HIGH SCHOOL BUILDING PRACTICALLY FINISHED.

The Eagle reporter had the pleasure, Wednesday morning, to accompany J. C. Ray, contractor, through the new school building which is receiving the finishing touches this week.

Those who have not had occasion to go through this magnificent building cannot realize what we have here in the way of a building for the education of the boys and girls of this county.

The building composed of fifteen class rooms, commodious, well lighted and arranged according to the very latest approved plans, a superintendent's office, book store room, auditorium that will seat over 500, conveniently arranged sanitary drinking fountains, toilets and lavatories and a steam heating plant of the first class.

While the arrangements appeared practically ideal to the writer of this article, and the finish outside and in, is most attractive, Mr. Ray states that several serious obstacles had to be overcome and the arrangement was not as satisfactory as he would have made, if it had not been necessary to build the new part to conform to the old building.

Mr. Ray estimates that the old building was worth around $20,000 which, with the $45,000 spent from the bond money, and the $10,000 donated by Capt. Chas. Schreiner, give to Junction an educational institution worth over $75,000. Those who are in a position to know, state that the $45,000 spent on the building was judiciously used by the trustees and contractor, and that compared with buildings in other towns, has a few thousand margin over the usual value of buildings of this kind.

This institution is one every man, woman, boy and girl should be proud of and should take a pride in maintaining in its present state of attractiveness.

School will open Monday week and a well qualified corps of teachers have been employed, who, with the co-operation every citizen should give, will give Junction the best school year in its history.

PROPER TREATMENT ELIMINATES WORMS.

Proper treatment of stomach worms in sheep will eliminate them from the flock and will not endanger the raising of winter lambs, according to a letter from C. C. French, industrial agent of the Fort Worth Stock Yards. He writes:

"Sir Arnold Theiler, director of veterinary research, Victoria, who was knighted for the good work he has done, was at the meeting of the veterinarians in Texas at College Station recently.

"His subject in part was 'Stomach Worms in Sheep.' From his lecture, it seems that if sheep are treated once every 28 days for one year, the worms will be entirely eradicated from the premises and not return, unless other infected sheep are brought on the place.

"The fear of stomach worms has kept many small farmers from keeping a small herd of sheep, from which to raise winter lambs."—San Angelo Standard.

Services the balance of this week, including Sunday morning and night, by Rev. J. J. Ray Pastor of the Christian Church of Mason, will be held at the Episcopal Church. The public generally is cordially invited.

MANY CASES DISPOSED OF BY DISTRICT COURT.

The September term of the District Court opened here Monday and after empanelling the Grand Jury, the Judge took up non-jury cases.

Several cases were heard and judgments rendered plaintiffs. Some dozen or more were continued for service. Court recessed at noon until Tuesday, out of respect to Elder John S. Durst, whose body was buried that afternoon.

The first bill found by the present Grand Jury was returned Monday against F. W. Hanson. Defendant was brought into court and bond set at $1,500.

The petit jury was empaneled Tuesday morning. The case of the State vs. Ira Shroyer, charged with selling intoxicating liquor was first. The case was tried; the defendant plead guilty and was given one year suspended sentence.

F. W. Hanson and Juan Sazar each plead guilty to violating the prohibition laws and were each given one year suspended sentence.

H. T. Cross was given a three years' suspended sentence for attempted arson.

The case of the State vs. W. T. Bishop was called for trial Wednesday morning. The regular jury for the first week was exhausted after eight jurors were accepted, and the sheriff was ordered to summon fifteen takersmen for jury service. The jury was completed about noon and the case started and was still in progress as this paper goes to press.

Up to Wednesday four bills of indictment had been returned.

$18,000 BONDS VOTED FOR LONDON SCHOOL.

The London and Red Creek school districts were recently consolidated by the voters of these two communities, and on Monday of last week the voters of the new district showed their desire for first class educational facilities by carrying a bond issue for $18,000 by a substantial majority.

While only tentative plans have been made for the erection of their building, pending the approval and sale of the bonds, the intention of the school board is to build a structure containing eight rooms and an auditorium, which will be adequate to take care of the school needs for several years.

J. C. Ray, who has just completed the fine $45,000 school building at Junction, has drawn the plans for the London building and will doubtless be given the contract when the bonds are approved and sold.

The school board is composed of W. W. Barrett, president; J. F. Gentry, J. R. Hamilton, C. E. Lambert, A. J. Ivy, E. F. Amason and J. A. McCallum.

