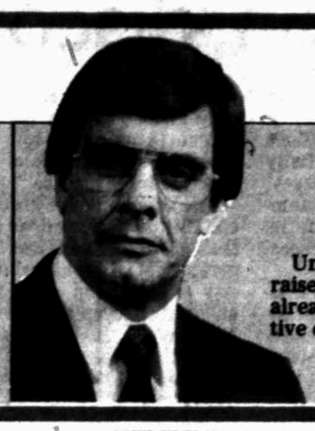
Coming Sunday

Painting

The traditional image of an oil painter is that of a careful craftsman who agonizes for hours over each brushstroke. But, that's not necessarily the case, as seen in Sunday's Local section.

Changing

From "pink-collar ghetto" to the executive board room, today's women are seeking — and finding — careers in fields formerly staffed only by men. Read about changing trends in women's employment in Sunday's Lifestyle section.



Donating

United Way of Midland has five days left to succeed in its campaign to raise $1.95 million in operating funds. Will it succeed? In one way, it already has achieved success. In Sunday's "Speaking Out" column, executive director Robert A. Cornelius explains how.

CIA employees die in plane crash

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four American employees of the CIA on an arms surveillance mission in El Salvador were killed early Friday when their aircraft crashed in heavy rain near the capital, San Salvador.

White House spokesan Larry Speakes said the mission of the unarmed aircraft was to "assist the government of El Salvador by warning of insurgent offensives and identification of shipments of arms and ammunition by the government of Nicaragua to the guerrillas in El Salvador."

One intelligence source said the plane, equipped with sophisticated night photography equipment, was following another aircraft suspected of carrying arms to leftist Salvadoran guerrillas. He said such missions had been under way for about two months.

"All I know is that there was a plane crash...and supposedly they were chasing another airplane that was suspected of carrying weapons to the enemy," said Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee. "And they just plain flew into a mountain. That happens in the best of places," Goldwater said in Carefree, Ariz. Goldwater said that he had been briefed about the incident by CIA Director William Casey.

Speakes said, "The aircraft was flying during heavy rains with very limited visibility and crashed into a mountain near San Salvador."

Speakes confirmed that the airplane was "under contract to the U.S. government and the government of El Salvador."

Jim Williams, a spokesman for the U.S. Embassy in San Salvador, said the plane went down on the Guazapa volcano, a longtime rebel stronghold 15 miles north of the capital, and that Salvadoran authorities "are investigating the crash."

According to a statement read by State Department spokesman Brian Carlson, "The airplane was crewed by four U.S. citizen civilian employees of the Central Intelligence Agency. There were no survivors. Next of kin have been notified." The U.S. embassy in San Salvador issued a similar communique. Neither Speakes nor Carlson identified the employees by name. A CIA official also declined to identify the four, and the communique from San Salvador did not identify the four.

Clements: Oil prices to stabilize

By JOHN PAUL PITTS
Business-Oil Editor

ODESSA — Former Texas Gov. William Clements, in town for the Permian Basin Oil Show, said he was not surprised that the price of crude oil had dropped, but said he didn't expect it to drop any further.

"A lot of people, especially the British and Norwegians, have been working hard for a long time to keep the price of oil up. I am not surprised it came down. It probably would have come down five or six months ago, had it not been for the efforts to keep prices up," said the 1984 Oil Show Honoree, and founder of SEDCO, an offshore drilling firm.

He said he looked for the price to stabilize at current prices for six months to a year before going back up. He was adamant in his statement that prices would not continue to fall, and refused to make any predictions in that direction.

"I am not very impressed with forecasts and predictions — not even my own," said Clements. "I can remember when they were forecasting $50, $60 and even $70 oil."

In the area of decontrol of natural gas, he said he was not very optimistic. "The industry is divided about 50-50 on the issue. The majors are divided. The independents are divided. I don't look for any meaningful legislation to give us total decontrol, but I do think President Reagan will present another bill in his next term."

Clements said that bitter opposition to the decontrol of natural gas in the North and Northeast would make it very hard to get decontrol.

In the political arena, the former governor took time to endorse Kelly Godwin, who opposes Democrat Jay Gibson for his seat in the Texas House of Represenatives, saying Godwin could bring "badly needed talent to Austin."

Asked about Governor Mark White's performance to date, Clements said he was not in the least disappointed with White.

"He has done everything I said he would. I still feel the same way about Mark White, and when election time rolls around again, I will be working hard to get him out of office."

He had kinder words for Texas Railroad Commission Chairman, Mack Wallace, who is opposed by a Republican contender this November. "Mack Wallace has done a great job for Texas," he said. "He is a friend and I support him."

He then asked if Wallace was running as a Democrat or Republican. When told Democrat, he replied, "I thought he would have changed parties by now."

Clements said he expected Republicans to perform well in the November election with many candidates going into office on Reagan's coattails.

"I expect Republicans to pick up several seats in the state senate and possibly two congressional seats," he said.

Economists expect growth of activity

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. economy went into a pronounced slump during the summer with growth slowing to a sluggish 2.7 percent rate from July through September — less than one-third the torrid pace set in the first half of the year, the government said Friday.

The Reagan administration, facing an election in less than three weeks, declared that the "slowdown is already behind us" and pointed to encouraging signs that the economy has perked up from its summer doldrums.

Most private economists agreed that business activity will pick up in the final three months of the year, but many said the administration's growth forecast of 4 percent was too optimistic.

In other economic developments Friday:

— Oil prices stabilized in nervous world markets as traders awaited OPEC's response to this week's wave of price cutting that drew in one of its own members, Nigeria.

— The stock market's best-known indicator, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, rose .55 to 1,225.93 in extremely heavy trading. That was a much smaller gain than the previous session's 29.49-point jump. Still, the index finished the week with a net gain of 35.23 points. Big Board volume for the day totaled 186.90 million shares, the third largest total on record.

— The interest rate ceiling on basic home loans backed by the Veterans Administration will be trimmed to 13 percent effective Monday, the government announced. The decline from 13.5 percent comes just two months after the VA had dropped the rate from 14 percent on Aug. 13.

The Commerce Department report on the gross national product — the broadest measure of economic health — represented a substantial downward revision from a preliminary estimate made last month.

The department had put growth in the July-September period at 3.6 percent, but that was revised downward almost a full percentage point to 2.7 percent on Friday. That marked the slowest growth since a 0.5 percent rate turned in during the final three months of 1982, when the recession had hit bottom.

It was also in marked contrast to rates of 10.1 percent and 7.1 percent turned in during the first and second quarters this year.

Some analysts warned that a growth rate this slow will cause unemployment to begin rising again, but the administration dismissed such fears.

Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige called the weak performance temporary. He blamed it on a drop in consumer spending in July and August, a flood of imports and a dip in the growth of business investment.

But Baldrige said, "More important than why the slowdown occurred is the fact that it is already behind us." He discounted concerns that the economy might be on the verge of another recession and predicted growth in the fourth quarter and for all of next year would average 4 percent.

Growth this year, even with the slowdown in the second half, is expected to be close to 6 percent.

Many private economists predicted growth would be below 4 percent in the coming quarter with one, Donald Ratajczak of Georgia State University, forecasting a 2.9 percent rate, only slightly above the current quarter.

Iranian plane attacks vessel of Panama; U.S. ships aid crew

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — An Iranian warplane attacked a small Panamanian-registered vessel in the Persian Gulf on Friday and patrolling U.S. Navy ships rescued most of its crewmen, maritime salvage executives reported.

The 1,512-ton vessel, the Pacific Protector, was first sighted in trouble by a U.S. military aircraft, which radioed the Greek tanker Ioannis Couloutbros with a "ship-on-fire" signal at about 10 a.m., the sources said.

"It appears the American aircraft alerted the American navy units, while the Ioannis Couloutbros wired on the information to Lloyds (insurance underwriters) in London," said one salvage company officer, speaking on the condition that he not be identified.

"The American navy vessels rushed to the stricken vessel and managed to pick up survivors. Two of the crewmen were possibly killed in the attack," he said. The captain, a New Zealander, was among the missing, the sources said, and 16 crewmen were rescued.

Salvage tugboats of Gray McKenzie, a British company, and Wijsmueller Companies of the Netherlands were battling the flames on the Pacific Protector, company sources said.

They said survivors were rescued by the U.S. guided-missile frigate Stark.

Dependents of American diplomats in Beirut have left, officials say

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Most family members of American diplomats in Beirut have left the country while safety measures at the embassy are improved following last month's terrorist attack, according to statements Friday from U.S. Embassy officials.

John Stewart, embassy spokesman in Beirut, said five dependents left last week but declined to specify when or where they went "for security reasons." Only about a half dozen dependents had returned since the mass evacuation last year when Moslem militias seized control of west Beirut from the Lebanese army. In Washington, President Reagan signed legislation that authorizes $366 million to increase security at U.S. embassies abroad and creates a $10 million fund to pay rewards for anti-terrorist information.

Western security officials, speaking on condition they not be identified, said U.S. diplomats in recent days have been concerned about continuing kidnap and bomb threats.

U.S. Embassy officials would not comment on the matter.

About 40 to 50 Americans still are assigned to diplomatic or security duties here. Most of the people who left last week were wives of embassy staff members, Stewart said. Rose-Anne Bartholomew, the wife of U.S. Ambassador Reginald Bartholomew, remains in Lebanon, he added.

U.S. Embassy sources in Cyprus said that "a handful" of Americans had arrived on the island from Beirut last week and added that most had since departed for other places. They said they knew of no plans for further evacuations.

"The departure was a temporary measure taken during the reorganization of the embassy's operation and while security measures are being enhanced in the wake of the terrorist attack on the embassy," Stewart said.

The U.S. Embassy annex in the Christian suburb of Aukar east of Beirut was badly damaged Sept. 20 in a suicide truck-bomb attack. At least 14 people, including two Americans, were killed.

Neither the damaged building in Aukar nor the main U.S. Embassy in mostly Moslem west Beirut has been reopened since the bombing.

Absentee voting up, according to official

From Staff Reports

Absentee voting is up this year compared to the 1980 presidential election, according to the Elections Administrator's office.

By the time voting ended at 5 p.m. Friday, 2,280 persons had cast their ballot in person or by mail at the office, 707 W. Washington Ave. The tally is unofficial, said a spokesman, until the names and precincts are be verified.

Four years ago after three days of absentee voting, 1,616 persons had voted.

On Friday, the office saw 502 vote in person and 51 by mail. On Thursday the count was 379 and on Wednesday it was 288. The Elections Administrator's office has mailed out more than 900 ballots for absentee voting, said a spokesman.

The county now lists 54,832 names on the voter registration rolls. Janeice Builta, elections administrator, said she expects the final number to hit 55,000.

She also noted that some of the people voting absentee remarked they were told that if they voted in the Republican or Democratic primary, they had to vote a straight ticket for that party in the general election.

"You do not have to vote a straight ticket, regardless of how you voted in the primary," she said.

Absentee voting will continue from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday at the Washington street office through Nov. 2.

Mayors' association discovers new class of poor in France

PARIS (AP) — France has discovered its new poor — growing numbers of ordinary folks caught in a national economic crisis that has cost them their jobs and left them with unemployment benefits used up.

Secours Catholique, the largest private welfare agency in France, had 250,000 requests for help in 1980 and 450,000 in 1983. The requests are expected to be much higher this year.

Five years ago, people came to Secours Catholique at the end of the month for help with an electricity bill, or to cover the rent. Now, says Daniel Druesne, an official with the organization, they are asking for food.

According to government figures, there are 2.36 million people out of work in France, or 10.1 percent of the work force.

Jacques Chirac, mayor of Paris and leader of the neo-Gaullist Rally for the Republic opposition party, claimed that 600,000 of those unemployed have used up their benefits and that their numbers are increasing by 100,000 a month.

In fact, there are no available official statistics to illustrate the problem. But local governments, which must deal directly with the problem, are very much aware of the increase.

Generally, the unemployed in France receive about 70 percent of their former salaries for the first year. After that, they get only 40 francs ($4.25) a day.

The Association of Mayors of the Large Cities of France reported at a recent meeting that there was "not only an increase in the 'traditional' categories of poor, but the appearance of a new class of society touched by this curse."

The report by the group's working committee indicated, as an example, that 33 percent of the 3,238 people given special financial help by the city of Besancon were unemployed and had used up their benefits.

In the city of Nantes, 684 people sought assistance from the city in 1979. In 1983, that had risen to 1,300.

The city of Paris had to increase its budget for social assistance from 12.7 million francs ($1.35 million) in 1981 to 30.8 million francs ($3.3 million) this year.

A relief official who goes by the name "Father Pierre," founder of the Emmaus Community, a Catholic charity organization, said after a meeting with Premier Laurent Fabius that "no measure will be really effective until our people have opened their eyes to reality and rejected the illusion that the crisis is an accident that can be forgotten."

France's economic troubles began with the world recession late in the 1970s.

After trying to reflate the economy in 1981 and trigger a consumer-led economic recovery, the Socialists imposed austerity measures when the recession proved deeper than expected. They recently announced they could no longer afford to bail out unprofitable businesses simply to save jobs.

The result has been a steady rise in unemployment and 22,700 bankruptcies in 1983 with the 1984 rate running 10 percent higher.

The Associations of Mayors, representing 51 cities, proposed a series of new measures to be carried out urgently to cover the winter period from Nov. 1 to April 1.

The measures include more help with housing, a moratorium on gas, electricity and telephone bills, interest-free loans and more money to people who have run out of unemployment benefits.

But apart from the long-term unemployed, there are others such as single mothers and youths who have never had a job.

The Social Committee of the French Episcopal Conference issued a report in October saying "poverty has returned," and now has struck "average Frenchmen."

The issue has developed into the major topic of the day.

Edouard Leclerc, head of France's largest cut-rate department store-supermarket chain, said his 500 stores would make their contribution by offering an "anti-crisis" basket of basic necessities sold at very low prices.

Also, people who present public assistance cards at the cashier's counter will be given a discount. "A solution must be found to allow these people to eat," Leclerc said.

The government seems to have been caught by surprise and has yet to respond to the sudden surge in the public perception of the problem, though Premier Fabius has begun having discussions with the officials of private relief agencies.

Archeologists find plaza, but not pillar

JERUSALEM (AP) — Archeologists burrowing under Jerusalem's old city have uncovered the main square of the Roman-era city, but they failed to find what they were looking for — the massive pillar and statue of the Emperor Hadrian that stood there for more than 1,000 years.

"The pillar should have been here, but we didn't find it," said archeologist Menahem Magen, pointing to a spot on 2,000-year-old paving stones three stories under the current street level at the walled city's Damascus Gate.

The Roman emperor ordered the column placed at the northern entrance to Jerusalem when he rebuilt the city gutted during the Jewish revolts in the first and second centuries.

Hadrian, also a known as Adian, was the Roman emperor from the year 117 until his death in 138. He traveled widely in his empire, ordering structures of various types built in his honor. These include Hadrian's Wall that runs 73½ miles across Britain from Wallsend to Bowness.

The pillar supporting a statue of Hadrian in Jerusalem was believed to be 45 feet high. Arabs still call Damascus Gate "Bab al-Amud," or Gate of the Pillar, indicating that the structure was there at the time of the Moslem conquest in the seventh century and probably through the Crusader period in the 12th century, Magen said.

The search for the Roman plaza and Hadrian's pillar capped a six-year effort to restore the Damascus Gate, the old city's most elaborate entrance, to the grandeur of earlier eras.

In 1967, when Israeli troops conquered the Arab sector of the divided city, the Damascus Gate was crowded on both sides of the 16th-century walls by buildings and trash.

Now a $2-million project is nearing completion to remove the buildings, uncover the Roman gates underneath and build a garden inside the wall built in 1537 by Suleiman the Magnificent.

The main road outside has already been moved away, exposing the walls and the gate set off by an amphitheater and floodlights at night.

Two years ago engineers dug under Suleiman's gate to reach the triple gate of the Roman era.

Clearing away 38,500 cubic feet of rubble on the inside, they were stunned to find intact a Roman guardtower that had been converted to an olive press in the Moslem period. A steep, winding staircase led up to the ramparts on the city walls.

The engineers then dug a passage through the 10-foot-thick wall to the concealed Roman plaza. Yitzhak Yaacobi, head of the East Jerusalem Development Corp. Ltd. which oversaw the work, said only one-fifth of the plaza could be cleared without endangering the buildings above.

The plaza, with its huge central pillar, was depicted in the 6th century Madaba map, a mosaic outline of Jerusalem that was discovered on the floor of a Byzantine church in Jordan. Archaeologists now accept it as an accurate map of the Roman city.

Scientists have created an image of Hadrian's pillar in a three-dimensional hologram, or laser picture, beamed onto a nine-square-foot glass plate, on the original site of the column.

As part of the renovations, City Hall persuaded 17 shop owners inside the gate to evacuate their stalls while the city builds new shops a few feet away.

The Damascus Gate project, funded by the Israeli government and the private Jerusalem Foundation headed by Mayor Teddy Kollek, was one element in Kollek's 16-year effort to bring 20th century conditions to the city founded by King David 3,000 years ago.

About 25,000 people, mostly Palestinians, now live in the one-square-mile city which encompasses shrines of Christianity, Judaism and Islam.

Kollek has replaced the century-old sewage system, buried a central television cable to remove a forest of rooftop antennas, and paved the narrow lanes with cobblestones.

The project included reconstructing the old city's Jewish Quarter, which was destroyed during 19 years of Jordanian rule and Arab-Israeli warfare, and revitalizing the Via Dolorosa, recognized as the route of Christ's walk to Calvary.

Arab states and the United Nations have charged that Israel has destroyed the Arab character of the city. About 100 Palestinian families were displaced during the work, mostly from the Jewish Quarter, and many refused Israeli offers of compensation for political reasons.

Group of black ministers suspicious of state GOP's poll-watching plans

AUSTIN (A) — A group of black ministers said Friday they are suspicious of the Texas Republican Party's poll-watching plans for Nov. 6.

"It appears to be designed to restrict the freedom of franchise for minorities and all other working people in this state," the Rev. F.N. William, president of the Houston Baptist Fellowship, told a Capitol new conference.

"We will see that they stay within the limits of the law," said the Rev. James E. Obey Sr., Austin, corresponding secretary of the Missionary Baptist General Convention of Texas. His wife, Helen, is a member of the National Democratic Executive Committee from Texas.

"The purpose of our ballot security program is to insure the integrity of every Texan's vote," state GOP chairman George Strake said in reply. "We will not discourage or intimidate anyone from voting but we will insist that the voting be legal."

The black ministers, who appeared under the sponsorship of the state Mondale-Ferraro campaign, announced that Oct. 28 would be "Black Absentee Ballot Day" throughout the state.

"The purpose of declaring the day is to ensure that the elderly, those who may be out of the county, and all other eligible voters exercise their right to vote absentee in this year's election," said the Rev. Marvin Griffin, Austin.

"Minorities will not be intimidated by the Republican program which violates the basic rights of every citizen in the state," said the Rev. S.M. Wright, Dallas, vice president of the Missionary Baptist General Convention of Texas.

On Thursday, Strake proposed a reward program for infomation leading to the prosecution of those who engage in voter fraud during the Nov. 6 election.

Strake said the Republican party would proceed with the program whether Demorats joined them or not.

Democratic Gov. Mark White said it "was another example of their lack of understanding of the democratic process. They're so fearful of of the people of the state being given an opportunity to register to vote and express themselves at the polls that they've gone to the point of trying to hire bounty hunters to go out there and detect a problem in the voting procedure."

Meanwhile, Dwayne Holman, head of the state Mondale-Farraro campaign, said Friday he wanted to make it clear the campaign was "alive and well in Texas."

"We're going to carry Texas," Holman said in response to published reports that the national campaign had not come through with money it had promised Texas and that some national campaigners had written off Texas.

"We are going to get all the money we've asked for," Holman said, "and we are going to do an unprecedented job of getting out our vote on Nov. 6. The money the national campaign sends, combined with money from the state party, will enable us to do a full telephone and mail campaign that will make one million more contacts than the program we ran in 1982."

Holman said the only controversy with the national campaign had been in the scheduling of when those funds would be sent.

"National now understands our needs," Holman said. "They are sending us nearly three times as much money as in 1980."

Judicial commission announces reprimand of judge

AUSTIN (AP) — The State Commission on Judicial Conduct announced Friday a public reprimand of Judge Benjamin N. Samples of County Court at Law No. 5 in San Antonio.

"The commission on Judicial Conduct found and concluded that Judge Benjamin N. Samples interceded without authority in a criminal case assigned to another court," said the reprimand signed by Robert C. Flowers, executive director of the commission.

The reprimand said the action was voted by the commission in Sept. 14, following a May 11 hearing at which Samples appeared with his attorney.

The notice said Samples violated state law and "the stated practice among county courts at law in Bexar County that one judge shall not place on probation a defendant in a matter assigned to another court."

The reprimand said Samples' action "defeated the state's efforts to revoke the probation."

Court denies Barefoot's appeal

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals on Friday denied the latest appeal of Texas Death Row inmate Thomas Andy Barefoot, who faces an Oct. 30 execution date for killing a Central Texas policeman.

At the time of the shooting, Barefoot was a fugitive wanted in New Mexico for raping a 3-year-old girl.

In rejecting the former oilfield roughneck's appeal, the court said he failed to show he was denied a "federal right."

The appeal hinged on the argument that the state suppressed expert testimony by Dr. James Trost about how dangerous Barefoot might be in the future.

In a brief opinion, the court said the "failure of the state to inform the defense of that opinion...could not have affected the trial or the jury verdict."

