Amin home, never went to Britain

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Radio Uganda said today President Idi Amin has returned to Uganda after a trip that apparently took him nowhere near London and the Commonwealth summit, where the Ugandan dictator earlier was reported to have secretly arrived.

The radio announced Amin's safe return after holding talks with unnamed "top revolutionary military officers" from Tanzania and Zambia on the spot where the borders of Uganda, Tanzania and Rwanda join.

The broadcast made no mention of earlier reports by the government-controlled radio that the burly dictator was in Britain.

Radio Uganda reported Tuesday that he had arrived in London demanding "to be carried shoulder-high by the British for several miles" as "part of the field marshal's celebrations of the British queen's siver jubilee."

A Foreign Office spokesman said the government, which has told Amin he is not welcome because of allegations of atrocities in his country, had no word on Amin's arrival. "If he had landed legally in this country, I would know," the spokesman added.

While Britons speculated on Amin's whereabouts, Jamaican Prime Minister Michael Manley today blasted the Ugandan dictator as "a cause of shame for all mankind."

In a luncheon speech to the Royal Commonwealth Society, Manley, a vehement supporter of Third World causes, accused fellow Third World leaders of a double standard for condemning "racist tyranny" in white-ruled southern Africa while ignoring Amin.

"We of the Third World rightfully unite to fight racist tyranny in southern Africa and to denounce it in its various forms," Manley said. "We should not hesitate, therefore, to denounce tyranny, whether of the tribal, military or Fascist kind, when it is found in our own ranks."

President Dawda Jawara of Gambia in West Africa admitted there is "a good deal of embarrassment" among Africans over Amin, and he was certain the subject of Uganda would be raised at the conference.

Energy plan dealt blow

Small car rebates defeated

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ways and Means Committee today rejected President Carter's proposed rebates to motorists who buy fuel-efficient cars but indicated it might accept a watered-down version of his tax on gas-guzzling autos.

The 31-5 vote against the rebates was a heavy blow to Carter's long-range, energy conservation program. Other key parts of the tax package also are in trouble.

Members of the committee viewed the rebate scheme as unworkable because a large portion of the money would be paid to buyers of foreign cars.

After knocking down the rebate, the committee began considering a new staff plan that would replace Carter's proposed tax on gas-guzzling cars. Rep. Al Ullman, chairman of the committee, endorsed the staff's proposed compromise, but the Carter administration had no immediate response to it.

The compromise would delay the new tax until the start of the 1979 model year and even then the mileage standards required of new cars would be far below those proposed by Carter.

For example, Carter suggested that 1978 cars be required to get at least 18 miles to the gallon or purchasers would face a tax on less efficient models. The compromise would postpone the standards for a full year.

But in 1979, instead of the 19-mile-per-gallon standard suggested by Carter, no car would face the new tax unless it got less than 15 miles per gallon. The tax then would be between $339 and $553.

In 1985, no tax would be imposed except on models getting less than 23.5 miles per gallon. Carter wanted the tax on all models with less than 27.5 miles per gallon. But instead of Carter's proposed $2,488 tax on the least efficient models, the compromise would impose a tax of $3,856.

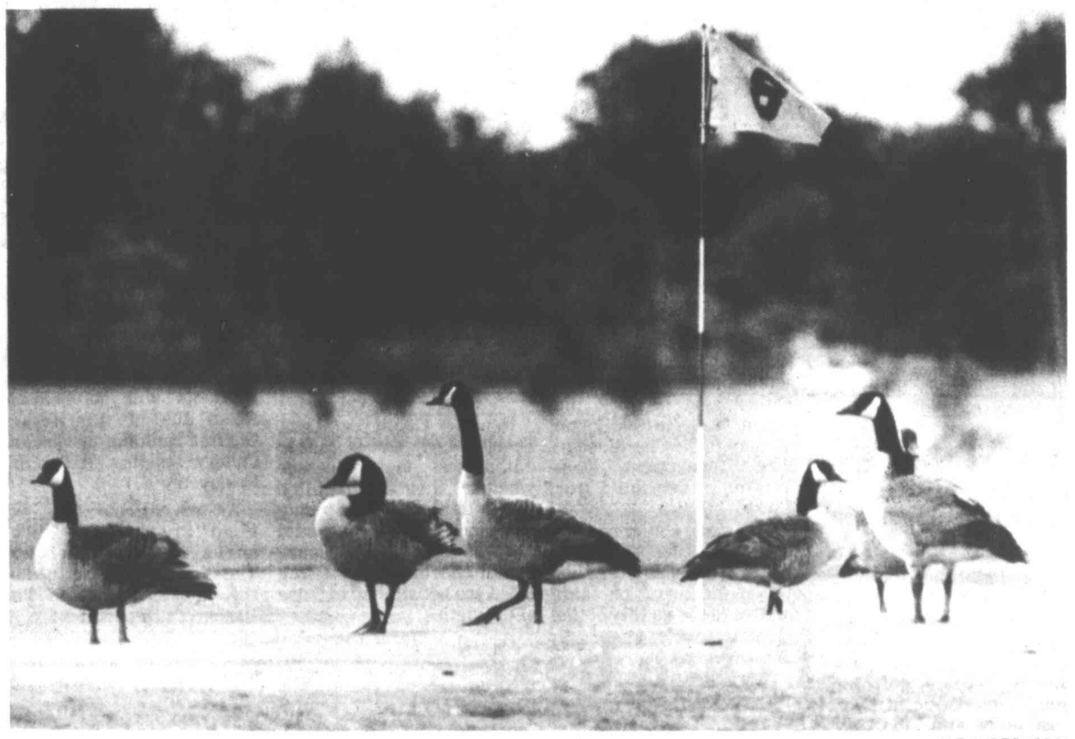

No matter what happens to the gas-guzzler tax, auto manufacturers still would face several penalties unless mileage standards already written into law are met. That law requires efficiency of at least 18 miles per gallon in 1978, rising to at least 27.5 miles per gallon in 1985.

The committee finished its second day of work on Carter's energy-tax proposals Wednesday. One opponent, Rep. Joe Waggoner, D-La., said 20 of the 37 members of the panel were ready to vote against the socalled gas-guzzler tax.

Working on Carter's other energy tax proposals, the panel approved a tax credit of up to $400 for persons who improve the fuel efficiency of their homes and a credit of up to $2,000 for purchasers of home heating and cooling systems powered by the sun or wind.

In both cases, the credits proposed by Carter were rejected in favor of versions offered by committee members.

The rebate and gas-guzzler tax are key elements of the farreaching energy program Carter spelled out on April 20. Another major provision — a standby gasoline tax of up to 50 cents a gallon — also is in deep trouble.

ADDED HAZARD — The eighth green at Milwaukee's Oakhills Golf Course became a little crowded when this flock of some 20 geese took up residence. The geese first moved in on Monday evening and have remained on the green most of the time since then.

Turkey envoy shot

ROME (AP) — An unidentified gunman lying in wait at a nearby bus stop shot and seriously wounded Turkey's ambassador to the Vatican today as he was entering his residence in Rome's posh Parioli section, police said.

Ambassador Taha Carim was rushed to a hospital with wounds in the chest and neck, officials said.

It was the third such attack on a ranking Turkish diplomat in Europe in the past two years. The two previous victims were killed.

Police said the tall, thin, black-haired gunman rushed at Carim and fired two shots after the ambassador stepped out of his car. The assailant escaped on foot.

Carim, 62, has been ambassador to the Vatican for three years, having served in other diplomatic assignments in Canada, Pakistan and Lebanon.

In 1975, Turkey's ambassador to Austria, Danis Tunaligil, and its ambassador to France, Ismail Erez, were assassinated within two days of one another.

The assailants were never arrested, but an underground Marxist group called the Armenian Liberation Army claimed responsibility for the Paris attack.

In a statement released in Beirut, the Armenians claimed the shooting was revenge for alleged Turkish genocide against their people in eastern Turkey around the turn of the century.

No group claimed responsibility for the Vienna shooting.

Rosalynn talks to victims of beatings

RECIFE, Brazil (AP) — Two American missionaries who said they were beaten in a Brazilian jail told their story to Rosalynn Carter, and the First Lady expressed her sympathy and promised to tell her husband about it.

Father Lawrence Rosebaugh, 42, a Roman Catholic, and Thomas Capuano, 24, a Mennonite from Altamount, N.Y., told Mrs. Carter they were arrested last month while distributing food to the poor.

They said they were stripped naked, thrown into a crowded cell and not allowed to contact the U.S. Consulate for three days, during which time they were kicked and knocked around by prison trustees. They said they were released on the fourth day after being allowed to call the consulate.

Gay vote triggers protest

By the Associated Press

Anita Bryant, the singing orange juice saleswoman, has become the lightning rod for continuing reaction — both pro and con — to the successful campaign she led to repeal the Miami area's gay rights law.

Homosexuals demonstrated against her appearance Wednesday in Norfolk, Va., while supporters invited her to bring her campaign to San Antonio, Tex., and a California lawmaker promised a legislative resolution congratulating her.

More than 3,000 gay rights advocates protesting the Miami repeal marched for three hours in New York, and orange juice was yanked from the menu of one of the largest motels in Provincetown, Mass., a center of Cape Cod's summer homosexual community.

Wednesday's activities followed by one day the referendum repeal of a Dade County ordinance banning job and housing discrimination against homosexuals. The Bryant-led campaign claimed that children would be in danger if schools were forced to hire homosexuals.

About 350 homosexuals and other advocates of gay rights in Norfolk, Va., marched and chanted outside an auditorium where Miss Bryant was appearing at a religious crusade. About 125 entered for the service but left after she read a Bible verse that names homosexuals among groups that will not "inherit the kingdom of heaven."

Steve Stone, a member of the Tidewater American Civil Liberties Union and a coordinator of the protest dubbed "Save Our Country from Anita Bryant," said the protest showed that "gay people are not afraid" and had been strengthened by her opposition.

Miss Bryant's televised ads for Florida citrus products led to the removal of orange juice from the menu of the Crown and Anchor Motel. Motel officials also poured a quart of juice into the street and gave the rest of its supply to a nursing home.

"The issue here is not whether a homosexual can molest a child," Crown and Anchor owner Stanley Sorrentino said. "It's whether a qualified brain surgeon or a truck driver or a school teacher, who happens to be gay, should be deprived of a job."

Miss Bryant said she was preparing a booklet for people interested in fighting gay rights legislation in other cities. But she said she would not interfere "unless individuals in the community are concerned enough to solicit our advice."

Such an invitation came Wednesday from a Baptist preacher in San Antonio, Tex., who said he is fighting more than just gay rights. "It's a battle of morality vs. immorality," the Rev. Joe West said.

San Antonio's homosexual community held a rally and raised $2,000 for the Dade County gay movement. A counter-rally at the Alamo attracted persons opposed to the Dade County gay rights ordinance.

In New York, for the second night in a row, a demonstration by gay rights activists ended after former Rep. Bella Abzug urged them to begin a public education campaign to win their rights.

She spoke after more than 3,000 persons had marched from Greenwich Village through midtown Manhattan to Columbus Circle at the foot of Central Park.

Prisoner beaten in drunk tank

Big Spring Police deny charges levelled by a local man that he was beaten by three officers.

The man was arrested May 27 shortly after midnight. According to police reports, the man was arrested for driving while intoxicated and attempting to bribe an officer of the law.

The man claimed that after reaching the station in a patrol car, the arresting officer attempted to take him inside.

"He grabbed me by the arm, and I saw what was coming, so I braced myself," said the complaimant.

Then, claimed the man, two officers standing near the door of the station came and struck him in the face.

Did they come into the patrol car?

"I think so, I think they were half in and half out," said the man.

Did they strike you with their fists?

"I think so, they may have used a blackjack," he said.

The man was then placed in the drunk tank of the city jail, and claims that is the best thing he remembers.

According to the police version of the incident, the suspect was booked into jail without incident. He was got into a fight with another prisoner.

"The injuries he received resulted from the fight he got into in the drunk tank," said Police Chief Stanley Bogard.

The suspect was later transferred to Howard County Jail where he was examined by a doctor. He was then taken to the Big Spring Veterans Administration Hospital where he was treated and released.

He was charged before Justice of Peace Bob West with bribery, and released on bail of $3,500.

The man claimed this morning that he has no intention at this time of bringing charges against the police.

According to Howard County Sheriff A.N. Standard, the suspect said he did not wish to file such a complaint when he was transferred into the custody of the county.

Local theater to be doubled

The Ritz Theatre, which was West Texas' finest when it was constructed in 1928, is now to be turned into a twin-screen theatre, according to Ike Robb, owner.

Robb said today that it will be a split level theatre with the balcony utilized as one theatre and the downstairs as a second unit.

Norman Contractors of Conroe will be in charge of the remodeling. He is a twin theatre expert, according to Robb.

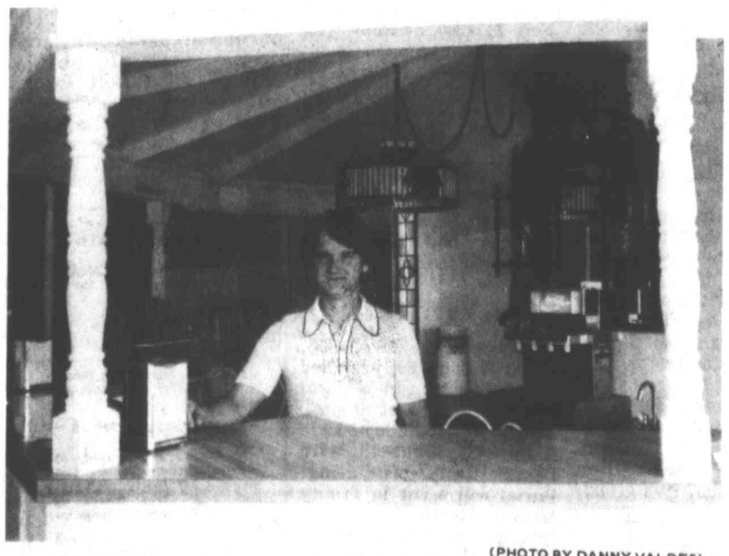

The shows will continue during construction with the old theatre open while the upper level is constructed and the upper level open while the bottom level is completed.

The Ritz was originally built by the late J.Y. Robb, father of the present owner.

In a third generation operation, Scott Robb, son of the owner, is operating a new ice cream parlor, game room and soda shoppe which has just been opened north of the R-70, also owned by the Robbs.

This new facility, which is especially attractive to teenagers is called "Papa's". It opened this week for business.

Ike Robb said this morning, "We have been considering both these improvements for some time and decided now was the time to follow the modern trend of twin theatres, which show two different movies at the same location.

PAPA'S IS OPEN — This new soda shoppe and game room north of the R-70 theatre was opened this week with Scott Robb as manager. Scott is the third generation of a movie theatre family in Big Spring. The Ritz was constructed by his grandfather in 1928 and is being turned into a twin theatre by his father, Ike Robb, this year.

Youth dies mysteriously in Lamesa

LAMESA — Stacy Crisp, 17 of Oklahoma City, died suddenly in the Mesa Motel at 8 p.m. Tuesday, with no known cause.

Services are pending in a funeral home in Oklahoma City. Crisp and his father, R.B. Crisp were living at the motel while working repairing a local cotton gin.

After supper, the youth was reported to have told his father that he felt bad and went into his room to go to bed. The father went in to check on the boy and found him dead on the floor.

Judge Leslie Pratt, who conducted the inquest, said that the doctor's report showed no obstruction and no apparent reason for the death. The attending physician encouraged the family to have an autopsy.

Branon Funeral Home said the body has been sent to an Oklahoma City funeral home and they had no knowledge as to whether there would be an autopsy. No ruling on the death has been made.

Indictments returned

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — A federal grand jury here has returned indictments on 16 persons in connection with the theft of more than $300,000 in farm equipment from three states.

Asst. U.S. Dist. Atty. Jim Powers said evidence shows that several pieces of the machinery were sold in Mexico, where tractors are sometimes difficult to obtain.

Jesus Davilla and his wife, both of Hidalgo, Tex., were arrested Wednesday and released on $10,000 bond. A third Texan, Carol Perkins of Aldine, was also named in the indictments.

Powers said about $320,000 worth of farm equipment had been stolen in Kansas, Arkansas and Iowa. The thefts began in March, 1976 and continued until April, 1977, he said.

Chaparral to Dallas

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Chaparral Airlines should be permitted to offer passenger service between Dallas Love Field and Abilene, a Texas Aeronautics Commission hearing examiner recommended Thursday.

