Nab Suspect In Slaying Of 'The Creeper' Cook

DALLAS (AP) — Investigators filed rape and armed robbery charges today against Richard Breeding, 28, who police say is a suspect in the slaying of Dallas gangster Stanley Lee "The Creeper" Cook.

Police continued to question Breeding, an ex-convict, about five area slayings.

He was held in the suburban Farmer Branch jail, police said.

BOUND, GAGGED
Officials said the rape charge stemmed from the June 21 assault of a Dallas woman, 26, attacked in a washateria and left bound and gagged by her assailant.

The armed robbery charge was a result of a Sept. 6 robbery at the home of Mrs. F. P. Scoggins of Farmers Branch.

Justice of the Peace W. E. Richburg set bond at $100,000 in the rape case while $25,000 bond was set on the armed robbery charge.

Police at nearby Irving said they arrested Breeding after a chase Sunday. Officers said the chase occurred after a housewife reported a masked, armed man confronted her in a washateria.

SHE ESCAPED
Police said she escaped in her car and later gave investigators a description of the man and the car he was driving. They said the car was the one reported stolen at the Scoggins home.

'Middle American' Voter Still Doubts

SOME WON'T WORK Restrooms Get The Attention Of Commission

Unsanitary conditions made repairs needed at Howard County Airport rest rooms an emergency, the Commissioners Court decided Monday in authorizing the work without advertising for sealed bids.

County Judge A. G. Mitchell said over 100 men at the airport were without clean facilities. Some commodes only can be flushed by using a screwdriver, it was said.

Having air travellers stop first at the courthouse to complain about "filthy" rest rooms is "pretty embarrassing," Mitchell said.

Existing facilities, Mitchell said, had been giving trouble since they were installed and raw lake water used.

Putting the rest rooms back in working condition will cost about $12,000, Mitchell reported two plumbers estimated.

CONVERSION SLATED
Plumbing there is to be converted from a pressure to a gravity system. New commodes are to be installed. Carpentry work also will be required.

If the court decided to advertise for sealed bids, Mitchell said work could not get started for two weeks. The lowest bidder including up to three more firms, is to be awarded the contract.

Mrs. Zarah L. Bednar, county tax assessor-collector, had appointed two deputies, and the court accepted the appointments.

Helen Williams will be paid $3.10 for filling the vacancy left when Virginia Henson resigned July 1. This year, the vocational office education student will be Mary Jo English at $1.45 per hour.

The 1972 budget was amended to allow $750 more for travel in the juvenile probation office and to permit hiring a vocational office education (VOE) student for the county clerk's office.

Keith Jones, juvenile probation officer, said only $250 was left for travel for his office. Originally, $1,500 was budgeted for travel here.

Mrs. Pauline Petty, county clerk, said she was requesting the part-time worker as an alternative to an additional clerk, which the court denied.

VOE students work four hours weekdays during school.

'NEVER IDLE'
Commissioner Simon Terrazas commented workers in the county clerk's office are "never idle."

Mrs. Petty said they were "snowed under" with two elections this year. Two deputies have two-week vacations still, and two deputies, one week left.

Because of a recent Supreme Court ruling, Mrs. Petty said her office may be required to register voters after Jan. 1, a function now of the tax office. Should this happen, she said her office would need another deputy.

Rather than buy immediately, the court decided to entertain for bids on five dump truck hoists and number switches for heavy equipment.

With a load of wet sand, a hoist could break and you "hope and pray" it doesn't break your neck, Marvin Hanson, acting road administrator, told the court.

In bad shape were hoists on two trucks, and Hanson said, three other trucks needed newhoists. In Texas, only Hobbs Trailers of Odessa sells hoists that fit the county dump trucks, Wayne Wallace, shop foreman, said. This firm wanted $2,425, with trade-in, for five.

DROP IN BUCKET
Five switches for the heavy equipment would cost $987.50 from G. W. Murphy Industries in Big Spring, Wallace said.

Mitchell called that "just a drop in the bucket" compared to the cost of replacing a burned-out engine. These switches automatically turn off engines when the oil pressure drops or the temperature gets too high, Wallace said.

Hanson told the court how a well-meaning road hand accidentally burned up the engine to a tractor. Value of the engine was said to be several thousand dollars.

Other business included:
—Passing a resolution requesting a survey of water and sewer systems in Howard County through the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission. The survey will be free to Big Spring and Howard County.

—And hearing Floyd Young of the Big Spring Central Labor Council praise the county for keeping its roads in good condition despite recent rains.

Sheriff A. N. Standard Jr. did not have figures prepared concerning purchasing a copying machine for his office. And the court did not consider the matter.

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — A 43-year-old Chicago area credit manager, picked as a typical "middle American" for a study of voting behavior, says he still doesn't know how he will vote after a rare, inside view of Sen. George McGovern's presidential campaign.

UNDECIDED
"To be frank," Richard J. Johnson said in an interview, "I'm still undecided at this point whether he'll get my vote in November." But he said his view of McGovern has gone up from a week of close watching.

Johnson was picked by the Public Broadcasting Corp.'s National Public Affairs Center for Television (PACT) for a year-long study. He was first interviewed in January, when he described himself as a Democrat who might vote in November for President Nixon.

"I feel that he's done a commendable job," Johnson said at the time. But he added that if Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts won the Democratic nomination, he'd certainly vote for him.

Married and the father of four, Johnson lives in Rolling Meadows, Ill., drives 21 miles each day to his job with National Steel Service Center Inc. in Evanston and is concerned that his income of about $15,000, including his wife's part-time job, won't be enough to pay for his children's college education.

Last week, he arrived in Los Angeles to see the McGovern campaign first hand. Since Wednesday, he has seen the senator campaign there, in San Diego; in Dallas and Houston, Tex.; in Peoria and Rockford, Ill.; in Superior, Wis.; and in Des Moines, Iowa.

FIRE AT NIGHT
"It's been strenuous," Johnson conceded. "I'm tired at night, and I'm ready for the old sack, but what an experience." As for McGovern, Johnson said his first conclusion was that "the candidate has to be an extraordinary human being to endure the rigors of this." He likes a lot of what McGovern has said, finds him "a very congenial, honest and religious man" but still has doubts.

Calls Special Session On Insurance 'Reform'

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Preston Smith today called a special legislative session, convening at 10 a.m. Monday, to "reform" Texas' insurance laws.

Smith's call has been anticipated for about two months.

His call conflicts with the express wishes of the non-returning presiding officers of the House and Senate and with those of many lawmakers.

The governor's staff passed the word in advance to leaders of the two houses so they could begin preparations.

In addition to insurance reform Smith said he wants lawmakers to enact legislation "establishing budgetary control over state expenditures, including the transfer of funds."

Atty. Gen. Crawford Martin held recently that a Texas governor cannot transfer funds from one agency to another—an authority governors had had since 1957.

The special session will be the fourth since the end of the regular session in May 1971.

"I have determined," Smith said, "that the single most important and necessary step towards insurance reform and protection of the insurance consumer in Texas would be the institution of a well regulated competitive rate system to replace the system of rate setting by the state board of insurance."

"Because virtually every citizen of Texas is touched in some manner by insurance and because the present rating system has failed to serve the best interest of all Texans, I am recommending and limiting my call on the subject of insurance to the passage of workable and realistic legislation establishing competitive rate for property and casualty insurance."

LIFE IS A YO-YO — It has its ups and downs. This was definitely an 'up' moment for four young girls who attended the Monday afternoon performance of the Shrine Circus here. Chamber Endorses Idea Of Inn Tax

Chamber of Commerce directors gave their endorsement Monday to a suggestion that the city commission be asked to consider transient occupancy tax on motel-hotel rooms.

This would not apply to regular or permanent guests.

Proceeds from such a levy could be used to promote tourist stops in the city, obtain conventions, or even contribute toward a major community-convention center, said J. Arnold Marshall, chairman of a new tourism committee. Nearly two score cities have adopted such a means of raising revenue, he said, among them Abilene in this immediate area. Marshall said state officials predicted that within a few years tourism would be the major industry of Texas.

Acknowledging new interest in the possibility of a coliseum or some type of community facility, R. H. Weaver, chamber president, said he would name a special commission to coordinate and study the possibilities in this direction.

The suggestion of youth involvement in community affairs was received enthusiastically, but action was delayed a month until students in the high school can be approached.

The observation park at the north end of the Webb AFB runway is gradually coming along, Mrs. Roy Cederberg told the directors. Sidewalks are to be poured soon and picnic units erected. Jaycees have volunteered to erect canopies over the units. The Rotary Club has contributed to the project, which will have speakers that will enable the park visitors to overhear ground-plane communications.

Weaver said that a committee had appraised chamber

Campaign Strategy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon charted re-election campaign strategy today at a three-hour meeting with his Cabinet, Republican congressional leaders, White House aides and campaign committee officials.

Nixon made brief comments to his 39 breakfast guests in the State Dining Room. So did Vice President Spiro Agnew and re-election campaign director Clark MacGregor.

White House press secretary Ronald Ziegler would not disclose what Nixon told the group, but said MacGregor and others "outlined efforts planned for the coming months."

MacGregor referred specifically, Ziegler said, to the GOP's effort to recruit one million volunteers for grassroots canvassing and registering of voters. That local effort is to be launched Saturday.

Graduation Ritual Held Saturday At Webb AFB

Undergraduate pilot training class 73-02, with 38 Air Force officers and one Iranian aviation cadet, graduated Saturday at Webb.

The officers received the silver wings and aeronautical ratings in a ceremony on the flightline at the base.

Class 73-02, known throughout their training period as the Bald Eagles, entered preflight training here Oct. 13, 1971. Fifty-six officers began training in Cessna T-41 Mescaleros for suitability screening Oct. 20.

The Bald Eagles began their primary jet training on Dec. 1,

NEED A BEACON? Public Auction Scheduled Here

If you've always wanted an airport beacon, an abandoned cotton-stripper or a $13,000 addressograph, the City of Big Spring public auction on Saturday at the old Goat Hill surplus yard is your chance to "steal it."

Auctioneer Rene Bates, McKinney, is a former school teacher with two degrees in agriculture who turned to the auction business for the sheer excitement of the sale.

Whether he's called on to sell combines in Colorado, snow-makers in Arizona or surfboards in South Dakota, he usually makes the sale.

To his recollection, the only item he couldn't sell was a kitten from the animal shelter of the city of Richardson. He even offered a little boy a quarter to take the cat, but the parents shouted an emphatic, "No."

STRANGE COLLECTION
Bates is excited about the Big Spring auction and is amazed with the city, as usual, over the strange collection of "junk" stockpiled over the years at the surplus yard.

