Ukraine to join

MOSCOW — The resource-rich Ukraine reversed its go-it-alone strategy Monday and agreed to join a new economic union that Mikhail S. Gorbachev has hoped would replace the old centrally run system. The announcement was a breakthrough in the Soviet president's efforts to bring all 12 republics into the new economic union. The action came after Gorbachev convened a closed-door meeting of the governing State Council with a warning that "we have approached an abyss."/8A

Smith's defense

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. — William Kennedy Smith has never denied having sex with the woman who accused him of rape. On Monday, his lawyers went on record with an assertion that she was a willing participant. The defense asserted in papers filed late Monday that Smith and the 30-year-old Jupiter, Fla., woman quarreled after having sex and she took items from the Kennedy clan's posh seaside estate in an act of revenge./3A

Get even, not mad

ORLANDO, Fla. — Motorists tired of the loud music and maniacal lane changes of teen-age drivers can now get even. Bumper stickers from the Central Florida Safety Council ask: "Is this teen driving safely? 1-800-421-8355." Callers can have offenses such as drinking and tire-squealing reported to the drivers' parents. "Teens will drive more safely if they know their driving is being monitored," said a mental health counselor for the council.

Hill wins praise

NEW YORK — Anita Hill, whose allegations of sexual harassment nearly derailed Clarence Thomas' nomination to the U.S. Supreme Court, was among 10 women Glamour Magazine praised Monday as "1991's bright spots." The magazine said it chose women who were "beacons of integrity, humor, guts and grace in an often graceless and cold-blooded world." Hill, a University of Oklahoma law professor, was named "for sacrificing her privacy to speak out for women."

House soundly rejects banking overhaul plan

WASHINGTON (NYT) — Acceding to the White House and the nation's largest banks, the House of Representatives on Monday overwhelmingly rejected legislation to overhaul the nation's banking laws.

The measure, which was rejected on a 324-89 vote, would have made it more difficult than the Bush administration wanted for banks to expand into the securities and insurance businesses.

Treasury Secretary Nicholas F. Brady said after the vote that the action "indicates that the House will not replenish the Bank Insurance Fund without true, comprehensive reform."

The House, he said, "must now craft new comprehensive legislation to address the real problems of the banking system."

The defeat came after intense lobbying by senior administration officials, including Brady, who combined forces with representatives of the nation's largest financial institutions, including Ameri-

Voters cast fate of state lottery plan

■ Last-minute polls favorable to game; opponents won't concede.

ELECTION '91

Associated Press

AUSTIN — Texans were ready to vote Tuesday on the fate of a state lottery and 12 other constitutional amendments. Lottery backers said last-minute opinion polls indicated they would hit a winning number.

"It's looking good," said Lyda Creus of the Lone Star Lottery Committee. "All the latest polls . . . show a very favorable outlook for us and the people of Texas."

Lottery opponents weren't ready to concede. Anti-gambling groups, religious leaders and others have been busy on talk shows, in interviews and from church pulpits urging Texans to vote against the numbers game.

"I am not particularly perturbed by the polls. The polls are always dependent on who is polled and who is going to vote," said Weston Ware of the Texas Baptist Christian Life Commission.

The Legislature, which rejected the idea for years, this summer put the lottery question on the ballot after facing its third billion-dollar budget shortfall since the mid-1980s.

Comptroller John Sharp estimates that a Texas lottery would bring in $462 million the first year and $1 billion or more in subsequent two-year state budget cycles.

If approved today, instant games would begin by July 1, 1992, and the computerized "lotto" games that have offered million-dollar prizes in other states

Arctic blast plunges mercury to record lows in basin, state

Associated Press

Record lows were set at several locations around the state as the cold weather continued despite predictions for a warming trend.

Records fell during the pre-dawn hours at Fort Worth, Midland, San Antonio and Amarillo. Temperatures dipped to below freezing as far south as San Antonio and Houston.

At Fort Worth, the mercury dropped to 26, breaking the previous low for Nov. 4 set in 1950. When the mercury dipped to 21 at Midland, it broke a record of 22 set in 1936. In San Antonio, the previous low of 31 set in 1967, 1980 and 1983 was broken when the temperature dropped 30. At Amarillo, it was 22, breaking a record of 24 set in 1936.

Forecasts called for higher temperatures around the state today. It will be partly cloudy over the state.

Renovation is a 'wrap' for teachers, students

Teachers at Washington Elementary School no longer live in dread of freezing temperatures, sandstorms or other typical fluctuations of West Texas weather.

In the past, teachers at the school spent valuable class time bundling up their little charges to protect them from the elements as they walked to the lunchroom, restroom, office, or another classroom.

The warm outer garments were needed on chilly days since each classroom door opened directly onto the ele-

Foray toward peace brings mixed feelings

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Arabs and Israelis went home Monday with mixed feelings of frustration and anticipation after an intense foray into the realm of peace. Israel and Syria were mired in recriminations, but promised to meet again.

Few concrete achievements resulted from last week's three-day Middle East conference and the three sets of direct Israeli-Arab talks that ended early Monday with a bitter Israeli-Syrian session.

But the talks smashed a 43-year taboo on direct Israeli-Arab talks, setting in motion a process of face-to-face negotiations to resolve one of the most intractable regional conflicts in the world.

The United States and Soviet Union sponsored the talks, and President Bush's assessment was: "We have a

Women split sharply in debate about breast implants

By Jane Gross

N.Y. Times News Service

Darcy Sixt lost a breast to cancer, replaced it with a silicone implant and has not had a moment's regret. The reconstructive surgery allowed her to throw away a prosthesis that chafed her skin and floated out of her bathing suit. And once she felt "normal," she felt less cheated by her illness.

Kali Korn also had implants, to enlarge small breasts, because she wanted to look "sexy." Now Ms. Korn's hands are clawed, her skin is stretched as tight as plastic wrap and she cannot dress without help — all symptoms that her doctor says are caused by the implants.

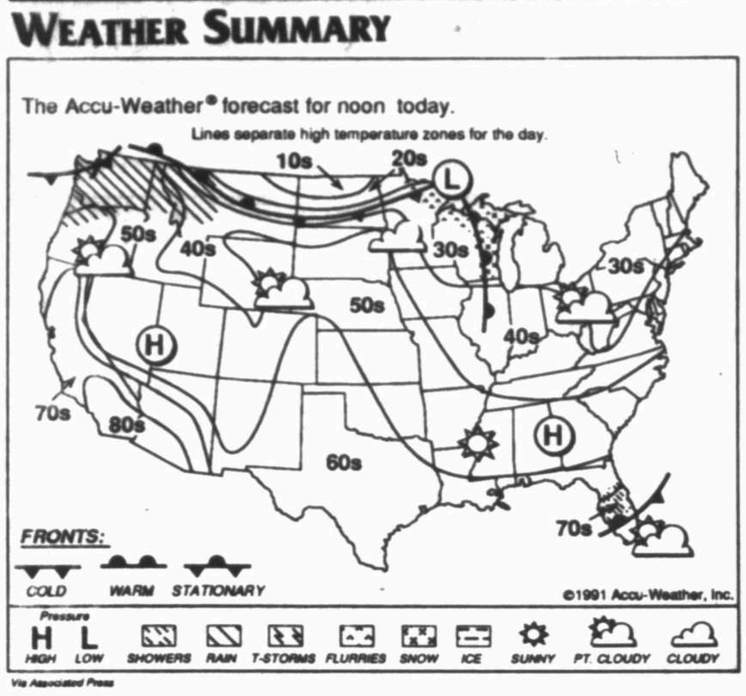

Jackie Applebaum considered implants after she had a double mastectomy two months ago. She read everything she could get her hands on, talked to women who were happy with their implants and those who were not and interviewed doctors across the nation, many of whom urged implants as simple and safe. But Ms. Applebaum opted for complicated, costly surgery using her own tissue to reconstruct her breasts.

These three women — one grateful, one angry and one confused — represent the various voices now raised in debate as the federal government considers a moratorium, if not an outright ban, of silicone-filled implants, by far the most popular variety.

Advocates of implants as well as their critics have in recent weeks swamped the Food and Drug Administration and Congress with letters and telephone calls

WEATHER SUMMARY

BLAST: Cold front sets record lows across state

(From 1A)

Lows will be in the 20s in the Panhandle and in the 30s over the rest of West Texas, the 20s and 30s in North Texas and in the 20s in the Hill Country and in the 30s and 40s elsewhere in South Texas.

Highs today will be in the 50s in West Texas and North Texas and in the 60s in South Texas.

The National Weather Service has reassured Brownsville residents that they weren't seeing things Sunday when snowflakes drifted from the sky.

"It's an unusual thing," Brownsville meteorologist Hector Guerrero said. "It was only for a few minutes. ... It was kind of fun."

The South Texas city had not seen a trace of snow since 1976 — or a measurable snowfall since 1895. But a blast of arctic air shattered record-low temperatures across the state Sunday and dusted the Panhandle with up to 2 inches of snow.

Expect sunny skies, mid-60s

Staff Report

Today's forecast calls for sunny skies with a high in the mid-60s and south to southwest winds at 10 to 15 mph. Tonight should be clear with a low in the mid-30s, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Wednesday should be clear with a high near 70.

After a overnight low of 32, Monday's high was 55 compared with the record high for that date of 89 set in 1988. The record low is 27 set in 1936.

NATION

Temperatures fell to record lows Monday from the northern Plains and Midwest to the Gulf of Mexico, and locally heavy snow was scattered around the Great Lakes.

Low temperature records were broken or tied at about 100 cities in Alabama, Arkansas, Colorado, Florida, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Michigan, Minnesota, Misssissippi, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, West Virginia, Wisconsin, and Wyoming.

Monday's low for the Lower 48 states was a record 13 below zero at Alamosa, Colo.

Temperatures around the nation at 2 p.m. CST ranged from 11 at Roseau, Minn., to 96 at El Cajon, Calif.

The low of minus 9 at Norfolk, Neb., was 21 degrees lower than the previous record for the date of 12 degrees set in 1951.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

ELECTION: Voters to decide fate of lottery, more would start by Jan. 1, 1993, said Andy Welch, spokesman for the comptroller.

(From 1A)

More than 30 states run lotteries. Texas is the largest without the game, and most opinion polls have shown about two-thirds of Texans favoring lottery.

A Texas Poll published Sunday echoed those findings. It found 69.7 percent of the 1,004 survey participants in favor statewide during October.

A key factor in today's voting could be turnout.

Secretary of State John Hannah has projected turnout of "over 20 percent" statewide, but it could run higher in Houston and Dallas. The state's two largest cities are holding mayoral elections as well.

According to the secretary of state's office, turnout for no-excuses absentee voting in the 10 largest counties was only 3.49 percent. A total of 144,896 of the 4.15 million registered voters in the 10 big counties cast ballots early, said Tom Harrison, head of the office's elections division.

While lottery received the most pre-balloting attention, another dozen issues were being decided.

Proposition 4 would authorize $1.1 billion in bond sales for building more prisons, mental health and youth corrections facilities.

If approved, much of the money would build another 25,000 prison beds — to bring Texas prison capacity to near 90,000. Of the new beds, 12,000 would be for treatment of drug and alcohol abuse.

Proposition 13 would sell $300 million in bonds to make more loans to Texas college students. Voters narrowly rejected the same proposal on Aug. 10, but higher education officials said the self-supporting loan program would run dry if the new bonds weren't ratified.

Proposition 12 would make another $150 million from a 1989 bond sale available for loans and grants to colonias. An estimated 200,000 Texans live in such substandard residential communities without adequate sewer and water service.

Proposition 6 would place the new Texas Ethics Commission into the constitution and give it powers to set daily expense payments for members of the Legislature and to recommend salary increases for lawmakers to voters.

Legislative supporters said the proposal would give politicians guidelines to follow and require accountability. But several groups opposed Proposition 6, saying the new state ethics law empowers an ethics commission anyway; commission members would be recommended or chosen by the Legislature; and that the panel often would operate in secret.

Polling places listed for today's election

Staff Report

Midland voters will head to the polls today to help decide the fate of 13 propositions, including a state lottery.

Elections administrator Bettye F. Calvert said, "I hope to get about 30 percent of the registered voters. But I doubt it. We may do good to get 20 percent. All of the interest we expected from this lottery thing didn't come forth. We just fell way short of what we expected."

She said 3,517 residents voted absentee.

In addition to the 13 propositions on today's ballot, Midland County residents — not including those within the Midland city limits — who reside south of Interstate 20 will be voting on whether to join the Permian Basin Underground Water Conservation District.

Following are the polling places for today's election. Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

RENOVATION: Rededication is set for 7 p.m.

(From 1A)

ments. But now, after an almost $1.5 million renovation, the school boasts enclosed walkways, and classroom doors open onto a comfortable hallway.

Several windows allow natural light to flow in, keeping the hallways well-lit and bright.

The entire building, built in 1953, was completely gutted and renovated last summer.

Teachers at Washington used to joke that the building must have been designed by an architect from a warm-weather state like California.

"Actually, the building was a good design for its time," said Jerry Riggen, architect for Midland Independent School District.

"It was designed for maximum air flow — when there was no air conditioning," Riggen said. "That was a standard design 40 years ago. For a building that had only heating, it was a pretty good little design."

In fact, Riggen said Washington, at 1800 E. Wall St., was built sturdily, a fact that played a part in the school board's decision to renovate, rather than build from the ground up.

"It is a very sound building," Riggen said. "One of my first jobs in the district was to evaluate each structure. Washington was sound enough to renovate. Renovation cost half the amount of new construction."

Riggen said the facility had aged and materials were falling apart.

"We replaced the lighting, ceiling, windows, chalkboards, the kitchen, heating and air conditioning system, the millwork (to provide adequate storage for teachers) and put on a fresh coat of paint," he said.

The library essentially doubled in size, according to Washington Principal Melva Cardenas.

"The library used to be in one classroom," Ms. Cardenas said. "The wall was broken down between two classrooms and it was expanded to both rooms."

The principal said now there are modest offices for counselors and a diagnostician, workspace with equipment and a small conference room.

"Everything is brand, spanking new," she said Monday, as she moved potted plants from one area to another.

While the aesthetic improvements — bright white bricks, slate blue lockers, muted gray carpeting — are the most noticeable, other improvements not immediately evident may be the most important.

"We used to have 30 or 40 doors opening to the outside, now there are about six main doors which provide for a more secure environment," Riggen said. "Another benefit is what I call 'education by association.' The enclosed walkways provide a space for students to exhibit their artwork for other students to see.

"And then there was the teaching time lost when teachers had to wrap their students for cold weather."

Several Washington teachers said spending the day in the warm building was "a wonderful improvement."

Riggen said he was pleased to hear the building was comfortable.

"I think the contractor, J.W. Cooper, did a fine job," he said. "Education has changed and it was time to change the education environment."

There will be a rededication ceremony for Booker T. Washington Elementary School at 7 p.m. tonight at the school, 1800 E. Wall St. The public is invited to attend.

DEBATE: FDA panel to issue recommendation and await with great concern a recommendation next week from an FDA advisory panel.

(From 1A)

An estimated two million American women have breast implants, 150,000 each year, some of them after cancer surgery and the vast majority to enlarge small breasts.

Ms. Sixt, 39, is a paid spokeswoman for the Dow Corning Corp., the nation's largest manufacturer of implants, a job she jumped at in order to tell others how much the implant meant to her after her cancer.

"I lost my hair, I lost my ability to have children and I still fear I'll lose my life," said Ms. Sixt, a computer specialist in Los Altos, Calif. "The implant is the one positive thing that has happened to me."

Ms. Korn, 41, is forced to spend most of her time in bed in her tiny apartment high in the Laurel Canyon section of Los Angeles because of the symptoms of scleroderma, an auto-immune disease of the connective tissue.

She said there has been a slight improvement since the recent removal of her implants, which were found to have ruptured and spread the silicon gel throughout her body.

"I'm angry that I was told 'Enjoy them,' rather than being told that somewhere down the line they might wreck my life," said Ms. Korn, who used to work as a costume stylist. "And I'm angry at myself for thinking implants would change my life and there wouldn't be a price."

Ms. Applebaum, 50, runs a marketing business in Los Angeles, and she tackled cancer like she would any new project — with energetic research and skepticism. "People said, 'Jackie, just have the implants, it would be so simple,'" she said. "But simple does not necessarily mean best."

Regardless of where women stand in the debate, they seem to share certain feelings about their breasts and the suffering they willingly endure in pursuit of some idea of perfection.

"We've had a lifetime of insidious indoctrination," said Sybil Goldrich, a 52-year-old Beverly Hills woman who had five operations to rebuild her breasts after a double mastectomy and has since organized a support and advocacy group.

OVERHAUL: House defeats banking measure can Express, Citicorp and J.P. Morgan. An enormous grass-roots campaign against the legislation has also been waged by the American Bankers Association, whose members hold more than 90 percent of the industry's assets.

(From 1A)

"Congress wisely put this version of the banking bill out of its misery today," the bankers association said of the House action.

The defeated measure, the association said, was "laden with massive restrictions on banks' ability to diversify their earnings" and "threatened to force banks to take a giant step backward."

Voting for the measure were 83 Democrats and six Republicans, while 170 Democrats, 153 Republicans and the House's one Independent, Rep. Bernard Sanders of Vermont, voted against it.

Earlier Monday, as the House continued its debate on the measure, Brady met with about a dozen Democrats, many of them members of the House Banking Committee. they have been unhappy since their chairman, Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez of Texas, agreed with the chairman of the Energy and Commerce Committee, Rep. John D. Dingell of Michigan, to call for restraints on bank expansion that were tougher than the Banking Committee had originally voted.

After meeting with the Treasury secretary, the Banking Committee Democrats marshaled an opposition flank to their own leadership, which was working hard to find supporters for the legislation.

