Shevchenko Suicide

MOSCOW (AP) - Leongina Shevchenko, wife of the Soviet diplomat at the United Nations who refused to return home from the United States, has committed suicide, Soviet sources reported today.

The sources said Mrs. Shevchenko died of an overdose of sleeping pills on Monday. They said her body was not discovered until Tuesday, when friends became worried at her absence.

Ott Denied Bond

AUSTIN (AP) - The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals today denied bond for Gregory Arthur Ott, who is charged with capital murder in the death of Texas Ranger Bobby Doherty.

Doherty was killed Feb. 20 during a marijuana raid on a house near Argyle in Denton County. Ott, a North Texas State University graduate student, has been held without bond in the Denton County jail since the shooting.

Execution Stayed

DALLAS (AP) - Condemned murderer Doyle Glenn Boulware, scheduled for death by lethal injection Friday, has been given a stay of execution.

Judge Patrick Higginbotham issued the stay in Dallas Tuesday, at the request of Boulware's attorney.

Boulware was convicted of the May, 1974, slaying of Dallas police officer Donald Tucker.

'Kneecapping' Staged

ROME (AP) - Four terrorists shot a Milan industrial executive in the legs today, keeping up the war on the Italian establishment despite nation-wide revulsion at the Red Brigades' murder of Aldo Moro.

Police said three men and a woman made the attack on Franco Giacomazzi, an executive of the state owned Montedison cnemical industry.

Ruling Upheld

AUSTIN (AP) - The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals today upheld the theft conviction and four-year prison sentence assessed O.P. Carrillo, whom the Senate removed as Duval County district judge in 1976.

The SDN Column

We were sitting here in the newspaper office last Saturday morning all but grieving with a number of phone callers as we relayed the word that Snyder High School's one-act play had "only" placed second in the state University Interscholastic League contest at Austin.

After about the dozenth call, it dawned on us that we (and we means the entire community) have taken a lot for granted and the more we get, the more we demand. How many high schools would be over-joyed if they had a one-act play take the runnerup honors in a state-wide contest? How many high schools have had a one-act play reach the finals in Austin, anyway? We got some indication of this when it was disclosed that Snyder leads the state in the number of drama awards earned at Austin with 32.

We were discussing the SHS one-act play with Dr. Ben Brock at WTC while waiting for the college board meeting to begin Monday evening and we mentioned that our people are somewhat spoiled with success in this field. This reminded Dr. Brock of his days as high school journalism teacher and sponsor while he was associated with Sweetwater Public Schools. He had a highly successful program, winning about a dozen state titles in a row and it reached the point that he was expected to win every time. His superintendent told him that he was doing a great job, but cautioned, "Don't ever fail to win top spot, or everyone will be disappointed."

If you wonder why organized labor leaders have been frantically pushing for new legislation giving them added advantages in promoting union contracts, this may be the answer: During the two-year period from October of 1975 to October of 1977, union membership declined by more than three quarters of a million. An official of the National Labor Relations Board said unions "are not succeeding in their efforts to organize in the South."

API AWARD - David Webb, center, was the recipient Tuesday night of a $1,500 scholarship presented by the local chapter of the American Petroleum Institute. The presentation was made by Jimmy Thompson, left, the scholarship committee chairman, and by Ed Mlcak, right, the chairman of the API chapter. Webb, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Webb, said he plans to attend Texas A&M University in the fall and major in petroleum engineering. (SDN Staff Photo)

Carter Appears To Be Swaying Labor

By OWEN ULLMANN
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - With big business already promising to support his anti-inflation program, President Carter appealed today to big labor for cooperation in slowing the accelerating pace of wage and price hikes.

To that end, Carter may be on the verge of extracting a promise of support from the nation's key labor figure, AFL-CIO President George Meany. The labor patriarch appears to be warming to Carter's plan for controlling inflation.

Carter's chief inflation fighter, Robert Strauss, along with Labor Secretary Ray Marshall and other top administration economic advisers joined Carter at today's meeting with Meany and more than two dozen top union leaders.

Carter opened the meeting by saying the discussion would focus on the causes and ways to control "the inflationary pressures sweeping the nation."

The president met three weeks ago with 16 top business leaders who promised they would try to show restraint in raising prices.

Confronted by a sharp rise in the inflation rate so far this year, Carter has proposed a program calling for voluntary reductions in wage and price increases to levels below those of the past two years.

"We intend to cooperate to every extent possible on the anti-inflation program," Meany said Tuesday after extracting from Carter a renewed pledge to fight for Senate passage of a labor law revision bill.

The head of the 14 million-member labor federation said a formal inflation policy statement would be issued after a meeting of the AFL-CIO executive council which is holding its spring session.

When Carter first unveiled his voluntary wage-price guidelines in January, Meany all but rejected them, saying that "guidelines, in any form, are a step down the road toward controls."

Last month, however, a more conciliatory Meany promised to cooperate with the administration's program, saying that working Americans are the principal victims of inflation.

But he said labor's willingness to show wage increase moderation is contingent upon business holding down prices. Meany said the causes of inflation are not wages but the skyrocketing costs of energy, land and interest rates, which he said have increased faster than wages.

Snowdons To End Marriage

LONDON (AP) - Princess Margaret and her husband, Lord Snowdon, have agreed to a divorce, Buckingham Palace announced today.

An official statement announcing the impending end of the stormy marriage said:

"Her royal highness, the Princess Margaret, Countess of Snowdon, and the Earl of Snowdon after two years of separation have now agreed that their marriage should formally be ended. Accordingly her royal highness will start the necessary legal proceedings."

Margaret, sister of Queen Elizabeth II, separated from her photographer husband March 16, 1976, after 16 years of marriage.

The 47-year-old princess and Lord Snowdon, 48, have two children - David Viscount Linley, 16, and Lady Sarah Armstrong-Jones, 14.

A spokesman at Kensington Palace, Margaret's home, said the Princess had "no plans for re-marriage."

Margaret has drawn criticism in recent months for her friendship with 30-year-old socialite Roddy Llewellyn.

She is currently in King Edward VII Hospital in London suffering from suspected gastroenteritis. The Kensington Palace spokesman said Margaret was "making progress.... The result of tests taken by the doctors will not be known until Friday."