The recommendation of Robert Cross will be considered at the commission's next meeting.

Chaparral applied for the route in March. No service on the route is provided at this time. One-way fare would be $32.

Small towns penalized?

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Industry will be discouraged from going to small towns under President Carter's energy plan, Texas Railroad Commissioner Jon Newton said Thursday.

Meat, dairy and poultry industries are among the "most intensive energy users," Newton told the Port of Houston Bureau. And rice production has highest fuel cost factor per unit, he said.

"As you know, the policy of the federal and state government for a number of years has been to encourage rural development and stem the migration into the cities," he said.

"If implemented," Newton said of Carter's plan, "it will discourage industry from locating in the small towns and intensify migration into the cities."

Contraceptive ban struck

WASHINGTON (AP) — States may not restrict the sale of contraceptives to children nor restrict advertising of contraceptives, the Supreme Court ruled today.

The court voted 7 to 2 to strike down a New York law requiring that contraceptives be sold only by pharmacists to persons age 16 and over. Under the state law declared invalid today, youngsters 15 years of age or younger could obtain contraceptives legally only from doctors.

The state law also prohibited advertisements for contraceptives to be displayed in drug stores.

Mean old alligator becomes rich

By JULES LOH
AP Special Correspondent

PONCHATOULA, La. (AP) — Once upon a time in Chappepella Creek there lived a mean old alligator.

One day some boys, swimming in the creek, came upon the mean old alligator. Being country boys, born and raised in the southern Louisiana swampland, they were not frightened.

They got some ropes, lassoed that mean old alligator, and, as they say in these parts, drug him home.

By and by, the mean old alligator became the richest old alligator in the whole world. People can't resist throwing money at him.

His life, alas, was not always so blessed.

The country boys who found him discovered that their mamas did not want a mean old alligator around the house. They looked and looked. Finally they found a lady who said she would take him.

The lady ran a drive-in restaurant next to the highway. She dug a pit beside the restaurant, put the mean old alligator in the pit, and put up a sign on the highway:

ALLIGATOR.

For many years people stopped and peeked into the pit at the mean old alligator the country boys had found.

One day the Interstate Highway builders came to the lady and told her she would have to move her drive-in restaurant to another place. What would become of the mean old alligator?

The lady phoned her friend, Charles Gideon, who was the mayor of Ponchatoula and known far and wide as a wise solver of problems.

"Mayor," the lady said, "do you want an alligator?"

"Yes," replied the mayor.

The mayor sent a truck. The driver returned with the alligator and asked where to put it.

"Put it in the city swimming pool," the mayor said.

The pool leaked and had been closed for repairs. But a tall fence surrounded it and the gate was locked. A safe place for a mean old alligator.

The alligator seemed content swimming around in the half-filled city pool behind the fence. Certainly it was a better life than living in a pit.

The mayor fed the alligator chickens. It liked chickens.

One morning a city employe, on his way to work, spied an alligator crossing the road. He phoned the mayor.

"Mayor," he said, "do you want another alligator?"

"Why not?" said the mayor.

The city employe tossed the new alligator in the city pool and went about his city work. The new alligator was smaller than the mean old alligator. The mean old alligator was 11 feet long.

Next morning the mayor went to look over his alligator collection. He made a startling discovery. Swimming in the city pool was only one alligator. The big one.

(AP WIREPHOTO)

KEEPING THEIR DISTANCE — Dr. Charles Gideon (right) watches as a policeman sprays water on Old Hardhide, a big alligator advertised as the largest in captivity in Louisiana.

"Why you mean old alligator," the mayor scolded.

The mayor noticed something else, too. He noticed that the children of the city gathered at the pool every day to watch the mean old alligator. They sat on the bleachers outside the fence with their elbows on their knees and their chins in their palms. They just sat there, watching.

The mayor had a brainstorm.

If Louisiana children like to watch a mean old alligator, thought the mayor, how much more would children from other states, who have never seen an alligator, enjoy it? That mean old alligator, the mayor decided, could attract wealthy tourists to our fine city.

The mayor ordered a cage built right in the middle of the town. A roomy cage, with a pool of clean water.

Strong men roped and tied the mean old alligator and brought him to the cage. Then the mayor put up a sign on the highway:

ALLIGATOR.

Tourists came to peek, but the Town Council grumbled.

How, wondered the mayor, can I raise the money to pay for this fine alligator cage and for all the chickens that mean old pretty alligator eats and keep the Town Council off my back?

He had another brainstorm. He put up another sign, this one inside the alligator cage:

TWENTY-FIVE DOLLAR FINE FOR THROWING ANYTHING AT THIS ALLIGATOR EXCEPT MONEY.

Now, day by day people driving down the highway see the sign and come to Ponchatoula and stand outside the cage in the middle of the town and throw money at that mean old alligator.

The cage is paid for. The chickens are paid for. The Town Council is happy. The tourists are happy to peek at the prettiest mean old alligator in the whole world, and the richest.

You can peek at him too. Bring money.

Hofheinz will not seek third term

HOUSTON (AP) — Mayor Fred Hofheinz announced today he will not seek a third two-year term in the Nov. 8 city election.

Hofheinz, 39, said it is time to let new faces give Houston government a fresh momentum.

Immediate speculation on a possible successor centered on Frank B. Briscoe, a former district attorney, and Jim McConn, a former city councilman. Briscoe made an unsuccessful challenger against Hofheinz in 1975.

Hofheinz, now in his second two-year term, said "Good government requires change and innovation. It requires new faces, fresh ideas and the energy of new leadership — the kind of new leadership that I brought to city hall almost four years ago."

The mayor of the state's largest city said he believed he would have been successful if he had sought a third term but "the expectation of victory is not enough justification for my candidacy.

"I believe that mayors can serve too long. I believe they can outlive their effectiveness. It is better, in my judgement, to err in favor of brevity of service than longevity," he said.

Hofheinz made no announcement concerning future political plans.

During his years as mayor, Hofheinz said, "We have been able to open the doors of government to groups who never before had access. We have built bridges between racial groups. We have established the priority of community-wide rather than sectional policies and we have fought those who would abuse the authority that you have given them."

In a copyrighted story, The Post said Hofheinz had nc definite plans to seek any other political office.

An effort was made earlier this year to recall Hofheinz after he named Niki Van Hightower to his staff as a women's advocate. Hofheinz made the appointment immediately after the City Council had abolished Ms. Hightower's job.

The recall petition drive fell far short of the required signatures.

LEARNS OF MOTHER'S FATE — Clifford Doze, 53, holds a copy of the Buffalo Evening News in which he discovered that his mother was a murder victim 50 years ago. An edition of the paper carried re-print also showed a story about his mother's murder.

Paper provides truth

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The last time Clifford Doze saw his mother, he was a three-year-old and she was walking out the front door, saying she was going to buy him an ice cream cone. That was 50 years ago.

"I can remember the door on Chester Street, and wanting to follow her so bad. I didn't want to be left there. I watched the door for the longest time," he recalled recently.

Doze was raised by his maternal grandmother and it was years before anyone told him that his mother was dead. And it was years after that before he suspected there was some foul secret about her death.

He learned the truth because of an accident of history and a recent evening newspaper.

Doze, an exterminator, was sitting in his Buffalo home May 21, relaxing with that day's edition of the Buffalo Evening News. Turning to the Magazine section, he saw a reproduction of the May 21, 1927, front page of the News. It was printed to honor the 50th anniversary of Charles Lindbergh's solo flight across the Atlantic.

"LINDBERGH IN FRANCE," read the banner headline. Below it on the left, in smaller type but clearly visible, was the heading "Murdered Woman Is Mrs. C.G. Doze."

The newspaper account stated that a young woman, her hair "worn in a boyish bob," was found in a creek, strangled and beaten to death. Police believed her body had been thrown down the creek bank from a car.

The story said Grace Doze and her husband Chester had fought the Monday before her body was found. She had walked out on him.

The killing was never solved.

"The old man, he never said a word. Of course, he was pretty close-mouthed anyhow," Doze said recently.

Chester, who died several years ago, had been questioned in connection with the slaying, but no charges were filed.

Doze said he is glad to know the truth about his parents.

"I don't judge them. I feel they've both been judged."

Probation action shapes

Randy Russell Rhodes was returned to the Howard County Sheriff's Department Wednesday to face a revocation of probation: Rhodes was on six years probation for burglary of a Super-Save. He received the probated sentence January 20, 1977.

For the record

The conviction against Jay Doug Ingram, in regard to the shooting death of Michael Green, was manslaughter and not murder as incorrectly stated in the Wednesday issue of the Big Spring Herald.

The 20-year sentence for manslaughter is currently under appeal. The Herald did not intend any embarrassment to the parties involved by the incorrect listing of the conviction.

New Lions Club in Westbrook

A new Lions Club in Westbrook will be chartered Saturday, according to Downtown Lions Club incoming president, A.A. Barber.

The club will be chartered at ceremonies beginning at 7:30 p.m. in the Westbrook gymnasium with Walter Roby, district 2-T3 governor, as guest speaker.

The club is sponsored by the Colorado City Lions Club.

Local Lions and their wives were invited to attend the ceremony.

Also at the regular meeting Dan Conley, program chairman, presented a film borrowed from the Howard County Library.

The film was Laurel and Hardy's "The Music Boy", their only Oscar-winning performance.

Footprints may lead to 'missing boy'

CLEVELAND, Tenn. (AP) — The FBI crime lab has been asked to compare the footprints of a missing boy from Texas and an unidentified body found last month in an East Tennessee lake.

Dist. Atty. Gen. Richard Fisher said he expects to know by Friday morning whether the footprnts match.

Fisher said he took the footprint of 5-year-old Lynn Skidmore to the Chattanooga Police Department identification section for analysis.

"They made a microscopic examination and said they saw no inconsistencies between the two," he said. "But due to the quality of the baby print, we all decided to send them to the FBI crime lab."

The Texas boy's father, James Skidmore, was found dead last week in a Harrison, Ark., motel room. His mother is also missing.

All three were last seen alive March 29 at the home of James Skidmore's parents in Rossville, Ga.

Boone County, Ark., Sheriff Loy Green asked authorities in Tennessee whether their unidentified body might be that of young Skidmore. Fisher had said he was skeptical because dental charts of the missing boy were not similar to those of the victim.

'Cry For Help' film slated

An open meeting of persons interested in promotion of an Emergency Medical Service for Howard County residents will be held in Room 206 of the Horace Garrett Building of Howard College starting at 7 p.m., Friday, June 17.

An educational film, entitled "Cry for Help," will be shown to those attending. The film is being provided by the Texas Health and Resources Department.

Burglar gone fishin'?

Vandals were busy Wednesday.

Maryon Snelson, 3903 Hamilton, reported that mischief makers painted the left side of her Corvette with green spray paint. Damage was estimated at $200.

Timothy A. Davidson, Route 1, reported that vandals threw rocks at his 1974 Mustang while it was parked at 600 San Jacinto, 12:05 a.m. today. Damage was estimated at $300.

S.J. Payne, 3225 Drexel, reported that vandals had also broken the drivers window of his company car sometime Tuesday night. Damage was estimated at $60.

Fifty fishing rods and 30 reels were stolen from a travel trailer in the back yard of Clyde Huff, 508 Sunset. The owner is out of town, and the break-in was reported by a relative. Loss was estimated at $1,000.

Melissa R. Estrada, 1103 E. 13th, reported that burglars used a wire hook to open the door of her car which was parked in the lot of Walls Industries. Stolen were an empty purse and a CB radio. The items were valued at $160.

Kathy Priest, 4112 Dixon, also lost a purse, but hers reportedly contained $80 worth of jewelry. The purse was filed in a basket at the Municipal Swimming Pool, but when Ms. Priest attempted to claim it it was gone.

Two mishaps were reported Wednesday.

A vehicle driven by James L. Liles, Mayo Ranch Motel, collided with a parked vehicle belonging to Harry J. Hepner, 1501 Tucson, at 900 Kenney, 5:37 p.m.

A vehicle belonging to Betty Biddle, 1602 E. 16th, was struck by a vehicle that left the scene at Eleventh and Birdwell, 6:01 p.m.

Brownwood books Anita

BROWNWOOD—Singer Anita Bryant will perform here July 3 at the conclusion of the community's weeklong festive activities.

The show gets under way at 8 p.m. Included on the program will be a 30-minute orchestral rendition of old songs and a sing-along audience participation.

Ms. Bryant, 37, has been very much in the news lately, campaigning against ordinances in Miami, Fla., that prohibit discrimination against homesexuals in housing and employment.

Coach named principal

LAMESA — Ken Crouch, assistant basketball coach at Lamesa High School the past seven years, has been named high school principal at O'Donnell. Crouch was extended a two-year contract by the O'Donnell school board.

A one-time all-state basketball player for Lamesa, Crouch coached in Hatch, N.M., for four years before moving back to Lamesa.

Anti-gay rights rally planned

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Anita Bryant has been invited to bring her controversial antigay campaign to San Antonio, but a Baptist preacher who issued the invitation says he's fighting more than just gay rights.

"It's a battle of morality vs. immorality," the Rev. Joe West said Wednesday.

Meanwhile, Jim Eggeling, a spokesman for San Antonio's homosexual community, said he doesn't know why an antigay rights rally is planned in San Antonio since the city has no homosexual rights ordinance.

The Dade County, Fla., defeat of a gay rights ordinance on Tuesday was a solid victory, the Rev. West said, and may signal the beginning of the "greatest moral revival of our time." He said voters apparently saw through the gays' "fairy tales" about the ordinance.

The minister said he will meet with Miss Bryant in Houston on June 16 when she performs at the state bar association's convention.

Eggeling used to be a schoolteacher, but was fired after telling administrators he was a homosexual.

When a gay spokesman addressed the city council on June 2, the appearance attracted a "we hate gays" crowd, Eggeling said.

The city's homosexual community held a rally and raised $2,000 for the Dade County gay movement. A counter-rally at the Alamo attracted persons opposed to the Dade County gay rights ordinance.

"Our major push now is to show the city council and the county commissioners that we have political clout. It may not be enough to swing a vote, but we can eliminate people who are actively hostile toward gays," he said.

Eggeling said no one knows what percentage of San Antonio voters are gay, but he they represent a "significant sector."

'Beautiful' student slain

BOSTON (AP) — Seventeen-year-old Judy Belfrey was a high school junior who lived in a sunny suburban world of achievement and popularity. She died in a shabby Boston Back Bay apartment, and police are looking for her killer.

"She was beautiful, terrific," said David Levington, superintendent of Lincoln-Sudbury Regional High School. "She was a fine student, popular with friends. I think she was on the field hockey team. She just, came back from a bike tour of Cape Cod. We're totally distraught.

"It doesn't make any sense for us to believe," Levington said of the circumstances of her death.

Judy's badly beaten body, fully clothed, was found by her roommate in an apartment they shared, about a mile from the "Combat Zone," Boston's adult entertainment district of topless bars, X-rated movies and pornographic book stores.

Two hours before, she had been in a Combat Zone bar.

"She was last seen Tuesday night in a lounge and seen leaving there with a man," Detective Robert Hudson said Wednesday. "Look, she was a 17-year-old high school girl learning about the city."

Police described the man as being in his 40s and wearing a red blazer and blue slacks.

Officers said they had a suspect in mind, but Hudson declined to divulge any details.

Police said Miss Belfrey had shared the apartment for less than two weeks with Carol MacDonald, 21, who is unemployed.

Judy had come to Boston from Sudbury, her hometown 17 miles away, because of a school program, Levington said. Her father Charles works as a carpenter in Sudbury.

Weather
Highs to flirt with 100 mark

By The Associated Press

Texans from Austin to the Gulf Coast crawled out from under an early morning fog and low cloud blanket today to join the rest of the state on another warm day.

Early morning temperatures ranged from the 50s in the mountains to the 70s in most of the rest of the state.

Southern and southwestern parts of Texas were on the lookout for expected thunderstorms, while clear to partly cloudy skies were predicted for the rest of the state.

Highs were expected to flirt with the 100-degree mark in North Central Texas and the valleys of the Big Bend. Readings in the 90s were predicted for the rest of the state.

