CITY WATER BOND ACTION DEFERRED

Texas Republicans Split With Patronage Charged

Faith

Hello, Stranger—
Getting Nowhere—
Sunday Coffee—
Sin of Smoking—

Politics produces the strangest alignments and changes of any game or profession. Former Governor Oscar B. Colquitt has joined the Atticus Webbs on the stump to tell the people that Gov. Alfred E. Smith is a nullifier. And there are many who look backward to the time when Mr. Colquitt, as the leader of the anti-prohibitionists of Texas, was branded by the Atticus Webbs "as the mouthpiece of the rum power and the agent of the brewers."

William Jennings Bryan for 32 years conducted a crusade to drive men of money and position out of the Democratic party. He was eminently successful. But died wealthy. Having been a Prince of Peace for all these years, he was given a warrior's funeral and resting place in Arlington national cemetery. Now the Democratic party is headed by John J. Raskob, who placed $0 men in the millionaire class in a four-year period, according to a story in the afternoon paper.

L. A. Nixon, El Paso negro, writes Charles I. Francis, vice chairman of the Democratic executive committee, that he will file suit against Mr. Francis individually unless the party allows Nixon and others of his race to vote in the Democratic primaries. Nixon will get nowhere with his demands, but he may be entitled to sympathy. According to the leaders of the Democratic bolters, thousands of Texas Democrats will help place Texas in the Republican column in November, that is, if Nixon follows Mr. Francis' advice and votes the Republican ticket. What Nixon probably will view as inconsistent will be the fact that the thousands, when they return to the party two or four years later, will still refuse to accept him in their primaries. That's not inconsistency, however—it's Democracy.

The attitude of the Democratic party is easily justified in restricting its primaries to white voters, but not so the attitude of some towns in this area. This writer, on a dinerless train Sunday morning, bribed a negro porter to get off at a small town and buy a bottle of coffee. As the train left the town, the conductor returned with the frightened porter in tow. "Don't you know any better than have this man get off here—they don't let 'em in the station in this town."

Without the morning coffee Sunday, that seemed rank injustice and discrimination. And it still seems so.

* * *

Good news for West Texas livestock producers comes out of Denver in the prediction of still better prices for all kinds of meat for the dinner table. And prosperity for the live stock industry will mean better times to all in this country, where the farm and the oil derrick are major factors, but not dominant.

* * *

Police officers tell of Wichita Falls parents who tied their son to a bed at intervals over a period of 30 days to stop him from smoking. It seems that such parents should not have the privilege of children, as much for their fanatical meanness, as for the bitterly cruel punishment given the youth. This writer has never been able to see smoking as a sin. It may be and quite likely is injurious to the body, but so is an excess of pie and cake.

STATE'S G. O. P. FORCES CUT BY O'HARA BOLT

Negro Bill McDonald To Desert Party to Vote For Smith

CREAGER FLAILED

O'Hara Charges Patronage Most Pronounced In Entire South

DALLAS, July 16. (AP)—The state Republican organization appeared to be definitely split today with announcement from Fort Worth that J. M. O'Hara, organization manager of the Republican state committee for an uninstructed delegation, and W. M. (Gooseneck Bill) McDonald, negro leader of Texas negroes, had officially withdrawn from the party and would support Governor Alfred E. Smith, Democratic nominee for president.

Opposition to the leadership of R. B. Creager, national committeeman of Brownsville, Texas, brought about the bolt of the Fort Worth leaders, who claimed that they controlled 250,000 votes in Texas. C. C. Littleton of Fort Worth, leader of the Republican delegation which engaged in the seating controversy with the Creager forces at Kansas City, precipiated the latest move when he withdrew from the state Republican executive committee several days ago.

Charges Patronage

O'Hara charged that "under the leadership of R. B. Creager patronage peddling in Texas has been more pronounced than has been shown in the senate investigation in Mississippi."

The break in the Republican front came on the eve of the statewide anti-Smith rally to be held here tomorrow by Democrats opposed to their nominee for president. Plans for tomorrow's meeting were perfected at a series of conferences between prominent Democrats here today, headed by V. A. Collins of Dallas, one of the original Democratic anti-Smithites. Aiding Collins in his efforts to carray Texas for Herbert Hoover were O. B. Colquitt, former governor of Texas, and Dr. J. B. Cranfill, prominent prohibitionist.

Collins said he expects to organize Hoover-for-President clubs in every town in Texas. "The anti-Smith organization which we will set in motion here tomorrow will act as a parent organization for all these clubs," he explained.

None Candidate

None of the Democratic leaders participating in the anti-Smith rally here are candidates for state office. Leaders of the movement declared several days ago they were not attempting to mix in the state

Al Forgets He's Nominee In Business of State

ALBANY, N. Y., July 16. (AP)—Temporarily shunting aside politics and his cares of the Democratic presidential nominee, Governor Smith devoted himself today to business of the state. He spent most of the day in his office.

Besides disposing of a mass of accumulated business, the governor considered clemency appeals of four men in the death house at Sing Sing, and signed a warrant to send George M. Saunders, dapper New York youth, to Georgia for trial on charges of fraudulent stock deals, despite his protestation of innocence.

Chicago Physicist Undergoes Operation

CHICAGO, July 16. (US)—Prof. Albert A. Michelson, world famous physicist of the University of Chicago, underwent an operation here today. The 75-year-old scientist is said to be suffering from a bladder ailment.

Dr. Herman L. Kretschmer, on the staff of the Presbyterian hospital, performed the operation. Dr. Michelson's condition was described as "rather serious," but he is said to have stood the operation well.

Seven Share Estate Of Noted Humorist

ROGERS, Ark., July 16. (UP)—Six friends and a cousin were named to share in the estate of Tom P. Morgan, noted humorist and writer, whose will was read here today.

Morgan died here July 7. His estate is valued at between $20,000 and $25,000.

Poison Attacks 75 Car Workers

SOMERVILLE, Mass., July 16. (UP)—Seventy-five workers at the Ford Motor company assembling plant were in hospitals here tonight with severe cases of gastro-intestinal poisoning believed to have been caused by luncheon obtained at a restaurant near the plant.

The workers, who were stricken about 4 p. m., were rushed in ambulances and private cars to two hospitals here where it was reported the patients were "very sick, but not in a critical condition."

Doctors who examined the patients were unable to say just what particular item in the luncheon had been the cause of the attacks.

NEGRO NAMED IN RAKEOFFS

Assistant Attorney General Under Indictment

WASHINGTON, July 16. (US)—Indictment of Perry Howard, negro Republican national committeeman from Mississippi and assistant attorney general, and six others, on charges of selling federal offices is the first step in a thorough clean-up of the southern federal patronage scandal, it was learned at the department of justice today.

While a special federal grand jury continues its operations at Biloxi, Miss., investigating Mississippi patronage, operatives of the department are continuing their probe in other states from which complaints of similar nature have been heard during the past 10 years.

Includes Solid South

The widened investigation is expected to take in Georgia, Florida, Alabama, South and North Carolina and other states in the "solid south."

Grand juries probably will be summoned in several of the above states as soon as the department completes its probe.

Passage of a new law by the 70th congress made possible the new turn in handling the problem, it was stated here.

Howard was charged in the indictment with taking $1,500 for securing the appointment of a United States marshal.

The negro politician immediately was given an indefinite leave of absence without pay from his post in the department of justice where he occupies an office here.

Expects "No Trouble"

When notified of the indictment today Howard said he expected to have no trouble clearing that up.

The patronage problem has been a thorn in the side of every Republican administration for years.

A sub-committee of the senate postoffice committee recently started its investigation of the scandal under a resolution sponsored by Senator George of Georgia.

Its first hearings held at Atlanta revealed that the Republican organization in Georgia collected monthly contributions from practically all federal workers in that state.

Hearing Ordered

Howard has long maintained a law office in Washington in addition to his office at the department of justice. He will be arraigned before a U. S. commissioner here within a few days.

Sporadic probes of southern patronage have been conducted several times by the department of justice within recent years but the weakness of federal statutes prevented the wholesale cleaning up of the situation.

The recent act of congress under which the Howard indictment was handed down, however, is more drastic in nature, according to the views of lawyers expressed at the department of justice today.

New's Statement Played

WASHINGTON, July 16. (US)—Charges that Postmaster General New gave "misleading" statements before the Brookhart senate committee investigating the alleged barter and sale of postoffice jobs in the south, were filed with the committee today by Senator Walter F. George, Democrat, of Georgia.

"Two wrongs do not make a right" declared Senator George, referring to New's assertion that Democrats as well as Republicans have exacted campaign contributions from postmasters. "At best it is a poor alibi and is the logic of one caught with the goods."

Al's Boom Called Just 'Morning Glory'

NEW YORK, July 16. (US)—In predicting victory for Herbert Hoover, Republican candidate for president, in November, Senator James E. Watson of Indiana, who arrived here today, characterized the Democratic campaign for Gov. Alfred E. Smith as a "morning glory affair."

In making his forecast, the veteran Hoosier statesman, who has the forlorn hope of the anti-Hoover allies at Kansas City, declared that the single issue which will bring about a Republican triumph at the polls is "prosperity."

TAX RATE CUT THREE CENTS

Ad Valorem Rate Made 22 Cents On $100

AUSTIN, July 16. (AP)—The state ad valorem tax rate for general revenue purposes was fixed late Monday by the state automatic tax board for this year at 22 cents on the $100—three cents less than the present rate.

The new rate combined with last year's, making 47 cents, is the lowest figure for two years of any administration in the last 14 years, and is 11 cents lower than the combined rate of the Ferguson administration of 1925-26, the board noted in a statement.

School tax remains at the maximum of 35 cents and Confederate pension tax at 7 cents, making a total state tax of 64 cents. This will insure a continued $15 per capita apportionment for the public schools, and all rural aid schools qualifying for rural aid will receive a six-month school term again.

An anticipated large increase in valuations failed to develop. Less than 5 per cent increase was found in the $3,975,409,266 total valuations, which included all except eight counties. These counties were figured into the total on the basis of last year's assessment rates. The eight include Wichita county and its last year valuation of $70,000,000. An estimate for this year had not been made Monday.

Grounded Steamer Floated by Tug

NEWPORT, R. I., July 16. (UP)—The freight steamer Pomona, carrying a crew of 44 and a cargo of lumber to Baltimore, was floated, undamaged, by the navy tug Contocook here today after it had grounded on the rocks near Ft. Adams. The Pomona's home port is Everett, Wash.

SWEDEN MAY ASK LEAGUE TO SUE EXPLORERS

Action Calculated To Compel Probe Of Italia's Fate

AROUSED BY DEATHS

International Jury Also Demanded to Further Inquiry

STOCKHOLM, July 16. (US)—The Swedish government today is considering an appeal to the league of nations for the bringing of a suit against the Italians Zappi and Mariano in order to compel an investigation into the circumstances of the Italia disaster.

The tragedy in the frozen no man's land where the explorer Dr. Finn Malmgren apparently was left to die by his companions had aroused the bitterest feeling through Sweden, Norway and Denmark.

Legal Action Planned

Emotion over the death of the Swedish scientist has been followed by word that Premier Ekman of Sweden is examining the possibility of legal action in connection with Dr. Malmgren's death. "A number of conferences have been held during the last 24 hours between the ministers of war and culture.

The newspaper "Social Demokraten" asserts that a juridical examination will be sought through the Norwegian courts, and the Stockholm newspaper "Nyadagligt Allehanda" states that the Swedish government may seek action through Norway as Dr. Malmgren was left to die on Brocka island, Norwegian territory.

International Jury

The proposal that an international jury be appointed to investigate the entire Italia matter also is gaining ground. Dr. Freuchen, the noted Danish explorer, today suggests that this inquiry deal with three basic questions, as follows:

First, was the Italia fit to undertake the expedition?

Second, was General Nobile's disposition of his men following the disaster correct? Was he right to be the first rescued?

Third, did General Nobile's contradictory explanations of the disaster endanger the lives of members of the rescue expeditions?

This last question would lead directly into the circumstances which resulted in the loss of Captain Roald Amundsen and his companions in an effort to search out the survivors of the original Italia disaster.

Gob Suits Cool But in Budapest—!

White middy uniforms, trousers and caps of the type worn by the American sailor became the fashion as the German capital suffered the hottest day in years.

Dispatches from Budapest told of an even more striking solution of the comfort problem by modern femininity. The women of the Hungarian capital went right back to the styles of Eve and, defying the police, bathed au naturel.

BRUSSELS, Belgium, July 16. $252,899 DEBT ISSUE WINS BODY'S FAVOR

Aldermen Favor Larger Water Issue But Not At Present

CARTER HAS PLAN

Letter Proposes Vote On $3,500,000 to Include Storm Sewers

Action on the water bond issue of $1,400,000 was deferred, and it was voted to present a $252,899 issue to the people to cover debt retirement and warrants, $120,000 of which is for a portion of the cost of the auditorium, at the Monday night meeting of the city council.

Every councilman expressed himself in favor of the water bond issue but four said that public reaction to the suggestion in the past few days has been such as to convince them it would not be practical to present it at this time.

Patton Opposes

Alderman Patton alone voted against the $252,899 issue, saying that the health of the community is at stake and that the council ought to act on the recommendations of George D. Fairtrace, the city manager. Mr. Fairtrace had proposed both issues.

Aldermen Hunt, Jones, King and Carter voted for the smaller issue as being a vital necessity in order that the city may avoid possible suits for the payment of bills on which several creditors already threatened suit.

Immediately preceding the meeting, Alderman Carter handed Mr. Fairtrace a letter in reply to the city manager's recommendation for a bond issue. The letter recommended a $3,500,000 issue to include $1,800,000 for storm sewers and $350,000 for miscellaneous improvement in addition to the two items suggested in the recommendations made by Mr. Fairtrace.

When the bond issue was first broached at the meeting, Alderman King forced the issue by explaining that "in view of the publicity given to the proposed issue, the council should thrash it out tonight."

Small Issue Favored

Alderman Patton then spoke in favor of the entire issue and said that good water is due to the town. Mr. King replied that he believed it would be suicidal to the issue to present it to the voters at this time in view of the drive for sewer rentals, the filing of tax collection suits and the general business feeling of the people.

"I believe the smaller issue should be presented to the public at once," he said, "as there are creditors who are pressing the city for payment. As a friend of the water issue, I think it should be deferred until fall."

Alderman Jones said he agreed with both Mr. Patton and Mr. King as to the need of the water improvements as the city is now penalized in the insurance premiums it has to pay and in health conditions. He said he believed the issue would stand a better chance a little later on.

Mr. Fairtrace made little comment save that "if we are to get any relief by next year, we must start now as it takes time to vote a bond issue and make extensive improvements."

The Security National bank was named as city depository for the year, starting Aug. 1, on its bid of 4.21 per cent interest on the average daily balance. W. S. Abbott was named city treasurer for the year.

Quit Zone Body

The Record News was awarded the contract for the legal printing of the city for the year starting Aug. 1 with a bid of 12 cents a column inch.

Mayor J. W. Akin, Alderman J. W. King and George D. Fairtrace, city manager, were taken off of the city zoning commission at their own requests, and G. R. Pate, M. A. Bundy, W. Daniel, W. S. Abbott and Julian Montgomery were placed on the commission.

Ousted Mail Carrier Gets 'Revenge' By Shooting Two P. O. Inspectors

ATLANTA, Ga., July 16. (UP)—Maddened by a desire to "get even" with the United States government, Harry M. Deererian, 56, naturalized citizen, shot down Joe P. Johnston, chief postal inspector of the Atlanta district, and Morgan Griswold, inspector at Knights, Fla., as they left the federal building for lunch today.

Deererian told police he shot the two men for vengeance for having been dismissed as mail carrier in Boston three years ago. He admitted he had never seen Johnson and Griswold before.

Griswold's condition was reported as favorable at Grady hospital where he was taken. The bullet entered his neck and ranged upward through his throat and unless infection sets in it was thought there would be no danger.

Johnston's wound was slight and he was back at his desk in the federal building three hours after the shooting. The bullet passed through his left shoulder.

Johnston and Griswold left the federal building together for lunch when Deererian saw them and fired. Deererian, an Armenian by birth, said he had followed them from Johnston's office to an alleyway in which he was caught after the shooting.