Barefoot now faces his fifth execution date since he was sentenced to death for the Aug. 7, 1978, shooting death of Harker Heights police officer Carl Levin, 31.

Prosecutors say Barefoot shot Levin to avoid arrest in the New Mexico rape case.

Barefoot says he has become a devout Christian in prison and often says he is "going to heaven when I die, whenever that may be." He insists he is innocent and has called his execution "the most premeditated of murders."

Barefoot, 39, formerly of New Iberia, La., came within 12 hours of execution in January 1983 before the U.S. Supreme Court gave him a stay so the court could decide how to handle last-minute appeals for death row inmates.

"The last time I came so close that my poor mama and my dad made all the arrangements and bought the coffin, a plot of ground and the whole nine yards."

Police trying to identify body found burning

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston police investigators on Friday were trying to identify a man whose burning body was found by firefighters responding to a report of a trash fire in a south Houston neighborhood.

WEATHER SUMMARY

National Weather Service NOAA, U.S. Dept. of Commerce

AP Laserphoto Map

The National Weather Service forecasts showers for today from the central Rocky Mountain states to Oregon and Arizona and from Texas to the Virginia coast. Snow is forecast for parts of Utah, Nevada, Montana, North Dakota and Minnesota.

Chance of drizzle may dampen Midland weekend

An early prelude to snow — drizzle — may dampen many a Midlander today and tonight.

The weatherman at the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport is calling for early morning fog beneath cloudy skies and a 20 percent chance of drizzle. The high temperature today is to be in the upper 70s, and winds are to be southeasterly at 5 to 15 mph.

For tonight, the weatherman is forecasting partly cloudy skies and a 20 percent chance of drizzle and fog. The low is to be in the low 50s. Winds are to be southeasterly at 5 to 10 mph.

Sunday is to be a cloud-filled day bearing promises of thunderstorms. The high temperature is to be in the low 70s.

Friday's high temperature of 73 degrees was nowhere near the record high of 90 degrees for an Oct. 19 in 1936. The overnight low was 41 degrees, while the record low for an Oct. 20 is 35 degrees in 1976.

STATE

Scattered thunderstorms spawned three tornadoes near Corpus Christi Friday evening after dumping more than 11 inches of rain in Port Lavaca in less than three hours earlier in the day, authorities said.

Two of the tornadoes were sighted north of Robstown, located about 20 miles north of Corpus Christi, said Department of Public Safety Lt. Buddy Means.

He said another tornado on Interstate 37 north of Corpus Christi overturned a travel trailer and a U-haul trailer. He said no injuries were reported.

Means said Interstate 37 near Edroy was closed as was Texas Highway 77 south of Odom and several other Farm to Market roads.

A National Weather Service spokesman, who refused to give his name, said there was no rainfall in Corpus Christi, which is under mandatory water rationing due to an almost two-year drought.

Earlier in the day, the storm dumped more than 11 inches of rain in Port Lavaca, which forced the closure of several roads, Means said.

Elsewhere in the state on Friday, skies were mostly partly cloudy.

Temperatures cooled into the 60s in the Panhandle and 70s North and Central Texas Friday. Extreme South Texas reported above normal temperatures.

The extremes at 4 p.m. were 61 degrees in Amarillo and 87 degrees in Brownsville.

The forecast for today calls for highs in the low 70s in North Texas with lows in the low 60s. Highs Sunday will be in the low 70s.

NATION

Flash flood warnings were posted in parts of Texas, where up to 11 inches of rain fell and tornadoes whistled through on Friday, as light snows dusted the Colorado Rockies and Utah residents began digging out from under 3 feet of snow there.

Friday's storm dumped 11 inches of rain on Port Lavaca, Texas, and a tornado lifted the roof off a house and overturned another residence in nearby Port O'Connor. Power was cut to some parts of Port O'Connor, which is about 100 miles northeast of Corpus Christi.

Calhoun County sheriff's officers used four-wheel-drive vehicles to evacuate "several elderly and invalid individuals" who called to be rescued from their homes in Port Lavaca on Friday morning, officials said.

What's in a name? — Ask candidates

By CARL C. CRAFT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — A rose is a rose, and a Rose — Charles of North Carolina — is trying to bloom again in the U.S. House.

He and other candidates are again on the stump, and a Stump — Bob, U.S. House, Ariz. — is among them. In fact, there are a Lott — Trent, U.S. House, Miss. — of candidates this year.

Flying the national colors, there's a Redding — John, U.S. House, Calif. — a White — Bill, U.S. House, Calif. — and a Blue — Bill, U.S. House, Mo.

On bumper stickers, posters and ballots, voters will See — Clyde, governor, W.Va. — many names. Candidates this year are Wise — Robert, U.S. House, W.Va. — and Frank — Barney, U.S. House, Mass.

Across the land, there's a Bush or two — George, vice president; Tom, U.S. House, Fla. There's also a Leef — George, U.S. House, Mich.

Campaigning for votes, candidates will traverse Hill — Frank, U.S. House, N.C. — and Ridge — Tom, U.S. House, Pa. — and Fields — Jack, U.S. House, Texas — and Brooks — Jack, U.S. House, Texas.

There's no shortage of abodes along the way: A Delaware Castle — Michael, governor — a Connecticut House — Arthur, U.S. House — and various Barnes — Michael P., U.S. House, Ind.; John A., U.S. House, Kan.; Michael D., U.S. House, Md.; Gary, U.S. House, Wis.

Once inside, you'll find several Halls — Tony, U.S. House, Ohio; Sam, U.S. House, Texas; Ralph, U.S. House, Texas.

They'll provide some warmth from the Mississippi Winter — William, U.S. Senate — Maine Snowe — Olympia, U.S. House — and Texas Frost — Martin, U.S. House.

Some candidates will take to the wing in search of votes, including a Florida Starling — Alton, U.S. House — a Washington Swift — Al, U.S. House — and a Martin here and there — Lynn, U.S. House, Ill.; James, governor, N.C.; David, U.S. House, N.Y.; D.G., U.S. House, N.C. — and a couple of Illinois Cranes — Philip and Daniel, U.S. House.

Others will travel the political highway: a Michigan Carr — Bob, U.S. House — a Montana Dodge — Larry, governor — a California Packard — Ron, U.S. House — an Illinois Austin — Richard, U.S. House — and a Maryland Bentley — Helen, U.S. House.

Nearby are a Ford or two — William, U.S. House, Mich.; Harold, U.S. House, Tenn. — and even an Etzel — V. Luther, U.S. House, Del.

For the sport of it all, there's a California Boxer — Barbara, U.S. House — and a Texas Archer — Bill, U.S. House.

There's a Hunter from California — Duncan, U.S. House — along with a Fox — John, U.S. House, N.Y. — a Wolf — Frank, U.S. House, Va. — and a Beaver — J.T., U.S. House, Calif.

There's a Maine Bull — Chipman, U.S. House — and a New Jersey Bearse — Peter, U.S. House.

Looking to serve the voters are a Porter or two — John, U.S. House, Ill.; Thomas, U.S. House, Ohio — a Washington Gardner — Booth, governor — a Pennsylvania Shoemaker — Gary, U.S. House — and a Taylor now and then — Jim, U.S. House, Ark.; Gene, U.S. House, Mo.; Clarence, U.S. House, S.C..

Also hunting government jobs are a Virginia Carpenter — Donald, U.S. House — an Oregon Weaver — Jim, U.S. House — and a few Millers — Margaret, U.S. House, W.Va.; Clarence, U.S. House, Ohio; John, U.S. House, Wash.

For a New York Cook — Constance, U.S. House — there's some Missouri Wheat — Alan, U.S. House — and Oklahoma Rice — Gary, U.S. House. To add some spice, there's a Texas Pickle — J.J., U.S. House — and some Florida Pepper — Claude, U.S. House.

And to pay for it all, there's some change — Nichols from Alabama — Bill, U.S. House — and a Penny — Timothy — U.S. House, Minn.

Funeral home receives bodies of crash victims

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — The bodies of four people, said to be Americans and apparently the four who died in the crash of an aircraft on a surveillance mission north of here, were brought to a funeral home Friday afternoon.

Oscar Pineda, director of funeral services at La Auxiliadora funeral home, said a military ambulance brought the four bodies in at 4:30 p.m. — 6:30 p.m. EDT — and ordered them put in cold storage under lock. He said he did not know where the bodies had been found or anything about their identities.

"They brought the bodies in without documentation," Pineda said. "It's a very strange situation...No judicial recognition of the bodies has been made and until one is made we cannot touch them."

Another employee at the funeral home, the most exclusive in San Salvador, said those killed were Americans but did not say how he knew. The employee would not give his name.

In Washington, the State Department said four American employees of the CIA on an arms surveillance mission in El Salvador were killed early Friday when their aircraft crashed in heavy rain near San Salvador.

U.S. Embassy spokesman Jim Williams said the plane crashed on the Guazapa volcano, a longtime leftist guerrilla stronghold 15 miles north of San Salvador and Salvadoran authorities "are investigating."

A Salvadoran military spokesman said earlier Friday that about 1,000 government troops had started an anti-guerrilla sweep on the northern slopes of Guazapa earlier in the week. The military has embarked on numerous such drives during the five-year-old civil war without being able to permanently dislodge the rebels from the volcano.

CRASH

"The airplane was operating under a program which had been fully authorized in accordance with applicable procedures including notification to the responsible committees of the Congress," Carlson said. He did not elaborate.

The incident occurred one day after the Salvadoran army launched a major offensive against a rebel stronghold in northeastern El Salvador. But the intelligence source, who spoke on condition he not be identified, said the flight was unrelated to the offensive.

There was initial confusion over the four's exact relationship with the CIA. One source said one was an agent and three were contract employees, but another source said the plane carried three agents and one contract employee. Contract employees are not regular agency staff members, but work under contract for a specific period of time.

ATTACK

The Pacific Protector was used for work offshore by maritime companies based in the United Arab Emirates port of Dubai, Bahrain shipping sources said. It was attacked while on its way from Bahrain to Qatar, according a spokesman for the Pacific Protector's owner, Swire Pacific Offshore, in Hong Kong.

"A rocket, fired by the Iranian plane, hit the wheelhouse and ignited fire in the ship," said one salvage company source. "Seven hours after the attack, salvage tugs reported they were making headway in extinguishing the fire. But there was lots of smoke."

He added that a U.S. military helicopter moved the rescued seamen from the Stark to an unidentified gulf city.

Marine shipping agents in Bahrain said the attack took place in neurtral waters at latitude 26/14 degrees north and longitude 52/23 degrees east, in the Shah Olam shoals about 60 miles northeast of the sheikdom of Qatar.

The area, they said, was the scene of attacks by Iranian warplanes in recent weeks.

On Monday, an Exocet missile fired by an Iraqi warplane hit the 218,000-ton supertanker Sivand, a vessel owned by the National Iranian Oil Company. No casualties were reported in the attack, which occurred south of Iran's Kharg Island oil shipping terminal.

The U.S. warships are part of the five-unit Middle East force that patrols the gulf waters south of the Iran-Iraq war zone. U.S. Navy vessels joined rescue efforts for two other ships hit by air-to-surface missiles in the Persian Gulf in the past three months.

Marine salvage sources said Friday's raid brought to 53 the number of merchant ships — mainly oil tankers — attacked in the Persian Gulf since January by both Iraq and Iran. The two nations have been at war for four years.

Iraq has been attempting to cripple Iran's oil exports. Iran said it would retaliate for Iraqi attacks, and it has struck in neutral gulf waters south of the war zone.

On Friday, Iraq and Iran both described Iran's two-day-old offensive along the central sector of the border warfront as a limited operation, although the two countries continued to make out conflicting battlefield victory claims.

The official Iranian news agency IRNA reported that Iranian forces achieved their goal of recapturing strategic border heights and that they beat back the fourth Iraqi counterattack in two days, killing 1,000 Iraqi troops.

State-run Baghdad Radio of Iraq, however, said the Iranian offensive launched Wednesday night about 70 miles northeast of Baghdad was crushed and that Iraqi forces were "chasing the defeated and shattered enemy troops" in Iraqi-occupied Iranian territory.

An Iraqi war communique issued by Baghdad Radio said Iraqi ground forces killed 906 Iranian soldiers Friday.

GROWTH

"Clearly there is a major slowdown in process," said Allen Sinai, chief economist for Shearson Lehman-American Express. "I think we are flirting with a growth recession."

A growth recession occurs when the GNP continues to expand but at such a slow rate that unemployment rises also.

Michael Evans, head of a Washington forecasting firm, predicted that unemployment would begin rising in coming months and growth would slow to 2.5 percent for the first half of next year.

Both the administration and private forecasters agreed that the news on inflation remained upbeat. The department reported that an inflation index tied to the GNP rose at a modest rate of 3.8 percent from July through September, the slowest pace this year. It had risen at a rate of 4.3 percent in the second quarter and 5 percent in the first quarter.

Baldrige said the current decline in world oil prices should help keep inflation low.

The GNP report confirmed earlier barometers which showed the pace of consumer purchases off sharply this summer. It put the rate of growth in consumer spending at a tiny 0.2 percent from July through September, compared with a rate of 7.9 percent turned in from April through June.

The rate of growth in business investment, while stronger at 8 percent, was also down from the 21.3 percent pace turned in during the second quarter of the year.

Another large drag on overall GNP came from a flood of imports, which were up during the third quarter at an astonishing annual pace of 50 percent, far ahead of the 16 percent growth in exports.

The GNP figures are expressed with the effects of inflation removed. The growth in inflation-adjusted GNP was $10.8 billion in the third quarter, putting the total output of the goods and services at an annual figure of $1.65 trillion.

Before adjusting for inflation, the GNP grew at a rate of 6.3 percent in the third quarter to a new annual total of $3.7 trillion.

EMBASSY

Spouses and visiting children of U.S. diplomats were evacuated last February after militiamen took over the western sector. Very few returned to the capital after the diplomats moved their residences to the Christian east side of town and opened the new Aukar facility late in July.

One U.S. diplomat, William Buckley, a political officer, is among three Americans kidnapped earlier this year in west Beirut and still is missing. The others are Jeremy Levin, bureau chief of the Cable News Network, and the Rev. Benjamin Weir, a Presbyterian minister.

The Washington Post, quoting unidentified sources, reported Thursday that intelligence agencies fear some of the explosives moved into Beirut to accomplish the Aukar bombing may still be in the capital and that Aukar could again be a target.

One of the city's five major road crossings between the Moslem and Christian sectors was closed for three hours Friday by the Lebanese army because gunmen on streets in the area were abducting people. An army statement said all of the kidnap victims were released, but gave no other details.

Under the legislation signed by Reagan, rewards of as much as $500,000 will be paid for information about any planned terrorist act against Americans or U.S. property, or for information leading to the conviction of those who commit terrorist acts.

In a written statement, Reagan said the United States must maintain a global presence "and not succumb to these cowardly attempts at intimidation."

He said the bill provides resources "essential in countering the insidious threat terrorism poses to those who cherish freedom and democracy."

In its request for the money, the State Department said it would be used to improve security at 70 of the most threatened U.S. posts by installing walls, fences, lighting, barriers and guard booths.

In another development, a Lebanese ferry on a routine trip between Beirut and south Lebanon sank in high seas off Beirut after developing engine trouble.

Court upholds village's handgun ban

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — A divided Illinois Supreme Court on Friday upheld the nation's first handgun ban in the Chicago suburb of Morton Grove, and the village's mayor said the ruling "sends the green light" to other communities considering similar laws.

The 4-3 decision came on a challenge by four village residents who contended that the 1981 law barring the sale and possession of handguns violated state constitutional guarantees of the right to bear arms and was not within the scope of local officials' authority.

The high court said that such a ban is constitutional as long as not all guns are outlawed and that village officials had the power to impose the ban to reduce weapons-related injuries and accidents.

The right to bear arms "was designed neither to encourage nor to discourage the possession of firearms, but merely to guard against the confiscation of all arms," Justice Seymour Simon wrote in the majority opinion.

The specific ban against handguns was justified, Simon wrote, "because of the ease with which handguns can be concealed and handled, as compared with other types of weapons."

The ban "could rationally have been viewed by the village as a way of reducing the frequency of premeditated violent attacks as well as unplanned criminal shootings in the heat of passion or in overreaction to fears of assault," he said.

The court rejected arguments that the state alone has the authority to regulate guns, with Simon writing that "different communities which perceive a problem differently may adopt different measures to address the problem."

Richard Flickinger, mayor of the village of 23,000, said many other municipalities have requested copies of Morton Grove's ordinance but were hesitant to act while court challenges were pending.

"They should have the green light now to pass whatever ordinance they want as far as gun control is concerned," Flickinger said.

"I think now...you're going to see a lot more local action," said Josh Sugarmann, communications director of the National Coalition to Ban Handguns.

Despite the efforts of the National Rifle Association and other groups opposed to curbs on gun ownership, the Morton Grove ordinance has been upheld by state and federal appellate courts. The U.S. Supreme Court last year refused to hear a separate federal suit challenging it.

NRA spokesman Andrew Kendzie said the group might renew its request with the high court in light of Friday's state court decision, but acknowledged that state legislation would likely be the best course of action.

"They may have won the Morton Grove round, but we still have several options open to us and we will pursue those options," Kendzie said.

The ordinance, enforced since February 1982, permits possession of rifles and shotguns but restricts handguns to law officers and security guards. Flickinger said three people have been arrested for possession of handguns since the law was enacted.

In his dissent, Chief Justice Howard Ryan wrote that if laws are passed "for the sole purpose of publicizing a political viewpoint, then... our constitutionally guaranteed rights are in serious jeopardy."

In another dissent, Justice Thomas Moran wrote that the majority's "strained reading" of the 1970 state constitution "defies logic and runs counter to the history surrounding the enactment of the right-to-bear-arms guarantee."

Murder suspect pleads innocent to charges

SEATTLE (AP) — Wai-Chiu "Tony" Ng, the last of three suspects in the execution-style slayings of 13 people in a robbery at a Chinese gambling club, pleaded innocent Friday to charges of first-degree murder.

Two codefendants of Ng, 27, were convicted in separate trials last year.

"We will do whatever is necessary to demonstate (to a jury) that he is not guilty," Mark Mestel, one of Ng's two defense lawyers, said after the brief arraignment before King County Superior Court Judge Richard Ishikawa.

The Hong Kong immigrant was returned here by Royal Canadian Mounted Police Thursday, three weeks after he was captured in his Calgary, Alberta, apartment.

Authorities said Ng fled Seattle after the Feb. 19, 1983, massacre at the Wah Mee Club and had been on the FBI's Ten Most Wanted List for several months before his capture.

He originally was charged with aggravated first-degree murder, the only crime in Washington state punishable by death. But the King County prosecutor amended the charges earlier this week, saying it appeared Ng was a "last-minute recruit" to a robbery planned by two other Chinese men.

Thirteen middle-aged Chinese, most of them tied, were killed by shots in the head by .22-caliber guns. One of the men in the club survived to testify in the earlier trials and is ready to testify in Ng's case, prosecutors said.

Lawyer John Muenster told the judge his client was innocent of all 13 murder counts as well as an assault count in the wounding of the lone survivor, 63-year-old Wai Chin.

"Tony and I have thoroughly discussed each and every count, and based on that discussion, we ask the court to enter a plea of not guilty on each and every count," Muenster said.

An omnibus hearing date, to discuss a number of items related to the trial, was set for Nov. 2.

Ng is being held on $1 million bail in the King County jail, and Mestel said "realistically, he probably will remain in jail."

His co-defendants, Willie Mak and Benjamin Ng, who is not related to Tony Ng, were convicted of aggravated murder. Mak was sentenced to death, and Ben Ng to life in prison without parole.

If convicted, Tony Ng could face a maximum of life in prison on each murder count. Prosecutor Norm Maleng ha said he would seek consecutive sentences to send Ng to prison "for the rest of his natural life."

Marcheeta Chin, the widow of massacre victim Henning Chin, attended Ng's arraignment.

A small group of relatives of the victims, including Mrs. Chin, sat through the trials of Mak and Benjamin Ng.

Judge to rule on showing videotapes to jury

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Airing of a color videotape describing the night millionaire Henry Harrison Kyle was killed would prejudice the jury in his son's murder trial, defense attorneys contend.

Prosecutors want to show the hour-long tape during the trial of Henry Harrison Kyle, Jr., 20, of Texas, who is accused of murdering his father, the president of Four Star Productions, outside the man's Bel-Air mansion July 22, 1983. The elder Kyle was a former resident of Dallas.

On Thursday Superior Court Judge Robert Devich allowed Deputy District Attorney Lewis Watnick to present three other videotapes, but isn't expected to rule on the fourth until Monday, when jury selection starts.

The three tapes depict a police officer describing the area around Kyle's house, a police recruit pointing to the bushes where he found a gun and a ballistics expert pointing out the places where bullets and shell casings were found.

The fourth tape shows Rusty Dunne, a carpenter hired by Kyle, describing events the night of the murder, when he was staying in the house, Watnick said.

"We want to re-enact the crime," he said. "It's one thing to testify to what he (Dunne) saw, it's another thing to see it. It makes it clearer to the jury."

Dunne, who did not see the shooting occur, describes how he was awakened and what he saw in the house, Watnick said.

The elder Kyle made his fortune in oil and became president of Four Star, a motion picture and television production firm, shortly before he was killed.

Police have said they believe the father was killed because the son thought he would be excluded from the will and estate, valued at $60 million.

The younger Kyle remains free on bail.