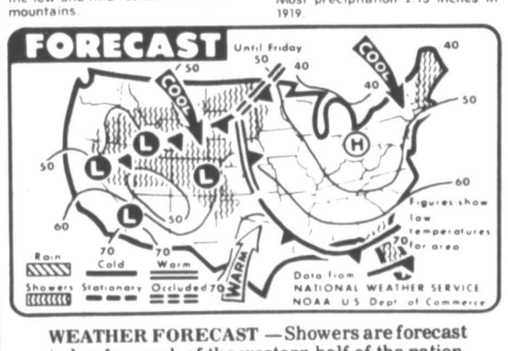

FORECAST

WEST TEXAS: Mostly fair north partly cloudy south through Friday with scattered thunderstorms southwest. Highs 92 to 97 except upper 80s mountains and near 100 valleys Big Bend. Lows 65 to 70 except near 50 mountains.

WEST TEXAS: Scattered showers and thunderstorms north Saturday, otherwise clear to partly cloudy with above normal temperatures Saturday through Monday. Highsin the 90s except about 105 lower elevations of the Big Bend. Lows mid 60s north to the low and mid 70s south and 50s mountains.

Construction to be discussed

STANTON — Tommy Huckabee and Bob Richardson will confer with the Stanton board of school trustees at its regular meeting at 7 p.m., here Monday.

Huckabee will present plans for proposed new construction within the school system. Richardson will attend to seek approval for a guidance program for the school district.

Teacher hirings and resignations will also be reviewed with Supt. Russell McMeans.

Continental boardings up

LUBBOCK — Continental Airline boardings showed a marked increase here last month, after it was announced reduced fares to other Texas points would be offered to the public.

Figures showed Continental flew about 800 more passengers out of Lubbock in May than in April.

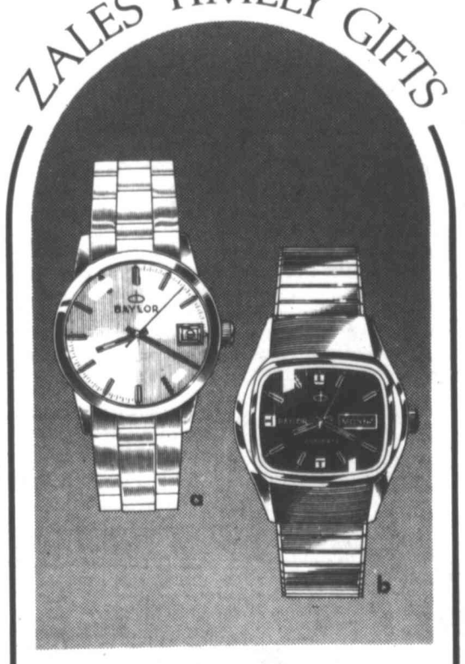

Boardings for both Braniff and Texas International, which did not offer the reduced fares, were down. Braniff had 400 fewer boardings, Texas International 140.

Takeover of Webb property essential

When the Big Spring City Council passed on first reading Tuesday an ordinance that would annex Webb Air Force Base into the city limits, there was no public opposition.

And the council took the action unanimously.

The annexation begins the steps toward the City of Big Spring taking control of Webb after the Air Force abandons it and using it for a municipal airport and an industrial park.

The city and the people of Big Spring have no other reasonable choice but to persue this course of action.

BUT THERE have been a number of persons who have in private raised questions. Some of these questioners are wise and experienced people not given to being in opposition simply for oppostion's sake.

They ask: Why should the City of Big Spring, and therefore the people, assume the responsibility for Webb? Can revenues from the airport and the industrial park support the facility? What will the maintenance on Webb cost each year? Would it be better if the city said to the government, "It's your base, you do something with it. We don't want it."

These are good questions, and the answers to all of them are not yet known.

But this is known: Big Spring will be losing a valuable industry when Webb departs, and if our town is to keep from stagnating, we must replace the Air Force with other types of industry.

Without the Webb buildings and grounds, this would be most difficult.

The chances are that, if the city does not assume Webb, the federal government would leave most of the base in mothballs for at least three of four years and possibly for much longer. Our community could sit and watch a small contingency occupy a closed base for a decade while the buildings deteriorate and the town goes downhill, jobs dry up, and the values of our homes and property decline.

Big Spring has no other choice but to assume the responsibility for the base and make it work to benefit the town. Other cities which have lost military bases have been able to accomplish this, though not without difficulty, and Big Spring can too.

THE BASE is a very valuable asset, probably $100 million worth by any estimate. From the early interest being expressed in the base by outside industries, there seems to be a good chance that the facility can pay its own way — plus create the jobs our town will need.

Big Spring is at one of the major crossroads in its history. Anything the communtiy does at this point, even doing nothing at all, involves some risk. The community must get together and develop a plan for growth and recovery that will work.

The major asset which the community has to accomplish this recovery is Webb itself.

With a little luck and a little time, Webb can remain one of the best things this town has going for it, even without the Air Force.

Hail the Queen!

Around the rim

James Werrell

The Queen of England is a difficult entity for me, as an American, to fully comprehend.

Watching the celebration of Queen Elizabeth II's Silver Jubilee just ended to make the royal post more mysterious and otherworldly. As the Queen, surrounded by all the bizarre and beautiful trappings that are her birthright, walked through the streets of London greeting her subjects, the faces of the people were probably the most revealing evidence of what it is to be the Queen.

AS HER subjects touched her hand and looked into her face, it seemed as if they were not just shaking hands with a VIP or celebrity or even the leader of a country. I would, again as an American, have to guess that they were looking at and touching a part of their history.

They touched a heritage and a bloodline that courses back hundreds of years, linking them to a savage, stoic people who turned a small island into the greatest empire the world has known. And the empire still exists in the Queen, and in the pomp, ceremony, fanfare; in the tradition.

In short, in the Queen resides all that is good and all that is bad about England. An observance from another jubilee, Queen Victoria's Diamond Jubilee in 1897, epitomizes that attitude which has been Great Britain's strength and its weakness.

The observance comes from a reporter with the London Daily Mail on the day of the Jubilee. He watched mounted troops and infantry from Australia, West Africa, Cyprus, Hong Kong, Borneo, South Africa, Canada and India walk past and salute the Queen. He also viewed 173 warships assemble in four columns offshore to pay homage to Her Majesty.

"... AND YOU begin to understand, as never before, what the Empire amounts to ... We send out a boy here and a boy there, and the boy takes hold of savages ... and teaches them to march and shoot ... and believe him, and die for him and the Queen. A plain stupid, uninspired people, they call us, and yet we are doing this with every kind of savage man there is," wrote the correspondent.

Self righteous and imperious, but with a sense of mission that often brought light to the darkness.

At their worst, the English are stuffy, priggish, pompous, overly intellectual and seemingly bloodless. At best, their way of life represents all that is worth saving of Western culture.

Arthur Goldberg, American statesman, recently said that the U.S. should stop at nothing to save Great Britain from its impending economic ruination. He spoke of England as a parent to our country, saying that our government, literature, theater, our way of life was spawned in England.

I concur, and, on her 25th anniversary in Buckingham Palace, I say, "Long live the Queen!"

Freedom vs democracy?

William F. Buckley, Jr.

There is more wisdom and realism in a few paragraphs in the current issue of Time Magazine than in the collected opera of President James Carter on the subject of human rights. The news story-essay was written by Ralph Graves, former managing editor of Life Magazine, after a tour in the Pacific. Mr. Graves, like so many Americans, is concerned to define the correct relationship between the United States government and Asiatic countries that are 1) undemocratic, and 2) unfree. He visited in South Korea, Singapore, and the Philippines, and from his visits with the strong men of those three countries there is much to be learned.

ABOVE ALL, the distinction that needs constantly to be observed is between political freedom and other freedoms. We tend, in our rhetoric, to use a word "democracy" as a rough substitute for civic virtue. Someone more patient than I waded through John Dewey's "Democracy and Education" and collected 29 different uses of the word democracy in that volume alone. The point to remember was best phrased by Dr. Johnson, who wrote: "The end of political freedom is personal freedom." The principal purpose of the vote is to resist effectively those who seek to impose upon you — usually, government.

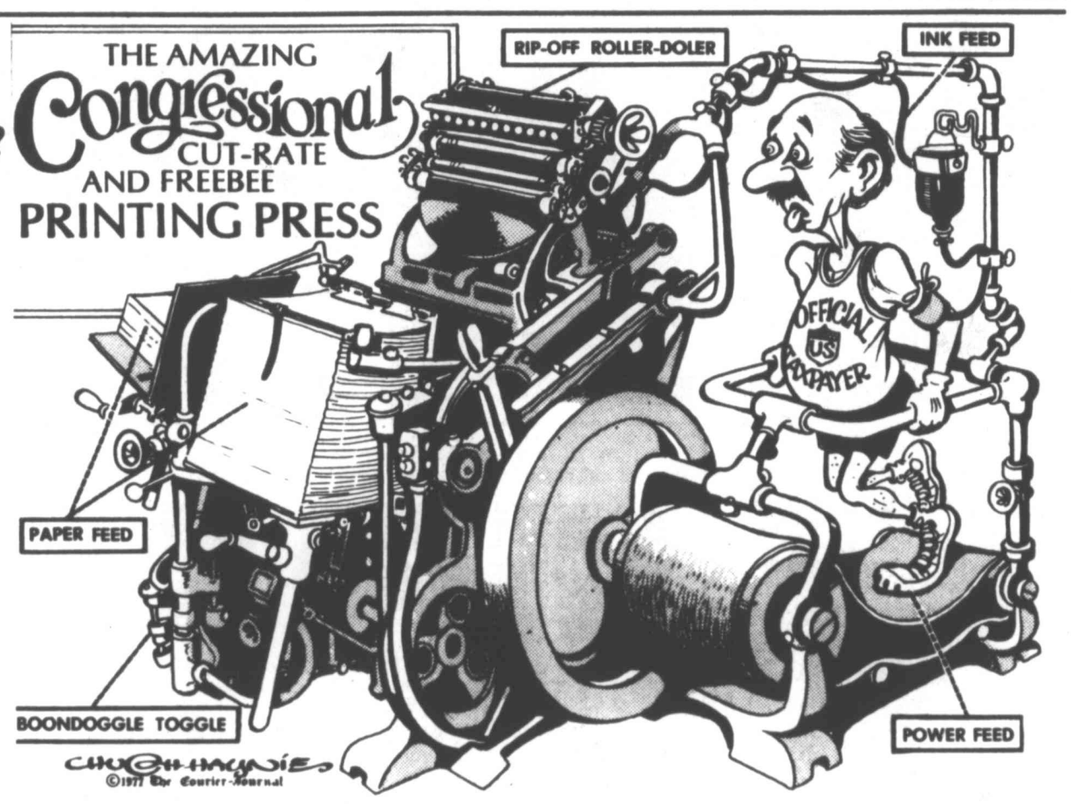

On the other hand, societies can enjoy substantial freedoms even where no political freedom exists. To say that freedom is indefeasible — that a society is totally free or else not free at all — is democratic cant, but, unfortunately, regularly used, for instance in the loose language dumped by President Carter on his audience at Notre Dame ten days ago.

Nam Duck Woo, the Deputy Prime Minister of South Korea, is quoted in Time. "There is not one developing country in the world where Western democracy really works." That statement is more nearly true than false. Nam went on to say, "The government in a developing country must give guidance, direction, stability." Although that is a dangerous statement, it is, once again, more nearly true than false in certain circumstances. Democracy will not work unless the minority is prepared to yield authority to the majority. And democracy is unsatisfactory if the minority is deprived of basic rights.

What then, as the U.S. strives simultaneously to encourage economic growth and stability, along with human freedom, are we to do?

The most intelligent commentary here was by Lee Kuan Yew, Prime Minister of Singapore. In Time's summation, "It is Lee's contention that the direction of a society, especially a developing society, is more relevant than its ability to meet some unrealistically high western standard. He sums it up this way: 'You should ask whether a country is trying to move toward a more tolerant society where he individual has value, or toward a more repressive society where the individual is subservient to the state.' " It cannot be better expressed.

OUR CRITICIAL rhetoric should sharply distinguish between political rights (which are a luxury of orderly, self-disciplined people), and human rights (which are a mataphysical patrimony). The President of the Philippines is in many respects unappealing. There is no political freedom whatever in the Philippines.

Amputation leaves 'phantom pain'

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have an elderly male relative who was interested in a reference you made to Morton's toe. You spoke of killing the nerve involved in the pain. My relative wondered if this is possible for him. He had his entire foot amputated, but pain persists there and he finds it trying. Could he have his nerve killed to free him of this pain?

He can't get a clear yes or no from his doctors. — Mrs. C.S.

My reference was to surgery to remove a tumor on a nerve. But obviously your elderly relative has a problem different from Morton's toe. Having had amputation of the foot, I suspect he now has what is called "phantom pain." In this the pain is projected to a part of the limb no longer present. There are various explanations for this, but basically it is a physical post-surgical problem. The end of the severed nerve may become trapped in scar tissue from the wound. Being under constant pressure it can be mighty painful.

This can be corrected surgically, and I suggest he ask his doctor about the possibility.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am taking medication for high blood pressure. My last reading was 144-86. I am 51, am 6 feet, ¾ inches, and weigh 186. My biggest problem is a constant ringing in my head, which seems louder at night. I have mentioned this to my doctor, but have not been told what can be done to stop it, as I get little sleep. I recently changed doctors, hoping to find out about this, but not yet. Can you help? — J.C.

Several reasons for this. Elevated blood pressure is one, but your reading of 144-86 is excellent and not in the "noise range." Other common causes include a change in either the auditory nerve or in the earbone (otosclerosis). Suggest your next "change of doctors" include an ear specialist to have these points checked. Trying using a little less salt as well. My booklet on ear noises was written in response to similar mail from thousands of readers describing various sounds in the head, etc. It answers most questions on the subject in greater detail. For a copy, send 25 cents to me in care of the Big Spring Herald.

Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Some blood pressure medicine can contribute to the problem, so in light of your rather good reading and weight perhaps a lower dosage might be prescribed to see if that alleviates the noise problem.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My wife says you can get viruses from eggs. Is this true? — C.L.

She must have been reading about how the flu virus vaccines were made. The viruses are grown in eggs because that is a suitable medium. The vaccines are developed from that. Normal eggs are no more a virus threat than any other food. But cracked eggs can be a source of salmonella poisoning.

CONFIDENTIAL TO D.W. — If these are real body lice, I suspect you have been exposed to them again (after six months of being lice free). Washing and dry cleaning is usually effective in promptly ridding them from the body. P.S. — Have you suspected your boyfriend as a possible source?

Dear Dr. Thosteson: After my death I would like to donate all the organs I can. My friend told me you have to sign many complicated papers beforehand to be eligible for this. Could you please explain this for me? — E.C.

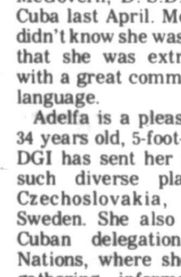

It is not as complicated as you were told. The Uniform Anatomical Gift Code makes this a relatively easy procedure. You should contact the local medical school, any branch of the National Kidney Foundation, or your attorney. Appropriate forms will be supplied, and you can have your wish. Making such a bequest in an ordinary will can create complications.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have false teeth and they seem to create a lot of saliva. Have you any suggestions to get rid of it? My husband says not to bother the doctor, that he'll only tell me it's something I have to live with. — Mrs. V.L.

No reason for you to have to "live with this" at all. It is probably a problem for your dentist. It might be a matter of fit of the denture or a sensitivity to either the denture material or the cement used to retain it.

There's an old saying — if your feet hurt, you hurt all over. Dr. Thosteson's new booklet, "Relief and Care of Your Feet," shows you how to avoid and take care of foot problems. To get your copy, write to Dr. Thosteson in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Hidden Castro

Jack Anderson, Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — Behind the famous beard and the flamboyant style there is another Fidel Castro whom the world doesn't see.

The hidden Castro operates a worldwide intelligence network, directs a Vietnam-style intervention in Angola and practices imperialism on a global scale. He has transformed tiny Cuba into a world power, or course, with a $3.8 million daily subsidy from the Soviet Union. Without Soviet succor, he would have to close down his operation.

The establishment of diplomatic ties between Havana and Washington will also have its unseen side. With the exchange of diplomats will also come an exchange of spies.

Last year, we identified the Cuban spy chief in the United States as Julian Torres Rizo, who also doubles as secretary of Castro's United Nations delegation. Competent sources told us Rizo, while posing as a diplomat, has been developing contacts with radicals in this country.

ANOTHER TOP spy, who will join Castro's diplomatic mission in Washington unless our story stops her, is Alina Alayo Amaro. She is known inside Castro's spy agency, the DGI, by the code name "Adelfa." Her assignment, according to intelligence sources, is to penetrate the U.S. government. She is an expert on the U.S. Senate.