The wide selection includes a barracks building and an administration building moved from the old CCC camp on Scenic Mountain.

An old blue-print machine which worked "in 1936?" is a prime example of the useful material to be offered at dealer's prices or below.

Bates knows of several dealers who will be on hand Saturday at 10 a.m. to bid for six 1971 Chevrolet sedans, but dealer prices is all they will pay, he said. Dealers hope that the public will not show up for the sale, he added, because they buy these cars with the idea of making a good profit on them.

The auction is a perfect place for the average citizen to make a good deal on either common or unusual merchandise. And if the public doesn't show up, the dealers get it at a give-away price.

WIDE VARIETY

When asked for a complete list of items to be placed on the auction Saturday, city officials named a few items such as water fountains, an aircraft engine, typewriters, a Caterpillar motor grader, float and tank trailers, 100 tons of cast iron pipe and fittings, 1,000 feet of heavy wire fencing, adding machines, various sizes of electric motors, automotive parts and tools, two Cushman scooters, a winch truck, a 1959 panel truck, pickups, and then they rolled their eyes and said, "Everything, anything imaginable."

Bates has no fears of not being able to sell the assorted oddities. He said he's always sold oddities, because at least one man in each crowd has a good use, or at least a strong whim, for some of the strongest, most seemingly useless, junk that he has seen.

Even a four-foot golfball can be sold, Bates exclaimed. "I sold a foul-foot golf ball in Arlington for $7.50." In the same auction he sold a marble canine grave marker.

As well as profitable, the auction is exciting and entertaining, Bates said. "We put on a show, anything to make people smile or laugh. When they're happy, they bid and buy."

Antilabor Mentality?

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Sargent Shriver is telling union leaders that President Nixon has an incurable "antilabor mentality" and should be held personally accountable for high unemployment, high inflation and high and unfair taxes.

But the Democratic vice presidential candidate concedes that message hasn't gotten through to the voters.

Shriver stumped California Monday in a campaign his advisers hope will draw Nixon or Vice President Spiro Agnew into political shooting range.

Shriver's schedule today takes him to Portland, Ore., and Seattle, Wash. — concentrating mostly on appearances on local television shows — and then to El Paso, Tex.

In Los Angeles, Shriver told the International Association of Machinists, AFL-CIO, which has already endorsed the McGovern-Shriver ticket, that no man who thinks hard about it can vote to reelect the President.

When Nixon ended his career in Congress, his vote rating with the AFL-CIO political action arm was 13 per cent, Shriver told the machinists, and added, "That's a Barry Goldwater record."

Elementary Art Supervisor Approved By School Board

The Big Spring Independent school board approved employment of an elementary school art supervisor when it held its regular meeting Monday evening at the board meeting room.

Following a two-week study, they decided to attempt to upgrade the elementary art program here by hiring a supervisor who would serve as a resource person in contact with all elementary classroom teachers in all schools.

The state requires that each elementary teacher include a minimum of 100 minutes of art a week in their curriculums. Many of the teachers have no training in art. The board voted 5-1 in favor of the proposal with Jerry Jenkins voting "no."

The board also heard Dr. Clarence D. Kron, head of the educational department at the University of Texas at Permian Basin, speak to the board concerning plans for training teachers at the new four-year college, beginning in 1973.

TO CONFER IN AREA
He outlined plans for conferring with schools in the area in an attempt to learn how their program can best suit schools in the Permian Basin. He discussed setting up standards and later area councils to help determine how to utilize education students at the

Head Count Is Up In Local Schools

Total school enrollment at Big Spring schools took a jump to 6,787 after Labor Day which was an increase of 128 from the previous Friday.

This is still 335 less than the previous year when the over-all total was 7,122. However, the week before, the difference was close to 450 so this week's enrollment did show a gain.

The biggest increase after Labor Day was in high school where 78 more students enrolled, with five more in the two junior high schools and 38 more in all of the elementary schools.

Native Big Springer Is Named To News Position

John R. Thomas, a native of Big Spring, has assumed the position of managing editor of the Paris (Tex.) News. His tenure began last Thursday, according to Publisher Roger Amdall.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. John Richard Thomas, John Thomas is an honor graduate of Big Spring High School before entering the University of Texas. He was a member of the National Honor Society and active in other student affairs.

Thomas, former city editor of the morning Abilene Reporter-News, replaces longtime Paris News editor Bill Thompson who recently took a public relations job.

Thomas will head the editorial department, Amdall said. "I am looking forward to expanded local news coverage plus unique journalistic innovations designed to be of interest to Paris News readers stemming from John's impressive background and experience at the Abilene Reporter-News," Amdall added.

"As always," Amdall emphasized, "complete local news coverage will be our prime concern balanced with the important events at the state, national and international level."

Thomas, 25, went to the reporter-news in September 1970 from the Corpus Christi Call-Times where he was in the Harte-Hanks editorial training college in the area. E. A. Brenholtz, head of the special education program at the regional center, spoke briefly to the board on the special education program which has been set up in the Big Spring schools this year, and offered the services of the educational center.

NLRB Considers Contempt Claim

The National Labor Relations board in Fort Worth has recommended to the NLRB in Washington, D.C., that it seek a contempt citation against a Lubbock manufacturing concern, reported Kenneth Howell, business manager for Local 826, International Union of Operating Engineers.

He said the NLRB regional office claimed a violation of the Fifth Circuit Court order in New Orleans, La., on April 6 that Johnson Manufacturing cease was held to be negotiating in bad faith.

Local 826 struck Johnson Aug. 10 and still maintains picket lines around the plant. Howell applauded the NLRB recommendation from Fort Worth, saying "this just decision renews the working man's faith in the administration of America's judicial system."

Monday, Sept. 18, was set by Federal Mediator A. L. Smith, Dallas, for the resumption of negotiations between officials of Johnson Manufacturing Company and 826 IUOE.

Hearing Slated For Juan Lopez

Juan David Lopez, 20, of 1200 Mobile was released on $3,000 bond set by District Judge R. W. Caton Monday afternoon.

A hearing on the motion to revoke Lopez' probation is pending. Convicted in September 1971 for burglary, Lopez is now accused of burglarizing the residence of Hector Perez July 10.

program. The Paris, Abilene and Corpus Christi papers are owned by Harte-Hanks.

At the Reporter-News, Thomas worked as a general assignment reporter, city hall reporter and assistant news editor before becoming city editor of the morning paper.

He graduated from the University of Texas at Austin in 1970 with a Bachelor of Journalism degree. He and his wife, Marcy, have one son, 18-month old Joshua.

Amdall, the News publisher, replaced Walter Bassano who retired on Sept. 1.

Docs Blame Bam Bam For Hepatitis Outbreak

HOUSTON (AP) — A baby chimpanzee named Bam Bam has been identified as the culprit responsible for an outbreak of hepatitis among employees at the Houston zoo.

There are three confirmed cases and two suspected with four persons hospitalized, Dr. Robert McLean, who heads the communicable disease section of the city health department, said Monday. All cases are mild, he added.

"There is no risk to the public as far as I can see," McLean added.

The chimp was destined for the petting zoo here but because of his age was in the nursery section behind glass walls and did not come in contact with visitors since his arrival Aug. 3.

Dr. Benjamin Portnoy, an epidemic intelligence service officer with the U.S. Public Health Service, said Bam Bam was imported from Sierra Leone by a Florida animal dealer. The dealer "now has a mild illness diagnosed as hepatitis," he added.

Bam Bam himself shows no signs of the disease, Portnoy said, but it is common, he added, for primates to carry viruses that infect humans but don't make the animals noticeably ill.

"The other chimps from the same dealer are in a zoo in California. No one at that zoo has contracted hepatitis," Portnoy said.

He added that the California zoo apparently uses better isolation methods than the Houston zoo.

Big Spring special education supervisor and counselors were special guests at the board meeting and were introduced to the board.

In other action, the board heard John Bagnell, vocational administrator, propose a residence for the building trades class to build this year for Mr. and Mrs. W. Bruce Griffith. He presented blue prints prepared by the school drafting classes and also specifications. The board approved the project and also discussed visiting the home of Leon Taylor, last year's student project residence.

EXCESS IN BUDGET
The board approved an amended budget for the outgoing year, which included an excess of receipts over expenditures of $237,675.30.

They also approved moving cash balances left in the building fund and the special education division to the new budget in their respective divisions. Don Crockett presented details of the budget to the board.

They granted a request by Ben Bancroft that the contractual agreement with Brown, Hamby and Bancroft in collecting delinquent taxes be changed to coincide with the school year. They also commended the firm for the job they did this year in collecting $94,000 in delinquent taxes.

The board accepted the resignation of Jack Sparks, high school English teacher, and retirement of Mrs. Mary Newell, supervisor and Mrs. Patsy Webb, Marcy first grade teacher.

EMPLOY NEW TEACHERS
They approved employment of Charles Campbell, high school physical science; Mrs. Bernice Coates, College Heights; Mrs. Rebecca J. Harrison, head start; Miss Nancy Ivis, head start; Stephen Kinslow, Goliad; Milton Laird, Goliad industrial arts; Mrs. JoAnne Lease, Washington; Mrs. Bonnie Milet, resource teacher; Mrs. Linda Mills, resource teacher; Mrs. Paula Ogan, high school English; Mrs. Carol Phillips, high school bookkeeping; Miss Ruby Reed, head start; Mrs. Susan Thomas, Rannels, and Mrs. Nancy Woodruff, resource teacher.

The board reviewed the Big Spring policy on married students which no longer conforms with the law, under recent court decisions and requested Supt. Sam Anderson to have the administrators come up with a new policy to be presented at the next meeting of the board.

Board members also discussed the state meeting of school boards to be held in San Antonio and named Ralph McLaughlin and Delnor Poss as delegates.

Roy Watkins, board president, also called to the attention of the board members reports on enrollment, taxes and school finances.

All board members were present, including J. W. Little, Thomas W. Fetters, Dan McLaughlin and Watkins.

Administrators present included Supt. Anderson, Noel Reed, Lynn C. Hize, Don Crockett, Don Green, Clovis Hale and John Smith.

Trio Is Honored By Squadrons

Three men at Webb have recently received honors from their squadrons for outstanding duty performance.

From the 3560th Field Maintenance Squadron, Airman I.C. Clifford J. Snyder, a native of New York, was selected airman of the month. He is an aerospace ground equipment repairman.

S. Sgt. Paul A. Sprayberry, also from Field Maintenance, was chosen noncommissioned officer of the month. A Georgia native, he is also an aerospace ground equipment repairman.

Sgt. Lawrence Kitz Jr., 3560th Air Base Group, is an administrative specialist. He was selected noncommissioned officer of the month for his organization.