The Segovia school began Monday of this week with A. J. Bierschwale as principal and Miss Merle Blackburn as assistant. Mr. Bierschwale taught this school two years ago and last year was a member of the Junction High School faculty. He is a very efficient school man and with the assistance of Miss Blackburn, who is a Junction High School graduate of a year or two ago, Segovia is assured of a very successful school term.

Another good shower fell at Junction Tuesday and in scattered sections of the country a good rain fell. People coming from Kerrville reported a heavy rain from Kerrville to the county line.

ELDER JOHN S. DURST PASSES AWAY SUNDAY.

Hundreds of friends throughout this entire section of the State were made sad last Sunday when the death of John Sterling Durst was announced.

For several months Mr. Durst had been in ill health and had recently gone to Houston for an operation, but was advised that nothing could be done for him, and he returned home to pass his last few days with his friends with whom he has labored so long.

Deceased was born in the Old Port at Nacogdoches, October 20, 1841, his father having been a pioneer of that section, where, at the outbreak of the Mexican war, he was a representative from Texas at Monclova, which was then the capital of the Mexican State of which Texas was a part. He had also been an Alcalde under the Mexican government. A few years later, the family moved to what is now Leon County and the father of the deceased named that county when it was organized in 1846, for Captain Alonzo de Leon.

At the outbreak of the Civil War Mr. Durst volunteered his services to the Confederacy and served throughout the war as a captain. At the end of this struggle, he took up his ministerial work and for more than sixty years he has been active as a minister in the Church of Christ.

In 1880, he came to Kimble County where he resided until his death. At this time there few settlements in this part of the State, and in the forty-four years that he has lived here, he has taken a part in the carving of the present day civilization by an active interest in educational, civil and religious affairs.

In the early days he carried the gospel into the remotest parts of this section of the State and is known to the early settlers for a radius of many miles.

In 1876, Elder Durst married Miss Lilla Kittrell, and to them were born five children, all of whom survive: Mrs. Norma Farmer, of Junction; Miss Austin, K. G., and S. O. Durst, of Junction, and Leon Durst of Kansas City. Mrs. Fannie Putegnat of Brownsville and John M. Durst who died here some six years ago, were children by a former marriage.

The funeral services were conducted at the Junction cemetery where interment was made. All the children, except Leon, and Mrs. Putegnat were here at the time of their father's death.

Rev. Wesley Hoover of Eden conducted the services and W. C. Bradshaw read a final statement written by the deceased just before his death.

One of the largest crowds ever attending a funeral service here, was present Monday. Dis-

DO THESE CHANGES APPEAL TO YOU?

As the beginning of another school year is near at hand, parents will naturally give more attention to the school in which their children are being educated. A great many have thought that there was something wrong with our educational system, but could offer no concrete remedy for the defects.

Our system is gradually changing from the mere study of books to a sort of fifty-fifty idea in which an effort will be made to give the child enough practical experience in the line of his chosen work in life to enable him to make the best use of the theory he gets from books.

The following which was clipped from an exchange recently may meet the need:

"To make the public school system both elementary and higher education, attain its usefulness to the American people, three things are quite important."

"First, extend industrial education until about one-half the time is spent on textbooks and the other half on learning trades and making boys and girls useful citizens."

"Second, establish a public school savings system where every child will learn as early in life as possible to accumulate small savings instead of leaving to spend money faster than they can earn it."

"Third, sell school bonds direct to tax payers in small denominations and keep the interest money at home among the people that pay the bills."

"With these slight reforms put into effect the public educational system might save our country from becoming a nation of soft-handed, white-collared non-producers."

GRAND JURY EMPANELED; WORK STARTED TUESDAY

District Court for the September term opened at nine o'clock Monday with Judge J. H. McLean on the bench.

The Grand Jury was empaneled and the judge's charge delivered before noon.

Organization was perfected, and recess taken until Tuesday morning. Will Emsley and R. E. Furr were appointed riding bailiffs and Frank Smith door bailiff.

C. R. Bierschwale is foreman of the Grand Jury which is composed of the following: E. F. Furr, W. L. Gibson, Will Amaon, Tate Jarvis, Alfred Banowsky, J. F. Ragsdale, C. B. Hardeman, W. B. Buster, Lee Lowry, Frank Bissett, and Guy Cummins.

IMPORTANT!