She was assigned, for example, as interpreter for Sen. George McGovern, D.-S.D., when he visited Cuba last April. McGovern told us he didn't know she was a spy. He recalled that she was extremely intelligent, with a great command of the English language.

Adelfa is a pleasant woman, about 34 years old, 5-foot-4, 120 pounds. The DGI has sent her on assignments to such diverse places as Canada, Czechoslovakia, England and Sweden. She also turned up on the Cuban delegation at the United Nations, where she concentrated on gathering information about U.S. senators. She has compiled detailed profiles on members of the Senate.

Fidel Castro functions, meanwhile, as an arm of the Kremlin. The Soviet KGB organized, trained and financed the DGI, which has become the KGB's eyes and ears in Latin America. Castro's troops in Cuba and Africa are paid and armed by the Soviet Union.

Castro sent a contingent of Cubans into Ethiopia immediately after the Marxist government expelled some 300 U.S. advisers. Cuban military advisers also helped to train the Katanga rebels who recently invaded Zaire.

CUBANS REPORTEDLY are running guerrilla training camps for blacks who want to fight against Rhodesia and South Africa. The camps are located in Angola, Mozambique and Tanzania. Cuban military missions have also been reported in the Congo (Brazzavile), Equatorial Guinea, Guinea, Guinea-Bissau, Mozambique, Sierra Leone, Somalia and Tazania.

For the Soviets, Castro is worth the $3.8 million a day he costs them. He is acceptable in the Third World, which would resist overt Soviet support. His Cubans have been able to infiltrate and subvert large tracts of the African continent, therefore, without the world uproar that would have been caused by direct Soviet intervention.

YET THOSE who have studied Castro closely say he doesn't regard himself as a puppet manipulated by Soviet financial strings. He apparently believes in his revolutionary role and feel a "moral obligation" to aid Communist movements. He views himself, say our sources, as a David who has stood up to the U.S. Goliath.

He seems to believe, therefore, that the Soviets are playing his game rather than the other way around.

WATCH ON WASTE — Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell, in response to President Carter's call for austerity, has turned in the Justice Dept.'s three big limousines. In fact, he cleaned out the entire motor pool, with its 10 additional cars. But he ordered 13 spanking new Mercuries. Three are Marquees, equipped with all the available comforts. These will provide door-to-door service for the Attoney General and for the FBI chief Clarence Kelley, with the third standing by in case other Justice bigwigs need chauffeuring. Ten new Cougars are also ready to haul Justice Dept. biggies around Washington. The motor pool is not new, as a spokesman pointed out, although the automibiles are.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Do you think it is wrong to use musical instruments in church worship? I have a friend who says it is not taught in the New Testament. — Mrs. D.J.

DEAR MRS. J.: I know there are some Christian groups who hold this idea, and I respect their right to have this belief. I do not share their view, however. It is true that the New Testament does not command the use of musical instruments in worship, but then it does not forbid it either. If such instruments detracted from true worship, then they would be wrong, and this can sometimes happen. But if they add to worship I see nothing wrong with their use.

The Old Testament, on the other hand, says a great deal about using musical instruments in praising God. Think of Psalm 150, the last Psalm in the book of Psalms: "Praise him with the sound of the trumpet; praise him with stringed instruments and organs" (Psalm 150:3-4). We know from Jewish sources that the Temple worship of Jesus' day included the use of musical instruments.

The main thing, of course, is whether or not we are really worshipping God, or if we are just going through the motions. When we know Christ as our Saviour, we will want to praise God. "Let the world of Christ dwell in you richly in all wisdom; teaching and admonishing one another in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing with grace in your hearts to the Lord" (Colossians 3:16).

"IT'S A REAL CHALLENGE. YOU HAVE TO GET THE OIL OUT OF THE GROUND AND TO THE MARKET THROUGH THIS MAZE OF FEDERAL RESTRICTIONS, STATE RESTRICTIONS, AND LOCAL RESTRICTIONS."

Dutch government sends warning to Moluccans

ASSEN, The Netherlands (AP) — The Dutch government was sending word today to South Moluccan terrorists holding 55 hostages in a train and a schoolhouse in northern Holland to free their captives or face dangerous consequences.

A government spokesman said it was "out of the question" that the twin sieges, which began 17 days ago, will be allowed to continue much longer.

Officials are becoming increasingly worried about the condition of the hostages, especially the 51 persons held aboard the commuter train 12 miles north of Assen.

Cardiologist Jakob Nieveen said they may develop heart problems due to the stress, the lack of exercise and the uncomfortable conditions. More than half of them are over 40.

Dr. Nieveen made the comment after examining Theo J. van Hattem, 46, who was freed from the train Wednesday after becoming ill. Doctors said he might have had a slight heart attack.

Premier Joop den Uyl and his cabinet were hoping mediators Josina Soumokil and Hassan Tan could convince the terrorists their position is hopeless, both "for their demands and for the political aims they have in view," a Justice Ministry spokesman said.

The mediators, elders in the 40,000-member South Moluccan community in The Netherlands, talked for nearly six hours with the gunmen aboard the train Saturday but failed to make any progress.

Eight to ten terrorists are believed to be on the train and four others are holding four teachers at the elementary school in nearby Bovensmilde.

Dutch officials have said they have several plans for an attack on the train should mediation fail. Some 1,200 troops and hundreds of police are surrounding the train, and about 100 Dutch marines are dug in about 100 yards away from it.

Troops and police also are around the schoolhouse. When the siege began, 105 children were also taken hostage, but they were released after four days along with one teacher.

The two gangs, which struck simultaneously, are demanding passage out of the country for themselves and 21 other South Moluccans held in Dutch jails for previous terrorism and sabotage. The terror campaign is aimed at forcing the Dutch government to support the South Moluccan community's demand for independence from Indonesia for their native islands, which were part of the prewar Dutch East Indies.

Carter calls his income tax audit 'a good thing'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, calling his tax audit a good thing, is suggesting that Internal Revenue Service accountants go over his income tax returns every year he's in the White House.

Vice President Walter F. Mondale, also the target of an IRS audit, hasn't said whether he wants the same annual review. Asked whether the vice president agrees with Carter, spokesman Al Eisele said:

"I really don't know."

For Carter, annual reviews hardly would be new.

"They've inventoried me; they've checked my income taxes I think almost every year the last 10 years," the President told reporters Wednesday on his way to dinner at Budget Director Bert Lance's home.

"But I think it's a good thing to do," Carter said. "We're suggesting they do it every year I'm in office."

Carter didn't make it clear whether the IRS conducted a full-scale audit each time it checked one of his returns. Nor did he reveal any IRS findings. But White House Deputy Press Secretary Rex Granum said Carter authorized him to say an annual, full-scale audit would be welcome as long as Carter is President.

In reply to queries about published reports that the IRS is auditing Carter's 1975 income tax return, White House spokesmen made what Press Secretary Jody Powell conceded were "mistakes and unwarranted assumptions" Wednesday afternoon as they stumbled through a confusing, 2¼-hour explanation.

The briefing was interrupted by an hour and a quarter recess so the spokesmen could check their facts.

Granum said at first that the IRS began the audit because the President's accountant, Robert Perry of Americus, Ga., a town near the Carter's hometown of Plains, invited the agency on the President's behalf to "satisfy itself" of the accuracy of Carter's returns.

But Powell said after the recess that Perry, lawyer Harvey Hill of Atlanta, who has been Carter's attorney on occasion since 1968, and Robert Lipshutz, the President's White House counsel, cannot agree on whether they or the IRS brought up checking Carter's past returns.

"A statement that we brought them up first and brought it (the audit) on, I'm not prepared to make," Powell said.

Despite the confusion, this became clear:

—The audit began early this year, is still going on and the IRS has not told Carter why agents started it or what specific thing about his 1975 return caught their eye.

—Carter is confident the audit will validate his return. He "feels he has no problems," Granum said. Powell added that there has been no allegation of any impropriety or illegality.

—Carter does not think the audit is politically motivated.

Industrial grant voted

The Permian Basin Regional Planning Council board approved the Big Spring request for a grant from the Economic Development Administration for the purpose of hiring a professional staff to coordinate the industrial development of Webb Air Force Base.

The board of directors met at Terminal Wednesday afternoon with Harold Hall, past president of the group presiding. Hall, who is a councilman here, was presiding in place of Judge Darrell Glover of Pecos, who was unable to attend.

The grant, it given final approval by the federal EDA board, will need to be matched with $34,915 in local funds. Paul Feazelle, city administrative assistant who had prepared the grant, was present at the meeting.

Other grants approved, which were of special interest to Big Spring, was $191,531 for the head start program here. Harold Bentley, assistant superintendent, attended the session for that request.

Another project for Big Spring approved was a grant for $15,102 for a vehicle to transport patients from the Big Spring State Hospital to halfway houses and other job interviews.

Other projects approved by the board were community development applications for Midland, Midland County and Goldsmith.

An Emergency Medical Service Training Grant for $252,518.76 was approved for the entire area. This will include advanced paramedic training to follow up the basic training last year.

This training is done at all three junior colleges in the 17-county area, including Howard College Midland College and Odessa College.

The bylaws were reviewed and a drug abuse prevention plan approved. It was pointed out that there is drug abuse to the extent that help is needed in 13 of the 17 counties. The only ones excluded were Glasscock, Loving, Borden and Terrell.

It was also pointed out that most extensive abuse was in Midland, Ector, Howard and Reeves Counties.

Judge Peggy Garner fromUpton County was elevated to vice chairman of the board upon the resignation of Norbon Dikes of Monahans. The secretary's spot was filled by Gene Day of Kermit, elected by the board.

The total Permian Basin budget was approved for $3,740,915. Of this amount, some $870,549 represents the operating budget and $2,870,366 is pass through money for such items as programs for the aging, EMS, teletype system, criminal justice programs and others.

The budget includes an eight per cent discretionary raise for employes, with the judgement to be made by the director, Ernie Crawford.

Attending from Big Spring were Judge Bill Tune and Hall.

Kid spels word he'd never heerd

Cud make groan peepel wiep

WASHINGTON (AP) — John Paola, an eighth grader from Glenshaw, Pa., misspelled three words but then won the 50th National Spelling Bee by correctly spelling "cambist," a word he had never heard before.

With the field of 94 reduced to two finalists, John emerged the winner by correctly spelling "sesquipedalian" after runnerup Joan O'Leary misspelled it. He then followed with cambist, a word dealing with tables of exchange.

Joan, an eighth grader in St. Joseph's school in Yonkers, N.Y., misspelled only two words — the other being "yizkor", the Jewish service for commemorating the dead — but John won it by correctly spelling two words.

John wins $1,000 and a color television set. His school will receive a plaque. Joan will receive a $500 check at Friday's awards banquet.

John, who placed 22nd in last year's national bee, said, "I was scared, mostly today, when I started to miss.

"The last word, I figured out what it was because I had never heard it before."

He said that he had been trying to get to the national finals for three years and that his experience paid off in the end.

Under contest rules, when only two spellers are left, the second contestant gets a chance to spell a word missed by his opponent.

If he fails the competition goes on. But if he spells that word correctly and also the next one he is declared the winner.

After they missed veery, both also misspelled "futtock," which is a curved timber on an old wooden ship, and "yizkor". Joan incorrectly spelled "sesquepedelian" and John followed with the correct version and "cambist."

Today's final round took less than one hour. It began with 26 contestants who survived seven rounds yesterday.

Joseph Fumic of North Olmsted, Ohio, got the $250 third prize, dropping out after he misspelled "triage" as "trieche."

In fourth place was Roxanne Taylor, an eighth grader from Forest Hills, N.Y., who missed "mecometer" which is an instrument used to measure a newborn child.

Nuclear power plants ahoy

NEW YORK (AP) — Where do you dock a floating nuclear powsr plant? Not just anywhere, according to The Compass, a publication of MOAC, a commercial marine insurer.

In an article describing the nation's first floating nuclear power plant — scheduled for activation in 1984 off the New Jersey coast — The Compass notes that the breakwater for these plants will be the largest, strongest structure ever built in the ocean. It must be capable of protecting the power plant form a one-in-a-million storm with wind velocity up to 300 mph, and be capable of stopping the largest oil tankers from ramming the plant.

The breakwater for the New Jersey power plant will be built about three miles from shore. The Compass notes that seaborne sites for power plants must be in water between 40 and 70 feet deep with a temperature variation of between 28.6 and 85 degrees Fahrenheit.

College costs $17.49 hour

MEDFORD, Mass. (AP) — Without use of a computer, Tim Manners, Tufts University sophomore, has calculated the cost of his education, and decided it isn't exactly cheap.

"This year I've attended classes 12 hours a week for 28 weeks, or a total of 336 hours," Manners said. "It cost me $5,879. Simple division tells me that amounts to $17.49 an hour.

Hole-in-one fired by former president

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — It turned out to be a good day on the greens for former president Gerald Ford, an 18-handicap golfer. He made a hole-in-one Wednesday in the Danny Thomas Memphis Classic pro-am tournament.

Until his ace on the Colonial Country Club's par three, 177-yard fifth hole, Ford's five-man team seemed to be far from the money.

Then Ford stepped to the fifth tee and hit a high shot that faded to the left of the green.

"Good shot, good shot," declared one of the security men as the ball bounced to the left of the pin, then, "It's going in, it's in!" as the ball dribbled into the cup.

Poultry profits rise

AUSTIN — Texas poultry producers' gross income in 1976 increased 9 per cent over the 1975 marketing year. The total gross income came to $378 million according to the Texas Department of Agriculture.

"Texas has maintained its standing within the top ten poultry producing states in the U.S.," commented Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown.

According to the Texas Livestock Reporting Service broiler production in 1976 totaled 190,703,000 birds, 17 per cent above 1975. Gross income was 8 per cent above the 1975 total. Despite an average drop of 2.8 cents per pound, gross income was $181,168,000 due to increased production.

Egg production totaled 2,357 million eggs in 1976, slightly below 1975. Cash receipts from the sale of eggs amounted to 129 million, 12 per cent more than a year earlier. The average price received for eggs was 66.6 cents per dozen compared to 59.6 cents in 1975.

Chickens raised in 1976 (excluding broilers) totaled 12 million head compared to 11 million head a year earlier. Cash receipts from chickens totaled 4.5 million, 22 per cent higher than 1975. The 1976 average price of chickens was 13.3 cents per pound compared to 8.6 cents for the previous year.

There were 9,300,000 turkeys in 1976, up 5 per cent from 1975. Gross income from turkeys at $61 million increased $4 million from a year ago. Average price per ound was 32.8 cents, compared with 34.0 cents last year, but increased production accounted for the rise in gross income.

Gonzales County leads the state in number of hens and pullets of laying age with 1,724,000 head or 16.3 per cent, followed by Shelby with 750,000 head; Caldwell with 541,000 head; Denton, 506,000; and Fayette, 472,000.

The leading egg producer was Gonzales County with 385,000,000 eggs; followed by Shelby with 165,000,000; Caldwell, 121,500,000; Denton, 111,000,000; and Fayette, 106,000,000.

Gonzales County was again the leader in commercial broiler production with 43,488,000 or 22.9 per cent, followed by Nacogdoches County, 41,205,000; Shelby County, 32,635,000; Panola County, 17,905,000; Sabine County, 12,450,000.

Most turkeys raised in Texas in 1976 were from McLennan County with 1,141,000 head; followed by Bell County with 990,000; Mason County, 811,000; Gillespie County, 730,000; and Gonzales County, 662,000.

PROMOTION CLICKS IN STANTON — The Stanton Chamber of Commerce and downtown merchants got together in Stanton last week to promote "Old Soreheads Trades Day," where booths were set up on a roped-off street and merchants set up for sidewalk sales. Sales reportedly were brisk. The activity will be repeated July 9, coinciding with the Martin County Old Settlers Reunion.

Job agencies at 'war'

By JIM DAVIS
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The "state of war" between two state agencies dealing with employment has moved to the conference table stage, but the light of peace remains at the far end of the tunnel.

"We still have a conflict," Nolan F. Ward, chairman of the Texas Employment Commission, said Tuesday after a meeting with Leo F. Brockmann, director of the Merit System Council.

"I don't think I have anything to say right now," was all Brockmann would say.

Ward, one of the highest ranking blacks in state government, was willing to say plenty about his campaign to get more minority members working in state government.

He even implied that Brockmann's job is on the line and that a change will be made if the Merit System Council doesn't improve its affirmative action program.

The meeting with Brockmann came after Ward issued news releases declaring "a state of war" against the MSC and calling it "the last bastion of discrimination in providing equality of opportunity in state employment."

