IRS doesn't advise missing tax deadline

By JIM LUTHER
AP Tax Writer

WASHINGTON — The Internal Revenue Service is embarrassed by computer foulups and angered by allegations that some employees have destroyed tax returns. But, says its boss, don't think it's a good time to skip filing a tax return.

"If they do, they'll do it at their peril," says IRS Commissioner Roscoe L. Egger Jr.

"I am not concerned" that the agency's image as an efficient tax collector might be scarred so badly that people have little fear of getting caught if they cheat or don't file, Egger told a news conference Wednesday.

"This system is doing exactly what we planned it to do," he added, while acknowledging that, due to computer problems, the IRS is far behind schedule in processing individual tax returns.

Through April 5, the most recent figures available, the IRS had received 59.5 million returns but processed only 36.1 million. That is 20 percent behind last year's pace in processing.

Each of the 10 regional service centers is behind schedule.

You have the best chance of getting a quick refund if you live in Ohio or Michigan; you'll have the longest wait if you live in Maryland, Pennsylvania, Delaware or the District of Columbia.

■ Groups demand higher corporate income tax; Related story — Page 2A

With the Monday deadline for filing individual tax returns approaching, Egger made these points:

— Most of the problems with the new $103 million computer system in the service centers have been solved. "By and large, the returns we get by next Monday midnight will be processed on time" — meaning before June 1. If a return is filed by April 15 and any refund is not paid by June 1, the IRS must pay 13 percent annual interest on the refund.

— The agency expects to pay about $200 million interest on past-due refunds this year; it paid $209 million last year and $205 million in 1983. Much of that money goes to businesses that use current-year operating losses to gain refunds of past years' taxes.

— Taxpayers should wait 10 weeks for their refund before calling the IRS to check on it. This year, the agency has a new automated system for tracing refund checks; telephone numbers are listed in the back of the instruction booklet that was mailed with tax forms. Although there are a lot of complaints that the numbers are busy most of the time, the system works, Egger said, "because I've tried it myself."

— "We are on the ragged edge" of barely having enough revenue agents and auditors to get the job done. The agency wants to add 7,500 auditors from 1987 through 1989.

Midland jockey jailed on murder charge

By HALLYE JORDAN
Staff Writer

The 32-year-old Midland jockey accused in the murder of a man whose bruised and broken body was discovered Wednesday afternoon on an oil field road east of town remained today in Midland County Jail on a $50,000 bond.

Terry Edwards Taylor, who alternately stayed at a residence on County Road 125 and CR 1198 and the stables where he worked, was arrested at about 7:30 p.m. Wednesday after a liquor store employee said Taylor had come into the store that afternoon and told him he had killed a man.

The employee of Midland Springs, 4400 N. Big Spring, told Midland County Sheriff's Office investigators he hadn't believed the man until he saw a story on the murder on the 6 p.m. news.

The murder "must have been disturbing" Taylor, said Sheriff Gary Painter. "The guy just kept telling him about it and you don't just go around talking about it."

After receiving the tip, investigators began combing the county for the suspect. A 1977 maroon Thunderbird, believed to have been used in the murder, was found at the residence at CR 125 and CR 1198.

According to the owners of the car, who declined to press charges, Taylor had taken it Tuesday night without their permission. The car was taken to a local garage Wednesday night, where it was processed for blood samples and other evidence.

U.S. policies reviewed in preparation for summit

By BERNARD GWERTZMAN
New York Times News Service

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration has decided to hold a sweeping policy review of its relations with the Soviet Union in preparation for a high-level Soviet-American meeting next month, administration officials said Wednesday.

The officials said that Secretary of State George P. Shultz has asked Ambassador Arthur A. Hartman to return from Moscow to participate in the review, which is to be held over the next two weeks. After the survey, the administration will decide on any new proposals it wants Shultz to put to Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko when they meet in Vienna on May 14, the officials said.

The United States and the Soviet Union formally announced the Shultz-Gromyko meeting Wednesday, but it had been planned for some time. The two men will be in the Austrian capital to take part in the 30th anniversary ceremonies marking the signing of the treaty that ended Austria's post-war occupation status.

On May 21, Malcolm Baldrige, the commerce secretary, is to lead a high-level trade delegation to Moscow for talks of particular importance to the Soviet Union. Kremlin leaders are now deciding which projects to offer to American companies in the five-year economic plan that begins next year.

The first round of the Geneva arms talks are scheduled to end April 23, and Max M. Kampelman, the chief American negotiator, and his top aides will be asked to contribute to the policy review, officials said.

President Reagan, accompanied by Shultz and other senior advisers, will go to West Germany early next month for the annual Western summit meeting of industrialized nations.

American officials said that now that both Reagan and Mikhail S. Gorbachev, the Soviet leader, have signaled an interest in a meeting, the time has come to look at where progress can be made on the issues that are outstanding between the United States and the Soviet Union.

One senior State Department official said there was general agreement within the administration that there should not be a meeting between Reagan and Gorbchev unless the groundwork had been laid for the announcement of some accords during the session.

It is possible, some officials said, that in the absence of such an agenda, the two leaders might meet briefly, as Reagan and Gromyko did last September.

O'Neill sees no major changes in Soviet arms, rights policies

By WILLIAM J. EATON
Los Angeles Times-Washington Post News Service

MOSCOW — Speaker Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., said Wednesday after meeting for nearly four hours with new Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev that the Kremlin desires better U.S.-Soviet relations but that he found no major policy changes regarding arms control, human rights and other issues.

"While many differences were aired, a desire from both sides for better relations between our two nations was underscored time and time again," O'Neilltold a news conference after his meeting with Gorbachev.

O'Neill said Gorbachev indicated during the session, as other Soviet officials did in talks over a three-day period, that the Kremlin wants better relations with the United States and that "real opportunities for expanded trade and cultural contacts" exist.

The Speaker, accompanied by House Republican leader Robert H. Michel of Illinois and two other congressional leaders, spent three hours and 43 minutes with the new Kremlin leader, who has been in office only one month.

"There's no question that (Soviet-American) relationships have been at a pretty low ebb," Michel said. "But as the general secretary (Gorbachev) said: 'We've got to improve that.'" Michel added that Gorbachev said he eventually would meet with President Reagan and their summit conference would be a "good omen" for peace.

O'Neill said he was "tremendously impressed" by Gorbachev's talents as an advocate, adding the Soviet leader would have been an excellent trial lawyer.

Absentee voting for runoff to begin

By JULIE HILLRICHS
Staff Writer

Absentee voting in the April 27 runoff election for Place 7 on the Midland Independent School District Board of Trustees will begin at 8 a.m. Monday at the Midland County Elections Office.

The runoff between Betsy Robinson and Geoffrey Barnett resulted when neither candidate could capture 50.1 percent of the total votes cast in the April 6 election.

A breakdown of total votes from the April 6 election reported Barnett with 2,111 votes or 45.6 percent while Mrs. Robinson received 1,515 votes or 32.7 percent.

A third candidate, Mike Butler, was eliminated from the race after receiving 1,001 votes or 21.6 percent.

A product of MISD, Barnett is a certified public accountant with Arthur Andersen and Associates. He is a 1970 graduate of Midland High School and received a bachelor of business administration degree in accounting from the University of Texas at Austin.

His opponent, Mrs. Robinson, taught junior high and high school students in Michigan, adult education to Air Force personnel in Texas; and served as a substitute teacher in Midland for several years.

In addition, she has been involved in the PTA's, classroom volunteers and played an active role in promoting change in the high school grading policy.

Both candidates expressed delight in the runoff election, with Barnett noting, "I'm just tickled to death to be a candidate...I just hope people get out and vote."

Mrs. Robinson said, "I'm gonna go for it."

According to Janeice Builta, Midland County Elections Administrator, persons may vote absentee from 8 a.m.-5 p.m. through April 23 at the Midland County Elections Office, 709 W. Washington Ave.

Trade debate may be taking bigoted turn

By JOAN MOWER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — "They are sucking the world dry," complained the Republican senator from Missouri, John Danforth.

"In category after category they are slicing us neatly and thinly off like a piece of sashimi, which they so elegantly do," said Sen. John Heinz, R-Pa.

"This is only the first shot," said Rep. Beryl Anthony Jr., D-Ark., "After this passes, I think we are going to have to load the gun and put some real bullets in it."

In the halls of Congress and commerce, the debate over trade with Japan has recently taken a harsh rhetorical turn, and some Japanese-Americans think they are hearing undertones of bigotry in the discussion.

Rep. Norman Mineta, D-Calif., who as a child was one of 110,000 people of Japanese descent interned in relocation camps during World War II, notes that in times of economic pressure many groups have been made scapegoats. It has happened to Jews, Roman Catholics, Irish immigrants, blacks, Hispanics.

"Any criticism against Japan cannot dip into racial stereotypes or epithets," says Mineta. "I think I have noticed some of that."

Sen. Spark Matsunaga, D-Hawaii, one of four Americans of Japanese descent serving in Congress, says there is "so much emotionalism" in the trade debate that the rhetoric sometimes reminds him of the pre-Pearl Harbor atmosphere in the United States.

Other Japanese-Americans disagree and the San Francisco-based Japanese Americans Citizens League said it has not received any information about overt racist acts stemming from trade frictions.

Almost everyone acknowledges that there's been tough talk in recent days by American legislators and government and business leaders frustrated by the $37 billion trade gap betweeen the United States and Japan and by Japan's reluctance to open its markets.

But Floyd Shimomura, a law professor at the University of California at Davis, said some politicians tap into latent anti-Japanese fears when they draw analogies between a trade war and World War II.

Congress, he said, may be selling protectionist legislation to the American public by "touching that kind of prejudice that is dormant."

"Now you have members of Congress talking like steelworkers," he said.

The issue broke into the open last month when Rep. Robert Matsui, D-Calif., criticized Chrysler Corp. Chairman Lee A. Iacocca for a speech Iacocca gave to a conference of Democratic members of Congress. Matsui, who is of Japanese descent, said the speech contained a "great tinge of racism."

Iacocca, among other things, used the word "sayonara" — Japanese for "goodbye" — in a way the Japanese find offensive, Matsui said.

The Chrysler chief also said, "I'm no communist, folks, but it's not Russia that's laying waste to my business and to most of the rest of business in this country. It's Japan, our friend. While we stack the missiles up in the front yard, all aimed at our enemy, our friend is taking over the backyard."

Iacocca later wrote Matsui, saying he was sorry the speech had been misunderstood.

There are other examples that ring alarms to those sensitive to any suggestion of ethnic slur:

— Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., during a Senate committee hearing March 20 said of the Japanese that they "love all those bowings — they have been doing that for 25 years and getting away with it."

— Heinz at a March 8 hearing referred to Japanese eating habits in making his point. When the "Japanese get their little fork into us — or chopsticks ... they really do stick it to us," he said.

— Rep. Richard T. Schulze, R-Pa., entered into the Congressional Record a letter he had received from a correspondent in London, England. The letter talked of the Japanese negotiating technique: "The Japs even have a word for it called 'harage' ... which basically means saying one thing when you really mean the opposite."

Without exception, Japanese-Americans said they are sensitive to any assumptions they would automatically side with Japan in a dispute.

U.S. trade imbalance growing, Bentsen says

By KATHRYN BAKER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — While the U.S. focused on a worrisome trade deficit with other major industrialized nations, its trade imbalance with developing countries increased in three years by $23.5 billion, U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen said.

Bentsen, chairman of the Senate Democratic Working Group on Trade Policy and a member of the Senate Finance Committee, cited tables supplied by the Library of Congress showing that the U.S. trade deficit with developing countries, not including OPEC nations, was $6 billion in 1981 but had risen to $29.5 billion in 1984.

"The study demonstrates clearly that the U.S. market is far more open to the imports of developing nations than the markets of countries like Japan," Bentsen said Wednesday.

The U.S. trade deficit with Japan was $36.8 billion last year.

He said Japan, which is about half the size of the United States, buys less than one-third of what the United States does from Brazil, about one-ninth of what the United States does from Mexico and about one-tenth of what the United States buys from Hong Kong.

In 1983, the U.S. bought $29 billion more from the developing nations than they bought from the United States, Bentsen said. The same year, he said, Japan sold $13 billion more to the developing nations than it bought from them.

"Worse than that, though," Bentsen said, "the larger developing countries seem to be following Japan's example of managed trade rather than our example of free trade. More and more, these countries are blocking our exports into their markets while expanding their imports to our market."

Bentsen, D-Texas, has criticized the Reagan administration for what he says is an absence of trade policy.

Vice President George Bush told a group of bankers on Tuesday that the trade deficit is, in part, a by-product of U.S. prosperity and the strong dollar.

He said the United States' share of world exports has remained almost constant, but its purchases of other nations' goods have increased.

Higher corporate tax demanded

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unions, consumer groups, a church and older Americans are asking the public to demand higher taxes on U.S. corporations.

Their target is $90 billion worth of what they call "tax loopholes" — special provisions in the law that reward businesses for increasing investment in plant and equipment.

"While average American families are paying higher taxes than ever before, many giant corporations are paying nothing — in fact, they are actually making money off the tax system," Lane Kirkland, president of the AFL-CIO, said Wednesday in endorsing a new organization called Citizens Organized to Restore an Effective Corporate Tax.

Next Monday, the deadline for individuals to file their tax returns, the coalition will circulate petitions around Post Offices in at least 40 cities, looking for signatures to influence Congress.

"With a deficit of $200 billion each year, we cannot afford a tax code which is giving away $90 billion to $100 billion in corporate tax subsidies this year alone," John Claybrook, president of the Public Citizen lobbying group, told a news conference where the drive was announced. "The inequities will not be removed without grass-roots pressure on Congress to enact fair tax laws."

For ammunition, the group is citing a 1984 study by the labor-financed Citizens for Tax Justice, which found that 128 of 250 major profitable corporations that it surveyed paid no federal income tax in at least one of the three years from 1981 through 1983. In addition, many received refunds of taxes paid in previous years.

Those companies wiped out their federal tax burden by paying taxes to the states or to foreign countries and by claiming tax breaks designed as incentives for building plants and buying equipment. One of those incentives — accelerated depreciation — was liberalized by President Reagan's tax cut enacted in 1981; another, the investment credit, has been in effect most of the time since 1962.

The coalition is seeking repeal of those incentives and others that are targeted to selected industries. A tax-overhaul plan recommended last year by the Treasury Department also calls for repeal of some of the same provisions.

Other members of the coalition include the United Church of Christ, Consumer Federation of America, Environmental Action, several unions and the National Council of Senior Citizens.

"Corporate loopholes now cost far more than all federal programs for the poor," says the petition.

IRS service centers behind last year's pace

WASHINGTON (AP) — Because of computer problems, each of the 10 Internal Revenue Service centers is behind last year's pace in processing tax returns.

Here, according to the IRS, is how the centers were operating as of April 5, compared to the same period a year ago. The first column of figures shows what percentage of returns filed at this time a year ago had been processed; the second column, the percentage processed this year. The third column shows this year's backlog of unprocessed returns in millions.

Center	1984	1985	Backlog
Andover	79.3	66.6	1.9
Atlanta	78.8	62.5	2.8
Austin	83.7	65.9	2.6

U.S. Median Age Up

Nation's median age hits its highest point

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — America's median age now tops 31 years, the highest average in the nation's history, and the Census Bureau predicts the population will continue growing older.

The median age of the U.S. population climbed to a record 31.2 years as of last July 1, the bureau reported, up from 30.9 a year earlier. That means half of all Americans are older than 31.2 years, and half younger.

The median age will continue rising, the bureau says, as the huge post-war baby boom generation enters its middle years, accompanied by improvements in medical care which are helping larger numbers of the very old stay alive.

At the same time, the small "baby bust" generation of the late 1960s and 1970s did not provide enough youngsters to balance their predecessors and hold down the median age of the nation.

"The median age has increased each year since 1971, when it was 27.9 years. This aging trend is expected to continue as the early baby boom generations head toward middle age," said the study.

Earlier studies projected that the nation's median age will climb to 33 by 1990 and continue rising to 39.3 by the year 2020.

The nation first edged past the benchmark of 30 in 1950, when the median age climbed to 30.2, as small numbers of births during the Depression and World War II failed to balance aging earlier generations.

However, the jump in new babies after the war pulled the median age down to 27.9 by 1967. It began rising steadily again in 1972 after moving erratically for a few years, and hit 30 again in 1980.

The high mark of 30.2 set in 1950 was finally topped in 1981 when the median edged to 30.3.

Leading the way in setting the 1984 record were sharp increases in the number of middle-aged Americans and of the very old.

While the nation's population grew 4.2 percent between 1980 and 1984, the 35-to-44 age group increased a whopping 19.5 percent.

And the number of Americans aged 85 and over was close behind with a 19.4 percent increase.

"Both of these age groups will continue to grow for some time. The growth of the 35-to-44 age group will be especially pronounced as the smaller pre-World War II and World War II birth cohorts are increasingly replaced by the much larger post-World War II" group, the study continued.

Those large increases were followed by an 11.5 percent jump for the 75-to-84 age group, and growth of 10.3 percent among people aged 25-to-34.

On the other hand, the number of people aged 14-to-17 fell by 9.5 percent and the age 5-to-13 population dropped by 3.2 percent, reflecting the baby bust of the late 1960s and 1970s when delayed marriage and increased attention to education and careers caused many women to delay childbearing.

There was an increase in the under 5 age group, but the report noted that this "reflected larger numbers of women in the childbearing ages rather than an increase in fertility rates."

BODY

Officers found that Taylor reportedly had left the stables on CR 120 E at 6 p.m. with the owner in a blue pickup. An "attempt to locate" the vehicle was transmitted to law enforcement officers over police radios before Sgt. Steve Mild notified the sheriff's office that Taylor had returned to the stables at about 7:20 p.m.

Taylor was apprehended without incident and "a suitcase full of his clothes and belongings" was found at the stables, Painter said.

Taylor gave investigators a statement after he was arraigned on murder charges at 9:38 p.m. Wednesday by Justice of the Peace Robert Pine.

According to Painter, the first homicide of the year in Midland stemmed from "an altercation over a woman."

The body of James Arthur Edwards, 35, found at 12:30 p.m. Wednesday, appeared to have been run over several times, according to the man who discovered him.

The drilling and production supervisor of Felmont Oil Corp. said he found the body of the short-order cook, who lived at 201 S. Jefferson, on a road off County Road 1140 south, east of the tank farm near U.S. Highway 80.

"It looked like he'd been run over three or four times, or maybe two or three," said the 55-year-old man, who asked that his name not be used. "Whoever it was (that killed him) was pretty damn mad."

A puddle of blood was discovered about 55 feet away from the body, and tracks in the dusty road indicated he had been dragged by a car for that distance.

According to Sgt. Monnie Weddell, Edwards apparently had been struck over the head with a bottle of Thunderbird wine and fallen unconsious before he was run over "several times." Green glass was discovered next to the puddle of blood at the scene.

An autopsy performed at 6 p.m. Wednesday by Dr. David Shneidman, Midland pathologist, indicated Edwards had died of "massive head and internal injuries," Painter said. "The actual cause of death was spinal trauma."

Edwards was pronounced dead at the scene by Justice of the Peace Charlie Sprayberry. His body was taken to Midland Memorial Hospital for X-rays before being transferred to Thomas Funeral Home for the autopsy.

Schneidman, who also examined the body at the scene, estimated Edwards had been dead for at least 12 hours before his body was discovered.

A driver's license found on the body led to the victim's identification, according to officers. However, the victim reportedly had a "long list" of prior convictions, mostly for public intoxication, reports said.

In a written statement made at the scene, the drilling and production supervisor said he found the body while going out to Felmont Oil Corp. Tank Farm No. 1 oil lease, where he was painting tank batteries.

The body was lying in the road about 25 feet southwest from the tank battery stairway when discovered, according to the man. "He appeared to have been run over by a four-wheel vehicle several times and I assumed (him) to be dead from an inspection of 8 to 10 feet," the man said in his statement.

The body was clad in black cowboy boots, jeans and a torn shirt, the color of which was indistinguishable because of dust and dried blood.

The man's legs were crossed with the left leg on top when the body was found. "I could swear this (top) leg was broken, but it's hard to tell," the witness said.

"His face was badly mutilated and a portion of the left top skull was peeled back," he said in his statement.

RUNOFF

"That's a shorter period of time," she said. "But I want to make it clear that everybody can vote in this election."

Mrs. Builta said, "It doesn't make any difference whether they had or had not voted in the April 6 election. They can still vote in it" with a few exceptions.

Eligible voters must have registered 30 days prior to the election in which they wish to vote. Greenwood residents, however, are ineligible due to the district's independent status, she noted.

Despite the less than 11 percent turnout at the polls April 6, Mrs. Builta said she's confident that absentee voting by the 54,806 registered Midland voters will be good.

"We're trying so hard to get everybody to vote," she said, turning to her motto, "Vote as you please, but please vote."

Removal of radar station demanded

By BARRY SCHWEID
AP Diplomatic Writer

QUEENSTOWN, Md. — Reagan administration officials say if the Soviet Union refuses to dismantle a suspicious Siberian radar installation, the United States may consider exceeding limitations on nuclear missiles when a new Trident submarine begins sea trials next fall.

The warning that Soviet retention of the Krasnoyarsk radar was aired at a conference on U.S. arms control policy at the Aspen Institute here on Maryland's Eastern Shore.

American negotiators plan to confront the Soviets about the radar, which many administration officials claim violates the 1972 Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty, in a new round of talks on compliance questions opening today in Geneva.

The talks are being conducted by the Standing Consultative Commission, set up in 1972. They are separate from the negotiations in the Swiss city on limiting offensive nuclear weapons and space-based defense systems.

Former Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger, in a speech here Wednesday night, sharply challenged U.S. strategy in the negotiations and urged the administration to put the "Star Wars" program on the table.

"I see little sign the United States is prepared to negotiate," Schlesinger said. "Change may come later."

He said President Reagan has "fallen in love" with the idea of using futuristic technology to try to shield the United States and its allies from Soviet missiles. Schlesinger said the program would cost $100 billion and would not work.

"For the rest of our lifetime we are going to remain vulnerable to the Soviet Union," he said.

Schlesinger said Star Wars "scares the bejesus out of the Soviets" and they may be prepared to cut back their heavy land-based missiles in exchange for limits on U.S. space efforts.

But, Schlesinger said, the administration is urgingthe Soviets to reduce the offensive missiles the Soviets will want to keep if Star Wars went ahead.

Bill would give community facilities job of providing mental health care

STATE

AUSTIN (AP) — A bill to shift the emphasis on mental health care from state institutions to community facilities has been approved by the Senate, but the sponsor said state schools and hospitals would still have their place in Texas.

Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, mentioned "horror stories about people being completely lost from services." He recalled published reports of Austin State Hospital patients being put on a bus to Houston, with no one there to pick them up.

To prevent such incidents, Brooks said, the bill would give the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation "greater latitude ...to move its money with the client."

He said the bill "would allow the department to contract directly with mental health-mental retardation authorities in the counties and in the regions around the state to provide specific services."

Brooks said, however, "We're not going to close state schools (for the retarded) and state hospitals."

His bill, sent to the House on a 28-0 vote, directs the Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation to complete by Jan. 1, 1986, a long-range care plan for at least six years.

Brooks' bill, to create the Children's Trust Fund to finance programs to prevent child abuse and neglect, was passed to the House on voice vote.

Money for the fund would come from increasing the fee for a marriage license from $7.50 to $25, with $12.50 from each fee going into the fund. The proposed Council on Child Abuse and Neglect, nine members appointed by the governor, would operate the fund.

On another matter, senators on voice vote sent to the governor a House-approved bill that would create the Multi-State Water Resources Commission to represent Texas in its negotiations over water sources with neighboring states and Mexico.

Another bill passed to the House on a 28-0 vote would prohibit colleges from expelling a student for missing classes to observe a religious holy day. "Colleges and universities occasionally schedule exams and other mandatory events on holy days," said Sen. Hector Uribe, D-Brownsville, "and students have to choose between observing the religious holiday or taking the exam or attending class."

His bill would allow students to make up a missed assignment or exam.

What Sen. John Traeger, D-Seguin, called the "bad news bill" — a measure appropriating nearly $9.2 million to pay claims against the state was approved 28-0.

Small plane crashes into apartment building

AP Laserphoto

Arlington firefighters investigate the wreckage of a small plane that crashed into an apartment building Wednesday.

ARLINGTON (AP) — Two men were injured, one critically, when a single-engine plane monitoring rush-hour traffic for several Dallas-Fort Worth radio stations went into a low-altitude spin and plunged into an apartment building.

Kelly Owen Saltsman, 20, of Dallas, employed by Traffic Patrol Broadcasting, worsened to critical condition late Wednesday. The pilot, Curtis Marvin Fink, 21, of Dallas, was in fair condition. Both were in surgery Wednesday night in the intensive care unit of Arlington Memorial Hospital.

Hospital spokeswoman Carlene Ness said Saltsman's optic nerves appeared to have been severed in the crash, which occurred about 5:30 p.m. Wednesday at the two-story Hollandale House Apartments.

"He'll probably be blind," she said.

In addition to the severed optical nerves, Saltsman suffered a broken right leg, a broken pelvis, and internal and head injuries, she said.

Fink suffered head and neck cuts and possible fractures, an injured left elbow, and internal bleeding, Ms. Ness said.

No one was injured on the ground in the crash, police Sgt. Rick Eudy said. The plane broke apart and landed in a courtyard after hitting the building of the complex which is about a mile south of the Six Flags over Texas amusement park.

Rhody Launders, 23, and Ted Feipel, 23, both of Arlington, said they saw the crash. They were painting in apartments about 30 feet away from where the two-seater Cessna 152 went down.

"I looked up because it was so low. The motor sounded all right, but the plane was only about 50 feet high. He did two spins, counterclockwise, then just nosed down into the apartments," Launders said.

Feipel said, "It was the loudest crash I've ever heard. It sounded like a train wreck."

Launders added, "We didn't know what to do. There was gas pouring all over the place. We were afraid it would blow. There were bricks falling off the walls. They were buckled in their seats with nothing covering them."

Launders said he, Feipel and another man carried the two injured men out of the wreckage.

Using the air name of Kelly Owens, Saltsman had been reporting traffic for Traffic Patrol Broadcasting of Dallas since last September, said Gary Jack Vance, a spokesman for the company. He said the firm provides aerial traffic reports during rush-hour traffic for several area radio stations.

Fire Chief Bill Strickland said plane "evidently...came straight down. There's nothing to indicate what took place."

He said damage to the apartment complex was estimated at $45,000, while the plane was estimated to be a $35,000 total loss.

Young mother says she killed son

HOUSTON (AP) — A teen-age mother hinted she suffocated her 8-day-old son because she was under pressure from a divorce, Harris County Constable Dick Moore says.

The woman, age 19, called law enforcement officers Wednesday afternoon and said she had killed the baby with her hands, Moore said.

The woman was taken into custody and charges were pending, Moore said.

When officers arrived at the house, they found the baby in a yellow, plastic car seat on the back porch, Moore said. The baby had been dead about four hours, he said.

White enthusiasitc about Guard training

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White returned home early today from a three-day tour of training exercises involving troops of the Texas National Guard full of enthusiasm for such missions.

White said he remains firmly convinced that the government should send more Spanish-speaking soldiers to the region.

Enroute to Bergstrom Air Force Base late Wednesday night, the governor said he would be glad to send more citizen soldiers to the region.

"That (speaking Spanish) was one of the great advantages our men had," he said of the 420 Texas guardsmen taking part in maneuvers three miles from the Nicaraguan border in southwestern Honduras.

White reflected on the trip after a day in Panama, where he visited citizen soliders from Missouri building a rural road through rough terrain on the Azuelo Peninsula.

The Missouri guardsmen said they enjoy a cordial relationship with the residents of the area.

Guard officials said the 43-kilometer road is being constructed strictly as a training exercise and will be used by the local populace when it is finished.

The guard units at the base camp in Pananma did not interact with the local people the way the predominantly Hispanic Texas contingent did, White said.

"We ought not to send anybody into that area without speaking Spanish," he said. "That's the ultimate extension of friendship: to go in there and speak Spanish."

