Judge rules no

Motions to suppress evidence and testimony from the trial of Mark Mitchell Jr. were denied by 238th District Court Judge John Hyde Friday. Pre-trial motions from Mitchell's defense attorney Glen Aaron were heard Thursday. Georgia flooding

ALBANY, Ga. — The raging Flint River consumed entire neighborhoods Friday as rescuers used boats to reach dozens of stranded people who refused to evacuate — then pleaded frantically for help. Some survivors were plucked from tree limbs and rooftops. Nation's payrolls swell, but many new jobs are part-time, low-wage

■ Wall Street initially reacts negatively, but stocks recover.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Unemployment held steady at 6 percent in June and 379,000 people found jobs, the government said Friday. But many new workers got temporary, part-time or low-paying positions rather than careers.

"The overwhelming proportion of the jobs that are being added to the economy are low-wage jobs in the service sector," said Mark Roberts, an economist with the AFL-CIO.

The Clinton administration hailed the report, which showed a much greater increase in the nation's nonfarm payrolls than the quarter million or so most economists had anticipated.

"The great American job machine is back and humming," Labor Secretary

Judge orders O.J. to trial with no bail

■ To win conviction, prosecution must go well beyond 'strong suspicion,' convince 12 jurors that Simpson is guilty 'beyond doubt.'

Associated Press

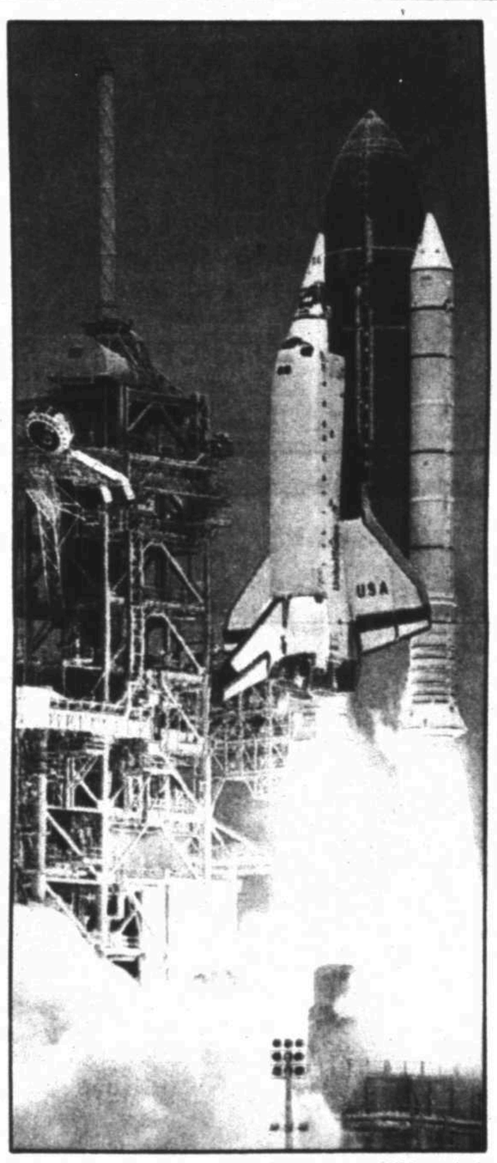

LOS ANGELES — O.J. Simpson was ordered Friday to stand trial on charges of murdering his ex-wife and a friend of hers by a judge who ruled there was "ample evidence" to establish suspicion of his guilt.

Decision comes on emotion-packed day during which Simpson wept as a coroner described how his former wife's throat was slashed to her spine.

After six days of often dramatic testimony in a preliminary hearing to determine if there was enough evidence to try him, Municipal Judge Kathleen Kennedy-Powell ordered Simpson held without bail and set arraignment for July 22 in Superior Court.

Simpson, who turns 47 on Saturday, stared straight ahead and showed no emotion as the judge announced her ruling in a brief statement from the bench. Mem-

Holy Maynard G. Krebs! Goatee again becomes growth of choice

By Larry McShane
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Forget Colonel Sanders and Burl Ives. Think Brad Pitt and Snoop Doggy Dogg.

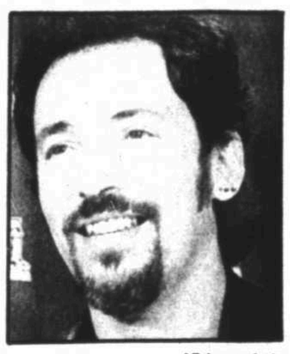

The goatee, not always the hippest of facial hair, is again the growth of choice on cutting-edge chins. It's less than a beard, more than a mustache and much cooler now than when Maynard G. Krebs sported one, daddy-o.

"It seems like this is the trend these days," said Boston Bruins defenseman Ray Bourque, one of several dozen hockey players who sported good-luck goatees rather than the usual beards for this year's playoffs.

Bourque has since shaved, but that puts him in the minority.

Turn on MTV. There's John Mellencamp wearing a little beard reminiscent of the classic Krebs goatee. (Remember Maynard? Bob Denver played the beatnik sidekick on the '60s sit-

Break out the jackets: Basin, city cool down into upper 90s

A cool front has given Midland a brief respite from 100-plus temperatures and is expected to linger for a couple of days, giving the area a chance for thundershowers.

The high temperature Friday only reached 98, just the second such day to break a two-week string of 100-plus, record-breaking highs, according to Midland National Weather Service.

High temperatures are expected to stay in the mid-90s for a couple of days before returning to between 100 and 105 on Monday. The slow-moving frontal system has stalled for the time being, leaving more moisture in the area, increasing the chance of rain and providing cloud cover to mitigate daily highs, a NWS spokesman said.

Talks between U.S., N. Korea begin positively in Geneva

GENEVA (NYT) — After months of crisis and false starts, the United States and North Korea sat down at the bargaining table Friday in a surprisingly upbeat mood, raising hopes of agreements that might eventually lead to a relaxation of tensions throughout the Korean peninsula.

Recalling North Korea's record of unpredictability, Western diplomats have warned that the Geneva negotiations could again fail, setting the stage for a new crisis. But they also said that a rare opportunity now existed to bury the 40-year-old legacy of tension and hostility left by the Korean War.

But because both sides agreed to issue only joint press statements, little word of any progress in the negotiations is likely until they conclude, perhaps at the end of next week.

At the center of the negotiations is Washington's demand that the Pyongyang government abandon moves toward becoming a nuclear power and specifically that it open secret nuclear facilities to international inspections. In exchange, the United States would help end North Korea's isolation.

Pyongyang has said it needs American assistance if it is to replace its graphite nuclear reactors, which produce large quantities of weapons-grade plutonium, with safer light-water reactors. It also wants security guarantees and some form of diplomatic recognition from Washington.

After several hours of talks at the North Korean Mission to the United Nations, Robert L. Gallucci, the assistant secretary of state who is heading the American delegation, described the discussions as "very useful and productive." But he added that the two sides were "not yet at the point of talking about commitments."

Kang Sok Ju, the deputy foreign minister leading the North Korean team, also struck a positive note, saying that "there is a good possibility that in the days ahead we can try to narrow our differences on the nuclear issue." He said that both sides want to resolve the issue "through dialogue and peaceful means."

The talks will continue today at the U.S. Mission, then break for a few days to allow negotiators to consult with their capitals.

U.S. ships become overloaded with Haitians

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — U.S. Coast Guard cutters and Navy warships are so overloaded with Haitian refugees that in some cases they cannot take in more boat people who may be in distress, the U.S. Embassy said Friday.

Embassy spokesman Stanley Schrager gave a picture of a U.S. refugee policy in total disarray, with American ships stuck with no place to put many of the more than 10,600 boat people who have poured out of Haiti since Monday.

The Coast Guard, in a statement, called the past four days "the busiest period in Coast Guard history."

The refugee nightmare began when President Clinton, responding to increased human rights abuses by Haiti's military and its civilian allies, guaranteed each boat person a hearing at offshore U.S. processing centers. The first center, off Jamaica, opened June 16. Since then, more than 18,500 Haitians have been plucked from boats by the Coast Guard.

The administration announced Tuesday that only applicants who go to U.S. processing centers in Haiti have a chance to win asylum in the United States. Washington said those intercepted at sea would be sent to safe havens in third countries if they feared retaliation on their return.

Refugee advocates urged the Clinton administration not to panic.

"But they have to move to deal with the problem very quickly," Jocelyn McCalla, director of the New York-based National Coalition for Haitian Refugees, told The Associated Press.

"Given the options remaining here, I would think they have to move to the military option rather quickly," McCalla said. He was referring to the possibility of U.S. military intervention to oust Haiti's military coup leaders and restore its elected president, Jean-Bertrand Aristide.

Four U.S. warships carrying 2,000 Marines are scheduled to reach Haitian waters by Saturday, joining eight other American warships enforcing a U.N. trade embargo on Haiti.

The Clinton administration suffered a major setback Thursday when Panama backed out of a plan to house 10,000 Haitians. Now Washington is scrambling to pressure other countries to accept the boat people.

Two U.S. ships processing refugees off Jamaica are packed and another camp on the British island of Grand Turk won't be open until next week.

Clinton seeks solutions to Haiti dilemma

NAPLES, Italy (NYT) — President Clinton said Friday he was "disappointed" by Panama's refusal to accept Haitian refugees but that his administration is searching for other temporary homes for the fleeing islanders.

Clinton seemed frustrated, but he refused to analyze Thursday's move by Panama President Guillermo Endara to back out on a deal to accept thousands of Haitian refugees, who were to be housed on former U.S. military bases.

Panama's withdrawal from the plan leaves only three small Caribbean islands — Grenada, Antigua and Dominica — as publicly ready to accept fleeing Haitians.

The situation leaves U.S. ships with no place to take the more than 10,000 refugees who have been picked up at sea since Monday.

The Pentagon said 1,859 more boat people were picked up Friday. But 407 asked to be sent home when told they could not seek U.S. asylum by leaving Haiti.

"My concern right now is to build a network of friends in the hemisphere who agree that the Haitians are entitled to consideration . . . and who want to help us to do it," Clinton said at a news conference before the opening of the annual economic summit here.

About the only sanctuary that Clinton seemed to rule out was the Haitians' apparent favorite — southern Florida, where the prospect of additional Caribbean refugees is a volatile political issue.

Panamanian says Americans browbeat him

PANAMA CITY (AP) — President Guillermo Endara said U.S. officials browbeat him into announcing Panama would accept up to 10,000 Haitian refugees, a decision he later rescinded.

"I felt mocked and intimidated," Endara said in a telephone interview with Telemundo television news Thursday. "I negotiated with them till midnight, and they mistreated me. They treated me as if this were a banana republic."

WEATHER WATCH

COOLS: City gets respite

(From 1A)

The front is serving to partially disrupt the upper-level high-pressure system that has been governing the weather patterns and providing the record-breaking high temperatures. This high-pressure system should be re-strengthened by Tuesday and return as the controlling factor in Midland's weather.

"It's not unusual for these strong upper-level systems to control the weather during the summer," the spokesman said.

The increased moisture in the area also serves to mitigate high temperatures, he said.

The system, however, should not be quite as strong as it was two weeks ago. Therefore, temperatures should not reach into the 110-plus range for the immediate future, the spokesman said. "It (the upper-level, high-pressure system) was significantly stronger last week," he said.

Today should be partly cloudy with a 30 percent chance of afternoon and evening thundershowers. The low should be around 70 with Sunday's highs again reaching only to the mid-90s.

Precipitation continues to run behind normal with only 0.39 inches for the month and 4.31 inches for 1994. Winds will continue in seasonably normal patters at 5-15 mph from the southeast.

STATE

Cloudy skies did little Friday to lessen the summer Texas heat, which was generally in the 90s and 100s across the state.

In North Texas Friday, thunderstorms that came through parts of the region left behind cloudy skies.

Winds were light and out of the north behind a weak frontal boundary that had drifted to a line from Paris, Fort Worth, Abilene and Marfa. Winds in front of the boundary were out of the south-southwest at 5 to 10 mph.

Temperatures ranged from 84 degrees at Sherman to 97 at Waco.

Today's forecast calls for partly cloudy skies with a slight chance of thunderstorms to the east and southeast. Highs will be in the 90s.

NATION

Thunderstorms drenched much of the country east of the Mississippi River on Friday, raining on areas already hard-hit by heavy downpours this week.

Showers compounded flooding problems in the Southeast and brought worries about new flooding to parts of Ohio.

Sections of the central United States saw record low temperatures this morning as a cold front sent temperatures into the 30s and 40s across the Rocky Mountain states and the 40s and 50s in the High Plains.

In the East, high winds and electrical storms raged across parts of Indiana, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York, Connecticut and Massachusetts. There were reports of downed trees and power lines.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

ALARM: It's time to speak out, panel says

(From 1A)

said Margie Talley, HIV counselor with Permian Basin Community Centers for Mental Health and Mental Retardation.

Both women served on a panel Friday dealing with the need for AIDS education in Midland and Odessa.

Before the panel discussion, the award-winning film "The Heart of the Matter" was shown to members of the media. The film, focusing on women with AIDS, will be aired locally at 9 p.m. Tuesday on the Public Broadcasting Station, cable channel 13 (see related story).

Four people in the Permian Basin died this year from complications of AIDS, according to Steven Weir, community development director for the Permian Basin AIDS Coalition. The coalition served those four, and 116 other individuals — 67 with AIDS and 49 who are HIV positive this year.

"Of course, we serve 17 counties," Weir said.

Ms. Talley said, "Two years ago, we tested 1,200 people in this area. Of those 1,200, six were HIV positive. This year, only halfway through the year, five have tested HIV positive."

"The virus is increasing at a faster rate. It's going to grow like a snowball coming down the hill," she said.

Nationally, the first female case of AIDs was reported in the United States in 1981. Now it is one of the top five causes of death in women. Some health experts have said the number of AIDS cases are increasing among women and teen-agers.

"Adolescents should be told the truth," said Una Evans, an elementary-school counselor. "I'm old-fashioned. We just didn't talk about sex when I was growing up. Pregnancy was something that happened to bad girls. But life has changed. Now I am learning along with the young people."

Ms. Talley agreed. "I see girls pregnant at age 12 or 13. By 15 they are working on their second baby. I'm trying to teach them that it's O.K. to be a virgin. And if you have had sex, you don't need to have it anymore."

"I wish there was some way to glorify virginity the way baby showers are glorifying pregnancy," Ms. Evans said.

However, in a videotape of people interviewed randomly in area malls (filmed by members of the Permian Basin AIDS Coalition) one young man said peer pressure is too great to publicly admit "you're not having sex." He said admitting that would result in ostracism.

