Dulles Has Cancer; To Continue On Leave

MALVEN K. STEVENSON

GENE BEST

Two File For School Posts

Petitions have been filed for two candidates in the April 4 election to name three members of the board of trustees of the Snyder Independent School District.

Both incumbents, they are Gene Best and Malven K. Stevenson.

Terms of Best and Stevenson, and Ross Hemphill expire in April.

The petition for Stevenson was signed by Gene L. Dulaney, Hugh Taylor, John H. Boren, Bill L. Brown, Fred Bullard and E. J. Richardson Jr.

Best's petition was signed by B. F. Pinnell, W. J. Ely, Robert H. Hargrove Jr., Worth Sayner and Roy C. Wood.

Deadline for filing is March 7, and petitions for candidates must be filed with Doug Flynn, secretary of the board.

Stevenson is serving an appointive part-term to fill out the term of Clyde Godwin, who resigned a few months ago.

Best is completing one three-year term. Stevenson, former mayor of Snyder, is owner and operator of Stevenson's Sunbeam Grocery, 1101 Twenty-fifth Street.

Best is former owner of Caprock Materials Co., having recently sold it to Walter Hales.

In addition to Stevenson, Best and Hemphill, other board members are Dr. Wilton N. Jones, J. W. Phillips, Max West and E. H. Williamson.

John Marion of the Department of Public Safety's San Angelo office was in town Friday, and he expressed concern over the slow pace of motor vehicle inspections in Scurry County for the current period.

New inspection stickers must be displayed on windshields after April 15. Motorists could have started getting them last September. Yet, only 24 per cent of the registered vehicles in the county have been inspected.

To be more specific, Scurry County has 11,552 motor vehicles registered, while only 2,719 of them have new inspection stickers. There are 13 inspection stations in the county, but Marion fears that won't be enough to handle the rush if those remaining wait until the last minute.

Numbers were plaguing C. E. Creswell, and it had nothing to do with Friday, the 13th. Creswell said he paid an early visit to the county tax office to get an automobile license tag that corresponded with his house number. His house number being 1901, the license tag with the same figure was sold to him.

But that was only the beginning of the 1901 series.

"The tags cost $19.01, and when I filled out the stub in my checkbook after paying for the tags, my balance showed exactly $19.01," Creswell said.

Opening of bids indicated that city officials did some close figuring when they planned the city hall construction project several months ago. The bond issue for the project totalled $90,000, while the lowest bid was $84,800. Other bids ranged upward by $10,000 to $15,000. That's about as close to the "nose" as any construction planners come these days.

The Snyder High School student council is considering an interesting, and what could be a rewarding project. The student council hopes to sponsor a foreign exchange student here in the future. Although the student group would defray fixed expenses, cooperation of a local family will be required, because exchange students must live with a family in the community during the school term. It could be an interesting experience for the family as well as the local students who associate with the visitor.

Balloon Is Grounded

BROWNWOOD (AP) — Cloudy, damp weather today again delayed a group of university scientists from sending their final balloon aloft to probe cosmic ray activity at higher altitudes.

★★★ Leaders Of Both Parties Voice Regret ★★★

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic and Republican congressional leaders joined Saturday in expressing hope that Secretary of State John Foster Dulles' cancer will respond to radiation treatment and that he will be able to return quickly to his desk.

Leaders of both parties voiced regret at the news that Dulles has a recurrence of cancer and must take an indefinite leave of absence. Several said even his temporary absence comes as a blow to the country.

Sen. Styles Bridges of New Hampshire, chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, said Dulles' illness "is disappointing to those of us who had hoped that he might soon be able to return to active duty."

"He has given us very forceful leadership in a time of great difficulties, and he is sorely needed," Bridges said.

Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, the Senate Democratic leader, said: "Like all Americans everywhere, my hopes and prayers will be with Secretary Dulles for a full, speedy recovery."

House Speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Tex.) said: "I am terribly sorry to learn of the illness of Mr. Dulles. He is a very able man and we need his services."

House Democratic Leader John W. McCormack (Mass) said: "I sincerely pray and hope that his condition will rapidly improve. I profoundly respect Secretary Dulles and consider him to be a great secretary of state."

Sen. Richard L. Neuberger (D-Ore), who recently returned to the Senate after treatment for cancer, said:

"As one who has suffered from the ordeal of cancer, I want to extend my profound sympathy to our secretary of state.

"I long have admired the courage with which Mr. Dulles, past 70, has carried on so valiantly."

West Europe Nations Are Concerned

LONDON (AP)—The news that John Foster Dulles has cancer sent surprise and dismay through Western European capitals Saturday night.

Statesmen suddenly contemplated the prospect of dealing with a new U.S. secretary of state — and possibly one with different views—at a time when Western Europe faces grave issues.

In West Germany, particularly, there was foreboding that Dulles' disappearance from the diplomatic scene might lose Chancellor Konrad Adenauer a strong ally.

Bonn officials were reported thoroughly dismayed at the possibility of a time lag in unifying Western policy on the crucial Berlin problem.

Only about three months lie ahead before expiration of the Soviet ultimatum for a Western withdrawal from Berlin.

Government leaders issued expressions of sympathy for Dulles as soon as the news of the medical report arrived.

Wilson Reported Set For Campaign

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Times Herald said Atty. Gen. Will Wilson "shored up the organizational structure of his planned campaign for governor in 1960" at a meeting here Friday with a group of lawyers.

Wilson, a district attorney in Dallas before he became a Texas Supreme Court judge, was quoted as saying Saturday in Austin that the meeting was a "bull session on politics."

The newspaper said the lawyers came away from the meeting "with the word that the attorney general was off and running."

Long rated a prime prospect for the 1960 campaign, Wilson said in Austin he didn't care to comment now about future plans. He said the Dallas meeting was a gabfest about politics, adding:

"That's all it was. When you're in a bull session you don't know what impression will be carried away."

The Times Herald said the common impression of most participants at the meeting was that Wilson is an avowed candidate despite absence of a public announcement. One said he got such an impression because the attorney general said he would be a candidate.

Virtually all those at the breakfast were former assistants, and virtually all have participated in his past campaigns.

So far, Texas' 1960 gubernatorial race has only one avowed candidate, Marshall Formby of Plainview, chairman of the State Highway Commission.

Gov. Price Daniel has dropped hints of a try for a third term and some Dallas legislators say that many in Austin are convinced Lt. Gov. Ben Ramsey may try for a promotion.

Solon Urges Import Slash

WASHINGTON (AP)—A reduction in crude oil imports was urged Saturday by Casey (D-Tex) to relieve what he described as a critical situation in Texas.

In a letter to Commerce Secretary Lew L. Strauss, Casey asked that imports of crude and crude products be restricted to 10 per cent of domestic consumption.

The new Houston congressman said steadily rising imports are resulting in a tax loss to Texas of two million dollars.

Addressing Strauss in the latter's position as chairman of the president's special advisory committee on petroleum imports, Casey said:

"The situation is no longer merely urgent. It is critical, and demands immediate and forthright attention."

Observing that the committee is expected to report shortly to the President, Casey urged that imports, which he said now exceed 20 per cent of domestic consumption, be reduced by half.

Russian Submarine Menace 'Very Great,' Says Burke

WASHINGTON (AP)—The possibility of a surprise Russian submarine attack on the United States is very great and is causing the Navy great concern, Adm. Arleigh A. Burke says.

In a censored version of secret testimony made public Saturday night, Burke, chief of naval operations, said that "we have forces at sea all the time, searching up and down both coasts" for enemy submarines. His testimony was given before the Senate Disarmament subcommittee on Jan. 30.

Burke said there is no way "you can guarantee that an attack will not get through."

"There is no equipment that can guarantee that there is not a submarine at a particular spot in the ocean except in a very small area, and even then you cannot guarantee that you have got it," he added.

On the other hand, Burke said, the Russians have an even tougher problem since the United States could cover "all but a very small part of Russia from launching positions at sea."

He added that "the free world controls the ocean, and we operate over the ocean all the time" while the Russians are "concentrated in one place."

Burke did not dispute statements by subcommittee Chairman Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn) and Sen. Russell B. Long (D-La) that the Russians have about 250 long-range submarines. He testified the Russians may have ballistic missile subs now, adding he does not "think they have very many."

Burke said the first of the new nuclear - powered, missile-launching Polaris submarines is expected to be in full operation by the fall of 1960, to be followed by others at the rate of three a year.

If the enemy launched an attack on the United States, Burke said, "it could not possibly catch all the submarines." Burke apparently spoke as though the Navy has Polaris-firing craft in operation.

Burke also told the senators that no matter how many underground shelters the Soviet Union might build, in a general nuclear war from 20 to 40 per cent of their people "would die in an all-out hydrogen bomb attack" in retaliation.

Sen. Humphrey suggested the United States would have a difficult time making a missile attack on the Soviet Union except on "the Pacific Coast, that is Siberia and Vladivostok."

"It would depend on the number of submarines we wanted to place and where we wanted to place them," Burke said. "The Arctic Ocean is a very good place because there are holes in the arctic ice, and you can put a submarine into holes, and it launches through them or it can come up next to the coast line, and it is very difficult to detect. ...

THINK YOU HAVE SNOW WOES?—This small town of Calumet, Mich., in Michigan's upper peninsula is taking this season's snowfall in stride. The people are used to the idea. Even so, snowfall this year up to Feb. 9, was 217.5 inches, just below the 1950-51 record fall of 257 inches. At top, snow almost completely covers a barn. No Surgery Immediately

By WARREN ROGERS JR.

WASHINGTON (AP) — John Foster Dulles has cancer of undetermined extent. But he will continue as secretary of state on leave of absence while undergoing treatment.

President Eisenhower made this announcement Saturday after visiting Dulles at Walter Reed Army Medical Center.

A medical bulletin issued along with the President's announcement ruled out any immediate surgery. It said that "in the immediate future radiation therapy will be used."

The disclosure, based on laboratory tests, came about 27 hours after Dulles had been operated on for a groin hernia. The operation was performed by the hospital commandant, Maj. Gen. Leonard D. Heaton, who removed a cancerous portion of Dulles' colon two years ago.

State Department press officer Lincoln White told newsmen doctors had informed Dulles about 9 a.m. that he had cancer. White said Eisenhower and Dulles' family were notified about the same time.

The news evoked expressions of regret and concern from this capital and around the world.

It also threw away the Allies' timetable of negotiations on Soviet efforts to oust Western troops from Berlin.

And it spurred speculation on a possible successor to Dulles, who will be 71 in 11 days.

Newsmen who met Undesecretary of State Christian A. Herter when he returned Saturday from a South Carolina vacation, asked him if he would accept the top job in the State Department.

"If the President wanted me to, I would," Herter replied. "That 's the President's choice and I would not comment on it."

But Herter, acting secretary in Dulles' absence, said Eisenhower had not sounded him out in any way on the possibility of moving into the secretary's job on a permanent basis.

Mrs. Anne Wheaton, associate White House press secretary, indicated in response to a question that the leave of absence statement meant there will be no appointment of a new secretary of state at this time.

Tissue and fluid removed during Friday's hernia operation were found to be cancerous. The medical bulletin put it this way:

"A small nodular implant on the hernia sac was removed with the excess sac during the course of the operative procedure.

"The fluid evacuated at surgery contained free cancer cells on cytological examination.

"No further surgery is contemplated. In the immediate future, radiation therapy will be used."

A cytological examination is one dealing with the body cells, their structure, multiplication, functions and the like.

Eisenhower issued the announcement through aides at Walter Reed after visiting Dulles for 37 minutes.

It was during that visit, he said, that doctors had discussed "the existence of malignancy not fully determined at this time as to its extent but certain to require further treatment."

"I express the thoughts and prayers of all of us that the results of his operation and the further course of treatment will be successful," the President added. "In order to allow time for this purpose, the secretary continues on leave of absence. I will, of course, be in close touch with him constantly."

The medical bulletin said Dulles was in good spirits, with blood pressure at 125 over 70, pulse at 70, and temperature normal since the operation.

Late Saturday afternoon, White put out a bulletin saying Dulles spent a very comfortable day and that his spirits remained very high.

Local Group To Confer With Central Air Lines Officials

A delegation from Snyder will go to Fort Worth Feb. 23 to begin negotiations with Central Air Lines concerning the possibility of Central's initiating airline service to Snyder.

Now forming the delegation to meet with Central officials are the Chamber of Commerce and the county airport board. Bill Atwood heads the committee.

The group will meet with Keith Kahle, president of the airline, and other officials at the line's general offices in Fort Worth.

In brief conversations with Kahle the chamber has inquired whether Central would consider serving Snyder, and Kahle said the company is interested in discussing it with the local group.

Snyder has been without airline service since Jan. 24, when the temporary certificate of Continental Air Lines expired here. Continental, which is attempting to become a trunk line carrier only, was not interested in continuing service here and to other feeder line cities.

Continental stopped service in a number of West Texas cities, including Snyder, Sweetwater, Breckenridge, Mineral Wells, and Plainview. Plainview succeeded in getting service from Central Air Lines on a new run between Amarillo and Lubbock. There were reports that Central had been seeking permission from the Civil Aeronautics Board for a flight between Lubbock and Abilene, and it was believed locally there is possibility of getting Snyder on that flight.

Central now operates lines from Denver, Colo., to Amarillo, the new route from Amarillo to Plainview and Lubbock. From Liberal, Kan., it has service to Wichita, Kan., Ponca City, Okla., Enid, Oklahoma City, Lawton, Sherman-Denison, and Dallas. It also has terminals at Kansas City, St. Louis, and Little Rock.

Should Central decide to seek permission for service here, a hearing before the CAB would be required.

Snyder had airline service for more than five years. It was first begun by Pioneer Air Lines, which later merged with Continental, on Sept. 27, 1953, after a long line of negotiations and hearings. The effort had begun many months before by the Chamber of Commerce.

Nearest airline service now to Snyder is at Big Spring. The chamber office now keeps for the convenience of residents here airline schedules of surrounding cities which have service.

Kahle asked the chamber here to have the local delegation take with them to the Fort Worth meeting economic, population, and other data on Snyder.

Scientists Cite Warming Trend

WASHINGTON (AP)— New information gathered in the antarctic tends to confirm the belief of weathermen that the world is in the midst of a long-term warming trend.

This was reported Saturday by U.S. Weather Bureau scientists. They said the temperature rise all over the world is estimated at no more than two or three degrees every 100 years.

During the International Geophysical Year, bureau meteorologists collected extensive records on the antarctic continent.

Dr. H. E. Landsberg, director of the bureau's Office of Climatology, said that while the new antarctic temperature data is not conclusive, it is consistent with the hypothesis that the entire world is slowly getting warmer. The present trend dates from about the beginning of this century.

The cause?

"We don't know," Landsberg said. "We know only the effect. One theory is that the change is man-made, that a blanket of carbon dioxide given off by the burning of coal and oil retarding a radiation of heat by the earth. Another possible explanation is an increase in the sun's radiation."

