Smart Women Set The Spring Fashions

COUTURIERS MARK TIME FOR PRE-EASTER CUE FROM THOSE ONCE THEIR MEET FOLLOWERS

Paris, March 29.—Easter approaches with the Paris couturiers awaiting the fashionably women to give them their cues.

It is pleasing to women, they can make radical changes. But if the established modes with their ease and comfort are too deeply entrenched to admit of change, they will play ball with their clients.

Independent They know you can't force women any more about clothes. You can't shove them a style to wear, just because it is new or fashionable. They know another just because it is old.

Style arbiters know that what will determine the spring and summer mode is what the smart women will select for themselves. And such smart women have given the cue, designers must play for time.

So they have set changed lines much, though they are ready to re-establish the normal waistline when the psychological moment arrives. They will lower skirts when women insist, but not before.

Designers Waiting They have changed individual, very sharply. Chiffons and crepes are the most popular materials for daytime frocks, with satin crepe as strong as ever. Until they know how women want to then, designers are making time.

Crepe is soft and serviceable and the reverse side may be used for trimming. Chiffons are very soft and not too thick. Chiffons are less durable than either of the other materials, but they are very popular both in plain colors and in prints.

The vogue for black and white seems to have no limit in Paris, and is worked out very effectively in costume ensembles. There are stunner in deep V front. The rest is of fish-colored crepe, trimmed with crystal buttons and a deep slash made of the satin side. The skirt is bordered with bands of the crepe side. You will notice that the waistline is much bigger than usual, and that the slenderness is not compromised.

Definite Feature That flatter on the shoulder is just as much a part of the costume as the sleeve itself belongs there as a definite feature. Most of this season's dresses are finished off with a cascade at the shoulder.

The third model is a Patou frock of plain green chiffon made over a slip of exactly the same shade. Long light sleeves button all the way to the elbow, and the frock buttons up the back beneath the big bow at the back of the neck with the streamers that reach the hemline. The skirt is cut in circular shape and is so full it gives the impression of tiers.

Chiffons Simple The chiffon dress of this season is very simple in line, simple in tailored. It is self-trimmed and depends on line for its distinction. Colors for day include lavender soft greens, the new blues, gray and tan. For evening pale blue and white are particularly liked although every color is seen. In Paris, every other woman is wearing black chiffon.

Illustrating this black and white vogue is the Coopy creation photographed. The skirt is of crepe satin with pleats at each side of the front. The blouse is of white surah crepe with long light sleeves and a surplus line that winds around the back and forms a bow and the right hip. It is piped and trimmed with the black satin of which the skirt is made.

A popular version of the satin crepe is shown in tan with white corded trim on the hip. The overskirt and sleeves are of the satin side of the material with bands of the crepe side forming

The Woman's Day

By Allene Summer

There's a baby aged five weeks who can walk. It's because the baby's Pa, whose name is Dr. Carl Loeb, gave baby Harmon a bath every day in artificial sunlight of ultra violet rays. Baby also sleeps on a broad board table. Dogs and cats and other animals babies. Granting that a youngster who walks at five weeks is a novelty what of it? What do other child or parents really gain? Parents get a shortened baby-head to watch, and the baby himself is mature before his time. Dogs and cats and other animals that mature in a very few weeks are old at 10 or 12. I'm strong for the old-fashioned kid that was considered smart if he walked when aged one. It's the old, old question of what do we get from some of the so-called "advances" of human knowledge. The old law of compensation works here as elsewhere. Every "advance" brings a disadvantage—says she emphatically!

Arkansas Lady Says She Has Never Found a Better Laxative Than Theodor's Black-Draught

Mineral Springs, Ark.—"We use Black-Draught in our family of six children," says Mrs. C. E. Nutt, of this place, "and we find it a good bowel regulator. I give it to my children for colds and constipation, and it certainly is very helpful. I have never known it to fail them. Where there are so many children, it is a good idea to keep a laxative on hand, and Black-Draught is what we use."

"I have taken it myself for indigestion. I would feel dizzy, have gas and sour stomach. I would also feel a tightness in my chest. I took a good dose of Theodor's Black-Draught when I felt that way and it would relieve me. I would feel better for days."

"My husband takes Black-Draught for biliousness. He says he has never found its equal. When he has the first, heavy feeling he takes Black-Draught right and morning for a few days and he doesn't complain any more. I can do recommend Black-Draught."

Of Interest to Women

(By the Associated Press)

Chase May Day Queen

At Duke University. DURHAM, N. C.—The southern tradition, even in the colleges where education is an established fact, calls for masculine superiority. May day at Duke University, however, finds women ruling without restraint. Led by their student queen, the co-eds lord it over the campus.

Women May New Fish

Without License Fee. TOPEKA, Kan.—Found at last—a state where women have more legal rights than men. Kansas, by a new game law, permits women who enjoy outdoor life to fish without license, while men who cast their hooks into the streams must pay the yearly dollar license fee. Kansasians are amused by the law which affects the land that once belonged to the Indian, who fished when and where he pleased, while his wife stayed at home in the wigwam and did the chores.

Danish Queen May Quit

Her Royal Chateau. CANNES, France.—The fairy tale concept of royalty and palaces must disappear with so many princesses and princes fleeing to the more democratic corridors of continental hotels.

Nebraska Women Lead

To College Students. LINCOLN, Neb.—College students always pay, says Mrs. W. W. Whitfield of Lincoln, whose records of 18 years as chairman of the loan fund of the State Federation of Women's clubs show not a single bad loan.

Griffith Praises "Sorrows Of Satan"

"Certain themes are ideal for motion pictures," says D. W. Griffith, noted Paramount director. "Years ago, the writers of North and South through the Civil War, appealed to me as such a theme. That's why I produced 'The Birth of a Nation.' "Take, for instance the Satanic idea," he continues. "Coming out of the East, it was old before Christianity. Modern motion picture audiences are apt to say: 'But this old-fashioned notion of the Devil doesn't interest us.' "Quite true, but—the Devil is no longer thought of as a demon. He is a part of our civilization. Instead of considering Satan the sinister destroyer, we now think of him as a mischief-maker.

HIGHWAY PROGRAM IN TEXAS RESUMED

HUGE AMOUNT OF FEDERAL AID IS RELEASED TO STATE FOR 1927 USE

(By The Associated Press) AUSTIN, March 29 — Blocked for four months by financial and departmental troubles, the state highway program for 1927 and 1928 virtually got under way today with the announcement that federal aid with-drawn near the close of the last Ferguson highway commission's term, will be regained before a month. About $6,500,000 will be available to the state during 1927 from the national government and about $4,500,000 in 1928. Federal authorities are to re-enter the program actively with money within two or three weeks. W. R. Ely, member of the commission said. This year, the state will be credited with funds withheld during the suspension period, thus accounting the larger 1927 figures. Major projects have been at a standstill since the federal road board cut off aid regarding the financial condition of the highway department as unsatisfactory and maintenance of highways into which its money had gone, as poor.