Veterans return to Philippines to mark U.S. invasion

WORLD

DULAG, Philippines (AP) — Disabled and leaning on his crutches, Billy J. Robertson wept at the sight of a faded American flag fluttering Friday over this seaside town where he and 174,000 other troops landed 40 years ago. He said he will never come back.

Now 64, the former U.S. Navy machinist mate from Sherman, Texas, is among dozens of American war veterans who have gathered on Leyte island to mark the anniversary of the Oct. 20, 1944 American invasion that foreshadowed the end of the Japanese military empire in Southeast Asia.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur, with a 700-ship armada, led the invasion to fulfill the famous "I shall return" pledge he made to Filipinos more than two years earlier when he fled the country as the Japanese Imperial Army completed its occupation of this former U.S. colony.

The U.S. Sixth Army's two-day naval bombardment started Oct. 20 and on Oct. 22 MacArthur came ashore.

President Ferdinand E. Marcos had been scheduled to lead today's ceremonies, including a re-enactment of the landing on Leyte's Red Beach. But the presidential palace in Manila said Marcos could not make it because of bad weather.

Organizers said they would hold the re-enactment, by Filipino and American soldiers, on Sunday but that they didn't know if Marcos will be there.

"No, no, I won't be back again," said Robertson, as he stood on a wooden stage facing the American flag after joining other veterans in singing the Star Spangled Banner during a commemorative program.

"The older you get, the harder it is (to forget)," Robertson said as his body shook with sobs.

Hundreds of Filipino residents paraded through the town, with local women riding on floats drawn by water buffaloes and majorettes marching at the head of a brass band.

One float carried a school teacher wearing a soldier's khaki uniform, a Pershing cap and dark glasses and biting a pipe between his teeth — an imitation of MacArthur.

Emblazoned on the sides of the float were the words, "I have returned."

To mark the occasion, a local radio station in the provincial capital of Tacloban devoted its programs the whole of Friday to playing only what it called "music of the wartime era" including "The Nearness of You" and "Sentimental Journey."

It was on Hill 120 in Dulag that the Americans first raised the Stars and Stripes to symbolize the successful invasion of Leyte, which is situated 350 miles southeast of Manila.

Four days after Allied forces stormed the Leyte beaches, a Japanese Zero fighter plane strafed U.S. soldiers on coastal cleanup duty and blew up an ammunition dump. Robertson said the explosion killed his two closest war buddies and tore up his legs, knocking him unconscious for two weeks.

The blast left Robertson permanently disabled.

Robertson's wife, Carmen, said he has never gotten over the loss of his two buddies, whom he knew only as Lot and Smithy.

This is Robertson's third trip to Leyte since the war. The visits have helped restore his memory, which he said was impaired by the explosion on the beach.

"By going back, retracing footsteps and talking to people and reading stories, I finally put everything right. I can remember. I can recognize a lot of places now," he said.

Then he broke down and, in tears, said he would never come back to Leyte.

Asked if he feels bitter toward the Japanese, Robertson replied, "They were doing as they were told, as we were. The common man has no control over what his government does. I would not have said that 40 years ago, but I have learned a lot since then."

Japanese and Australian war veterans have also been invited to attend this year's ceremonies but only a handful have arrived in Leyte.

Walter Kleinschmidt, 63, who walks with a cane, said he also felt no ill-will toward the Japanese despite a bullet that hit him in the neck. It struck a vertebra and left half his body paralyzed. He received the wound in Okinawa, months after taking part in the Leyte landing.

"I have forgiven the Japanese for what they've done to men," said the veteran from Jacksonville, Ill. "That's the only way to live. You can't live with enmity in your heart your whole lifetime."

Soviet plane reportedly crashes into truck

MOSCOW (AP) — An Aeroflot passenger plane crashed into a fuel truck while taking off from the airport in the Siberian city of Omsk, a Western airline official said Friday.

The report could not be confirmed officially.

It was not known if any passengers were killed or injured or how many were aboard the plane.

The airline official, who spoke on condition that he not be identified, said an Aeroflot employee told him the aircraft was taking off for the city of Krasnodar in the southern Russian Republic when the accident occurred.

He said he was told the plane crashed into a fuel truck, but he did not know any other details. The Western airline official said he was not able to learn what type of plane was involved or the extent of casualties.

Aeroflot has a daily flight from Omsk to Krasnodar. The airline normally uses TU-154 jets for domestic flights, and reference books say the plane has a capacity of 128 to 167 passengers.

The Associated Press called the protocol department at the Ministry of Civil Aviation, which oversees Aeroflot, but was told by an official who answered the telephone that he had no information about any accidents in Omsk.

The press department of the Soviet Foreign Ministry also said there was no information available.

Telephone operators said it was impossible to make calls to Omsk because lines to the city were out of order.

Newspaper reports from the area said everyone on board was killed in the accident, but the exact number of deaths was not given.

The Soviet press seldom reports such accidents unless they involve substantial numbers of foreigners, and precise casualty figures are seldom given.

Decreased premiums recommended

AUSTIN (AP) — The staff of the State Insurance Board recommended Friday that Texas car owners pay $100 million less in auto premiums for the next year.

The staff recommendation amounts to a average statewide 3.8 percent decrease compared with current premiums.

The automobile insurance industry later said it would recommend a 5.5 percent increase in rates. No dollar figure was available.

The board will set decide next year's insurance rates after a public hearing Oct. 24.

Last Feb. 1, statewide average rates were increased 3.7 percent, an increase of $88 million in premiums.

If the staff's recommendations submitted Friday are followed by the board, the statewide decrease of 3.83 percent would mean decreases ranging from $94 a year in the Laredo area on a 1984 medium priced automobile, not used in business or driven by young males or females, to a $2 decrease for a similar car in the Lubbock area.

The only increases recommended by the staff were a $28 annual increae for Kaufman County and a $2 increase for Waller.

The staff report showed that Texas insurance companies reported substantial increased costs in writing bodily injury and uninsured motorist policies.

However, losses from fire, theft, comprehensive and collision coverage were less than estimated.

Losses on basic $10,000-$20,000 bodily injury insurance were up 17.1 percent over estimates while basic property damage was down 2.9 percent.

Full coverage comprehensive losses were 15 percent lower than predicted, $50 to $100 deductible collision was down $19.9 percent, and $200-$250 deductible collision down 12.6 percent.

In Houston and Harris County, the staff recommendation called for a $52 reduction annually on insurance for the average family car.

In Dallas the reduction was $16, San Antonio and Bexar County $4, Fort Worth and Tarrant County $11, El Paso County $8, Orange County $29, Corpus Christi and Nueces County $18, Texarkana and Bowie County $21. Tyler and the East Texas oil field area $7, Taylor County $22, Grayson County $20, Amarillo and Potter and Randall counties $13, Rio Grande Valley area $15, San Angelo and Tom Green County $6, Coastal Counties $34, Northeastern counties $18, Southeastern counties $20, Wichita Falls and Wichita County $38, Beaumont and Jefferson County $20, Galveston County $25, Austin and Travis County $51, Waco and McLennan County $22, Midland and West Texas oil fields $37, Western counties $26, Denton County $24, Collin County $10, Rockwall County $37, Ellis County $27, Parker County $58, Johnson County $48, Liberty County $91, Chambers County $39, Brazoria County $33, Fort Bend $38, and Montgomery County $53.

Woman dies in tornado, daughter injured

ARGO (AP) — Titus County residents were cleaning up the damage Friday after a twister that killed an elderly woman, seriously injured her daughter and demolished three rural homes.

"We have tornados touch down every now and then, but this is the first time we've had extensive damage," Sheriff John Moss said Friday.

The twister touched down around 9 p.m. Thursday near Argo a tiny community north of Mount Pleasant.

Justice of the Peace Kay McNutt said Liller Counts was pronounced dead shortly after 10 p.m.

"I think her house more or less exploded," Ms. McNutt said. "It was moved about 75 yards as best we can tell."

She said Mrs. Counts' daughter, Pauline Hargrove, 63, was seriously injured in the storm.

A spokeswoman for the Titus County Hospital said Mrs. Hargrove was in critical condition Friday after undergoing surgery.

STATE IN BRIEF

Suit filed on storage of radioactive materials

AUSTIN (AP) — Attorney General Jim Mattox said Friday a suit has been filed against Texas Time Inc. and Calinda Properties, a California partnership, regarding storage of radioactive materials in an Arlington building.

The lawsuit seeks civil penalities and an injunction to require that the contaminated building in Arlington be cleaned up with proper disposal of radioactive materials.

The suit alleges that Texas Time, which leased part of the building from Calinda Properties, possessed and stored tritium for the manufacture of watches. Texas Time's lease expired June 30 and it abandoned the building.

Mattox said "the building currently is contaminated with excessive tritium limits in unrestricted areas, meaning areas where access is not controlled and where individuals are not protected from radiation exposure."

Man sentenced for murder

KINGSVILLE (AP) — A 27-year-old drifter has been sentenced to life in prison for murder in the rape and strangulation of a Corpus Christi fashion coordinator.

A state district court jury deliberated nine hours before convicting Geary Rushton and another 55 minutes Thursday before assessing the life sentence and a $10,000 fine.

State District Judge Vernon Harville ordered the life sentence to be served after Rushton has completed two other prison sentences — a 25-year term for indecency with a child and a 35-year sentence for burglary with intent to commit rape.

The decomposed body of Ms. Roby, 35 was found on Padre Island in Kleburg County on March 5, five days after she was reported missing by her family.

Convict granted stay

HOUSTON (AP) — State District Judge William Hatten has granted a stay in the scheduled Halloween execution of Billy Wayne White.

Hatten issued the stay order Thursday after White's attorney, Will Gray of Houston, told the judge he needed time to file an appeal.

White, 27, was sentenced to death for the August 1976 slaying of a Houston furniture store owner. Prosecutors say White, a former dump truck driver, shot the woman in the face at point-blank range.

Illinois family files suit

GALVESTON (AP) — An Illinois man whose wife and 10-year-old daughter died from head injuries after their surrey went off the city's seawall is suing the city and county of Galveston.

The wrongful death lawsuit of Don Payne, 35, seeks unspecified damages for himself and his other daughter, Heather Payne, 9.

The suit names as defendants the city of Galveston, the county and Mabe's Gift Ship, which rented two surreys to the family and alleges the surrey in which Payne's wife, Judith, 31, and the couple's 10-year-old daughter, Meridith, were riding was defective.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Students get food poisoning

PEKING (AP) — School children were poisoned with contaminated hard-boiled eggs from a school cafeteria, a Peking newspaper reported Friday. One child died from the poison and 269 others became sick and were briefly hospitalized.

The Peking Evening News said the incident happened Sept. 16 at a primary school in a compound where railroad workers and their families live. Health investigators traced the cause to a lunch of "cha dan," eggs hard-boiled in tea. The tea was found to be contaminated, the newspaper said without elaboration.

Unsanitary conditions in restaurants and markets make food poisoning a common problem in China. Large posters at many street corners and shops urge people to pay attention to public hygiene.

Turkey, Iraq reach agreement

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — Turkey may send troops into Iran and Iraq in pursuit of marauding Kurdish guerrillas if agreement is reached with these countries, Premier Turgut Ozal said.

After Foreign Minister Vahit Halefoglu's one-day visit to Baghdad last weekend, Turkey and Iraq agreed to increase cooperation in controlling their border areas and to prevent illegal entries by Kurds, a nomadic people traditionally resistant to central government authority.

Ozal did not say whether the agreement included Iraqi permission for Turkey to conduct military operations against Kurds in Iraqi territory.

India builds towers along border

DHAKA, Bangladesh (AP) — India has built at least 67 observation towers as part of its controversial plans to build a fence along its 2,400-mile border with Bangladesh, the daily newspaper Ittegaq said Friday.

The Bengali-language daily, quoting reliable sources, said the towers were built 150 yards inside the territory of the Indian state of West Bengal and equipped with binoculars and searchlights.

The report said India plans to build 80 more observation towers along the West Bengal border and that barbed wire fencing would be put up along the common border to check the alleged infiltration of Bangladesh nationals.

Ex-leader's son gets top post

PEKING (AP) — A son of former Chinese President Liu Shaoqi has been given the top leadership post in the county where his father died in prison in 1969, disgraced as a "capitalist roader," the China News Agency said Friday.

The state-run service said Liu Yuan, 32, was promoted in July to chief magistrate of Xinxiang County, Henan Province. He had been deputy head of the county's Qiligong Township since 1983.

Israel rejects proposal to hold negotiations under U.N. guidance

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel has rejected Lebanon's proposal for military-level talks under a U.N.-sponsored armistice commission to negotiate security arrangements in south Lebanon that would allow Israel to withdraw its forces, an official said Friday.

The Foreign Ministry official, who spoke on condition he not be identified, said Israel was told by the United Nations that Lebanon would agree to talks under the Israel-Lebanon mixed armistice commission set up in 1949. He said Israel refused because it maintains the commission was ended by Lebanon's declaration of war in 1967.

The Israeli position, believed to reflect the thinking of both major factions in Prime Minister Shimon Peres' multi-party coalition, appeared to dim hopes of a quick agreement for an Israeli withdrawal.

The procedural dispute followed an initiative by U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar, who asked the commander of the United Nations peacekeeping force in South Lebanon, Maj. Gen. William Callaghan, to explore the possibility of Israeli-Lebanese military talks under U.N. auspices.

A statement issued by Peres on Wednesday said Israel demanded a signed military agreement with Lebanon and political understandings with Syria that need not be negotiated directly.

"We are ready to have these talks, but not as part or in any way associated to the armistice agreement," said the Israeli official.

The Israel-Lebanon Mixed Armistice Commission was one of four commissions set up between Israel and the Arab states of Syria, Egypt, Jordan and Lebanon after Israel's independence war.

The official said the armistice agreement was superceded by the U.S.-mediated May 17, 1983, troop withdrawal accord, which Lebanon abrogated last March under Syrian pressure.

Israel does not object to talks with Lebanon under U.N. auspices, but wants direct talks, he said.

Peres announced four preconditions for ending Israel's 28-month occupation of south Lebanon.

They included two guarantees from Syria: not to move its troops beyond its current lines in Lebanon and to prevent guerrilla infiltrations toward Israel. "Without Syrian commitment on those two points there will be no change in the situation," the official said.

Israel also demanded the deployment of U.N. peacekeeping troops as far north as the Awali river, Israel's current front line in southern Lebanon, and the continued operation of the Israeli-backed South Lebanon Army militia just north of the Israeli border.

Coroner like 'medical monument'

CLEVELAND (AP) — Dr. Samuel R. Gerber never cared much about reading mysteries, perhaps because in 47 years as Cuyahoga County coroner he has unraveled enough of them to sate any thirst for whodunits.

Gerber, who recently turned 86, gives no sign he is ready to retire from the job to which he was first elected in 1936. He is unopposed on the Democratic ticket in the November general election for another four-year term.

In 1980, he gave some thought to retiring, but was on the ballot and received 360,000 votes — the highest total of any candidate in a county-wide race that year.

"Four years ago, I said no more terms. Now I said one more term," says Gerber, a slight, gray-haired man. "One of these days I will (retire)."

He had no interest in becoming coroner when he moved to Cleveland and said he had had little knowledge of forensic medicine at the time.

A native of Hagerstown, Md., he was a 1918 graduate of Valparaiso University in Indiana, and received his medical degree four years later from Ecletic Medical College in Cincinnati. As coroner, he attended law school at night and obtained a law degree.

He interned at New York hospitals, had a stint as a cruise ship doctor, came to Cleveland in 1925, and went to work for the city's health department, examining school children. In 1934, he made his first run for coroner at the request of the local Democratic Party, but lost.

Two years later, he tried again and won. He has been winning ever since. In recent years, he has been unopposed or had only token opposition.

"He's like a medical monument," said Robert Hughes, leader of the Cuyahoga County Republican Party. "He's done an oustanding job. I doubt seriously whether anybody could beat him."

Hughes said there hadn't been much interest in the post, which he said the public generally didn't consider a political job. The $35,500 salary set by the state is also a deterrent. Gerber's assistants receive substantially more.

When Gerber took office in 1937, the coroner's equipment consisted of a single microscope and he had one physician assistant. He now oversees a staff of more than 50 in a three-story building adjacent to Case Western Reserve University. Members of his staff instruct students at Case Western's schools of medicine and law.

Gerber has become known as a pioneer in forensic medicine. He is considered among the first to examine the relationship between alcohol consumption and traffic accidents. He and his staff have extensively researched sudden infant death syndrome. He has been instrumental in rewriting Ohio law on coroner duties.

"There were never any definite rules or laws that said you had to do this or that," said Gerber of state law when he took office. In his early days as coroner, Gerber said, little was demanded of the office.

Real dog may have inspired dog in TV ad

HOPKINSVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Mark Putman says a home movie of his Labrador retriever, Tiba, getting him a beer from an ice chest in his pickup truck may have spawned a Stroh's beer commercial about a suds-fetching dog.

"Some people teach their dogs to get the paper or retrieve their shoes," Putman said this week. "I taught mine to do something useful for me."

He said he has shown off 9-year-old Tiba's trick to hunting buddies, who "tell me to just name my price, but I couldn't sell her."

Putman said he sent Stroh Brewery Co. the movie of Tiba's stunt a few months before its ad, suggesting — but not showing — a dog fetching beers from a refrigerator, went on the air.

"She can also get one out of the refrigerator," he said. "She's the best dog I've ever had. If she'd just mix drinks, she would be perfect."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A man who tried to slide down the chimney after his girlfriend locked him out of the house spent a sooty half-hour as firefighters tugged him out of the tight spot where he got stuck.

The man, who wasn't identified after the incident earlier this week, would do well to heed the words of fire department spokesman Noel Murchet:

"Santa Claus can do it, but he's about the only one."

Hungary admits youth rejects Marxist ideology

Hearst News Service

PARIS — It's not news that young people in Soviet Europe have no use for the communist system. The news is that one communist goverment now officially admits it.

A lengthy study, published under the imprint of Hungary's Communist Party, says that a "decisive" majority of youth in that country now rejects Marxist-Leninist ideology and the type of society which it underpins.

The amazingly frank confession of ideological bankruptcy and, even more, the widespread publicity it has received within Hungary have led Western observers to believe that the Budapest regime, already the most liberal in the Soviet bloc, may be considering fresh moves toward greater economic pragmatism.

"Up to now, the Hungarian authorities have invariably proclaimed their ideological orthodoxy while loosening up the system," according to Pavel Tigrid, a prominent writer here on Eastern Europe. "This report, admitting the intellectual failure of Marxism, is something crucially new. The Russians won't like it, at all. The Hungrians must know that."

Laszlo Boros, who headed the team of sociologists which drew up the report, has been quoted as saying on Budapest radio that after four decades of Marxism indoctrination in schools and universities, young people in Hungary had "no use" for Marxism or "any form of collectivist" thinking.

"The concept of collective ideals has been entirely driven out of their thinking," he said in the broadcast.

The study showed that youth spurned all forms of ideology except the "everyday ideology" of "individualism" and "reliance on themselves."

Political education as taught in Hungarian schools and universities was treated by them with the utmost skepticism, he added.

Informants here with close knowledge of Hungarian affairs stressed that Boros, far from being a dissident, is very much an establishment figure in his country's academic community. His report was sponsored by the Communist Party's Central Committee.

Observers said that it was in line with a mood of self-criticism that has increasingly been evident in Hungarian ruling circles. But it went much further than anything in the past, they explained.

For more than a decade, Hungary has been notable for its drift away from centralized planning and its introduction of a limited form of free market economy.

Tigrid said that the Hungarian regime's liberalism had given young people a taste of economic freedom but had, so far, failed to provide them with much economic opportunity to rise in life.

Austria wants to buy jets from U.S., Russian missiles

Hearst News Service

WASHINGTON — Austria, a neutral nation astride the dividing line between communist East Europe and democratic West Europe, is defining neutrality in a novel way: Austria wants to buy U.S. F-5E or F-16 fighter bombers and also buy Soviet ground-to-air missiles that are designed to shoot the American jets down.

This ironic situation is a consequence of two factors: the aging nature of Austria's Swedish-built jet fighters and the limitations imposed by the 1955 State Treaty which gave Austria its independence but required approval of all future defense allocations by the four guarantors of its neutrality.

They are the United States, the Soviet Union, France and Great Britain. Austrian Chancellor Fred Sinowatz announced last month that his government has decided to purchase 24 interceptor aircraft to modernize Austria's self-defense capabilities.

The Soviets have promised to sell defensive ground-to-air missiles to the Austrians but only on condition that they reject intensive efforts by Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger to sell Austria the F-5E or F-16 bomber. Such aircraft, Moscow maintains, would be equipped with U.S. air-to-air missiles.

Since they are offensive in nature, that would violate the terms under which the Soviet Union agreed to withdraw its troops and give Austria its neutrality. The apparent Soviet fear is that the aircraft eventually would be tied into the NATO Command structure.

Austrian Defense Minister Friedhelm Frischenschlager has already said that the Soviet ground-to-air missiles are more needed than the U.S. jets.

This is likely to have a personal impact on President Reagan whose former White House secretary Helene Von Damm is the U.S. ambassador to Austria.

Bulldogs give 'Cats scare

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

San Angelo's brow-beaten Bobcats dominated the statistics and a 21-6 scoreboard against the Midland High Bulldogs at Memorial Stadium Friday night, but those beads of sweat from the Concho Cats were real.

The Bobcats threw lethal marches at the battered Bulldog defense all night without much to show for it in the way of points. Midland High kept turning the Bobcats away empty-handed and were in the game until the three-minute countdown when the dam broke and San Angelo headed home still in the thick of the District 4-5A football race with back-to-back and gasping victories.

