Beavers Garners Saddle At Stockholders Roping

Joe Beavers won a saddle Tuesday night at the Coliseum in action at the annual Stockholders' Roping for best average with two calves and one steer. The roping previewed the Scurry County Rodeo which begins tonight at 8 p.m. at the Coliseum and will last through Saturday night.

A parade downtown at 5 p.m. today will kick off the rodeo. Parade entries will assemble between 27th and 30th streets on Ave. Z and will move on 26th to the square.

Events to be included at the rodeo will be bareback bronc riding, calf roping, barrel racing, saddle bronc riding, bulldogging, team roping and bull riding. There will also be goatsacking for children, and wild cow milking.

Other winners at the Stockholders' Roping included Jerry Springer for fastest time heading a steer, Joe Beck for fastest time heeling, and Max Drum for best average on two calves. All three won belt buckles.

The West Texas Barrel Racing Association sponsored an open jackpot barrel racing event Monday night, also in the Coliseum. First place in the $23 open went to Kimbra Dorsett of Childress with a time of 15.302.

Ralynn Key of Snyder was first in the juniors with 15.019.

In the $13 open, Mandy Tubb of Snyder took first with 14.828. $300 in added money was donated by local merchants for that competition.

Ann Longacre of Big Spring was first in the $50 novice with 15.757, and Donna Hollifield of Abilene was first in the $500 novice with 15.995.

Becky Harrell of Snyder took the $250 novice with 15.976. Wendy Lunsford was first in green novice with 17.148. Marcia Messick of Blackwell took first in the 150 novice.

The West Texas Barrel Racing Association is having a roundup in Abilene at the Taylor County Coliseum, said secretary Patricia Boyd-Gorbett. The roundup will be during Labor Day weekend and those interested in joining are asked to contact Ms. Boyd-Gorbett at (915) 862-6180 after 6 p.m.

Unless Fumigated...

Texas Set To Blockade Fruit

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — California fruits and vegetables will be unwelcome in Texas unless they are fumigated or certified free of the Mediterranean fruit fly, says Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown.

Brown said the quarantine would be effective at noon Monday, with all produce trucks being stopped at Texas' borders.

"This plan is imposed to protect the Texas produce industry," Brown announced Tuesday.

Brown, who is president of the Southern Association of State Departments of Agriculture, said he discussed the blockade with agriculture officials in seven other Southern states and most indicated their support.

His office said later it didn't know if any other states had ordered blockades also.

Brown said trucks carrying produce and plants from California counties not under the present U.S. Department of Agriculture quarantine would be allowed to enter Texas if certified by California officials that the fruit came from a county free of Mediterranean fruit flies.

Any shipments from such areas without certification must be fumigated at state agriculture facilities in El Paso.

Any shipments from California counties under the USDA Medfly quarantine must have certification that the produce was fumigated in California. "Otherwise, the trucks will be turned back or the shipment will be confiscated or destroyed," Brown said.

"The plan for aerial spraying in the quarantine areas of California is going to help eradicate the fruit fly, but I believe that the severity of infestation warrants taking further measures," Brown said.

"This quarantine is imposed to protect the Texas produce industry, but it also enables consumers to have a continuous food supply. This plan should not cause undue disruption of the marketing process."

A spokesman for the state department said most of the California fruit and produce received in Texas comes from Southern California, which has not been affected by the fruit fly infestation around San Jose area near San Francisco.

Texas had an infestation of the Mediterranean fruit fly in 1967 in the Rio Grande Valley but it was soon wiped out by aerial spraying, a spokesman for Brown said.

Postal Strikers Will Be Fired Says Notice

WASHINGTON (AP) — With little progress reported at the bargaining table, the Postal Service is warning its 600,000 employees that it will fire any worker who strikes when the union contracts expire at midnight Monday.

"Any employee who, in any manner, participates in a strike or other illegal job action will be discharged," says a notice that will be distributed Friday in employees' paychecks.

The notice also says strikers will forfeit the right to any future employment by the federal government.

The Postal Service said the law against strikers also would be used against any employees who participate in "any concerted slow-down or other concerted interruption of operations by employees."

The warnings come as the Postal Service and its two largest unions report little movement toward agreement on a new contract to replace the expiring three-year pact.

Federal mediator Kenneth E. Moffett entered the talks last weekend to try to bring the two sides together.

Union officials have declined to answer reporters' questions about a possible walkout, which would be illegal under federal law.

The two larger unions are demanding a 17.7 percent pay raise, including 5 percent a year and a 2.7 percent inflation catchup. Pay and benefits now average $23,300 a year, according to Postal Service figures.

The Postal Service has contingency plans for delivering the mail in the event of a strike, and Postmaster General William F. Bolger has said he "would not hesitate" to suspend the postal monopoly laws. That would allow private companies to deliver letters, something that is illegal in ordinary times.

Nevertheless, any major strike would create delays in mail distribution.

The mail agency has held regular meetings with the Defense Department about contingency plans for moving mail. One possibility is using federal troops, which was done in 1970.

Syria Blames Habib

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Syria's state radio today blamed U.S. presidential envoy Philip C. Habib for Israel's escalated air attacks on Palestinian guerrillas in Lebanon.

Israeli warplanes struck a dozen Palestine Liberation Organization guerrilla strongholds along Lebanon's Mediterranean coast and inland mountains Tuesday, killing 10 guerrillas and villagers and injuring 35, police said.

Kania Re-Election Expected

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The divided delegates to Poland's emergency Communist Party congress, clearing a logjam that had blocked their work on the nation's urgent problems, agreed today on how to elect their party chief.

First Secretary Stanislaw Kania was expected to win re-election in voting that officials said might come either today or Friday.

The delegates settled the debate by agreeing to elect a new Central Committee first. That panel will then nominate candidates for the top party job. The full congress will vote on the party leader and will be able to add its own nominees to the committee's slate.

Journals Criticize Call

DALLAS (AP) — Two major religion publications have aimed strong criticism at President Reagan for his telephone call to Moral Majority leader Jerry Falwell to discuss his nomination of Sandra O'Connor to the U.S. Supreme Court.

"I have been under the impression that Ronald Reagan, not Jerry Falwell, was elected president of the United States last fall," commented Dr. Presnall Wood, editor of the "Baptist Standard," the Dallas-based voice of 2.2 million Texas Baptists.

"Do not misunderstand," Wood wrote in this today's issue. "There is nothing wrong with the president calling religious leaders. But why was Falwell singled out? Is Falwell's media power risen to the level where his fast becoming the uncrowned religious pope of America?"

Arms Control Okay

NEW YORK (AP) — The Reagan administration is committed to a balanced arms control agreement and will not accept the notion that "we have to tolerate aggression" to achieve it, Secretary of State Alexander Haig Jr. says.

In an appearance here Tuesday, Haig also rebuked European leaders for their complaints about the high interest rates caused by the Reagan administration's economic policy.

"It should be enough for Americans to say that for years you Europeans cursed like the devil about lack of economic discipline here at home," he said.

$1.3 Million Permit...

Western Co. Launches Huge Building Project

Snyder's 1981 building figures got their biggest boost of the year Tuesday afternoon when a permit was issued for $1.3 million in construction for the Western Company of North America.

The permit is for a 20,800-square-foot steel and reinforced concrete structure at 311 Lubbock Highway.

The permit was issued to TLB-GSC Enterprises, Inc., of Hurst, contractor for the project.

Western officials had announced several months ago that the company planned a major expansion of its facilities here, including the addition of a bulk cement plant. The expansion is due to substantially increase the number of personnel employed here by Western, a major oil field servicing firm.

The huge structure covered in the permit issued Tuesday will include a chemical warehouse and storage facility, a bulk cement plant, a truck shop and office space.

Western had acquired property adjacent to its facilities already in use here over recent months to provide space for the expansion.

It is the largest single building permit issued here so far this year, and it pushes the city's total construction figures for the calendar year near the $6 million mark.

On Tax Bill...

Reagan Asks Senate To Forego Pet Measure

WASHINGTON (AP) — Having lost the first round in the House, President Reagan is urging Senate Republicans to forgo pet amendments as they work on their version of a tax-cut bill the president thinks is already expensive enough.

Leaders of the GOP-controlled Senate hope to complete action within a few days on their Reagan-endorsed bill which would grant Americans an across-the-board cut of 25 percent over 33 months, beginning Oct. 1.

Meanwhile, the Ways and Means Committee in the Democratic-controlled House continued to work on details of its alternative tax plan. On Tuesday, the panel rejected Reagan's approach and approved a two-year reduction which would bring more relief to low- and middle-income taxpayers.

The major House fight on the competing proposals will come on the floor.

In other congressional business Tuesday:

—Sandra D. O'Connor voiced her opposition to abortion as she began four days of Capitol Hill campaigning for confirmation as the first woman Supreme Court justice.

—In the grimmest assessment yet of the future of federal savings and loan associations, the industry's chief regulator warned that high interest rates threaten the stability of one-third of the nation's 4,700 S&Ls.

—The House struggled with the question of using military personnel against drug smugglers as it considered the record $136 billion defense authorization bill.