The tickets are for the three-play production which will be given at the high school auditorium next Tuesday night. The plays to be given are: "Why They Think," "The Words of a Stranger," and "The Hot Boiler." The entire program will be presented within two hours, the committee said and the audience will be assured of a quick change between the plays. Each will be only one act long and will be filled with clever acting. Rehearsals on the plays are being conducted nightly during this week and dress rehearsals will be held the first of the week.

SHALL WOMEN SMOKE

There is much said these days in regard to women smoking. There is a strong sentiment against it of course, but as we see it the habit is growing rapidly, and it will not be many years till the young ladies of the country will be wracking their lives by the use of cigarettes just the same as the boys. One writer in the Dallas News recently comes out with a statement that rings with good sense. He says about ladies smoking:

"The habit of cigarette smoking among women and girls, the growing prevalence of which is becoming a source of alarm to social economists and others who see in it a menace to the highest and best elements in our civilization.

"As an honest man and as a moderate smoker myself, I am ready to concede that from privilege, women have the same right to smoke the standpoint of abstract right, or rather of that man has.

"But while conceding this abstract right or privilege a thousand higher and holier considerations enter a vigorous negative against the exercise of it.

"In the economy of Divine Providence woman more largely than man was made not only the custodian of the ideals of humanity, but the conservator and propagator of the influences that make for the spiritual and moral development of the race.

"The truth embodied in the old French maxim, 'Noblesse Oblige,' places on woman the solemn and inescapable obligation not to prove recreant to that high and holy trust or to even jeopardize her influence in things moral and spiritual.

"I am not a pessimist or a prophet of evil, nor do I believe that our civilization is foredoomed to go on the rocks upon which former civilizations have been wrecked.

"But I do believe that our feet as a nation are taking hold on the paths that led Rome and other empires of the past to their decline and fall, and made of them only a name on the pages of history.

"His protest is inspired by a very recent advertisement in your columns of a brand of cigarettes to which a popular movie actress gave her endorsement.

"This ad and others like it now bodily appearing in the press can have but one motive on the part of the authors, a purely selfish and mercenary one, to foster and foist on our nation a habit for which there can be little, if any justification, and which is brought with tremendous and far reaching possibilities of evil, physically, morally and spiritually."

AKIN TO OMNIPOTENCE

"We walk by faith, not by sight," Paul says. The attempt of this age—and particularly the younger generation—to reverse that maxim, many anxious commentators admonish us, is responsible for much grief, doubt, confusion and even despair.

Some of those good folk so far as to attribute the so-called suicide wave among students to this cause. "Pebbed by science or a belief in God"—or, at any rate, in the God of revelation—youth people today have not yet found an adequate substitute for that unquestioning trust. From this viewpoint they are adrift. To be sure, they have a faith in life; but that seems to have proved strangely unsatisfying. As a writer in the New York Times describes the situation:

"Self-expression fostered on experience is opposed to dictates from Sinai, from the Mount, from all the codes of moralists and philosophers. It is the standing charge against the old creeds that they distrusted life and set themselves to throw up trenchworks against it. But now it would appear that the insurgents have no faith in the flag under which they have chosen to give battle. The heroes-in-life seemingly grow more tired of it than the men who were supposed to be afraid of it."

Perhaps it may be explained why the devotees at life's altar have felt it so unsatisfying. What they have found wanting in a goal—and end and aim worthy of their devotion and commensurate with their dreams. To be worth while, life must lead somewhere. Can that be had short of a return to the implicit, childlike faith of our fathers? Evidently, the commentators noted do not think so. They strive to stem the tide of advancing thought even though all history, all experience, would show that they labor in vain. As well try to sweep back the ocean with a broom as to halt the swell of new Truth by a barrier of ancient creeds. The old has been able to keep in the procession only through compromise with the new.

It will be so in the present instance, of course. Indeed the annals of mankind's spiritual progress are but repeated tales of such experiences. If the younger generation is adrift, that is because it has fallen into the same error which entrapped so many of its predecessors: it has discarded the substance of faith along with the shadow. With characteristic cocksureness it has confused the eternal verities with the old, unacceptable forms in which they were phrased.

That mistake can be retrieved, and it will be, for men cannot live without God.

"Ye do err," said The Master, "not knowing the scriptures, nor the power of God." The Scriptures reveal the will of God and the Creation expresses His power, Francis Bacon wrote. It follows that the earnest, devout student today—as many another has done in like situation—might find the answer to his questionings in study of the Scriptures and contemplation of the Creation. Even his doubts might be resolved by such meditations. As Bacon again observes:

"God never wrought a miracle to convert an atheist, because the light of Nature is sufficient to demonstrate a Deity."

Perhaps the doubting youth awaits a Messiah, or at least a prophet, to declare for him a new faith—which is but to restate the old in terms he can understand and accept. To unbelieving Arabs, Mahomet was such a leader, teaching them (as Carlyle writes) that the world from old was the one great miracle; giving them "a glance at first hand into the very fact of things." The revitalizing power of a faith thus new-born was such that, "A poor shepherd people roaming unnoticed, in its deserts. . . a Hero-Prophet went down to them with a word they could believe; see, the unnoticed becomes world-notable, the small has grown world-great."

True faith, as the sages always have taught, has a virtue akin to omnipotence. Somehow its possessor is brought into contact with the power of God. He has tapped an inexhaustible fountain of Peace and Strength. No dogma can lead one thither; the headwaters of Truth must be sought and found at first hand.

SPRING CLEANING

The day of upheaval is a hand in the northern hemisphere! From all quarters of the land comes the echo of carpet-beaters, and the acrid smell of bonfires. Coaxed or bullied by their women the mere males have reluctantly or eagerly advanced on the attics and dug into the basements. Long-forgotten items have been rediscovered, and then evaluated in terms of today. The junk man's horse has grown even leaner under the strain of overwork and his owner is hoarse with bargaining. The old order passes.

Perhaps it is because the men are too tired after their annual effort—or perhaps it is because we lack the feminine sense of domestic duty. But can we candidly say that there is a business—or even a solitary desk—in which such an overhauling would not yield a choice collection of furnace fodder? Can we—dare we—admit that our mental equipment is equally cluttered? That there is not one of us who does not limit the range of thought by the consideration we show to outworn notions, stale prejudices, and senseless boasts?

Let us pray that no sanitary corps will carry its campaign to these fields. Let us hope that no one will find us out, less under too-critical scrutiny we are forced to become immaculate and terribly uncomfortable. Let us trust that the intellectual housewives, male and female, will not be too insistent but like our own wives they will make allowances for our weakness. Otherwise we shall be forced to experience what so often we force on others—reform without reason and justice without mercy.

Lubbock needs parks, and she needs them badly. This is one thing that Lubbock is very deficient in, and with the general topography of the country like it there is great need for something of this kind. Lubbock should by all means have something of this kind as soon as it can be made.

That big ake on the Canyon, should be no dream. It should by all means become a reality and make this a great pleasure resort. With a large lake, plenty of parks and playgrounds, thousands of people will come here to spend their vacations.

And now Texas proposes to grow her own olives. Texan can raise anything from sand up.

A good many appear desirous of becoming inefficiency experts.

OUT OUR WAY

SO THINK WE

We think there is one thing sure and that is sour kraut will always give a family a distinctive air.