He said he had no knowledge of Lord Snowdon's plans. "We are not in a position to comment about Lord Snowdon."

The last member of the British royal family to be involved in divorce proceedings was the Earl of Harewood, the queen's cousin, who divorced 11 years ago.

The spokesman said the divorce proceedings were already under way and the princess will be represented by the queen's lawyer, Matthew Farrer.

The queen has been kept informed of the situation but her constitutional consent is not necessary.

"The princess is suing for divorce. This is a technicality, one party has to start the proceedings," the spokesman said. "The marriage has broken down and the couple have lived apart for two years. These are obviously the grounds for divorce."

The 1960 marriage of the effervescent 29-year-old princess and globe-trotting photographer Antony Armstrong-Jones - raised to the peerage as the Earl of Snowdon in 1961 - was a glamorous match that caught the fancy of romantics throughout the world.

Body Found North Of Ira

The body of Ramon Dale Sealy, 24, who lived at 3101 Avenue V, was found slumped behind the steering wheel of his car early this morning about three miles north of Ira.

Justice of the Peace Bobby Goodwin said that a garden hose was found running from the exhaust pipe into the vehicle. The motor of the car was still running when the body was found, Goodwin said. A ruling in the death was still pending late this morning, Goodwin said, as the investigation continued.

Funeral arrangements were pending at Bell-Seale Funeral Home.

A native of San Diego, Calif., Sealy is survived by a daughter, Leah Sealy of Big Spring; his parents, Bob Sealy and Margie Sealy, both of Snyder; a sister, Lorianne Sealy of Snyder, and a brother, John M. Sealy of Denver, Colo.

Mandatory In All But Two

All Snyder Schools To Get Breakfast Program

Snyder Public Schools will be forced to offer a breakfast program in all but two of their buildings this fall and trustees last night finally decided to make it system-wide.

The action was taken following a lengthy discussion which evoked opposition to proliferation of mandated programs, and it ultimately led to a split decision.

The board also directed some of its attention to summer recreation programs which the school district has helped support for several years. These finally got approval for this summer, but the board indicated it would take a long look at the school district's financial picture as the 1978-79 budget is prepared and indications were that support of activities not directly related to the formal education program of the schools could be lopped off.

Beginning next September, all schools with 10 per cent or more of their students on free lunches will be required to provide breakfast for pupils desiring it. Those who qualify for free or reduced price meals will receive them as they do the school lunches. Others may have breakfast at school at prices to be established later. All schools in the Snyder district fall under the mandate to serve breakfast, except West Elementary and Stanfield Elementary.

Following their discussion, a vote on extending the breakfast program to West and Stanfield resulted in a 3-3 tie, with Max von Roeder, board president, breaking the tie with a favorable vote. Casting their votes in favor of putting the program in all schools were Bill Voss, Jerry Rice and Bill Clayton, and opposing were Vera McSpadden, Bill Eiland and Ted Crenwelge.

The board approved financial assistance totalling $1,310 for the Scurry County summer recreation program for the mentally retarded, $800 for the Scurry County Summer Recreation Program, and $600 for the Scurry County Boys' Club's summer program. These funds were included in the school district's 1977-78 budget, but the future is uncertain for 1978-79. Noting that the school district was being forced to participate in programs mandated by federal and state governments and that summer programs, as desirable as they may be, are not part of the education program the schools are required to offer, Eiland said he felt the time had come to take a closer look at these as well as other activities that are not a part of formal education offerings. Several other board members indicated that they agreed.

On an unanimous vote, the board agreed to leave its policy on pupil transfers from one elementary attendance zone to another as it is. This means that each request will be considered separately and on its own merits.

Another discussion developed concerning an application for funds through Public Law 94-142, known as "The handicapped Act." Dr. Thomas Scannicchio, assistant superintendent for instruction, said the Snyder district had been advised that it is entitled to some $8,900 for education of the handicapped. The funds would be used to employ an extra aide and part time help.

The board ultimately voted 5-1, with Eiland opposing, to approve the application. Also approved on a 5-1 vote, with Eiland opposing, was participation in the school lunch program and the commodity program for 1978-79.

Approved unanimously were a proposal to take bids for the sale of 19,000

CC Selection Panel Meets

A selection committee considering applications for the position of manager of the Snyder Chamber of Commerce met Tuesday evening, but no decisions were made.

Roy Kidd, chamber president, said the committee looked over several applications and discussed plans for arranging interviews. He said the committee has delayed interviews because several more potential applicants have made inquiries about the position within the past few days and the committee wants to give them time to submit formal applications.

May 15 Date Recommended For Planting

A cotton planting date of May 15 or later is being urge by the Scurry County Producers Association.

The association administers the boll weevil control program in the county and the suggested planting date has been set to enhance the program.

The boll weevil control measures will include early control as well as the diapause spraying program in the fall this year.

unsolicited advice

If U.S. prestige in international affairs emerges from the present surge of public debate on the home front and the policy of selective telling other nations how to run their affairs it will be some kind of miracle. Probably a minor one, but still a miracle. Latest example is the rhubarb kicked up by the Administration decision to sell sophisticated armament to Saudi Arabia and Egypt. Israel is still on the approved list, but expansion of the market of U.S. military hardware to include major Arab nations has opened a veritable Pandora's Box on Capitol Hill.

This comes about because Congress has power to veto executive decisions involving this country's relations with other countries. This is not a bad idea. Easily recalled are instances in the past when Congressional cancellation of executive orders would have saved us from some humilitating and very costly experiences. But it is a Congressional prerogative which should be exercised with restraint. Debating sale of arms to Middle East nations is a little more critical than the average domestic issue.