HC's Enrollment Now Total 1,020

Enrollment for Howard County Junior College this fall is 1,020, slightly under the 1971 fall enrollment total of 1,055.

The figure for last year's enrollment was not a record, somewhat below the 1970 fall enrollment above 1,200 students.

President Dr. Thomas T. Salter attributed the loss in enrollment to a decrease in the birth rate, a decrease in West Texas population, and the gradual unwinding of United States military commitment in Vietnam.

Klan Using Truth Tests To Root Out Informers

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — An official of the Ku Klux Klan says the organization is using lie detector tests to root out government informers.

Jim Harris, a Cincinnati contractor and Ohio grand dragon of the United Klans of America, said Monday that Imperial Wizard Robert Shelton of Atlanta, Ga., had ordered the polygraph tests for all Klansmen.

Harris said the FBI has planted informants in the Klan and "every organization in the country."

"The first purpose we have to solve," he said, "is this informant business. We have to fight the FBI first. Then we can start on other goals."

Harris said Klan organizations in 22 states already have the polygraph machines. He said the Ohio Klan would have one in about two weeks.

Harris said he, Shelton and other Klan officials already have taken the test.

The Klan headquarters in Tuscaloosa, Ala., had established a school in which Klansmen are learning to operate the machines, which cost $500 each, he added.

Harris said that the Klan had hired "professional polygraph men" to give tests in Alabama last year, but that "the FBI threatened to pull their licenses if they gave tests to Klan people."

"The whole federal system is our enemy," he said. "There is no democracy or freedom of the people."

Crazy Play Day To Be Saturday

A 'Crazy Play Day' will be held by the Howard County Sheriff's Posse, starting at 6 p.m., Saturday in its arena three miles west of town on the Andrews Highway.

The idea of conventional contests for a regular play day will be scrapped for novel approaches. Contestants will pay 50 cents for each event they enter. Members from pee-wee size through adults will take part in the competition.

A concessions stand will be in operation during the program. Spectators will be welcome.

Drive Money Is Tricking In

Although the appeal for money to underwrite the cost of the Big Spring High School Bible class has ended, donations continue to trickle in.

The Herald will continue for a few days to serve as a clearing house for those wishing to give money to the drive. During the 24-hour period ending at noon today, a total of $85 was added to the fund, plus a $5 check from Dr. and Mrs. M. A. Porter, previously given but unreported.

Another gentle shove would put the total over the $5,000 it now stands at $4,970.50.

Among latest donors are Dorcas Class, Westside Baptist Church, $5; Mrs. Lillian Stulting, $5; Mrs. Bill Currie, $15; Mr. and Mrs. Dub Bryant, $10; Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Shortes, $10; Mr. and Mrs. Noble Kenner, $10; Mr. and Mrs. Relece Jones (in memory of Mrs. T. A. Underhill), $10; and Past Matrons Club, Coahoma, $5.

In addition, an anonymous $15 gift was forwarded in memory of Mrs. Shirley Fryar.

Take Steps To Withdraw Funds From Closed Bank

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP) — City and county governments here both started work Monday to get their money out of the court-closed W. L. Moody and Co. Bankers (unincorporated) bank, and the county actually got its hands on some cash.

The bank was closed last week by U.S. District Court Judge James Noel after the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission filed an injunction suit against its owner, Shearn Moody Jr., charging him with violations of securities laws in selling certificates of deposits for the bank.

GET IN LINE
The county had about $12 million in the private bank, one of the last in Texas and it obtained $745,000 from court-appointed receiver E. O. Buck. The money was delivered after the court authorized an agreement with Buck allowing him to sell U.S. government securities held by the closed bank which back up the county deposits.

The agreement states if the proceeds ultimately realized from the sale of obligations securing the deposits are not sufficient to pay all the county deposits, they must get in line with other unsecured depositors to get the rest of their money. City councilmen refused last week to sign a similar agreement. Instead it will try to terminate its contract with the closed bank to act as city depository. The agreement would

General's Funeral

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Lt. Gen. George B. Simler today was to receive his fourth star and take charge of the Military Airlift Command at Scott Air Force Base, Ill. Instead, he will be buried at the Air Force Academy, the victim of a plane crash.

Also to be buried today at the academy in Colorado Springs, Colo., is the general's aide, Capt. Gil L. Gillespie.

Simler, 51, a native of Johnstown, Pa., and Gillespie, 29, of San Antonio, were killed here Saturday in the crash of their jet plane on takeoff from Randolph AFB.

Memorial services were held for Simler and Gillespie Monday afternoon at Randolph where Simler had served since 1970 as chief of the 16-base Air Training Command.

It was on Monday that Simler was to have turned over his command in ceremonies at Randolph to Lt. Gen. William V. McBride.

McBride was among those attending Monday's 20 minute services. About 1,500 persons gathered at the base chapel, including more than 1,000 who had to remain outside under a hot sun because of limited seating capacity.

Separate services were scheduled today at the Air Force Academy for Simler, former athletic director there, and Gillespie, a 1965 graduate.

Their plane crashed as they were leaving Randolph for Scott to pick up Mrs. Simler and return for the change of ceremonies. The Simlers already had moved to Illinois so the children could enroll in school there.

The Air Force said Monday that orders already had been published promoting Simler to four star general, meaning he held that rank when he died. Today's ceremonies would have been a formality. Gillespie also has been promoted posthumously, to major, officials said.

Man Hospitalized With Leg Wound

A 21-year-old Big Spring resident, reported absent without leave from the Army, accidentally shot himself with a .38 pistol in the right ankle Sunday morning.

The man accidentally shot himself while at home, the sheriff's office reported.

Cowper Clinic & Hospital listed the victim in good condition Tuesday morning.

Deadline Nearing For Certificates

The last time persons may register in person to vote in the Nov. 7 General Election is 5 p.m. Oct. 6, Mrs. Zarah L. Bednar, county tax assessor-collector, said.

Completed applications must be postmarked Oct. 8 or earlier, Mrs. Bednar said.

Voters should have a registration certificate marked for 1972.

Voters who have moved from one voting precinct to another within Howard County need to have an affidavit in the tax office signed by Nov. 2, Mrs. Bednar said.

Wives Orientation Slated At Webb

The volunteers from Family Services at Webb Air Force Base are planning a Wives Orientation, to be held in two complete sessions.

The orientation should answer most questions any wife would have about legal matters, hospital benefits, emergency aid, moving regulations and many other areas of great concern.

All wives new to the Air Force, or any wife who has not attended an orientation within the last three years, are urged to come.

A morning session will be held from 9:30 to 2 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 26, at the NCO Club, with a free luncheon to be served.

For many of the wives who work, an evening session will also be given Wednesday, Sept. 27 from 6:30 to 10 p.m. at the Service Club. There will be refreshments for everyone.

The nursery will be free and all babies under six months will be cared for by members of the Emergency Committee at the program.

County's New Budget Allows For Raises

By JOHN EDWARDS
Almost one-fourth of 1973 operating expenses are to be covered by the beginning surplus, the $1,573,081 budget adopted by the Howard County Commissioners Court Monday afternoon provides.

Their new budget allows five per cent salary increases for all county employees. Based on total salaries listed in the 1971 audit, the five per cent increase will cost Howard County about $30,000.

Of the total budget, $1,415,172 goes to operating funds and $158,081 to interest and sinking funds for debt retirement.

From the beginning balance in operating funds comes $276,062. Receipts of $163,370 fall under the $158,081 expenses in interest and sinking funds.

DECREASES
Spending for 1971 totaled $1,266,439, a decrease of $2,372 from 1970.

Originally, $1,474,092 was budgeted for 1972, an increase of $26,916 over the original budget for 1971.

Commissioner Jack Buchanan listed recent employee benefits during arguments with Kenneth Howell, business manager of the International Union of Operating Engineers, over an immediate two per cent raise.

Employees were given no raise in 1968, a 10 per cent raise in 1970, none in 1971, and a five per cent raise earlier this year.

On Jan. 1, 1969, the county started a retirement program costing Howard County $22,607 the first year, $25,312 in 1970, and $29,367 in 1971.

Howard County contributed $8,891 toward insurance for employees in 1969, $12,939 in 1970, and $10,989 in 1971.

In May, 1971, Buchanan said road and bridge employees saw their work week reduced from 44 to 40 hours with no decrease in pay.

Buchanan said the reduction in time, in effect, amounted to an increase in wages of 10 per cent.

WANTS BOOSTS
Commissioner William B. Crocker argued for the two per cent increase saying over the last decade salaries probably were increased only about one per cent yearly.

Calling Big Spring highly industrialized, Howell said county workers must compete with those on $10,000 and $12,000 per year salaries at markets. Mitchell said road and bridge department wages, which start at $2.55 per hour, are "way above" wages paid county road workers in Tom Green (San Angelo) and Taylor County (Abilene) which have comparable tax structures.

Howell said Howard County should be compared to industrialized Harris County.

Howell said it was a question of priorities, and keeping "your employees whole" should be top priority.

Mitchell argued, "People pay taxes for other things than employees."

The union representative told the court later hiring four new road employees Oct. 1, as planned, will cost about $5,292 — more than he estimated two per cent raises meant in four months.

Mitchell said they had gone eight months without the four men, more than paying for their salaries this year.

When Mitchell called for a motion on the immediate raise, no member of the court would respond. And Mitchell finally closed discussion.

"HIGH NOW"
During the budget discussion, taxes are high now, Howell said, "just on the homeowner."

Mitchell disagreed saying Cosden Oil and Chemical Co. was "hit pretty hard" the last two years.

Increasing values this year probably cost the firm $90,000 in taxes, the county judge said.

For capital improvement $15,000 was allocated. "I don't know of anything we have to spend the next two years in capital improvement," Mitchell said, mentioning previous projects.

Buchanan questioned why expenditures listed under the sheriff's office increased from actual expenditures of $54,630 in 1971 to a budgeted $116,505 for 1973.

Mitchell said he could remember when the population of Howard County was larger and the sheriff had two deputies, the police force, 16 men compared to 50 now.

County roads patrolled by the sheriff's office are long enough to reach Galveston, the county judge said. And Commissioner Simon Terrazas felt the public was getting added protection, explaining the decrease in percentage of criminal cases.

Fewer arrests are made now, because of the court ruling defendants must be appointed lawyer, it was said.

Marijuana Suspect Flees, Recaptured

One of two men arrested for possession of marijuana about seven miles west of Big Spring on Interstate 20 escaped and was found about 1 a.m. today by Stanton police near Stanton.