While teen-agers talk to each other about sex, they say it is too difficult to talk to their parents about it. "Parents teach kids that sex is so bad, that the kids won't tell if they are having sex," said one young woman, interviewed at a mall.

Ms. Castillo said Hispanics culturally are hesitant to talk about sex. "Adolescents don't know what precautions to take," she said. "Myself, I would rather have a 16-year-old son sexually active than a 16-year-old who is HIV positive."

Ms. Castillo said Hispanics in the Permian Basin consider AIDS an immediate death sentence and might not seek medical help, or they might seek alternative remedies. "They get remedios (remedies) by going to Mexico and finding healers or foods to eat they think will bolster the immune system," she said. "We need to start confronting reality and start treating HIV early."

All members supported teaching sex education including abstinence and "safer sex" precautions to take. However, Ms. Evans said young people should not be given the message that a condom is 100 percent safe.

"There is no such thing as safe sex unless you don't do it at all," Ms. Talley said. "But there is a big group of adolescents out there having sex. You can talk about abstinence all you want and it's going to just get ignored. When my mother wouldn't tell me about something it only made me more curious. If telling about condoms saves one person's life, that's what it's all about."

"We have a lot of work to do," Ms. Evans said. "Our grandparents got married at age 14 or 15, yet we are asking our kids to hold off sex until marriage, and marriage is coming much later in life — sometimes after college. Parents need to wake up and discuss this at home. The schools should be free to educate otherwise."

Jane Hellinghausen, director of community affairs for Planned Parenthood, said, "Parents are struggling with this because they have no role models. Their parents didn't talk to them about HIV or AIDS. And some parents are uncomfortable because they don't have the knowledge to talk about it."

Ms. Evans said parents cannot depend on teachers to teach sex education, even if it was taught in the schools. "A teacher may not teach what I want taught to my child," she said. "I can't expect a teacher to teach my child to read without some preparation from home. It's the same way with sex education."

Ms. Talley said young women need to be taught self-esteem along with sex education. "They must learn to say 'no,' and take control of their own lives," she said.

Pam Clarke, who said a member of her family has full-blown AIDS, agreed. "Teen-agers have raging hormones just like we did. Education needs to be stronger. They have got to quit wandering around thinking, "this is not going to happen to me. Not me. Not me."

"AIDS can happen to all of us," Ms. Castillo said. "It's no longer a gay white disease."

FILM: Movie to be aired at 9 p.m. Tuesday

(From 1A)

tion as part of PBS's (Television with a Point of View) P.O.V. award-winning non-fiction film series.

Produced and directed by Gini Reticker and Amber Hollibaugh, the film traces Ms. Jirau's life from when she discovered she was HIV positive to her final days. She died two months before the film was completed.

The film begins with a woman frankly questioning members of an audience about their sexual behavior. Several other young women touch on their experiences with being diagnosed as HIV positive, but "The Heart of the Matter," is Ms. Jirau's story.

Watching her husband die from AIDS complications did not convince Ms. Jirau to protect herself. She believed in the biblical stance of a woman submitting to her husband. "I saw my husband hurting and suffering, and I wanted to prove my love to him," she said.

She said she later decided women should be educated about protecting themselves. "I saw his own family too busy making sure people didn't know what he died of to grieve. . . . I want women to stop being victims, to not be stupid."

Another woman said the legacy of shame over having the disease is terrible. "My mother said speaking out about this disease is the devil's work," she said. "I went to Catholic school and was taught abstinence only. I got no sex education at all. . . . I found out I had HIV at age 20."

The documentary also explores the attitudes of several churches — some who embrace, some who scorn — people with AIDS.

"This cycle needs to stop," Ms. Jirau said, "and I am only one voice."

"There are women living with AIDS here in our own community whose stories are as moving as those portrayed in the film," said Jane Hellinghausen Planned Parenthood of West Texas.

"Because of the very real fear of discrimination, many are afraid to speak out," Ms. Hellinghausen said. "There is an urgent need to shatter the silence about women, sexuality and AIDS. Too many people think AIDS happens to someone else, somewhere else; never here at home, and almost never to women. They are dead wrong."

SWELL: Many jobs are part-time, low-wage

(From 1A)

Robert Reich said.

Economist Norman Robertson of Carnegie Mellon University in Pittsburgh said there was "little or no evidence of any sort of palpable slowdown in the economy."

The June unemployment rate mirrored that for May, which was the lowest since November 1990.

President Clinton, traveling in Italy, said some employers were "switching from using more overtime to actually hiring more workers as they have greater confidence that we're going to have a sustained recovery."

The average work week was down from 42.1 hours to 42 hours. Overtime was unchanged at 4.6 hours.

Factories hired 34,000 workers while construction payrolls were up a modest 16,000.

Most of the overall gains came in lower-paying service sector jobs and in temporary and part-time positions. The Labor Department said 186,000 new hires were in services and 46,000 of those were temporary. Retailers added 102,000 jobs while restaurants hired 69,000 new workers.

More than 4.7 million Americans who wanted full-time work found only part-time positions.

"There continues to be a lot of slack in the jobs market," Reich said. But he insisted the employment picture is strong.

Some private economists say that creation of part-time jobs is a logical step for employers wanting to make sure the economic recovery is firmly in place.

Part-time jobs "are still jobs and they will still generate income," said Martin Regalia, chief economist for the U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

GOATEE: Think Brad Pitt, Snoop Doggy Dogg

(From 1A)

com "The Many Loves of Dobie Gillis.")

Take yourself out to the ballgame. There's Bret Saberhagen of the New York Mets staring in with his recent growth, maybe facing the Atlanta Braves' newly tufted Charlie O'Brien. (Athletes and musicians are two major goatee growing groups.)

Head over to the Cannes Film Festival and check out Bruce Willis' chic beard. Stopping in Los Angeles? A goateed Pitt, the star of "A River Runs Through It" and "Thelma and Louise," was photographed recently outside a Los Angeles club.

Hit the World Cup, where U.S. defender Alexi Lalas attracted as much attention for his flowing goatee as for his game. His three-inch mini-beard turned Lalas into America's most recognizable soccer player and landed him appearances with Jay Leno and David Letterman. Letterman trimmed it up.

There's more. ABC's hour of prime-time goatees, with Michael O'Keefe on "Roseanne" and Ayre Gross on "These Friends of Mine;" the grunge goatees of Alice in Chain's Layne Stayley and Soundgarden's Chris Cornell; the "I love this goatee" look of NBA stars from Kevin Johnson of the Phoenix Suns to Karl Malone of the Utah Jazz.

The history of the goatee is hard to trace.

But the beard wasn't always a hip look. Beatniks and folk singers seized it as an affectation in the late '50s and early '60s — two-thirds of Peter, Paul and Mary wore them (you figure out who).

But the question no longer is goatee or not goatee — the beards are everywhere.

Big Spring shootout hospitalizes 2

By Gary Shanks
Staff Writer

Two Big Spring men are hospitalized, one in critical condition, following a late-night shootout in the parking lot of a west-Big Spring bar.

Investigators are still investigating the cause of the gunfight, but apparently the two men exited the establishment shortly after 11:30 p.m. Thursday, just before gunplay erupted.

Upon arrival, police found two gunshot victims. Each apparently had been shot in the torso with different caliber weapons, according to Lt. Scott Griffin of the Big Spring Police Department.

At the scene, police found a .22-caliber, semi-automatic pistol and a .380-caliber semi-automatic pistol.

Ambulance personnel arrived on the scene and transported both victims to Scenic Mountain Medical Center.

Martin Homer Crossnoe, 53, was stabilized by emergency personnel at the Big Spring hospital. While the other, Roy Dwayne Doss, 32, was transferred by helicopter to a Lubbock hospital where he is listed in critical condition with gunshot wounds to the chest and spine.

Both men are residents of Big Spring.

Detectives with the BSPD arrived on the scene shortly after the incident and are continuing the investigation to determine what charges will be filed in the shootings.

ORDERS: O.J. must stand trial for murder

(From 1A)

bers of Nicole Brown Simpson's family cried as they left the courtroom.

"The court feels there is ample evidence to establish strong suspicions of the guilt of the accused," Kennedy-Powell said. She also noted that the prosecution only had to show probable cause for Simpson to answer to the charges, not guilt beyond a reasonable doubt — the standard they will be held to at trial.

District Attorney Gil Garcetti said after the ruling that prosecutors had not yet decided whether to seek the death penalty, and he acknowledged it will be hard to find an impartial jury.

"Be honest about it. We know there is sympathy out there. People do not want to believe this is possible," Garcetti said.

The judge's decision came on an emotion-packed day during which Simpson wept as a coroner described how Ms. Simpson's throat was slashed to her spine. The prosecution also presented evidence placing Simpson's blood type at the murder scene.

Robert Kardashian, a friend of Simpson's who also is on the defense team, said Simpson had expected the ruling.

In final arguments to the judge, defense attorney Robert Shapiro had urged her to dismiss the case, contending it was based on weak, circumstantial evidence. The defense declined to put on its own case.

"There is not and cannot be at this point in time a strong suspicion that Mr. Simpson is guilty of anything," Shapiro said.

"This is a case that everybody has jumped to an immediate and unrealistic conclusion. This is a case that is not ready to come to court," Shapiro said.

But Deputy District Attorney Marcia Clark said the "physical evidence case" had everything from blood drops to a pair of bloody gloves linking Simpson to the murders.

"The evidence is consistent and very powerful even at this early stage that the defendant has indeed committed every crime that he is charged with," she said.

Earlier, Deputy Medical Examiner Irwin Golden used black and white drawings of bodies with vivid red slash marks to show a hushed courtroom how "gaping" knife wounds killed Ms. Simpson, 35, and Ronald Goldman, 25.

Golden's diagrams and testimony showed Goldman was slashed repeatedly in the head and body in an apparent struggle with his attacker. Goldman's sister and stepmother cried quietly and held hands. His father left before the testimony.

Simpson struggled for composure, sighing heavily, looking away and rubbing his face as Golden described Ms. Simpson's clothing — a short black dress and black underpants still damp with blood two days after the murder when the autopsy was conducted.

His eyes watered when the coroner described Ms. Simpson's height and weight, and he wiped tears from his eyes during the bloody descriptions.

Golden, who conducted the autopsies, said a knife similar to one Simpson allegedly bought in May could have inflicted the wounds, but added he needed to do more extensive tests before making a positive finding.

"To be scientific, I would have to get my little white ruler out that I used to measure the wounds on the bodies and do the same thing with the knife," Golden said, referring to a knife bought by detectives. The actual murder weapon hasn't been found by authorities.

World leaders open economic summit in Naples

NAPLES, Italy (AP) — Leaders of the world's richest industrial countries opened their 20th annual economic summit Friday night, but the normally well-scripted event was spoiled by a further attack on the dollar and a sudden illness that briefly sidelined the Japanese prime minister.

Japanese Prime Minister Tomiichi Murayama, 70, was hospitalized after complaining of "fatigue and diarrhea," government spokesman Terusuke Terada told reporters. He was given fluids and later released.

It was not immediately known whether Murayama, a Socialist who became prime minister just last week, would be well enough to participate in Saturday's sessions.

Earlier Friday, comments by President Clinton and Treasury Secretary Lloyd Bentsen caused the dollar's value to skid further on world currency markets.

At a news conference with the Bay of Naples in the background, Clinton noted that the United States and the other G-7 countries had twice this year joined in massive dollar-buying efforts with little effect.

"Over the long run, the economic fundamentals will have to work themselves out," Clinton told reporters.

But when this comment sent the dollar into a tailspin, the White House dispatched a senior administration official to clarify the comments by Clinton and similar remarks by Bentsen.

The official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the earlier remarks were not meant to rule out further broadbased purchases of dollars on currency markets if necessary.

The dollar wasn't Clinton's only problem. Other nations were decidedly cool to a last-minute initiative by the United States aimed at removing global trade barriers in such key sectors as financial services, telecommunications and biotechnology.

Officials from Japan, France and the 12-nation European Union all expressed serious misgivings about the proposal, saying that it jeopardized chances for legislative approval of the seven-year effort to lower trade barriers known as the Uruguay Round.

French President Francois Mitterrand believes there should be a pause before rushing into new negotiations.

Weary Rwandan refugees trudge back to capital

KIGALI, Rwanda (AP) — Silent, weary refugees trudged toward home Friday along a road that was the scene a month ago of the brutal slaughter of minority Tutsis at the hands of Hutu extremists.

Hutu and Tutsi walked side by side in lines of up to 100 people, picking their way toward Kigali, the capital, along the shell-rutted road past burned and gutted cars, blasted buildings and an occasional corpse buzzing with flies.

A small boy, mute and staring, sat alone holding onto a charred post by the roadside. A rebel fighter lifted the child into the back of a pickup truck, where another soldier cradled him between his legs as they drove off.

The slow march back to Kigali reflected the sharp drop in fighting following the fall of the capital Monday to Tutsi-led rebels of the Rwandan Patriotic Front.

After overrunning the eastern two-thirds of the Central African nation in three months of war, the rebels appear ready for a cessation of hostilities, U.N. special envoy Shabryar Khan said Friday.

The clearest signal was the Patriotic Front's tentative agreement to permit a no-fight zone proposed by French troops that would block the rebels from the last strongholds of the Hutu-dominated government in the west, he said.

S. Yemen leaders escape to Oman, vow to fight on

ADEN, Yemen (AP) — Southern secessionist leaders vowed Friday to soldier ahead with their fight for independence, while conceding there was little popular resistance to victorious northern troops in the south's former capital.

Northern Yemen proclaimed an end to the 9-week civil war Friday after capturing Aden and another southern stronghold, the eastern port of Mukalla.

Northern troops and foreign relief workers brought food and water to Aden, which had been under siege and northern bombardment for weeks.

Hundreds of people mobbed the pickup trucks carrying papayas and water and Red Cross workers began repairs of the city's damaged waterworks.

Elsewhere, troops from the conservative Muslim north began putting their stamp on the former socialist capital by torching Yemen's only brewery.

Ali Salem al-Beidh, the self-proclaimed southern president, fled to neighboring Oman with a group of aides. The rebel leaders vowed to continue the battle from exile.

"We are going to continue our struggle. There is an occupation of our country," a rebel leader, Ali Mohammed Salem, told The Associated Press from Jiddah, Saudi Arabia.

He maintained there was some popular resistance, but conceded "it is limited" because "the response of the northern forces is violent."

He claimed northern troops were carrying out a campaign of killings, rapes, arrests and looting.

However, there was no evidence of rampant violence on the streets, only a continuation of the widespread plundering of goods that targeted mainly private businesses and offices of the southern Socialist Party.