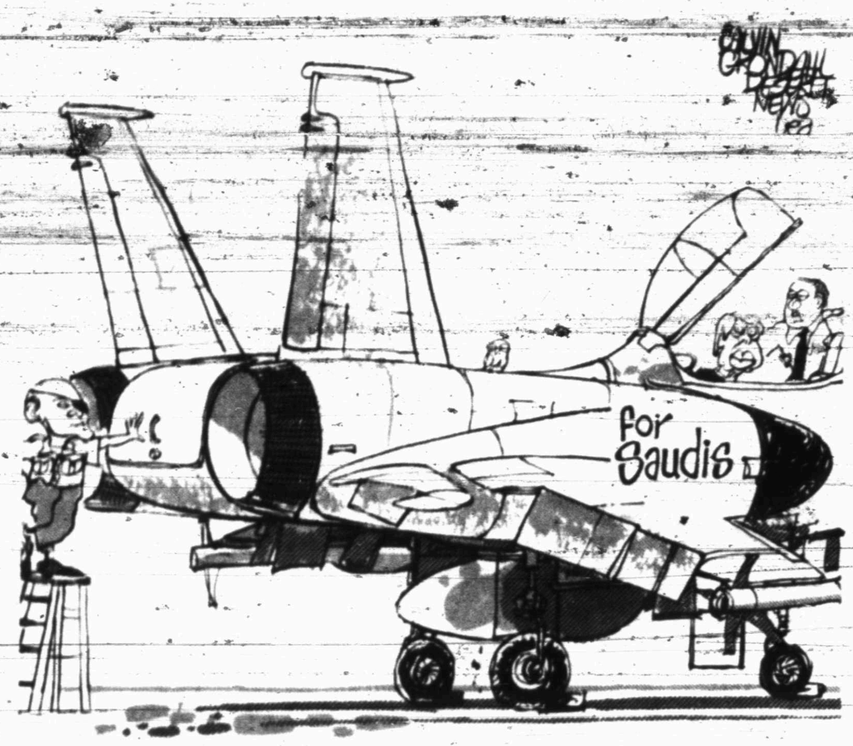

Another habit we have fallen into which merits more serious examination than it has received up to this time is this business of selective meddling in domestic affairs of other nations and threatening to apply sanctions of one kind or another if our advice is not heeded.

It helps our national ego when President Carter, Vice President Mondale or Andrew Young, ambassador to United Nations, sounds off on the subject of human rights in South Africa, Brazil, Philippine Islands or some other country we know is in no position to retaliate in any substantial way.

At least it inflates our self-esteem until someone reminds us of the obvious selectivity with which this type of free speech is being exercised. Not to be overlooked is that there is no hint of intention to apply sanctions to the Soviet Union, Red China, Uganda, Ethiopia and a few other nations which don't share our professed concern for the political dissenters of members of ethnic minorities.

For a country that needs friends as badly as we need them it would seem to be the part of wisdom to be cautious about offering unsolicited advice and publicly airing the fact that we are far from united among ourselves on some important issues.

Some of these days we may face the necessity of backing up our words with action in some situation where we would rather remain uninvolved. It is too bad there are people in the world who do not take us as seriously as we take ourselves.

target: joy riders

If autos represent a major business activity, auto theft is equally bigtime as a crime category.

The Transportation Department is now trying to cut it down to more manageable size with proposed new regulations to make stealing a vehicle a more difficult proposition.

Beginning with 1981 model cars and extending the following year to light model trucks and vans, production modifications would be required in ignition systems, keys, door locks and alarms.

The Department acknowledges the changes aren't likely to be too effective against professionals, but are designed primarily to thwart the usually young thief who steals a vehicle to joy ride or for stripping purposes.

That would at the least be a good start in dealing with the auto-theft problem since joy riders account for about one third of all stolen vehicles and for a large majority of those involved in accidents.

It is important for everyone to know how to swim, even in West Texas. Nearly everyone enjoys the fun and exercise that goes along with swimming. Parents are concerned that their children learn the swimming survival skills at an early age.

There are programs to teach the very young to swim, even before they can walk. A program of which I read recently, taking place in Australia is gaining popularity and will soon be offered in the United States where a mother takes her six month old child, tosses him fully clothed in the pool. He rises to the surface with a little sputtering, but is all right. The idea is to teach the child to feel comfortable in water until he is old enough to learn to swim. The 'superbabies" as they were called, learn respect for the water, and feel at home and relaxed. In this program every baby had learned to float.

Much fear of water is planted into children by parents. Some parents have used the "sink or swim" method for teaching their offspring to swim. But some think a toss into the pool can permanently traumatize a child from ever wanting to swim. This is for trained coaches and teachers. I'm not sure I could even watch this method of teaching a baby to float or swim.

With the increasing number of backyard pools or portable pools, it is wise to teach a child to survive a fall into a pool at the earliest age possible.

In my learning-to-swim days there were a few more swimming "holes" available than there are around Snyder. The slanting water levels in rivers, lakes, tanks and creeks made a just right situation to walk out to a depth where the nose was just above water. I was told to kick my feet and pull myself through the water with arm and hand motions, which I did over and over until I managed to get around in water over my head and back to the edge safely, by no means perfect - just managing.

My two children took lessons under trained instructors and learned the basic skills for swimming and have enjoyed many hours of summer fun in the water, but not at quite as young an age as the "superbabies."

Swimming is one of the oldest, most popular and healthful sports. It is a fun way to exercise whether using the many strokes of the experienced diver and swimmer or just dog paddling.

President Carter and I are the only two people in this country who work from our house.

He's got the best of it. Surrounded by all that security, having a desk that locks, and no one ringing his chimes in the middle of the day to sell him pastry brushes and lip gloss.

Oh sure, he has his share of interruptions, but does he ever lift his phone and discover someone has entwined a popsickle stick in the cord? Does he ever get involved in a high-level phone conversion and have to excuse himself to turn the timer off on the ham? Is he ever in the midst of drafting a piece of legislation that will change the history of the world and hear a yell from the other end of the house, "We're out of toilet paper!"

The big problem with working from your home is no one treats you like a professional. Pest control men shuffle in and out spraying insecticide on my feet, children draw faces on my calendar and color my roll of stamps yellow, and at least once a day my husband calls with instructions to, "Go to the garage. Turn the power mower over on its back. On the bottom, just under the right rotary blade, is a serial number. Copy it down and call it in to the repair shop so they'll know what they're dealing with. When you're out picking up my cleaning, you can pick up the part."