The Bush administration proposed a comprehensive banking bill in February and Congress began considering it this summer as it became apparent that the insurance fund that protects bank deposits is likely to be out of money next year. The fund, which insures more than $2 trillion in deposits, has been battered by the increasing number of large and small bank failures over the last few years.

The insurance fund's plight has put intense political pressure on the lawmakers to complete banking legislation before they go into recess in the next few weeks.

After Monday night's vote, lawmakers in the House said that the most likely outcome now would be legislation that refinances the insurance fund, requires regulators to act more promply to close down ailing institutions but leaves many other banking issues unaddressed.

The Senate may begin deliberation on its own version of the banking legislation as early as Wednesday.

FORAY: Peace talk delegates go home with mixed feelings long way to go and interruptions will probably occur, but hopes are bright."

The brightest are for negotiations between Israel and the 1.7 million Palestinians living under its military rule in the West Bank and Gaza Strip. The dimmest are for a thaw between Israel and Syria, the region's strongest military powers, and most bitter foes.

"I would like to express our regret for leaving this city without having tangible results," said Syrian Foreign Minister Farouk al-Sharaa.

In a reminder of how relentless the conflict is, hard-line Israelis inaugurated a new Jewish settlement in the Golan Heights just hours after the talks ended. Syria's main demand is for the return of the Golan Heights, captured by Israel in the 1967 Mideast war.

There were also reports that Israeli troops shelled the positions of radical Muslim guerrillas in Lebanon.

In the Iranian capital of Tehran, Shiite Muslim demonstrators burned American and Israeli flags and an effigy of Uncle Sam outside the former U.S. Embassy compound to mark its takeover 13 years ago by Iranian radicals.

The late-night talks in Madrid were the first-ever direct discussion between Israel and Syria and they lasted five hours, into the early hours on Monday. But the enemies failed to move even an inch from their positions, or even shake hands. Even coffee breaks were taken in separate rooms.

Syria refused an Israeli request to establish direct contacts to arrange the site for the next round of talks, scheduled later this month.

Nonetheless, both agreed to meet again — if the United States comes up with an acceptable location. Officials on both sides said Washington or other sites in North America were possible.

An Israeli spokesman said Monday that Israel would still prefer that the talks be held alternately in Israel and Syria, or along their border. But Syria remained just as adamantly in favor of a neutral site and accused Israel of being intransigent.

According to both sides, it was a dialogue of the deaf.

Israel's delegates "talked about everything except the land that the Israelis occupied and have been occupying for the last 24 years. That is the Golan Heights," al-Sharaa said.

The Israelis countered that Syria's demand for Israeli concessions dominated the meeting. "If they keep up their ... demands, there will not be any progress," said Israeli spokesman Yossi Olmert.

Syria stuck to its long-held position that Israel must give up lands captured in 1967 from the Syrians, the Jordanians and the Egyptians, before anything else was discussed.

Israel repeatedly insisted territorial concessions were unrelated to its goal — a peace treaty with Syria.

Syria reiterated its refusal to attend regional talks that are to begin in about three weeks among the countries of the region to debate issues such as arms control and water resources.

Jordan, clearly pleased with its part in the talks, said it would attend the regional discussions.

During nearly five hours of talks on Sunday, Israel and a joint Jordanian-Palestinian delegation agreed on a two-track approach — Israel will negotiate separately with the Jordanians and the Palestinians.

The Nation

■ Elderly get help with buying 'Medigap'

WASHINGTON — State insurance commissioners announced Monday that people reaching the age of 65 would now be able to buy private health insurance to fill the gaps in Medicare without having to worry about being rejected because of illness, injury or existing medical problems.

The guarantee, which may lead to higher private insurance premiums, is one of several new consumer protections for elderly people buying health insurance to supplement Medicare. The relaxed eligibility standards generally do not apply to people who turned 65 before May 1991, although there are some exceptions.

■ Senate opens debate on Gates nomination

WASHINGTON — The Senate opened debate Monday on the nomination of Robert M. Gates to be director of Central Intelligence, as the endorsement of two leading Democrats helped assure him of a comfortable margin of approval when the Senate votes on Tuesday.

Supporters of the 48-year-old nominee, who is the deputy national security adviser, made opening statements that praised him as a man of competence, remorse and experience who had learned from his mistakes and would ably reorganize the Central Intelligence Agency and its sister intelligence agencies.

Detractors dismissed Gates as an ambitious, unimaginative bureaucrat who would be beholden to the White House and the wrong person to lead the intelligence community in the post-Cold War era.

■ Witness: Noriega agreed to be 'godfather'

MIAMI — Manuel Noriega agreed to serve as "godfather" to the Colombian drug barons' top man in Panama, protecting all trafficking and money-laundering operations, a former close associate testified Monday.

The ousted Panamanian leader also paid off a partner who threatened to expose his drug and arms-smuggling in Central America, said Enrique "Kiki" Pretelt. The witness, a pilot and businessman, was Noriega's friend and partner in the early 1980s.

■ High court sets stage for race-jury ruling

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court set the stage on Monday for an important ruling on the use of race in jury selection.

The justices agreed to decide whether defendants in criminal cases should retain the freedom to use their peremptory challenges to eliminate prospective jurors on the basis of race.

Compiled from Reporter-Telegram wire services.

5 presidents dedicate Reagan library

SIMI VALLEY, Calif. (NYT) — In a convergence of modern American ideologies and politics, five U.S. presidents gathered Monday on the same platform for the first time in history.

They came to honor and praise the 40th president at the dedication of the Ronald Reagan Presidential Library under a searing autumn sun overlooking the Simi Valley, 50 miles northwest of Los Angeles.

And if there were any lingering animosity from the 22 momentous years in which they presided over the republic, little of it was evident in the billows of lofty patriotic oratory and mutual praise that arose from the bunting-draped dias in front of the new 153,000-square-foot $60 million Spanish-style library.

There was enough presidential timber to build a castle. All the living presidents came: Richard M. Nixon, driven from office in disgrace; Gerald R. Ford, the man who replaced him; Jimmy Carter, who turned Ford out of office; Ronald Reagan, who in turn, evicted Carter; and President Bush.

There were also six presidential wives, the five presidents being joined by Lady Bird Johnson, the widow of Lyndon B. Johnson; John Kennedy Jr. and Caroline Kennedy Schlossberg, the children of John F. Kennedy; and offspring of Frankiln D. Roosevelt.

It was, in the words of Lodwrick Cook, chairman of the Ronald Reagan Foundation, "the largest gathering of American presidents and presidential families ever assembled."

Only once before have there been more living presidents; in 1861 Presidents Lincoln, Van Buren, Tyler, Fillmore, Pierce and Buchanan were all alive.

The day belonged primarily to Reagan, 80, whose eight years in office are chronicled in the library, which was officially turned over to the National Archives at the ceremony attended by 600 reporters and photographers and 3,500 guests, mostly Republicans.

Smith attorneys provide new look at his defense

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — William Kennedy Smith has never denied having sex with the woman who accused him of rape. On Monday, his lawyers went on record with an assertion that she was a willing participant.

The defense asserted in papers filed late Monday that Smith and the 30-year-old Jupiter, Fla., woman quarreled after having sex and she took items from the Kennedy estate in an act of revenge.

"The defense will seek to show that (they) argued after having had consensual sex," attorneys wrote in a document hinting they also may cite revenge as the woman's motive for accusing him.

The briefs were filed after the third day of jury selection in Smith's rape trial. No panelists have been selected yet.

Smith's lawyers filed the briefs with motions to allow testimony regarding the woman's alleged past cocaine use and an episode several years ago in which she allegedly broke an auto antenna.

She "took property from the estate — not because she needed 'evidence' to prove that she had been raped — but as revenge," attorneys wrote. "The incident concerning the car antenna is relevant to show (her) true intent..."

The woman has said she and her friends took an urn, legal pad and photos from the estate to prove she had been there.

Rock hall inducts Hendrix, Clapton

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Rock and Roll Hall of Fame on Monday announced a 1992 class of inductees ranging from electric-guitar legend Jimi Hendrix to country music's Johnny Cash.

Others include the British rock group Yardbirds, which produced three of rock's best-known guitarists: Eric Clapton, Jeff Beck and Jimmy Page. Also being inducted are rhythm and blues performers Sam and Dave, Booker T. & the MGs and the Isley Brothers, and blues singer Bobby "Blue" Bland.

H & J Mobile Wash brings auto cleaning home (or office)

Sometimes there don't seem to be enough hours in a day to take care of all the noisome, yet necessary, jobs and errands that fall on very busy people. Car washing — whether it's done at home or at a car wash, is often one those jobs that seem to be put off, and off some more.

That's one of the reasons Hunter Isbell and Jay Stanaford got the idea for their new business — H & J Mobile Wash. For one thing, it represents convenience to their customers throughout the Midland-Odessa area.

This is the way it works: customers give them a call, make an appointment for a car wash, and H & J comes to them. At home, at work, at the customer's choice of location.

And, there are a lot of other reasons to call H & J besides convenience. For one thing, they use reverse osmosis water exclusively because it's free of the minerals that leave spots on the finish.

Their service includes interior vacuuming, exterior washing, cleaning all windows and mirrors and Armor All (by request). Also, they clean wheels and tires thoroughly. All is dried with soft terry cloth to prevent surface scratches.

Not a nook or cranny of a vehicle is ignored by H & J.

Customers get a thorough, professional job at their choice of location. For only $15 for most cars and trucks.

Anyone wanting their vehicle waxed need only spend $15 to $20 more. H & J uses a hard shell wax that helps prevent the sun's ultraviolet rays from harming the finish. With its teflon additive, it goes a long way to bringing back luster to faded surfaces. And also makes the wax job last longer.

H & J is also happy to do detailing. Their very professional detail jobs include the regular car wash, plus carpet shampoo and application of compound wax. Compound wax removes grime and oxidation from the surface of the vehicle. It can also remove light scratches from the finish.

But the detailing job is not done yet. H & J cleans seats — either vinyl or fabric. They also steam clean engines to remove oil and grease, which can prevent overheating. They then polish all chrome and aluminum and remove rust spots from wheels.

H & J also cleans motor homes, boats, airplanes and oil field equipment. Call for a free estimate.

Isbell and Stanaford have five years experience in the vehicle cleaning business. Their thoroughness and professionalism shows on vehicles all over the Midland-Odessa area.

Call them at 520-8617. If they're not there and you need to reach them quickly, try their mobile line — 559-4298.

Imperial Flag & Banner sails forth into year-long celebration

The Columbus quicentenary celebration continues. It began last Columbus Day and will culminate with parades, parties and all kinds of festivities in October of 1992. The Annin Flag company developed a flag especially for enthusiastic celebrants of the discovery of the "New World."

And it can be found at Imperial Flag & Banner in both desk and 3-foot by 5-foot sizes. It's very attractive, with a royal blue background with white legend.

Imperial Flag & Banner also announced they are currently doing custom embroidery and applique for clubs, organizations, businesses and individuals. And they produce quickly, too. For example, collared and un-collared T-shirts can be delivered, complete with embroidery, within 3 weeks of ordering.

This service isn't just limited to T-shirts, though. Caps, towels and anything embroiderable is done right on the premises at Imperial Flag & Banner. Prices are excellent, call for an estimate.

Imperial Flag & Banner has long been know for its superior selection of quality-made flags and flag accessories. Including Halyard rope in a variety of sizes, tassels, all sizes of poles. Also brackets, bases, snaps, balls and eagles (for outdoor poles). Then there are stars, crosses and other religious symbols for indoor poles.

History buffs will enjoy United States flags from the past, Texas flags, Confederate flags (up to 5-feet by 8-feet in stock) and others. And Imperial Flag & Banner has still more patriotic United States flag items — license plate covers, patches, decals, stickers, lapel pins, balloons, belt buckles and buttons.

Football fans will love the large selection of NFL flags and banners.

Those with large indoor flags for church or school auditoriums can look to Imperial Flag & Banner for a custom base. Impressive wooden bases are also available to display a complete set of miniature United nations flags, a United States flag set or a set of flags representing the Organization of American States.

Columbus quicentary celebration flags are now available at Imperial Flag & Banner. Rich royal blue with white legend, they come in desk or 3-foot by 5-foot sizes.

Besides flags from around the world and patriotic items, Imperial Flag & Banner has earned a reputation for carrying a large selection of 3-foot by 5-foot and 3-foot by 10-foot pre-manufactured message banners for stores and businesses. They range in price from $29 to $48.

To promote special events such as garage sales and grand openings, Imperial Flag & Banner has attention-getting pennants in a variety of colors, including metallic and safety-glo. These come in lengths of 100, 60 and 30 feet. Sports teams and apartment complexes often find themselves in need of a flag. Imperial Flag & Banner stocks sturdy nylon 3-foot by 5-foot blank flags in just about any color imaginable.

Imperial Flag & Banner can manufacture custom flags and banners with company logos and elementary school names. Custom embroidery and applique is done on the premises. Professional-quality kites and windsocks are also in stock.

Quality and service are Imperial Flag & Banner trademarks. Permian Basin residents know to turn to owner George Leach for dependable service after the sale. After all, considering the severe wind conditions in West Texas, most any flag will eventually become torn or frayed. Imperial Flag & Banner can repair holes and tears, replace grommets and even flag poles and ropes.

Imperial Flag & Banner is located at 1613 S. Main St. in Midland. Hours are 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. Call 682-3562 for more information.

E.D. Jones reveals sound investment planning philosophy

There are many reasons why more and more Midlanders are choosing Van Pearcy of E.D. Jones & Company as their investment representative. The main one is his philosophy.

"My goal is to help people solve their financial problems through conservative investments," he said. "Edward D. Jones & Co.'s philosophy is that people want safety, quality and liquidity in their investments. My job is to to give my clients the honest service they deserve by following this conservative strategy."

He also keeps his clients constantly informed. By frequent personal visits, and by publishing a quality quarterly newsletter that he produces himself on his personal computer. It's called Conservative Investors — Building Financial Security. Here is an excerpt:

"This fall, I watched a young quarterback lead his team into battle, but early in the game he made some costly mistakes, lost confidence and was quickly replaced by a veteran. The next two quarters saw fewer mistakes, but still no points. Finally, with little time left, the team played catch-up. They threw wild desperation passes, easy interceptions and they fumbled. Mercifully, the final gun sounded, but the team had lost.

"The point is that the team played football like many folks invest. Some investors make early mistakes and lose confidence. Rather than learning from these mistakes, they play it safe and stop investing. The earning years turn into spending years. Then, late in life, they realize they have little more than a Social Security check to finance their retirement unless they play catch-up with a series of win-or-lose investments. When the retirement whistle blows, the game is lost.

"What is the solution? Kiplinger's Changing Times recently interviewed six individual investors who each had successful results. On average, they began investing 16 years ago with an initial investment of $13,383 that has grown to $297,000! According to them, successful investing doesn't call for secret formulas. It takes 'homework, thinking of the long-term and regularly feeding money into the pot.'

"Their philosophy is so simple that you keep waiting for more, but there is none. Although these investors differ in age, occupation, risk tolerance and a host of variables, they all share common investing characteristics and their philosophies are worth repeating.

■ Take a long-term approach investing. Buying more of a good security in an unfriendly market makes more sense than selling at a fire sale. The success of this philosophy is illustrated in the profits amde on an investment bought at 'inopportune' times.

■ Believe in your own research. Do your homework rather than jump at a phone-calling broker's suggestion or acting solely on a written report.

■ Make regular investments into your portfolio. This means not only dollar-cost averaging into securities and mutual funds, but also taking full advantage of buying your company stock and participating in retirement plans.

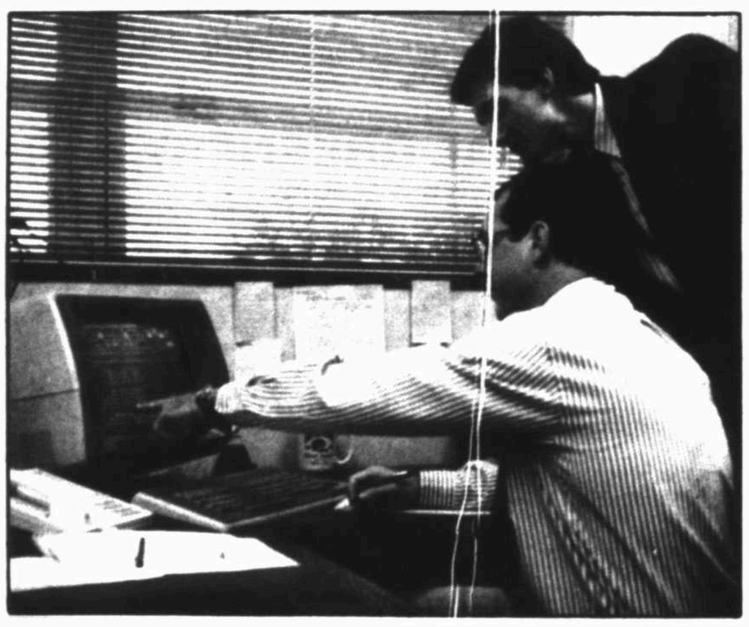

■ Learn from your mistakes and continue your investment program.

■ Seek diversification, especially the kind that mutual funds offer. This eliminates all-or-nothing panic investing just before retirement.

■ Finally, have fun. Investing can be very interesting, The more you learn and the more often you invest, the better you become.

"These six investors were selected not because of a storybook success, but rather to show that disciplined investment principles can benefit anyone. Just as in football, good planning wins games."

For information on solid, conservative investments, visit or call Van Pearcy at E.D. Jones & Co. The Midland office is located at 1509 West Wall St. (next to Buddy's Flowers), 683-1516. There is no charge for a consultation.

Van Pearcy of E.D. Jones & Co. is currently training two brokers who will ultimately locate in Temple and Amarillo. Pictured here, Pearcy is constructing a conservative retirement portfolio for one of his clients.