Ali Ali Jaifi, commander of the Amaliqa brigade which stormed Aden, said most of the looters were southerners who began stealing before the northern troops arrived. "Our orders are to control theft and looting," he said.

Flames soared from the Sira Beer factory in the suburb of Al-Mansoura, billowing smoke over the area.

"It's a military order," said Lt. Col. Nasser Omar, a northern officer who watched the brewery burn. "It was my idea. This (the brewery) is sacrilegious in our religion. Our religion and our constitution is Islam."

On Thursday, soldiers from the brigade, which is known to have a large contingent of Islamic fundamentalists, lit bonfires and shot up crates of whiskey, vodka and other spirits.

Thousands of people are believed to have died in fighting that began May 4, four years after North Yemen and South Yemen merged into a nation of 14 million people.

Family buries 13 who died in Texas accident

VICKSBURG, Miss. (AP) — The grieving Funches family buried 13 members Friday in a cemetery dating back to the Civil War, the final chapter of a reunion turned tragedy on a Texas interstate.

More than 125 people hugged and wept during a graveside ceremony for the victims, killed Sunday while en route to Vicksburg for a July Fourth weekend reunion.

"It doesn't seem real. You read about things like this, but it doesn't seem like it would happen to your family. It hurts," said Barbara Spates Patterson. "I feel like my heart is just going to crash."

Patterson's sister, Claudia Funches of Los Angeles, was driving a van loaded with relatives when a tractor-trailer rig slammed into it near Weatherford, Texas, killing 14 passengers.

Family members solemnly filed into Williams Funeral Home for private ceremonies Friday before making the trip to Cedar Hill Cemetery where 13 white coffins sat side-by-side under a blue tent.

Eleven-year-old Monica Reed quietly eyed the coffins adorned with gold angels and covered in daises, carnations and large yellow ribbons. The youngest victims, under a year old, were buried in coffins about four-feet long.

"It's hard to understand a situation like this," said the Rev. M.R. Reed, pastor of New Mount Pilgrim Baptist Church.

The pastor's eulogy of "earth to earth, ashes to ashes and dust to dust" was interrupted by loud cries.

A woman collapsed near the coffins and was led away weeping, "I can't leave my babies ... That's my baby down there, down in the daisies."

"Get one last look," a man in a black suit told her.

Minutes after the entourage of about 40 cars left, workers began lowering the coffins into the freshly dug graves. Not far away were graves dating back to the Civil War.

Meanwhile, an investigation continued into the crash. Texas authorities plan to use a sophisticated computer simulation of the truck-van crash to determine what caused the wreck.

Authorities said Funches' van developed mechanical troubles, apparently because it was overloaded with 18 people. The van, limping down the highway, was hit by the truck and pushed more than 600 feet.

Thirteen of the 14 victims were related and brought to Vicksburg. They included Funches' 31-year-old daughter and several of her grandchildren. All 14 were from Los Angeles.

Each coffin was tagged with the victim's name and age. Two were 6, two 4 and one each 11, 10, 9, 7, 1, 18 months, 8 months and 2 months.

Georgia floods kill at least 23, others missing, Albany evacuated

ALBANY, Ga. (AP) — The raging Flint River consumed entire neighborhoods Friday as rescuers used boats to reach dozens of stranded people who refused to evacuate — then pleaded frantically for help.

Some survivors were plucked from tree limbs and rooftops.

The Georgia death toll rose to 23, including two children in a car that plunged off a bridge and into the rushing river in this southwest Georgia city. Five others escaped.

At least four people were missing after five straight days of flooding from the remnants of Tropical Storm Alberto.

Rivers also flooded in the Florida Panhandle, where some highways were closed, and in southeastern Alabama, where one death was reported Friday. Light rain fell in both states.

Rivers threatening levees in southeast Alabama appeared to have crested Friday. But northern Florida residents braced for more flooding as the floodwaters rushed southward toward their rivers.

In Caryville in Washington County, every home was flooded. The Choctawhatchee River stood at 22 feet, 10 feet above its flood stage, in the town of about 600.

In southwest Georgia, a thunderstorm brought more rain Friday afternoon. The Flint rose to 43 feet, 23 feet above flood stage and 5 feet above Albany's levee. The river was expected to crest early today at 45 or 46 feet, the National Weather Service said.

More than 20,000 of Albany's 80,000 residents have evacuated voluntarily.

The National Guard and Marines helped local firefighters and police officers to sandbag and rescue residents. Authorities imposed a dusk-to-dawn curfew starting Friday night.

The flooding hit poor neighborhoods as well as affluent homes on wide streets lined by towering oaks.

Rescues were painstakingly slow in the worst-hit areas where street signs were covered by the water. Some survivors clung to tree limbs and stood on rooftops waiting to be rescued.

About 200 coffins were washed from the ground at Oakview Cemetery near downtown Albany, about half a mile from the river that cuts through the city. Six of them were jammed haphazardly against a grove of trees, which kept them from floating downstream.

Most of the cemetery was under water, 8-feet deep in spots.

"The newer caskets are just airtight, so they just pop from this water," said Joel Abernathy of the city parks department as he prepared to maneuver a boat toward the floating caskets and to secure them to trees with ropes.

Death toll from Colorado fire increases to 14

GLENWOOD SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Everyone knew a shift in wind was coming, but no one expected it to transform a modest brush fire on Storm King Mountain into a deadly inferno. The death toll climbed to 14 on Friday as the last two bodies were found.

"They were in a situation where they were making the decisions. They were aware of the risks," said Bob Moore, state director for the U.S. Bureau of Land Management.

"The fire was handled routinely. . . . It was a small fire, an ordinary fire and we had limited resources," he said.

The last two bodies were found about a quarter mile north of where the others were found, Garfield County Undersheriff Levy Burris said.

"They were running along the ridges and apparently got caught up with nowhere to go in a ravine," Burris said.

The bodies were taken to a Glenwood Springs mortuary. Burris said autopsies would be performed on the last two victims found Friday.

In Washington, Interior Department officials said a federal review board will "establish the facts and sequence of events" that caused the firefighters to become trapped Wednesday and "identify ways to prevent a recurrence."

The board is to submit a report to the Bureau of Land Management and the Forest Service within 45 days.

Wind that pushed fire quickly through steep and rugged terrain had been forecast about 24 hours earlier by the National Weather Service. But Eric Hipke, a smokejumper with 52 other firefighters clearing a line around a 50-acre blaze, said no one expected 50 mph winds to send bands of flames ripping through dried-out juniper and pinion at 100 feet per minute.

The fire was pushed to more than 2,000 acres.

Hipke said "the whole canyon just blew up. I've never seen anything like that in my life. It just kept chasing us back."

Hipke, who was burned on his arms and legs, said from his hospital bed that the ravine the group was using as an escape route deadended and they were trapped.

Of the 14 firefighters killed, only one had been able to use the fireproof shelter they carried on their belts. Some survived using the blankets as shields.

Police arrest 30 pro-lifers during Arkansas protest

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (NYT) — Thirty pro-lifers, including two teen-age girls, were arrested here Friday after blocking the entrance to a clinic, and a federal prosecutor said she would consider charging them with violating the very law they were protesting.

The 30 were charged with criminal trespass, a misdemeanor that could result in jail terms of as long as 90 days and fines of $500.

But U.S. Attorney Paula Casey said she would consider charging the demonstrators under the law they were protesting — the Freedom of Access to Clinic Entrances Act, which makes it a federal crime to obstruct patients' access to abortion clinics.

Nonviolent offenders convicted under the federal law face fines of as much as $10,000 and six months in prison for a first conviction, and fines of $25,000 and 18 months in prison for subsequent offenses.

The leaders of the protest said they were targeting four clinics in Little Rock because it is the capital of the home state of President Clinton, who has aggressively supported abortion rights and who signed the clinic access act into law. Protesters carried posters depicting President Clinton and his wife, Hillary Rodham Clinton, whom the posters labeled "Abortion Queen."

Among those arrested today were a 13-year-old girl from San Antonio and a 14-year-old girl from Janesville, Wis. None of the demonstrators resisted arrest, and there were no confrontations with Little Rock police or with abortion rights advocates who had gathered nearby.

Those arrested were released after being issued citations to appear in Municipal Court on July 15. A police spokesman, Lt. Charles Holladay, said that two of those arrested refused to sign their citations, forcing the police to jail them until they either posted a standard $500 bail or appeared in court.

Ms. Casey said Friday that she had been notified of the arrests by the Federal Bureau of Investigation and would review the arrest reports before determining whether to charge the demonstrators under the clinic access act.

Shuttle lifts cells, aquatic animals into Earth orbit

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Columbia roared through clouds into orbit Friday on a two-week mission to study the development of thousands of aquatic animals and millions of cells.

NASA fretted throughout the morning that storms might interfere with liftoff. But the weather cooperated and the space shuttle blasted off promptly at 12:43 p.m.

"It really was a beautiful day for a launch," commander Robert Cabana said from 184 miles up. "We sure had a great ride."

The seven astronauts quickly powered up the bus-sized laboratory in the shuttle cargo bay and plunged into their round-the-clock research. Payload commander Richard Hieb floated into the lab first, followed by Dr. Chiaki Mukai, the first Japanese woman in space.

It was the first shuttle launch since April and the fourth this year.

"You always kind of wonder, 'Well, are people still as sharp as they were when we last did it?' " said shuttle manager Loren Shriver. "Today I think I was reassured that a couple months' layoff is no problem."

A puff briefly appeared near the right solid rocket booster about a minute into the flight as Columbia streaked over the Atlantic Ocean. Shriver said it probably was just condensation created by shock waves, but he asked flight controllers to doublecheck their data as a precaution.

Flight controllers at Johnson Space Center in Houston also coped with a computer problem in the final minutes of the countdown. Some of their monitors were off by nearly a second, but they worked around it.

About 650 Japanese were on hand to see Mukai off.

"We were quite impressed with the beautiful launch," said Noriyuki Sekine, parliamentary vice minister for science and technology in Japan.

Columbia is jammed with all sorts of Japanese fish, newts and sea urchins — babies and adults — and toad eggs galore. There also are flies, slime mold, mouse bones, roots, cress and lentil seedlings, day lily cells, yeast cells, and human and mouse white blood cells.

More than 80 experiments are planned, with more than 200 scientists from around the world participating.

Search set for former Midlander

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

The San Antonio-based Heidi Search Center is coordinating today's "massive" search of the Round Rock area in hopes of finding clues to the disappearance of Darlene Anderson, a 38-year-old former Midlander who has been missing from her Round Rock home since June 27.

Joining in the search is the Civil Air Patrol, which will launch aircraft in the search over a 30-mile radius from the woman's home near Austin.

"You always want to keep the hope," said Vickie Cabaniss, a volunteer for Heidi Search Center, which was founded in August 1990 following the disappearance of 11-year-old Heidi Seeman of San Antonio. Heidi's body was found later that month on a ranch near Wimberley in the San Antonio area. Her case is still "active and open," as her abductor or abductors have not be found.

Rick Benningfield, the center's missing-person director who coordinates searches for missing people, mostly children, across the nation, is setting up the command post at Round Round and directing the methodical search for Ms. Anderson.

"We do not interfere with the law-enforcement investigation whatsoever," Ms. Cabaniss said. Rather, the search volunteers turn over any evidence which they might find to law-enforcement officials who are conducting the investigation.

Ms. Anderson lived in Midland from 1982 until 1993, when she, an electrical engineer, left Texas Instruments in Midland to work for the Austin-based Austin Semiconductor, which manufactures and markets semiconductors for space and military application. She is Austin Semiconductor's national marketing director.

The area-wide search for Ms. Anderson is "going to be a massive-scale search," Barbara Ross, spokesman for Austin Semiconductor said.

Ely brings sounds of 'love, danger' to The Bar tonight

Staff Report

'Love and Danger" engulfs Midland today when Joe Ely plays The Bar.

Ely

"A lot of 'Love and Danger' was recorded live," Ely said. "We just went in and cut loose. We didn't try and do it perfect, but we tried to have a good time with it."

That attitude can be heard on the album, Ely's first studio album since "Lord of the Highway," which was released on an independent label in 1988. His last album was the MCA "Live at Liberty Lunch" released two years ago.

Before recording "Love and Danger," Ely took a six-month hiatus from touring to write songs.

"When we shut down everything, I was in heaven," he said. "I just wrote day and night. It was something I really enjoyed. Usually I write every day, but I don't actually sit down and finish anything. It was nice to have a long stretch of time where I could sit and finish stuff."

Six of the album's songs were written by Ely, who co-wrote "Highways & Heartaches" with David Grissom.

Doors open at 6 p.m. today at The Bar, 606 W. Missouri Ave. Robin Griffin begins the show around 7 p.m. Ely goes on around 9:30 p.m. Tickets are $9 at the door. Food and drinks will be for sale.

A native of Amarillo who moved to Lubbock when he was 12, Ely traces his passion for music back to his childhood and an experience he had when he was 7 years old and his parents took him to a Pontiac dealership in town to see Jerry Lee Lewis perform.

"I'll never forget that vision of my childhood," Ely told Stereo Review some years ago. "You could hardly see across the street, and then here's this madman up there pounding on a piano. The wind was blowing so hard that it would blow the microphone over. Jerry Lee would be singing and the microphone would go thump! And somebody'd run over and pick it up, and it would fall over again. It was like a vision from hell. But it was so wonderful because it seemed like it fit, with the wind and the static electricity in the air. I always look back at that moment as the very beginning, the spark that made me consider doing this as my life."

Fifth-grader wins heart fund-raiser 2nd straight time

Staff Report

J. Ross Lacy, son of Christy and J.W. Lacy, Jr., and a fifth-grade student at Bowie Elementary School, has won the citywide "Jump Rope for Heart" Contest.

Lacy

He raised the most money as an individual of all children participating in Midland elementary schools. The distinction of being citywide winner is given to only one child each year.

This is the second year J. Ross has been the citywide winner.

He has chosen to give the bike, the grand prize, to a child who does not own a bicycle. This is the second year he has made that gesture, as well.

Jump Rope for Heart is an annual event for the American Heart Association, and combines education and fund-raising, as school children do their part to help the AHA.

Pryor charged

SAN ANTONIO — Chris Pryor, a former All-State running back who led Judson High School to the 1983 state football championship over Midland Lee, has been charged in a federal income tax return scheme.

Pryor, 27, is one of five defendants named Thursday in a one-count information.

They are charged with conspiring to defraud the Internal Revenue Service from January 1992 through April 1993 by electronically filing or helping others file fraudulent income tax returns.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Mike Hardy said the group caused the IRS losses of about $40,000.

Pryor, who established a Class 5A rushing record of 2,804 yards in a season in 1983, was ordered held without bond Thursday. Arraignment has been set for July 20.