Ward called the meeting informative but said that as far as affirmative action commitments by the MSC were concerned "nothing came out of it."

"There was no affirmative promise to do better on their part," Ward said.

According to Ward, Brockmann claimed that part of the problem in recruiting and hiring minority members for the state jobs lies in the state's "veterans preference" program. This program gives additional points to veterans on Merit System scores and is mandated by the Legislature.

"My reply to that was that a significant percentage — about half of those who wound up in the Viet Nam conflict — were minority people," Ward said. "If indeed veterans preference is the thing that prohibits them from recruiting minorities, what happened to those?"

Ward said Brockmann referred to some new state employment tests designed to avoid any discrimination against minorities.

"I'm going to look at this and at what the Merit System is doing itself (to promote hirng of minorities)," Ward said.

"If nothing comes of that maybe we need to start looking at the leadership of Merit Service in terms of alternatives."

The Merit System designs and conducts employment tests for the TEC and several other state agencies and actually is administratively under the TEC.

The three board members of the Merit System are named by the Employment Commission on the recommendation of all agencies using the system. The Employment Commission hires the MSC director at the recommendation of the board members.

Ward said in the past these appointments have been rubber-stamped by the Employment Commission but this won't be the case in the future.

"If the commission hires the director, it also has the power to discharge," he said.

Tips on how to lower electric bills

The air conditioning season has arrived again, and that means higher electric bills. But Texas Electric Service Co. says costs can be held down with a little effort.

"The easiest way to lower bills is to raise thermostats," according to Texas Electric Division Manager Jack Redding. The company recommends a setting of 78 degrees as the best balance between economy and comfort.

People with window air conditioners should use an indoor thermometer to set their temperature control rather than relying on what "feels right," he said.

If the house is to be empty all day, raise the thermostat setting five degrees. If the house will be empty for several days, turn the air conditioner off unless something inside would be damaged by the heat.

The weather may send electric bills higher this summer than in recent years. "We've enjoyed two cooler-than-normal summers. if this turns out to be a hot summer, air conditioners will be working harder and using more electricity," he said.

The area that offers the greatest potential for saving money is insulation. "Properly insulating a house that had no insulation can lower cooling costs 40 per cent," Redding said.

Insulation is measured in terms of its resistance to heat flow — called its "R value." Texas Electric recommends ceiling insulation of at least R26.

The amount of insulation required to reach a certain R value depends upon the type of insulation used. For instance, R26 insulation in the ceiling required about 12 inches of blown-in fiberglass or nine inches of blown rock wool.

"Most insulation contractors are happy to give you a free estimate on insulating your attic to a specified level," Redding said.

"Attic insulation can cost as much as several hundred dollars, but with today's higher energy prices it can pay for itself in only a few seasons," he said.

Another way to cut cooling costs is with weatherstripping and caulking. This is inexpensive and easy to do, but can lower costs noticeably if a house has many air leaks.

The usual culprits are around the doors and windows, but other trouble spots can be around wall electrical outlets, attic doors and through-the-door mail slots.

"Of course all the weatherstripping in the world won't help if outside doors are being opened repeatedly. Hot air rushes in every time a door is opened," Redding said.

An "open door" that people often forget about is the fireplace damper. A fireplace draws air whether there is a fire in it or not. If the damper is left open all summer, a lot of cool air and money will be going up the chimney.

Another way to save air conditioning costs is to operate the air conditioning equipment properly. That includes cleaning or replacing air conditioning filters regularly.

Outside, air conditioning equipment should be given room to blow off its hot air. Shrubs or grass too close to the compressor unit will restrict air circulation and cut efficiency.

786 rotary rigs spinning

A total of 786 rotary rigs were making hole in Texas during the week ending 786, compared to 779 for the preceding week.

One month ago, 784 rigs were turning in the state while a year ago the rig count was only 597.

Throughout the United States, 1,992 rigs were busy this week ending June 6, compared to 1,985 for the preceding week, 1,998 a month ago and 1,545 a year ago.

She runs service for finding the unfindable

CHICAGO (AP) — Ellen Levine wasn't the least nonplussed when someone called her recently and asked her to find a rickshaw. She didn't bat an eyelash when someone else wanted a windshield frame for a 1932 Ford. She found both items.

When a third person called and wanted to rent a sheep "for a party" Ms. Levine said "can do" — pausing only to make sure that the animal would be humanely treated.

Ms. Levine, a former medical technician, has been in business for herself since January as the founder, proprietor and sole full-time employe of Dial-A-Maven, a service for finding the unfindable.

A maven, for those who know no Yiddish, is a connoisseur, an adviser and a general know-it-all on a particular subject.

In filling the requests, Ms. Levine relies on telephone and business directories, research facilities and an ever-widening network of personal contacts. She charges a base fee of $25 for putting buyer and seller in contact, plus expenses such as long-distance telephone calls and extra time for especially hard-to-find items.

Her most common requests, she says, are for rare books, old opera recordings and pre-Elvis Presley rock-and-roll records. She also gets a lot of requests for antiques and decor items.

Camera crews shooting advertising layouts are some of Dial-A-Maven's most faithful customers. Ms. Levine has arranged for them to rent such items as a gazebo, a horse-drawn milk wagon and a crank-operated washing machine.

Some of the requests are for services. A woman recently sought — and got — a job on a river barge, and Ms. Levine is currectly dickering with several farmers to find a country home for a too-large city dog.

Perhaps the most unusual recent request came from a transplanted New Yorker who was outraged to find that Nathan's Famous hot dogs were unobtainable in Chicago.

The man demanded to know why, and asked for an outline of Nathan's entire distribution system as well as a list of cities other than New York where the hot dogs were available. Dial-A-Maven found the information for him.

ENTERS DERBY — Alverna Williams, 48, who lost both legs in an accident as an infant, intends to fly the cross-country Powder Puff Derby alone. Mrs. Williams, a Dallas Tex., housewife and mother of two children has been flying since 1944 and uses a plane with hand-operated controls.

Legless pilot enters Powder Puff

DALLAS (AP) — Alverna Williams, who lost both legs in an accident as an infant, intends to fly the entire cross-country Powder Puff Derby alone — even though a taking a co-pilot would cut the crushing expenses.

"I know what I am," said Mrs. Williams, 48, who "walks" on exceptionally strong hands protected by low-heeled shoes. "I have no legs. If someone goes with me, the public will think the other woman did everything.

"By going by myself no one can say I didn't do it. People in this country have been told too many lies about handicapped people, but I won't be one of them."

Mrs. Williams, a housewife and mother of two adult children, says it will cost her more than $3,500 to take part in the Powder Puff Derby's 30th anniversary commemorative flight from California to Florida on July 1-4.

"It's costing me a fortune," she admitted.

Her search for a sponsor has been unsuccessful. "So far my sponsors are my friends and fellow pilots who've donated what they can," she said. "It's kind of hard to find a sponsor when you don't look like Farrah Fawcett-Majors."

Mrs. Williams' legs were amputated at the hips after she was in an auto accident when she was a year old. As a child she wore artificial legs but discarded them because they were too rigid.

In 1944, at age 16, she learned to fly an airplane with hand-operated controls. After passing all the required tests — physical and technical — she was refused a license by federal authorities.

She threatened to take the matter to court and the Civil Aeronautics Administration, now the FAA, relented, issuing her the first pilot's license ever granted to a handicapped person.

Mrs. Williams also drives, swims, surfs, bowls, tap dances and rides a motorcycle. She met her husband, a former aircraft technician, while riding a motorcycle.

The Powder Puff Derby will be Mrs. Williams' first, since she hasn't been able to qualify her single-engine plane. "It wasn't fast enough," she said. "But this year the Powder Puff isn't a race, so it's been opened up to less powerful planes."

The Powder Puff commemorative flight, limited to 150 planes, covers the original 1947 race route.

Coalition aiming at Clayton?

AUSTIN — Rep. Bill Sullivant of Gainesville reportedly is attempting to put together a coalition to try to oust Bill Clayton as speaker of the House during an expected special session this summer.

Sullivant said Wednesday he had heard rumors that such an effort was being made, but wouldn't comment on who was coordinating the effort. He refused to give any names.

One of Sullivant's key backers, Rep. Smith Gilley of Greenville, would only answer "no comment" to questions about his involvement in the effort. The same response came when he was asked if he had heard the rumors.

Rep. Luther Jones of El Paso, a key backer of Buddy Temple's effort to be speaker, confirmed that a number of Temple backers had been contacted about such a move.

He said that Sullivant had called Temple and requested Temple withdraw from the race in favor of the oust Clayton movement. Temple refused to go along.

Reportedly Sullivant and his backers are making the move while many legislators are still smarting over actions by Clayton and Clayton team members.

At least two of Clayton's team members have been contacting legislators about their possible candidacies for speaker of the House, should Clayton decide not to seek reelection.

Ali's no dummy

A little-known fact came to light after Ken Norton's 58-second knockout of Duane Bobick. In major boxing, sponsors pay more per minute for between rounds commercials than for pre-fight or post-fight material.

Norton-Bobick didn't have a single full-pay commercial. Ali-Evangelista had 14. One wonders if that fact is significant to Ali, who got his barely bruised mitts on a guaranteed sum? The boxing business is like any other. When there are dollars out there, someone will be grabbing for them.

Ali has had his share of criticism in the last few years, and even his most loyal fans are beginning to suspicion that he is done and gone. His magnificent performances against Joe Frazier, George Foreman and Ken Norton are overshadowed by his bouts with just "a warm body in the ring."

Ali just has more "money sense" than most people in athletics. And he keeps surprising even his most observant admirers. If he did the predictable, he'd be a flop.

I think I've got him figured out, however, He's out to get as much money as he possibly can before he gets his block knocked off by Leon Spinks.

★★★

Allegheny County Dist. Atty. Robert Colville has confirmed that his office is investigating the relationship of three Pittsburgh Steelers to the Manpower scandal.

The federally funded jobs program has been under investigation for the alleged misuse of $3 million.

The three Steelers — L.C. Greenwood, Franco Harris and Ernie Holmes — have been publicly linked to the scandal, although Colville said: "If they weren't Steelers and so well known, they wouldn't be important to the investigation."

In an interview with the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette, Colville said his investigation of the Steelers boils down to two points:

1.Did Greenwood and Holmes improperly receive about $10,000 each in Manpower funds?

2. Did Harris know that some of the people he recommended for Manpower jobs received checks without working?

Colville said it is a matter of record that Greenwood and Holmes each received two $5,000 contracts for Manpower sports clinics, but he said he believes they did work for the clinics.

Colville said he is also investigating whether Greenwood and Holmes each received another $10,000.

One hot summer night when he was driving home from work a few years ago, Marv Throneberry suddenly noticed a dog lying motionless in the street, apparently dead.

He was about to circle around the animal when it suddenly leaped up and ran across his path. Throneberry hit his brakes hard, so hard they locked on him.

Out of control, his car slammed into an embankment. Throneberry's head went through the windshield and when they got through wiping the blood off him, he was in the intensive care unit, his nose had to be sewn back on almost completely and he had 385 stitches in him.

The dog was killed in the accident. Had he not been, the sheriff said he would've had to give the former Mets' first baseman a ticket for reckless driving.

In a sense, that's the story of Throneberry's life His baseball life, anyway. — UPI

"Marvelous Marv" has now finally (almost) shucked his reputation of Benny Butterfingers to fans who must have given him unholy flak. He's even making commercials now.

Throneberry, 13 years out of baseball, 45 pounds heavier, and now plant foreman for the Tayloe Glass Company in Memphis, is philosophical about his history in the major leagues:

"Looking back at my career, I don't feel I have anything to be ashamed of. Lemme put it this way: When you're playing in a nation which has millions of people at a time when there were only 430 or so major league players, that would make anyone proud. I couldn't have been that bad a ballplayer."

Maybe not, but his commercials sure stink.

★★★

ATLANTA Braves' Owner Ted Turner: "The work (in baseball) is out, 'Crush Turner wherever you can!' I'm a marked man, I'm under the boot."

CATCHER John Stearns of the New York Mets, on team moral: "I'm fed up. There are too many guys who don't give a damn. This stuff can't go on."

INDIANA basketball mentor Bobby Knight, who had six players quit his squad last year, at a clinic on "Motivating Your Players:" "I motivate them all right. I motivated some guys to quit — which isn't all bad."

Stanton coach Forsan bound

(Special to the Herald)

STANTON — Doug Parker, who coached the Stanton Buffalo basketball team to its best record in recent years last winter, this week became the second Stanton coach to resign in the past several days..

Parker, like junior high coach Roddy McIver, resigned to accept a position that pays more money and has more fringe benefits. Parker will be assistant football coach and head tennis coach at Forsan High School.

The new position will pay about $2,500 more than Parker was making in Stanton for working as assistant football coach, head basketball coach and head tennis coach.

"I hate to leave Stanton, especially with the fine young men we have returning next year. I have enjoyed living and coaching here very much, but the opportunity to make more money and to work less hours will benefit me and my family," Parker said.

Parker also indicated that the new position will benefit his personal health.

Parker's Buffalos racked up a 25-4 season mark, and tied for first half District 5-A laurels. In the second half of loop play they dropped a one-point decision to Seagraves and the Eagles went on to the state tournament.

Bluechipper Mayfield inks pact with Midland

MIDLAND — Cullen Mayfield, an All-State and All-American guard from South Oak Cliff High School in Dallas, has signed a letter of intent to play basketball at Midland College next season.

Chaparral coach Jerry Stone was elated about signing Mayfield, who was named Player of the Year in Texas schoolboy basketball by the Amarillo Daily News.

"We needed a playmaker and outside shooter, and we think we got a dandy in Mayfield," Stone said.

Only 5-9 and 138 pounds, Mayfield was the catalyst in South Oak Cliff's state championship cage team this year. He not only directed the offense, but contributed greatly to it with a 20.6 points per game average while hitting 50 per cent of his shots.

Among his honors, Mayfield was named to the first team for District 12-AAAA, All-Metro, All-Greater Dallas, All-State, All-Tournament at the state championships, and to Willhamer's All-American high school team.

Pecos opens state tourney

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Pecos looked for its first victory today in four trips to the state schoolboy baseball tournament, and Duncanville sought to keep its championship streak alive.

The tournament opener at 1 p.m. matched Pecos and no-hit specialist Linvel Mosby against newcomer DeSoto.

Waco Midway and Uvalde, also making their first appearances in the tournament, were scheduled in the second game.

In the 4A semi-finals Thursday night, defending champion Duncanville plays Victoria Stroman and Fort Worth Southwest plays Houston Sharpstown.

Duncanville won the title in 1975, as well as last year, after moving from 3A to 4A.

Pecos was eliminated in first-game losses in 1973, 1974 and 1976, and Sharpstown also lost in the semifinals last year.

The two 1977 championship games are scheduled for Friday night.

Mosby, who has a four-year earned run average of 1.25, was drafted by the Texas Rangers of the American League in the second round of Tuesday's pro draft.

Pecos lost 12 of its first 13 games while Mosby was recovering from an injury but won 15 of its next 17 games in advancing to the state tournament. Mosby struck out 17 of 21 batters in pitching a perfect-game victory over Seminole in the district finale.

He pitched no-hitters in bi-district against Canyon and in regional against Snyder and has a batting average of .430 this season, playing outfield when he isn't pitching.

His fast ball reportedly was recently clocked at 93 miles an hour. By comparison, major league fastballer Nolan Ryan was said to have had a top high school speed of 87 m.p.h.

Renee's test unavailable

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland-Pittsburgh Nets owner Joe Zingale said the results of Dr. Renee Richards' chromosome test still were not available Wednesday night.

And World Team Tennis Commissioner Butch Buchholz said he would not make a decision on whether the transsexual player could play for the Nets until he gets the results of the sex test.

Dr. Richards continued to work out with the Nets, but it appeared unlikely she would be cleared to play by tonight, when the Nets meet the Phoenix Racquets at Nashville, Tenn.

Quarterback come back!

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The new Austin Texans of the American Football Association are looking for a missing quarterback who showed up, "looked tremendous" and then apparently was mistakenly cut without anyone getting his name.

Acting coach Maj. Jerry Bettis recalled the incident.

"At Sunday's workouts I was looking at the quarterbacks. This fellow, about 6-3 and maybe 175 or 180, came along in the middle of the workouts, stepped in and looked tremendous.

"I sent him over to another part of the field for one of our other coaches to watch him run plays. But somehow in the confusion, no other coach watched him and he ended up getting cut."

The player also failed to sign the roster book, and none of the other players knew him, Bettis said.

"Nothing would make me happier than to see him," at their next workout, Bettis said.