Ballot questions deserve action

Voters go to the polls today to determine the fate of 13 proposed amendments to the Texas Constitution and in rural Midland County, many voters will be asked whether they want to join the Permian Basin Underground Water Conservation District.

Topping the list of amendments is Proposition 11 which would create a state lottery. Although it has been supported as a way of not having to enact so large a tax increase to make up for the state's shortfall in revenue as a result of the new school financing measure, even supporters admit that the lottery would not make up all the needed revenue.

There's an even better reason, however, not to go along with those supporting the lottery: approving the lottery would merely give the state's leaders a false sense that they can go on spending more millions of dollars of taxpayers' money. Texans are concerned about taxation and the trend toward big government.

Those who are concerned should vote against the creation of state lottery and more government wastefulness.

Following is a review of the Reporter-Telegram positions on all the proposed amendments:

Proposition 1 — Cities that operate on "home-rule," but have dropped under 5,000 population would be permitted to amend their charters, FOR.

Proposition 2 — All the state's residents should not be required to contribute to projects of the Texas Turnpike Authority, AGAINST.

Proposition 3 — Investing state money in bonds and obligations of the United States is good, conservative policy. That practice should be continued, AGAINST.

Proposition 4 — This would authorize $1.1 billion in bonds for prisons and substance-abuse punishment facilities, FOR.

Proposition 5 — Businesses that deal in merchandise in transit could obtain a tax exemption, FOR.

Proposition 6 — Texas already has an ethics commission; this would merely give legislators a way of controlling their own salaries, AGAINST.

Proposition 7 — Texas voters should exercise extreme conservatism where state employees' pension funds are concerned, AGAINST.

Proposition 8 — Changing the method of approving state debt could be dangerous, AGAINST.

Proposition 9 — This would permit the issuance of patents for land that has been in dispute and would relieve an inequitable situation, FOR.

Proposition 10 — Twice in the past voters have rejected similar proposals on tax exemptions for water supply corporations, AGAINST.

Proposition 11 — A lottery won't help Texas legislators' spending problem, AGAINST.

Proposition 12 — There are better ways to handle the retail water and wastewater needs for the "colonias," AGAINST.

Proposition 13 — $300 million would be available for college loan money to students, FOR.

Voters in six rural voting precincts will be asked whether they want to be annexed into the Permian Basin Underground Water Conservation District. If they decide to be annexed into the district, which operates in Martin County and part of Howard County, those sections of Midland County will be subject to a tax of 2 cents per $100 assessed valuation and water wells in the portions of the county located in the district would be regulated by the water district.

Proponents say the district has prompted the Texas Railroad Commission to intensify its regulation of oilfield wells that may be polluting the groundwater. Opponents argue, however, that the district really is just another level of government bureaucracy that will add only costs to local taxpayers.

We encourage voters in these regions to vote to join the water district. The tax rate is minimal and district officials note it is the most that will ever be charged. By joining the district, water well owners will at least be able to control the operation of water wells at the local level. Local people are better able to control our natural resources than are bureaucrats in Austin.

LETTERS

Don't blame students for adults' mistakes

I would like to respond to a letter regarding the lack of manners by Lee High School band members, cheerleaders and football players during the Lee High/Chihuahua football game.

I do not feel the students should be blamed for this unfortunate incident. From my understanding, school officials arranged for this game. Whether there was a miscommunication or misunderstanding regarding the performance of the dancers the students should not have been held accountable and publicly humiliated.

Yes, we owe an apology to the dancers, but we owe the Lee High students an apology for using them as our scapegoat. The last time I looked adults run this school district and city. I feel this was an unfortunate incident and that we have learned from it so that it won't happen again. But don't blame the students.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Tuesday, Nov. 5, the 309th day of 1991. There are 56 days left in the year.

On this date:

In 1895, George B. Selden of Rochester, N.Y., received the first U.S. patent for an automobile.

In 1946, Massachusetts Democrat John F. Kennedy was elected to the U.S. house of Representatives.

Bear fades while politicians fumble

WASHINGTON — In 1902, President Theodore Roosevelt showed mercy to a Louisiana black bear captured by his hunting party — a gesture that inspired the Teddy Bear.

Anderson

George Bush has not been as accommodating.

The Louisiana black bear is now estimated to number less than 300, possibly as few as 70, but the "kinder, gentler" Bush administration is balking at putting the bear under the protection of the Endangered Species Act.

In a rerun of the spotted owl fiasco in the Pacific Northwest, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service is finding every excuse in the book to avoid federal protection for the bear. Scientists within the Fish and Wildlife Service think the bear deserves to be listed as "threatened." But their bosses answer to Interior Secretary Manuel Lujan, and he answers to an "environmental president" who doesn't know the definition of the term.

One Fish and Wildlife field biologist told us, "It's pressure from the timber industry, plain and simple."

At one time, the bear ranged over Louisiana, Texas, Mississippi and Arkansas. In 1900 there were an estimated 1,600 Louisiana black bears. The bears' habitat has been destroyed by development and logging. Louisiana outlawed bear hunting in 1989, but that has not stopped the poachers.

Fish and Wildlife first began to worry about the Louisiana black bear in 1982. But when nothing had been done by 1987, two Louisiana members of the Sierra Club started a petition to force Fish and Wildlife to make up its mind.

In June of 1990, Fish and Wildlife announced it was ready to list the bear as "threatened," and invited public comment. The deadline for the decision was June 21, 1991. But a lot can and did happen in a year.

The timber industry shifted into high gear and helped forn the Black Bear Conservation Committee, to work up a local alternative to the federal sanctions of the Endangered Species Act. The act allows a state to come up with its own means of protecting a threatened species. That appeals to the Bush administration, because, under the guise of local autonomy, any number of environmental problems can be ignored or blamed on someone else.

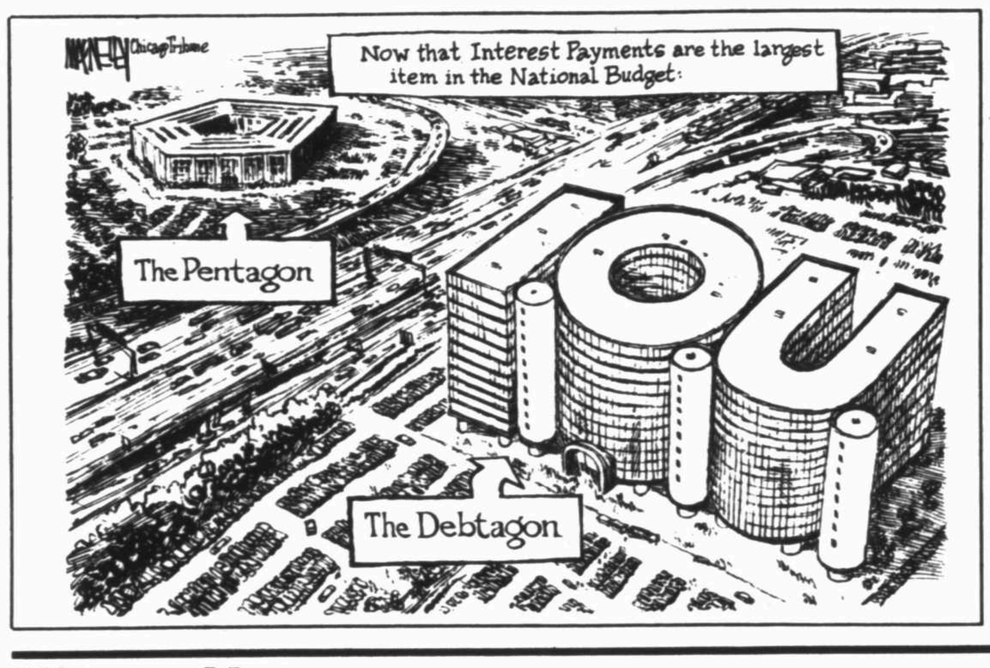

Fish and Wildlife let the June 21 deadline pass, giving the excuse that it wanted to do yet another scientific study on the bear, but the delay buys six months for the Black Bear Conservation Committee to work out local options for handling the problem.

On the surface, the committee sounds like a good idea — a coalition of private landowners, state agencies and timber industry and environmental groups. But Ron Nowak, a bear expert for Fish and Wildlife, told our reporter Nick Budnick that the committee was a "tool of lumber interests."

Murray Lloyd, the organizer of the committee, is both a member of the Sierra Club and the Louisiana Forestry Association. He told us that he met in July with staffers from the Office of Management and Budget and the White House's Council on Competitiveness chaired by Vice President Dan Quayle. OMB worries about the cost of environmentalism and the council worries about its effect on competitive industries, but neither is paid to worry about the bear.

Lloyd acknowledged that there were some on his committee who are using it to keep the bear off the "threatened" list, but he said the committee is earnest in its desire to protect the bear.

WILLIAM MURCHISON

Food stamps become constitutional right

The Agriculture Department disclosed the other day that a record 23.6 million Americans received food stamps in August; whereupon Sen. Pat Leahy, the Vermont Democrat, approached the pulpit for the kind of ideological sermon he delivers so well.

Sen. Leahy, with the steely-eyed righteousness he deployed against Clarence Thomas, said the figures show how bad the recession is and how inadequate the Bush administration's response has been.

Murchison

The recession is onerous all right, and the administration has been tardy in addressing it, but that's not quite what the food-stamp figures prove. The figures prove something about the mentality that half a century of ever-growing government charity has inculcated — among welfare recipients and donors alike. Whether on the giving or the receiving end, we think of welfare — which is what the food-stamp program amounts to — as part of the nature of things. It is there, it is ours, what's the problem? As with the cornfield baseball diamond in "Field of Dreams," the government builds it and they come. It could be argued that they would be fools not to come.

Food stamps, a program whose ancestry goes back to the New Deal, began in 1964, with just 424,000 participants. By 1970, 2 percent of the population received these certificates for food and other commodities. Today, 10 percent, including permanent resident aliens, are on food stamps.

Does that mean conditions in this country are five times as dreadful as in 1970? It means nothing of the sort. Jobless figures today are only a little worse than in the early '70s. What has changed is eligibility standards — and the way Americans have come to view welfare.

Actually, according to the New York Times, federal officials estimate that not one in 10, but one in six Americans could qualify for food stamps. It's as simple as falling off a kitchen chair. Families of four must have an income no larger than the federal poverty standard of $1,117 a month. This is not counting other government benefits the family may be receiving. You can own a car, but it has to be worth less than $4,500 — easy enough if it's five or six years old. An additional incentive is that there's no longer any charge for the stamps. Come and get 'em! the government cries. One looks around and asks: Why not?

Well, one "why not" used to be pride — the feeling that welfare, however necessary on occasion, is degrading and therefore to be fled at the earliest occasion. This perception, though still alive, is in rapid decline. A Texas welfare official observed last year that there is "definitely less of a stigma" to food stamps than in the past. The Times quotes one current food-stamp recipient thus: "I used to be ashamed, but not anymore. They (the stamps) really come in handy."

Yes, they do, but so would the $19.6 billion the program cost the federal government in fiscal 1991 (vs. $550 million in 1970). Just imagine the cost when the full complement of one-in-six signs up for food stamps. Let's hope the five non-recipients are taking vitamins. They've got a lot of pulling to do.

The food-stamp program is one of those social outrages we embrace in the beginning out of social zeal and, when they backfire, tolerate out of uneasy conscience. We don't want people to starve, do we?

This assumes that food stamps have something to do with preventing hunger, which they don't necessarily. A major reason the program has been around so long is that it nourishes farmers and grocers, not to mention high-profile politicians.

If we're going to feed the hungry, it would be better and more direct just to feed them at government soup kitchens. But food stamps by now are woven into the welfare tapestry — an entitlement, almost a constitutional right. How much longer can we go on this way? With the federal deficit nearing $300 billion, probably not much longer.

And that's just the economic side of things. The social side has to do with the likely consequences of turning millions of workers into government dependents — a suitable topic for Sen. Leahy's next political sermon.

CHARLEY REESE

Thought control threatens our freedoms

There's a totalitarian impulse loose in the land and we ought to coral it before it tramples liberty to death.

I'm talking about thought control or what some call the politically correct movement. What's totalitarian about it is that punishes people, not for what they do, but for what they think.

Reese

The difference between a free society and a totalitarian society is that in a free society you can be wrong. You can, in other words, dissent from whatever the current party line is and not be punished. You are held, in a free society, liable only for your actions which injure others.

In a totalitarian society it is not enough to control your actions. You must also control your thoughts. You must not think or speak whatever it is the ruling clique decides it is impermissible to think or speak. If you do, you get punished.

That's beginning to happen in the United States. Much has been written about the phenomenon on university campuses and I won't beat that horse any more. But it goes beyond the campus.

There's much ado about so-called hate crimes today. Congress has required the government to collect statistics on them. Some states have passed laws against them and the federal government occasionally hauls out old Reconstruction Era statutes to punish racially motivated crimes.

This is not a defense of racism or of crimes but a stark warning that we are allowing factions to push our governments dangerously close to policing thought.

A criminal act is a criminal act. If someone bashes you in the head with a baseball bat, your head doesn't hurt less because the basher wanted to rob you than it does if the basher hates you because of your race or ethnic background. A bash in the head is a bash in the head and it is this act of violence that government must punish, not whatever weird thought process produced it.

It is irrational, not to mention unfair to the robbery victim, to punish a racially motivated bash more harshly than a larceny-motivated bash. All so-called hate crimes are in fact ordinary crimes already punishable by law and so need no additional enforcement or penalty.

Now you may say, so what? Isn't it a good teaching tool to punish hate crimes more severely than the same crime committed for another reason? No, it isn't a good idea because I can tell you what is coming next: a plea from factions that government must punish people for speaking or writing in a way that "encourages" hate crimes.

In a sense that is the rationale being used on campuses to punish people for politically incorrect thoughts. With true totalitarian logic it is argued that mere words are somehow transformed into "acts" which somehow "assault" the victim. This gibberish has actually been spoken and written by university presidents.

Listen, pals, I've been called a lot of names in my life and not one has ever left a bruise on my psyche much less my body.

The issue here is individual liberty, just what this country is all about. If you want a free country, then you must be willing to allow people to be wrong — to be prejudiced, superstitious, foolish, even bigoted so long as these errors in thinking are not translated into actions which harm other people.

You combat errors in thinking the way Thomas Jefferson and other great defenders of liberty advocated — with reason and education and debate. But if you expect to remain a free society, you keep the government confined to punishing actions only and you must defend people's right to be wrong or hold unpopular beliefs.

This impetus toward totalitarianism is coming from organized factions, some of which may have good intentions but intentions are less important than consequences.

Unfree is unfree no matter how you get to that miserable state.

Anti-apartheid groups shut down economy, 19 die

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Millions of blacks went on strike Monday as anti-apartheid groups shut down large parts of the economy in a bid to force the white government to share power. At least 19 people were killed in strike violence.

The massive strike, which was to continue Tuesday, was officially called to protest a new tax. But it was widely seen as a power struggle between the government and black opposition groups.

The strike appeared to be one of the most politically effective actions taken recently by opposition groups, which have frequently been left on the defensive by President F.W. de Klerk's rapid reforms.

Skeleton staffs made up of mainly white workers kept many businesses operating at partial capacity, but the streets of some cities were deserted.

Johannesburg's sidewalks were clear of the hundreds of blacks who normally sell fruit and vegetables, and white supervisors unused to cash registers struggled to serve whites.

Essential services were not hit by the strike, and power stations, most transportation and other services ran normally.

Strike organizers claimed at least 3 million people were taking part in the action, but the figure could not be confirmed. The Congress of South African Trade Unions alone has 1.2 million members.

The African National Congress and the allied Congress of South African Trade Unions, the groups that called the strike, want a say in economic policy. Although de Klerk has scrapped apartheid laws, the opposition says little has changed.

"The organized working class has today and will tomorrow strike a body blow to apartheid," said Jay Naidoo, general-secretary of the trade union congress.

The government alleged that many blacks were intimidated into staying home, a charge denied by the groups. Opposition leaders threaten further action if the government does not accept their demands.

Business spokesmen said they had no nationwide figures, but that 50 percent to 80 percent of black workers did not show up at most major businesses.

Government officials estimated the strike will cost the economy about $800 million in lost production.

The strike is opposed by the ANC's main black rival, the Zulu-dominated Inkatha Freedom Party. Fighting between ANC and Inkatha supporters has claimed thousands of lives in recent years.

The walkout appeared most effective in ANC strongholds such as Johannesburg, Pretoria and the southern city of Port Elizabeth.

Johannesburg, the country's financial and industrial center, was largely deserted except for whites

Two Kuwaiti well fires burn

RAWDATEIN, Kuwait (AP) — Firefighters capped two gushing oil wells Monday and battled flames at the final stubborn pair of the 640 wells set ablaze by the Iraqis during their occupation of Kuwait.

They hoped to finish them off before Wednesday's planned ceremony marking the end of the firefighting effort.

The snuffing of the final fire will mark a surprisingly quick end to an environmental and industrial disaster. Iraqi forces damaged a total of 732 of Kuwait's 940 producing wells, most during their February retreat under allied bombardment after a seven-month occupation of Kuwait.

Smoke from the fires polluted the air, black rain was reported as far away as Bulgaria and Kuwait's desert remains marred by soot and oil lakes. Nevertheless, scientists say predictions of a global catastrophe have not come to pass.

The Kuwaitis estimated that the destruction cost their oil industry $43 billion, though officials said two weeks ago they expected the figure to be lower because of the rapid progress.

Kuwaiti oil officials at first thought it would take until March to extinguish and cap all the damaged wells.

But a rapid increase in the number of firefighting teams, greater availability of equipment, more plentiful water supplies and quickly gained experience speeded up the campaign.

Kuwait nears payoff of war debts

LONDON (AP) — Kuwait will complete repayment of its $22 billion Gulf War debt by the end of December, the Financial Times reported Monday.