After his high school career, Pryor signed a football national letter of intent with Texas Tech. But he had to forfeit an athletic scholarship when he didn't graduate with his 1984 Judson class.

That summer he completed his graduation requirements and played briefly at Texas A&I, now called Texas A&M-Kingsville. He quit the team that fall.

Jaha sent down

MILWAUKEE — Milwaukee Brewers first baseman John Jaha, who has only three hits in his last 30 at-bats, was optioned Friday to Class AAA New Orleans.

The Brewers recalled infielder Jeff Cirillo from New Orleans.

The moves mean that regular third baseman Kevin Seitzer will take Jaha's job at first base, at least temporarily. Cirillo or Bill Spiers will likely play third.

Jaha, who is a former terror of the El Paso Diablos, improved his hitting in the second half of the 1993 season but has struggled at the plate again this year. After hitting five homers in April, he has hit four in 53 games since, with only 16 RBIs.

1994 WORLD CUP SOCCER

Europeans Cup loaded

By Barry Wilner
AP Sports Writer

There they are, the unlikely quarterfinalists from Bulgaria, Romania and Sweden. And there they are, too, the perennial finalists from Germany.

As the World Cup quarterfinals begin today with an overwhelmingly European flavor, it seems strange to see two Balkan and one Scandinavian nation in the final eight.

There's nothing surprising about today's participants — three-time champion Italy against Spain, and three-time winner Brazil, the only non-European team left, against the Netherlands.

And Germany has played in the last three finals, winning in 1990.

But Sweden? Romania? Bulgaria?

"I've never played on a better Swedish team and I doubt Sweden will ever have a side like this one again," midfielder Klas Ingesson said. "We can beat all teams that are left in the tournament."

Romania is first up for the Swedes — they meet Sunday at Stanford, Calif., while Bulgaria and Germany tangle that day at East Rutherford, N.J.

Ingesson scored for Sweden in a 1-1 tie with Romania on June 12, both teams' final World Cup tuneup.

"We were clearly the better team in that match, despite the fact that we didn't have our best team, while they did. And we're better now," Ingesson said.

What has brought on this wave of faith for Sweden, which lost three games 2-1 in 1990 and went home, and didn't make the final of the European Championship despite being host of the event?

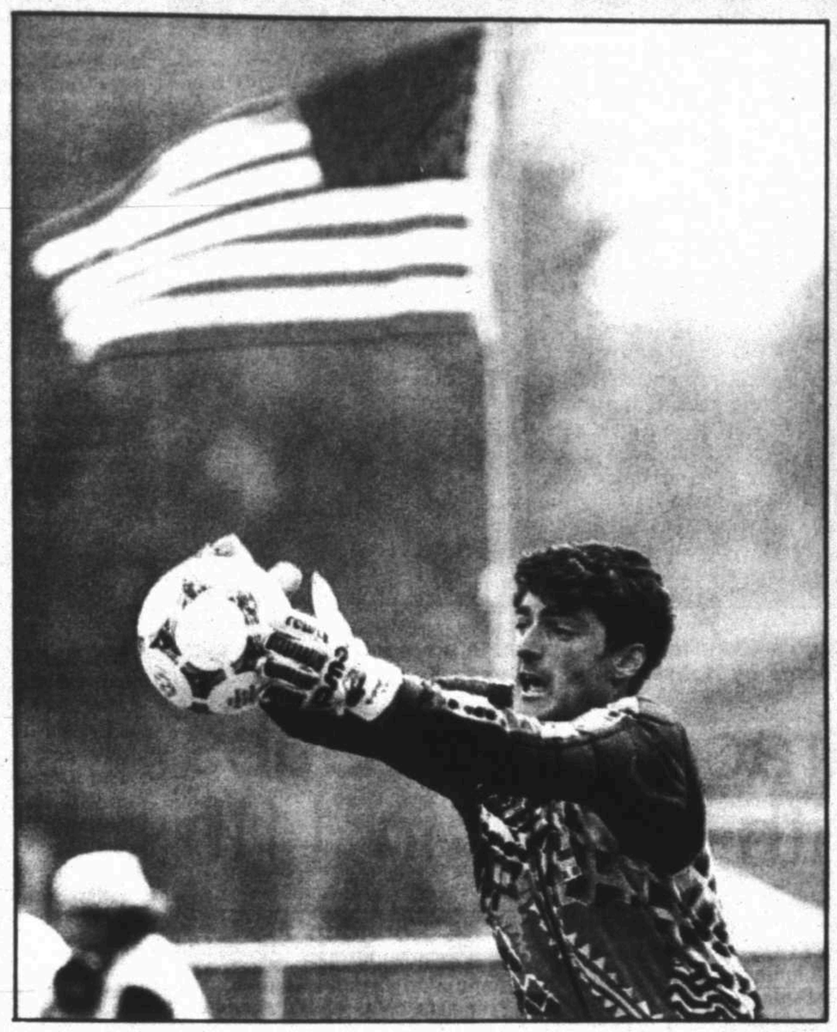

"Tying Brazil (in the first round) gave us so much confidence," Ingesson said.

The key to beating Romania will be controlling Gheorghe Hagi, who has three goals and is a leading candidate for the World Cup's standout player award.

"Hagi has been the outstanding

Two Rebs make state team

■ Junior Kevin Jordan is first team all-state at second base while senior outfielder Chris Connally lands a second team berth.

By Mike Butts
Staff Writer

Midland Lee's baseball team could face uncertainties in 1995. But one thing the Rebels will know is they'll defend their District 4-5A title with one of only three returning 5A first-team all-staters from the Texas Sports Writers Association squad.

Texas sports writers named Lee junior second baseman Kevin Jordan to their all-state first team released Friday. Jordan is the only position player on the starting team who was not a senior last season. Lee outfielder Chris Connally was named to the TPWA second team.

Rebel coach Jesse Benavides said Jordan, a defensive back and punter on the football team, could be an even better player next year.

"He had a good year, but I'm expecting better things from him this year," Benavides said.

Lee went undefeated in district (12-0) to win 4-5A before losing a best-of-three series to Lubbock Monterey in the region quarterfinals.

Benavides says Connally, the 4-5A MVP, was helped this year by being able to participate fully in baseball because as a senior he got out of spring football class.

Jordan

Connally

"He developed more of his fielding ability when he was a senior and he got out of football," Benavides said. "I feel Kevin Jordan will develop his fielding next year the same way. He'll get to come in early this year and do a lot more fielding (and hitting) in baseball class."

Jordan hit .476 with 40 hits, 38 runs and 27 RBIs. He had an on-base percentage of .546 and a slugging percentage of .714.

So splitting time with football did nothing to hurt his baseball.

"That kind of shows you the kind of kid he is," Benavides said. "It shows you the ability he has playing two sports. He's one of the guys I'm more or less counting on for leadership next year."

Jordan may switch to shortstop in '95. But his prospects beyond high school are better as a first or third baseman, Benavides said.

Jordan could not be reached for comment since he was playing in a tournament in Abilene.

Connally made the Texas High School Coaches Association's All-Star North team, which played this summer. He hit .464 in 24 games with 35 runs, 32 hits and 29 RBIs. Perhaps his most impressive stat was his hitting .650 with men on base, Benavides said.

"He's one I thought had as good a chance (for postseason honors) as anyone with his numbers," the Lee coach said.

Connally was also a first team selection to the District 4-5A football team this past school year as a linebacker.

Arlington Martin's Ben Grieve, the second overall player taken in the June amateur draft, and Houston Bellaire's Bubba Crosby are co-players of the year on the TSWA team.

Grieve, who was drafted by the Oakland A's, hit .485 with three home runs and 11 runs batted in and was a first-team pick in the outfield.

Crosby, a pitcher, was 12-2 with a 1.23 ERA with 70 strikeouts in 86 innings for the Class 5A champion Cardinals. He

Daly says Tour golfers use drugs

LONDON (AP) — John Daly, who has fought a battle against alcoholism, believes some golfers are using cocaine and other drugs.

"There are certain people on the tour who do the crazy stuff," Daly was quoted as saying Friday in The Sun newspaper. "They're never going to get exposed unless they are found out by the police and put in jail."

Daly called for random drug-testing of golfers to catch offenders.

"I wish we could have drug testing on the tour," he said. "If we did, I'd probably be one of the cleanest guys out there.

"Drugs, cocaine, some of the other crazy things ... if you're going to test everybody, athletes in the NBA, football players for steroids and stuff, test the golfers. Let it come out.

"I think it's unfair a lot of this stuff has been hidden ... If we did introduce tests, it would help the

Palmer power hits Rangers' stride

■ Texas Rangers' power hitter Dean Palmer is on a home run tear in the American League with 10 monster blast homers in 18 at-bats.

By Jaime Aron
Associated Press Writer

ARLINGTON — Dean Palmer stepped into the batting cage for his final few cuts looking to crush the ball.

Second deck, left field. Easily 400 feet.

Left-field power alley, about 20 rows into the bleachers. At least 430 feet.

"Deano, you lathered that one," Jose Canseco, who is familiar with long homers, said after each blast.

Palmer barely smiled, but that's the way he is. Besides, with the streak he's been on the past three weeks, shots like those before Thursday's game were not surprising.

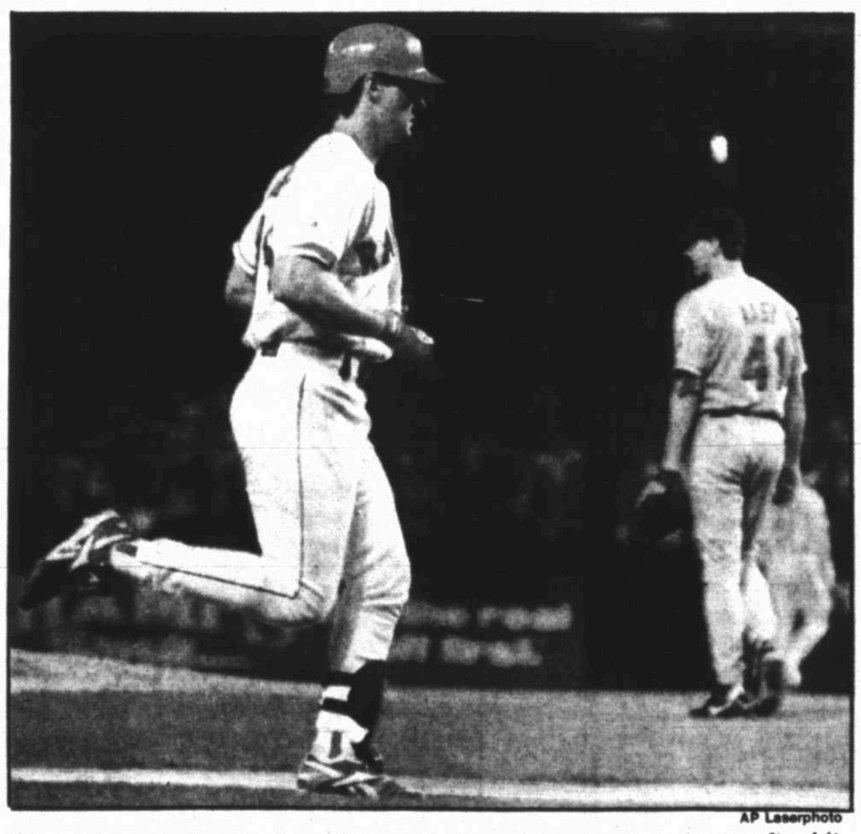

He continued the blasting Thursday night with two homers that carried Texas to a 6-4 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

His first, which barely cleared the 14-foot-high fence in left, tied the score 2-2 in the fourth. Then he put Texas ahead with a long three-run homer to center in the fifth.

"If we got Palmer out, we win the game," said Cleveland manager Mike Hargrove, who decided to let Charles Nagy pitch to Palmer in the fifth despite having first base open.

Instead, Nagy hung a slider and Palmer added it to his growing list of numbers that would make even amaze Ken Griffey Jr.

Consider what Palmer has done since June 18:

AP Laserphoto

— 10 homers in his last 18 hits.

— 11 homers in his last 18 games; eight in the last 13.

— Three two-homer games.

— Raised his batting average from .229 June 24 to .268 after Thursday's 3-for-4 game.

— Eight of his last nine homers have either tied games or put the Rangers ahead.

— Distances? How about 431 feet when the streak began June 18 and 438 feet on Thursday's second homer.

"I've been aggressive, looking for pitches in my zone," Palmer said. "I'm not sitting back and trying to put the ball in play. I'm trying to drive it."

The recent surge has raised Palmer's power numbers for the season to 17 homers and 49 RBIs; good, but not always enough to get noticed in a lineup featuring sluggers like Canseco, Will Clark and Juan Gonzalez.

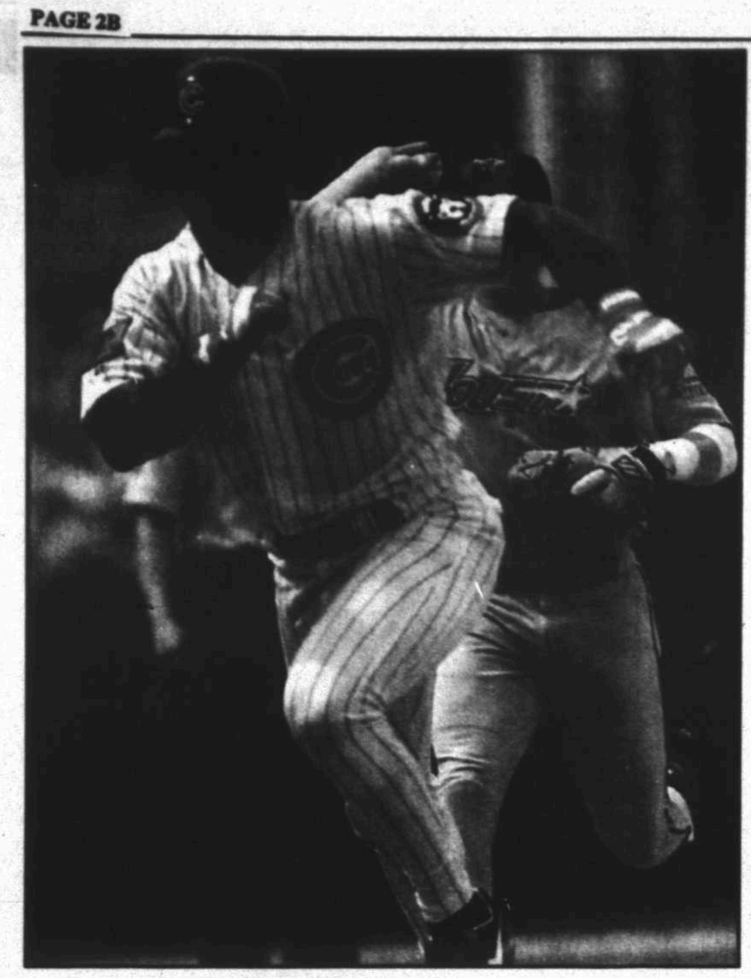

"Deano is hot right now," Texas manager Kevin Kennedy said. "Before, Canseco and Clark were carrying us. Now Dean's swinging the bat well."