We think that one thing may be said of the prohibition laws, it has changed measures. A quart of gin now will always produce a peck of troubles.

We think if the old moths would take time off chewing the rag that he might have time to consider how costly the clothes are.

We think that a lot of times the rich don't deserve all the sympathy that many of us poor fish think they do.

We think there is one story that we need never get people to believe, and that is the one that told of a person robbing a grave yard at night.

We think there are many one-eyed men in Lubbock yet. The traffic department does not want to run you in, but you are throwing yourself at the mercy of the law when you continue to shove your automobile around through the streets of the city with only one dim light burning.

We think that Lubbock can stand a great deal of cleaning up.

We think that Lubbock should have that big thousand acre lake on the canyon.

We think the highway department at Austin does not know just where it is anyway. It seems to be so hauled up that it will never be able to straighten things out.

We think that the serious mood cleaning again. Some of the pictures that are made and sent out are anything but elevating, and the same is true with some of the vaudeville performances.

IT IS REPORTED

It is reported that even over in the United States the few Chinese who are here, seem to be on the war path now according to reports that were sent out to newspapers a few days ago.

It is reported that China does not know how to make an automobile, and that the country, and if they were on the coast Uncle Sam and Johnnie Bull they possibly will never know.

That Lubbock will soon have another railroad. Collection of the funds for the right-of-way are to start soon.

That from now on out there will be no stray dogs or little streets at Lubbock. The city commissioners have passed an ordinance ordering their water.

That Lubbock and the Tech will soon be hosts to more than 2,000 high school students of the South Plains when the district intercollegiate meet is held here in April.

That Lubbock business men will again have wholesale exercising this summer in the organization of a city baseball league which will permit their participation. The league has been of much benefit to the men in the past and will be of more in the future.

On Ready-Made Habits

By GLENN FRANK

President of University of Wisconsin a fellow creature's mind is a sacred thing.

You may enter into that holy of holies once a year shoeless.

This in effect, was the underlying philosophy of influences that guided forward Bowen, one of the really great teachers that nineteenth century England produced.

He respected the attitude of his students. He knew that he had no business trying to inject into their minds by force his ready-made habits or ready-made theories of life and conduct.

He knew that any habits or theories of conduct worth the having must be accepted from the student rather than imposed from the teacher. He knew that there were no "god habits" in the abstract, that habits must fit the man.

The life of Edward Bowen should be studied at least once a year by those who busy themselves with the business attempt to foist upon others their particular sets of habits or methods of work.

Lord Ribbles, in a sensible essay on habit, effectively disposes of the idea that the same habits suit everyone.

"Take for example the arrangement of papers," says Lord Ribbles. "The late Lord Halsbury was famous for the clearness of his mind, and for his power of setting forth complicated facts and arguments in lucid form. It, however, you had seen him in the House of Lords preparing to deliver judgment the way in which he handled his papers must have reminded you of a witch stirring her cauldron.

"Interests" Behind Gold Rush

These two little "interests" were active in the discovery of gold at Wagoner, Tex. They are the 8-month-old twin children of Mrs. Frank Harrison, whose son, Frank, Jr., 18, was one of the discoverers of gold. The twins, Hubbell and Louie, furnished the motive.

Today's Poem

It takes a lot of letters to make up the alphabet. And two or three of them are very easy to forget. They're hardly any use at all for any of those three! The vowels are the busy ones, A, E, I, O, U. They're twice the work that the other letters have to do. I don't know why it is that grown-up people always choose to tell us children to be sure and mind our P's and Q's. They're funny looking letters, particularly Q.

LAUGHS

He—So you like my book? What part especially appealed to you? She—The quotations from Tennyson.

Too Old to Learn "Now, Sam," said a southern magnate in a colored prisoner, "I want you to tell me just how you stole that chicken."

Oh! Lady reprovingly to port child actress—Little girls should be seen and not heard.

P. C. A.—I fill the bill then—I'm in the groove.

Peroration An imported orator was thundering against a candidate for justice of the peace.

"Upon what most does this, our Caesar feed?" he demanded. "I'm a vegetarian," piped up the somewhat frightened candidate. That seemed to settle that.

Awkward "Lena," said little Mollie to her big sister at breakfast, "did you tell daddy?"

"Tell daddy what?" "Why, you told Mr. Billings last night that he kissed you again you'd tell dad—and he did it again. I saw him!"

Happy Magazine.

His Guess "My poor husband was a wonderful artist," sighed the landlady, as she looked at the picture. "and always said he found inspiration in my cooking."

"A sculptor, I presume," said the gloomy boarder, surveying his best work.

WEST TRIUMPHS OVER EAST IN CAGE TILTS

SOUTHWEST AND MIDWEST SURVIVE IN NATIONAL INTERSCHOLASTIC CONTESTS NOW HOLDING SPOT LIGHT IN CHICAGO

(By the Associated Press)
CHICAGO, March 29.—High school boys from western states marched through their fans in a steady parade today in the early play at the National interscholastic basketball tournament of the University of Chicago.

Nightfall found Arizona, Nebraska, North and South Dakota, and Illinois teams survivors of the first round and counted among the victors teams from New Hampshire, Tennessee, Ohio, Oklahoma and South Carolina.

Two curious events of the Mississippi river fell by the wayside. Muscatine, Iowa, dropped a contest to London, Ky. 13 to 12, and Dayton high of Chicago, Ill., toppled Durant, Okla., 29 to 13.

Lincoln Sets Pace
Lincoln, Neb., high school set the pace for its rivals by rolling up the highest score ever accumulated in a single game at the nine year old event. Its red juggernaut crashed through the lids from Alpine, Tenn., for a 71 to 6 victory, and Fisher, Cornhusker, forward, set the victorious scoring mark for the tournament by making 26 points.

Grand Forks, N. D., came through to a clean cut 28 to 23 victory over the White high team of Toledo, Ohio, to put out of the conflict the quarter coached by William Zorn, whose famous fall back for the Maroons.

Huron high school of South Dakota, gave the crowd its biggest thrill with a two point victory 22 to 20, over Greenville, S. C., in a game that went for a five minute extra period before the winner could be decided.

The boys from Stafford, Arizona, started the tourney by downing Franklin, N. H., 30 to 26.

The South had a brace all its own when Fairmont, W. Va., engaged Tallahassee, Alabama and the former team won handily 28 to 12.

City League Meet Is Called For Friday

An organizational meeting of the city league is to be held in the office of the Avoca Athletic Club, Friday night, when matters pertaining to continuation of the city league, which had its inception last year, will be thoroughly discussed, and rules probably a little more stringent than last year will be advanced, it was announced Tuesday.

Various organizations in the city that contemplate entering a team in the league are asked to send representatives to the meeting, duly empowered to speak and act, to the end that at least some definite move toward organization may be taken. This is imperative, it was announced, and those who are asked to be prepared to take definite action. Only representatives for each contemplating entry are asked to be present.

Such an organization is looked upon as the only baseball activity that the city will offer during the summer months, for apparently professional and semi-professional ball are both beyond the reach of local fans.