As a humor writer I can only reflect on the flashes of wit that might have been had I only had a typewriter with set margins, paperclips that weren't strung into a "necklace," a dictionary with all the vowels, and a pen and pencil by the phone for messages.

Sometimes, I torture myself by wondering what it must be like to fill a wastebasket you don't have to empty, and the peace of not having to let the dog in and out 175 times a day.

But the real kicker is convincing your friends and family you are really working. The telephone calls that begin, "You busy? So, what's happening? Still working for that crazy lady who won't let you go to lunch or play tennis? So, let her fire you. Ha Ha."

Like President Carter, I too have my Camp David. It's calm, serene, and private. I tell no one I'm going there. I just slip off with my work and sometimes just a few hours makes all the difference in the world. When I return, things are in perspective, and I am once again ready to do battle with the steady stream of interruptions.

The IRS is questioning my expenditure of a new shower curtain for my office, but what do they know?

oddities in numbers

NEW YORK (AP) - In the statistical entrails of the economic numbers examined each month by the federal government are some revealing oddities, perhaps omens of things to come.

Like the employment figures for the first quarter of the year, which improved while the total output of goods and services declined, an unexpected, probably inexplainable, and maybe unlikely occurrence.

Does it mean that the nation's unemployment rate when declined to 6 percent, the lowest in 3½ years, was a statistical fluke? Or that employment really didn't rise by 535,000, as the Labor Department said?

Or does it mean perhaps that industry decided to gear up for a big surge in this, the second quarter, partly in an effort to make up for earlier, weather-induced downtime?

It's a puzzle okay, and some economists are no more confident of what it means than a witch doctor trying to extract meaning from a pile of chicken bones.

But two things at least must be considered probabilities: A second-quarter jobless rate rise; or a rise in Gross National Product. One or the other. As it is, the two are out of balance.

So, some say, was the latest Producer Index for Finished Goods, which rose a 1.3 percent in April, a sharp worsening over prices reported for March. Or if not the index, then the popular interpretation of it.

The popular use of the index, as a quick fix on retail prices to come, admittedly is a source of frustration to the professionals, who are much more cautious in their usage. But it does happen.

Consumers, for example, concentrated on the sharp rise in the price of foods at the finished stage of processing. But professionals put just as much emphasis on jewelry prices.

Jewelry prices? Yes. They soared. They alone accounted for about 30 percent of the increase in the Finished Goods Price Index. Robert Stein of the Bureau of Labor Statistics told Congress.

It means the overall increase would have been kept below 10 percent, bad as that is, if jewelry, hardly as essential as food to the well-being of consumers, had been removed temporarily from the calculations.

Through all this, consumers seem to be putting up more than just a brave front. They're also putting up their money - borrowed though it is - or they were in March, when the latest statistics were compiled.

In that month more installment credit was granted than in any other month in history, some $4.07 billion.

in washington

martha angle. and robert walters

WASHINGTON (NEA) - Like the flowers that bloom in the spring, tra la, a new crop of rumors sprouted recently to the effect that Sen. Edward M. Kennedy might be weighing a 1980 challenge to President Carter.

The Massachusetts Democrat has rather wearily dismissed such reports, which seem to surface with tiresome regularity every couple of years regardless of who is occupying the White House.

And as usual, the latest speculation undoubtedly bears more relationship to the current president's slumping poll rather than it does to the political plans of the last of the Kennedy brothers.

Which is not to say that Jimmy Carter can afford to ignore Ted Kennedy. He can't - but for a very different reason. The blunt truth is that Kennedy is becoming increasingly important to the president as an ally and advocate of Carter's legislative objectives.

Wherever Carter turns these days, he is finding that the trail he wishes to follow has already been blazed by Kennedy. To an extraordinary degree, the emerging Carter legislative program is a Kennedy program.

Airline deregulation, wiretap controls, drug law reform, federal criminal code revision, liberalized refugee immigration, tax reform and above all, national health insurance-all have been embraced by Carter, and all were Kennedy initiatives.

If the president is uncomfortable to find himself following in Kennedy's legislative footprints he has been careful not to show it. And the senator has been both publicly and privately supportive of Carter, foregoing plenty of opportunities to join the chorus of criticism other Democrats in Congress have heaped upon the president.

"I have a good sense of access and input," Kennedy said in a recent interview. "We work regularly with (domestic issue adviser) Stu Eizenstat and I talk with the president whenever the need arises."

It is not really surprising that Kennedy should be emerging as such a major force. While he is still only 46 years old, he has been in the Senate for 16 years now, accumulating impressive substantive expertise and legislative skill along the way.

With seniority has come increasing power within the institution. As a result of Sen. James O. Eastland's retirement, Kennedy next year will become chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee-a step upward that is bound to expand his already sizable influence.

Kennedy is both a guide to Carter and a goad. The senator and union leaders who have worked with him for years prevailed over HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. in persuading Carter to move forward now with a national health insurance proposal.

Kennedy has also urged renewed administration efforts towards normalization of relations with the People's Republic of China, which he visited earlier this year. And he is encouraging Carter's efforts to obtain a new SALT agreement with the Soviets.

The public perception of Kennedy as a knee-jerk, big-spending liberal is both distorted and outdated. On issues ranging from the criminal code revision to national health insurance, the senator has demonstrated a growing flexibility and willingness to compromise with those of opposing views.

It remains to be seen whether this Kennedy will ever run for president as his brothers did before him. It may not really matter. At the rate he is going, his legislative accomplishments may soon rival those of another senator who never made it to the White House - Hubert H. Humphrey. He has already gone a respectable distance towards filling Humphrey's shoes in the Senate, and that is no small achievement by any standard.

Sorority Plans Activities

Lambda Kappa Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi met recently at the Martha Ann Woman's Club. In a candlelight ceremony Susan Chesser, out-going president, bestowed the Ritual of Jewels degree upon Phyllis Glasscock.

Ms. Chesser installed the incoming officers. They are Carolyn Limmer, president; Carolyn Fortune, first vice president; Marie Boone, second vice president; Peggy Wilson, recording secretary; Joyce Ann Pace, corresponding secretary; Linda Moreland, extension officer; and Mona Bryan, treasurer.

