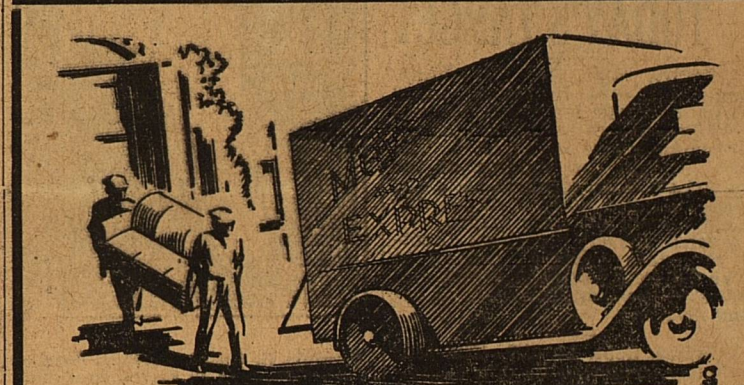

Laboratory tests show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" and vitamin B to aid elimination. ALL-BRAN is also a fine source of iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in leafy vegetables. Inside the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently, this clears out the intestinal wastes.

Isn't this safer than taking harmful patent medicines? Two table-spoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. Severe cases with each meal. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

You'll enjoy eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN as a cereal with milk or cream—sugar or honey or fresh fruits added. Or, to use in cooking.

In the red-and-green package. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

TOLEDO, O. (U.P.)—Two bandits became temporary proprietors of a filling station here. They bought five gallons of gas themselves, then forced Howard Livingston, attendant, to wait on customers while they "covered" him from their parked car. When the cash register had rung up a total of $41.44, the pair collected and departed.

MILLIONS WAGERED ON DOGS
PENNSAUKEN, N. J. (U.P.)—During the first 30 days of grayhound racing here $2,034,930 was wagered in the pari-mutuels, an average of $67,831 a night. Expenses for the period were $273,807, which $46,173 were paid to the state in taxes.

"Cyclone" Crimm's hounds arrived safely and held their first rehearsal in the backyard of the Rev. Winston F. Borum's place this morning.

The bass section has plenty of ear-lop—but not for music. At moments one is reminded of Mr. Borum's trombone. Old Rip gave vent to a resounding wail sometime around the dawn—giving the neighbors an all but faint idea of how the dawn can break. Mrs. Borum, the milk man said, forgot momentarily and called out, "Winston, put up that tin horn and go back to sleep."

The "Cyclone" breezed into the editorial office and broke the bones in the fellows' hands. He didn't wear a gun. We looked. He has parthenetic legs and rope burns on his ham-like paws. He stays only a minute, his eyes taking a sweeping recording of football schedules, boxing pictures and the woman's edition. "She does all the work," he said, not bothering to do more than say hello to the rest. Which proves his astuteness.

The "Cyclone" may have to ear down a brone and show the other ministers of the city how he excels. This hamlet is not unknown for the rough and tumble antics of its ministerial bloc. The Rev. W. J. Coleman has fired two par rounds at country club of late, only yesterday riding in on the rest of three consecutive birthdays. Mr. Borum settled an affair of honor with the major of his battalion somewhere in France, via the prize ring, getting a bit better than a drew with Major Anderson, now associated with the coaching staff of Texas A&M. The "Cyclone" referred to was heard between the two, who were friends of the Damon and Pythias type. The major couldn't see out of one eye next day, and the then Capt. Borum showed up at officers' mess without a visible scratch, only to take cold in a cut place inside his mouth while directing fire of his battalion on the range while near-zero weather swept the torn terrain, necessitating his remaining in his quarters several days. The Rev. O. W. Roberts can lay brick with the best of 'em, and J. D. Jackson holds down the wildest citizens and dishes out a mean haircut.

"Crooked Fred" was one of the best hounds who ever bayed at the moon. He was whelped at the Marshall, Texas, kennels of Mr. Crimm. Fletcher Curry, who thinks so much of hounds he calls them all "Mister," was talking about Crooked Fred. "I used to own him," Mr. Crimm said. "Well, I've got a dog sired by him," Curry observed. The ardent sportsmen will go look at him.

"Gawge" Forman is Mr. Crimm's nigger. For 20 years he has been known only that way. "The best hunter in America. He can't do anything else. I don't tell him to do anything else."

Tucked carefully away on the trailer is a saddle given the evangelist by Buffalo Bill. It was Cody's own saddle.

Some of the fellows are disturbed over the possibility that Crimm's preaching may interfere with his hunting. However, the 20 dogs were transported to the McClintic ranch this morning for limbering up exercises.