Sixteen Schools To Enter Local Meet

Sixteen schools in Lubbock county have filed entry bids in the three classes of competition for the annual county interscholastic league track and field meet that is to be held here next Friday and Saturday, it was announced Tuesday by Howard Nolan, of the Lubbock high school, who is in charge of arrangements for the meet.

Three teams are entered in class A competition, and the other thirteen are about equally divided between class B and class C.

Literary events will begin Friday afternoon at 7 o'clock with declamation contests at the high school auditorium, followed by English Saturday morning.

Athletic events in all three classes, football will be held Saturday, with class B and rural entries to compete on Saturday on Tech field, and class A entries Saturday afternoon, beginning promptly at 1:30. All contestants are warned to be on time for the various events.

Vets Will Start If Ready, Mack States

By NEA Service
PT. MYERS, Fla., March 29.—What disposition does Connie Mack intend to make of his trio of recently acquired veterans? By Cobb, Eddie Collins and Zach Wheat?

The tactics manager of the Athletics, who seldom speaks out of turn and always says a mouthful when he opens up, has definitely set to rest all rumors and doubts.

"Cobb will positively start the season at second base," says Mack. "He has reported in fine shape, says his leg is not troubling him at all and his confidence is with me only start him."

"If Cobb and Wheat are in shape when the season opens both will play regularly. Wheat in left, Cobb in right, with Simmons in center."

"I have no desire to rush either. I am allowing them to condition themselves, feeling that each knows what is best for him and how much work he can stand."

"Both look fine and feel sure they will be fit to answer when the bell rings. If either fails, I have French and Lammie in reserve. The latter is such a fine hitter that there is always the chance that he may crowd any one out of a berth."

"Probably neither Cobb or Wheat will be able to go the full route, but what I hope they are going to be in there, with those big bats they swing."

East Plays West In Women's Golf Meet

PINEHURST, N. C., March 29 (AP)—A young golf player from the middle west and a veteran from the east will share tomorrow to determine the 1927 champion of the United North and South women's golf tournament.

They will be Miss Virginia Van Wie of Chicago, a successful but comparatively unknown player, and Miss Gloria Collett, Providence, R. I., 1926 times North and South champion and former holder of the national women's title.

Playing a fine brand of golf, Miss Collett defeated Miss Ethel Quier of Reading, Pa., 3 and 2, in today's semi-final, while Miss Van Wie defeated Mrs. E. H. Baker, Jr., of Belmont, Mass., 5 and 3.

Pitching To Make Or Break Nats

WATCH SENATORS IF VETS HOLD UP AND ROOKIES COME THROUGH, WARNS EVANS

The best outfield in the major leagues is the Washington Senators, says Billy Evans, who is in charge of the club's pitching staff.

"Goose" Goslin, Tris Speaker and Sam Rice. Some folks may not agree with that, but they will have to admit that it is a powerful trio of fly-chasers. They can hit too, don't forget that. The trio is considered by all experts to be one of the best ever gathered together. Experts class it with the famous Hooper-Lewis-Speaker combination of the Boston Red Sox many, many years ago.

President Clark Griffith and Manager Stanley Harris are well aware of the pitching problem the club faces.

Washington at the present time has the biggest squad ever brought south, 41 players and 22 of them are pitchers.

Clark Griffith, in an effort to bolster his pitching staff, has spent considerably more money since the close of the 1926 season than any other club, except in other major leagues.

So interested is Griffith that he spends several hours each day handing out advice to the rookies.

The real value of the recruit pitchers can only be determined by actual competition.

Of the score of rookies working out, several impressed him rather favorably. I liked the style of Bob Lurie, a southpaw. He reminds me in action of Herb Pennock, who is quite some left-hander.

Two husky right-handers, Hadley and Lisenber, who performed in the Southern League, are "good looking" prospects. Dick Coffman, from the same circuit, is also.

Two recruits of last fall, Al Crowder and Donnie Jones, should stick. Once Crowder gets control he will be tough to beat.

Then there is Hollis Thurston from the White Sox and Garland Braxton from New York, obtained in trades. Unquestionably these two pitchers will help the Washington staff.

Washington certainly has quantity when it comes to pitching; if the quality is there, watch the Senators step.

ENGLISH MYSTERY AUTOMOBILE DRIVEN BY MAJOR SEGRAVE BREAKS WORLD SPEED MARK WITH 203 MILES HOUR

(By the Associated Press)
DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Mar. 29.—England, stern of its rolling and undulating hills by invading Americans, tonight held clubs to one little about which there could be no doubt—the world's automobile speed record.

Invading American speeder, Major H. G. Segrave, intercepted British racing driver, today sent his flaming red "mystery" automobile zooming over the sands of the beach here at an average of 203.123 miles an hour in two one-mile speed trials. Malcolm Campbell's 173.2 miles an hour record established in England and Tommy Milton's American mark of 158.94 were dented by the giant twin twelve cylinders motor car.

Hands Blistered
His face blistered for wind and his wrists sore from holding the huge machine on the beach, the Englishman's thoughts turned to home, surrendering his seat to a companion, Major Segrave, who sat with friends at the Daytona Beach by radio phone. He told them of his achievement.

The race understood his wife and his father had listened in on the conversation.

A hot mid-morning sun beat down on the white sand as Major Segrave achieved his duplicate 100 mph position down a lane lined on each side by thousands of persons. In the face of a gusting wind he began the northward pass. For four miles he battled the wind, at his second one-mile speed run for the date over the mile mark road course.

In 17.94 seconds he had covered the mile an average of 203.123 miles an hour.

Major Segrave is in his back seat, leaning forward for the final trial. The timing device coast, he plunged forward on his roaring return. His white, strained face could be seen as the machine careened past the judges' stand, caught in the wind and swayed, yawning down course, flags and ribbons flew in an arc in the wind. The whirling wheels had left only a faint trace in the hard packed sands, but on the records of the American automobile association, they placed an indelible mark. The southbound mile was made in 17.99 seconds, an average of 201.623 miles an hour.

Major Segrave came to America to reclaim for England some of the glory lost in the realm of sports and made good by carrying out his threat to travel 100 miles or more an hour.

MATADOR BASKETBALL LETTER AWARDS ARE ANNOUNCED AT OFFICE OF COACH FREELAND AND SWEATERS ARE DUE SOON

Fugazy Welter Bout Approved By Bosses

NEW YORK, March 29 (AP)—Humbert J. Fugazy today won his three-fight deal with Tex Rickard in the renewed competition for the rival promoters for major outdoor pugilistic attractions when the state athletic commission approved a world welterweight title fight between Pete Lee, champion, and Joe Dunbar, of Baltimore.

The expected withdrawal of opposition to the match by Rickard was followed by a postponement of the contest for May 24 to June 2. It will be held at the Polo Grounds by Fugazy fifteen days after a scheduled heavyweight elimination fight between Jack Sharkey and Jim Maloney which also was approved today. A top price of $22 was fixed by the commission for the latter match.

Rickard yielded a prior claim on the service of Dunbar, who had signed a blanket contract to box three times under the Madison Square Garden promoter's direction.