NOW SAN Angelo, once highly regarded in the state, take on Permian next weekend in Odessa in an effort to regain some of that lost prestige, following a loss to Lee and two nail biters to Abilene High and MHS.

The Bobcats hammered fullback C.L. Bowman at the Bulldog middle for 152 yards and three touchdowns. His first coming with 4:50 left in the first half on a four-yard plunge while Richard McKnight kicked the first of three extra points for a 7-0 lead. It was a 19-yard punt by MHS' Jesse Renz that set up the TD after MHS had stopped the Bobcats at the 13-yard line. In the first period, the Bobcats had gotten to the 10-yard line without points to show for it.

The Bulldogs had bitten the bullet so often that their teeth were hanging from the gums, but they had survived with minimum damage and were in the game.

Then the break came in the third period, when San Angelo's punt snap sailed over punter Brian Ross' head for a 31-yard loss to the Bobcat 23-yard line. Quarterback Jeff Alsup later dialed Allan Foret for a 22-yard touchdown, his first of the year and the Bulldogs appeared to have weathered the storm again.

But things went all bad after that as Richard Fry had his point after try blocked and the Bobcats held a 7-6 margin.

THE MHS defense rose again and held Bobcats to three plays and forced a punt. Alsup hit Jake Madrid with a 20-yard pass over the middle, but San Angelo defensive back Ottoway Perryman stole the ball out of his hands and returned it 15 yards to the MHS 35.

It took 12 plays for San Angelo to punch it in from that point, but Bowman got the last yard with 6:22 left for a 14-6 margin. The Bulldogs produced two first downs, but couldn't hit with the passing game and their fate was sealed.

"San Angelo just did a good job of controlling the ball in the first half and we couldn't do much without the ball. Then they made a mistake and we took advantage of it, but we came back with mistakes of our own," said MHS coach Doug McCutchen.

"I thought our kids played a super game. The never gave up — not to the last second. We just made mistakes that hurt us. It's really tough to accept a loss like this after playing with so much enthusiasm."

BOWMAN'S 43-YARD TD run with 57 seconds left in the game ended the scoring, but MHS was just trying to make something happen on defense during that play.

Bowman's performance was a courageous one for San Angelo. The 149-pound fullback runs like 220 and had 103-degree fever earlier in the day.

The Bulldogs lead the league in turnovers this year and they added six more against San Angelo — four fumbles and two interceptions.

Rebs brand Steers 31-0

By BOB BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

BIG SPRING — It wasn't a traditional wishbone, but it didn't make much difference for the Midland Lee Rebels as they ran to a 31-0 District 4-5A victory over the Big Spring Steers here Friday night.

Sure, the Rebels were lining up in wishbone formation, but one element was missing: a big fullback. With Randy Ellis still sidelined with an ankle injury, the Rebels called on Craig Swearingen. Swearingen did an admirable job running up the middle but, at 138 pounds, he looks like anything but a fullback.

When called upon to carry the ball, Swearingen overcame his lack of size, ran the dive play and never failed to pick up at least one yard. Most times he got four or five before ducking his head like a real fullback to run over a defender only to get stopped in his tracks. In all, Swearingen gained 51 yards. If he'd been playing halfback, where a guy his size belongs, he probably would have gained 151.

"He did a good job," said Lee coach Jack Tayrien. "We were pleased with him."

Tayrien wasn't the only one who was pleased with Swearingen's performance. Backfield mate Walter Jones also gave him a lot of credit, saying, "Our new fullback Craig, he picked up a lot of slack tonight."

While Swearingen was keeping Big Spring busy defending the inside rushing attack, Jones and halfback Tyrone Thurman were romping for big yardage around the corners. Thurman led all rushers in the game with 103 yards while Jones finished second at 96. Both scored two touchdowns.

"We were pleased with our running game," said Tayrien. "We're glad we won the ball game. Big Spring has an outstanding rushing defense and we were glad we could move the ball on them."

THE REBELS jumped out to a 10-0 lead in the first quarter, taking advantage of a troubled Big Spring kicking game. The first score came following a James Tom punt that was fumbled by the Steers and recovered by Lee's David Almand at the 16-yard line. Four plays later Jones broke into the end zone from two-yards out.

Craig Kamradt, who was kept out of his offensive guard position because of a bruised shoulder, came in to kick the extra point.

After the Steers failed to move the ball out of a deep hole on the next series, the Rebels moved the ball close enough for Kamradt to kick a 41-yard field goal with 2:47 remaining on the first quarter clock.

Thurman, who gave the Rebel fans a scare when he was injured on Lee's second offensive play but was out for only a couple of plays, pushed Lee's lead to 16-0 early in the second quarter, breaking a 22-yard run for the TD. Kamradt, 4-for-4 in the game, kicked his second extra point for a 17-0 score.

"Walter kicked Tyrone while blocking for him," said Tayrien. "There wasn't anything wrong with him. It just stunned him for a minute."

Jones picked up his second TD with 6:20 left in the half on a 13-yard run. Nearly 20 minutes later, after a scoreless third quarter, Thurman added the final touchdown and Kamradt made it 31-0 with the extra point.

"We played a pretty good game," said both Jones and Thurman after Thurman kidded Jones about being kicked.

"We didn't play our best," added Thurman. "Coming off the loss we were just getting back into the habit of winning again."

As if it's been all that long.

"We had a lot of mistakes," said Jones. "By next week, we should have those mistakes corrected."

Greenwood bounces back, 15-0

By BRUCE CASTLEBERRY
Sports Writer

GREENWOOD — Usually it takes a big play late in the game to determine the game's outcome or to swing the momentum away from one team to another.

The Greenwood Rangers got back on the winning track with a 15-0 win here over Stanton's Battlin' Buffaloes, but the game's most critical play came earlier than expected.

The Buffs took the opening kickoff at their own 27, and literally rammed the ball down Greenwood's throat. Starting on the game's second play, when Buff John Zugg roared 29 yards on a trap to the right, Stanton drove te ball steadily towards the end zone.

After 11 plays, the Buffs decided to pass, and quarterback Kevin Glaspie hit on his first attempt, a 13-yard down and out pattern on the right sideline to Mark Gonzalez.

But on third and goal from the four, Glaspie threw for the end zone and Greenwood's Chad Longley intercepted.

Greenwood ran three plays and punted, and the Rangers never saw the ball again in the first quarter as the Buffs started to move again. But they would never get as close to paydirt as they did on their first possession. Glaspie would complete only one more pass all night, and the Buff offense would gain only 54 more yards after their first drive.

On the night Stanton piled up a mere 123 yards in offense. Excluding the first quarter, which the Buffs totally dominated, they netted only 39 yards. And that makes it very tough to win.

"I felt like we did a good job on offense, we just couldn't get the big play," said Buff coach Dale Ruth. "This we the first time we really moved the ball."

Although the offensive numbers don't indicate the Buffs had much of an attack, they did seem to be a step or a block away from good things all night. But eventually Greenwood's All-West Texas running back Roger Smith did his thing.

Smith gained 143 yards on 22 carries, but most of that yardage came late in the game, and it was Smith's 4-yard TD that iced the victory in the fading seconds. While he gained the lion's share of yardage, the Rangers finally found the formula that had given them six wins in seven games this year. On the ground, the Rangers rolled for 238 yards on 47 tries.

"It was the turning point," said Ranger coach Joe Longley of the first period interception. "We needed the turnover. It was a good, hard hitting football game. You could hear the licks. Give Stanton credit, they were hitting too."

When Greenwood finally got moving, the game's next biggest play was also theirs. After taking control after a punt at their own 27, penalties kept slowing a decent drive that had stalled at the Buff 39. Facing third and twelve, quarterback Longley went to his bread and butter play, or what in baseball would be called an "out-pitch".

Shifty stranger emerges from midday shadows

Coming out of the Midland Center after the TCU barbecue noon Thursday, a shifty looking stranger approached from out of the shadows and said, "Hey, wait a minute. I want to ask your opinion."

He reached into his pocket and I expected a collection of spicy French postcards. I reached for my wallet. It turned out to be a football prediction sheet.

"You've been doing pretty good on Southwest Conference games and I wanted to get your opinion on some of this week's games. Who do you like against the spread."

Of course, he was neither shifty looking nor a stranger, but the cloak of anonymity will save him from being the subject of this week's sermon in church.

Of course, the entire episode was disillusioning.

I thought I was getting my message across on the perils and evils of betting point spreads, and from my pro record, no man-of-the-cloth has grounds for wagging a finger in my direction. However, I hadn't noticed my deplorable counter-productive efforts in the SWC.

Sometimes life can be very discouraging. Like last week, when the college showing was 9-5-2 while in the pros it was 2-4.

The SWC...

North Texas plus 26 over TCU—Frogs have to catch their breath some time.

Houston plus 13½ over SMU—Influenced by memories of what used to be.

Arkansas plus 12 over Texas—Will Horns suffer post-OU letdown, or use Hogs as springboard back to No. 1?

Rice plus 9½ over Texas Tech—At Houston.

The Others...

Tennessee plus 2½ over Alabama—I'm still trying to figure out what Tide's win over Penn State indicates...so will go with home team.

West Virginia plus 3½ over Boston College—Ron Jaap will give me a free roll of film for this pick, besides it's in the hills of Morgantown and the field isn't even level.

BYU minus 6½ over Air Force—Falcons get a lesson in the theory of flight.

Georgia minus 5½ over Vanderbilt—Vandy explosive, but any team that gets beat by Tulane....

Florida State minus 16 over Tulane—Despite Green Wave's win over Vandy.

LSU plus four over Kentucky—I can't believe this one. LSU and four?

Miami minus 14 over Pitt—Long year for the Panthers.

Purdue plus eight over Illinois—Boilermakers are one of those teams that defy prediction.

Virginia minus 4½ over Wake Forest—Demon Deacons had big game against Carolina last week. Now they return to normal.

Brown minus 4½ over Cornell—All of Rhode Island will ignore this one after what Penn did to Bears last week.

South Carolina minus three over Notre Dame—Joe Morrison is turning Gamecocks into a winner, just like he did at New Mexico.

Auburn minus 10½ over Georgia Tech—What happened, did Wreck graduate its team in midterm?

The Pros...

New Orleans plus six over Dallas—Unless they start Steve Pelleur at quarterback, then take the Cowboys.

Chargers plus three over Raiders—Oakland never performs as it should...Pick San Diego, despite what I say.

Steelers minus four at Colts—Could I get arrrested for picks like this?

Redskins minus 3½ over Cards—If I were a betting man, I'd pick the Cards to catch the Skins on a post-Cowboy letdown.

49ers minus 10 over Oilers—Surely, last week's loss will arouse the 49ers.

Browns plus three over Bengals—In this rivalry, the teams may not be good, but the points do.

ODESSA — Odessa Permian continued its roll toward another District 4-5A football title here Friday night with a 27-9 victory over the Abilene Cooper Cougars.

Permian is now 7-0 on the year and 4-0 in loop play with the prospect of facing 6-1 San Angelo next week on the road. Cooper fell to 4-3 and 2-2 with the loss.

Cooper was trailing by a mere 14-9 margin at the half, but touchdowns by Dal Watson and Greg Anderson in the second half closed out the Cougars, who have been one of the surprise teams of the year in 4-5A.

PATs give Coahoma 15-12 win

CRANE—Crane's Golden Cranes were 1-6 after a District 4-3A loss at the hands of Coahoma, 15-12, but the difference was only two successful conversions here Friday night.

The Bulldogs scored on a 30-yard pass from Brim Galaway to split end Kris Parker and Galaway ran the two-pointer with 9:46 left in the half. Then tailback David Hutton went in from the one 3:10 into the second half and David Shaw converted.

That made it 15-0 when Crane began its rally. Dwaine Tarpely returned an intercepted pass 23 yards with 1:38 left in the third quarter. Then Gerald Mitchell really tightened things up with an eight-yard run with 7:01 left in the game.

The wins gives Coahoma 2-5 mark for the season and squares their district record to 1-1.

Crane is 0-2 in district.

BULLDOGS—

Offensively, the 'Dogs just couldn't get untracked with the long drives they needed to overcome bad field position.

Defensively, the Bulldogs were top-notch — bending like a warped steel girder, but never breaking. William Hernandez, Steve Mizzels, Darrell Davis and Tommy Hudson came up with defensive play after defensive gem. Without these hard-nosed workers, San Angelo could have won in a walk, but the Bulldogs maintained respect throughout.

MHS now hits the road for games at Abilene Cooper and Odessa Permian before returning to host Midland Lee. This will be one rough stretch of road for the 5-2 Bulldogs to negotiate until season's end.

More favorites fall

It was bound to happen.

At each of the Masters Segment stops in the United States Tennis Association's six circuit tours, only the top 32 players are invited based on how they have done in the four previous weeks.

Consequently, where players are seeded is often subject to dispute. And where the Masters tournament is concerned, seeds can basically be hung out with the wash. There aren't any patsies.

Well, the trickle that started with the elimination of the top-seeded doubles team on Thurday at the Midland Racquet Club Segment V Masters became a landslide Friday as the day ended with only one seeded doubles team alive, and each of the top five seeded singles players sent packing.

In singles, everyone seemed allergic to high seedings. Top seed Bud Schultz was so dominant on the Texas segment that he had already clinched the top spot before the tournament started. Players are on this particular circuit to stockpile ATP computer points and improve their standing on the world pro tennis level. Schultz had clinched the maximum of points but still was a factor, but against eighth-seed Jeff turpin Friday he ran into a stone wall.

Turpin has yet to blaze through the pros with the frequency he experienced as a collegiate player at SMU, but against Schultz he was virtually in control from the start.

Particularly effective in Turpin's 6-3, 7-6 win was a backhand that scattered winners all over the place. When the second set went to a tiebreaker, it was Turpin's backhand and a strong first serve that made the difference in a 7-3 tiebreaker.

"He had nothing to lose, and I had nothing to lose either," said Turpin. But although Schultz had already clinched the circuit, Turpin did indeed have something at stake. He is already in the world's top 200 tennis players rankings-wise, but an early loss wouldn't be helpful.

"I had to win to stay up in the rankings. I had a lot to gain, but nothing to lose."

Although neither Christo Steyn nor Kelly Evernden were highly seeded entering the tournament, they played one of the day's more interesting singles matches. In fact, it may have summed up an upsetting day best of all.

Steyn had coasted through the first set 6-2, and Evernden returned the favor in like fashion to earn a 6-2 win in the second set. Evernden, who played college tennis at Arkansas (Steyn at Miami), was up 2-0 in the deciding set when the wheels came off. Steyn got hot and rolled for six straight wins and the set.

Sweetwater is now 5-1 on the season and a perfect 3-0 in district play while Andrews fell to 3-3 and 1-2.

Running back Mike Marlett had 127 yards rushing for Sweetwater and scored two touchdowns. Andrews' Jeff Tidwell led all rushers with 160 yards. However, Andrews got stung on a 70-yard TD run by Mike Welch and Chris Davis returned a 35-yard pass interception for another score.

Hoelscher scored from 15 yards out with 11 minutes left in the first period and then went in from the two with 4:55 left in the opening quarter. After each TD, Hoelscher rushed the two-pointer.

With 6:20 left in the half, Richard Mendoza circled left end from six yards and and Abel Rodriquez' kick made it 17-0 at half.

Iraan added a third period touchdown on a four-yard run by Mendoza and in the final period Godrey's six-yard pass to James Stone completed the scoring.

Defensively, Lee didn't give Big Spring much of anything. Take away two long second half passes to fullback Jay Pirkle totaling 75 yards, and the Steers would have had only six yards of offense.

With the passes, the Steers ended up with 105 yards in receptions but were minus 24 on the ground. Pirkle's two catches provided only the second and third first downs for the Steers. The only other first down came on a Midland Lee pass interference penalty.

GREENWOOD

Longley rolled right and found Mr. Dependable, tight end John Ellis, wide open in the secondary down the right side. Longley nailed the pass and Ellis trucked into the end zone. A penalty by Stanton influenced Greenwood to go for two, and Longley swept in untouched around the left side to give Greenwood all the points they needed, 8-0.

Smith took charge in the second half, and on the final scoring drive he carried the young Rangers behind the blocking of a fast-improving offensive front. Midway through the fourth period, a sound Ranger drive had been halted by an interception, and the Rangers decided to play it safe after that. Thus, the went to Smith when they got the ball back with 5:04 left. A turnover could allow Stanton back in the game, so Smith got the call. Except for two runs totaling five yards by Terry O'Steen, Smith carried eight times for 60 yards, capped with the score.

"We've had to rebuild the whole offensive line," said Longley. "Our line has done a tremendous job." The front wall of Ellis, Billy Malson, Steve Heryford, Brian Underwood, Rodney Goff and Jim Mills aren't overpowering, but they are quick and smart enough to know that their backfield trio can do wonders if given tiem and holes.

And the Rangers returned to the defensive excellence that provided them with shutout wins in each of their first four ball games. Except for a stunning 25-14 loss at Wall a week ago, only Rankin has penetrated the goal line against Greenwood. The Rangers have shut out five opponents.

"The kids have really accepted the challenge," Longley said of the 6-1, 1-1 team that is in its first year as a member of District 8-AA.

"Anything can happen. We're not out of it," said Ruth. Although the Buffs are 0-2, the balance in this district is amazing, as last week's results proved when winless Wall beat Greenwood.

Stanton gets another gut check next week by visiting Reagan County.

Lamesa gets Tigers

From Staff Reports

SNYDER — Lamesa's Golden Tornadoes didn't let a loss to eighth-ranked Monahans a week ago stop their Cinderella campaign. The Tors' wrecking crew "Killer Fleas" defense came through to help Lamesa post a 20-8 win here over Snyder.

The Tors picked off two passes and recovered two fumbles en route to their fifth win in six starts. The Tors are 2-1 in District 2-4A play and Snyder falls to 1-5, 0-3 in the loop.

Stan Cottrell...from Peking to Canton.

American begins Great Wall Friendship run

PEKING (AP) — Accompanied by a film crew and a van with 12 pairs of spare sneakers, a 41-year-old American jogged Friday down the Great Wall on the first stretch of his 56-day, 3,000-mile "great friendship run" through China.

"It has definitely been a long road getting here," Stan Cottrell, a professional distance runner from Tucker, Ga., said before he left on what will be the longest jog in history through the world's most populous nation of 1.03 billion people.

Cottrell, married with three children, said he has been planning the run for nearly five years, part of what he called a personal campaign to promote long-distance running and international friendship. He ran through Europe in 1982.

China Sports Services, a state organization that arranges athletic events, assisted Cottrell in laying down his route and obtaining the travel permits necessary to traverse areas normally closed to foreigners.

The government is giving heavy publicity to Cottrell's expedition, and honored him at a banquet Thursday night at the Great Hall of the People in Peking.

When a reporter for the national newspaper Sports News (Tiyu Bao) asked Cottrell whether he has advice for Chinese long-distance runners, the blonde-haired Georgian said: "practice every day, all year long. Train, don't strain."

Dressed in a dark jogging suit and cap, Cottrell began the trek on a windy cold morning atop the 2,200-year-old Great Wall that traverses the hills northwest of the capital.

The route will take him on a zigzag course through several provinces and will end in southern city of Canton, he said.

Cottrell hired Mickey Grant, a Texas-based film producer, and a 13-member crew from the state-run Peking Film Studio to follow him and shoot a documentary about his journey.

Mustangs by 14 over UH Cougs

Associated Press

Two of the Southwest Conference's hottest October teams clash in Texas Stadium this afternoon, with the undisputed league lead at stake.

Unbeaten and nationally sixth-ranked Southern Methodist is a 14-point favorite over Houston, according to oddsmakers.

SMU (4-0, 2-0) moved up in the polls last week after putting together two long drives late in the fourth quarter to overtake Baylor, 24-20. Its earlier conference win was a 26-17 decision over Texas Christian that still stands as the Horned Frogs' only loss of the year.

After its disappointing 1-2 start, Houston now is 2-0 in league play, and every other year that the Cougars have won their first two SWC games, they have gone on to represent the conference in the Cotton Bowl.

Houston (3-2, 2-0), comes into the game off successive SWC triumphs — beating Baylor 27-17 and Texas A&M 9-7. Last week's victory behind Mike Clendenen's three field goals marked the first time in 39 seasons that Houston has won a game without scoring a touchdown.

The only loss for either team in the last month was UH's disappointing 30-28 setback to Louisville after seemingly having the game wrapped up. The Cougars' other loss was a 35-7 drubbing a week earlier to Washington, currently the nation's No. 1 team.

A full slate of games are on the SWC agenda Saturday.

Texas (3-0-1, 1-0), which dropped from first to third nationally after its 15-15 tie with Oklahoma last weekend, is favored by 13 points over Arkansas (3-1-1, 1-1) in Memorial Stadium at Austin.

In other games, TCU (4-1, 2-1) is a 26-point favorite at Fort Worth against North Texas State; Texas A&M (3-2, 0-2) and Baylor (1-4, 1-2) are rated even in their game at College Station; and Texas Tech (2-3, 1-2) is a 9-point favorite over Rice (1-4, 0-2) at Houston.

Bowser haunts Bronchos

From Staff Reports

ABILENE — Quarterback John Bowser, a transfer from Odessa High, threw a two-yard TD pass and ran 12 yards for another to lead the Abilene High Eagles to a 22-14 District 4-5A football victory over the Odessa High Bronchos here Friday night.