All members of the different committees connected with the Kimble County Fair to be held this month are urgently requested to meet with the executive committee at the State Bank, Tuesday night, September 9th.

This is important, and your attendance is necessary if we are to make a success of the Fair, and final arrangements must be worked out that night. Don't forget it!

Mrs. Alex J. Hamer was called to Roscoe last Thursday to be with her sister, Mrs. J. O. Davis, who is ill. Mr. and Mrs. Bill Hamer accompanied her and returned Sunday. John Braley who is a brother of Mrs. Davis went to Roscoe Saturday.

District Court recessed for the occasion and many friends of the family from neighboring towns were here.

COMMERCIAL CAMPS HAVE SUCCESSFUL SEASON.

R. S. Price, a traveling salesman, a little more than a year ago, purchased a fine little camp site from N. C. Patterson about a mile up the South Llano from town, and immediately began preparations for building a modern tourist camp. six well built cottages, a number of floored and screened tents and plenty of camping space were provided.

A little later V. B. Hardeman began the erection of four substantial and attractive camp houses, ranging from one to three rooms, on the Hardeman and Estes ranch, nine miles up the river and named it "The South Llano Springs Camp." In addition, Mr. Hardeman arranged fine camping space for those who did not care to rent cottages.

The patronage that these two camps have received the first season demonstrates beyond any possible doubt that such camps can be successfully maintained, and that they are profitable to the owners as well as providing convenient and comfortable accommodations for the many tourists who come here. The Hardeman Camp has one of finest springs to be found along the river and the houses are located on a high bluff, overlooking the river.

Price's Camp has become a very popular gathering place for local people on account of its location near the city and the fine swimming pool with all kinds of spring boards, swings, bath houses, chute the chute, etc., and every afternoon for several weeks the parking space around the bathing place has been at a premium. Many parties are given there, as tables and benches have been arranged on a bluff overlooking the river, for the free use of the campers or town people.

More camps are needed, and no doubt will be built by another year, and these two will probably be enlarged to take care of the increasing number of tourists.

ROCKSPRINGS NEWS FROM THE LEADER.

As advertised, the bids were opened at Leakey Tuesday on building 18 miles of the Rockspings-Kerrville highway across the north part of Real County. Mason Johnson, local engineer, informs the Leader that the Bart Moore Construction Company of Waco was awarded the contract, their bid being $4,500. This is for grading the road and for building drainage structures. It develops that there is still insufficient funds available to complete this piece of work. The top surfacing is to be put on when the Highway Department has a new supply of road funds, possibly by the time the grading and drainage structures are completed. Douglas Pope, the Kimble County resident engineer under W. E. Simpson, will have charge of the engineering work on the Real highway.

A meeting of local citizens was held in the parlor of the Dismuke Confectionery Thursday night for the purpose of nominating officers for the new Rockspings city government. About 17 citizens were present and a mayor and five aldermen and marshals were nominated as follows: J. N. Lockley for mayor; A. E. Buswell, W. T. Day, H. Fleisher J., J. L. Valentine and J. E. Rogers for aldermen; and Page Carson for town marshal. The officers are to serve without pay. J. H. Boyce presided over the convention.

Sallie's Temptations

MEETING MR. WRIGHT —WOMAN HATERS.

I dressed liesurely and with unusual care. I always enjoyed getting into my filmy silken underthings. Then I stood and surveyed my evening frocks. I decided that I would choose the most sophisticated of them all. I decided on an orchid georgette starred with rhinestones that glistened like fireflies as I moved. A scarf of violet tulle with wispy ostrich ends and a bandeau of brilliants for my bob completed my attire.

Marjorie had said that Curtiss Wright, who was dining with my father, was an impenetrable person who disliked all modern girls. It did not make the slightest difference to me what Mr. Wright thought, but the challenge from Marj. was too much for my pride.

I heard Johnson let them in the front door and then voices in the hall. First I had thought of letting them find me curled up cozily on the chaise-longue in the sun-parlor, yet maybe that pose would be too suggestive of the clinging vine. So I decided to burst in on them. Besides, walking down the steps that led into the living room was always effective. I had tried it, with satisfactory results, before.

"Sallie!" exclaimed Father, rising and coming forward, "this is a pleasure seldom bestowed upon your dotting old Dad. I am especially glad you decided to grace the table tonight because I have brought Mr. Wright home." He turned to the tall, immaculately groomed person standing at his side.