Referring to the antarctic temperature research, Landsberg said:

"What comparable figures we do have do not contradict the idea of a general (temperature) uptrend in the antarctic. Landsberg said, "Our information as to what is happening near the other (North) pole is much more conclusive. Besides temperature figures, we have physical evidence."

Nat'l Guard Alert Called

AUSTIN (AP)—The Texas National Guard's 36th Infantry Division was alerted in a surprise, practice exercise at 7:30 a.m. Sunday.

About 8,000 guardsmen in 65 Texas cities were affected. The practice alert is known by the code name "Operation Awake."

Division headquarters in Austin said a button setting the operation into motion was pushed here at 7:30. It estimated guardsmen in the 65 cities would start to local armories by 8 a.m.

Headquarters emphasized this was a practice alert and there was no cause for alarm.

High Winds Accompany Rains Across East Texas Saturday

By The Associated Press

A line of thundershowers moved across Texas Saturday bringing to many points their heaviest rains of the year. A high wind which accompanied the storm at Overton in East Texas unroofed a warehouse, moved another building off its foundations, and levelled hundreds of TV aerials.

The frontal system continued to trigger heavy thunderstorms at Corpus Christi and Houston Saturday afternoon as it began moving out of the state into the Gulf.

The U.S. Weather Bureau said the 70 to 80 mile an hour winds that cut a swath through Overton could have been a small twister. There were no reports of injuries.

Winds in gusts up to 36 miles an hour accompanied the storm when it struck Houston.

Before the winds and rains struck Houston, a fog termed the worst in 10 years had tied up 62 ships in the Houston Ship Channel. One terminal warehouse operator said that it would take a week to catch up with the loading and unloading operations delayed by the fog. Airline operations in Houston were also curtailed by the fog which had plagued the city over the weekend.

Heavy rains ranging up to more than two and one-half inches were reported at a number of points in Central, East and South Texas. Heavy showers were also reported in the Big Bend Country of West Texas.

Skies remained partly cloudy in the eastern part of the state Saturday but were clear in the Panhandle and West Texas as cooler air flowed into Texas behind the front. Temperatures ranged from 48 at Amarillo to 77 degrees at Brownsville.

The forecast called for cooler and partly cloudy to cloudy weather over most of Texas Sunday. Scattered showers were predicted in the east and south central sections.

OIL ROUNDUP

Defense Set For Depletion Scale

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON (AP) — An expected congressional attack may not come until next year, but oil operators are giving high priority to plans to defend their tax depletion allowance.

Industry groups are assembling and distributing material emphasizing the importance of the 27½ per cent income tax allowance bears to the finding and development of new oil and gas reserves.

Three bills have been submitted to Congress asking that the allowance be cut to 15 per cent. Full-scale inquiry, however, is not expected to develop until next year.

Two floor amendments proposing cuts were defeated in the Senate last September. Industry leaders hope that any attacks during the current session will require full committee hearings. They believe their defense can be developed more effectively in this manner.

The Independent Petroleum Assn. of America (IPAA) has distributed the first of a series of phamphlets entitled "Oil and Gas Depletion Facts." The Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Assn. (TIPRO) has authorized preparation of depletion date looking toward a congressional test in 1960.

The industry believes it has an allay in Secretary of the Treasury Robert Anderson, a former president of the Texas Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Assn. But a recent letter from Anderson to Vice President Richard Nixon and Speaker Sam Rayburn has caused some concern.

Anderson's letter pertained to a proposed change calculating procedures for the depletion allowance for brick and cement industries. There is some fear this proposal could lead to a congressional hearing for these industries and that such a hearing could be broadened to include oil and gas.

Gordon Simpson, IPAA president from Dallas, recently said an increase of at least five cents a gallon in gasoline prices would be needed to make up capital requirements should the oil industry lose its 27½ per cent allowance.

IPAA's new pamphlet on depletion defends the tax allowance by quoting statistics from a report prepared by the bureau of Mines.

The report said total industry expenditures for finding, developing and producing oil and gas in 1955 exceeded the next value of oil and gas produced by 428 million dollars.

Industry-wide expenditures for 1955 totaled $7,148,799,000. The net value of oil produced was estimated at $5,884,215,000, natural gas $836,324,000.

The expenditures included maintenance, supervision and general overhead but excluded charges for research, income taxes, payment on interest and principal, and return to investors.

Exploration and development costs totaled $5,128,465,000. IPAA said this was equivalent to $2.40 per barrel of crude oil produced in 1955.

Pair Cautious On Budget-Balancing

By The Associated Press

Two Republican senators said Saturday night budget-balancing must not be permitted to overshadow defense and domestic needs. Three Democrats called for action to spur the economy.

Sens. George D. Aiken (R-Vt) and Clifford P. Case (R-NJ) cautioned in separate Lincoln Day speeches against making government economy paramount when, they said, the country's problems are mounting at home and abroad. Both senators are among the group which unsuccessfully challenged the established GOP Senate leadership last month.

Aiken, in a New York speech, said it must not be the GOP mission "just to hold the line" in the economic field.

"Unless the Republican party demonstrates greater faith in the future of America than it has been doing recently, we can't expect the voters to have faith in the Republican party, and we can't expect to win elections," Aiken added.

With Aiken and Case displaying public qualms about President Eisenhower's budget-balancing drive, some Democrats continued to call for expanded federal programs.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn) said in a speech at a Democratic dinner in Helena, Mont., that his party is putting together a program for jobs, hospitals, schools, parks, medical research and other projects.

"We are determined never to neglect our economy because we are convinced that a recession is too costly a luxury for us to afford," Humphrey said.

He is a potential candidate for the 1960 Democratic presidential nomination.

Case, in a speech for a GOP audience in Hanover Township, N.J., said too much emphasis is being put on such labels as "spender," a word Eisenhower has used to designate some Democrats.

"Confronted with a growing America where children overcrowd our schools; where in the midst of great prosperity, nearly five million of our people are unemployed, where slums blight our cities breeding ill-health, unrest and crime, how do many respond?" Case asked. "With slogans and cliches."

Hen Scorns Green Eggs

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Easter is a long way off, but Brigitte already is doing her part. She's laying green eggs.

It's not the easiest thing to do. And there's very little percentage. So little, in fact, that she decided to stop.

But she couldn't.

Once, twice, thrice she tried to lay an ordinary egg. In vain.

Any self-respecting hen's tail feathers would ruffle at such a thing. Each time she shoved the offending objects out of her nest to the hen house floor, where their bright greenness shone for all to see and cackle about.

Poor Brigitte. Only one thing was left to do.

She quit laying.

Worried about her frustrated hen, Mrs. C. Martine took it up with poultry expert Charles Salverson of the University of California.

"Oh," said he, "we've had green eggs before, most recently in neighboring Orange County. It is the reaction of oxidants in the air on the moist shell of the newly laid egg."

Study Course Set By Baptists Here

Texas Youth Gives Up In New York

NEW YORK (AP)—H.C. Vale, 19, walked into a police station Saturday and said he was wanted on a Texas bank robbery conspiracy charge, the FBI reported.

The FBI said Vale, from Dallas, allegedly assaulted a night watchman at Ladonia, Tex., last June in an attempt to obtain guns for a robbery planned at the Security State Bank in Commerce, Tex.

Police at first doubted his story but said a telephone call to his mother in Dallas confirmed it.

Stock Market Edges Upward To Net Gain

By ED MORSE
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—In a critical week, the stock market stemmed a series of daily declines and worked higher.

A brisk rally on Friday pulled the fat out of the fire and gave the market a net gain on the week, interrupting two straight weekly setbacks.

The same stock market which fell a week ago despite bullish news rose this week when the news was only so-so.

Slashes in crude oil prices in the Middle East and Venezuela were a sharp blow for the oils. News that the government was trying to recover $20,000,000 of alleged excess profits from Boeing was a shock to that stock as well as other aircrafts which feared similar action. Reports that an antitrust investigation was being readied against General Motors was not reassuring to the greatest automaker.

The relatively stubborn performance of the affected stocks was heartening to the list as a whole.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose $1.50 to $215.80.

The petroleum-natural gas group represents some 45 billion dollars of the approximately 280 billion worth of stock listed at current values on the Big board. Therefore the refusal of the oils to give up any more ground was encouraging from the bullish viewpoint.

Both corporate and U.S. Government bond markets firmed this week.

Among the corporates, utilities, foreign bonds and investment quality issues advanced while rails and industrials were steady. Volume for the week declined to $30,560,000 par value on the New York Stock Exchange from $31,744,000 the previous week. A year ago it was $21,999,000.

Bankers Pick District Head

DALLAS (AP) — Oliver Clift, president of the Citizens National ent of the CQITIZENS Nationa Bank of Waxahachie, was elected chairman of the Fifth District, Texas Bankers' Assn., at the group's meeting here Saturday.

The bankers were urged by Jack Young, president of the State National Bank of Corsicana, to maintain a flexible attitude toward change as he discussed banking in a competitive economic period. Ulcers Not Likely To Trouble Doris Day

By JAMES BACON
AP Motion Picture Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — In Hollywood, Doris Day is looked upon as an oddity, albeit a very commercial oddity.

Doris is a nonworrier. She prefers to stay home at night and read. The bar in her Beverly Hills home looks like any other Hollywood bar except that it produces a banana split much easier than scotch and soda.

She can't tell you how many copies her latest record sold or what her latest picture is grossing in key first runs. She takes no pills.

Doris is so relaxed that she fell asleep in the makeup chair at Warner Bros. 10 years ago when she was preparing for her first screen test. At the time her only previous dramatic experience was as a duck in a grade school Mother Goose play.

Now one of Hollywood's top feminine stars. Doris remains oasically a simple girl in one of the world's most complex and ulcer-ridden rat races.

"I often wonder," she muses, "what would have happened to me if I hadn't switched on my car radio that night."

She was referring to a night during the war years when she was driving home from a Cincinnati radio station.

Doris had left her hometown and hit the big time as a singer with name bands like Fred Waring, Bob Crosby and Les Brown. On the road she married a trombonist, bore him a son and was divorced in little more than a year.

It was tough to give up the career and go back home.

"But with a baby to feed," she asks "where else can you go?"

Her mother helped take care of the baby and Doris made a living singing on local radio. Coming home from work one night she flipped on her car radio and heard Brown's band broadcasting from a nearby spot.

Doris called Les, merely to renew old acquaintances, but Brown urged her to rejoin the band. His girl singer had quit and he needed a replacement.

Mama was only too happy to take full-time charge of her grandson and Doris hit the road once more with Brown. Fame came with her singing and the band playing "Sentimental Journey," one of the top record sellers of World War II.

Eventaully she came to Hollywood, again married to a musician. The two lived in a trailer in West Los Angeles for a while but eventually were divorced.

Someone took her and several other musicians in for an active interview with Marty Melcher, then an agent.

Melcher, who is now married to Doris, recalls his first impression:

"I took one look and whispered to the guy that brought her in: 'Let's get rid of the dame first.'"

This time Doris took off for New York to sing in a cafe but Melcher remembered her, mostly because she didn't seem to give a darn in her interview.

It was Melcher who took her to director Mike Curtiz for a screen test.

If Melcher had taken her to most any other director but Curtiz, it's doubtful that she would have been signed.

Doris is the all-American girl. Curtiz is a Hungarian-born director who specializes in films with an Americana appeal. "Yankee Doodle Dandy" was one of his big successes.

Doris didn't know the first thing about acting. Curtiz is one of the few directors who believes that acting ability can be a handicap to a potential movie star.

After nine musicals, Doris woke up to find herself one of two actresses on the list of the screen's top ten boxoffice attractions. Betty Grable was the other.

It was here that Melcher decided the girl next door had to move to a sexier neighborhood. Soon she was singer Ruth Etting making prohibition era love to Jimmy (The Gimp) Cagney; the wife of Jimmy Steart in a Hitchcock thriller; the screen love of Frank Sinatra and Clark Gable.

Then came the bedroom farce, "Tunnel of Love," with Richard Widmark. Upcoming are big pictures with Cary Grant and Rock Hudson.

Yet she still possesses a wide-eyed innocence.

She is probably the most unsophisticated of movie stars. Once she took a train trip from Hollywood to New York with a five gallon can of ice cream packed in dry ice.

Midland Premiere For Sullivan Work

MIDLAND (AP) — A symphony written almost a century ago by Arthur Sullivan, before his fame as a member of the Gilbert and Sullivan team, will get its American premier here March 21.

Some trans-Atlantic detective work by conductor Walter Mantani of the Midland Symphony Orchestra enabled him to schedule performance of Sullivan's Symphony Orchestra enabled him to schedule performance of Sullivan's Symphony in E Major (Irish).

Sullivan wrote the symphony in 1865, when he was 23. It was first performed March 10, 1866, in London's Crystal Palace, sharing the spotlight with Jenny Lind.

When Sullivan began his collaoration with William S. Gilbert the work gradually fell into discard. It was first published 42 years ago—15 years after Sullivan's death on Nov. 22, 1900.

Since then the symphony has been performed in England but never in America, probably because the popularity of the Gilbert and Sullivan operas all but eclipsed most of Sullivan's other music.

Mantani read an account of the 1866 performance in Leslie Bajly's book about the Gilbert and Sullivan team. Sensing the possibility of a muscial "sleeper", he began inquiring as to the whereabouts of the score. His investigation led him to Reginald Allen, executive director of operations for the Lincoln Center Project in New York City. A Gilbert and Sullivan expert, Allen directed Mantani to Herbert Cahoon, curator of the Pierpont Morgan Library, where the score reposes. Cahoon put Mantani in touch with the publishing house of Novello. Trans-Atlantic correspondence with Novello's London office produced a set of orchestra parts for the American premier.

Mantani believes Sullivan's Symphony in E Major (Irish) will go a long way toward establishing the composer's reputation as a producer of serious music.

Claims Bill Not Aimed At Secrecy

AUSTIN (AP) — Rep. Maurice Pipkin of Brownsville said Saturday his proposal to make navigation district records confidential "is not an effort to keep anything secret."

The measure would allow some of the state's 16 navigation districts to keep their records closed except to persons who can prove a legitimate interest, and to their attorneys.

Pipkin said the districts wanted the bill in order to keep their competitors from wooing industrial developments away.

"These districts are a lot like corporations," Pipkin said. "They're out to attract industry and they are highly competitive.

"A district simply doesn't want its competitots to have the right to read its records. If you were in business in a store, you wouldn't want the competition coming in to find out who your good accounts were, and things like that."

The Brownsville Navigation District asked for the protection after another district tried to interfere with negotiations between Brownsville and the Union Carbide Corp., Pipkin said.

Persons wishing to look over the records of a district would have the right to go to court and secure an order under the "party in interest" laws already on the books, Pipkin said, if the district officers refused to let them view the books.

Film Stars Move Rapidly Nowadays

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—You've got to get around if you want to cover the film famous nowadays. Here are some of them I caught up with on a swift trip skirting the nation:

George Gobel, on the same plane, heading for dates in Nashville, Washington and Miami.

Janet Leigh visiting hubby Tony Curtis, while he makes "Operation Petticoat" in Key West.