Palmer won't be at the All-Star Game at Pittburgh to take part in Monday's home-run hitting contest, but when it comes to sheer power he is among the league's biggest blasters.

The problem is that he won't be an All-Star as long as he strikes out once every four at-bats and leads the league in errors at third base, which he did last year and is threatening to do again this season.

Not even the hot-hitting has been enough to take away from his defensive deficiencies. He made three errors Tuesday, raising his season total to a team-high 15, and the fans got on him for it.

"It's always tough to get booed," said Palmer.

Chicago's Glenallen Hill is caught in a rundown between third and home by Houston third baseman Ken Caminiti.

Grace saves Cubs with homer in 11th

Associated Press

CHICAGO — Mark Grace led off the 11th inning with his third home run of the season as the Chicago Cubs beat Houston 6-5 Friday and ended the Astros' six-game winning streak.

Grace hit a 2-1 pitch from John Hudek (0-1) deep to right-center to end the 3 hour, 30-minute game and snap a four-game losing streak for the Cubs.

The winning pitcher was Jose Bautista (3-3), who worked one inning of scoreless relief. The Astros collected 14 hits.

Shawon Dunston had four of Chicago's 11 hits.

The Cubs had a runner at second with one out in the eighth but Todd Jones got Shawon Dunston on a grounder that moved the runner to third and then struck out Jose Hernandez.

Cubs starter Mike Morgan gave up 11 hits and five runs in six innings. Houston's Greg Swindell, in five innings, yielded six hits and also five runs, but three of them were unearned.

Luis Gonzalez had a run-scoring single to put the Astros in front 5-4 in the fifth. But Derrick May's line drive off Swindell's back drove in Glenallen Hill, who had doubled and moved to third on an infield out, for a 5-5 tie.

Kevin Bass' two-run, two-out homer, his fourth, gave Houston a 4-3 lead in the third. But Dunston hit his ninth homer for a Cubs tie in the fourth.

Houston scored in the first on Craig Biggio's double, a sacrifice and a sacrifice fly by Jeff Bagwell, his major league-leading 80th RBI.

The Cubs got it back in the first on a walk, error on Bagwell at first and a balk by Swindell.

Gonzalez put the Astros ahead 2-1 with his seventh homer to lead off the second.

Ken Caminiti's throwing error, an RBI double by Dunston off the top of the ivy in left and Jose Hernandez's run-scoring single made it 3-2 Chicago in the second.

Reds 12, Pirates 4

CINCINNATI — Thomas Howard's three-run homer highlighted a wacky eight-run third inning that powered Cincinnati over bumbling Pittsburgh.

Pittsburgh's eighth straight loss at Riverfront Stadium — the Pirates haven't won there since July 2 of last year — was its worst performance of them all.

Cincinnati sent 11 batters to the plate in the third to wipe out a 3-0 deficit and get on track for its 26th comeback victory of the season. The NL Central leaders have won seven of their last eight overall.

John Smiley (9-8) won his fifth straight start by scattering six hits over eight innings, including Brian Hunter's two-run homer that made it 3-0 in the first inning.

But the Reds got two big breaks and took advantage of Gary Varsho's fielding gaffe in the third. Jon Lieber (4-4) gave up all eight runs, seven hits and a walk in an inning that matched Cincinnati's biggest of the season.

Lieber had a chance to snuff out the rally when Jacob Brumfield hit a comebacker with the bases loaded, but the potential double-play grounder went off the tip of his glove for an infield single that let in the first run and set up the other seven.

Giants 3, Phillies 2

SAN FRANCISCO — Matt Williams hit his 32nd and 33rd homers to tie Ken Griffey Jr. of Seattle for the major-league lead, and San Francisco defeated Philadelphia.

Barry Bonds tied the game in the sixth with his 23rd homer, and Williams put the Giants ahead by driving a 2-0 pitch through the fog at Candlestick Park and into the left field bleachers.

Williams, who also hit a solo shot in the fourth inning, has 10 homers in his last 16 games and is on a pace to tie Roger Maris' record of 61 homers in a season, set in 1961.

All three San Francisco homers came off Fernando Valenzuela (0-2).

■ NL Roundup

Cardinals 2, Braves 0

ATLANTA — Bob Tewksbury pitched a four-hitter for his first shutout in almost four years and St. Louis beat Atlanta.

Tewksbury (10-7) gave up two singles in the first inning and a double by Jeff Blauser in the fourth. He retired 17 straight until Blauser singled with two outs in the ninth, then retired David Justice to complete his first shutout since Aug. 17, 1990 against Houston. It was his fourth career shutout.

Tewksbury struck out one, walked none and threw just 90 pitches in the game, which was completed in two hours after being delayed 22 minutes by rain. He is 2-0 against the Braves and has allowed three earned runs in 18 innings.

Greg Maddux (11-5) suffered his third loss in his last four decisions. He allowed six hits, struck out seven and walked none.

Expos 14, Padres 0

SAN DIEGO — The Montreal Expos pounded out 11 extra base hits, including a team-record four triples, and Kirk Rueter pitched seven strong innings in an embarrassment of San Diego.

Montreal, 7-0 against San Diego this season, established a season-high for runs and had 18 hits, one shy of its best total this season.

Mike Lansing had three hits and scored three times and Lou Frazier had three hits and two RBIs for Montreal, which pulled within two percentage points of first-place Atlanta in the NL East.

Rueter (4-2), allowed three hits, struck out five and walked two in seven innings. He also had a run-scoring single.

Marlins 5, Rockies 2

MIAMI — Gary Sheffield and Jeff Conine homered and three Florida pitchers combined on a five-hitter as the Marlins beat Colorado, ending the Rockies' four-game winning streak.

Dave Weathers (8-7) allowed all five hits and two runs in 6⅓ innings. He struck out three and walked three. Terry Mathews pitched 1⅓ perfect innings and Robb Nen worked a shaky ninth before notching his eighth save.

Nen walked two in the inning before getting pinch-hitter Howard Johnson, who has four pinch homers this season, on a sinking line drive to center fielder Chuck Carr to end the game.

Sheffield hit his 18th home run in the fourth inning after Jerry Browne singled for the first hit off Lance Painter (2-3).

Conine, an all-star, hit his 13th home run in the sixth, and Greg Colbrunn doubled with the bases loaded in the seventh to drive in two more runs.

Tigers snap skid, beat Texas

Associated Press

DETROIT — Cecil Fielder and Junior Felix homered to help the Detroit Tigers snap a three-game losing streak Friday night with a 7-3 victory over the Texas Rangers.

The Tigers, who dropped 4-of-5 games to the Rangers last weekend in Texas, scored three runs in the fourth and two in the fifth.

Tim Belcher (7-9), who has won seven of his last nine decisions covering 11 starts, gave up three runs and six hits over the first six innings. Mike Gardiner pitched three hitless innings for his fifth save.

The Tigers got to Texas starter Hector Fajardo (4-5) for six runs and eight hits in his 4 1-3 innings.

Kirk Gibson doubled in the second and scored on an RBI single by Felix for a 1-0 Detroit lead. But the Rangers tied it 1-1 in the third when Jose Canseco scored on Will Clark's single.

The Tigers took a 4-1 lead in the fourth on a solo homer by Fielder, his 20th, and a two-run shot by Felix, his 13th, with Gibson on.

Texas got RBI singles from Clark and Juan Gonzalez in the fifth, cutting the deficit to 4-3.

Detroit made it 6-3 in the bottom of the fifth with Tony Phillips scoring on Travis Fryman's double and Fryman scoring on a single by Gibson.

Lou Whitaker singled Chad Kreuter across for a 7-3 Detroit lead in the sixth.

White Sox 9, Brewers 5

MILWAUKEE — Julio Franco and Bob Zupcic homered and Norberto Martin drove in three runs as Chicago moved into a virtual tie for first in the AL Central with a victory over Milwaukee.

Tim Raines added two RBI for the White Sox, who with their 50th win moved into a tie with Cleveland atop the Central. The Indians, who actually lead the division by percentage points, lost 8-6 in Minnesota.

Jason Bere (9-2) picked up the win after three straight no decisions as Chicago won for the 16th time in 20 games, including eight of nine on the road.

Bere had allowed only Jose Valentin's RBI double in the first and Matt Mieske's homer in the fourth before being chased in the sixth. He scattered seven hits, walked four and struck out six in 5⅓ innings.

Kirk McCaskill pitched 3⅓ perfect innings, striking out six and the side in the ninth, for his third save.

■ AL Roundup

Yankees 4, Angels 3

NEW YORK — Bernie Williams' RBI grounder drove in Matt Nokes to cap a wild ninth inning, giving New York a victory over California.

The Angels, held to one hit over 8⅓ innings by Melido Perez, rallied for three runs with five straight hits to take a 3-2 lead in the top of the ninth.

Mike Stanley opened New York's ninth with a single off Joe Grahe (1-4) and Paul O'Neill's single moved pinch runner Luis Polonia to second.

After pinch hitter Matt Nokes grounded into a force on O'Neill at second, moving Polonia to third, pinch hitter Daryl Boston was hit by a pitch to load the bases. Pinch hitter Jim Leyritz then beat out an infield single on a high bouncer to second as Polonia scored the tying run. Williams then grounded his game-winning single to center.

Bob Wickman (4-3) got the win despite allowing Mark Dalesandro's RBI single that capped the Angels' rally.

Perez held the Angels to one hit — an infield single in the first inning — and was within one out of his first career one-hitter when Chili Davis reached on an infield single that bounced off Perez's glove.

Twins 8, Indians 6

MINNEAPOLIS — Shane Mack hit his fourth career grand slam in the first inning and Minnesota built a seven-run lead and held on for a victory Cleveland.

Kevin Tapani (9-5) controlled the Indians through five innings before running into trouble in the sixth, when he allowed a three-run homer to Carlos Baerga.

Mack's 11th homer came off Cleveland starter Jason Grimsley (1-1), who lasted just 2⅔ innings.

The Twins added two more runs off Grimsley in the third inning on a sacrifice fly by Kent Hrbek and an RBI single by Pedro Munoz. Chuck Knoblauch singled in a run in the fourth to put the Twins up 7-0.

But the Indians rallied for four runs off Tapani in the sixth, getting an RBI single from Kenny Lofton before Baerga's 11th homer of the season made it 7-4.

The Indians added a run in the seventh on Sandy Alomar's RBI single off Tapani.

A fielder's choice grounder by Scott Leius in the eighth made it 8-5.

Royals 6, Blue Jays 5

TORONTO — Vince Coleman's run-scoring single capped a two-run rally in the ninth inning that sent Kansas City to a win over Toronto, the Blue Jays' seventh straight home loss.

Trailing 5-4, Felix Jose singled leading off the ninth against Darren Hall (1-3), and stole second. With one out, Brent Mayne singled to center to bring in Jose with the tying run. Terry Shumpert's single moved Mayne to second and one out later, Coleman grounded a single to center.

Hipolito Pichardo (3-2), who had allowed the Blue Jays to take the lead in the seventh by hitting a batter with the bases loaded with his first pitch, struck out three in 1⅓ innings for the win.

Jeff Montgomery pitched the ninth for his 14th save.

Rookie Bob Hamelin hit two homers for the Royals.

John Olerud homered and Devon White drove in three runs for the Blue Jays.

Red Sox 4, Mariners 3

BOSTON — John Valentin made the 10th unassisted triple play in major-league history and then touched off a three-homer outburst by the Red Sox in the sixth as Boston defeated Seattle.

With Seattle runners moving from first and second base in the top of the sixth, Valentin went to one knee to catch a line drive by Marc Newfield. He then stepped on second base to double off Mike Blowers and trotted a few steps to tag Keith Mitchell.

It was the first unassisted triple play since Mickey Morandini made one for Philadelphia against Pittsburgh on Sept. 20, 1992. The previous one in the American League was by Ron Hansen of the Washington Senators at Cleveland on July 30, 1968.

Orioles 13, Athletics 3

BALTIMORE — Baltimore ended Bobby Witt's scoreless inning streak at 28 and stopped Oakland's five-game winning streak.

Mike Mussina (13-4) gave up a run and five hits in seven innings, walking one and striking out a season-high eight. He was working with an extra two days rest after experiencing soreness in his right shoulder.

Witt (7-8) had allowed just nine hits in throwing three straight shutouts. But after pitching a scoreless first inning, he gave up two unearned runs in the second and a three-run homer to Chris Hoiles in the third.

Pyc chokes off Angels

Staff Report

SAN ANTONIO — Mission pitcher David Pyc has seven loses in 10 decisions this year. Those figures might be different if he could face the Midland Angels every time out.

Pyc got his third win of the season here Friday in San Antonio's 4-2 triumph over the Angels. All three of the left-hander's victories have come against Midland.

The loss ruined the Angels chance to tie for first in the Texas League Western Division. They now fall two games back of San Antonio and El Paso, both 10-8, with an 8-10 mark.

Pyc threw eight innings and scattered 10 hits while striking out six.

Mission catcher Chris Abbe broke a 2-2 in the sixth inning with a solo home run off Angel starter Korey Keling. Keling gave up another run in the seventh when Chris Demetral single to center to score Vernon Spearman. He took the loss to fall to 7-6 despite surrendering three earned runs in 6⅓ innings.

The Angels scored first with two RBI doubles in the second, one from Mike Wolff and another from Jose Monzon. The first one scored Ty Boykin who had walked with one out.

The Missions evened the score in the third with the help of a throwing error by Angel second baseman J.D. Ramirez. Ramirez tried to pick off shortstop Juan Castro who was held up after rounding third on a hit by Jay Kirkpatrick. The error scored Castro and left Kirkpatrick at third. He late came home on another Demetral single.

The Angels start a 10-game home stand tonight at Christensen Stadium against the Tulsa Drillers. The Western and Eastern Division teams of the Texas League will play each other for the next 20 games. Dom Johnson (4-4) starts tonight for the Angels.

Miami quarterback Costa Jr. arrested for drunken-driving

MIAMI (AP) — Miami starting quarterback Frank Costa Jr. was arrested early today on a drunken-driving charge after leaving the scene of a rear-end collision in a fast-food drive-through lane, police said.