Members of the Texas guard units in Honduras have twice set up mobile medical units in local villages. They have also taken up a collection to buy a hand pump so villagers can use the wells the Army dug for the Big Pine III war games. During Holy Week, a chaplain from the unit held Mass in nearby hamlets.

"The empathy between the local community and the base camp was incredible," he said.

Gov. Mark White addresses the Texas National Guard units which are in Honduras for the Big Pine III military exercises.

White was equally upbeat about the primary mission of the guard, military preparedness. But he seemed particularly impressed with the goodwill the citizen soldiers were trying to spread.

"You can carry that sabre," he said, "but you don't have to rattle it."

Before leaving for the return trip to Austin Wednesday, White spent the day in a jeep rattling down a dusty road in the remote Azuero Pensinsula southwest of Panama City as the guest of guard units in the Blazing Trails engineering exercises.

A small contingent of Texans will soon join the guard troops in Panama who are finishing the 26-mile road begun last year.

'Protective' employee dies in robbery

DALLAS (AP) — Officers say a diminuitive gas station employee who minded the store as if it were his own may have died simply because he refused to open the cash register to robbers.

Billy Gene Warrington, 33, was found dead of two gunshot wounds to the head at a Texaco self-service station in Sunnyvale near Dallas on March 23.

Two men were in Dallas County jails Wednesday charged with capital murder in Warrington's death. Ralph Scott Marion, 17, and Douglas Sean Hardin, 18, both of Mesquite, were being held on $100,000 bond each, a sheriff's department spokesman said.

Sheriff's department spokesman Jim Ewell said the tragedy is that Warrington may have given his life simply because he refused to open a cash drawer.

The cash register was closed and the store undisturbed when officers arrived, he said, and all that was missing was a package of brownies and a pecan danish worth 99 cents.

"We're saying he resisted" a robbery attempt and was killed, Ewell said. "He was very protective of the station."

Store personnel found $750 hidden in another part of the store about a week after the slaying. They said Warrington often took cash out of the register and hid it in case someone tried to rob the station.

Ewell said after Warrington apparently refused to open the cash drawer, the thieves tried to open it themselves and the register emitted an "electronic beeping sound" designed to indicate a wrong button had been pushed.

The robbers apparently thought it was a burglar alarm and fled.

Fellow employees and customers described Warrington as "quite a character."

"He was always smiling and joking with people, especially regular customers," station attendant Steve Williams said. "He'd open the place up at 6 in the morning and close it at 10 at night."

They said Warrington had a speech impediment and stood only 4-foot-2, but that he refused to let his handicaps interfere with his work. He'd been employed at the service station about a year.

'War on Poverty' relic casualty of new policies

WASHINGTON (AP) — A cornerstone of the Johnson administration's War On Poverty, the Appalachian Regional Commission, is cracking under the weight of the federal deficit and changing attitudes about government's responsibility for economic development.

President Johnson signed the commission into existence 20 years ago, saying the creation of the anti-poverty agency marked "the end of an era of partisan cynicism towards human want and misery."

He praised liberals and conservatives, Democrats and Republicans alike for joining hands to "take up the human challenge of modern Appalachia" — a region of economic despair stretching from Alabama to Canada.

During the two decades since its creation, the Appalachian Regional Commission has funneled $4.9 billion to the poverty-ridden Appalachian regions of 13 states. And its supporters point with pride to the results:

— A 50 percent reduction in the number of Appalachians living in poverty.

— A 50 percent decline in the region's infant mortality rate.

— An increase from 33 percent to 57 percent in the number of Appalachians who have completed high school.

— The construction of nearly 400 health clinics and almost 2,000 miles of highway.

The commission serves a region of more than 20 million people that includes all of West Virginia and parts of Ohio, Alabama, Georgia, Kentucky, Maryland, Mississippi, New York, North Carolina, South Carolina, Pennsylvania, Tennessee and Virginia.

But in 1981 at the request of Congress, the governors of the Appalachian states submitted a report acknowledging the "political realities" of the Reagan administration's fiscal policies. They proposed a five-year program to phase out the commission's health, housing and education programs and an eight-year program to wind up highway construction.

But even though the phase-out program is now in its third year, the commission is "proceeding as if we are very much alive," Executive Director Francis E. Moravitz said in an interview Wednesday. As for the possibility of a congressional reprieve, "no one knows," he added.

The outlook isn't promising, however. The growing federal deficit and the administration's proposed cuts in domestic spending diminish the chances of the commission continuing much longer.

"But the big thing is attitude," Moravitz said. "The president's position is that economic development is a state and local function. That's the political reality."

As a result, the commission is shifting as many resources as possible to complete health, water and vocational training programs in 73 of the 397 counties in the Appalachian region.

"These are the counties that have been left behind," Moravitz said. "These are the most destitute in our region."

The governors of the 13 Appalachian states have reported to Congress that the work of the commission in overcoming the "special problems" of Appalachia is "not complete" and that it is "one program that works."

Moravitz said there is "concern among the governors that, with the program gone, the region will slip back."

Gov. Joe Frank Harris of Georgia voiced those concerns at a recent congressional hearing. He said the commission has had a "very dramatic" impact on Appalachia and that its abrupt termination "would leave a lot of us hanging dry."

Officials still seeking cause of salmonella outbreak

CHICAGO (AP) — Health officials warned people to take precautions to prevent the further spread of a five-state salmonella poisoning outbreak that has affected more than 2,800 people who drank a company's milk.

Inspectors on Wednesday tore apart machinery at Jewel Food Stores' Hillfarm dairy in Melrose Park seeking the origin of the outbreak, said Patricia Larsen, Illinois Department of Public Health spokeswoman.

Jewel closed the dairy Tuesday and pulled all its Hillfarm and Bluebrook milk, cream and cottage cheese from shelves in Iowa, Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan and Indiana in the wake of a second round of afflictions.

Ms. Larsen said the number of cases could rise to 10,000 if people infected by the contaminated milk spread the highly contagious salmonella bacteria, which can linger in a person's system up to five weeks. The disease is not generally considered dangerous to people in good health, although it can be uncomfortable.

"We expect it to continue increasing over the next several weeks" through secondary contagion, she said, urging people to wash their hands after using the bathroom, before eating or preparing food and after changing diapers.

Suspected causes of the 2-week-old outbreak, called the second worst in U.S. history, include ineffective pasteurization, the presence of a heat-resistant salmonella strain or the introduction of the bacteria into the milk after pasteurization, Ms. Larsen said.

Officials of Jewel Companies Inc., the parent of Jewel Food Stores, say sabotage may be behind the outbreak; state officials downplay the possibility.

Judge: Columbia can't yet arrest student protesters

NEW YORK (AP) — A state judge has ordered Columbia University to temporarily call off its plans to arrest students now in their second week of protesting the school's investments in South Africa.

Judge Bruce Wright of the state Supreme Court, New York's trial-level court, signed a temporary injunction late Wednesday in favor of students staging a sit-in outside Hamilton Hall.

The order is effective until Monday, when a hearing will be held to rule on the rights of students barricading the building.

The students and several faculty members have asked the university to divest itself of at least $32 million of investments it has in 27 companies doing business in South Africa. The investments represent about 9 percent of Columbia's portfolio.

"Students and faculty members in this case are not protesting the war in Vietnam or issues out of the hands of the local college trustees — they are protesting the actions of the trustees that are aiding and abetting the oppressive regime in South Africa," said the students' attorney, Jack Lester.

Lawyer and graduate student Randolph Scott-McLaughlin told about 150 students camped in sleeping bags and wrapped in blankets on the steps of the hall — dubbed Mandela Hall by protesters for South African political prisoner Nelson Mandela — that the court had affirmed their rights to free expression.

"Columbia University has been threatening us since Monday night with police arrest, threatening us with brute force. But they can't do it any more," Scott said. "The judge's order barred Columbia University from bringing police on this campus."

University attorney Floyd Abrams said the school could have called in police in the beginning, but was reluctant to use force.

Wright's order asks only that the students not disrupt, interfere, block or hinder any classes or administrators.

The sit-in, organized by the Coalition for a Free South Africa, started a week ago on the steps of Hamilton Hall, on the 17th anniversary of the assassination of the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

In a separate action, Acting Justice Burton Sherman ordered lawyers on both sides to appear Tuesday to present their cases on the university's request for a preliminary injunction forbidding students from continuing to barricade the building, one of the main student hubs on campus.

FDR's hard fight

Friday brings a couple of significant anniversaries, the first marking the 40th anniversary of President Franklin D. Roosevelt's death and the second, the 30th anniversary of the report that pronounced Dr. Jonas E. Salk's anti-polio vaccine safe and effective. The anniversaries are not unrelated.

While today polio has virtually ceased to be a significant health problem in the United States, that wasn't the situation just three decades ago. Roosevelt was probably the most widely publicized victim of the crippling disease, but there were many more. In fact, in the summer of 1916 — the worst year on record — 6,000 Americans died of the polio virus and 27,000 were left paralyzed.

As late as 1954, there were 18,308 cases of paralytic polio reported in the United States by the U.S. Centers for Disease Control. Scientific research for a polio vaccine was moving slowly when in 1938 Roosevelt established the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

It wasn't until the early 1950s when Salk developed an injectible vaccine that proved effective and the year after the vaccine was approved for widespread use, the number of cases of paralytic polio was reduced by almost half.

Another polio breakthrough came with the 1961-62 introduction of an oral vaccine developed by Dr. Albert B. Sabin. The Sabin vaccine was easier to administer and it provided immunity rapidly.

The result is evident in the national polio statistics. By the 1980s, incidence of paralytic polio in the United States had been reduced to 10 cases or less each year. Ironically most of those cases involve adults who have been exposed to youngsters receiving the live-virus Sabin vaccine. Although it provides the youngsters almost immediate long-lasting immunity, they can spread the virus.

Now research efforts are under way to develop a more potent version of the safe Salk vaccine, which is manufactured from a dead virus, for use by adults who may still be susceptible to the disease.

The conquering of polio is another feather in the cap of modern medical science. The disease, of course, will always be remembered. Many Americans still carry its scars.

The polio attack that felled Roosevelt at first threatened to bring his political career to an early, tragic end. But in later years, several of the President's closest associates said his fight with the disease had strengthened his character and advanced his career.

Roosevelt's uncle, Frederic A. Delano wrote in 1936: "His severest test was the 'Polio' and to my mind that is what really made him what he is — a 'twice born man.'"

The conquest of polio is a victory every American should take part in celebrating.

Another View:

Caution on the path

There is now agreement in principle on a meeting between President Reagan and the new Soviet leader, Mikhail S. Gorbachev. The commitment of the two leaders to that meeting is a positive development in the slow process of repairing the damage done in recent years to Soviet-American relations.

The Moscow response was paired with a proposal for a missile freeze, a signal that the world will not stop until the summit occurs. Both sides will continue to press for psychological advantages. Washington should not have expected more.

The path toward the summit must now be walked with prudence and caution. The outcome of that summit will depend on its preparation, not on the personalities of the two superpower leaders. Much of that preparation already is being made in the Geneva arms-control negotiations.

Gorbachev's proposal for a freeze on missile deployment in Europe may already have been the business of Geneva. Its discussion in public rather than in the appointed private forum invited suspicion that the purpose was propaganda and the true target the peace-hungry people of Europe who somehow might be tempted away from their alliance with the United States. If that was the intention, the Kremlin has been disappointed.

The commitment of the White House to study the proposal was appropriate. As the president's spokesman said, "stability cannot be achieved by maintaining a lopsided balance," and that seems to be just what the freeze would do. But the proposal for a unilateral suspension of missile deployment by the Soviet Union, no matter what the motive, also provides an opportunity. A reduction of missiles might prove easier under the circumstances — something at least worth exploring.

Leonid I. Brezhnev himself talked of a missile freeze three years ago. One could have wished that the new Soviet leader, the fourth in four years, might somehow have struck a more innovative chord to demonstrate that a new generation is in command. But that, too, might have proved to be an illusion. And illusions only confuse the hard, hard work of bridging the chasm of suspicion and disparate goals that separates these two nations.

U.S. exporting deadly harvest

WASHINGTON — Each year American chemical companies export nearly a billion dollars' worth of pesticides that are unregistered, restricted or banned outright in the United States.

Jack Anderson

When these deadly chemicals are used by Third World farmers ignorant of the dangers, the results can be catastrophic. For example:

— In Brazil, 13 children who lived on the same village street became mysteriously, violently ill. They sweated, foamed at the mouth, vomited and went into convulsions. Most died within a few days, and the only survivor, an 8-year-old girl, was fatally stricken with the same symptoms a few weeks later. An autopsy showed unusually high levels of Aldrin and its breakdown product, Dieldrin, in her blood and liver. These U.S.-manufactured pesticides were banned in the United States the year before.

— In Tijuana, Mexico, 17 people died and more than 300 got sick after eating sugar contaminated with Parathion, a pesticide whose use is restricted in the United States, but whose manufacture is not.

— In a single province of Thailand, out of a population of 3,789, 24 died and 320 more became ill from pesticides used on local crops. A government study found dangerous levels of pesticide residues in 75 percent of rice and flour samples, in more than 40 percent of vegetables and in milk, cooking oil and freshwater fish.

— In Egypt, exposure to the pesticide Phosvel killed more than 1,000 water buffalo and an undisclosed number of people. Rural families suffered convulsions, speech difficulties, loss of bladder control and other symptoms. Phosvel is manufactured in the United States solely for export; its use has never been permitted in this country because of the danger to humans.

These horror stories, which occurred over the past two decades, were compiled by Julian Epstein, an aide to Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., from internal government documents and other sources.

The chemical industry defends its export of pesticides that are banned or restricted here, arguing that they are a necessary evil in the battle against famine and disease in the Third World.

But Epstein challenges the effectiveness of the pesticides in achieving these laudable goals, and notes that at least half of the pesticides imported by the Third World countries are used on crops that will be exported to Western Europe and the United States.

What strikes environmentalists as unconscionable about the pesticide exports — which amount to some $2.8 billion a year — is that the dangers are so widely misunderstood by the farmers who use them. Even the officials responsible for distributing them are often uninformed.

When warnings are written in the native language and can be read by the users, the chemicals are often mislabeled. A recent spot check in Mexico, for example, showed that more than half the pesticides being sold were mislabeled, according to Epstein's research.

The United States is the only country that voted against a U.N. resolution that would make a list of hazardous exports available. After initially supporting the U.N. effort, the Environmental Protection Agency cautioned in an internal document seen by our associate Vicki Warren that "we think it is also in the U.S. interest to refine such a listing in a way that would minimize any unwarranted disruptions to international trade."

The Food and Drug Administration actually prepared a list of 30 drugs that have been withdrawn from the U.S. market as unsafe, but the State Department refused to forward it to the U.N. group preparing the list.

FEUD OF THE WEEK: A federal judge has stepped in on the side of Congress in its feud with budget director David Stockman over federal contracts that have been challeneged by losing bidders. The battle began when Congress passed — and President Reagan signed — a law that allows the General Accounting Office to delay the award of a defense contract if a losing bidder files a legitimate protest.

In an astonishing move for a former congressman, Stockman ordered all government agencies to ignore the law, much to the indignation of Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Texas, chairman of the Government Operations Committee. The constitutional controversy has since moved into the courts — and Stockman is taking a drubbing.

In a loser's suit challenging the award of a contract for Navy fighter-plane fuel tanks, U.S. District Court Judge David V. Kenyon wrote: "This court disapproves of the defendant government's manipulation of a national emergency situation to force (favorable) judicial determination."

In another case, a judge ruled that the Army Engineers had in fact violated the Competition in Contracting Act.

GEORGE F. WILL

April's here (despite vile DH rule)

BALTIMORE — You know the feeling you get watching the steamier Greek tragedies, when dynasties are falling and sons are marrying their mothers and everyone is behaving badly and you are thinking: Really, things can not go on like this. That is how March makes proper Americans feel. Life is vain, the world is a moral void, the universe is an empty shell. Then proper Americans look toward April, the horizon where the sun will rise. The sun is baseball.

George F. Will

Baltimore is the best place to watch the sunrise. I will explain why, after dealing with this disagreeable business: Peter Ueberroth must go. His reign as baseball commissioner is already six months old and the wicked Designated Hitter rule has not been repealed. Worse — infinitely so — he is talking about taking an opinion poll on the subject. The mind reels. The thought occurs: Death, where is thy sting?

Who needs polls to discover if Michelangelo is superior to Andy Warhol? Some judgments should be beyond the reach of majorities. Democracy has, I suppose, its place, but in baseball? Perhaps public opinion must influence government, but baseball should not be a plaything of that turbulent, hydra-headed monster: the mob. Do we submit theories of astro physics to referenda? Surely even in an open society there are closed questions, and this is one: Should baseball be desecrated by the DH rule, which allows degenerate, football-esque specialization?

If Ueberroth's baseball bolshevism is the bad news, the good news is that our can-do country has gone and done it. It has produced a baseball book that almost contains all the information citizens ought to be required to master before being allowed to vote. The book is "The 1985 Elias Baseball Analyst."

Do you have a Gibbonesque fascination with declines and falls? The book reveals that the 1984 White Sox were only the eighth team in 50 years to suffer a decline of 150 percentage points in their won-lost record compared with the immediate preceding season. In 1984 Cleveland extended to 24 its record for the most consecutive seasons (excluding the 1981 strike season) finishing more than 14 games behind the league or division leader. Before the 1984 Milwaukee Brewers did it, the last team to go in just two years from the best record in the league to the worst was during the Johnson administration. The time before that, Woodrow Wilson was in his first term.

AccDecSyn (Accelerated Decline Syndrome) exists when three criteria are satisfied: a team wins 10 fewer games in season X than in season X minus 1; it had a losing record in X minus 1; it had a winning record in X minus 2. The 1984 Giants suffered AccDecSyn.

But enough about incompetence. Let's go to Baltimore, where last Monday the Orioles, who will beat the Cubs in a six-game World Series, began what will be their 18th consecutive season over the .500 mark. Only the 1926-64 Yankees have done better, and no team has a better winning percentage (.565) over the last 29 seasons. Why are they so good? Hey, as Ring Lardner, born 100 years ago this spring, used to say, you could look it up.

The Elias book says Cal Ripken, the O's shortstop, has baseball's best on-base average (.452) when leading off an inning. With the opening game tied in the eighth inning on Monday, Ripken led off and got on base. Next came Eddie Murray. The book says that last year he batted .459, with a .838 slugging average, in late-inning pressure situations with runners on base. On Monday he drove in Ripken with a home run.

As Murray began his regal, relaxed lope around the bases (Prince Charles could take lessons from Murray about the business of kingly bearing), baseball's magical mix of science and serendipity was on display.

A 162-game season is, like life, a study in cumulation. Things tend to even out, and talent tells. Ripken and Murray are gods, but there are lots of lesser but useful talents, and in a town like Baltimore, where they make good steel and sausage and baseball, they know how to make use of scraps. Who led the American League last year in the percentage of runners driven in from third with fewer than two outs? Elias knows: Jim Dwyer, Baltimore.

Past performances give rise to averages, on which managers calculate probabilities about future performance. The more you study, the less surprised you are. But no matter how hard you study, you still are surprised agreeably often, and the surprises that come to the studious are especially delicious. This is true in baseball and in the lesser stuff that is the rest of life.

ART BUCHWALD

Editors: Men of many faces

The American Society of Newspaper Editors are holding their annual convention in town this week and, as usual, everyone is overjoyed to see them.

Art Buchwald

What, you may ask, do these high-powered newspaper editors do when they aren't stroking each other at an editors' convention?

Everyone seems to have his or her own idea.

Here are some varied impressions, which depend on where you are sitting.

The Editor (as he sees himself): A slightly aging Robert Redford, maybe five pounds overweight. It wasn't his choice, but someone has to be the "captain of the ship." It's lonely at the top. God, is it lonely on the top! You don't know who your real friends are anymore. Because you're tough but fair, you're always getting a bad rap. The editorial staff thinks you're constantly knuckling under to the business side of the paper. And the business side is always giving you a hard time for wasting the paper's valuable space on editorial content. They can't pay you enough for the aggravation you take. You'd go back to the police beat tomorrow if you could just keep your present salary and still eat in the executive dining room.

The Editor (as seen by his wife): She never sees him, except at 2 in the morning when she wakes to hand him the phone.

The Editor (as seen by the reporter): Editors have two heads, no heart and eyes in the back of their pointy heads. For some reason, which the reporter can't fathom, the editor either ignores the reporter all the time or is constantly on his or her back. The editor has his favorites and assigns them the best stories. He wouldn't recognize real talent if it was staring him in the face. The best way to keep your job is to have as few dealings with him as you possibly can. Editors used to tear up your story with a black crayon in front of your eyes — now they do it on the computer in their office, and there's nothing you can do but stare at the monitor and bash your head against the screen.

The Editor (as seen by the reader): Wears shirtsleeves in the office and polyester suits with unmatched pants and jackets to dinner parties. Either looks like Jason Robards or Ed Asner, depending on whether you saw "All the President's Men" or watched "Lou Grant" on television. He is responsible for all the bad news in the paper, especially the unfair and libelous articles about the reader's (A) political party, (B) religious affiliation or (C) favorite sports team. The editor is held accountable not only for printing the news but also for the news itself. He has too much power and you can't wait to see him cut down to size.

The Editor (as seen by the publisher): Never is around when there is a crisis. Is responsible for $4 million in libel suits now pending in courts, not to mention the legal fees which the paper will have to pay, win or lose. The editor's entire operation is a drain on the paper's finances. All he wants to do is spend money that isn't his and print news that nobody wants to read. Has no sense of how much flak the publisher has to take from his friends and business associates for some stupid story the editor let through.

The Editor (as seen by the syndicated columnist who appears in his paper): Forthright, brave, intelligent and honorable, the editor is not only a credit to his profession and his race, but the one indispensable person in a free and thriving democratic society.

His main job is to make crucial decisions. For example, this article may have been submitted to him and he had to decide whether it should appear in a family newspaper.

If the editor said, "No way," then you wouldn't be reading it right now. But since you're reading it, you have to assume one of two things. Your paper has an editor with a sense of humor, or yesterday was his day off.

Roosevelt honored in death by those who had reviled him

By STEPHEN W. BELL

HYDE PARK, N.Y. (AP) — When President Franklin D. Roosevelt died 40 years ago Friday, Lloyd's of London tolled its Lutine Bell and Radio Tokyo broadcast condolences to the U.S. fleet under attack by Japan's kamikaze pilots off Okinawa.

FDR, who had been president longer than any of his 31 predecessors, was honored in death by an ally with a signal reserved for the sinking of a great ship and treated with unusual respect by an enemy.

"We indeed grieve to learn of the death of President Roosevelt," Radio Tokyo broadcast in English. "We didn't expect that he could pass away when the whole world is in such a state of chaos."

Winston S. Churchill, Adolf Hitler and Josef Stalin were his peers, the Great Depression, Pearl Harbor, D-Day his challenges. Eisenhower, Marshall, Patton and MacArthur were his generals. Herbert C. Hoover, Alfred M. Landon, Wendell Willkie, Thomas E. Dewey were his vanquished Republican foes.

Roosevelt died of a cerebral hemorrhage at the Little White House in Warm Springs, Ga., at 4:35 p.m. Eastern War Time on Thursday April 12, 1945.

American radio began 80 hours of commercial-free news broadcasts. In Manhattan, a woman said she did not need a radio, she could read the news on the faces of passersby. Newspaper editors nationwide added FDR, as commander in chief, to lists of Americans killed in action.

House Speaker Sam Rayburn, a man described as having only two emotions, "solicitude and anger," wept; Pope Pius XII was awakened; Andrei Gromyko, Soviet ambassador to the United States, called FDR "one of the greatest statesmen the world has ever known."

"His ability to project American idealism and to project American democratic feeling led to the deep outpouring around the world at his death," said William R. Emerson, director of the Roosevelt library and museum in Hyde Park.

"I was serving in Okinawa at the time he died, but I think there was a feeling mainly of being stunned because most of the forces...had never known a president other than Roosevelt, so there was a feeling of there being a great void," said Roosevelt biographer James McGregor Burns.

Emerson, director of the Roosevelt library and museum in Hyde Park, was a fighter pilot in Italy when the news came.

"My squad was the worst collection of retrogrades, all black-hearted Southerners like myself who to a man disliked Roosevelt," Emerson said. "I'll never forget how all that nonsense stopped (when he died).

"While they reviled him, they counted on him. It was the most striking reversal of form I've ever seen. All that stuff about 'that man in the White House,' stopped because they had come to rely upon him."

FDR was born at his family's Hyde Park home, overlooking the Hudson River, Jan. 30, 1882, and was buried in its rose garden on Sunday April 15, 1945. After serving as governor of New York, he survived an assassination attempt as president-elect on Feb. 15, 1933, in Miami, in which the mayor of Chicago was killed.

Roosevelt was inaugurated 32nd president on March 4, 1933 in the desperate days of the Great Depression. His first 100 days of legislative action formed a yardstick against which succeeding presidents have been measured.

He was the only president elected to four terms; a constitutional amendment ratified by Congress in 1951 now limits presidents to two.

Twelve-year-old boy says dead friend saved his life

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A 12-year-old boy who survived an avalanche of sand that killed a playmate credits his dead friend with saving his life.

"He pushed me up," Darren Ellis said of Timothy Douglas Murphy. "He grabbed me and pushed me up, but when he pushed, he kept going under. He told me that he knew that he wasn't going to make it, but he said he'd hold me up."

It took rescuers five hours to free Ellis after the slide Tuesday. Murphy's body was recovered about a half-hour later. He died of suffocation, authorities said.

"When the sand came down on us," Darren said, "Tim kept shouting for the other boys to help me because I was little." At 4-foot-5 and 65 pounds, Darren is considered small for his age.

Vietnam memorial may get more names

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than 300 Americans who died during Vietnam combat missions that were outside the official combat zone will have their names inscribed on the Vietnam Veterans Memorial if room on the black granite wall can be found.

Paul Lee, executive assistant to Sen. Don Nickles, R-Okla., said officials from the Vietnam Veterans Memorial Fund agreed Wednesday to try to find out exactly how many names were left off the memorial and then see if there is room for them.

"They have the veterans' best interest at heart," Lee said. "They want to try to be as inclusive as possible. If they find more combat casualties, they want to put them on the memorial."

The wall is the first U.S. war memorial to list names of the dead or missing. It is currently inscribed with 58,022 names gleaned from official lists of combat casualties.

The Department of Defense now says there are at least 330 servicemen who died outside the designated combat zone but were on combat missions and should be included on the memorial.

County forecasts

Midland, Ector, Glasscock, Upton, Reagan, Crane, Gaines, Andrews, Dawson, Borden, Martin and Howard counties: Tonight partly cloudy with isolated evening thunderstorms. Low in lower 50s. Wind light and variable. Rain chance less than 20 percent. Friday fair and warm with high in mid 80s. Wind southeast 5 to 15 mph.

Basin skies should clear by Friday

From Staff and Wire Reports

Showers may fall on the Permian Basin area tonight, but skies should clear Friday as temperatures become warmer, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

Forecasters are calling for partly cloudy skies tonight with isolated evening thundershowers. Tonight's low in the lower 50s is expected to warm to a high in the mid-80s Friday. Light and variable winds will increase from the southeast at less than 15 mph Friday.

Wednesday's high of 78 was 17 degrees below the record set in 1948. This morning's low was 19 degrees above the record low of 30 set in 1932.

STATE

More heavy rainfall was forecast today for the Texas Coastal Bend where rains of up to six inches caused some street and highway flooding late Wednesday.

Some of the heaviest rain was at Sinton and Aransas Pass, the National Weather Service said.

A flood and flash flood watch was in effect at dawn today for the Coastal Bend. Forecasters said more showers and scattered thundershowers were expected today in the Coastal Bend and warned that some might be heavy.

Light rain was reported at dawn in much of South Texas and portions of Southeast Texas.

Forecasts called for cloudy to partly cloudy skies statewide. Highs were to be mostly in the 70s, ranging upward to the 80s in Southwest Texas.

Lows tonight will be mostly in the 50s and 60s. Highs Friday will be slightly warmer, mostly in the 70s and 80s.