Cary Grant making the natives swoon in Key West.

Errol Flynn engaged in mopping-up operations in Cuba (the party at the Havana Hilton got rough). He says he's too intrigued with the revolution to concern himself with film making. What about Pat Wymore, who was expecting him at her Los Angeles night club debut last month? "A dear girl, Pat," said Flynn, who hasn't seen his wife in a year. "I can't remember why I couldn't make it."

Red Skelton playing the Fontainebleu and doing the biggest business Miami Beach has seen in years.

Betty Grable astounding fans with her oldtime verve and still-gorgeous gams at the Latin Quarter.

Buster Keaton, Rudy Vallee, Fifi D'Orsay, Paul Whiteman, Billy Gilbert and Harry Richman doing a fine nostalgic job with "Newcomers of 1958" at the Dauville.

Fredric March filming "Middle of the Night", his first film in three years. He reports he's going back to Hollywood in the fall to play the William Jennings Bryan role to Spencer Tracy's Clarence Darrow in "Inherit the Wind."

Dana Andrews doing the best work of his career in "Two for the Seesaw." He commutes nightly to Weston, Conn., and is glad to be away from the "depressing defeatism" of the film colony.

Construction Shows Gain For Month

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas cities showed a 19 per cent increase in authorized construction last month over December to reach the highest point ever for this time of the year, the Bureau of Business Research said Saturday.

Although the authorized value of construction was up, the over-all monthly index for building declined eight points after adjustment for seasonal variations.

The University of Texas' bureau said urban building authorized in January totaled $104,716,000. This was 25 per cent more than the January 1958 total.

New building was 31 per cent greater than a year ago, while permits for alterations, additions and repairs dropped 20 per cent.

New residence permits for the month were estimated at $67,942,000, about 70 per cent of the new building total.

El Paso had the largest per capita building total, with $32.59 per citizen, followed by Austin with $32.23, Houston, $31.72, Dallas, $25.86, San Antonio $11.62, and Fort Worth $10.92.

Airliner Is Buzzed

LONDON (AP) — Two Chinese Nationalist American-built Sabre buzzed a British comet airliner near Formosa two weeks ago, the British Overseas Airways Corp. said Saturday. A BOAC spokesman said the incident occurred Jan. 30.

Tony Curtis Pulls Ahead

By BOB THOMAS

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—Tony Curtis, clad in immaculate Navy lieutenant's whites, saluted and came aboard the submarine Baleo.

This was a scene in a movie, "Operation Petticoat," which is being filmed here. It should give a smile to Tony's former shipmates, who knew him as signalman 3.C Bernie Schwartz on a sub in World War II.

The kid has come a long way. He is among the brightest, most ambitious and most successful of the new young stars.

"Look—it's just like merchandising," he explains. "I want to get the public so hepped up that they can't wait to see the next Tony Curtis picture."

While here, he and wife, Janet Leigh, even crowned the winner of the "Operation Petticoat" handicap at the dog race track.

Tony is shrewd enough to know that you don't become a star by publicity alone. You've got to have the product, too.

"I've had the greatest string of pictures I could possibly get," he said. The string: "The Vikings," "Kings Go Forth," "The Defiant Ones," "Perfect Furlough," "Some Like It Hot." Upcoming, "Spartacus," "Who Was That Lady I Saw You With?" and "The Rat Race."

New Novak Looms On Moviet Set

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Watch out, Hollywood, here comes a new Kim Novak.

She's feeling her oats. In fact, she even threw a newspaperman off her movie set. After umpteen years of covering the filmland stages, I had to come to New York to be ordered off a set for the first time.

It couldn't have been done by a nicer girl. She was doing a smooching scene with Fredric March in Columbia's "Middle of the Night" at a Manhattan studio.

"I'm sorry," she said afterward. "I was so concerned about what you would think of the scene that I couldn't give a good rehearsal. We were talking this morning about standing up for your rights, so I decided to stand up for mine."

See what I mean? The girl has fire in her eye. This is the first time she has been working away from the watchful guidance of her bosses, and she's enjoying it.

Kim is delighted for several reasons: she is working with March, considered by many America's greatest actor; she had the advantage of rehearsals, which she had never known on her Hollywood films; she is allowed to be natural.

"Look — no makeup," she said happily. "We're going for realism in this picture, and I don't have to wear that layer of goop that cracks if you so much as smile.

"And I can run my hand through my hair if I want to. They don't insist here that every curl be in place."

"A lot of the bad things that have been printed about me have been the result of someone else's doing," she said. "Now I'm going to answer the questions myself. I may make mistakes, but they will be my mistakes."

Traffic Mishap Injuries Fatal

FORT WORTH (AP)—Jose Castillo, 22, died Saturday from injuries received five hours earlier when the car he was driving rammed a truck.

Four other persons in the car were injured, none seriously. The truck was parked and was unoccupied.

Critics Backtrack On Moore's Show

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — Among my distinctions as a television critic was the fact that I liked the Garry Moore nighttime show when it opened last fall. Apparently I was just about the only so-called critic in America who thought it was fine.

"You had some company," Moore said the other day. "I thought it was pretty good myself."

He recalled that after the opening of the CBS-TV show (Tuesday evenings) everybody around the studio was jubilant about it. A member of the network brass wrung his hand and said, "Garry, you've added a new dimension to television."

It made Moore think, he says today, that "If we're this good, we'll be off the air in a month."

Well, the show not only is still on the air. It has a steadily increasing audience, the sponsors are happy — and critics everywhere have been backtracking and saying it's a good show.

"I just wish they'd said so in the first place," says Moore.

What was wrong with the show as it was launched?

"We erred on the side of right," said Moore. "We were too ambitious in trying to create a brand new show totally different each week from the preceding show. It was like trying to write and produce a new musical comedy every week. At the end of the first month all of us had the jitters.

"We learned that every guest can't have something special created for him. We thought, for example, that it was a novel idea to have Tommy Sands singing Cole Porter tunes. But we learned that most people don't care for such novelty. They want to hear Tommy Sands singing his hit records.

"With the show as it was originally conceived I was literally working six times as hard as I am today. Now I'm putting in a 40-hour week on the show—and I don't have the jitters."

Game Law Violation Brings Heavy Fine

FORT DAVIS, Tex. (AP)—Fines totaling $4,000 were assessed this week against Bill E. Soctt, 30, Odessa health center operator, for killing illegally four buffalo, two deer and seven antelope in the Big Bend Country.

The charges were filed by Game Warden Harvey Adams of Fort Davis who said he believed the fines assessed were the largest ever paid for game violations in Texas.

Game wardens said the animals were killed on ranches in Jeff Davis and Presidio counties. The charges were filed in the county court here and in justice of peace courts here and at Marfa.

BUCKIN' THE LINE

By BUCK FRANCIS
News Sports Editor

WHAT PREVIOUSLY HAD BEEN figured as having no significant on the outcome, the situation has now been reversed on the Tigers' season windup with Lake View Tuesday.

Lake View failed to nail down the 3-AAA flag Friday night by losing to the Lamesa Tornadoes, 51-44. Now the Chiefs will have to derail the Tigers Tuesday night to claim the t— outright.

Even though they lost to the Tornadoes, the Chiefs are still in a pretty good position. On the surface it would appear the Chiefs are "in" since the Tigers have won only one of seven District 3-AAA outings while it's just the reverse for Lake View, six wins and one defeat.

However, the Tigers have played all district foe close games—with exception of the two Lamesa games — and while the Chiefs may be counting the title in the bag, the Tigers may have different ideas.

The Chiefs, though, shouldn't and they probably won't, take the Tigers lightly. The Redmen had to "fight for their lives" to outduel the Tigers in Lake View earlier in the season, 68-60.

Deadlock Possible

Should the Tigers upset the Chiefs, it wouldn't knock the Braves completely out of the running. Lake View has already clinched at least a tie for the title.

If the Tigers down the Chiefs Tuesday and Lamesa defeats Colorado City at the same time in Colorado City, Lake View and Lamesa would share the title.

A special playoff, then, would be held to determine which team would proceed into the state playoffs.

Lamesa's stubborn defense paid off in Friday's victory over the tall and talented Chiefs.

While they don't have an explosive offense, the Tornadoes have been tough defensively since the district race started. The Tornadoes have yielded an average of 42.1 points to their seven opponents in district play, a very "unheard of" figure in this day of offense-minded basketball.

Only two teams have reached the 50-mark against the Tornadoes in 3-AAA play and both times the Tornadoes lost (Lake View 54, Lamesa 51 and Sweetwater 50, Lamesa 42).

Tigers Would Like To Escape Dungeon

Although the Tigers don't have a title to fight for Tuesday night, they do have a good reason for wanting to end their season with a victory.

A victory Tuesday would in all probability boost the Tigers completely out of the cellar. The Bengals currently share the 4th and 5th rungs in the standings with Colorado City, and unless the Wolves clip Lamesa Tuesday, the Tigers could leave the cellar spot to C-City with a victory over Lake View.

Then, too, there are five Tiger seniors on the squad who would like nothing better than to end their schoolboy cage career on a victory note.

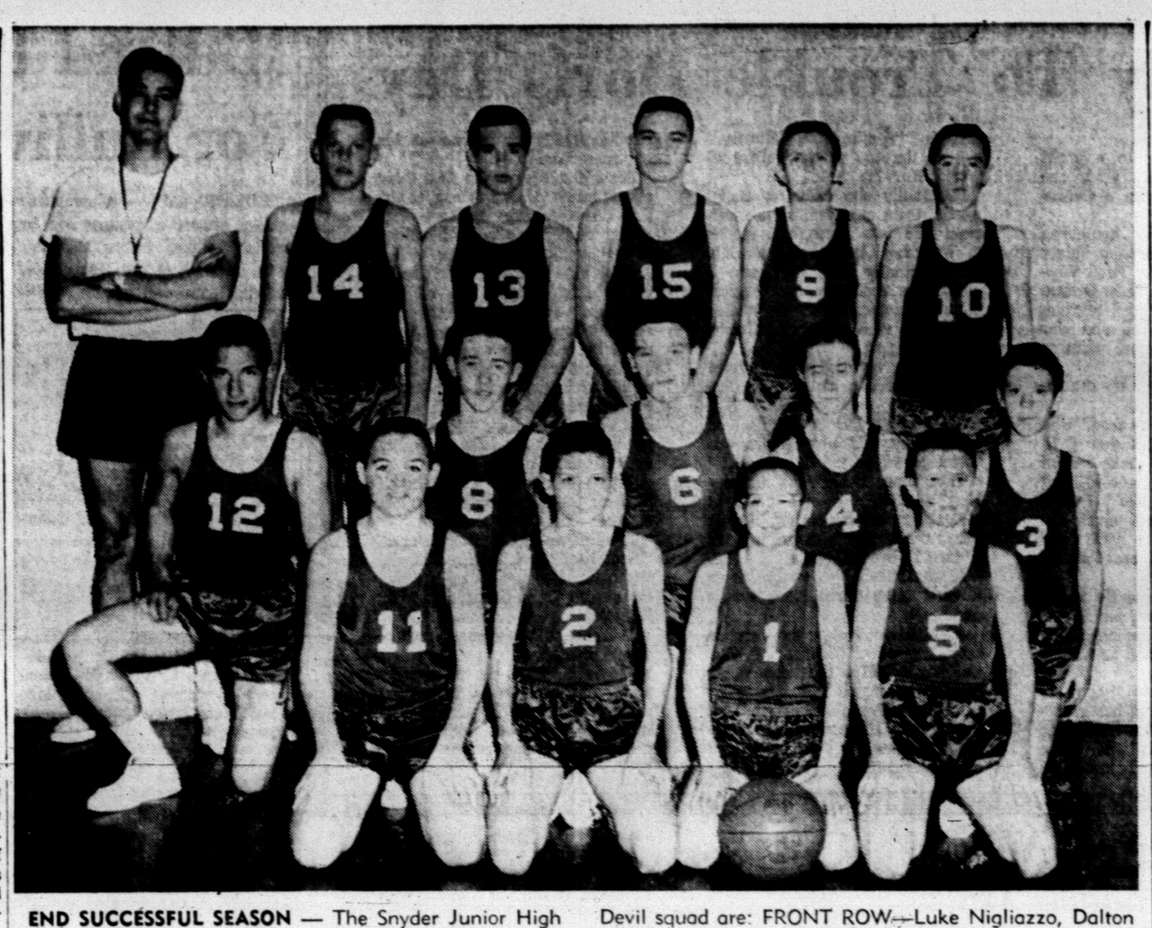

The odds will be stacked against the Bengals Tuesday and it will take a terrific performance to outscore the skyscraping Chiefs.

SMU and Rice hooked up in a "hot and cold streak" battle yesterday with SMU finally winning out, 60-57.

Rice jumped off to an 8-2 lead but then saw SMU score 13 points before they could score again. SMU then pulled into a 29-15 lead but Rice put together 12 points to two for the Ponies to cut the difference to 31-27.

SMU then surged ahead 42-29 only to sit "idly by" while Rice crammed home 12 points to cut the difference to 42-41. And so it went until the final buzzer with SMU leading all the way, sometimes by 10 and other times by two or three.

It was just typical play in the hectic SWC race.

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) — Texas Tech College directors moved Saturday to assure expansion of Jones Stadium by the fall of 1960, when the Red Raiders start competing for the Southwest Conference football crown.

The board authorized stepped-up collections on seat options already pledged and additional sales. A total of $1,102,025 has been pledged in options for the stadium expansion.

The board also authorized preparation of plans for a nuclear reactor and a women's gymnasium.

Hermleigh, Westbrook Set Playoff

HERMLEIGH, Feb. 14 — Hermleigh and Westbrook will clash in Westbrook Tuesday night in the first of a best-two-out-of-three game series for the District 16-B boys basketball title, Orville Paty, superintendent of schools here, revealed Saturday.

Second game of the series will be played here Thursday. If a third game is necessary, it will be played in Colorado City if the gym there is available that night.

Westbrook swept to the regular season title with a 7-1 district record with Hermleigh finishing second at 6-2.

A district ruling, however, states that the Nos. 1 and 2 teams in the regular season district play vie in a three-game playoff for the official title.

SMU Edges Owls, 60-57

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Southern Methodist turned back a late Rice rally to defeat the Owls Saturday 60-57 in a regionally televised Southwest Conference basketball game.

Paced by Max Williams and Bobby James, SMU held leads of 15 and 13 points only to see Dale Ball lead Rice to a 56-53 comeback with only 78 seconds left.

Four free throws by Williams put the Mustangs in front, 60-53, before Rice scored on late goals by David Craig and Tom Robitaille.

Rice took an 8-2 lead but three goals by James and a pair by Kim Nash shot the Mustangs ahead, 15-8. Six more points by James and four by Williams gave SMU its widest margin, 29-14, but five free throws and two field goals by Ball led a Rice rally that cut the Mustang advantage to 31-27 at the half.

Three baskets by Wilbur Marsh returned the Mustangs to a 42-29 edge early in the second half but Rice threatened at 49-46 with seven minutes to play on two goals each by Robitaille and Craig.