Complaints charging four Arizona residents with possession of marijuana also were filed this morning by Justice of the Peace Walter Grice.

Texas Highway Patrolman said he was alone when he stopped a car for a defective taillight on Interstate 20. Inside the car he noticed a plastic bag containing about one ounce identified as marijuana and 20 "joints" or marijuana cigarettes.

David Michael Opp, 21, of El Paso, disappeared into the darkness after Ferguson separated the two suspects, Ferguson said. Stanton Patrolman James McKee found Opp near Stanton about 1 a.m.

Big Spring police and the Howard County sheriff's office assisted in the search.

James A. Weaver, 24, reported absent without leave from Fort Bliss at El Paso, was charged with possession of marijuana also.

Peace Justice Mrs. Fred Adams of Coahoma set their bond at $5,000 each, but the two were in jail Tuesday morning.

Charged with possession of marijuana from Arizona were Dianna Marie Duran, 19, of Phoenix; Mary Kathleen McCormack, 19, of Phoenix; Rebecca Carmen Duran, 21, of Scottsdale; and Timothy Joseph Coughlin, 19, of Scottsdale.

Grice set their bonds at $1,900 each.

Patrolman Dan Hubbard stopped the Arizona residents for weaving in traffic at 3rd and South Gregg Streets about 10:30 a.m. Sunday.

He and Sgt. John Scott arrested them for the felony complaint. The four from Arizona were in 118th District Court Tuesday morning for a hearing on a writ of habeas corpus.

DURING 1950-52 EXPERIMENT

840 Pregnant Women Given Hormone Linked To Cancer

CHICAGO (AP) — A synthetic female hormone — recently associated with cancer — was given to 840 pregnant women in 1950-52 as part of a clinical experiment of which they were unaware.

The hormone is diethylstilbestrol, also called DES or stilbestrol.

In wholly unconnected tests two decades later, three Boston researchers found "a highly significant association" between DES and vaginal cancer among seven young girls whose mothers took the drug during their pregnancies. One girl died.

On Aug. 2, the Food and Drug Administration banned all production of DES for use in animal feeds because it turned up in the tissue of animals slaughtered for food. Researchers had also reported that DES caused cancer in some experimental animals.

At the time of the Chicago experiment, physicians had no reason to suspect DES of cancer-causing potential in the patients' children.

Dr. Charles McCartney, who participated in the experiment, said its purpose was to determine whether DES was really helpful in preventing complications of pregnancy, as was widely believed then. The answer from the experiment was negative, he said.

Record-keeping on the women involved now makes it possible to locate many of them, and any daughters who might be at risk. The daughters could have frequent checkups to detect any early symptoms of trouble. Or the followup could help determine whether such use of DES actually does create a cancer risk, the physician said.

The study was conducted at the University of Chicago's Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology among patients at Chicago's Lying-in Hospital from Sept. 28, 1950, through Nov. 20, 1952.

As each woman registered at the hospital's prenatal clinic during that period, she was automatically entered into the experiment. There were 2,162 in all, but the group was subsequently reduced to 1,646. Of these, 840 were given DES. The others received placebos, or tablets containing no drugs.

Not even clinicians who attended the women knew which tablets had DES because they were concealed in a code.

Describing the experiment at the time, the researchers said it was designed so "1: that patients and staff should have no knowledge of the medication on trial; 2: that a similar group of patients should receive placebo medication which is not discernible from the medication on trial; and 3: that the two groups of patients must be treated simultaneously and as nearly alike as possible."

The chief author of the report was the late Dr. William J. Diekmann, chairman of the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology as well as chief of staff of the hospital. He died in 1957.

Dr. McCartney, who participated in the experiment, said Dr. Diekmann urged the study because "thousands of women were taking stilbestrol and a great deal was written about the increased salvage rate in high-risk pregnancies, particularly with patients with diabetes and those with threatened abortions."

"Dr. Diekmann was skeptical of the reports and designed an experiment to test the hypothesis. Our question was, 'Does it (DES) do any good?' Our answer was, 'No.'"

Dr. McCartney said the experiment was conducted in an era in which there was "no such thing as informed consent."

"At the time of the experiment, there was nothing known about the malignancy potential of this material," he said. "Indeed, this still has to be determined."

The job of tracking down the women involved in the experiment and their children has fallen to Dr. Frederick P. Zuppan, chairman of the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology and chief of staff at Chicago Lying-in. Zuppan did not take part in the experiment.

Officials at Chicago Lying-in declined to answer questions about the experiment and directed all inquiries to Zuppan.

"I can answer no questions regarding the study or plans for a follow-up," Zuppan said.

However, a follow-up is in the works. A Chicago mother who was involved in the experiment said:

"I first learned of it when I received a letter from the university dated Aug. 8, 1972. I had never been told I was part of an experiment."

She does not know whether she received DES or the blank tablets.

Her daughter, who will be 21 in October, has had only one serious illness and that resulted from a ruptured appendix.

It was learned 1,600 letters had been sent over Zuppan's signature. The letter says:

"Dr. William Diekmann and others conducted a study on the use of diethylstilbestrol (the estrogen female hormone) during pregnancy. This study was conducted while you were a patient in the Outpatient Department of Chicago Lying-in Hospital. Our records indicate that you participated in this important study."

"We are now routinely following up all offspring of participants. It would be greatly appreciated if you would give us your daughter's present address so that we may contact her."

The first indication there might be some association between DES-treated mothers and the occurrence of vaginal cancer in their daughters was contained in a report April 22, 1971, in the New England Journal of Medicine.

Dr. Arthur Herbst, Howard Ulfelder and David Poskanzer, working at Vincent Memorial Hospital, were mystified by seven cases of vaginal cancer which came to the hospital's attention during the period 1963-

69. The patients' ages ranged from 15 to 22. This was considered rare. In the detective work that followed, the investigators sought a variety of explanations and discovered that in each case, the mother had been treated with DES during pregnancy.

The scientists then reported: "There is a highly significant association between the treatment of the mothers with estrogen (diethylstilbestrol) during pregnancy and the subsequent development of adenocarcinoma of the vagina in their daughters."

They said, "The time of birth of these patients (1946 to 1951) coincides with the beginning of widespread use of estrogens in support of high-risk pregnancy."

"Although the chance of development of these tumors appears to be very small, the results of this study suggest that it is unwise to administer stilbestrol to women early in pregnancy."

The women who participated in the Chicago experiment were given doses of DES early in pregnancy and the dosage was increased regularly.

Diethylstilbestrol is still in use in a variety of brand name drugs. It is prescribed primarily for cancer of the prostate in men, and for menopausal symptoms in women, and in some cases for treatment of breast cancer in women. In some drugs it is combined with male hormones.

Women involved in the Chicago research were not the only ones being given DES during that period.

In 1951, two Boston obstetrician-gynecologists, Drs. O. W. Smith and G. Van S. Smith, had recommended that increasing doses of diethylstilbestrol be routinely administered to all women during pregnancy to prevent or decrease hazards of late complications for mothers and babies.

It was this and other recommendations for DES that prompted Diekmann's project.

DIAMOND JUBILEE Federation Stressed At Club Breakfast

The Diamond Jubilee being celebrated this year by the General Federation of Women's Clubs was the subject of a program heard by members of the 1941 Study Club during a breakfast Saturday at Holiday Inn.

Mrs. Jim Renfro, retiring club president was program leader, with other speakers being Mrs. Grady Tindol, Mrs. Rod Tiller and Mrs. Paul Allen.

A guest speaker was Mrs. Norman Read who was a charter member of the club and described the club's first year. She encouraged club members to remain a federated club and support federation projects.

Mrs. Tindol discussed federation heritage, noting that the federation was begun by a Mrs. Croly in 1868, and the first convention was held in 1889. In relating the advantages of federation, Mrs. Tiller told of the diversity of opportunity, the unity in fellowship and stressed coming together for a common purpose. Mrs. Allen said there have been many "rewards" for federation, including legislation passed which was supported by club women. These include driver's education being taught in schools and stiffer penalties being dealt for drunken driving.

Charter members who were guests were Mrs. Read, Mrs. Charles Read, Mrs. Tom Barber and Mrs. Ernest Garrett. Recognized as the only charter member still active in the club was Mrs. Ray Swann.

Mrs. Wendell Shive distributed yearbooks, explaining that in following the theme, "Emerging Facets of the Polished Diamond", the club will explore each area of federation activity.

Mrs. Renfro was presented a past president's pin by Mrs. O. J. Bohannon.

The next meeting will be at 7:30 p. m., Oct. 2, in the home of Mrs. Bill Read, Coahoma.

'Pill Bug' Infestation Eyed By Soil Makers

How to get rid of sow bugs (sometimes called pill bugs) was discussed during Monday's meeting of Organic Soil Makers at the U. S. Experiment Station, with Mrs. Jan Huff, president, presiding. Chaplain Kenneth Summy proposed that the club contact other clubs and agencies for suggestions on how to cope with the bugs. During the general discussion, it was noted that ducks like to feed on these bugs.

The basic purpose of the club is to build soil by using organic matter, thus eliminating the use of chemical fertilizers, and to learn insect control without use of insecticides and poisons. The study theme for this year is insect control, along with organic gardening.

Mrs. Huff discussed using rare or unusual herbs to help combat insects, for special diets to remain a federated club and support federation projects.

Mrs. Tindol discussed federation heritage, noting that the federation was begun by a Mrs. Croly in 1868, and the first convention was held in 1889. In relating the advantages of federation, Mrs. Tiller told of the diversity of opportunity, the unity in fellowship and stressed coming together for a common purpose. Mrs. Renfro was presented a past president's pin by Mrs. O. J. Bohannon.

The next meeting will be at 7:30 p. m., Oct. 2, in the home of Mrs. Bill Read, Coahoma.

One of the newest ways to cover up unattractive floors is with carpet tiles that resemble parquet flooring. These tiles have all the advantageous features of regular tiles — high density latex foam built-in padding and self-adhesive backing — and they look like an elegant wood floor.

The next meeting will be Oct. 9 at the experiment station.

HC's Juvenile Officer Checks On Runaways

A total of 23 runaways plagued the juvenile department during the month of August, according to a monthly report by F. Keith Jones, juvenile probation officer.

Of these 23, 16 were local and seven were picked up here in other counties and states. In other action, the department handled 12 cases of vandalism, five charged with fondling, four with minors in possession of alcoholic beverages, three for theft under $5, two each for domestic problems, and auto theft, and one each for violating probation, auto theft, attempted burglary, drunk in public and witness in possession of marijuana.

At this time, 26 youths are under the supervision of the department, eight of which are girls. Three boys and one girl are under official probation out of 56 youths referred by the office during the month of August.