The House Armed Services Committee has recommended scrapping a 103-year-old policy and permitting the Defense Department to supply personnel and equipment to civil agencies combatting drug traffic.

—The Senate appointed 72 of its 100 members to serve as conferees to work with House members on reaching a compromise on their respective versions of the 1982 budget reductions sought by the president.

—The Senate Judiciary Committee approved a regulatory reform bill which gives the White House more power to review rules issued by federal agencies, including independents such as the Federal Trade Commission.

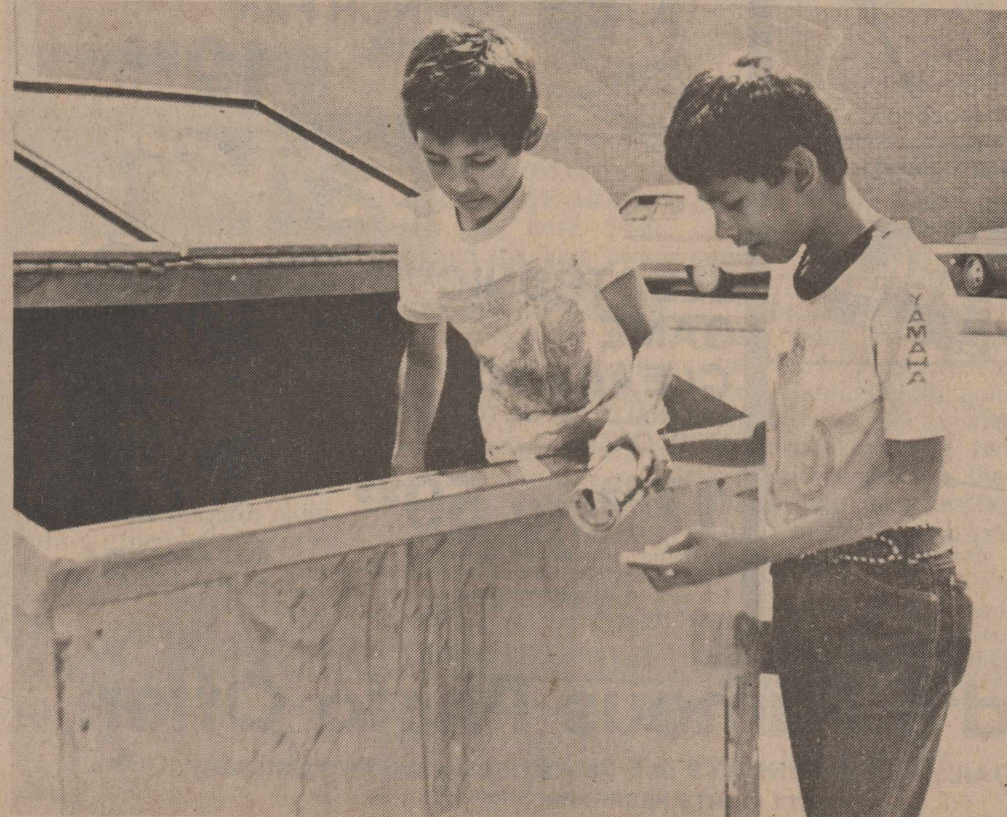

—Rep. Glenn English, D-Okla., said the Reagan administration would have to justify any changes it wants in the Freedom of Information Act.

—The House Appropriations Committee approved $228 million to start construction of the Clinch River breeder reactor project in Tennessee.

Here it is rodeo time and that always means hot weather. And there was a time when it usually meant rain. However, now that the rodeo has moved indoors, it seems that the rains do not come as often as they did when the arena was in the wide open spaces.

But no matter how hot it seems, the situation throughout Texas is much better than it was a year ago. In case it has slipped your mind, 100 degrees and above was common in the summer of 1980. The weatherman on a Dallas television station reported the day's high at 91 degrees the other day. Then he reminded that if the reading seemed high, Dallas people should be thankful that it was not 1980. On the same date last year, the high in Dallas was 113 degrees. And that was merely the beginning.

Nine Texas Democratic Congressmen have received personal thanks from the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association for their support of President Ronald Reagan's budget proposal.

"TSCRA feels that President Reagan's budget and tax proposals will result in lower inflation, lower interest rates, lower deficits and in accelerated economic growth. The defeat of his budget proposal would have been a blow to the working people and ranchers of this country who have been forgotten in the rush to big government and higher taxes," said John S. Cargile, TSCRA president.

A resolution of thanks adopted by TSCRA directors named Congressmen Jack Hightower of Vernon, Charles Wilson of Lufkin, Marvin Leath of Waco, Charles Stenholm of Stamford, Phil Gramm of Bryan, Sam Hall of Marshall, Ralph Hall of Rockwall, Kent Hance of Lubbock and Richard White of El Paso.

House Committee Hears More Testimony

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A House committee working on a Medical Practices Act listened to more testimony today about which doctors should be allowed to do what to whom.

On Tuesday the Committee on Government Organizations heard that optometrists shouldn't dispense drugs and the state should keep a close eye on non-physicians who treat people with diets and vitamins.

The Medical Practices Act is one of five topics placed on the special session agenda because no agreement could be reached during the regular session that ended June 1.

The struggle between ophthalmologists — who are medical physicians — and optometrists — who are not — was a major stumbling block.

Dr. Dan Jones, chairman of the Baylor Medical School ophthalmology department, testified Tuesday that optometrists should not be allowed to dispense drugs for diagnostic tests.

"Unequivocally, there are risks for which non-physicians are not trained to deal with," Jones said, adding that such drugs can have "immediate life-threatening effects."

"An optometrist is not a physician. An ophthalmologist has had three of four years of medical school," he said.

Optometrists want to use drugs as anesthetic for the eye, to dilate pupils and to help fit instruments for the eyes. Jones said all three procedures can be done without drugs.

Dr. Stanley Dudrick, a

University of Texas

Medical School professor, testified against "nutritionists" who use vitamin and food plans to treat ailments.

The Health Freedom Council, which favors deregulation of the medical profession, supports nutritionists and alternate forms of health care.

Dudrick, referring to unlicensed practitioners, said, "I don't want amateurs treating my family."

"It boggles my mind, the risks these people take," he said.

Dudrick complained that such practitioners should be regulated by state and federal officials.

"I've got to prove they are wrong when they come up with something new. But I've got to prove I'm right when I come up with something," he said.

Dr. Gary Williamson of the Texas Medical Association testified that city's five police districts will be assigned full-time to the problem.

"We're just absorbing the cost, putting a little more stretch in the rubber band," Chief Myron Leistler said Tuesday.

Hawks Torment Mail Carriers

SWEETWATER, Texas (AP) — Folks in this West Texas town have their mail problem pigeon-holed. It's not soaring postal rates, nine-digit zip codes or a lack of manpower.

It's a trio of dive-bombing birds.

The family of mean-tempered hawks curtailed the town's mail delivery by swooping at the carrier with talons extended, says postman K.T. Williamson.

He said he's been forced to don a hard hat and face mask to resume the mail delivery to several homes that was halted last week by the three ill-mannered hawks.

"The trouble started last year with one of the hawks who kept attacking the carrier. Now this hawk has trained a couple more and it got so bad we had to discontinue service until we came up the hard hat idea," Postmaster Kyle Scarborough said Tuesday.

Scarborough said at first he didn't believe Williamson's tales about diving attacks by the "mean-tempered birds."

"Then I saw them," said Scarborough. "They're a little larger than a pigeon and they are super fast. They circled around while he was looking at them, then when he turned his back, whammo, they swooped down and hit him on the head."

An 83-year-old woman who has lived in Sweetwater for two decades years scoffs at the mail carriers' temerity.

"I've lived here 20 years and the hawks have never bothered me," said Audrey Martin, a little irritated by the trip she has to make downtown to pick up her mail.

"I'll meet the mailman in the street if he hawks. Who's scared of a little ol' chicken hawk?"

Scarborough said nothing can be done about the birds because they are Mississippi Kite Hawks, which are listed as an endangered species and protected by federal and state regulations.

Safeway Stores To Accept Cans

Safeway Stores announced today it will begin to accept smashed aluminum cans for recycling in all of its 156 stores throughout north and central Texas. Each store will pay one cent a can (there are 24 cans to a pound) and will redeem the cans in the front area of the stores.

Carey A. Ford, Safeway's vice-president and division manager, said "We think our Smash'em for Cash Program offers our customers a fine opportunity to help in anti-litter efforts, contribute to the last time" his son uses the car.

CROSS PLAINS, Wis. (AP) — It wasn't the first time a 16-year-old boy was accused of taking his dad's car for a spin without asking, but William Clappitt was "cruisin' for a bruisin'." The car Clappitt allegedly took was equipped with lots of buttons and lights and could make loud noises.

serve our natural resources and make money at the same time. We also hope that community organizations will see this as a fun and easy way to help their fund raising efforts."

The cans will be trucked to Safeway's distribution center complex Garland. After that, cans will be sent to a nearby aluminum processor.

Skeen Excells With Slingshot

LINCOLN PARK, Mich. (AP) — He works for a Goliath, but Blue Skeen is a modern-day David in his spare time.

