WOMEN OPEN FIGHT TO BEAUTIFY ROADS

RENEW ATTACK ON GUN TOTING AND LAUD BIRD

WOULD BAN ROADSIDE BILLBOARDS AND STOP SALE OF PISTOLS

(By Associated Press)
DALLAS, Nov. 10.—Roadside billboards and hip pocket artillery were swatted and the mockingbird was honored as the state bird by the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs in its second day's session of its 29th annual convention here today.

Florida's beauty slogan of "swag signs and save scenery" was referred to with approval, and the convention, in its consideration of billboards and outdoor beauty, adopted the following as its slogan for Texas: "Let no one leave the world less beautiful than he found it." This was suggested by Mrs. Henry B. Fall of Houston.

Resolutions Adopted

Action on roadside billboards came in the adoption of a report read by Mrs. L. A. Wells of Amarillo, chairman of the conservation department. She urged the federation to approve a bill to be proposed in the next legislature to restrict billboards on Texas highways. She said that advertising boards, especially at highway corners, and curbs were a menace to safety, and that these and other alleged unsightly advertising mediums should be removed.

The anti-gun toting resolution, introduced yesterday, was passed after a brief debate over the inserting of two words in the document.

The action part of the resolution originally read: "The Texas Federation of Women's Clubs do formally petition the state legislature when it shall assemble in the next regular session that such legislation be enacted which will control and regulate the sale, ownership and possession of fire arms."

Mrs. Maggie Harris of College Station suggested that sale of fire arms already is regulated by statute. Upon motion of Mrs. Volney Taylor of Brownsville, who said that as her husband was a lawyer she believed in legal terms, the words "further effectively" were inserted, making the resolution read, such legislation be enacted "as will further effectively control and regulate the sale, ownership and possession of fire arms."

Other resolutions passed urge an appropriation by congress of $10,000,000 for a national act of civic teaching of citizenship in public schools, and teaching the United States constitution in public and private schools not later than the eighth grade.

'Be Prepared,' Says Legion Head

HOWARD SAVAGE
BY HOWARD SAVAGE
National Commander of the American Legion

Armistice Day is the service in our day. It is a day which should be made sacred to the memory of those brave men who went over to Flanders Field but never returned. I know of no better way to celebrate that day than by upholding the national defense act of 1925.

I believe in national preparedness. God knows we do not want another war. We should be at peace, but ever prepared.

I sincerely hope that there never will be another Armistice Day, that there will never be another war.

I remember when I was small my father told me that the children of that day would be the men of tomorrow, that they would fill the places of those who had gone before.

Now my father is gone and the fathers of many of the Legion men are gone, and it is our duty to see that the coming generation is prepared to take up the torch and sword when we are called before our Creator.

Then we can face Him with a sense of having done our duty.

THREE LINES IN SOUTHWEST ARE TO BE AFFECTED

K. C. S. DIRECTOR SAYS INVESTMENT ASSURES PROPER RETURN

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—Details of the financing of railroad consolidation in the southwest, involving the Kansas City Southern, the Missouri-Kansas-Texas and St. Louis-Southwestern were put before the interstate commerce commission today by Walter C. Brown, director of the Kansas City Southern and a partner in the New York banking concern instrumental to the enterprise.

Each Acquires Stock

The Kansas City Southern proposes to acquire stock control over the M-K-T and the latter line in turn proposes to acquire a majority of stock in the St. Louis-Southwestern.

General control over the other lines involved will be assured the Kansas City Southern by the operation. Mr. Brown testified. Prolonged studies of the railroad earnings had been made by the interested bankers, he declared.

The banking firms interested, he declared, had taken no profit.

Assure Proper Return

As a matter of business, he testified that the stocks at the prices paid all represented good investments, and the earning power of the railroads was sufficient to assure a proper return on the capital structure which would result.

The Kansas City Southern, though it would own a majority of the M-K-T stock, probably would offer an exchange of its own securities to the outstanding stockholders of the purchased railroad in order to clear up virtually all of the M-K-T issue.

All In Readiness For Armistice Day Celebration Here With Most Colorful Parade In History Of City Expected

LITTLEFIELD POST NAMES LEADERS

The days of 1918 will be called back tomorrow when the American Legion members of the South Plains, the Texas Technological college and the city of Lubbock join hands to stage the biggest Armistice day celebration ever held in west Texas.

Committees in charge of the celebration from the legion, the chamber of commerce and the Texas Technological college announce that everything is ready.

Parade Starts at 9

The parade will start at 9 o'clock. The memorial service will be held at the Tech athletic park upon the arrival of the parade. A dutch lunch will be served the American Legion members at 12:15. The Tech Matador A. C. C. Wildcat football game will be played at 2 o'clock and the reserves of the South Plains will organize an association in the county court room at 8 o'clock tomorrow night.

The parade will be the most colorful procession that has ever marched down Lubbock streets. Two planes here under the supervision of H. F. Morris will take part in the parade. The planes are piloted by Lieutenant W. B. Alford who will do stunts and novelty flying over the procession which will bring back memories of the days of 1918 to the legionnaires who were over there.

Here's how the parade will form:

SAYS GOVERNOR PARTLY LIABLE FOR CONDITIONS

TALES OF LOSS THROUGH THEFT AT FARMS ARE TOLD BY CHAPLAIN

(By Associated Press)
AUSTIN, Nov. 10.—Lamentable conditions in the Texas penitentiary are not to be blamed on the guards alone, but "are due to the whole system from the governor down," W. E. Miller, chaplain of the Eastham and Ferguson farms, told the house investigating committee today.

"The fountain head is 'way up here at Austin,'" Miller said.

The chaplain declared a copyist has nothing to look forward to unless he can escape or get a pardon.

Theft is Charged

AUSTIN, Nov. 10.—Tales of loss through theft from state penitentiary system were told the house investigating committee today by W. E. Miller, chaplain of the Eastham and Ferguson farms. During the past two years when S. G. Grabber, now prison commissioner, was manager of the Eastham farm, losses through theft amounted to thousands of dollars, Miller testified.

Chaplain Miller followed F. A. Patterson, Kerrville, who recently completed serving a one year sentence on a whiskey charge in the penitentiary. Patterson testified that R. E. McAdams, the manager, kept his own stock on the Harlem state farm; that McAdams spurred and whipped the prisoners and abused them, and said that Walter Thomas, second manager of the farm, gave him beer and sold it to others.

The chaplain said that a vast amount of stealing was going on throughout the prison system; that he had studied the conditions for 10 years; and that during the past two years, large losses were entailed on the Eastham farm when Grabber was manager.

"Grabber made some of the worst prisoners trustees, permitted them to wear citizens clothes and run loose day and night over the country on penitentiary horses," Miller said.

"Prisoners Sapp and Price were trustees and lived at Captain Grabber's home and ate there," Miller said.

Officials Checking Steamer Fire Loss

GALVESTON, Texas, Nov. 9.—A check on the extent of damage caused by the fire and water in hold four on the French line steamer Texas was being made today. About 1,000 bales of cotton, loaded at New Orleans, and a quantity of rice destined for Anacostia was affected. It was anticipated that damage would be at least $100,000.

Local Woman Held On Pro Law Charge

Mrs. B. Schaller, of 1115 Eighth street, was arrested by members of the sheriff's department shortly after noon today. She is charged with the sale of intoxicating liquor on the counts, and indictment against her were recently returned by the grand jury.

She was taken to the county jail, but shortly afterward made temporary bond in the sum of $1,000 in each of the two cases.

Journal News Reel

Prison chaplain charges governor partly responsible for conditions in system. Women of Texas open fight for beautification of state highways, and ask ban on sale of arms. Finance plan for proposed southwest rail merger given I. C. C. All in readiness here for Armistice day celebration, with colorful parade in prospect. City to close on Annual Avalanche-Journal cooking school to be conducted here next week by Mrs. Ida M. Chittwood. Maryland town boys in sorrow reviewing coal in life and property of disastrous tornado.

CITY TO CLOSE ON ARMISTICE DAY

Tomorrow is Armistice Day and if you have any shopping to do you had better do it before 6:30 this evening for all the stores in Lubbock will be closed from that hour until Friday opening. There will be a few exceptions—cafes, newspaper offices and drug stores will remain open. No court will be held and juries have been excused.

Lubbock people have arranged to celebrate the day in a very timely manner. From an early hour in the morning until late in the evening there will be something doing. The parade will be one of the most attractive features, though the football game and various public meetings will come in for due consideration.

It has been the custom in Lubbock for a number of years to cease business on this day for the purpose of refreshing the memory of the people concerning the death of our boys who saw service in foreign lands. Armistice day is equally as important as Thanksgiving and the Fourth of July, and community leaders will see to it that its significance is not overlooked.