Winds were southerly over much of the state while light and variable winds were reported in the Lower Rio Grande Valley and central portions of the state.

Skies were clear over West Texas early today and mostly cloudy elsewhere.

NATION

Rain across broad sections of the nation today was expected to change to snow over northern New England and mountains of the West.

Rain was scattered across the middle Mississippi Valley, the Ohio Valley, western Pennsylvania and the Pacific Northwest.

M-Angels drop second straight, 10-2

By TED BATTLES
Sports Editor

EL PASO — Midland's Angels are learning in a hurry about the perils of the notorious Dudley Dome, where Wednesday night the new kid in the Texas League block got another bloody nose. This time it was 10-2.

Although it wasn't as dramatic as Glenn Braggs' three-run shot in the ninth that propelled the Diablos past Midland 6-5 Tuesday, but it wasn't so much the home run as what transpired before it in that fatat five run seventh that proved fatal.

Three walks and a single preceded this one and one of the walks forced in a run to make it 4-2 before Billy Joe Robideux unloaded a grand slam over the left-centerfield barrier. An inning before he had tripled almost in the same spot. The home run was so high that left fielder Greg Key and center fielder Devon White had time to gather at the foot of the fence and watch in awe as it disappeared into the night.

Robideux was the first batter Spiro Psaltis faced after coming in for Scott Suehr, who had trouble finding the plate. Robideux' round-tripper was the second of the young series as the Diablos took a 2-0 lead in the five-game opening series.

"Their big guys are coming up at the right time and delivering," said Midland manager Joe Maddon. "The middle of their lineup is hot and ours is not."

With one run in and the bases loaded of a still tense pitching duel, Maddon brought in lefthander Psaltis to face the lefthanded Robideux. But the strategy didn't conform to the percentages.

The eight walks issued by Midland pitchers, seven coming out of the bull pen, were decisive...That, and, of course, the timely ball lost over the fence. In fact, with the score 9-2 in the eighth, Midland still had more hits than the Diablos but they hadn't been nearly as destructive.

Maddon had no complaint with the work of starter Ken Angulo, who went the first five innings in three-hit style and was tied at two going into the sixth. El Paso had pulled even in the fifth on a run set up by an error when a double play relay wound up against the stands and the runner advanced to third on a wild pitch. Dave Klipstein exploited the advantage with a run-scoring double that came after Angulo should have been in the dugout.

Dodgers post 5-4 victory over Astros

Associated Press

The Los Angeles Dodgers had all the ingredients it took to beat the Houston Astros 5-4 Wednesday night.

They had starting pitcher Jerry Reuss, who improved his lifetime record to 20-10 against his former teammates with seven hits over seven and one-third innings and a two-run single in the sixth.

NL

They had home run power in the seventh inning with solo shots by Ken Landreaux and Pedro Guerrero.

And when it came down to ending the game and brunting an Astros rally, they had Steve Howe, making his first apearance of the season since returning from injury and a bout with drugs.

"We're all glad to see him do the job," Reuss said of Howe, who got the save by forcing Houston's Jose Cruz into a game-ending fly to Landreaux in centerfield. "Besides the fact that he's a professional, I think you're going to find out that he's an even more extraordinary person than just a pitcher."

Reuss throttled the Astros on five hits through seven innings but departed in the eighth during a three-run Astros rally. Reuss realized it was time for him to leave.

"I have these little conversations with myself," he said. "I know what I want and that's to stay in the game but I know what's best for the team."

The Dodgers went into the eighth inning with a 5-0 lead on Guerrero's sacrifice fly in the first, Reuss' two-run single in the sixth and the double homers in the seventh.

Orioles receive return on deal

AL Roundup

The Baltimore Orioles acquired outfielder Fred Lynn to help their sagging run production. The transaction began to pay off on Wednesday.

Lynn provided the Orioles with a little more offense than expected when he singled twice and drove in two runs during a six-run fourth inning uprising that boosted Baltimore to a 7-1 victory over the Texas Rangers.

"It was quite enjoyable out there," Lynn said. "I've gotten multiple hits in an inning before, but it's nice to get it here in just my second game. It's been quite a while since I've gotten two hits in an inning."

Lynn's hitting supported a combined six-hitter by Mike Boddicker and reliever Sammy Stewart.

Boddicker didn't retire the leadoff hitter from the second through sixth innings, but managed to strand seven Texas runners through the first four innings. He left after allowing six hits.

"Boddicker made some big pitches," said Orioles Manager Joe Altobelli, whose team is off to a 2-0 start for the first time since 1979. "Boddicker made a couple of good pitches to get double plays when he needed them and then Sammy came in and only faced nine batters."

The Orioles took the lead with an unearned run in the second and reached Texas starter Mike Mason for six runs, three unearned, in the fourth.

The Orioles loaded the bases in the fourth on Lynn's single, Mike Young's double and Fritz Connelly's fielder's choice grounder. Rick Dempsey then singled home two runs.

Len Sakata walked to load the bases again and Connelly scored when Dan Ford grounded into a double play. Mason left after walking Cal Ripken and hitting Eddie Murray with a pitch.

Dickie Noles came in to pitch and got Gary Roenicke to ground to third but Buddy Bell committed his second error of the game to load the bases for the third time in the inning. Lynn then drove in two more runs with a sharp single to right.

Boddicker surrendered his only run when Larry Parrish hit a home run leading off the sixth.

Elsewhere in the American League, Detroit defeated Cleveland, 8-1; Boston beat up New York, 14-5; Toronto outlasted Kansas City, 1-0 in 10 innings; Minnesota downed California, 6-3; Seattle edged Oakland, 5-4.

Tigers 8, Indians 1

Detroit's Lou Whitaker drove in four runs with a pair of home runs and Kirk Gibson belted a three-run shot to back the combined four-hit pitching of Dan Petry and Aurelio Lopez as the Tigers beat the Cleveland Indians to remain undefeated after two games.

It marked the fourth time in his career that Whitaker has hit two homers in a game. The last time was Aug. 13, 1982 against the Kansas City Royals, a year in which he accomplished the feat three times.

Whitaker's first homer was a three-run shot with one out in the third inning. Larry Herndon and Chet Lemon started the inning with singles and came around when Whitaker hit one just over the left field screen off Cleveland starter Vern Ruhle.

Whitaker's second homer was a two-out solo shot in the fifth inning that gave Detroit a 4-1 lead.

In the Detroit seventh, Lemon drew a walk off reliever Ramon Romero, was sacrificed to second by Tom Brookens, took third on a single by Whitaker and scored when shortstop Julio Franco threw wildly after fielding Alan Trammell's ground ball.

Gibson then cleaned the bases with a three-run homer off the facing of the third deck on a full-count pitch from Dave Von Ohlen for an 8-1 lead. The Indians' lone run came in the fourth when George Vukovich reached second on a throwing error by third baseman Chris Pittaro and scored on Brook Jacoby's two-out single.

Petry, 18-8 last year, scattered four hits over six innings, walking one and striking out two. Lopez pitched three perfect innings to record the save.

Red Sox 14, Yankees 5

Rich Gedman had four hits and the Boston Red Sox scored seven runs after a pair of New York errors in the second inning in rolling to a victory over the Yankees.

Gedman singled and doubled in the decisive second inning, which Bill Buckner capped with a two-run homer.

Wade Boggs and Tony Armas drove in three runs apiece as the Red Sox, who beat the Yankees 9-2 in the season opener Monday, made it two in a row.

Staked to a big cushion, Boston southpaw Bruce Hurst breezed to the triumph, scattering 10 hits and walking only one in seven innings before giving way to reliever Mark Clear. Bob Ojeda pitched the ninth.

Right-hander Ed Whitson, signed as a free agent after helping San Diego to the National League pennant last fall, was the loser. He allowed six hits, but only three of the nine runs off him in 1 2/3 innings were earned.

OC's Chism among Tech signees

DALLAS (AP) — Four players, including the school's first 7-footer ever, have signed letters of intent to play for Southwest Conference champion Texas Tech.

The signings came Wednesday on the first day the nation's major college could sign players to letters of intent.

The Red Raiders began national signing day by netting Rodney Henderson, a 7-foot, 200-pound center from Dallas Bryan Adams, and later added 6-7, 227-pound forward Dwayne Chism of Odessa College, 6-10 center Wesley Lowe of West Mesquite and 6-8 Bryan Barrier of Houston Jones.

Henderson averaged 14 points and 9 rebounds.

Chism, who played high school basketball at Dallas Spruce, led his junior college team to a 46-17 record the past two seasons. He averaged 12.7 points and 8.1 rebounds in leading OC to a 27-6 record the past year.

Lowe set the career scoring record for West Mesquite with 1,199 points and was also an academic leader, ranked fourth in his class with an overall grade point average of 3.8.

Barrier was injured the last half of the season, but is regarded as one of the state's most promising forwards.

Tech had hoped to sign 6-7 forward Andrew Kennedy of Amarillo Junior College, but lost him Wednesday to Virginia.

Texas Tech had more scholarships to dole out than other league schools, because the Red Raiders almost had an all-senior starting lineup last season, and Tech still had two more scholarships to hand out.

Houston signed 6-1, 165-pound Gerry McGee, a guard on the Houston Madison team that went unbeaten through 40 games to capture the Class 5A state championship last season.

The Cougars also signed 7-1 Tito Horford of Houston Marian, considered the state's outstanding schoolboy player, last November, along with two teammates, 6-10 Perry Russell and 6-8 Steve Smith.

Southern Methodist also did well, signing Kato Armstrong, a 5-11 guard from South Garland, who picked SMU over Tech. Also, the Mustangs got a promise from 6-6 Randy Jones of Syracuse, N.Y., to sign on Thursday.

The Mustangs also received commitments in November from 6-10 Reginald Muhammad of Wilmer-Hutchins, 6-8 Vernon Perdue of Corpus Christi, and 6-9 John Colborne of Poway, Calif.

Texas A&M signed two out-of-state athletes. Steve Vandiver, a 6-5, 215-pound guard, is a junior at Allegheny Community College of Pittsburgh, where he averaged 14.5 points a game.

John Tresvuant, a 6-7, 198-pound forward from City of San Francisco Community College, also signed with the Aggies. The junior averaged 18.9 points and was named Most Valuable Player of the Golden Gate Conference.

Memorial Stadium shortens hemline

If weather conditions are just right Saturday, the "Old Lady of West Texas" (Memorial Stadium) may be for another adjustment in her hemline.

She was dressed up with a new all-weather track surface a year back, and almost before the facelift had dried, the annual Tall City Relays shortened her dress by nine inches.

Of the 15 events staged in the Tall City Relays, nine records have 1984 stamped to the side. And the re-dressing is expected Saturday when another seven inches could be clipped off. That means 16 inches...er records...in two years. What a difference a little cosmetic surgery makes.

AND YOU can add another 15 records, if you would like, since for the first time girls will have their own division. Previously, the girls were running in the District 4-5A competition, but that event will be staged with the boys next weekend in Abilene.

This year's Tall City run has also moved to the daylight hours for the first time in the history of the meet. No telling what the high school youngsters will do when they aren't shivering in their shorts. That move was aided by H. Ross' eight-hour rule, one of the rare benefits coming out of HB 72.

Just looking at the Tall City field for Saturday's "What-record-will-fall-today?" meet, makes this event an extremely attractive one for track fans.

Midland High's Darrell Davis is throwing the shot put into Ector County. They may have to order a new measuring tape just to record his tosses. He's talking about 65-feet before this season is over and has already surpassed 63-feet. He may toss one all the way to TCU. MHS track coach Johnny Williams is almost weekly having to revise just how far he thinks Davis can throw. Johnny is now saying 64-feet is possible.

AND THERE is this "skinny" sophomore (Mike Garza) over at Lee who is busting distance records right and left. He's not even wet behind the ears, but he's already busted Lee's school record in the 3200 meters by seven seconds. He's never even heard the word "strategy" yet. Lee track boss Sam Volpe is afraid to even mention the word. Volpe doesn't want Garza thinking too much while he's breaking records.

And of course, you have Odessa Permian's Gerry Guster, who leaps Tall City buildings in a single bound — or at least hurdles when he's well — at the star-spangled tune of national ranking time of 36.3 seconds. Then there is San Angelo's Willie Blakey, who can jump from the Concho City to Midland when he lasts through the track season.

Lee's Walter Jones has become the first Rebel in history to win four events in one meet, and that's working on the long jump about as often as it snows in San Antonio. He would like to be the first Rebel to qualify for the Region I meet in four events in a single year.

Lee's Marq Brackens is saying that he knows what he can do and will do it when the right time comes in the 400 meters. That's a promise that bears watching. Brackens is the defending district champion in the 400, but has had a strange year with injuries and one key jumping the gun incident. If he figures it's time Saturday, eight records could fall.

Midland High's Randy Simmons and Lee's Quintus Hampton and Harold Woods also are an interesting trio. They have been seeing a lot of hurdle dust from Guster, but all would like to earn Region I berths. Hampton, only a junior, is the defending intermediate hurdle champion in the district and current holder of the Tall City record in that event.

LEE'S MILE relay team is only 0.3 seconds away from a school mark after a 3:15 in Austin last weekend.

Toss in a team championship race between Permian and Lee and you have some exciting things to watch for. When these teams are at full strength, there's not more than a point or two separating them and you can never tell which one will own the one or two points.

For the teary-eyed, Coach Volpe will be saying farewell to the Tall City meet. He has announced his retirement at the end of the track season and this will be his last meet at home.

And that alone is enough to make sure that I don't miss this one.

Overtime order of day in four NHL playoff openers

Associated Press

From Philadelphia to Washington to Winnipeg to Edmonton, the hometown fans heaved a great sigh of relief after their National Hockey League teams got started on the right foot in the playoffs, even if they had to work overtime to do so.

All four of those teams survived scares to win their Stanley Cup playoff openers Wednesday night. The defending champion Oilers edged Los Angeles 3-2 on Lee Fogolin's sharp-angled shot 3:01 into OT. The Flyers, who had the most points during the regular season, won over the New York Rangers on Mark Howe's shot 8:01 into the extra session.

The Capitals beat the New York Islanders 4-3 when Alan Haworth scored at 2:28 of overtime, while the Jets' Brian Mullen deflected in a shot 7:56 into OT as Winnipeg nipped Calgary 5-4.

All series continue tonight at the same sites.

Oilers 3, Kings 2

Fogolin was an unlikely hero on a team led by super scorers Wayne Gretzky, Paul Coffey and Jari Kurri. Coffey and Kurri had scored the Oilers' other two goals, while Craig Redmond and Bernie Nicholls had the Los Angeles' tallies. Nicholls tied it with 4:37 to go in regulation.

Then Fogolin produced the victory on what he called "a lucky goal," which came on the only shot of the overtime.

"I was about at the goal line when I let it go," said Fogolin, who had only four goals all season. "I didn't look at all but I knew I had a little room on the outside."

The puck went in off Kings goalie Bob Janecyk's stick.

"I thought I could intercept it," said Janecyk, "but it hit my stick and deflected in."

Jets 5, Flames 4

Mullen's goal capped a Winnipeg comeback from a 4-1 deficit. Mullen, skating through the slot, deflected Dave Ellett's point drive past goaltender Reggie Lemelin.

Dave Babych scored in the first period for Winnipeg, but Calgary got four straight goals, by Ed Beers, Hakan Loob, Paul Reinhart and Steve Konroyd, in the second period. The Jets rallied when Paul MacLean connected late in the second period, then Dale Hawerchuk and Ellett scored in the third.

"Anytime you get a deflection that goes in like that," said Winnipeg Coach Barry Long, echoing the sentiments of Fogolin, "It's kind of a lucky goal. Nonethless, if the puck is shot on the ice and the players get their sticks on the ice, anything can happen."

Flyers 5, Rangers 4

Philadelphia, which swept seven games from the Rangers during the season and finished 51 points ahead of New York in the Patrick Division, ended a nine-game postseason losing string. The Flyers led 3-0 but the Rangers rallied as Don Maloney scored twice. A mistake by Ranger goalie Glen Hanlon allowed Tim Kerr to score into an unguarded cage for a 4-3 Philly lead, but Anders Hedberg forced OT when he beat goalie Pelle Lindbergh with 26 seconds left in the third period.

Howe's goal came after Ron Sutter outworked two Rangers behind the New York net to get the puck and pass it out front.

"I didn't know the puck was in until I heard the crowd," Howe said. "Tonight is history. We have to concentrate on tomorrow night."

As for letting the Rangers rally, he said, "I don't think we let up. I think things just clicked for them. Going into the overtime, (Coach Mike) Keenen said he thought we were being outworked. You can't win if you don't work."

Capitals 4, Islanders 3

Both teams scored three times in the second period. Mike Bossy had two goals for New York and Larry Murphy collected a pair of power-play markers.In overtime, Haworth walked in virtual untouched from the left corner to beat goalie Billy Smith, who made 38 saves.

The victory was Washington's first at home against the Islanders in playoff competition. The Islanders, who managed only 17 shots Wednesday, eliminated the Caps from the playoffs the last two years and had won their last six postseason overtime games.

"I was very surprised," Haworth said. "In the playoffs . . . in overtime . . . things don't usually open up like that."

Bruins 5, Canadiens 3

Ken Linseman scored a goal and set up two, including the winner by Keith Crowder, for the visiting Bruins, who were sparked by Doug Keans' goaltending. Keans made 19 saves, but held off the Canadiens — who finished first in the Adams Division, 12 points ahead of the fourth-place Bruins — after they surged back from a 3-0 hole.

Charlie Simmer, Mike O'Connell and Linseman put Boston on top, then goals by Petr Svoboda, Mario Tremblay and Bobby Smith, who scored 42 seconds apart in the third period, tied it. Crowder snapped a pass from Linseman past Montreal goaltender Steve Penney at 9:21.Rick Middleton added an insurance goal for Boston at 14:05.

"We wanted to see if we couldn't put together a real good first period," said Bruin Coach Harry Sinden. "We felt that would do us a lot of good. We didn't feel we could afford to fall behind at all."

Black Hawks 9, Red Wings 5

At Chicago, the Black Hawks set a team record for playoff goals in one game. Rookie Eddie Olczyk scored two goals and collected an assist for the Hawks, who grabbed a 4-0 lead after one period and 8-3 after 40 minutes.

"I remember sitting in the stands last year during the playoffs, watching the Hawks lose to Minnesota," said Olczyk, a Chicago native. "I made up my mind that if the Hawks drafted me, the greatest thrill of my life would be to listen to the crowd in my hometown cheering for me in a Stanley Cup playoff game."

North Stars 3, Blues 2

The visiting North Stars surprised St. Louis, which held a 6-1-1 margin over Minnesota in the regular season, as goalie Gilles Meloche made 39 saves. Craig.Hartsburg snapped a 1-1 tie with a deflected slapshot in the middle period and Keith Acton added the winning goal with 9:15 remaining.

Neal Broten also scored for the North Stars, while Jorgen Pettersson and Rob Ramage, with a short-handed goal, replied for the Blues.

Nordiques 5, Sabres 2

Wilf Paiement scored two third-period goals to clinch the victory in a game interrupted for 20 minutes by a power failure. MichelGoulet, Alain Lemieux and Anton Stastny scored Quebec's other goals. Paul Cyr and Ric Seiling scored for Buffalo.

Quebec's Peter Stastny was forced to leave the game after taking a shot over the eye which required 25 stitches. He is not expected to miss tonight's second game.

"The checking is always tight in a playoff game, so it's important to get ahead fast," said Goulet. "Once we did, we forced them to open up and that gave us more chances."

Vikes, Kosar not on speaking terms

EDEN PRAIRIE, Minn. (AP) — A lack of communication between the Minnesota Vikings and collegiate quarterback sensation Bernie Kosar may have caused an impregnable barrier between the two sides, Kosar's agent says.

"(Vikings General Manager) Mike Lynn trades for Bernie and then turns his back on him," Dr. John Geletka, the family dentist who has been serving as Kosar's counsel, said Wednesday. "He's yet to pick up the phone to talk to us. It's very upsetting."

Kosar, who led the University of Miami to the national championship as a redshirt freshman in 1983, has decided to forego his final two years of eligibility to turn pro after graduating in June.

The Vikings on Tuesday traded with Houston for what is effectively the first selection in the National Football League's April 30 draft for the express purpose of picking Kosar. The Buffalo Bills, who have the first choice, have already signed Virginia Tech defensive lineman Bruce Smith.

But Kosar, a Boardman, Ohio, native who calls himself a Cleveland Browns fan, may be able to play for the Browns because they traded Tuesday with Buffalo for the first pick in a possible supplemental draft.

Under NFL rules, if Kosar does not notify the league by Monday that he wishes to be terminate his collegiate eligibility, he would be ineligible for the draft.

He could then make himself available for a supplemental draft.

Lynn contends that since Kosar has Geletka as an agent, he has lost his eligibility under National Collegiate Athletic Association regulations. That, he maintains, would make a letter revoking his eligibility unnecessary.

"Mike Lynn's contention is we don't have to send a letter," Geletka said. "The commissioner's contention is that we do. The commissioner's office spelled that out to us in writing."

NFL spokesman Joe Browne confirmed Wednesday that the league did tell Kosar he would have to file a letter by April 15 to be eligible for the draft.

"NCAA eligibility has never been the sole criterion for draft eligibility," Browne said. "To be eligible for the draft, there are three factors: if you graduate, if all your college football eligibility has expired, or if at least five years have elapsed since you first entered college."

Lynn has asked NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle to clarify the situation.

Rozelle has asked the four teams involved — Minnesota, Cleveland, Houston and Buffalo — to send their opinions on the case promptly to expedite a ruling, Browne said.

David Berst, director of enforcement for the NCAA, when asked about Kosar's status, said: "If he hired an agent he is ineligible (to play any more college football). Kosar was in contact with our office several times on this matter. If he's hired an agent, he knows what he's doing."

Monday Night Opener: Pokes vs. 'Skins

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys, a special favorite of the television networks, open their 1985 National Football League season under the bright lights again with the Washington Redskins as their guests.

Washington comes calling on Monday, Sept. 9, to kick off ABC-TV's "Monday Night Football." It's the fourth straight year the Cowboys open the regular season with a nationally televised Monday night game.

The Cowboys also will appear in a Sunday night game Oct. 6 in New Jersey against the Giants and a Nov. 4 Monday night game at St. Louis.

Dallas will host its annual Thanksgiving Day game against the St. Louis Cardinals.

The Cowboys also will play the Chicago Bears in Texas Stadium on Aug. 25 in a game to be televised by ABC — the first Monday night national telecast of an exhibition game.

The schedule:

Monday, Sept. 9, Washington, 8 p.m. Texas Stadium.

Sunday, Sept. 15, at Detroit, noon.

Sunday, Sept. 22, Cleveland, noon, Texas Stadium.

Sunday, Sept. 29, at Houston, noon.

Utah's Griffith going free agent

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Darrell Griffith, the National Basketball Association record holder for three pointers in a season, plans to enter the free-agent market when the season is over, his attorney said.

"We were having trouble trying to come to a fair figure," Bob Woolf, the Boston-based attorney, said Wednesday. "I think probably the best way is to just let Darrell become a free agent and see what other people think is a fair figure."

"You always envision what you can get on the market, but there wouldn't have been a need to test the market if we came to a conclusion with the Jazz," Griffith said.

The Jazz retain the right of first refusal. They can retain him by matching any offer he may receive from another team.

Oilers in for tough start

Four of the first five opponents on the Houston Oilers 1985 NNFL schedule were 1984 playoff teams, according to the schedule released Wednesday. The Oilers, who compiled a 3-13 record last season, will host Miami Sept. 8 in the season opener in the Astrodome at noon.

The combined 1984 records of Houston's first five opponents was 56-24 last season.

The rest of the Oilers' regular season schedule includes: Sept. 14, at Washington, noon, CST; Sept. 22, at Pittsburgh, noon; Sept. 29, Dallas, noon; Oct.6, at Denver, 3 p.m.; Oct. 14, Cleveland, noon; Oct. 20, Cincinnati, noon; Oct. 27, at St. Louis, noon; Nov. 3, Kansas City, noon; Nov. 10 at Buffalo, noon. Nov. 17, Pittsburgh, noon; Nov. 24, San Diego, noon; Dec. 1 at Cincinnati, noon; Dec. 8 New York Giants, 3 p.m. Dec. 15 at Cleveland, noon; Dec. 22 at Indianapolis, 3 p.m...

The Pittsburgh Steelers apparently won't know until July whether veteran All-Pro linebacker Jack Lambert, his career in doubt because of an aching big toe, will be able to play again. Doctors have ruled out surgery on the dislocated toe and have told Lambert that months of rest are the only possible cure for what has proven the most painful — and only debilitating — injury of his 11-year career.

Lambert, 32, was the Steelers' leading tackler for 10 consecutive seasons after stepping off the campus of Kent State University in 1974 to join a team about to win the first of four Super Bowl championships. The toe injury, suffered on the first series of plays in the Steelers' first game last fall, allowed Lambert to play only sparingly in nine games. Lambert, used mainly on passing downs, recorded only 15 tackles and four assists and missed making the American Conference Pro Bowl team for the first time since his rookie season...

New York city and state, hoping to lure pro football back to town, have asked private developers to submit plans for a domed sports stadium with at least 78,000 seats next to Shea Stadium in Queens.

The announcement made Wednesday apparently resolved a debate over the proposed stadium's home and dome. Last year the New York State Sportsplex Commission, a Urban Developmnet Corp. subsidiary established to study the stadium issue, recommended construction of a $258-million uncovered stadium near Shea.

The board said a domed stadium would not make enough money to justify the additional construction cost of $45 million...

Jim LeClair, the hard-hitting inside linebacker who helped the NFL Cincinnati Bengals make Super Bowl XVI, ended a 14-year pro career on Wednesday when he retired from the USFL New Jersey Generals because of nagging injuries.

"After 14 years it was in my best interests to discontinue playing football due to deteriorating neck and shoulder injuries," LeClair said. "It is with much regret that I have to leave the Generals at this time because I feel the potential of the team is unlimited," he said.

LeClair started in six of the Generals' seven games this season, missing Sunday's victory over the Houston Gamblers. A former All Pro with the Bengals, LeClair came to New Jersey last season and finished second on the team in tackles with 114, including 66 solo efforts...

BASEBALL — The Kansas City Royals said Wednesday that relief pitcher Dan Quisenberry and center fielder Willie Wilson have signed contracts which should bind them to the team for the rest of their careers.

"These lifetime contracts are in keeping with our philosophy of recognizing the achievements of players who excel in our organization," said Avron Fogelman, the team's co-owner who conducted the negotiations with the two All-Stars. Terms were not announced, but earlier published reports indicated packages being offered to Wilson and Quisenberry could pay them each $40 million over a 40-year period. Wilson and Quisenberry each receive $700,000 to $800,000 in base pay in their current contract with added incentives...

A Pete Rose hit countdown sign was turned on high above Cincinnati's Fountain Square Plaza by Reds owner Marge Schott on Wednesday night to keep track of the player-manager's assault on the career hit record of Ty Cobb.

"Pete 92 To Go," said the sign, after Rose had one hit Wednesday in the 4-1 loss to the Montreal Expos.Cobb's record is 4,191 hits. Rose has 4,100...

GOLF — Hubert Green shot a seven-under-par 22 Wednesday to capture the annual Par-3 contest on the eve of the 49th Masters Golf Tournament. Green scored a one-shot victory over three other players — Raymond Floyd, Bob Eastwood and Billy Casper.

The 9-hole course is located on the Augusta National Golf Club adjacent to the 6,905-yard, par 72 course that will be in use when a field of 77 begins play in the season's first major event Thursday. Eastwood had the closest shot to a flagstick, knocking it to five inches from the hole on No. 7...

BASKETBALL — Former St. John's center Jeff Allen, who played this past season in Italy, was selected Wednesday by the Connecticut Colonials as the No. 1 pick in the opening draft of the new U.S. Basketball League Wednesday. Allen, 6-foot-10, averaged 10.6 points and six rebounds in 1983-84, his final year with the Redmen.

A total of 84 players were selected in the 12 open rounds by seven teams which will begin play May 27. The season ends in August.