The 49-year-old toolmaker at General Motors Corp.'s Cadillac plant in Detroit holds the title "world's fastest slingshot."

In a competition sponsored last week by the National Catapult Association, Skeen pulled back and whipped out 39 lead balls in one minute.

In Florida...

Police Receive Drug Payoffs

MIAMI (AP) — By simply turning away as a plane skims over the Everglades dropping duffel bags of cocaine or standing lookout when smugglers sneak a boat packed with marijuana into the Keys, a Florida policeman can make more money in one night than he could in a career.

The American appetite for cocaine, marijuana and other drugs is skyrocketing, prompting South American smugglers to use old-fashioned bribery to assure the safe arrival of their illicit cargoes.

The bait is money, lots of money, enough to pay off the mortgage and the bills and buy the luxuries that are only dreams on a police officer's salary.

"Have you ever seen $50,000 in one pile? I'll tell you, it's impressive," said Maj. Ed Little, chief of the Florida Marine Patrol's South Florida region.

"You can let your mind run loose. Just think, you could pay off your house or pay cash for a fancy car. You could buy all sorts of things. Hell, yes, the temptation is there. The temptation is great."

Although law enforcement leaders say nearly all Florida officers are honest, hard-working cops who would never take a bribe, they admit some haven't been able to say "No."

"You take a police officer who is making $12,000 a year and simply by turning his head one night and allowing an aircraft to come in, he can make $50,000," said Allan Pringle, deputy director of the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration's southeastern region.

"It goes on all the time. In Florida, Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi, smuggling aircraft are coming in every day by the hundreds," Pringle said.

Said U.S. Attorney Atlee Wampler: "Nobody in law enforcement makes the kind of money that will come anywhere near what can be earned in a single night by just helping unload a boatload of marijuana."

One of the longest and most complex investigations into drug-related police corruption climaxed Tuesday when nine former Dade County homicide detectives were indicted by a federal grand jury and accused of accepting drugs and money from Mario Escandar, described by Drug Enforcement Administration officials as a major trafficker of cocaine.

The officers, who Escandar reportedly once called his "young men of iron," were indicted on a variety of charges, including racketeering, narcotics trafficking and stealing drugs from the scene of a crime.

So far, one-third of the detectives assigned to the homicide unit in 1979 have been investigated for corruption. Law enforcement officials say almost every police agency in the state has been touched in some way by drug corruption. Some examples:

—Florida Marine Patrol Capt. Ralph Tingley faces trial next month on charges he accepted a $50,000 payoff to ignore a marijuana smuggling operation. Prosecutors claim Tingley promised that an unidentified person wouldn't be apprehended bringing ashore two boatloads of pot. No marijuana was brought ashore, but Florida Department of Law Enforcement agents said they found $50,000 cash at Tingley's home when he was arrested.

—Four former Key West city policemen were convicted along with eight other people in connection with a Customs Service bust on Stock Island that netted more than 100,000 pounds of marijuana.

—Monroe County State Attorney Jeff Gautier was suspended by Gov. Bob Graham last November on accusations that Gautier used and possessed marijuana and methqualone.

—A jailer and four Taylor County sheriff's deputies were recently suspended after federal agents investigated allegations they were involved in drug smuggling. One of the deputies, Broward Reed, has been indicted by a federal grand jury on conspiracy, marijuana possession and perjury counts.

—An "officer of the year" in the small Dade County community of Medley was charged in connection with what Miami police detectives said was a ring that kidnapped drug dealers and then held them for $1 million ransom. A former policeman who worked for several departments in Dade and Broward counties also was charged in the case.

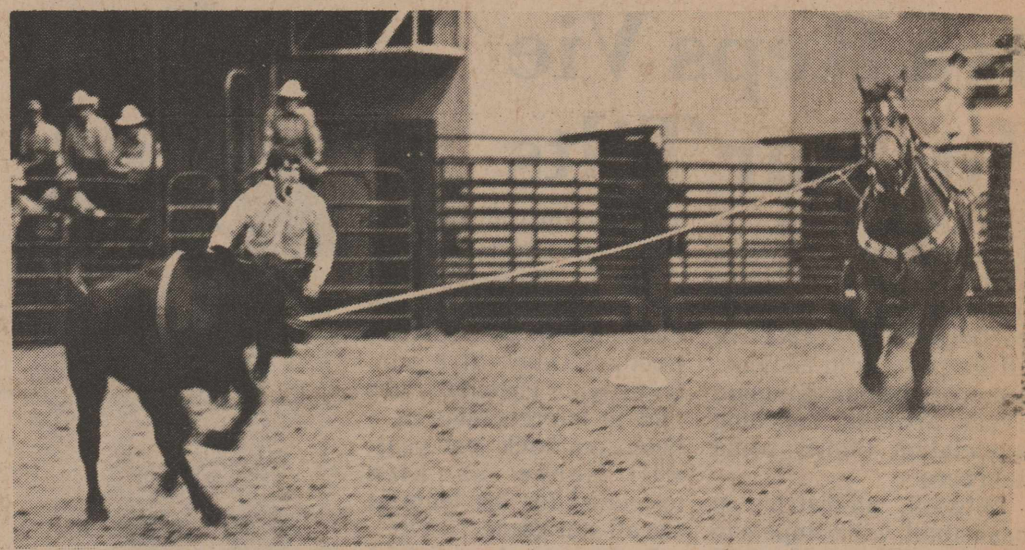

—A 16-year veteran Miami policeman was arrested in what agents nicknamed "Operation Giraffe," charged with being a courier for a drug ring and helping its members detect undercover police operations.

"The investigations we have going on and that soon will be prosecuted are most damaging to police reputations as a whole because policemen have been corrupted by these major narcotics trafficking organizations," Wampler said.

Play With Younger Children...

Ways Found To Help Shy Kids

EDITOR'S

NOTE — Researchers may have found a way to cure the shyness in children. They had them play with children younger than themselves. In most cases, the withdrawn became socially more active.

By KARREN MILLS
Associated Press Writer
MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Johnnie wasn't playing much with the other kids at his day care center. He didn't talk much and he spent a lot of time by himself.

For the most part he was a normal 4-year-old. But he wasn't relating well to other children and adults. He was isolating himself, withdrawing from social interaction.

When Johnnie was given a playmate who was 18 months younger, however, he became much more outgoing and gradually began interacting with other children.

Johnnie was one of 24 preschoolers studied by University of Minnesota child development resea-

RELO Picks

Realtors

Elizabeth Potts Realtors has been elected as a member of the international RELO-Inter-City Relocation Service.

Elizabeth Potts, owner, said the election to the RELO represents an "important step in the development of our firm and its ability to meet the needs of the Snyder area."

RELO membership includes 1,300 real estate firms that serve more than 13,000 communities across the United States, Canada and overseas.

Members of the not-for-profit RELO organization specialize in helping people sell a home in one community and buy a home in another. RELO members do not make any additional charges for this relocation service.

"RELO membership will enable our firm to provide the best possible relocation service to area residents who are moving out of the area as well as provide valuable service to those who are moving in," said Potts.

She went on to explain that election into RELO membership is difficult and real estate firms must meet exiting demands.

chers looking for a way to overcome patterns of social withdrawal among children.

Other researchers had found that when a shy monkey was given a younger playmate the monkey became more outgoing. So Dr. Willard W. Hartup and Wyndol Furman, now with the University of Denver, decided to see if the same applied to children.

For the study, they selected 4-year-olds who talked or played with other children at their day care centers less than a third of the time.

The children were divided into three groups. In one group, each of the eight children was placed in a separate room to play with a child 18 months younger for 20 minutes each day for a period of about three months. Each child in the second group was given another 4-year-old as a playmate. The third group remained in the regular play area.

One of the eight children who were given younger playmates nearly quadrupled his social activity during the study, and six of the others increased their social activity by at least 50 percent, Hartup says.

Of the children who were given playmates their own age, only three increased their social activity by at least 50 percent. And of the group which remained in the regular play area, only one child increased in social interaction by 50 percent.

"The younger child is less threatening to the withdrawn child," Hartup says.

"Also, it seems to us that the younger child tends to draw out or stimulate social acts in the withdrawn child. A younger individual is perceived as somebody it is appropriate to teach, to give something to, to help. So the younger child is a stimulus to the older child for social interaction, which the older child continues to employ when back in nursery school," Hartup says.

Tale of Espionage And Adventure Hard To Beat

THE HEIGHTS OF RIM-RING. By Duff Hart-Davis. Atheneum. 309 Pages. $12.95.

For a tale of espionage, adventure and derring-do, this novel would be hard to beat.

It tells of Bill Stirling, former member of British intelligence lured out of early retirement by the offer of a journey to the Himalayas to try to rescue an American general lying injured in a Tibetan monastery.

The American had faked defection to China to obtain invaluable information about the defense of Tibet and then escaped.

Duff Hart-Davis has spent time in the Himalayas and his background gives authenticity to descriptions of this region on the roof of the world.

Life on the Himalayan slopes is rugged, with sub-zero temperatures and winds howling across plains 15,000 feet high that all but stop the heart from beating until one gets used to the height.