Sash And Door Plant Burns In Indiana

WHITTING, Ind., Nov. 10.—The Fisher Sash and Door company suffered an estimated loss of $250,000 today when fire of undetermined origin wrecked its plant, machinery and lumber yard. Elements confined the flames to the company property, but still were playing streams of water hours after the fire broke out. It was thought it would be mid-afternoon before the flames were subdued.

Lower The Prices Said Being Prepared

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—Akron dispatches to Wall street say rubber manufacturers in the district are planning schedules of lower the prices, which may be in the form of extra discounts and allowances to dealers on certain lines and sizes of castings and liner tubes.

POSTOFFICE TO CLOSE

In keeping with the Armistice day holiday, the windows at the Lubbock postoffice will be closed throughout tomorrow. Postmaster John L. Vaushan said today. Dispatch of the mail will be made the same as on Sunday and city carriers will make a morning delivery. Rural carriers will follow their regular program, the postmaster stated.

Women Soldiers

MOSCOW.—Women as well as men students of Russian universities will be required, by order of the commissariat of war, to take 150 hours of military training during a four year course. The cadets will be exempt from two months summer field practice and nine months service in the army or a year in the navy required of the men, however.

Houdini Behest

NEW YORK.—Harry Houdini left his huge collection of books on magic, spiritualism, witchcraft and demonology to the American public, represented by the library of Congress, in the belief of Leo Rullman, his lawyer, who drew up a will for the magician two years ago. Rullman says there are thousands of volumes in the collection and it is worth $500,000.

Clothes For Day Wear Usurp the Materials and Color of Evening Gowns

A conservative style developed in printed velvet. The fullness of the skirt is concentrated in front.

By HENRI BENDEL For NEA Service

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—Though the evening gowns of this season are lovely indeed, they are not more colorful and more intriguing than those for day.

Gone indeed are the days when dark colors and conservative lines prevailed until six in the evening.

Today many of the materials that are fashionable for evening are allowed also by day. Velvet, the most sought after material for evening, is found in many beautiful patterns for afternoon frocks as well.

The flat crepes, satin back crepes, and chiffons and thin crepes that are so charming in pastel shades for evening are to be found in deep red, green, gray, and beige for day.

Black More Popular

And whereas there is a great revival of interest in black, and every dispatch from Paris strengthens its growing supremacy, there is still a great interest in the deep autumnal colors so appropriate this season of the year.

The silhouette for day is practically that for evening except that it is a little shorter and a little straighter. The blouse effect is less in evidence for sport wear and for day dresses than it is for evening, though its influence is growing, and there is less

The Woman's Daily Editorial

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

DON'T FORGET THAT THERE'S DRUGGERY IN AN OFFICE, TOO

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

Much is written concerning the woman who has no outlet save her home and family and daily drudgery. Little has been said about the man who has no outlet save his work, day in and day out, year after year, time without end, Amen!

He starts a habit of disappearing at eight every morning and not reappearing until 6 in the evening. Out of the way exactly when most convenient and right that he should be out of the way. Then he reappears like the little man in the barometer, just in time to be an escort and pay the way for the evening's entertainment for the others. Before he leaves in the morning he hands over enough money for bills and the day's expenses.

Every one from mother to the baby thinks what an easy time he has, going out and getting a nice ride every morning and every evening in the trolley or subway, and working in a nice office and getting such nice money—only he doesn't get enough of it!

One of the greatest tragedies of the modern age is the man caught in the toils of family cares before he fairly has his feet on the ground. He marries early. Responsibilities pile up on him and fast. There were to be no babies for a while, but there are several. Emergencies and sickness come to the best of families.

He is caught in the mill of unrelenting duty to his family. He dare not break away from a sure income, small though it may be, to try out those wonderful ideals of which he has dreamed for years, and for which perhaps he has been trained. He cannot afford to lose a month's salary, certainly he can't take a chance on a year—two years, perhaps, before the new business would pay. He can never be his own man—he must go on being part of a machine. He has impulses, too, to get away from it all once in a while, just as his wife has.

We must all work, as the song says, for the long, long night is coming when man's work is done. But young men planning to marry would better make the big change before responsibilities begin. There may be no chance later.

MRS. CHITWOOD TO CONDUCT SCHOOL

Mrs. Ida M. Chitwood, nationally known culinary expert, will 66 1/2 Lubbock again next week to hold the Avalanche-Journal's annual free cooking school. The school will open on Monday afternoon, November 15, and will hold throughout the first five days of the week, closing on Friday afternoon, November 19.

Mrs. Chitwood, graduate of several schools of home economics and known from coast to coast as a leader in cookery and food values, will have a larger and more complete course this year than ever before. She has twice before been in Lubbock holding cooking schools for the Daily Journal, and in each of her previous appearances here has been greeted enthusiastically by hundreds of Lubbock and South Plains women who have attended her classes.

Just where the school will be held has not yet been decided. The Avalanche-Journal will announce the location as soon as a suitable place can be found.

Bridge Party Given By Mrs. Roy Gamble On Tuesday

Mrs. Roy Gamble was hostess at bridge Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John Dalrymple, 1909 19th street. Garden flowers were arranged in the rooms and pleasant games of bridge were played. ## Oil Field Highway Will Be Improved

SAN ANGELO, Texas, Nov. 10. (AP)—A highway leading from the Orient railroad north through the oil fields in Upton and Crane counties, either from Rankin or McCamey, will be immediately improved in a joint movement by towns in the field, oil companies, supply houses, contractors, truck operators, the Orient railroad and San Angelo. The plan was outlined at a meeting at Rankin and McCamey early in the week attended by a committee from the San Angelo board of city development. The cost of improving over thirty miles of road already partially graded is estimated at $10,000 to $12,000.

Shopping isn't just a pastime

When buying a coat, you look for style and quality. That is why you compare one coat with another. You find comparison very helpful in selecting just the right coat.

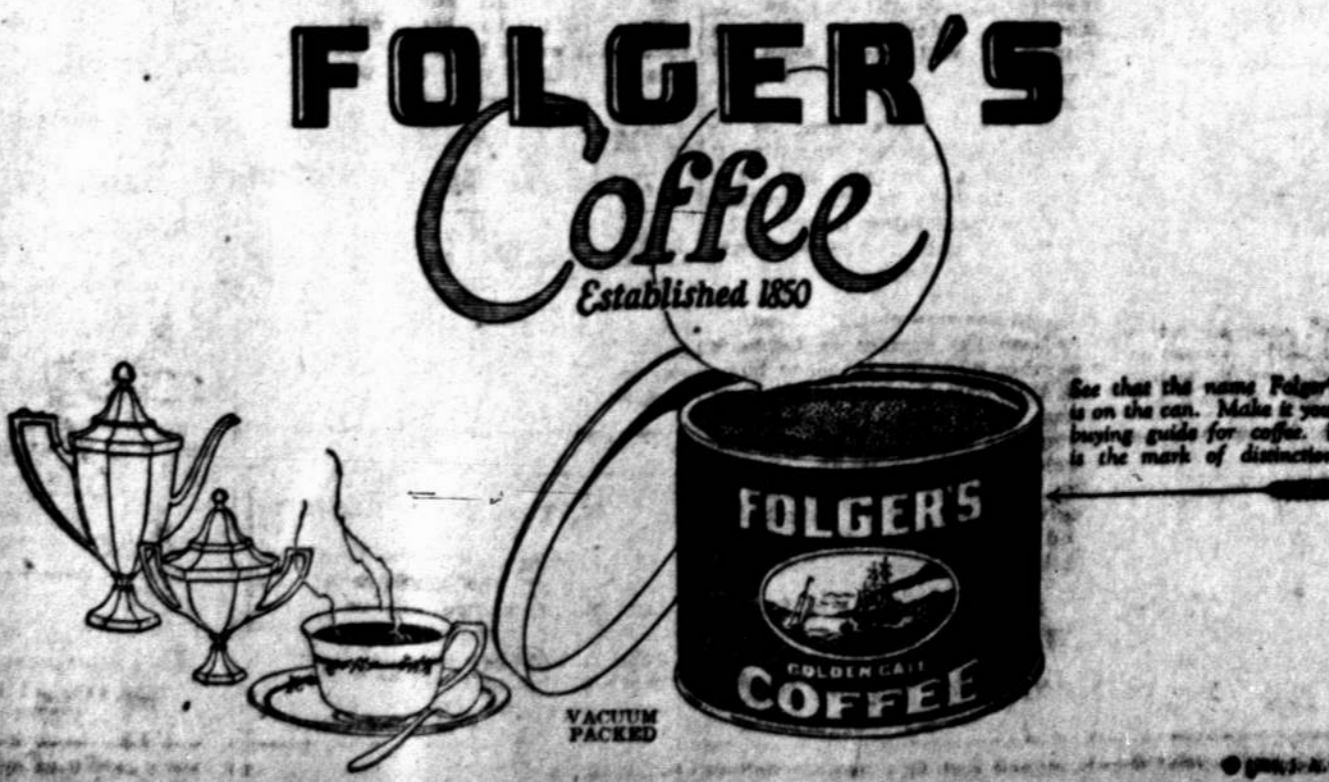

The same holds true in buying coffee. You look for the flavor that pleases you best. Only by comparing the flavor of one coffee with another can you do this.