"Cyclone" was to have showed up one day last week, and a sand storm, the first of the season, edited silt into the eyes, ears and hair of natives. Last night he did show up, and hauled the superducks of the farmer killed their chickens and put ideas into their mules.

Ponder the one familiarly known as "Punk," entered the Big Spring rodeo. He signed under impression they were about to hold a raffle. When they gave him his number and pointed out a hammer-headed bang-tail he was supposed to straddle he swooned without affectation and asked for a bus schedule.

For the first time in his life, Sandy held out on us. In telling of his eagle on No. 7, the Scottish monarch failed to mention he sank his approach shot from 70 yards.

Note for this afternoon's assignment: See Head Coach Dutch Baumgarten at 7. Try and get a story.

Joe E. Brown's Big Circus Comedy at The Yucca Theatre

Joe E. Brown, the famous awning-tipped comedian, will be back in town today, appearing on the screen of the Yucca theatre today and tomorrow in his latest First National comedy, "The Circus Clown."

Joe is now back to his first love, for he started his career at the age of nine with a circus and traveled with it for several years before he gave it up to become a baseball player and later a theatrical and screen performer.

Once famed as an aerialist, Joe is said to perform almost entirely under the "Big Top" at the winter quarters of Al G. Barnes Circus, near El Monte, Calif., where the company spent several weeks on location.

The circus is used throughout as a background for the hilarious stunts of the picture, which, however, has its own well-defined plot and romance. The picture deals with the intimate life of the circus folk behind the scenes and also during the giving of a show. The tangled love affairs of the circus folk come into play in which Joe becomes so involved that his plight becomes ludicrous.

Patricia Ellis has the leading female role opposite Joe while others in the cast include Dorothy Burgess, Donald Dillaway, Ronnie Westcott, Charles Wilson, Ronnie Cosby, Spencer Charters and Bobbie Caldwell, as well as a score or more of famous circus performers. The story and screen play are by Bert Kalmar and Harry Ruby with additional dialogue by Paul Gerard Smith. Ray Enright directed.

Treasure Island--

I should o' trod the boards. Torture, Jim? Why, you and me's meesies."

"I'm grateful, Long John," said Jim, "but sooner or later they'll kill me."

"There's too many of them to divide the treasure with. I was figuring on a way to get rid of half of them."

"Oh, more murders!" gasped Jim. "Not murder—just tactics. Now Dick and George Merry and Harry Sykes and Dandy are stupid fools. I was going to take just Ephraim Post and Tom Morgan—and see if I can't get them waked—and we'd get the treasure."

"Them's tactics, Jim, worthy of Admiral Hawks himself!" They were interrupted by the voice of Dr. Livesey calling: "Block-house aho! What about it, Silver? Have you seen any signs of Jim Hawkins?" Then he espied Jim and cried: "Thank heaven you're safe, lad! Let me talk with him, Silver."

"No, by the powers!" cried Merry, grabbing Jim. "They'll pull a trick!" Silver swung himself on his crutch to Merry's side. "I'll be speaking to you for the last time, George Merry! Drop his arm!" He turned to Jim. "Jim, you give me your word of honor not to try to slip your cable?"

"I do," Jim promised, and Long John accented him to the wall of the stockade. Livesey reached through and grasped Jim's hand. "We've been looking everywhere for you. What happened, Jim?" "Then you didn't think I was scared?" cried Jim, happy almost to tears.

"Not a thought of it, boy! We were just worried." Jim accused Long John. "You said they said I was scared." "Well, matey, I thought it would be easier for you to jine up."

"I haven't joined them," Jim said eagerly to Dr. Livesey. "I ran away to cut the ship's hawser, sir, like Captain Smollett wanted, and I did and have her beached on the North Inlet, Sir, and I'm glad you don't think ill of me!" He hid his face in his hands and sobbed.

"Hummm—North Inlet, eh," said Silver, grinning. "A lad of spirit, Doctor. Ain't ye proud now?" (To Be Continued)

SPECIAL TRAINS FOR TEXAS FANS

DALLAS.—To hear the "Eyes of Texas" roll across the home field of Notre Dame's Fighting Irish or see the purple clad Rice Owls clash with Purdue will be the treat of football fans in the Southwest.

These trains will combine at Longview into a single special for the run to Chicago, arriving there October 4. Visits to the World's Fair or other amusements that Chicago offers will occupy the time of the special riders in the two days preceding the football games, Hitzelberger says.