Abilene High squared its district mark at 2-2 while OHS fell to 0-4.

The Bronchos took a 14-7 lead in the first period on an 18-yard pass from Shawn Gilliham to Deward Lewis and a four yard run by Jeff Wright.

But then Bowser went to work and brought the Eagles back with second quarter and fourth quarter drives.

Chaps place seventh in college tee tourney

Midland College was in seventh place in the Princess Hotel Collegiate Golf tournament in Arkansas after a 627 score. The University of Arkansas led with a 574.

In the junior college division, MC was third. Odessa College shot a 595 for second place overall and first in the Juco division.

Other leaders behind OC were Rice, 597; Sam Houston State, 598; Western Texas College, 624; Northeast Louisiana 624; Midland, 627; NMMI, 628; and South Plains 633.

Randy Winn fired rounds of 75-75—150 to lead the Chaps. Other scores were: Chris Gomez 80-75—155; David Pritchett 80-81—161; John Sundberg 83-79—162; Jim Vollmer 86-80—166.

Hagler stops Hamsho in third round

BOXING—Marvelous Marvin Hagler knocked down Mustafa Hamsho twice with sudden swiftness in the third round and kept the undisputed middleweight championship Friday at Madison Square Garden. When Hamsho went down for the second time, his manager, Al Certo, jumped into the ring before referee Arthur Mercante could begin a count, and the fight was over with 29 seconds left in the third round.

It was the 10th successful defense for Hagler, who had said before the scheduled 15-rounder, "I am going to come in there throwing everything."

The 30-year-old champion didn't throw everything in the first round. In fact, he was having trouble finding the range and Hamsho, who was trying for the second time to beat Hagler, seemed to have an edge in the round as he scored with good lefts to the head on four or five occasions.

BASEBALL—Cincinnati's Reds hired Yankees executive Bill Bergesch as GM, to enable President Bob Howsam to devote more time to rebuilding the team. Bergesch, 57, has been the Yankees' vice president of operations the past five years.

GOLF—Tateo Ozaki, second on the Japanese tour's money-winning list, fired a 1-under-par 71—138, for a one stroke lead in the Bridgestone tournament. First round leader Tim Simpson was tied for second place at 139 with Isao Aoki, the 1983 Hawaiian Open and European Classic champion...

Scotland's Sandy Lyle shot a second 68 to take a one stroke lead over Seve Ballesteros at the halfway point of the $61,765 Johnnie Walker tournament over the La Moraleja course. Tied for third at 138 were Jaime Gonzalez of Brazil, Benrhard Langer of West Germany, Jose Rivero of Spain and Curtis Strange of the United States...

Five-time British Open champion Peter Thompson and tournament qualifier George Lanning each fired a 66 to tie for the first-round lead in the Seniors International at Hilton Head, S.C. One shot back at 67 was Billy Casper, who carded solid front-nine and back-nine of 33-34 on the 6,603-yard Shipyard course. Paul Harney finished two shots off the lead with a 68, joined by Charles Owens and Lee Elder.

TENNIS—Pat Cash blunted the power of hard-serving Chip Hooper to reach the Melbourne Black and Decker Indoor finals, 7-6, 6-4, against Matt Mitchell.

Terry Phelps and Andrea Leand scored upset victories on the way to the Filderstadt, W. Germany, semifinals. Phelps beat Helena Sukova 7-5, 6-4, and Leand trounced Eva Pfaff, 6-1, 6-2. Phelps meets Catarina Lindquist, who upset Bettina Bunge 6-3, 6-2.

Houston, SMU match unblemished SWC records; Tech-Rice on tube

TEXAS TECH (2-2, 1-2 in SWC) at RICE (1-4, 0-2 in SWC), 11:30 a.m. (Raycom-TV) — Tech defense has come on strong in recent weeks, mirroring improvement of Rice offense. Although defeated, 24-0, by Arkansas last week, Raiders held Razorbacks to fraction under four yards per play. Rice also lost by three TDs, but gained 434 yards in 45-24 loss to TCU. Teams' strengths reflected in SWC passing stats: Rice leads conference with 211.2 yards per game, Tech leads in pass defense with yield of 102.4. Tech also ranks solid third in SWC total defense at 298.0 yards per game, just 3.3 yards per game worse than No. 1 Texas. Rice last in SWC defense, Tech last in offense. Raiders' first two losses came on fourth-quarter rallies by New Mexico, down 7-18 before winning 29-24, and Baylor, down 6-0 with 80 seconds left before winning 18-9. Both teams rely on frosh QBs, Rice's Mark Comalander last week becoming second frosh in SWC history to pass for 300 yards and Tech's Aaron Keesee moving up early in season for injured starter Perry Morren. Comalander's 27 completions and 300 yards vs. TCU are SWC one-game highs for '84, while 98-yard kickoff return by Tech's Keith Henderson against Baylor is also season SWC high. Owls' Melvin Robinson paces SWC receivers with 23 catches for 306 yards and two TDs, teammate Marc Scott sixth with 17 for 149 yards and one TD, and Larry Collins ninth in SWC rushing at 65.4 yards a game. Raiders have won two straight and six of last seven to take 17-16-1 series lead.

ARKANSAS (3-1-1, 1-1 in SWC) at TEXAS (3-0-1, 1-0 in SWC), 1 p.m. — Game not televised for first time since 1973. Texas really fell from first to third nationally after 15-15 tie with Oklahoma last week. Series has been a collegiate football highlight since early '60s, although Longhorns have won ten of last 12 for 49-16 all-time lead and 41-16 advantage in SWC play. Last Razorback victory was 42-11 stunner over No. 1 ranked Texas on national TV in '81. Texas has won eight straight in Memorial Stadium since 12-7 Arkansas triumph in '66 for 26-8 advantage in Austin as series has never produced a tie. Teams are at head of SWC defensive class and virtually even in every phase.-Texas rated No. 1 with yield of 294.7 yards per game and Arkansas second at 297.0, Arkansas second in rushing defense (129.0 yards) and Texas fourth (139.2), Texas second in pass defense (155.5) and Arkansas sixth (168.0), Arkansas allowing 13.0 points per game and Texas 14.5. Offensive honors fairly evenly divided too, as Razorbacks have yardage edge of 401.0 per game to 326.5, due to ground game averaging 251.6, and Texas second in SWC scoring at 29.0 per game to Razorbacks' 24.0. QBs Brad Taylor of Arkansas and Todd Dodge of Texas spark passing games with similar results-Texas at 161 yards a game and 7.8 per attempt, Arkansas 149.4 a game and 8.6 a try. Both teams have long-distance aces, Arkansas' James Shibest tied for third in SWC with 4.2 catches per game, Texas with vets Bill Boy Bryant and Brent Duhon. Arkansas' Marshall Foreman has gained 100-yards-plus in last two games to become No. 6 SWC rusher at 77.2 yards a game.

HOUSTON (3-2, 2-0 in SWC) at SMU (4-0, 2-0 in SWC), 2 p.m. — Two of SWC's hottest teams in October, only loss for either in last month was a two-point loss by UH to Louisville in furious fourth-quarter rally. UH made amends by rallying from 10-0 deficit to beat Baylor, 27-17, and dominating Texas A&M offense for 9-7 victory. SMU also rallied vs. Baylor scoring twice in last three minutes for 24-20 victory to run nation's best 1981-84 record to 35-3-1. SMU sixth nationally. UH coach Bill Yeoman is fourth-winningest active coach with 151 victories, SMU coach Bobby Collins leads active coaches at current schools with .914 winning percentage. SMU's Don King leads SWC in passing efficiency (149.6 rating points), yards gained per attempt (9.5) and offense (317.5 yards per game), Reggie Dupard is second in rushing (112.7 yards per game), tandem offense (117.3) and scoring (7.5 per game), Franky Thomas is third in punt returns and Ron Morris is tied for third in receiving (4.2 per game), Houston's Larry Shepherd is second in receiving (4.4) and third in punt returns (9.2), QB Gerald Landry is third in total offense (180.8), Raymond Tate (79.6) and Sloan Hood (66.0) are fifth and eighth, respectively, in SWC rushing. Mustangs sixth nationally in total offense (452.2 yards a game), fifth in rushing (271.7), and third in SWC passing (180.5), while Cougars show balance at 186.8 rushing yards a game and 154.6 passing yards...SMU defense leads SWC in fewest points allowed through season (12.5 per game), Houston leads in fewest allowed in conference play (12.0). Mike Clendenen kicked three FGs in A&M victory, first time in UH's 39 football seasons a Cougar team has won a game without scoring a touchdown.

BAYLOR (1-4, 1-2 in SWC) at TEXAS A&M (3-2, 0-2 in SWC), 2 p.m. — Both teams seek to end two-game losing streaks, Baylor falling to Houston and SMU after taking lead and A&M playing Tech and Houston to standstill most of game after posting perfect non-conference record. Last week Bears held 20-10 lead over nationally-ranked SMU until three minutes left, finally fell behind with 47 seconds to play, A&M held Houston without TD but lost 9-7 on three first-half field goals. Baylor defense at extremes, leading SWC against the run (115.4 yards per game, 2.9 per carry) and last against the pass (245.8 yards and 59.2 completion percentage). Aggies stronger offensively in passing game with average gain of 171.8 yards per game to 120.4 rushing. Baylor offense and Aggie defense in virtual dead heat--Baylor rushing for 158.4 yards and passing for 161.4, A&M allowing 155.6 rushing and 159.6 passing. Baylor scoring at 16.8 per game and Aggies allowing 18.8. Ron Francis (third in SWC at 95.6 yards per game) and Ralph Stockemer lending quickness and speed to improving Baylor ground game, while frosh QB Craig Stump moved in to replace injured Kevin Murray with good results. SWC rarity has Baylor punter Buzzy Sawyer going against former team: ranked second nationally and leading SWC with 47.0-yard average, Sawyer was A&M punter in 1981 before transferring. Aggies lead series, 45-27-8.

NORTH TEXAS STATE (1-5) at TCU (4-1) 2 p.m. — Twelfth meeting between schools with Frogs holding 11-0 lead. First meeting between them since 1935, when TCU won, 28-11, in Fort Worth and finished with a 12-1 record and a win over LSU in the Sugar Bowl. It was only time in series Eagles scored in double figures.

Tony Dorsett still looking for first 100 yarder

IRVING (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys, who lost an offensive tackle in a nightclub accident this week, still hope to get running back Tony Dorsett his first 100-yard rushing game since last year in Sunday night's National Football League game againsts New Orleans.

"We have to get our running game going," said Dallas Coach Tom Landry. "And losing Jim Cooper isn't going to help."

Cooper slipped and broke a leg at a nightclub Monday night and will be replaced by Phil Pozderac. Cooper will be lost for the year.

Dorsett hasn't rushed for 100 yards in 10 games dating back to last year.

"Tony has never run any harder than he has this season," Landry said. "The effort is there. We've just got to get him some blocking."

The kickoff is set for 8:45 p.m. CDT to accomodate ABC, which is telecating the presidential debate. That's 45 minutes later than originally scheduled.

The Cowboys, 4-3, were five-point favorites over the Saints, 3-4, who are 1-10 against Dallas and 0-4 in Texas Stadium.

Fumble!

SMU quarterback Don King, shown fumbling, rallied Mustangs to 24-20 win over Baylor last week and will face Houston today in battle for first place in SWC.

Huskies feeling No. 1 pressure

Associated Press

The Washington Huskies, having become the fifth team to climb to the top of the AP college football rankings this season, make the first defense of their No. 1 ranking at home Saturday against 4-2 Oregon.

"It's an honor to play the No. 1 team in the nation," said Oregon Coach Rich Brooks. "It's hard to go undefeated this far in the season. That's a testimony to their team strength."

Washington's Don James, whose Huskies were at the top of the poll for six consecutive weeks in 1982 before being knocked out, would rather be No. 1 on Jan. 2.

"I know it's a tough spot to be in," he said. "Being No. 1 is a position that's just going to make your opponents play their best football against you. I also think it makes my job a little bit more difficult in dealing with my players."

If James wants to abdicate, he would find no shortage of challengers waiting to take over.

RUNNER-UP Oklahoma, for example. The Sooners, who visit Iowa State for a Big Eight night game, were bitterly disappointed with last week's 15-15 tie against Texas — "I think we're the better team," said Coach Barry Switzer — even though they jumped from third place to second while the Longhorns slipped from first to third.

And Texas, whose coach, Fred Akers, made an unsuccessful pitch to remain No. 1 after the tie with Oklahoma. The Longhorns entertain Arkansas in a Southwest Conference game.

Meanwhile, fourth-ranked Boston College visits No. 20 West Virginia, No. 5 Nebraska is at Colorado, sixth-ranked Southern Methodist is home against Houston, No. 7 Brigham Young is at Air Force, and eighth-ranked Ohio State plays at Michigan State. Rounding out the Top Ten, ninth-ranked Miami, Fla. entertains Pitt, while No. 10 LSU visits No. 16 Kentucky in a key Southeastern Conference game.

In the Second Ten, No. 11 South Carolina is at Notre Dame, Kansas at No. 12 Oklahoma State, Georgia Tech at No. 13 Auburn, Vanderbilt at No. 14 Georgia, Tulane at No. 15 Florida State for a night game, Cincinnati at No. 17 Florida, Michigan at No. 18 Iowa, and Syracuse at No. 19 Penn State.

College Football

THE OKLAHOMA-Iowa State series has been onesided, with the Sooners holding a 50-4-2 advantage. They are 21-0-1 against the Cyclones in the last 22 meetings.

Although early in the week Switzer described himself as "still emotionally upset" from the controversial finish against Texas, he now says: "We must put aside whatever feelings we have left over from the Texas game. The conference is the most important thing now and playing on the road has never been easy. It won't be easy preparing our team emotionally after the Texas effort, but I'm sure the players all realize the potential for disaster every time we go out on the field."

THE ORANGE, Sugar and Cotton Bowls will have representatives at West Virginia, but the team they covet is Boston College, because of exciting quarterback Doug Flutie. That should only serve to further rile up the Mountaineers, who finished second to Boston College last year in the voting for the Lambert-Meadowlands Trophy as the top team in the East despite a 27-17 triumph over the Eagles and are second again in the ratings this year.

While Flutie and the offense were somewhat rusty against Temple last Saturday after a three-week layoff, the defense played one of its better games. But West Virginia Coach Don Nehlen notes that in Flutie, who is 751 yards away from becoming major-college football's all-time total offense king, the Eagles "have the super performer at the key position who can beat you every time."

And although Flutie calls this game "the rivalry for the best in the East," Nehlen says that "when Penn State's in the area, they're still the team. Nobody's going to tell me any different. I don't care who's rated where."

Ex-jock Jon Douglas just doesn't fit public's image of athlete in later life

More Sports, See 8B

Whizzer White made it to the Supreme Court. Gerald Ford made the White House. Ty Cobb made a killing in Coca-Cola stock.

But the public perception of an ex-athlete in this country is a guy sitting around a bar with muscles long since gone to fat, hoisting a few with the boys, one of whom keeps urging him, "Hey, Studs, tell 'em again how you went nine rounds with the Bomber and nearly knocked him down twice."

Or he's doing one of those beer commercials, pretending he thinks water polo is an equestrian sport.

The world of business is an unreadable zone defense to most of them. The balance sheet is as impenetrable as the Notre Dame goal-line defense.

Which is why I watched with interest the adventures of a former Stanford quarterback, high school hurdler and Davis Cup tennis player in the most cutthroat world of high level commerce there is — California real estate. Look at it this way: It's no place to throw an interception. Or to smash a lob into the net.

Horatio Alger always held that the proper training for business success was to be a shoeshine boy, newsboy, orphan or stepchild with a burning desire to get ahead — or just get even.

JACKIE DOUGLAS was none of the above. He was, in fact, the son of a career Army officer who slept in sheets most of his life and never had to black boots or hawk extras on downtown street corners, but he came from a family where lounging around was highly discouraged.

Man and boy, Jon Douglas, to give him his right name, was as good a 5-foot-9 athlete as any state ever produced. He was an All-State quarterback at Santa Monica High, good enough to get an athletic scholarship to Stanford and smart enough not to need it, to get an academic scholarship instead.

He just missed taking Stanford to the Rose Bowl (four touchdown passes against Oregon weren't enough), but in the East-West game that year he beat out Joe Francis and Tom Flores for the starting job and threw for two touchdowns and ran for one. His was one of the few years Stanford beat USC and UCLA the same season.

Almost in his spare time he became a world-class tennis player. He won the Pacific Southwestin 1961 and played on the U.S. Davis Cup team in '58, '61 and '62. He had been a major-league prospect as an infielder and a crack guard in basketball. He got drafted by the 49ers, no less.

You would almost say Jon Douglas had every qualification necessary for failure in business. Star quarterback, tennis bum, a "natural." His friends had to figure he would go direct from center court to bankruptcy court. He would find it hard to be, so to speak, working without a net.

But Douglas found the world of business no different from the USC game. He found it as exhilarating as a quarterback sneak. The Jon Douglas Co., Realtors, logo began appearing on buildings and estates all over the west side of Los Angeles.

Sales topped $1 billion in 1983. He had 22 divisions, 18 offices, a brokerage office, a land development and mortgage company.

SOME PEOPLE think athletics is the worst possible training ground for the business life, but Douglas disagrees.

"A few years ago when the interest rates all but took the bottom out of the real estate business," he says, "I used to tell my employees about a time when I went to Rome to play a guy named Fausto Gardini. He looked like a tarantula but he played like a cat, and he had me buried and was gloating over every shot. He had me down 4-6, 4-6, and 2-5 in the third set. He also had me mad.

"I told myself, 'I'm gonna find out if this guy can gloat when the ball comes back at his face,' and I began to run out the set. I won 7-5, then I won 10-8. Then he suddenly discovered he had cramps. He didn't. But I beat him 6-0 in the last set and I say to my people, 'Hang in there because you never know when the opposition is suddenly going to develop cramps.'"

Douglas also says: "The guy who won't compete is usually the guy who is afraid to lose. A competitor is not a guy who hates to lose, it's a guy who doesn't mind taking a chance he will lose and going for it anyway."

When he was growing up as an Army brat, and changing addresses with every congressional shift of winds, Douglas found that the one way he could find friends was to go to the nearest Boys Club, or whatever form of charitable child-care center was available in town.

He has, as a result, always had a weakness for this form of charitable contribution. Sunday (Oct. 22), through the streets of Santa Monica, the seventh annual Jon Douglas 10-Kilometer Run to benefit six Santa Monica community-service organizations will be run, with races for every age category and the handicapped.

It is Jon Douglas the Conglomerate's way of saying thanks to a community for letting Jackie Douglas the Athlete prove you don't have to have played the game to succeed in the world — but that it couldn't hurt.

USFL sticks by its decision to switch

AMELIA ISLAND, Fla. (AP) — United States Football League owners reaffirmed Friday their decision to switch from the spring to the fall in 1986, taking on the established National Football League head-on.

Despite reports that the owners might reconsider their vote here, the matter never came up during a full day of meetings, closing the matter as far as the league is concerned. That led to one immediate ramification — the USFL champion Philadelphia Stars will make their announced move to Maryland in the spring of 1985, probably playing in College Park, Md. before moving to Memorial Stadium in Baltimore in 1986 when the fall schedule begins.

"That's the path we're taking, that's the road we're going down," said Commissioner Chet Simmons, in talking of the decision to stay in the fall. And Myles Tanenbaum, the owner of the Stars and the last holdout against the move to fall, said simply:

"There was no discussion whatever of reconsidering the decision. The Stars will play in Baltimore."

USFL

There were also these developments from the first of two and a half days of meetings:

—Tanenbaum indicated that the USFL, now 18 teams, may play with no fewer than 16 next season. In discussing their plans to merge ailing franchises into healthy one, the owners had talked about playing with 14 or 12 teams next spring.

The two most likely to merge are Oklahoma and Pittsburgh. Oklahoma, whose merger with the Oakland Invaders fell through, was reported ready to merge with the Arizona Wranglers; the Maulers were talking with Houston and Jacksonville.

—Decisions were imminent on the two troubled franchises in major markets — Chicago and Los Angeles.

It appeared that Jay Roulier, a part-owner of the Houston Gamblers, was about to purchase the Los Angeles Express, a development confirmed by Gamblers owner Jerry Argovitz.

GM, UAW sign contract

DETROIT (AP) — The heads of General Motors Corp. and the United Auto Workers on Friday signed a three-year American labor contract with terms that striking Canadian workers have refused to accept, threatening the closure of plants in the United States.

GM said the Canadian strike could begin to force layoffs Monday at as many as 10 U.S. assembly plants that receive parts from factories north of the border. About 1,500 workers at GM's light-truck assembly plant in Moraine, Ohio, were the first to be told not to report to work Monday.

GM Chairman Roger B. Smith and UAW President Owen Bieber signed the thick U.S. contract at the head of the 52-foot-long main bargaining table at GM headquarters.

Seated elbow to elbow, both tried to beg off answering questions about the Canadian strike. When reporters persisted, they answered only in general terms.

"The only questions I'm going to answer this morning is relative to what we're doing here," Bieber said.

Later Friday, 54 workers at a radiator plant in Buffalo and 45 others at an electronics plant in Dayton, Ohio, were told they would be laid off.

GM's 36,000 Canadian workers struck Wednesday, their leaders saying the U.S. contract, with its emphasis on job security instead of wages, does not meet their demands for bigger paychecks.

The UAW's Canadian director, Robert White, met with chief Canadian bargainer Rod Andrew at the main bargaining table in Toronto for two hours Friday, the first such meeting since the strike began.