During the month, Jones also counseled with 69 boys and girls and 89 parents. There are currently 10 local boys on parole from the Texas Youth Council.

During the month, Jones also attended two meetings of the Criminal Justice Council in Midland for a federal grant review, held two juvenile court hearings, made six jail visits, visited three times at the Coahoma Schools, made two trips to Gatesville State School and one to Uvalde to pick up a juvenile.

Unlikely-Possible

Your Good Health
Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I read in the paper about a woman who was planning to adopt a baby and wanted to nurse (breast feed) it herself.

The columnist suggested that she contact a society that advocates breast feeding. Later someone else wrote in and said the person must be crazy to suggest such a thing.

Is it possible to stimulate the breasts of a woman who is not pregnant to produce milk? If so, I think more should be told about this possibility, as it would bring a woman and adopted child so much closer.

Lactation (production of milk) has been reported in women who have never been pregnant. This is true with experimental animals. But it is extremely rare.

Apparently the stimulus of suckling plus an extremely favorable attitude on the part of the woman is important.

If the woman has been pregnant previously, then the likelihood of milk production under such circumstances is greater. In fact, women in their 60s have been known to breast feed infants even though it had been years since they had borne a child.

I cannot say whether La Leche League (the organization favoring breast-feeding, which probably was the group to which reference was made) can help in such cases. Perhaps.

Anyway, I would think that the prospective adopting woman's chances of nursing the baby are pretty slim unless she has been pregnant in the past. The questions also would arise as to whether she could produce enough for the child's needs.

However, there's a difference between "unlikely" and "impossible," and I certainly don't think she was crazy for asking the question.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Enclosed is 25 cents and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope for your booklet, "Controlling Your Blood Pressure. I started taking medication for my blood pressure, and since that time I also have difficulty writing. Could the drug have anything to do with it? Would a change help? — Mrs. R. C. S.

One of the drugs in one of the medications can — rarely — cause muscle weakness, so you should report your trouble in writing to your physician. A change in medication might be in order. The penmanship in your letter looked good, though.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: You wrote in your column that a person who bruised easily was low on calcium. Could I buy some on my own and take it? If so, how much and how long? My hands and arms are black and blue all the time. I am 62. — G. E. D.

Shortage of calcium is ONE cause of easy bruising, but there are others, and when a patient is black and blue "all the time," I'd want to play safe and have some blood tests to make sure the easy bruising isn't a result of another type of blood disorder.

If the trouble turns out to be lack of calcium, though, milk and dairy products are an excellent source of calcium. A glass or two of milk a day makes a good amount.

Note to Mrs. N. J. S.: There are plenty of people like your brother who get a notion, without any basis, for thinking they have cancer. In your brother's case, tell him to have a biopsy, which will settle the question definitely.

What causes "balance" trouble? What can be done to correct or overcome it? Dr. Thosteson's booklet, "Dizzy Spells," discusses loss of balance, vertigo and nausea, Meniere's disease and labyrinthitis. For a copy write to him in care of the Big Spring Herald enclosing 25 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed (use zip code), stamped envelope.

To Reimburse Nixon Family

WASHINGTON (AP) — A White House spokesman said all trips political and nonpolitical taken by President Nixon's family until the election will be paid for by the Committee for the Re-Election of the President.

Mrs. Nixon's press secretary, Constance Stuart, said they will travel by military aircraft and all expenses on these ventures will be reimbursed by the re-election committee.

In light of the campaign underway, any speaking trip taken by members of the family before the election could be construed as political whether it actually was, Mrs. Stuart said.

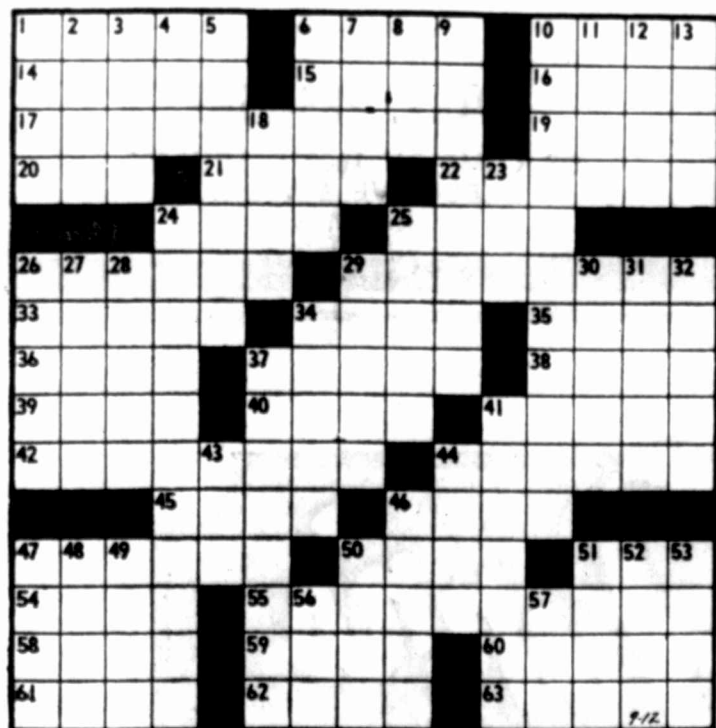

Mrs. Nixon, her two daughters, Tricia and Julie and Edward Finch Cox, Tricia's husband, will for the most part travel separately on their campaign trips.

Mrs. Stuart said that the President and his wife have always campaigned as a team and that she anticipates they will do so a great deal of the time during this campaign.

Like LBJ, Sato 'Digs' Long Hair

TOKYO (AP) — Like former U.S. President Lyndon B. Johnson, retired Japanese Prime Minister Eisaku Sato has let his hair grow.

Sato, 64, who retired in July, became prime minister in November 1964 and built a reputation of personal and administrative conservatism.

Officials say he had his hair clipped once a week while in office. Now, officials say, his hair is beginning to creep over his ears.

Visitors last month to Johnson's Texas ranch were surprised to find the former President's hair fell well below his collar.

Red Sox Lead Is Trimmed

By The Associated Press

Baseball is going through its annual September lull and as the days dwindle down to a precious few, the chase for the American League East pennant gets whackier and whackier.

Front-running Boston, for example, had its lead trimmed to one-half game by losing to Cleveland 6-5 Monday night on a sacrifice fly that turned into a double play. And Baltimore closed the gap with a 3-2 victory over Milwaukee, thanks to a friendly foul pole that turned a potential home run into a long strike.

Cleveland's winning run against the Red Sox came on a sacrifice fly that outfielder Ben Oglivie dropped and then cleverly turned into a double play. The DP erased what would have been an error for the rookie outfielder, but the fly ball got home the run that beat Boston.

REYNOLDS STOPPED — Big Spring running back Earl Reynolds (42) is about to be downed by Lubbock Monterey defenders during first half action in the Big Spring-Monterey game Saturday night. Reynolds, who is suffering from an injured shoulder, is a doubtful performer in Friday's game with Hobbs, N.M.

BRUNDAGE STEPS DOWN Killanin Takes IOC Reins

MUNICH (AP) — Lord Killanin of Ireland took over today as the new president of the International Olympic Committee with a briefcase full of problems to be solved before the next Olympic Games in Montreal in 1976.

The Games of the XX Olympiad, bloodstained by murder and rocked by political strife, ended in Munich's Olympic Stadium Monday.

As the Olympic flame was extinguished and the Olympic flag came down, Avery Brundage stepped down too—after 20 years as IOC president.

Killanin and his committee now have to think about the Olympics of the future. One of their problems is the sheer growth of the games.

In the Munich Olympics about 8,000 athletes competed, attended by 2,000 coaches and team officials, and more than 4,000 journalists and photographers came from all parts of the world.

With the whole world watching on television, the games have become a platform on which political quarrels are aired and nationalist aims pursued.

For two weeks before the games began the black African countries fought to stop the Rhodesian team from competing.

In the end they succeeded. That, the critics said, was the first big dent in the image of the Olympics, which had always striven to be free of political pressures.

Then, when the Olympics had been in progress for 10 days,

20th OLYMPIAD CONCLUDES

Athletes End Games Joyously

MUNICH (AP) — The organizers planned it solemnly, but the athletes made the closing Olympic ceremony their own—joyously.

Olympians from Great Britain formed a human chain and snake danced their way into the stadium as if determined to end the Summer Games on a happy note instead of to the strains of tragedy that struck just a week ago.

Competitors from other countries mingled hand-in-hand, arm-in-arm, shoulder-to-shoulder in animated conversation and gestures of good will as flags of all nations wreathed the 80,000-seat Stadium, signaling international unity.

But one nation—Israel—was represented only by a placard. Eleven of its team died at the hands of Arab terrorists last Tuesday. The others returned home with their dead comrades.

One flag—that of Israel—flew at half staff as a memorial.

Avery Brundage strode to a platform and bade farewell to the XX Olympiad and 20 years as president of the International Olympic Committee. He left with one hand leaning heavily on the shoulder of an escort.

There was a moment of silence in memory of the dead Israelis.

The lights dimmed and the Olympic flame that had burned for 17 days flickered, then was extinguished.

Cannoneers gave a five-gun salute, the official Olympic flag was lowered and the Olympic anthem was played.

Pomp and circumstance then gave way to the athletes—some proud owners of Olympic medals, others just happy for the opportunity to compete.

Some athletes grabbed torches from the hands of boy scouts who had been part of the procession and began darting about.

Others hoisted fellow Olympians to their shoulders and sprinted while still more proudly paraded the red maple leaf of Canada—site of the 1976 games.

But once a patch of marigolds in the center of the arena

Astros Edge Dodgers, 4-3

Cedeno's Miracle Catch Preserves Houston Win

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Leo Durocher, the new manager of the Houston Astros, hasn't exactly been a one-man rooting section for his splendid outfielder Cesar Cedeno since taking over the club.

Monday night Durocher received backing from the Los Angeles Dodgers as well as the 10,763 fans assembled at Dodger Stadium.

Cedeno, the 21-year-old Dominican in only his third year in the big leagues, made a miraculous catch of a drive by Willie Davis that preserved a 4-3 victory for the Astros and enabled them to pick up a half game on idle Cincinnati in the National League West.

"If I'd thrown it I couldn't have picked a better spot," Davis said of his drive with two outs in the ninth and the would-be tying and winning runs racing toward the plate. "But he made a great play, just a great play."

The Astros, who increased their lead over the third-place Dodgers to three games, are idle today and then return to the Astrodome Wednesday night against San Diego.

Los Angeles, still with hopes of overtaking the Astros, travels to San Francisco tonight to begin an eight-game road trip which will take them to Houston and San Diego.