WGA awards monthly honors

At the monthly meeting of the Women's Golf Association of the Big Spring Country Club, prizes were awarded for Ladies Palyday for the month of May: May 3 - Peggy Marshall won low net; May 10 - Norma Griffin, Mauvis Jones and Nell Jones won three-man team low net; May 17 - Eileen Womack and Billie Dillon won Quota Play and May 31 - Eileen Womack and Madeline Atkins won the Chippin Gimmie Tounament.

"Ace of the Month" Tournament for low net and putts went to Nell Jones with average of 68.3 net and Peggy Marshall with 92 putts (based on three scores). The next monthly tournament will be "Bulls Eye" Tournament.

The June 7 Low Net Blind Partners Tounament was won by Renee Rizzo - Peggy Marshall Team with 143 and low putts won by Nell Jones with 30, for 18-hole play. The nine-hole tournament was won by Sandra Jones (low putts), Helen Bizzell (second), and Julie Shirey (low net).

Playday will begin at 9 a.m. for the summer months. Pairings will be made between 8:30 and 9:00 with tee off time promptly at 9 a.m.

SAFE! — During Tuesday night's Teenage League action between the Red Sox and the Angels, Daryl Anderson found himself off first base as the Red Sox pitcher tried to combine with first baseman J. Shalling for the pickoff play. Anderson was safe, however, and the Angels went on to win the contest, 5-0.

Blyleven breaks five-game skein

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — Texas ranger pitching ace Bert Blyleven severed a personal five-game losing streak Wednesday night and said nobody's happier about it than Patty Blyeleven.

"My wife was going crazy," he grinned. "I was becoming unbearable to live with. She told me if I didn't win tonight, I couldn't come home."

As something of an afterthought, he quipped, "She probably fainted in the stands."

Blyleven manacled the heavy-hitting Chicago White Sox with five hits and rode home runs by Toby Harrah and Tom Grieve to a 6-1 victory in the opener of a two game series. He struck out eight and issued two walks in beating Ken Kravec, 1-2.

"Bert pitched a super game," said Harrah, who drove in three runs with a mighty blast into the left center field stands during a four-run spurt in the third.

"When you hold Chicago to one run, you're doing a pretty good job."

White Sox third baseman Eric Soderholm, a former teammate of Blyleven in Minnesota, faced the curve ball artist for the first time and concluded: "He's just unhittable."

Richie Zisk, the American League's homerun leader, said,"He 's awful tough when he starts the ball behind and breaks it over the inside corner."

Said centerfielder Chet Lemon:"I can't believe his record is only 5-7."

Blyleven suffered four one-run losses during the drought and was greeted by a leadoff home run by Sox leftfielder Ralph Garr. "But you can't get down on yourself. I had a feeling we were going to score some runs tonight," he said.

"I don't think I pitched too different than I have all season. But those six runs really helped out. It gives you something to work with, and you can relax a little."

In something of a replica of Tuesday night's triumph over New York, the Rangers were ignited by a bloop double, this time off the bat of Bump Wills.

Adams drafted twice

NEW YORK (AP) — Give the Montreal Expos credit for this much — they know a good prospect when they see him.

The Expos liked Kalvin Adams enough to make him the No. 1 over-all selection in baseball's amateur free agent draft last January and even though they were unable to sign the Central Arizona Junior College third baseman-outfielder, that didn't change their opinion of the young man's ability.

So, when the Expos' turn came up in Wednesday's secondary draft of players previously selected but not signed, they came right back and picked Adams again.

Adams hit .415 in 83 games with seven homers and 77 runs batted in this season and was the second Central Arizona product to go in the first round of the secondary phase. Teammate Frank Ferroni, a left-handed pitcher, was the opening selection, chosen by the Minnesota Twins.

"They're both ready to go out and play," said Coach Ken Richardson. "They're in the same situation. Another year of baseball at this level won't really help them that much."

Adams was an all-around man for Central Arizona. Besides third base and the outfield, he even pitched and caught on occasion.

"He has outstanding potential as a hitter," said Richardson. "He has a big league bat."

Richardson said Adams stayed in school after last January's draft because the Montreal contract offer wasn't good enough to lure him away. "But he wants to go and he's ready to play," the coach said.

Ferroni was drafted in January by the Cleveland Indians but didn't think he was ready for professional baseball at that point. He preferred a year of junior college experience and pitched 100 innings for Richardson's division champions, posting an 8-4 record and 2.79 earned run average in 16 games.

Cavaretta touch could mend Kingman fence

NEWS ITEM: TORRE REHIRES CAVARETTA

This is more than the routine return of a batting coach. It is the reopening of communications with dissident Mets players.

Phil Cavaretta, when he was with the Mets before, had a warm rapport with his prize pupil. Dave Kingman. Cavaretta's return can be the second step toward the easing of tensions on the club. The first was the appointment as manager of Joe Torre, a leader with a bright personality.

The fissure between Kingman and the front office is not irreparable. "Our offer of $200,000 is still open," says Joe McDonald, g.m. "He can have it for two years, three years, six years."

"What's more, if he were to do the things he says he is capable of," adds Don Grant, owner, "we would be happy to tear up the contract and take care of him further. We always have done that with our players."

One thing Kingman thinks he's capable of doing is hitting 50 home runs. Fine, but let him do it first. Let him sign for the $200,000, which is immensely fair in view of his past and present performance, and then, when he hits his 50 homers, he can talk those astronomical $500,000 per figures with greater credence.

The front office breach with Tom Seaver seems much more difficult to bridge. If Joe Torre can do that, he is wasting his time as Mets' manager. He should replace Andy Young as United Nations Ambassador, pack his bag and set out to solve the world's problems.

Seaver, if I am to believe a highly irresponsible source, is supposed to have greeted the latest front office steps with: "Fine, I'd love for Don Grant to call me and tell me what other moves we might be making to make this team better."

I cannot believe even Tom Terrific is so arrogant he thinks the clubowner should contact him on all such moves. If, on the other hand, Seaver were to phone Grant, in a sincere exchange of views beneficial to the Mets, I'm certain the boss would be only too glad to hear from him.

YOUNG IDEAS

By DICK YOUNG

Tom Seaver doesn't seem to remember that when he was declared a free agent as a college kid, and put up for bids of $50,000, only three men in baseball thought he was worth it — and one of the three was Don Grant, or perhaps George Weiss, who was hired by Don Grant.

Dave Kingman seems not to realize that when he was sitting on the bench in San Francisco, nobody wanted him except Don Grant, who shelled out the then substantial sum of $160,000 for a benchwarmer salaried at $40,000.

It would be ironic if Phil Cavaretta were to discipline Dave Kingman's promiscuous swing, and get him to hit so many home runs that Kingman would be encouraged to play out his option, anticipating huge offers from other clubs. Right now it is questionable that Sky could get, on the open market, what the Mets are offering him.

And now, I expect that two or three other columnists will reply to these observations. If I didn't write a column, there are several guys in this town who wouldn't have anything to write about. They seem to pick up The Daily News with their morning coffee, and say let's see what he has come up with now that I can disagree with.

One such is a pitiable shell of a once great writer, reduced to lingering on Connie Mack, and Ed Barrow, and that's too bad because there are so many good stories today that he can work on.

Another is a columnist who thinks he is stepping down to comment on sports, when really it puts a greater strain on his brain. This man once wrote that Gil Hodges was a bad manager. That was the day I decided he didn't know what he was talking about.

WILL SLEW JOIN THE RANKS? — If Seattle Slew wins the Belmont Stakes Saturday, he will be the only undefeated horse in the history of the Triple Crown. This graphic is for use with stories on the upcoming Belmont Stakes race.

NEW YORK (AP) — Seattle Slew, bidding to become the only unbeaten Triple Crown winner in thoroughbred racing, lives as though he were the patriarch of a family, a sizable handful of adult people who do his bidding and adore his every move.

And closest to the wonder colt are his owners, Karen and Mickey Taylor of White Swan, Wash., a wholesome-looking, bright-eyed couple who argue frequently about this arrangement and that, but in words liberally sprinkled with "honeys" and "dears."

Also part of the Seattle Slew commune are Dr. Jim Hill, part owner and the veterinarian who helped the Taylors choose the colt, his wife Paula, the horse's groom and other attendants and an assortment of Karen and Mickey's relatives who help out with the ever-growing business that comes with having a winner.

Those duties include answering Slew's considerable fan mail as well as fending off attempts by unauthorized entrepreneurs from capitalizing on Seattle Slew's name.

These days the family of Slew spends most of each day around Barn 54 at Belmont Park, the 3-year-old colt's favorite place, as he prepares to run the Belmont Stakes Saturday in his effort to complete the Triple Crown.

"It's really a family organization," says Karen Taylor, the 32-year-old former airline stewardess who never got over her little-girl dreams of having a horse.

Years ago she begged for a horse from her father, who'd spent his life around horses and wanted nothing more to do with them.

She married Mickey after a seven-year courtship (He says he didn't have enough money to marry her before then, and "besides, she was flying all the time"). He didn't want to get her a horse either — too much work.

But on their anniversary five years ago, he sprang it on her — fortunes were better in the logging business and Karen could have a race horse, one someone else would tend.

"I was in a state of shock," she said. "It was really very nice of him."

Their stable has grown to 25 now and Karen is listed as the owner of all of them, although the horses really are owned by Wooden Horse Investments, a corporation consisting of the Taylors and Hill.

"We decided I would be listed as the owner because I'm really the one who got Mickey into this," says Karen.

The Taylors talk about Slew as one might discuss the maturing of a teenager.

Undergraduate draft

NEW YORK (AP) — Some are after the big money contracts. Others seek the glory of being a professional basketball player. Many are just too impatient to hang around college while their minds are on the National Basketball Association.

Whatever the reasons, each year about a dozen talented undergraduates shed their school uniforms for those of the play-for-pay ranks. This season is no exception with standouts like Bernard King of Tennessee, Brad Davis of Maryland and Kenny Carr of North Carolina State the most notable hardship applicants. If these three players do not choose to withdraw from draft eligibility — they have until 24 hours before the draft begins to do so — they figure to be among the top picks in tomorrow's NBA draft.

The NBA first allowed its teams to select underclassmen in the draft in 1972 to keep up with the American Basketball Association, which had no restrictions on drafting non-seniors from the colleges. Several of the league's top stars, including Julius Erving, Bob McAdoo, George McGinnis and Adrian Dantley, did not complete their collegiate careers, choosing to enter the professional ranks early.

Tennessee's King submitted his name for the NBA draft last year but withdrew at the last moment. The All-American forward just completed his junior year and again has applied for hardship this year.

"I am interested in doing what is best for Bernard King," says the 6-foot-7 native of New York. "Last year, I didn't think it wise to leave school. Tennessee has a fine program and I felt I would improve my game more by staying.

"I feel that my statistics this past season were the best in the country. I want to see which pro teams are interested and what they offer me before I make any decision on what to do. I've been getting a lot of feedback and enlightenment so far and I think the opportunity for me to play in the NBA is there. That's all I want, the opportunity to play."

King denies the monetary aspect of turning professional is important.

"I'm not playing basketball for the money," he says. "I know that I could stay at Tennessee another year and maybe get hurt and have no future. But my main reason for wanting to go to the NBA is to show what Bernard King can do."

Maryland's Davis, a 6-3 guard, does consider money a prime reason for applying for the draft.

"I want to see how much I'm worth in the NBA market," says Davis. "I want to see whether it is worth it for me to come out of college and turn pro."

Calculating Jay subtracts Astros

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Jay Johnstone got out his little calculator and figured that a baseball traveling at a speed of 90 miles-per-hour over a distance of 60½ feet should get to the batter fast enough even for him.

"I've been jumping at the ball, over anxious," said Johnstone after ending an 0-13 slump with a fifth-inning two-run homer that gave the Philadelphia Phillies a 3-2 victory over the Houston Astros Wednesdsay night.

"I should know that a ball going 90 m.p.h. is going to get there," Johnstone said. "I have to wait. I've been going out after pitches and as a result had nothing behind my swing."

His game-winning homer not withstanding, Johnstone still isn't satisfied with his patience at the plate.

"My last time up I lunged and hit a lazy ground ball," Johnstone pointed out. "I've been making up my mind to swing at pitches and when they're not in the strike zone I've been hacking."

Johnstone also disclosed that he's been nursing an injury for three weeks. He got hit in the left leg by a ball that came through the netting of the batting cage under the stands.

"I don't want this to sound like an excuse," Johnstone said before talking about the injury.

"But it was the left leg, the one I drive off of when I swing. I was hitting around .340 at the time. Ever since then I haven't been hitting the same, haven't had that good swing," Johnstone said.

"Yeh it feels better now, but maybe that's because I got a hit. The biggest thing is to tell myself to wait on the ball," said the Phillies' outfielder.

And talking about slumps, how about Mark Lemongello, the Houston pitcher. The 21-year-old righthander lost his ninth against a single victory with that one pitch to Johnstone.

Lemongello worked six innings, gave up six hits, and was ahead 2-1 until Johnstone unloaded his second homer of the season.

"I threw one bad pitch the whole night and it cost me another game," said the discouraged Lemongello. "It was a fastball right down the middle and he (Johnstone) killed it."

Lemongello felt that he wasted too much time trying to keep Garry Maddox close to first before pitching to Johnstone. He threw to first at least four times.

"I worried too much about Maddox ... and not enough about Johnstone," Lemangello said.

Johnstone, incidentally, said it was a fastball down and in. "The guys in the dugout told me, "you can't believe what an easy swing you took at that ball."

Johnstone said Lemongello's toying with Maddox helped relax him in the batter's box.

"I never moved, just stayed in the box," Johnston said. "I checked my feet, checked my hold on the bat. "It made me relax. You do things like that when you're not hitting."

SMILING ARCHIE — Football may be his game, but Archie Griffin of the Cincinnati Bengals was obviously having fun Wednesday as he played in the Dewar's Sports Celebrity Tennis Tournament at the Riviera Hotel. Arizona St. leads NCAA

HAMILTON, N.Y. (AP) — Houston's John Stark shot a two-under-par 70 and took the lead after the opening round of the 80th annual National Collegiate Athletic Association Golf Championships at Colgate University. Arizona State took the team lead with a four-player total of 295.

Cloudy skies, 50-degree temperature and winds gusting to 30 miles per hour posed problems for early starters Wednesday. But as the winds subsided and the temperature rose, scores dropped and leads changed.

In the early segment, last year's champion, Scott Simpson of Southern California, took the lead with a one-under-par 71, followed by Arizona State's Lee Mikles and Dennis Saunders with 72s.

Then, Stark came home with his 70 on the tough Seven Oaks course. Wayne Searle of San Diego State carded a 71 and Mike Peck of Stanford posted a 72.

The team picture changed continually as several schools battled for the lead, with Arizona State edging Wake Forest at 297 and Houston at 298. Then came Southern California at 300, Georgia at 302 and Brigham Young and North Carolina tied at 304.

MISS JANET SARGENT, county extension agent, works with Home Demonstration clubs, Senior Citizens and area 4-H groups as a part of her job. Miss Sargent has been in Big Spring for 10 months, and said she finds people in this area helpful.

Working with people part of agent's job

By CAROL HART

A degree in home economics and a teaching career in the field led Miss Janet Sargent to her present position as Howard County Extension Agent.

Miss Sargent is a native of Lubbock, and her parents, Carl Sargent and Mrs. Marie Sargent, still reside there. She received her bachelor and master degrees in Home Economics Education from Texas Tech University, then spent six years teaching home economics in high school at Canyon.

The opportunity to work as a county agent followed an interview with the district agent, she said. She had begun to wonder if she wanted to teach for the rest of her career life, and the idea of working as a county agent appealed to her.

Big Spring is Miss Sargent's first assignment as a county agent. She has been here 10 months. She works under the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, and said that an agreement between the service and district agents determine where county extension agents will be placed.

Miss Sargent's job calls for her to work with 4-H groups in the home economics sections, with Home Demonstration Clubs, and with the Howard County Senior Citizens as an advisor. "Our office is also open to any organization that calls and requests programs," said Miss Sargent. "We try to meet that need if possible."

Travel is also an important part of Miss Sargent's job. She plans to attend the state contest for method demonstration at Texas A&M this week with area 4-H members.

Concerning her job as county extension agent, Miss Sargent said "during certain parts of the year, I stay on the run constantly." She is often called upon to present weekend and evening programs, but added that she enjoys what she is doing.

"There are lots of fine people in this county. They have been really helpful," she said.