Deererian was cornered in the alley and arrested immediately. He was taken to the police station shouting and gesticulating.

Deererian was dismissed as mail carrier in Boston three years ago after serving 17 years, he said, and it had tortured his mind since. He insisted his sole idea in the shooting was to carry out a plan of vengeance.

The Armenian blamed his dismissal from the service on his alleged bolshevistic views.

OIL SHALE IN BIG DEMAND

Smallest Nation's Output May Alter Fuel Means

LONDON, July 16. (UP)—Europe's entire fuel supply may be revolutionized within the next few years through nature's action beneath the vast expanse of soil in Esthonia which, in population, is among the smallest nations in the world.

This assertion is based on statistics published under the authority of the Esthonian ministry of trade and industry.

According to the figures, the oil shale industry in the little post-war republic shows an almost fantastic growth resulting in three salient facts which call for the attention of observers in the industrial world:

1. The oil shale reserves available for mining in Esthonia amount to 5,000,000,000 tons—enough to supply all the railways of Europe for several decades.

2. Of this five thousand million tons, three-quarters of a million tons annually are sufficient for Esthonia's own total fuel requirement.

3. From a little less than ten thousand tons in 1918-19 Esthonia raised her production of oil shale to almost one-half a million tons in 1926, or two-thirds of the total amount needed to make her almost entirely independent of European coal producing countries.

Substitute for Coal

Oil shale is an oil bearing mineral to be found in a number of countries including the United States, Brazil, Scotland and Esthonia. As a fuel it is relatively cheap. In Esthonia it is used by factories, numerous industries and railways as a substitute for coal.

When used in place of coal, oil shale as it comes from the mines requires special furnaces in which to be burned. If this condition is fulfilled it is generally conceded that there results a saving of 22 per cent when the shale is used as a substitute for coal and 43 per cent if used instead of wood.

For several years past experts have been concentrating their work on efforts to increase the output of crude oil, the most important by-product of oil shale. When refined such crude oil has been found to compete with some of the best on the world markets.

From these facts observers have been led to consider seriously the development of the oil shale industry throughout the world.

Esthonia, although one of the world's smallest nations, has huge reserves of an economic fuel which, as more is learned about its handling, is likely to become a very serious rival to British coal or Russian petrol.

Dog Thrills Girl Who Gains Sight

MILWAUKEE, Wis., July 16. (UP)—The mere sight of a wooly-nosed terrier gave Marcella Calkins, 20, one of the greatest thrills of her life today—for it was the first dog she ever saw.

"What's that funny thing?" she asked a hospital attendant as the little animal trotted into her room. Then as it came nearer, she placed her hand on its head and said: "Why, it's only a dog; how silly of me!"

Marcella has just recovered her sight after being blind since birth. Things that always have been familiar to her by touch have no meaning when she observes them for the first time.

She learned typing at the state school for the blind, and was able to click off 130 words a minute without error. But when she saw a typewriter for the first time it meant absolutely nothing until her fingers rested on the keys.

"I saw a rose for the first time June 15 when they took the bandage off," she said. "You can't describe a rose and your touch won't teach you how beautiful it is.

"I want to see my mother's face most of all. I wonder if she will be like I imagine her. You see, my home in Chetak, Wis., is pretty far away, and she hasn't been able to come down here yet."

FEUD SHOOTING FATAL TO ONE

Quarrel Over Pile of Wood Leads to Death

GALESBURG, Ill., July 16. (AP)—A death drama with all the earmarks of a Kentucky feud was enacted at Cameron, 10 miles southwest of here yesterday, when Curtis G. Bates, farmer and township magistrate, shot and killed Chester Burnett, 38, woodsman, and seriously wounded his brother, Clifford, 32.

The shooting followed a quarrel over ownership of a pile of wood left after railroad ties had been cut from it. The Burnetts leased the timber land from Bates and established a camp to cut the timber. Bates and the Burnetts both claimed the "slab," the remains from the tie cutting operations, according to neighbors who witnessed the killing.

Bates, accompanied by his three sons, went to the camp this morning to get a bull. Noticing a truck near the "slab" and inferring that the Burnetts mean to dispose of the wood, Bates told them they were to leave it alone until the law could decide. Don Starkey, a neighbor, said that Chester Burnett used abusive language toward Bates. Then he started toward the owner of the land with a club. Bates retreated, saying, "I'm going to get my gun and the sheriff and then you watch out," according to Starkey's story.

He went home, called Sheriff Porter of Monouth and with his gun, went back to the timber. Returning from his home a mile away he advanced toward the slab on either side of which the Burnetts stood.

He fired once at Chester, killing him instantly, witnesses said. The next bullet was directed at Clifford and struck him in the hip. Then Bates dropped his weapon and awaited the sheriff.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 16. (UP)—Mrs. Nora Coatney, 54, and her daughter, Miss Mae Miller, 30, are held without bond here for the confessed murder of Oliver Grady, 44, a bartender.

Mrs. Coatney admitted shooting Grady but claims she killed him because he threatened her daughter with a hatchet and attempted to drag the younger woman into the back yard. Grady and his paramour, Miss Miller, are said to have started quarreling following a drinking party.

PRESS AGENTS FORM UNION

Members to Write Only "Honest" News

NEW YORK, July 16. (UP)—America enters upon a newer, cleaner, sweeter national life this week.

The theatrical press agents have organized and affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

As a final gesture toward truth and verity for the masses, the new union press agents have taken the circus press agents into their fold. All hands—and there are 256 charter members of the union now carrying cards—are going to work this week to flood city editors with honest news.

Theodore Mitchell, president of the association of press agents chartered by the American Federation of Labor, has denied that the move is just a scheme to get a little publicity for press agents.

Ban Bogus Tracks

Henceforth, anyone tossing a blonde dancer into the Central park wading pool for publicity suicide purposes will be refused admittance to the union.

The press agents' union has already made its peace with the Producing Managers' Protective association. The employers exhibited no squeamishness over the principles of collective bargaining and the right to strike.

Mitchell does not thing a strike will ever be called. The effect on humanity, with press agent stuff pouring into the papers from a bunch of untrained strike-breakers, is not easy for Mitchell to contemplate calmly.

The movie press agents have not been invited to join the union yet, Mitchell refused to comment, but it was learned from other sources that the organizers felt the movie publicists were not "prepared spiritually."

Amarillo Fans Raise $10,000 for Ball Club

AMARILLO, Texas, July 16. (UP)—More than 1,000 baseball fans and business men met here today and raised $10,000 to carry the Amarillo baseball team of the Western league through the present season, Cal Farley, secretary, told the United Press. The meeting was called after owners of the club had announced they would have to surrender the franchise or suffer financial losses.

The fans, according to Farley, agreed to pledge a like amount next year.

Property Valuations Gain in Lawton, Okla.

LAWTON, Okla., July 16. (Sp)—Improvements in real estate of the city is responsible for the increase in real property valuations, according to information given out by the county assessor.

Americans Seek Birthplace of Mankind

African Desert Searched for Man's Birthplace; Texas Man in Project

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, July 12. (AP)—American explorers are to brave the dangers of the unknown Kalahari desert in the hope of finding the birthplace of mankind.

The party, headed by Dr. C. Ernest Cadle of Denver, anthropologist of the Colorado Museum of Natural History, Dr. Will J. Cameron, Chicago dental expert, who is sponsoring the expedition, and Professor Richard L. Mannen, geologist of the University of Texas, is meeting several leading scientists of African universities at Durban and Port Elizabeth and is then proceeding to Tonges.

From there the scientists will set forth into the unexplored heart of the great desert which lies in British Bechuanaland between the Zambesi and the Orange rivers, and which they believe is the unspoiled cradle of the human race. Their supposition is supported by the recent discovery at Tonges, on the edge of this vast territory, of two prehistoric human skulls, said to be the oldest yet found.

"I believe that in the desert we shall find ourselves face to face with prehistoric people and animals of the Stone-Age type, projecting themselves right into our modern period," says Dr. Cadle. "Africa has undergone no glacial changes such as have from age to age come over the rest of the globe. She is now, as always, the lavish mother, nursing and feeding primitive man, in a mild and temperate climate, with food bountifully within the reach of his hand. He can live all his life without having to move beyond a mile of his jungle home. That is why I think Africa is the natal place of humanity.

"Asia, where some people place man's beginning, has in my opinion, always been altogether too inhospitable to cradle the race. But in Africa we find today the entire history of the race unfolded, from primitive to agricultural and, pastoral tribes, and so on, up to the acme of modern civilization."

Three years ago Dr. Cadle penetrated the fringes of the Kalahari desert. There he found humans at the lowest end of the human scale, living side by side with the highest types of anthropoids. These bushmen are not blacks, but have yellow skins like Mongolians and a cast of countenance combining Mongolian and Negroid characteristics. Disease and deformity are unknown to them and there are no mental defectives among them.

"Some of the anthropoids walk upright like a man," relates Dr. Cadle, "with their arms touching the ground. The humans, on the other hand—the bushmen and pygmies who are the 'pure hunters' of the race—have arms which are eight inches longer than those of civilized man and when they squat on their haunches their bodies touch the ground behind, and their ape-like arms trail on the ground. Surely this is significant that somewhere near dwells the so-called missing link."

It is this strange ape-man—the missing link—that Dr. Cadle and his fellow scientists hope to find among the fierce Vaalpenas tribe in the desert. They are a bush tribe of small people, but not pygmies, and have never been seen by white men, although the Hottentots and the Bechuanas know of them and report that they are wild and treacherous people.

The expedition, prepared to stay two years, is supplied with up-to-date equipment, including two motor trucks fitted with caterpillar tractors, a mechanical refrigerator and wireless apparatus.

HARVEST CALL NOW DIMMER

Time and New Equipment Make Changes

CHICAGO, July 16. (UP)—The harvest call from the wheat fields of the southwest and the northwest no longer beckons to the human unemployed—that moves back and forth lazily through West Madison street in Chicago.

Things were different years ago, but time has wrought many changes. Modern harvest equipment has met the demand, in part, for seasonal labor in the wheat fields of Kansas and Oklahoma in the southwest and the Dakotas in the northwest.

In The Old Days

"I remember back about 15 years ago," J. E. Tonoff, manager of the Atlantic Employment agency, told the United Press today, "we would send carloads of men to the harvest fields daily at this season of the year.

"You wouldn't see those crowds of men looking for work," he said, as he pointed to groups of idle men lined along the curb outside.

"Machinery has taken the place of men and we have no more appeals for harvest hands from wheat fields any more.

"Years ago, the men would go from here first to Kansas, then Oklahoma, double back and go to the Dakota fields about September. When the northwest harvest was completed many would move northward into Canada in the fall."

Pitiful Study

Madison and Canal streets, "employment row," offers a pitiful, yet interesting study of the unfortunates, the wastrels, the carefree and the ne'er-do-well bum. Their cloths unkempt their smudgy faces unshaven, they are wont to give the impression of studying posters, telling of the need for laborers, mechanics and farm workers.

They move down the streets from one agency to another, lighting a cigarette or pipe and staring blankly at the signs. The posters make little impressions upon empty minds.

Agency employes standing at the doorways call to the shifting mass in monotones, hoping that their appeals will be heeded. "Step inside and sign up to ship out today," is the cry.

An occasional member of the group at the curb moves slowly through the dirt and litter of papers on the sidewalk towards the door. Inside are more of the unfortunates, old men who had wasted early opportunities and others to whom opportunity never will present itself.

Infant Mortality Rate Decreases

NEW YORK, July 15 (AP).—The infant mortality rate in cities of the United States during 1927 was lower than in any previous year, The American Child Health association announced today in its annual report.

The rate last year was 64.4 deaths for each 1000 births, as compared with 73.7 in 1926 and 100 in 1915, the association announced. The report covers the 683 cities in the birth registration area, embracing 40 states that have satisfactory registration laws and record at least 90 per cent of the births.

"The improvement in the infant death rate was almost universal over the country," said the announcement, "there being but few cities which failed to show a declining rate."

Seattle, Wash., had the lowest rate, 41, among the cities of more than 250,000 population. Portland, Ore., and Minneapolis, Minn., were second with rates of 47 each. The figures for the country's 10 largest cities were: New York and Cleveland, 56 each; St. Louis, 57; Chicago 63; Philadelphia, 64; Los Angeles, 67; Detroit, 70, and Pittsburgh 72.

Best of all, Conoco Ethyl Gasoline is most economical. For its few pennies extra cost it saves dollars in repair bills by eliminating the wear and tear caused by knocking.

Is it any wonder that Conoco Ethyl Gasoline attained instant popularity?

TOO hot to ramble.

It takes even the erstwhile prompt telephone a long time to ring after dialing. And I feel just like the telephone.

Yes, I know I promised to write a column without reference to the prevailing hot weather, but the weather man hasn't been just right yet. With my arm adhering to about everything I have touched today, I can't be even half way reasonable.

The sidewalks are too hot for comfortable travel and the signals are never right for shady walking. Neither is the sun. And if I try to do a rational day's work, nobody can tell me anything that is going on—they say they are just breathing and that's all.

About all the activity visible in this office is the frequent trips to the ice water tank in the hall, and then it isn't activity, it's slow motion, especially the return trip. And there is no use returning, because we have to go right back. The cooler isn't working very well, either, runs cold for a second and then lukewarm. Ask anybody in the office.

"WHAT'S a 'spik' more or less?" was the response I received Saturday when I voiced an expression of genuine regret at the untimely close to the life of the gallant Capt. Emilio Carranza, Mexican flyer, who plunged to his death Thursday night on his way home from a good will visit to the United States.

A score of answers flashed through my mind, but I gave air to none of them, as I thought the question unworthy of an answer. How long will it take us to be able to see outside the narrow circle of our immediate confines? How many more encounters with the outside world will it take to make us realize that hearts beat very much alike no matter what color the skin and what nationality the name reveals?

Fortunately there will be few to agree with the sentiment expressed by this man, or the gallant aviator whose death came on his return from a country misunderstood by most of his countrymen, might have labored and died in vain.

As it stands, most people will believe that the brave Mexican flyer has sowed the seeds for a better understanding between the two nations which geography has planted close together.

Forgotten Stars Stage Comeback

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., July 16. (UP)—Proposed for the Hollywood comeback club—Theda Bara, Jackie Coogan and a score of others. The lure of the kleigs ever beckons.

Years before Elinor Glyn invented the term, Theda Bara had "it" and this, these, those and that when she made hearts beat fast while films in the old Isis theater flickered furiously.

Now Theda Bara has signed another contract and is well along the trail that has broken the hearts of so many—the road to renewed applause from a world that has forgotten.

Jackie Coogan, too old to be "The Kid," has enrolled in a boys' military school where he is studying dramatics and filmdom probably will renew acquaintance with him as a schoolboy hero.

The roll of the comeback club would include Betty Blythe, Lila Lee, Betty Compson, Billy Elmer, Harrison Ford, William Desmond, Kathryn Williams, Florence Lawrence, Theodore Roberts and many others who were famous yesteryear.

Roberts was forced from his work by illness, but again his familiar cigar is seen on the lots.

Entombed Men Fed By Use of Rubber Tube

PARIS, July 16. (UP)—Two Italians trapped alive when the walls of a tunnel near Bramans Savoie caved in Friday night, were fed milk through a 20-foot tube late today when rescue workers had established communication with them.

The men are Joseph Mastiglio, 25, and Joseph Pecoz, 26. The French workmen were trapped in the cave-in died of injuries.

CHIC CHERIE

Cherie has had a shock. Someone told her that waistlines were coming in again. Well, there was nothing to do, but acquire one herself. By leaning languidly against this belt arrangement and letting it whirr, something may be done, but Cherie, as a matter of fact is pinning her faith to the new underwear instead. The new underwear has a waistline. It's cut especially to show it. Dina has on a suit—you can notice how it is shaped in at the waist and that all the seamlines and trimming lines run to points. What you can see of Cherie's tells the same story—a pointed panel up the front and, for the rest, Alencon lace for trimming. Dina's is a new evening dress model, low in back.

Another chemise of geometric cut is this model for sports—made of white crepe de chine without a suspicion of trimming anywhere. It has an envelope fastening of a new sort and triangular seaming at the sides and in front that makes Cherie sure either that the exercise has made her waist slenderer or that she didn't need to reduce anyway.