Williams hit twice from the field and Steve Strange hit on a tip-in and a hook to make it 56-49. Rice made its final bid at 56-53 on goals by Craig and Ball.

Williams and Ball each had 19 points. James had 17.

SMU hit 22 of 52 shots for 42 per cent, Rice 22 of 59 for 37 per cent.

Tigerettes Own 4-2 Mark For Season

The Snyder girls volleyball team, winner in four of its first six games, will journey to Seminole tomorrow to engage the Seminole Maidenettes in a non-district game.

The Tigerettes played five games in the recent Odessa Invitational Tournament, winning three, and Thursday the locals defeated Plainview 30-18 at Plainview.

At Odessa the Tigerettes were runnerups in the Consolation bracket and the Snyder girls in addition were awarded the team "Sportsmanship Trophy."

Xan Dunn was named on the all-tournament team at "set-up" in the Odessa tourney.

Lynda Chauncey of the Snyder "B" team was named on the all-tournament team, also at set-up, in the "B" division.

Snyder B, which failed to place at Odessa, bested Plainview in a best-two -of-three game series Thursday, winning the first game, 15-7, losing the second 15-11 and then coming back to win the "sugar" game, 15-9.

Wolfpack Rips Terps, 53-37

RALEIGH, N. C. (AP) — Sixth-ranked North Carolina State Saturday chalked up its seventh straight victory, turning back Maryland 53-37 in a dull Atlantic Coast Conference basketball contest.

The Wolfpack grabbed an 8-6 lead after eight minutes, led the rest of the way and broke the ragged contest wide open with 10 minutes left. The halftime score was 28-19 for State.

Maryland scored on only 14 of 53 attempts from the floor for a dismal 26 per cent. State, on the other hand, hit on 23 out of 66 for 34 per cent.

A crowd of 9,000, watching the comedy of errors in Reynolds Coliseum, saw State's John Richter garner 13 points to run his three-year total to 1,005.

Senior George Stepanovich was higher scorer for the winners with 20.

Maryland's leader was Charles McNeil who tallied 10 points—all in the first half.

Richardson, Boyer Sign Yank Contracts

NEW YORK (AP) — The Yankees signed infielder Bobby Richardson and Cletus Boyer Saturday and said that Boyer will go to Florida early to learn to play the outfield.

These two put the New York club past the halfway mark in 1959 signings with 21 of 41 players under contract. Still unsigned are such important team members as Mickey Mantle, Whitey Ford, Gil McDougald, Ryne Duren and Don Larsen.

MANAGER CRAFT SAYS

A's Will Have Better Balance

(Twelfth of a series written under the managers' bylines sizing up their teams' pennant chances for 1959)

By HARRY CRAFT
Kansas City Athletics

THROCKMORTON, Tex. (AP)—This is the time of the year when every manager is optimistic and I am no exception. I don't mean to imply we're going to be pennant contenders but we should have a sounder, more balanced club.

I thought our biggest weaknesses last year were lack of infield replacements and not enough front-line pitching. Second base is the position we thought would present our biggest problem. Our first draft choice was second baseman Wayne Terwilliger. If he can break in as a regular we will be a much sounder ball club.

In that case, Hector Lopez will move back to third base. Hal Smith did a fine job for us at third and was adequate at first. He wasn't getting enough regular work by splitting the catching duties with Harry Chiti and Frank House.

I think we will be stronger in 1959 through the experiences gained by players like Roger Maris, Chiti, Ralph Terry, Mike Baxes, Ray Herbert, Dick Tomanek and Bob Martyn. Jim Small, Lou Klimchock, Kent Hadley, Jim McManus and Milt Graff have improved. I'm told that Zeke Bella swings a good bat and likes to play.

Our pitching should be much better. It is improving from year to year. Herbert was excellent the last two months of the season. Ned Garver is sound physically and a healthy Garver will beat some people. Bob Grim will be in the starting rotation from the beginning. Jack Urban is a battler and if he recovers from his injury of last year, he'll give a good account of himself.

Howard Reed, Ken Johnson and John Tsitouris are youngsters who will be given every opportunity to pitch for us. Reed looked good when he joined us last September. Walt Craddock and Bob Davis should be better pitchers in 1959. Bud Daley, Tomanek and Tom Gorman will draw spot starting and relief assignments.

Our goal still is to make ourselves a strong first-division contender. Because we finished 4½ games out of the first division in '58, makes us believe we're headed in the right direction.

To me, it looks like Detroit and Cleveland have helped themselves through winter trades and should be strong contenders. Chicago will be tough with its pitching and down - the - middle strength. The Yankees are champions until beaten, and are again sound in all departments.

Next — Bill Rigney, San Francisco Giants.

Tudor Era 1st At Hileah

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Mrs. Herbert Herff's Tudor Era led nearly all the way Saturday and won the $99,150 Hileah Turf Cup by 3½ lengths over Hasty House Farm's Ekaba.

Mahan, stablemate of Ekaba, was third and Brae Burn Farm's General Arthur finished fourth in the field of 13 grass runners.

Time for the 1¼-mile race was 2:29 4-5.

Tudor Era, carrying 114 pounds and ridden by Pete Anderson, was post time favorite and paid $6.70 to win.

The winner and the Hasty House two-horse entry each carried 114 pounds.

General Arthur, carrying top weight of 123 pounds, finished strongly to take fourth money but could not overtake the leaders.

Tudor Era earned $62,797.50 for his owner, the wife of a Memphis, Tenn., automobile dealer.

Jockey Anderson said Tudor Era "ran just like we said he would," adding that "everybody that saw it on television knew what we were going to do. Because we made it so public, the others in the race weren't expecting us to do it that way."

8 Ex-Champs Due For Texas Open

SAN ANTONIO (AP)— Eight former champions and at least three winners on the current tour are expected to be in the field that moves into San Antonio Monday for the storied Texas Open, oldest golf tournament on the winter trail.

Art Wall of Pocono Manor, Pa., who tops the money winners by a mile, will be here if he can get some business matters straightened out, Leroy Brannen, the tournament director, said.

But for sure there will be Bill Johnston of Provo, Utah, the 1958 champion; Mike Souchak of Grossingers, N.Y., who set the fantastic record of 257 for 72 holes in 1955 and also shot a world's record equalling 60; Chandler Harper of Portsmouth, Va., who set the record Souchak broke, the preceding year; E. J. Harrison, twice champion; Jay Hebert, Gene Littler, Jack Burke and Tonn Holguin.

Brannen said the 6,700- yard Brackenridge Park Course that was lengthened by 400 yards last year in order to half the low scores that had made it a joke was in its best shape yet.

Some of the tournament lesser lights have been playing the course for several days and found that par 36-35—71 still can be had without too much trouble. Tex Consolver of Wichita, Kans., has been under par every round he's played.

Prize money has been upped by $5,000 and will be $20,000 when the tournament hotshots move out Thursday in the opening round of the 72-hole affair.

Littler, champion at Phoenix; Marty Furgol, victor at San Diego, and Arnold Palmer who triumphed at Palm Springs, Calif., are the three tournament winners definitely in the field here. Wall if he makes it, will be the fourth —he took first place at the Bing Crosby. Tournament officials also are hopeful that Ken Venturi, winner at Los Angeles, will enter.

There will be pro-amateurs all over town but the one the tour hotshots will play in is scheduled Tuesday when $2,500 is put up for the pros at Oak Hills Country Club.

A pro-amateur with $900 in prize money is set for Monday at Fort Sam Houston Course, along with one for $500 at Willow Springs. Riverside Park Course will hold an invitational pro-amateur Wednesday.

The field for the open will be about 160 with 60 or 70 of the places to be determined in qualifying at Brackenridge Tuesday. Some 160 players will try for those spots. There are about 90 automatic qualifiers.

Texas Starts Spring Grid Drills Tuesday

AUSTIN (AP)—An undefeated freshman squad will begin battling for positions with a seasoned varsity team when the University of Texas' spring football practice begins Tuesday.

A swift, talented freshman backfield may have the best luck in making inroads on the veteran-studded team which won 7 of 10 games last season.

"If one boy is better, put him up there even if he is a sophomore and let the morale take care of itself," said Darrell Royal who will coach his third team at Texas next fall. "It's better that way than to baby your morale along and have one boy playing behind another who has less ability."

Mike Cotten of Austin and James Saxton of Palestine, both freshmen, will be in the thick of the quarterback fight with letterman Larry Cooper and squadman Tommy Newman. Bobby Lackey, starting quarterback, dropped out of school for the spring semester.

"We lost quite a bit of experience in the middle of the line through the graduation of Arlis Parkhurst, J. B. Padgett and Mike Wells," said Royal. Parkhurst was at center, Padgett and Wells were guards.

James Shillingburg will return to guard duty after a junior season at tackle and Mike Dowdle, a fullback for two seasons and the leading ball carrier in 1957, has asked for a shot at the right guard spot.

Monte Lee, 1957 regular who was ineligible last season, may take over one of the end positions but the other spots in the line likely will go to returnees.

George Blanch, starting left halfback, will be challenged by David Russell of Amarillo, who averaged 9.9 yards per carry as a freshman, Jack Collins of Dallas and Bobby Oliver of Corpus Christi.

Rene Ramirez, Drew Morris and Bobby Matocha returned for duty at right halfback with newcomers Bart Shirley of Corpus Christi and Steve McWilliams of Baytown.

Olmedo Out To Keep Tennis Prestige

NEW YORK (AP) — Alejandro Olmedo will try to show Americans next week that his spectacular tennis triumphs in Australia were no fluke.

In his first competitive venture since he almost singlehandedly won the Davis Cup and then added the Australian National title, the 22-year-old Peruvian will face a classy international field in the U.S. Indoor Championships starting Thursday.

Longhorn 9 Returns Only 3 Regulars

AUSTIN (AP)—Only three regulars from the 1958 championship team will be on hand Monday when Coach Bib Falk starts baseball practice at the University of Texas.

Baseball workouts also begin Monday at other Southwest Conference schools.

Returning from last season's champions are pitcher George Myers, who had a 12-2 record; outfielder Wayne McDonald, a .311 hitter, and Pete Embry, two-year letter winner with a .270 batting average.

Gone are Max Alvis, the conference's leading hitter; Woody Woodman, who clouted .400 and sparked the infield for three seasons; Jerry Good, a .300 hitter and third team All-America two years ago; Glen von Rosenberg, two-year letterman infielder; Johnny Elam, two-time letterman catcher, and Roy Menge, .300 hitter and third team All-America outfielder. Menge was a scholastic casualty.

Infield candidates include Mitch Baxter, Fort Worth junior who filled in well at times in 1958, and a sophomore crop led by Dallasite Phil Hipps. Menge's outfield spot may go to basketballer Jay Arnette, a letterman in 1958 although never a regular.

Pitching support for Myers Sudderth, who had a 6-5 record in 1958; Paul Zavorskas and possibly sophomores Terry Jackson and Pug Rippy.

The catching should be in fairly good hands defensively, since Johnny Mayer and sophomore Billy Kennety both are rated good receivers and throwers.

Texas opens the season March 10 against Brooke Army Medical Center. Other non-conference foes include Oklahoma, Sam Houston State and Minnesota.

Campbell In Tucson Lead

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Joe Campbell of Knoxville, Tenn., shot his way into a three-stroke lead at the end of Saturday's third round of the $15,000 Tucson Open Golf Tournament with a 15-under-Golf Tournament with a 15-under-par 194.

PGA officials said the 23-year-old Campbell's 65-64-65—194 for the par 35-35 —70, 6,434-yard El Rio course was the lowest 5-hole tournament total since 1955.

Art Wall Jr., Pocono Manor, Pa., was three strokes behind with 66-64-67—197.

Julius Boros, Mid Pines, N.C., started the third round tied with Campbell. The best he could do Saturday was an even-par 70 and an 11-under-par 199.

Hill Speaks At Lincoln Grid Banquet

The annual Lincoln High School football banquet, sponsored by the PTA, was held Thursday night at the Lincoln cafeteria with Damon Hill of Dunbar, Lubbock, as the guest speaker.

Hill was for 18 years head football coach at Dunbar before taking an administration job at the school. Hill is now head of the Industrial Educational Dept. at Dunbar.

Hill spoke on "Team Work and Good Sportsmanship."

"Football is a team game," Hill said. "Unless you are a team-worker, you are not likely to succeed under modern conditions. Civilization is built on team work — as a matter of fact, team work is civilization," Hill added.

"Every athlete should strive to develop sportsmanship," Hill said. "I consider sportsmanship more important than winning," the Dunbar man pointed out.

Hill used the famous quotation by Grantland Rice to illustrate his point. To wit:

"It's not that you won or lost—but how you played the game."

Hill was introduced by Daniel Johnson, principal of the Lincoln school.

Lincoln coach Calvin Edwards presented letter jackets to the football lettermen of the 1958 season.

Mrs. Shirley Brown Mitchell served as toastmistress and Rev. C. Crayton gave the invocation. Barbara Ann Durst, a Lincoln student, sung a solo.

Fried chicken and all the trimmings was served.

Boys Club 5s Runnersup In Roscoe Meet

In the semi-finals Saturday morning, Snyder defeated Abilene Youth Center in the 9-10 year old division, 23-2 while the locals downed the Abilene Boys Club in the 11-12 year old division, 38-25.

Jay Williamson led Snyder in the finals in the 11-12 year old division with 12 points while Drew Bullard was the high scorer for Snyder with 12.

Three groups of Snyder boys will go to Fort Worth next Saturday for return games with the Panther Boys Club, the juniors, seniors and intermediates.

Major Leaguers Go Back To Work

By HAROLD CLAASSEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

After a winter of working, banqueting, loafing and baby-sitting, the big league ball players crawl away from the fireside and go back to work this week. The occasion is the opening of the spring training at comfortable locations in Florida and Arizona.

Twelve of the teams will train in Florida and four in Arizona.

Because of the early, April 9 start of the regular season, most of the long barnstorming tours on the way home have been dropped. The teams will make only a few stops.

Starting Tuesday when the first group of San Francisco Giants is due in Phoenix, the clubs will start reporting.

By Feb. 27 when the last delegation of Chicago Cubs will be at Mesa, Ariz., and the last group of Detroit Tigers at Lakeland, Fla., the roster will be complete.

The exhibition season starts March 7. There will be few open dates on any schedule until the opener.

Pittsburgh will fly direct from camp at Fort Myers, Fla., to Cincinnati for the April 9 opener. The St. Louis Cards fly straight from St. Petersburg, Fla., to St. Louis for their first home game, April 10. In the American League, Baltimore will fly home from Miami for two exhibition games before opening the season, April 9 at Washington.