Turner gets college football contract

NEW YORK (AP) — Television mogul Ted Turner has made a big move into the college football market, landing Big Ten, Pacific-10 and Atlantic Coast conferences for live, prime-time telecasts over a two-year period.

"I'm ecstatic," Turner, board chairman and president of Turner Broadcasting System, Inc., said at a news conference Wednesday. "I'm excited with a whole new deal for some of the finest universities and biggest football powers."

Games will be seen on cable's SuperStation WTBS and a national network of syndicated TV stations, said Bob Wussler, TBS executive vice president and SuperStation president. The agreements call for 12 games featuring the three conferences on Saturdays this year and 13 next year.

This year's Oct. 12 Boston College-Army game is part of the prime-time package.

The Big Ten also signed a separate two-year contract with TBS for a total of 22 early afternoon games to be telecast over two seasons — 11 each year.

Wussler said an announcement concerning telecasts of the Southeastern Conference is expected later this week or next week.

Financial details were not disclosed, but sources said the Big Ten will reap $9 million and the Pac-10 about $5 million.

CBS and the Big Ten already has a two-year, $10-million contract with CBS. The Pac-10 and ACC also have contracts with CBS, which has the first choice on game selections.

Wussler estimated that better than 90 percent of the markets will be reached in prime-time. He said WTBS reaches 40 percent of the nation's homes with televisions.

"In almost any market, you'll be able to see these games," Wussler said.

Excluded from the telecasts will be Illinois and Wisconsin from the Big Ten and Arizona and Southern California from the Pac-10. They have been sanctioned by the NCAA through 1986 and will not be eligible for televised games.

Tanner's homer lifts Travs past Captains

Associated Press

Ed Tanner's 11th inning home run boosted the Arkansas Travelers to a 3-2 Texas League baseball victory over the Shreveport Captains.

In other Texas League action Wednesday night, Tulsa edged Jackson, 5-4, in 10 innings and El Paso whipped Midland 10-2. Beaumont's scheduled game at San Antonio was postponed because of rain. The two teams will play a doubleheader tonight.

Texas League

After Tanner's homer in the top of the 11th, Arkansas reliever John Boever struck out the side to save the victory for Tom Thurberg, 1-0.

Ruben Robelais of Arkansas had three hits.

The losing pitcher was Kurt Mattson, 0-1.

Doug Davis singled home the winning run in the bottom of the 10th inning to give the Tulsa Drillers a 5-4 victory over the Jackson Mets.

Davis' single drove home Reuben Cierra, who had slugged a two-out double off the left field wall. The Mets then walked Barry Brunenkant before Davis came to bat.

Brunenkant had a solo homer for Jackson and Jason Felice had a solo homer for Jackson.

The winning pitcher was Clyde Reichard, 1-0. The loser, Joe Graves, 0-1.

Public Notice

Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, in accordance with the rules of the Public Utility Commission of Texas, hereby gives notice of the Company's intent to implement a new schedule of telephone rates in Texas, effective May 6, 1985, unless otherwise determined by the Commission. The Public Utility Commission of Texas has received the application as Docket 6200.

While proposals as to specific rates vary, it is expected that the requested rate schedule will furnish a 10.5 percent increase in the Company's unadjusted test year intrastate revenues or a 9.7% increase in test year revenues as adjusted for test year customer growth and annualization of test year rate increases. The rate application seeks an annual increase of $323.9 million in revenues. All customers and classes of customers of Southwestern Bell Telephone Company within Texas will be affected by the proposed changes.

Most rates proposed for increase would increase by about 18.5 percent, including local exchange rates. However, there are some exceptions. For example, those customers residing in cities that will be reclassified into larger rate groups will experience local exchange rate increases greater than 18.5 percent. Also, the rate increases proposed for private line services in El Paso, due to a proposal to restructure such rates, are greater than 18.5 percent.

A complete copy of the new rate schedule is on file with the Public Utility Commission at Austin, Texas and with each affected incorporated municipality served by Southwestern Bell Telephone Company. The Commission staff has contended in the past that all rates are subject to change as a result of Southwestern Bell Telephone Company's rate application. This filing includes, but is not limited to, proposals to increase rates for local exchange service, intraLATA long distance, intraLATA interexchange private line service (which includes foreign exchange service) and to decrease certain access service rates.

Notice to Customers of Other Telephone Companies

This filing includes, but is not limited to, proposals to increase rates for intraLATA long distance and for intraLATA, interexchange private line service (which includes foreign exchange service) and to decrease certain access service rates. Changes in such rates would also affect customers of other telephone companies because such companies provide certain services in accordance with rates specified in Southwestern Bell Telephone Company's tariffs.

Notice to All Customers Concerning Access Charges and Certain New Service Charges

Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, as a part of this filing, is also proposing to reduce certain access rates charged such customers as AT&T Communications, Inc., MCI and other carriers. The resulting reduction in revenues is proposed to be offset by revenues from two new service charges, late payment charges applicable to business customers only and for certain operator services such as busy line verification, plus stimulation of access service charge revenues. Since this portion of the filing, if granted, would have essentially a zero net revenue effect on Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, Southwestern Bell Telephone Company is proposing that this portion of the filing be expeditiously handled by the Commission and not await Final Order.

Persons who wish to intervene or otherwise participate in these proceedings should notify the Commission as soon as possible. A request to intervene, participate, or for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. Further information may also be obtained by calling the Public Utility Commission Consumer Affairs Division at (512) 458-0223 or (512) 458-0227, or (512) 458-0221 teletypewriter for the deaf.

Aviso Público

En conformidad con las disposiciones de la Comisión de Servicios Públicos de Texas, Southwestern Bell Telephone Company anuncia mediante el presente aviso su intención de establecer un nuevo arancel de tarifas telefónicas en Texas, con vigencia a partir del 6 de mayo de 1985, salvo disposición en contrario de la Comisión. La Comisión de Servicios Públicos de Texas a registrado esta solicitud bajo el Docket 6200.

Si bien existe variación entre las propuestas en cuanto a las tarifas precisas, se anticipa que el arancel tarifario solicitado aumentará en un 10.5% los ingresos intraestatales no ajustados de Southwestern Bell Telephone Company durante el año de prueba, o sea, un aumento del 9.7 por ciento en los ingresos del año de prueba, después de realizar el ajuste por la expanción de los usuarios y por la anualización del aumento de tarifas para el año de prueba. El objeto de esta solicitud de tarifas es lograr un aumento anual en los ingresos de $323.9 milliones. Los cambios propuestos afectarán a todos los usuarios y grupos de usuarios de Southwestern Bell Telephone Company en el estado de Texas.

La mayoría de las tarifas que resultarían afectadas por el propuesto aumento aumentarían aproximadamente en un 18.5 por ciento, incluyendo las tarifas de centrales locales. Sin embargo, existen algunas excepciones. Por ejemplo, los usuarios que residen en ciudades que se reclasificarán para formar parte de grupos tarifarios mayores experimentarán aumentos mas elevados del 18.5 por ciento. Por otra parte, los aumentos de las tarifas propuestas para servicios de línea privada en El Paso aumentarían en más de 18.5 por ciento, como resultado de una propuesta para reestructurar tales tarifas.

Una copia completa del nuevo arancel de tarifas se halla archivada en las oficinas de la Comisión de Servicios Públicos en Austin, Texas, así como en cada municipalidad incorporada afectada que tenga servicio de Southwestern Bell Telephone Company. En el pasado, la Comisión ha sostenido que toda tarifa se halla sujeta a cambio toda vez que Southwestern Bell Telephone Company solicite nuevas tarifas. El registro de esta tarifa incluye, pero no en forma limitativa, las propuestas de aumentar las tarifas por servicios de centrales locales, de larga distancia intraLATA y por servicios de línea privada interLATA entre centrales (incluyendo servicios de centrales externas) así como las propuestas de reducir ciertas tarifas de servicio de acceso.

Aviso a los clientes de otras compañías de teléfono

El registro de esta tarifa incluye, pero no en forma limitativa, las propuestas de aumentar las tarifas por servicios de larga distancia intraLATA y por servicios de línea privada intraLATA entre centrales (incluyendo servicios de centrales externas) así como las propuestas de reducir ciertas tarifas de servicio de acceso. Los cambios en dichas tarifas también afectarían a los clientes de otras compañías de teléfono, puesto que dichas compañías proporcionan ciertos servicios de acuerdo con las tarifas especificadas en los aranceles tarifarios de Southwestern Bell Telephone Company.

Aviso a todos los clientes con respecto a los cargos de acceso y a determinados cargos nuevos de servicio

Al registrar esta tarifa, Southwestern Bell Telephone Company también propone reducir ciertas tarifas de acceso que se les cobran a clientes como AT&T Communications, Inc., MCI y otras compañías de larga distancia. La consecuente reducción de ingresos se piensa compensar por medio de dos cargos nuevos de servicio (cargos por pago atrasado que se aplicarían solamente a usuarios comerciales, y cargos por ciertos servicios de operadora, tales como verificación de línea ocupada) además de la estimulación de los ingresos por cargos por servicios de acceso. En vista de que, en caso de otorgarse esta parte del arancel tarifario registrado, su efecto real en los ingresos de Southwestern Bell Telephone Company sería igual a cero, ésta propone que la Comisión tramite dicha parte de la tarifa en forma expeditiva sin esperar la Orden Definitiva.

Todá persona que desee intervenir o participar en el presente proceso debe notificar a la Comisión lo antes posible. Las solicitudes de intervención, participación o información deben dirigirse a: Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. Para obtener mayor información debe llamar a Public Utility Commission Consumer Affairs Division, (512) 458-0223, o (512) 458-0227, o al (512) 458-0221 si requiere teletipo para personas con impedimentos de audición.

Nets get last laugh, avenge loss to Sixers, 125-120

Associated Press

The New Jersey Nets would like to meet Detroit rather than Philadelphia in the first round of the National Basketball Association playoffs, but first they had a score to settle with the 76ers.

"In the back of my mind was the last game when they pushed us the whole game and seemed to try to embarrass us," Micheal Ray Richardson said after the Nets defeated Philadelphia 76ers 125-100 Wednesday night. "We wanted to show them what it felt like."

Richardson, who had 27 points, 14 assists, seven steals and eight rebounds against the 76ers, was referring to a 127-107 rout Philadelphia pinned on the Nets on March 16.

Despite the decisive victory over the 76ers, New Jersey is hoping to avoid them in the first round of the playoffs.

If the Nets finish fifth in the Eastern Conference, they will face Detroit, whom they have beaten in five of six meetings this season. If New Jersey is sixth, the 76ers will be the first-round opponent.

"We're trying to approach every game with a playoff atmosphere," said Nets Coach Stan Albeck. "If we can come out and play with the same intensity in our last two games, everything else will fall into place."

Julius Erving, who missed seven of 10 shots and scored only nine points, said the loss to New Jersey would best be forgotten as soon as possible.

"Tonight's one to throw out," Erving said. "We didn't learn or accomplish anything. Now the pressure is on us to win the last two so we can control our own destiny."

The 76ers are tied with Milwaukee at 57-23 in the Eastern Conference standings. If they should meet in the second round, the team with the best record would have the home-court advantage.

The Nets hit 53 of 93 shots from the field, a 57 percent shooting percentage, in defeating Philadelphia for only the second time in six games this season.

Philadelphia, which defeated Boston at home on Tuesday, drew to within eight points on three occasions, but never got closer. New Jersey's biggest lead was 107-76 midway through the final period.

NBA Roundup

Bucks 106, Bullets 97

Milwaukee knocked Washington out of a fifth-place tie with New Jersey as Sidney Moncrief scored 27 points and Terry Cummings 23.

The Bucks, who won their 15th straight game at home, led 90-75 with 10 minutes left, but a 22-9 streak by the Bullets, who got 26 points from Greg Ballard, cut the deficit to two with 1:18 left.

Milwaukee scored the game's last seven points, however.

Clippers 129, Nuggets 127

Los Angeles got 29 points from Norm Nixon and survived a 27-2 Denver streak to beat the Nuggets.

The Clippers, who also got 26 points from Marques Johnson and 25 from Derek Smith, led 75-68 midway through the third quarter before the Nuggets' big run gave them a 95-77 advantage. An 8-0 run closed the gap to eight points at the end of the period and Los Angeles finally caught up with seven minutes left. But the Clippers did not take the lead for good until a three-point play by Johnson made it 125-124 with 43 seconds to go.

Alex English scored 38 points to lead the Nuggets.

Pistons 116, Pacers 114

Bill Laimbeer's last-second jumper gave Detroit its victory over Indiana and a sweep of the six-game season series.

Kelly Tripucka led the Pistons with 23 points, while Clark Kellogg had 31 points and 18 rebounds for the Pacers. Isiah Thomas had 16 assists for Detroit and needs only 11 in his last two games to break the single-season NBA record of 1,099.

Hawks 98, Knicks 94

Dominique Wilkins scored 27 points and helped Atlanta rally in the fourth period to hand New York its 10th straight loss.

The Knicks led 83-79 in the fourth period, but two free throws by Wilkins gave the Hawks the lead for good at 88-87.

Louis Orr paced the Knicks with 22 points.

ANGELS

"He hadn't thrown that many pitches," said Maddon. "And I really thought he might go seven innings. But Robideux opened the sixth with that triple off the wall in center and I knew he'd simply run out of gas all of a sudden."

The triple resulted in the go-ahead run when Jesus Alfaro hit a sacrifice fly to left off Suehr, who finally got the side out. But then he gave up three walks and a single while retiring only one in the seventh to set the stage for Psaltis' entrance and Robideux' home run.

The Diablos are counting on Robideux, Braggs and Joey Meyer for 100 home runs this year which they figure will make the club a contender. If the first two games are any indication, that figure isn't too ambitious a goal. They already have three home runs and Meyer hasn't even contributed.

Braggs was relatively Wednesday with three singles to give him six hits in eight trips. The only reason he didn't cause more damage was that Robideux kept beating him to the punch.

"They are swinging the bat good right now and we aren't, but we will," promised Maddon. "We started srping training a little later than some of the others but we'll catch up."

ANGEL RINGS: Shortstop Kevin Davis made the play of the game on Braggs' bouncer behind third in the eighth, although it went for a hit. He managed to glove the ball on the grass and it was a bouncer he never should have reached. He wound up in a rolling ball in the process and had no play...Bill Merrifield, a shortstop at Wake Forest, looks like a natural third baseman. He came up with three excellent defensive saves Wednesday and looked like a guy who had been playing the position for more than a year...The Alfaro playing third base for the Diablos is the same one who played shortstop for Midland a few years back...Lefthander Juan Nieves, 10-5 at Fort Stockton last year, will pitch for El Paso tonight against Midland's Bryan Price, 2-2 at Redwood...The Angels make their Midland debut at 2 p.m. Sunday...Angulo originally signed with Minnesota, but has been with the Angel organization the past two years and even got in a couple games in relief at Edmonton, PCL, last year...El Paso's second night crowd was 3,603, topping opening night's 2,038.

NATIONAL

A wild pitch by Dodger reliever Ken Howell allowed Houston's first run and Alan Ashby added two more with a single in the eight. The Astros pulled within a run in the ninth on a sacrifice fly by Phil Garner before Howe came on to end it.

"It was a test, I just said a little prayer and went to war," Howe said. "It's good to be back and get the first one. It's like I'd never been gone."

The Dodgers pinned the loss on starter Joe Niekro, who went into the game hampered by a cold.

"I didn't catch the flu, I think it caught me," Niekro said. "I didn't think I threw that badly."

Enos Cabell had his second three hit performance in as many nights.

Expos 4, Reds 1

Hubie Brooks drove in three runs and starter Bill Gullickson, battling a history of poor April performances, scattered four hits over seven innings to give the Montreal Expos a victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

Reds player-manager Pete Rose had a single in four at-bats, boosting his career total to 4,100 hits, 91 short of Ty Cobbs' all-time mark.

Gullickson, who had lost five consecutive April decisions since 1983, also singled home a run to get the victory in his first 1985 start. The right-hander, 0-2 in four April starts last year before finishing 12-9, struck out five and didn't walk a batter before giving way to Dan Schatzeder to open the eighth.

Padres 3, Giants 0

Eric Show, the right-handed ace of the National League champion San Diego Padres, struck out a career-high 11 batters and scattered four hits in a victory over the San Francisco Giants.

Show, whose previous strikeout high was eight, didn't allow a walk or a runner past second base and retired 13 consecutive batters between the first and fifth innings.

San Diego got the only run it needed in the first inning when Jerry Davis singled, reached second on an error and scored on Kevin McReynolds' single.

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Ignore those who try to get your goat and you will have the last laugh. Those who give into taunts lose. Better times lie just ahead. Consolidate recent gains and keep your eyes open for new opportunities. Productivity rises sharply in September. A business friendship pays lasting dividends. Romance shifts gears. Partner becomes more intense. Be honest about any doubts you may have. There is nothing wrong with seeking reassurance. CELEBRITY BIRTHDATES: "Late Night" host David Letterman, Lionel Hampton, singer-actor David Cassidy, dancer Ann Miller, actress Jane Withers, Tiny Tim, the California Angels' Jay Kibbe, statesman Henry Clay.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Look for other ways to add to the family's income before taking on a second job. Mate or partner is very inventive. A romantic relationship takes on new significance.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Events at home require your attention. Postpone travel until a more convenient time. The element of surprise works in your favor. Spend your spare time pursuing a favorite hobby. Encourage loved one's participation.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your family's financial security dominates your thoughts. Stop comparing your talents with a co-worker's. You have a new, unique opportunity to show what you can do. Accept the challenge!

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Adopt a new tactic toward a financial problem. Recycle old projects and materials whenever possible. Your creativity brings you new influence at work. Be honest with romantic partner.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Ask marital partner for more time; with his or her help, you could accomplish "impossible." Stop following the crowd and strike out on your own. Romance looks especially rewarding for singles.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A new investment could reap a bonanza. Working with other talented people spurs you to your best. A visiting relative offers unsolicited advice. If it sounds good, follow it!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Opposition wanes when higher-ups give you the go-ahead to launch a pet project. Use a lull at work to catch up on routine matters. Romance is fun but fleeting.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): More cash is available thanks to careful money management. A young person enters the romantic picture. Play a waiting game. He/she could soon make an exciting disclosure.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A close friend provides information that helps you solve a financial puzzle. What seems like harsh advice is actually common sense. Take off those rose-colored glasses for a moment. Romance deepens.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Financial matters deserve top priority now. Look behind the scenes for the answers you need. An older person is in your corner if you need help. Focus on a creative project.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Take advantage of an offer of financial help. You will need backing in order to launch a pet project. Member of opposite sex inspires you to take up a new cause.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Let things develop at their own pace. Have fun with the object of your affections but avoid pressing for a commitment. A tradition may awe you. Do not neglect your family obligations.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 NT	Pass	2 ◇	Pass
2 ♡	Pass	4 ♡	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ◇.

Here's a chance to test your technique. How would you plan to play four hearts by South after the lead of the king of diamonds?

North-South were using one of the more useful modern conventions, the Jacoby Transfer Bid. North's bid of two diamonds showed five cards or more in the next higher-ranking suit. South duly "corrected" to hearts, and North bid game.

Against four hearts, West made his natural lead of the king of diamonds. One line is to win, draw trumps and take two finesses in spades. That succeeds whenever East has one of the spade honors, which will occur about 76 percent of the time.

A better line is to hope to strip the minor suits and try for an end play. Suppose you win the ace of diamonds and ruff a diamond. Draw two rounds of trumps, ending in hand, and ruff the remaining diamond. East can foil this plan by winning the first club you concede and shifting to a spade. No matter what you do, you will have to surrender two spades and two clubs because East can win the second club and return another spade.

Winning technique is to combine the end play with a duck at trick one. Allow West to win the king of diamonds. Since he cannot continue diamonds without presenting declarer with a second trick in the suit, West must shift. Let's assume he leads a club. Win the ace, draw one round of trumps, then play the ace and jack of diamonds, discarding two clubs from the table.

On lead with the queen of diamonds, West's best defense is to return a trump. Win with the ten of trumps and ruff a club. Return to hand with a trump and ruff another club. Now run the jack of spades. West wins, but he must either give you a ruff-sluff or lead a spade into your combined tenace. Either way, you lose only two diamonds and a spade.

Jamie Farr stars on Hollywood's Walk of Fame

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actor Jamie Farr, the cigar-chomping, dress-wearing Cpl. Klinger on the television show "M-A-S-H," has been given the 1,802nd star on Hollywood's Walk of Fame.

Farr

About 200 fans attended the ceremony on Wednesday, including "M-A-S-H" co-star Mike Farrell and members of the more than 20 charities that Farr supports, said Monique Moss, spokeswoman for the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce.

Farr, 38, was originally hired for one day's work as a phony transvestite bucking for a Section 8 discharge, granted by the military to those considered mentally unstable.

But something about the way Farr chomped a cigar under lacey veils and exposed his hairy legs below a skirt clicked with the producers, who eventually signed him on as a regular.

His first film role was that of the mentally retarded student, Santini, in "The Blackboard Jungle." Television credits included appearances on the "The Red Skelton Show," "The Danny Kaye Show" and in "The Dick Van Dyke Show" before joining "M-A-S-H."

NEW YORK (AP) — Television news anchor David Brinkley, famous for his wry delivery and expertise in the field of politics, says his new five-year contract with ABC will be his last.

The announcement Wednesday by ABC dashed speculation that the 64-year-old newsman might return to NBC, where Brinkley worked until in 1981, to finish his distinguished career.

The new, five-year contract tacks onto the four-year agreement that expires this September, ABC said. Brinkley will continue to anchor the popular Sunday broadcast, "This Week With David Brinkley."

Brinkley said through a spokeswoman that this would be the last contract he would sign in his professional career.

He joined NBC News as a White House correspondent during the last Roosevelt administration in 1943. He has since reported on every other president.

GREECE, N.Y. (AP) — A $500 wardrobe will be given free to the first man who looks good in a pair of gray pants — size 76.

That's a waistline of 6 feet, 4 inches — the girth of a good-sized oak tree.

The tremendous trousers are a promotional gimmick for a clothing store for big, tall and short men that opened Friday in this Rochester suburb.

Finding a whole wardrobe to fit the winner will be difficult, but not impossible, said Paul Ascenzo, co-owner of the store.

"We can get it. There's a couple (manufacturers) that go that big," he said Saturday.

Ascenzo, a 25-year veteran of the clothing business, said opening the store fulfills a dream he has had for 10 years.

"The big, tall and short men have basically been discriminated against by the clothing industry," he said.

He said he wears size 44 suits even though he considers himself, truly, a size 40.

ST. CLOUD, Minn. (AP) — City officials weren't laughing over comedian Dan Aykroyd's latest film project. In fact, they said they didn't want any part of it.

Akroyd

"The scenes are terrible," said Mayor Sam Huston said after reading three pages of the script and deciding not to grant permission for the city water tower and police station to be used as sets.

"I don't think it would do a heck of a lot for the city of St. Cloud. They can do anything they want. They can film here. I can't stop them, but I don't have to facilitate them."

"Datenight," produced by Aykroyd, 32, depicts teen-agers spending a Saturday night in a typical town. Scenes planned include a police officer shining a flashlight on a man's bare bottom in a car and a character vomiting, the mayor said.

"Go Spartans" would be painted on the water tower, said Dan O'Connell, director of the Chamber of Commerce in this city of 42,000.

Sue Wilson, a production coordinator, said filming of the Columbia Pictures movie begins next week in Chicago and no decision has been made on whether to use St. Cloud as a location without cooperation by the officials.

HOBOKEN, N.J. (AP) — Ecuadorian President Leon Febres Cordero won an educational promotion during his trip to the United States to promote his country's economy.

Stevens Institute of Technology presented Febres Cordero, 53, with an honorary doctorate in engineering Wednesday in a ceremony attended by many other members of the Class of 1953.

"The degree which I have received today I take back to my country with sincere pride and satisfaction," he told a luncheon crowded with classmates, security men and a troop of Ecuadorian reporters.

"In this educational environment I spent a very important part of my life."

The Ecuadorian chief executive is on a nine-day trip to the United States and Cuba. He met Tuesday with Vice President George Bush for the New York Mets opening game.

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — West Virginia claims Kentucky started the hostilities by adopting a tourism slogan that proclaimed "Oh! Kentucky ... just a little bit of heaven."

A shameless theft, said West Virginia Treasurer A. James Manchin, whose state's unofficial slogan of "Almost heaven" derives from the 1971 John Denver song "Country Roads."

Robert Davis, director of Kentucky's Department of Travel Development, picked up the gauntlet, saying he had learned that Denver was referring to western portions of Virginia — NOT West Virginia.

"While we are keeping our guard," Davis wrote Manchin, "we shall present to you, within the week, tangible proof that heaven is right here in Kentucky, and that anyone who would visit here would discover their own 'little bit of heaven,' as our jingle says."

That proof, Davis said, will be delivered to Manchin by a man in a Kentucky Colonel's regalia and white suit — bearing a bottle of Heaven Hill bourbon.

DETROIT (AP) — Officers investigating the disappearance of drugs from the police department's evidence room tried to lure the suspect with marijuana, and the crook was caught like a mouse in a trap — literally.

"We got him while he was on his way to some marijuana," said Capt. Ray Wilhelm of the Waterford Township Police Department.

Marauding mice in the evidence room apparently have taken a liking to pot and cocaine, nibbling through plastic and manila envelopes to get at the drugs, Wilhelm said.

One mouse was a victim of traps set earlier this week, he said. "They seem to be partial to the marijuana."

Diabetic has 'real good time' at Lions camp

By RON GILMORE
Staff Writer

Waterfights on the lake, big, hearty breakfasts and homesick letters are memories that stick with most children who spent time at summer camps.

But most don't remember learning how to give insulin shots.

Deana Barnes does.

For the past two summers she has attended special camps for the handicapped and the diabetic sponsored by the Texas Lions League. The camps, held three miles south of Kerrville on 540 acres of Texas hill country, has all the basics of a summer camp — bunkhouses, dormitories, a cafeteria, infirmary, arts and crafts building, tennis courts, archery and rifle ranges — and, oh yes, paved pathways and ramps for the wheelchair-bound.

Without the ramps, Deana would have a difficult time getting into the dorms to show her friends how she learned to give insulin. She has had cerebral palsy and epilepsy since early childhood and is in a wheelchair.

"She was premature — one of a set of twins," said her mother, Linda. "They were seven weeks premature and her brother only lived a couple of hours." Ms. Barnes also has another set of twins, age 16.

Although Deana has more than her share of handicaps, Ms. Barnes believes that the camps have helped her 13-year-old daughter.

"She went to the camp for crippled children the first two years," she said. "At first, she didn't like it because she had never been away from home and it was two weeks long.

"But last year she was the only handicapped child at the diabetic camp and she seemed to have a real good time," she said. "One of the counselors was in a wheelchair and I think that helped some. After a week, she was going around showing the others how to give insulin shots."

Being around other children with similar problems is important, said Ms.Barnes.

"You can't believe the difference it makes. They talk about diet, exercise and what is wrong with their bodies — a lot of the kids from the Cerebral Palsey Center go to the camp."

Kent Porter/Reporter-Telegram

Deana Barnes, 13, daughter of Linda Barnes of Midland, shows off a T-shirt from the Lions Club summer camp program for handicapped and diabetic children. Deana, a student at the Cerebral Palsey Center, has attended the camp for the past three summers.

The center has been Deana's only school.

"She has always gone there," said Ms. Barnes. "She has a lot of learning disablities but she has made a lot of progress this year."

The camps, for crippled, blind, deaf and diabetic children (ages 7 through 16), were first opened in 1953, when the Texas Lions League held a summer camp for 40 children.

Today, thousands of children attend the camps and it is one of the largest educational and recreational programs in the Unites States for disabled persons.

Commissoners deny clerk for JP

Witnesses testify to Sprayberry's success rate in bad check cases

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Justice of the Peace Charlie Sprayberry didn't get his way on a hot-check issue and got squashed in another court.

But he had support, evidence and willing witnesses.

He wanted another full-time clerk to help in the processing of "worthless checks."