Tommy John, 11-5, will pitch for the Dodgers against the Giants' Ron Bryant, 11-6.

"It was a Willie Davis catch," bubbled Durocher. "No one will be better than Mays, but Cedeno can be as good. He's the best I've seen since Willie."

The Dodgers' manager, Walter Alston, has long been an admirer of Cedeno.

"He has everything it takes to be one of the greats," Alston said afterward.

The Astros had moved into a 4-2 lead in the top of the ninth game, slashed the lead to 3-2 by scoring twice in the seventh on four straight singles which chased the eventual winning pitcher, Don Wilson.

Jerry Reuss, making only his second relief appearance, got credit for the save but it was really Cedeno who saved it.

Manny Mota then singled to drive in a run and cut the Astros' advantage to one. Davis followed with a line shot between Cedeno, the centerfielder, and left fielder Bob Watson.

Cedeno raced nearly 40 yards, dived and then miraculously hung on despite slamming into the ground.

"If I don't make the catch it's game," Cedeno said later still rubbing his head where he hit the turf.

The Astros took a 3-0 lead with runs in the third, fifth and sixth innings against losing pitcher Al Downing.

The Dodgers, who had come from behind to win Sunday's

Ryan Has Shot At 20

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Nolan Ryan still has an outside chance to win 20 games this season, and California Manager Del Rice apparently intends to do all he can to help.

Rice tentatively listed Ryan, 16-13, to start for the Angels in tonight's opener of a three-game set here with the Texas Rangers.

Since Ryan pitched and lost in Friday's doubleheader at Chicago, he normally wouldn't be scheduled to work until Wednesday, with Andy Messersmith going tonight. But a day's advance in the rotation now might mean an extra start for Ryan this season—and, incidentally, a few thousand more in the stands for that start—and Rice is doing his part.

The Angels have 20 games left and if he pitches every four days, Ryan will make five more starts after tonight.

Bill Gogolewski, 3-9, is scheduled to pitch for Texas in the first game of the Angels' nine-game home stand. The Rangers will be followed here by the Chicago White Sox and the Kansas City Royals.

The season series between the Angels and Rangers has followed the home-field advantage. California has won four of five here, and the Rangers have taken five of six at Arlington.

Mackey, president of the National Football League Players Association, said his lawyers were checking into aspects of his case. He also reported that Ed Garvey, executive director of the players' union, would talk with the league office today.

Mackey said he asked to be traded during the off-season, and then reiterated his request Monday after being told by Coach Don McCafferty that Tom Mitchell would start at tight end in next Sunday's NFL season opener.

"I asked them to put me on waivers if they couldn't make a deal," Mackey said, "but McCafferty said he didn't want to put a player of my stature on waivers."

"I don't know why not," Mackey said sarcastically, "when I'm only a second-stringer and no one wants me."

Under NFL rules, trades at this time of year are only possible within the two conferences. But if Mackey were to be placed on waivers or released, he could be picked up

TIGHT END DENIES REPORT Colts Say Mackey Retired

BALTIMORE (AP) — John Mackey, voted the best tight end during the first 50 years of pro football, refuses to be a part-time player for the Baltimore Colts.

But the veteran of nine seasons in the National Football League denies a club statement that he has retired from the sport.

The Colts announced Mackey had retired Monday after reporting they had been unsuccessful in attempting to trade the 30-year-old tight end to any of the other 12 American Conference teams.

Mackey denied he had retired and also charged that the Colts had refused to place him on waivers or release him outright.

"If no one wants me," Mackey said, "I don't understand why they don't release me or put me on waivers. They have nothing to lose."

"I haven't retired," Mackey said. "I'm healthy, able and looking for a new team... and new coach. If I'm not given an opportunity to play, it's like preventing me from earning a living."

Mackey, president of the National Football League Players Association, said his lawyers were checking into aspects of his case. He also reported that Ed Garvey, executive director of the players' union, would talk with the league office today.

Consensus Lacking

There's no international consensus against terrorism, air piracy and — it appears — not even against mindless murder of innocent young men.

It was not surprising for the radical spokesmen of Arab nationalism to defend the terrorists who killed Israeli Olympic athletes in Munich, but it was utterly shocking to read the comments of Cairo's Mohammed Hassanein Heikal, confidante of President Anwar Sadat and editor of the influential newspaper Al-Ahram. The most he could muster in the way of outrage was:

"A desperate act of people in a desperate condition."

In contrast, King Hussein of Jordan called the tragedy "an abhorrent crime perpetrated by sick minds who do not belong to humanity."

Moscow Radio reported the government expressed "condolences" for the deaths.

Spokesmen in most of the world expressed their shock and concern in far more vigorous terms than either Cairo or Moscow.

Indignation is useless without resolve to find answers to the problems and conditions. The Arab terrorists' raid isn't an isolated bit of violence in a tranquil world by any means.

The terrorists bargained for a jetliner to take them to Cairo. That was their announced destination, at any rate.

Mobility over great distances is necessary to the kind of tactics the Palestinians are using.

The 17 nation conference, on dealing with that very problem, has set aside a plan to boycott nations that shield pirates. One argument against the rejected plan was that such boycott would pose a problem in the Middle East. And that is precisely the place where concerted international pressure is most needed.

Unless there is universal opposition to terrorism, under whatever guise, it won't be stopped. And if it isn't stopped, the other part of the problem arises; Israel's own reaction to it. We've had but a sample of it so far.

Possible, Not Probable

Licking their chops over the possibility of a landslide for President Nixon in November, Republicans are turning their thoughts to Congress. They ask themselves, can we carry a Republican majority into the Senate and House on the President's coat-tails?

Since almost anything is possible in these troubled and uncertain times, hopes for a Republican majority in the Senate and House cannot be discounted completely. Yet the prospects are not too promising.

The present division in the Senate is 55 Democrats to 45 Republicans. Of the 3 seats being contested this year, 14 are held by Democrats to 45 Republicans. Of the 33 seats take control of the Senate, all incumbents would have to be elected and six Democrats unseated.

In the House there are 256 Democrats and 179 Republicans. All of the House seats, of course, will be filled this year. Republicans would have to register a net gain of 40 seats in order to be in a majority. President Johnson in 1964 swept 38 new Democrats into the House. But it is realism to suppose that President Nixon will win by 61 per cent of the popular vote as Johnson did?

If Nixon does win by a landslide of sorts in November, the more realistic prospect is for minor gains in Senate and House seats for Republicans.

Reality Amendment

William F. Buckley Jr.

When on accepting the renomination of his party at Miami Beach a few weeks ago Richard Nixon said that he would never negotiate on arms limitation agreement from a position of inferiority, he ran a terrible risk. The risk was that someone would read out to him from the transcript of the various press conferences in Moscow in which Henry Kissinger gave out the details of the SALT Treaty.

I COUNTED seven times that Mr. Kissinger defended lapidary relegation of the United States to inferiority on the ground that after all we were talking not about an ideal situation but about the current situation. Mr. Kissinger's point was that the Soviet Union has been going hell-bent for strategic armament for three years while we have been coasting, and that we are better off more or less freezing the situation than waking up a year or two from now to find the Soviet lead drastically lengthened. In other words, we negotiated from inferiority.

THE SCANDAL of creeping American arms inferiority is easily the best kept secret in the world, notwithstanding that the facts are widely available and have been remarked by the chiefs of staff and by the Reader's Digest, who between them cover just about everybody. Fortunately, the facts are well known to a group of senators who are right this minute engaged in one of the toughest and most important parliamentary maneuvers of the decade. They are fighting for what we call the Jackson-Scott-Aliott amendment to the Interim Agreement. Now that amendment does several things. But mostly what it does is to address the President of the United States thusly:

FRIEND, when you come back to us in a couple of years with SALT TWO — the treaty that is supposed to incorporate a permanent lessening of the Soviet Union and the United States — do not present this chamber with a document that grants the Soviet Union superiority. As things now stand under SALT ONE, the Soviet Union has a 40 per cent advantage in launching sites and a 400 per cent advantage in payload, once they are done. Meanwhile, between now and the time you come back to us with the treaty, we in the Senate will from time to time question the Executive on what strides are being made to narrow the gap between the Soviet Union and the United States, within the terms of the current agreement.

WHAT KIND OF research are you doing, for instance? And when we say equality with the Soviet Union, we mean equality of the kind spelled out for instance in the ABM Treaty, not the fancy-talk equality by which such as Sen. Fulbright transmogrify a 4 to 1 disadvantage into equality, on the nice metaphysical principle that every Russian can only die once.

The doves, sensing a great danger to their vision of a disarmed America, are horrified to note that Sen. Jackson's got himself 44 co-sponsors for his amendment. With 44 co-sponsors, one can assume a great many others will vote with the 44 easily enough for a swollen majority. What will be left over is a highly visible minority who actually are voting against American equality in strategic arms, not the most attractive record to offer their constituents in an election year.

Why Not France?

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — Every four years 40 to 50 million Americans vow that if their man doesn't win the Presidency, they will move to Canada.

THIS YEAR is no different, and I have heard many of my dearest friends say, "If McGovern is elected, I'm taking the family to Canada." Or "If Nixon gets in for another four years, I'm leaving the country."

The trouble with these threats is that the Canadians take them seriously. Since they are so short on population, the idea of 40 or 50 million new immigrants makes their mouths water.

THE CANADIANS start building new homes and schools to accommodate the disenfranchised American voters. Shopping centers are constructed, contracts are given out for drive-in theaters and motels.

Night classes are given on how to treat the new arrivals. Welcome Wagons are beefed up and new factories are built to provide jobs for the millions of Democrats or Republicans who say they cannot live in the United States under a Communist Democratic or Fascist Republican regime.

TO FACILITATE the move, Canadian customs officials are told not to open any luggage of American emigrants. Canadian Mounties are instructed to go easy on traffic tickets.

But what inevitably happens is that after the election the 40 or 50 million people who vowed they would go to Canada change their minds and remain in the United States to stick it out under "That Man in the White House."

I saw it happen when John Kennedy beat Nixon. I saw it happen again when Lyndon Johnson beat Barry Goldwater, and again in 1968 when Richard Nixon defeated Hubert Humphrey.

CANADA WAS waiting with welcoming arms for all the people who said they couldn't live in the United States any more.

Nobody came.

All the hopes and dreams of the Canadians to double their population overnight vanished, but it left a taste of bitterness that lingers. The greatest cause of anti-American feelings in Canada can be attributed to our presidential election-year promises which people in this country have failed to keep. How long can the Canadians keep building up their country for people who promise to go there and then refuse to go?