Success of the trip was practically assured when Ed Olle, business manager of the university athletic council, announced that Coach Jack Chevigny and his charges would be aboard the train leaving Austin, Lee Broullier, Housatonic, and the Texas Longhorns and the Owls have intersectional games scheduled for October 6, the games being played at South Bend and Lafayette. The train will leave Texas alumni and followers of these two schools will leave October 3 on special trains to see their favorites to Boston and the midwest teams. These trains will combine at Longview into a single special for the run to Chicago, arriving there October 4. Visits to the World's Fair or other amusements that Chicago offers will occupy the time of the special riders in the two days preceding the football games, Hitzelberger says.

While in Chicago the Morrison hotel will be headquarters of the special party where single rooms for every passenger will be reserved. Hitzelberger states. Requests for reservations on the train are already being received, and this early enthusiasm might possibly necessitate a second special, Hitzelberger points out.

It is expected that many prominent business men and state officials will make the trip as they did in 1932 when a Hitzelberger special carried southwest grid fans to Cambridge, Mass., for the Texas-Harvard classic. The success of that trip received statewide acclaim, and Hitzelberger says that plans are going forward to make this one even better.

Trains will leave from San Antonio, Austin, Houston, Fort Worth, Dallas, and intermediate points throughout Wednesday, October 3. The price scale has been arranged to suit the desires of the passengers, and information may be secured from the offices of the Texas and Pacific Railway and the Missouri Pacific Railway companies or by writing direct to Bill Hitzelberger, 3804 Normandy Street, Dallas.

FORT WORTH. (U.P.)—For the first time in the 70 years of its existence, dancing will be permitted this year at Texas Christian university.

Texas Christian has long permitted "promenades" but the nature of these proms were not such as to stir the longing of glamorous young collegians.

In fact, Texas Christian promenades were promenades in the strictest sense of Webster's first definition of the word—a walk. Young men were permitted to walk to and fro with their partners under the close scrutiny of chaperones.

There was no dancing—and there was only one prom a year—the freshman promenade.

This was held in front of the library on the greensward, not in a dance hall. With an orchestra sending forth its enchantment of jazz, collegians extended their arms to partners and walked sedately up and down until the tune ended and they changed partners.

A group of adventurous students behind the library—dancing. The campus rocked as though a tank of dynamite had exploded. Deans and executives were called. The campus buzzed. But finally nothing was done, more than a reprimand.

This year the thumping rhythm of jazz bands no longer will be "wasted" on the evening air as couples walk up and down. University supervised dances, jazz dances, will be permitted.

Students were open in declaring the promenades "boring." For several years they argued for "real" dances. Some did not bother to argue. They went to dances at downtown hotels and night clubs.

"Young people have changed. If we don't permit them to dance here they will go elsewhere."

Said one of these young people: "Is this a revolution or a revelation? It sounds too good to be true."

36 MUSTANGS OUT FOR TEAM

DALLAS.—Thirty-six Mustangs reported to Coaches Ray Morrison and Matty Bell Monday morning for the initial workout of the Southern Methodist university football team.

Only one man, James Roesch, a letterman from last year's freshman team, was absent from the early morning practice.

Due to the small size of the S.M.U. coaching staff, one of Morrison's first moves was the election of practice captains to aid in the coaching duties this year. A man out of each position on the team was elected.

ed captain of his group and will take charge of his men during practice when the coaches are busy elsewhere. The coaches and practice captains will meet together two or three times each week to exchange notes and receive instructions. The practice captains elected were as follows: ends, Maco Stewart; tackles, Goodwin Bray; guards, Billy Stamps; centers, James Bradford; backs, Harry Shuford. This is a new plan that is being inaugurated and should be a great benefit and somewhat lighten the work of Coaches Morrison and Bell.

The squad was divided on the opening day into three teams, ranking the teams and men in one, two, three, order as they looked in spring training. After the teams were organized the first morning practice was devoted largely to the running of plays and to limbering-up exercises. Very little work was given in the afternoon workout as cameramen were present and pictures of the squad and the coaches were made. The real work started Tuesday morning and was due to continue throughout the early training period.

The teams as lined up for the first workout were as follows: first team, Captain Raymond Fuqua and Louis Smith; ends, Clyde Carter and Maurice Orr; tackles, Billy Stamps and J. C. Wetzel; guards, James Bradford; center, Harry Shuford; Shelly Burt, James Russell, and Whitely Baccus; backs, second team, Maco Stewart and Bill Tipton; ends, Goodwin Bray and Bill Sanders; tackles, Tommy Fields and Paschal Scottin; guards, Arthur Johnson; center, Harlan Ray, J.