But the Midland County Commissioners' Court in a closed executive session on Wednesday denied the request despite Sprayberry's pleas that he needs more help and despite merchants' testimonials that he's scoring an 80 percent success rate in converting "worthless checks" to cash by having warrants served to the writers of bad checks by deputy constables and sheriffs.

John Marshall of Sears, Roebuck & Co.'s management in Midland said that Sprayberry has an "80 percent collection rate" as opposed to the County Attorney's 10 to 15 percent rate. "To me, it's dollars and cents," he said.

"It's a growing problem."

"The County Attorney's hot-check office I no longer use," Marshall said. "I know the county attorney (Mark Dettman) is concerned. Judge Sprayberry gets on top of it, and gets the job done."

Representatives of apartment complexes in Midland also backed Sprayberry's efforts to get an additional clerk, whose salary, Sprayberry later said, would be about $13,500 a year.

Randy Linton of the management of the Wal-Mart department store here said his store "hasn't gotten good results at all" with Dettman's office.

"Our bad-check collection has increased dramatically" under Sprayberry's supervision, he said.

Marshall said each month the store gets about $3,500 in hot checks, collects about $1,000 and turns the rest over to Sprayberry. Wal-Mart's hot checks average between $2,500 and $3,500 a month, Linton said.

Dettman said his office's collection rate averages about 60 percent.

"I realize that we're behind," he said, "but we're going to get it straightened out" when the hot-check office becomes computerized within a month.

"We've had problems. We're backlogged," Dettman said. "It's a problem. I'm not going to deny that."

Since the first of the year, Dettman's office has collected $50,000 of $84,000 in hot checks — checks returned to merchants due to insufficient funds or because of closed accounts.

"We're not doing as good as we should," Dettman said. "We should be doing a lot better...I hope the computer will bring it up."

Unlike Sprayberry, Dettman has the power to prosecute beyond the maximum $200 fine which the justice of the peace can access on "worthless-check" cases.

Dettman noted that if Sprayberry got a $50,000 hot check filed under the worthless-check statute, then Sprayberry could collect a maximum $200 fine were the check-writer to plea guilty and "that would be the end of the case."

There would be no wedge to persuade the defendant to make restitution, Dettman noted.

Were it not for the worthless-check statute, Sprayberry's jurisdiction on hot checks would be restricted to a maximum of $20.

But under the theft statute, the county attorney can prosecute on check cases ranging up to $750, and the county court could impose a fine of up to $2,000 and a one-year jail sentence and could order probation coupled with restitution.

Theft cases involving more than $750 may be prosecuted by the District Attorney Al Schorre and could involve probation, restitution, fines and penitentiary sentences.

As did Dettman, Sprayberry said he's "behind."

"We don't have the personnel to keep up with the amount of work that's coming in," Sprayberry said. He said the amount of checks on which restitution is sought through his office has ranged from $1.48 to $1,500.

Sprayberry said he had no records of how many checks he processes each year or the amount of restitution effected through his efforts.

He was not critical of the commissioners' declining the funding for another clerk.

"The commissioners control the purse strings," he said. "I work for the public."

Commissioner Win Brown noted that the commissioners "can't make comments" on the Sprayberry matter, for it was handled in a closed executive session. "There was no action taken."

Sprayberry said he felt "the need was shown for an additional clerk."

Nevertheless, he said the Commissioners' Court "is making a conscientious effort" prudently to spend funds and to ensure that the taxpayers' get their money's worth.

Shop sells items liquidated by FDIC

By MARK LEWIS
Staff Writer

The candles sit clustered on the counter, row upon row of them. From simple table candles to elaborately carved cats, cacti, owls and armadilloes, an empire of scented wax awaits the thrifty consumer at Don Hargrove's Liquidation Center, 2304 N. Big Spring.

There's also a rack of bridal gowns, an assortment of footballs and baseball bats, and a pair of Puma basketball shoes, size 15.

"The shoes went pretty quick," says Hargrove, a Midland businessman who opened the center in January. "Men's suits went real fast."

Hargrove takes consumer goods on consignment and sells them for about half the retail price, and his main supplier is an unlikely addition to the ranks of local wholesalers: the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

"We liquidate to the public for them," Hargrove says. "We work on a pure commission basis. I pay the rent — nobody here works for the FDIC."

Gene Shrode is section chief of property management for the FDIC in Midland, but candles and bridal gowns aren't the sort of property he's used to managing.

"This is new to me, but it's the same principle — the law of supply and demand works the same if you're talking about drilling rigs or candles," he says.

Shrode's job is to liquidate property received by the FDIC from failing businesses, "But we get stuff like this candle shop which we can't sell at an auction," he says. "We were looking for a way to market it, and we felt like by doing this we could get more money on the dollar."

Cody Bell/Reporter-Telegram

Not every item taken by the FDIC in lieu of debt payment winds up on the auction block. This assortment of carved candles is available at 50 percent off at the Liquidation Center.

Small consumer goods usually bring only about 15 cents on the dollar at an auction, but they return about 50 cents when retailed through Hargrove, even though most items are sold at about 50 percent of the retail price.

PBRPC board favors grant application

From Staff Reports

The board of directors of the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission gave favorable comment Wednesday to a $423,190 grant application from the City of Midland to the Federal Aviation Administration to build a new taxiway at Midland Regional Airport.

"It's in the southeast quadrant of the airport," said Jon Mathiason, assistant director of aviation for administration and development. "It'll give Tiger Charter a first-class taxiway over on their side of the airport, which they desperately need due to increased business."

The city will put up $54,702 for the project, which Mathiason said will begin construction in May and take about nine months to complete. Lights will be added to the taxiway in about a year when more FAA funds are available, he added.

In other action, the board gave favorable comment to:

— the appointments of Liz O'Daniel of Midland and Natalie Rothstein of Odessa to the Regional Alcohol and Drug Abuse Advisory Council;

— resolutions for continuation funding for the Alcohol and Drug Abuse Council, the Permian Basin Center for Battered Women and Their Children, the Clover House half-way house for drug abusers, and the Permian Basin Mental Health and Mental Retardation's Johnson Center;

Stolen property worth $2,100 recovered, crime statistics show

From Staff Reports

Monthly statistics released this week indicate $2,100 in stolen property was confiscated during March, four suspects were arrested and five cases were cleared.

No details on the recovery of the $2,100 in stolen oil field equipment have been released because the case is still under investigation, according to Sgt. David Cobos, Midland Crime Stoppers coordinator.

However, information about the four suspects who were arrested was listed in the monthly reports, which indicated 95 calls were received in March, 38 files were made and two rewards were paid for a total of $330.

Crime Stoppers received a tip March 12 that a couple wanted for theft of more than $750 worth of items was living in Lewisville. On March 27, the two were taken into custody.

Gary McKinzie was wanted on two counts of felony theft and Lynette McKinzie was wanted on one count of theft, reports said.

A tip was received March 19 about a man wanted for violation of parole given for driving while intoxicated. According to the caller, David James Dickey was staying in a local apartment complex. Investigator Tim Rogers and Sgt. Benny Fishback of the Midland County Sheriff's Department Warrant Division and Investigator Jim Newson of Criminal Investigation Division investigated the tip and were able to obtain the exact apartment number. The suspect was taken into custody March 22.

That same day, information about a fugitive who was living in Big Spring was received. Although no warrants were found on the man, Will Ross, the caller said Ross was indentified as Demetrius L. Elkins in a picture that ran March 18 in a Crime Stopper's wanted item in the newspaper.

Crime Stoppers Assistant Coordinator John Hudson contacted Big Spring police, who went to the location given by the informant. There they spoke to Willie Albert Ross, who later was determined to be wanted in Dallas County for burglary.

Elkins, however, is still avoiding arrest on two counts of aggravated robbery with a deadly weapon and those with knowledge of his whereabouts are urged to contact Crime Stoppers.

Commissioners going about jail problem all wrong

The approach to the Midland County Jail issue has been blinded. And no wonder it's a dilemma. No proposal for a new jail or a renovated jail really seems desirable because just about no one really wants a jail. At least, no one to my knowledge has volunteered to pay for it. From time to time, the county commissioners have suggested that the taxpayers foot the bill. But they — the taxpayers — haven't evidenced any enthusiasm in that regard.

Where is their sense of civic duty?

Where the commissioners went wrong was not asking the right people what they wanted in a jail. Did they ask the patrons, the jail liveins? No. Did they accord the barred denizens, those unfortunate clientele ingloriously called "inmates" and "prisoners," the courtesy of asking their views?

No.

Where is their respect for their fellow human beings?

Now, if the commissioners or even the jail architects and the sheriff had to spend a few weeks or months in the jail, I suspect they'd want some considerations. They'd have some suggestions.

What the commissioners did wrong was to talk to specialized "outsiders" — those who have expertise in jail management and construction but who have no "hard time" within the confines of a jail or penitentiary.

They went to the wrong people. That's like going to a foot doctor when your head is aching.

They went to the Texas Commission on Jail Standards after the Jail Commissioners came after them and dutifully solicited their suggestions. They have been apprised of what the federal government would like to see in jails: equality, humanity and the Constitution and Old Glory etched in each cell. They looked into new and old jails and pondered what to do.

And when they proposed something, like they did a couple of years ago, what few voters bothered to vote rejected the idea of a new jail and renovated courthouse. And when the commissioners tried to bypass the voters this year to raise funds to build a new jail, a small but vocal group of citizens protested and squashed that notion.

And now, once again, the commissioners are turning to the mercy of the electorate. They're asking the voters to decide if they want the old jail patched up nicely as a stop-gap measure or if they want to spend several million dollars more on a new jail apart from the courthouse.

Now, what do the voters know about building or operating a jail? Practically nothing. How many of them have earned the privilege of being holed up in a jail. Few, but don't ask. What does the sheriff or the jailers know about being locked up and not having the option of getting out? The Jail Commissioners don't have the first-hand experience of being arrested, booked in, and jailed like a "common criminal." Had they, it's unlikely they would have been appointed to the state agency on jails to get the accord of noble men and women.

Similarly, did the Midland Chamber of Commerce's Jail Task Force have the expertise to decide on a jail? The Task Force was made up of respectable citizens. How many of them have jail files and criminal records to attest to their qualifications and their experience behind bars?

The wrong people have been hailed as experts.

The people to ask are those with the experience and the know-how: the inmates.

The county commissioners would be well advised to interview the past and present jail inmates to solicit their suggestions. Get testimonials. Go to the credible sources. Inmates know what's going on, how they got in jail, and probably have a few suggestions on how their stay could be made more pleasant, more comfortable and more rewarding. They might know how to get out. Better yet, they might suggest what the taxpayers really want to hear: "You don't have to pay for a new or renovated jail in the first place."

Who needs a jail?

Midlanders arrested on charges of unauthorized use of vehicle

By HALLYE JORDAN
Staff Writer

Four men and two women were arrested Wednesday night after the Midland County Constable's Office served warrants at a westside residence occupied by members of a Midland motorcycle gang.

Arrested on charges of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle were Jerry Ray Murphy Sr., 40, and Larry J. Murphy, 38, both of 500 Spraberry. Also arrested on the charges were Ronnie Cale Murphy, 29, of County Road 1221, and Kenneth Dale Kuykendall, 33, of Houston, who apparently has been living in Midland.

The four members of the "Murphy Gang" were outside the Spraberry residence in a 1982 Pontiac Grand Prix, reported stolen April 1 from Jack Ariedge Oldsmobile-Cadillac in Odessa, when they were arrested, according to Midland County Constable Tom McGinnis.

Odessa police had given Midland County a description of the suspects, according to McGinnis, who said they fit the descriptions of the tatooed-Murphys.

"Those boys didn't know where to start looking, but as soon as we got the description, we knew exactly where to start," McGinnis said.

While the two older Murphys laid head-to-head on their stomachs with their hands handcuffed behind their backs in the front yard, about eight other members of the gang stood on the front porch drinking beer and shouting encouragement to the brothers.

At the consent of the Murphys, officers with the Midland constable's office, police department and sheriff's office and Odessa police officers were at the scene for about an hour searching the house for a woman wanted on charges of aggravated robbery.

The woman is suspected of aiding in the theft of a $350 television set March 6 from the La Quinta Motor Inn, 4130 W. Wall. During the incident, a motel employee trying to stop a "get-away" car was run over by another alleged member of the Murphy Gang, which increased the offense from a burglary to an aggravated robbery.

The employee was treated at Midland Memorial Hospital for a non-displaced fracture of the right elbow, according to police reports.

The alleged driver of the car, 17-year-old Shelly Rene Myers, was apprehended later at a West Wall Avenue restaurant. She was charged with aggravated robbery after motel employees identified her and bail was set at $50,000.

Although Ms. Myers' alleged accomplice was not found at the Murphy residence, traffic warrants were served on two other women at the scene.

Terri Kaufman, 27, of Route 2 Box 181-A, was taken to the city jail, where she was released after paying a $120 fine.

Another woman, a 23-year-old unemployed bartender, remained this morning in city jail on a $60 bond for traffic violations. She was expected to be arraigned today.

Lawmakers can't agree on water plan

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — For the second night in a row, lawmakers on a House-Senate conference committee could not agree on provisions for the protection of coastal bays and estuaries to be contained in a statewide water plan.

The 10-member committee, created to forge a compromise water package for the state after the House and Senate passed different versions of a water plan, spent most of the meeting arguing over what state agency should be in charge of ongoing studies of bays and estuaries to determine water needs.

"There seems to be quite a rivalry as to which one is (to be) the lead agency," said Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, who co-chairs the committee with Rep. Tom Craddick, R-Midland.

Under the Senate version of the plan, the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department is the lead agency, but the House version places the Texas Department of Water Resources in charge of the studies. Environmentalists pushed for the parks department to head the studies, maintaining that agency will be more aware of the needs of the coastal habitats such as shrimp and shellfish.

But House members say the Texas Department of Water Resources has more resources and is better equipped to conduct the studies than the parks department. "There's no evidence the (parks) department has done anything in the past to warrant us turning over the studies," said Craddick, who told disagreeing senators the TDWR has a much larger staff and budget necessary for the work.

Police recover vehicles stolen in separate incidents

From Staff Reports

A motorcycle and a car, stolen in separate incidents, were recovered Wednesday, according to city police reports.

Hans Erwin Zelisko, 3212 W. Wadley Apt. 127, told police his 1978 Yamaha 250 was stolen from the parking lot of his apartment between 8 p.m. Tuesday and 7:45 p.m. Wednesday. While officers were writing reports on the theft, they were notified the motorcycle had been located in Eastland by members of the Eastland County Sheriff's Ofice.

A Mulberry Street resident called police Wednesday afternoon to check on a new 1985 Cadillac parked at the corner of Mulberry and Lincoln. Police said the keys were in the car, which still had a warm motor.

Berg Motor Co. sales manager B.L. Jennings and sales representative C.L. Tucker told police the car was from their lot at 3205 W. Wall, reports said. The two said they had not realized it was missing until notified by police.

A tool worth $940 was reported stolen from a pickup parked in the fenced yard of J&S Electric, 3216 Commercial. According to reports, the tamp was taken at an undetermined time from a 1985 Dodge pickup.

Jim Tiffton, 2601 N. A St., Apt. 238, told police the tailgate from his 1978 GMC pickup was stolen while the vehicle was parked at the Thornwood Apartments between 7 p.m. March 8 and 8 p.m. Tuesday. The tailgate was valued at $200, reports said.

Dorcas Grimes, 209 N. Jackson, told police a purse was stolen from a 1976 Cadillac while it was parked at 422 E. Pecan at 10:45 a.m. Wednesday. Total loss was placed at $260, reports said.

Lawsuit filed in woman's death

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — A lawsuit alleging gross negligence has been filed in 244th District Court in connection with the Oct. 24, 1984 death of a 27-year-old woman who was struck by a car while walking along West U.S. Highway 80, near FM 866 west of Odessa.

January Lynn Thompson was struck by a vehicle driven by Johnny Lee Brooks of Monahans about 11:25 p.m., the suit contends, and she was pronounced dead about an hour later by Ector County Peace Justice Manuel Valles.

The suit was filed by Odessa attorney Bill Alexander on behalf of the woman's parents, Isaac R. Thompson of Levelland and Carolyn F. Pearson of Cottonwood, Ariz., and seeks unspecified damages that "exceed the jurisdictional limits of the court."

The suit alleges Brooks failed to keep a proper lookout, failed to brake his vehicle, was speeding, took no evasive action, was driving on an improved shoulder, failed to stay in marked lanes and was operating his vehicle with no lighted headlights.

DPS reports indicated Brooks apparently was having electrical difficulties and was driving partially on the roadway and on the shoulder of the road.

The young woman carried no identification and was not identified for several days after the accident.

Taiwan not ignored

House passes compensation bill

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — A bill which sets compensation for directors of water power control districts at a maximum of $50 per day has been passed by the Texas House of Representatives without objection on the local and consent calendar.

House Bill 1577, introduced by Rep. Larry Don Shaw, D-Big Spring, states a director is "entitled to receive compensation of not more than $50 a day for each day the director spends performing the duties" of the office. The measure also provides for reimbursement "for actual expenses incurred in performing the duties of director."

The bill now goes to the Texas Senate for consideration. If passed by the Legislature, the provision would take effect Sept. 1.

"It gives the average person in the community a chance to buy some of this stuff at discount rates," said Shrode. "We're trying to get the best recovery we can for the debtor, and we feel like this is an innovative method to do it."

Athletic supplies are big now at the center — catcher's masks, umpire's chest protectors, and running shorts and T-shirts by the dozens. These items are sold in bulk to school systems, girls' softball leagues, etc., but they're also available off the rack at the center to anyone who needs, say, a five-pound iron weight, or a pair of tube socks, or some size-15 basketball shoes.

When the athletic gear is gone, some entirely different type of merchandise may replace it, depending on what kind of failing retail stores are making the contributions. Hargrove hopes the bridal gowns will start moving better, "since we're just going into the wedding season," but the candle market can absorb only so much at a time, so the smell of scented wax will probably linger at the Liquidation Center for months to come.

"I've gotten used to it," says Hargrove, "But the first two or three days, it'd knock you down."

Smoking clinic planned

The American Cancer Society has scheduled a Freshstart clinic to begin at 7 p.m. Monday. The Freshstart program is designed to help people stop smoking and to stay off cigarettes. The program consists of four one-hour, small-group sessions.

The focus of the program is to make stopping smoking a positive and successful experience. A trained instructor will help you to focus and strengthen your efforts and commitment. For registration information, call the American Cancer Society at 683-6374.

CAMP

"The camp is free to the children," said Bill Moler, of the Midland Lions Club. "We are looking for qualified children who would benefit from the camping experience."

The Lions Club will be holding a "family night" 7:30 p.m. today at the Southside Lions Club, 111 E. New York, to inform parents and children of the camp.

"Last year we had around 32 children go to the camp," said Wayne Word, a Lions Club member. "The meeting will just be a chance for those who have never been to talk with those who have gone."

The camp requires a medical check-up, said Word, and while it is encouraged that parents take their children to the camp, transportation can be arranged.

Hazing crime, not prank, student testifies

Cobb

AUSTIN (AP) — Hazing of high school and college students is a crime, not a prank, and should be treated as such, state lawmakers have been told.

Testifying before the Senate Education Committee on Wednesday, University of Texas student Scott Cobb reminded lawmakers that Texas A&M cadet Bruce Goodrich, 20, died last August after being forced to do rigorous "motivational exercises."

"Texas A&M foisted all the blame for Goodrich's death on the three juniors who actually conducted the hazing. The real fault lies not with the students carrying on tradition... it lies with the system that told them everyone did it and everyone has always done it," Cobb said.

Sen. Gonzalo Barrientos, D-Austin, has introduced a bill that would increase penalties for hazing by students and expand anti-hazing laws to cover alumni.

"It's not my intent to limit the good times of being in college or school. It's my intent to save someone from suffering or dying or suffering permanent injury," Barrientos said.

His bill defines as hazing activities subjecting a student to physical brutality or extreme mental stress, or requiring him to break the law.

It would be punishable by a $500 to $1,000 fine, 90 to 180 days in jail or both. If injury results, the maximum punishment would be a $5,000 fine and a year in jail. If a student dies, the penalty would be up to a $10,000 fine and two years in jail.

Current law calls for a $50 to $250 fine and up to 90 days in jail.

Barrientos' bill would send "a strong signal to the fraternities and the Corps of Cadets at Texas A&M that they will have to change or face the possibility of joining a new fraternity at the county jail," Cobb said.

Sen. Kent Caperton, D-Bryan, questioned whether the bill, which was sent to a subcommittee for study, is needed.

"We don't want to overreact legislatively," he said. "What we do when we overreact is we catch up a lot of things that aren't really crimes and make them criminal.

"The problem is when our communities tolerate hazing. The laws are sufficiently strong in my opinion today if there's tough prosecution, and if juries in those communities where these kinds of activities go on are willing to live up to their responsibility and assess the punishment that may indeed fit the crime," Caperton said.

Eric Webber, director of fraternities at UT, said the current law is outdated.

"To my knowledge, there's never been anyone prosecuted under the current law," Webber said. "It's really vague. It involves terms like 'blighting the courage' of someone. You very rarely get someone who approaches a legal authority today and says his courage has been blighted."

Viticulture and theology are two topics scheduled to be addressed Monday and Tuesday during Midland College's annual Free Enterprise Lecture Series.

Keith Wiseman will speak Monday on the "Development of the Grape and Wine Industry in Texas." Father Joseph Schley Jr., rector of St. Nicholas' Episcopal Church, will speak Tuesday on "Theological Foundations of Free Enterprise."

Both lectures will be presented at 7:30 p.m. in the Allison Fine Arts Building auditorium. The public is invited to attend.

Host families needed

International Student Exchange is offering an opportunity to families throughout the United States to meet the world face to face.

The organization is seeking families to host foreign students this summer and for the upcoming school year.

Each participating student is between the ages of 15 and 19 and would reside as a family member while attending classes at local high schools.

For information, write the International Student Exchange at P.O. Box 58, Fort Jones, Calif. 96032; or phone (916) 468-2264.

Grape growers honor UT official

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — A University of Texas System official has been honored by the Texas Grape Growers Association for outstanding leadership in the growing Texas wine industry.

Billy Carr, manager of the University Lands Surface Interests office of the UT System, was recognized for work which led to the planting of 1,000 acres of grapes — one-third of the total grape acreage in the state.

Carr's leadership also led to the building of a major winery by the Ste. Genevieve Vineyards, which over the next several years, is expected to produce more than 50 percent of all wine produced in Texas, according to the UT System.

The Texas Grape Growers Association honored Carr with the Louis F. Qualia award, which is given annually to individuals making outstanding contributions to the wine industry in Texas. Qualia, now deceased, was owner of Val Verde Winery in Del Rio for many years.

Carr has worked for the UT System since 1956, and as manager of the University Lands Surface Interests office since 1963.

There will be 14 weekly Trivia Games beginning Monday March 18th and ending Saturday June 22nd 1985. A total of $2,800.00 will be awarded to first place winners over the 14 weeks Additionally, 2nd and 3rd prizes will be awarded weekly.

2) Questions for each weekly Trivia Game will be broadcast over AM 1510 KMND Radio at least 4 times per day on the half-hour Monday through Friday, between the hours of 6:00 AM and 6:00 P.M. Each question will be read at least two times during the week. The entire set of ten (10) questions each week will have been broadcast over AM 1510 KMND Radio by 6:00 PM Thursday.

3) Questions for each week's game will be numbered from 1 (one) to 10 (ten). The answer to each numbered question must be PRINTED or TYPED on the correspondingly numbered answer line in the official Midland Reporter-Telegram AM 1510 KMND Radio Trivia Game entry form for that week. Each weeks official entry form will be published Monday, Tuesday and Thursday in the Midland Reporter-Telegram. Hand drawn facsimilies of the entire official entry form also will be acceptable, but machine duplicated copies are prohibited.

4) Contestants may submit multiple entry forms each week. However, each entry form must be mailed postage paid to the designated address in a separate envelope with the number of the weekly game marked in the lower left hand corner of the envelope on the address side. Envelopes must be postmarked by midnight Friday of each week, and be received at the contest address by 2:00 PM of the following Tuesday to be eligible for the weekly drawing.

5) The $200.00 first prize will be awarded to the entrant with all 10 questions answered correctly each week. In the case of more than one entry with all 10 answers correct, a drawing will be held. 2nd and 3rd prizes will be awarded to the next 2 entrants with the most correct answers respectively. Again, in the case of more than one entry form with all 10 correct answers, drawings will be held to determine the 2nd and 3rd prize winners. In the case of no entrants with all 10 correct answers, the prizes will be awarded to those with the most correct answers respectively.

6) Correct answers to each weeks Trivia Game Questions will be broadcast twice on AM 1510 KMND Radio Saturday morning between 6:00 AM and Noon. Trivia Game questions and answers will also be published in the Midland Reporter-Telegram each Sunday. Weekly winners will be announced by both AM 1510 KMND Radio and the Midland Reporter-Telegram each Wednesday.

7) It is not necessary to purchase the Midland Reporter-Telegram to play the Trivia Game. Copies of the MRT are available for free examination at the Midland Reporter-Telegram 201 East Illinois and the Midland County Public Library.

8) All winners must sign a release form acknowledging that both the Midland Reporter-Telegram and AM 1510 KMND shall have the right to publish, publicize, and broadcast his/her name, picture, voice and the fact that he/she won the cash or prize. If a winner is a minor, a parent or guardian must sign a minor's release form prior to the prize being awarded. Winners are responsible for all taxes incurred on prize.

9) NO POSTAGE MACHINE CANCELLED ENVELOPES WILL BE ACCEPTED. Only entries bearing the correct postage and cancelled by the U.S. Postal service or entries hand delivered to the contest address by 6 a.m. Saturday will be accepted.

10) Judges decisions will be final in any interpretation of the rules of his game. Employees of the Midland Reporter-Telegram, Bakcor braodcasting and members of their immediate families are ineligible.

11) The Grand prize, a 4 night cruise on the Mississippi River on the Delta Queen or Mississippi Queen departing and returning to New orleans including round trip air travel to New Orleans. The winner will be chosen in a drawing at the conclusion of the 14 week trivia game. All weekly 1st, 2nd and 3rd prize winners will be entered in the grand prize drawing.

Lorimar makes bid for Multimedia Inc.

CULVER CITY, Calif. (AP) — Lorimar Corp., the creator of television's "Dallas," "Falcon Crest" and "Knots Landing," hopes to acquire Multimedia Inc., a broadcasting and newspaper publishing company, for $1.02 billion.

The cash purchase proposal Wednesday came one day after Multimedia's board approved an offer from its own management to buy the company for cash and notes worth about $53.25 per share, or $890 million.

Lorimar proposed payment of $61 for each share of the Greenville, S.C.-based Multimedia.

Last week, Multimedia management and members of its four founding families rejected an unsolicited $60-per-share proposal by Wesray Inc., a New Jersey investment firm headed by former U.S. Treasury Secretary William Simon.

Multimedia officials said Simon's proposal was turned down because it was conditioned upon selling the company's 13 daily and 30 non-daily newspapers. The officials indicated they don't want the company dismembered.

Lorimar officials haven't discussed liquidation of Multimedia's assets, said Lorimar spokeswoman Carol Henry.

Multimedia also owns and operates five television and 12 radio stations, operates more than 100 cable television franchises in four states and produces and syndicates television programs, including the "Phil Donahue Show."

Lorimar, which was founded 16 years ago and has enjoyed a long series of hit TV shows including "Dallas," "Knot's Landing" and "Falcon Crest," has been hunting for acquisitions outside its primary field for more than a year.

It made its first venture outside entertainment in August 1983.

Dollar falls

LONDON (AP) — The dollar fell today against all major currencies in early European trading, depressed by what one dealer called "too much bad news" from U.S. economic indicators. Gold prices rose.

"There's just too much bad news coming out of the United States making it too dangerous to go long on the dollar, so people are going short," said a Frankfurt dealer.

In Tokyo, where trading ends before it begins in Europe, the dollar dropped one yen from Wednesday's late price to close at 253.90 yen. The dollar fell further in late European trading and was quoted at 252.80 yen.

In London, the dollar eased against the British pound which cost $1.2352 in early trading, more expensive than $1.2225 late Wednesday.