But there are also rewards, such as the spectacular sight of the miles-high peaks that suddenly loom high in the sky as the mists part; blazing towers of fire and ice gleaming white and silver.

The author has introduced romantic interest in the person of a beautiful blonde doctor who would seem to be more in place on the cover of a fashion magazine than in this bleak land of ice and snow. She persuades Stirling to take her along and earns her keep by preventing him and his sherpas and porters from expiring in the frozen wastes.

Altogether a fine action yarn. Tom Hoge Associated Press times, the opening leader will shift, but West continued with the queen of the suit.

South took his ace and led the queen of spades. West followed low and South thought for some time before rising with dummy's ace.

Then he led dummy's queen of diamonds. East covered. South took his ace, led the four of diamonds back to dummy's 10, returned to his hand with the ace of clubs and discarded dummy's last heart on the jack of diamonds.

Later on, he lost one club and the king of spades, but he had his 10 tricks.

Don't think that we are showing result play. The result was favorable, but the play was almost automatic for a real expert.

The point is that the contract was not going to make if the diamond finesse lost.

With the diamond finesse right, a successful spade finesse would produce an overtrick. With the diamond finesse wrong, it would merely mean going down one instead of two.

THE SNYDER DAILY NEWS

Heloise's Book Tells Of New Husband, Mother

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Heloise argued with a plumber about dumping coffee grounds down the sink.

Not unusual for a woman who keeps a tablecloth wadded up in her freezer.

Heloise — the columnist synonymous with household hints — chats with as many exclamation points as she uses in her writing.

The San Antonio resident, talks about her second book, taking over her late mother's column and life with her new husband, David. He's the plumber.

And she talks about her latest household crusade.

This time it's perspiration buildup.

Of the 2,000 to 3,000 letters Heloise receives in one week, 20 to 30 readers have complained lately that they can't get stains out of new T-shirts.

Heloise has put the Soap and Detergent Association on the case.

Yes. The youthful Heloise with naturally gray hair listens to her readers. Yes, she tries every one of the hints she recommends. And yes, she writes her columns.

With help from her household of four animals — "They're just like children except you don't have to send them to college" — two secretaries, father and husband, Heloise tries anything that doesn't sound too dumb.

But "some of the hints are really dumb," Heloise said. "I got one letter from a woman. She said she had the 'ultimate use' for nylon net. She cuts up green nylon net and puts it into salads — to help her cut down on eating. God forbid she swallows it."

Picking hints is the hardest part of the job. "What I think is a dumb hint you may think is fantastic," she said.

For example, Heloise would never re-use a coffee filter.

"But now, I re-use coffee," she said with a laugh.

And re-using coffee can cause commotion with David. "My husband thinks it's gross. So, each to their own."

Despite the savings from Heloise's decision to use black ties and tails instead of bridesmaid dresses at her Feb. 14 wedding, her husband doesn't easily follow Heloise's hints.

"David doesn't believe me a lot of times and I tell him, 'David, 75 million women across America listen to what I tell them.' And he says, 'But are you sure?'"

Some questions make Heloise grow weary of being Heloise. "Once in a while when I come off' a book tour or something, I think, 'If just one more person says 'ring around your collar' ..."

At her mother's death in 1978, the daughter — born Ponce Cruse — became Heloise II, and assumed a lifestyle she knew well.

Growing up where it wasn't unusual to catch Mom in the back yard testing hints on her blue jeans, Heloise never thought her childhood was out of the ordinary.

"It was unusual, but I didn't know it at the time ... Then I went off to college."

During a cooking spree with friends "we'd burned something and so I went and called my mother," Heloise said. "She said 'oh yes' and told me how to fix it. I went back and told my friends. They said, 'do you know how lucky you are? How many people can call home to Heloise?'"

But life as the daughter of the homemakers' hint-helper wasn't always so helpful.

"I remember when my mother went to New York when I was 8. I really didn't understand. 'Why are you leaving me?' I asked her. She tried to explain to me that she wasn't leaving me, she was just leaving. But I didn't understand."

As she speaks, Heloise admitted her admiration of homemakers — male or female — that stems from her mother's respect of "the backbone of the world."

"I'd rather run an office with four people than be a mother with four children. It's easier. You can go home in the evening," she said.

When her mother died, readers made it easier for the new Heloise.

"The people in New York (who syndicate her column) were so concerned when mother died. Would people accept a 27-year-old single lady as Heloise? I told them, 'You don't know the trust of the readers.' We didn't lose any accounts."

Within a week after her recent wedding, and even now, readers sent "the most beautiful cards, congratulations on the wedding — pretty cards with all the glitter and gold. And some sent checks," Heloise said. "What do I do with these?"

Heloise — always observant, always ready with a suggestion — will think of something.

She sees herself as Heloise for the rest of her life.

"This is me. I don't see this as a job," she said. "Now, I don't spend 24 hours a day hinting and I don't go in someone's house and open the cabinets."

But she is dedicated. The other morning, for example, she got up at 2:30 to write down a hint that came to her in the middle of the night: You can make five flower arrangements from two arrangements that you pick up at the grocery store.

Fat content in game varies

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Can you give me some idea as to the type and amounts of fat in wild game and freshwater fish? Does freshwater fish contain the iodine found in seafood? I'm particularly interested in rainbow trout, catfish and white bass. I would also like to know about elk, venison, turkey, pheasant, dove and cotton-tail rabbits.

This may sound rather odd to you but we hunt and fish for recreation all year and we don't catch or kill anything we won't put on the table. Our forefathers survived on wild meat so it ought to be OK.

DEAR READER — From a fat point of view, it is fine. I can't give you very good figures for the meat you ask about, as the fat content will vary greatly on how fat the animal is at the time of the kill. As an average figure, the U.S. Department of Agriculture Handbook No. 8 states that venison contains four grams of fat in 100 grams of edible portion. That means its lean-meat-only is a little leaner than the separable lean of round steak.

In general, wild animals are leaner than store bought red meat and closer to "grass fat" cattle that preceded the days of fat stock pens feeding.

That is one reason why our forefathers had a diet that was a great deal lower in fat than the diet we have today.

The flesh only of pheasant is 7 percent fat by weight. And wild rabbit about 5 percent.

There is a great deal of variation of the amount of fat in fish. For example, 52 percent of the calories in rainbow trout are fat but only 11.6 percent of the calories in bass are from fat. I am sending you The Health Letter number 11-12, Fish and Shellfish as Health Foods, which contains tables you can use for many typical fish. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

The fat in fish in reasonable amounts may be particularly beneficial in lowering the blood cholesterol level. It is the only major food source in our diet that has highly polyunsaturated fats with four or six locations where there is no hydrogen on the carbon chain. This is explained in the issue I am sending you.

Iodine is found only in seafood, not freshwater fish.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I had a complete hysterectomy six months ago. I was not told by my doctor which vitamins to take afterwards. I am taking vitamin C and E and zinc. But I read in your column that I should take calcium. I take a multi-vitamin that contains 50 mg of calcium, and would like to know if that is sufficient. I don't understand why calcium is necessary after a complete hysterectomy.

DEAR READER — A complete hysterectomy means removal of all the uterus and nothing more. If your ovaries are left intact and functioning properly, you are the same metabolically as any other woman with functioning ovaries.

If the ovaries fail, as at the menopause, or are removed, there appears to be an increased loss of calcium or an increased need for calcium to maintain a proper balance and prevent loss of bone calcium. You need a minimum of 800, or better, 1000 mg a day for this purpose. Milk is a good source.

Vitamins are not a special requirement after a hysterectomy. The nutritional requirements are the same — a good, balanced diet that provides all the vitamins and minerals you should get from good, whole-some foods.

Crowds Cheer In Denver...

Alligators Outwit Wouldbe Captors

By The Associated Press

Albert the Alligator has the crowds cheering at Denver's City Park as he taunts zookeepers trying to force him out of Duck Lake. And a runaway cousin in Indianapolis, Oscar the Alligator, has a few tricks of his own.

The first to find freedom was the wily Albert, a 4-foot-long alligator who escaped from the Denver Zoo June 17 and took up housekeeping in a pond in City Park, a haven for ducks and Canada geese.

Albert began drawing crowds as each day he eluded zoo officials who waded after him or went out on the pond in boats, armed with nets.

Many people now bring their lunches to Duck Lake to watch the war of wits. Others have taken to spending the day there, searching with binoculars for a sign of the alligator's lumpy profile.

Albert's would-be captors had him by the tail, but he slipped away. They snared him with a noose, but he squirmed free. The sight of nets causes him to take evasive action. So do searchlights at night.

On Tuesday, zoo officials in boats and others in hip-waders mounted a two-pronged assault on Albert as he was sunning himself on the island in the middle of Duck Lake, but he slipped into the water before they could reach him.

Minutes later, as if to taunt his pursuers, Albert surfaced within yards of the waders, who were looking back at the cheering crowd. When they turned to take a swipe at Albert, he ducked underwater.