We could tell you of the marvelous flavor and delightful aroma of Folger's Coffee. How you would enjoy each steaming cup of this fine coffee. How its high quality makes it economical.

Instead, we ask you to compare Folger's with the brand you are now using by making the Folger Coffee Test. It is the logical, easy way to shop for coffee.

The Folger Coffee Test: Drink Folger's Coffee tomorrow morning; the next morning drink the coffee you have been using; the third morning drink Folger's again. You will decidedly favor one brand or the other. The Best Coffee Wins. That's fair, isn't it?

See that the name Folger's is on the can. Make it your buying guide for coffee. It is the mark of distinction.

Title Tilt Seen In S. M. U.-Baylor Game Saturday

DALLAS, Nov. 10.—The Southwest conference championship will likely be decided in Dallas Saturday when the final whistle blows to close the S. M. U.-Baylor game at the new Ownby stadium.

The strength of the two clubs and their heated rivalry will bring together a crowd which will tax the capacity of the completed third of the new Ownby stadium.

Hitting Sports Highspots With James R. Dow

Saturday will be a huge grid day for the students of Baylor and S. M. U.—the scene of this battle will be contested in the new Ownby field at Dallas.

Neither of the two schools has been defeated in Southwestern Conference action; however, Baylor has a tie game to her record, which makes the Bruin standing somewhat lower than that of the Comies.

Last evening the Matadors made a special trip to Abilene and successfully defeated the Christians.

Tickets for A. F. C.-Tech game are being fast—have you taken your party for the game tomorrow?

A variety of injuries is coming from the benches of the Plainview Bulldogs. They have taken it upon themselves the underdogs for the occasion.

John Craig, half-back, punter, center, line-smasher, and good backfield runner, and five letter-man of the Plainview high school of last season has not recovered from a severe injury received in his knee early in the Lubbock-Plainview game of several weeks ago.

The Westerners are taking the game with greatest of interest and are rapidly shaping up for the game Saturday.

Sport Briefs

Harold "Red" Grange just can't seem to keep free from reports of engaging alliances. Today he rises to deny that he is engaged to Mary McAllister, the actress who starred with him in the movies.

While Gene Tunney was training at Grodzburo, Pa., for the battle with Jack Dempsey that brought him the heavyweight championship of the world, the popular ex-marine promised the towns people he would return for a bill after the fight, win or lose.

The mystic number "13" figures prominently in the coming Army-Notre Dame clash. The 13th meeting of the potential national champions will be held on November 13 with Charlie Wern, crack end, and sporting the figure 13 on the back of his jersey.

Tod Morgan of Seattle, junior lightweight champion of the world, arrived in New York yesterday for a ten day training period in preparation for his title clash with Carl Duane of New York in Madison Square Garden.

Bush Gets Job

Owen Bush

Owen Bush is to get another chance as a big league manager. He has been signed to pilot Pittsburgh, succeeding Bill McKelchie.

Bush began his major league career in 1908 as a member of the Detroit Tigers. He remained with that team until 1921.

After landing his club in the first division he was released, although no good reason for such action was ever given by Clark Griffith.

Billy Evans

Selecting Managers The major leagues recruit their ball players from the minors; why not the managers?

It is more or less tradition in the big show that a major league manager should be an individual who has starred as a player in that company.

Charles Comiskey, owner of the Chicago White Sox, was one of the first to believe that it was possible to pick a manager from a minor league.

When Comiskey signed Clarence Rowland to handle the White Sox, the experts scoffed at the idea.

As a matter of fact the most logical thing in the world is to go to the minors for big league managerial material.

Comiskey, when he signed Rowland, temporarily brushed aside tradition. However, majority of the owners were more conservative and did not fall for the scheme.

One need only point to the play of the Cincinnati club during last season as proof of Hendricks' ability. He finished a good second to the pennant winning Cardinals.

In like manner, college football coaches invariably are selected from a list of former star players.

This raises the question as to whether a college football career is absolutely necessary for success as a coach.

The most notable example of "babe" Hollingbery of the Washington State eleven. He never went to college, but played in his high school days and later became coach of the strong Olympic club eleven in San Francisco.

Fraternity Politics Hollingbery, by the way, picked out a coach job for himself. For a number of years Washington State teams have been coached by former Carlisle Indian stars.

It seemed that the fraternities rather than the coach wanted the varsity players. Recently when Hollingbery posted the names of the players who were to go to Los Angeles to meet Southern California, the names of two players in high fraternity standing were omitted.

Hollingbery refused to listen to fraternity politics and took the two players. Three others, however, before team time was quite a job, but the coach survived it and the players are through for good as far as he is concerned.

Two Big Surprises While Washington State lost to Southern California, the team made a fine showing, holding Howard Jones' powerful aggregation to a 16-7 score.

A win over Montana was next on the program and stirred up considerable enthusiasm. However, it was the game with Washington, Pacific conference champions of last year, that definitely established Hollingbery as a success.

Plainview To Enter Game Here Minus Two Good Men

(Special to the Journal)

PLAINVIEW, Nov. 10.—The Plainview Bulldogs with a fortunate victory over Amarillo last Friday are entering the Lubbock game at Lubbock Saturday as the underdog.

Plainview will have two valuable men out of the game due to injuries and will be outwitted. John Craig, half-back, punter, passer, line smasher, and runner and five letter man of P. H. S. last year, has not recovered from a severe injury received in his knee early in the Lubbock-Plainview game.

Sope, left tackle, is doing the punting job for the Bulldogs in the absence of Craig. Woodson Brown, regular end, will probably be in uniform at the game but he will not be in the starting lineup as he is also suffering from an injured knee.

Whether Densel Dean, regular tackle, who was out of the Amarillo game, will be in the starting lineup.

NOTED BANKER AT KANSAS CITY DIES

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 10 (AP)—Jere S. Lillis, 62, retired banker and clubman, who attracted nationwide attention in March, 1924, when he was shot and slain by the late Jack P. Cudahy, son of Michael Cudahy, millionaire Chicago packer, died here today.

At the time of the attack Lillis was president of the Western Exchange bank here. He was a bachelor. He moved to the same social circle as the Jack P. Cudahy, when Lillis and Cudahy were warm friends.

Returning to the Cudahy home unexpectedly, the packer's son found his wife, Mrs. Edna C. Cudahy, with Lillis. Cudahy was accompanied by his chauffeur. The pair bound Lillis with a clothes line. Then Cudahy slashed Lillis with a knife, inflicting wounds on his face, back, arms, and legs.

There was no prosecution. The "Cudahy case" received wide publicity. Later the Cudahys moved to California, where Jack shot and killed himself in Los Angeles in April, 1921, following ill health and financial troubles.

Banks Soon To Own Farms, Leader Says

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 10 (AP)—Cotton farms of the south "will be owned by the land banks and big insurance companies if present conditions continue," Edward A. O'Neal, president of the Alabama farm bureau federation, told delegates at the concluding session today of the southern convention of the national fertilizer association.

Mr. O'Neal said this condition has been seen in Georgia where "many farmers say it is much cheaper to rent than to own land. The hazard of production and marketing is so great as to make it prohibitive to own and pay interest on it."

Two Aviators Die As Plane Hits Mountain

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Nov. 10 (AP)—The mountains of Pennsylvania have claimed two more victims from the air.

Lieut. Kenyon M. Hagar and Lieut. H. W. Boyington, United States army aviators, were killed instantly yesterday when their airplane crashed into a ridge of the South mountains 15 miles west of here. The machine was demolished.

CALLING CARD PARAMOUNT IN MURDER TRIAL

PROSECUTION SEEKS TO CONNECT STEVENS IN CASE WITH CARD

(By The Associated Press)

SCARBOROUGH, N. J., Nov. 9.—One little calling card today claimed attention of court, counsel and jury in the Wall-Mills case. The prosecution regards "S-17," as the small exhibit is tagged, as an ace in connecting Willis Stevens with the crime being investigated.

He is a defendant, with his sister Mrs. Frances Stevens Hill and brother, Henry Stevens, in a case in which they are charged with the murder of Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills. The card in question was found near the body of the Rev. Edward W. Hill, slain with Mrs. Mills.

Resolving its contention that the card is only a duce insofar as evidence goes, defense counsel continued an attack on the state's contention that it bears the finger print of Willis Stevens.

The card has been to the front in daily testimony. It made its appearance today when George D. Totter, county detective at the time of the slaying, was recalled for cross examination. Totter was used by the defense to show that it was a "mud-traveled card. The detective was able to say that it was delivered to him with other exhibits the day of the discovery of the bodies of the slain rector and choir singer.