Costa, 21, had "a strong odor of alcohol, an inability to maintain his balance, bloodshot eyes and slurred speech," Sandra Blanco, wrote in a report.

Diablo Perez suspended

EL PASO (AP) — Outfielder Danny Perez, the Texas League's leading hitter, has been suspended indefinitely without pay by the El Paso Diablos for violating team rules, team officials say.

Perez, who was hitting .332, was suspended for missing a 1:30 a.m. team curfew in Wichita early Thursday.

"As far as I'm concerned, I don't ever want him to play for me again," Diablos manager Tim Ireland said.

Perez said he didn't intentionally violate the team's curfew, saying he was hungry and left the team hotel to get something to eat.

"I was in at 1, but I was starving, so at 2:30 I went across the street to Denny's," Perez said. "I couldn't sleep because I was hungry."

Ireland, known in baseball for his feisty temper, made it clear he didn't believe Perez.

"He's a confused and misguided individual," Ireland said.

Team owner Jim Paul said it appears likely Perez, one of the team's most popular players with the fans, would not play again this year.

Perez told the El Paso Times he felt he was being treated unfairly.

He has had several run-ins with Ireland since joining the Diablos as an outfielder early in the season. He was suspended for two days last month after another curfew violation in San Antonio.

Perez played at El Paso Hanks High School and went on to Oklahoma State University before being drafted by the Milwaukee Brewers in 1993.

The Diablos, the Class AA farm team of the Brewers, won the first half championship in the Texas League West Division and are currently tied for first with the San Antonio Missions 17 games into the second half.

Harvey's year may be at end

MIAMI (AP) — Bryan Harvey's season may be over.

The Florida Marlins' closer, who has been bothered by a groin ailment periodically since last September, will undergo surgery next week. He was examined Friday by Duke University Hospital doctors, and they recommended an operation to tighten his abdominal musclesa.

A complete recovery is expected to take six to eight weeks.

"Bryan is convinced he's going to pitch in September," general manager Dave Dombrowski said. The possibility of a strike clouds that timetable.

Harvey, who has a $3.375 million contract this season, has pitched only 10 1-3 innings.

Unser battery charge dropped

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — A felony charge of battery on a police officer against three-time Indianapolis 500 winner Bobby Unser was dismissed because of a discrepancy in a police report.

But Unser, 60, still faces three misdemeanor charges in connection with an alleged altercation with an officer at Albuquerque International Airport on May 16. Unser pleaded innocent on May 27.

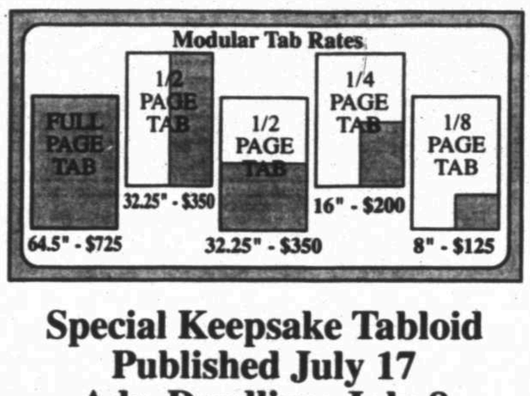

The felony charge was thrown out because the officer entered an incorrect statute number on a complaint charging Unser, said Garry Breeswine, assistant supervisor of the district attorney's Metropolitan Court division.

However, Breeswine filed charges of misdemeanor battery.

WARNING!

The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC) warns that in-line roller skating -- a popular new sport - can be hazardous if skaters do not wear helmets and other protective equipment or do not learn to skate and stop safely. As use of in-line roller skates has increased, it appears that the number of injuries also has increased.

CPSC recommends these safety tips to help prevent injries with in-line roller skates.

Wear a helmet, intended for use with skate-boards or roller skates, along with knee pads, elbow pads, and gloves.

Skate on smooth, paved surfaces without any traffic. Avoid skating on streets, driveways, or surfaces with water, sand, gravel or dirt.

Learn to stop safely using the brake pads at the heel of most in-line roller skates. With one foot somewhat in front of the other, raise the toes on the front foot and push down on the heel brake.

Do not skate at night because of your difficulty in being seen and your difficulty seeing obstacles or other skaters.

Tracy prays for rain with provisional pole

■ Cleveland GP

CLEVELAND (AP) — Paul Tracy, who could collect a $1 million bonus with a victory from the pole in Sunday's Cleveland Grand Prix, held the provisional pole after the first round of qualifying Friday.

Tracy, the defending champion, had a top lap of 143.303 mph, nearly one mile an hour off the one-lap record for the Burke Lakefront Airport course of 144.139 mph, which he set last year.

Nigel Mansell was second at 142.873 mph, followed by Emerson Fittipaldi at 142.247 mph, Indianapolis 500 winner Al Unser Jr. at 142.038 mph and Mario Andretti at 141.143 mph.

Qualifying started late Friday afternoon under skies that had threatened thunderstorms all afternoon. No rain fell, but scattered storms were expected through Saturday night.

"I'm going to do a rain dance all night," said Tracy, whose provisional pole would stand if qualifying is washed out or slowed by bad weather Saturday.

Mansell said he gave it everything he had Friday as he came perilously close to the walls around the 10-turn, 2.37-mile temporary road course.

"I was pleased. I wrung the car's neck," Mansell said. "I ran a very, very good lap but, as it seems over the last few races, never good enough."

Beating Roger Penske's Marlboro-sponsored trio of Tracy, Unser and Fittipaldi has been next to impossible this year.

"I've just accepted the fact that unless you drive for Penske this year, you're just not going to be in a position to win," Mansell said.

Tracy won the Detroit Grand Prix on June 12 and set a race record of one hour, 56 minutes, 43.678 seconds. He is halfway to collecting a $1 million bonus offered by International Management Group, the promoter of the Cleveland and Detroit races.

To collect, a driver must win both races, start from the pole in one race or the other and set a time-of-race record in one race or the other. Tracy said he felt the hard part — setting a race record — was already out of the way. And while the money might be nice, Tracy said he is looking to move up in the IndyCar standings, where he is currently sixth.

Winning the race will mean enduring 85 laps in the head and humidity on the bumpy Cleveland course.

Irvan displays no joy with track record

■ Slick 50 300

LOUDON, N.H. (AP) — Ernie Irvan's record-breaking lap on Friday at New Hampshire International Speedway wasn't one of which he was particularly proud.

With air temperatures hovering above 95 degrees and the one-mile oval taking a beating from the unrelenting sun and the 3,500-pound Winston Cup stock cars, Irvan won the pole for Sunday's Slick 50 300 with a lap of 127.197 mph.

That stole away the top qualifying spot from Jeff Gordon, who had broken Mark Martin's year-old track record of 126.871 with a lap of 126.884 early in the time trials.

"The track was breaking up," Irvan said. "It's tearing up and it tore up the last time we were up here. But we came back with a half-inch wider tire and every year we come back with more horsepower and better equipment. Those kind of things tear up racetracks.

"I just slipped a little bit less than everybody else," added Irvan, the Winston Cup point leader who also leads the series with five poles. "You can't really complain too much about your lap when you win the pole, but it definitely was not as good as I expected. But it was good enough."

Irvan, who lost by less than half a car-length to first-time winner Jimmy Spencer last Saturday at Daytona, picked up the 16th pole of his career.

"Momentum's momentum," Irvan said. "My momentum kind of got knocked in the butt last week. I've got to get something going again."

Gordon went out sixth and Irvan ninth in Friday's session.

"You could hear the track coming up as you were going around the first corner, so I knew it was going to be tricky," Gordon said. "I was hoping that going out early was going to be better than going out late. Last year, just one corner was bad. Now it's the whole track. ... You don't even want to run on the track. ... I had to run both left-side tires up on the apron to get around."

Nobody else was able to come close to Irvan's Robert Yates Racing Ford as conditions continued to deteriorate on the sizzling and humid afternoon.

Ricky Rudd was third at 126.643, followed by Bobby Labonte at 126.500 and Ken Schrader at 126.446. Martin was 10th at 125.790.

It was Ford's 14th pole in 16 tries this season.

DRUGS: Daly says top players aren't users

guys with problems, not hurt them. Plus a lot of guys would say, 'No way I want to get caught, so I'll quit.' "

Daly spoke during the Scottish Open at Gleneagles, a warmup event for next week's British Open at Turnberry.

Later Friday, he toned down his comments slightly, saying, "I don't know of anybody who does drugs on the tour, but I have heard rumors. I don't know it, but I believe it."

Daly denied that he ever used drugs.

"That's one thing my dad taught me: don't do anything illegal," he said. "Alcohol isn't."

Daly, the 1991 PGA champion, has spent time in rehabilitation clinics to treat his drinking problem.

"I never dabbled in drugs," he was quoted as saying. "I never had any interest. I was hurt when I went to rehab and people said John Daly was the only PGA player to do so. That's so out of whack. There are a lot of guys who have gone to rehab. People said I was the crazy one on the tour, but others were getting up to much crazier things than me."

Daly's remarks caused a stir among players and officials.

"John is fully entitled to express his view, but we would stress that we are not aware of any drug-related problem within the European Tour," Mike Stewart, tournament director at the Scottish Open, said.

Scottish player Gordon Brand Jr. scoffed at Daly's comments.

"It's a load of rubbish," he said. "A group of us have just been talking about it and don't know anybody who has used it."

Peter Jacobsen, a former member of the U.S. tour's policy board, said, "I've never heard the rumors, but maybe it is time to have drug-testing. Statistics prove there are guys on cocaine in all slices of life."

"While I was on the board, drug-testing was discussed, but we didn't introduce it because it was felt that if somebody had a problem they were probably not doing too well," Jacobsen said. "They are certainly not on leader boards."

At the Masters in April, Mac O'Grady caused a storm by suggesting that "at least seven of the world's top 30" might be using beta-blockers to enhance their performance. No names were mentioned then either.

"I don't know if a lot of guys are using beta-blockers but you hear rumors," Daly was quoted as saying. "I wouldn't say the top 25 or 30 are on them because they wouldn't be doing so well."

As for his drinking problem, Daly said:

"I don't think you ever beat an addiction like the one I had. You just take it day to day ... The craving's there all the time but I've been doing real well."

Joyner-Kersee still tops

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Jackie Joyner-Kersee didn't disappoint her hometown crowd at the U.S. Olympic Festival.

Joyner-Kersee, who grew up across the Mississippi River in East St. Louis, Ill., won the 100-meter hurdles Friday night in 12.69 seconds, the fastest time in the United States this year.

Her time also was a Festival record, breaking the mark of 12.76 set by Gail Devers last year.

"I know I have a job to do out there," Joyner-Kersee said beforehand. "I have to tell myself to just have fun and not listen to all those people saying how much pressure there will be to be competing at home."

Joyner-Kersee's appearance was the highlight of Friday's schedule, which also included the all-around competition in women's gymnastics, plus baseball, ice hockey and weightlifting.

Joyner-Kersee's coach and husband, Bob Kersee, had said he expected a good performance in the hurdles.

"If the competitor shows up who has been executing well, then she could have a very fast race," he said.

A capacity crowd of 9,600 turned out for women's gymnastics at the America's Center, where teammates from Colorado Springs, Colo., wound up finishing 1-2.

The gold medal went to Doni Thompson, who scored 9.85 on both the floor exercise and the uneven bars on her way to a total of 39.125. Her teammate with the Colorado Aerials, Kristy Powell, totaled 38.775 for the silver medal.

The bronze went to Jaycie Phelps of Fairfield, Ohio, who finished with 38.675.

The withdrawal of Larissa Fontaine left the all-around competition wide open. One of the favorites was Kellee Davis of Parkland, Fla., who was third at one point but fell on her mount on the balance beam and wound up ninth.

At the weightlifting venue, Chad Ikei of Honolulu got the competition started by breaking two of his own American records en route to the gold medal.

Ikei, competing in the 119-pound class, set a record with a clean-and-jerk of 281 pounds and with his total lift of 507 pounds. The previous marks were 275½ and 501½.

CUP: Action begins again

player of the tournament," Sweden coach Tommy Svensson said. "His split vision is fantastic. He's fast, technically very strong and dangerous at free kicks. He also makes other players good."

He's made the Romanians good enough to eliminate Argentina, make the quarterfinals for the first time and appear a realistic threat to win the tournament.

Hagi himself is on the track of that scent.

"I can smell our victory in the air," the midfielder said. "It's a sweet, adoring smell.

"The match against Argentina proved we can beat any team in the world. The Swedes are paper favorites, but soccer is not played on paper."

If it was, organizers would just skip Bulgaria-Germany, giving the victory to the defending champions and sending the Bulgarians home.

Naturally, the Bulgarians scoff at such suggestions.

"Germany should worry about us," coach Dimitar Penev said. "We aren't afraid of them because we know them well."

Everyone knows the Germans well. Knowing how to beat them is another matter.

Germany won its only meeting with Bulgaria in a World Cup, in 1970. In Cup qualifying matches, the Germans are 4-0 against Bulgaria.

Yates takes Tour lead

RENNES, France (AP) — Sean Yates, a Briton with the U.S-based Motorola team, captured the overall lead Friday in the Tour de France while three-time champion Greg LeMond dropped out part way through the sixth stage.

Gianluca Bortolami of Italy won the stage as the Tour returned home after a brief excursion into England.

Yates took the overall lead by one second over Bortolami.

"I didn't know that he was close so I was surprised when I was told I only had a second on Bortolami," Yates said. "It was close, but it was enough."

LeMond, meanwhile, was out of it completely. When he pulled out of the race he was 145th in the overall standings out of 185 riders, nearly nine minutes behind the leader.

■ Tour de France

He lost more than seven minutes in the past two days on some modest slopes, nothing compared to the steep climbs coming later in the Pyrenees and Alps.

The first American to win the Tour in 1986, LeMond has been plagued by fatigue the past two years.

"I am tired and don't have any energy and I don't know why," LeMond said the night before.

Lemond got off his bike at Louvigne du Desert, about 47 miles from the finish of Friday's 168-mile sixth stage between Cherbourg and Rennes.

After looking for his team car, he had to go into the "Voiture Balai" (Broom Wagon), which is required to sweep up all the dropouts. He was alone in the car, the only cyclist to drop out Friday.

It was a sorry ending for the three-time winner, who was unavailable for comment.

Following his 1986 victory, LeMond suffered a serious accidental gunshot wound. But he made an amazing recovery and won again in 1989, making up a 50-second deficit on the final time trial to win by eight seconds over Laurent Fignon in the closest finish in the Tour's history.

LeMond won his third title in 1990, dropped to seventh in 1991.

Lohr maintains Busch lead

Associated Press

■ Golf Roundup

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. — Bob Lohr confirmed the obvious in Friday's second round of the Anheuser-Busch Golf Classic.