The business meeting was presided over by Carolyn Limmer. Mrs. Limmer named the following committee chairmen. Carolyn Fortune, membership; Lora Beasley, social; Marilyn Zoda, service; Linda Moreland, telephone; Dena Ellis, ways and means; Carolyn Greene, yearbook; Bette League, program; Kathy Roberts, scrapbook; Laura Green, publicity; and Dana Williamson, properties.

Ms. Moreland read to the group from the book of Beta Sigma Phi on the installation of officers and reminded officers and committee chairman to read and keep the May issue of "The Torch," the official Beta Sigma Phi magazine.

The group voted to enter the rodeo parade in July. Also, a Western Dance will again be held this fall. The members elected to sell gift wrap at the MAWC's bazaar in December.

Bonnie Hollis presented the program on "Social Environment." She discussed the plight of the trainable mentally handicapped individuals. Ms. Hollis compared their unacceptability in society to a person moving to a foreign country where the language and customs were unknown. The Institution of Cognitive Development, a halfway house for the mentally handicapped, was explained to the group. She explained that through proper training a mentally handicapped person can become a producing member of society. A general discussion moderated by Ms. Hollis followed.

Mona Bryan and Bette League, hostesses for the evening, served an assorted fruit plate. Hostess gift was given to Marilyn Zoda.

Tardy Teacher Appeals Dismissal

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) - Teacher Tom Carpenter says he's had trouble waking up all his life, and claims his tardiness is not sufficient cause to fire him. He was dismissed last month because he had been late to Marie Drake High School 20 times in the last year, but he's appealing on the ground he has a sleeping disorder.

In college, he said, roommates got him up by squirting him with water guns. His former wife said she spent an hour and a half each day trying to wake him up.

Mrs. J. W. Phillips Notes 95th Birthday

Mrs. J.W. Phillips celebrated her 95th birthday Thursday, May 4. She had visitors from Lubbock, Victoria, Childress, Mesquite, Sulphur Springs, Garland and Farmington, N.M. Her great, great, great nephew of Lubbock made and decorated her birthday cake.

Mrs. Phillips was born Mattie Mae Maddox in Paris, Ark., May 4, 1883. She came to Red River County in 1894 and moved to Hopkins County in 1902 where she met Walter Phillips. They married Aug. 21, 1904. They moved to Scurry County in 1926 and later moved to Childress. They were married 59 years before Mr. Phillips death in 1963 at Childress.

In 1971 Mrs. Phillips moved back to Snyder to be near her daughters, Mr. A.P. Prather, Mrs. G.L. Campbell and Mrs. Oren Sturdivant. Her other daughters are Mrs. L.C. Trent of Childress, Mrs. H.L. Mahan of Mesquite and Mrs. J.E. Meadors of Farmington, N.M. Her son, Olvis, passed away in Wichita Falls in 1970. His wife, Margaree, still resides there.

Mrs. Phillips stays busy piecing quilt tops. She has pieced over 200 tops. Some of these she sold and many she gave away. Due to failing eye sight, it has become difficult for her to sew. She will undergo her second eye surgery in Abilene May 17. The first one was in April.

Mrs. Phillips maintains her own home and attributes her long life to hard work and "being blessed by God with good health." She is a member of East Side of Church of Christ where she attends regularly. Her family has extended her celebration through the week. They invite family and friends to visit.

Mrs. Sorrels Hosts Knapp HD

Mrs. Jim Sorrells hosted the Knapp Home Demonstration Club Thursday, May 4th, at the Knapp Community Center. Mrs. J.D. Blankenship, president, presided at the business session where roll call was answered by 15 members, each giving her favorite poem or scripture. Delegates were nominated to attend the state convention in Dallas Oct. 3-5. Erika Blankenship will be THDA representative, Jewell Bruner, delegate, and Virginia Drake, alternate delegate.

Door prizes of a loaf of homemade bread, a bunble of onions and an African violet, were given to Virginia Drake, Valerie Dunn and Allie Moore.

Blanche Chisum, agent, showed a number of gift items that could be made for gifts or for sale. She showed a baby guilt which can be made by members and gave a demonstration on how to make silk roses.

The hostess served brunch consisting of cheese, sausage, relish dish, hot rolls, chocolate chip cookies, punch and coffee to Valeri Dunn, Erika Blankenship, Frieda Murphy, Allie Moore, Virginia Drake, Jacie Ray, Blanche Murry, Nina Garner, Pat Miller, June Greenway, Virginia Bloom, Gladys Huddleston, Blanche Chisum, and Jewell Bruner.

Next regular meeting of the club will be June 1 at 10 a.m. at the Knapp Center and will be a covered dish luncheon, Blanch Mutry acting as hostess.

Museum Requests Picasso Works

NEW YORK (AP)-The Museum of Modern Art has asked the French government for permission to exhibit a number of paintings and other art works by the late Pablo Picasso.

A museum spokesman said Sunday that the works are those which Picasso's heirs have agreed to turn over to the French government in lieu of estate taxes.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Oswald: "The right time to draw trumps is as soon as you can afford it."

Alan: "Here is a hand that really illustrates this. South finds himself in an apparently easy four-spade contract. South plays dummy's jack of hearts at trick one and East wins with the queen. Back comes the jack of diamonds. South wins in dummy and should cash just two trumps before going after clubs. If he draws three rounds he can be beaten."

Oswald: "He not only can be beaten but he probably will be if he does draw that third round. His next play will be a club and if West hops right up with his ace and leads a second heart the defense will have three tricks in, South will ruff a third heart with his last trump and won't be able to discard dummy's two losing diamonds on long clubs."

Alan: "Just two rounds of trumps and South is in full command. He will have a trump entry to his hand to cash the last two clubs and discard dummy's two small diamonds.

We tend not to open with just 12 high-card points and 4-3-3-3 distribution, but if the "x's" include a couple of tens we might open this hand. In that case our choice is one club.

Help For Hyperactive Tots

NEW YORK (AP)-Children who are overly cautious or totally fearless of heights could have a learning disability, according to the chief therapist of a national center specializing in the diagnosis and treatmgnt of hypeactive and under achieving youngsters.