The state has sought to show by the testimony of three finger print experts that the card bears the finger prints of Willis Stevens.

Many Handled Card The most persistent effort of the defense thus far has been an effort to show that many hands fingered "S-17" at various stages of the investigation progressed.

Alexander Simpson, special prosecutor, today set off a few bombs expected to develop into heavy legal fire later. He wants the jury taken to the scene of the crime yesterday.

He will strenuously object on the ground that the crabapple tree, under which the bodies were found, has been carried away by souvenir hunters as has the hardly less famous cedar stump to which Mrs. Gibson, regarded as the state's star witness, will say she tied her male, before she found herself as on-looker at the double tragedy.

DOHENY AND FALL CASES CALLED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10 (AP)—Albert B. Fall, secretary of the interior in President Harding's cabinet, and Edward L. Doheny, wealthy California oil operator, pleaded not guilty in the federal court today to charges of conspiracy to defraud the government in connection with the celebrated Elk hills coal oil lease.

The two men were arraigned formally as a preliminary to their trial which is set for November 22. The proceedings required only a few minutes and the reading of the indictment was disposed with.

The former interior secretary's appearance before associate Justice Holding was his first in Washington since he declined to testify before the senate investigating committee in the spring of 1924.

Although greatly changed, his physical condition seemed to be excellent. He chatted affably with Doheny when counsel waiting for court to convene.

Charlie Paddock To Marry Bebe Daniels

ALBANY, New York, Nov. 10 (AP)—Charlie Paddock, Olympic middle distance and sprint champion, has confirmed rumors of his engagement to Bebe Daniels, film star. The news leaked out yesterday, when Paddock, a guest at the University club, got in a long distance call to Hollywood, remarking: "I am single yet but I think I could save a lot of money in telephone calls if I were not."

Later, in response to questions concerning the reports of his engagement to Miss Daniels, he admitted their truth and said:

"We both did not want to make it public. We both have our careers in the movies and wanted to make success of them."

Three Kansas Banks Close Doors Today

TOPEKA, Kans., Nov. 10 (AP)—Three banks in North Central Kansas, all a part of the estate of the late C. G. Cochran, were closed today by their boards of directors. They were the Citizens' State bank of Hays, the Ellsworth State bank of Ellsworth and the Farmers' State bank of Walker. Only the Hays bank operated under the depositors' guaranty laws.

Deposits in all three exceeded half a million dollars at the time of the last quarterly statement. About three-fourths of the deposits were in the Hays bank, which reported a total of $451,000.

"Depleted reserves," said W. S. Kennedy, assistant bank commissioner, caused the banks to close.

"They could not raise the money so they had to stop," he explained.

Grand Jury Again Takes Up Its Probe

After being dormant for several days, during which time many people had hoped the sleep would be permanent, the Lubbock county grand jury re-convened this morning at 10 o'clock and since that time a stream of witnesses has been pouring into the court room.

The Journal can not say just what cases are being investigated though it is known that a number of very important ones are to be considered. Members of the grand jury are not at liberty to divulge any information concerning the work of the body, though a number of citizens, who are closely in touch with court machinery, say that some startling revelations will be made before the present term of court is finally adjourned.

Anton Cotton Yard Is Scene Of Fire

Fire of unknown origin was discovered in the Anton cotton yard shortly after midnight Wednesday and about $200 worth of cotton was destroyed before volunteer firemen arrived. The burning bales were moved considerable distance from the yard where they were allowed to burn.

Anton has no fire protection, whatever, and it was an accident that the fire was discovered before the blaze spread to any great proportions. In another half an hour 300 bales would have been endangered and probably lost.

SCHOOLS TO CLOSE

Lubbock schools will be closed all day Thursday so that pupils and teachers may take part in the Armistice day celebrations. No program has been arranged by the children, but they will enjoy the ball games, parades and various other attractions.

HOBO MEETING RAPS POLICIES

Oppose Reception Of Queen Marie And Want Abolishment Of Vagrancy Law

(By The Associated Press) OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 10.—A "minister motive" in the visit of Queen Marie to the United States while Emma Goldman, departed Russian anarchist, is barred from entry to this country, is seen by speakers at the national convention of hobos.

A resolution offered by John L. Jones, Kansas City labor pastor, asserted "we view with alarm the organized propaganda gaining in this democracy, in favor of a monarchy by the parading of Queen Marie, white Soviet Russia is rejected."

Rap Free Rides Particularly offensive, the pastor declared, was the fact that railroads are furnishing Queen Marie with free transportation while hobos are obliged to steal rides at the risk of jail.

James Eads How, "millionaire hobo" and founder of the hobo-organization, wanted to know "if we can't ask our hired man, Mr. Kellogg, to change things a little." He opposed the resolution because no reference was made to the visits of the Prince of Wales and Crown Prince Gustavus Adolphus, and that it did not ask permission for "every one" to enter the United States. At this suggestion, the resolution was recalled to be made more comprehensive.

Want Vag Law Abolished Similar treatment was given a resolution urging that all vagrancy laws be abolished. Such laws, the resolution described as "only the means of getting economic servitude for a period when labor can be used and exploited without payment." The resolution urged that all sheriffs, magistrates, and judges be recalled when found to have enforced such laws. The hobo body did not find the resolution comprehensive enough and tabled it temporarily.

Rogers Initiated As Texas Cowboy

ABILENE, Texas, Nov. 10 (AP)—Will Rogers, humorist and actor, became a Texas cowboy today. He was formally initiated as honorary member of the Simmons university cowboy band.

Rogers spent the morning with the musicians and listened to a concert given in his honor. When it was over, he gave Prof. D. O. Wiley, director, a check for $100 for the band.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE
DR. PETER DORN, astronomy professor, and ERIC WATERS, senior, are rivals for the favor of JUDITH MARTIN, a young teacher.
JUDITH arouses the wrath of DEAN TIMOTHY BROWN by defending Eric against the accusation of bootlegging poison liquor from which two students have died.
MYRA ALDRICH, in love with Eric, is jealous of Judith.
The dean plans to have Judith dismissed. Mrs. Brown is determined to prevent her husband from persecuting Judith, who has befriended her.
Dr. Dorn is puzzled because he has learned that Judith lives in the room from which he had seen Eric climbing down the trellis, weeks ago. He does not question Judith and she has no chance to explain that he had climbed up to ask her to unlock the door for Myra, who had stayed out late.
The professor avoids Judith thenceforth.
Mrs. Timothy Brown waits in the corridor outside Judith's classroom, to tell her that "KITTY" SHEA, town bootlegger, has learned of a trip to the city on which Mrs. Brown met her lover and is demanding blackmail.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXIV
Judith drew Mrs. Brown with her down the hall. They went into the art museum, where interminable rows of plaster casts stood starkly against black hangings.
"Now tell me all about it. Are you sure Shea knows anything? He might be bluffing."
Mrs. Brown shook her head miserably. "I thought so too," she said. "So I tried bluffing it out, at first. Ordered him from the place. But he only laughed his horrible laugh and stood reading back, with his hands in his pocket, and a smear of tobacco juice across his chin." She shuddered.
"Go on," said Judith, mercilessly. "What did he say?"
Mrs. Brown steeled herself with an effort. "He just laughed a minute. Then he said, 'Better fork over the dough. It's soaked at him, and I know he did know, and I remembered being afraid someone would hear us talking in the College Inn.'
"Then I was thinking, he stepped closer and said, 'In case you don't understand how I got the dope on you—my case owner of the College Inn. You may remember a conversation there with a certain young lady. Your story about a little trip to Middleburg was interesting.'
"After awhile, when I could talk, I said, as bravely as I could, 'You are talking nonsense, and you have no proof.' He laughed very loudly, and I looked at the kitchen window, for the cook was making a cap with a low bow. A me turn and brought off his greasy cap with a poor sinner. I thousand pardons, Madame, for being so thoughtless. I shall speak more softly. Or perhaps I shan't speak at all—depending on your generosity toward a poor sinner."
"But you can't make anybody believe your tale," I said to him, and he laughed again.
"Can't I? Well, I have a copy of a certain hotel record that would make the dean check up on your actions on a certain week-end pretty damn fast, I fancy."
"Will, I knew he had me there, for Timothy would turn every stone to find out where I was that week-end, and if he asked my people, they'd be sure to give it away that I never came to visit them. Judith, WHAT are we going to do?"
Judith sat down. "First, stop wringing your hands," she said. "We need our wits. I'm not ready to give up to 'Kitty' Shea without a struggle."
Mrs. Brown started. "Oh, I forgot to tell you. He said he had plenty on you to keep you forking out, too. Said you were scared to death of him."
Judith straightened her shoulders. "I'm not afraid of him," she said. "I'm not afraid of anybody." Mrs. Brown whimpered.
Judith sat thinking. "He does know something that I shouldn't like published," she said at last. "But it's nothing ruinous, and if necessary, I can bribe it out. However, you can't, and we've got to do something."
The dean's wife was looking at her with wide, terror-filled eyes. "If we don't, I'll have to get out of it all." She bent her head forward so that her white face was near Judith's. "You don't know what it means to be afraid—so afraid of a man that his key in the door makes your heart miss a beat—so afraid that you swallow your food whole when he sits across the table from you."
Judith shook her head. "No, I don't thank God. It seems to me that you'd be better off if something did happen to release you. You'll collapse some day."
Mrs. Brown shrugged. "I think of this man going to the dean with his story, and when the long, grueling agony of waiting for the dean to worm out the truth about that trip, I just give way. I can't stand it."
Judith stood up. "Is there anybody in the world that you can count on? Have you any family?"
The dean's wife shook her head. "Nobody but sisters and aunts, and they'd all take the other side, in a matter of this sort. I have the sort of family that gave me the name Prudence." She smiled wanly. "Can't you think of anyone?"
A slow flush crept upwards from the throat of the dean's wife. She dropped her eyes. "Well, there is one, but I can't appeal to that one—not without burning my boats here. He has said he is tired of half measures."
Judith stood looking at her, as though about to speak. "That is your own affair," she said, at length. "I cannot advise you. But there is someone that I can depend on. He may be able to manage for us."
Mrs. Brown twisted her hands. "Oh, don't tell any one."
"Isn't it necessary to compromise you," said Judith. "But Eric Waters knows Shea. He can help us, I believe."
The dean's wife looked at her fearfully. "Are you sure Mr. Waters would not tell?" she asked.
Judith threw her head back. "Eric's not that sort. He's generous and loyal, even though he does stray off the narrow path of sobriety now and then. We can trust him."
Mrs. Brown looked at her watch. "It's almost time for the dean to go home. I don't want to meet him, until I've composed myself."
Judith peered at Mrs. Brown's face. "Powder your nose, and put on some color."
"I haven't any," said the dean's wife. "I'd never dare keep cosmetics around the house. The dean would find them and call me a scarlet woman. He hates them like poison."