Gold opened in London at $327.40 bid a troy ounce, up from $326.50 late Wednesday and rose in later trading. London's five major bullion houses set the mid-morning "fixing" at $329.

In Zurich, gold opened at $328.10 bid, up from $326.50 late Wednesday, and was quoted mid-morning at $328.60 bid.

Silver was quoted in London at $6.67 bid an ounce, compared with $6.705 late Wednesday.

In Hong Kong, gold closed at $328.57 bid an ounce, up $5.43 from Wednesday.

Group calls off Mobil boycott

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Fleet Reserve Association has called off a nationwide boycott of the Mobil Corp. after the company agreed to publish the group's response to a controversial advertisement in newspapers around the country.

The association, which has as members 167,000 career enlisted men and women in the Navy, Marines and Coast Guard, launched the boycott campaign last month because of an ad placed by Mobil that included an attack on food commissaries.

Robert W. Nolan, the association's national executive secretary, had called on all military personnel with Mobil gas credit cards to cut their cards in half. The boycott has now been canceled because Mobil offered to publish the complete text of the association's rebuttal in every publication where the original ad appeared.

"Mobil's offer is generous and equitable," Nolan said in a prepared statement Wednesday. "It assured that the enlisted viewpoint on military commissaries was placed before the American public. We have initiated action to cease and desist our protest program."

Mobil, known for its outspokenness on public issues, touched off the controversy with an advertisement that first appeared in Time magazine on Feb. 4 under the headline: "How do we get out of this mess?"

The ad went on to spotlight some of the suggestions of President Reagan's Private Sector Survey on Cost Control — better known as the Grace Commission — for cutting government waste and inefficiency. The government could save hundreds of millions of dollars by closing subsidized food commissaries for military personnel, the ad said.

The ad then recounted how military commissaries were established in 1825 to serve isolated forts in the West, but are now spread throughout the country and require operating subsidies totaling $750 million a year.

The Fleet Reserve Association immediately expressed outrage, complaining about the ad's tone as well as its accuracy.

"Commissaries are not subsidized to the tune of $750 million a year," Nolan said at the time. "The subsidy for fiscal 1985 is $618 million and that subsidy was reduced from fiscal 1984's subsidy of $645 million.

"Furthermore, the closing of commissaries would fall the hardest on the junior enlisted personnel and their families ... with limited food budgets. And since when is food a luxury?"

The response published at Mobil's expense makes the same points, reiterating that commissaries sell only food and not luxuries. It further asserts the commissary system "is a key element of military compensation (because) it supplements low basic military pay."

Elimination of commissaries could thus reduce re-enlistments and ultimately cost taxpayers more in training replacements, the response concludes.

In a note accompanying the association's response, Mobil made no mention of the group's boycott campaign. It did state, however, the firm believes "all sides of this controversial issue deserve to be heard" and that "the single most controversial aspect of the (ad) series continues to be the touchy subject of military commissaries."

The gas turbine generators above can produce enough energy to heat 20,000 homes at Conoco's Milne Point oil production complex on Alaska's North Slope.

Conoco develops new generators for Alaska's North Slope project

HOUSTON — Two gas turbine generators able to produce enough energy for 20,000 homes are being built here for Conoco's Milne Point oil production complex on Alaska's North Slope.

The generators are being built by Stewart and Stevenson Services, Inc. under a contract with Conoco, a subsidiary of the Du Pont Company.

Each generator uses the same type of engines that drive DC-10 aircraft and will produce 20 megawatts of power, said Richard Stewart of Stewart and Stevenson.

"The equipment requires Arctic-duty wiring and insulation capable of withstanding temperatures to 60 degrees Fahrenhiet below zero," Stewart said. "Filters on the outside of the generators are designed to pulse and literally shake off ice build-up."

The company will ship the generators from the Port of Houston to Everett, Wash., via the Panama Canal. Everett is where the majority of Conoco's oil processing equipment is being assembled and readied for the 1985 summer sea lift to Prudhoe Bay.

The Conoco project is expected to start producing 30,000 barrels of oil per day by early 1986.

All systems included in the Conoco generators will be fully tested several times before leaving the construction site near downtown Houston during April.

Transportation Department may study proposed merger

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Transportation Department should consider arguments that might be raised in opposition to a proposed merger of Muse Air Corp. and Southwest Airlines Co, the U.S. Justice Department says.

However, the department's Antitrust Division said in a position paper made public Wednesday that it did not feel formal public hearings were required.

Muse and Southwest asked the government March 25 to exempt their proposed merger from the public hearing requirement of the Federal Aviation Act. The Transportation Department then sought Justice's views on the request.

The Antitrust Division said in papers filed with the Transportation Department it opposes any blanket waiver of public comment opportunities. Any such "summary procedure" for expediting consideration of the merger "is inappropriate because of the substantial competitive issues raised" by the proposal, it said.

"Initial competitive concerns arise from the fact that Muse and Southwest offer competing service between seven pairs of cities, and during the first quarter of 1984, the two airlines accounted for all passengers traveling out of Love Field in Dallas and over two-thirds of the passengers traveling out of Hobby Airport in Houston," said the Justice comment, signed by Acting Assistant Attorney General Charles F. Rule.

Southwest lawyer Paul Y. Seligson said the airline was pleased with the Justice opinion that no public hearing is necessary.

"We're cooperating with them (the Justice Department) and they're cooperating with us and we're very happy with what they said," Seligson said.

Seligson said Justice further stated it will issue its opinion on the merger itself by May 15. Since the DOT opinion is expected by May 31 that means the merger can be completed in June.

The Antitrust Division said its comments on the proposed merger were not intended to request the Transportation Department to conduct "a formal evidentiary type of approval proceeding," which would involve oral testimony and cross-examination of witnesses before an administrative law judge.

Justice said its Antitrust Division "... would not oppose proceeding by show cause order, a less time-consuming procedure in which interested parties submit comments and supporting documents in response to a tentative decision by Transportation."

AMC plant's fate still undecided

DETROIT (AP) — Despite the United Auto Workers' agreement to a profit-sharing plan, American Motors Corp. says the fate of its sole U.S. car assembly plant depends on further concessions from the union.

AMC last month threatened to close the Kenosha, Wis., plant and nearby stamping and parts operations in Milwaukee if the UAW rejected profit sharing as a means of paying back 1982 worker contract concessions.

The automaker announced Wednesday that the union had agreed to the demand. But AMC said keeping Kenosha open also depends on whether the union agrees to work-rule changes during labor negotiations that begin later this month.

"We have made no promises," AMC spokesman Lloyd Northard said.

Plans call for AMC to phase out Renault Alliance and Encore subcompact cars in Kenosha in a couple years. The company has announced no plans to replace the cars, pending the outcome of the labor talks.

The union's profit-sharing decision was made after three days of meetings with the company in a Detroit suburb. The union also agreed to begin the Kenosha talks early.

The Kenosha contract doesn't expire until Sept. 16, but Northard said the talks will begin in Wisconsin "in a matter of days."

The company says the Alliance and Encore cannot compete with the cheaper cars offered by the Big Three or by the Japanese, who have significantly raised their quotas on car shipments to the United States.

AMC employees gave up an estimated $10,000 each in wages, raises and time off in 1982. Nevertheless, AMC says its labor costs remain the highest of the four U.S.-based automakers — AMC, General Motors Corp., Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp.

The union agreement means UAW members will share $3.8 million of the $5.4 million set aside for employees from 1984 profits, or about $300 per worker, Northard said. The agreement was for 1985 only, he said.

A richer formula that the union had the right to invoke — called a "wheel tax" — would have cost "eight to 10 times that," Northard said, or "$40 (million) to $45 million."

A secretary at Local 72 in Kenosha said the union had no statement. A spokesman for UAW Secretary-Treasurer Raymond Majerus, head of the union's AMC department, said national officials had no comment.

Former gas firm official found guilty

HOUSTON (AP) — The former president of a Houston oilfield equipment firm was convicted after pleading no contest to federal charges of bribing high-ranking officials of Mexico's national oil company.

Al Lee Eyster, 45, of Hunt, was the sixth defendant to enter a no contest plea in the case.

U.S. District Judge John Singleton on Tuesday found Eyster guilty of one count of conspiracy and 43 counts of violating the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act, which prohibits American businessmen from paying bribes to foreign government officials.

Singleton delayed setting a sentencing date for Eyster, who faces up to 220 years in prison and a $440,000 fine.

Four other men, along with Crawford Enterprises Inc., pleaded no contest last week and were convicted of similar charges.

They were accused of paying almost $10 million in bribes to officials of Petreoleos Mexicanos, or Pemex, to obtain more than $225 million in oilfield supply contracts. Their trial was scheduled to begin Monday.

Prosecutors said the scheme was engineered by Houston businessman Donald G. Crawford, 50, chairman of Crawford Enterprises Inc.

Eyster is former president of Houston-based Ruston Gas Turbines Inc., which pleaded guilty in September 1982 in connection with the scheme and was fined $750,000.

Eyster's attorney, Ed McDonough, insisted his client is innocent, but pleaded no contest "to avoid a long and cumbersome trial."

George S. McLean, 50, is scheduled to go on trial April 15 on one count of conspiracy in connection with the bribery case.

The four men who entered pleas in the case last week were Crawford; William E. Hall, 51, of Houston, former Crawford Enterprises president; Andres Garcia, 54, of Laredo, who allegedly was a middleman between Crawford and the Mexican agent; and James R. Smith, 39, of Houston, former Russ Turbines president.

Chase Manhattan buys thrifts to enter Ohio market

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio bankers are concerned about Chase Manhattan Corp.'s overtures to the state's commercial banking industry in a $7.4 million takeover of two state-chartered savings and loans.

Chase, with assets of $86.9 billion, announced plans Wednesday to buy Mentor Savings Bank in Mentor and Federated Savings Bank in Cincinnati, which have combined assets of about $167 million.

Both S&Ls were among 69 privately insured Ohio thrifts temporarily closed March 15 by Gov. Richard Celeste after the failure Home State Savings Bank in Cincinnati triggered a run on state-chartered savings and loans.

Some bankers said they see the Chase takeover as opening the door to multistate bank holding companies, which are legal under federal law, but only in those states which allow them, a bank association official said.

"In times of crisis, we (often) see wolves appearing in sheep's clothing, and I certainly hope this is not the case," said James W. Everson of the Ohio Bankers Association. "Obviously, the New York banks are looking at this crisis as a way of reaching their objectives."

Arthur Ryan, Chase executive vice president, said the corporation intends to seek more acquisitions in a plan to obtain a license to operate a commercial bank. "We're not here talking about simply two acquisitions," he said.

Eventually, Chase wants to get legislation allowing formation of a commercial bank, "in which case we would then combine these two institutions as well as others," Ryan said.

Arthur Ryan

Lawrence Cohn, thrift industry analyst for Dean Witter Reynolds Inc. in New York, said the significance of Chase's proposal is its broader plan to acquire and combine Ohio thrifts in hopes of operating them as a commercial bank.

"If it buys these two thrifts, it gets a license to do business, but not a lot more than that," Cohn said. "If they don't get a commercial banking license, it won't amount to a hill of beans for Chase."

OIL & GAS REPORT

EXPLORATION HIGHLIGHTS

Midland discovery flows 8 Mmcf

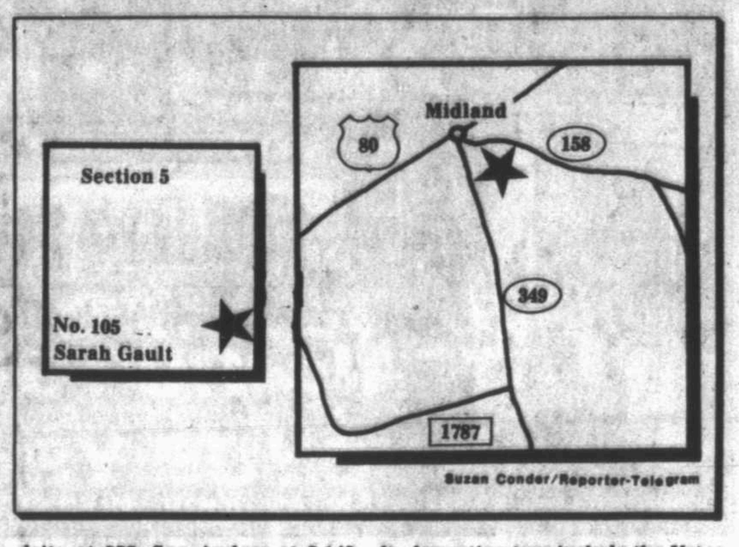
From Staff Report

ROSEWOOD RESOURCES, INC. has completed the No. 105 Sarah Gault, a prolific Devonian gas discovery, for an absolute open flow of 8 Mmcfd with a flowing tubing pressure of 2,490 psi. The well is flowing from the Devonian interval 11,640 to 11,760 ft., which had been acidized with 20,500 gallons of 15 percent acid.

Drilled to a total depth of 12,694 ft., the well is plugged back to 12,390 ft. with 5 1/2 inch casing set at 12,690 ft.

On a ground elevation of 2,733.6 ft., formation tops include the Ellenburger at 12,536, Fusselman 12,214, Silurian 12,094, Devonian at 11,630, Strawn 10,440, and the Dean at 8,959 ft. Top of the pay is 11,630 ft.

Location is 1,931 ft. from south and 351 ft. from east lines of Sectin 5, Block 38, T-2-S, T&P survey, two miles east of Midland.



Dry hole reported

CONQUEST EXPLORATION CO. drilled and abandoned the No. 1 Calverley, Glasscock County wildcat, 1,754 ft. from south and 1,396 ft. from east lines of Section 30, Block 34, T-3-S, T&P surey, seven miles northwest of Garden City. Depth was 8,500 ft.

Chaves strike finaled

A Chaves County Fusselman discovery, the STEVENS OPERATING CORP. No. 1 O'Brien "OO", was tested for an absolute open flow of 3.081 Mmcfd on various chokes. The well is flowing from the Fusselman interval 7,884 to 7,890 ft., which had been acidized with 1,000 gallons of 15 percent acid.

Drilled to 8,080 ft., the well is plugged back to 7,984 ft. with 5 1/2 inch casing set at 8,075 ft.

On a ground elevation of 4,035.3 ft., formation tops include Anhydrite at 922, San Andres at 2,148, Glorieta at 3,030, Tubb at 4,842, Abo at 5,587, Wolfcamp at 6,354, Mississippian at 7,405, and the Devonian at 7,817 ft. Top of the paY is 7,884 ft.

The discovery is located 2,140 ft. from north and 1,980 ft. from west lines of Section 33, T-7-S, R-29-E.

Prolific wells tested

Three prolific oil producers have been completed in Lea County, New Mexico.

The Hobbs field gained a prolific Grayburg-San Andres producer with completion of SHELL WESTERN EXPLORATION & PRODUCTION, INC. No. 213 North Hobbs Grayburg-San Andres Unit Sec. 33 to pump 725 barrels of 35 gravity crude, 667 Mcfd and 103 barrels of water. Gas-oil ratio is 920:1. Shell perforated the Grayburg-San Andres interval 4,027 to 4,255 ft. and acidized with 5,400 gallons of 15 percent NeFe acid.

Drilled to 4,370 ft., there is 5 1/2 inch casing set at 4,370 ft.

On a ground elevation of 3,644.9 ft., formation tops include the Yates at 2,637 ft., Seven Rivers at 2,853, Queen at 3,360, Grayburg at 3,674, and the San Andres at 3,966 ft.

Location is 1,300 ft. from north and 2,455 ft. from west lines of Sec tion 33, T-18-S, R-38-E.

SOUTHLAND ROYALTY CO. has completed the No. 1 Peoples "32" State as a Wolfcamp oil producer in the Scharb field.

The well tested to flow 530 barrels of oil, 495 Mcfd and 50 barrels of water on a 18/64 inch choke with a flowing tubing pressure of 720 psi. The well is flowing from the Wolfcamp interval 11,124 to 11,164 ft.

Drilled to 11,250 ft., the well is plugged back to 11,235 ft. with 5 1/2 inch casing set at 11,250 ft. Top of the pay is 11,124 ft.

location is 660 ft. from south and east lines of Section 32, T-18-S, R-35-E.

CITIES SERVICE OIL & GAS CORP. tested the No. 1 Federal "AA" as a Queen producer in the Corbin field.

The well tested to flow 482 barrels of 31.9 gravity crude, 53 Mcfd and no water on a one inch choke with a flowing tubing pressure of 30 psi. Gas-oil ratio is 110:1. The well is flowing from the Queen interval 4,428 to 4,438 ft., which had been acidized with 2,500 gallons of 15 percent NeFe acid and fractured with 20,000 gallons of gel and 48,000 lbs. of 12/20 sand.

Drilled to 13,825 ft., the well is plugged back to 4,850 ft. with 5 1/2 inch casing set at 13,825 ft.

On a ground elevation of 3,966 ft. formation tops include the Rustler at 1,536, Yates at 2,960, Queen at 4,189, San Andres at 4,969, Delaware at 5,914, Bone Springs at 6,478, First Bone Springs at 8,137, Second Bone Springs at 8,507, Wolfcamp at 9,904, Pennsylvanian at 11,681, Strawn at 12,293, Atoka at 13,686, Morrow at 13,251, and the Chester at 13,696. Top of the pay is 4,228 ft.

Location is 990 ft. from north and 1,980 ft. from east lines of Section 9, T-18-S, R-33-E.

Eddy find completed

Bone Springs production was opened with completion of HARVEY E. YATES CO. No. 1 Mesquite "2" State, Eddy County wildcat, to pump 102 barrels of 36.8 gravity crude, 78 Mcfd and 140 barrels of water. Gas-oil ratio is 765:1. Yates perforated the Bone Springs 8,124 to 8,646 ft., acidized with 9,000 gallons of 7.5 percent acid and fractured with 240,000 gallons and 495,000 lbs. sand.

Drilled to 9,065 ft., plugback depth is 8,833 ft., with 5 1/2 inch casing set at 9,065 ft.

On a ground elevation of 3,773.3 ft., formation tops include the Yates at 2,272, Seven Rivers at 2,700, Queen at 3,375, Grayburg at 3,882, and the San Andres at 4,174 ft. Top of the pay is 8,124 ft.

The discovery is located 660 ft. from south and 1,980 ft. from east lines of Sectin 2, T-18-S, R-31-E.

Contractor reports plant's radioactive core solidified

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Molten, radioactive core material from the Three Mile Island nuclear plant solidified in time to keep it from penetrating the steel reactor vessel in the 1979 accident, according to a federal contractor.

During the nation's worst accident at a commercial nuclear plant, the core of the Unit 2 reactor overheated after it was no longer covered with vital cooling water.

The scenario released Wednesday by EG&G Idaho, which is under contract to the U.S. Department of Energy, was the first detailed hypothesis of what happened inside the core during the mishap on March 28, 1979.

At 6:30 a.m., 2½ hours after the start of the accident, metal components and some uranium fuel began to melt at the top of the core, said Harold Burton, TMI project director for EG&G. Parts of the core reached 5,100 degrees, the melting point of uranium fuel and well above that of the metal, he said.

The liquid mass, 10 percent to 20 percent of the core's weight, began to flow downward, perhaps through passageways normally traveled by the cooling water. The molten substances may also have damaged some of the metal core structure in their descent, Burton said.

At 6:54 a.m., cooling water was restored to the core, which solidified the molten material. At the same time, the water caused the remaining upper portion of the core, which had become brittle, to crumble into a bed of rubble, he said.Some of the material melted and re-solidified at 7:45 a.m.

The once-molten matter formed its own bed of rubble at the bottom of the reactor vessel. TV pictures have shown the 3-foot-deep pile of debris, he said.

"Up until now, people would have told you this kind of scenario would have resulted in a breach of the reactor vessel," he said.

Agreement reached on power plant

WINDOW ROCK, Ariz. (AP) — The owners of the Four Corners Power Plant and the Navajo Tribe have reached a tenative settlement covering taxation, water and land rights that tribal officials say will provide millions of dollars in new revenue for the Navajos.

The 2,200-megawatt plant provides electricity primarily to Phoenix and southern California. Its owners include Arizona Public Service Co. and the Salt River Project.

Under the terms of the agreement reached Wednesday, the plant's owners would increase royalty payments to the tribe to $14.5 million a year, up from current payments of about $1 million a year, APS Vice President Russ Hulse said.

"It's going to have an appreciable impact," he said. "It will mean a significant increase in our Four Corners fuel costs."

The agreement, which settles all lawsuits between the utilities and the tribe, also makes the plant subject to tribal taxation beginning June 6, 2001.

Under a 50-year agreement signed between the tribe and the plant's owners in 1963, the plant is exempt from tribal taxes.

Hulse said the new agreement would take effect only if the tribe won a favorable decision in a taxation suit now before the U.S. Supreme Court. Several energy companies have sued the tribe, claiming that it cannot tax them without first having approval from the U.S. secretary of the interior.

The agreement announced Wednesday also assures the power plant owners that the plant will have a permanent water supply if the tribe wins litigation over San Juan River water rights against New Mexico.

The agreement also provides a new method of handling labor disputes at the plant and gives the plant a waiver of back taxes it may have had to pay if the tribe gets taxing authority.

Other owners of the plant are Tucson Electric Power Co., Public Service Co. of New Mexico, El Paso Electric and Southern California Edison.

Midland Chamber directory on sale

The 1985 Midland Chamber of Commerce Membership Directory and Buyer's Guide is now available to non-Chamber members for $25 each.

This reference book is for consumers and salesmen alike and is divided into two sections. The front of the book lists all Chamber members alphabetically. Each entry includes name of busines, primary contact person, street and mailing address, phone numbers, employment range and up to two categorical listings describing the type of business.

In the back of the directory, members are listed again, with phone numbers, under their type of busines. Together, the listings provide an easy reference for multiple uses.

For a copy of the book, write to Information Secretary, Midland Chamber of Commerce, P.O. Box 1890, Midland 79702.

Foreigners collect almost half of 1984 U.S. patents

Patent office reports Japan leading the way

WASHINGTON (AP) — Residents of foreign countries collected 42 percent of the U.S. patents granted last year with Japan leading the way, the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office says.

Japanese inventors collected 11,648 U.S. patents in 1984, up from 9,212 a year earlier, according to the annual statistical report of the patent office released Wednesday. West Germans were the second largest group obtaining patents in this country, with 6,403 granted, up from 5,567 in 1983.

While foreigners averaged only about 17 percent of U.S. patents granted a quarter century ago, they have been increasing their share steadily as industrial and other research and development efforts increase overseas.

The share of U.S. patents granted to residents of other nations edged past 30 percent in the early 1970s and topped 40 percent last year.

Applications for patents are all treated the same, whether from U.S. residents or foreigners, according to patent office officials, and the growing number of patents for non-Americans simply results from increased applications from other nations, they observed.

The United States granted 72,651 patents in 1984 including some 30,488 to residents of other nations, according to the annual summary. That's up from 61,985 patents in 1983 including 25,424 to foreigners.

The object of granting a patent is to encourage invention and innovation by protecting the rights of a person who develops a new product while helping make that product available to the public.

If a product is truly new, a patent is issued, granting the developer exclusive rights to it for 17 years. During that time he can make and sell the invention, or license it to others to manufacture and sell. After a patent expires, the technology becomes available to the public.

More than 4 million patents have been issued by the United States since the first ones in 1790.

Following Japan and West Germany on the list of nations collecting large numbers of U.S. patents were the United Kingdom, 2,423; France, 2,283; Canada, 1,323; Switzerland, 1,219; Italy, 870; Sweden, 829; Netherlands, 754; Australia, 348; Belgium, 272 and Austria, 271.

In addition, residents of the Soviet Union compiled 216 U.S. patents, while six went to China, 74 to East Germany, 22 to Bulgaria and even one to Cuba.

Among U.S. residents, Californians collected the most patents, but residents of Delaware were apparently the most inventive.

Some 5,707 patents went to California during the year, according to the report; followed by New York, 3,624 and New Jersey, 3,201.

But, per resident, tiny Delaware led the list with one patent issued for every 2,111 persons, the lowest ratio in the nation. Other states doing well on the per capita list included Connecticut at one patent per 2,241 residents and New Jersey at one for every 2,333 people.

Here is a state-by-state rundown of patents granted in 1984 and the number of state residents, per patent:

API says nation more dependent on imports

50 percent of oil needs may have to be imported

WASHINGTON — If current trends continue, by the early nineties more than 50 percent of the nation's oil needs may have to be met by imports, the American Petroleum Institute says.

In a statement filed with the Environment, Energy and Natural Resources Subcommittee of the House Government Operations Committee, the API notes that in 1984, "U. S. petroleum imports rose almost eight percent — the first annual increase in five years. Our dependence on oil imports is now higher than it was before the Arab oil embargo of 1973."

However, the statement asserts that increased dependence on imports "need not happen...if the nation looks to the future and makes sensible decisions which could enhance our future energy supplies."

This statement identifies three problem areas — energy tax policy, restrictions on energy development on federal lands and continuing price controls on "old" natural gas — which are inhibiting the search for additional domestic supplies.

With regard to taxes, the API says, "Oil companies, in the face of falling prices and earnings, continue to pay high taxes." The Institute notes that during the period 1980-83 leading U. S. oil companies paid effective federal income tax rates — including the windfall profit tax, compared with 23 to 25 percent for non-oil companies. Enactment of the Treasury Department staff's November 1984 tax proposal, the statement points out, would increase the industry's tax burden and could result in a loss of production that could reach 1.5 million barrels-per-day by 1995.

The statement points out that the petroleum industry is also faced with higher taxes as a result of an expanded Superfund. The statement also notes that API favors an enlarged Superfund. However, it says that the petroleum and chemical industries should not have to continue carrying almost the entire financial burden of the fund. "An enlarged Superfund must be more broadly based than is the case today. The cleanup of the effects of past disposal practices is a general public problem. The oil and chemical industries now pay all of the Superfund taxes, (some $600 million per year) even though all kinds of businesses and all level of government contributed to the abandoned waste sites."

As to the restrictions on energy development on federal lands, the statement says that such lands — onshore and offshore — "are estimated to hold a large portion of the nation's undiscovered crude oil and natural gas. Yet severe arbitrary limits on access to these lands have been major impediments to exploration..."

The statement calls for the opening of certain federal onshore lands not designated as part of the wilderness system for oil and gas exploration. Offshore, the statement calls for an end to the leasing moratoria now in effect in certain coastal areas.

Icahn plans to launch hostile takeover

NEW YORK (AP) — Financier Carl Icahn says he intends to launch a hostile, $18-a-share offer for a controlling interest in Uniroyal Inc., one of the nation's Big Four rubbermakers.

Uniroyal's board unanimously rejected the offer as inadequate.

At Icahn's price, 51 percent of Uniroyal's 34 million shares outstanding would cost more than $305 million. The offer is effective next week.

Icahn, who already owns about 10 percent of the chemical, plastics and rubber products company, said that if the offer is successful, he will merge Uniroyal into one of the companies he controls. He said he would exchange $18 worth of securities for each remaining share.

Icahn also has started a proxy fight in an attempt to thwart Uniroyal's management from implementing certain anti-takeover measures.

Aspartame consumption may cause reaction

By SONJA HEINZE

Q.: The whole country is diet-conscious, especially about sugar. So many things have NutraSweet in them. Yet when I eat or drink anything that contains it, I get sick. Please tell me just what NutraSweet is. Zella Donovan, Brigantine, N.J.

A.: NutraSweet, Equal and aspartame are all the same chemical. It was discovered about 15 years ago by a scientist at Searle Laboratories who was doing research on ulcers. He had combined two amino acids called aspartic acid and phenylalanine and touched the formulation to his lips.

It was extremely sweet, much sweeter than sugar. Further research indicated that aspartame is 200 times sweeter than sugar, and while sugar has 18 calories per teaspoon, aspartame has only one-tenth of a calorie per teaspoon.

In 15 years aspartame was put through 112 tests to determine its safety. The Food and Drug Administration finally gave it a clean bill of health. As a matter of fact, aspartame is the first artificial sweetener approved by the FDA in 25 years.