"Mr. Wright, this is my daughter."

The guest bent low over my hand, with an air that was courtly, but the exaggeration of the movement was tinged with satire.

"Oh, I say, Wright, would you like a drink?" Father broke in at the wrong moment. "I've some excellent whiskey, or maybe you'd prefer a little rum?"

Mr. Wright accepted and they moved over to Father's corner cabinet. In a moment Johnson appeared, in answer to Father's summons, with the interesting paraphernalia for making highballs.

I felt the need of a little boost myself, after the drinks I had had with Ted the night before, and must have looked longingly, for while Father was fussing around the table Mr. Wright came over to me. "Are you joining us?" he inquired in a low voice.

"Father would pass out of the picture if I did," I answered, "but I certainly need something to pick me up."

"Can you suggest any way that I might be of service?" Although he was perfectly gallant in his faultless manner, I felt that he was laughing at me.

"Oh, it isn't a matter of life or death," I said flippantly. "I guess I can survive."

I turned toward the radio and in a minute the room was flooded with the soft melody of a hushed orchestra playing a fox-trot.

"Good, Sallie, we'll have music with our meals," Father said jovially, coming over to me and pinching my cheek. "Wright she's a mighty fine little girl."

I was furious with Father and for the first time in my life, his "little girl" attitude irritated me beyond words. He might just as well have stripped off my dashing evening gown and clothed me in a pinafore—I hated to be made ridiculous in the eyes of Mr. Wright, whose whole manner stamped him as a man of the world.

Dinner was announced. I was glad I had used candles for they create an interesting atmosphere. I can remember my mother having often said that any woman was more alluring in their radiance and that many romances were born under their faint and mellow glow.

"What's the program for tonight?" Father asked.

"A dance at Willow Branch

Club, Alma Davis' dance for her visitor. Then later I'm hoping that some of the crowd will go to Gong's and get chow mein."

"Sallie, dear," Father began, "do you think you should be going about to these funny Chinese places at all hours of the night? I saw where chop-suey house was raided a few nights ago because, as the paper had it, some of the 'society buds' and their escorts had been going there and smoking opium in search of a new thrill. I know the place you go couldn't be anything like that and of course there's always a chap-erone."

"Certainly, Father, and hoop-skirts! For they go hand-in-hand."

"Why, Sallie, what do you mean?" demanded Dad.

Before replying I noticed that Mr. Wright, though he had remained silent, was interested in the conversation.

"Just exactly that, dear old fogie. Chap-erones aren't good this season—we aren't a bunch of kids, you know, Father, and we are perfectly capable of taking care of ourselves." It wasn't often that I talked so plainly to Dad, but I was determined that Mr. Wright should not be under the impression that I was a child.

"Sallie, Sallie, of course I trust you, my dear," agreed Father. "I expect you to use your own good judgment about such things, only please use discretion. Please don't misunderstand me, now, daughter, I know you do none of the things we hear gossiped about town."

"As a rule, most of that is propaganda inaugurated by reformers who are past the age of being tempted themselves, don't you think?" suggested Mr. Wright.

Whether he thought so or not it was the polite thing, at that moment, for him to have said. However, his remark was surprising because, from what Marjorie had said, one would have thought he was in sympathy with the "gossips."

"Miss Sallie," Johnson appeared at my side. "There's a gentleman to see you. I told him you were all at dinner, but he said he had to see you at once, ma'am."

(Concluded next week.)

POLO TOURNAMENT

(Too Late For Last Issue.)

Thursday of last week the Copperas polo team composed of Ed Bode, Herbert and Ernest Simon and with Smith and Hill alternating as fourth man, met the Rocksprings boys at the Watson Divide club grounds. The score was 6 to 2 in favor of Copperas, Bode and Herbert Simons starting for the victors. Big crowd of spectators, supper on the ground.

Next day Rocksprings again hit the dust at the hands of the Watson Divide team No. 1, captained by "Old Felix" Watson, with Milton Farrington, Ed Barfield and Sam Nance assisting; Nance leading in fanck and steady hitting. The score was 5 to 2.

Then Copperas, flushed with their victory of the day before, took on the Watson Divide Red Shirts. Joe Watson, Orville and Marvin Cowser and Otis Cardwell. Horse races, heavy hitting and hard riding were the features in this game. For a long time the score was 1 to 2, with Copperas threatening to tie the score. Bode and Herbert Simon again starred, with the other members playing good polo. When this team develops a No. 1 that will stay in his place on the opposing No. 4, it will be a team hard to beat. The final score was 5 to 1 in favor of the Red Shirts. Marvin Cowser, with his usual good judgment and level head, was the star for the Divide, leading his team mates with three scores.