Although Miss Sargent's job is a hectic one, she finds time for several hobbies. She enjoys needlepoint, sewing, horseback riding and watching rodeos. "I also like to garden when I have a place to do it," she added. She also plays tennis, but hasn't had much time to devote to the sport recently.

She also cited cooking as one of her favorite hobbies. Several of her favorite recipes appear here.

Recipes from Janet Sargent

POSOLE

2½ lbs. pork
1 chopped onion
1½ tbsps. oil
1 can (14-oz.) hominy
1 tbsp. chili powder
1 tbsp. dried red chili
½ clove garlic
½ tsp. oregano
1 can Rotel tomatoes

Brown pork and onion in oil. Add remaining ingredients and simmer 45 minutes.

FROZEN CREAMED CHEESE

(Topping for pies and desserts.)

1½ c. creamed cottage cheese
½ c. sugar
1 tsp. vanilla
1 egg
2 pts. vanilla ice cream, slightly softened

On low speed of blender; blend cheese, sugar, vanilla, egg until smooth. In large bowl, with mixer at low speed, combine ice cream and blender mixture. Beat until blended. Pour into 10"x 5" freezer proof loaf pan. Cover and freeze. Yield: 4 cups.

To serve: Let thaw 30 minutes first.

CORN CASSEROLE

Saute:
4 tbsps. butter
1 medium onion
1 medium green pepper

Mix above with:
2 cans cream style corn
1 c. minute rice (uncooked)
2 eggs, beaten
2 small jars pimiento
2 tsps. sugar
Salt and pepper to taste

Place in 9"x13"x2" baking dish.

Bake 25 minutes in a 350 degrees oven. Cover with grated cheese and paprika and bake at 350 degrees for 15 more minutes.

STRAWBERRY SOUR CREAM SALAD

1 pkg. strawberry jello
1 c. boiling water
1 10-oz. pkg. frozen strawberries
1 c. dairy sour cream
1 c. chopped pecans

Dissolve jello in boiling water. Add frozen strawberries. Stir until strawberries separate and thaw. Pour half of this mixture into mold and chill until set. Mix sour cream and pecans and spread over strawberry layer. Add remaining strawberry mixture and chill until firm. Yield: 6-8 servings.

CHILI DIP

18-oz. pkg. cream cheese
18-oz. carton sour cream
1 small can green chilies (chopped)
5 or 6 slices dried beef or corned beef (chopped fine)

Combine all ingredients in blender and blend until mixture is smooth. Place in oven dish and cover the top with finely chopped pecans. Heat in oven on very low heat until warm.

Food show winners announced Tuesday

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) — Young girls from Abilene, Rotan, Dumas and Commerce captured first place honors Tuesday in the Texas 4-H Food Show held on the campus of Texas A&M University.

They were among about 1,600 young 4-H Club members participating in 36 contests and demonstrations for statewide honors.

The winners each received $500 scholarships from Morrison Milling Co. of Denton.

Michelle Willis of Abilene took first place in the main dish cooking honors and Patricia Pesey of Rotan captured first in the side dish cooking.

Kim Diedrichsen of Dumas took first place in snacks and beverages competition and Elizabeth Wolf of Commerce won the breads and deserts contest.

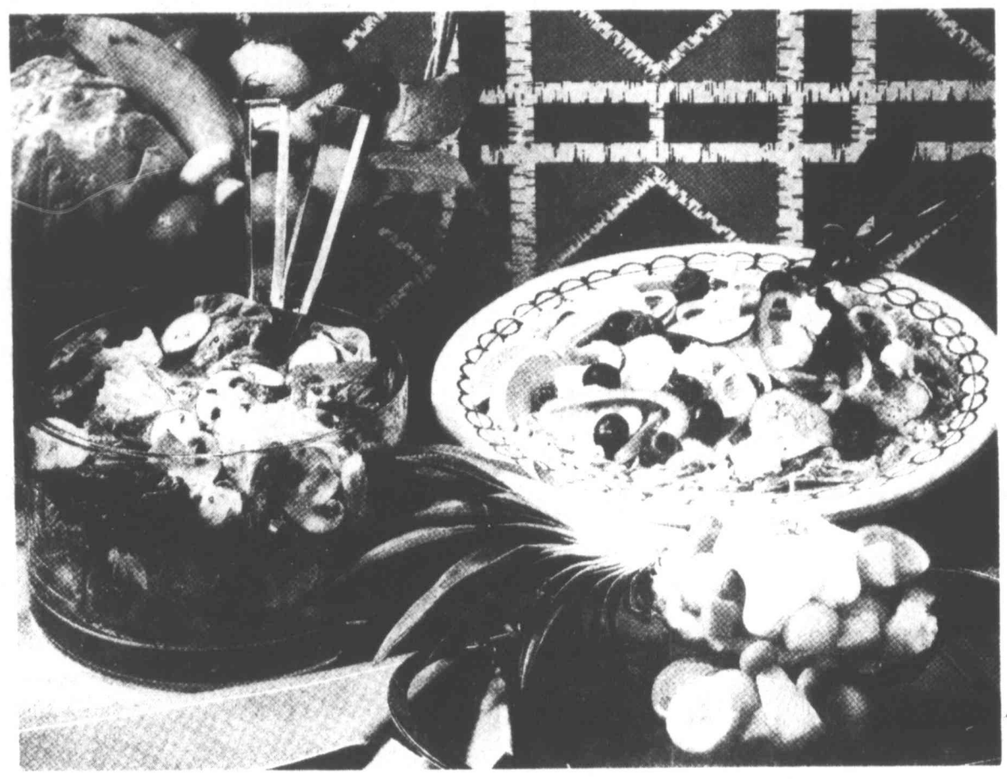

The contest is being sponsored by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and the Texas A&M University system.

Well seasoned menus include salad

Variety is the spice of life, so they say. If that holds true in the kitchen, then the most well-seasoned menus include salads. Since the days of the Caesars, salads have been crafted to please palates the world over. But whether it's an international bowl or just your garden variety, there's no end to the luscious combinations a little creativity can fashion. All it takes is an imaginative mix of fruits, vegetables and salad dressings.

From creamy bananas to crunchy lettuce, from green avocados to white potatoes, produce comes fresh from Mother Nature in all shapes, colors and flavors. Combine a host of these harvested delectables for an eye-appealing salad that tastes as good as it looks. Then transform the produce potpourri into a gourmet delight with salad dressing. Prepared dressings provide a handy mixture of herbs and spices that blend and enhance the various flavors. They add a distinct character all their own, too. Use them to marinate an antipasto, flavor a potato salad or crown a plate of greens.

Developed by the Home Economists in the Kraft Kitchens, these recipes display salad variety from an Ensalada Gazpacho appetizer to a peach souffle dessert. As a course in a meal or a meal in itself, there's a salad to serve every occasion. So when the menu calls for a bit of spicing up, look to salad to fill the bill.

SALAD IDEAS

PANHANDLE POTATO SALAD

1 qt. cooked potato slices
2 c. cooked beef strips
1 c. mushroom slices
1 c. red onion rings
¼ c. chopped parsley
½ c. Miracle Whip salad dressing
½ c. dairy sour cream
½ tsp. garlic salt
¼ tsp. pepper

Combine potatoes, beef, mushrooms, onion and parsley. Add salad dressing blended with sour cream and seasonings; toss lightly. Chill. Add additional salad dressing and garnish with onion rings and parsley, if desired. 4 to 6 servings.

PEACH SOUFFLE SALAD

2 3-oz. pkgs. orange flavored gelatin
2 c. boiling water
1 c. cold water
1. c. ginger ale
2-3rd c. Kraft real mayonnaise
2 egg whites
2 c. finely chopped peaches

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Add cold water and gingerale. Gradually add gelatin to mayonnaise; mixing until blended. Chill until partially set.

Wrap a 2-inch collar of aluminum foil around top of six sherbet dishes. Beat egg white until stiff peaks form. Fold peaches and egg whites into gelatin mixture. Pour gelatin mixture into dishes; chill until firm. Remove collar. Garnish with peach slices and mint, if desired. 6 servings.

ENSALADA GAZPACHO

1 c. chopped tomato
½ c. chopped cucumber
¼ c. chopped green pepper
2 tbsps. sliced green onion
½ c. Catalina brand French dressing
1 tsp. lime juice
½ tsp. oregano
⅛ tsp. cracked black pepper
2 avocado halves, peeled
1 qt. shredded iceberg lettuce

Combine tomato, cucumber, green pepper, green onion, dressing, lime juice and seasonings; mix lightly. Fill avocado halves with vegetable mixture. Serve on shredded lettuce. 4 servings.

ANTIPASTO NAPOLI

2 c. tomato wedges
2 c. mushroom slices
8-ozs. summer sausage, cut into strips
1 8½-oz. can artichoke hearts, drained, quartered
1 c. zucchini slices
1 c. Kraft Italian dressing
2 qts. torn assorted greens

Combine tomato, mushroom, summer sausage, artichoke hearts and zucchini; add dressing. Cover; marinate in refrigerator 2 hours. Drain, reserving marinade. Toss vegetables with assorted greens. Serve with reserved marinade. Sprinkle with grated Parmesan cheese, if desired. 4 to 6 servings.

MOUNT OLYMPUS SALAD

1 6-oz., can pitted ripe olives, drained
2 c. cucumber slices
1 c. onion rings
1 c. green pepper strips
1 8-oz. bottle Kraft Golden Ceasar Dressing
1 qt. shredded iceberg lettuce
1 2-oz. can rolled anchovy fillets
¼ c. (2-ozs.) crumbled feta cheese

Combine olives, cucumber, onion and green peppers; add dressing. Cover; marinate in refrigerator 2 hours. Drain, reserving marinade. Arrange marinated vegetables, anchovy fillets and cheese on lettuce-covered platter. Serve with reserved marinade. Garnish with lemon wedges, if deserved. 4 to 6 servings.

SANTO DOMINGO FRUIT SALAD

1 pineapple
2 bananas, sliced
1 papaya, chopped
1 c. honeydew melon balls
½ c. lime slices
½ c. toasted macadamia nuts or almonds
½ c. Miracle Whip salad dressing
2 tsps. lime juice
1 tsp. grated lime rind
¼ tsp. rum flavoring
½ c. heavy cream, whipped

Cut pineapple into quarters lengthwise through crown. Remove fruit, leaving shell intact. Core and chunk fruit, toss lightly with bananas, papaya, melon, lime and nuts. Chill.

Combine salad dressing, lime juice, lime rind and rum flavoring, mixing well; fold in whipped cream. Chill.

Spoon fruit into pineapple shells; top with dressing mixture. Garnish with additional grated lime rind, if desired. 4 servings.

Sex Meant for Mature Partners

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 17-year-old girl who many times has felt like going further than I should with a boy I really like. Abby, I'm going to ask you a question I wish I could ask my mother but can't because all I would get is a lecture.

Why should a girl be expected to wait until she's married to have sex? We all have normal passions that get stronger with adolescence. Married people have an outlet for their sex, but what about unmarried people?

Other countries like Samoa permit permarital sex. Why can't we? I can see logical reasons for not being promiscuous, such as danger of venereal disease and unwanted pregnancy, but when two people want sex and know how to prevent disease and pregnancy, why the big "No No"?

Our society is so advanced in other ways, but it insists that unmarried people either suppress their normal sex urges or pretend they don't exist.

If there is any good reason why kids who are in love should refrain from premarital sex, I'd like to know what it is.

SPEAKING FOR TEENS

DEAR SPEAKING: The big "No No" is not the relationship between two normal, healthy, MATURE, responsible people 'in love"; it's the use of sex by the immature, irresponsible, confused adolescent who mistakes his first sexual stirrings for "love."

"Knowing" how to prevent unwanted pregnancies and venereal disease is not enough to prevent them; witness NO decline in illegitimacy even with the Pill. And in spite of all the education concerning venereal disease, it's still a major public health problem.

When you are ready to accept all the responsibilities and commitments of "love" and a family, you will not ask me what is wrong with premarital sex.

DEAR ABBY: I have worked at a service station for the last seven months, and I never realized how rude and thoughtless people can be.

I hope you can find it in your heart to print these suggestions for your readers to consider:

1. Please take a few seconds and roll down your window and tell us what you want. We don't have bionic ears and we can't read lips. If you hold up five fingers, that could mean five gallons of gas OR $5 worth.
2. Don't ask us to check your oil when you plan to go right home and put a quart in. We don't need the experience. If you can put oil in at home, you can check it at home.
3. Please don't sit there with your door open while the attendant is trying to wash your windows.
4. When you finish using the air hose, please roll it back up and replace it on the hanger.
5. If all you have is a $100 bill, please ask the attendant if he is able to change it before he puts gas in your car. We keep our cash thinned down, and it's very irritating when someone gets a dollar's worth of gas and hands you a $100 bill.
6. If you want premium gas, please pull up to that pump. We can't get premium gas out of a regular pump.
7. PLEASE don't complain to us about the price of gas. We have nothing to do with the price. We just pump it.

Thanks, Abby. Even if you don't print this, it sure felt good to get this off my chest.

Inspiration needed to recruit women for NASA, actress says

BAY ST. LOUIS, Miss. (AP) — A former television star who is working for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration to recruit blacks and women says neither group gets enough inspiration to enter the space fields.

"We try to develop and create new types of education and motivational roles . . . to encourage minority women to more non-traditional roles, such as science and engineering," Michelle Nichols, actress in the series "Star Trek," said Friday.

Ms. Nichols is president of Women in Motion Inc., a Los Angeles firm that is recruiting for NASA. She spoke Friday to the National Federation of Press Women at the National Space Technology Laboratories here.

Ms. Nichols said there are not enough women in the space fields who serve as models for young blacks and women.

During ceremonies later in Biloxi, the federation named Margaret Woolfolk, 59, former editor of the West Memphis Ark Evening Times its Woman of Achievement.

Nursing home residents beaten, underfed?

LUFKIN, Tex. (AP) — Many Texas nursing home residents are beaten, underfed, and given inadequate medication, according to The Lufkin News, which says the problems are being kept from the public and the press instead of being dealt with.

A 76-year-old woman was beaten with coathangers, shoes and belts at a Lufkin nursing home in April. But no report was made to the Lufkin police, the East Texas newspaper alleged Wednesday.

When the newspaper tried to get information about the incident from the Texas Department of Public Welfare (DPW), Assistant Commissioner John D. Townsend of Austin refused to release the state documents.

But the News says it obtained the state reports through private sources and found that six employes were fired after the beating incident, though there is no indication of DPW action against the nursing home.

Townsend claimed that federal and state laws restrict the release of information concerning welfare recipients, according to the paper.

The paper said Wednesday it has asked the welfare department to seek a ruling from the Texas attorney general on whether such reports can be kept secret from the public.

The News alleges it has obtained documents that show a nursing home administrator threatened to force two patients to move out because he believed they had complained to DPW about conditions at the home.

Other incidents The News said it has documented:

—A nursing home in East Texas was feeding almost 100 residents with just six or seven chickens. Three pints of cottage cheese were used to serve 47 patients at another nursing home.

—A nursing home resident went 24 hours without an insulin injection or medication because of an unpaid pharmacy bill.

—Patients' medical records in some nursing homes are so scrambled that giving the wrong dosage and even the wrong medicine is not uncommon. At one nursing home, a nurse's aide was responsible for giving medicine to more than 60 patients. No licensed nurse was on duty.

Some of the incidents go back several years, including one case when a nurse was suspected of substituting baking soda in patients' sleeping pills and stealing the medication for herself, the newspaper said. The investigation was inconclusive, noting that "if the residents taking the drugs didn't sleep, the capsules probably did contain baking soda."

Texas lab to test panties in rape case?

SANTA MONICA (AP) — The defense attorney for movie director Roman Polanski has asked to have shipped to a Texas laboratory a pair of copper-colored panties worn by a 13-year-old girl Polanski is accused of raping.

Douglas Dalton, the 43-year-old director's attorney, made the request Wednesday before Superior Court Judge Laurence J. Rittenband, asking to have laboratory tests made on the panties to conduct tests for the presence of sperm or semen.

The prosecutor, Roger Gunson, said the panties, which are prosecution evidence, should not leave California. He expressed concern that they would be lost or damaged in transit, and suggested several local laboratories that could conduct the tests.

Rittenband scheduled a hearing for June 17 for this and other pretrial motions.

A June 29 trial date has been set for the six-count indictment against Polanski charging rape, sex perversion and drug abuse.

Dill awarded scholarship

Rickey Dill, 1977 graduate of Stanton High School, has been awarded a $1,250 Houston Endowment Scholarship by the Texas Interscholastic League Foundation.