Aspartame can be found in a host of products such as presweetened cereals, pudding mixes, Kool Aid, non-dairy whipped toppings, chewing gum and soft drinks. Heating separates the amino acids and the sweetness disappears, so it is difficult to cook with. Aspartame can also break down in soft drinks over a period of time and during storage in summer months, which is one of the reasons why there's some saccharine in soda to back it up.

If you get sick from consuming anything which contains aspartame, you should notify the Food and Drug Administration, giving a detailed account of what you ate and what symptoms appeared.

Many complaints about this chemical have been reported to the agency, so you would not be alone. Symptoms include headaches, stomach trouble, rashes, mood changes and dizziness. There is no consistent pattern. Certain individuals might have an unusual sensitivity to this product. As yet, there appears to be no evidence of serious or widespread adverse health consequences from this sweetener.

Q.: How much salt is there in garlic salt?

A.: Lori Miller, a nutritionist with Durkee Foods, tells us that the amount of salt in those little spice jars of garlic salt varies from manufacturer to manufacturer and is considered privileged information. Miller did tell us, however, that one-quarter of a teaspoon of garlic salt contains approximately 585 mg of sodium, which is a clue.

From my calculatons, that would make garlic salt almost pure salt with only a hint of garlic. When you buy garlic salt, then, you're paying a hefty 16 times the price of salt.

If it's convenicence you're after, use the handy spice jar; but if you're watching your dollars, sprinkle salt from the big box and add your own garlic to taste.

Q.: How does the shell part of a chicken's egg form in its body? If the shell forms first in the hen, then how can it be fertilized by a rooster? This question has me really baffled.

A.: The shell is not the first but the last formation at the end of an amazingly complicated egg production line that involves about 23 to 26 hours of work.

At birth, each female chick already has a fully formed ovary containing several thousand ova, or future yolks. As she sexually matures, one day she starts ovulating and releases a yolk from her ovary.

The yolk makes its way to the oviduct, a tubelike organ. At the beginning of the trip down the oviduct, the yolk gets fertilized, providing there's some sperm available. This could be as the result of a recent mating, or sperm may have been stored in the upper part of the oviduct, where they can remain in storage for several weeks.

After fertilization, the yolk continues down the oviduct where the albumen, or egg white, is formed around it. It then travels down to a place called the isthmus, where membranes are formed around it to hold the yolk and white together.

At this point it's a fully formed egg without a shell, so it passes along to the uterus, or shell gland, where it remains for 18 to 20 hours while several layers of calcium salts and a mineral layer are deposited around it, becoming the shell.

As a finishing touch, the egg is coated with wax to protect its moisture content, and then is ready to be laid.

SOME TIME AGO a reader wrote to this column asking if maraschino cherries were really red or were dyed that way. Paradise Products responded, telling us that the cherries are not naturally red but yellow when picked. Before they are dyed, they are first bleached in a brining solution composed of water and sulphur dioxide gas.

The cherries sit in this solution for two months, bleaching away to a pale golden color. The solution at the same time has the added effect of firming up the texture of the fruit.

Next the cherries are put into tanks where they are leached of the brining solution, after which they are steeped in a sugar solution for a week in tanks that contain either red food coloring or green food coloring, for some maraschinos are destined to become green.

The red cherries are packed in jars in a solution of oil of bitter almond, not liqueur as they used to be, and the green ones are artificially flavored with mint.

Apparently overwhelmed by all this spirited processing of a simple cherry, Mrs. John Denman of Carlisle, Pa., wrote to inquire what the ingredients of the stems were, and how they got the stems to adhere to the cherries.

Paradise Products advises us that the stems are natural. To keep the stems on the cherries they are hand-harvested with special care. The brining solution in which the cherries soak for two months to bleach has the added benefit of producing a strong stem attachment.

Mail brings gold mine of information

By LINDA ANDERSON

Odds and ends from the mail sometimes contain vital or fascinating information, such as:

— In an effort to make children and parents more aware of dangers — and prevention — of child sexual abuse, Marvel Comic Group, along with the National Committee for the Prevention of Child Abuse, has allowed its superhero Spiderman to reveal he was sexually abused as a child. A special issue of this comic book, reviewed by child abuse experts and endorsed by National Education Association, has been distributed by the NCPCA and its local chapters. The comic is designed to help teach children what to look for and steps to take if this type of abuse happens to them. Parents interested in obtaining copies of this special comic book can contact NCPCA, 322 South Michigan Avenue Suite 1250, Chicago, Ill. 60604.

— In spite of the fact many of its forms are either humorous or annoying, advertising is a necessity for manufacturers. Consumers can obtain useful information about products and services from advertising, provided they can wade through the accompanying garbage. The Consumer Affairs Department of Kraft has put together a booklet designed to answer common questions about advertising, how it operates and consumers' rights. This free booklet is available by sending a postcard with your name and address to "Advertising is Communicating (G4)," Consumer's Right To Know, Box 802 Dept FE 1, South Holland, Ill. 60473.

— Also from Kraft, a pamphlet called "A Cheesemaster's Handbook" contains information from experts on everything you ever wanted to know about cheese but didn't know who to ask. And after all, cheese is what Kraft does best. For a free copy of the pamphlet send name and address to A Cheesemaster's Handbook, P.O. Box 827 Dept. FE, South Holland 60473.

— Talk about your strange bedfellows — Quaker Oats Company and Trailways Lines Inc. have teamed up to offer discount travel to Texans who eat grits or cornmeal. As of February, a program called Free Trailways Travel offers two-for-one savings on Trailways bus tickets to anywhere served by Trailways Lines Inc. and participating carriers, limited only by U.S. boundries. Passengers are required to send in eight special bus proof-of-purchase seals from specially-marked Quaker or Aunt Jemima corn products and receive travel coupons redeemable at Trailways terminals. Coupons allow passengers to receive free one-way or round-trip tickets with purchase of standard fare tickets of equal value to the same destination, or a 50 percent discount on any standard one-way or round-trip ticket. Coupons are used on a one-per-person, one-per-trip basis. Bus proof-of-purchase seals are available from Quaker and Aunt Jemima quick grits or grits, Quaker instant grits, Aunt Jemima white corn meal mix and yellow corn meal mix. Coupons and details are on backs of participating packages. Offer is good on trips taken before June 30, 1986; on interstate travel and intrastate travel where approved. It is not good with other discounts; not valid on travel between Dec. 15 and Jan. 5 and void where the law prohibits.

Japanese develop appetite for skirt steak

By MARIAN FARR

Texas industries must compete with Japanese technology and now Texas meat consumers must also compete with Japanese appetites — for beef skirt steak.

The beef skirt steak now so popular for fajitas was once thrown away by meat wholesalers or ground into hamburger.

Prices for skirt steaks have increased from 49 cents a pound in 1976 to between $1.79 and $2.79 a pound in 1985. One reason for the price rise is the fajitas craze in Texas and other parts of the country.

The demand for beef skirts in Japan has also risen sharply in the last decade, driving up the prices. The Japanese buy about 90 percent of America's production of beef skirts, which do not fall under the beef quotas set by Japan on American beef because they are classifed as variety cuts.

"Inside" beef skirts from the hindquarter and "outside" skirts from the forequarter of the carcass are distinguished in the wholesale meat trade. However, at the meat counter the cut is usually labeled simply as "skirt steak," and most sold in retail stores are inside skirts.

The outside skirt is usually the more palatable of the two cuts. Research at Texas A&M University indicates that the outside skirts are more tender and have higher overall ratings for flavor and tenderness than the inside beef skirts. Given the foreign and domestic demand for this cut of beef, consumers aren't likely to find more outside skirt steak in the supermarkets soon.

It is advisable to compensate for a less tender inside skirt steak by cutting diagonally across the grain of the meat first in one direction and then the other, pounding it to break down the connective tissue.

Marinating the skirt steak in a food acid such as lime juice, lemon juice or vinegar for several hours or overnight also increases tenderness and enhances the flavor.

Tate to participate in pageant

Armedda Joi Tate, 16, granddaughter of Millie Mae Benett of Big Spring, will compete in the West Texas Miss T.E.E.N. pageant Saturday at Midland College Fine Arts Auditorium.

The pageant is the official city-wide preliminary for the Texas Miss T.E.E.N. pageant to be in September in Dallas.

Contestants, ages 14-18, are required to have a "B" grade point average and participate in the pageant's volunteer service program, contributing at least 12 hours to a charity or civic project.

Winner's prizes will include a $750 cash scholarship and an expense-paid trip to compete in the Texas Miss T.E.E.N. state pageant.

Contestants will be judged on scholastic achievement, volunteer service, appearance, poise, personality, speech or talent and formal presentation.

Miss Tate, a junior at Big Spring High School, is a student trainer, honor roll student, Sunday school teacher and member of Midland Area Mass Choir. She plans to study psychology and pre-law at St. Mary's University in San Antonio.

Booklet lists ways to help prevent child abduction

WASHINGTON (AP) — While law enforcement authorities are giving increasing attention to missing and abducted children, prevention remains the best solution, and parents are instrumental in that approach to the problem, authorities say.

The rising tide of publicity about children being abducted has helped focus adult attention on this area. And experts advocate using this awareness to educate those at risk — the nation's children — to the dangers.

A booklet, "The Child Safety Program Handbook," can help families, citizen organizations and community groups organize to do something about the problem.

The handbook covers many aspects of missing children, ranging from things to teach kids about protecting themselves to ways of organizing a Child Safety Day in the community.

Copies of the booklet are available for 50 cents from the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 402N, Pueblo, Colo., 81009.

The booklet urges explaining that anyone the child doesn't know is a "stranger," and making sure the child understands that he or she doesn't have to obey strangers. And, it adds, children should tell the parents about anyone who approaches them.

DEAR ABBY

Lightweight blood donor turned down

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a strong, healthy woman of 34. I just had a complete physical examination and passed with flying colors, so after my doctor gave me a clean bill of health, I went to the Red Cross blood donor center to build up a blood bank for my family. Guess what? I was turned down. Why? Because I don't weigh enough. I weigh 99 pounds and I'm 4 foot 11. I am not underweight for my height.

I have four children, and I wanted so much to build up a blood bank in case someone in my family needs a transfusion. I'd feel so much better knowing it was my blood they were getting. Doesn't that make sense to you, Abby?

Please print this. Maybe the Red Cross will change the rules about donating blood. Thanks from ... CHARLESTON, W.VA.

DEAR W.VA.: It makes sense to me, and so does the idea of giving one's own blood to store at the blood bank in case a family member needs a transfusion. But, please be aware that stored blood is not "good" indefinitely. I am informed that 35 days is the time limit.

DEAR ABBY: Voter registration may not be necessary in North Dakota, but there are valid reasons why registration is important in other states.

In Ohio, we have 7.8 million people of voting age — that's 15 times the number in North Dakota.

In our state, registration is necessary to prevent voting fraud and maintain an orderly electoral system. We have a long record of fair and efficient elections.

Obviously, states with large populations have to take precautions that smaller states may not need. Doesn't that seem logical, Abby? — SHERROD BROWN, OHIO SECRETARY OF STATE

Israeli army pulls out of Lebanese towns, releases prisoners

NABATIYEH, Lebanon (AP) — Israel's army staged a pullback today from seven mostly Shiite Moslem towns in Lebanon and released 32 Lebanese prisoners held in Israel, the Israeli military command announced.

The command said Israeli troops withdrew from about 115 square miles around the Lebanese town of Nabatiyeh, scene of hundreds of guerrilla attacks on the Israeli army in recent months.

The withdrawal was completed within two hours, when the last Israeli military vehicle rolled out of the compound that served as headquarters of Israel's intelligence branch, reporters at the scene said.

From Nabatiyeh, an inland market town, the Israelis moved to a new front line in the foothills of Mount Hermon.

The Israelis maintained their positions on the crusader-built Beaufort Castle and the Ali Al-Taher mountain, thus keeping Nabatiyeh and dozens of vacated villages within the range of Israeli fire, reporters said.

The withdrawal apparently was a major part of the second phase of Israel's plan, announced in January, to pull out of Lebanon in three stages.The first stage was completed Feb. 16, when they withdrew from the port city of Sidon.

The next move in the second withdrawal stage will be in east Lebanon's Bekaa valley, where the Israelis face the Syrian army.

Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin repeated a warning on Israel radio that Israel would strike with "full power" against any attacks against Israel's border once the withdrawal from Lebanon was completed.

"After we withdraw to the international border and the security belt, any attempt to attack Israeli territory, if it is executed, will be answered with our full power," Rabin said.

As long convoys of trucks carrying troops and tank trailers bedecked with the star of David streamed out, Israeli helicopters showered the town with leaflets.

"We want to be friendly neighbors. Do not allow gunmen into your town," read one blue leaflet written in Arabic.

Crowds of jubilant Lebanese villagers poured out into the streets and chanted Islam's battle cry of "Allah akbar," or "God is great." They flew the Lebanese flag on buildings the Israelis had left.

Israeli newspapers said some Israeli troops will be redeployed along the Litani River west of Marjayoun, center of a border enclave controlled by Israeli allied militias, to within six miles of the Israeli frontier.

Smoke billowed from windows of the five-story intelligence headquarters as the withdrawal was under way, indicating documents were burned by the departing force. Several young men rushed in to put out small fires.

The reporters said the evacuated area has a predominantly Shiite population of about 200,000. Nabatiyeh's pre-invasion population was 50,000 but only an estimated 10,000 were still in the town when the Israelis withdrew, they said.

The main towns evacuated today were Nabatiyeh, Nabatiyeh Al Fouqa, Jbaa, Habboush, Houmine Al Fouqa, Jibshit and Ansar. In addition, the army evacuated several smaller villages in the same area. Most of the towns are 95 percent Shiite and the rest Christian.

In Tel Aviv, the Israeli army said it freed 32 of the more than 1,100 Lebanese prisoners brought to Israel from south Lebanon April 2.

The next stage of the pullout will see Israeli forces leave the eastern section of South Lebanon by May, the Jerusalem Post reported. By the end of May, most Israeli troops will be out of Lebanon, the Post reported.

International Red Cross spokesman Jean-Jacques Fresard said 32 prisoners were taken to the border by the Israeli army and turned over to the Red Cross at the Rosh Haniqra crossing.

Last week, the army evacuated the Ansar prison camp, eight miles north of the Israeli border, freeing more than 750 prisoners, mostly Shiite Moslems, and transferring the remainder to a camp in Israel.

In Beirut, government troops and Druse militia fought artillery battles today east of Beirut and two shells crashed near President Amin Gemayel's palace in new fighting that shattered a midnight to dawn ceasefire.

Soldiers say Iraq used chemical bombs, weapons

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — A young volunteer in Iran's frontline troops lies stretched out on a hospital bed here, eyelids stuck together, his back and one leg burned and pockets of water under his skin, and explains how Iraqi planes dropped chemical bombs on him.

Abdolrezah Achrash is typical of the soldiers of the Foundation of the Disinherited who make up most of Iran's frontline fighters.

He tells how, on the Majnun Islands north of Basra in Southern Iraq, three or four Iraqi planes attacked is position.

"There were the classic type of bombs, but others as well which gave off smoke. I had forgotten my gas mask," he said.

Foreign journalists Wednesday were allowed to visit four hospitalized Iranian soldiers, who were reportedly gassed on the southern war front on Monday.

Feizollah Yazdani, a doctor at north Tehran's Labaffi Nejad Hospital, said Achrash was suffering from the effects of mustard gas.

Iran has accused Iraq of using chemical weapons 12 times in 24 hours between Monday and Tuesday on the southern front. Eleven soldiers were killed from the chemical attacks, which were delivered both by air and artillery, the Iranian new agency IRNA said.

Iraq has again denied using chemical weapons.

Yazdani said about 1,000 soldiers have been through this hospital, which specializes in chemical attack victims, since the start of the year. A dozen or so have died from their wounds.

WORLD in brief

Political party shows signs of vulnerability

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad (AP)— After nearly 30 years of uninterrupted rule, the political party that led Trinidad and Tobago to independence and presided over the islands' fabulously rich oil boom is showing signs of vulnerability.

The People's National Movement did badly in recent elections on the island of Tobago and in county elections on the larger island of Trinidad. And with the two-island nation caught in a serious recession, there is increasing grumbling that the party's leaders mismanaged the oil wealth that poured in for nearly a decade beginning in 1973. In newspaper cartoons and in widely circulated jokes, the leader of the party, Prime Minister George M. Chambers, is being portrayed as a bungler and a dunce.

Hackney drug center closes

LONDON (AP)— Short of money and overburdened with patients, the Hackney drug addiction center of St. Bartholomew's Hospital in London reluctantly closed its doors for six months last year to 60 heroin addicts seeking treatment.

Similar events are occurring around Britain as addiction centers, renowned since the 1960's for pioneering the use of drug prescription as a cure for heroin addiction, struggle to cope with what is increasingly viewed as a heroin epidemic.

Concern over the number of heroin addicts, which is believed to have quadrupled since 1980, has touched off a hotly debated $2.2 million governmental anti-drug campaign and investigations by two House of Commons committees.

Pravda accuses Pakistan

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Communist Party newspaper Pravda Wednesday accused Pakistan of making its territory available for the "undeclared war against the Afghan people."

Pravda charged that "in recent years, Washington has been steadily stepping up efforts to convert Pakistan into a U.S. military-strategic springboard in the peace-loving states in that region."

Aid to Afghan rebels and funds Washington plans to secure for the counterrevolution from its partners, will amount to close to $500 million, the paper said.

Transfer agreement ratified

PEKING (AP) — China's National People's Congress Wednesday unanimously ratified the Sino-British agreement on the return of Britain's crown colony of Hong Kong to China by July 1, 1997.

The congress also instructed its standing committee to prepare legislation for the reintegration of Hong Kong.

Ratification of the Hong Kong agreement, signed by the governments of both countries in December, was the most important foreign policy topic on the congress agenda.

The congress instructed its standing committee to establish a separate committee for drafting a basic law for the colony's future self-administration, excluding diplomacy and defense.

Rebel promised U.S. aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is promising an increase in economic aid to non-communist rebel forces in Cambodia but is ruling out for the time being any military assistance for the insurgents.

Son Sann, a leader of the Khmer People's National Liberation Front, said Wednesday after a meeting with Secretary of State George P. Shultz that he didn't get all he asked for but he was nonetheless pleased.

"You can't have 100 percent of what you want. If you have 60 or 70 percent of what you wish, that's a good thing. ... I am very optimistic," he said, adding that he was unable to give details about his request because that would provide valuable information to the Vietnamese occupation forces in Cambodia.

Racial unrest flares

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The body of a black was found beneath a flaming pyre of old car tires as racial unrest flared today in eastern Cape Province, police said.

A police spokesman said the body "was too badly burned to identify." In keeping with new police department policy, the spokesmen do not provide their names.

It appeared the victim had been attacked by a crowd of some 300 black protesters, he said.

On Wednesday, the national police commissioner, Gen. Johan Coetzee, said initial police reports on the killings of 19 blacks in Cape Province were incorrect.

Officials fight acid rain

QUEBEC (AP) — Canadian provinces and U.S. states suffering damage from acid rain should work together to fight it, Quebec Premier Rene Levesque told a conference of state and provincial officials.

"We have to be a kind of pressure group on this situation," Levesque said Wednesday night at a dinner attended by representatives of 15 states, including four governors.

Gov. Michael Dukakis of Massachusetts, co-chairman with Levesque of the conference, spoke in fluent French, saying the meeting "shows the importance to all of us of the problem of acid rain."

Sudanese people stage rally after coup ends

New York Times News Service

KHARTOUM, Sudan — Three days after the bloodless coup which toppled President Gaafar Nimeiri, the country's new military rulers appear to be riding a raging bull, as judges, union leaders and rebel fighters keep demanding more and quicker liberalization.

In a 35-minute speech broadcast from Addis Ababa Tuesday — monitored here in Khartoum — the rebel leader fighting government forces in the extreme south of this sprawling country compared the new regime to "a hyena with new clothes."

John Garang, head of the Sudanese Peoples Liberation Army, said "it is better for the generals to hand over power to the people before the people hang them."

Constantly referring to Gen. Abdel-Rahman M.H. Swareddahad and the other three generals now ruling Sudan as "the gang of four," Garang urged unions in Khartoum to continue strikes and demonstrations until the three-day-old regime is overthrown "by the people."

He said the SPLA would negotiate with civilians over the heads of the military. Garang added that the SPLA would give Swareddahab seven days to hand power over, before his group launched a new offensive.

The SPLA represents black African tribesmen — primarily Dinkas — who have been fighting the Moslem Arab government in the north for decades.

Calling the new government "Nimeiri's regime without Nimeiri," Garang appeared to be taking an uncompromising attitude towards a military government which many observers here believe to be only temporary.

The new government itself, in a statement published Tuesday by the official Sudanese news agency, SUNA, pledged "to hand over power by democratic means," adding that "the people are allowed to express their ideas."

Still, the military appears to be heading in two directions at once, as the country is still being governed by martial law edicts, and political processions are prohibited.

There are few signs that the 45 unions — whose strikes and demonstrations sparked Saturday's coup — have any intention of letting the new military government relax for too long.

As a professor at Khartoum University explained, "By deposing Nimeiri, we knocked two teeth out of the monster's mouth. Now we have to knock out the other 30."

In fact, as of Tuesday, the port of Sudan was still reported to be closed on account of strikes, and the towns of Kassala and Gedaref, east of Khartoum near the Ethiopian border, were also plagued by work stoppages. Workers in those towns, according to union officials, have refused until now to return to work because of fears that Saturday's coup was a "swindle."

However, after discussions with military authorities and union leaders in Khartoum Tuesday, an agreement was reportedly signed, thus ending the walkouts.

One thing which has impressed all Western observers in the Sudanese capital has been the efficiency of the union strike mechanism. Despite constant arrests all last week of the main union personalities prior to the coup, the strikes and demonstrations went off like clockwork.

As a result, the professional unions — especially those of the doctors, lawyers, engineers and teachers — have emerged from the coup with a considerable degree of political clout, with which it can negotiate with the new military regime.

Due to pressure from the professional unions, the dreaded 30,000-man state security network — complete with a reported 6,000 cars and 400 safe houses — is in the process of being dismantled.

Tuesday morning, two Western reporters saw one state security man, beaten and bloodied, being carried off by riot police to the accompaniment of cheers from a large crowd.

The issue of Sharia (criminal law based on the Moslem religion), instituted by Nimeiri, is a marginal one in these first few days after the coup. However, liquor (primarily the locally-made aragi) has already reappeared at Khartoum cocktail parties.

Blues shouter returns to Texas for festival

AUSTIN — Sippie Wallace, sometimes described as the last living true Texas blues shouter, will return to Texas after an absence of 63 years to perform her classic blues and jazz from the 1920s as the climax of the Saturday night concert of the April 19-20-21 second annual Celebrate Austin Music Festival.

Deviating from the primary festival format of presenting all Austin-based national and regional artists, festival producer Rod Kennedy of Kerrville Music Festivals said he had wanted to bring the 86-year-old legend back to Austin for several years, and felt it was now time to have her headline an evening called "The Ladies Sing the Blues" starring opening sets by Austin-based blues performers Marcia Ball, Angela Strehli and Karen Kraft with their bands.

Kennedy will fly Ms. Wallace and Chicago ragtime/jazz pianist James Dapogny to Austin to rehearse her old-time ballads and blues with Jim Cullum's seven-piece Happy Jazz Band, the state's best representation of music from the 1920s when Sippie Wallace was recording with King Oliver, Louis Armstrong, Sidney Bichet, and Johnny Dodds.

That Saturday night concert is one of five concerts in three days during which the festival showcases rock artists like Joe Ely and Joe "King" Carrasco on Friday night, jazz artists like Tomas Ramirez and Eloise Burrell on Saturday afternoon, song writers like Nanci Griffith and Walter "Uncle Walt" Hyatt on Sunday afternoon, and Austin country artists like Gary P. Nunn and Jerry Jeff Walker with special guest David Bromberg on Sunday night.

Twelve more performers fill out the schedule with both three-day advance discount tickets and single-day tickets available by mail order or from Austin independent record stores, Waterloo Records, Inner-Sanctum Records and Yesterdays Records.

Ms. Wallace, born in Houston in 1898, left for the city of Chicago in 1922 where she developed deep friendships with Ma Rainey and Fats Waller. Her first record of "Shorty George" and "Up in the Country" sold 100,000 copies in the first month. During her career as the "Texas Nightingale" she was second in record sales only to Bessie Smith.

Twenty-seven hit records and seven years of great memories later, Ms. Wallace retired and moved to Detroit where she was active only as a gospel choir leader. She came out of retirement in 1965 at the age of 67 to recreate her original sound at all of the major folk festivals including Newport, Philadelphia, Chicago and Toronto.

However, 1970 saw Ms. Wallace paralyzed and without speech for almost a year after suffering a stroke. But Ms. Wallace was not through singing, and two years after her stroke, she sang her first concert with Bonnie Raitt in Ann Arbor, Michigan.

Each year since, Ms. Wallace has sung more often. Her sassy style generates warmth and energy as she sings many of the songs that she wrote and sang in the 1920s including "Mighty Tight Woman" and "Special Delivery Blues".

For complete festival concert, ticket and accommodations information, call (512) 479-6526 or write Rod Kennedy, P.O. Box 5802, Austin, Texas 78763.

UB40 brings Reggae into mainstream

ENTERTAINMENT

By JUDY CANTOR

NEW YORK (AP) — They were dark with rastafarian locks and blond and ruddy. Together they dipped, danced, talked, sang, beat on congas, blew trombones and gave a stomping, screaming crowd at the Beacon Theater what wanted — reggae music.

For UB40, a band that plays a brand of reggae with pop appeal, the idea is simple. As keyboardist Michael Virtue tells it: "Once everyone hears it, that's all they ever want to hear is reggae music.

"When we were growing up, reggae music was so different than anything else. Everyone else was listening to the Beatles and the Rolling Stones," Virtue said in an interview. "You had to understand it, it had its own language. ... It was an underground thing. ... It was something more; it was something better."

Back in Birmingham, England, in 1978, Virtue and seven other schoolmates from an industrial London suburb — James Brown, Ali Campbell, Earl Falconer, Norman Hassan, Brian Travers, Robin Campbell and Astro — felt that not enough people had access to reggae music. They thought it was a form of music that should be as much part of everyday listening as pop or jazz.

So with a lot of enthusiasm and little musical knowledge, they decided to pick up some instruments and play reggae music. They took their name from the reference number on an unemployment benefits form, rehearsed six months in a cellar and then went public in local clubs.

On a recent warm day in Central Park before performing at one of two soldout New York shows, Virtue lounged on the grass, awed but elated by the success of the band's first North American tour.

Far removed from the life he expected he would spend unemployed or working in a Birmingham car factory, Virtue's biggest problem at the moment was finding his brand of British cigarettes in a shop near the hotel.

Lighting up his last Silk Cut, he said: "We come from a very working class background. It's really a shock to any of us that we can achieve something in the music business."

However, it was a racially mixed neighborhood of blacks, whites and Asians, that provided easy access to a variety of music. Virtue also came from a racially mixed family — father is Jamaican and his mother is Irish.

"It's hard to explain to people who don't come from multiracial areas that don't have the access that we did. I believe that 10 years ago we heard more reggae than most people hear today," he said.

Though UB40's music owes a lot to its Jamaican roots, it definitely has its own sound. Some of the difference comes from high-tech recording, and some from blending white voices with traditionally black music. Virtue denies charges that they are corrupting the pure reggae sound, and said his band takes reggae basics and furthers them with its own contribution.

"We could go out and try and copy what Jamaican musicians do, but we'd rather try to give our own experience which no one else can do — the experience of growing up in Birmingham and playing reggae music," he said. "(Reggae) can't stay a Jamaican-sounding sound all the while. It's got to move on."

UB40, which ranges in age from 25 to 30, has worked hard at mastering their music, combining drums, horns, guitars, keyboards and bass. The present musical strength of the band belies the fact that they haven't been at it all that long.

The band's first commercial release here was "1980-1983," a compilation of work originally recorded in England. But their next album, a homage to great reggae standards called "Labour of Love," brought them more widespread recognition and commercial success. Titles on "Labour of Love" range from Neil Diamond's "Red, Red Wine" to Jimmy Cliff's "Many Rivers to Cross" to "Vision Girl" by a reggae master named Boy Friday.