Judith fished out her own vanity case and began to apply the rouge puff. Mrs. Brown submitted to it. Judith pulled the woman's hat straight. "Something has got to happen to rescue you," she insisted. "I can't conceive of a woman living in such slavery."
Mrs. Brown smiled sadly. "You've never been married to Timothy Brown, my dear."
Judith shook her head. "No, the gods be praised," she said devoutly. "Look here, what did Shea mean about the hotel record? Did you sign your own name?"
Mrs. Brown nodded shamefacedly. "Yes. It was stupid, but I'd never been in a situation like that before. I had meant to use another name. But when I stepped up to the desk and the clerk handed me the pen, I wrote my name, automatically. When I saw what I had done, I couldn't very well ask to change it."

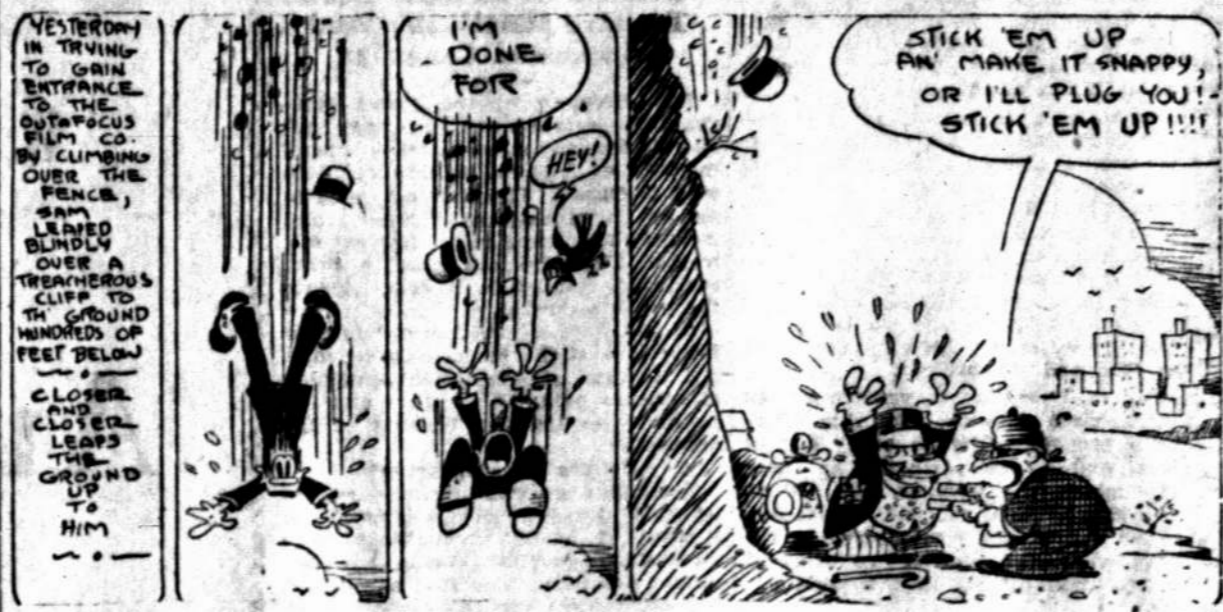

"Well," said Judith, "There must be lots of Mrs. T. M. Browns."
The dean's wife put her hand to her forehead. "But that isn't all. I couldn't think of any town but Pendleton, and the clerk was watching me, and I wrote that down too."
Judith laughed. "You are certainly an amateur at vice, my dear." Then she brought out the little silver vanity case again, and thrust it in Mrs. Brown's hand.
"Smuggle this home and keep it in your holy of holies. And pray to it, if necessary, to keep your courage up. You won't be the first woman who has ridden through stormy seas on a paint pot and a dab of perfume. Now hurry, and don't weaken!"

Eric Waters came up the Stedway steps at seven-thirty that night and walked through the open door unceremoniously. Lillian Stedway's frown at his impertinence elicited a particularly voluminous puff of smoke from Eric.
She paused, obviously waiting for him to speak, but a girl came through the folding doors between the hall and the parlor, and Eric turned to her instead. "Please call Miss Martin." The girl smiled at his handsome blond face, and ran up the stairs. Miss Stedway slammed the dining room door behind her as she departed.

War Is Recalled By Window Displays "Dough Boys' Delight" Show "Lucky 7"

The show window of the merchants of Lubbock are being decorated and equipped today getting ready for the Armistice day celebration tomorrow. The J. C. Penny store has an especially attractive window due to the appropriateness of the articles being displayed. The background of the set-up shows a large American flag with a camouflaged group in the foreground mounted with an American Browning machine gun through the courtesy of the 131st Field Artillery, T. N. G. The many other articles are tastefully and attractively arranged in such a way as to catch the eye of the passerby. There is a set of 500 cartridges used in the Browning machine gun, silver metal poker chips from Monte Carlo, French smoke bomb, French wooden shoes, American gas mask, French hand grenade, German helmet, German gas mask, German Mauser rifle, German Luger pistol, American officer's saber, two irons, American trench knife, American hand grenade, French revolver, fire blowers, said to be used in all French towns, German iron cross, brass knucks, mizale loading shot gun, American army rifle, American army cap, German helmet, "Dough Boy's Delight" which is a pair of three-worn ties, the notation says they have seen service in France, England and Germany. The lucky number seven is left showing. The Croix de Guerre awarded Col. Clark M. Mullican by the French government is also on display. The above collection is in the window of Judge Mullican. The following articles are highly prized souvenirs of Earl E. Woodson: Machine gun, German bolt rifle, cartridge pack and small German Luger pistol. Several other articles are also on display in this window, showing the difference between the styles of 1918 and the present. W. E. Lavender, a veteran of the thirty-sixth division, late this afternoon brought a French cellar key, of iron, and a razor, which he used throughout the war, to the Penny company's display. Mr. Lavender's cellar key will be remembered by the boys who were "sacred" as being of a type used to lock French wine cellars.

Maryland Town Bows Head In Sorrow As Toll Of Death And Destruction From Tornado Increases; 15 Now Dead

(By The Associated Press) LA PLATA, Maryland, Nov. 10.—This little town of 200 souls steeped in sorrow today to take up again the usually placid threads of its existence which were shattered suddenly yesterday by the wrath of a tornado that wrecked havoc and destruction along a path 500 yards wide through a portion of Southern Maryland, killing 15 and injuring two scores, mostly school children, here, and severely injuring four more at Cedarville, fourteen miles northwest of here. Sweeping up from out of the Potomac, the disturbance swooped and twisted intermittently but concentrated its fury upon the school house here where 61 pupils, teachers and attendants were gathered. Eleven of the children were killed and most of the others injured when the building was destroyed. Other Houses Wrecked. At least a dozen other farm houses and barns in the path were leveled and the damage was estimated at thousands of dollars. Out of the chaos and water in the wake of the whirlwind, wretched wanderers, came today stories of heroism, stoicism and a queer intermingling of humor in the tale of the tragedy. John Marshall Barr, a hysterical 11-year old figure, with blood streaming from his wounds, ran from the school house, recounting with the screams of wounded and imprisoned, to the home of the Rev. W. S. Heigham, Episcopal pastor. "Please telephone everybody," he sobbed, "the whole school house has blown away."