Decidedly, Cherie reflects an effect of slenderness is given by the waistline cut of this crepe satin chemise. The crepe side is used for the front and back panels, the satin side for the side panels. And there's the usual complementary quantity of straw Alencon lace. It makes her look so slim—shall she send that machine back to the store?

Sound Advice to the Homesick Woman Forced to Move to a Strange City—Why, in This Case Of Two Mothers, One Expects Devotion While the Other Receives It—The Out-of-Date Husband Who Dictates His Wife's Conduct.

Dear Miss Dix—What advice have you for a homesick woman? On account of my husband's business we had to move to this city a few years ago, and I hate it so that it has made me lose all my interest in life. I used to be jolly and full of fun. Now I do nothing but mope. I don't even enjoy riding around in our car, although people say it is a beautiful city. I only go out when I have to. My husband is the best man in the world and my blues vanish when he is home, but he has to work very hard and I spent many miserable hours alone.

What should I do? Try to get my husband to go back to our old home? —MRS. X.

Answer: I do not know any emotion more devastating than nostalgia. It is a soul sickness that seems to paralyze every energy of body and mind, to obsess every faculty, to darken the very sun in the heavens and to fill the world with a black despair out of which we cannot struggle.

But it is a malady that grows by what it feeds upon, and the more you indulge in it, the harder you will be to cure. So take your courage in both hands, summon up all your resolution and begin fighting it today.

The best way to begin is by taking an active part in the life of the community to which you have gone to reside. Join the church. Join clubs, women's clubs, civic clubs. You can't get to be a booster for any place without selling it to yourself.

Identify yourself with your community and don't always be invidiously comparing it, even in your own mind, with your old home. On the contrary, keep your attention fixed on the advantages that your new place of residence offers.

Above all, don't be one of those tactless individuals who act as if they had been shanghaied and forcibly brought to a place to live. Remember that you came of your own free will and because it offered you better prospects than your old home did. You didn't come to gratify any demand for your presence by your new neighbors.

So don't tell them how you hate the place, and how you loathe the climate, and how uncultured and provincial you consider the people, and how much superior every one was in your old home, and how much brighter the sun shone there, and how it never rained or was cold or hot or windy or muddy or disagreeable.

A lot of the prejudice that the people of one section of the country have against the people of another section of the country is attributable to the homesickness of individuals whose nostalgia expresses itself in abuse of the place to which they have gone to live and exploitation of that portion of "God's country" which they left because they couldn't make a living in it, or for advantages which the country they so rate, and to which they are so ungrateful, offer them.

Women are very prone to indulge in morbid homesickness and in cultivating it instead of trying to overcome it. I know one woman who told me that she had lived for 30 years in a community without ever getting really acquainted with anybody in it because she didn't like their accent. She seemed to account this to herself for a virtue, but I could only pity her for what she had missed in the way of human contacts and friendliness. She had lived a lonely woman when she might have had love and given love, and had a million interests that she had missed.

There is nothing truer than the old saying that home is wherever the heart is. You can find the same interest, the same kind of men and women, the same human reactions everywhere, and if you show yourself friendly, you can make friends.

So go to work and found your new home in the place to which destiny has called you. And try to realize that your regret for the old home is largely imaginary. You have woven about it and your own friends and acquaintances a perfection that they never had, and you see them through a glamour that gives them an enchantment they do not possess in reality.

One of the best remedies in the world for homesickness is just to go back to the old home and get a close-up of it as it is, and to find out that the house that you think of as a palace is merely a commonplace, homely structure. That the entertainment you remember as being so gay and so brilliant falls rather flat, and that your little circle has closed up and you have no place in it. —DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—I am a lonely mother of 67, with five children. My only sister was a year my senior. Our husbands died when we were young women. She had six children about the ages of mine. A year after my husband's death I remarried and left my three sons, 15, 16 and 19 to go their own way. I gave my girls of 11 and 12 two years' schooling, then pushed them out to shift for themselves. They are all married, prosperous, with children, homes and cars of their own. My sister did not marry. She washed, scrubbed, peddled, nursed, clerked to send her children through school. She paid for their education with her heart's blood. Two of her girls were given special training in the fine arts. Her baby boy was given seven years in a medical college.

My sister is nearly 70 and her children and their husbands and wives and her grandchildren worship her. They dress her like a queen. Her room is as beautiful as a young girl's in its dainty appointments. They pet her and spoil and shower her with money and gifts and trips. They ask her advice about everything. One of her sons-in-law recently traveled 700 miles to talk over a business deal with her. One of her daughters said to me not long ago that they did not consider it a duty to do what they did for their mother, they thought it a privilege.

My children do nothing for me. They show me no attention. They have no affection for me. I don't need money, but I do want their love and companionship, and it doesn't seem fair to me that my sister's children should be so devoted to her, while mine neglect me. —A LONELY MOTHER.

Answer: As we sow we reap. It is the most inexorable law in nature, and it seems to me it never worked out with more relentless logic than in yours and your sister's cases.

You preferred your happiness above your children's. Your sister sacrificed hers to her children. You remarried. She stayed single. You cast your children out to shift for themselves. She slaved for hers.

You denied your children a mother's love and tenderness, a mother's guidance and protection at the very time they needed it most. She gathered her children close into her arms and made them feel that every beat of her heart was for them.

Why should your children love you as your sister's children love her? Why should they feel that they should cherish you as your sister's children cherish her? What debt of gratitude do they owe you in comparison with the debt that they owe her?

All the feeling that your children can have for you is the traditional respect that children have for the woman who bore them. They cannot feel that you have been a real mother to them. It is not possible that they can have for you the passionate devotion that children have for a mother who sacrificed everything for them, who slaved that they might be educated, who went hungry that they might be fed, and to whom they owe everything that they are. —DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix: The man I am engaged to says that he doesn't want his wife to be running out of an afternoon while he is working, and that she must stay at home until he comes back of an evening and then they will both go out. Don't you think a wife should have the right to go out visiting, or for a walk?—MAY.

Answer: For goodness sake, where did you find such a fossil of a man with prehistoric ideas about women?

His notions of the proper conduct of a wife date back about a thousand years. No modern man regards a wife as a slave, or tries to keep her shut up in a house as if it were a harem.

If you value your own happiness don't marry any such little petty tyrant. He will make your life a torture to you. Show him the door, and pick out for a husband a broad, up-to-date man who won't even think of such a thing as dictating to you about whether you can go visiting or shopping or play bridge, or do any other decent thing of an afternoon, and who will trust you to go and come as you please. —DOROTHY DIX.

Aimee McPherson's Mother Relates 'Inside Story' of Long Controversy

By WILLIAM PARKER
(Copyright, 1928, by the Evening Herald Publishing Company and Pacific Coast News Service)

SEATTLE, Wash., July 16.—Mrs. Minnie "Mother" Kennedy today "told it all" as a climax to the embittered controversy which has raged for 10 months between her and her daughter, Mrs. Aimee "Sister" McPherson, internationally known evangelist and head of Angelus temple in Los Angeles.

Mrs. Kennedy's statement sheds new light on the mysterious complications affecting Mrs. McPherson, her life and work at Angelus temple.

Mrs. Kennedy said she believed "Sister" Aimee actually had drowned until Los Angeles police telephoned her of Mrs. McPherson's appearance at Douglas, Ariz.

Doubts Kidnaping

"This is the gospel truth," declared Mrs. Kennedy.

Mrs. Kennedy never was fully convinced of the truth of the kidnaping story, she says, and thinks the real, truthful story is yet to be told.

Mrs. Kennedy told how Mrs. Kenneth G. Ormiston, wife of the man accused of having been Mrs. McPherson's companion in the mystery cottage at Carmel, had come to her, had claimed that Ormiston and the evangelist were together in Europe, and had threatened to name Aimee as co-respondent in her suit for divorce.

Mrs. Kennedy told of the fear that came over her at this threat—a fear that was augmented by the fact that gossip about Angelus temple already was linking the names of Ormiston and the evangelist.

Vain Search

She told also, of her hurried cablegram to Aimee, and her search for Ormiston in order to hush the tongue of scandal—a search that proved in vain until Ormiston himself made known his whereabouts.

Mrs. Kennedy told further, of her personal knowledge of the friendliness between Aimee and Ormiston, and of how she endeavored to terminate it.

She refused to answer a direct question of whether Mrs. McPherson looked to her as though she had endured suffering when she first saw her at Douglas, Ariz., after the alleged kidnapping.

And she told too, of demands made by a certain Los Angeles lawyer in a mystery letter delivered to her after Aimee had returned from the Douglas episode.

Mrs. McPherson's love and reverence for the mother, the mother avers, had changed to a distinctly hostile attitude following the trip Mrs. McPherson made to the holy land.

Expenditures Puzzle

Mrs. Kennedy said she believed that Mrs. McPherson has been disposing of large sums of money for purposes which Mrs. Kennedy says she cannot understand.

"This," said Mrs. Kennedy, "is her own business, perhaps, as she is now in full possession of Angelus temple, its work and its funds.

"When I handled the finances there were 17 different funds, all moneys received being kept in separate accounts. But I understand now that all moneys go into one fund." Then she went on:

"Why 'Sister' wants to mortgage the temple I cannot understand.

"She has plenty of money for her own needs, and new money is constantly coming in. My action in shedding light on the subject of the mortgage I considered a duty so that members of the congregation could not hold me responsible after the mortgage had been granted. I cannot understand where all of the money is going.

"If the time comes for me to take up the battle for the church I shall return to Los Angeles.

Long Interview

Mrs. Kennedy gave her interview in the new Richmond hotel in Seattle. The interview began a few minutes past 10 o'clock at night and terminated at 3:30 o'clock in the morning.

Mrs. Kennedy had variously been reported as in physical and mental distress, and in search of employment for a livelihood.

The correspondent journeyed from Los Angeles to Seattle to determine the truth of these reports. Mrs. Kenedy was found to be in full possession of her faculties, keen in parrying questions she did not want to answer. Instead of replying occasionally to a personal question she would switch volubly to another subject. When the question would be repeated she would say frankly:

"I don't care to answer that question."

Two of the questions asked her that she sidestepped in such way were these. Her replies are significant.

"Did you recognize the clothing in the 'little blue trunk' as that of Mrs. McPherson?"

"I never saw the contents of the trunk. I saw only the photographs in the papers," she said.

"Did you from the newspaper pictures, recognize any specific garment as that of Mrs. McPherson?"

Refuses Answer

Mrs. Kenedy laughed aloud.

"Well, they certainly were not garments an evangelist should wear."

The question was repeated. Did she recognize any garment, she again was asked. This time she answered:

"I don't care to answer that question."

Another question put to Mrs. Kennedy was this: "When you saw Mrs. McPherson in the building at Douglas, Ariz., did her appearance indicate to you she had endured suffering?"

Very firmly Mrs. Kennedy said:

"I don't care to answer that question."

Warrior-Writer Tells Story of Great Battle Fought Ten Years Ago Today

Editor's Note: Alfred P. Reck of the United Press Washington bureau, took part in the second battle of the Marne, 10 years ago Sunday and the following is a personal account of one of the greatest conflicts of the world war.

By ALFRED P. RECK
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, July 16. (UP)—Ten years ago today one of the greatest battles of the World war was in progress—the second battle of the Marne—when a handful of national guard soldiers held back the pride of the German army for four hours and then died fighting.

The Americans, left to die by the retreating French, held for four hours but it was long enough for machine guns to be placed in the hills overlooking the vale leading to Paris and long enough to enable other Americans to meet the German thrust and force it back three days later.

The story of the handful of national guardsmen holding the German assault troops from crossing on their own pontoon bridge is rather vague in war department records for only a few came out alive to talk about it and those who did escape did not talk much.

Many who fell at the banks of the Marne on July 15, 1918, still lie in unmarked graves and more than a dozen of the handful of Americans have never been found and are still being searched for by the graves' registration service.

Was Quiet Sector

The third battalion of the 100th infantry, 28th division, had been placed along the allied side of the Marne river and interspersed with the 105th French infantry. The sector was comparatively quiet. The American soldiers patrolled their side of the river and watched the German soldiers on the opposite bank.

On July 14, French Independence day, the French troops celebrated as much as was possible in the front line with extra food and liberal allowances of "vin rouge."

Up until midnight there was nothing unusual to mark the night as different from many of the others. A few shells went droning overhead to and from the German rear lines but none struck at the front.

As a platoon sergeant, I had gone to a ruined railway station house used as headquarters for instructions. I talked to the French lieutenant in command. A few seconds before midnight I started to leave.

"Sergeant," the French lieutenant called.

Murderous Attack

I turned for additional instructions but they never came. Exactly at midnight the earth and sky started shaking. Guns were shooting so fast it sounded like a continuous roar.

"The Boche attack, the Boche attack. What can I do?" the French officer shouted and ran around wringing his hands. The next instant he ran up the cellar steps and disappeared into the night.

A battalion runer lying flat on the ground outside told me the French officer stepped on his back in his hurry to get away. Later, I learned this officer was court-martialed.

I crept along the railway tracks to rejoin the men. The shells were hitting the rails like a giant sledge hammer. For miles the sky was livid with flashes of gun powder. Five Americans were gathered behind a hedge shooting at flashes of light on the opposite bank. We had no machine gun and the French machine guns were strangely silent.

French Desert

A runner crept along the hedge. In the flare of the exploding guns, his face seemed ghastly white.

"Sergeant," he reported, "the French have left and taken their machine guns."

"Any orders?" I asked.

"No orders."

There was nothing to do but stay.

For more than three hours we fired at moving objects in the Marne river. A cloud of black smoke poured across the river. The Germans had thrown up a smoke screen. About a half hour later a machine gun was spitting at us from a bush 15 feet away and on our side of the river.

Six hand grenades silenced the machine gun. We were left in comparative safety for a short while. When I heard a command in German a second later, the hedge flamed in our faces and flaming hot pitch spattered over us. The Germans used liquid fire.

Captured by Germans

We jumped up in the glare of the flaming hedge. There was the soud of a million bees and the heart-stopping sputter of machine guns. A man on my right stumped and fell face downward. Another spun on his heel and crashed. Another gasped and his knees doubled up under him. Something clipped me in the left shoulder. There was a sickening thud on my steel helmet and the next thing I knew it was daylight and I was lying across the railroad tracks in a wheat field. Two days later I was picked up by the Germans.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By CLARK KINNAIRD

NEW YORK, July 16.—Variegated notes of a reporter covering the biggest beat in the world:

Alfred Emanuel Smith, governor of New York and Democratic presidential candidate, and Hizzoner the mayor, James J. Walker, are not listed in the newest issue of the Social directory.

Aspirin tablets are supplied free to patrons of Broadway movie cathedrals who sneeze because of the summer cooling systems.

All of the photos of President Coolidge in his summer camp, in Wisconsin, published in newspapers are the work of one man, Tom Howard, whose pictures are divided among the rival newspapers and syndicates. Howard was chosen for this choice assignment because he scooped all his rivals in obtaining a picture of the execution of Ruth Snyder, the murderess.

The "marathon dancers" who lasted until the finish in the New York contest, a matter of more than 400 hours, got about $400 each for doing it. One of the women is spending her contest money in having her nose lifted.

William F. Kenny, contractor and famed friend of Al Smith, pays his office boy $60 a week.

Col. Robert W. Stewart, whom John D. Rockefeller Jr. is endeavoring to oust as chairman of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, matches for luncheon checks and likes to play bridge.

John D. Rockefeller Sr., pillar of the Baptist church, frequently has as his house guest the Reverend Father Patrick J. Lennon, rector of St. Cecilia's Roman Catholic church, Manhattan. They have been friends for 20 years.

In Broadway's famous nocturnal electrical display there are 1,969 illuminated signs.

New York City is supposed to be the Athens of the arts, but few literary artists attempt to do any work in it.

"New York is the enemy of concentrated effort," said Margery Latimer, author of "We Are Incredible," and other stories, boarding the train for Portage, Wis., to work on her new novel.