Britain's leading business daily quoted Abdullah Al-Gabandi, managing director of the Kuwait Investment Authority, as saying in an interview that only negligible amounts of Kuwait's contribution to Operation Desert Storm remain to be paid. The investment authority oversees the country's foreign investments.

Kuwait, raised most of its contribution to the U.S.-led military campaign against Iraq from the disposal of liquid assets. These included government bonds and money from its bank deposits.

The paper reported that news Kuwait was close to paying the debt by disposing of assets had caused concern in some European markets where the emirate has substantial holdings.

These include a 14.6 percent stake in Daimler-Benz, the German auto and engine maker, 20 percent in Metallgesellschaft, the non-ferrous metals trading company, 25 percent in the German chemical giant Hoechst and 9 percent in British Petroleum.

The newspaper quoted al-Gabandi as denying rumors that Kuwait was considering issuing a convertible bond for its Daimler-Benz shares.

Police nab 'pirates'

VANCOUVER, British Columbia (AP) — Two party-goers dressed as pirates and armed with cap guns were surrounded by police toting the real thing as they cruised in a limousine.

Jule Stanton and his wife, Vivian, were on their way to a party Saturday night when a pedestrian saw Stanton with the toy pistol and called police.

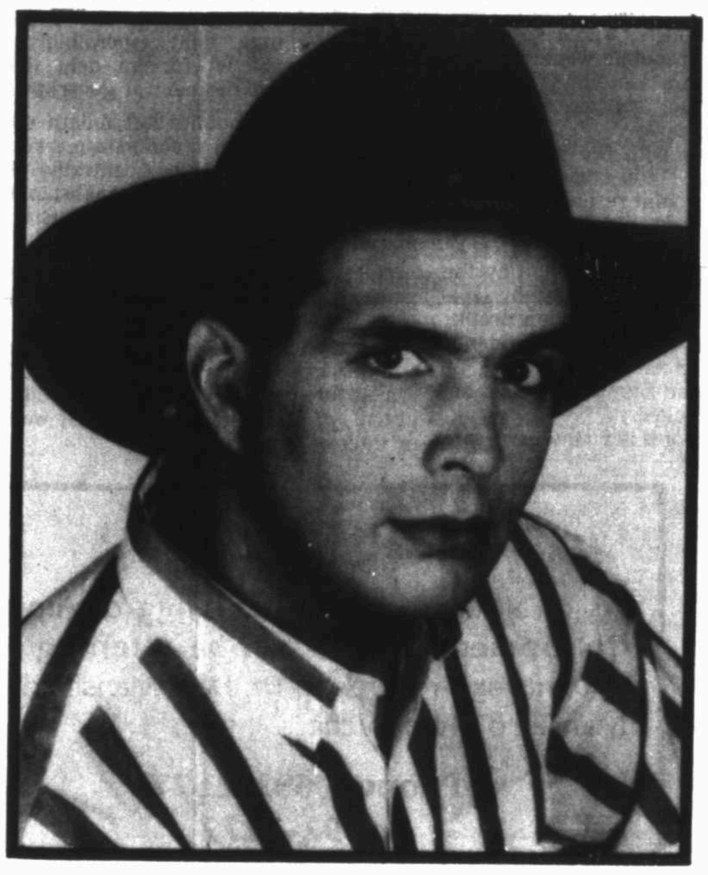

About 10 squad cars surrounded the limousine, filled with six other people.

Stanton, 22, of Surrey said he threw the cap gun out the window, but not before leaning out and taking photographs of police.

Battle rages across Yugoslavia as Croats launch attacks

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (NYT) — Serbian and Croatian forces battled fiercely Monday across a long front from the Adriatic coast to the Danube valley in some of the most severe fighting in Croatia since the Yugoslav war began in June.

Monday's clashes came on the eve of a session of the European Community-sponsored peace talks at which Serbia is expected to answer an ultimatum that it accept a plan calling for the formation of a more loosely bound Yugoslav federation or face sanctions.

Serbia's Parliament called Monday night for major amendments in the plan, in essence rejecting it, Serbia's foreign minister, Vladislav Jovanovic, said in a televised interview. Earlier in the day, Serbia's governing Socialist Party, the descendant of the old Communist Party, called for its rejection.

The European Community, which drafted the plan, has threatened to impose political and economic sanctions, including an oil embargo, on any Yugoslav republic that refuses to accept it. Serbia, the largest of the republics in the now-defunct Yugoslav federation, is the only one that has not agreed to it.

In the face of the ultimatum, the pace of fighting appeared to increase in many regions. In Vukovar, the long-besieged city on the Danube, Serbian forces continued their attempt to pry Croatian military units from the center of the encircled town for the third day.

Though Vukovar, a predominantly Croat-populated town, has been reduced to near rubble by three months of bombardment, the Serbs are eager to capture it because it is the last Croatian-held position on a main road linking Serbia with a cluster of Serb-held villages on the western side of the Danube River. The fall of the town would cut Croatia from access to the Danube.

The commander of the Croatian forces in Vukovar, Milan Medakovic, told reporters by radio Monday that there were 11,000 adults and 2,000 children trapped in the town and that the local hospital, which was reportedly attacked by aircraft Monday, was performing surgery without anesthetics.

Artillery duels were reported in the towns of Osijek, Vinkovci and Sisak. Heavy fighting was also reported in Karlovac, which lies on the last main highway linking Croatia's capital, Zagreb, with the Adriatic Sea.

Ukraine signs on with Soviet's union plan

MOSCOW (AP) — The resource-rich Ukraine reversed its go-it-alone strategy Monday and agreed to join a new economic union that Mikhail S. Gorbachev has hoped would replace the old centrally run system.

The announcement was a breakthrough in the Soviet president's efforts to bring all 12 remaining republics that belonged to the Soviet Union into the new economic union.

The participation of the Ukraine, the Soviet Union's second-most populous republic and a major food producer, had been seen as vital to the success of any attempt at economic cooperation.

The action came after Gorbachev convened a closed-door meeting of the governing State Council with a warning that the post-coup leadership had failed to prevent the breakup of the Soviet Union, "and we have approached an abyss."

Bowing to pressure from Russian Federation President Boris Yeltsin to cut costs, the State Council also endorsed a decision to eliminate about 80 Soviet ministries and departments from the bloated national bureaucracy, and discussed what to do with the foreign, defense and interior ministries.

The State Council approved an Interior Ministry plan to cut administrative staff by 20 percent. More than half of the ministry's 400,000 troops will go to work for the various republics, Interfax said.

Ukrainian Prime Minister Vitold Fokin told the State Council his republic would sign the economic treaty within two days, the Tass news agency reported, quoting Gorbachev spokesman Andrei Grachev.

But in an interview with the independent Interfax news agency, Fokin said the republic objected to assuming "joint responsibility" for financing the Soviet foreign debt that was accumulated by the central government.

Membership in the economic union by the Ukraine has been stridently opposed by separatists in the republic of 51.7 million people. The republic will vote on its independence from the Soviet Union on Dec. 1.

Initial reaction from Kiev on Fokin's announcement was skeptical.

"It's like two 89-year-olds in an intensive care unit, promising to be nice to each other after they get married," said Bogdan Kravchenko, a Canadian adviser to the Ukrainian government.

While agreeing to join the economic union, Fokin said in an interview with the independent Interfax news agency, the Ukraine objects to assuming "joint responsibility" for financing the Soviet foreign debt that was accumulated by the central government.

Eight other republics last month signed a treaty creating a new common market to replace the Kremlin-ruled, centrally planned economy. They are Russia, Kazakhstan, Uzbekistan, Kirgizia, Turkmenia, Byelorussia, Armenia and Tadzhikistan.

The other republics agreed last week to jointly pay off the foreign debt, although each republic's share has yet to be determined.

The Ukraine asserted its independence in another way Monday, creating its first formal armed forces. The National Guard will consist initially of 33,000 men who formerly were Soviet Interior Ministry troops.

Gunmen invade party, kill 15

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Hooded gunmen burst into a barbecue party and killed 15 people, in an attack authorities blamed Monday on leftist guerrillas. Others linked the massacre to paramilitary squads that target rebel sympathizers.

The slaying late Sunday was the worst terrorist attack on record in the capital. The victims included a 9-year-old boy and villagers who came to the city for jobs and to escape the civil war.

About 40 people were attending the party in the rundown neighborhood of Barrios Altos. They were listening to folk music from the Andes when five masked men stormed the home, forced everyone into a rear patio and opened fire, an Interior Ministry spokesman said.

The official said the shooting was carried out by Maoist Shining Path guerrillas, who have waged an 11-year battle against the government.

But witnesses, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the gunmen arrived in two four-wheel drive vehicles with flashing roof lights of the type used by police.

The assailants also had silencers on their guns — used in the past by right-wing paramilitary groups.

City population to top 140,000 by 2000

■ Statistics generated by the state comptroller's office indicate minority groups will grow slightly faster.

By Debbie Lincecum
Staff Writer

By the year 2000, Midland's population is expected to increase by about 30 percent over its current level. Minority groups may experience a slightly faster rate of growth, a fact community leaders said will necessitate a new attitude of cooperation and participation.

"Changing demographics are going to emphasize the importance of good communication and a spirit of unity," said Janna King, president of the Midland Chamber of Commerce.

According to statistics compiled by the Midland College business department, Midland County's population should increase from a currently estimated 106,611 to 140,320 by the year 2000. During that time, minority groups that now make up 29 percent of the total are expected to increase to 35 percent.

Although the number of white residents will continue to top the count, Hispanic, black residents and those of other races should total more than half the number of whites by the year 2000. The college predicts a total of 90,941 whites, 37,689 Hispanics, 10,715 blacks and 975 residents of other races.

The local trend is expected to be similar to a statewide racial diversification. According to information from Texas Comptroller John Sharp's office, the number of white Texans will drop while minority groups will increase during the next 10 years.

County projections indicate that whites — who now make up 70 percent of the total population — will comprise 64 percent of the total by the year 2000.

"In a sense, this is an inevitable kind of pattern, a trend that has been consistent for some time," said Jerry Jones, director of the college's business and economics program. "It's representative of a pattern that's typical for the southwestern United States at this point."

Hispanics, meanwhile, will grow in representation both statewide and locally. The comptroller's office reports Hispanic representation in Texas should increase from 26 percent of the total to more than 30 percent. Locally, the number of Hispanic residents should grow from 21 percent to 27 percent of the total.

"I expect that's going to continue to increase, even accelerate, past 2000," Jones said. College business projections indicate that, based on a maximum growth rate, the number of Hispanics could increase to as much as 30 percent of the total population.

With that growth comes the need for a focus on education of Hispanic youth, said Elvia Hernandez, president of the Midland Hispanic Chamber of Commerce.

"There are concerns in the Hispanic community because of the growth," she said. "We need to concentrate on our young people, to keep the drop-out rate low and encourage them that the American dream is still alive."

As the chamber prepares to celebrate its seventh anniversary today, Hernandez said its influence and mission have grown as the community's size has increased.

"We grew from 79 members to 357 members and 15 corporations," she said. "We have become the focal point for the Hispanic community and with that we have the responsibility to keep our people aware of what is going to affect them."

John Castro, an at-large city councilman who is Hispanic, said as the fastest-growing group, Hispanics will need to focus on more political representation as well as education.

"There's been a trend in the past to say, 'Why vote when it won't change anything,'" he said. "Out of 21,000 Hispanics, only 450 voted the last time. That's not right. Now, with this trend (of growth) I think there's more of a chance to do something."

Midland Park Mall manager stresses teamwork with stores

By Gary Ott
City Editor

The mall. The words flow off the tongue. They have become a part of our modern-day language.

Kids hang out there. The elderly get their walking exercise there. Shoppers spend their money there. As a result, on any given day a cross-section of local residents can be found at Midland Park Mall.

But what goes on behind the scenes? Sure, there are almost 100 businesses beneath a common roof, but who organizes the effort? Who recruits? Who markets? Who leases? Who, in fact, does all those things that the public doesn't always see, but, nonetheless, must be done efficiently if the mall is to operate successfully?

Locally, the answer is a 35-person management staff, headed by Patti Snodgrass, a Missouri native who has been on the job at Midland Park Mall for about a month.

"My job is to work as a team with the merchants," Ms. Snodgrass said last week, as she relaxed behind a desk in her office, located down a long, narrow hall on the east side of the facility.

"But, at the same time, I'm also trying to become involved in the community. I'm getting out and meeting new people."

And that, in a nutshell, sums up her diverse duties.

On the one hand, she is the detail-oriented businesswoman, concentrating on the day-to-day operations of a major business venture. On the other hand, she is a public relations-minded executive, interacting with community leaders while achievely a visibility level that benefits the mall, as a whole.

Each role is crucial to the success of her job.

They are also duties Ms. Snodgrass knows well. She has been active in the management aspect of malls for some 10 years, or since graduating from Southwest Missouri State University in 1981. Upon receiving her Bachelor of Science degree in business and

Father on trial in baby's death early this year

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

Jesus Manuel Vidana, 23, charged with the Jan. 10 death of Maritza Vidana, pleaded not guilty, through a translator, Monday.

The fatal head injuries of a 9-month-old girl, left in the care of her father, occurred during a half-hour period the mother was away, according to testimony in the father's murder trial.

Jesus Manuel Vidana, 23, charged with the Jan. 10 death of Maritza Vidana, pleaded not guilty, through a translator, Monday, the first day of the trial in Judge John Hyde's 238th District Court.

About three-quarters of the testimony to be heard by a 12-person jury will be from medical witnesses, according to defense attorney Thomas Hirsch.

"Nobody knows what really happened to this little girl. It's going to be a battle of the experts. You will hear a lot of conflicting medical testimony," Hirsch told jurors.

District Attorney Office prosecutor Ralph Petty, who did not make an opening statement on Monday, questioned one witness, the infant's mother, before a recess was called. Most of the day was spent in jury selection.

Maria del Carmen Castor, 20, who currently resides in California, testified, through a translator, about some of the events that led up to the infant's death.

Ms. Castor, Vidana and the baby, who all lived at the home of the defendant's mother, went to a relative's home on the day of the death, testimony showed.

Ms. Castor said she, her sister-in-law, Elvira Chavez, and Ms. Chavez's 5-year-old son, left the house to do some errands.

Vidana stayed at the home with his daughter and Ms. Chavez's 2-year-old daughter, Ms. Castor testified.

When the two women and boy returned, paramedics were preparing to take the infant to Midland Memorial Hospital via ambulance, testimony indicated. Ms. Castor testified she accompanied her daughter to the hospital.

The child later died during surgery.

With the exception of a cough, the infant was healthy before the injury, Ms. Castor testified.

Hirsch told jurors that Vidana was playing with the girl on the couch, left to get a drink of water, heard a thud and returned to find the infant on the floor. The girl may have hit her head on a motorcycle helmet and the floor, the defense claimed.

The girl, reportedly 28-inches tall, walked, ran and had good balance, testimony showed.

Medical experts are expected to testify when the trial continues this morning.

Public radio, TV station promotes two staffers

Staff Report

ODESSA — Two veteran Permian Basin broadcasters have been named to key positions at KOCV-FM/TV, the Public Broadcasting Service and National Public Radio stations serving the area.

Tom Hughes, operations director and FM station manager, has been promoted to director of broadcasting.

Shorty Stokes, formerly producer/director at KOCV-TV, has been named director of programming/production.

Hughes joined KOCV in March 1988. Previously, he worked for KOSA-TV Channel 7 for 22 years. He was general manager for three years and vice-president and station manager for seven years. In his new position, Hughes will oversee both radio and television broadcasting operations.

In her new position, Ms. Stokes' will be in charge of setting up all television programming and supervising local productions.

"Shorty will be in charge of local, full-length productions and all local on-air promotions," KOCV-TV General Manager John McCarroll said in making the announcements.

"She also will handle the selection, acquisition and scheduling of local and national programs."

Before joining KOCV in April 1991, Ms. Stokes was with KMID-TV/Channel 2 for 23 years, four of those years as station manager.

Hughes and Ms. Stokes have teamed up to produce local KOCV programs such as West Texas Journal, a weekly news analysis show; Impact: Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow, a Hispanic issues analysis program; and numerous short historical pieces produced in conjunction with the Ector County Centennial.

Black chamber sets for ballet performance

By Darren J. Waggoner

With the performance of Les Ballets Africains just over two weeks away, members of the Midland Black Chamber of Entrepreneurs report brisk ticket sales.

"They are really moving. We're going to sell them until they sell out," said chamber president Robbyne (Hocker) Fuller. "We're getting on the telephone and moving them out. We want to encourage people who want them to hurry because we may not have any later."

A total of 500 tickets were originally available at $25 each.

"The first 250 people will receive signed and numbered limited edition posters," said Fuller. "The other 250 people will also get posters but they won't be signed."

Another 100 posters will be given "to all the advertisers who help out," Fuller said.

The total cost of the posters, created by artist Carol Joyce, is estimated at $2,000. Mobil Corporation is covering about $1,000 of the cost, she said.

Tickets can be purchased in the afternoon at the Midland Community Theatre and during normal business hours at the following locations: Majestic Cleaners, Regency Cleaners, J & J Beauty Supply and Gene Collins Insurance in Odessa. Tickets can also be purchased by mail by writing to the Midland Black Chamber of Entrepreneurs, P.O. Box 50473, Midland, 79710.

In other chamber business, the organization is currently searching for a corporation to participate in the adopt-a-school program for the benefit of Pease Elementary School.

According to John Joiner, president of the school's PTA, the program provides funds for various items, including teacher grants, curriculum supplies and gifts to the school.

Midland College gets more spaces for TASP testing

Staff Report

Additional spaces have been allocated to Midland College for the final fall TASP (Texas Academic Skills Program) exams, but Wednesday is the deadline for applying for one of the spaces.

TASP is a state-mandated examination which is required of all students before entering a state college or university. It also is required of all students who transfer from private universities or from out-of-state colleges or universities.

"Midland College is one of the approved sites for the state-wide test date of Saturday, Nov. 16," said C.C. Dakil, dean of students.