Almost all the population of the town followed the boy to the top of the knoll where the school had stood, its contents human and inanimate, were strewn over a radius of more than a quarter of a mile. Some Blown 700 Feet. Some of the children had been blown at least 700 feet. Other bodies were hurled against trees. There had been, according to Miss Ethel Graves, 22-year old teacher of the elementary class which consisted of 25 of the younger children, no warning and nothing to anticipate or avert the shock. Cut and bruised about the eyes, nose, and head, she refused medical attention until everything possible had been done for her charges. Miss Mary Carpenter, sitting at her post in the telephone office, no longer was possible, the tragedy had swept her of her associates in the exchange. Immediately after the storm struck she set to work to get into communication with Washington and neighboring points. She succeeded and ambulances and medical assistance was dispatched immediately from the capital.

Appeals Court

AMARILLO, Nov. 10.—The following proceedings were had in the court of civil appeals for the seventh district of Amarillo today: Motion overruled: Clara Vaughn vs. J. R. Vaughn, et al. Hearing affirmed: Walker Crump vs. Chas. H. Simank, from Lynn; J. F. Davis vs. J. W. Huff, from Lubbock. Reversed and remanded: J. J. Cook et al vs. J. P. Koons from Wheeler. OPEN HOUSE IS SET FOR HOTEL

Lubbock Hotel Will Be Shown To Interested Citizens On Monday, November 15

In order that all of the citizens of Lubbock will be given an opportunity to see the new Lubbock hotel from top to bottom, thus giving everyone a chance to view the wonders of the South Plains leading hostelry, an open house will be held on next Monday, November 15, W. E. LaFon, manager, has announced. The open house will begin at 2:30 and will last until 5:30 in the afternoon, with guides on hand to take visitors over the spacious building. At night a dance will hold sway from 8 until 12, with Jack Gardner's famous dance orchestra, from Dallas presiding, following which a luncheon will be served in the banquet hall. Directors To Help. Directors of the Lubbock Hotel Operating company will aid Mr. LaFon in the undertaking while a committee of ladies will be in charge of decorations and arrangements for the social events. The directors include W. A. Myrick Sr., president; Sam C. Arnett, W. L. Ellwood, Thomas Wilson, W. A. Myrick Jr., E. B. Duggan, E. C. Enoch, Dr. J. T. Hutchinson, and Wyatt C. Medrick, of Fort Worth. The ladies committee consists of Mrs. Thomas B. Duggan, Mrs. Walter Myrick Jr., and Mrs. I. C. Enoch and they will be aided by a number of other ladies whose names have not yet been announced. Practically all of the leading hotels in Texas will be represented at the open house, Manager LaFon states.

ARMY CAPTAIN HERE

Captain George Munstmann of the United States Army with headquarters at Fort Worth, arrived in Lubbock on the morning train today and will be here tomorrow to take part in the Armistice program. Captain Munstmann is instructor of the organized officers reserve of West Texas. Captain Munstmann came to Lubbock at the request of Col. Clark M. Mullican, and will make a talk at the reserve officers meeting to be held at the club house tomorrow night.

CARS SELL RAPIDLY

Lubbock's population is growing rapidly but it cannot vastly over-shadow the main in motor driven vehicles. I. E. Holland, county tax collector, said today. Since November 1, Mr. Holland has collected taxes on an average of two new motor cars every day, he pointed out, showing an unprecedented gain in the number of autos in operation here.

RETAILERS ARE TO HAVE DRIVE

Merchants Of Lubbock Decide To Have Membership And Educational Campaign

The directors of the Retail Merchants Association met in regular session Wednesday morning when several matters of interest to the retailers were discussed. The directors voted to put on an educational campaign and membership campaign in the next few weeks. The directors plan to bring every live retail firm in Lubbock into the organization as a member, to revise the dues of the membership to bring in a slight increase in revenue, and to wage an educational campaign to educate both the retailers and the public regarding the benefits of the association. Believe Time Opportune. The campaign was planned for earlier this fall but was postponed on account of business conditions. The directors were of the opinion that conditions are better and that now is the opportune time for the campaign. The educational campaign will tend to bring the efficiency of the organization to the highest degree possible with all retail firms cooperating in the effort. A slight increase in revenue is needed to maintain the cost of operation of the association at the present and dues of some of the larger firms who use the association extensively will be revised. Committees will take the field in the near future to bring every retail firm in Lubbock that is not a member of the association in as a member.

As in former each intersection the various units will fall in as follows: "order". Speakers car, Tech unit, legion unit, high school unit and local organization unit.

LEAHY MIGHT ASK FOR CONTINUANCE

GEORGEWEST, Tex., Nov. 10 (AP)—Indications today were that if an adverse ruling is given on a pending motion for a change of venue that attorneys for Harry J. Leahy, under indictment for the slaying of Dr. J. A. Ramsey of Mathis, would ask for a continuance. Judge T. M. Cox was a defense witness Tuesday night at the first of the night sessions he ordered to speed up the case. He admitted on the stand that he had called a special term of court in Georgewest for the same time that the thirty-sixth district court was to have been in regular session at Beville. In answer to another question he said he intended to try cases at Beville if attorneys requested but added that nothing important was on the docket for the regular term of court. Additional witnesses were heard today on the change of venue motion.

SIX PERISH WHEN HOME IS BURNED

AUGUSTA, Ky., Nov. 10 (AP)—Everett Florer, 46, and five of his children were burned to death in a fire which destroyed their home in Bradley county, 12 miles from here last night. Mrs. Florer was severely burned. The children burned were Eugene, 16; Jesse, 12; Virgil, 10; Harry, 8; and Ruth, 3. A defective flue is believed to have caused the fire. The father died in an attempt to save the children, Mrs. Florer said today. Physicians say she has slight chance of recovery. Another son, Vannie, 18, was visiting neighbors when the fire occurred. Florer was a tobacco grower, living in a tenant house.

LETTER CARRIERS ORGANIZE

Pearl D. Farris was chosen as president, and J. M. Norman was named secretary, here yesterday when the letter carriers of the local post-office formed an organization which will later be affiliated with the National Association of Letter Carriers. Other charter members of the organization include W. B. Sides, W. E. Snyder, C. R. McLaughlin, M. S. Gunn, John Morrison and B. D. Rogers.

CALL TO BAIRD

C. C. Livingston is leaving today for Baird where he was called by the illness of his father, Tom Livingston, who is not expected to live. Other children, all of whom live in Abilene, are going to their father's bedside also.

SAINT AND SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

COPYRIGHT 1926 NEA

During the week that followed Cherry was in a fever of excitement over her prodigious shopping. On Wednesday two huge wardrobe trunks, a steamer trunk, two patent leather hat boxes, and two magnificent cat-skin suitcases were delivered to the little Myrtle street house. But Faith began to wonder hopefully how five times as many pieces of luggage could hold the vast wardrobe that Cherry was accumulating.

On Thursday an expensive seamstress, whose cards proclaimed that she was "Madame Denise, Modiste Parisienne," arrived with a stooped, humble little old sewing woman, and really took charge of the Lane establishment. The pier glass was transferred to Cherry's bed room, which billowed and frothed and overflowed with exotic silks, satins and laces.

"Madame Denise," who confessed to Faith on Friday that her real name was Nora Dennis, spent most of her time manufacturing her pointed collars and posing before the pier glass, admiring the effect of her marcelled, hennaed hair, but she managed somehow, miraculously, it seemed to Faith, to design and supervise the construction of half a dozen amazingly becoming gowns and a great stack of chiffons, georgettes and crepe undergarments, delicious with lace, ribbons and touches of hand embroidery.

"You haven't a shop of your own, Mrs. Dennis?" Faith asked one day, as she carefully set clusters of French knots below the narrow straps of a filmy white chiffon combination.

"No, I prefer to take entire charge of a trousseau of a debutante's coming-out wardrobe," Madame Denise paused, hand on velvet hip, to smile upon Faith. "No overhead, you see. It takes an immense amount of money to doll up a shop so that it will make a woman ashamed to spend less than a hundred and fifty dollars for a frock. rents are terrific, too, in the best locations. This way I have absolutely no expense. I can't go bankrupt to save my life. And when the trousseau is finished I have most of my earnings clear. I can go to Europe if I want, or run down to my father's farm for a month. And believe me, I salt it away. The thousand I'll make here will keep me for three or four months if I want to loaf."

"Thousand?" Faith gasped. "A thousand dollars for four weeks' work?"