At the same time Rickard applied for a ruling by the commission on such agreements to guide him in future negotiations.

Chairman James A. Parley said the commission would recommend that Willie Harmon be matched against the winner of the title bout.

Eight letter awards for the Tech college Matador basketball squad were announced from the office of E. Y. Freeland, athletic director Tuesday evening and awards of sweaters are to be made in a short time. Letter awards were made to athletes from eight Texas towns the most of which are in this immediate section of the state, as follows:

Forwards—Cordell Reems, Sweetwater; Leslie Jennings, Lubbock; and Alma Pace, Memphis.

Guard—Benson Walker, Mission; Dennis Vincent, Lamesa; and M. C. Hunter, Plainview.

Center—Chester Weaver, Loveland and Kenneth Memphis, Littlefield.

John McGraw Rises To Give Four Whole Reasons Why Giants Are Faster Entry

By NEA Service SARASOTA, Fla., March 28.—John McGraw, starting his twenty-fifth year as manager of the New York Nationals, is pretty well satisfied with his ball club.

The brainy leader of the Giants is very emphatic in the belief that he is in charge of a first division ball club, one that should never be lower than third.

"You know a ball club that is able to stick around consistently in the first division is always a pennant possibility," is the way McGraw couches his opinion as to the chances of the Giants to win the bunting this year.

"McGraw has four definite reasons for believing the Giants are a better club than last year. He names them in this order: Hornsby, Roush, Grimes and DeVorger.

"Hornsby is my style player," says McGraw. "Frisch isn't Hornsby is a star with a thick skin, who can weather criticism when it is coming to him. Frisch is temperamental and thin-skinned. He had to be handled with kid gloves. However, my gloves finally wore out petting him. That was his finish.

"My ball club has needed a really great center fielder for several years. No team can be classed as a pennant possibility unless it has a brilliant performer in center field.

"I sacrificed Kelly to get Roush, feeling that I could weaken my outer defense, if able to strengthen my outer defense.

"Grimes has always been a winning pitcher. A fighter. With a club like the Giants back of him, he should be good for close to 26 victories, maybe more.

"DeVormer looks like a big league catcher, despite the fact that he failed to stick with the Yankees and the Red Sox. I am positive he will greatly help my catching. Speaking of catchers, I have a young man by the name of Cummings who is a great prospect.

"Like most every other major league manager, my pitching has me a bit worried. It may come and then it may not.

"Of my new men, I feel like Clarkson, with Toledo last year, will help me. I am also most favorably impressed with a young left hander, Luis Almada, sent on to be by Sam Crawford, former Detroit star.

Main Drag Doin's

Yesterday while strolling down the Main Drag, I saw:

A man that wanted to whip me for mentioning him in this column.

A girl that turned up her nose and froze a young man with just one look when she offered to take her riding.

Delivery boy for grocer who was making hay while the sun shone by doing his work and conducting a petting party down Main street at the same time—the flapper who was riding with him did look something like temptation.

Jackrabbit traveling down west Broadway at midnight.

A man who refused to enter his home for more than an hour because a black cat had run all the way around it.

Some college boys trying to flirt with a pretty show girl who didn't care to do so.

Small boy with a Hellike wooden snake having great fun scaring girls on the downtown streets.

Boy who turned a mouse loose in a local theatre—several screams over the audience announced the rodent's presence and route of travel.

command of the guard at the Japanese consulate at Nanking at the time of the outrage there last Thursday.

Hari Kari Lieutenant Araki who is in a grave condition, sought to himself aboard the Japanese flagship Tone this morning after reporting details of the snacking of the consulate. Apparently he was watched down by a sense of responsibility for the events there, although it was stated he had held the fire of his force of seven sailors only because he feared shooting would mean the massacre of those under his protection.

The evacuation of Hankow by foreigners is proceeding rapidly. Today the steamer Suwo arrived here with 285 refugees, all but one of whom were Americans. Most of them were members of the Scandinavian-American mission from the interior.

American still remaining in Hankow, it was stated, numbered 128, including 20 women and 17 children.

With the situation in Hankow described as disturbing, 250 Americans left the city between Thursday and Sunday, most of them coming from the interior. Those remaining will be evacuated as soon as possible.

Reports from Peking say all the American members of the staff of Peking Union Medical college, alarmed by the Nanking incident are planning to leave for home immediately. The police in Peking, which is the capital of the northern government are actively engaged in a hunt for nationalist agitators there.

Lull in Storm WASHINGTON, March 29 (AP)—The lull in the storm of Chinese anti-foreigners which burst at Nanking last week, continued to be reflected tonight in official government reports.

Whether it marks a definite suppression of the movement, leaving the Nanking outrages as an isolated case of a breakdown of discipline among nationalist troops, or merely a period of waiting for the outbreak of a greater storm, was not clear.

Official reports from Nanking re-emphasized the belief of American investigators there that "the campaign of terrorism and insult to foreigners was not only officially countenanced and directed (by nationalist leaders), but even pre-arranged."

Was Outrageous "The incident at Nanking could hardly have been more outrageous," a Nanking message relayed by Minister MacMurray at Peking said, adding that there had been two attempts at criminal assault on American women during the riotous.

"Suggestion is made of the immediate withdrawal of all Americans in Nationalist territory and the undertaking of some action sufficiently strong to deter the perpetration of similar incidents elsewhere."

On the heels of this grave picture of what might have undertaken the Nanking rioting came a report from Rear Admiral Hough, still at that port that the situation at Wuhu, farther up the Yangtze river, was worse and trouble might be expected there at any moment. No details were given.

State department records do not show how many Americans are at Wuhu. There were 58 American nationals registered there last year. Some are known to have left but others may have come in from surrounding mission stations.

Withdrawal Continues MacMurray already has taken steps to urge Americans to withdraw from Nationalist controlled territory, even at Canton.

Today's dispatches showed he had amplified this by new appeals and promises to all Americans remaining in northern China province south of the Yellow river. Spread of the danger area into Shantung province, heretofore solidly held by the northern allies, was disclosed in a message from Consul A. G. Swaney, at Tsinanfu.

Evacuation of the Americans from the southern section of Shantung was proceeding satisfactorily, he said, and Tsinanfu itself remained quiet but with "pronounced anti foreign feeling" evident. Precautions for protection of foreigners in this territory has been taken.

Radio Bosses Talk Needs of Industry

WASHINGTON, March 29 (AP)—Setting out to chart its general policy, the federal radio commission at the first of hearings called to develop the settlement of radio interests as guide today heard the views of more than a dozen representatives of the industry on proposals to remedy the existing congestion of the air.

Unanimous objection to any widening of the broadcasting band, now spread between 200 and 545 meters, to accommodate the 733 stations now operating on 89 wave lengths in the United States was expressed by manufacturers, engineers and amateur radio experts.

The only other phase of the subject taken up today, proposed limitation of power of stations, developed some differences of opinion.

Experts introduced by Frank D. Scott, special counsel for the National Association of Broadcasters and the radio manufacturers association told the commission that to expand the existing band would render practically useless approximately $50,000,000 worth of receiving sets because they were not built for reception on wave lengths other than those now in use.