Albert's feistiness — after all, his namesake is the smart alligator character in the old Pogo comic strip — has made him a hero of sorts among Denver residents. Reports that Albert is thinning the duck population have helped the crowds, too, although zoo officials say that because of Albert's size they doubt the reports are true.

Assistant zoo director Albert Linger says Albert's popularity isn't making the job of catching him any easier.

"He's so scared of people now that I'm beginning to wonder how we'll ever get close enough to catch him," he said.

Zoo officials have been unwilling to shoot Albert with a tranquilizer and haul him back to the alligator pond because they fear he would sink to the bottom of the pond and die, Linger said.

Meanwhile in Indianapolis, a man named Mudd has been trying without success to get his pet alligator back from a neighbor's pond. The alligator, Oscar, turned up his nose at chicken bait Monday and wouldn't be lured away.

Charles Mudd isn't sure when he'll try again to catch his 4-foot-long alligator, who escaped 11 days ago.

Mudd said crowds drawn to the edge of Gerald Cannon's half-acre pond by alligator reports have made Oscar too excited for Mudd to get close enough to pull the creature into a boat.

Local television stations have sent crews out to Cannon's pond, hoping to catch sight of the elusive alligator, and The Indianapolis Star has begun a "Gator Watch" column.

Du Pont Raises Merger Rate To $7.4 Billion

NEW YORK (AP) — Du Pont Inc. has raised its bid for Conoco Inc. to $7.4 billion — more than twice the largest amount ever paid for a company — and some analysts think the price will go even higher before Conoco is sold.

Du Pont raised its bid Tuesday from $6.9 billion, countering an offer from Seagram Co. Ltd., the Canadian distiller. But Seagram said it was still in the competition and such oil companies as Mobil Corp. and Texaco Inc. were still considered likely to offer bids.

The bidding war has been sparked by beliefs that Conoco's reserves of oil, coal and natural gas are worth more than the value indicated by the stock price, and by signals from the Reagan administration that it is less likely to challenge big mergers on antitrust grounds.

Du Pont said it will pay $95 a share for 40 percent of Conoco's stock and exchange 1.7 Du Pont shares — worth $80.33 at current prices — for each additional share. It had offered $87.50 or 1.6 Du Pont shares, worth about $6.9 billion.

Sanford Margoshes, an analyst with Bache Halsey Stuart Shields Inc., a Wall Street firm, said he expected more bidding, including "another figure from Seagram and a bid from Mobil. It would not surprise me for the final figure to exceed $100 a share."

Conoco, the nation's ninth-largest oil company, accepted the new Du Pont offer as it had the original one.

A new book outcoming by James Evans is called "America's Choice."

It says backward is forward.

It says in the names of welfare and "security" Uncle Sam's shoulders have been overloaded.

There are now more people supported by taxes (0.6 million) than there are people working in the private sector to pay tax, (71.6 million).

If we don't get the reloaders off his back, m's going to drop them!

President Reagan and his callous, proposing more money for the military and less for welfare.

But, Evans notes, he's going to correct two generations of imbalance. During the last 24 years, army spending increased by 113 percent while defense spending was rising 800 percent.

Congress is scared witless to tamper with Social Security though during the last 20 years Social Security taxes have multiplied ten times faster than the cost of living — though benefits have increased only three times.

Indeed, if there had never been a Social Security program — if you and your employer had put the same money in the bank — even at 5 percent — at retirement you'd have an income of more than $2,000 a month for the rest of your life. That's three times more than you'll get under Social Security.

Evans has a gift for reducing economic complexities to their elements. He says the traditional American freedom was never a "freedom from want."

He notes that you can have freedom from hunger, nakedness, unemployment, cold and medical bills in any prison.

Our founders' concept of freedom was not "freedom from" but rather "freedom to."

Primarily a freedom to own property and the fruits of one's labor.

But Americans of recent generations have so perverted this premise that the "right to earn" has been supplanted with a "right to steal" from earnings of others.

And he notes that Americans who would not think of stealing, one-on-one — will insist on their right to steal when it is done collectively.

Then on Page 108, the zinger: "We spend $100 billion a year defending ourselves against communism and $250 billion a year adopting programs essentially communistic. Ouch!"

"America's Choice" by James Evans.

Three Boys Suffocate In Apartment House Closet

Waukesha, Wis. (AP) — Three young boys who were found dead while playing in an apartment house were found suffocated in a blood-soaked linen closet, police say, but authorities are ruling out murder.

The bodies were found Tuesday night. Police initially said they thought the boys had been killed because of blood and the fact that the bodies were contorted when found in the vacant apartment.

But Waukesha County Coroner Donald Eggum said the blood apparently was a result of the boys trying desperately to escape the closet.

The closet handle had been removed by painters preparing to paint the apartment, and floor carpeting prevented the air from getting into the 2-foot-deep closet, he said. "That scene was bad enough to make you want to quit this business," Eggum said. "I hope it will be a relief to the community to know it is probably not a homicide."

Van Lee York, Jr. Wins Second Place In Sheep

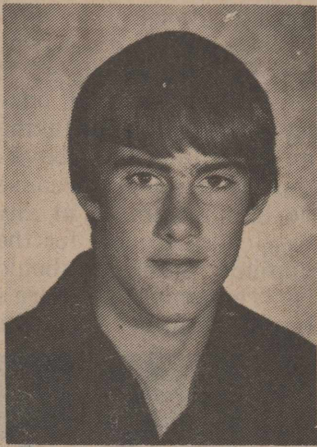

Van Lee York, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Van L. York of Borden County, recently won second place in the state Future Farmers of America Sheep Division Proficiency Contest. Van won the area contest which qualified him for the state competition.

Entrants in the contest were judged on records kept over a four-year-period, a scrap book, and how profitable the student's project was.

Van's herd of 100 ewes and three registered bucks have consistently turned out champions for stock shows. One of the lambs he sold in the Caprock Breeders Sale in Gail last year was the champion of the cross-breeds in Lubbock's stock show.

Van works for York's Pit Lining in Snyder and will attend San Angelo State University this fall, majoring in agriculture. He is a 1981 graduate of Borden County High School, where Bob Bagley was his FFA teacher and advisor.

Uncounted Dollars Clog Transit Counting House

CHICAGO (AP) — The fare-counting office of the cash-strapped Chicago Transit Authority is littered with dollar bills — perhaps as much as $1 million packed in bundles, piled on tables and collecting under foot.

The cash-strapped CTA? Well, appearances are deceiving. The agency is tens of millions of dollars in the red because subsidies haven't kept pace with expenses. To help offset that deficit, the CTA on July 6 raised the cost of a basic fare plus transfer to $1.

Despite pleas from the CTA, riders have been stuffing paper bills in fare boxes meant to handle only coins. And the South Side counting office has fallen a week behind in its work.

"It was just a zoo," said James Maurer, director of the city Office of Municipal Investigations. "It was unbelievable."

CTA board member Howard Medley said he called Mayor Jane Byrne Tuesday to say the office was choking on dollar bills and was advised to contact Maurer's office.

Maurer checked it out and found "just bags and bags of money lying around. Some of it was loose on the floor, where it could stick to the bottom of your foot.

"We're not charging theft, but if you can't steal from there, you're not trying," he said.

Maurer said he and Medley estimated the uncounted money totalled $500,000 to $1 million. Several stacks of money were marked July 2, Maurer said.

Medley said the CTA hired the Seaway National Bank to help do some counting at a fee of $25 for each $1,000 counted.

Snyder Police Recover Stolen Vehicle Today

City police recovered a vehicle this morning that had been stolen the day before in Odessa. Taken into custody was one 26-year-old man for investigation of stolen vehicle, public intoxication and a traffic warrant. Arresting officers were Sgt. Dale Burns and officer Ward. The vehicle was found at 18th and Ave. G.

The city jail had a full house this morning with other prisoners picked up Tuesday night and early this morning.

The first man, 54 years-old, was taken into custody at 2309 42nd at 6:58 p.m. for disorderly conduct and resisting arrest. Arresting officer was Don Cheek.

The second, taken into custody by officer Keith Ward at 23rd and College at 11:30 p.m., was picked up on two Dallas warrants.

Sgt. Dale Burns took two men into custody at 2:30 this morning at U.S. 84 and Clairemont Hwy. A 25-year-old man was arrested for driving while intoxicated, and a 34-year-old man was picked up for public intoxication and being an illegal alien.

In other activity, a hit and run was reported at The Shack at 2:04 p.m. Tuesday. Involved was a parked 1978 Mercury owned by Freddie Wheeler Hurt and a vehicle which left the scene. Taking the report was officer Buddy Kinney.

A minor accident occurred at 1700 25th at 6:27 p.m. Involved was a 1973 Pontiac driven by Genovita Gutierrez and a 1977 Ford driven by Charles Allen Carpenter.

California Based Store Plans Move To Texas

DALLAS (AP) — A major move to Dallas, Fort Worth and Houston by one of the nation's largest retail merchandisers could create 7,500 jobs in Texas during the next decade, company officials say.

Mervyn's Apparel Stores of Hayward, Calif., which operates 71 outlets in the West, plans to open 70 to 80 stores in Texas during the next ten years, spokesman Vic Stephens said. Some stores will open within two years, he said.