"And cheap at the price," Madame Denise patted her marcel with a complacent hand. "Of course your sister has to pay Mrs. Hogan's wages extra, but they amount to only seven dollars a day. But if I do say it, when we've finished here Miss Cherry will have the swankiest trousseau that was ever turned out in this town. And I don't mean maybe."

While Faith was dizzily trying to compute the total of Cherry's supreme extravagance, Mrs. Dennis went on in the confidential, friendly tone she had dropped into so naturally with Faith. "Listen here, girls, you ought to go into this business. Of course I'm not kidding you! You've got the mostest little natural talent I ever run across in all my professional career, and I know my Paris and New York, too, believe me! If you want to learn the business, and you can see it's a sweet little game, I'll take you in hand after your sister's married. You can come with me as a sewing woman—best way in the world to learn every trick in the trade—and after you've learned all I can teach you, I'll take you into partnership. I'll get the contracts, and we'll hit on some fair percentage basis. What d'ye say?"

Faith flushed with pleasure as she looked searchingly into the warm, friendly, painted face of the modiste. Mrs. Dennis' keen green eyes met Faith's unwaveringly, honestly.

"I don't know if I could really do it," Faith deprecated, but her eyes glittered with hope.

"I can't keep from thinking of bowers when I plan a dress for Cherry," Faith looked up at the kindly woman with blurring eyes. "She's always looked so lovely in that pale, creamy yellow and green, that it seemed the most natural thing in the world to think of her as a water lily, and dress her to look like one."

"It's a shame that it wasn't be a handsome young Prince Charming that will have the pleasure of seeing your sister in these pretty things on her wedding night," Mrs. Dennis' eyes followed Faith's, and rested dreamily, wistfully on the "water lily" negligee.

"That must be Cherry now," Faith said warningly, in a low voice, as the front door opened and closed sharply.

"Ah, mademoiselle, we have something to show you!" Madame Denise put on her airs and her accent as Cherry flung open the door into her bed room.

"I can't be bothered right now," Cherry's eyes were wide, that blazing, angry yellow that Faith knew so well. She ran to Faith, breathlessly, and flung two letters upon her sister's lap. "Look! Do you see what I see, or am I going crazy? Look—at that—and that!"

Every vestige of color faded from Faith's cheeks and lips, as her staring, horrified eyes took in the thing that Cherry had seen.

CHILLY WINDS GO EASTWARD

Snow Falls Over Large Area And Suffering Brought By Suddenness Of Spell

(By Associated Press)
CHICAGO, Nov. 10.—The middle-west's cold wave moved toward the Atlantic seaboard today on the winds that swooped down from the western Canadian plains country to touch the Texas panhandle and leave snow tracks across the corn belt.

Low temperatures, snow and chilling rains followed in the wake of the winds, which assumed gale force at times, and the mercury hovered unseasonably and uncomfortably close to the freezing and even below.

Snow Flurries Continue
Cloudy skies brought slightly rising temperatures to the westward, with promise of warming weather generally by tonight or tomorrow, but the cold and snow flurries hung on over the eastern end of the corn belt.

The government forecast was for unsettled weather and more snowfall in the north and middle-west, while the storm center pursued a north-easterly course, from the southwest to Ontario.

Suffering Occasioned
The premature arrival of winter found the mid-west all unprepared, and there was suffering from the cold in the cities, with many demands to charities for fuel.

There were no particularly severe temperatures, however, beyond the northwest, where the reading of 6 below Manitoba, in Canada, was the lowest reported. Temperatures in the mid-west hung around 20 degrees during the night.

Court Recesses For Armistice Program
Following a round robin conference early today, in which the court and a number of lawyers participated, it was decided that no other cases would be tried in District Court until Friday morning. The announcement was made by Judge Mullean after it had been decided that there was not a case on the docket that could be completed in one day's time. Tomorrow is Armistice day and the Court did not wish to hold a jury over the day.

The first case to be called Friday will be the State of Texas vs M. L. Luzzo, charged by indictment (2 counts) with the sale of intoxicating liquor. It is thought that it will take at least two days to try the case.

Steam railroads entering Chicago expended almost $15,000,000 last year in maintenance of suburban service.

EUROPE'S ANIMOSITY

Economic historians, sociologists are picking up their pens in alarm at the animosity abroad toward Uncle Sam. One of the most penetrating works on the subject is by Judge Frederick Hausman, former of the supreme court of the state of Washington, who has applied his judicial mind to this consolidated animosity against America for long months.

The judge writes in part—
"Our sacrifices on the battlefield are by the British populace forgotten. There has grown against us an every British domain a resentfulness concealed in some circles and conspicuously revealed in others."
"The British press regards itself with wholly unaccountable bias and spears against Americans."
"Newdays we are only Uncle Sky-lock."

"Across the channel, American travelers in Paris were compelled to get police protection against the insults of the mobs in July, 1924."
"The central powers for their part can have no love for a people who sent armies across the sea to aid their already numerous enemies."

"At our very doors, the eastern Canadians have for us a detestation
so intense that only for reasons of business do most of them conceal a scorn for which we have given them
not the slightest provocation."
"On the whole, Europe, for reasons wholly different of course, is so deeply hateful to us as to be a willing recipient of any well arranged movement against us by powerful enemies."

"Well, regardless of what we may not think of the pessimistic judgment, most of us find him too mild
in this comment—
"The American residents at Paris,
abundant according to the statistics, Gallois unfortunately emigrate to the French division of Americans, and thousands of Americans who cannot read a line of the Parisian journals stimulate this race to despite the government at Washington."
Europe is indeed flooded with these types of Americans.

"They single and three and quartet
at everything American, apologize for the country of their birth and growth."
The judge is charitable with his castigation of them.

LINCOLN'S FORBEARS

Shame for his humble forbears saddened and humiliated the life of Robert Todd Lincoln, son of the great Abraham.

So declares Miss Ann Tarbell, who has spent years in painstaking research on Lincoln. Miss Tarbell explains that the great emancipator's son was especially charmed at tales of his grandfathers' shiftlessness and
the possible illegitimacy of his grandmother.

The grandfather in question was Abraham's father and the grandmother, Nancy Hanke, Abe's mother.

William Herndon, for many years
Abraham's law partner and friend,
published this phase of the great Abe's ancestry it seems. He even threw suspicion on the legality of Honest Abe's own birth, finding that documents existed to prove the marriage of Abraham's parents.

Robert Todd Lincoln took these revelations so seriously that he bought up all the Herndon books possible and destroyed them. The entire life of this son of Lincoln was ruined, affirms Miss Tarbell, by his humble origin. He himself loved elegance, social distinction, the luxuries of wealth, and stressed family
position.

If this is true, indeed, of Lincoln's son, who died at the age of 83 last July, it is one failure of the great Lincoln's life to have reared a son whose sense of real values was a poor thing.

But can it be true? With millions of human beings envious of such a heritage, as being Lincoln's son, could his own son fail to know the supreme honor that was his?

In Mussolini you have the Lenin of Italy, the former being the autocrat of the masses and the latter having been the dictator of the masses. Neither is wanted in a progressive, orderly country.—Auburn Citizen.

IN NEW YORK
SEE-SAWING
and
DOWN BROADWAY

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Manhattan,
despite its size and much vaunted
greatness depends on good, old-fashioned, country circus stunts to attract attention.

This the steam callopes—that time-
honored trailer of the main street parades about the highways of this metropolis on a motor truck playing jazz tunes as it goes and carrying banners announcing everything from motor oil to a nickel dance.

Thus, too, when an advertiser desires to attract attention on Broadway, he goes back to the methods of the old Mardi Gras and sends out a handcart man on high stilts—a handover from the summer carnivals at Coney Island. The stilt-walker blocks traffic by the simple trick of sitting himself down on a taxicab while traffic is halted and when the whistle blows he wanders over and seats himself upon the top of a streetcar. His sure fire.

I saw at least a thousand persons blacken near Times Square the other night to watch this fellow, although his stunts were but slight variations
on the stilted clown who cavorted about during country fair week in Tulay City, Mich., when I was a lad.

Just now the electioneers depend on similarly antiquated devices, no doubt but since abandoned by smaller communities. On such is to load trucks with small boys, labeling the con-vayances with some such sign as "our favorite voters are for Sigmund Blotz for senator." Shades of Grover Cleveland!

The street corner peddlers have the same Lilliputian tricks to be found at any county fair grounds, and move
beasts with grained fronts still dress up in the blood curdle of Mary Pickford and parade them in the streets.

Where there's a will to drink there's a way to get it!
One of those very popular gentlemen—vulgarily referred to as bootleggers—got a call the other day to deliver a case of liquor to a movie magazine in the hotel occupied by a certain visiting queen.

Arriving there he found every door
guarded by police.
Stumped as to what move to make,
he went to a nearby store and bought a shiny valise and a silk hat. At a second-hand store he bought a couple of ancient war medals.