Theodore Dreiser, dean of American novelists, writes on an abandoned farm miles from New York. Joseph Hergesheimer pens his stories in Pennsylvania. H. L. Mencken prefers to work in Baltimore. James Branch Cabell avoids New York in favor of Richmond, Va. Zane Grey stays as far away from New York as possible. Booth Tarkington divides his time between Kennebunkport, Maine, and Indianapolis, and can't write anywhere else. Ellen Glasglow has to stay on a farm in Virginia to write. Sinclair Lewis sends his stories in by mail from Europe. Thornton Wilder prefers Lawrenceville, N. J., and Europe.

Dinner Stories

Last Word

They tell of a well-known comedienne, who scored in a revue last summer, who went to London recently on speculation. She frequented the offices of a British revue sponsor for a job. After she spoke a few words the producer exclaimed: "You'll do. You're exactly the type!"

"What's the part?" she asked.

"An obnoxious American!" was the retort.

One-Minute Sermon

Be not righteous over much; neither make thyself over wise: why shouldest thou destroy thyself?

Be not over much wicked, neither be thou foolish: why shouldest thou die before thy time?—Ecclesiastes, vii, 16-17.

Vaccine

DESPITE the advance knowledge, there are still many people who are deeply opposed to such medical measures as vaccination. Many people feel that innoculation against diphtheria is not only useless, but actually injurious to health.

Such people should glance at statistics recently issued by the New York Health Department. More than 82,000 school children were innoculated against diphtheria in 1927; of this great number, only 42 felt the slightest ill effects, and none of these cases was serious.

The opposition to innoculation and vaccination has no real foundation. There are plenty of old wives' tales about the baneful effects of these preventitive remedies, but few attested facts.

The Penny Matches

AT ANY cigar or drug storre you can buy a little box of matches for a penny. Offhand it would seem as if these were merely sold as a convenience; one would hardly suppose that the manufacture of penny matches was a great undertaking.

Yet the department of commerce reveals that in 1927 there were 18 match manufacturers in the United States, doing a gross business of $24,785,835. These plants employed nearly 4000 men, and paid out upwards of $4,000,000 in wages during the year.

This hardly compares with the industrial giants, of course. But it is a safe bet that the business is far greater than most of us ever imagined.

Using the Ballot

ACCORDING to a noted authority, the elections this year in November will call to the polling places the greatest number of voters in American history. Forecasts range from 30,000,000 to 35,000,000 votes, which in either case may bring a smashing of party lines and surprises that may be staggering.

Texas has a voting population of 1,400,000, but Texas, as with other southern states, sends its voters to the ballot box at the primaries and then boycotts the polls on general election day. An effort is being made this year to bring the vote to the general election, and if the ballot and not the demagogue is to rule, then every voter should go to the polls on July 28 and in November.

Two years ago Texas rolled up a primary vote of 800,000. It may go higher this year if the people are as wildly excited as Thomas B. Love, Dr. Atticus Webb, V. A. Collins and Steelmaker George W. Armstrong say they are.

The Midst of Things

GIFTED astronomers at the Harvard observatory have found the center of the universe. It is located in the general direction of the constellation of Scorpion, a matter of 52,000 light years away; and all of our stars and suns revolve about it.

This represents a bit of starry range finding that is something of an advance over the astrology our forefathers used to practice. Long years of study and finely-tuned instruments were necessary to bring it about. Yet, with all respect, it is permissible to say that the Harvard savants are wrong.

The center of the universe is not a fixed position. It varies for each individual. For an astronomer it may be off in outer space, 52,000 light years away; but for the man next door it may be in the mahogany office of a bank, the arid confusion of a railway yard or the cradle of a baby in an upstairs bedroom.

It is amazing when you stop to think about it, that men should make their lives revolve about such diverse and, often, seemingly insignificant points. We are here for such a little time, here so incomprehensibly and majestically, trailing clouds of mystery, if not of glory; yet there are men who can devote their whole lives to knocking a golf ball about a field, putting rare postage stamps in little books or wandering through forests shooting wild animals.

It would seem that we are quite blind. Given a short space of vivid being between two eternities of inscrutable silence, we might be expected to be in a feverish hurry to sample all varieties of experience, to devote ourselves to things significant and lasting. But we do not. Ordinarily we are content to live from day to day, taking the little joys that little jobs bring.

It may be surprising. Yet it may be that we are wiser than we seem. Who would be so prodigal of time, so blind to opportunity, but beings who knew that they had all eternity? Perhaps we use our time better than we know.

The scientists may put the center of the universe wherever they wish. It makes no difference to us. We each have our own center, and for each of us the world revolves about that one point. It may be that we are quite right. In some limitless tomorrow there may be time for the great things that plague us in our dreams. Today we have today's tasks, sorrows and joys, great or small. We are not wrong to stick to them.

MARIETTA NEW BOSTON

The new canning plant at Marietta is converting that section into another Boston. Thirty thousand cans of beans already have been put up and it is estimated the production will reach 50,000 cans. Immediately after the beans are off the market, preservation of the big tomato crop will begin. The farmers of Love county are to be congratulated on having so near at hand an institution which provides a market for their surplus vegetables.

—Gainesville (Texas) Daily Register.

COTTON AND SUNSHINE

With a day or two more of sunshine and warm weather, all threshing in the county will have been completed. Crops, too, are being fast worked out and look fine. A drive to most any part of the county reveals the fact that cotton is clean and looking good while a good corn crop is already practically assured. The grain crop turned out to be one of the best in Collin in recent years. Now, if we can just combat the boll weevil successfully and combat its ravages, so common in this section, our farmers will be "sitting pretty." Collin, with her many fields of corn, cotton, hay, etc., presents a beautiful panorama to the person who takes a drive in almost any direction he chooses.

The Pyramid of Desire

By GEORGE ADE

Once there was a Youth who tackled the Mercantile Career at a very light Stipend.

His chief Ambition in Life was to get so far ahead of the Game that he could afford a nice Cutaway Suit, a swell Derby for Sunday, and a 14-karat Kah-i-noor set in a massive Gold Band.

He learned to mesmerize the Country Trade and talk 175 Words per Minute, so that in a little while he had an Offer from an opposition Concern. Whereupon he said he hated to leave, but—and the House stood for an Increase.

He came into the Cutaway and the Ring and then he found that he needed a Spike-tail and a Folding Hat and a Cape Coat. His Glad Raiment carried him right into Bussiety. He began to meet Gazelles that suited him, so he figured on the Probale Expense of Keeping house.

He thought that if he could annex a good looking Tottie with large, soulful Eyes, and take an Apartment and keep a Hired Girl, then he would be fixed for sure.

So he went out for more salary and carried the Bank Book next to his Heart. At last the Proud Day arrived when he had his own Flat, with a rented Piano in the Front Room and Tidies on the Chairs. Before the Lease expired Pet discovered that the Dining-Room was too small and began to dream Dreams of a House of their Own in which they could Entertain. So he tucked back his Cuffs and took a fresh Grip on the World of Trade, and boned like a Turk, making Payments on the House. He was beginning to look round-shouldered, but he drank plenty of Coffee and smoked fat Cigars and buckled down.

He had it all planned to take a good Rest as soon as he had lifted the Mortgage. He went so far as to send out for Time-Tables and look at the Pictures of People sitting around in Steamer Chairs enjoying the Sea Air.

To Rest After a While

He would have taken a nice, long Vacation, only he saw a chance to break into the Firm. Accordingly he went in Debt up to his Eyes. He would lie awake at Night casting up his Liabilities and computing Interest. He talked to himself on the Street, and acted just the least bit Dippy. But he was determined to swing the Deal and, then, as soon as he was out of the Woods, he could take a Trip and hang around Picture Galleries and ride in Gondolas and have the Times of his life, with nothing to worry him.

For years he had said that it was a Crime for any one Man to pile up more than $500,000. As soon as he went above that Figure it was a Case of sitting up Nights to count it. As soon as he had that Five Hundred Thousand raked up and tied in Bundles, then for a Quiet Spot near a Body of Water and a Motor Skiff and the free, open Life of the Golf Links.

To the 50-cent-Table-d'Hote Fellow, 500,000 Samoleons in one Lump, looks bigger than the German Indemnity, but the Man who is being gnawed by the Mazuma Bacillus thinks he is a Pauper unless he can count up Seven Figures. He is always sizing up along side of Rockefeller and Morgan. He feels like a Piker sitting in a stiff Poker Game with one White Bean.

Just about the time the Business Man counted up $500,000 to the Good he discovered that he needed nine Servants around the House. And the Missus could float downtown on a sunny Afternoon and make $1000 look like a Pinch of Small Change.

He set his Mark at One Million. Then, when he had that, out to the Sylvan Dell. He was going to be a Gentleman Farmer.

Every Office Building on Earth is filled up with hollow-eyed Prisoners who are planning to be Gentleman Farmers. About Next Year or Year after—away from the Hurly Burly and nothing to do except raise Chickens.

All of them have those Chicken Dreams. This Business Man whom we are describing even went so far as to pick out the kind of Chickens he was going to raise—Plymouth Rocks. He figured how many eggs he could get per Hen, and sometimes, when the Pencil was working well, he estimated that he could make the Place self-supporting.

In the meantime he was humping himself and eating Pepsin Tablets and taking a little something every Night to make him Sleep.

The Business had developed so that he had 14 Push-Buttons in front of him, and kept two Stenographers busy, and was jumping from the Long Distance Phone to the Private Office most of the Time, and chewing up 30-cent Cigars, and in other Ways giving a correct imitation of a Man who has a large and ambitious Family on Hand.

He began to look Wild out of the Eyes and had a severe Case of the Jumps, but he had to postpone that Rest for a little While, because no one else understood all the Details of the Business.

When the Doctor hinted Nervous Prostration he said that he was trying to get the whole Organization down to a System so that someone else could step in and run it, after which he expected to take a Place in the Country and raise Chickens. He told the Chicken Story so often he began to believe it himself.

In order to systematize the Large Business so that he could turn it over to someone else and then have his Vacation, he began to put in 16 hours a Day, and landed in the large Corner Room with a Trained Nurse putting Ice on his Head and telling him he would be all right in a Day or so.

He had a Ticker put in at one side of the Bed, and kept a stenographer on hand up to the Afternoon that he departed this Life.

It is said that when he went to his Reward he was met by a Celestial Attendant, who proved to be the Recording Angel.

"If you're the Recording Angel, get out your Book," said the Business Man. "I want you to take a few Letters for me."

When A Girl Loves

© 1928 by NEA Service — by RUTH DEWEY GROVES

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Virginia Brewster, upon losing both father and wealth, goes to live with Clarissa Dean and her father. Her fiance, Nathaniel Dann, objects to this for he mistrusts Dean's motives. A misunderstanding between the lovers occurs when Virginia phones Niel's studio late one night and his model, Chiri, answers.

Meanwhile Dean plots to get Niel sent away from Virginia, but fails.

Clarissa becomes jealous of Virginia, and the latter resolves to leave but Dean insists that she marry him. When she refuses, he threatens to reveal that her father cheated him out of $100,000. Recklessly, Virginia declares that she will earn enough to repay him in one year—or marry him if she fails.

Virginia realizes her plight when she discovers her bank balance overdrawn, and she has to pawn a ring before finding a reasonable hotel in which to live. She goes to Niel's studio to tell him of her break with the Deans, but she dare not reveal her contract with Dean. They dine at a place where Chiri and an escort sit at an adjoining table, and the familiarity with which his model treats Niel is not reassuring to Virginia. Next day she visits a broker friend and asks him to help her make the hundred thousand.

Now Go On With the Story

CHAPTER XXIII

"Do you happen to know anything about me?" Virginia asked when they had ordered their luncheon and were ready to talk.

"I read a great deal about you in the papers," Miss Evans acknowledged. "And I recognized you by your pictures when you came in the office this morning."

"Then I don't need to tell you that my father's fortune has dwindled away to nothing," Virginia remarked. She was relieved that she need not go into all that. "Everyone I know seems to think I should be content to live on the generosity of my friends," she went on candidly. "But I much prefer to find a way to support myself. That's what I wanted to talk to you about."

"I think it's a creditable ambition, Miss Brewster."

"I'm so glad to hear someone say that, but I haven't the slightest idea how I'm to go about it."

"That ought not be difficult for a cultured girl. Of course, certain work requires a great deal of business experience, but if you are willing to start at the bottom. . . ."

"I must make enough to live on." Virginia broke in.

"Then perhaps you shouldn't consider the business world at first. Isn't there something you could teach? Music, for instance?"

"I'm a total loss as far as music goes and I can't paint, either. In fact I don't seem to have any talent at all."

"You dance, don't you?"

"I love to. What were you thinking of?" hopefully.

"Why, I thought you might try the stage."

"Oh, I couldn't! The publicity would be horrible."

"I suppose it would if you used your own name."

"The Brewster name is about all that would give me a start, I'm afraid," Virginia avowed honestly. "Without it I'd never get on just by my dancing. Perhaps if I had time to train I might make a chorus, but I need a position at once. In fact I must have one."

"Oh," Miss Evans seemed genuinely distressed. "Let me see . . . how about taking a position as a companion?" she said, brightening.

"That's a possibility," Virginia admitted.

"I'll give you the name of an agency." Miss Evans offered eagerly. "Here, I'll write it down." She tore a page from a notebook and put it down name and address. "Ask for Mrs. Phelps."

After luncheon Virginia went directly to the address given her. On the sixth floor she found the Phelps agency and approached a busy young woman at a desk in the reception room with the request to see Mrs. Phelps.

"Your name and business please?" she was asked in crisp accents as a card appeared magically in the adept hands of Mrs. Phelps' assistant.

"Just a moment, please." Then after she had given Virginia a closer second look, she added, "Will you sit down?"

Virginia took a seat near a table laden with smart magazines. She selected one rippled the pages with no interest and put it down. The place surprised her. There were no waiting applicants for positions ranged along the wall as she was used to seeing in the domestic employment agencies she had visited time and again to engage servants. But, of course, this would be a different sort of agency. How stupid of her.

"Mrs. Phelps will see you in five minutes, Miss Browne," the assistant informed her after a short interval.

Virginia thanked her and settled back to wait. Presently there was a low buzz at the assistant's desk and she nodded over to Virginia. "You may go in now."

Virginia entered the door indicated and found herself facing a high-powered modern business woman. Mrs. Phelps sat at a desk as innocent of signs of her occupation as a railroad president's. Virginia was considerably impressed with her smartly waved silver bob and clear complexion.

"You wish a position as companion, I understand," she began even as she waved Virginia to a chair placed so that the light would fall directly upon her features. It was not polite but it was good business.

"Lady or gentleman, Miss Browne?"

"Why, I think I just assumed it would be with a lady," Virginia said hesitantly. Matter of fact she hadn't given it a thought.

"Any experience?"

"None." Virginia said it firmly, desirous of removing any impression she may have given of not knowing her own mind.

"Hm. Tell me something about yourself. What do you consider are your qualifications."

Virginia took time to think that over. "I have a finishing school education," she said at last. "The usual accomplishments. I'm fairly good at golf, tennis, and swimming. I ride, of course, and I like books though I've never read to anyone. But I haven't the faintest idea what kind of a companion I'd be to an invalid," she added truthfully.

"I see." Mrs. Phelps said, and then with an odd smile, "Any contacts with society? Smart society, I mean. Newport, Palm Beach, Cannes?"

Virginia permitted herself to smile. "I've known Miss Virginia Brewster quite intimately for a number of years," she said. "She has given me permission to use her name as reference."

"That would be quite sufficient," Mrs. Phelps approved, "but we haven't yet discussed the qualifications that are essential to the applicant for the position I have in mind. Have you any secretarial experience?"

"No, but I'm familiar with social correspondence. And I could arrange entertainments."

Mrs. Phelps shook her head. "Can you use a typewriter?"

"I'm sorry . . ."

"Then I'm afraid you would not do in this position. You would be called upon to do a great deal of typing and an applicant who can take dictation is preferred.

"I did not know those were considered to be the duties of a companion," Virginia demurred.

"They aren't ordinarily, but in this case the lady wishes a secretary as well as a companion."

"Haven't you anyone who wishes a companion merely?"

"Would you care to travel in the Orient? An elderly client is leaving for Japan soon, but I'm obliged to tell you that she is . . . er, a trifle difficult, and unless you are of a most equable disposition . . ."