"We received last-minute permission to increase the number of students taking the exam at Midland College by 100 students. However, those wishing to enroll for the exam or transfer from another testing site must have the change approved by telephone on Tuesday or Wednesday."

Request for changing the test site must be made by the person planning to take the exam by telephoning (512)-926-8746 between 9 a.m.-5 p.m. on Tuesday or Wednesday.

Those who wish to enroll now for the Nov. 16 TASP exam date should call (512) 926-8746 between 9 a.m.-5 p.m. Tuesday or Wednesday.

The regular fee for taking the TASP exam is $26. There is an additional $20 fee charged for late enrollment or a $15 fee for late change of test site.

"Students currently enrolled in college who took only the pre-TASP or those who plan to enroll for the spring semester should take the TASP exam at this period, since the next scheduled exam will not be until Feb. 22, 1992," Dakil said.

Persons wishing more information about enrolling for the Nov. 16 TASP exam, or wishing to change their test site, should contact the Midland College Student Services Office Tuesday or Wednesday between 8 a.m.-4:30 p.m.

Dakil noted that the MC counseling and testing staff could provide information and counseling, but that telephone calls must be made by those wishing to enroll or make site changes.

"Not even parents are allowed to make calls for enrollment or change of site," Dakil said, "State regulations require that only the person applying for the exam may do this."

GROWTH: State predicts 30 percent growth

(From 1B)

Responsibility will fall to the family to stress to the young people the importance of education, Castro said.

"Hispanics in Midland need education to break down walls, to integrate," he said. "Otherwise they'll continue to fall back."

While Hispanic residents are likely to grow in numbers and influence, blacks are likely to see their numbers grow only slightly during the next decade, adding only 0.1 percent to the current total, according to college statistics. Even the maximum growth projection shows little change in the black population.

Michael DeVaughn, a black city council representative for district 2, said he hopes economic development will reverse that expected trend and increase the diversity of the community.

"People go where there are jobs," he said. "If we are going to have a culturally diverse community, economic diversity is very important."

Also important is fostering a pleasant quality of life for minorities, leaders said.

"I don't think this is a friendly community for black residents," said Robynne Fuller, president of the Midland Black Chamber of Entrepreneurs. "Maybe here they don't feel they are being considered. African-Americans are moving to larger cities, where they feel they are being considered."

Without environmental change, a lack of cultural diversity may reduce the community's quality of life, Fuller said.

"In a more diverse community, people feel they have someone to identify with," she said. "Here, it is difficult, especially for African-American women."

Leaders said the city has shown its capability for diversity with unity, especially during a recent visit by the white supremacist group, the Ku Klux Klan. A unity rally held before a Klan rally drew about 700 people of all races to celebrate the community's many cultural influences.

"We can make this a very positive situation," said Doug Henson, chairman of the Midland Chamber of Commerce. "But it's a challenge at the same time, a two-way street. Our goal for the future of the community is to try to match growth in jobs to the trend in population."

Leaders agreed more work is needed to capitalize on Midland's cultural influences.

"We've got to do a better job of integrating all races into society, into all roles (including) leadership roles," Henson said.

"I'd like to see more minority representation," Castro said. "There are so few of us."

"We're a relatively young community," Jones said. "These statistics are extremely important to what direction we're going — where and why."

MALL: New manager finds Midland a nice place

(From 1B)

public relations, she immediately hooked up with Melvin Simon & Associates, an Indianapolis-based company that owns a variety of malls around the country, including the one in Midland.

Her first job was as assistant marketing director at Battlefield Mall in Springfield, Mo. A short time later, she found herself employed as marketing director at Northgate Mall in Lafayette, La., before returning to the Battlefield Mall as marketing director.

She then made her first professional venture into Texas as marketing director at Irving Mall in that Dallas suburb. After becoming assistant manager at Northeast Mall in Hurst, another Dallas-Fort Worth suburb, she got her first manager's job when she was transferred to Midland about four weeks ago.

That may sound like a lot of moving around for a 10-year career, but it is not unusual, Ms. Snodgrass said.

"About three years is pretty typical for a mall manager," she said. In other words, things can change quickly. It also gives a person a chance to see many different parts of country.

Such has been the case for Ms. Snodgrass.

But what about West Texas, and the Midland-Odessa area in particular? What has been her opinion since arriving here?

"I've been pleasantly surprised," she said with a smile. "I had friends who described it as a desert. So I really didn't know what to expect."

She had, however, heard about it.

"I'd read about the oil industry and the boom and bust economy," she noted. "And, of course, I knew Clayton Williams was from Midland and that President Bush had lived here."

And then there was the Jessica McClure story.

"That gave everyone a positive view of Midland," she said.

Still, there was some lingering uncertainty.

Such as?

"Well, there was that whole 'Wild West' image," she said, laughing. "I just didn't know."

But now that uncertainty has been erased.

"I really like it," she said. "The sunsets are beautiful and the people are very friendly."

She is fitting quite nicely, too. She has already joined the Junior League of Midland and she is looking forward to attending the local theater productions as well symphony performances.

"I enjoy the arts very much."

Meanwhile, though, there is her job at the mall.

"I'd like to see us get a few more businesses in place and to continue the mall's role as a community-minded leader in Midland.

"Things are going very well, so far. I just want to keep it that way."

VOLUNTEERING

Fall for the great feeling you will receive by helping others! The needs are many and diverse. A few of the opportunities available through the Volunteer Center of Midland include:

■ A busy state agency needs your immediate help in their personnel department. Responsibities include data entry, file updating and general clerical support. This is a short-term project for the person wanting to sharpen his or her office skills in a pleasant working environment. Call the Volunteer Center for more information.

■ Make a world of difference for a homebound or disabled person by picking up a few items or a prescription drug at the store and delivering them to the person's home. This is a flexible opportunity, so set your own schedule.

■ Back the community's efforts to enforce child support. You will perform limited legal research, data entry or other clerical skills for a few hours each week during working hours. Training is provided. This is an opportunity to work with a team of dedicated professionals and enhance your technical skills as well.

■ Answer a telephone warmline for children who are home alone. Volunteers are needed at a local agency two weekday afternoons a month from 2:30 until 5:30 p.m. These few hours will go far in assuring the safety and well-being of our children. Older student volunteers are welcome.

■ Mentors can and are making a difference in the lives of welfare mothers who are striving to become more self-sufficient. Are you interested in helping a person who is motivated to improve their quality of life and independence? For more information, call the Volunteer Center today.

■ 697-HELP. The only number you need to remember when you have a question or problem and do not know where to find the answer. Call Information and Referral Midland. 697-HELP.

For more information on how you can volunteer, please call the Volunteer Center of Midland 697-8781.

Scottish clans to gather in Salado

N.Y. Times News Service

Make plans now to take a road trip this weekend to Salado's 30th annual Gathering of the Scottish Clans of Texas.

Salado is about a 2 1/2-hour drive south from Fort Worth. Follow Interstate 35W south through Waco. Salado is about 12 miles beyond Temple.

Admission is $4 for adults and $2 for children under 12.

Events are in several locations so stop by the information center at the entrance to the Central Texas Area Museum. You won't miss the information center as you travel along I-35.

If you have a trace of Scotland in your blood, or even if you don't, the 30th annual Gathering of the Clans promises something for everyone — including genealogy buffs and dog lovers.

Corinne Engelhardt, of Hurst, Texas, said she got involved in helping with the Gathering of the Clans about 15 years ago.

"Once you go, you will want to keep coming back," she said.

"There is something about Scottish people that is really special. They go back and talk about their history. They talk about their clans," she said.

Friday: The festivities get under way at 9 a.m. and continue to 4 p.m. Scottish vendors set up shop and the hall of clans opens its doors. From 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. Friday, there will be a genealogy workshop.

Saturday: There are piping, drumming and Highland dancing contests on the Village Green.

Sunday: You can watch sheep dog trials, a Scottish Terrier show and various Scottish game competitions.

Police investigate two store robberies

Staff Report

Midland police are investigating robberies at two 7-Eleven stores that occurred early in the morning on Sunday and Monday, police department reports said.

At 3:02 a.m. Sunday, two Hispanic males entered the store at 4310 Neely St. and one suspect took some items to the register while the second suspect picked up two 12-packs of beer and started to go out the door, reports said.

The clerk grabbed the second suspect's arm when the first suspect struck him in the face with his fist. The clerk suffered a bloody nose, reports said.

The suspects fled on foot with the beer and two packs of potato chips. Total value of the items stolen is $15.37, reports said.

The first suspect is described as a 17-year-old Hispanic male, 5-feet, 5-inches tall, weighing 145 pounds. The second suspect is believed to be between 15 and 18-years-old. He is also 5-feet, 5-inches tall, weighing 145 pounds, reports said.

The second robbery occurred at 1:20 a.m. Monday at 3208 N. Midkiff Road.

Three Hispanic males attempted to leave with an unknown amount of beer. The clerk stopped the suspects and a short fight occurred, reports said.

No one was injured and the suspects left without the beer, police said.

According to reports, the first suspect is 18 to 25-years-old, 5-feet, 7-inches tall, weighing 150 pounds. The second suspect is 20 to 25-years-old, 5-feet, 9-inches tall, weighing 150 pounds. The third suspect is 18 to 20-years-old, 5-feet, 4-inches, weighing 120 pounds.

Doctor to discuss health care legislation

Staff Report

The effect on physicians and patients of health care legislation passed by the 72nd Texas Legislature will be discussed by Texas Medical Association President Dr. Sam A. Nixon at a joint meeting Thursday of the Midland County and Ector County medical societies.

The dinner meeting is scheduled to begin at 6:30 p.m. at the Petroleum Club in Midland.

Nixon also will discuss TMA's response to a proposal to implement a new Medicare physician payment system.

Nixon, a Houston family physician, is director of the Division of Continuing Education and special assistant to the president for Community and Professional Affairs at The University of Texas Health Science Center at Houston. He also is assistant dean of Continuing Education and professor in the Department of Family Practice and Community Medicine at the University of Texas Medical School at Houston.

Councilman announces town hall meeting agenda

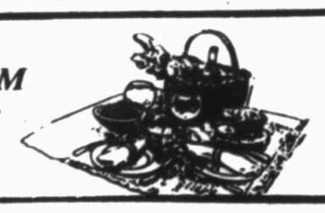

Staff Report

A town hall meeting has been scheduled for Monday at 7 p.m. at the Southeast Community Center in Washington Park, Indiana Avenue and Adams Street.

The Rev. Michael DeVaughn, District 2 City Councilman, said the meeting is expected to include discussion of several issues, including community policing and crime prevention, zoning, a youth work program and a proposed health clinic in the area.

DeVaughn organizes the monthly meetings for residents of his district to voice concerns and address issues that affect southeast Midland neighborhoods.

El Paso unprepared for cholera threat, officials say

The State

EL PASO (AP) — The city of El Paso has fallen behind other U.S. cities and even its sister city across the border, Ciudad Juarez, Mexico, in making plans to prevent and treat cholera, a deadly disease spreading through South America and parts of Central America and Mexico.

El Paso City-County Health Director Dr. Laurance Nickey says it'll likely be mid-November before the county has a cholera contingency plan.

"We don't have the staff, we don't have the time and, frankly, we don't have the money to do (cholera prevention)," Nickey told the El Paso Times. "When we have to do all of the other things that we normally do, this really stresses the system."

The disease can kill in hours, due to rapid dehydration through vomiting and violent diarrhea.

Since its outbreak in South America in January, 320,000 illnesses and 3,200 deaths have been caused by cholera. In Mexico, 1,883 people have become sick and 26 are dead.

Cholera first hit the U.S.-Mexico border Oct. 5, in Agua Prieta, Mexico, borne by a Guatemalan traveler.

In El Paso, the squalor in "colonias," neighborhoods without water and sewer service, and the hundreds of daily border crossers provide conditions for spread of the disease.

Cholera bacteria thrives in human feces and lives for days in tainted water wells or communal water supplies, common in colonias.

Ken Smith, of New Mexico's Department of the Environment, says rural New Mexico border towns where migrants live — such as La Union, La Mesa and Mesquite — will be monitored.

Other border-dwelling New Mexicans are relatively safe: 85 percent of the border county of Dona Ana has chlorinated municipal water.

In Juarez, the Mexican federal government is airing radio and television commercials telling people how to protect themselves. The federal Health Ministry has printed posters and distributed them in clinics and hospitals.

Dems link free trade bill, pollution issues

WASHINGTON (AP) — Forty-eight House Democrats who voted with President Bush for fast-track trade talks with Mexico and Canada said Monday they will resist a deal if it fails to adequately address health and environmental concerns.

"Pro-trade Democrats are eager for a free-trade agreement with Mexico, but we aren't going to sit idly by and let the administration pay just lip service to environmental protection," Rep. Ron Wyden, D-Ore., said Monday.

Wyden and 72 other Democrats said in a letter to Bush that before Congress votes on the trade agreement it should be assured that the environmental program "will indeed preserve the environment" and "not weaken U.S. environmental and health laws and regulations."

The Bush administration had made such pledges in securing support for the effort in Congress this spring.

Two Texas Democrats, Mike Andrews of Houston and John Bryant of Dallas, were among the 48 in favor of fast-track talks who signed the letter.

"This letter shows that there is a solid core of Democrats who support expanded trade but feel very strongly that the environment must be protected," said Wyden, chairman of the House Small Business subcommittee on regulation and business opportunities.

The 72 Democrats included 48 who along with Wyden voted in May in favor of granting Bush fast-track authorization. Wyden said the authorization would have been denied if only 20 had voted the other way.

"These are the swing votes," Wyden said in an interview. "Politically, this tells (Bush administrators) that they better do some work in order to secure the votes of the bulk of the Democrats who went with them the first round."

"For many pro-trade Democrats, the president's promises on environmental protection were a key factor in their support of fast track," he said.

House Majority Leader Richard Gephardt, Wyden and others said in a letter last week to Commerce Secretary Robert Mosbacher that the Bush administration is using a double standard in trade talks with Mexico, taking tough stands on investment issues while backing off environmental concerns.

Signators to Monday's letter who voted for fast-track talks in May included Reps. Steny Hoyer of Maryland, Leon Panetta of California, Dave McCurdy of Oklahoma, Patricia Schroeder of Colorado, Charles Schumer and Stephen Solarz of New York and Mike Synar of Oklahoma.

In addition to Wyden, Northwest members who supported fast-track and signed Monday's letter were Reps. Norm Dicks and Al Swift of Washington, and Mike Kopetski of Oregon.

"This is something that has great impact on the Northwest," Wyden said. "U.S.-Canada-Mexico trade is going to affect the West for decades."

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, is among those who have raised concerns about the trade agreement's impact on business along the U.S.-Mexico border.

"The real test will be whether the administration makes good on its promise to do more to improve the environment along the border," Bentsen said last month.

The border is home to 1,800 foreign-owned maquiladoras — plants that use cheap Mexican labor to assemble products for export, mostly to the United States. Streets near many maquiladoras are littered with empty chemical barrels, the ditches filled with industrial waste.

Some environmental groups fear the maquiladoras are only a small-scale experiment of what could result if a free trade agreement does not specifically address pollution and the environment.

Wyden said in his letter Monday that the administration's environmental proposal to date has been weak.

"The Border Environmental Plan is a smoke screen for the status quo. The environmental review relies on trickle-down environmentalism to make all the problems magically disappear," he said.

South Texans square off in fight for prisons

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — South Texas cities and counties are preparing for a high-dollar, statewide prison derby that will start if voters approve a $1.1 billion bond issue today to add 25,000 prison beds in Texas.

Millions of dollars and thousands of jobs will be at stake if voters approve Proposition 4, the proposed constitutional amendment to construct the additional prison space.

"Some will do whatever they can," said Joe Montez, city manager in Beeville, which landed one of six new state prisons approved two years ago. The facility is now being built in Bee County and is providing about 450 construction jobs.

So fierce is competition for the proposed prisons that officials in cities and counties refused to discuss strategies they are using to lure the prisons to their communities.

"That's top secret," said Starr County Judge Jose M. Martinez. "We'd rather not offer any ammo to our competition."

His county on the Texas-Mexico border is one of the most impoverished in the nation.

An official with the Texas Department of Criminal Justice estimated nine prisons would be built if the bond issue passes. A recent count shows 26 South Texas communities are in the running or ready to enter the race for prisons, according to the San Antonio Express-News.

Those South Texas communities are among more than 100 areas statewide that have asked the state for paperwork to submit proposals for a facility. The number is expected to grow if voters approve the bonds and as the Jan. 15 deadline to apply approaches.

"Ten years ago, who would've thought counties would be fighting to get correctional facilities?" said Tom Vickers, director of the governor's criminal justice division.

"Now that times are tough, perceptions have changed . . . a lot of counties find (prisons) attractive just for the added jobs and much-needed revenue," Vickers said.

Willacy County Judge Eustolio "Tolo" Gonzales said support for a state prison in his county has shifted 180 degrees from eight years ago, the last time county officials sought to lure a prison there.

"We're poor, and we need the jobs," said Gonzales, who's county depends heavily on agriculture. "This is a type of industry that will generate money year-round, and it doesn't depend on the weather."

Duval County commissioners have offered a $75,000 bonus to a consulting firm if it lures a maximum-security facility to the county. A $50,000 bonus was offered if the firm lands a medium-security prison.

Currently the state has about 52,200 beds in 35 prisons, and it is building an additional 15,600 beds. Prisons at Beeville, Hondo and Dilley should be completed by 1993, officials say.

At Wit's End

I do love my kids, whoever they are

Editor's note: Erma Bombeck is on vacation. This column originally appeared in June 1987.

By Erma Bombeck

One of the things they never tell you about child raising is that for the rest of your life, at the drop of a hat, you are expected to know your children's names and how old they are.