White later called the session "probably the toughest negotiating meeting I've been in in 20 years.

"There was a real sharp exchange of where everybody is," White said. "The route that's beging traveled will make a settlement absolutely impossible."

Andrew refused to comment after the meeting. Before the meeting, he said he considered the situation "very serious, extremely serious" because the union was insisting on retaining the old system of annual wage increases, which the U.S. contract doesn't contain.

"If they're going to strike on principle, they've got to be aware that principle is a dangerous thing to strike on," Andrew said.

Both sides said more meetings probably would be scheduled.

The U.S. agreement, covering 350,000 UAW workers at GM, was ratified Sunday. Ford Motor Co.'s 115,000 U.S. workers will be voting on a similar pact until Oct. 28.

The GM contract contains novel worker-protection provisions, plus lump-sum payments and profit-sharing. Real wages would rise only once, by 15 cents to $12.82 an hour at the beginning of the contract.

The pact provides for a job bank that would provide income maintenance and retraining for workers who lose their jobs to automation, productivity increases or subcontracting.

Beck sets golf scoring record

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (AP) — Chip Beck, a frequent challenger but not yet a winner on the PGA Tour, set a tournament scoring record as he moved out to a two-stroke lead Friday in the second round of the $400,000 Walt Disney World Golf Classic.

Beck, 28, completing his sixth season as a touring pro, added a 6-under-par 66 to his opening 64 and set the tournament record for 36 holes at 130, a distant 14 strokes under par at the tournament's halfway point.

"I'm just going to play and enjoy it and hope things go my way," said Beck, who was a runner-up three times last year and this season led through the first three rounds of the Westchester Classic.

"If I get a chance to win, on the last day, on the last nine holes, I think I can win," Beck said after his second-round effort at the Magnolia course, one of three resort layouts used for the first three rounds of this event.

He will play Saturday's round at the Palm course, which defending champion Payne Stewart said "is the hardest of the three we play."

The format calls for the 132-man field to play one round on each of the Palm, Magnolia and Lake Buena Vista courses before the field is trimmed to the low 70 scorers and ties for the final round at Magnolia.

Jay Haas, who held the previous tournament record at 132, again matched that total and was tied for second with rookie Brad Faxon, Larry Nelson and veteran Hubert Green, who broke a three-year non-winning streak last week in the Southern Open.

Haas had a 66 in the muggy heat at Lake Buena Vista, Green a 65 on the same course and Faxon shot 65 at Magnolia. Nelson, a former U.S. Open and PGA champion, once closed to within one stroke of the lead before finishing with a 66 at the Palm course.

Stewart, with a 64, the best round of the day, at Lake Buena Vista, and Dan Pohl, with a 67 at Magnolia, were in contention at 134.

Hey, Here's the beef

WASHINGTON (AP) — The next time someone asks where's the beef, tell them to look up H.D. Woodson High School football Coach Moe Warren.

Warren's undefeated Warriors, 5-0, boast a defensive front line that averages 6-foot-5, 280 pounds.

The largest player on a team that provides opposing runners with as much daylight as a solar eclipse is 6-7, 435-pound junior Raymond Smith.

Against Wilson High School, Smith literally took out the entire left side of the Wilson line by himself.

Smith, who is nicknamed "World," was forced to sit out the first three games until a uniform could be found for his considerable frame.

The mission finally was accomplished when the school borrowed a size 54 Triple X uniform from Grambling University and sewed it to a pair of large baseball pants with an elastic waist band. Smith's jersey is an extra large

USGA lost in rough over banned golf ball

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The U.S. Golf Association, which banned a golf ball that was supposed to cut down on hooks and slices, finds itself in the rough and facing a $4.41 million antitrust judgment.

A U.S. District Court jury Thursday awarded makers of the Polara ball $1.47 million in damages against the USGA for conspiring with other golf ball manufacturers to deny official approval to the Polara in 1978. Under antitrust law, damages are tripled.

Daniel Nepela of San Francisco, a chemist who was one of the inventors of the Polara, said Friday he hopes to start marketing the ball again and will seek an injunction that would require the USGA to approve the ball for tournament play.

The Polara was first sold in 1977. It had smaller, shallower dimples at the "poles," the top and bottom, than on the sides, a design that was intended to make it fly straighter.

The USGA refused to put the ball on its approved list. Michael Khourie, lawyer for the Polara, said the association described the ball as "a threat to golf."

Actually, Khourie said, some other balls with different designs also reduce hooks and slices, and the Polara "wasn't a dramatic change."

Manufacturer recalls jars of tamales

WASHINGTON (AP) — Paramount Foods of Louisville, Ky., is voluntarily recalling 10,000 jars of beef tamales because of possible spoilage, the Agriculture Department said Friday.

The company said about 42,000 of the 13.5-ounce jars were produced. Of those, about 10,000 jars are at retail outlets or have already been sold. The remaining jars were withheld by the company, officials said.

The product was said to have been marketed in southern Indiana, Kentucky, central Michigan, southern Ohio, central Tennessee and the St. Louis area.

L.L. Gast of the department's Food Safety and Inspection Service said the "beef tamales with sauce" can be identified by the Paramount brand, the 13.5-ounce jar with press-on cap, and the code number 2448 on the cap.

Mice traps set with peanut butter

PERDIDO KEY, Ala. (AP) — Biologists set 650 traps baited with peanut butter, but caught only three Perdido Key beach mice along the Gulf coast, indicating the threatened species might be even rarer than expected.

U.S. Fish and Wildlife staffers are removing the mice from the path of bulldozers clearing the area, while the Interior Department considers a proposal to declare the species endangered.

"The fact that we found only three mice tells us the population is low," biologist Robin Fields said.

Hoax scares servicemen's families

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Navy is probing a hoax in which a bogus officer told families of servicemen aboard a supply ship in the Indian Ocean that there was an explosion on the vessel, according a report published Friday.

The Baltimore News American reported a man posing as a rear admiral this week contacted the families of sailors aboard the U.S.S. White Plains.

Navy officials said they did not know how many families were contacted, but added that many wives and parents of servicemen were distraught until they were reassured that the sailors were fine.

Jury awards widow $2 million

NEW YORK (AP) — A jury has awarded $2 million to the widow of a man killed in an accident after his car was disabled by a pothole in New York City.

The jury found the city should pay 60 percent of the award to to Naomi Schwartz of Roslyn, whose husband, Henry Schwartz, was killed March 5, 1977. The driver of the car that struck and killed the man must pay the rest.

Schwartz was driving along the Whitestone Expressway when the car hit a pothole, spun out of control and crashed. As Schwartz was stepping from the wreckage, he was struck by a car that hit the same pothole and also went out of control, according to testimony.

New York traffic

Missing children's hotline begins operation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Operators of a nationwide toll-free hotline to gather information on missing children today reported some 500 phone calls half-way through their first day.

"We expect to get close to 1,000 by the end of the day," said Jay Howell, executive director of the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children, which is operating the hot line.

He said about 100 of the callers reported possible sighting of one of three missing children whose pictures were shown on the ABC-TV show "Good Morning America." Others wanted to report missing children or ask for information available from the center.

"Things are coming in at such a fast rate that we have our hands full," Howell said. But he added, "It takes days and sometimes weeks of work after a call to bring it to a positive conclusion."

The children whose pictures were shown are Kevin Collins, 10, of San Francisco, who disappeared Feb. 10; Louis Mackerly, 7, of Allentown, Pa., who disappeared June 7; and Ann Gotlib, who was 12 when she disappeared June 1, 1983.

Howell is overseeing the startup of the first federally funded nationwide service to take tips on the whereabouts of missing children. Each year somewhere between 500,000 and 2 million children are reported missing.

"We are confident that this national telephone number will result in many missing children being safely returned to their homes," Howell said.

People with information on missing children may call a toll-free number and relay their leads to operators working at the center's computer bank. The tips will then be turned over to local, state and federal law enforcement agencies.

The toll-free number is 1-800-843-5678. Until Alaska and Hawaii are tied into the toll-free number, the temporary number for those states is 202-634-9836. Calls for information and assistance are received at the National Center's main number, 202-634-9821.

A former district attorney in Florida and a U.S. Senate investigator, Howell also is overseeing preparation of materials to help parents proceed when their children are missing, advise law enforcement officers on the latest search techniques and educate families on how to prevent abductions and sexual abuse of youngsters.

He gave some examples of specific advice:

— Police investigating the case of a missing child should return to the scene of the disappearance 24 hours, 48 hours and a week after the initial report to canvas for witnesses whose regular activities bring them into the area.

— Authorities should assume from the outset that the disappearance of a child may be a kidnapping.

— Children should be given clear information about danger signals to watch out for. They should be told, for instance, "no one should be touching you on the bathing suit areas of your body or asking you to touch them there. Adults should not be asking you to keep special secrets," Howell suggested.

Howell noted that in a number of cases of sexual abuse of children, parents reported in retrospect their children had seemed afraid to go to school.

"If your child has fears, you need to talk to him about those fears, because there's a reason for them," he said.

The center opened last May with a $3.3 million grant from the Justice Department. It has been operating an information hot line only on a limited basis, often in conjunction with a local television program in which the pictures of missing children are shown.

More than 100 calls have been received since August, Howell said. So far, none of those calls has resulted in the location of a missing child.

But Howell pointed out that some 4,000 calls were logged, and 11 children found when a temporary toll-free number was set up in Florida last April.

Dudley Dudley wants to be her state's first congresswoman

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — New Hampshire Democrat Dudley Dudley, who won a fight against Aristotle Onassis a decade ago and led the 1980 presidential draft movement for Sen. Edward Kennedy, is trying to become her state's first congresswoman.

If not yet familiar elsewhere, her unusual name is well-known in New Hampshire where in 12 years she has never lost a political race, speaking well of her slogan, "Dudley Dudley, Worth Repeating."

To win a seat in Congress, however, she must attract votes from moderate Republicans as well as Democrats in a state that strongly supports President Reagan. Her opponent, Republican real estate agent Robert Smith, is campaigning on his support for the president, particularly his economic policies.

Perhaps an even larger obstacle is a perception in voters' minds that a man, not a woman, belongs in Congress. New Hampshire has never elected one and Mrs. Dudley is only the second woman to win a nomination. Polls show her trailing Smith among women as well as men.

Mrs. Dudley's name — the result of inheriting her grandmother's maiden name and then marrying a man named Dudley — became familiar in 1974 during a successful fight against Onassis' plans to put a $600 million oil refinery on New Hampshire's 18-mile seacoast.

The governor backed the proposal.

As chairwoman of the draft committee that put Kennedy's name on New Hampshire's primary ballot, Mrs. Dudley gained national attention again.

After serving in the Legislature, the 48-year-old Democrat became the first woman on the state Executive Council, a five-member body holding veto power over gubernatorial appointments.

Police officers partners in crime-writing

DALLAS (AP) — The name's Sgt. Bill Clair. He's a cop.

He's got a partner, Lt. Richard Abshire.

But they're not partners in crime-fighting.

They work the literature beat.

There's a million stories out there in the naked city, and these guys have written one of them.

They wrote a book, found a publisher, and it looks as if it may sell.

Clair is an investigator in the Dallas Police Department Auto Theft Division. He's a visual guy who likes to see the big picture, likes to see all the threads come together in a neat ending just the way they never do in real life.

He's the plot man.

Abshire is on the staff of Southern Methodist University's Department of Public Saftey. He lets the words take him where he needs to go. He's got a way with words.

He's the writer.

Abshire, 38, was just a kid in blue jeans when words walked into his life, and they never walked out. He won a theme contest sponsored by the Daughters of the Confederacy when he was in the eighth grade, and from then on, he was hooked. He grew from a kid with a penny-ante word habit to become a cop with a typewriter on his back.

"Been writing one thing or another all my life. Wrote plays in grade school. Sold eight or 10 magazine articles, worked some with the "Dallas Observer," did a series for them on gambling and victimless crimes. Did a few things here and there under pen names. Did a little bit of ghostwriting," Abshire said, leading one to ponder this mystery: How come cops in literature always leave the first-person subject of their sentence implied?

Abshire got together with Clair when both worked for DPD where they were "in harness" on the streets of Southeast Dallas.

They started a book way back in 1968. It was to have been a series of vignettes about several different officers and their experiences. Then another writer came out with a book a lot like theirs was going to be.

His name was Joseph Wambaugh.

The book was "The New Centurions."

Dum da dum dum.

It's a publishing jungle out there, a cop-author old world. The two Dallas officers confessed, however, Wambaugh had done a pretty good job of it. Their effort went right into the round file.

Then a couple of years ago, the book-writing urge hit them again.

Literary cops have a problem figuring out where to go.

The policeman in them wants to head straight for Denny's.

The author in them wants to light out for the Wine Press.

So they went to both.

Clair: "Abshire had an idea, a thought. There're books about women solving crimes, men solving crimes, but the victim never solved his own crime. It sounded like an interesting premise. We more or less sat down and worked out the basic story line in Denny's up on Central at Fitzhugh. That place is full of characters, anyway. We did a lot of work in there. Then we'd go on writing marathons, spending three or four days just taking off and locking ourselves away."

Abshire: "We go to the wine press because we've had good luck there. Inspiration always hits about the third or fourth drink."

Clair: "We had a little trouble right there at the first, getting the rules down about working together. Richard is more into the writing, he's a word technician. I'm a visual person. I see things in terms of screenplays, while Richard gets into characterization.

Seven-month-old Solomon Peter Hill waves at the camera while his mother, Bari Hill looks on. Solomon is suffering from biliary atresia, a disease progressively destroying his liver. He must have a transplant with a few months if he is going to live.

Bonham baby waits for liver transplant

BONHAM, Texas (AP) — Solomon Peter Hill grins and gurgles like any happy 7-month-old baby. His dark eyes shine and his arms and legs wiggle with delight when his brothers tickle him.

But one look at Solomon tells you he is not healthy. His limbs are tiny, his abdomen swollen and his skin a greenish- yellow color. The baby has biliary atresia, a disease progressively destroying a liver that is barely functioning. Doctors say he must have a liver transplant within a few months if he is going to live.

Solomon has been accepted in a liver transplant program in Dallas, and is one of 20 children awaiting donors through Dr. Thomas Starzl's program at Children's Hospital in Pittsburgh.

Dr. Walter Andrews, 33, established the Dallas liver transplant program last August when he became director of Pediatric Transplant Program at Children's Medical Center. He came to Dallas from Pittsburgh where he studied under Starzl, a pioneer of liver transplants in the U.S. According to officials at Children's Medical Center, Andrews has participated in more than 100 liver transplant operations.

Andrews said several children are being evaluated for transplants in Dallas now and he expects to perform at least one operation before the end of the year.

Liver transplants began to gain medical acceptance during the late 1970s as drugs were developed to suppress the body's immune system which had caused rejections in previous transplants, Andrews said.

Liver transplants are now performed at hospitals in Minneapolis and Memphis, as well as Pittsburgh with several more transplant centers beginning operation now.

The child's father, Bud Hill, said he believes the pediatrics transplant center in Dallas will become one of the best anywhere.

But Solomon has more than medical science working for him, says Hill, 41, pastor of a small non-denominational church in Ector. Christians around the world are praying for the child, the father said.

At a recent service in the auditorium of Christ for the Nations in Dallas, evangelist Rev. R.W. Schambach prayed for Solomon, Hill said.

"The Lord is going to heal him — that is what we believe," Hill said.

Hill says the doctors respect his faith, but continue to work on the assumption that there will be no supernatural cure for Solomon. The pastor said he believes in the good that can be done by modern medicine. "God can work through medicine as easy as not," Hill said. He added that the experience with Schambach was not something the family had found while "running to and fro grasping at straws."

"God can heal anywhere," Hill said. "But this (the trip to Christ for the Nations) was something it just seemed like we were supposed to do."

The Hills say that from infancy, Solomon Peter has been true to the translation of his name "Peaceful Rock."

Taking care of the medical and physical needs of Solomon has become practically a full-time job for the Hill family.

Bari Hill, Solomon's mother, said he requires feeding every two hours. Because of his liver problems, Solomon has virtually no appetite and must be fed through a tube. He takes a special formula because he cannot digest fats.

Solomon has two older brothers, Uri, 6 and Simeon, 4½. Both are affectionate towards their ill younger brother and Solomon responds to their attention.

But they feel the stress on the family and notice most of the attention is directed toward their little brother, Mrs. Hill said. Hill said every time he and his wife leave the home with Solomon, the brothers fear that their parents will not return soon — with good reason. Once a trip to a physician's office in Dallas resulted in a four-day stay at a hospital.

The strain sometimes shows in anger.

In frustration, Uri once yelled "Liver, liver, liver — all we ever hear about is liver."

If a donor is found for Solomon, the family must raise about $100,000 to pay their portion of the medical expenses not covered by Medicaid. Hill said that government sources will pay for the surgery and the first 30 days of medical care — expected to be $125,000 to $175,000. After that, the family must pay the estimated $100,000 for the next 60 days as Solomon recuperates.

The Solomon P. Hill trust fund was established in Bonham through the Lions Club and the First National Bank of Bonham to handle money for the transplant.

Koch trying to improve city's relation with rest of country

Edward Koch

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor Edward I. Koch said Friday that the city and state have made over $400,000 in tax revenues from his best-selling book, "Mayor."

"They should pay me to write books!" he said at a regional conference of the Radio-Television News Directors Association.

The mayor said he made radio and television appearances, including those plugging his book, to bring more "love" into the "love-hate" relationship the rest of the country has with New York City.

Friday, Koch said, "there's more love than there is hate. There's more respect — and that's why I do it. It's part of my job...It's to be the chief salesman of the City of New York."

Crosby

DALLAS (AP) — Authorities want to extradite rock singer David Crosby from California and hold him in jail while the entertainer appeals a five-year prison sentence for drug and weapons convictions, a defense attorney says.

Lawyer Jay Ethington said Thursday that Dallas County prosecutors told him they would charge that Crosby violated the terms of his $8,000 bond when he was arrested last week in California.

Crosby was booked on suspicion of illegally possessing a weapon and a drug believed to be cocaine.

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Toma Ovici, a former member of the Romanian Davis Cup tennis team who defected 8½ years ago, has become a U.S. citizen.

Ovici and his wife, Carmen, joined 44 other immigrants in a 16-minute naturalization ceremony at federal court here Thursday.

"It's a dream," said Ovici, tennis pro for the City of Omaha. "I don't think I felt this way when I won my greatest tennis match."

Dali Lama

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Dalai Lama stopped by City Hall for a chat with Mayor Tom Bradley, who asked the spiritual leader how things were going in Tibet.

The 49-year-old Dalai Lama, who is self-exiled from his homeland, met with the mayor for a half hour Thursday, a day after he told the World Affairs Council that the survival of humanity is threatened by nuclear war.

"The peace we now have does not come from kindness, but from fear, and it will not last," said the Dalai Lama, whose real name is Tenzin Gyatso.

Steckel

EDEN PRAIRIE, Minn. (AP) — Les Steckel has stopped comparing his job as rookie coach of the Minnesota Vikings to his stint as a Marine lieutenant in Vietnam.

Steckel said he's backing off from using the analogy after receiving "good counsel" from his wife, Chris.

"She said when people read the word Vietnam they'll think about a lost son or loved one. That really hit me," he said.

Earlier this season, Steckel compared losing first-round draft pick Keith Millard to the United States Football League to a Vietnam casuality and said "we'll still take the hill."

Bruce Morgan, 24, from Indiana University of Pennsylvania, greets Katie Niedhold, 23, from the University of Alaska at Fairbanks,the two schools which a book names to have the ugliest students.

Two 'ugliest' college students have blind date

INDIANA, Pa. (AP) — Katie Neidhold flew 4,600 miles from Alaska to trade hugs and giggles Friday with Bruce Morgan in the blindest of blind dates — a weekend meeting of the nation's "ugliest" college man and woman.

"She's a beautiful girl. I expected some big, old polar bear to come in here," Morgan said after he met Miss Neidhold in a restaurant parking lot.

"I think he's beautiful, too" Miss Neidhold said. "He reminds me a lot of my older brother."

Morgan, 24, a senior criminology major at the Indiana University of Pennsylvania, recently was voted the ugliest man on campus after "Lisa Birnbach's College Book" identified his school as home of the nation's worst-looking college men.

A fraternity called the University of Alaska at Fairbanks, which the book claims has the worst-looking college women, and asked to speak to "your ugliest woman." When no one volunteered, a contest was held.

Miss Neidhold, 23, a senior speech communications major from Fairbanks, was selected from among other co-eds and was flown in for Homecoming Weekend in this western Pennsylvania town about 70 miles northeast of Pittsburgh.

The couple's schedule left little time for romance what with the news conference, pep rally, picture session, all-night beer party and this afternoon's homecoming parade.

Morgan, who stands 6-foot-3 and weighs about 300 pounds, traded quips and a few beers at his introductory lunch with Miss Neidhold, a fresh-faced, 5-foot-2 brunette who said she weighs "too much."

"If we get married," Morgan said, "we'll just start a superior race and we'll rule the world."

"I just look at it as fun," Miss Neidhold said. "Am I ugly? No, I don't think anyone's ugly. Hey, I look in the mirror and I'm happy with myself.

"I have two boyfriends back in Fairbanks, Eric Barclay and Dan Graham," she told reporters. "Please put Dan second in your story."

Morgan said his new fame has prompted him to hire an agent for future personal appearances. "I just look at it as making money," he kidded.

Ms. Birnbach, who was not present for the "ugliest" date, had told the campus newspaper that the event "may be doing more for (the college) than it's doing for me."