"I couldn't take that," Virginia interjected. "I must have something in New York."

"That narrows your field considerably. Miss Browne, especially as you are not experienced with invalids. But if you will leave your full name and address, together with Miss Brewster's, I'll communicate with you as soon as I have something you are fitted for. Miss Laidstone will take a memorandum of your qualifications for our files, if you will step at her desk in the reception room."

Virginia listed her accomplishments with the able Miss Laidstone and envied her the precise manner in which she got it all down in double quick time.

"I wonder if I made a mistake in giving a fictitious name?" she asked herself on the way down to the street. "But it isn't the Virginia Brewster people knew who wants a job. It's a girl who has got to have an income pretty quick or not eat. And I'm not going to have people pitying me wherever I go. Well, I'll have Miss Brewster write a wonderful letter about Viola Browne when she replies to Mrs. Phelps' request for information," she thought with a smothered giggle.

She had acted on impulse when she gave the name Viola Browne as her own but she did not feel guilty over the deception. After all, she was the same girl, regardless of name, and her object was in no way reprehensible. It had occurred to her that it would be much easier to be a companion under a name that had not had such widespread publicity as her own.

"But it seems I'm not to be one just yet," she lamented, painfully conscious of the few dollars that remained in her purse since she had paid for the luncheon with Miss Evans. "Well, Uncle Simon, you're due for another visit from me soon. It's a good think I don't have to leave cards at your establishment. It would get to be expensive."

She looked again at her wristwatch and decided to go back to her room and take something else to pawn. "I'll keep the watch as long as I can," she reflected. "At this rate I'll need a timepiece."

The promise she had obtained from Oliver Cutter to help her and her talk with Miss Evans had cheered her greatly and she began to think $100,000 was not such a tremendous sum as it had seemed last night.

This time she took her white gold toilet articles to the pawnbroker and found the courage to raise his price and stick to it.

Again she had dinner with Nathaniel and he found her more like her former self than she had been at any time since her father's death. She had rested an hour on her bed before he called for her. A little natural color had crept to the surface of her cheeks under the rouge she had applied so she would not worry him with her pallor.

"You're looking like you had a date with a million dollars," he burst out and then could have bitten his tongue. But Virginia did not react to his blunder as he had feared.

"Perhaps I have," she said with a tender smile. "I feel lucky tonight."

"Lucky enough to be kissed," he declared. And kissed her in plain sight of two delighted old ladies who also occupied the parlor.

"You're looking as if you had a d ate with a million dollars," he burst out, and then could have bitten his tongue.

Why Worry?

The way's a trifle dark ahead?
Why worry!
Some cherished hope is cold and dead?
A golden dream is turned to lead?
Why worry?
Say, when did life get turned into
A flower-bed where dreams come true?
I'm sure worse things could come to you!
You'll have to fight the battle through.
Why worry?
You say they've stamped you in the ground?
Why worry?
And you've been buffeted around
By all the folks that you have found?
Why worry?
The game is hard; the odds are great—
It takes a man to stand the gait!

Favorite Jokes of Famous People

As Told by Them to
FRANK ERNEST NICHOLSON

By GEORGE O'BRIEN

George O'Brien's real name is George O'Brien. He was born in Frisco twenty-seven years ago, is the son of the chief of police there, and started out as a boxer.

Entered the trotting tintypes as a cameraman, but soon decided that that occupation was too much of a grind. It didn't seem right that one man should do so many good turns in one day. In fact, George was positive it was negative, so he framed up an exposure of his talent in pictures and soon his photographic career was completely developed.

He's a matinee idol now, and said to have "athletic-sex appeal," whatever that is. Plays the piano and stud poker, shaves entirely with his right hand and likes the following:

"I get a big bang out of the story they tell out here in Hollywood," George told me, "about a director of western pictures who was trying to get a lot of action in a picture he was making.

"The big thrill was to come when the hero threw the villain over a high cliff into the rapids below. Everything was in readiness. The property man had the dummy all stuffed and looking quite lifelike. The cameraman focused up and the director gave the signal to begin the scene.

"It went great—very realistic. When the scene was finished the director turned from the brink of the cliff and mopped his brow. Suddenly he happened to glance down at his feet and there lay the straw-stuffed dummy.

"'Good heavens!' he shouted. 'What was that we threw over the cliff?'"

HEALTH and DIET ADVICE

By DR. FRANK McCOY
Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Mr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper.

A Successful Life
(Concluded)

It is a good plan to walk home after work or to at least cover from three to five miles every day, even though you may have been walking during your working hours. In addition, use some calisthenics or exercises, trying to work up a good sweat through the exercising, and taking a cold shower afterwards. Next, lie in bed and relax for about a half hour and then change into fresh clothes for dinner. You will feel an abundance of health and vitality after following this regime for a few weeks.

Your dinner should consist of one of the good proteins such as beef, mutton, rabbit, chicken, fish or fowl, using one-fourth to a half pound and the choice of one or more of the cooked non-starchy vegetables which are listed for your luncheon, and a choice of any of the raw salad vegetables. You may also have a dish of jello, stewed fruit or ice cream for dessert.

Your evening should be spent in some type of recreation, such as reading, conversation, or attending the theater. You owe it to both yourself and your family to take in a good show once or twice weekly. Do not work during the evenings. You will have better success with your business if you relax and save your strength to concentrate during your working hours.

Try these suggestions which I have given you and I am sure that you will notice an improvement both physically and mentally. Many of my patients tell me that after they have gained their health they were able to do five or six times as much as they were capable of previously, and in many instances their incomes and salaries have increased in a like proportion.

Even though you came to my office for personal advice, unless you are suffering from some serious disease, I doubt if I could give you better advice than the regime which I have just outlined, and although this advice has not been very costly to you, you can make it just as valuable as you wish if you are willing to follow strictly the rules which I have outlined.

A strong body, free from pain, is the natural right and heritage of every living being. Even though you have lived haphazardly up to the present time, you can probably develop a stronger and more efficient body than you have now.

Physical and mental improvement are not accidental. They are a result of scientific laws which you can learn as well as any one else. While health should be a natural condition, so many have departed from natural living that it is necessary to make an intensive scientific study of health-building if we wish to obtain the highest mark of perfection.

It will be splendid if each of us will remember that we have a body for development, and that this body is the finest piece of property that we will ever possess during this life, and the conservation and cultivation of our health and ideals will bring us far greater dividends than any real estate we may develop, business we can control, or bonds we can own.

Make the preservation and development of health the paramount interest in your life.

Here's to your health, vigor and vitality!

Questions and Answers

Question—H. G. Writes: "I have been advised that my lungs are tubercular. Would living near the sea be beneficial?"

Answer—Mild cases of tuberculosis may be cured in any climate. Advanced cases are serious whether one lives in the desert or near the sea. I have a special series of articles on tuberculosis which explain its cause and treatment which I shall be very glad to send to you if you will send me a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Question—R. J. asks: "Will you please tell me a good way to treat warts? I have several on my left hand. Have been treating them with iodine and also costic pencil, but am getting poor results."

Answer: A small crystal of glacial acetic acid may be dissolved on top of the wart. This will usually cause it to disappear. If the wart is large, this treatment should be repeated after several days.

Question—R. M. asks: "Is zwiebach the same as Melba toast?"

Answer: Zwiebach is similar to Melba toast, but it is not always as wholesome as the Melba toast prepared in the home, since most commercial varieties of zwiebach contain sugar, and are not thoroughly dextrinized.

Question—Mrs. M. B. G. writes: "I have a lump on the right side of my neck about the size of a pecan that has been there for over four years. Has never bothered me but I get worried at its being there. It is movable. Would like to know what causes it."

Answer: The lump is probably a fatty tumor and will cause no harm. If it does not increase in size or pain you in any way I would advise you to leave it alone. However, the operation for removing this kind of tumor is a very simple one and not attended by very much danger.

ALTUS, Okla., July 16. (Sp.)—About $1,000 is spent daily in the city to keep the population cool, which averages pretty well with the amount spent by people to keep warm during the winter months. The amount to keep cool is expended on cold drinks, ice and refrigeration.

25 TO ATTEND CLUB MEETING

Wichita Women to Join Wilbarger Workers

A number of Wichita county women, members of the county home demonstration clubs, will join with the women of Wilbarger county in a three-day encampment to be held at Vernon Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of this week, according to announcement made Monday by Miss Ethel Louise Webb, Wichita county home demonstration agent. About 25 women are expected to attend the meet, Miss Webb said.

Mrs. W. W. Chamberlain, dean of women at the John Tarleton agricultural college at Stephenville, and Miss Minnie Mae Grubbs, district home demonstration agent with headquarters at College Station, will be principal speakers at the meet.

The encampment will be in charge of Miss Emma Gunter, Wilbarger county home demonstration agent, who will be assisted by Miss Webb.

Miss Webb will have charge of living room improvement discussion during the meet.

San Angelo Pledges Air Line Support

"San Angelo will do its part."

The receipt of this message in connection with the Petroleum Airway was announced Monday by Hubert Harrison, manager of the chamber of commerce. San Angelo's quota in the airline is $25,000 and that of Wichita Falls in $50,000.

"This does not mean that San Angelo guarantees that $25,000," Mr. Harrison explained. "It is not that definite. However, it is a step further than any of the other cities have gone so far, and it is the first reply received in direct answer to the recent report sent to the cities on the proposed line giving the cost.

"Wichita Falls, through its chamber of commerce, has endorsed the idea in general, but has not endorsed the giving of the money to the line or making the guarantee as the directors have not as yet met to act on the financial proposal. I expect consideration of the financial end of the deal will be in the near future here."

Weeks Waits Signing Of Land for Colony

The development of the Wichita irrigated valley is now a private enterprise between the landholders interested and the promoters, Charles Weeks, it was learned Monday from Hubert Harrison, manager of the chamber of commerce.

Mr. Harrison explained that the deal had been fostered and endorsed by the chamber of commerce, and that the contract and its details are now a private matter between the two interested parties. "I do not believe the public will be called upon to stand any part of the expense of bringing Mr. Weeks here," Mr. Harrison said.

Mr. Weeks has returned to his home in California where he will probably remain until enough land is signed up and the proposition is ready for the signing of his contract, Mr. Harrison concluded.

Alderman Finances Another's Weed Cutting

It cost A. W. King, alderman, $2 to have a stranger's weeds cut, according to an informal statement made by the alderman Monday.

"I received a card notice from the city sanitary department saying that weeds should be cut on my lot, so I made a memorandum on the card asking the city to have the weeds cut and to bill me for it," Mr. King explained.

The city turned it over to a weed cutter, and when it came time to pay I found out I had agreed to pay for cutting the weeds on a stranger's lot. The lot referred to on the card was not mine, and I did not notice it when I gave the order to go ahead. However, I guess the $2 is a good contribution to the better sanitary conditions of the city."

Kiwanis Members To Visit Scout Camp

The program of the Kiwanis club luncheon at the Kemp hotel Monday noon was featured by a sing-song led by W. E. Young and R. E. Shepherd. Among the songs were "Ramona", "Comin Down South", "So Tired", and "Let a Smile Be Your Umbrella."

Those members of the club who desire to visit the encampment of the Boy Scouts near Diversion Lake dam will meet at the Memorial auditorium at 5 o'clock, Tuesday afternoon.

Railroad Men To Hear Office Seekers

A special meeting of Wichita Falls men, their wives and friends, will be held at the I. O. O. F. hall, 807½ Austin avenue, next Friday night for the benefit of county candidates who may want to meet with the railroaders.

Candidates present for the meeting will be given an opportunity to talk for a few minutes, it is understood. Previously scheduled meetings for Friday night are at Iowa Park and Burkburnett.

Girl Given Five-Year Suspected Sentence

When Beulah Howe, pretty and demure Wichita county maiden, told jurors in 30th district court a story of need and privation which led to her decision to "turn to burglary" to earn her living, she was given a suspended sentence of five years after the jury had deliberated for a few minutes about noon Monday.

Shepherd to Speak At Ad Club Luncheon

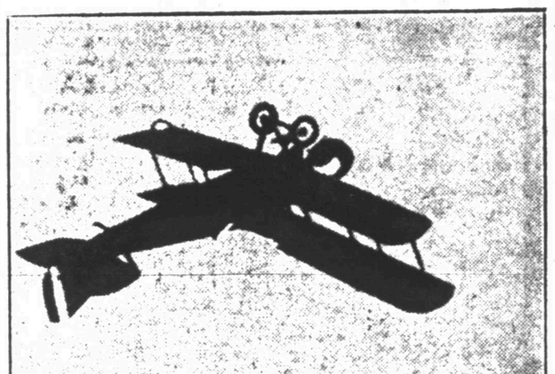

"The Advertisement of Business Is Dead" will be the topic adopted by R. E. Shepherd who will address the Ad club at the Kemp hotel, Tuesday.

A special musical number will be given by the radio artists, Misses Lorena Tucker, Jean Fisk and Frances Phillips.

Three-Year Term Given In Forgery Case

Joe Owens, pleading guilty to charges of forgery, was sentenced to three years imprisonment by a jury in 30th district court Monday afternoon. Dick Kenley and Gage McDermett, assistant district attorneys, state's prosecutors, had asked for a two-year sentence.

Flies Upside Down

The above picture shows an aerial daredevil with the International Air Circus flying "wrong side up" at 150 miles an hour. This circus will perform in Wichita Falls on Labor Day, Sept. 4 in a benefit performance to the local American Legion.

Shook-Pryor Case Continued Indefinitely On Defense Plea

Although Ben Allred, district attorney, announced ready when the case of Ed Pryor, Tom Shook and Henry Shumate was called in 30th district court Monday morning, the case was indefinitely continued upon motion of Shields Heyser, attorney for the erstwhile Electra officers.

Mr. Heyser based his motion for continuance on the fact that the indictment returned against the two men was not the charge filed against them upon their arrest. The change in charge had made it impossible for the two men to properly prepare their defense, he told Judge E. G. Thornton.

After the case was continued, Judge Thornton imposed fines of $50 each on three defense witnesses, Bert Davis, Ben Davis and J. D. Lang, all of Electra, who had failed to appear in court after they had been served with subpoenas said to have been issued at the request of defense attorneys.

Pryor and Shook, arrested by Sheriff W. G. Bralley when Shumate, escaped from the county jail the day before, was found sleeping with Pryor, were brought to Wichita Falls, lodged in the county jail and charged with concealing a criminal.

Following investigations the grand jury indicted the three men on charges of burglary, naming each on counts as principal, accomplice and accessory after the fact.

School Board Names Committee To Supervise Scholarship Awards

A committee of five to supervise the awarding of scholarships at Wichita Junior college was appointed at the meeting of the school board of Wichita Falls Monday evening. Thirteen scholarships are to be awarded by the committee for the ensuing year at the college, most of these having been donated by business men of Wichita Falls.

No action was taken on additions to the teaching personnel of the school system for the year. In addition to the appointment of the committee, routine business took the attention of board members.

Those named on the committee include: Dr. J. W. Cantwell, chairman; S. H. Rider, dean of junior college; Mrs. W. W. Silk, member of the board; Burl Bryant, county school superintendent; and J. W. Akin, mayor. The committee will meet once annually and in called sessions to discuss disposition of scholarships, it was decided.

by C. P. Engelking who acted as chairman.

The candidates spoke as follows:

Max Waggonen and J. S. Tippie announced their candidacy for the office of constable of precinct No. 4 and asked the support of the voters.

W. A. Ashley, E. C. Wilson, and W. H. Coffman, candidates for justice of peace of precinct 4, announced their candidacy and promised honest enforcement of the law if elected.

Mrs. W. W. Gardner and T. W. McHam announced their candidacy for county treasurer and asked the support of the Electra voters.

For County Superintendent

J. A. Hood: "Seventeen years of school work should qualify me for the position and I do not believe that my opponent, Mr. Wofford, can conduct the education of this county in a constructive manner when he has stayed in one rut for 14 years by serving only the rural schools."

Burl Bryant: "During my term in office the rural schools of this county have been classified and recognized by the state board of education and we now rank among the foremost in the state in rural education."

Clyde R. Wofford: "I am a candidate for county superintendent of schools because I have studied rural problems, I know the problems and difficulties of the rural schools and how to remedy them."