Bombeck

Usually, you are given no chance to count on your fingers, make a phone call or dig out a certificate. Out of the clear blue sky, someone will ask, "How old is what's-his-name now?" and you're expected to spit it right out.

With the firstborn, it's a piece of cake. Everything is significant about the firstborn. But for the children who follow, most parents have to associate the year of their birth with something of major significance. I remember our second child was born the same year we paid off the freezer, and the third one came along the year Sara Lee came out with carrot cake. Or maybe it was the year we put a window fan in the attic. I get a little fuzzy on that one.

As far as I am concerned, their names are interchangeable. If I yell at the wrong one for something the other one is doing, they credit my account, and the next time they do something rotten, I blame their sibling for something they didn't do. It beats going through three or four names before I get the right one.

I suppose all of this belies the stereotypical Hallmark mother, but give us a break. Mothers have to remember what foods each child likes or dislikes, who had roseola and mumps, which one is allergic to penicillin and hamster fur, who gets carsick, and who isn't kidding when he stands outside the bathroom door and tells you what's going to happen if he doesn't get in right away. And if they all have the same color hair, they tend to run together.

Middle names were always hard for me. Maybe if I used them more, but every time I enrolled the kids in a school, they were asked for their FULL name. To this day I cannot remember their confirmation names.

One of my sons, who is . . . let's just say he is older today than he was 10 years ago, accuses me of telling the wrong stories on the wrong kid. I thought he was the one who said cute things that I used to submit to Reader's Digest, but it turns out it was his brother. Whatever.

The other night I said to one of them, "Your birthday is coming up. Just think, you're going to be twenty . . . eight!"

"Nine," he said.

"Don't use that tone with me," I said.

"Mom, I was there."

"What do you think I did — phone it in? Don't you think I know how old my own child is?"

When he left the room, I said to my husband, "What's his name?"

Dear Abby

Woman who fears doctors searches for cure

DEAR ABBY: This refers to your answer to "Out of Ideas," whose wife refused to go to the doctor for checkups.

Van Buren

You answer was very glib. I, too, refuse to go to the doctor — my reason is fear, pure and simple. I am so frightened of hearing something bad, I just don't go at all. The word "tests" is enough to send my blood pressure soaring. In fact, I can't get an accurate blood pressure reading due to fear of doctors.

I'm not as bad as "Out of Ideas'" wife; I've gone to the doctor on occasion when I've had uncomfortable symptoms that drove me there. But the experience was sheer torture. The doctors kept saying, "Calm down, calm down" — but I simply couldn't. I'm in my 50s and I've never had a mammogram, and I never go for regular checkups.

I would be delighted to learn how to overcome this deep-seated terror, but so far, no luck. I think you should consider this in relation to "Out of Ideas'" wife. She may need help, and it has nothing to do with her intelligence. — SCARED TO DEATH

DEAR SCARED — and I hope the "to death" is just a figure of speech. I told "Out of Ideas": "Short of hog-tying her, there is nothing you can do. Every intelligent person realizes that routine physical checkups (physical and dental) are essential to maintaining good health; and early detection, should there be a problem, has saved many lives."

The help that both of you need is psychotherapy to overcome your fear of doctors. Literally tens of thousands of women could have added years to their lives had they caught a malignancy sooner.

DEAR ABBY: Our retirement center runs a trip to the shopping center once a week. Recently I noticed one of the residents put a tube of lipstick in her purse instead of in her shopping cart. I was behind her in the checkout line and saw that she didn't declare the lipstick. Since then, I've been watching her. The week before last, she slipped a bottle of fingernail polish into her bag. Last week, it was toothpaste.

If I speak to her about her pilfering, I know she will deny it and say all sorts of unpleasant things. Still, I am uncomfortable now that I know she is shoplifting.

Shall I tell the store manager? Or maybe tell the other village residents? Or just mind my own business? — IN A QUANDARY

DEAR IN: It would be a kindness to tell the woman privately that you saw her shoplift the lipstick, nail polish and toothpaste. Tell her you fear that if she does it again, she will be caught and asked never to enter that store again — or worse yet, arrested. This would be not only embarrassing, but a blow to her family — and it would reflect badly on the retirement center.

DEAR ABBY: More about "dinner" and "supper": So you'll know where I'm coming from, I live in Winona, Minn., a small city in the heart of the Mississippi River's famed Hiawatha Valley.

Here when we eat our evening meal at home, it is virtually always "supper" and is our principal meal of the day.

However, when we go "out" to eat, we never call it "supper." Nobody here ever goes "out" for "supper," but everybody goes "out" for "dinner" now and then. — ROD HURD

Judge dismisses free legal aid lawsuit

AUSTIN (AP) — A state district judge Monday dismissed a lawsuit that would have forced Texas lawyers to devote 50 hours per year to helping hundreds of thousands of poor people with legal work.

James Harrington, legal director for the Texas Civil Rights Project, called the decision by State District Judge Joseph Hart a setback for the poor, but the State Bar of Texas hailed the decision.

"The upshot of Hart's ruling is that if you're poor you don't have equal access to the courts, you don't have equal justice," Harrington said.

He said he would appeal Hart's decision to the 3rd Court of Appeals by the end of the year.

Eric Galton of Austin, an attorney representing the State Bar, said forcing a lawyer to work for nothing was unconstitutional, but that efforts were under way to encourage lawyers to help the poor.

"The court's ruling only serves to redouble the commitment to providing voluntary pro bono legal services to the poor," he said.

Bob Dunn of Houston, president of the State Bar, said a recently adopted plan to increase pro bono work will help alleviate this problem. "We've made some progress, and the Texas Bar's pro bono program is considered a leader in the nation."

The lawsuit, filed on behalf of three farmworkers, would have required Texas attorneys to donate 50 hours of pro bono work each year as a condition for keeping their licenses.

Judge Hart said his dismissal of the case had nothing to do with the merits of the challenge, but that he lacked the authority to rule on "constitutional questions in the abstract." He said since the Texas Supreme Court has authority over the conduct of lawyers, it should decide the matter.

According to a State Bar survey, nearly 70 percent of the legal needs of 1.5 million poor people are not being met because they cannot afford an attorney.

Grand Prairie minister, 71, gets new heart

DALLAS (AP) — A spunky, 71-year-old Grand Prairie minister said he was "doing fine" after the surgery that made him the world's oldest heart transplant recipient.

The Rev. Earl Oldham was recovering Monday at Baylor Medical Center. During a four-hour procedure Saturday, five surgeons removed Oldham's weak heart and replaced it with the heart of a 23-year-old donor.

A 70-year-old patient had previously been the world's oldest heart transplant recipient, according to the International Registry of Heart Transplants.

Oldham suffered from cardiomyopathy, a degeneration of the heart muscle. A new heart gives him a new lease on life, he said.

"I was delighted," Oldham said. "It gave me hope that I could finish doing what I enjoy — serving the Lord."

Oldham is pastor of Calvary Baptist Church in Grand Prairie, a suburb located 11 miles west of Dallas.

He already has asked Dr. Peter Alivizatos, the hospital's director of cardiac transplantation, for permission to preach in two weeks.

"He said he thought that might be a little premature," Oldham said, laughing.

Oldham's attitude and general health made him a good candidate for transplant surgery, Alivizatos said.

"He had a pristine body other than the isolated heart problem," Alivizatos said. "He was aggressive and motivated — far better than many younger patients."

Most transplant programs consider age 65 the outer limit for heart transplants. But a patient's age shouldn't be the determining factor, Alivizatos said.

"We should serve patients, not regulations," the doctor said. "If we were going by the regulations, we never would have done it. And that wouldn't have been fair."

Baylor's transplant review committee approved the surgery.

Oldham rested comfortably in the intensive care unit Monday, saying he felt well. Frequent gestures marked his lively conversation.

Baptist pastors call for Baylor University's return

DALLAS (AP) — Pastors of nine of the state's largest Southern Baptist churches have banded together to demand the return of control of Baylor University to the Baptist General Convention of Texas.

The pastors formed the Baylor Restoration Committee to urge Texas Baptist churches to attend a meeting in Waco Nov. 11-12.

The committee opposes last year's decision by a majority of Baylor trustees to change the school's charter and establish themselves as a self-perpetuating board of regents.

A subsequent proposal provides for Baylor to be an independent corporation, governing itself without the consent or approval of the Baptist General Convention.

"Baylor University has been taken out of the hands of those who have nurtured, loved and fed it for 146 years, and churches across this state must stand now and demand its return, or lose it forever," said the Rev. Joel Gregory, pastor of First Baptist Church in Dallas.

In addition to Gregory, members of the committee are W.A. Criswell, senior pastor of First Baptist in Dallas; John Bisagno, pastor of First Baptist Church in Houston, and Ed Young, pastor of Second Baptist Church in Houston.

Others are Morris Chapman, president of the Southern Baptist Convention and pastor of First Baptist Church in Wichita Falls; Stan Coffey, pastor of San Jacinto Baptist Church in Amarillo; John Morgan, pastor of Sagemont Baptist Church in Houston, and Damon Shook, president of Champion Forest Baptist Church in Houston.

Second man sentenced for killing whooping crane

AUSTIN (AP) — A second man has been sentenced by a federal court in the killing of an endangered whooping crane in Lampasas County last spring, the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department said.

Curtis Collier Sayers, of Marble Falls, was sentenced Monday to 20 days incarceration to be served on weekends, three years' probation, a $2,000 fine, and 200 hours of community service by U.S. Magistrate Stephen H. Capelle.

Capelle also sentenced Sayers to jointly pay $8,100 in civil restitution to the state with Billy Dale Inman, who was sentenced Oct. 24 for shooting the crane on April 15 during a fishing trip.

Inman, also of Marble Falls, was sentenced to two months in prison, five years' probation, a $10,000 fine, 200 hours community service, and the joint civil restitution. The judge ruled that Inman can't possess a firearm while on probation.

The investigation began after the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department received a tip on the shooting. Jack Reynolds, a game warden from San Saba, questioned Inman and the dead crane was found buried near the Colorado River. The rare bird had been shot in the neck.

Only about 200 whooping cranes are known to exist, about 140 of those in the wild.

The bird is protected by federal and state endangered species laws.

Parks and Wildlife officials said the dead crane apparently was part of a small group of birds migrating north from their wintering grounds near the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge near Rockport to their nesting grounds in northern Canada.

UNM coach fired

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Mike Sheppard, unable to turn around a football program that has had just one winning season in 13 years, was fired Monday by New Mexico.

New Mexico, which beat Air Force last week, is 2-8 this season and 8-49 since Sheppard took over the program in 1987. The Lobos have two games remaining this season, at Utah Saturday and at Colorado State on Nov. 16. Ness said Sheppard and his coaching staff would finish out the season.

A&M basketball gets 2 years

■ Former Texas A&M men's head basketball coach Kermit Davis leaves a dubious legacy after his one-year tenure, as the Aggies are cited for 'major' NCAA violations.

Associated Press

COLLEGE STATION — The NCAA Committee on Infractions placed Texas A&M's men basketball program on probation for two years Monday and ruled the Aggies ineligible for postseason play this season because of "major violations" under former coach Kermit Davis Jr.

The Aggies also will be limited to two scholarships for the 1992-93 season and can have only eight instead of the usual 15 expense-paid official visits for the 1992 calendar year.

In addition, the infractions committee accepted the university's elimination of off-campus recruiting for men's basketball during this past spring.

Texas A&M, which was put on probation in 1988 for rules violations, escaped the NCAA's so-called "death penalty."

The committee said it had authority to impose lesser penalties if it determines a case is "unique."

"This case is unique because, after the 1988 case, the university's president took substantial actions to gain full presidential control over the intercollegiate athletics program," the committee said.

"Those actions, combined with the swiftness, thoroughness and decisiveness of the university's response to the matters in this current case, led the committee to determine that this case merited less than the required full range of penalties," the committee said.

"Had not the university's president not responded as he had in both instances, a broader ranger of penalties would have been imposed."

Tony Barone, who coached at Creighton, replaced Davis.

University officials contended that Davis and assistant coach Fletcher Cockrell furnished A&M false or misleading information seven times in the course of a school investigation about recruitment of Syracuse transfer Tony Scott and talent scout Rob Johnson.

Davis contended Scott made up the allegations to get A&M on probation so he could transfer.

Scott told the Syracuse Post-Standard his transfer was arranged by Johnson and said he was promised extra benefits prohibited by NCAA rules.

The allegations against A&M included illegal travel and lodging inducements.

"The NCAA acknowledged the fact that Texas A&M is committed to compliance, initiated strong disciplinary and corrective action in investigating charges, maintains institutional control of its athletic programs, and is clearly accountable to its board of regents," Texas A&M president William Mobley said.

"I regret that Tony Barone, our men's basketball

Houston waives Howfield

Associated Press

HOUSTON — Ian Howfield's brief kicking career with the Houston Oilers came to a tearful end when the Oilers waived the rookie kicker Monday.

Howfield missed a 33-yard field goal with one second left in regulation play Sunday prior to Washington's 16-13 overtime victory.

A week earlier, Howfield missed three extra points in a 35-3 victory over Cincinnati.

Coach Jack Pardee gave Howfield the news when he arrived at the Oiler practice facility. Howfield then faced the media, choking back his emotions.

"I'm proud of the way I played and I have to say thanks to the Houston organization for giving me the shot," Howfield said.

"I've just got to go back to the beginning again. I had a long road to get here and it's going to be a long road to get back but I'm not going to give up. I've worked too hard."

Oilers general manager Mike Holovak had no immediate comment on who would replace Howfield, who kicked last season for the Oklahoma Twisters in the Minor League Football Alliance.

The Oilers lost to the Redskins 16-13 in overtime on Chip Lohmiller's 41-yard field goal Sunday.

"I'm so happy that I was a part of this organization," Howfield said. "The players were great to me and I just wish I had a chance to say thanks to them because no one blamed me for that game and they were all supportive.

"That helped a lot."

Howfield won the kicking job during training camp from Teddy Garcia by kicking three field goals in three tries in an exhibition game against the Dallas Cowboys, the Oilers' opponent Sunday in the Astrodome.

Howfield kicked field goals of 24 and 26 yards against the Redskins and finished the season with 13 of 18 field goals and he was 25 of 29 on extra points.

Howfield said he knew the possibility existed that he would be waived.

"That's part of my business, but I'll tell you what, when I get my next shot, I'm going to remember this day because it hurts," Howfield said.

The Oilers put Zendejas on their Plan B list and he signed with the Los Angeles Rams. Zendejas kicked a 31-yard field goal in Sunday's 24-17 loss to New Orleans, giving him 10 field goals without a miss this season.

Cowboy running back Emmitt Smith dives for one of his three touchdowns Sunday against Phoenix.

Dallas' Blake lost for season

Associated Press

IRVING — The loss of running back Ricky Blake and the hard reality of three rugged road games cut short Monday celebrations of the Dallas Cowboys fastest start since 1986.

Emmitt Smith scored three touchdowns in Sunday's 27-7 victory over the Phoenix Cardinals to raise the Cowboys record to 6-3, and the best mark Dallas has posted under coach Jimmy Johnson.

The loss of Blake means Smith will have to carry the load in games at Houston, New York Giants and Washington. Blake, a rookie who played with the San Antonio Riders of the World League of American Football, suffered a broken right hip on the final play of Sunday's game.

Blake underwent surgery on Monday and will be out for the season.

"He should rehabilitate and be at 100 percent next year," Johnson said.

Blake scored on a 30-yard touchdown run against Cincinnati on his first NFL play and ran impressively against the Cardinals while Smith rested.

Tommie Agee will backup Smith at tailback.

The Cowboys released defensive end Daniel Stubbs on Monday and activated Tony Hill in other roster moves.

"We're looking for pass rush and will put Jimmie Jones at the defensive end spot and Hill also will play," Johnson said. "We've got to get more rush with the schedule we've got coming up."

The Cowboys started four rookies against Phoenix with mixed results. Rookie offensive tackle Erik Williams was beaten three times for sacks by the Cardinals Ken Harvey.

Wide receiver Alvin Harper, making his first start, caught three passes for 67 yards.

Linebacker Dixon Edwards, starting because Vincent Smith has hepatitis, started slowly but finished with several tackles.

Cornerback Larry Brown, a 12th round pick from Texas Christian, has been in the starting lineup most of the season.

A fifth rookie, Russell Maryland, didn't start but made a big play from defensive tackle when he batted down a pass. It won him a promotion to first team on Monday.

"I thought our rookies did well," said Johnson. "Erik had a tough time against their best pass rusher but he hung in there and did a better job in the second half. Harper gave us a big play deep down the middle on a 47-yard pass. Edwards adjusted in the second half. Maryland came in and batted down a pass."

Dallas won't be home again until Thanksgiving Day against the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Forfeits drop Bastrop out of 4A's No. 1 spot

Associated Press

The No. 1 ranking is the first thing the Bastrop Bears have lost this year.

Houston C.E. King (9-0), which has been ranked among the best Class 4A teams throughout the season in The Associated Press Schoolboy Poll, assumed the top ranking this week after a 27-7 victory over Santa Fe.

Bastrop dropped to No. 2 a week after the Texas Education Agency ruled it had used an ineligible player in games against Lockhart and Hays. The District 26-4A executive committee voted unanimously to strip the victories, knocking the Bears to 6-2 and jeopardizing their playoff chances.

Despite its 14-0 victory over Schertz Clemens Friday night, Bastrop still must beat New Braunfels Canyon this week and needs Lockhart to beat Clemens and Hays to beat Smithson Valley to qualify as the district runner-up.

Bastrop has appealed the TEA decision and has a hearing Wednesday before officials in Austin, said coach Les Johnson, who admits the Bears' playoff chances are slim.

"I've never been lucky in my life so I'm not even considering it," Johnson said. "It's a nice thing to think about, though, and it keeps the kids up."

Bastrop's tenuous playoff hopes were enough to make several poll voters lower or drop the Bears altogether from their rankings. But more voters still think Bastrop is the best team in 4A.