Houston Endowment provided funds for 20 of the grants to be made by TILF on the basis of performance in League academic and literary contests, scores on achievement tests, high school grade average and work in school and community activities.

Richey scored 29 on the American College Test and earned a high school grade average of 93.422 for four years. He earned eligibility for the scholarship through participation in the League's Number Sense, Debate and Science Contests.

In 1975 he won fourth in district in Number Sense and sixth in district in Debate. In 1976 he won first in district in Number Sense and sixth in district in Debate. In 1976 he won first in district and second in region in Number Sense. This year he won first in district and fourth in region in Number Sense and Sixth in district in Debate.

He was president of his school's Math and Science Clubs, president of his senior class and a member of the National Honor Society and Drama Club. He won a Letter of Commendation of the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test and was named in Who's Who in American High School Students.

"Rickey Dill has proved that he is a great student," said Dr. Rhea H. Williams, TILF secretary. "We know that he will do well in college. We are proud to have him as a Houston Endowment Scholar."

He plans to major in Math at The University of Texas at Austin.

'The Soviet Union is the freest country in the world'

Castro says Carter smart, Nixon foolish

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jimmy Carter is idealistic and intelligent. Richard Nixon is false and foolish. The Soviet Union is the freest country in the world. China is a good ally of the United States.

Cuban President Fidel Castro, holder of these opinions, is discussing subjects he hasn't mentioned publicly for years.

Despite his high opinion of Carter, Castro says differences between the United States and Cuba are so fundamental that he doubts the establishment of full diplomatic relations is likely during the remaining years of the President's current term.

While more optimistic about achievement of that goal if Carter is re-elected, Castro suggested that relations between the two countries have reached a plateau with the recent agreement on an exchange of diplomats at the sub-ambassadorial level.

Castro, Cuba's leader since he seized power on New Year's Day in 1959, offered his opinions to ABC news correspondent Barbara Walters is a wide-ranging interview. The interview, taped three weeks ago, was scheduled to be broadcast tonight.

Castro, recalling his first meeting with Nixon 18 years ago, said, "I could see he was a false man and politically speaking, foolish."

With Nixon in the White House, good relations with the United States were "absolutely impossible. Nixon always hated our country enormously and he was not only responsible for the Bay of Pigs but he was also closely related to counter-revolutionary elements and to rich families of Cuban origin," Castro said.

The Bay of Pigs invasion, in which Cuban exiles landed in Cuba in an attempt to overthrow Castro, was planned while Nixon was serving as Vice President in the Eisenhower administration. The invasion itself was carried out during the presidency of John F. Kennedy.

In proclaiming the Soviet Union "the freest of all countries," Castro said 20 million Russians sacrificed themselves in defense of their system during World War II. He wondered whether America would survive a similar test.

At one point in the interview, Miss Walters called Castro "almost naive" for suggesting that China considers itself a good ally of the United States. Castro backed off somewhat by conceding that the two countries do have "some tactical differences."

The interviewer tried unsuccessfully to draw the Cuban leader into a discussion about women in his life.

Castro, a divorced father of a 27-year-old son, allowed only that he is not married "in the bourgeois sense."

Showing four films for free

Howard County Library is sponsoring a free, all color film program for children beginning at 1:30 Saturday afternoon. Featured will be four films.

"A Firefly Named Torchy": Torchy, a firefly who instead of twinkling softly, illuminates the entire forest where he lives. Bothered by such excessive brightness that turns night into day and fouls up everbody's schedule, the other animals complain to Torchy, making him feel lonely and unhappy, until wise old owl suggests that he go to a nearby city where the lights are as bright as his own. The little firefly at last finds his place in the world.

"The Lorax": The wise words of the Once-ler are worth listening to as he spins a fanciful tale with a serious theme: clean up the environment before it's too late! By Dr. Seuss.

"Wildflowers of the West": Wildflowers of the Pacific Southwest have been photographed on the deserts, mountains and valleys. A great variety of colorful flowers lines the seashore and through narration, the viewer is made aware of the climatic conditions, pollination and soil character. The film makes one aware of the need to conserve our remaining natural resources and develop a fuller appreciation for the variety and beauty of our wildflowers.

"Marine Highway": This film follows the road from the city of Dartmouth along sandy bays and inlets and shimmering expanses of sea until the highway joins the Trans-Canada westward. There are quiet stretches of highway where there are only the cries of gulls and the crash of breakers on the rocky shores. Branch roads lead to salmon streams for some of the best fishing on the Atlantic seaboard, and picturesque hamlets where life is peaceful.

Piano master class grads

FORT WORTH — Two Big Spring residents were among 60 performers and observers from seven states who recently completed a week-long piano master class given by artist-in-residence Lili Kraus at Texas Christian University.

The participants came from Texas, Arizona, Georgia, Louisiana, Kansas, Oklahoma and Arkansas to study with Mme. Kraus, who is internationally recognized as the foremost interpreter of the Viennese classical school of pianists. The Hungarian artist sets aside one week each summer from her schedule of worldwide tours for the master class.

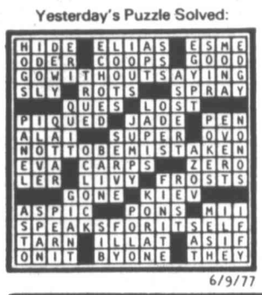

Harlan Thornton, who resides at 1209 W. 2nd Street, was a performer. Kenneth Baker, who resides at 2006 Nolan, was an observer.

Blood unit at hospital

West Texas Blood Service of San Angelo has announced that they will have their Mobil Blood Unit stationed at Hall-Bennett Memorial Hospital on Monday, from 1:00 to 5:00 p.m. for the purpose of accepting blood donations.

According to Hospital Administrator, Charles A. Weeg, donated blood is for use by any of the local hospitals having a need for it.

He emphasized that it is not Blood Centers that need blood. People do, and an individual could not make a more priceless donation. The blood one gives helps others live, and it must come from healthy human donors.

Donors ranging in age from 18 to 65 years will be accepted provided they weigh at least 110 pounds and are free of certain diseases. It is hoped that you will be a Volunteer Blood Donor. You will feel better for having done so.

Big Spring grad wins scholarship

LUBBOCK — Katherine Cowan, 518 Edwards, Big Spring, has been awarded a 1977-78 scholarship for studies in music at Texas Tech University.

Hers was among 47 scholarships announced by the Texas Tech Department of Music. Awards recognize musical ability demonstrated in auditions, scholastic ability and, in some cases, need.

Cowan's primary interest is in voice. She is a graduate of Big Spring High School and was a member of the high school, all-region, all-area and all-state choirs.

Teens attempt to steal pot from cop shop

RATON, N.M. (AP) — When state police decided a large marijuana plant they had confiscated would go nicely in the front window, they were simply tempting fate.

Officers found the plant at a Raton home while checking a prowler call. It was seized as evidence and put on display in the window.

A group of teen-agers apparently couldn't resist temptation. Police said the plant had been in the window for "several weeks" when the youths hurled a brick through the window in the early morning and made off with the plant.

They were thwarted by a passing motorist who saw them at work and called officers. Police said they arrested the juveniles and recovered the plant.

Lady Bird not offered post

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Lady Bird Johnson was not offered the post of ambassador to Mexico, as has been reported, her press secretary said Thursday.

"She was asked if she would like to be 'considered' for the post," said Betty Tilson, "and Mrs. Johnson said she was deeply honored but felt she had too many other things to do."

The widow of the late President Lyndon Johnson is campaigning in Virginia for her son-in-law, Charles Robb, who is running for lieutenant governor.

The press secretary also said Mrs. Johnson believes the ambassador to Mexico should be able to speak Spanish, of which she has only a limited knowledge.

Edith Christian new postmaster at Knott

Sectional center manager postmaster D. E. Holster of Midland has announced the appointment of Edith M. Christian as the new postmaster at Knott, effective Saturday, June 4.

Ms. Christian, 41, a native of West Texas, has served as postmaster's relief for the past two years.

The Knott post office has annual receipts of $2,941. As postmaster, Ms. Christian will earn $9,988 in salary and fringe benefits. She will be assisted by one part-time clerk who will be on duty during any absence of the postmaster.

Postmaster selections are made on the basis of merit from a list of qualified candidates submitted to the Regional Management Selection Board. The board, composed of representatives of the U.S. Civil Service Commission, the American Arbritration Association and two postmasters, selects and recommends to the Postmaster General the best qualified person for appointment to each vacancy.

'Jungle' trip is scheduled

Young readers at Howard County Library will be among more than 100,000 young Texans who will be taking a "Jungle Journey" this summer as participants in the Summer Reading Club. Sponsored jointly by the local library and the Texas State Library, the Reading Club encourages readers to use the recreational and informational materials they can find at their local library.

Posters, reading logs, and bookmarks this year feature jungle animals. Each participant will receive a reading log on which to record what he or she has read. In addition to the list of books each reader compiles, the log includes a pair of word puzzles and a maze.

Summer is always the busiest time of the year for children's collections in public libraries. Whether summer reading is entirely for entertainment or is also for information, it's different from the required reading that students must do during the school year. At the same time, however, it builds valuable reading skills.

During the summer many libraries will also be planning special activities, including films, puppet shows, and other programs.

Resignations expected

COLORADO CITY — The final inspection of the improvements at the remodeled Middle School facility will be held Monday night in conjunction with the regular school board meeting.

Also on the agenda are several expected resignations and appointments, a selection of the official depository for 1977 - 79, official adoption of the educational goals and amendments to the 1976 - 77 budget.

A committee will ask the board for permission to use one day of personal leave each year for attending the funeral of a close friend. The board will also discuss the compliance of facilities for the handicapped which falls under the Department of Housing, Education and welfare.

The board will also discuss needed improvements for the Hutchinson Cafeteria kitchen and hear a report on things that are being done in various fields of education in the state.

Back to school on Sept. 5

SNYDER — The 1977-78 school term in Snyder's public schools will not begin until the day after Labor Day, which falls on Sept. 5.

In recent years, classes have taken up here prior to the last summer holiday.

Lincoln portrait

WASHINGTON(AP) — The National Portrait Gallery of the Smithsonian Institution recently acquired a portrait of Abraham Lincoln painted by Massachusetts-born artist William Willard.

The portrait shows Lincoln in profile and was done, in part, from the Mathew Brady portrait used for the Lincoln head on the $5 federal reserve note. The portrait, painted circa 1864, was placed on display on Lincoln's birthday. It is the gift of Mr. and Mrs. David A. Morse of Washington.

Annual cowboy event

with Marj Carpenter

The Big Spring Rodeo is an annual event that has taken place for a long, long time.

Some of the families involved have been participants now for three generations — and are starting into the fourth.

The reprint of the picture above was in the 1939 Fort Worth Star Telegram. It shows Jess Slaughter, arena director and vice president, Ira Driver, secretary and M.M. Edwards, vice president.

That same year, back when R.V. Jones was the town mayor, Burk Summers served as parade chairman.

In those years, the Fort Worth paper apparently considered themselves a voice of the old west and they would give really top coverage to rodeos.

O course there weren't as many of the rodeos then. Big Spring along with Pecos had the earliest ones in the area. Ray Camp used to go home to Pecos and cover their rodeo daily for the Fort Worth Star Telegram and they would cover each event and each winner on all four nights.

Another early rodeo was over in Stamford where they held what they called the Texas Cowboy Reunion. Ruby Allred has a program from that rodeo from July 2, 3 and 4 in 1934.

The contestant list included Jim Maddox who was from Colorado City, C.M. Largent Jr. of Merkle; Pee Wee Flowers, then of Aspermont, Charlie Creighton, Kirby Miller, Jess Slaughter, all from Big Spring.

Charlie Creighton is presently president of the local rodeo association. Ira Dirver, who was the early secretary was the father of E.P. Driver, who along with his son Skipper are both now rodeo directors.

Another early program that Ruby has is one from Fair Park in Abilene of Sept. 5, 1933 which was the Annual American Legion and Labor Union Celebration.

Ruby was contacted to represent a newspaper team from Hart-Hanks papers and took part in the Ladies Horse Race and the Ladies Free-for-all Race.

Ruby and her husband Cecil are among the group that is active in the sheriff's posse which takes part in the parade and grand entry of the rodeo today.

The rodeo is a long-standing tradition in Big Spring. The fact that Toots Mansfield was the very first national president of the Rodeo Cowboy's Association and a world champion roper so many years gave the local show added prestige. Mansfield is also a rodeo director and was honored by the rodeo association last year.

This year's big show will June 22-25 with nightly performances, stars and be June 22-25 with nightly on June 22.

The entire production takes a lot of work by a lot of people and they are starting now to get ready for the event.

Start now to make plans to attend — out where they'll be ridin' fence later this month.

'Wrong distance'

RUDOLPH, Ohio (AP) — No one seems to know why, but on a recent Sunday, Mrs. Eugene Romake received long distance calls from Grand Junction, Colo., Ocean Key, Fla., Appleton, Wis., Bradenton, Fla., and Dayton, Sylvania and Toledo, Ohio, — all wrong numbers.

Carlsbad park lures Texans

CARLSBAD, N.M.—More Texans visit Living Desert State Park here than do residents of any other state, excluding New Mexico, says park Director Dean Ricer.

"Until this year, Texas was the leading state in attendance, bar none," he said. "And this year we've made some capitol improvements that will further enhance our viability as one of the southwest's premier tourist attractions."

This year, the park added a 3,000-foot paved service road on the north side, which allows personnel to take care of plants and animals without bothering visitors.

A new hay storage barn for the hooved animals and four hooved animal shelters have been built. Hooved animals at the park include American buffalo or bison, kudu, deer and elk.

This fall, the park will launch a $230,000 building program with tentative plans calling for mountain lion, bobcat and coyote exhibits, rebuilding of the otter exhibit and construction of a beaver display.

The park, which lies on a hilltop overlooking Carlsbad and the Pecos River valley, is owned by the state of New Mexico and operated under contract by the City of Carlsbad.

It was created several years ago to display, in an attractive Spanish-style setting, the plants and animals native to the desert Southwest and Rocky Mountain regions.

Visitors leave the entry building and take a leisurely stroll through the aviary, where birds are displayed in a unique fashion; visitors walk through the structure surrounded by the birds.

In the nocturnal exhibit, animals such as skunks, badgers, raccoons, ringtail cats, bats, ants, termites, coati mundi and fox may be seen in their cutaway burrows.

The trail continues around the "prairie dog town" to the bear den and from there to the reptile exhibit. The snake building is filled with a large variety of rattlesnakes and other reptiles that usually give most visitors a bad case of goosebumps.

March of Dimes chairman elected

Mrs. Rose Teems, executive director of the Caprock Chapter of the March of Dimes, was honored at the awards banquet Friday night at the Western Sizzler Clubroom.

The chapter, which includes the counties of Howard, Borden, Martin, Dawson, Scurry, and Glasscock, elected Barry Stephens as the new chairman. He succeeds Criag Fischer, outgoing chairman.

Mrs. Teems was recognized by the chapter for her work and was presented a farewell gift, since she and her family are moving from Big Spring.

Jonathan Whitehead, poster child, was also honored by the chapter.

Mrs. Teems presented Mother's March Awards to Mrs. Carol Reeves, Big Spring; Mrs. Darlene Leatherwood, Big Spring; Mrs. Rita Kidd, Lamesa; Mrs. Jan Johnson, Snyder; Mrs. Barbara Justiss, Coahoma; Mrs. Linda Hise, Sand Springs; Mrs. Ann Fairchild, Forsan; Miss Lisa Martin, Ackerly and Mrs. Dian Collier, Snyder.

Mrs. R.E. Steadmon was presented a special award for coordinating the Five-Watter Club while helping with the Mother's March and the Walkathon.

Tennathon Co-chairmen, Mrs. Debbie Stephens and Mrs. Sissy Mann were also honored. Cruz Rodriquez was given a special award for work with the Powder Puff Football game. Bob Bell was honored as basketball tournament chairman.

Special certificates went to Miss Edith Gay for her work as secretary; Stephens for his work as treasurer; Mrs. Marj Carpenter, for her work in publicity and Tito Arencibia for work in reproduction. Fischer, outgoing chairman, was recognized for the successful year of the chapter.

Mrs. Teems reported to the group that the 1976-77 goal for the counties of $20,000 was exceeded by $234.

Ed Ramey, area sueprvisor from Lubbock, congratulated the chapter workers on an excellent job.

Special recognition was also given to Mr. and Mrs. Gary Whitehead of Colorado City, parents of the poster child.