The other training sites and reporting dates for full squads:

Washington, Orlando, Fla., Feb. 26; Boston, Scottsdale, Ariz. Feb. 25; New York, St. Petersburg, Fla., Feb. 26; Kansas City, West Palm Beach, Fla., Feb. 26; Cleveland, Tucson, Ariz., Feb. 26; Chicago, Tampa, Fla. Feb. 23; San Francisco, Phoenix, Ariz., Feb. 22; Los Angeles, Vero Beach, Fla., Feb. 26; Milwaukee, Bradenton, Fla., Feb. 26; Cincinnati, Tampa, Fla. Feb. 26; and Philadelphia, Clearwater, Fla. Feb. 26.

The Ira girls finished their district schedule undefeated by edging Westbrook, 40-38, while the Ira boys pulled one of the season's top upsets in handing Westbrook its first district defeat, 36-34.

For the Ira girls, Friday's win gave them an 8-0 District 16-B record. The Bulldogettes will now meet second place Westbrook, 6-2, in a best of three game series for the official district titles. First game of the series will be played in Westbrook next Friday, starting at 7:30. Date and site of the second game of the series hasn't yet been set.

California To Display Winter Game Facilities

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif. (AP)—Squaw Valley's pretentious facilities for the 1960 Olympic Winter Games go on trial next weekend.

Like a ship on a shakedown cruise, all is in readiness with this the final check to determine if any changes in competitive courses need be made.

With officials of International Skiing and Skating Federations observing, competitors from throughout the world will test recently completed runs, jumps and rinks.

Russia will have the third largest contingent on hand for the trials, topped in numbers only by the United States and Canada.

In 1957 alone about one-third of a million men and women in the United States received a college degree.

Junior Editors Quiz on ANCIENT HISTORY

QUESTION: Why did Egyptians build pyramids?

* * *

ANSWER: The pyramids of Egypt are almost unbelievably old. The largest of them, the Great Pyramid of the Pharaoh Khufu, or Cheops, was built nearly 3,000 years before the birth of Christ, or almost 5,000 years ago.

They were built as tombs for the Pharoahs, rulers of ancient Egypt. It was believed by the Egyptians that the soul returned to the body after death so Pharoahs competed with each other for the honor of having the biggest and most magnificent home in afterlife.

Building the pyramids was a tremendous task because the ancient people had no machines to move or lift the huge construction blocks. The Great Pyramid is made of 23 million blocks of stone, each weighing about 2 1/2 tons. It is 451 feet high.

* * *

FOR YOU TO DO: Use your modelling clay to build small pyramids like the Egyptians. Make small blocks about an inch square and fit them together in the shape of a pyramid. When you are through, place the pyramid in a box of sand and it will look like a real pyramid in the desert.

CHAMPION Red Locket Nita Louise, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Keeble of Snyder, is shown going best of variety of breed at the Orange Empire Dog Club show at San Bernadino, Cal. The judge is Raymond Hill, and the handler is Woodie Dorward.

Keeble Entry Top Dachshund Again

A dog owned by Snyder residents has repeated a win as the top-winning wirehaired Dachshund bitch in the nation.

The new title was for 1958. She had won the same title for 1957. She is Champion Red Locket Nita Louise, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Keeble, Sacroc 2 Camp.

Only two years and seven months old now, the dog started her show career at eight months of age and finished her championship in 11 months. She has established a hard-to-match record in the show ring.

Her 1957 record was 13 best of variety wins and 18 best of variety opposite sex, in all-breed shows. In Dachshund specialty shows, which were for smooth, wirehaired and long-haired Dachshunds only, she had one best of opposite and three best of breed, opposite sex wins.

Her 1958 record was 19 best of variety of breed wins and eight best opposite sex, in the all-breed shows, and in two Dachshund specialty shows she went best of breed, which is the best in the show, and best of breed, opposite sex, which is best female.

Her overall show record in 58 shows is 32 best of variety of breed and 26 best of opposite sex under 52 different judges.

Nita Louise did not spend the entire year in competition during 1958. She was out of competition almost six months, during which time she whelped three wire puppies, which were sired by American-Canadian Champion Fir Trees Coco. The pups will begin their show careers next fall.

Nita Louise will be in Phoenix Feb. 28 and March 1 for two shows. She will then return to Snyder "and more or less retire from the showring," Keeble said. She was handled exclusively in 1957 by Woodie Dorward of Northridge, Cal., and in 1958 by Dorward and Lee Murray of Fort Worth.

Lobbyists Report On Expenses

AUSTIN (AP)—Right now it looks like lobbyists bought about $5,000 worth of lunches for Texas legislators during January.

The deadline for reporting last month's expenses in working for or against any proposed law changes by registered lobbyists is midnight Sunday. Any mail received Monday with a Sunday postmark will be accepted by the chief clerk of the House, Dorothy Hallman, who has the job of keeping track of Texas' lobbyists.

A late check showed a total of $4,551 in lobby expenditures with more being received today.

Under the 1957 Lobby Control Act, the lobbyists has to report only the expenses involved in "direct communication" with state senators or representatives concerning specific legislation. They do not have to report any of their own expenses, office expenses or travel expenses. Legislators do not have to make any type of report concerning lobbying.

The largest single expense account reported was a total of $354 submitted by B. A. Jones, who registered as a lobbyist for Lone Star Producing Co. and Lone Star Gas Co., Dallas. However, Thomas L. Dyer of Austin and E. T. Foster of Amarillo, who registered as lobbyists for Phillips Petroleum Co., Phillips Chemical Co. and Phillips Pipeline Co., reported a total of $614. Each reported an expense total of $102.48 for each of the three firms.

A number of registered lobbyists filed reports saying they had no expenses during the month.

Dance Hall Fire Injures 35 Persons

KINGSTON, Ont. (AP)—A gay crowd of 150 persons, mostly teenagers, were dancing in a crowded hall early Saturday. Then two scuffling men knocked over an oil stove. In the ensuing fire and panic, 35 of the dancers were injured, three critically.

Vern Jackson, 29, said there was only a small blaze as the oil began to creep across the floor, and no one seemed worried. However the fire grew, and there was a sudden, searing burst of flame.

"The heat was tremendous," he said. "Everyone rushed for the doors. The crowd pushed me through a window."

Hospital authorities said 17 persons had been treated for burns or other injuries and released. Of 18 still in the hospital, they listed three as in critical condition.

Fireman quickly brought the flames under control. The roof and interior walls of the building were damaged.

Sheriff Threatens To Auction Off Ward Courthouse

MONAHANS, Tex. (AP)—The sheriff of Ward County says he is going to put the courthouse on the auction block but the Commissioners' Court is making other plans to satisfy a $73,780 judgment against them.

The Lee Moor Construction Co. won the court judgment after the county had refused to pay it for additional work on county roads.

"I have already filed a formal levy on the courthouse and will advertise it for sale," Sheriff W. B. McNerlin said. "I think this is the first time in history that a courthouse has been put up for sale by a sheriff, but it is the only thing I can do."

County Atty. John Howze, said, however, that the sheriff couldn't foreclose on county property, that the law would not permit it.

"The law provides that no execution shall be valid against county property," he said.

McNerlin said that unless he is enjoined by court action, he will start advertising Monday that the modern 18-year-old courthouse will be sold at public auction March 10.

"Actually it's silly because county property can't be attached," he said. "But the district court gave me this order of execution to satisfy judgment. I am treating it like any other order of execution so unless I am enjoined I intend to put the courthouse up for sale to satisfy the judgment."

The commissioners say they do not have the cash available to pay the judgment.

The construction firm was given a contract to work on the county roads in 1956. When the work was completed, the commissioners were not satisfied and ordered some of it redone. When the firm presented a bill for the additional work, the commissioners refused to pay it. The construction firm then filed suit and won the judgment.

The commissioners court met today but adjourned without taking any action, after considering two plans to satisfy the judgment.

One plan called for a readjustment of the distribution of county funds during the next fiscal year to provide enough money for the judgment. The other proposed to allow the construction firm to sell the judgment to a bank. The county would then issue time warrants to the bank.

MAMIE COMES HOME — Back to San Antonio, Tex., came Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower, who wintered there during a courtship that led to her marriage of the 1st Lt. Dwight D. Eisenhower. She is shown leaving the train on her way to the Hilton Hotel. With her is her sister, Mrs. G. Gordon Moore of Washington, D. C. She took a short delay in San Antonio from her vacation trip to Arizona. (AP Wirephoto)

Mamie Leaves For Arizona

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower rolled toward an Arizona vacation Saturday night, leaving behind a hint that she and the President might retire to the Southwest, rather than to their Gettysburg, Pa., farm.

"I wouldn't be surprise if Mamie and Ike moved back to the Southwest some day," said the First Lady's sister and traveling companion, Mrs. G. Gordon Moore in an interview.

"I don't think Mamie likes living in the East so much."

Storm Jitters Hit St. Louis

By AL DOPKING

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — This is tornado country where the whistle of the wind in the middle of the night is no lullaby.

The tornadic winds have started again. So have the jitters as St. Louis digs out from under its worst tornado in 32 years.

Nor have the jitters been helped by a long-range weather prophet who bases his forecasts on sunspot activity. He is Dr. Edward M. Brooks, professor of geophysics at St. Louis University.

"This is a rough tornado year," he said.

The tornado country stretches from the plains of Texas to the Dakotas. St. Louis is in the heart of this country. Since its earliest day it has been lashed.

But only two—those in 1896 and 1927—were more deadly than the one that caught it asleep before dawn Tuesday and left 21 dead, 300 injured and 12 million dollars in property destruction.

The storm struck with all its fury at 2:12 a.m. No warning had been sounded. The Weather Bureau simply had said earlier to be on the alert for severe weather, with possible hail.

The Civil Defense, supposedly the nerve center for all-out emergencies, went into action three hours late. It was the first time it had been called upon since it was organized eight years ago.

Birg. Gen. Francis P. Hardaway (Ret.), director of civil defense, blamed the Weather Bureau for his late start; it should have notified him. George M. Brancato, chief government meteorlogist, insisted there had been no understanding that was to alert Civil Defense. He also said the Weather Bureau had no advanced sign of the tornado; it simply had slipped into town.

Brancato said modern radar equipment might have provided an hour's warning. A forecaster saw a "hook-like shape"—the tornado danger signal—on the radar screen but it vanished and he discounted it.

Brancato said the tornado was reported to have been seen at Sullivan, Mo., 66 miles away. The Weather Bureau has ordered a $100,000 radar tornado-tracker.

Just 10 days before the tornado hit the Air Force discontinued its defense filter center. Its ground observers have spotted tornadoes before and its weather chief, Sam C. Olmstead, said they might have done it again.

Tuesday's tornado followed almost the identical path of one in 1927 in which 78 perished. Both bore northeastward through central St. Louis about three miles west of the downtown district.

The daddy of all St. Louis tornadoes hit May 27, 1896. The death toll was 306. But the biggest of all in the area crashed into southern Illinois on a sultry March day in 1925. It ripped through West Frankfort, Murphysboro and other towns 150 miles southeast of St. Louis. Before it quit 800 persons were dead.

Dr. Brooks says tornadoes can strike any month and at any hour. He warned St. Louis that it is not immune from another.

"Tornadoes are not like measles," he said. "You can have them again and again."

Daniel Says Bill Is Misinterpreted

AUSTIN (AP)—Gov. Price Daniel said Saturday critics of his 13 million dollar "bookkeeping transfer" bill are misinterpreting the measure at a time when "we should all be looking for ways to reduce the tax loan on the people of Texas."

"I have never seen a bill subjected to as much misinterpretation," Daniel said, in what he termed his answer to a statement by Legislative Budget Board Director Vernon McGee Friday.

McGee said he was working with Comptroller Robert S. Calvert and Rep. Frates Seeligson of San Antonio in an attempt to get at least 10 million dollars out of the bill.

Daniel has claimed consistently the measure would reduce the mounting state deficit by 18 million dollars. It would require the comptroller to include funds in his estimate of the state's financial condition at the end of the fiscal year which Daniel says are not now being reported.

The bill is in a House subcommittee.

Daniel said he was sure McGee "or anyone else" who wanted to see the comptroller follow the dictates of the Constitution would be in agreement on three points:

"1. That the comptroller will collect 18 million dollars during this fiscal year which he does not include in any shape, manner or form in his official estimate of the receipts for this fiscal year.

"2. That the comptroller's book-estimate of deficit is 18 million dollars higher than his own estimate of actual cash in the treasury.

"3. That the constitution provides for a cash pay-as-you-go program whereby the comptroller reports the cash plus all probable receipts for the current fiscal year and the next biennium. This positively is not being done."

Daniel said the transfer bill had been studied for months by lawyers and public accountants, "all of whom agree that the state's books, if handled in accordance with the constitution, would be 18 million dollars better off this year than under the present system of bookkeeping estimates, and that it would not affect or have to be made up in any future year."

The bill, Daniel said, would reduce the bookkeeping deficit of the comptroller "simply by directing him to follow the Constitution of Texas on reporting the condition of the state treasury as it actually will exist at the close of the fiscal year."

"I have not been consulted about any proposed compromise," the governor said, "but I am sure that after thorough study everyone knowing about law or accounting will agree that a bill of this nature should be passed."

The deficit is estimated to reach 65 million dollars by the end of the fiscal year. The transfer bill is one of the major points in the governor's program to cancel the red-ink entries in the state's books.

Long Gets Sentence Of 99 Years

CUERO, Tex. (AP) —Relieved and smiling, William Long heard himself sentenced Saturday to 99 years in prison for killing an elderly couple who surprised him while he was stealing their car.

The jury which had the case about 18 hours convicted the former convict and farm hand of murder with malice in the shotgun blasting of elderly Mr and Mrs. A. B. Lippman on a farm near Somerset, close to San Antonio.

The state had demanded the death penalty. It was evident to room that Long possibly expected it, because of the jubilation he and his lawyers displayed.

Long shook hands cordially with the three men who prosecuted him; Asst. Attys. Gen. Crawford Reeder and Jim Barlow of San Antonio and Dist. Atty. Wiley Cheatham of Cuero.

The case was moved here after a mistrial in San Antonio.

Absent from the courtroom was Long's commonlaw wife, Sandra Kay Powell, who has testified in support of the man's contention that he was insane. She is charged at San Antonio as an accessory and faces trial at a date yet to be set.

The jury received the case at 4:47 p.m. Friday and returned its verdict at 10:30 a.m. The jurors decided in their deliberation that Long was sane. The state had placed five experts on the stand at the close of its case to testify Long was sane.

The Lippmans were shot May 19. Long was captured later in Tennessee. He was on parole from prison at Jackson, Mich. at the time.

'Axis Sally' Shuns Parole

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mildred E. Gillars, Nazi Germany's "Axis Sally" in World War II, has given up a chance at an early parole after serving nearly 10 years of her sentence for treason.

Miss Gillars, 57, would have been eligible to apply for a parole from the Alderson, W. Va., Federal Reformatory for Women on March 24 after completing the minimum of her 10-to-30-year sentence.

But on Jan. 27 she mailed a waiver of this right to the U.S. Parole Board here. No reason for the decision was given..

George J. Reed, board chairman, said he had no idea why she waived. "Sometimes," he said, a prisoner waives temporarily because he thinks he can build up a better case with more time."