C.E. King edged Bastrop on points, 209-201, but 13 of 24 voters ranked Bastrop No. 1, while King garnered just six first-place votes.

C.E. King coach Ernie Starnes said he expects the No. 1 ranking to boost his team as it rolls toward Friday's District 24-4A title match against No. 6 LaMarque.

"We take it as an honor," Starnes said. "It really doesn't mean anything until the end of the season, but C.E. King's never been No. 1 so it's an honor. I think it will have a positive effect on us."

High School Poll

Bastrop is followed by Sulphur Springs, Waxahachie, Austin Westlake, LaMarque, Alamo Heights, Wilmer-Hutchins and Corpus Christi Calallen, which debuts in the top 10.

Carthage, the only other debut team in the poll, tied for No. 10 with McKinney, which nosedived from third after a 34-13 loss to Gainesville. Tomball, formerly the No. 6 team, dropped out of the rankings with its 38-9 loss to A&M Consolidated.

In Class 5A, Arlington Lamar remained the No. 1 team with 231 points and 18 votes for first. Lamar remained undefeated with its 35-6 victory over Arlington Martin.

Dallas Carter, which garnered four votes for first, remained No. 2, followed by Odessa Permian, Waco, Beaumont West Brook, Alief Elsik, Jersey Village, Aldine, Mission and San Antonio Marshall.

Sinton, which beat Rockport-Fulton 28-6, again is tops in 3A with 219 points and 17 votes for first.

Mabank dropped from No. 8 to No. 10 after a thrilling 13-10 loss to No. 3 Forney.

"It was a good high school football game," said Forney coach Mel Maxfield. "I think that everything that they've (Mabank) acquired, as far as rankings, they deserve. It's a shame that one team had to end up on top on the scoreboard."

Forney defensive back Clay Beason, who also is the team's starting quarterback, saved the game twice in the final minutes. Beason blocked a 25-yard field-goal attempt with 4:43 remaining, then intercepted a pass at the Forney 22 with 3:07 to go.

"He's always made big plays for us, even as a sophomore," Maxfield said. "That side of the football is where he's always excelled."

Schulenburg remained the No. 1 team in 2A, receiving 236 points and 20 votes for first.

Valley Mills was No. 1 for the second straight week in Class A, but the vote was sharply split. Valley Mills received 212 points and 11 first-place votes, while Wheeler, with four votes for first, and Rotan, with seven first-place votes, each garnered 195 points.

'Meet the Chaps' set for tonight

Staff Report

Anticipating the start of the 1991-92 basketball season, Midland College is holding its annual "Meet The Chaps Night" at 7 p.m. today in Chaparral Center. The event is free and open to the public.

After the cheerleaders, golf team and tennis teams are introduced, the 1991-92 MC basketball team will be introduced before playing a brief intrasquad scrimmage. Coaches for the Green and Gold teams will be Jimmy Patterson, assistant sports editor of the Midland Reporter-Telegram and Skip Baldwin, sports director of KMID-TV.

There are lots of new athletes, of course, along with two new coaches. Steve Green this spring assumed the post as head basketball coach. A new assistant coach is Randall Dickey, who came with Green from Howard College. George Walker continues as an assistant coach.

"This will be the first chance for the public to recognize the achievements of the golf team, which won second place in the national tournament, and the men's and women's tennis teams that took third and first in their national tournaments," said MC athletic director Delnor Poss.

Poss also serves as golf coach. Joe Williams coaches both tennis teams.

Chaparral basketball begins in earnest on Friday with the first night of the 14th annual Chaparral Classic. Howard College faces Angelina College of Lufkin at 6 p.m. before Midland College takes on Murray State College of Tishomingo, Okla., at 8 p.m.

On Saturday, Howard College plays Murray State at 6 p.m. and MC plays Angelina at 8 p.m. Another home game is scheduled for Monday, Nov. 11, when MC hosts Cisco Junior College. That game has a 7:30 p.m. starting time.

Eagle defense, McMahon sack Giants

Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — No matter who plays quarterback for the New York Giants, Reggie White, Clyde Simmons and the Philadelphia defense always seem to have his number.

The victim Monday night was Jeff Hostetler (15) instead of Phil Simms (11), but the result was the same, a 30-7 Philadelphia victory that put the playoff hopes of the defending Super Bowl champions in severe peril.

Jim McMahon and Keith Jackson chipped in with a 73-yard touchdown connection and James Joseph ran for 11- and 1-yard touchdowns as the Eagles won for the sixth time in the last seven meetings with the Giants and left both teams at 4-5.

McMahon was 16-for-26 for 229 yards as the Eagles ended a four-game losing streak that began when he injured a knee in Washington on Sept. 30. The Philadelphia running game, averaging only 67 yards a game coming in, ground out 137 yards, most on two second-half drives which lasted over nine minutes each.

But the key was a defense that sacked Hostetler four times and forced a fumble that set up one of Roger Ruzek's three field goals. Simmons and White each had 1½ sacks against an offense that had allowed only 13 sacks in its first eight games, none in the last two.

Putting constant pressure on Hostetler, they held New York without a first down for the opening 17 minutes.

And they allowed the Giants only 87 yards until Hostetler, who was 9-for-17 for 142 yards, connected with Odessa Turner for 55 late in the third quarter to set up Rodney Hampton's 1-yard touchdown leap that cut Philadelphia's lead to 20-7. Hostetler left with an ankle injury with three minutes left, allowing Simms to get his first action of the regular season.

Joseph, a rookie from Auburn who had just 18 yards in 11 carries all season, got 41 of his 68 total yards on a 67-yard drive to set up Ruzek's 35-yard field goal that made it 23-7 with 8:13 left. Joseph had replaced Keith Byars, who bruised his back.

Joseph went over again from the 1 with 3:19 left after Jerome Brown stopped Hostetler at his own 36 on fourth down, a yard short of a first down.

After a sluggish first quarter in which neither team could move, the Eagles took over in the second to take a 13-0 lead at halftime.

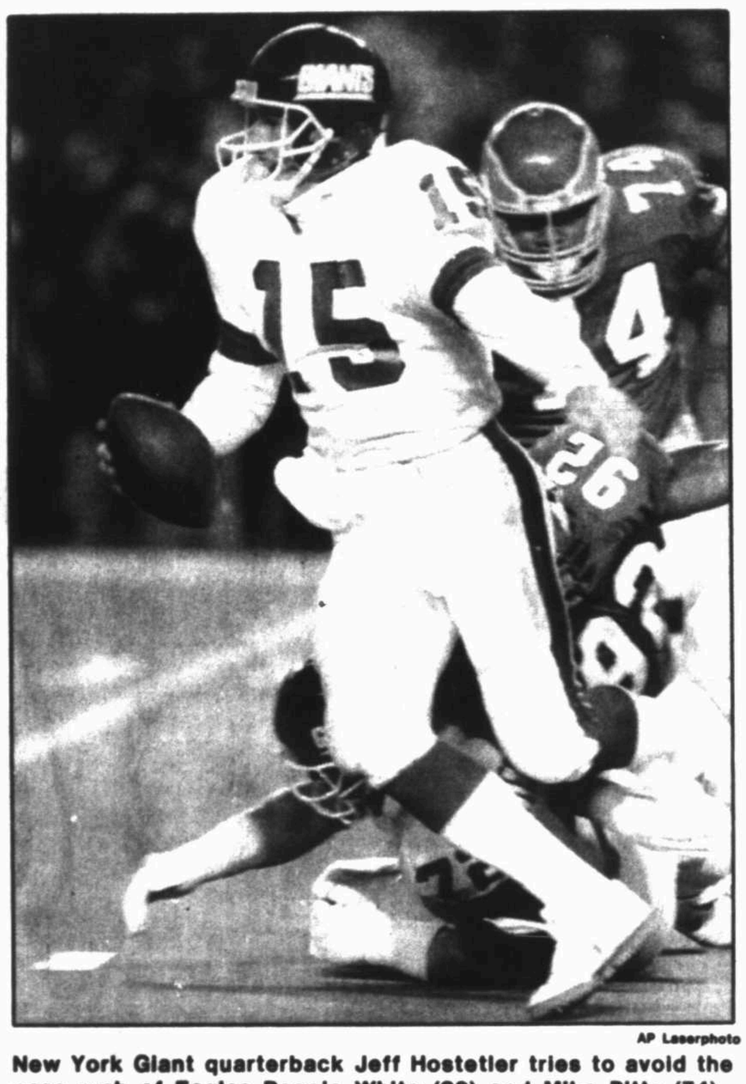

They started slowly, taking a 3-0 lead on Ruzek's 38-yard field goal at the end of a 39-yard, 9-play drive marked by completions of 15 and 17 yards from McMahon to Fred Barnett.

Then, after the Giants finally got their first first down 12:42 into the second quarter, the Eagles struck suddenly.

On a second-and-8 from his own 27, McMahon sidestepped a blitzing Steve DeOssie and found Jackson alone at the New York 45 behind Lawrence Taylor. Jackson outran Taylor to the end zone to complete the 73-yard play.

Then Seth Joyner sacked Hostetler, knocking the ball loose for White to recover. That set up Ruzek's field goal that made it 13-0.

The Eagles started the second half with a 15-play, 70-yard drive capped by Joseph's touchdown run, the first of his NFL career. That drive consumed 9:05 and included a 5-yard fourth-down completion from McMahon to Jackson at the New York 26.

Pavin named PGA Player of Year

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP) — Corey Pavin won PGA Player of the Year honors as he finished the year on tour Sunday with 58 points, two more than Fred Couples.

Pavin topped the year-long points system, which ended with last weekend's Tour Championship, earning 10 points for victories in the Bob Hope and Atlanta tournaments.

coach as well as members of his team, will have to bear the burden of the penalties brought on by the inappropriate actions of his predecessor. However, we have the utmost confidence in his dedication."

Barone said "when you look at the big picture here the only people hurt are the kids in this program who had nothing to do with the imbecilic actions of the coaches who were here before me. The present basketball staff has its hands tied because of the recruiting stipulations. There are kids out there who can't come to A&M now because of what someone else did."

Barone added "I'm all for putting the past behind and looking to the future. But when you put yourself in a ball and chain you have problems here. There are serious problems of what we can do with this basketball program."

Barone said he had three commitments for scholarships and now would have to tell one of them he doesn't have a scholarship at A&M.

"I'm not sure I should have to do that," he said. "I'd like to see some of the enforcement people go to these kids homes and tell them they don't have a scholarship."

Mobley said it is "highly unlikely we will appeal. The word 'unique' is an important word in this case. The committee did acknowledge it was a unique case. I'm happy they did recognize the positive things. The case was identified, investigated and dealt with in a matter of months. It was not a cancer in the program."

Mobley said "the whole thing was a Rob Johnson case. There were six violations all they all concerned Rob Johnson."

Athletic director John David Crow said, "Some outstanding young men who have committed to sign letters of intent will be as disappointed as we are in their not being able to pursue an education at one of his country's most outstanding universities. We hope scholarships will be available to them at other institutions."

SWC Commissioner Fred Jacoby said A&M's punishment was appropriate.

"The NCAA has termed this a 'unique' situation in that the university took substantial action to gain full presidential control," Jacoby said Monday. "There was immediate institutional control and commitment to compliance.

"It is also unique in that none of the current players or members of the coaching staff were involved in the allegations."

The Aggies will be ineligible for the 1992 SWC Postseason Classic, due to its exclusion from the 1992 NCAA men's basketball tournament, Jacoby said.

Davis, reached in Marianna, Fl., where he is an assistant coach at Chipola Junior College, told The AP "I don't really have any reaction to it. I always wanted the best for Texas A&M University and its players. I do have a reaction for the kids that were there when I was there.

"I think it's best for Texas A&M and Kermit Davis to move forward. I'm sure they are satisfied with the action taken by the NCAA. I think everyone should know that I never intentionally set out to violate any rules as a Texas A&M representative.

"We'll all have to abide by the rules now. I'm glad this NCAA investigation is behind us and we can get on with our lives and our careers and leave all this behind."

Griffey, Sr. retires

SEATTLE (AP) — Ken Griffey, a three-time All-Star who made baseball history by playing in the same outfield with his son, said Monday he is retiring after a 19-year major league career.

The Seattle Mariners said the 41-year-old Griffey could be offered a job with their organization. He has said he would like to be a coach, a minor league hitting instructor or a television commentator.

"Senior may still work for the Mariners," said Brian Goldberg, his Cincinnati-based agent. "Senior is weighing some options now."

Griffey was a member of the Big Red Machine in Cincinnati that won the World Series in 1975 and 1976. He hit a home run against every major league club except Cleveland.

Ken Griffey Jr., the Mariners 21-year-old center fielder, already is a two-time AL All-Star. The Griffeys are the only father-and-son combination to play in the major leagues at the same time.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 5, 1991

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: A financial burden will be lifted sooner than you think. Be prepared to move quickly on an unusual business opportunity next month. A real estate deal that is proposed in January could be just what you have wanted. Love and financial backing come from an unexpected quarter in early spring of 1992. Romance takes a dramatic turn in May. Next summer, be careful not to ask for more than you are willing to give in return.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: singer Paul Simon, actor Sam Shepard, rock star Bryan Adams, actress Tatum O'Neal.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Greater diplomacy will help you make new gains. An older person is your strongest ally. Visitors or messages from far-flung places are featured. Shoppers can find great bargains.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Your career gets a welcome boost, thanks to a friend. Give yourself adequate time to complete one project before taking on another. A psychic experience may be difficult to interpret at first.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A special project receives new support today. Teamwork boosts profits. A flirtation could cause trouble unless you are very discreet. Do nothing to jeopardize an older person's trust in you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Hard-to-find items become easier to purchase, and at an attractive price. Someone could try to interfere in your domestic affairs. Refuse to let outsiders disrupt your family life.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Phone calls and messages give new meaning to your efforts. Better financial planning will result in big savings. A courtship gets off to a flying start. Do nothing to rock the boat.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 21): Taking an overly aggressive approach could cause strife. Steer clear of people who gossip. Your best rapport is with someone of the same sex.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Exercise more caution than usual in your financial and real estate dealings. Consult experts. Although a change in social plans is upsetting, you could meet an attractive newcomer.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): New business opportunities arise. Success is closer than you think. A phone call or unexpected visit opens the door to a promotion or better job. A good friend rallies to your side.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Inertia is the only thing that could come between you and success this week. Get moving. Extra study will prove very worthwhile. Although a competition makes you edgy, you win.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Curb your temper today. Taking a walk or breaking with your regular routine will put you in good humor. Come to terms with a loved one. Spend a quiet evening at home.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You will be able to accomplish more once you reduce the stress in your life. The arrival of a check could be delayed another few days. Mate supports your efforts. Be appreciative!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You have a chance to move up at your place of employment. Share a financial burden with other family members. A health matter deserves prompt attention. Develop your athletic potential.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
2 ♡	Pass	4 ♡	5 ◇
Pass	Pass	5 ♡	Dbl
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Two of ◇

Some suit combinations recur frequently and it pays to recognize them. Here's a case in point.

South opened with a weak two-heart bid and North raised to game. Since it was unclear which side held the balance of power, East's five-diamond bid was automatic. Rather than bid five hearts, North might have doubled for a plus score—if South's hand was slightly stronger, the massacre could have been bloody. However, we can't really quarrel with North's decision in light of the vulnerability.

West led a diamond. East won the queen and shifted to a low club. Just in case an extra entry to dummy was needed, declarer elected to win in hand. Since the spade suit would have to furnish two discards for clubs, declarer immediately led a low spade to the king and ace. Declarer won the club continuation on the table, ruffed a spade in hand and crossed to the board with a trump to ruff another spade. When West turned up with five spades, declarer could sluff only one club and had to concede a trick in the suit for down one.

Since the ace of spades was almost surely with East, declarer could have guarded against the possibility of a 5-2 break. That is not such a long shot, occurring almost 20 percent of the time. After winning the club at trick two and leading a spade, declarer should have played low from dummy. Let's assume East wins and reverts to a club. The ace wins in dummy, and declarer ruffs a spade. As the cards lie, that fetches the ace and all is well. But if the ace doesn't appear, declarer draws trumps ending on the table and leads the king of spades for a ruffing finesse. Since East cannot have started with five spades to the ace, that guarantees the suit will set up for two discards, and there will be at least one trump still on the table to serve as an entry.

Rumpled suit on series earns Andy Griffith a TV Guide barb

RADNOR, Pa. — When TV Guide released its latest list of dressers best and worst, Andy Griffith was sure his jeans for home and rumpled gray suit as "Matlock" would earn him a barb. He was right.

Griffith

"I can't tell you how surprised I was — until my wife admitted she had torn out the page of the article that had included me," Griffith said.

"I deserve worst dressed — both as Andy Griffith and as the character I play," he said. "Away from the set, I only wear Levi's jeans and Lands' End shirts and tennis shoes. And for six seasons as Matlock, I've been wearing the same rumpled gray suit."

The magazine released its list last month. In this week's issue, Griffith said of his detective character: "The suits wrinkle badly; they add about 10 pounds to a body that doesn't have a good figure in the first place."

PORTLAND, Maine — Rep. Thomas H. Andrews, whose right leg was amputated 16 years ago because of cancer, is testing an experimental artificial limb that might enable him to walk without a cane.

The 38-year-old Maine Democrat said the limb is made of flexible plastics and weighs only 5 pounds. It could be a vast improvement over the 14-pound model, made partly of wood, Andrews has used for 10 years.

"The theory of it is that I'll be able to walk better, walk faster, walk more comfortably and eventually perhaps even be able to walk without a cane," he said. "My goal is to get the best possible function out of my body."

The non-profit Prosthetics Research Study in Seattle began developing the limb in the mid-1980s. Andrews was fitted in August and has had some problems.

A socket connecting the artificial limb to Andrews' stump has caused bleeding and bruising. Two weeks ago, the limb was returned for adjustment.