The child who must hold onto a handrail or who walks down the stairs backwards or one step at a time may do so because he doesn't know where the steps begin and end, or he cannot judge the distance between them, says Darral C. Chapman of the New York Institute for Child Development.

A child with such problems will also bump into walls, knock things over and have trouble with small ball sports like baseball, tennis and handball. These disorders may also cause the child to have problems in school in such subjects as spelling and math. For example, he may reverse letters in words or be unable to line up columns of numbers, Chapman points out.

Sensorimotor exercise therapy has been designed to help children with these problems.

Computer Mis-Programmed...

Two 'Losers' Win In Vote Canvass

By The Associated Press

Officials discovered two 14,600-vote swings apparently caused by a mis-programmed computer and announced Tuesday night that two Dallas County "losers" in Saturday's Democratic primary had actually won.

And a recount was in the works in the 6th Congressional District, where three Democratic candidates were separated by razor-thin margins.

Chet Edwards, the apparent third place finisher in the congressional race, call for the recount after a canvass showed him only 100 votes behind the runnerup out of 82,000 votes cast. Edwards, 26, is a former aide to U.S. Rep. Olin Teague, who is retiring after 32 years in Washington.

Edwards' tabulation of votes from the 11 counties in the district stretching from Bryan to the Dallas-Fort Worth area showed him with 22,145 votes; Phil Gramm, 36, former Texas A&M economics professor, with 22,257 votes; and Ron Godbey, 42, an attorney and former television weathercaster, with 23,489 votes.

Returns tabulated Saturday by the Dallas County Election Bureau, a cooperative effort sponsored by local news media, indicated veteran criminal District Court Judge Jerome Chamberlain had held off the challenge of Ron Chapman, a 37-year-old former assistant district attorney: 44,413-35,456.

Saturday's unofficial returns also showed Mrs. Theo Bedard a victor over District Judge Pat Mcclung, 39,276-33,594.

But the canvassed returns Tuesday by the county Democratic Executive Committee's canvass committee showed Chapman, who once worked as a prosecutor in Chamberlain's court, a winner over the incumbent, 39,267-33,608. They showed McClung a winner over Mrs. Bedard by 44,499-35,526.

The figures released Saturday by the Election Bureau in each judge race were within a few votes of the canvassed totals for the other judgeship. Conjecture was that the computer was erroneously programmed so that the vote totals of the Chamberlain-Chapman race were entered into the McClung-Bedard columns in the computer and vice versa.

L.R. "Bob" Gibson, chairman of the canvass committee, said in precinct after precinct, the votes shown for McClung and Bedard on the county election printout had no relation to the actual votes shown on the tally sheets turned in by election judges.

The county executive committee's canvass report goes to the State Democratic Executive Committee, which meets next Tuesday to officially certify the primary winners.

Karen Blaker Ph.D.

Girl watching views

By Karen Blaker, Ph.D.

DEAR DR. BLAKER — I was walking down the street yesterday. It was a beautiful day and the workmen at the construction site on the corner were doing more seeing than sawing.

They whistled and said, "Hi, good-looking." I knew I looked great, so I smiled back, said hello and walked on.

My mother says I should be careful in those situations, but I don't know why. I felt good about their compliments and attention.

She wants me to avoid that corner from now on. I think that's ridiculous. What do you think?

DEAR READER — I think you need to straighten this out with your mother.

You may be mad at her because she has raised you to acknowledge and gracefully accept compliments. But now she seems to be saying just the opposite.

Ask her why she doesn't want you to treat those compliments from strange men as sincere.

My hunch is she will say that in nine such cases out of 10 you are being eyed like a piece of meat. I agree.

To take those as serious compliments is tantamount to being duped. Your mother may feel you are a bit too trusting. I do.

DEAR DR. BLAKER — Please help me stop my husband from staring at other women.

We have more fights about that than anything else and it is ruining our marriage. Yesterday he told me he went to a certain area of his office just to watch the secretaries.

I exploded. That was so insensitive on his part. Maybe this is his way of telling me he doesn't love me any more.

My pride is so hurt I feel like issuing him an ultimatum: them or me. I don't want our marriage to end, but at least the fighting would stop.

DEAR READER — There must be a better way.

Instead of trying to make your husband stop talking about his girl watching, why not just give up and begin taking it with a grain of salt? Understand it is something he does mainly to stir up trouble.

Why, you ask, would he want to hurt you?

Suppose all this started when he made an off-the-cuff remark about looking at other women and sensed your strong disapproval. Resenting your attempt to control his actions, he may have begun mentioning it more frequently just to prove his independence.

Made increasingly anxious and angry by all this, you must have applied even more pressure for him to stop. The struggle escalated and the marriage deteriorated.

Attempts to control another person usually elicit rebellion. No one likes to be told what he or she can and cannot do, particularly if the activity in question is relatively harmless.

If you think this might be a power struggle, giving up would be the best way of getting the desired results.

Write to Dr. Blaker in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. Volume of mail prohibits personal replies, but questions of general interest will be discussed in future columns.

ASTRO-GRAPH

Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

May 11, 1978

Chances are good you'll fare better materially this coming year than you have in the past. You must, however, be cautious that you don't try to bite off more in one gulp than you can chew.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20) Be very careful today with your resources or those you're managing for others. Through some carelessness or mental laxity, you could be hoodwinked. Find out more about yourself by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20) Looking for something for nothing today? Keep two things in mind. You're on a fool's errand and will more likely be taken than taking.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22) Uncharacteristically, you may today let down people who are depending on you. Even more unusual, it may be family members you disappoint.

LEO (July 23 - Aug. 22) There may be a time for romantic adventure, but this isn't it. If you're thinking of engaging in any clandestine goings-on, forget it or be ready for trouble.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22) Before you make commitments today, assess your budget. You might find on sober reflection that you're spreading yourself far too thin.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 23) You tend to underestimate today the depth of situations with serious overtones. Don't delude yourself that they'll just melt away.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 - Nov. 22) Unprofitable situations have the unhappy faculty of not improving themselves. Today, avoid the untenable position of throwing good money after bad.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 - Dec. 21) High-pressure types are your nemesis today. If one gives you too much flack, you might concede just to quiet him. That would be a serious mistake.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19) Look askance today at associates whose mettle is unproven to you. They may be true, but don't trust them if they haven't been tried.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 19) Perhaps you are at fault today if you're not satisfied with the world. If you're working, you'd rather be playing — and vice versa.