The fraternity, Alpha Phi Omega, planned to charge $1 each for students to attend the "official meeting" Friday night at the fieldhouse, where the well-dressed couple was to arrive in a limousine to dine under candle light "on the finest fast-food money can buy," according to fraternity president Larry Snow.

The fraternity, which has spent $2,000 on the event, mostly on air fare for Miss Neidhold, hoped to raise money for the Starry family of nearby Commodore, whose daughter, Amanda, 3, is recovering from spinal meningitis.

Dance troupe to perform at White House

TOKYO (AP) — Five Japanese men clad in loincloths, their heads shaved and their muscular bodies covered with rice flour, will introduce President and Mrs. Reagan to "buto," an avant-garde style of Japanese dance characterized by abnormal, distorted movement.

Sankai Juku, a buto group that represented Japan at an international festival in Los Angeles prior to the Summer Olympics, is making its second trip to the United States this month.

It has scheduled performances in New York, Boston, Pittsburgh and will make a special White House appearance at the invitation of Mrs. Reagan, according to the group's sponsors, Mitsubishi Motors Corp.

Buto developed in Japan as a reaction to the restrictive classical dances of the West and traditional dance in Japan. Though influenced before World War II by German expressionist and Spanish flamenco dance, it is generally considered a product of the postwar generation and evolved into its present state during the '60s.

Though traditional Japanese dance elements are also present, buto emphasizes emotional expression in a society that is taught to mask feelings.

Tense, almost trance-like performers distort their bodies and faces in works aimed at identifying humans with animals and nature, according to Ushio Amagatsu, founder of Sankai Juku.

Buto choreography is sometimes controversial and often unsettling. In one Sankai Juku work, performers hang from their feet on ropes. In another, a rigid dancer falls backward, his head bouncing on impact with the wooden floor.

In "Revolt of the Flesh," a 1968 work by leading buto performer Tatsumi Hijikata, birds were killed on stage.

The ascetic, austere quality of buto is obviously, but not exclusively, Japanese, according to Amagatsu. He feels other cultures can appreciate the significance of the forms and gestures in his works.

Music is used to accompany movement, and Amagatsu generally uses a collage of different music pieces in his works.

Dancers whiten their bodies to depersonalize themselves, which is also why Sankai Juku members shave their heads.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Sunday, October 21, 1984

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Poet Samuel Coleridge and inventor-philanthropist Alfred Nobel were born on this date. Also sharing your birthday: actress Carrie Fisher, Patti Davis, conductor George Solti, the Dodgers' Bill Russell, singer Georgia Brown, Yankee Hall of Famer Whitey Ford and Chicago Cubs great Bill Lee. Pay more attention to money matters and your fortunes will rise dramatically. Some fascinating new friends enter your life, bringing fresh inspiration and positive ideas. The bond between you and mate remains strong. Others would like to be included in your charmed inner circle. Welcome an unusual job assignment or travel opportunity.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Someone you meet today could be a huge help in an emergency; foster your relationship. Discussing your frustrations with friends could give you new insights. You find a sympathetic ear.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Let mate or partner take the lead today. It is time someone else made the social plans. Influential person could open important new doors. Cultivate a powerful family friend.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A friendship has its ups and downs now. Be as loving and understanding as possible. Catching up on household tasks gives you a feeling of accomplishment. Go ahead and accept an unexpected invitation.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your friends are especially loving now. Bask in their affection and approval. A social success introduces you to important new contacts. Be willing to leave an event early if mate is bored.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Invest in equipment that will reduce the time spent on housework. Family members are supportive once they understand what you are trying to accomplish. Exercise more patience with someone who is elderly.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Too much unsolicited advice will irritate siblings. Get rid of those unwanted items that are cluttering your closets. Self-improvement activities bring multiple rewards. Read the want-ads if thinking about changing fields.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Any work done today should prove quite profitable. Limit spending. If romance is on your mind, make the first move. A phone call to a loved one will reassure you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A troubled relationship could come to an end. Although you realize a split was inevitable, you may still feel sad. Keep busy! News opportunities and rewards lie just around the corner.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Do not spend a lot on travel unless sure of results. Distant affairs improve thanks to a friend's intervention. Be careful not to make any promises you cannot keep.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A new approach is required now. Do not try to do everything alone. Make a special effort to please loved ones you have neglected recently. Romance begins to perk. Curb spending.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Family members could resist your entertainment ideas. A compromise will make everyone happy. Ask for suggestions. A busy week lies ahead. Spend a quiet evening at home and retire early.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Get your finances in better order by going over accounts and receipts. New friends and experiences give you a different outlook on life. Make long-range plans. Family members are cooperative.

Factions may soon trade bullets, not curses

EDITOR'S NOTE — The writer spent two days in camps of rival Christian and Moslem militiamen in the hills outside Beirut and heard them tell of the days they lived as neighbors — and also of their fears that soon they will be killing each other for control of an area of Lebanon they once shared in peace.

By G.G. LaBELLE

JIYE, Lebanon (AP) — The Christian and Moslem militiamen on two hills about 100 yards apart shout curses at each other these days. But when Israeli occupation forces withdraw, they could well be shooting at each other.

And that could bring a new conflict to an already bloodstained Lebanon, perhaps because of misunderstanding between old friends and neighbors.

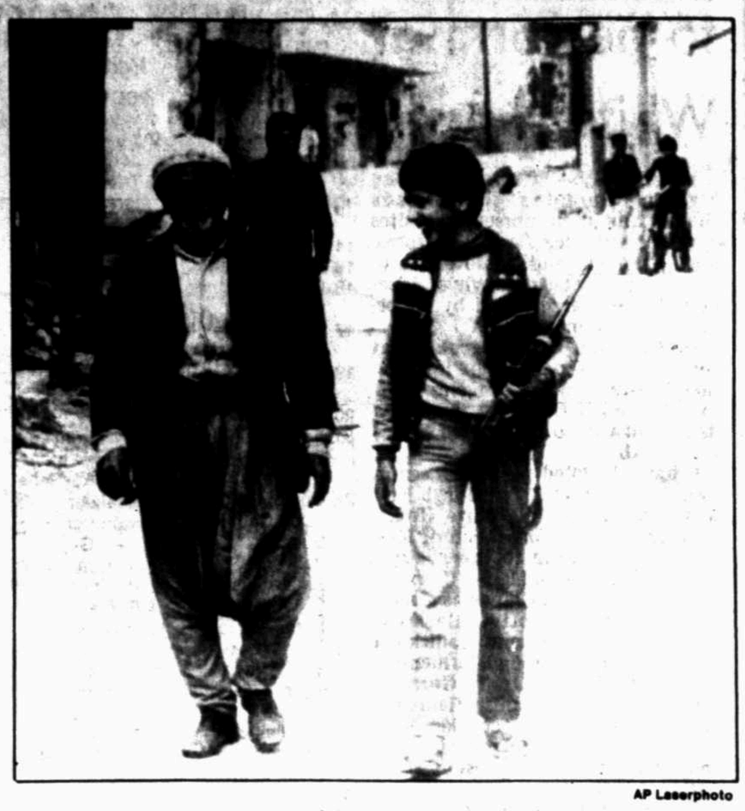
The Christians, clinging to a narrow coastal strip north of Israel's occupation zone, and the Moslems in the hills above them openly express their fears that hostilities will break out with the expected withdrawal in coming weeks of Israel's army farther south.

Israel keeps watch over a tenuous truce in this area, known as the Kharroub, by occasionally sending columns of tanks up from occupied territory below the Awali River. But few believe the truce can last without Israel's presence and pressure.

Charbel Nakad of the Christian Lebanese Forces militia told a visiting correspondent that he believes Palestinians, Iranians and "Jondallah" — Shiite Moslems loyal to Iran's Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini — are ready to swoop down on the Christians from the hills.

In the village of Chhime to the east, Moslem militiaman Adnan Hussein said he expects a fight because "special forces from Karantina" — Christian militiamen from Beirut — are besieging his people, keeping them bottled up in the mountains.

It is a mark of the misunderstanding between Lebanon's quarrelsome sects that two days spent on both sides of the line showed no evidence of a Palestinian, Iranian or Shiite force in the mountains, nor of large numbers of Christian militiamen from outside.



AP Laserphoto

A young fighter walks an elderly man through his village in the Kharroub region of Lebanon, where fighting may erupt once Israeli troops pull back from their posts.

One forward Christian position on a hill outside Jiye was manned by three part-time fighters, a truck driver, an employee of the Lebanese Health Ministry and a former worker at a golf club, all from Jiye. Only their local commander was not from the area.

In the mountain villages, the Moslem fighters sat in each other's homes talking as wives served cups of strong Arab coffee. Though the militiamen are members of the largely Druse Progressive Socialist Party, all said they were Sunni Moslems native to the region.

From one Christian-held hilltop, the exchange of curses could be heard from another Christian post and a hill held by Moslems.

It wasn't always that way in the Kharroub, which gets its name from the carob trees that grow here, producing brown pods with a sweet pulp used for fodder and sometimes for human consumption.

Christians and Moslems have long lived in neighboring Kharroub villages and, indeed, in the same villages — never in conflict, even at the height of Lebanon's Moslem-Christian conflict.

"I never imagined this," said Elias Mhana, a Christian fighter in Jiye. "We did not have sectarianism."

In the village of Moghairiyeh, in the foothills 5½ miles south, a Sunni militia leader who calls himself Abu Wesam said much the same.

"We used to call them our brothers," he said. "All the last 10 years, this place has been very peaceful. We've coexisted."

The Kharroub runs between the sea and the foothills of the Chouf mountains to the east and between the Damour River on the north and the Awali on the south. It is 13 miles long and 7.2 miles wide.

Though tiny, the region contains the main highway from Beirut to southern Lebanon, long closed by fighting, and the main power plant supplying electricity to Beirut. Damage to the plant in one recent outburst of fighting meant electricity was cut to only three hours daily in the capital.

Brief battles break out about once a week, and it is then that Israel sends its tanks and armored personnel carriers north from the Awali River and up into the hills on narrow roads already rutted from tank tracks.

The Israeli soldiers rarely fire. The huge white and blue Israeli flags atop the tanks can be seen for miles and are enough to advertise that Israel does not want trouble on the border of its occupation zone.

But now the talk is that the Israelis soon will be pulling farther south as a prelude to withdrawal from Lebanon altogether.

Asked what would happen if the Israelis withdrew, Moslem militiaman Hussein said, "We will not allow the Kharroub region to remain under siege. If the Lebanese Forces withdraw at the same time, fine. If not, we will open the roads by force."

Nakad, the Christian militia officer, said his men have no plans to leave.

"We're not afraid of them...There are men and women, elderly and even children who will fight," he said.

Second graders at a school near Doylestown, Pa., pick their pumpkins during a class outing. While some students seem to be having trouble lugging the giant fruit around, they should have fun carving them into jack-o-lanterns for Halloween.

Lawyer who collects taxes for county wants contract

By MARK LEWIS
Staff Writer

The lawyer who collects delinquent taxes for the Midland County Appraisal District wants a new two-year contract, but the Appraisal District Board of Directors has decided to shop around a little before making its decision.

Midland lawyer Jimmie D. Oglesby has been collecting delinquent taxes for the district on a month-to-month basis since 1982, but now he wants to lock into a long-term arrangement.

"The point has been reached when I have to add another lawyer," he told the board at its monthly meeting Wednesday. "That's the reason I need a two-year contract."

But the board also heard presentations from three out-of-town law firms which specialize in tax collecting.

"It is not an expression of dissatisfaction" with Oglesby, said Gilbert Tompson, chairman of the board of directors. "Jimmie has done a very good job starting where he did. But we do have a feeling that some of these outside firms may have an expertise that would be difficult for Jimmie to develop" in the relatively short time he's been collecting delinquent taxes.

"When we hired Jimmie, we hired him on a trial basis," Tompson said. "We felt if we're looking at a two-year contract, we needed to review the whole matter of delinquent tax collections."

Currently there is about $3.5 million in uncollected delinquent taxes on the district's rolls, according to Chief Appraiser Roland Wilkinson. The collector's fee is 15 percent of the tax, interest and penalty. For taxes due since 1981, the 15 percent is added as a surcharge to the taxpayer's total bill; for taxes delinquent since before 1981, it comes out of the total.

The board will probably make its decision next week, Wilkinson said.

"What it really boils down to is that we're going to be looking for the best possible service for the district. I think it is good practice to explore all the alternatives before extending the contract."

White-Pool House open for tours

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — The historic White-Pool House is open for public tours, Sundays from 3 p.m. to 6 p.m. Group tours can be arrranged by contacting Bobbie Klepper at 367-2128 or 362-3654.

Located at 112 E. Murphy south of downtown Odessa, the house was originally built in 1887. It was donated to Ector County for historic preservation by Oso Pool in 1977.

Under the guidance of the Ector County Historical Commission, the house has been restored to depict the two most important periods in Odessa's development.

Some of the rooms depict the early ranching frontier days when the White family moved to the area and built the house. Others draw from the oil frontier period of the 1920s, when Pool joined the masses who came to the Permian Basin to seek their fortunes.

There is no fee for the tours, but donations are appreciated.

LHS senior presents Mark Twain

David Le Master is presenting "An Evening with Twain" at 8 p.m. today and 2 p.m. Sunday at Lee High School Auditorium.

Hal Holbrook's "Mark Twain Tonight" inspired Le Master to put together his own program using the body of Mark Twain's work. Using lectures, short stories, essays and novels, Le Master has assembled an "evening of laughter and wit." He, like Holbrook, assumes the character of Twain as he tells stories and makes comments.

Le Master, a senior, is a state, regional and national competitor who has been in demand performing for clubs and vlasses in liocal schools and at the University of Texas of the Permian Basin. He is a student council officer who holds advanced degrees in the National Forensic League and Thespians.

Tickets, priced at $1 for students and $2 for adults, may be purchased at the door.

Democrats host debate watch

From Staff Reports

Midland's Mondale/Ferraro campaign will host a debate watch Sunday evening at the Democratic Headquarters, 306 E. Illinois.

This watch party will be a followup to the parties held in conjunction with the first presidential debate. Doors at the headquarters will open at 6:30 p.m. for the 7 p.m. debate.

Drinks, snacks and auction items from the National Democratic Convention will be available.

Co-hosting the party will be the Midland Young Democrats, according to Michael Higgins, local coordinator.

Annual arts, crafts show being held in Kermit

KERMIT — The 12th annual October Affair Arts and Crafts Show is taking place this weekend in the Recreation Center at the Winkler County Park, Kermit.

Show hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. today and 1 to 6 p.m. Sunday.

Demonstrations by the artists and craftsmen will be going on throughout the two-day event.

"Some people only live this way two weeks a year."

Welcome to vacation living all year long. Welcome to Saddle Club Apartments. Saddle Club isn't a resort-we just look like one. We offer you 2 sparkling swimming pools, 2 lighted tennis courts, 2 indoor racquetball courts, a universal gym, indoor and outdoor jacuzzis, and wet and dry saunas.

Once inside a Saddle Club apartment home you can cozy up to a warm fireplace, relax on your own patio or balcony and enjoy the feeling of luxury living.

There's privacy here, but if you want activities, we have planned resident get-togethers.

Rent beginning at $309. We're located only minutes from major businesses, recreation, fine restaurants and entertainment. We're probably only a few minutes away from where you work.

So if you feel like taking a vacation that never has to end, take a drive over to Saddle Club and let us show you how.

Patrol wages futile 'war' on U.S. border

LAREDO (AP) — It was an overcast morning, one of the coolest in a long time.

Border Patrol Agent Martin Piton was assigned to the river. He pulled his patrol car into the government parking lot beside the international bridge and walked to a favorite observation point, some empty Customs Service dog kennels. From here he had a clear view of the muddy Rio Grande.

Piton pulled out his binoculars and surveyed the river, beginning his day as defender of the United States' border against illegal immigrants.

It was quiet on the river. Piton could see a few fishermen lolling on the other side.

Across the river, several young men appeared on a path leading down to the water. Soon they walked into some thick foliage and were lost from view.

"You can bet they're up to no good," Piton said.

Then Piton spotted something — a man about 200 yards away was scampering over a barbed wire-topped hurricane fence on the U.S. side. As his feet hit the ground, Piton said, "Let's go," and ran for his car.

Piton drove to where he had seen the man scale the fence and caught up with him not far away. The fortyish-looking man, wearing soiled trousers, was just starting to put on his shirt when he caught sight of the border patrol agent. He paused, looking all around, frantically putting his arms through the shirt sleeves, he bolted toward a gap between two chain-link fences.

Piton pursued, getting caught briefly between the two fences. By the time he got through the narrow space, the man had climbed another fence and was making his way toward downtown Laredo.

Piton stopped and turned around.

"I could probably be running after him all day," he said.

Back in the car, he drove downtown to see if he could find the alien on the street.

"He knows we're after him," Piton said. "He could go anywhere he wants to hide — a church, a store — and just stay low for a few minutes."

Piton continued his futile search. Meanwhile, some other agents patrolling down river reported action — five aliens spotted near the mouth of a large creek. A couple were in custody, but the rest were at large. Piton joined the hunt.

He drove over dusty roads in an old barrio near downtown. Getting out of the car, he climbed a mesquite tree to scan the river, but saw nothing. He continued to patrol.

He crossed a creek and saw two agents stop on the bridge to talk to a young man matching the description of one of the aliens.

The young man produced papers and the agents moved on.

Piton searched the creek. He doubled back and continued the search. A few minutes later, agent Pedro Bustamante pulled up in an unmarked sedan with a handcuffed young Mexican man in the back seat.

A couple more aliens were reported down at the river. Bustamante put his prisoner in the back of Piton's patrol car, which had a barrier screen between front and back seats, and rolled the window down a crack for air.

Then the two agents went down to search the riverbank.

Bustamante led the way down a hill and into some dense brush. Footprints from many feet marked the dirt.

Bustamante whispered some orders, pointed ahead and he and Piton rushed through the thick foliage to discover 20 aliens on the bank.

The agents shouted orders in Spanish for all to sit down and stay. About 13 did. The rest scampered into the jungle-thick brush. Piton pursued while Bustamante stayed, using his walkie-talkie to alert nearby agents: "Send help."

The thrashing of people running through the brush could be heard by the aliens and Bustamante. Two agents joined the search.

A Border Patrol airplane was now flying above.

Piton came back and watched the prisoners who sat staring sadly ahead. Piton tried to ease the tension by making small talk and cracking a few jokes.

Of the 12 men and three women under his guard, three were from El Salvador, two were from Honduras and the rest were Mexican citizens.

One of the Salvadoran women began to sob. The Salvadorans would be detained for weeks, perhaps months, and would then likely be sent back to their war-torn homeland.

Two men appeared out of the brush. The Salvadorans, companions of the others had turned themselves in. The Salvadoran woman stopped crying and began to laugh.

The Diary of Anne Frank tells of a girl who had courage and hope. She was killed in a Nazi concentration camp. As Anne and her Jewish parents heard the Gestapo breaking down the door of their attic hiding place, her father said, "For the last two years we have lived in fear; now we can live in hope."

We Will probably never face death because of our belief in God. But we are challenged to live in hope.

You too can live in hope. Discover how with us.

OLD MEMORIES

Daddy always shined our shoes on Saturday night. Memories of Sunday mornings at home ... the smell of shoe polish and frying bacon — and a sense of expectancy

Sis and I would help get breakfast while Mother pared potatoes and prepared the roast. With dinner in the oven and breakfast dishes done, we'd dress in our best clothes and our freshly-shined shoes and leave for church, as the bells around the corner called their faithful home.

How grateful I am to my parents for making Sunday church-going a habit! The God they taught me to love and worship has been my refuge and strength throughout my life.

Attend your church or synagogue regularly and take your children with you. It is the most important heritage you can give them.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

Meeting of Parish workers set

The monthly meeting of Parish Workers of Grace Lutheran Church will be held at 8 p.m. Tuesday at 2601 Wydewood Drive.

Ed Mycock will speak on stewardship as an area of organized church work. Gertrude Polzzien is co-hostess along with Pam Hughes. The closing prayer will be given by Denise Burns. All interested parties are invited to attend.

The Lutheran Women's Missionary League Fall Rally will be held in Fort Stockton Sunday. All women interested in attending are invited to do so. Cars will leave the church parking lot no later than 1 p.m. The Rev. Vic Willmann of Grace Lutheran will lead a Bible study "Walking With the Lord" and show slides of his Holy Land trip.

Parish Workers is a member of the International Lutheran Women's Auxiliary of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod. Its purpose is to develop and maintain a greater mission consciousness among the women of the synod and to fulfill a role in Christ's mission to the whole group.

Fellowship luncheon scheduled

A Women's Fellowship Luncheon, sponsored by the Presbyterian Women of First Presbyterian Church, is set for noon Wednesday in the church's fellowship hall, 800 W. Texas Ave.

The program on "Cruises" will be presented by Mrs. Courtney Cowden from Envoye Travel. All women's groups of Presbyterian churches in Midland are invited to attend. Cost for the lunch is $3.50. A nursery will be provided.

September marked the beginning of a new year for Presbyterian Women at the First Presbyterian Church.

The officers for the year are Mrs. Richard Booth, president; Mrs. Jack McCall, first vice president; Mrs. David Grimes, second vice president; Mrs. Barry Beal, secretary; Mrs. Brandon Buchanan, historian; Mrs. William Robinson, personal faith and family life chairman; Mrs. Leon Roe, Christian community action chairman; Mrs. Raymond Doss, ecumenical mission and relations chairman; and Mrs. Russell Ramsland, leadership and resources chairman.