PHILADELPHIA — A boy whose gift of a blanket to a homeless person inspired a feeding and clothing campaign thinks Fred Savage is a nice guy, but he isn't sure about the young star's movie based on his life.

"With a recession, charities are the first to go down, so this could remind people to help," said Trevor Farrell, 19, of suburban Philadelphia.

"But people also might say, 'There's a movie, it's Hollywood, there's millions of dollars.' They might think somehow we get some of it, which isn't true," he said.

Farrell was 11 when he gave his favorite blanket to a homeless person. With the help of family and friends, Farrell turned the gesture into a campaign to feed and clothe the homeless.

A crew gathered at the Liberty Bell on Monday to film a scene for the Farrell-inspired television movie "Christmas on Division Street."

The movie, scheduled for Dec. 15 broadcast on CBS, stars Savage in the Farrell role and Hume Cronyn as a feisty, 80-year-old homeless man he befriends.

NEW YORK — ABC-TV, trying to bolster its prime-time lineup during the November ratings sweeps, said Monday it's putting a new Steven Bochco series on the schedule.

The one-hour series, to premiere Nov. 20 at 10 p.m., is called "Civil Wars" and co-stars Mariel Hemingway and Peter Onorati. They are Manhattan lawyers who specialize in divorce cases and domestic conflicts.

"Civil Wars" is Bochco's third series for ABC under terms of a 10-series deal. Bochco makes "Doogie Howser, M.D.," but flopped last season with "Cop Rock," an adventurous part-drama, part-musical in which Onorati was a co-star.

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. — Princess Margriet of The Netherlands received Hofstra University's Presidential Medal for distinguished leadership.

"We are honored to be able to share our love for the people of Holland through her royal highness," James Shuart, the university's president, said in presenting the award Monday. "We are proud of our Dutch heritage."

Hofstra was founded in 1935 on the estate of William Hofstra of The Netherlands. It has an enrollment of 12,000 and maintains close ties to the Dutch, including an exchange program with Erasmus University in Rotterdam and the Roosevelt Studies Center in Middleburg, in The Netherlands.

Princess Margariet, 47, sister of Queen Beatrix, was accompanied by her husband, Pieter Van Vollenhoven.

Previous recipients of the university's Presidential Medal include Henry Kissinger, Isaac Bashevis Singer, Claire Booth Luce, and Sen. Edward Kennedy.

Prices slip

NEW YORK (AP) — The price of oil dipped slightly Monday, but futures prices for refined petroleum products rose in response to a Texas refinery fire.

West Texas Intermediate for delivery in December settled at $23.80 per barrel, down 2 cents, at the New York Mercantile Exchange.

Crude oil was higher in early trading, amid concerns that stormy weather in the North Sea would delay tanker shipments. Crude oil had advanced 45 cents a barrel on Friday on those same fears, but word Monday afternoon that the weather could be easing weakened the demand for crude futures.

Heating oil and gasoline stayed up for the day, however, largely in response to a fire on Sunday at the Mobil Corp. refinery in Beaumont, Texas.

The fire damaged one of the refinery's two units that process crude oil, but a Mobil spokesman was unable to say Monday how much of the plant's total capacity of 275,000 barrels a day was off-line, or how long it would take to make repairs.

T-Bills drop

WASHINGTON (AP) — Interest rates on short-term Treasury securities fell in Monday's auction to the lowest level in 14 years.

The Treasury Department sold $10.4 billion in three-month bills at an average discount rate of 4.74 percent, down from 4.99 percent last week. Another $10.5 billion was sold in six-month bills at an average discount rate of 4.80 percent, down from 5.04 percent last week.

The three-month bill rate was the lowest since they sold for 4.518 percent on April 25, 1977. The six-month bill rate was the lowest since they averaged 4.708 percent on Ap4il 18, 1977.

Market falls

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market pulled back Monday in a session dominated by uncertainty about the outlook for Federal Reserve credit policy and interest rates.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, down 12.75 points on Friday, fell another 10.73 points to 3,045.62.

Declining issues outnumbered advances by about 3 to 2 on the New York Stock Exchange.

Dollar off

LONDON (AP) — The dollar fell sharply against major currencies in European trading today, reflecting declines in other markets and disappointment in the pace and strength of economic recovery in the United States.

Economists: Fed to lower rates again

■ Policymakers might be forced to take more dramatic steps, some analysts say.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Federal Reserve, frustrated so far in efforts to jump-start a weak economy, will decide Tuesday to lower interest rates once again, many private economists predicted.

However, opinion was divided on the question of whether a new round of rate cuts will be enough to avoid a double-dip recession.

Some analysts said Monday that they believed Washington policymakers will be forced to take more dramatic steps in a bid to dissipate widespread gloom about the economy.

These economists saw the chance for a triple-play package of further Fed rate cuts coupled with a tax-cut package from Congress to put money in consumers' pockets and an easing of bank regulations aimed at alleviating the credit crunch.

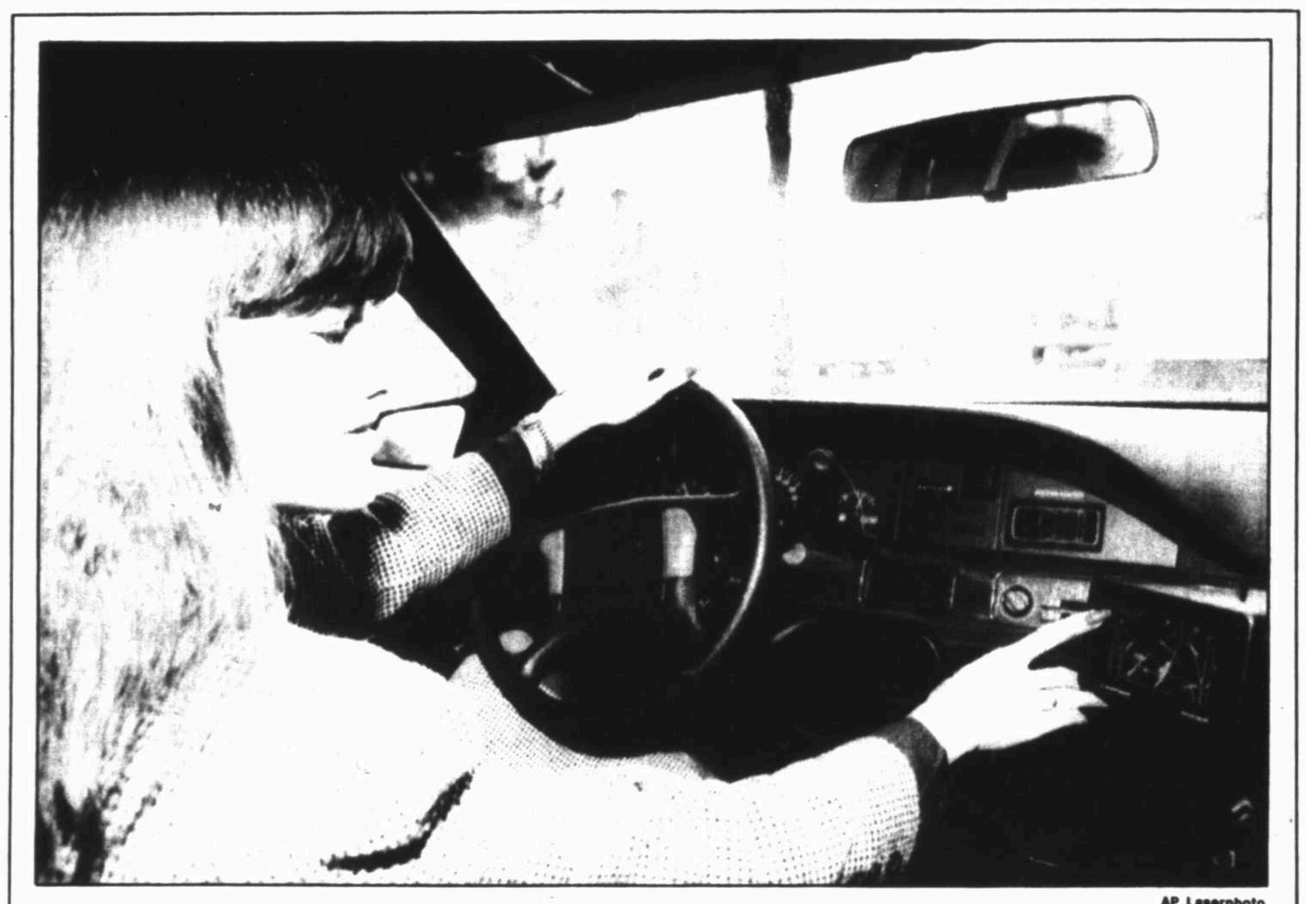

"There is a danger that this recovery could stall or even tilt into a double-dip recession," said David Jones, chief economist at Aubrey G. Lanston & Co., a government securities dealer. "To get positive effects on consumer confidence, you have to do more than people are expecting."

Jones said that if economic danger signals grow more severe, the administration, Congress and the Fed could very well agree on a joint effort that would produce a tax-cut bill early next year along with further Fed rate cuts and agreement among banking regulators for bolder efforts to get banks to start lending again.

White House budget director Richard Darman seemed to open the possibility to a such a scenario regarding tax cuts in an interview published Monday.

While ruling out a tax cut this year in the interview in the Wall Street Journal, he said, "If the economy is still sputtering, then it is conceivable to me that there would be the right political context in which to enact a responsible tax cut (next year)."

While economists were split on the chances of a tax cut in 1992, they were in general agreement that at least one more round of Fed rate cuts was in the offing, given the dismal economic reports of recent weeks.

Car computers could replace folding maps

By Frederick Standish
Associated Press writer

DETROIT — It takes just one look. And there's no fumbling with that impossible-to-refold road map.

A car fitted with a small TV screen near the steering wheel that displays a moving map and locates the car on specially equipped roadways is the latest advance in the "smart car."

By using the computerized dashboard map in conjunction with traffic reports by local agencies and roadway sensors, motorists can spot traffic jams and navigate around them.

State and local governments aiming to unclog highways are experimenting with the technology in cooperation with private companies in California, Florida, Michigan and some other places. None of the systems is beyond the testing or evaluation stage, a motor industry official said Monday.

"The 'smart' highway concept will allow us to use whatever roads we have more efficiently, recognizing that we still don't have enough roads," said Tom Barry, head of central Florida operations for that state's Department of Transportation.

It works like this. Say it's 5:30 p.m. and a hungry driver headed for a dinner date wants to know if the road ahead is congested. The driver turns on the dashboard computer and punches in the destination, using buttons at the side of the screen.

The car and destination appear on a map on the screen, which measures 4½ inches diagonally and reads information from a compact disk player.

As the car moves, the map does, too, in sync with the car's location. The vehicle indicator points straight ahead; the map moves under it. The system calculates speed by wheel rotation and direction by compass.

The technology has been getting a try-out in traffic-choked Los Angeles, with 25 specially equipped cars on a 13-mile stretch of the Santa Monica Freeway. The 18-month experiment, called "Pathfinder" and now winding up, uses an on-board computer map system called Travelpilot, which sells for $2,000 to $3,000.

"As long as (motorists) are given the information and some sense of how long the congestion will last, then they're willing to sit longer," said Steve Leung, chief of the traffic systems branch of the California Department of Transportation in the Los Angeles district.

The next testing ground will be Orlando, Fla., where millions of car-renting tourists need guidance every year to get to such attractions as Walt Disney World, Universal Studios Florida and Sea World.

The $8 million system, called Trav-Tek, is expected to start operating in February.

General Motors Corp. is supplying 100 computer-equipped cars for the Florida project: 75 for rental-car companies and 25 to residents. A surveillance system will monitor traffic on busy Interstate 4, which runs right through town.

A lot of money is being sunk into smart cars and smart highways, but Barry, of the Florida transportation agency, said all the investment isn't likely to solve anything.

"We don't characterize this kind of project as a panacea," Barry said, "because if you just have too many people going on one road, telling people that it isn't the way to go isn't going to fix it."

Home prices rise in U.S., sales fall off

■ Texas sales, driven by first-time buyers, rise 4.5 percent.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Prices of existing homes rose at the fastest pace in four years during the summer despite the first quarterly decline in sales since late last year, a real estate trade group said Monday.

Gains in the lower-cost, "second-tier" markets of much of the Midwest, South and West — pushed by the lowest mortgage rates in 14 years — helped boost the median price of a home by 5.5 percent in the third quarter compared to a year ago, according to a survey by the National Association of Realtors.

The increase, the biggest since an 8.3 percent gain in the first quarter of 1987, included all regions but the Northeast.

In Texas, median prices ranged from $57,500 in Amarillo to $90,300 in Dallas. Houston, with a median price of $76,700, showed the biggest increase at 6.2 percent, followed by San Antonio, $69,400, at 6.0 percent. Fort Worth, hit hard by defense-related government budget cuts, saw prices fall 2.5 percent to a median of $78,400. Texas sales were 257,300, up 4.5 percent.

But the gains were driven by first-time buyers, spurred by falling loan rates, the Realtors said. Trade-up buyers shunned the market, fearful of the greater risks involved in purchasing higher-priced homes in an uncertain economy.

"It's the same old story, but it still holds true — many consumers simply are not coming out into the market because their confidence is shot," said Harley E. Rouda, president of the trade group.

"Mortgage rates have fallen to levels unseen in 14 years, yet the only sales activity we're seeing is at the low end of the market," he added.

As a result, the Realtors said, sales fell 1.1 percent to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 3.55 million units. It was the first decline since a 11.6 percent drop during the fourth quarter of 1990 as the economy headed toward the depths of the recession.

Twenty-five states and the District of Columbia contributed to the sales loss, including a huge 26.5 percent drop in in Hawaii. Twenty-three states enjoyed sales increases including an 19.6 percent advance in Massachusetts.

Statistics on two states were not available.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Selling stock to make money accessible

By Bill Doyle

Q. I own shares of stock in a utility company, given to me many years ago by my late husband. I have the stock certificate, registered in my name. I would like to sell these shares, to make the money more accessible.

Doyle

I do not know how to go about selling the stock or where to put the money for the maximum benefit and still have access to it, without a long delay should I need it.

What advice and information can you give me?

Q. You can sell the stock through any securities brokerage firm. Simply go to a brokerage office, present the certificate and place an order to sell.

In that process, you will have to open an account with the brokerage. But that is just a formality, involving signing some papers and establishing that you own the stock. To protect itself, the brokerage will want proof you are the person in whose name the stock is registered.

The sale can be done on any business day — a "trade date." But don't expect to walk out of the brokerage office with the proceeds of the sale, which will be the selling price minus brokerage commission. That money will become available to you at the close of business on the "settlement date" — the fifth business day after the trade date.

Many brokerages are slow parting with customers' money. So, give specific instructions for the check to be mailed to you immediately after the settlement date.

To have access to the money after that, deposit it in either a savings account or interest-paying checking account at a bank, savings and loan association or credit union. Both types of accounts pay relatively low interest, but make money immediately available.

Q. A teller at the bank where I have my savings account said I should take some of the money I have in that account out and buy a certificate of deposit. She said I'd get more interest.

I don't know anything about certificates of deposit. Would you please explain them?

A. You are behind the times. But so are many other folks who do exactly what you have done. By leaving what I must assume is a large amount of money in a low-interest savings account you have passed up the opportunity to collect higher interest.

A certificate of deposit — CD, for short — is a "term" or "time" account. With such a contractual arrangement, you agree to leave a certain amount of money in the account for a specific period of time. The bank promises to pay higher interest on the CD than it does on savings accounts.

If you take money out of a CD before its maturity date, you can expect to be hit with an early withdrawal penalty. How large that penalty will be depends on the policy of the individual bank.

CDs are issued for periods ranging from less than one month to five years or more. As a rule of thumb, the longer the term the higher the interest.

Q. There was a time when all banks paid the same interest on various kinds of accounts. Bank A, Bank B and Bank C paid 5 percent on savings accounts. They all paid slightly more on one-year CDs, still more on longer term CDs. But they all paid the same, eliminating the need to "shop around" for the best rates.

Now, different banks pay different rates. Upon my return to the U.S., after working in Europe for 14 years, I now find shopping around is not only wise but necessary.

Nonetheless, I am curious. What caused this big change?

A. Passage of Depository Institutions Deregulation and Monetary Control Act of 1980.

Among other things, that massive piece of federal legislation did away with limits on interest banks were permitted to pay on various types of accounts and the early withdrawal penalties they were required to levy on CDs. The changes came in stages and became fully effective April 1, 1986.

MOONLIGHTING!
The Midland Reporter-Telegram has several distributorships which need to be filled with responsible individuals.
OFTEN ASKED QUESTIONS:
Is it worthwhile for adults also? Yes! Our current distributor force is already 90% adult and 10% youth. Morning newspaper routes are attractive for:
• ADULTS who have full-time jobs, yet want to supplement their income with a steady part-time job.
• MOTHERS who can't justify a small job and daycare, because as a distributor, you do not need daycare!
• COLLEGE STUDENTS needing a part-time job which will work with classes!
• SENIOR CITIZENS wanting regular exercise, added income, or just want to work with people, neighbors, and friends.
How much money can I make as a distributor?
Depending on the size of the distributorship from $300 to $700 monthly! Some make even more!
How long does it take?
The actually delivery takes 1 - 2 hours Monday - Saturday, and 2 - 3 hours on Sunday, again depending on the size of the distributorship. Also, a few hours a month are needed to collect from subscribers. Many distributors choose to handle some of this by putting envelopes in subscribers' papers. Collecting in person will be necessary though!
When do papers have to be delivered by?
6 a.m. Monday - Friday and 7 a.m. on Saturday, Sunday and holidays.
Do I ever get a day off?
The job requires a 7-day a week commitment. However, distributors do take days off by finding a friend or family member to substitute for them!
RESERVE YOUR DISTRIBUTORSHIP NOW!