For Tax Collector

Robert Dunaway, E. L. Trevathan, Everett Hughes, N. A. Moore and Mark Banta all expressed their experience and ability for holding the office of tax collector and asked for the support of the people.

District judge of the 30th court:

P. A. Martin: "I take it for granted that you will choose the man whom you consider best qualified for the position. I have had 24 years in actual experience of practicing the law and I believe that a man is better qualified to serve as a district judge if that he has served step by step in the minor offices of the county. My opponent thinks that he can speed up the courts but experience has taught me that it is better to take ample time and consider all the facts in a case before rendering a decision."

Harry Bunnenberg: "Judge Martin has served you for a number of years and I think that he should pass the office on to a younger man for no man should forever be perpetuated in an office. I have not had the experience that Judge Martin has had but I submit that I am capable of handling the office or I would not have been able in the past to protect the interest of my clients in the courtroom. I will take up the slack in the courts by making the lawyer who seeks to kill time step up to the bar and submit his case or I shall dismiss his case."

For County Attorney

Robert K. Crain: "I have not made a statement against Mr. Somerville that I cannot substantiate by the records at the courthouse. I ask you voters if it is wrong for me to prove that Mr. Somerville's statements are false, you do not have the time to go to the courthouse and look up his record so I will tell you the truth. I am not trying to rim on his record because it would not hold water anywhere."

W. E. Wilson: "I have nothing to say against my opponents. They are all capable men and I think that you would be justified in believing anything that they say against each other. There is but one question between us and it is ability. If you think that I am able and honest I ask you to consider me."

Wayne Somerville: "Crain is a good boy but he makes some big mistakes. He has wanted me to answer him but if he wanted to produce records why did he not submit his and let me submit mine and let the voters be the judge? It is all right to expose a man as long as you tell the truth but when you cease to do that it is nothing more and nothing less than mud slinging. If he can show me a thing in his pamphlet that is a fact I will eat the paper."

Bill Davenport: I believe that my opponents are capable men but I am also capable and I need the the office worse than they do. If two or more of us are equally capable it is only fair that you give the office to the man who needs it the most. I am a prohibitionist and I promise you that if you elect me I will prosecute liquor cases."

For County Judge

E. W. Nicholson: "I have been in the office every day since I have been judge and I have made you an honest and an efficient officer."

John P. Marrs: "I have had varied and general experience and I feel that I am qualified to hold the office. It takes a lawyer and a good one to be a county judge."

F. B. Curd: "I have had a great deal of experience as a business man and as the office is a business office I feel that I am better qualified than my opponents to fill it."

For Representative

F. G. Swanson: "There are three of us in this race, two of us believe that we are capable of holding it, and the other admits that he is not. I will not say anything against either of them but none of us are as poorly qualified as some of the representatives that sit in the legislature."

Dr. Joseph Graves: "I ask you to send me to the legislature to try to help stop the leakage in the state's money. Consider the facts and see if you should not send men to the legislature who will act as the watchdogs of your treasury."

R. J. Long: "Dr. Graves says that he will be the watch dog of the treasury but if he could not watch his own pocketbook how can you believe that he will watch yours. Mr. Swanson is like a great many representatives who go to the legislature to put over selfish ideas and not to protect the interests of the voters. I have no obligations to any political faction and if I am elected I will vote for the interest of the Wichita county voters."

Group Two Idle

Candidates for county office of group two, scheduled to speak at Fannin school Monday at 8 o'clock, called off the meeting there and the meeting at Barwise school, set for next Monday night. The excessive heat Monday night and the restricted seating space at the school were reasons given for cancelling the two speaking dates.

Members of group two speak at Cashion school Wednesday night and at Iowa Park Friday night. Group one speaks at Barwise school Wednesday night and at Burkburnett Friday night.

BUCKETS FAIL TO SAVE TOWN

Telephone Operator Stays To Last Minute

HOUSTON, July 16. (AP)—A fire at Waller, about 20 miles from Houston, which had destroyed seven business buildings, was gotten under control shortly before noon today, but firemen continued to pour water on the ruins, and on gasoline tanks, one of which exploded.

Buildings destroyed included a department store, the chamber of commerce building, a cafe, a physician's office, and a feed store. No one was injured and origin of the fire was unknown.

As the bucket brigade, Waller's only fire defense, fought the flames, Mrs. Ray Hefler, telephone operator, described it to the Houston Chronicle. The flames crept close to her office. A gasoline station was next door.

— In the midst of her description she broke in: "Listen. That's all I can tell you now. The fire is up to the gas station. I have to get out before the tanks explode. No—I can't tell you any more. I'm leaving."

A few minutes later she phoned that one of the tanks had exploded.

The Waller bucket brigade was aided by fire fighting apparatus from Prairie View, Hempstead and Houston.

Council Defers Water Bonds

city budget of $570 was suggested to the council by the city manager to cover $300 extra cost of salaries in collecting the sewer rentals and $270 additional police salaries not provided for in the budget.

Thelbert Martin, City attorney, gave the council an opinion that it has legal contract for the installation of window shades in the auditorium at a certain price, and that the city has recourse for the bidder's failure to put them in at the contracted price. He also presented 27 tax suits which were approved for filing against those who have not paid their city taxes for years prior to 1927.

Plumbers Protest

Mr. Fairtrace and Mr. Martin were given permission to attend the meeting of the city attorney's association of the state at Fort Worth Friday and Saturday.

Plumbers at the meeting protested the new alley parking ordinance saying their repair wagons might be in the middle of a job and be parked in an alley when the two hour time limit was up. The ordinance was then amended to give plumbers, electricians and the like who might be on a job with their wagons, the right to obtain a permit from the chief of police if they found the job would last over two hours. With this change it was passed on second reading.

In the letter from Mr. Carter to the city manager suggesting the $3,500,000 bond issue, Mr. Carter said he believed the fall of the year the ideal time to present the issue to the people when they were all back from their vacations and a more representative vote could be obtained.

"Large portions of the city are suffering because of no storm sewers, and whenever a bond issue of any kind is submitted, I believe this matter should be taken into consideration," the letter said. It has been estimated that to properly equip the city with storm sewers would cost $1,250,000 to $1,500,000.

For Park Improvement

"A bond issue of this kind also should cover all of our permanent improvements that are needed, submitting the propositions separately so that the voters might vote for one or against the other as they desired.....Under miscellaneous improvements would be included proper improvements to our parks where the public would get the benefits of an investment already made; remodeling the central fire and police station; improvement of a number of our streets; such as Tenth, Brook and Monroe, and other improvements of this nature which come in the class of permanent improvements and which cannot be taken care of out of current revenue. I merely submit this to you for your consideration and assure you of my willingness to cooperate with you in any plan you may see fit to submit."

BARK HALTS COURT

Old Man Evades Trial For Filching Milk Delivery

CHICAGO, July 16. (US)—Arthur Meyers did not aspire to become a big butter and egg man in a small way, or any way at all, his only worldly concern being a shaggy dog which followed him into the Grand Crossing court today.

A milkman accused Meyers of raising the orders set out by his clients at night. When deliveries were made, Meyers is said to have collected the "extras" and sold them.

But Meyers, a tottering old man, said he was concerned only for his friend, a dog. And if my dog barks here, he addressed the court, I am innocent.

The dog barked and John O'Connor, the milkman, refused to prosecute.

TWO HELD FOR GIRL'S TORTURE

Father and Housekeeper Await Court Hearing

MT. CLEMENS, Mich., July 16. (UP)—Failure of his attorney to appear, caused postponement today until Tuesday of the hearing of Percy Smith, 36, Toronto, who is charged with his housekeeper with mayhem and assault with intent to inflict bodily harm upon his 7-year-old daughter, Kathleen.

The little girl's finger tips were seared with a lighted candle and her hands were burned over a stove fire. Neighbors who made the complaint, said the punishment was inflicted because Kathleen ate a piece of cake. The burns penetrated to the bone, physicians said.

Smith, according to Prosecuting Attorney James E. Spier, admitted fleeing from Toronto with his housekeeper, Mrs. Jessie Ellison, 48, and two of his four children. Charlotte Belle Smith, 29, who came here from Toronto indicated today she would file additional charges against her husband and the housekeeper, who are held in default of $2,500 bail.

Mrs. Smith has been reunited with Kathleen, and another daughter, Marion, 10. The two girls, according to neighbors, often were whipped and otherwise mistreated. The prosecuting attorney said that Smith told him he would marry Mrs. Ellison if he could obtain a divorce.

He laid before President Coolidge some of the issues the nominee will discuss in his speech at Stanford university, California, accepting the Republican nomination.

Secretary Hoover also is understood to have discussed with the president the matter of selecting a new secretary of commerce. While Hoover had informed the executive some time ago of his desire to be relieved of his post in the cabinet, so that he could devote his entire time to the campaign, today the matter was personally discussed by them.

Special to The Record News.

SEYMOUR, Texas, July 16.—Funeral services will be conducted Tuesday at 3 p. m. from the First Baptist church here for C. W. Siddens, 48, county commissioner and candidate for the office of county judge, who was found dead at his home late Monday morning. The rites will be in charge of the Rev. J. R. Balch, pastor of the church, and of the local Masonic body, of which Mr. Siddens long had been a member.

Mr. Siddens had committed suicide by slashing his throat, according to an inquest conducted over the body by Justice of the Peace Nat G. Mitchell.

Mr. Siddens had been active as commissioner for five years, and was busy preparing for the impending campaign, when he was seized with a nervous trouble about a month ago. Despondency over ill health is the sole motive for the tragedy advanced by Mr. Siddens' friends and relatives here.

He was active in the Masonic lodge and a member in good standing of the Baptist church. He had lived in Baylor county for 35 years.

Surviving are his widow, a brother, J. A. Siddens, his mother, a son and daughter.

The Rev. Sam R. Hay of Housotn, presiding bishop, declared that politics would not be discussed at the meeting and refused to make a statement of any kind regarding the political situation, but other ministers at the conference took more interest in the subject.

Negro Named In Job Sales

Democrat, of Georgia, that the senate resolution ordering the investigation of the alleged patronage "graft" was passed at the last session. George has insistently demanded a "cleanup" of conditions in his state.

As a result a thorough inquiry into the patronage system in southern states has begun with the Brookhart committee and Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant United States attorney general, conducting separate investigations.

"The recent statement of the postmaster general to the senate committee to the effect that the Democrats when in power had forced federal appointees to contribute campaign funds is misleading," declared George in his statement.

Small Sum Asked

"The letter of W. D. Jamieson (former treasurer of the Democratic national committee) to a Georgia postmaster asking that small sum less than $100 be raised for campaign purposes is not on a par with the general policy of the Republican party under the present administration.

"Thousands of dollars have been exacted from the victims of this vicious policy, not for party purposes but for the personal benefit, use and enrichment of a few grafters.

"Not one cent collected from postal employes of Georgia has gone to support the Republican ticket, state or national, but all of it has been appropriated to the private use of the officials of the Republican party in Georgia except so much as may have been necessary for actual office expenses of the Republican state committee."

Meanwhile it was understood that Mrs. Willebrandt now in charge of the Biloxi, Miss., grand jury investigation of alleged patronage would later investigate the alleged sale of federal jobs in South Carolina. Representative Stevenson, Democrat, of that state, has reported to department of justice officials that he has documentary evidence tending to prove the bartering in jobs.

It is estimated that the campaign planned by Mr. Adams will call for an expenditure of at least $100,000 in Texas. He said that there would be a number of speakers on the stump for the national ticket over the state.

LOUGHRAN WINS CLOSE DECISION

Tommy Beats Pete Latzo In Fierce Battle

By DAMON RUNYON

WILKES-BARRE, Penn., July 16. (US)—By the simple expedient of letting the chunky Pete Latzo impale himself on a left jab and a right uppercut, Tommy Loughran of Philadelphia retained his title of light heavyweight champion of the world here tonight. Thomas must have walked backward a matter of five or six miles, spread out over 10 rounds, with Latzo hotly chasing him. Tommy kept a long left jab trailing behind him and Pete would run right into this and then hang his chin over a right uppercut that Thomas had in reserve behind his jab.

I don't suppose a champion of the world ever marched backwards farther in defending his title, not even Mr. Gene Tunney at Chicago. It would have been a horrible exhibition if Pete had stood still. They might both be there looking at each other at this minute.

Pennsy Couldn't Lose

A sporting editor, a boilermaker and an old fighter joined in the decision. The crowd didn't complain much although their beautiful little city is, in a manner of speaking, back in Pete Latzo's own back yard.

However, Loughran is also a Pennsylvanian so he had no little local support. No matter how the fight went the title had to remain in dear old Pennsy.

Latzo is short bodied and short armed. Tommy is tall, long armed, and rangy. Pete is a tough man at close quarters, but he has to get very close.

Latzo Forces Fight

The fight was a matter of Latzo trying to crowd close, and of Loughran trying to keep him away. In the main Loughran succeeded, but I didn't think he won by a very wide margin.

In fact, if forcing a fight counts for anything, he didn't win it at all.

A champion ought to be required to do some fighting on his own volition. They place no premium on aggressiveness nowadays.

Loughran was bleeding from a cut over his right eye at the finish. Otherwise there was no damage.

Fight by Rounds

Round one: Latzo rushed the champion to a neutral corner and flailed his stomach with short left hooks. Tommy stepped out to ring his head back with a half dozen short right upper cuts. Tommy jabbed prettily with his left, boxed easily twice around the challenger and tied Pete up easily when the miner rushed him. Latzo bullied the champion to the ropes and dug his left deeply in Tommy's belly. Tommy held the challenger off easily with a snappy left jab.

Round two: Tommy's left forged steadily into Pete's face, until Latzo smashed A vicious right hook to the head. Tommy clashed and jabbed the challenger's head with his deadly left, but Pete stuck his head in for more and crushed both hands to the champion's head. Blood trickled from Latzo's nose as Loughran planted careful lefts into the challenger's features. Latzo drove a right through Tommy's guard and rocked him into the ropes with a volley of short hooks to the head just before the gong.

Round three: Latzo clawed into the champion but could not get past Loughran's left hand. Pete bulled Loughran into the ropes again, the champion's weakest position, and smashed lefts and rights into Tommy's head. Tommy rocked a bit, but fought his way clear only to run into two rebounding crashes at the pit of the stomach. Tommy was boxing carefully at the end.

Round four: Pete nailed the champion with a left and right to the head and Tommy rolled groggily into the ropes in a neutral corner. A crashing left hook opened a cut over Tommy's left eye. Pete dazed the champion with a left and right to the head on the ropes, but instead of ripping into follow his advantage tried to box the champion in the center of the ring. A right cross Loughran flying back to the ropes, blood streaming down his face. Carefully Latzo followed him but Tommy blocked a dozen dangerous punches. As they slugged in the center of the ring, Loughran's knees bent under a crashing right to the chin, but he kept Latzo off until the bell. The fight was so fierce that secondary battles broke out among the partisans in the ringside seats.

Round five: Latzo drilled three lefts to the body and followed Loughran all over the ring. Tommy's stabbing left had lost its steam and seemed unable to hold the challenger off. Latzo rushed Loughran to the ropes and pounded his body with both hands. Pete seemed tired and let the champion pet him with both hands to the head and body. A sharp left drew more blood from Latzo's nose but he hammered back with a vicious body attack. Tommy called on the kidney punch that saved his last fight with Latzo and stung Pete badly about the body up to the bell.

Round six: Tommy's legs were back in prime working order as Latzo bored into a storm of leather. As they slugged in Latzo's corner, Tommy's left fell low and Latzo complained to the referee. Pete tried to bat the champion's nose out with the worse of a left hand exchange. Latzo turned and walked into a neutral corner complaining when Tommy smashed another left into his body. The referee refused to admit his claim and brought them together again. Latzo was unsteady as Tommy jabbed him about with a straight left. They were sparring at the bell.

Round seven: Latzo tired, but game, smashed solid rights to Loughran's head. The champion covered up at the ropes and Pete pounded him with both hands. A short left hook cut Loughran's right cheek but he shot Latzo's head back with a swishing right uppercut. Tommy danced away as Pete bored both hands at his body without a single clean hit. Loughran neatly floored the challenger with a right to the jaw but Pete stormed back with both hands flinging. Loughran hooked Pete and floored the challenger easily with his left as the seven ended.