Hollowell Church hosting revival

Hollowell United Methodist Church, 400 S. Marshall St., is hosting a revival at 7 p.m. Sunday through Wednesday.

The theme for the revival is "Offer Them Christ." Evangelist is the Rev. Cornelius Betz Jr. of New Orleans, La. Betz last spoke in Midland this spring.

Hollowell's pastor, the Rev. Hadley R. Edwards, invites the public to attend.

Official to celebrate for St. Paul

The Rev. Jean Pierre Meshew, archdeacon of the Diocese of the Southwest of the American Anglican Church, will celebrate Holy Communion for St. Paul's American Episcopal Church at 10 a.m. Sunday.

Services are held in the chapel of Ellis Funeral Home. The 1928 Book of Common Prayer is used by the congregation for all services.

Gospel men to hold convention

The Midland and Odessa chapters of Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship International will be holding their 1984 convention at the Midland Hilton Nov. 8-10.

The public is invited to attend. For reservations call Leroy Linney, 1-756-3688, or Pete Petri, 686-0893.

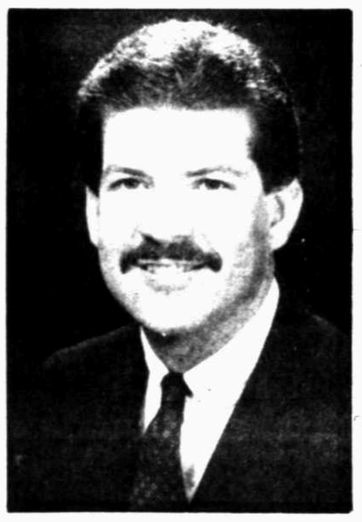
Church names new associate minister

Gary E. Groves has assumed the post of associate minister of Memorial Christian Church, Disciples of Christ. He will serve as minister of education with a concentration on Christian education, evangelism and membership development.



Gary E. Groves

A member of Memorial for a number of years, Groves received his bachelor of science in secondary education from Texas Christian University, graduating magna cum laude in 1976. He is a graduate of Alameda High School, Denver, Colo.

He moved to Midland when he graduated from TCU and went to work as product manager for Swift and Company for three years and senior audit accountant for Geo-Search Corp. for five years.

During the past 10 years, he has at Memorial served two three-year terms as deacon and member of the official board and was serving as an elder until being appointed to the staff. He also has served as chairman of the evangelism, membership and worship committees, co-chairman of the stewardship campaign, co-chairman of the church's Christmas in April committee and education committee member. In addition, he has been a member of the church choir and young adult Sunday school teacher.

Groves is active with the United Way of Midland and chairman of allocations panel II.

He and his wife Vickie have a two-year-old daughter, Jenna Lauren.

Film shows conviction of Moon as threat

NEW YORK (AP) — In a 30-minute film being shown to groups around the country, a succession of theologians, Congressmen and lawyers contend that the conviction of the Rev. Sun Myung Moon poses a general threat to religious rights in this country.

"We're trying to awaken other religious leaders to that threat," says Mose Durst, president of the Unification Church.

About 40 religious groups had joined in an unsuccessful appeal for a Supreme Court review. In the film, put together for the church by a California public relations firm, various church leaders and lawyers say the conviction denied the right of a church to determine its own internal financial affairs.

Aging can't be depicted

ZION, Ill. (AP) — No amount of clinical, sociological or other data can ever depict the "interior drama of aging," Lutheran theologian Joseph Sitler of Chicago told a symposium on aging.

"The internal drama of aging can never be directly known but must be carefully intuited ... It is pathetic ... It is not solvable, but it is not without joy or hope."

Prayers of nuns make a difference

By the Los Angeles Times-Washington Post News Service

WASHINGTON — An ancient melody fills the small stone chapel at Baltimore's Carmelite monastery as 18 cloistered nuns conclude their evening prayers with the haunting verse they chant 10 times a day:

As it was in the beginning, is now, and ever shall be, world without end, Amen.

The sisters genuflect before the altar, file silently down a narrow hall, enter a sparsely furnished recreation room and switch on the 7 o'clock news.

Television is one of the many changes that have come to the Carmelite Sisters of Baltimore, the oldest community of Roman Catholic nuns in the United States. Since they rarely venture outside the monastery walls, the sisters consider television important to their vocation.

"We need to learn what's happening in the world so we know what to pray for," says Sister Robin Stratton, who has been in the order 23 years. "We have faith that our prayers make a difference."

The Baltimore Carmelites are among the nearly 4,000 nuns in America who have remained in the cloister while the vast majority of their sisters have increasingly ventured into the world. These cloistered groups — called contemplatives — have increased in membership in the past decade, while the active groups have declined.

IN THE 20 YEARS since Vatican II directed religious orders to rejuvenate their communities, the Carmelites moved "from a 16th-century life to a 20th-century life," says Prioress Patricia Scanlan, 51, the head of the Baltimore community. "The major way we changed was to let the world in to us more — through television, telephone, visitors. Carmelites believe that each of us is called by Christ to search the depths of divine intimacy in solitary prayer."

In today's complex world this simple life has great appeal, says Sister Annamae Dannes, 42, a Cleveland Carmelite who is president of the Association of Contemplative Sisters. "Our numbers are increasing, I feel, because people today are seeking deeper meaning in their lives.

"The women coming to us now are much older than they were in the past, and most communities require them to have college or work experience, so they're making a well-informed choice. Those of us called to contemplative life feel that we touch millions of people through our prayer, which is quite different from the perception of helplessness so many people experience today."

Compared with most of the 66 other Carmelite communities in the United States, says Dannes, the Baltimore nuns are "pretty with it. They're one of the more renewed."

ABOUT A DOZEN women write or call each month to ask about joining the Baltimore community. Like many contemporary contemplatives, this community requires prospective members to take psychological tests.

"Many people think this life would be a great escape," says Scanlan. "But what you can't escape from here is yourself.

"We want to make sure people who come to us are not running away from the world, but moving towards the community."

"The basic tension for all of us in contemplative life," says Sister Colette Ackerman, 41, is the pull between the desire to seek God's assistance through prayer and to pitch in and assist humanity personally.

"I think we all occasionally want to go out and do something about the problems of the world," she says. "Like everyone, we have good days and bad, times when you just go through the motions of prayer. But it all comes back to faith."

"SOMETIMES YOU wonder what it would be like to be a wife and a mother," says Stratton, 43. "But every choice means leaving something behind, and had I chosen the married state I would not have experienced this life. I fought (the call) for a while. Who of us didn't? But I know that something in me answers to building a relationship with God and these people. ..."

While the nuns don't go outside to help people, Stratton says, she says, "we do get actively involved with the people who come to us." Sisters answer the phone around the clock — most calls are from people seeking the nuns' prayers.

Roberts' son moving up in empire

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — At the beginning of his television program, Richard Roberts, like many other talk show hosts, bounces out from behind a curtain and launches into an upbeat song when introduced.

However, unlike the typical host, Roberts sings inspirational songs. Instead of interviewing a guest about his or her latest movie, Roberts questions his guests about their religious experiences.

With the fall debut of the daily Richard Roberts Show, Roberts is making his first attempt at hosting a show in the medium that launched his father, evangelist Oral Roberts, into prominence.

For years, Roberts has appeared on his father's weekly television programs — singing and expanding on the religious doctrine preached by his father. In recent years, he also has served as executive producer.

The hour-long Richard Roberts Show is broadcast live from television studios in the Mabee Center, located on the campus of Oral Roberts University. The center also contains a sports arena.

Roberts tells the viewers of his show that its purpose is to "encourage, entertain, inform and help them find answers to the problems they face daily."

Except for brief musical interludes provided by a 14-member band and a group called the Oral Roberts Singers, Roberts is on camera for most of the program. He is assisted on the show by his wife, Lindsey.

Immaculately dressed, Roberts wanders around the huge set either to sit on a sofa and talk to his wife about letters from viewers asking for prayers, or circulates among the audience.

In the audience, he seeks reports from "real people with miracle stories on physical, emotional, spiritual and financial problems they have overcome through prayers."

During a recent show, Roberts combined the real people stories with another segment of the show he calls "news updates" to form a near 15-minute promotion of Oral Roberts' City of Faith Medical Center which opened in 1981.

The hospital has had finanical problems in recent months because of a lack of patients. Roberts talked of a number of hospital promotions and touted a new hospital policy of offering free treatment to the poor.

Roberts, in keeping with the recent emergence of his healing ministry, also prays for viewers who call a bank of telephones located on the show's set.

Like his father, Roberts has refused to be interviewed by the media in recent months, and recently declined to talk about the show sponsored by the Oral Roberts Evangelistic Association.

However, the producer of the show, Harry Salem, said the idea of the program came from the son.

"The idea resulted from Richard receiving word from a Chicago man who said he was delivered from drug addiction while watching Oral Roberts' Sunday show," Salem said. "He decided if that was what the show was doing, why should the viewer have to wait seven days to be helped by the ministry."

The cost of doing the show has not been determined, Salem said. He said because the show is produced in house, using the same technical people who produce the Oral Roberts shows, a budget has not yet been developed.

Earlier this year, Oral Roberts revealed that about $15 million a year is spent producing television and radio shows for his ministry.

During his show, Roberts makes pitches for contributions from viewers, asking for $100 first and then for lesser amounts. After the show, collection baskets are passed among the audience.

Currently the show is on about 80 television stations across the country, according to Salem, with more added weekly.

The show has raised questions on when Oral Roberts will step down from the leadership of the evangelistic association to allow his son to take over.

University home to many Nobel winners

By JERRY SCHWARTZ

NEW YORK (AP) — In the eclipsing shadows of the nation's great universities — the Harvards, the Stanfords, the Ohio States — Rockefeller University and its 100 students are easily overlooked.

But when the Nobel Prizes are awarded, the spotlight often shines on Rockefeller U. On Wednesday, R. Bruce Merrifield won the 1984 Nobel Prize for chemistry; he is the 17th Nobel laureate from Rockefeller University.

Rockefeller University was the place where DNA was first identified, where the malaria parasite was first grown in a lab, where the first cancer virus was found. Today, RU scientists seek replacements for laboratory animals, develop drugs to treat infantile jaundice and study cancer-killing cells.

It is "the most exclusive university in the world," said Town and Country magazine, "famed and respected to the point of awe within the international scientific community."

"It's a marvelous place to be," agrees Dr. Purnell W. Choppin, virologist, professor and vice president of the university.

Most important is the university's structure — a fluid, dynamic organization that gives brilliant scientists room to operate. There are no departments, divisions or schools at Rockefeller University, only 55 teams of 20 scientists, each working under the direction of a single leader.

There are no undergraduates either, only graduate students who play an important part in the university's research.

But other factors also play a part in the university's success. John D. Rockefeller established it in 1901 as the nation's first biomedical institute, giving the institution a head start that it never has relinquished.

Frederick T. Gates, Rockefeller's philanthropic adviser, had urged the formation of a medical institute; after three years, his boss agreed. He was influenced by the death of his first grandchild, who succumbed to scarlet fever, a disease that mystified doctors of the time.

By 1906, the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research had moved to its permanent home, 13 acres of land at 66th Street and the East River.

By 1910 it had its own 30-bed hospital. By 1912, it had its first Nobel laureate, Alexis Carrel, honored for his work in suturing blood vessels, blood transfusion and organ transplants.

By the 1920s, the institute was famous. From it, Sinclair Lewis drew inspiration for "Arrowsmith," his story of an idealistic scientist.

The institute's work was conducted by members, each of them leading a team of researchers. There was little bureaucracy, and extraordinary flexibility. Scientists were encouraged to follow the trail, wherever it led them.

The name changed to Rockefeller University in 1965, though the institution had started to award graduate degrees 11 years before. At any given time, there are about 100 students on campus; they pay no tuition and attend almost no classes — almost all of their work is research.

The structure has changed very little. Professors, not members, now head the laboratory teams. There is no physics or biology department. Each laboratory can cross those boundaries in pursuit of its objective, and can use other teams as a resource.

"There are certain styles and kinds of work that couldn't be done otherwise," said Dr. Joshua Lederberg, president of the university and himself the co-winner of the 1958 Nobel Prize for work in biomedical genetics.

For example, Choppin said his lab, in ascribing actions to different parts of viruses, had asked a question: Could the actions of a part of a virus be negated with the help of a similar part that could be synthesized?

For help, Choppin turned to Merrifield, who won his Nobel prize for his work in synthesizing peptides, building blocks for proteins. Merrifield's lab trained one of Choppin's research assistants in the technique; that viral fragment was synthesized, and the experiment worked.

There is pressure on scientists to produce at Rockefeller University, but most of the pressure is self-imposed, said Lederberg.

Merrifield gave credit to D. Wayne Wooley, his lab director, for allowing him the time he needed to accomplish his Nobel-prizewinning work.

"For three years I worked on this and had no results, no publications, and he stood behind me and supported me," he said. "There are places where you simply can't spend three years and do nothing. Here, it was possible."

Most scientists stay for life when they are awarded professorships. Choppin said he knew of only four who left, and two of them returned. Students do leave, to blaze trails elsewhere; of 443 graduates, 116 are full professors at other schools, 30 are department heads, and two have won Nobel Prizes.

Women outnumber men in American universities

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Census Bureau says women now outnumber men at American universities, having accounted for much of the increase in college enrollment over the past 10 years.

By October 1982, women accounted for about 52 percent of all college students, according to a new Census study, with the biggest jumps among women in the 25-to-34 age bracket and those attending two-year colleges.

In a related report, the National Science Foundation disclosed that its survey of graduate schools in 1983 showed that women collected one-fourth of the doctoral degrees in science and engineering — nearly double their rate of a decade earlier.

The Census study counted 10.9 million students aged 14 to 34 in colleges and universities in 1982, up nearly 3 million from a decade earlier. About four-fifths of that increase was accounted for by the increase in female enrollment, it said.

And 44 percent of the increase came among women age 25 or older.

The bureau counted 5.5 million women and 5.4 million men aged 14 to 34 enrolled in colleges. There were 4.6 million women and 4.4 million men undergraduates, while in graduate studies men slightly outnumbered women. The small number of people over age 34 enrolled in colleges and universities is about evenly divided between men and women.

By comparison, in 1972 there were 4.8 million men aged 14 to 34 enrolled in colleges and universities and and 3.5 million women.

Couple settles thorny problem

CROFTON, Md. (AP) — Damon and Sally Tarquinio have worked out a rather thorny visitation matter. They'll be able to drop in on their rose bushes and the other greenery in their garden as a result of an agreement reached by lawyers.

The deal permits the Tarquinios to visit their begonias, rose bushes and evergreens for two hours on Sunday mornings and puts on the back burner a dispute with neighbors over where their property line runs.

Lawyers representing the Tarquinios and their neighbors, Mark and Kimberly Lamb, reached the temporary agreement, which stands until the couples or a jury resolve the thorny dispute.

It allows the Tarquinios to tend their garden from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. on Sundays. In cases of inclement weather, the two parties agreed to "be flexible on arranging other times." The Tarquinios will be allowed into their neighbor's yard through a gate on the side yard, where a fence is to be built.

The issue arose in August when the fence was moved toward the Tarquinios' house after the home builder told their neighbors that the original fence line was incorrect.

Reagan narrows options for reducing budget deficits

By SALLY JACOBSEN

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, dogged in an election year by the giant federal budget deficits, has narrowed his options for reducing the red ink in a second term by putting off-limits not only tax hikes but also changes in the Social Security program.

Combined with his past push for a military buildup, the president has in effect scrapped key recommendations a variety of analysts and business organizations have offered for paring the budget deficits.

"He's certainly cut his latitude," said Thomas Thomson, chief economist at San Francisco's Crocker National Bank. Agreed forecaster Donald Ratajczak of Georgia State University, "He doesn't have much room to play."

Walter Mondale, the Democratic presidential challenger, has, too, put Social Security off limits in his budget-cutting proposals. But, unlike the president, he has said he would raise taxes to bring in more federal revenue and thus trim the red ink.

Mondale has also said the deficits are so big and so dangerous that Reagan himself would have to raise taxes if re-elected, no matter what he says during the campaign.

Pressed on the matter, Reagan has said he would consider a new tax increase as a "last resort" if deficits persisted even after government spending was cut as low as it could go and after the economic recovery had raised revenue as high as possible. But he said in the Oct. 7 debate, "I don't foresee those things happening, so I say with great confidence I'm not going to go for a tax."

The president is counting on strong economic growth and much lower interest rates to go a long way toward washing away the red ink that reached some $175 billion in the fiscal year that ended on Sept. 30. It had hit a record $195.4 billion in 1983.

The Congressional Budget Office, a non-partisan research group, estimates the deficit will reach $263 billion in 1989 without any trims.

Thomson criticized the administration's economic assumptions of fast growth and low interest rates as "extremely heroic." And Ratajczak said new government reports pointing to a much slower economic pace indicate "relying on growth won't do it."

But economist Edward Yardeni of Prudential-Bache Securities said, "It deserves a shot." And Jack Albertine, president of the 100-member American Business Conference, thinks there's a "fighting chance" of solving much of the deficit problem through strong economic performance.

Reagan's election-year stand on tax hikes was not a surprise. He has throughout his term shown a distaste for raising taxes and pressed for reductions in personal income tax rates. He has, though, agreed to substantial tax-increasing packages and offered in 1983 a standby tax-increase plan — which got nowhere on Capitol Hill — specifically to trim the deficits.

But his recent promise not to tamper with Social Security, including its cost-of-living adjustments, caught many analysts off balance. Putting a cap on inflation increases for such programs as Social Security has been a favorite budget-cutting proposal of many outside groups and even members of Congress.

For example, 32 groups representing a broad cross-section of American business and farming last month backed a plan that would freeze for at least a year cost-of-living allowances for Social Security, Medicare and government retirement programs. It would also place a cap on future inflation-adjustment payments.

Social Security takes up a large chunk of the government's budget. In the current fiscal year, it should consume about $190 billion of the total $930 billion spending plan.

Its costs for inflation adjustment represent about three-quarters of cost-of-living payments by the government.

Richard Rahn, chief economist for the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, expressed disappointment that the president has ruled out changes in the cost-of-living adjustments for Social Security. He worried that Reagan was in danger of painting himself into a corner on deficit-reduction measures.

Rahn, though, opposes increases in taxes. Instead, he pushes the view that, with the right prescription, the economy could expand at a robust clip for a number of years. A strong economy means more revenues flowing to the Treasury's coffers and, with less government spending, a smaller deficit, he said.

Presidential candidates warm up for debate on foreign policy

By BARRY SCHWEID

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prediction: Ronald Reagan will accuse Walter Mondale on Sunday night of weakening America.

Prediction: Mondale will accuse Reagan of being incapable of dealing with the Soviet Union.

They filled the air with beanballs on the campaign trail this week as they warmed up for the debate.

It won't be a pretty sight Sunday. There, in living color, will be the president of the United States and the former vice president in most unmannerly performances.

The television audience is guaranteed a good time. It's only 19 days before the election and the race is getting messy.

But listen hard. Behind the accusations and the show-biz touches are real differences between the candidates on how they approach world affairs.

The debate could be critical. If Mondale is to overcome Reagan's big lead in the polls, he will have to catch up soon.

Conversely, if Reagan is to erase the setback he suffered in their first debate over economic policy, Sunday night is his chance to do it.

Rhetoric aside, the candidates have important points to make.

Reagan claims to have rebuilt American defenses after the Carter administration "unilaterally disarmed." He assigns a major share of the blame to Mondale, who was vice president.

On Wednesday, in Palo Alto, Calif., Mondale previewed the reply he is apt to give when the president repeats the charge during their debate. It's that Reagan has "a naive and primitive notion of national strength."

An Analysis

For examples, Mondale offered the stationing of Marines in Lebanon without a clear mission and spending $25 billion on a B-1 bomber that "the Soviets have spent 15 years preparing to shoot down."

Stripping away overstatement on both sides, they are touching on major differences between the two administrations.

President Carter's goal was a 5 percent boost in defense spending annually. Reagan aimed for 7 percent. Major weapons programs were approved in the Carter years, including the controversial MX missile. Others, including the B-1 bomber, were not. In the Reagan administration new weapons programs generally get a green light.

This means U.S. defenses are growing, but so is the budget. Since the Soviets also keep building, it's hard to determine the overall effect on U.S. national security.

On Wednesday, in Glen Ellyn, Ill., Reagan said the SALT II treaty "was legitimizing a continuation of the arms race."

Since Carter signed it in 1979, he said, the Soviets have added 3,800 warheads to their arsenal. He reiterated his contention that Moscow will negotiate arms reductions "if they see that the United States is willing to go as far as it has to go to see that they don't stay ahead of us in weapons — that we're as strong as they are."

Mondale has accused Reagan of opposing every major arms control agreement negotiated over the last 25 years under Democratic and Republican presidents. Criticizing Reagan's program for research on space weapons, he says the president now wants to "turn the heavens into a battleground."

Last Sunday, in a paid radio speech, Mondale summarized Reagan's arms control policy this way: "If there's an arms agreement, oppose it. If there's a dangerous weapon, buy it. If the Pentagon wants a blank check, sign it. If there's a crucial fact, don't learn it..."

Again, the two candidates are engaging in the honorable campaign practice of caricaturing each other's record. But they are also making some valid points.

The 1979 SALT treaty was never advertised as the last word in arms control. It was intended to set the stage for further accords. At the same time, the Soviet Union — and the United States — have added to their nuclear arsenals with little difficulty.