These teams will meet again on the Copperas grounds, which will give Copperas the advantage, and the game will probably be a battle royal worth seeing.

Austin, Aug. 30.—Upon his return Saturday from a tour of inspection of the penitentiary farms and a survey of crop conditions, Governor Patt M. ASSOCIATION

Some months ago a page advertisement was run in one of our home papers with the heading "Are You Fair to Your Home Town Merchant?" Someone took us to task for that, asking "Is the Home Town Merchant fair to the Country Producer?" Stating that very often the merchants tell the country producers that they cannot handle their butter for they are using the Out-of-Town brand; or they can't buy your eggs today for they buy eggs from only one or two country producers; they can't handle their vegetables for they have just gotten in some from San Antonio. By all means we urge the home town merchant to patronize the country producer; the people who are the backbone of our country but there are two sides to the question. For instance, where is the housewife who in buying butter, does not ask for a brand that she knows to be strictly A-1, or who does not want to buy eggs where she is getting only fresh eggs? Perhaps the merchant ran out of vegetables just when he needed them in a hurry and not being able to get them at home, phoned some commission house to send them on the next train. At any rate, there is the merchant's side of the problem. So in asking the question, "Are you fair?", let us consider both sides and make allowances. Let us ask "What would I do if I were producer, or, if I were the merchant?"—Beeville Bee.

Whatever else it may mean, the result of the primary last Saturday is, as we see it, evidence that a large majority of the people of Texas are "agin" the Ku Klux Klan as a political factor in state politics. It is also a complete vindication and exoneration of James E. Ferguson, who was convicted by the State Senate, sitting as a high court of impeachment, in 1918. As Sun-of-a-Gun acquiesced in the first place, so he does in his second verdict. As we see it, there is but one righteous thing for the next Senate to do, and that is to set at naught the former verdict. My democracy has always taught me that in a democracy the people should rule. When a question is up for discussion every free man has a right to his opinion and to exercise his own best judgment. The highest court in political matters is the people, and their will should be obeyed.—San Saba News.

The man who falls out with his neighbor in political campaigns can't see very far ahead. When the election is over you are going to live in the same community, so why let your zeal for a candidate, possibly a man you do not know personally, exceed your better judgment? Just remember that your friends are worth a great deal more to you than the man whose cause you champion for political office. We do what we can to advance the interest of our political friends, but we do not do that to the extent that we sacrifice our personal friends.

Friends is the greatest asset a man can possess in this world. We like to see men, when they differ on public matters, air their differences in a friendly manner and then forget it. Men who cannot do this are not as generous as they should be. Marble Falls Messenger.

Change of Life

"When change of life began on me," says Mrs. Lewis Lisher, of Lamar, Mo., "I suffered so with womanly weakness. I suffered a great deal of pain in my back and sides. My limbs would cramp. I didn't feel like doing my work, and there are so many steps for a woman to take on a farm. I was very anxious to get better. A friend recommended to me and I began using it. I certainly improved. I went through change of life without any trouble. I can highly recommend Cardui. At the age of about 40 to 50 every woman has to pass through a critical time, which is called the Change of Life. At this time, great changes take place in her system, causing various painful and disagreeable symptoms. If you are approaching this period, or are already suffering from any of its troubles or symptoms, take Cardui. It should help you, as it has helped others. Sold by all druggists. B-22

Personal to Robert Jr.

IT CAME Addressed "personal" to Robert, Jr.—a letter from the bank where he had deposited from time to time, money earned at mowing lawns, shoveling snow, and running errands. A letter, in the life of little folks is quite an event, and Robert was duly impressed.

Opening it, he studied its contents quite closely, slowly reasoning his way through the message it bore. Finally a smile of delight spread over his face. Right then was character made; the first molding of a trait which perhaps would influence his whole life. A lesson had been taught. He had learned that income could be had through the practice of thrift.

The letter was nothing more than a credit slip for interest on his money deposited in a savings account. To Robert, it was an unexpected deposit, money which he had not had to earn. His money was working for him. His incentive to increase his account was accelerated ten fold.

Ben. Franklin said: "Instill Thrift; instill it young." Is your boy or girl being encouraged in such worthy effort?