They added that sets now held by dealers and those being designed by manufacturers also would have to be scrapped and that experiments thus far had not proven that sets to meet the proposed changes were feasible.

"It is," H. H. Hottel, a Port Worth, Texas, announcer told the commission that limitation of power should be considered from a geographical standpoint.

Fines Are Remitted In Murder Hearing

ARLINGTON, Texas, March 29 (AP)—All fines except four assessed yesterday in district court at Sweetwater against 42 absent witnesses in the case against L. Paul Kirk, charged with murder, were remitted today by Judge Fritz R. Smith.

The fines, which ranged from $250 to $500, totalled $12,300. In remitting them Judge Smith rebuked them for failing to appear when the case was called and warned them that in the future they must obey a court summons.

All but two of the witnesses appeared in court this morning. Judge Smith this morning denied the motion for continuance presented yesterday by the defense and the selection of the jury began.

Kirk, whose home is in Abilene, is charged with the murder of Crawford A. Taber in Runnels county in December, 1923. In the previous trial at Ballinger the jury failed to reach a verdict.

Taber was slain after he and his father-in-law, J. N. Wells, had been called from the Wells' home at night. In a battle that followed, both Wells and five men Taber was slain.

SENIORS TO PLAN GIFT TO COLLEGE

In their meeting yesterday afternoon, the members of the first graduating class of the college laid plans for the presentation of a magnificent gift to the college. Discussion of various means of the financing the project were held but no final action was made on the plan. In a party which Dean James M. Gordon is giving the class, Saturday night, April 3, the plans for financing the deal will be made.

Several plans were discussed and the seniors were of the general opinion that the gift should be made within their own selves and not ask for class presented a plan whereby the first class would start the movement and either direct the work or lay aside enough funds to build the foundation of the archway and then the other three classes which are in school now to finish the structure. The arch is to be built along the Spanish lines in keeping with the other buildings of the campus and the cost has been estimated at several thousand dollars. At the end of the four years a dedicatory ceremony would be held in which members of all of the classes would take part.

This plan met with some opposition with several members of the class and it is not known whether it will be employed or not. A definite decision as to the nature of the gift and the cost will be decided at the meeting next Saturday.

PRE-LAW CLUB HOLDS FIRST ANNUAL BANQUET

Gathering around the banquet table for the first time, the members of the Pre-Law club held their first annual banquet at the Lubbock Hotel last night. Fifty club members, their ladies, and faculty members were present. W. D. Benson, Jr., reigned as toastmaster and the program opened with a short talk by Guy Capton, president of the club, on the history and purpose of the organization. Following this, T. J. Kirby made an address vindicating the name and reputation of the toastmaster whom he had libeled and for which he had been convicted.

Dr. W. A. Jackson spoke of the work of pre-law students and their preparation for study, emphasizing a general education before their specialization. He was followed by H. C. Pender who paid a tribute to the pre-law students for their work. Coach E. Y. Freeland made a short talk. R. A. Underwood, member of the board of directors of the college, spoke of the spirit of the school and complimented the club for its work. He was followed by President Paul V. Horn who, after springing a number of jokes on the profession, presented a wonderful standard of ideals of the profession.

Honor guests were President and Mrs. Horn, Dr. and Mrs. Jackson, R. A. Underwood, Mr. and Mrs. E. Y. Freeland, and H. C. Pender.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE GARRETT FOLSON is stabbed to death while swimming at Ocean Town, N. J.

Folson's swimming companion had been ROGER NEVILLE, a business partner; MRS. HELEN BARNABY and CAMELITA VALDON.

ANASTASIA FOLSON eccentric and masterful sister of the dead man, arrives and takes command. At the inquest it is learned that the death weapon was a pickaxe, an Oriental knife and that it had been bought on the boardwalk.

It is learned that one CROYDON SEARS is a fancier of curious weapons. He is admitted buying two knives but not the pickaxe.

ANASTASIA engages TITUS RIGGS, an architect, to work on the case, DAN PELTON, the dead man's nephew, arrives and is intrigued by some curious French dolls in Folson's room.

Croydon Sears sends for FLEMING STONE, famous detective. He tells him Folson had been black-mailing him and he had lied at the inquest but was innocent.

Stone meets either of the circle, including NEB BARRON and his wife, MADELINE. He notes the latter's nervousness and questions her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXIX

"I MIBAN to question everybody concerned," Mrs. Barron said. "I don't talk to you alone only because I think it less distasteful to you than to be asked questions before others."

"You say everybody concerned. I am not concerned in any definite way."

"No, but you stood next the man at the time of the—"

"Not next to him. My husband was between us."

"Oh, yes. And you both had been talking to him?"

"Not I. He addressed Mr. Barron, who, of course, had no reply."

"I see. And you, then, never spoke to Garrett Folson?"

"Never."

"You never saw him until that morning?"

"I saw him the night before in the lounge of the hotel. But I did not meet him."

"Now just one more thing. You know Mrs. Valdon?"

"Slightly."

"You're not friends?"

"Merely acquaintances. She is very beautiful, but she is not the type of woman I make friends with. I like her companion, Mrs. Barnaby, better."

"You know nothing of Mrs. Valdon to her disadvantage? I'm sorry to be so plain spoken, but I know that we both have at heart only the cause of Croydon Sears and any possible side light I can get on this matter may help us."

"Then I will answer frankly. I know nothing of Mrs. Valdon, to her definite detriment, except that she tries to bribe the servants to let her go into the rooms that were occupied by Mr. Folson."

"She did do that? Do you mean she continues to do so?"

"Yes. My nurse knows her chambermaid and I insisted on her telling me."

"That is helpful and you have done right in letting me know. Rest assured such information will only be used in furthering the cause of justice, and it is through some such chain of knowledge that we often reach the facts."

The whole party arrived back at the hotel about the same time, and though they gay scenes in the lounge and dining rooms was attractive, Stone declared his readiness to meet Mrs. Folson and her nephew and have a conference on the business that had brought him down.

The Barrons were excused from attendance and Robin Sears and Angel Fair were sent away to dance.

These Croydon Sears and the detective accepted an invitation, brought them by Titus Riggs, to hold the session in the rooms that had been Folson's and were now occupied by Dan Pelton.

This suited Stone and they went there at once.

"I am glad you are here, Mr. Stone," Anastasia said in her straightforward way. "I wish I might have engaged you. I have one detective already," she said, glancing at Riggs, "and I find no fault with him. But he has not your experience, whatever talent he may possess. Now, I hope you two will work together, for there is much to be done. I know, as well as you do, that Mr. Sears is coming into notice, and if ever there was a ridiculous suspect, he is it."

"Why?" and Stone looked at her severely. "I came down here, Miss Folson, to save my friend, Croydon Sears, from a possible false accusation, and if so lightly tossed aside the danger of such, I shall think I came unnecessarily."

"Maybe unnecessarily for that effect, but there is still the question of who killed my brother. That has to be answered, Mr. Stone, and if you will take it upon yourself to solve the mystery, I will glad pay any bill you may present."