PISCES (Feb. 20 - March 20) There's a tendency in your make-up today to give in when you should be standing up for your rights. When you do, you'll feel guilty about it.

ARIES (March 21 - April 19) Inadvertently through words or gestures, you could do something today that would be very upsetting to those you love and admire.

Sideline Glances Once More...

'You're Just Standing Too Close'

RANDY COURTNEY

by BILL McCLELLAN

I WAS out at the high school track field yesterday, talking with Coach Winfred Shipp about the upcoming state track meet this weekend, and watching Dale Jenkins work out at the pole vault area.

Jenkins, a freshman who has already tied the school record of 14-6, had cleared 13 foot with ease, but was having some trouble getting over 14. Coaches Shipp and Tommy Doyle were verbally helping him discover what the trouble was.

"I know what you're doing wrong," chimed in high jumper Randy Courtney.

"What's that?" wondered Jenkins, turning towards the bystander.

"You're not jumping high enough."

It was that type of atmosphere that prevailed during the final at Snyder workout before the duo packs up for Austin Thursday.

As Jenkins prepared for another try, Courtney and I talked in a serious vein.

"Have you given any thought to what college you might attend, Randy? Do you want to stick with track or go with basketball?"

"I'm not sure, but I think track," mused the senior, who boasts a state 3A best of 6-10. "And I'd like to go to a Southwest Conference school."

"Any particular one?"

"No, they're all about the same I guess," he tonned.

Despite the fact that some folks around town would disagree with that thought, Courtney apparently has set some goals for himself. He was twice named as an unanimous choice to all-district basketball teams, and added third all-region and second all-South Plains to those honors this year. He was also recently named SHS male athlete of the year. His current goal?

"I'd like to jump seven feet," he confired. While 7-0 won't take the best height in Austin this year, it will more than likely net Courtney a state championship in the 3A classification and from there it's on to the SWC hopefully.

Meanwhile, Jenkins, or "The Kid" as he's known around campus, cleared 14-0. The workouts ended soon after, but the jokes continued.

Following Courtney's curt words of advice to "The Kid," Coach Doyle told a "true" story that perhaps can relate to everyday life.

Seems there was this discus thrower who was having problems getting everything just right - as athletes sometimes do - and he was asking his coach what he was doing wrong.

The coach thought a minute and relayed, "You're standing too close to the discus when it hits the ground, son."

Think that one over and see if you don't decide there's sometimes a little bit of athlete in all of us.

Thanks.

NBA Playoffs...

76ers Coddled Too Much Says Dr. J

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Julius Erving thinks it's time the Philadelphia 76ers quit coddling his teammates. The Sizers should stick with their best, win or lose, and Dr. J feels he figures prominently.

The 76ers trail the Washington Bullets 3-1 in their best-of-seven National Basketball Association Eastern playoff final. To survive, Philadelphia has to win three straight, including one on Washington's home court.

But this doesn't appear to perturb Erving. Not even the chance that the team's playoff hopes could be crushed tonight in bitter disappointment when they face the Bullets in Game 5.

"I think it's time to forget trying to pacify everybody and do what's best for the team," said Erving. "We have to go with our key players, win or lose it that way."

Thus far, the Bullets have played inspired basketball, led by Elvin "Big E" Hayes, who is averaging 26.3 points, 16 rebounds and 3.3 blocked shots a game.

Hayes is being aided by Bob Dandridge who is scoring 24.3 points per game with 5.5 assists. He's shooting 52.4 percent from the field. The Bullets are averaging 117 points.

Borg Drills Stockton In WCT Meet Finals

DALLAS (AP) - If Dick Stockton had been forced to face any more of Bjorn Borg's blistering shots Tuesday night, he says he might have walked on the court with a baseball catcher's mask and mitt instead of a tennis racquet.

Borg, seeking his second World Championship of Tennis title, diffused Stockton's powerful serve-and-volley game with an array of rumbling winners from the baseline Tuesday night for an easy 4-6, 6-2, 6-1, 6-0 quarter-final victory.

"I felt like he (Borg) was hitting harder and harder as the match went on. If it had gone four of seven sets, I might have had to get my catcher's gear," quipped Stockton. "I was being pushed back to the fence.

"There's no way to prepare for a guy like this. What do you tell your practice partner? Play like Bjorn?" he added.

The 21-year-old Swede dropped the first set, but totally dominated Stockton the remainder of the match. He broke eight of Stockton's last nine serves and reeled off 12 consecutive victories to end the match.

'Puff' Game Here Tonight

The annual Power Puff Football game, a Snyder High School senior class fund raising project, will be held 5:30 p.m. today at Tiger Stadium.

Tickets for the game are $1 each.

The great Walter Johnson of the Washington Senators won the American League triple crown in pitching three times, leading in won-lost record, strikeouts and earned run average.

Pitching Lifts Texas Over Milwaukee, 7-1

MILWAUKEE (AP) - Sal Bando never got to first base while angrily pleading his case with the umpires Tuesday night, and Ferguson Jenkins made sure very few other Milwaukee Brewers got there, either.

Jenkins, Texas' veteran right-hander, pitched a seven hitter and allowed only an infield single by Lezcano and a bunt single by Gorman Thomas over the last 6 1-3 innings. Al Oliver backed Jenkins with a three run home run and an RBI single as the Rangers whipped the Brewers 7-1.

Jenkins (3-1) allowed a second inning homer by Lezcano, his fourth, and got out of a two on, two out jam in the third when center fielder Juan Beniquez made an over the shoulder catch of Ben Oglivie's liner which a stiff wind was carrying toward the wall. However, Jenkins retired 17 of the last 19 batters.

"I had eight days rest and I had to throw about 10 minutes of batting practice each day to stay sharp," Jenkins said. "I had a little problem with my rhythm in the early innings and made a few mistakes, like the ball Lezcano hit. And if Beniquez hadn't caught up with that ball, Oglivie hit, it might have been a different game."