Round eight: Latzo chased the champion with a flock of sweeping left hooks to the body, but couldn't land cleanly. Latzo threw a long overhand right to the champion's chin which missed. Tommy's progress against Loughran's defense as the champion danced back, his irritating lefts and trailing behind and in Pete's features. Latzo floundered into a left hook to the chin but drove Loughran into the ropes with a volley of short hooks to the head just before the gong.

Round nine: Making the fight, despite failing strength, Latzo chased the champion with both hands, dribbling to the body. A left hook opened Tommy's right eye again. Loughran ducked Latzo to the ropes with another barrage to the head but Tommy danced out of harm's way and beat Pete constantly testing the leather of his left glove. Tommy looked tired. Loughran, whenever possible as Latzo crowded him, crossed rights. Tommy went down under a crashing right to the pit of the stomach but straightened out quickly and boxed cleverly up to the bell.

CVENGROS AND SPUDDERS BLANK BEARS TO SCORE 5 STRAIGHT

MIKE PITCHES AND BATS WIN

Every Wichitan Gets Hit In 10 to 0 Shutout

By LARRY DAILEY
Record News Sports Editor

Buffaloes or Bears, it matters not what the critters are, our Spudders are engaging on the ball field. They all look alike. The pennant-chasing Wichita Falls athletes went bear hunting yesterday and brought in plenty of pelts to adorn their winter homes. Mike Cvengros turned in another great pitching performance and the southpaw and the rest of the Spudders pounded out a 10 to 0 shutout in the first out of the series out at the lot.

Mike chucked four-hit ball and with the exception of occasional wildness had the Bears impotent on the attack. His change of pace baffled the hostiles. Slow ball, hook, fast ball, a bewildering assortment was shown by the eminent portsider from Pana.

Our Mr. Cvengros also was one of the big factors in the attack. The Spudders hammered Dana Fillingim, a spitballer, one of that tribe of pitchers who in not so many years will be as extinct as a dodo bird, and Stein, who I have nicknamed Lefty because he throws his left-hand, for 16 hits. Of those blows the dashing Mr. Cvengros hammered three, one a double, drove home two comrades and scored three tallies himself, thus accounting for half of our runs.

Eldred Gets Three Hits

Every Spudder maced out at least one safe hit. Turgeon smacked two doubles, Eldred two doubles and a single and Roetz and Stanton a double and single each. Sixteen hits were made by Galloway's Ten Gallons, which included, as noted above, six two-base drives.

Three of the Bears' four smacks also went for two bases.

After the Gibsonmen filled the bases in the first inning they didn't threaten to score again until the eighth when they again populated all the sacks. But two were out and Michael fanned Meyers for the third out—that is, the catcher took the last strike without waving his bat.

Fast Fielding Aids Mike

Cvengros was materially assisted in his shutout victory by able fielding. Turgeon and Benton continued to scintillate with brilliant work around the keystone bag and that wonder Stanton took their throws and ground balls that came his way with grace and aplomb.

It was the fifth straight victory of the Spudders and only the fact that Houston still wins prevented our athletes from going into a tie for the league lead.

The defeat sent the Bears into fourth place, half a game behind Dallas.

Spuds Score Four in Third

After Fillingim had retired the Spudders in order for the first two innings the homelings nicked Dana for four tallies in the third. Stanton singled to center and went to second on Lapan's hit to left. The Bear infielders moved in for the bunt, Grimes midway from the plate to first and Chapman near first base. But Cvengros didn't bunt. Following the precept of Willie Keeler of "hitting 'em where they ain't," and so successfully practiced by that great place-hitter, Mike banged the ball right through that yawning chasm between first and second bases, Stanton scoring and Lapan stopping at second.

Benton laid down a beautiful bunt to Flippen to advance Lapan and Cvengros. Turgeon hit to far center to Najo, Lapan scoring. Fitzgerald singled to center, Cvengros tallying. Fitzgerald stole second. Eldred singled to center and Meyers dropped Najo's throw after tagging Fitzgerald at the plate.

Three more were scored by the Spudders in the fourth. "Hot Dog" Roetz doubled to left after one was out and scored on Stanton's two-base drive to the same territory. Fine teamwork by the kids. Stanton moved to third while Flaskamper was tossing out Lapan. Cvengros singled to center, Stanton scoring. Mike went to second when Benton beat out a roller to Flippen. Turgeon's double to left scored Cvengros.

Stein Also Nicked

Stein went to the hill in the fifth but what matters left-handers? Anyhow, the Spudders promptly greeted him with a tally in that round. Eldred started it with a double to right and scored on Jenkins' hit to center. The Spudders called it a day after scoring two more in the sixth.

Cvengros led off with a double to left. Benton lifted to Flaskamper. Turgeon's second two-base poke to left sent Cvengros to the shade of the dugout. Fitzgerald grounded to Flaskamper, Turgeon going to third. Turgeon scored on Eldred's single to left.

Notes of the Game

Here's more bad news for Frank Gibson and his Bears from no less a personage than "Bad News" Jim. Big Bill Shores probably will pitch today.

Chapman and Flippen, Bear infielders, were obtained from the Nashville club of the Southern association in a swap for Philbin and Taylor.

A storm threatened before the start of the game. Rain or dust—or both—seemed imminent. But the elements relented and the pastime was played under favorable weather conditions.

Flaskamper and Mulvey worked the double steal in the first inning. But it availed them naught.

Flippen made fast plays on harsh grounders by Eldred and Jenkins in the first inning.

Benton literally went up in the air for Grimes' bounder in the third inning and got a big hand for his snatch and throw to retire Ray at first. Rabbit handled seven chances and his error, a bad throw, was not costly.

In addition to his hitting, Turgeon accepted nine chances flawlessly.

Cvengros had three balls and no strikes on both Flippen and Mulvey in the fifth, then he whipped over two strikes and caused each to go out on infield taps.

Steers Defeat Exporters

DALLAS, Texas, July 16. (AP)—The Steers broke the jinx held over them by ex-teammates Monday when they batted Gene Walker out of the box and took the opener of their three-game series with Beaumont, 7 to 3. They rapped out 14 safe blows that included a half a dozen doubles and got them in spots. Scores were obtained in trios in the sixth and seventh innings to erase a two-run lead that the Robertson aggregation piled up with a rally in their half of the sixth. Score:

Rejuvenated White Sox Threaten To Give Macks Fight for Second

Pale Hose, Including Metzler and Other Texans, Playing Great Ball for Lena Blackburne

NEW YORK, July 16. (UP)—The warning has gone out around the American league to watch the Chicago White Sox.

It is a changed team since Lena Blackburne succeeded Ray Schalk as manager. The White Sox have won nine of their last 14 games; they demonstrated their hitting power by defeating the Boston Red Sox in a double-header Saturday and they are running the bases intelligently and daringly.

Blackburne, who had been released by the White Sox twice, made no changes in the lineup, but he infused his young men with the will to win. Intrinsically, the White Sox are a powerful team. Clancy, Hunnefeld, Cissell and Kamm make up a fast infield; Metzler, Mostil and Falk, in the outfield, can hit hard and field well. With pitchers like Faber, Lyons, Blackenship and Cox, there is no reason why the Sox should ever be out of first division.

Failed Under Schalk

Schalk's failure to get results out of the team was one of the big mysteries of the 1928 season. There were rumors that Schalk was not allowed to run the team, that he was informed from the business office each day just who was to pitch. Whatever the reason, the White Sox were the sorriest team in the league at the opening of the season. They sank into last place and seemingly were due to spend the season there.

Then they started playing ball for Blackburne and now have a firm hold on fourth place. Schalk, who in his prime was one of the greatest catchers of all time, was an easy-going type of manager. Blackburne changed the system the day he took charge.

Lena Lays Down Law

He laid down the law of his players, and now the White Sox are perhaps the best disciplined team of the major leagues.

With the New York Yankees running away with the American league race, interest is centered on the fight for second place. The rejuvenated White Sox seem the logical team to battle the Philadelphia Athletics down through August for the runnerup position.

MAT AND RING STARS READY

Grapple and Boxing Bouts At Ball Park Tonight

One finish wrestling match and two 10 round boxing bouts will be staged as a "bargain card" Tuesday night by Alec Ross in Spudder park.

Joe Parelli and Joe Kopecky, two "rough and tough wrestlers," are booked for the mat contest under New York commission rules. Both of the men have informed Ross that the contest will be a tough one from the start to the finish.

Dempse Moore will hook up with Sailor Jack Bentley in a 10-round mitt pushing affair. Bentley is rated as a topnotcher and Moore, who recently turned professional, will have to "step around," according to Ross, to win the match.

Jack Matlock and Ted Lewis of Chicago will be the principals in the other 10-round bout. This bout, according to Ross, will be one of the best ever staged on a Wichita Falls card.

Elkins Refused Place On Team

U. S. Olympic Board Rules Against Nebraskan

By FRANK GETTY

ABOARD S. S. PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, July 16. (UP)—Rolf Elkins, decathlon star, will not be allowed to compete in the Olympic games.

The American committee took up the case of the former University of Nebraska athlete today and voted to stand on the team as it was picked at Cambridge, Mass.

Officials said the matter was definitely closed and that no further consideration would be given to the application of the New York Athletic club to allow Elkins to compete at Amsterdam. They seemed greatly relieved to have reached a decision.

The second accident of the trip occurred today when Derhell Every, Yale fencer, suffered a flesh wound in the left breast during a workout. Every's opponent broke his foil. Physicians said the fencer probably would recover in time to compete at Amsterdam.

Leslie Beers, wrestler, who has a fractured shoulder, is improving rapidly. He is taking light exercise and hopes to be in condition in another week.

The American team will arrive at Amsterdam in three more days. There will be nine days left in which to unlimber before the start of the Olympiad.

Baer Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER
(Copyright, 1928, Universal Service)

NEW YORK, July 16.—Now that campaign orators are starting to call names, labels, tags and prescriptions, it looks as if this election will be fought on the level.

We still have four more months of curling humidity and corrosive repartee before we know whether a Democrat or a Republican is the man of a two-thirds destiny.

It looks as if my esteemed opponent of yesterday is going to be my over-steamed opponent of today.

Mrs. Clem Shaver started it for the Publican party when she called a demijohn a boozocrat.

We fail to see why the distilling pot should call the retort kettle black, nor why the bottle should call the flask a hipocrite, neither do we see why bathtub should call the kitchen sink a tank, for gin is made in both of them.

Why should the keg call the barrel a bum? We were at both conventions, in Kansas City and Houston, and we stick to our original statement that every dry plank has a bunghole in it.

Booze was mentioned in neither city but the microphone catches only the oratory and not the whispers.

Both the Publicans and the Demijohns sought to prevent scratching the thin veneer over the liquor problem. Probably on the theory that, if you save the surface, you save all.

We failed to hear booze mentioned in either city. But if three out of four get halitosis, we will follow the fourth in the hope that he is suffering from a breath that is not only louder, but funnier.

Both platforms are as dry as a toad's tongue. We are up against some kiln-dried lumber. But, if campaign speakers are going to misquote Lincoln, why not mention that the government of the people, for the individuals and by the constituents, shall not perish from this thirst?

The raids on New York night clubs indicate that the man who could take it or leave it alone is now the man who can take it and can't carry it.

Booze is not a question in this campaign. If a Republican is a dry and a Democrat a wet, when they get together they seem to neutralize each other.

McLarnin Refuses To Predict Gene-Tom Go

COLUMBUS, Ohio, July 16. (UP)—Jimmy McLarnin, sensational young lightweight from Vancouver, B. C., refused to make a prediction on the Tunney-Heeney bout today. Jimmy explained his stand as follows:

"I hate to make a prediction. You see I may be a champion some day myself, and I might never forgive the fellow who publicly predicted I'd lose."

Pressed for a prediction by Tex Rickard, McLarnin finally ventured, "Heeney has a good chance. That's all I'll say."

Pop Foster, McLarnin's manager, however, predicted Tunney would win on points.

McLarnin will leave Tuesday for Detroit to prepare for his bout with Stanislaus Loayza there August 2.

DAILY DOPE

By LARRY DAILEY

FINANCIAL DIFFICULTIES of the Amarillo club of the Western league occasioned no surprise to those familiar with the baseball situation there. Nor would the flop of the Western league cause more than a lifting of the eyebrows. The Western league, for a couple or more seasons, has been headed for the rocks. The wonder of it is that the circuit has weathered the storms of adversity this long. The future of that loop is uncertain. It may finish as a six-club circuit this year, unless difficulties at Amarillo are smoothed over. But nothing but reorganization will be the salvation of the Western league.

I was a sports writer last season in the Western league—at Tulsa. In mid-season I made a swing around the circuit with the Tulsa club. The attendance was atrocious. For instance, Omaha is a large city of more than 200,000. In three days the Tulsa club, leading the pennant race, failed to draw more than 1000 people at Omaha. From what I gather the situation at Omaha is little if any improved this season. Des Moines and Denver, other large cities in the northern half, are doing some better in the matter of attendance. But they are drawing woefully under the mark that cities of such size should show.

PUEBLO, BACK in the league, has been playing to satisfactory crowds. They will this season. Wichita is a good baseball town. Tulsa and Oklahoma City are among the best, under normal conditions. But fans in those cities have tired of the brand of Western league baseball as played in recent years, and with good cause. They are drawing very well, however, in the face of their disappointment in failing to get out of the Western and into the Texas league. That is, Oklahoma City, which won the first half, has enjoyed very good attendance. Tulsa is still lukewarm. Now that the Amarillo situation has arisen it doubtless will affect attendance all around the league.

NOTHING but reorganization will save the Western league. I wrote words to that effect last summer. I reiterated that this spring in this column. It would seem a good thing for the league if it would close for a season. Fans have shown that they care little whether the league continues or not. Close for a year and then reorganize in the north. Amarillo apparently cannot support class A baseball, even the sort of pastime as shown in the Western league. Tulsa and Oklahoma City won't support Western league baseball. The logical move then, of the Western loop, would seem to be to permit Tulsa and Oklahoma City to withdraw, buying out if necessary; eliminate Amarillo, and form a new circuit in the north.

FROM VICTORIA comes a letter to Tom Jenkins and Howard Fitzgerald in particular, and all the Spudders in general, showing the interest of fans there over the Wichita Falls club. It follows:

Victoria, Texas,
July 13.

Messrs. Jenkins and Fitzgerald:

We're just a bunch of small town baseball fans, but we know good ball playing when we hear of it or see it. We want to congratulate you on Thursday's game and also on the game Wednesday, as it was no slouch; just a matter of hard luck.

We are also inclined to believe that "Seventh Heaven" originated when the Spuds snatched four straight from the Buffs in the first half. Keep up the good ball playing.

Wishing you success as victors in the second half, we are:

James H. Fitzgerald, Jesse Meyer, Daisy Lee, W. B. Schrader, Jesse F. Rolka, M. L. Sponner, Dana Cunningham.

AUBURN, THE 6-YEAR-old son of Alderman and Mrs. A. W. King, is an ardent baseball fan. He is a close observer of not only the plays but the manner in which the diamond athletes swing three or four bats before going to the plate; how they hitch their belts and tug at their caps, and other such idiosyncracies.

The other day Auburn was pitching the ball in a game with his dad. He threw one ball—and then surprised the alderman by calling for the resin bag!

ON ANOTHER occasion Auburn hit a "home run." Mr. King retrieved the ball and rushed to the home plate to tag his son. And Auburn made a beautiful slide under him and was safe.

Auburn wears no sliding pads.

HERE'S one for the book. A ball player might go a season, and most of them do, without being out for interference. Indeed, a player might go a lifetime and not be out for interference. Marshall, shortstop of the Beaumont Exporters, was out for interference in Sunday's game with the Spudders here—and he was out for interference in yesterday's game at Dallas. Strange game, this baseball.

TUNNEY DOFFS THE HIGH HAT

Gene 'Misunderstood,' And Peace Reigns at Camp

By ED FRAYNE

SPECULATOR, N. Y., July 16. (US)—I have been assured many times within the past few hours that I am really at Speculator, and that this really is Gene Tunney, yet I am troubled with vague misgivings.