AT THE MOMENT Canada is in a terrible quandary. The ambassador in Washington has reported that 45 million Republicans have vowed to go to Canada if George McGovern becomes President of the United States. He has also reported that surveys indicate that 40 million Democrats will come if Nixon stays in the White House.

Traders In Trouble

John Cuniff

NEW YORK (AP) — Many an old Boston fortune has been preserved over the decades by researching a fundamentally strong company, investing in it, and then putting the securities away in a vault.

There lay the certificates untouched, radiating dividends over the years, reproducing themselves through stock splits from time to time, thus keeping the family and its bankers and lawyers fed and content.

In recent years, however, that philosophy came into disrepute. In many instances bad securities were vaulted away with the good, and so the returns often were found to be less than they would have been with an occasional dusting.

In the past 20 years especially, the performance craze spread through the market, enveloping the portfolios not only of individual investors but of trusts, pensions, mutual funds and other institutions. In-out trading was the fad.

Now performance seems to have had its day. As anyone who casually follows the market knows, many of the institutional and private investors who amassed fortunes by turning over the portfolios 100 per cent in a year are broke. And they went broke blindly following the quick trade creed.

And so we have a reiteration of that old Boston philosophy by the Boston Consulting Group, which is a management consulting organization within the multibillion Boston Corp., which is a descendant of Boston Safe Deposit and Trust.

Says Bruce Henderson, BCG president, "The stock trader can rarely win. The long-term investor can. No equivocation, no asterisks, no broad exceptions. But the reasons have changed some over the years."

"Tax laws and inflation combine against the trader. He loses too much capital in taxes," he says. "Investing becomes a house game in which the odds are stacked against him as they are at the race track or the casino."

Each time the trader sells at a profit he pays a tax, to say nothing of a broker's fee. But the long-term investor not only pays taxes at a lower rate but he pays only once instead of two or three times over the same time span.

If securities are traded rather than held, says Henderson, the income tax removes capital that otherwise should be compounding.

The combination of taxes and inflation, he states, sometimes cancels out what appear at the time to be profits. Of course, securities held in the vault are hurt by inflation too — but not by taxes or broker's fees.

Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP) — Many people complain, "I've got a thousand and one things to do."

Me? I can't make that complaint anymore. I've only got about 830 things to do.

The 830 things are the number of columns I still have to write before I retire at 65, and the Great Pocketbook in Washington, D.C., turns around and starts dribbling back free money my way.

There was a time, however, when I had 8,308 things to do but didn't know it—else I'd have gone into a coma to escape such a doom.

That was when I first started writing this column just 29 years ago this month. It was a battlefield baby, born on the beach at Salerno during our invasion landing in Italy in 1943.

The chance at it I owe to my friend of a lifetime, Ernie Pyle. The great success of Ernie's wartime human interest column about soldier life led a number of Associated Press editors to ask if there wasn't room in American journalism for a similar type of column to be carried by The AP. It turned out it was.

Ernie's column led him to a lasting fame and a premature death at 44. Mine had led me through two more wars and 67 countries and the minds and hearts and souls of hundreds of people I have met and written about to—well, to here.

But here I am, heading into the home stretch with only 830 days at the typewriter left in which to save mankind and make a better world. I feel like a 90-pound anemic version of Hercules thrust into the vast Augean stables, handed a small toothbrush, and told, "Clean it up, kid."

The supposed occupational ailments of columnists are smugness and vain glory. I think, however, that most of them suffer more from a constipated humility arising from their secret realization of how impossible it is for them to achieve even one lasting morsel of their dreams.

For example, you'd think that the one thing a humanist columnist would come to know would be human beings. Will Rogers said, "I never met a man I didn't like." I can only say, "I've never met a man I really understood completely, including myself."

The more people you meet, the more they confuse you. They are almost as unknowable as God. Ultimately, every man is a stranger to himself as he is to others.

Another thing wrong with people, a columnist finds, is their stubborn refusal to take advice. I've told them for years to stay married and stay out of wars, and what happened? Today we jump into wars and our wars now last longer than our marriages.

I also told the government to preserve the value of the dollar. But today you can't buy a genuine antique wooden nickel with a dollar. All the dollar's good for is to pay part of the taxes you owe on it.

"Who Are You?"

Around The Rim

Jo Bright

When guns were blazing in the wild, wild West newspapering could hardly have been dull. I wonder what hot-as-a-pistol reporter filed the following story? He (and I'm sure it was a he) didn't even get a by-line.

"LAS VEGAS DAILY OPTIC, July 18, 1881 — Sheriff Pat Garrett, Lincoln County, arrived in the city today in company with Pete Maxwell, at whose house Billy the Kid was shot, and soon after, he was corralled by an OPTIC reporter.

"Pat, as is well known, has no desire to parade his experience before the public, consequently, he had very little to say about the affair of which he is the hero. However, he stated to eager listeners that the first definite information he received that Kid was in Fort Sumner was contained in a letter written to him by Mr. Brazil. Immediately upon receiving the news, he set out for that place, taking with him John Poe and Kit McKinney. Arriving in town, they went to the house of Pete Maxwell, where Pat advanced and entered, leaving his companions at the door, and, in a low tone of voice, asked Pete if Billy the Kid were on his premises. He was told that he was not, but not far off.

"THE CONVERSATION between the two men had not lasted two minutes when a man in his stocking feet, heavily-armed and with a stealthy step pushed the open door noiselessly aside and entered. Maxwell took in the situation at a glance and whispered in scarcely audible tones, 'That's him.'"

"Pat knew what that meant, but had not time to prepare himself for action until the outlaw approached the bed on which Maxwell was reclining and near which sat Garrett, and seeing a third party in the room demanded of him 'Who are you?'

THE SECOND TIME the question was asked and as he came nearer with a pointed revolver in his hand aimed at a man he little thought was Garrett, the latter who had taken advantage of the dim, uncertain light to get his weapon ready for use, brought it to bear upon the Kid, shooting him through the heart at the first pull of the trigger. He died without uttering a word.

"As will be seen from the above thoroughly reliable sources, Billy the Kid, the terror of not only Lincoln County, but of the whole Territory, a young desperado who has long been noted as a bold thief, a cold-blooded murderer, having perhaps killed more men than any man of his age in the world, has at last received his just dues.

"ALL MANKIND rejoices, and the newspapers will now have something else to talk about.

"It is now in order for Pat Garrett to be well rewarded for his services in ridding the Territory of this desperado. He is of very moderate circumstances but has spent many dollars in his pursuit of the Kid.

"ALREADY, WE UNDERSTAND, a subscription paper is circulating for this purpose. It should be signed by all, and other counties alike, who breathe easier because the Kid is dead, should join in and make a substantial showing of their appreciation of the cool, brave conduct of Pat Garrett."

The Hoffa Case

David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — The "procedural irregularities" which caused Secretary of State William Rogers to revoke the validation of the passport of James Hoffa, former teamsters union president, to travel to North Vietnam relate to a problem that has been troubling American officials for many months.

MR. HOFFA said he had been invited by the trade union of Hanoi to visit North Vietnam to confer on "problems concerning trade unions and also to discuss the war situation and meet the prisoners." He felt that he would be able to get several of them released. He had seemingly obtained the necessary validation but this was withdrawn.

The State Department press officer, Charles Bray, pointed out that the special validation required by the United States for Americans to go to North Vietnam was stamped on Mr. Hoffa's passport by an official who was not authorized to do so. It had not been brought to the attention of the secretary. Mr. Bray added:

"THE SECRETARY of State, among other things, did not believe private American citizens should be involved in negotiations concerning our prisoners of war."

The American government is not unwilling to allow trips to visit prisoners in foreign countries. But when these involve possible negotiations with hostile governments, the chances for adverse developments make the granting of permission too risky. As a matter of fact, no citizen of the United States ought to discuss any matters with another government in the middle of a war, because there are opportunities for propaganda broadcasts to be obtained which would be harmful to the American cause. No private citizen has a right to act as a negotiator in a situation such as has developed with respect to the prisoners held by the Hanoi government unless there is a previous understanding with officials here.

THE UNITED STATES is trying hard to reach a peace agreement in Indochina, and the release of prisoners of war is one of the main objectives. But little can be accomplished if outside influences are introduced. Already some visitors to Hanoi have come back to the United States after talking with the Communist leaders there and have made public statements about the prisoners. In no instance, however, has there been any claim made that the discussions had been authorized or approved by the government at Washington. In the Hoffa case, official validation of the passport could have given the impression that the Department of State was really behind the Hoffa trip. Yet no such relationship existed.

THE UNITED STATES government has plenty of means of communication with its adversaries through diplomatic channels as well as at Paris. (Copyright, 1972, Publishers-Hall Snyder)

My Answer

Billy Graham

The children and I are Catholic, but after twelve years of marriage my husband became a Baptist, and now condemns the Catholic church continually. He spends no time with the children and me, but reads the Bible all the time. He says that God's way is for him to devote all his time to his new religion, and very little to his family. Please answer as soon as possible. The situation is getting desperate. M.F.L.

I am glad your husband is reading the Bible, but, when men become unhappy in their family relationships, they take various avenues of escape. Some of them play poker all night, some frequent bars and take to drink, and occasionally a husband will "escape" into religion. Although I don't know all the details, and I haven't heard "his side, it is possible that your husband is using his newfound "faith" as an escape from family responsibilities.

The Bible does not teach that followers of Christ are to renege on their family responsibility. In fact, it teaches that when Christ comes into the life, fathers become better fathers, and mothers better mothers. If religion makes you less a person, then you have the wrong religion.

The Bible, far from saying that following Christ makes one weaker, it indicates that the relationships are strengthened. "If any provide not for his own, and especially for those of his own house, he has denied the faith and is worse than an infidel," I Timothy 5:8.

There are millions of Baptists who love the Lord, and would not endorse such an attitude as your husband holds. So don't blame the Baptist church, but keep on loving and praying, for the Bible says, "Love never faileth."

A Devotion For Today..

Man looketh on the outward appearance, but the Lord looketh on the heart. (1 Samuel 16:7)

PRAYER: Help us heavenly Father, to look more deeply into the hearts and lives of persons in Christ's name. Amen.

READY MIX CONCRETE

News of Big Spring Business and Industry

Big Spring (Texas) Herald, Tuesday, Sept. 12, 1972 13

Concrete Steps Add Beauty Plus

An easy way to make a mobile home look and feel a little more permanent, and hence, a little more "at home" is to add concrete steps and porch.

A new product of Clyde McMahon Concrete Co. is the sturdy beauty of concrete pre-cast steps for mobile homes.

The group comes in pieces designed to easily fit together.

Different sizes are available, and if needed, McMahon's expert casting crew will be happy to custom build steps for the customer's particular purpose.