Stephens said Mervyn's normally opens stores in shopping centers owned by developers and never opens a store in a downtown area.

The company is a division of the Dayton Hudson

Corp., based in Minneapolis and Detroit, which also owns 143 Target stores in 17 states and 527 B. Dalton Bookstores throughout the country.

The company had revenues of $4 billion for the fiscal year ended Jan. 31, with net income of $138.2 million and earnings of $5.80 a share. The company says it plans to spend $2 billion on expansion in the next five years.

Mervyn's, with revenues of $826.9 million and an operating profit of $76.3 million last year, has two stores almost completed in El Paso. Its other stores are in California, Oregon, Utah, Arizona and New Mexico.

In a recent brochure, Mervyn's described itself as "a unique department store. We don't sell refrigerators or sofas or toasters or aspirin. We concentrate on clothes, shoes, accessories for men and women and children and things you need for your home like sheets or towels and draperies and bedspreads."

Grass Fire

Snyder firefighters responded to a call at 9:15 p.m. Tuesday and extinguished a grass fire at 1110 College Ave.

The killer whale, also called orca — from its Latin name — is like man in that it is one of the few animals that seemingly kills for sport.

Allegations Force Resignation Of CIA Spy Chief

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the CIA's spy chief already forced out by allegations of stock manipulation, CIA Director William J. Casey faces a federal judge's ruling that he knowingly misled investors in a separate business venture in the late 1960s.

Max Hugel, an outsider whose appointment had irked career intelligence officers, resigned as the agency's deputy director of operations Tuesday, hours after The Washington Post published allegations that in 1974 he slipped inside information about a firm he headed to two Wall Street brokers.

Later Tuesday, reporters discovered an overlooked May 19 ruling by U.S. District Judge Charles E. Stewart Jr. in New York against Casey and others in a damage suit over their efforts to raise capital for an unsuccessful farming corporation in 1968.

Both Casey and the CIA refused to comment on Stewart's ruling, and President Reagan said Hugel's departure was distressing because "once again we seem to be taking an accusation as a conviction."

Hugel said: "I have done nothing wrong."

Casey, 68, and Hugel, 56, are both self-made millionaires. Casey brought Hugel with him to the agency from the Reagan presidential campaign. As campaign director, Casey had admired Hugel's style and work as chief of ethnic group activities.

Casey, who broke into spy work with the Office of Strategic Services, the CIA's World War II predecessor, had endured harsh criticism from former CIA officers for putting Hugel in one of the agency's most sensitive positions. Hugel's intelligence background was limited to some post-war work for the Army in Japan.

Before the day was out Tuesday, Hugel was out of the CIA — replaced by a career officer hailed by the "old boy" network — and attention had shifted to the financial dealings of Casey himself, who headed the Securities and Exchange Commission during the Nixon administration.

Judge Stewart's 19-page ruling came in a 1974 class-action suit filed by investors in a New Orleans firm called Multiponics Inc., of which Casey was an officer and director.

In an effort to raise capital for the firm, Casey and the other defendants issued a stock offering circular in October 1968 which said the company's assets at the time included seven operating farm units and two tracts of uncleared land, Stewart said.

But in September 1969 and July 1970 statements filed with the SEC, the firm stated that "of the seven so-called operating farming units, two were not operating at all at the time they were acquired by the company, two were not operating other than sharecropping and one was operating at a loss," Stewart wrote.

The offering circular also stated that $1,354,000 of the proceeds from the sale of debentures would be used to retire short-term debt, Stewart said. In fact, the judge said, the SEC registration statements showed that the company used $917,000, or about 68 percent of the proceeds, to repay officers and directors of Multiponics for loans to the firm.

Although noting that the defendants denied deliberate concealment, Stewart said they "do not dispute that they knew the material facts misstated or omitted."

Stewart still must rule on whether the investors relied on the offering circular to buy Multiponics securities and therefore are entitled to damages.

In his resignation letter, Hugel called the allegations against him "unfounded, unproven and untrue."

But he said, "These allegations...have become a burden which I no longer believe is fair to impose on the administration, the agency, my family and the splendid men and women who work with me."

Casey accepted Hugel's resignation with "deepest regret" and immediately named career CIA official John Stein as his successor.

At the White House, chief spokesman David R.

Gergen said Casey discussed the impending Post story last Thursday with White House chief of staff James A. Baker III and White House counsel Fred Fielding, who met later with Hugel.

The White House denied a Washington Star report that Baker had told Casey to get rid of Hugel. "He resigned on his own initiative and with consultation with Mr. Casey," Gergen said.

Gergen said he anticipates no official investigation, noting that a five-year statute of limitations applies to the allegations made against Hugel. He said it will be up to Casey to decide whether to review why the CIA's background check of Hugel had not turned up the allegations.

Tuesday evening, Reagan told reporters: "I was distressed that once again we seem to be taking an accusation as a conviction. He resigned because he didn't want to in any way cause trouble for the administration. It should be remembered there's been nothing but the allegation."

The State Department's 1974 Biographic Register lists only one John Stein, a Yale graduate now 48. The Register shows Stein served as a foreign service reserve political officer, a typical CIA cover, in Belgium, The Congo, Cameroon, Cambodia and Libya.

Hugel went to the Post in person last Friday to rebut the charges the paper was preparing to publish. He was accompanied by his lawyers and CIA general counsel Stanley Sporkin, a Casey appointee who had been enforcement chief for the SEC.

Napoleon Bonaparte was proclaimed emperor of France on May 18, 1804.

Smith County Sheriff Is Shocked By Actions

TYLER, Texas (AP) — Saying he was shocked by legal action taken against him, Smith County Sheriff J.B. Smith has resolved to stay on the job until his name is cleared, despite efforts to have him removed from office.

However, there will be no immediate action taken on District Attorney Hunter Brush's request to remove Smith, a state district judge said.

Smith, indicted on several counts of official misconduct, said he is innocent of the charges and will not resign despite the formal removal request.

Brush filed the request Monday with judge Galloway Calhoun, seeking to have Smith removed from office and suspended from active duty while the question is resolved.

Smith has refused comment on the removal request and said he will have nothing further to say until charges against him are resolved.

In a statement issued Monday through his attorney, Smith said the indictments "came as a surprise and a shock to me and my family. ... I will enter a plea of not guilty to all charges and will place my faith in the judicial process."

Smith has posted a $7,500 bond on the charges contained in two indictments returned against him Saturday.

Grand jurors said Smith used a county car and gasoline in efforts to woo his former secretary, who is now his fiancée.

An indictment charges that Smith used the county equipment "with the intent to get benefits for himself, namely a happy girlfriend, to wit, Treva Loynell Sandell, also known as 'Toy.'"

Smith has refused comment on the indictments, which comprise one count of attempted arson and 18 counts of official misconduct.

The first indictment charged that Smith intended to set fire to a vehicle owned by Charles Everett Wintters, himself convicted of burning a sheriff deputy's patrol car. Wintters received a probationary sentence after agreeing to pay for damage to the car and later was sent to state prison on a burglary conviction.

Another indictment charges Smith with using the county patrol car and county-owned gasoline to pick up Miss Sandell on several occasions, used a county telephone to make 49 personal long-distance calls to Louisiana, where Miss Sandell lived at one time, and drove a county car on 14 personal trips to Louisiana.

He also is accused of obtaining a free apartment in the Casa de Oro complex in Tyler for patrolling it in a county car.

The indictment also alleges Smith used $138 of county money to reimburse a former reserve deputy for "services rendered," and used a county patrol car for personal trips and unofficial business.

On Abortion Question...

O'Connor Remains Silent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sandra D. O'Connor, still silent on abortion and other substantive questions, is courting the nation's political leaders in hopes of defusing any opposition to her Supreme Court nomination.

The 51-year-old Arizona appeals court judge, whose past stance on abortion and women's rights have come under fire from conservative groups, was scheduled to meet with several key senators on Capitol Hill this afternoon, after a morning visit to the Justice Department.

"I've tried to be candid and will continue to try to be so" in Senate Judiciary Committee hearings that now may be delayed until September, Mrs. O'Connor said Monday at an airport news conference arranged by White House aides.

"I simply don't know what I'll be asked" during this week's meetings, she said.

But she refused to discuss such issues as abortion and said Supreme Court nominees generally do not say how they would vote in specific cases which might come before them.

Among those Mrs. O'Connor was scheduled to meet with Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., who has expressed skepticism about her selection, and Sen. John East, R-N.C., a Judiciary Committee member who has said he would not support a Supreme Court nominee who agreed with the 1973 decision legalizing abortions.

Mrs. O'Connor's specific views on that decision are not known.

She also was to meet with Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., the Judiciary Committee chairman, Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker, other Senate leaders and various members of the Judiciary panel.

Sources said there was a tentative plan for Mrs. O'Connor to meet with a group of about 20 conservative senators to persuade them that her views on abortion and other social issues were in line with their own.

President Reagan's choice of Mrs. O'Connor to replace retired Justice Potter Stewart and become the first woman on the Supreme Court was denounced last week by the Moral Majority, the Conservative Caucus and 19 other conservative and anti-abortion groups. They claimed the nomination would threaten the alliance that helped elect Reagan last fall.