"That 61 was a tough act to follow," Lohr said after shooting a 3-under-par 68 to maintain a three-shot edge in the $1.1 million event.

While Lohr's four-birdie, one-bogey effort paled in comparison to his opening-round gem, it was good enough to establish a new 36-hole record for the tournament on Kingsmill Golf Club's 6,797-yard layout. Lohr was at 13-under 129, one shot better than Ian Baker-Finch and Mike Donald were at the midway point of the 1991 event.

Lohr's two-round total also poised him to threaten to run away from practically the entire field. Aside from his three-shot lead over Glen Day, Lohr was at least five shots up on the rest of his pursuers.

"If it was just 18 holes to go, that would be a huge lead," Lohr said. "But with 36 left, you don't even want to think about it. Anything can happen, believe me. I'm in my 10th year out here. I've seen it all."

Day, the PGA Tour rookie who opened with a 7-under 64, came back with a 68 on Friday.

"I didn't make the putts like yesterday," he said, "but I didn't make any bad mistakes."

John Wilson, who began the round tied with Day, couldn't say the same thing. Wilson, a Nike Tour regular who is trying to establish himself on the main circuit, had two birdies, a bogey and a triple bogey on the front nine alone.

"I can go a month without hitting it out of bounds," Wilson lamented, "and all of a sudden, two in one hole."

LPGA-Toledo Classic

SYLVANIA, Ohio — A week after being hit by a stray bullet, Kim Williams shot a 68 on Friday, only two strokes back of the leaders in the opening round of the $500,000 LPGA Jamie Farr Toledo Classic.

U.S. Open champion Lauri Merten, Amy Alcott and last week's winner at Youngstown, Tammie Green, shared the lead with 66s.

Williams was shot last Saturday night as she was approaching a drug store in Niles, Ohio. She was among the leaders in the Youngstown-Warren Classic but was unable to play the final two rounds after being injured.

The bullet remained deeply imbedded in a rib after hitting Williams in the neck and traveling through her shoulder.

Williams went to the first aid room at the conclusion of Friday's round, and tournament officials said she was unable to speak to reporters.

Meg Mallon was one shot back at 67 and seven golfers joined Williams at 68, including Hall of Famer Nancy Lopez.

Laura Davies, winner of three tournaments this year, was among seven players who shot 69 on the 6,270-yard, par-71 Highland Meadows Golf Club.

Kroger Classic

MASON, Ohio — Kermit Zarley found a putting stroke to go with his long game and posted a 7-under-par 64, one shot better than DeWitt Weaver, to lead after one round of the $850,000 Kroger Senior Classic on Friday.

The Golf Course at Kings Island, a 6,628-yard layout formerly known as the Jack Nicklaus Sports Center, remained soft following a week of rain and played to the advantage of the big hitters.

Nineteen players, including defending champion Simon Hobday, had to sit out a 39-minute rain delay before they could finish. Soft greens helped 29 of the 79 players in the field break par.

Zarley leaped to the lead with birdies on the first three holes and finished without a bogey.

"After I played the front nine in 31, I started thinking about a 62," he said. "I had one last year, at Las Vegas, and sure, I was thinking about doing it again."

But he managed just two birdies on the back while Weaver got three to move within a stroke. Tom Shaw, Rocky Thompson and Jim Colbert were another stroke back at 66, and Bob Smith, Graham Marsh, Charles Coody and Larry Gilbert were at 67.

"I've been pretty pleased with the way I've been hitting the ball the past few weeks, I just wasn't making any putts," Zarley said.

Angels hand Craig Lefferts release

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — The California Angels announced Friday they have requested waivers on left-handed pitcher Craig Lefferts, a former Midland Cub, for the purpose of giving him his unconditional release.

The Angels also recalled right-hander Scott Lewis from a rehabilitation assignment and reinstated him from the 15-day disabled list.

Lefferts, 36, was 1-1 with a 4.67 ERA and one save in 30 relief appearances for the Angels.

The world according to Gump

Tom Hanks as Forrest Gump

Hanks' latest a technical marvel

By William Arnold
N.Y. Times News Service

Tom Hanks calls "Forrest Gump" the most daring film role he has ever attempted.

In an interview last year, he said the project itself was so "strange" he had no idea whether would work.

"It's basically a comedy, sort of a cross between 'Being There' and Woody Allen's 'Zelig,' " said Hanks. "But, at the same time, it's serious, and an epic — sort of a cockeyed, baby-boomer 'Gone With the Wind.' "

That's a perfect description for this unusual, funny, emotionally gripping film. It's already one of the most talked-about movies of the summer.

Based on a slightly absurd picaresque novel by Winston Groom, the title char-

Success has made Hanks only nicer

By Terry Lawson
N.Y. Times News Service

LOS ANGELES — Success has changed Tom Hanks. It was inevitable, of course. Almost universally considered one of the sweetest, most genuine and easiest interviews in the business, even when trying his very best to put a good face on dogs like "Volunteers" and "The Man With One Red Shoe," he has been increasingly altered by the string of successes since. The Academy Award nomination for "Big," the phenomenal success of last year's "Sleepless in Seattle," the Best Actor Oscar win earlier this year for his portrayal of a lawyer dying of AIDS in "Philadelphia," all of that seems to have somehow made Hanks, well, there's no other way to say this.

Nicer.

Not that Hanks has suddenly become obsequious or show-biz-fawning or anything; when he reports promptly at 9:20 a.m. on Father's Day for his interview at a Beverly Hills hotel, he retorts with cheery sarcasm when offered the obligatory Fathers Day greeting:

"And what better place to spend it?"

Kirk to meet maker

■ When the 7th "Star Trek" movie is released in November, some Trekkers may find it upsetting that Captain Kirk will be killed off as the film series passes the baton to a new generation.

LONE PINE, Calif. — Patrick Stewart knows this is history in the making. In the backyard of the mountain cabin where he is about to shoot a scene with William Shatner, Stewart arranges the director's chairs bearing their names, positioning them to best advantage against the backdrop of the snowy Sierra Nevada.

Finally satisfied, he takes out his small Chinon camera and clicks off several snapshots for posterity.

To the uninitiated, this might look like just another movie set. But to Paramount Pictures and zealous fans worldwide, "Star Trek: Generations," scheduled for a November release, is an event.

The seventh in the "Star Trek" film series, which began in 1979, 10 years after the original NBC series on which it was based went off the air, it is the first to revolve around the cast of "Star Trek: The Next Generation," the syndicated series that ended production in May after seven successful years.

The Rolling Stones' new release, 'Voodoo Lounge' is due out Tuesday.

Magic missing in 'Voodoo'

By Jon Pareles
N.Y. Times News Service

The Rolling Stones machine, an efficient harvester of rock fans' cash and attention, heaves into motion again next week with the release of "Voodoo Lounge."

With the album comes a world tour that starts Aug. 1 in Washington, along with the inevitable questions. After three decades of recording, what's left for the Stones to say or prove? The bad boys have become millionaires and pillars of the music business; the rogues are now patricians.

Can the Stones, all of them over 50 except for 47-year-old Ron Wood, still rock out?

"Voodoo Lounge" toys with those questions. The cover painting of a dancing zombie, and an inside photograph called "Satan's Play Room," with skeletons gambling, suggest that the Stones don't care if they're undead.

And three songs into the album, Mick Jagger vows, "When I finally get myself back to you, baby/ You're going to find out/ Going to scream and shout."

There is an investment waiting to be recouped with "Voodoo Lounge," the first album under the Stones' new contract with Virgin Records, which paid a reported $35 million to $45 million for three future albums and rights to 17 albums from the Stones' catalogue.

Most bands perk up when they change labels, and the Stones made appropriate choices. As co-producer of the album, with Jagger and Keith Richards, they hired Don Was, the career resuscitator of choice for baby-boomer icons ever since he turned Bonnie Raitt into a million seller.

The tour, of course, will promote the album even if the songs they'll perform include only a handful of new ones. The band is scheduled to play college campuses as well as big cities, as if hoping to regain a younger audience. In the grunge era, the Stones are still old-fashioned blues-rock-

Maybe it's time to move to a new subject

I think we may have finally reached the saturation point where the O.J. Simpson case is concerned. Everywhere you turn, there's bland testimony followed by objections and rebuttals and inadmissible evidence and people with strange names like Kato.

Patterson

I think it may be time to move on to something else.

And I think daytime TV viewers may agree that it's time to get back to more important matters at hand. Like what the heck has happened to Edmund Gray on "All My Children"? Has he gone completely bonkers or what?

Soap watchers have had to sit patiently by and watch a real-life tragedy turn mundane because of overkill. Still, the networks pipe it into our living rooms on a blow-by-blow basis as we are force-fed ream after ream of information we already knew about last week.

It's time to get back to the soaps. Unless a beautiful copy girl walks by Tom Brokaw and flirtatiously begins playing with his hair as he's interviewing a network legal expert, I don't believe you can show me anything of interest in the O.J. case anymore. We need the soaps back.

There is one good bit of news for soapaholics, though: The networks have promised that once the trial is over, all soaps will resume at the point which they left off.

So until then, ponder this: Was Edmund merely feeling scorned, or was he completely nuts, when he revealed at a dinner party that wife, Maria, had had an affair with Del, the rugged, mysterious Texan? Maybe Edmund had had an affair with Del, too, and was just jealous of Maria for shacking up with Del before he did. Of course, Maria is jealous, too (although she won't admit it), because now her sleazy sister, Julia, is trying to get Del to hop into the sack with her.

Hey, who needs reality when we can get daily doses of stuff like this?

What a sweet story about Andre Agassi and Brooke Shields. Brooke, the former companion of the shamed Michael Jackson, has been seen hanging out with the hairy tennis star lately.

But when Brooke went under the knife several weeks ago for "extensive foot surgery," she says Andre was with her "all the way."

"Even when I looked my worst and was puking," Brooke said, "he was by my side."

TREK: Shatner 'genuinely saddened' by death of trademark character

(From 1C)

The director, David Carson, a veteran of four "Next Generation" episodes, describes the film as "an action movie, a psychological drama, history and a thriller."

But what gives it Zeitgeist-altering potential is its incorporation of three of the seven characters from the original series: Scotty (played by James Doohan), Chekov (Walter Koenig) and, most notably, Capt. James T. Kirk (Shatner).

Stewart, preparing to play the scene in which his character, Capt. Jean-Luc Picard of the 24th-century Starship Enterprise, meets his 23rd-century counterpart, admits that he's mindful of the moment's significance. "There is an enormous sense of history about this," he says. "I'm acutely aware of it, maybe more than Bill."

Indeed, Shatner, who is 63, has other things on his mind: the death of the character he has played since 1966.

The plot concerns a villainous scientist, Soran (Malcolm McDowell), whose scheming may lead to the end of the universe. To aid his pursuit of Soran, Picard enlists Kirk, whom he stumbles across in a time anomaly. (Stewart, who is 53 and English, likens Picard's recognition of Kirk, whose character presumably died long before Picard's command of the Enterprise, to a modern British general recognizing a reanimated Field Marshal Montgomery from photographs.) In the process of saving the world, Kirk dies.

"I'm genuinely saddened," Shatner says. "I hadn't realized the depth of my feeling. I've taken this celebrity as Captain Kirk somewhat lightly, with no more importance than its being a wonderful acting job."

He insists the role never dominated him. "My family and I did not live with this," he says. "One time, my daughter put on my Kirk mask for Halloween. We'd look at an occasional Kirk doll and laugh."

Of course, the film makers could not have effected Kirk's on-screen death without Shatner's cooperation. Had he not agreed to return to the role, a different movie would have been made, without him.

It was about a year and a half ago that Paramount executives asked Rick Berman, executive producer of "Next Generation," to produce a motion picture using that show's cast.

The last of the six films with the original cast, "Star Trek VI: The Undiscovered Country," had been released in 1991 with the idea that the characters would be retired from battling Federation enemies, and that film exudes a bittersweet finality.

Berman suggested that the new film include at least a prologue featuring those characters, as a means of passing the baton. The story that he and the film's two screenwriters, Ron Moore and Brannon Braga, came up with went further, but included a meaty role for only one of the original characters: Kirk. Both Leonard Nimoy (Spock) and DeForest Kelley (Dr. McCoy) saw that their parts were peripheral and declined to return.

To reduce the conspicuousness of their absence, Berman selected only Doohan and Koenig of the supporting actors, not Nichelle Nichols (Uhura) or George Takei (Sulu).

"There was something about picking the biggest and the smallest, and putting them together," says Berman, referring to Scotty and Chekov. "It had nothing whatsoever to do with George and Nichelle."

Normally such casting decisions are made with sang-froid. But in the world of "Star Trek," which reaches into corners of popular culture where only Elvis has gone before, every act reverberates. Through fanzines, computer bulletin boards and frequent conventions, fans speculate, complain, conjecture and fantasize about just such subjects.

STONES: Album shows the band can still rock

(From 1C)

ers, a guitar band from the days before heavy metal.

"Voodoo Lounge" proves that the band can still rock. The lean, wiry sound of Richards and Wood on guitars, sometimes joined by Jagger, is rock distilled to essences; they don't have to rush or crank up the volume, just place chords on the precise off beats.

Another rock touchstone is Charlie Watts' unswerving, almost unembellished drumming, which is now coupled with the unobtrusive bass lines of Darryl Johnson, sitting in for the retired Bill Wyman.

Was has given the band a less booming, more natural sound than the Stones' two previous co-producers, Chris Kimsey on "Steel Wheels" (1989) and Steve Lillywhite on "Dirty Works" (1986); without the obvious electronic boost, the Stones sound more confident. Yet they're also more restrained; loose ends are all snipped away or tucked in.

Perhaps under Was' prodding, Jagger takes pains to enunciate and emote rather than slur and shout. Subtly and unsubtly, the band also capitalizes on its own familiarity.

The introduction to "Love Is Strong," the first single from the album, alludes to both the guitar syncopation of "Honky Tonk Women" and the harmonica line of "Miss You," lest anyone forget the Stones have a history.

But on "Voodoo Lounge," the Jagger-Richards songwriting team is coasting. They hoard their melodies, saving them for choruses; many of the verses are just talk-sung, presumably carried by the guitar riffs.

For much of the album, Jagger and Richards seem determined to write the most generic love songs possible. "A glimpse of you was all it took," Jagger sings in "Love Is Strong." "We are worlds apart, you see," he moans in "Moon Is Up." "Sweethearts Together" strings together cliches — "We've only just begun," "Two hearts together as one" — although the ballad tempo and the Tex-Mex accordion both signal sincerity.