SANDSCRIPTS

BY FRANCES-ELIZABETH JONES

It was to fetch her daughter Margaret home for a holiday that landed a friend of mine and I twenty miles north of Albuquerque at a boarding school nurtured under the wing of the Seventh Day Adventist church.

In the shank of the afternoon we drew up in front of Sandia View Academy whose Spanish-style adobes kneel at the skirts of the purple-misted Sandias. Pleasurably, from any point on the little campus, you have but to turn your neck a fraction to see them. The mountains, as it were, hold forth.

A gentle, prim dean of women esconced us in the very clean guest room into which penetrated the long - forgotten sounds of a female domicile. Through Sandia View earnestly is shooting for high-mindedness and plain living, the clatter bears close resemblance to any state college dorm or women's cell block preceding dinnertime. Hard objects bang: Sophomores whistle. News is shrieked from shower to shower. Sitting on the edge of the twin bed provided for me, my nostrils, recalling college days, quivered at the onslaught of food cooking, wet towels, and that indescribable sweet, high essense of sixteen-year-old girls.

Dinner, sharpely following a clanging bell, was dished up cafeteria-style in a big, plain room. If I were not dedicated to unsentimental reporting of the truth as I see it, I would, regarding their dinner, unpack my wardrobe of superlatives. It is only fair to admit that I am a blackslidden vegetarian and am just a bit partial toward the meal which does not lean heavily upon the flesh of animals. Unlike the good Seventh Day Adventists, my reasoning here, rather than spiritual, is that of a health fanatic at heart.

Next morning I slipped into the savory bakery, striking up an acquaintance with the head cook who was pouring a mass of tan-colored whole wheat mix into the huge, brass mixer. If I possess one quality useful to a writer, it is a natural bent for attracting confidences. Runaway wives on buses, private secretaries eating salads in restaurants, all slant their glance at my unexciting sympathetic, and interested blue orbits, and with embarrasingly short preliminaries, tell all. Sure enough, as I left, the bread lady was dropping several large, plump tears into the graham batter after we had reviewed the passing of her sister and of life's other tribulations.

To attend Sandia View Academy, high school age boys and girls must work a minimum of ten hours weekly at the school or adjacent farm, their wages applied to tuition. Boys sow, reap crops, doctor tractors or hogs, feed livestock, prune grounds, pick strawberries. Girls work and learn in the laundry, the bakery, the library, the kitchen. The results, though rather severly won, produce no fat cats. Emerging are capable youngsters properly taught various useful functions. Schooling moves along at an equally demanding level. I sat in on a spirited lecture by Chicagoian Elder Hoffman on Bible history who drew with facility a goat's stomach (the water jug of the ancients) not once finding it necessary to call for the attention of his class. I felt logerithims and conjunctives would slide in as easily. The staff leans toward inellectuals of an idealistic turn, husband and wife teams mostly residing on campus whose supervision of their charges stretch over 24 hours and into all departments of their lives.

The shock of the bell clapper before dawn pulls the girls of the dormitory from their B O Q type rooms and presses them downstairs to the lounge in curlers and flying housecoats. The clarion tones of "The Little Lord Jesus" and "He Arose" ring out as guiltily clutching my toothbrush, I stumble about in the guest bathroom with my cloven hooves. My friend gallantly had bounded into her clothes and joined the dawn singers and meditators at the chipped piano.

I do not say that a term at Sandia View is necessary for the development of a firm character in your teenager. There is a bit too much hair shirt in the religion to hold a freethinker like me. But their approach is one which could infiltrate our public schools without damage. The consumption of some straight-laced academic courses and the expectation of some hard chores, well done, would not wholly break the minds and health of our teenagers.

But then, it might cut out a ball game or two, which of course, anybody knows, are the be-all and the end-all.

Oatmeal Wafers

Ingredients: ½ cup butter or nargarine, 1 cup firmly-packed light brown sugar, 2 ½ cups regular-style uncooked rolled oats, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 large egg, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Method: Melt butter over low heat; mix well with brown sugar, rolled oats and baking powder. With rotary beater, hand or electric, beat egg until thick and pale colored; beat in vanilla. Mix well with rolled oats mixture. Drop teaspoonfulls of the mixture, several inches apart, onto a greased baking sheet. Bake in moderate (350 degrees) oven until edges are medium brown — 8 to 10 minutes. Let cookies stand about 1 minute before removing with wide spatula or pancake turner to wire rack. Cool; store in tightly covered containers and these lacy wafers will stay crisp. Makes 6 dozen.

Cocoa Filbert Balls On Corn Bread

Ingredients: 1 cup finely crushed vanilla wafer crumbs, 1 cup confectioners sugar, 2 tablespoons cocoa, ½ cup finely chopped filberts; 2 tablespoons light or dark corn syrup, ¼ cup heavy cream, ½ teaspoon vanilla; finely chopped filberts.

Method: Mix together the wafer crumbs, sugar and cocoa. Add the filberts, corn syrup, half the cream and vanilla. Add enough of the remaining cream so mixture is moist to the touch. Roll into balls the size of walnuts, roll in finely chopped filberts. Store in a tightly covered container for a couple of days before serving; if balls get moist, remove and allow to dry at room temperature before storing again. Makes 2 dozen.

Mrs. J. D. Dillard Guest Of Twilight Garden Club

The Twilight Garden Club met Thursday evening at the Martha Ann Woman's Club and was honored with the presence of Mrs. J. D. Dillard of Midland. Mrs. Dillard is District one Governor of Texas Garden Clubs, Inc.

Other guests for the evening were Mrs. Jim Moss, Mrs. Harold Lacik, Mrs. Wiley Brice, Mrs. Ernest Sears and Mrs. Jack Gore of the Town and Country Garden Club and Mrs. Buck Francis.

Mrs. Dillard gave a most interesting talk. Topic of her subject was "Why Belong To A Garden Club?" She said in part:

"Take advantage of your garden club and the many things it has to offer. You use your utilities, library, newspaper and such and if you do not, you are only hurting yourself. Persons get out of a garden club just what they put into it."

Mixed with bits of humor, Mrs. Dillard told of the many advantages a standard garden club can do for a community. She also explained the rules of a federated club, which cleared up many misunderstandings some members had on the use of an authoritated speaker. "An authoritative speaker may be any person who has a standard knowledge of any one flower, your nurseryman, county agent and etc., it does not have to be a district, national or state judge or the like", she said.

"Horticulture and arranging is a wonderful way to make friends, exchange ideas and share with others. It develops leadership, awareness of the beautification of your community, and a general knowledge of your own personal surroundings. On the sharing side, if a person does not belong to a garden club but grows beautiful flowers, who enjoys them besides herself? But, if you belong to a garden club you can make arrangements and enter horticulture specimens at your annual flower show and along with your fellow members the general public has the opportunity to enjoy their beauty. You may even swap flowers with your neighbors and friends, enlarging your circle of friendship.

"This also gives members an opportunity to show the public what you are doing, as some people think that clubs are strictly social affairs and tea parties. The National bulletin put out by the Chamber of Commerce has endorsed garden clubs 100 percent; they recently stated that 'Any time a garden club comes into a community the price of real estate goes up'.

"We try to stress the importance of litterbug campaigns, making the general public conscious of the taxes that may be saved by each person being just a little thoughtful in dispensing of their trash. Another important topic backed by the Texas Garden Clubs is highway safety and highway beautification.

"Some people can stick anything in the ground and it will grow beautifully, but they are all thumbs when it comes to making an arrangement, on the other hand some are very artistic, but do not have the space for a flower garden or the time to care for them, in this case it all comes back to the sharing and friendship topic. You can enter your horticulture specimens and let the ones with the artistic ability go strictly for arrangements, but at least try and do your best, your arrangement may not be the best in the show but it shows your fellow members you are trying. No club is based on just the ability of one or two members, although one or two members of any club can be a liability instead of an asset."

A question and answer session was held following the talk and many enlightening questions were answered.

Mrs. Dillard arrived in Snyder Thursday afternoon and was a guest of Mrs. W. D. Sims, president of the Twilight Garden Club. They visited briefly in Hermleigh in the afternoon with members of the Hermleigh Garden Club, which was recently organized by the Twilight Club.

Delightful refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. C. L. Brunson, Mrs. J. M. Davis, Mrs. Skeet Jones, Mrs. Wilton Jones, Miss Ethel Roberts and Mrs. Clyde Brown.

Check Quality When Shopping White Sales

This year's traditional "white" sales are featuring some of the most colorful and fashion-wise household linens seen in many years. Deep and vari-colored towel sets, pastel and decorator patterned sheets and pillowcases share the spotlight with the conventional white sale offerings.

However, your professional laundry advises shoppers to look for quality as well as style and attractive price tags at the sales. These tips are offered to shoppers.

When purchasing towels, the colorfast ones are the best buy. All towels don't hold their colors after laundering. Also, observe, feel and pull the different sections to make sure that all stretch equally. Uneven tension can cause towel parts to pucker or become distorted after laundering. Choose close, large, loosely-twisted and thickly-packed loops, which indicate that the towels will be absorbent and will give good service.

Cotton sheets come in two basic types, muslin and percale. Muslin is a utility-type sheet that is heavier, less expensive and usually gives longer wear. Percale sheets are lighter and have a more luxurious feel. Check sheeting for firm compact selvage edges and hems that are straight with even stitching. When purchasing patterned or pastel bed linens, shoppers should also check for colorfastness.

For quality bed linens, look for threads that are evenly woven and of the same thickness. Properly woven fabrics do not need heavy sizing, which is a filler material used in loosely woven fabrics. Heavily sized items, especially sheets and pillowcases, have a good appearance when new. However, after laundering, the sizing is gone and the item becomes very limp. Even the professional laundry cannot fully restore the original appearance of such fabrics. To check for sizing, rub the fabric lightly. If a powdery substance appears, the article contains too much sizing.

A little borax added to the washing water will bring shine to mirrors.

Complaining Boy May Fail Trapeze Test

By VIVIAN BROWN

"IF I HAD it to do over again, I'd never be a teen-ager," writes a typically harassed column fan. "It's complicated my life terribly to go through this period."

Enough said. We know what she means. But growing up isn't easy, and crossing the line from childhood to adulthood takes a bit of doing, especially these days. More letters testify to the puzzlement of the age:

"I have a trapeze dress which my family says looks wonderful on me. A boy I date steady says he wouldn't be found dead with a girl who would wear the new dress styles. He hates them. Should I wear it anyway and risk losing him, or just wear it when I don't see him?"

A. Chances are he doesn't know a trapeze dress from a pinafore. Wear it as a test. If he comments on its extreme style, don't be hurt. Say something like, "Oh, I thought you'd like THIS."

Q. "Is it fair of my parents to take me away for a whole summer? I am 16, and won't see my boyfriend for three months."

A. Many parents feel it's a good idea to separate young romantics for a spell. Maybe it would be good for you to get a change of scenery and meet some new young people. Give it a whirl. If you are very unhappy and lonesome your parents will probably be the first to notice and make other arrangements for you.

Q. "I had an opportunity for a summer job with my father's firm. I didn't follow it up at once and now I'm told they're not hiring students. My father blames me, saying that if I hadn't procrastinated I would have gotten the job."

Heed Your Dentist

A. Many firms have cancelled out on vacation help, even where firm commitments may have been made. They are trying to make do during the vacation period with a minimum of help.

Q. I have been told by an orthodontist that my teeth require braces. I would have to wear them two years. I am a sophomore in high school and can't bear the thought."

A. It'll be easier to tolerate the idea if you concentrate on what the results will be. For two years of wearing a mouthful of metal, you may earn a lifetime smile that would be the envy of toothpaste ad models.

A. "I am entered in the college my mother attended, in spite of my dislike of the school. She is determined that I go there because she did."

Q. Sometimes that is the case and perhaps your mother showed her hand too vividly. If she hadn't mentioned it, you may very well have chosen it as the one you'd most like to attend. This is the contrary age, when mother and dad are likely to look a little bossy in your eyes. If your parents are paying the college tuition, why not permit mother this whim of which she may have dreamed all her life. Lots of girls would like to be in your shoes when they're trying to figure out where to get a job to pay their college tuition.

The Gardeners Corner

Cold weather is the slack season for cables in dependent trees.

Properly installed tree cables that are taut in summer, are often loose in the dormant season. This is no cause for alarm advises P. H. Willmott, field representative of a Tree Expert Company.

Most people don't realize foliage-laden trees have a wider branch spread. Limbs bend outward under the weight of greenery and tend to spring upward again after leaf fall. Properly placed cables are comfortably taut — just enough to help the tree in stress periods. They are not intended to supplant natural resiliency of the branches. And as the cold season advances, they actually take on more slack.

If cables droop in a near loop, these sad sags should be studied by a qualified tree man, however. After eight or ten years of service, cables may not be functioning properly or may even be rusted to the point where they need replacement. Tree growth often requires cable replacement in new locations to balance shifts of weight.

The professional tree man is the only slack wire artist usually capable of handling the cabling job. The daring amateur tree doc clambering about without safety ropes is apt to break a limb or his neck or both.

Extreme sag should be taken care of at once. Cables are placed primarily for safety reasons and the corrective work done now insures against disaster when abnormal amounts of ice or snow place stress that may be overwhelming.

Mr. Fredericks has been one of America's most popular young singers since returning from Italy and his debuts with the New York City and San Francisco Opera Companies in 1950. Noted for a beautiful, lyric, vibrant voice sustained by a physique that won honors in football, baseball, basketball, track and boxing during his school days, his singing is enriched by great dramatic and artistic ability. A San Francisco critic wrote "His fine virile tenor rang out with uncommon beauty and clarity as well as conviction. Another stellar job." A Philadelphia reviewer commented "Vocally and dramatically superb. His large, lyric voice had color in every register and he delighted the audience with splendidly ringing top tunes."

Mr. Fredericks has appeared as soloist with many of America's leading symphony orchestras, including those of Philadelphia, Buffalo, Rochester, Detroit, Minneapolis, Chicago, Kansas City, San Francisco and Los Angeles, and has appeared as guest star in radio and television.

Portrait In Oil Shown To Snyder Palette Club

Helen Wadleigh was hostess for the Palette Club Thursday at the Martha Ann Clubhouse. Mrs. Wadleigh was also the model for Rosalee McGlaun, who gave a demonstration of portrait in oil.

Mrs. McGlaun said after experimenting with different mediums, she now prefers half terpentine to half linseed oil. Color is very important to her, though she uses a comparitively small palette, consisting of only nine colors.

Of the many methods of beginning a portrait, her favorite is to lightly brush - sketch in the outline of the face with yellow ochre. Next, she works for an over all finish, including color in the background, before finishing in detail any one feature. The purpose for this, she said, is to determine the relation of color; as one color placed beside another one, sometimes seems to actually change its color. Using three shades of flesh tones, she works from the shadow areas up to the lightest color, the shadow being so important, that once she gets them placed right, the rest of the portrait just seems to fall into place.

The Pallette Club will exhibit the work of Rod Parkinson of Lubbock, in the Martha Ann Clubhouse for one more week.