OUT OF ENGLAND INTO THE HILL COUNTRY.

(Kerrville Mountain Sun.)
In the year of 1879, James Spicer, a young English artist, his health impaired by many years of study in Paris and other European art centers, arrived in the Hill Country of Texas seeking that which he had squandered in the zeal and enthusiasm of his profession. A year later, this climate apparently agreeing with him and his health improving greatly, he was joined by his wife and two children. Mrs. Spicer, although a Canadian by birth, had been reared in England, and the two children, now Mrs. Emil A. Loeffler of Junction and Mrs. Harry Crum of Oklahoma, were born on British soil.

The family located in what is now the city of Kerrville, where they resided for some 20 years, when they removed to a ranch in the Turtle Creek community, where Mr. and Mrs. Spicer, their children all grown and away from the parental home, in their declining years, view with satisfaction the history of the years gone and what they have brought forth.

They view with pride this glorious country which they had been permitted to help wrest from a wilderness into the highly populated and cultivated land of today; they think of the children they have sent out from the home to become part of the citizenship of this nation and their eyes fill with tears as they think of their son who gave his life in the World War for this country and the native country of his parents.

With people such as these was the foundation of the citizenship of the Hill Country begun, for the Spicers were followed from England, Ireland and Scotland by an almost constant stream of subjects of the British Empire, some coming for the benefit of their health, others with a view of financial wealth to be wrested from the great undeveloped resources of the country the first arrivals had written about. Beginning with 1880, and continuing up to the present time, citizens of the British Empire have continued to come to the Hill Country. They have not all remained here however. Some, tiring of the hardships of the pioneer life they were forced of necessity to lead, in the early days, pitting their experience against great odds that were formerly encountered in the ranching business, have been compelled to seek their native land and pursuits with which they were more familiar. Some have drifted to other sections of the United States, while a great many of these sturdy pioneers have passed to their reward and their ashes rest in the bosom of the country which they helped convert from a wilderness into a land of plenty.

It is almost impossible to gather sufficient data to cover the entire list of English-born citizens of the Hill Country, but their offsprings form a large part of the present generation of this section of the country. Possibly The Sun has missed some of the early settlers in this story, if so, it was unintentional and due to the fact that no records have been kept regarding same. The only information obtainable regarding these old families was contained in the minds of some of the old timers themselves and to a few of them The Sun is indebted for information here chronicled.

From those early days of the country's settlement down to the present the following names of English subjects are remembered: Nat Atcheson, Captain Bunbury, Robert Burns, Dr. E. E. Palmer, Major MacDonald, his three sons-in-law, Page, Davis and Brower, Adam Wilson, Alec Auld, Tom Frayne Sr., his son, Tom Jr., Rev. Hole, his sons-in-law Jim Taylor, L. E. King, Ernest Roper, Guy Taylor, Howard G. Lacey and brother, W. F. Lacey, Charles and Herbert Brent, John Blackett, Jack Thompson, Percy Lawrence, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Baker, Mr. and Mrs. James Spicer and 2 daughters, Jim Paterson, Willoughby and Dick Montgomery, Captain Smith, Mike Quigley, Pat Tracey, Ed Creighton, T. O. Codrington, George Peterson, C. S. Coppock, John Williams, Taylor and Whitewood, Walter Tarr, Jack Elliott, Richard and Tom Holdsworth, Bailey, Hal and Archie Hotchkiss, Grasset, Captain G. K. Gordon, A. L. Mudge, A. MacFarland, Joseph Jackson, Ben Davey, Rev. and Mrs. Richard Galbraith, Dr. E. Galbraith, Miss Florrie Galbraith, T. C. Johnson, W. G. Leckie, Athol MacDowell, E. K. Carr, Major and Mrs. Durham, their children, Phipps Durham, Mrs. Fritz Radeliff and Mrs. Will Ramsey, P. W. Drew, T. B. Hamlyn, F. H. Watson, James Prentice, John Paterson, Andrew Paterson, Peter Paterson, Cecil Robinson Sr., Mr. and Mrs. John Williams and children, Harry, George, Mrs. Arthur Real and Mrs. Max Below, Mrs. E. Braeutigam, R. B. Everett and Jack Gething. The majority of the above are English, with a few

Irish and Scots and one from Wales.

birth in their home country, others were well endowed with wealth and practically every one possessed an education above the average. Some of them have prospered greatly in the Hill Country and elsewhere, while others have been unable through these years to accustom themselves to the American way of transacting business.