The groups claimed that the Justice Department may have "covered up" information about Mrs. O'Connor's alleged pro-abortion stance during her days in the Arizona Senate, or that Mrs.

O'Connor may have been less than forthcoming about her voting record on abortion and support for the Equal Rights Amendment.

Mrs. O'Connor said she believed the Capitol Hill meetings were customary for Supreme Court nominees.

White House press aide Peter Roussel said Mrs. O'Connor would meet with Reagan on Wednesday and pay "more courtesy calls" on Thursday and Friday, although he did not say with whom she would be meeting.

Roussel added that the timing of her return to Phoenix is "open-ended."

Roussel stated emphatically that Mrs. O'Connor was not scheduled to meet with the Rev. Jerry Falwell, head of the Moral Majority, or other conservatives who have assailed her selection.

States Decide On Blockades

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Fifteen Southern states decided today to put up highway blockades Monday against fruits and vegetables from California counties affected by the Mediterranean fruit fly, said Texas Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown.

Brown is president of the Southern Association of State Departments of Agriculture.

Brown said Texas, and the other Southern states, would admit shipments from California counties if the shipments carried certification from local officials that the counties were free of the destructive fly.

"If any trucks from fly-free counties reach the Texas border without this certification, they must go through the El Paso port of entry and be fumigated," Brown said.

He said produce from California counties affected by the fly are required to be fumigated before leaving California.

The first non-stop flight from Paris to New York began on Sept. 2, 1930.

Searchers Find Chunk Of Metal

BOSTON (AP) — A research vessel hunting for the Titanic sent television cameras to the ocean floor today to view "several hundred tons" of metal the crew hopes will be the sunken luxury liner, an associate reported.

Members of the crew talked today by radio to Thurman "Tex" Treadwell, assistant department chairman for Marine Operations at Texas A&M, which rents out the 170-foot vessel "Gyre" that is being used for the expedition.

A magnetometer, a device the crew is using to check for metal on the ocean floor, has located "a pretty good sized piece of metal which may be what they're looking for," Treadwell said in a telephone interview from College Station, Texas.

"It's not a garbage can. It's undoubtedly a piece of ship," Treadwell said. The crew told him the chunk of metal weighed "several hundred tons," based on its size, he said.

TV cameras will be sent about two miles below the surface of the ocean to survey the metal, he said.

'Tony Cazoni' Helps President In Various Ways

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — When Ronald Reagan arrived in Ottawa on his first presidential trip outside the United States, the Canadians insisted on providing the car and driver that would whisk him around town.

The Americans almost immediately regretted they had bowed to national sensitivities.

The moment Reagan settled back in the armored limousine to take him from the airport to the government guest house, the driver stomped on the accelerator and sped off, leaving the White House staff still running for their cars.

When the dozen or so black, official-use-only cars of the motorcade reached the airport gate a minute later, they were stopped by a guard. White House chief of staff James A. Baker III hopped out of the first car and strode toward the gate. A moment later, he returned to his car. Nothing moved.

Then a small, dark-haired man with a round face appeared at the gate and uttered a few inaudible words to the guard. The lost motorcade sped off in search of its leader.

The dark-haired man, something of a Latin leprechaun, is, in the words of people who worked with him for decades, the quintessential detail man.

He is also something of a court jester.

Meet Joseph W. Canzeri, deputy assistant to the president and executive assistant to the deputy White House chief of staff. Or "Tony Canzoni," as the president of the United States calls him.

Friends say his title is taller than he is. That's just one of an infinite series of in-house jokes about two favorite subjects: Canzeri's height — 5 feet 6½ — and his ethnic heritage — Italian.

Canzeri was in Mexico working out the details of a planned presidential visit when Reagan was shot. He took a military jet home and went straight to his boss, Michael K. Deaver, who had been in the line of fire where, on any other day, Canzeri might have been.

"Don't worry, Joe," said Deaver, who had dropped to the street as bullets whizzed by. "You wouldn't have had to duck."

"Dynamite comes in small packages," Canzeri says.

For nearly 20 years, Canzeri served Nelson Rockefeller, titan of the Republican Party's left wing. He and Rockefeller grew so close that associates remember the two men walking the late vice president's beloved Pocantico Hills estate for hours, transplanting a tree here, pruning an errant branch there, turning a precious sculpture a couple of inches one way or the other to improve the view from the mansion.

Now Canzeri serves Ronald Reagan, Rockefeller's longtime political foe. Ideology is no obstacle to his expertise.

"I don't deal in substance," Canzeri says. "I'm here to serve ... I admire the president. I like his approach to management. He's not trying to do everything himself. ... And he's got a sense of humor. When you lose your ability to laugh at yourself, you've got problems in this business."

Asking Canzeri or the people he works with to describe just what it is that he does for the president yields a variety of insufficient explanations.

For people who don't travel in large groups over long distances on tight schedules and from one crowd scene to another, it doesn't help much to say he handles the president's movements. But those who've watched him operate agree that Canzeri does whatever it is well, perhaps better than anyone.

Hugh Morrow, a veteran Rockefeller aide and Canzeri admirer, thinks the ex-hotelier can do anything.

"He has the tactical skill and resourcefulness of a Napoleon," Morrow says. Unable to resist, Morrow adds, "He's also the same approximate size."

In Republican circles, Canzeri stories are legion.

The Stars and Stripes was adopted as the national flag of the United States in 1777.

Oil People' Bring Trouble, Prosperity To Osage

By GIL BROYLES
Associated Press Writer
PAWHUSKA, Okla. (AP) — To unfamiliar ears, the words rustle like summer leaves as Ed Red Eagle offers up quiet thanks to a supreme being his people know as "Waconda."

But amid the rhythmic sounds of the prayer is heard a recurring phrase, modern words for which there is no Osage equivalent — "oil people."

The oil people, probing beneath the lake-laced hills of the Osage Nation homeland, have brought prosperity and some problems to the tribe that once dominated parts of Kansas, Missouri, Arkansas and Oklahoma.

The Osages own the mineral rights beneath the 1.5 million acres of Osage County, which stretches from Tulsa to the Kansas border. The Osages bought the land from the Cherokees in 1883 after they were forced out of southern Kansas.

Their expulsion has proved to be a blessing in disguise.

For the last five years, Osage County has ranked among the nation's top three counties in oil well completions. Almost 3,000 wells have been drilled since 1976; an estimated 10,000 are in production. Average daily crude oil output is 30,000 barrels.

The prayer of Assistant Chief Red Eagle sanctified an Osage Tribal Council meeting called to accept $4 million in bids from a June 17 tribal oil and gas lease auction. About 300 oilmen had crowded into the Osage museum and, beneath the painted gazes of tribal royalty from generations past, bid up to $140,000 for a 160-acre tract.

A similar auction in February brought in a modern record bid of $6.8 million. Another auction is scheduled in October.

The mineral income from bids and royalties, which this year could bring each holder of an Osage "headright" more than $35,000, has "been a curse to the Osages," said Chief Sylvester Tinker, 78.

"When you have plenty of money, you get idle and fat," Tinker said. "The sweat of your brow, you know, is what makes the world go. When people get more than that, they just sit and look and think.

"Wherever you have money, you have jealousy...Money is an evil thing," said Tinker, chief for 12 years.

But Ralph Adkisson, a Tulsa attorney and one of the eight members of the council, said: "The Osage people don't mind carrying this burden. Some people go ahead and fulfill active lives and work and are educated in spite of having an income like this."

The first well was drilled on Osage land in 1897, but the first highly publicized bonanzas to the Osages came in the 1920s. Adkisson said tribe members were preyed upon by the unscrupulous, and non-Osages married into the tribe only to gain shares of the oil and gas income.

Osages may not sell or give away their headrights, allotted according to a tribal roll completed in 1906. The Osages are unique in this individual disbursement of tribal income. Other tribes have long since sold mineral rights along with surface land. Still others use tribal income to develop industrial parks or build clinics.

There are about 10,000 Osages, but the 2,229 headrights are held by 2,210 people who were either on the 1906 list or had ancestors by blood or marriage named on the list. Some own fractions of headrights, while others have inherited more than one.

About 500 people who are non-Osage own about 300 headrights through marriage or inheritance. A 1978 law mandates that headrights must revert to Osage relatives upon the death of non-Osage owners.

About 200 original headright owners are living, including Tinker, who was 3 years old when the list was drawn up.

"We're about like the Mohegans," Tinker said of the original owners. "The youngest one is 74 and the oldest one is 92. We're all standing in line waiting for the undertaker."

The value of an Oriental rug is determined by the number of knots it contains in a square inch.

Dear Abby

Girl's Wanderlust Causes Boyfriend to Flee

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: WEAK IN ILLINOIS, who went from one adulterous affair to another, although she got nothing out of any of them, sounds like my ex-girlfriend. She was beautiful but as promiscuous as they come. Whenever she'd meet a stranger she was attracted to, they'd end up in bed. She was honest. She'd tell me about it, cry and promise it would never happen again, but it always did — about twice a week. She hated herself so much she attempted suicide four times in the six years we went together.