Bernice Fix of Lubbock, has accepted the Palette Club's invitation to exhibit her work here. The date will be announced later.

The Women's Auxiliary of Cogdell Hospital is sponsoring a permanent exhibit for Palette Club members at the Cogdell Hospital. Ten per cent of pictures sold from this exhibit will go the the auxiliary. Pictures will be changed every two months. Now on display are "Abandoned Shack", by Ruby Butler; "Blue Bonnets" by Jo-Jo Randall; "Mt. Hood" by Lou Bright; "Public Market" by Liz Bell, "Indian Dolls by Rosalee McGlaun and "Landscape" by Lavern Foster.

On exhibit now at the Scurry County Library is an interesting painting by Charlotte Etgen, "The Foal - on Tule Ranch". This beautiful painting is of Lisa and her foal Lisa was bought by Charlotte's father, D. M. Cogdell, from the Hankins Bros. ranch in Rocksprings, Tex. Lisa is the daughter of "Old King" the most famous quarter horse in Texas. Cowmen seeing this picture for the first time have recognized Lisa as representing an unusually fine strain, and typical of the quarter horses that Texas is famous for producing.

Diamond Habits Changing: Big Ones Being Retired

NEW YORK (AP) — Diamonds may be a girl's best friend, but recently some of the world's most fabulous gem stones have been getting mighty chummy with governments, museums, foundations, commercial firms and businessmen whose interest is scarcely sentimental.

Retirement of the famed 44-carat blue Hope diamond to a lighted niche in the Smithsonian Institution is but a sign-post on the path toward a new function for historic and out-size gems.

Whereabouts of many famed gems are unknown, but it is hard to name more than two famous diamonds which might still be considered "working stones," owned and worn by private citizens. One is the 54-carat Sancy, once property of Elizabeth I of England, and now in the tiara of Virginia-born Lady Astor. The other is the Nassak, a 43-carat stone which turned up in a Hindu temple in India and now the property of Mrs. William B. Leeds, wife of a New York millionaire.

Experts know that the Soviet Union has a fabulous gem collection — but how large and exactly what it contains is pretty much of a mystery. Certain famous stones like the Orloff diamond, are known to be in it.

King Farouk, a gem collector, managed to take some stones with him on his speedy departure from the throne, but the Egyptian government hung on to the prize of his collection: the 125-carat Jonker.

At the time of the French Revolution, the royal treasury was robbed of many famous, important jewels. Most were never recovered, and for years this or that stone, turning up with a new cutting, has been rumored to have been originally part of the royal loot. However, the Louvre sports an impressive gem collection including notably the Regent, a 140-carat stone considered one of the finest diamonds in the world.

Great Britain, of course, has the biggest, best known and most popular collection of state jewels on earth. They are on view at the Tower of London and seen by almost half a million persons a year. Included in the collection are the huge stones cut from the Cullinan, the largest diamond ever found, and the ancient Koh-i-noor.

In the less sparkling world of stones with few carats, more women than ever are wearing diamonds. One survey recently indicated that 85 per cent of all brides today sport diamond engagement rings — and that 11 per cent of all engagement rings sold are for ladies who have been married for 10 or more years.

With more and more precious stone wearers in the country, who are the ones interested in the big, famous and historic gems?

"They are a constantly changing group," said one student of gem history. "Two hundred years ago, fabulous gems were brought by the rich with the idea of giving them to their families or — more likely — to the church. A hundred years ago, they were bought by people who wanted to put them away — a hedge against disaster.

"But 50 years ago, people started buying these jewels with the idea of putting them on their wives and lady friends, to let the world know how prosperous they were. But now the idea seems to be to buy them, put them in a show case and let everybody take a look at them. It's a healthy trend — anyway, more people can see them and admire them."

The paisley-pattern slippers which are popular now had their beginnings in the mid-Victorian era. Ladies of the 1860's liked them for at-home wear, too.

The Same Old Problem

Anyone who reads the papers these days should suspicion that our country has a farm problem. However, it is difficult from the evidence at hand to determine the scope of the problem, and even more so to decide what should be done about it.

Cotton, of course, is in the midst of the discussions. A group of Scurry County farmers heard a discussion of options available to them during a discussion early in the week. Cotton growers may select one of two acreage control plans. The "A" plan permits the farmer to plant his prescribed allotment, with a guaranteed loan up to 80 per cent of parity for his crop. The "B" plan allows acreage up to 40 per cent above the regular allotment, but the support rate drops to 65 per cent of parity.

At the same time, the National Cotton Council concluded its annual convention in Atlanta, Ga., in a virtual deadlock on crop controls. Some wanted to end controls, while others feared that controls were vital to the industry. The delegates went home without taking action on any resolution.

Charles B. Shuman, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, deplores agricultural controls, as well as federal aid to schools.

President Eisenhower frankly admits the farm program in effect for the past few years has been a failure.

Ezra Benson, Secretary of Agriculture, told a House committee he was worried about wheat surpluses, but he offered no concrete suggestions for legislation.

At present, it appears that the nation's farm program, if there is one, will come exclusively from the Congress. Most of the solons are suspicious of the president's suggestions on the subject, and many are hostile toward Sec. Benon. Whatever they adopt, it likely will be acceptable to some, all wrong for others, while a vast majority will try to live with it until something else comes along.

Navy's Missiles Can See In Dark

By JOHN BARBOUR
Associated Press Science Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—In the dark of night you now can see a man light a cigarette over five miles away — even if the light of his match is too weak to carry that distance.

In pitch dark, you now can see the tip of a finger more than half the length of a football field.

This strange ability to see in the dark is ours because science has given us a new set of eyes that can see heat.

They are so precise that they can detect temperature differences of a few hundredths of a degree some five miles away.

A set of these infra-red or heat-sensitive eyes rides in the nose of the lethal U.S. Navy Sidewinder missile. Fired from one plane at another, it seeks out the heat of its target's engine and homes in on it, hardly ever missing.

Along the Atlantic missile test range, huge missile nose cones burning their way back into the earth's atmosphere can be spotted and tracked by infra-red eyes in the dark of night.

Actually, infra-red devices operate fairly simply in principle. As a light meter registers the amount of light coming from a source, the infra-red device measures the amount of heat.

There are essentially two ways to do this, explains Henry Blackstone, president of Servo Corp. of America, one of the pioneer firms in the infra-red field.

The oldest and simplest way is to allow the incoming heat to heat up something — like a fly-speck of platinum.

When you do this you change the electrical qualities of the platinum and can measure this change by passing electricity through the tiny platinum sample.

Another method rests on the similarities between heat rays and light rays in action on some unusual minerals or chemicals.

Heat rays from even great distances are focused on a mineral in an infra-red device. The heat has the ability to knock loose electrons from the mineral. These free electrons generate a signal which is measured.

These devices are heat detectors sensitive enough to spot a man by the warmth of his body from as far away as 5 or 10 miles if the background is right and nothing stands between the target and the device.

Right now the biggest uses of the heat-sensitive eyes is military.

Devices carried by drone aircraft will be able to scout over enemy lines. These devices will read where vehicles and men are concentrated and will be a valuable aid in stripping away enemy camouflage.

At night, they can tell whether the sun was blocked from an area for a long period because the heat radiated from that area will be less than the surrounding area. Theoretically it would be possible, after the sun goes down, to see the sunbather's silhouette on the sand, even though the sunbather had left.

Devices will be able to locate artillery batteries from the heat of the blast.

The first time infrared successfully detected an approaching ballistic missile on the U.S. range was on May 18, 1958, when the army using Aerojet-General Corp. equipment spotted a Jupiter test missile.

After that Aerojet scientists tracked the Soviet's Sputnik III detector.

Maneuvers Show Germ War Perils

By ROGER GREENE

WASHINGTON (AP)—An enemy submarine, masked by fog or darkness a few miles offshore, could blanket almost nay American coastal city with deadly germs spreading over thousands of square miles.

Fantastic? It already has been done—by U.S. Navy ships using harmless materials.

Dr. LeRoy D. Fothergill, scientific adviser at the Army's Germ Warfare Research Center at Ft. Detrick, Md., recently gave the American Medical Assn. an inkling of what might happen.

Fothergill said a U.S. Navy craft, traveling two miles offshore in moderate fog, sent up a spray of biological aerosol containing a nonpoisonous organism. The mock attack lasted 29 minutes, using 130 gallons of spray. The germs were detected as far as 23 miles away and covered 100 square miles.

Later, a ship cruising 10 miles offshore disseminated 450 rounds of an inert substance along a 156-mile course. The wind-borne substance was detected 450 miles inland. It blanketed a region covering 34,000 square miles.

What is being done to cope with the possibility of such an enemy attack, using live germs or deadly chemical gas? The Defense Department is wary about answering such questions.

The Army announced several years ago it had developed an aerosoloscope to give instant warning of a germ warfare attack. The device can count germs, dust and moisture particles as small as a micron—one forty-millionth of an inch—1,000 times faster than a microscope.

The Army Chemical Corps has developed an infrared device—known as "Lopair" (long-path infrared)—which flashes a warning light and sounds a horn upon detecting even a tiny amount of colorless, invisible contamination in the air. It has a range of a quarter mile.

in the air. It has a range of a quarter mile.

This question was submitted to the Pentagon: "How many automatic nerve-gas detecting devices are now in use? Where?"

After 25 days of deliberation, the Pentagon came up with this answer: "Many of these automatic devices are in use throughout the Department of Defense. The exact number and locations of the devices is classified (secret)."

Less hidebound by secrecy, the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization says that by 1967 it expects to have 1½ million monitors trained to defend against chemical, biological and radiological warfare.

Leo A. Hoegh, OCDM chief, says the agency this year has installed radiation detection kits—mofidied geiger counters—in 15,000 high schools and 900 weather stations and airports from coast to coast.

In addition, 3,471 Public Health Service employes and 3,045 others have been trained to guard against animal and crop contamination.

So far, so good, but—

The OCDM admits that if an enemy should strike today with germ or chemical warfare, the American public would be unable to buy or obtain either gas masks or antigas protective clothing.

The agency has stockpiled 5½ million doses of atropine, with the kits costing $1.55 for a four-dose package including hypodermic needle.

Maj. Gen. William M. Creasy (ret.), former Army Chemical Corps chief told a House subcommittee:

"If you get there fast enough, you can save the man's life (with atropine) if he doesn't have too much of a massive overdose. It is a matter of getting there awfully fast, though."

How fast?

"Thirty seconds," said Cready.

Record Storage Is A Growing Problem

NEW YORK (AP) — Whether it's in a tiny efficiency apartment or a giant corporation's home office skyscraper the making and storing of records is a steadily growing problem.

More than nine million clerical employes, or about one out of every seven workers in the land, are tackling the job today.

The National Records Management Council says that 50 years ago there was one clerical worker for every 20 employes.

Much of the mounting volume of records has to be retained—to meet government requirements and corporate needs. How long various kinds of records must go on taking up storage space is the problem faced by families and companies alike.

A number of trade associations and accounting groups have issued schedules.

The Controllership Foundation, the research arm of the Controllers Institute of America, has a new guide to saving records against a possible look-see command from Uncle Sam. It covers data for income and excise taxes, social security, payrolls and the like.

Holders of overstuffed safe deposit boxes may take comfort in the fact that banks themselves have storage problems. Banking groups, such as the Pennsylvania Bankers Assn., and the New York State Bankers Assn., have published guides for their members on retention of various documents. Permanent records are kept, though often on microfilm, of paid-off mortgage accounts, and of charged - off consumer credit loans.

The American Society of Corporate Secretaries has a retention schedule covering accumulation of canceled stock certificates and bonds, board meeting minutes, securities and exchange commission reports, stock transfer journals, stockholder lists and proxies.

The press has a guide put out by the Institute of Newspaper Controllers and Finance Officers. Retention periods range from one year for pressroom reports and stockroom requisitions to 25 years for bad debt and product purchase records.

A business group, the Advisory Council on Federal Reports, is working with the U. S. Bureau of the Budget in urging government agencies to specify with each new regulation requiring records just how long the data must be retained. It recommends a six-year maximum.

1959 Crop Season Opens In Texas With Valley Planting

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) —Texas' 1959 crop season got underway this week as farmers in Lower Rio Grande Valley were able to plant a few fields with cotton and grain sorghum, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service reported Saturday.

"However, plantings were limited as fields are generally too wet for work in the coastal counties north through East Texas, while the northwest two-thirds of the state needs a good general rain," said Director John E. Hutchison of the Extension Service.

District agricultural agents report small grain fields and pastures are greening up where moisture and mild weather have permitted plant growth, but small grain, especially wheat, remains dormant or is dying due to cold and dry soil.

Livestock has suffered ill effects from the lack of grazing, and heavy feeding is common throughout the state. Calving and lambing is well underway in the southern half of the state with a few losses of lambs reported in West Texas due to severe cold. Stockwater shortages are reported getting more severe in the Plains and Edwards Plateau and Central Texas.

On the brighter side, land preparation is on schedule or well ahead in the drier sections, and preplanting irrigation has begun in the cotton producing sections of West Texas and the Plains.

Vegetable growers range from harvest in the San Antonio and Houston areas to planting seed in hotbeds as far as northeast Texas to grow seedlings for setting in fields.

The ample moisture in East Texas also means there's enough for final plantings and growth of the approximately 64-million pine seedlings produced by the Texas Forest Service this season.

In areas where field work was at a standstill or limited farmers and ranchers were reported getting their machinery in shape for the season.

North Texas varies from ample moisture in the Bonham-Greenville area to extremely dry in the Henrietta-Jacksboro area, Ted Martin reported at Denton. Heavy feeding of livestock continues.

"Completion of land preparation is underway in the South Plains during favorable weather," added Welton H. Jones at Lubbock. "But the topsoil is dry and subsoil moisture is very low. All small grain except dryland wheat, which remains dormant, has been damaged. Irrigated wheat still looks good.

There is heavy supplemental feeding of livestock.

Field work in the Gulf Coast area has been at a standstill due to boggy land, reported Silver Whitsett at Rosenberg. Some improvement has been made by small grain and winter legumes and by native pastures, but cattle are losing weight even with heavy feeding.

The dry, cold and icy conditions have been very hard on cattle in far West Texas with some losses of lambs, said Ray D. Siegmund at Fort Stockton. Range conditions are hurting for rain, and supplemental feeding is on the increase.

Light rains over most of South Texas relieved the drier counties some, according to Joe H. Rothe at Weslaco, and coastal counties need more open weather to dry the fields.

Further north in South Central Texas field work was delayed further, but small grain is making growth, added Joe M. Glover at Gonzales. Livestock is in fair to good condition.

It's the same story in the dry, dry Rolling Plains. James G. Simmons said at Vernon that grazing is limited or depleted and that feeding stock is heavy, but it remains in fair to good shape, and some are being marketed.

Central Texas had had a hodgepodge of weather, but the West Cross Timbers section and west still needs rain the most. The cold, dry soil, insects and diseases have been very hard on oats, the principal grazing crops, and on native pastures, R. G. Burwell said at Stephenville.