To spruce up the yard a bit and beautify the whole neighborhood, McMahon's has a full selection of concrete flower beds, curbs, tables, bird baths, benches, flower pots, tree curbs, stepping stones, and patio blocks. Each item is designed and constructed of the finest concrete available and special care of the McMahon craftsmen, highly skilled in the art of concrete casting.

Each piece is a classic beauty in its own right, and will give long life quality and durability.

For other concrete needs, McMahon is ready to service clients with everything from pre-cast to ready-mix. The company is well known for its prompt, friendly service, the kind of service you can depend on for every specification your job requires.

The company offers strong, long-lasting pre-cast concrete septic tanks in 350 and 500 gallon capacities, ready to set in place, delivered right to your home or construction site.

For anything in concrete (including instant concrete for small jobs — all you do is add water), call McMahon Concrete Company, 605 N. Benton. Phone 263-3759 or 267-6348.

McMahon has a long list of contractors with years of experience in concrete work. He'll be happy to make your contracts for you to get your construction job on the way. BIG SPRING NURSING INN IS THE TEMPORARY HOME OF MR. AND MRS. NAT SHICK, LONG-TIME RESIDENTS. SHICK WAS POSTMASTER HERE FOR ABOUT 30 YEARS

Local Couple Enjoys Home 'We're Spoiled Rotten'

Former postmaster for Howard County, Nat Shick, and his wife, are temporarily enjoying the comforts of Big Spring Nursing Inns, 901 Goliad.

Shick became popular around the city for his intricate carvings of totem poles and various other figures.

Mrs. Shick spoke of their stay with Big Spring Nursing Inns, "Our home is an open house for everybody, and we like it here because there's plenty of company. We're well taken care of, and we're spoiled rotten."

Activities are plentiful at the Inns, says Administrator John F. Barker, with religious services Sundays and Thursdays, bingo and other entertainments throughout the week.

Competence is the secret to running a happy home, according to Barker, who is proud of his licensed personnel and status with the welfare department.

Big Spring Nursing Inns are certified for skilled, private, ICF 3 and ICF 2 nursing care. They also have contracts for Veterans Administration nursing.

The facilities currently hold a contract for a project which will up-date sensing devices for fire safety which will meet the strictest safety code.

A licensed nurse is on duty around the clock, under the competent direction of Director of Nurses, Dorothy Booker, R.N. Approximately 102 employees comprise a force of 57 persons seven days a week. There's plenty of room, and the Inns welcome all to come down and visit, said Barker.

HOWARD WALKER'S MEAN MACHINE IS THE HARLEY DAVIDSON 1200 CC ELECTRAGLIDE

Tour De France, Handmade Bike

For the serious bicycle tourist, Cecil Thixton Cycle Shop is the all-around place to shop. "Tour de France" is the choice professional model in stock at Thixton's, at the professional price of $239.

"Tour de France" features a handcrafted construction of magnesium steel tubing with Prugnat lugs throughout. The bicycle has Super Competition 93 crank set, the latest Simplex Creterium derailleurs and Mafac Racer Luxe center-pull brakes.

The wheels are of Mavic Monthery rims, Robergel spokes, Dunlop tubular tires and Campagnola hubs.

For a super lightweight bike, glide with the "Tour de France" — about 20 lbs.

FINEST CYCLE

For motorcycle touring, it's the finest motorcycle on the market, the Harley-Davidson, and the finest Harley-Davidson is the 1200 cc Electraglide, equipped with saddlebags, windshield and all touring accessories.

The 1200 cc Superglide and 1000 cc Sportster, favorites of the "Weekend Warriors," are high-spirited, heavyweight machines that are also excellent for touring, but high-spirited enough to provide thrilling riding.

The economy line of the Harley-Davidson cycles is the 350 cc, capable of cruising at 60 mph on the highway and still getting 60 miles per gallon of gasoline.

The 125 cc comes with two sprockets on the cycle for trail riding and street riding. For a real thrill, put the chain over on the trail sprocket and bust a hill or two for the most exciting time of your life.

The 100 cc Motocross, sometimes known as the "Baja," costs a little more than the 125 cc, but has a five-speed transmission, Cerianis suspension, and puts out about eight more horsepower. It's designed for Motocross races and off the road riding fun in general.

The 65 cc for beginners and youths 15 to 17 and under, has five-brake horsepower and is capable of 180 miles per gallon of gasoline.

The 65 cc minibike "Shortster" is ideal for people with campers who want transportation with them and also for our short-legged friends who can't reach the ground on larger models.

Remember the next big tour coming up is Oct. 6-8, to Ruidoso for the Aspencade Tour. For more information, contact Howard Walker, Cecil Thixton's Cycle Shop, 908 W. 3rd, phone 263-2322.

Mo-Pac Orders New Equipment

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Pacific System has ordered 1,350 new freight cars, 68 locomotives and 30 cabooses at a cost of $41,000,000, Downing B. Jenks, chairman, has announced. Delivery of the new equipment will start in November and be completed early next year.

This is another step in MoPac's continuous program of expanding and modernizing its freight equipment to meet the needs of shippers and receivers of freight, Jenks said. In the past decade, MoPac has spent $339,000,000 for more than 25,000 new freight cars and 557 locomotives, giving MoPac one of the youngest and best maintained freight car fleets in the nation, he added.

BS Methodists Attend Parley

Representatives of local Methodist churches attended a special session of the Northwest Texas Annual Conference of the United Methodist Church, conducted Monday at the FUMC Church in Lubbock.

Four hundred churches were represented at the session. Ministers, laymen and youth representatives were invited from each church.

Purpose of the meeting was for the discussion and approval of a new policy structure for the church. In the future, more emphasis will be placed on local decision and plan of execution. The idea of bishops and district superintendents will continue to prevail but they will encourage more participation in the forming of policy on a local level.

The annual conference in 1973 will be conducted at McMurry College, Abilene, June 4-8. It was held in Lubbock this year.

Bishop A. L. Carleton presided at Monday's session.

Representing Wesley United Methodist Church at the session were the Rev. Caleb Hildebrand, Bill Estes and Mike Bearden.

Most Are Told

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Do you believe that when a doctor knows there is no hope for a patient's recovery, he should tell the patient the truth?

My wife and I disagree on this. The patient happens to be her father. She insists that "ignorance is bliss," and her father should not have been told. (His doctor told him.)

I say it's a person's right to know so that he can put his affairs in order.

Isn't it the practice of most doctors to tell their patients the truth? And don't you think most patients would rather know?

And finally, Abby, how do you feel about this?

DEAR J AND A: Most doctors believe in telling their patients the truth, but some will not if the family asks him not to, or if the doctor feels the patient can't handle it. (Most patients "know" without being told, but pretend not to.)

Since nobody gets out of this world alive, death should be looked upon realistically, and without fear. There is no "bliss" in ignorance which creates false hope, and the inconvenience and confusion of unfinished business.

DEAR ABBY: At a recent family wedding, my brother-in-law (who was under the influence of alcohol at the time), confided that he had passed on a letter addressed to his sister (my wife) in care of his office. He said it was from an old boy friend of hers.

My wife is, and has been for many years a "swinger," while I've gradually approached impotency. I regret to admit. Now for the problem: I have reason to believe that the letter set up a specific time and place for an upcoming meeting between the two of them.

Casualty, I told my wife that if that were true, it was 100 per cent O.K. with me, except that I did not want to ever know about it.

Have I unconsciously "regressed" to the younger generation's standards? Or am I being maturely realistic?

DEAR ABBY: Recently my husband and I invited a couple to be our guests for dinner out. In the meantime, some casual friends telephoned and said they'd like to get together with us, so we asked if they cared to join us for dinner. They said they would, and they brought their two children along!

My husband asked the waiter for separate checks so he could give the couple who came and brought their children their own checks, but the waiter said, "Sorry, we are not accustomed to doing that here."

The upshot of the whole thing was that my husband got stuck for the entire bill (over $60) plus the tip.

Don't you think this was very nifty of the couple who came along?

My husband is not a wealthy man. He is just gracious and friendly.

What do you think we should have done?

DEAR ABBY: Your husband should have asked the other couple for their share of the bill. What's so complicated about that?

KOUNTZE ANTIQUE DEALER

Draws Life Term In Slaying

BELTON, Tex. (AP) — One of the defendants charged in a double slaying in the heart of the Big Thicket country has pleaded guilty and been sentenced to life imprisonment. Jury selection begins today in the trial of the other defendant.

TOILET BOWL

Dennis R. Anderson, 26, of Houston pleaded guilty late Monday in the slaying of Mabel McCormick, 50, in her Kountze home-antique shop. Both Anderson and his co-defendant Fred P. Young, 22, also of Houston, still face charges they killed

Mrs. McCormick's three-year-old granddaughter, Leslie Bowman, and stuffed her head into a toilet bowl.

The trial in that case is scheduled to take place in Tyler at a later date.

Young's trial in the McCormick case resumes this morning after a one-day delay. Sheriff Lester Gunn was ordered to bring in some 30 prospective jurors who were absent from Monday's session without having given an excuse.

Mrs. McCormick was stabbed with a knife and beaten with a ball peen hammer. The girl was found with her head jammed in the bottom of a toilet bowl in the grandmother's shop.

SET AFIRE

Approximately $6,000 worth of furniture and brassware was stolen and the shop was set afire. Young could be sentenced from two years to life if convicted.

Motions were filed Monday asking for probation and jury assessment of punishment for Young in the event he is found guilty.

Young's lawyer previously tried without success to get a separate trial for his client.

A motion for individual examination of prospective jurors was overruled Monday.

Wife Of Retired General Wins Alienation Suit

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — A jury has ruled in favor of a retired general's wife in an alienation of affection suit filed by the social secretary at the Spanish Embassy in Washington.

The secretary, Peggy McGlothlin, filed the $3 million suit against Jeanette Caviness McGlothlin, present wife of retired Air Force Brig. Gen. William C. McGlothlin Jr.

McGlothlin, former chief of Air Force Recruiting Services and former commander of Randolph Air Force Base here, and his present wife now live at Falls Church, Va., near Washington.

A state district court jury ruled in favor of Jeanette McGlothlin after hearing four days of testimony in which Peggy McGlothlin claimed the defendant stole the affections of her former husband.

Testimony showed the defendant and McGlothlin were married in January, 1971, four days after his 25-year marriage to the plaintiff ended in divorce.

The jury also was told that McGlothlin and his present wife, a divorcee of nine years and mother of four, first met in 1970. A real estate agent, she was selling the McGlothlins' home at the time and worked in Washington, where the general had been stationed.