Hank Snow feels 'his' music being swept aside

By JOE EDWARDS

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Hank Snow has sold an estimated 70 million country music records, made more than 100 albums and performed on the Grand Ole Opry for 35 years.

And he's troubled that the traditional style of country music he popularized for half of a century is being swept aside by a slick "Fifth Avenue" charade.

"I don't believe real country music will ever come back," the 70-year-old Snow said somberly. "It'll stay around, but not like it was in the '50s and '60s. We've got a new generation. This young generation is not familiar with Roy Acuff (81), Hank Williams Sr. (who died in 1953) and Cowboy Copas (who died in 1963).

"Willie Nelson has stuck pretty country," Snow continued. "Kenny Rogers kept pretty close, and Ricky Skaggs is very country. But then a lot of 'em have gone Fifth Avenue."

Snow still sings his hits, including "I'm Movin' On" and "I've Been Everywhere," just about every weekend on the Grand Ole Opry, the 59-year-old live country music show. However, the 1985 audiences are merely polite after hearing his 25-year-old hits.

"On the Opry 10 years ago, when I would sing 'Fool Such as I" or one of my other hits, the people would tear the house down. Now you get a little applause. Now a lot of people come as curiosity seekers," said the country music star who still shines in rhinestone-studded suits.

Snow, a singer-songwriter-guitarist elected to the Country Music Hall of Fame in 1979, recorded for 45 years for RCA.

Southwest Craft Center gives Fiesta '85 spirited sendoff

SAN ANTONIO — One of San Antonio's most unusual historic settings, the Southwest Craft Center, will give Fiesta '85 a spirited sendoff on opening weekend.

The 12th annual Fiesta Arts Fair, a mix of art and entertainment, food and family-oriented activity, will be held at the art school's five acre campus on the San Antonio River, from noon to 6 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, April 20 and 21.

Built in 1851 to house the Old Ursuline Convent, the Craft Center today is a picturesque downtown enclave ringed by modern skyscrapers — a tranquil, rambling complex of old stone buildings and ancient anaqua trees. Its original design, carefully restored, is the city's only remaining authentic French architecture.

Blue-shuttered buildings with broad verandas are surrounded by courtyards and gardens, the original convent grotto and a large gazebo on the riverbank.

The Arts Fair reflects the new role of the city's earliest girl's school. The former convent has come to life again as studios, galleries and classrooms for one of this area's most complete art and craft teaching facilities.

During the Fair the grounds will be dotted with artists' booths and food stalls, entertainment and craft project areas, including:

— Original art and fine handcrafts for sale in every medium, representing top regional and Southwest talents, plus artists from all over the country.

— A wide variety of food specialties, reflecting the city's multi-ethnic heritage, available throughout the grounds, at reasonable prices.

— The Craft Experience Courtyard will offer informal learning sessions in variety of craft techniques, with trained volunteers to guide participants. Children and adults will work side-by-side to experience weaving, ceramics, easel painting, puppet-making, leather tooling and more.

— Continuous entertainment will feature music and dance groups performing in the River Garden gazebo, on the bandstand and in the Frost Garden (set up as a sidewalk cafe serving pizza and beverages.)

— Exhibitions include the Greater San Antonio Quilt Guild show and sale in the former chapel; a show of two-dimensional fiber sculptures in the Emily Edwards Room; works by artists from across the country, for sale in the Ursuline Gallery; faculty artists exhibiting their works and demonstrating techniques in the studios; a children's art exhibit on the balconies overlooking the Craft Experience Courtyard.

Arts Fair visitors can board river taxis at Casa Rio (across from the Hilton), to dock at the Craft Center's River Garden. Free parking is available in lots adjacent to and across from the Craft Center.

Admission to the Fair is $2.50 for adults, free for children under 12. For more information, call the Southwest Craft Center, (512) 224-1848 or write Fiesta Arts Fair, Southwest Craft Center, 300 Augusta Street, San Antonio, Texas 78205.

Artists producing 'Texas Visions'

HOUSTON — The Art League of Houston has announced that "Texas Visions," a traveling exhibition which focuses on fine artwork in all media and styles, is currently being produced by Texas artists.

Opening in Houston December 6, 1985, at Transco Tower and the Museum of Art of the American West, "Texas Visions" is a curated exhibition which will tour the state during Texas' Sesquicentennial year, 1986, and possibly the country and abroad in 1987. The selection of artists will be made from the Art League's Visual Arts Registry of Texas Artists (ALVARTA).

One of the curators for this exhibition is Sam Grove, Director of the Museum of Art of the American West in Houston. Grove was formerly the director of the Museum of the Southwest in Midland. Other curators include Paul Rogers Harris, Director of the Waco Art Center, Murray Smither, Art Dealer and Consultant in Dallas, and Martha Terrill, Art Curator for Transco Energy Company in Houston.

All artists whose primary residence is in Texas are eligible to register with ALVARTA for consideration for "Texas Visions". The deadline to register with ALVARTA for "Texas Visions" is June 30, 1985. Registration is free.

To further document this major exhibition, a catalog will be produced illustrating all artists selected for the Houston exhibit.

For more information concerning "Texas Visions" and ALVARTA contact the Art League of Houston, 1953 Montrose Blvd., Houston, TX 77006, or call (713) 523-9530.

Founded in 1948, the Art League of Houston is a non-profit organization committed to supporting and promoting the visual arts.

Offering educational programs of exhibitions, classes, workshops and special career planning courses, it provides a means for artists to study, teach, and exhibit their work. The organization was founded on the belief that the arts enrich the quality of life.

'Oliver' to open at Odessa's Globe Theatre

ODESSA - Odessa College Theatre "Oliver" opens at 8 p.m. April 18 in the Globe Theatre.

"Oliver" is based on Charles Dickens' "Oliver Twist" with book, music and lyrics by Lionel Bart. It will be presented by OC Theatre at 8 p.m. April 18, 19, and 20, and 2 p.m. April 21. The production is directed by Paula Thompson.

Music for "Oliver" will be directed by Heidi Hofmann and choreography will be done by Nancy Fradd.

Noel Vandergriff, a seventh grader from Sherwood Christian School and a newcomer to OC Theatre, will portray Oliver. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Vandergriff, Noel has taken part in plays at Sherwood Christian School and Austin Elementary.

Keith Pearson, a Diversitech General engineer, will play Fagin. He has performed in more than 30 Odessa and Midland productions, including "Carnival," "Inherit the Wind" and "Silver Whistle."

Mark Gard, a veteran on the OC stage, will portray Artful Dodger. Gard is an OC theatre student, who had the lead in this season's opener, "Pippin." He is a member of Odessa College's "Drop of a Hat Players" and has acted in several local productions, including "A Christmas Carol," "The Fantasticks," "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat" and others.

Sherie Harding will portray Nancy. She has participated in Permian Playhouse and Permian High School productions.

Other cast members include Phillip Riegel as Mr. Sowerberry, Pat Hodges as Mrs. Sowerberry, Sally Mogford as Mrs. Corney, Oza Whitten as Mr. Bumble, Rodney Hurt as Bill Sykes, Jennifer Richardson as Bet, David Weaver as Mr. Brownlow, Kristin Collinworth as Mrs. Bedwin, Dennis Anderson as Dr. Grimwig, Amy Green as Charlotte.

Members of the adult chorus include Kenon King, Laura Gilbreath, James Tice, Kevin Parrish, Dennis Anderson, David Thomas, Keren Weaver, Amy Green, John Bartleson and Susan Schulz.

Children in the cast include Russel Hurt, Melissa Hurt, Jamie Ferrini, Steven Madero, Nancy Richardson, Shannon Guinn, Marissa Wallace, David Robertson, Nancy Schafer, Wade Green, Karen King, Bret King, Denice King, Mary Gilbreath, Carla Collinsworth, Neil Collinsworth, Delano Lopez and Lita Lopez.

Admission is $2 for adults, $1.50 for students and 50 cents for senior citizens. Tickets will be available in advance at the Globe Theatre box office or at the door. Odessa College students and staff are admitted free with a valid ID card.

Southwestern Bell to hold directory-cover contest

DALLAS — Like to see your painting on nine million telephone books around the state?

Now's your chance. Southwestern Bell Telephone has announced a contest to select a painting to be used on its directory covers during 1986, the Texas Sesquicentennial year.

"Southwestern Bell has played an active roll in the state's history and its growth," said Jim Adams, president of the company's Texas Division. "It just seemed like a natural for us to be involved in celebrating the Sesquicentennial."

A purchase award of $5,000 will be paid to the artist whose painting is selected. In addition, the artist will be identified in every phone book which carries the cover, an estimated 158 directories with distribution of almost nine million copies.

"We believe this is a grand way to support the Sesquicentennial and it should also help stimulate a number of fine paintings that might otherwise not be done," said Adams.

The cover art project is welcomed by Randy M. Lee, executive director of the Texas 1986 Sesquicentennial Commission.

"We're delighted that Southwestern Bell is holding such a contest," said Lee. "This is the type of private sector involvement that will make the Sesquicentennial year special and memorable."

Deadline for contest entries is July 1, 1985. No actual paintings are to be submitted, since all initial judging will be done from color slides of the artwork. An entry form and contest rules may be obtained by writing to Art Contest, One Bell Plaza, P.O. Box 225521, Dallas, Texas 75265.

The contest is open to all Texas residents with the exception of employees and families of Southwestern Bell Corporation and its subsidiaries. "Also, there's no restriction on the medium the artist may use — it can be oils, acrylics, water colors, tempera, even crayon," said Gayle Hatchel, contest coordinator.

Dance company to perform flamenco, classical dance

BIG SPRING — The Maria Benitez Spanish Dance Company will perform a concert of flamenco and classical Spanish dance at 8 p.m. April 20 at the Big Spring Municipal Auditorium.

Maria Benitez has been hailed in Spain as among the finest of flamenco dancers. She has been referred to as "a Baryshnikov of Spanish dance."

Ms. Benitez and her husband, Cecilio, funded the company in 1972. In addition to the annual season in Santa Fe, N.M., where they are based, they perform in New York yearly and tour nationally and internationally.

Ms. Benitez has taught at the Boston Conservatory of Music, the Verde Valley School, Arizona, the University of Utah and the Institute of American Indian Arts, Santa Fe, N.M. She is a performer and choreographer for opera, including "La Vida Breve" with the Opera of Santa Fe and Sara Cauldwell's Boston Opera; and "La Traviata" with the Opera of Santa Fe and the St. Louis Opera.

She is the recipient of the New Mexico governor's Award for Excellence in the Field of Dance and the Classical Spanish Dance Award from the Cultural Institute of Puerto Rico, New York City.

For four years, she served as a panelist for the National Endowment for the Arts Dance Program and serves as a consultant.

Others in the company include dancers Roasa Mercedes, Susana Aranda, Manolo de Cordoba, singer Luis Vargas and guitarists Guillermo Rios and Rafael Rosas.

Tickets, priced at $10 reserved and $8 general admission, may be purchased at the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce, Third and Gregg streets. There is a $2 discount for seniors, students and groups of 15 or more.

This performance is made possible under the sponsorship of the Cultural Arts Council, Big Spring, in cooperation with Advance Performances, an Austin-based arts organization.

ENTERTAINMENT IN BRIEF

Lee High graduate lands role in 'The Boy Friend'

Matt Mabe, a 1984 graduate of Robert E. Lee High School has been cast in the Lon Morris College Department of Drama's fifth production of the 1984-85 season "The Boy Friend."

While attending Robert E. Lee High School, Mabe was seen in the production of "Caligula" and was cast in "Mass Appeal" at Midland Community Theatre. While at Lon Morris, Mabe has been seen in the productions of "Crimes of the Heart," "Dance'84," and "The Matchmaker."

"The Boy Friend" will run April 18, 19, 20 at 7:30 p.m., including matinees on the 20th and 21st starting at 2:30 p.m. The show is directed by Barney Hammond, musically staged by Utah Ground, and musical direction is by Sheila Kimlicko.

Group sponsors art show

BIG SPRING — The Big Spring Art Association is sponsoring an area art show Friday through Sunday at Highland Shopping Center. The show and sale is open to the public noon to 8 p.m. Saturday and 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday.

Juror for the annual event will be Delmos Hickmott, professor of art at Odessa College.

Categories are graphics, pastels, mixed media, watercolor, acrylic, oil, three-dimensional, photography and novice. Cash and purchase awards will be made, including a $100 cash award for Best of Show. BSAA will take 20 percent commission on all sales.

Entry fee is $5 for non-menbers and $4 for BSAA members per work. Entries are to be hand-delivered to the shopping center between 4 and 7 p.m. Friday. Entries are to be picked up between 4 and 4:30 p.m. April 14.

For more information call the show chairman, Becky Smiley, 1-263-3848.

Free concert set for Sunday

A free band concert has been scheduled Sunday in Dennis the Menace Park by the Midland College Community Band.

Beginning at 3 p.m., the 30-member group will present a concert of popular music, including Broadway and show tunes, Mexican marches, and other entertaining compositions.

The concert is being presented through the Midland College Music Department in cooperation with the City of Midland Parks and Recreation Department.

"We are planning a program that should be appealing both to young people and adults," said Walter Osadchuk, conductor of the Midland College Community Band. "It's strictly for fun and will be very informal."

The band is composed of both college-age students and adult residents who enjoy playing band music.

More artists aid Africa

NEW YORK (AP) — Singer and actress Melba Moore, song stylist Roberta Flack and the jazz-pop group Manhattan Transfer have joined the legion of other artists who are donating their time or profits from their records to benefit drought victims in Africa.

OC, UTPB join to present clarinet recital Tuesday

ODESSA — Odessa College and the University of Texas of the Permian Basin will present Jack Snavely in a clarinet recital at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Founders' Building at UTPB.

Snavely is a professor of music at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee where he teaches clarinet, saxaphone and jazz improvisation. He is also a former director of the University Symphonic Band.

In addition, Snavely is active nationally and internationally as a soloist, conductor, clinician, recitalist, adjudicator and clarinetist in the Woodwind Arts Quintet. He has recorded two clarinet recital albums for Golden Crest Records and had articles published in leading music magazines.

During his career in music, Snavely has played with such artists as Tony Bennett, Nat Adderly, Claude Thornhill, Vic Damone, Sammy Davis, Jr., Glen Campbell, Lou Rawls and others.

While he is in Odessa, Snavely will conduct a free woodwind clinic at 8 p.m. Monday in the Jack Rodgers Fine Arts Recital Hall at OC.

For his performance at UTPB, which is free, Snavely will be accompanied on the piano by Shari Weiner. His selections will include V Bagatelles by Gerald Finzi, Concerto in F Minor by Bernhard Crusell and others.

Snavely has a bachelor's degree in music education from Lebanon Valley College, Annville, Pa., and a master of music degree in woodwind instruments from the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, Mich.

He has studied with Joe Allard of New York Philharmonic, Jules Serpentini of Philadelphia Symphony, William Stubbins of University of Michigan and Frank Stachow of Lebanon Valley College.

'St. Elsewhere' pages old television characters

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Listen carefully to the paging calls and dialogue in "St. Elsewhere," and you might hear some trivia, a familiar name, or an inside joke from the people who write the MTM Productions show on NBC-TV.

Often paged in the halls of St. Eligius is Dr. Steven Kiley, the character played by James Brolin on the old "Marcus Welby, M.D." series.

Once there was a reference that "Dr. Levine's wife needs another insulin shot." Producer Mary Tyler Moore, a diabetic, is married to Dr. Robert Levine.

Agency looks after dead stars' rights

LOS ANGELES (AP) — If you want to use Mae West's character, or produce one of her plays, you'll have to come up and see Roger Richman sometime.

Roger Richman Productions, which looked after licensing rights for Miss West before her death at age 87 in November 1980, has been appointed by a court receiver to look after her books, plays, records and merchandising of her character.

Richman's agency makes a specialty of protecting the properties of departed stars, including the estates or heirs of Bud Abbott and Lou Costello.

Tiny baby battles for her life

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — A tiny baby girl who was born 13 weeks early made progress in her battle for life as doctors continued to debate a hospital's refusal to accept her because of her low chance for survival.

Dr. Ken Henderson, director of the neonatal unit at the Medical Center of Central Georgia in Macon, refused to admit the infant Tuesday. But he said Wednesday he would have accepted her if he had been given the child's accurate weight — nearly two pounds, rather than one pound as first reported.

But Dr. Michael Weinstein, the staff pediatrician at the Peach County Hospital in Fort Valley where the baby was born, said, "The point is, they (Macon hospital officials) were more interested in the weight and we were more interested in keeping the baby alive."

Jana Kyle Cleveland eventually was taken to the Medical College of Georgia Hospital at Augusta, where she was in critical but stable condition early today.

"She's weaning off the ventilator," said her doctor, Gary Billingsley. "She's doing fine."

The child's mother, whose name has been withheld by hospital officials, told The Atlanta Constitution, "They're taking good care of my baby. Jana was strong. She had time. She was lucky...Another child might not be that lucky."

Augusta hospital officials said infants with Jana's birth weight have survival rates of about 30 percent to 50 percent.

Henderson said he refused to admit the infant because doctors in Peach County had estimated her weight at about one pound. When she was weighed after arriving in Augusta, doctors found her weight to be 760 grams, or one and two-thirds pounds.

"If that's its weight, we would have taken it," Henderson said. But he said he would not change his policy against accepting infants from other hospitals weighing less than 500 grams, which he termed "living abortions."

"I don't think it's good policy to run around the state in helicopters with babies when there's no real chance of survival," Henderson said. "There's a limit to what we can do medically, and if it takes a redneck from south Georgia to say that, fine."

Stacy Wheeler, a registered nurse at the Medical College of Georgia Hospital in Augusta, works on a little girl dubbed "Baby Cleveland." The baby was born at Peach County Hospital in Fort Valley and weighed about 1 pound.

Doctors at Peach County said the infant was born about 1:30 p.m. Tuesday after her mother, who had group health insurance, went into natural, premature labor.

Weinstein said doctors could only estimate the child's weight because they didn't want to remove the baby's blanket and life-support systems to take a more accurate reading.

The Peach County Hospital sought help from the Medical Center, a large public hospital in nearby Macon, because it did not have the facilities necessary to keep the child.

"Most of these babies don't live. But some of them do," Weinstein said. "This is not an abortion. This is a living baby."

Machine's leak may limit shuttle crew to six

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — A drug-processing machine aboard space shuttle Discovery sprang a leak today, raising the possibility that one of the seven crew members might be removed from the mission scheduled for launch Friday.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said workers discovered fluid seeping from the machine, which Charles Walker, an engineer for McDonnell Douglas Corp., would operate during the flight.

Susan Flowers, a spokeswoman for McDonnell Douglas, said engineers were trying to determine the source of the leak and whether it can be fixed in time for launch. She said that if the problem cannot be resolved, Walker might not fly.

NASA said it would not delay the flight, which includes Sen. Jake Garn in the crew, to wait for the machine to be fixed.

Launch is set for 8:04 a.m. EST. Weather conditions were reported favorable.

The drug machine is designed to separate biological material in an electrical field to produce an undisclosed hormone to be tested on animals and humans. McDonnell Douglas and its partner in the venture, Johnson & Johnson, will seek Food and Drug Administration approval to mass produce the hormone in space and market it.

Walker successfully produced test quantities of the hormone on a shuttle flight last year, but they became contaminated by bacteria. Procedures have been changed to prevent a recurrence.

Meanwhile, Walker, Garn and the other crew members attended flight briefings and underwent final preflight physical examinations today.

Commander Karol Bobko and pilot Donald Williams flew a jet early today, practicing landings on a three-mile runway where Discovery is to land next Wednesday after five days in space.

The other crew members are mission specialists Margaret Rhea Seddon, David Griggs and Jeffrey Hoffman.

All but Walker have waited out five postponements of the mission since it was originally scheduled for launch on Feb. 20. Walker was added when the flight was shipped from shuttle Challenger to Discovery.

Garn, a Utah Republican, is making the trip as a congresstional observer. He is chairman of an appropriations subcommittee that oversees spending by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and he says the experience will help him in his oversight role.

During the flight Garn will be the subject of several medical experiments. On launch, he will be monitored by five sensors attached to his head, four on his stomach and three on his chest.

Flight surgeons hope these and other medical tests planned by Ms. Seddon, who is a surgeon, will shed light on how the human body adapts to weightlessness and why nearly half the shuttle astronauts to date have suffered from space motion sickness.

The three mission specialists will be responsible for deploying communications satellites for Telesat of Canada and Hughes Aerospace, which will lease its spacecraft to the Navy. They also will operate other science experiments.

USDA: 'Unicorn' actually goat

NEW YORK (AP) — A humane society official says questions were left unanswered by a federal veterinarian's determination that the "living unicorns" on display at a circus are really goats.

But the circus says it's glad it got a "clean bill of health" from the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

"As far as we're concerned, it's a unicorn," added circus spokeswoman Debbie Linde. "A unicorn is an animal with one horn."

Gerald Toms, the USDA's chief veterinarian in Albany, conducted an inspection Tuesday evening of the animals at Madison Square Garden and pronounced them to be goats.

'Personally I don't mind calling them a unicorn," said Toms. "... if you want to surrender to whimsy, then they're unicorns."

In advertisements by the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus, the "unicorn" appears as a beautiful soft-eyed creature with silky white hair and a large horn growing out of the middle of its forehead. Its expression is shy and gentle, like the legendary creature who could be caught only by putting a virgin in its path.

"Don't Let the Grinches Steal the Fantasy!" says the ad.

Animal lovers called the unicorn and its three understudies a hoax and said it appeared the horns had been implanted.

But Toms disagreed, saying it was probable no cruelty or pain was inflicted on them and they were currently being treated well. The veterinarian said the unicorns appeared to have undergone a graft in which their own natural horns were moved and made to grow into one.

"The surgery is said to be reasonably easily done," Toms said. "If you use anesthesia and it's done by a competent person, it's basically a simple tissue graft."

However, Toms said he had asked the circus for records on how they acquired the unicorns, reportedly last year in Houston. He said it was believed the operations were done in California when the goats were very small, and they were mature and had grown their single horns when Ringling Bros. picked up the beasts.

"The good news is the veterinarians seem to believe the goats are not immediately suffering," said John Kullberg, director of the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, who had denounced the unicorn promotion and asked for the federal inspection.

"But they confirm that surgical mutilation did take place, that the horns were moved to an area foreign to the horn base," Kullberg said. "That's of concern to us. Was anesthesia used? Did the goats suffer? These questions haven't been answered."

Kullberg said the ASPCA would not charge the circus with cruelty to animals, but would seek legislation to control such surgical proceedures.

He was joined Wednesday by the state Consumer Protection Board, whose executive director, Richard Kessel, demanded the circus stop promoting the goats as being unicorns.

"While we respect and appreciate the traditions of the circus and recognize that 'fantasy' may be a traditional element of circus advertising, we believe that your latest ad campaign is cruel, deceptive and legally questionable," Kessel said in a letter to Kenneth Feld, Ringling Bros president.

Key von Bulow witness has left U.S.

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — A key witness in the first trial of Claus von Bulow on charges of trying to murder his wife has left the country and does not plan to return for his retrial, her lawyer told a court in New York City.

Alexandra Isles, a former actress and von Bulow's lover when he allegedly tried to murder his wife, Martha "Sunny" von Bulow with insulin injections in 1979 and 1980, went to Ireland last month, her lawyer, Michael Feldberg said Tuesday in state Supreme Court, which is a trial court.

Feldberg said Mrs. Isles, 38, "has no intention of returning." He said she had since left Ireland and he did not know how to contact her.

The hearing was called in response to a request by Rhode Island prosecutors, who want her to testify in von Bulow's second trial, for which jurors are being selected here.

Mrs. Isles, who appeared on the television horror soap opera "Dark Shadows," testified during the first trial in 1982 that she threatened to end the romance with von Bulow if he did not divorce his wife.

After the trial, jurors said her testimony was a key factor in their vote to convict the Danish-born von Bulow, 58.

The convictions were overturned by the Rhode Island Supreme Court last year on state constitutional grounds.

Mrs. von Bulow, 53, heiress to a Pittsburgh utilities fortune estimated at $75 million, has been in an irreversible coma since December 1980.

The prosecutor, Henry Gemma Jr., said he could present either a transcript or a videotape of Mrs. Isles' testimony if she was not found.

Meanwhile, on Wednesday, lawyers for both sides questioned the 16-member preliminary panel about knowledge of the celebrated case. Selection of a final panel was expected to last at least an additional week.

Two potential jurors said they knew von Bulow had been convicted before and remembered some of the specifics of the case.

Soldier bitter over imprisonment, but thinks desertion 'honorable'

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — A soldier court-martialed for deserting his unit in a Vietnam War protest says he is bitter that the Army jailed him after he spent 16 years as a fugitive, but he still believes he did the right thing.

"I have my dishonorable discharge and I am very happy with it," Keith A. Mather said Wednesday after his release from the Fort Riley, Kan., stockade.

"I am angry," said Mather, who deserted his unit at Fort Lewis, Wash., after basic training, when he was transferred to a unit headed for Vietnam.

"I understand their viewpoints but I don't think their system works," he said, sipping a beer in a Kansas City International Airport bar while waiting for a flight to California, where his fiancee and two children waited at Half Moon Bay. "I am unable to see what the Army gained in imprisoning me."

Mather said he believes his 1967 desertion "was very honorable."

Man: I might be better off in jail

MARKHAM, Ill. (AP) — Gary Dotson, all smiles when he left prison a week ago after a women he was convicted of raping recanted her testimony, thinks he may have been better off behind bars until the case is settled, his attorney says.

Dotson, 28, who served six years at the Joliet Correctional Center on rape and kidnapping convictions, was distraught about published reports concerning laboratory tests prepared for a Circuit Court hearing today, attorney Warren Lupel said Wednesday.

Lupel said Dotson told him, " 'I don't know if it would be better to go and come back or just stay in prison.' "

In her retraction, Cathleen Crowell Webb, formerly of suburban Homewood, said she had only had sex with a former boyfriend at the time she initially accused Dotson of raping her in July 1977.

However, recent reports in the Chicago Tribune and Chicago Sun-Times quoted unidentified sources as saying test results of semen and blood samples taken from her in 1977 could indicate she had sex with someone else.

Girl exists on human milk

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Phyllis Smith coordinates shipments of mother's milk from 47 states and 2,500 donors a month, mixing the milk for her 4-year-old daughter, who can't eat or drink anything but water or human milk.

Doctors who said Lacie Smith would not live past age 3 now say that with each day she survives, the chances increase that she may outgrow her need for mother's milk.

Meanwhile, the tot must drink three gallons of the milk daily. Donors —nursing mothers, women whose children have died or mothers of premature babies who want to breastfeed later — typically give 1.5 to 7.5 ounces each.

Judge: Racism no grounds for suit

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — Two white women who sued a former roommate because the replacement tenant she found for their apartment was black had no grounds to file suit, a judge said.

Johnson County Magistrate Stephan Gerard ruled Tuesday that Kathryn L. Miller's former roommates were not entitled to $273 in rent and expenses as well as $100 in damages.

FUTURE THINK.

Who would have thought a Buick Electra could be so aerodynamic, responsive, and precise in handling? Who would have expected front-wheel drive, available multi-port fuel injection and rack-and-pinion steering in a car so quiet, luxurious, and smooth riding? Buick thinks ahead without forgetting the past. Look at the proof.

Buicks are equipped with engines produced at facilities operated by GM car groups, subsidiaries or affiliated companies worldwide.

Buy a truck built tough enough to win the world's roughest off-road race, and you can't go home a loser.

In case you didn't know, an Isuzu just won the Baja 1000 in the Stock Mini-Pickup Class.

While that may come as a surprise to Chevrolet, Ford, Nissan, Toyota and Mitsubishi, it doesn't surprise us.

Because we've been building trucks tougher than the world's toughest roads since 1939.

And since Isuzu can survive the torturous badlands of Baja, where there are no roads, it'll certainly take any punishment you can dish out.

So if you're looking for a tough truck, here's your chance to invest in a real winner.