I came to what I supposed was a training camp, I was prepared to meet the man who has been heralded as the most popular of all the heavyweight champions. I expected to find him hard at work for his coming match with "Cousin Tom" Heeney of Great Britain.

And this cannot be Tunney, self-sufficient Gene, the man who told the world to go its way and he would go his. Tunney, the champion, who professed to despise popularity.

No, it cannot be. This may be Utopia, but not by the widest stretch of imagination can it be Speculator.

Gene's a Great Boy

Peace and affection pervade the atmosphere. Along the roads, by the lake front, before the hotels, men are gathered cheering Gene Tunney. What a great fellow he really is! What a charming personality. Now then, boys, altogether, let's give the boy a hand! Whoops!

And leading the chorus are two newspaper men who have been the big blonde boy's fiercest critics. They are now his dearest friends.

Tunney himself made the overtures that led to the burial of the hatchet. He took them to his cottage and gave each a private interview. You know, a heart to heart talk. Gee whiz, how can you be sore at a guy like that? A fellow must amount to something when a champion singles him out of the mob. That is distinction with a capital D.

As a result, the same pair that were apprising the world of Tunney's insufferable egoism are now bearing his torch. They are rah-rahing Gene al lover the place. He is a misunderstood man, they have discovered. Really, it's quite remarkable. An extraordinary change has come over him.

Gene Changes—Why?

Of course, there has been a great change come over him. But they have had a good cry, and have told one another how deeply they regret the past, and now that we really know each other, we will never let anyone come between us again. It's pathetic. I mean, it real-ly is. One could almost sob. It's just as affecting as it can be.

The misunderstood man is spending every loose moment with his new found friends. He sits around the hotel lobby for hours every morning and he can't bear to be away from them in the evening.

Possibly I will wake up eventually and find I am in Albany and that the people are Democratic candidates for revenue jobs and that the champion is really Al Smith. In that sort of background, the sentiment might not seem so difficult to comprehend.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, July 16. (AP)—A more optimistic view of crop possibilities appeared responsible for further declines of nearly $2 a bale in the cotton market today. After selling up to 21.75 at the start, October contracts broke to 21.25, a net decline of 42 points, new low ground for the movement. Offerings tapered off somewhat at this figure and prices steadied on covering. October closing at 21.35 and the general market closing steady at net declines of 26 to 38 points.

The opening was steady at an advance of 7 points to a decline of 1 point, more active positions quickly showed net advances of about 7 to 10 points on the relatively steady showing of Liverpool and prospects for further showers in the eastern belt where dry weather is supposed to be needed.

July sold up to 21.55 and December to 21.56, but this advance was halted by a renewal of realizing or liquidation by old longs.

Crop orders were uncovered as prices worked lower, the break extending to 21.05 for July and 21.03 for December during the afternoon or about 34 to 43 points net lower. After their execution the market steadied on covering, while reports that the decline below 21.50 for October had attracted some scale-down trade buying seemed to help the later tone of the market. Closing prices showed rallies of 5 to 15 points from the lowest.

Talk of further domestic mill curtailment and reports of a poor demand for cotton goods in Manchester probably contributed to the weakness, while there was also comment on the more favorable crop advices as likely to foreshadow an improvement in the private mid-month or end-month conditions figures, as compared with the end June reports.

Private cables said the early steadiness of Liverpool was due to continental and Bombay buying.

Exports today 9,502 bales, making 7,633,172 so far this season. Port receipts 4,356. U. S. port stocks 748,502.

Call Rate Drop Fails to Awaken Lethargic Trade On Stock Market

By BROADAN WALL
Universal Service Financial Expert

NEW YORK, July 16.—Stocks sold off in extremely quiet trading, today, although call money eased from a renewal of 6½ per cent to 6 per cent.

The heaviest selling was experienced in the early hours as the nervousness over the money situation was enhanced by bearish statement of Colonel Ayres. There were fitful rallies in the closing hours after the call rate dropped but General Motors closed more than 3 points off, and Radio close to 7 points.

Radio was the main target for what little short selling there was in evidence. Trade news was satisfactory as were other fundamentals, with the exception of the money situation, and the street now is in the mood to concede victory to the reserve bank and reconcile itself to a correction of the market.

Foreign exchange continued irregular with all European monies slipping lower. Commodities were weak also as cotton, wheat and others dropped steadily when further bearish weather advices were received.

Colonel Ayres looks for a further decline in stock prices and believes that mid-summer of 1928 probably marks the end of an economic era in the United States, terminating the five year period during which this country has been the temporary custodian of more than its share of the world's stock of monetary gold.

He did not point out, however, that the gold sent to Europe was because of credits extended abroad and that bankers are not likely to let such borrowings seriously interfere with our economic structure.

Whenever the stock market undergoes correction there always is the tendency to overstress bearish influences to the same extent that over-bulling accompanies an advancing market.

The extent to which the public is out of the market was evidenced when selling was the heaviest for there was less than two dozen numbers up on the indicator board of the floor of the exchange. In other words less than two dozen members were being called by their offices to execute orders as most of the business was entirely between floor professionals. Radio was the main target for the bears because the forthcoming earnings report is not expected to show any gain over the first three months. Sears Roebuck and Montgomery Ward also were under pressure at times as their friends are among the latest to abandon a stubborn bullish position.

Grain

GRAIN REVIEW
By THOMAS TEMPLE HOYNE
Universal Service

CHICAGO, July 16.—Grains sagged heavily lower today, but shorts in corn were cautious, covered on the break early and at the end there was a good deal of bull feeling concerning that market. Its aspect, nevertheless, suggests it was overbought rather than oversold.

At the close wheat was down 1c to 1⅛c; corn was down ⅛c to 1⅛c; oats were off ⅛c to ⅜c; rye was 1⅛c to 2⅜c lower.

In the cash markets there was a generally weakening of prices, oats being reported to be down 2c to 6c, and barley 3c to 5c. This did not make the situation look any too good for corn on the basis that a visible supply of 12,000,000 bushels is small. The visible supply of oats is only about two and one-half million bushels.

This reduction in the visible supply of corn was over 3,000,000 bushels, but the remaining supply looks small only when compared to last year when it was abnormally large.

Wheat was sick during most of the session. It showed few spasmodic recoveries after breaks. All the futures got down into new low ground.

Sentiment generally was bearish. The few traders bullishly inclined are still looking to our northwest and Canada for a black rust scare. Reports from those spring wheat areas, however, do not indicate any threat of rus damage as yet.

If rust is going to do any more than usual harm this season reports of its development should begin to come in very shortly.

Many in the trade think there is little chance of excessive rust damage this year because, although the weather has been such as would develop it, the wheat is earlier than usual and therefore less susceptible to attack.

Rye dragged rather hopelessly.

In the cash market wheat was 1c to 1½c lower; corn was off ½c to 1c; oats were down 2c to 6c; rye was dull; barley was 3c to 5c lower.

Jugo-Slavia Statesmen All Marked For Death

BELGRADE, Jugoslavia, July 16. (AP)—All Jugoslavia statesmen were marked for death by Macedonian revolutionists according to a letter found on Moncilo Ivanow, a young Bulgarian member of the Comitjadi who last Friday mortally wounded Jivojin Lazitgh, chief of the state police here. Ivanow turned his weapon upon himself and is now hovering between life and death.

MAUD SECTOR IN ACTIVE ERA

Third Producer Brought In By I. T. I. O.

TULSA, Okla., July 16.—The Maud pool has a third producing oil well, and that potential area of the Greater Seminole field, appears to be in for an active drilling campaign.

Indian Territory Illuminating Oil company's No. 1 Simpson, in the southeast corner of the northeast of 10-8-5, located one-half mile to the northwest of the Barnsdall Oil company's No. 1 Fife, in the northeast corner of the northwest of 14-8-5, and the Wilcox sand discovery there, is flowing at around 60 to 65 barrels an hour and just one foot in the Wilcox sand.

It found the sand at 4222 feet and made 688 barrels the first 12 hours, and was then deepened a foot, starting off at 40 an hour, then increasing to 50, 55 and 60 an hour in successive hours.

Prairie Oil and Gas company will move in Monday for the east offset, in the southwest corner of the northwest of 11-8-5.

Gypsy Oil company has the south offset, the northeast of the southwest of 10-8-5.

A map shows the Maud area, both in Seminole and Pottowatomie counties, is largely one of small ownership, and much drilling is forecast there unless some definite restrictive steps can be taken.

The new well had a big hand in swelling Seminole's daily output Saturday to 246,113 barrels, an increase of 3408 barrels, a net gain of 8757 barrels in two days.

COUNTY VALUES 58 MILLION

Assessments Below Mark Set by Court

The estimated assessed valuation of property in Wichita county as reported by the board of equalization to the state department at Austin Monday is $58,163,000, slightly less than the goal of $60,000,000 set when the county commissioners voted to lower the assessment in the county to 40 per cent of the actual valuation. The lower figure will not change plans of the commissioners for a lower taxation base in Wichita county, it was pointed out by Judge E. W. Nicholson, county judge, and M. A. Bundy, commissioner of precinct one.

It is probable that the figure will reach the amount set when a final checkup on the assessments is made, they said. The exact figure of Wichita county valuations will not be known for several weeks, Judge Nicholson said.

The savings to be effected by the decrease in assessment of 10 per cent over last year's figures and a reduction of the tax rate by 5 per cent, was estimated by Mr. Bundy at between $185,000 to $225,000.

The commissioners' court also received petitions seeking construction and improvement of two county roads. The body was asked that two miles of new roads be constructed to serve residents of Electra east of the Wichita Falls-Electra highway. The second petition asks for widening of the road extending from the northwest corner toward the northeast corner of the Pratt and Thornton survey in precincts one and two.

Action on the petitions was deferred.

Mission to Give Kids Ice Cream Party

A kid's matinee with ice cream will be given at the Mission theater from 2 to 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon, according to an announcement made Monday night by Charlie Moorehead, manager of the Mission theater.

"Every boy or girl under 12 years of age who buys a ticket to see "Square Crooks" at the Mission between 2 and o'clock Thursday afternoon will be given Lehrack's ice cream as he enters the show," Mr. Moorehead explained. "There is a lot of action in the show, and we know that the boys and girls will enjoy the ice cream. We want every boy and girl in the city to come to the matinee."

Zale Increases Stock to $100,000

By an amendment to the company charter granted Monday by the state department, the Zale Jewelry company, 800 Ohio, increased its capital stock from $35,000 to $100,000, according to Associated Press dispatches to The Record News.

Both M. B. Zale and William Zale, members of the firm, were out of the city Monday night.

Property Owners Must Pay for Weed Cutting

Property owners will have to pay for cutting weeds on their vacant lots if they have not cut the weeds before the city weed cutters arrive, it was said at the office of the city health department Monday.

"The Rush Hour" is just like its name and is literally filled with Marie. Lots of comedy that is not too high brow for the hot summertime.

Candidates Begin Filing Second Statements of Campaign Expenses

Candidates for county and precinct offices in Wichita county Monday began filing their second expense accounts on campaign expenditures. Mark Banta, candidate for tax assessor, was first to file the second expense account. The second of three accounts of expenditures must be filed within the next five days (including July 20) with Miss Elizabeth Hall, county clerk.

Of half a dozen persons who had filed an account of their expenses during the early stages of the campaign, few showed any additional expenditures since the first expense accounts were filed about 10 days ago.

There were a number of precinct candidates who did not file an account of expenditures when the first statement was due, Miss Hall said. Although the primary laws provide that the three separate accounts of expenses of the race for office must be filed by each candidate, the penalty is not given.

Wood, 23, of 2112 Monroe street, who was instantly killed in an automobile accident three miles south of Burkburnett Sunday morning, will be held from the Grace Methodist church Wednesday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock with the Rev. Patrick D. Moreland, pastor of the Grant Street Methodist church, officiating. Burial will be in Rosemont.

Mrs. Wood is survived by her husband, a son; Eugene; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Hicks, 2112 Monroe; and one sister and three brothers, Miss Jessie Hicks, and Clyde, Ben and Harvey Hicks, all of Wichita Falls.

The body was brought to Wichita Falls Sunday by the Owens Undertaking company of Burkburnett and was taken in charge by the Hines mortuary.

Special Handling Of Mail at Lower Rates

Combination of "special handling" and "special delivery" services under the amendment to the postal laws which went into effect July 1 gives the public the advantage of both services at a cheaper rate than did the former rates for both services, it was announced at the local postoffice Monday.

The United States bulletin on the new rates says, "The new service was created with reference particularly to the expeditious handling and delivery of parcel post," which gives second, third and fourth class matter the same treatment in transit, plus special delivery at the office of address, as first class mail, by marking parcels special delivery and the payment of 15 cents up to two pounds, 25 cents from two to 10 pounds, and 35 cents for parcels weighing more than 10 pounds.

Special handling rates may be secured separately but special delivery cannot be obtained without the addition of special handling service.

WOMAN HELD IN ARSON CASE

Charges Follow Blaze At Home Here

Mrs. Vera Dunn, 21-year-old wife, was in the woman's ward of the Wichita county jail Monday night, charged with arson and attempted arson in connection with a blaze at the home of her father-in-law, where her husband was staying, last Saturday night.

Mrs. Dunn had not made bond, set at $750, at a late hour Monday night.

The arson charges were filed against the woman by Fire Chief J. L. McClure. Investigation by the fire department was started when an empty gasoline can had been found near the scene of a fire at the home of John A. Dunn, 2157 Broad street, by city firemen.

Will Allen of the city police investigated the case, and the pretty woman's arrest followed.

She was questioned by Dick Kenley, assistant district attorney, to whom she gave a statement.

A. & M. Expert to Judge Entry in Home Contest

Mrs. Bernice Claytor, home improvement special judge of College Station, will be in Wichita county Tuesday to judge the living room of Mrs. C. E. Taylor, who lives in North Electra.

Mrs. Taylor was winner in the county and district contests for the best living room, and her room now will be judged for state honors. Announcement of the state winner probably will be made on August 6, when the farmer's short course opens at College Station. By virtue of her victory in the county Mrs. Taylor was awarded a trip to the short course.

SERVICE

Officer Returns Lost Coat Before Owner Misses It

Sudden service on the part of the police department Monday afternoon returned E. H. Eddleman's coat to him in his new office in the Bob Waggoner building before he knew it was gone.

A heavy windstorm whipped the city for a few minutes about 5:30 o'clock in the afternoon and blew down a hall tree in Mr. Eddleman's office. His coat was on it before the gust and it was missing after the gust.

A Grady, traffic officer on the street below, was surprised at the same time to discover a quality coat draped around his shoulders. Looking up, he saw a friend of Mr. Eddleman's, who had been in the office when the wind carried the coat out of the office, beckoning to him. Officer Grady returned the coat immediately.

Four Men and Women Fail to Make Pro Bonds

Four men and one woman, charged with violations of the federal liquor laws, were granted bonds by J. A. Lantz, United States commissioner, in hearings Monday. None of them made bond and all were committed to the county jail.

Lily Inman and Scott Kinney of Wilbarger county were granted bonds of $500 on the charge of possession of beer. Charges were filed against Lily Inman by Luke Hart, M. A. Perdue and Pat Allen, city officers, while the charge against Kinney was made by J. M. Leverett and L. C. Cole, deputy sheriffs of Wilbarger county.

Once There Was a Steer that went all over the world. But not until after the meat was prepared for market.

The fine hair in its ears went to Paris to be used in an artist's "camel's hair" brush.

The shin bones went to Sheffield, England, where they became knife handles that were carried in men's pockets to South Africa and London.

The sinews and tendons went to Canada and Mexico—first boiled down into glue used in the manufacture of furniture.

Every part of this steer went somewhere and was used—even tiny glands no bigger than peas went to pharmaceutical houses to be made into medicine.

The farmer who raised this steer was glad to sell it to Swift & Company for a good cash price. If he had prepared it for market himself, it would not have been worth so much. Besides the meat, he could have saved only the hide and fats. All the rest of the steer would have been lost.

Swift & Company handles thousands of animals daily and uses every part of them. Economy results.

You benefit by it. Swift & Company's profit from all sources amounts to only a fraction of a cent per pound