Then he walked right up and to his amazement, three of the officers saluted him.
"I sure must have looked like the Duke of Kakyak," he told me afterward.

All of which would be a better story if I could print a photograph of the gent in question.

MILL GRINDS OUT 30 DIVORCES PER WEEK IN TINIEST COUNTY IN THE NATION

BY NEA Service
WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—A divorce in three and a half minutes?
This isn't a Reno or Paris record.
At Arlington county court house (Va.) on the fringe of Washington, is perhaps the busiest divorce mill in the country.

There are other mills throughout Virginia but none to equal Arlington county's, because that one is most conveniently situated with reference to ample supplies of raw material—
big cities, like Washington and Baltimore.

The county is the smallest in the United States, which makes its enormous divorce mill all the more of a distinction.

It grinds once a week, on Saturday, for four hours, during which about 30 divorces usually are turned out.

Officials term the mill a disgrace,
but they say they can't do anything about it under the present law.

Long before Judge Samuel G. Brent took his seat on "divorce day," the Arlington county courtroom always is jammed with petitioners.

First come, first served is the rule,
and it's wise to be on hand promptly.
There are sure to be more divorce
applicants than can be heard before adjournment, and it means a week's delay to be left over.

Time sets the only limit on the number of decrees granted, and mighty little of that's wasted.

The procedure is perfunctory. The plaintiff takes a chair at the small table which serves as a desk for Judge Brent.

Desertion is by far the commonest
ground of complaint.

Has it covered a period of at least three years? the applicant's lawyer
inquires, for the court's information.
Yes.

Has the applicant lived in Arlington county for at least a year? Yes.

The witness corroborates this testimony. Decree entered. That's all —except that the lawyer, known as a "divorce specialist," pockets a fee ranging from $100 to $250, and he generally has a dozen or more cases
every "divorce day."

Few divorce petitioners have lived in the county more than the necessary year. Still fewer are registered voters or taxpayers. The usual place of residence is a rented room.

Recent investigation revealed the fact that this room frequently sees very little more of the divorce-seeker than his or her suitcase.

After the decree has been granted
its beneficiary almost invariably returns to some former home, elsewhere, according to Circuit Court Clerk William H. Duncan.

"The System" Exposed Again

A shrewd son of Italy desiring to open a hotdog and soft drink stand at the corner of Broad and Wall streets applied to the superintendent of J. P. Moran & Co's building.

After some hesitation he was given permission to set up a small stand.
Business prospered at a furious rate
and Brother Tony and Cousin Gulseppe were called into help out during the rush hours at noon time.
Another cousin, Pietro, happened
along one day.

"Hey, Joe, howza biz?" he inquired.
"She's go pretty good," admitted the lucky proprietor, hoping for another assistant. "If I gotta tree week more like dis, I'll be sittin' on a world."

"Data fine," grinned the cousin.
"You want you lend-a me ten dollar
hill-a next Monday?"
A spasm of pain crossed the merchant's shining brow. "I'm so sorry, Pietro," he sighed, patting the other's shoulder. "It's his dis. Wan I come here Messtah Morgan, he make-a bargain with me. He say, 'Joe, I promise not to go in hotdog business, but you mas' promise not to loan no money.'"

THE FUN OF IT

"Now run along to church, Johnny,
and the vicar will tell you all about heaven."
"I don't want him to tell me. I want it to come as a surprise."
—Lassing Show, London.

"Well, Miss Magnolia, is yo' program
fill' yet?"
"No, sah, my program ain't fill'.

Coati Mundi
RINGED-TAILED BEARS WITH RUBBER NOSE

BY ARTHUR N. PACK
President, American Nature Ass'n
This one, children, will not be found in the catalog if you look for "snookum bears." However, a smart dealer, knowing the value of an easy
name to remember, calls the Coati Mundi by that name, which may be just as well.
Running in bands these animals are found in Mexico and South America.
They have an odd shaped rubbery nose that can be worked into so many odd shapes and so rapidly you are forced to laugh.
They are about the size of racoons
with ringed tails that are quite long.
Their black feet have bear-like claws. Their ears are short and round.
As to food, anything sweet in the fruit line is relished by Coati Mundi;
even custard pie goes down with a rush. Prunes also make a great hit with this animal.
When it comes to identification the Coati is an American plantgrade capricious quadruped. Bather, had to get all that down, so let us stick to "snookum bears."

Helpful Health Hints

TREAT CANCER EARLY!
BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene,
the Health Magazine

At present there is no treatment
for tumor of the breast, except early diagnosis and prompt surgical removal. The average person who discovers a lump is likely to delay.
Dr. William F. Wild points out, in most of the instances recorded by the American Society for the Control of cancer, the woman who first discovered the lump asked the advice
of her mother or another relative,
who likewise examined it, and then consulted neighbors and friends, all of whom told her something that she already knew, namely, that she had a lump.

Touch Irritates It
Cancer is a disease which tends to become worse on irritation and manipulation. Repeated attempts to press upon or feel the lump in the breast, unless done by a physician
in the course of a diagnosis, serve only to irritate them and perhaps to spread the disease.
When a woman discovers a lump

in the breast she should go at once to the best possible physician, one
in whom she has implicit confidence,
and should follow his decision.
As Dr. Joseph C. Bloodgood has indicated, the woman should not wait for a secondary symptom of pain
before seeking medical advice, and if pain is the first sensation in the breast she should not necessarily wait for the appearance of a lump. Another symptom is an unusual discharge from the breast, which is the result of inflammation.
No Preventive Medicine
There is no preventive medicine for cancer that can be used either internally or externally, and there is not the slightest evidence that any serum
has been developed of virtue in controlling the disease.
Today many surgeons report more than 75 per cent of patients operated on have lived for more than five years following operation without any recurrence of the disease. Cancers in their early stages are recognized and may be completely removed. In the later stages they may have spread deeply and involve other parts of the body, so that successful operation becomes impossible.

With Our Contemporaries

PROSPERITY FOR SHIPS
All Americans are interested in a powerful merchant marine to carry the farm and factory products of our country to the markets of the world.

Andrew Furuseth, head of the American Seaman's union, says unions face destruction at the hands of the courts, and suggests: "It may be necessary for us to tell the courts
that enjoin us. We refuse to answer your questions, we refuse to recognize you," etc. Mr. Furuseth is earnest and honest. But those unions really will face destruction on the day
they decide to over-rule the courts.
That must be done only through the ballot box, not in the back room of any labor union or corporation.

Labor unions can never enjoy prosperity by destroying the prosperity of shipowners or by creating conditions
that make it difficult to operate
American ships.
Whatever is good only for yourself
and is "pizen" for the other fellow,
or is good for one class and death to another, or weakens the constitution,
is never American.—Quannah Tribune-Chief.

NAMES THAT ARE COSTLY
Not many people have ever heard of Button Gwinnet.
But, known or unknown, the signature of this fellow is the second most expensive autograph in the world.
The only name bringing an even more fabulous sum is that of William Shakespeare. Only six authentic signatures of Shakespeare have ever been found. Many of his autographs were destroyed in the great London
fire.
Button Gwinnet signed the Declaration of Independence. It must have been about the only time he ever wrote his name, for no other signature ever has been found. The market value of a Gwinnet autograph is about $50,000. Shakespeare's is worth about $50,000.

On the other hand, a Washington,
Napoleon, Lincoln or even kingly autograph is worth only about $50, because they signed their names too often!

A reversal of the tables in this autograph realm—it's quantity that counts rather than quality.—San Angeles Standard.

In the World Court it is believed the senators will find something to talk about.—Pittsburgh Gazette-Times.

Diana, goddess of the chase, gave quite an impetus to the bare-knee movement.—Lafayette Journal and

A PRODUCTIVE THOUGHT

The conversation ran something like this: Cotton prices are very much lower than usual, and I wonder how conditions will be next year.

Then someone mentioned the fact that their "rooms were vacant," some had "apartments," others "houses" some had "furniture" to sell.

He looked at her curiously, but said nothing. When they had passed over Derhart's bungalow, and were walking between open fields, Judith spoke again.

He looked at her more curiously. "You know any little thing that I can do as at your service," he said. "What's up?"

Judith turned and faced him. "Kitty Shea is trying to blackmail me—and somebody else. You've got to stop him."

Eric stopped in his tracks. "Somebody else? Who is the other man, Judith?"

"Well, Judith," said the boy, when she came down the steps, wearing a tancoat that swung back over a blue dress.

"Thank you for coming so promptly," said Judith. "We'll go walking, so we can talk."

The evening was unmistakably of the serene and yellow season, with a sharp touch of frost in the air, and a stage of yellow in the western sky.

"Let's walk a little way out on the Granville road," said Judith. "We mustn't be overheard."

He looked at her curiously, but said nothing. When they had passed over Derhart's bungalow, and were walking between open fields, Judith spoke again.