I paid for seven months of psychotherapy for her, during which time she was seducing her therapist and giving out her phone number to patients in his waiting room. Abby, that was the last straw!

Even though I really loved her, I finally had to break off the relationship. It wouldn't have done any good to have sent her to a female therapist. She was also bisexual.

LOVED A WEAK WOMAN

DEAR LOVED: Loving her as you did, you shouldn't have given up when you discovered that her therapist was both incompetent and unethical. Most therapists are well able to handle sexual advances from their patients. It's regrettable that you didn't find one who could. Therapy might have helped her to overcome her compulsive sexual behavior.

DEAR ABBY: May I contribute to your list of commonly misused words? "Presently" means "soon, before long," or "without undue delay." It does not mean, as is commonly assumed, "at the present time."

"The plane will arrive presently" is correct. "I am presently employed as a secretary" is incorrect. "Currently" is the word to use when one means "at the present time."

DEAR MELANIE: Thank you. I'll wager that many of my readers who are currently saying "presently" when they mean "currently" will be mending their ways presently.

DEAR ABBY: You had a letter in your column a while back from a woman who said that every time she got pregnant, her husband started drinking. My problem is just the opposite. Every time my husband starts drinking, I get pregnant.

I love kids, but we've got just about all we can handle right now.

Don't tell me to use birth control. I've tried several methods, and they don't work for me.

You keep saying that a wife shouldn't turn her husband away when he wants sex because that gives him an excuse to find another woman. So what do you recommend?

ENOUGH KIDS

DEAR ENOUGH: Planned Parenthood for you, Alcoholics Anonymous for him and self-control for both of you!

DEAR ABBY: My husband has this friend who is always dropping in around suppertime. Of course we have to ask him to stay for supper, but that's not the half of it. He sits around until 1:00 or 2:00 in the morning.

We've had to change our plans because of his unexpected visits. Sometimes he even brings his girlfriend along.

We have hinted that he should please let us know when he's coming, but it hasn't done any good. What should we do? We don't want to hurt his feelings, as he's a very sensitive man.

NEEDS HELP

DEAR NEEDS: Sensitive? No way! Quit hinting. That's like using a BB gun when you need a cannon. Tell him what you told me. And if you don't get him to respect your wishes, you deserve the inconvenience he's causing you.

You're never too young or too old to learn how to make people like you. Get Abby's new booklet of practical advice. Send $1 and a stamped (35 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Abby, Popularity, 12060 Hawthorne Blvd., Suite 5000, Hawthorne, Calif. 90250.

Clements Backs Away From Veto...

By JACK KEEVER
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Coalition for Minority Representation says the size of the black population in Texas entitles blacks to three congressmen, but it would accept two, preferably by adding a minority district in Dallas County.

Gov. Bill Clements, however, appeared to back away from threatening to veto a bill that did not create a majority-black district in Dallas. Packing blacks into one district would increase chances that Dallas' other three congressmen would be from Clements' Republican Party.

"I have never stood in this room and said what I would or would not veto," Clements told reporters Monday after a pre-session meeting with Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Speaker Bill Clayton.

Clements called Monday's special 30-day legislative session to deal with five topics, including congressional redistricting. He said legislators and others had asked him to submit "well over 100" matters.

Texas' 24-member congressional delegation has only one black — Rep. Mickey Leland, D-Houston. The 1980 census would add three congressmen.

John W. Price of Dallas, chairman of the Coalition for Minority Representation, told the Senate on Monday two redistricting proposals before the Senate were "totally unacceptable." He said because of voting trends a "safe" minority district would need 65 percent black population or 70 percent Mexican-American population.

Sen. John Wilson, D-La Grange, responded, "You're being very realistic if you have the population to elect three" but would accept only two minority districts.

Redistricting bogged down in a Senate-House committee on the last night of the regular session, which ended June 1.

Al Lipscomb, one of several Dallas blacks testifying for the coalition, said if the Senate did not stop playing "good old buddy, buddy politics" with congressional redistricting, Dallas could "become an armed camp by 1990."

One of the Senate proposals was approved in the regular session, with Hobby casting the tie-breaking vote. The other was a plan drafted by U.S. House Majority Leader Jim Wright and U.S. Rep. Martin Frost, D-Dallas.

Charles Rose of Dallas, another coalition member, said, "We've begged with you, we've pleaded with you, and we've shown you plans. It's time you ought to be sensitive to the minority community."

"Give us a chance, and we might get a minority elected," he said. "The time has come when we will not be bought off. We will fight to the living end."

Lucy Patterson, another coalition member from Dallas, said, "You have too long viewed us as happy-go-lucky people who shun work. The issue is not party. The issue is representation."

The Senate did not take any votes Monday, and other plans were expected to be presented Tuesday afternoon.

Activist Given Prison Term

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — A Czechoslovak human rights activist has been sentenced to four years in prison and there are indications that at least 10 other dissidents will soon stand trial in Prague, immigrant sources here said Friday.

Sources said Jiri Gruntorad, a founding member of Czechoslovakia's Charter 77 human rights movement, was sentenced Thursday for "subversive activity."

Amendments Sent To Floor For Debate...

House Committee Takes Action

By LEE JONES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Two of the special legislative session's five issues — a dedicated water fund and repeal of the almost non-existent state property tax — have received quick action by the House Constitutional Amendments Committee.

The committee voted

Monday to send the proposed constitutional amendments to the House floor for debate, possibly as early as Wednesday.

Gov. Bill Clements thought each issue was important enough to go on the special session agenda, and the water fund is the No. 1 legislative goal of Speaker Bill Clayton.

The water fund amendment was sent to the floor, 6-2, with Rep. Alan Schoolcraft, R-San Antonio, abstaining and Reps. Gonzalo Barrientos, D-Austin, and Paul Elizondo, D-San Antonio, voting "no."

Barrientos had failed, 2-7, to change the election date provided in the measure from Nov. 3, 1981, to Nov. 2, 1982, when voters also will choose a governor and other top state officials.

Barrientos said the issue was so important it should be considered at a time when voter turnout would be high, rather than in an off-year election.

But Rep. Wilhelmina Delco, D-Austin, said constitutional amendments "tend to be overlooked" at general elections, where interest is primarily in candidates.

The amendment allocates half the state treasury surplus each biennium to a fund for water conservation, water quality and flood control projects. It also says the state may use its credit, up to $500 million, to guarantee water bonds issued by local governments and river authorities.

Mrs. Delco voted against the constitutional amendment repealing the 10 cents per $100 state property tax because the measure said nothing about higher education funding.

The tax, dedicated to construction at 17 colleges that do not benefit from the Permanent University Fund, was effectively repealed when the 1979 Legislature passed a law imposing it on 0.0001 percent of property values. But Midwestern Universi-

Dallas Judge Rules In Favor Of Dr. Pepper Co.

DALLAS (AP) — A federal judge noted "frivolity has become serious business" when prohibited use of Sambo's Restaurants' "dancing seniors" advertisement that the company argued was a harmless parody of a soft drink jingle.

U.S. District Judge William M. Taylor ruled Monday that the Sambo's commercials were a thinly veiled imitation of Dr. Pepper's popular "be a pepper" advertisements.

"Defendants have copied the essence of (Dr. Pepper's) copyrighted commercials and jingle,"

Taylor wrote in a nine-page opinion. He said Sambo's would be permanently prohibited from using the "dancing seniors" commercials and that the Dallas-based soft drink manufacturer now could sue for damages.

The Sambo's commercials feature a group of elderly dancers singing a jingle and promoting a discount program for senior citizens. The commercial ends with the musical refrain, "special prices — wouldn't you like to be a senior, too?"

Attorneys for Dr. Pepper had insisted Sambo's imitated the soft drink company's $100 million advertising campaign centered on song-and-dance routines that close with, "Dr. Pepper — wouldn't you like to be a Pepper, too?"

Taylor, who had issued a temporary restraining order prohibiting the airing of the Sambo's commercials until a ruling could be handed down, added that the copyright violation was "substantial."

He said the Dr. Pepper Co., "has built up a tremendous amount of business goodwill" as a result of the advertising campaign.

Shaken Up By Lightning Bolt

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP) — Four Boy Scouts and their scoutmaster were hurt and 17 other youths were "shaken up" when lightning struck near the cabin in which they had taken shelter from a thunderstorm.

None of the five injured campers was hurt seriously in the Monday night incident, but all were hospitalized overnight for observation, officials said.

"They were sitting in the cabin talking and listening to the radio when it hit," said Camp Carpenter staff member John Grace, the first rescuer on the scene. "It came through the window and hit the radio and blew up the radio. They just ran out of the cabin."

"My body just lit up," one boy told police officers who rushed to the scene after the 7:50 p.m. blast.

The hospitalized campers were treated for minor burns; others were scraped and bruised, apparently by the exploding radio and the scramble to get out of the cabin and into the pouring rain.

Arol Charbonneau, a scout executive, said the area of the 225-acre camp hit by lightning was occupied by 21 boys, aged 11 to 14, from Troop 155 in Danvers, Mass.