"To my mind, Miss Folson," Stone said, "the best and surest way to save Mr. Sears' name from unmerited accusation is to find the real murderer. In this I am quite sure, you agree with me."

"Yes, indeed," was the emphatic response. "And, the way it looks to me, we are just starting out on a new investigation, or rather on a new phase of the investigation, but better equipped for an intelligent inquiry."

Fleming Stone looked at the speaker with evident admiration.

"A wise judge could not put the matter more accurately," he said, "and I am glad to work with and for you and your colleagues."

"And for heaven's sake get somewhere," said Pelton, who, while saying little, had been listening to Stone and his aunt. "I'm no detective myself, but I think if I were I'd work hard and faster than most."

"He's hitting six," Titus Riggs said, with no display of amoyance. "But we know, don't we Mr. Stone, that the great intellects of the true detectives work slowly? That the snap judgments and hasty conclusions of the amateurs are of little worth compared to the astounding results of our deliberation and meditation."

The closing of himself with the famous Stone was forgivable because of Riggs' whimsical tone and good-humored smile.

"We'll try to compass both," Stone said; "we'll hope to get the speedy results Mr. Pelton so much desires, together with the astounding results promised by Mr. Riggs. And now to business. Mr. Pelton, your part will be to show me all the papers of your late uncle's that have any bearing on the matter of his death. Or better still, all the papers of his you have down here, for it's easy to be mistaken as to the bearing of a document."

"All right, Mr. Stone," was the reply, but the observant eye of the detective noted a disinclination to comply with the request.

"Perhaps that will be our first step," Stone went on, determined to push the matter, since Pelton was so obviously averse to it.

Yet it was not a lengthy procedure. After the neat bundles of letters and papers were brought from the desk and looked over, Miss Folson directed her nephew to produce the suitcase that he had brought from New York, with additional data in it.

To this Pelton showed unmistakable unwillingness. He said he had mislaid the key to the suitcase, but his aunt brought him up with a round turn.

"Nonsense!" she exclaimed. "You haven't done anything of the sort and if you have, it doesn't matter. We can break it open. You bring out that suitcase, Dan."

Pelton went to the closet to get it, and before he returned he could be heard opening the catch.

"Bring it just as it is please," said Fleming Stone calmly, wondering if Dan Pelton was after all concerned in the affair.

"Don't you dare meddle with it," cried Miss Anastasia, jumping up and going to her nephew. "Whatever else you do, Dan? What monkey tricks are you up to now?"

"Nothing of the sort," he returned. "I had put some of my own letters in here, and that's all."

As he talked he had set the small case on a table and, flinging it open, was looking amazedly at its contents. Apparently something surprised him, but in a moment he gave a sigh of relief, and said:

"There you are, Mr. Stone. I didn't put mine in there after all. I thought I did."

"Forgetful youth," Stone said, lightly. "Well, here are yours, then?"

But no more evidential documents were found in the lot than in the other, and Stone's suspicions of Dan Pelton took a new lease of life. The young man acted nervous and anxious until the suitcase was opened, then he was calm and at ease. What had he expected that he didn't find?

Stone began to see this affair had ramifications that he hadn't heretofore suspected. And if Dan Pelton was a factor in the case it behooved an investigator to walk delicately for Pelton had the whip hand in his possession of all documents and letters.

The more Stone thought about it the more sure he was that something had been abstracted from the suitcase during Pelton's absence from the room, and that whatever it was had given Pelton satisfaction rather than other wise. Therefore it was something that Pelton did not want him to see. Therefore it was something that incriminated Pelton or somebody Pelton desired to shield.

This was one of those swift flashes of intuition and sudden enlightenment that come at a time, and Stone was quick to act upon it. He determined to find out if any one friendly to Pelton had accomplished this act, whatever it was, that had changed him from a spirit of apprehension and fear to a satisfied, contented mood.

SEVERE BURNS ARE SUFFERED BY MRS. ACTON BAKER

Severe burns about the hands and head were received by Mrs. Acton Baker Tuesday morning, when a dress she was cleaning in a tub of gasoline in a room with a lighted oil stove, was ignited, enveloping her in flames. But for the quick action on the part of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Baker probably would have been seriously injured.

She sustained bad burns on both hands, a light burn on her cheek, and signed hair, but after she was treated at her home on the corner of 10th street and Avenue O, was able to be up.

The celestial telescope
CELESTIAL telescopes are the most popular of goldfish. Their shoe-button eyes look up—and only up. So they see only the food that floats. All that sinks is lost to them forever.
Don't be a celestial telescope when you read your newspaper. Get all the news—not just headlined items you can skim off the surface. Get it all—read the advertising too!
Advertising is vital, pocketbook news. It tells you what is new, what is good and where your money will go further. It helps you check values, compare prices and make certain you are getting just what you want.
It shows you how to spend your money wisely—and that is the finest kind of economy.

"You are sentenced To Ten Years In Your Home Without the Comforts of Electricity."
A CRUEL SENTENCE!
If you were deprived by law of the advantages, comforts and conveniences of electricity in your home you would feel that you were given an awful sentence—and you would!
Can you imagine a home in Lubbock where electricity is sold so cheaply that doesn't have its conveniences? Imagine an oil lamp instead of the bright, cheery lights. Remember the old Sad irons, the hand-scrub board, or inefficient and dangerous oil stoves, hot coal stoves, etc.
Certainly you are taking advantage of every electric socket in your home. No other power so dependable and satisfactory, no other heat so clean and satisfactory.

WHEAT STRONGER CHICAGO, March 29 (AP)—Evidence of export transactions of unusual magnitude strengthened the wheat market, although at first prices were inclined to sag. Closing quotations on wheat were firm, 5-8 cent to 1 cent higher, with corn 1-2 cent to 3-4 cent gain, and provisions varying from 16 cent decline to 11 cent advance.

Corn developed independent firmness owing to tightness of receipts. Shipping demand from the east, however, remained laggard. Oats followed corn.

Provisions were irregular, influenced by conflict of impulses from the hog market and from grain.

COTTON GOODS STEADY NEW YORK, March 29 (AP)—Road orders for finished cotton goods came along steadily today, prompt shipments being asked for. Primary gray cloth markets were quiet and steady.

Burlap markets were firm, with domestic prices rather higher, chief demand being for spots. Silk goods were in more active call for immediate delivery.

COTTON OIL BETTER NEW YORK, March 29 (AP)—Cotton seed oil was moderately active today and after an irregular start turned firm on cotton house buying, in sympathy with the firmness of spot oil and the steadiness of lard and cotton.

Final prices were at the best and 1/2 to 1 1/2 points above the previous close. After opening at gains of 6 to 10 points prices sagged and then took on strength due to prospects for more value, manufacturers advance of May shipment and the seriousness of the high water situation in the Mississippi valley. The close showed net gains for the day of 15 to 17 points.

During the morning a steady improvement was shown after losing a few points on profit taking. At the high today May was at 14.37, July 14.52 and October 14.42. In the final trading 6 to 7 points were lost on realizing.

Exports today totaled 26,958 bales.

Wool sales broader BOSTON, March 29 (AP)—Sales of foreign wool to be shipped abroad have reached a steady level, according to best authority. Prices abroad have been maintained for some time on higher levels than have prevailed here.