In commenting on a few of these old-timers the Atlanta Journal has the following to say:

"A cherubic infant with big blue eyes and marvelous golden curls runs her fingers carelessly around the scalloped edge of a little plate. And the plate once belonged to Queen Victoria. Three-year-old Martha Amelia Gaffney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Gaffney of 83 Elmwood drive, Atlanta, little realizes as yet the value of this tangible part of what she will inherit from her mother. Mrs. Gaffney has stated in her will that the plate is to go to Martha.

"The story of how the plate came to this country, and eventually became the property of Mrs. Gaffney, is an interesting one.

"In the gray green hills at Kerrville, near San Antonio, Texas, there is a little colony of English people who have come together more or less by accident. Their reasons for selecting this spot in which to live are varied. Many of them are people of distinction. There is Lord Howard Lacey, a famous naturalist, with one of the largest collections of butterflies in the world, who left England when he was a young man, because his family would not consent to his marriage with a girl whose father owned a soap factory. There is Dr. E. E. Palmer, a noted English physician, who now has his sanitarium there. All of them have their history.

"Into this community came Mrs. Gaffney, as a girl of eighteen. She came to teach piano in Miss Scofield's school. Miss Scofield has as caretakers for the school Mr. and Mrs. Walter Baker. They also were English. Mrs. Baker was raised by her aunt in England. This aunt was at first housekeeper, and later companion to Queen Victoria. After the Prince Consort died, and as she was growing old, and beginning to feel the burdens of state, the queen came to lean more on this trusty old servant whom she had made her companion. So it was in Buckingham Palace that Mrs. Baker grew up, in the cars of her aunt, who was the constant companion of the queen. And Victoria, ever considerate of those about her, took a kindly interest in the little niece of her companion.

"Mr. Baker had been with Lord Kitchner in India. His health failed, and he could no longer stand the Indian climate. When he returned to England he brought presents from India from Lord Kitchner to Queen Victoria. Then he met the young niece of the queen's companion, whom he married. The queen, being fond of the young girl, gave her as a wedding present, among other things, a set of beautiful plates which had been sent from India to the queen by Lord Kitchner.

"Mr. Baker's health did not improve in England as had been expected, and the young couple came to America. In the mild climate of Kerrville, it was hoped that he would become strong. But even here he did not recover from the ravages of the Indian climate and the hardships of his life there. He was not strong enough to work, and gradually the couple exhausted their financial resources. Their friends in England might have been applied to, but they were proud. Then Miss Scofield offered them the position of caretakers for the school. There was not much money, but their wants were simple.

"When Mrs. Gaffney came to the school to teach she made many friends, and among them was Mrs. Baker. Perhaps Mrs. Baker understood that a girl so young, away from home for the first time, would often be lonely. Her kindnesses were many. At Christmas she brought Mrs. Gaffney a little present, for which she apologized, saying that she had not much to give, but she thought Mrs. Gaffney might like to have this, since it was one of her wedding presents from the queen.

"And that Christmas present was the little plate, which the queen had given Mrs. Baker at the time of her wedding."

We have advertised that we are the exclusive dealers in Junction for genuine Holeproof Hosiery for ladies and children. Another merchant has advertised that his house is the exclusive dealer. Now, it's a question of who is advertising the facts in the case. You all know that Holeproof Hosiery is one of the best brands made, and every box and every pair has the Holeproof trade mark on it to guarantee that you are getting the genuine article.

Holeproof Hose are not sold under any other name, with the "just as good" argument. See that you get the genuine.

Here's what we want you to do: Go to any other store in town and call for ladies and children's Holeproof Hosiery by name; see if they have them; see if you find them! Then come to our store and you will find hundreds of pairs of all sizes and colors of the genuine Holeproof Hosiery. That will show you who is the dealer in Junction. Phillip Joseph.

THANKS!

I wish to take this method of thanking those who were kind enough to support me in the recent primary election for County and District Clerk, and to state that I have no ill will towards any who did not support me. If I am elected at the general election in November, it will be my purpose to serve conscientiously and to the very best of my ability, every citizen of this county.

I appreciate more than I can express in words, the support given me and in the future it will always be my constant ambition and effort to so conduct the affairs of this office in a manner that will meet the approval of all the people.

Very sincerely,
L. R. Hodges.