The big crop of lambs and kids is well underway in the Edwards Plateau with the peak expected in late February or early March, but the soil is very dry, curtailing growth of small grain and ranges for grazing, said Roy L. Huckabee at San Angelo.

Oats and winter legumes are now making growth in deep East Texas, but more warm temperatures are needed, said Walter L. Scott at Nacogdoches. There's heavy feeding of cattle, but some continue to lose weight.

North East Texas is turning green again after a few days of mild weather, and there's ample moisture, John H. Surovik reported from Mount Pleasant. There's some insect damage to small grain.

AGRICULTURE

Narrower Profits Seen For Farmers

LUBBOCK — Texas farmers and ranchers are entering 1959 operations with about 35 per cent more cash receipts than this time last year but face narrower profit margins in the future.

That's the agricultural outlook for 1959, according to John G. McHaney, Texas Agricultural Extension economist, who headed a list of eight speakers at the Agricultural Chemicals Conference at Texas Tech Wednesday.

"Ranges and pastures are in good condition and Texas livestock are in better condition than they have been since 1942," McHaney said. However, "the main problem facing agriculture is that production is over expanded in terms of available markets. With normal weather conditions, we can expect another large output of agricultural products, this year."

He said that farmers may expect narrow profit margins for several years to come until "we find some way to reduce supplies or increase the demand farm products."

"The supply of sorghum grain is 43 per cent above that of last year and it is expected that the carryover on Oct. 1 will be 70 per cent larger than in October 1958," he added. While the average price of feed grains will be lower, increased interest in livestock feeding will help to give some strength to feed grain prices.

McHaney said exports of cotton during the 1958-59 period are expected to total about four million bales compared with 5.7 million bales last year.

"Cotton consumption," he noted, "has not kept pace with the rise in per capita income in the United States." In 1957 per capita consumption of lint goods was nine per cent lower than in 1956 while per capita use of man-made fibers showed an increase.

The extension economist said there will be an estimated two or three million more cattle on the nation's farms and ranches and that restocking programs by ranchers will help prices to remain fairly good. He also predicted more hogs on the market in the fall of the year.

McHaney concludes that "if farmers get the right kind of weather in 1959, they'll have a better year — even with higher production costs and somewhat lower prices — than they had in the drouth years prior to 1958."

Nematodes Causing More Damages

LUBBOCK — Cotton growers are suffering increasingly greater losses each year from nematodes, small worms that infest plants, according to L. L. Ray, assistant agronomist with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at Lubbock.

Most widespread damage is probably from the root-knot nematode, but the root-lesion (or meadow) nematode also damages cotton he told those attending the sixth annual Agricultural Chemicals Conference at Texas Tech.

He pointed out that the worms often are associated with stunted plants and seedling death, resulting in skippy stands. The root-knot nematode produces galls and swells on cotton plant roots.

Ray said the two types of worms mentioned are commonly found along with other nematodes in the sandy soils of the High Plains. Nematodes in damaging proportions have been found in soils of the following counties: Lubbock, Lamb, Bailey, Hockley, Dawson, Terry and Gaines.

He estimated cotton losses from Nematode damage at between one and two per cent. Losses are confined mainly to irrigated soils with a previous cropping history of continuous cotton, alfalfa or vegetable crops.

Ray advised that nematode control is possible through chemical fumigation of soil, crop rotation or the planting of resistant varieties of cotton.

He said soil fumigation costs are relatively high — $15 to $20 per acre — and would not be profitable on cotton unless losses are relatively high. He recommended crop rotation as a control where root-knot worms are the main problem.

4-H Week Is Slated

COLLEGE STATION — By proclamation, Governor Price Daniel has designated the week of February 28-March 7 as 4-H Club Week in Texas. The week is also being observed nationally.

"In 1914," Governor Daniel said, "The United States Government invested in the rural youth of our nation through the 4-H club program. Since that time, more than 20 million young people have received the benefits of this vast program and become 4-H alumni. These alumni are engaged in farming, ranching, homemaking and a variety of other occupations. Throughout Texas and the Nation a special salute is extended to them."

In a letter to the 111,000 4-H club members in Texas, the Governor said, "Since the 4-H club program was organized 50 years ago, members of your organization have made outstanding contributions to the material wealth of Texas and the Nation. More important, as young people, you represent the richest resource of our State.

"I extend sincere congratulations to each of you on your fine accomplishments of the past year and join the people of Texas in saluting you, your parents, adult leaders and friends who make this program possible.

"Please accept my best wishes for 1959 and the years ahead. May you continue to build yourselves, your homes and your communities, and thus help build our State and Country. The future holds bright promise for our land, and as 4-H club members you have a vital share of this future."

Plans for observing 4-H Week are being perfected in the counties and will include special recognition for 4-H alumni.

Range Hints For Winter Season

COLLEGE STATION — Range fires during this season not only destroy needed forage but create wind and water erosion hazards. Extension Range Specialists G. O. Hoffman and B. J. Ragsdale point out that most range vegetation is now dormant and the several hard freezes have created conditions favorable for fires.

Widespread fires, warn the specialists, would largely destroy the range improvements made as a result of the two years of good rainfall. Fire would remove all dry plant material and organic matter from the soil surface and leave it bare and unprotected. A real soil erosion hazard would be created and runoff from the winter moisture could be excessive.

Too, point out Hoffman and Ragsdale, there would be no cover to combat spring weed growth. They suggest that steps be taken now to prevent range fires. Fire guards which expose the bare soil are suggested. They may be made by plowing, discing or with a blade. The guards should be wide enough to prevent a fire from jumping them. Looking into the future, the specialists suggest that fire prevention and fire fighting plans be developed on a county basis.

During this season, dry range forage will not provide all of the needed minerals, protein and energy required for livestock to maintain adequate flesh. Supplementary feeding is suggested. Mother animals will also need supplement feeding if they are to provide adequate supplies of milk for their offspring. Supplementary feeding, say the specialists, will insure efficient livestock production and range conservation.

Thirdly, the specialists say that winter treatment of fence row brush, bottomland hardwoods and mesquite by the individual tree treatment method will result in a high percentage kill and utilize labor during this slack period.

Local county agents can supply additional information on carrying out these practices, advise the specialists.

Fertilizer Practice Must Balance

LUBBOCK — Efficient use of fertilizers can be achieved only when fertilizer practices are in balance with other management practices, Alex Pope, associate agronomist at the Southwestern Great Plains Field Station at Bushland, said at Texas Tech Thursday.

He described fertilizer tests on wheat and sorghum for those attending the sixth annual Agricultural Chemicals Conference at Tech.

In trials conducted to determine the effect of different rates and ratios of fertilizers on irrigated wheat, the Bushland station agronomists found:

1. Wheat growing on the hardlands in that area responds to nitrogen fertilizers but made no response to phosphate fertilizers.

2. On the sandy soils, wheat responds to nitrogen but maximum response is obtained where a combination of nitrogen and phosphorus is applied. Wheat that is heavily grazed requires higher rates of nitrogen fertilizer if optimum grain yields are to be obtained.

"A limited number of fertilizer trials conducted on dryland wheat on hardland indicate no yield increase due to fertilizer applications. Only when adequate soil moisture existed did low rates of nitrogen and phosphorus result in increased yields on sandy land," Pope said.

Soil fertility studies carried out on irrigated grain sorghum had these results:

1. Irrigated sorghum on hardlands responded to addition of nitrogen fertilizer but required both nitrogen and phosphate fertilizers on sandy land for optimum yield.

2. An adequate supply of soil moisture particularly during the critical stages of growth is necessary for efficient fertilizer use. Moisture stress is responsible for much of the lodging in sorghum.

Results of fertilizer tests on dryland sorghum were similar to those obtained on dryland wheat, he said.

Same Money Can Raise Top Crop

LUBBOCK — It takes about the same amount of money to raise a top crop as to raise an average one according to date presented by B. L. Mitchelson and R. L. Balser of Spencer Chemical Co., Kansas City, Mo., at the sixth annual Agricultural Chemicals Conference at Texas Tech.

Efficiency in cotton production is the employment of effective operations to result in greater earnings, not greater yields said Mitchelson, who represents the chemical company at Tyler.

Balser emphasized that the wise use of fertilizer can mean more profit on fewer acres and fewer total bales produced — two important features in these times of allotments and surpluses. The profit comes from the better quality of cotton.

The principles of efficient cotton production have practical applications in growing other crops, the men pointed out.

"There is urgent need for more efficient production practices with our major crops," Mitchelson said.

Balser said that the 1954 agricultural census and a recent National Plant Food Institute survey on fertilizer uses show a lag of usage behind recommendations.

The Institute survey indicates that fear of loss because of climatic factors is one big reason why farmers do not use the optimum rates of fertilizer, Balser continued.

"It is important to visualize that the big gamble involved in crop production is taken when the decision is made to grow the crop," he explained. "The use of an efficiency improving tool like fertilizer can actually protect one's investment in 'fixed costs' plus raise his profit potential."

Church Mission May Mean Many Things To Baptists

DALLAS (AP) — What is a church mission?

To the Texas Baptists, now in a vigorous attempt to keep up with the state's exploding population, it means many things.

It is a downtown place in Fort Worth where skid row winos stumble each night for a square mean, a place to sleep and a New Testament.

Or a minister preaching on a street corner or in a jail.

Or it is a half million dollar structure in Houston and a quarter of a million dollar edifices in Lubbock and Amarillo.

The Fort Worth, Houston, Lubbock, and Amarillo missions are a small part of what state Baptist headquarters spokesmen here call the "most extensive church expansion program ever undertaken in Texas by any church group."

The program calls for the establishment of 1,200 new churches and 2,400 new missions by 1964—a staggering total of 14 new churches or missions each week.

Dr. Arthur Rutledge, state director of the expansion program, is worried that even this will not be sufficient.

He has figures indicating Texas will have 1,300,000 additional population by 1964 added to its present estimated 9 million.

And already, says Dr. Rutledge, "three and a half million Texans are not affiliated with any religious faity."

The missions, as defined by the Baptist, can include many things. It can be a street corner services—provided they are held regularly. Or it can be regular, permanent services in jails, hospitals, homes for the elderly, and many other places.

The Fort Worth mission is one type. About 30 down-and-out characters receive care each night in the new mission. Their principal benefactor is Fort Worth oilman William Fleming, who recently gave $50,000 to the Tarrant Baptist Assn. for expansion. The mission is sponsored by the Connell Baptist Church of Fort Worth and staffed mainly by Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary students.

"By 1964," says Dr. Rutledge, "nearly every growing community in the state will have a new Baptist mission or church."

His estimate of what the program will accomplish:

The new churches will record more than 20,000 baptisms a year within five years after the campaign ends. New church members will contribute more than 11 million dollars annually, of which more than a million will go to missions. Sunday schools will add 200,000 members.

Texas Baptists will have invested 54 million dollars in new buildings by 1964, said a denominational church building expert. Average cost for a first-unit church is $45,000.

"Some new missions, however cost as much as a half million dollars," says J. W. Caldwell, church building consultant for Texas Baptists.

"A new Willow Meadows Chapel in Houston, sponsored by the South Main Baptist Church, will cost about that much. Two other missions in Lubbock and Amarillo are being built at a cost of about $250,000 each," said Caldwell.

The Texas campaign is part of the Southern Baptist program for 30,000 new churches by 1964.

The 1964 goal was selected because it marks the 150th anniversary of organized Baptist work on the continent.

To locate areas where new churches and missions are needed, nearly every community and hamlet in the state will be surveyed, Baptist leaders say.

"The 30,000 movement is the brainchild of Dr. C. C. Warren, former president of the Southern Baptist Convention. He issued the challenge for 30,000 new churches at the 1956 Southern Baptist Convention meeting in Kansas City. He was named chairman and now directs the entire convention effort from offices in Richmond, Va.

Japanese Church In 100th Year

By KAY TATEISHI

TOKYO (AP) — The Protestant church in Japan celebrates its 100th anniversary this year, noting with pride its many achievements in a major non-Christian country.

There are, by government count, 332,135 Japanese Protestants in 4,312 churches out of a total population of 90 million. But there are those who feel that the cold statistics are misleading.

The Rev. Kaname Tsukahara, secretary of the National Christian Council of Japan, is one who feels they do not adequately reflect what he terms "the true following and real strength of the Japanese Protestant church."

"It is extremely important to remember," he says, "that Protestantism has had a tremendous influence on the Japanese—particularly in the cultural, educational and social welfare fields and in their daily lives."

He cites as an example the fact that some 20 members of Japan's 466-member lower house of Parliament are Protestants.

Protestantism came to Japan with a handful of clergymen in 1859 when the Christian religion was banned as dangerous to the state. The ban finally was lifted in 1873.

In the past century, Protestants list these major contributions to Japanese life:

Founding of 228,373 schools, including 4 universities and 23 colleges and Japan's first girls' school.

Organizing and building 23,028 YMCA and 12,093 YWCA groups, 2 hospitals, 11 medical clinics, 18 social settlements, 3 leprosariums, 3 homes for the aged, 12 orphanages and 40 miscellaneous establishments.

Popularization of the Bible, which is Japan's top postwar best seller.

Publication of the first, Japanese-English and English-Japanese dictionary, and transliteration of the Japanese language into the Roman alphabet.

The 100th anniversary program will be observed for a week beginning Nov. 1. It will include memorial services, rallies, lectures and recitals of Christian music.

FLOOD WATERS BREAK THROUGH—The flood wall protecting South Peru, Ind., from the icy waters of the Wabash River is unable to withstand the pressure. Ice and water pour through one of the several breaks in the wall to force thousands to flee their homes. Texas Resolution Reaches U. S. Senate

WASHINGTON (AP)—A resolution by the Texas Legislature urging no increase in federal gasoline taxes reached the Senate yesterday. Sen. Lyndon Johnson (D-Tex) delivered the resolution and at the same time introduced two bills.

One of his measures would require the Federal Government to pay training expenses of a National Guard unit if it is mobilized for emergency duty.

Johnson's other bill, matching one offered in the House by Rep. Joe M. Kilgore (D-Tex), would authorize rehabilitation of the La Feria division of the Lower Rio Grande Reclamation Project in Texas' Cameron County.

Agency Gives Head Lice Fancy Name

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — The New Mexico Department of Public Health, an agency which loves to use six-syllable words, told today of a child who twice became infected with head lice.

The department referred to this as an infestation of pediculosis.

It said: "Pediculosis is identified among communicable diseases as an infestation with lice. The synonym is lousiness. The handbook on communicable disease control points out that any person may become lousy under suitable conditions of exposure. But it doesn't say anything about dolls."

Dr. John C. Mitchell, district health officer, telling of the child who twice became infected, told of the family's unsuccessful efforts to find the source.

Finally, the mother discovered something suspicious in the hair of a couple of dolls which had been purchased around Christmas time, dolls advertised to have "real human hair."

Then the dolls' heads were cut open, they were found to be full of lice.

The case was referred to the State Health Department for consultation as to appropriate preventive measures in the future.