There are songs begging for reconciliation (the chugging "Baby, Break It Down") and songs about inevitable breakups ("Out of Tears," a ballad that Raitt could easily remake).

Richards' tattered vocals take over for "The Worst," a warning that the singer is a bad risk, and "Thru and Thru," an uninspired conceit ("Open 24 hours/ Just waiting on a call from you") delivered not as a rock throwaway but as a wistful plea.

"Voodoo Lounge" includes one out-of-nowhere song: "Blinded by Rainbows." To a tune recalling Kris Kristofferson's "Help Me Make It Through the Night," Jagger sings about Christian redemption in a war zone; sounding smug, he seems to be criticizing victims for losing their faith.

There's no doubt that the Stones' musical reflexes will carry them on to the airwaves and through the tour. The Stones have made mediocre albums before, as in their mid-1970s slump, and rebounded too. But "Voodoo Lounge" rings hollow, as if it were made not to shake things up but simply to fuel the machine.

PATTERSON: 'Wink' pure fun

(From 1C)

This woman pukes after foot surgery? I don't believe I've ever heard of that. Do you suppose that mean she gets athlete's foot after eating a bad burger? And just exactly what is "extensive foot surgery" anyway?

Country music is being swept by an apparent wave of traditionalism. Hal Ketchum's "Tonight We Just Might Fall in Love Again," Mark Chesnutt's "Woman, Sensuous Woman," and particularly David Ball's wonderful honky-tonk "Thinkin' Problem" harken back to the format's earlier days.

Despite these traditional songs, radio seldom gets more fun than Neal McCoy's "Wink."

Listeners be careful, though: The song just topped out at No. 1 for the fourth straight week, which puts it dangerously close to overkill, ala other fun-type summer songs like "Achy Breaky Heart" and "Boot Scootin' Boogie."

Jimmy Patterson writes about radio, television and music for the Reporter-Telegram.

GUMP: Film thought-provoking

(From 1C)

acter (Hanks) is a good-natured, simple-minded Alabama boy who, like the heroes of "Being There" and "Zelig," gets through life on his childlike innocence and uncanny good luck.

The film follows him from the mid '50s to the '80s — a string of episodes in which he stumbles into being a college football star, a Vietnam War Medal of Honor-winner, a pingpong diplomat who helps open China to the West, a millionaire shrimp boat captain, and an early investor in Apple Computer.

Along the way, he can't seem to avoid running into — and interacting with — many of the major figures of his time: George Wallace (blocking the doorway of the University of Alabama), Jack Kennedy, Lyndon Johnson, Richard Nixon, Elvis Presley and John Lennon.

But he can never quite hook up with Jenny (Robin Wright), his star-crossed, sexually abused, childhood sweetheart, who pops in and out of his life. She follows the counterculture path of the great civil war of the '60s — sex, drugs, rock 'n' roll.

The movie is a technical marvel, a step even above "Jurassic Park." Its vast computer-generated crowd scenes, its seamless way of inserting its protagonist into old documentary footage and its effortless alteration of actors' bodies in several key scenes push the outer limits of visual effects.

But the movie also works on a human level, due to Hanks' extraordinary star presence. His Forrest Gump is not so much a great performance — the Alabama accent is only serviceable, and he often seems to be ripping off his own work in "Big" — as it is a testimony to his magical ability to make an audience sympathize with him. (I haven't seen so much bawling at the emotional conclusion of a movie since "Love Story.")

And "Forrest Gump" is also a special triumph for director Robert Zemeckis ("Back to the Future," "Who Framed Roger Rabbit"), long dismissed as a Steven Spielberg protege and never given the critical respect he deserves. Zemeckis proves with this movie that no director in Hollywood is more adept at blending drama, quirky comedy and dazzling special effects to make a highly original and thought-provoking entertainment.

HANKS: Post-'Splash' choices seemed poor

(From 1C)

But if Hanks would rather be home with his kids, whom he says gifted him with a "beautiful hand-painted coffee mug and three cheap — but beautiful — Timex watches," he's still gracious with both his time and attention, and apparently genuinely interested in talking about his post-Oscar life, which he allows "couldn't possibly be any better." One of the things conspiring to make it so darned good is his first film since "Philadelphia," which is called "Forrest Gump" and which opened nationally this week.

Based on a well-received 1984 comic novel by Winston Groom, it has Hanks playing the title character, a good-natured fellow with an IQ in the seventies, who, despite his lack of measurable intelligence, manages to become an inspiration of Elvis, a star player for Bear Bryant's Crimson Tide, a Vietnam War hero, a member of the ping-pong team that helped open relations with a China, and a bizillionaire. Along the way he meets three presidents, becomes a national celebrity, and is eye-witness to much of the tumult and tragedy of the '50s, '60s and '70s. Yet somehow, he keeps his head, his temper and his dignity, becoming a kind of symbol of the survival, if not the triumph, of innocence.

"I don't think there's really any big message that comes out of this," says Hanks, "other than as a nation, we've been through a lot. After all of Forrest's triumphs and tragedies, what's the most important thing to him at the end of the day? It's to let his kid know that he loves him. That's a good message, I think.

"One of the best lines that comes out of Forrest's mouth is when in college, Jenny (the object of his affection and adoration since childhood, played by Robin Wright) asks him 'What do you want to be, Forrest?' And he answers 'Want to be? Aren't I gonna be me?'"

For his part, Hanks seems to have learned the lesson well, remaining himself throughout a career that in his own generous assessment, has "had some ups and downs." It began in earnest when he appeared in a production of "The Cherry Orchard" while attending California State, and met director Vincent Dowling, who recruited him for the Great Lakes Shakespeare Festival in Cleveland. After appearing in a number of Great Lakes productions, winning a local critics award for Best Actor, and developing a serious affection for the Cleveland Indians (he says his only regret of the past year is that he hasn't had time to visit Jacob's Field), he moved on to New York and then to Los Angeles, where he was to land the role in the sitcom Bosom Buddies, which led to an eventful feature debut in "Splash."

Thoughtful Moments™

Bouquets

I plucked a bunch of daisies
As the morning sun arose,
Sun-filled and touched by heaven,
And each was glad I chose

To share them with my neighbor,
Who always thought it best
To get bouquets while living,
Instead of when at rest.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

■ Church offers theater workshop

The Company, a touring fine arts team from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary, will lead a workshop on the basics of acting, staging, stage movement and script writing from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., July 16, at Alamo Heights Baptist Church, 1305 N. Midland Drive.

Cost is $10 and participants will be offered the opportunity to perform with The Company in a sketch during the 7 p.m. worship July 16.

In addition, The Company also will perform at 11 a.m. July 17 at Alamo Heights Baptist Church.

"I've seen about a dozen Christian theater performance groups, but none has had a better balance of talent and commitment to Christ than The Company," said Ben Condray, the church's pastor. "We hope that this workshop will provide a spark to churches with a working drama ministry in our community and will give other churches an incentive to start one. Reaching people for Christ through the arts has been an effective means for centuries."

A nursery will be provided through age 3 for both worship services. The public is invited to attend.

■ Program to focus on Islam

The Unitarian-Universalist Church, Midkiff Road at Neely Ave., will host a program entitled "Islam: Philosophy and Practice" at 10 a.m. Sunday.

Ehdaie

Dr. Seyf-Ollah Ehdaie, assistant to the vice president for academic affairs, planning officer and director of institutional research at The University of Texas of the Permian Basin, will be the speaker.

He taught engineering, chemistry and natural science courses at UT Permian Basin, as well as a petroleum engineering course for UT Austin. He joined the UT Permian Basin faculty in December of 1982. He also taught at Tehran University of Science and Technology.

A native of Iran, Ehdaie has a doctorate degree in electrochemical engineering from Southhampton University, Britain, where he was chosen as the Iranian Government Scholar 1975-78. He was awarded the Exxon Education Foundation Grant in 1988.

His professional experience includes diplomatic service as the charge de affairs of the Iranian Embassy in London as well as numerous international endeavors in engineering, chemistry and project management.

Ehadie has served as a consultant for major oil companies, the City of Odessa and North American Brine Control, Laguna Beach, Calif. His articles have been published by professional journals, and several of his scientific reports are proprietary projects for the British government or major oil companies.

He and his wife, Jinna, have two children. The public is invited to hear him speak.

■ Church calls man to mission

Rigtrup

Chad Lewis Rigtrup, son of Newell and Coleen Rigtrup, has been called to serve a mission for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

He will serve for two years in the Washington Tacoma mission. Rigtrup is a graduate of Midland High School where he participated in football and track. He has been attending Texas Tech University where he is majoring in pre-optometry. He is an Eagle Scout.

■ First Baptist has new pastor

The Rev. Richard Jackson begins serving as interim pastor at First Baptist Church this month.

Jackson

Jackson was born Aug. 3, 1938, in Fort Worth, the son of a Baptist minister. Upon graduation from Grapevine High School, he entered Howard Payne University, Brownwood, graduating in May 1960 with a bachelor of arts degree. He then attended Southwestern Baptist theological Seminary, Fort Worth, where he received a master of divinity degree.

He received an honorary doctor of divinity by both Grand Canyon University and his alma mater, Howard Payne. He has received the Distinguished Alumnus Award from Grapevine High School, Howard Payne and Southwestern Baptist Theological seminary. Jackson has served as president of the Arizona Southern Baptist Convention.

Having been ordained to the gospel ministry at 19, Jackson has invested 35 years in pastoring local churches. His pastorates include Concord Baptist Church, Banks; Calvary Baptist Church, May; Bluffdale Baptist Church, Bluffdale; Henderson Street Baptist Church, Cleburne; First Baptist Church, Sulphur Springs; and, for 25 years, North Phoenix Baptist Church, Phoenix.

In the years Jackson was pastor of North Phoenix Baptist Church, in an area of the country still referred to as "pioneer missions," the membership grew from less than 1,000 to 22,000.

Now retired from active ministry, Jackson bases his evangelistic ministry out of the Jackson Center for Evangelism and Encouragement, which is in the process of relocating to Howard Payne University. The center offers classes and seminars for clergy and laity in areas of spiritual growth and church development.

Jackson and his wife, Wanda, have three grown children.

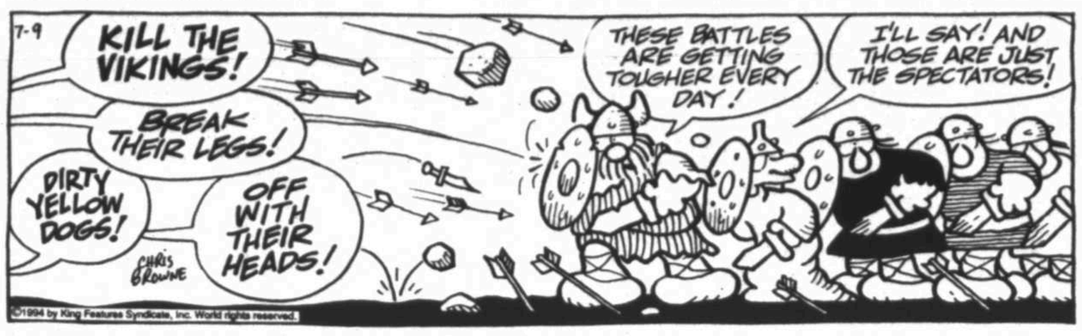

Service times at First Baptist are 8:20, 9:40 and 11 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. Sunday.

Talk-show host Larry King sues woman for 'dumped him' remark

LOS ANGELES — Talk-show host Larry King filed a slander lawsuit against a former girlfriend who told a magazine she dumped him.

The lawsuit said Rama Fox was the source for a line in the July issue of Washingtonian Magazine that said, "In King's relationships, he usually does the dumping, but Fox dumped him."

King's attorney, James Tierney, said the article holds King up to ridicule and damages his reputation. The lawsuit said the article also damaged King "by imputing to him impotence or a want of chastity."

King, married, is seeking unspecified damages. He also seeks to recover $50,000 that he and Fox were going to use to purchase a home together and disputes a claim that he agreed to give Fox $400,000, Tierney said.

King also asks in the lawsuit for Fox to return some of his clothing and other personal property.

NEW YORK — What's in a name? Nothing, if you're TV's Roseanne Arnold or rock music's former Prince.

Roseanne Arnold wants to drop her last name.

The star of ABC's "Roseanne" has called it quits with comedian-husband Tom Arnold and wants to drop her last name and be known just as Roseanne.

She asked the Los Angeles-based Academy of Television Arts & Sciences this week that any mention of her in the July 21 Emmy nominations refer to her simply as Roseanne. The academy will honor her request, spokesman Mark Rosch said Friday.

As for the former Prince, he said he changed his name to an unpronounceable symbol so that he could move on to the next stage of his musical development.

Vibe asked the former Prince how one pronounces his new name.

"You don't," he replied.

"Prince did retire. He stopped making records because he didn't need to any more," (Symbol) said in the August edition of Vibe magazine.

ATLANTA — Did he take notes? Former President Bush toured former President Carter's library as he makes plans for his own archives.

Carter, who was in Japan, had written a note inviting Bush to visit the complex, a Carter spokeswoman said. Bush visited Thursday.

"He's here because he's in the process of raising funds for his library and center, and he wants to take a look at what we're doing here," said Don Schewe, director of the Carter library and museum.

GARY, Ind. — A little-known 1967 release by the Jackson 5 stayed buried in a kitchen pantry until family friend Ben Brown began assembling a history of the famous family.

Friend finds tapes by a 5-year-old Michael Jackson.

Brown was looking through his parents' pantry when he found the master tapes of "I'm a Big Boy Now" by a 5-year-old Michael Jackson and his brothers.

The song sold 10,000 copies 27 years ago. Brown began offering it by mail Friday to fans who missed it the first time. He insists it's an artistic project, not a commercial one.

"Kids love it," said Brown, who met the Jacksons in 1967 as president of the now-defunct Steeltown Records, where the song was recorded. "Philosophically, it's about moving from childhood to adolescence."

NEW YORK — The arranger of the late Nat King Cole's classic "Unforgettable" will finally get credit for the high-tech duet with daughter Natalie, a record company said.

Elektra Records said this week all future manufacturing runs and promotions for the Grammy Award-winning version of the song will credit Nelson Riddle as the arranger.

ABERDEEN, Wash. — Krist Novoselic, Nirvana's bass player, said he will knock down a planned statue of the late Kurt Cobain if it's erected in a park in their hometown.

In a letter faxed to the The Daily World newspaper, Novoselic said he was appalled that sculptor Randi Hubbard is working on a life-size statue of the group's former lead singer, who committed suicide April 8 at his Seattle home.

A statue would only become "a shrine for idolaters to prostrate themselves in front of and a beacon for reactionaries to shake their fists at while cursing," said the letter, sent Wednesday.