A continued strong demand for wool in markets of the foreign consuming countries at these higher prices stimulated the inquiry which has resulted in this recent movement.

Floyd County Proud Of School System

Special to The Avalanche
 LOCKNEY, March 29.—Floyd county boasts one of the best public school systems of any county in the state taking into consideration the number of inhabitants in the county. According to the scholastic census of 1926 there were 2517 children in the school age in this county.

There are two independent school districts and nine common school districts in this county.

Floyd county has one of the best school buildings that are to be had. There are 12 rural school buildings that are made of brick and a contract let for one more making a total of 13.

In the rural districts there are 78 teachers employed and 47 teachers employed in the two independent school districts.

The people of this county are prepared to take care of their teachers—there are 15 teacherages in Floyd county.

The average school term of the rural school in this county is eight months, that of the independent districts nine months.

Terry County Had Bumper Corn Crop

Special to The Avalanche
 BROWNFIELD, March 29.—A few months ago an estimate was made that Terry county would produce as much as 600,000 bushels of corn and would sell at least 200,000, but it is now evident that this was too low and that not less than 800,000 bushels would be harvested with as much as 450,000 bushels marketed, as sales for the county have passed 300,000 mark with an active movement still in progress.

It has been known for years that this is an exceptionally good corn country and until a few years ago it was the principal crop, but high prices paid for cotton brought a change and the acreage planted to it was gradually reduced until it finally occupied a negligible place in the farm program. It was not until 1926, when the early freeze of the previous year, which destroyed fully one half of the cotton crop, brought our growers to the realization that a one crop system was not safe to follow and as a consequence about one third of the cultivated land was planted to corn with the result that when the price of cotton slumped to where it would not pay the cost of picking and ginning, our farmers had something else with which to meet their obligations and as a consequence people as a whole are in much better financial condition than they were one year ago with practically all merchants reporting better business for the first three months of this year over the same period last year with collection better than was thought possible of achievement at the beginning of the year.

TEXAS HAS LARGEST NUMBER OF JUNIOR COLLEGES

Special to The Avalanche
 AUSTIN, March 29.—Of the three hundred or more junior colleges in the United States, Texas has more than any other state, according to statistics in the School of Education of the University of Texas. Texas claims also the distinction of having the oldest surviving junior college in the United States, the Decatur Baptist college at Decatur.

Junior colleges in Texas are divided into three classes: Public, private and state. Texas does not lead in the number of public junior colleges, but recently a movement has been begun to place or establish more of these schools under public supervision. Considerable attention and discussion were given this question by the legislature during the session which has just closed.

Removal Of Differentials To Save This Section Thousands of Dollars Annually

Special to The Avalanche
 SLATON, March 29.—Towns on the South Plains have been greatly stimulated by the West Texas Chamber of Commerce securing the removal of freight differentials at all main line points on the Santa Fe which went into effect on February 15. These differentials ranged from two and one-half to eight cents per hundred pounds on various commodities, and in the aggregate were costing the score of towns affected more than a quarter of a million dollars annually. In addition the differentials held back development in the section by preventing the establishment of numerous industrial plants, which were needed and which were retarded in locating on the South Plains. The adjustment follows the previous reduction in differentials on interstate traffic of all classes about two years ago, and also follows work in the Shreveport case when differentials were removed on all merchandise, including agricultural implements, cotton seed and products, grain and products, etc. Slaton is now in common point territory with respect to traffic due to the West Texas Chamber of Commerce effort.

Formerly these towns paid both a main line differential and a branch line differential in addition. The main line differentials were nearly twice those of the branch line differentials. Now that the main line tax has been removed, the branch line towns save approximately two-thirds of that total differential. These towns include such points as Lamesa, Tahoka, O'Donnell, Crosbyton, Ralls, Littlefield, Brownfield, Lorenz and all towns on the various branch lines.

The adjustment was largely secured by Homer D. Wade, manager of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, and U. S. Pawlett, traffic manager, in conference with T. H. Galagher and other officials of the Santa Fe railroad and was arranged without court action or hearing before the railroad commission. Approval of the commission was received and the adjustments made for these towns without expense to shippers or local chambers of commerce of the towns affected. The saving to shippers of Slaton alone is estimated at approximately twenty-five thousand dollars annually.

Two Suspects Held As Murray Robbers

Two men, held as attackers of Cam H. Murray, Lubbock salesman who engaged in a battle with high-jackers north of Spur last week, are being detained by Floyd county authorities at Floydada for possible identification, according to a telephone message received by Mr. Murray here this afternoon from the sheriff there.

Doubt as to whether the two men involved are the real assailants was expressed by Mr. Murray, however, as he was advised by the chief of police of Dallas this morning that an automobile said to have been driven by three men, had been found abandoned on the streets there. The car, he said, had been stolen from Fort Worth parties, and the numbers taken in Dallas.

Mr. Murray returned today from Fort Worth and Dallas, and except for weakness occasioned by the stab wounds in his chest, and bruises about his head and body, remarked that he is feeling all right.

HOGS DECLINE
 FORT WORTH, March 29 (AP)—A decline of 15 cents occurred in the hog division of the live stock market here today. The sheep and cattle trades were steady. The count called for 2,300 grown cattle, 500 calves, 1,800 hogs and 1,500 sheep.

New Railroads Will Boost Floyd County

Special to The Avalanche
 LOCKNEY, March 29.—With the coming of the Denyer and the Quanah, Acme and Pacific into Floyd county, there is no county at the present time that is getting as much rail mileage as is this county.

The Denver and South Plains Railway company are building approximately 45 miles of track in Floyd county. The Quanah, Acme and Pacific are letting a contract for 21 miles of track in Floyd county. The Santa Fe have already 12 miles of trackage in Floyd county. The total amount of trackage will be 108 miles when all of the construction is finished.

According to County Judge Wm. McOhee, there is no place in Floyd county that will be farther than 14 miles from a switch and the average haul of farm products will be approximately 6 miles. This increase in trackage will greatly benefit the farmers of this section and especially the ones that heretofore have been a long distance from a market.

Cost Reduced
 The average cost of hauling wheat has in the past been 1 per cent per mile hundred and if a farmer lived on a farm located 25 miles from the nearest elevator he was forced to pay 25 per cent just for the hauling or in other words he pays more for transportation than it costs him to harvest his wheat.

According to Judge McOhee, Floyd county will have more rail mileage than any county west of Tartant.

The coming of the Burlington and the Quanah, Acme and Pacific brings with it bright prospects of the coming of other concerns to Lockney and Floyd county. Already cotton oil mill officials have announced that they will have men in the actual construction of a cotton oil mill by April 1, 1927, in Lockney. The Texas Congress people have already purchased a site at the intersection of the Santa Fe and Burlington at Lockney with the purpose in mind of building a modern compress at this place.

SAN ANGELO RATES RAISED

AUSTIN, March 29 (AP)—San Angelo, Texas, today was charged an additional 12 percent on fire insurance policies because of a bad fire record during the past three years, the state fire insurance commission announced today.