But the Rangers led 6-1 by the time Bando, leading off the Brewer eighth, hit a ball which he claimed he had fouled off his left foot before it rolled to Toby Harrah at third. Bando, hobbling in apparent pain in front of the batter's box, was called out as Harrah fielded the ball and threw to first.

Bando ran to first base umpire Jerry Neudecker and ripped off his shoe and sock, claiming the ball had bruised his foot. When the umpires insisted they had not seen the ball hit his foot, Bando had to be restrained by Frank Howard, the Brewers' 6-foot-7, 300 pound coach, from charging Neudecker.

Bando was ejected, as was George Bamberger - a first for Bamberger in his 26 games as Brewer manager and in his 10 previous years as Baltimore pitching coach.

Astros 5, Phillies 1

The Houston Astros have been playing baseball recently like they've been walking in their sleep.

But J.R. Richard sure woke them up Tuesday night with his buzzing fastball.

"For consistency, this was one of my best games this year," said Richard after his four-hitter led the Astros to a 5-1 decision over the Philadelphia Phillies. "This was one of my better games stuffwise.

U.S. Goes 2-1 At Nations

DUSSELDORF, West Germany - Harold Solomon beat three-time Wimbledon champion John Newcombe and Roscoe Tanner defeated Phil Dent, giving the United States a 2-1 victory over Australia in the Nations Cup tennis championships.

Solomon forced Newcombe to play from the baseline, then hit tricky backhands out of the Australian's reach in scoring the first American victory in the inaugural $200,000 championship, 6-4, 6-4.

Tanner, not as highly rated as Solomon on clay, relied on his strong service in beating Den 6-2, 7-6 in the opening match.

But Newcombe and Dent whipped Tanner and Bod Lutz in doubles 6-3, 3-6, 6-2.

Buffalo Cage Crew Looks At Dallas Site

DALLAS (AP) - Can a National Basketball Association team with an image of something less than a winner find happiness in this football crazy home of the National Football League champion Dallas Cowboys?

That question is apparently foremost in the mind of the owner of the Buffalo Braves today after he made a whirlwind tour of Dallas in his search for a new home for the Buffalo franchise.

"The only question I have is whether civic leadership feels it's important to have a pro basketball team," said John Brown after a day of looking over the city and what it would offer in the way of facilities.

Noting the success of the Cowboys, Brown said "Dallas is one of the dynamic cities in the country. It's a winner. I like that image of a city."

"Any team coming in here realizes the Dallas Cowboys are king, along with college football."

Lone Star Gas has already laid the groundwork for your energy future.

The jobs of more than 100,000 Texans employed in plants served by Lone Star depend on gas for heat processing or as a product ingredient. Long-term gas supplies are needed to preserve existing jobs, create new ones, and meet the requirements of our residential customers. Fortunately, Lone Star is in an excellent position to continue energizing our area's economy.

Lone Star has an 11,400-mile gas gathering and transmission pipeline system that connects with basins estimated to contain 50% of the remaining onshore gas reserves in the United States.

This same network also enables Lone Star to accept gas deliveries from growing offshore production in the Gulf of Mexico.

No other gas company in Texas has a pipeline network as extensive or versatile as the one we've put together and constantly modernized during the 69 years Lone Star has been in business.

No other gas company in Texas has the built-in opportunity to buy gas as selectively, to bargain as well for the best prices on new gas, as Lone Star.

Our pipelines can have an important effect on your energy future, because it's here where Lone Star is strongest that gas companies from across America will be shopping hard for new gas reserves.

Here's your key to the energy storehouse.

We fully understand the efforts of other gas utilities and transmission companies to get new gas supplies. Their areas also want this most economical of fuels for industrial use.

Nevertheless, Lone Star's obligation is to the million-plus residential, commercial and industrial customers who depend on us to meet their energy needs in the decades ahead.

We're determined to meet our obligation in full by getting our area's fair share of new gas reserves as they enter the market in volumes large enough to be handled economically.

It can be done because of Lone Star's pipeline system.

Our gathering system goes into areas where other gas companies haven't begun to build. Our far-reaching transmission network gives us excellent capabilities. Our underground storage system often lets us take deliveries when many companies cannot.

All we need to buy the gas you'll need in the decades ahead is your understanding that we must recover the actual cost of the new gas we buy.

Give us that, and we'll deliver you the best gas bargains that money can buy. But the longer we wait, the more expensive the bargains will be. And we're eager to get on with the job.

Lone Star Gas Company

We're working energetically for your area's future.

A WINNER - Nancy Anderson won first in barrel racing for WTC at the Tarleton State NIRA rodeo over the week end. The Tarleton rodeo ended the season for colleges in the Southwest Region.

Reynolds To Finals...

WTC Barrel Racer Wins

Western Texas College had one event winner and a qualifier for the College National Finals Rodeo at the close of the rodeo season last weekend.

Nancy Anderson from WTC won the barrel racing event at the rodeo, hosted by Tarleton State, while Buddy Reynolds won sixth in bareback riding and added enough points to his total for the year to qualify for the CNFR in Bozeman, Montana, next month.

Mrs. Anderson, a freshman from Colorado City, turned in the best time of 16.56 seconds. Her closest contender had 16.76. Mrs. Reynolds husband, Joe, was on WTC's first rodeo team.

The WTC women's team finished in the Tarleton rodeo.

Reynolds, a sophomore from Lubbock, finished second in the Southwest Region in bareback riding with a total of 346½ points, qualifying him for contenders for the top two places in the Region. Charlie Burns of Tarleton finished in the top slot with 366 points.

Reynolds finished sixth in saddle bronc riding at Tarleton. Other WTC contestants at Tarleton included Rode Walker, fourth in saddle bronc riding; Rick Bolding, sixth in calf roping, and Robert Cromwell, second in steer wrestling. The WTC men's team finished in third place.

In official standings at the year's end, the WTC men's team was fifth and the women's team fourth.

The first and second place teams from each region of the National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association now advance to the CNFR in Bozeman, Van Rigby, WTC rodeo advisor, said. Representing the Southwest Region will be Howard College and Sul Ross in the men's division and Howard College and Eastern New Mexico in the women's division. Rigby plans to accompany Reynolds to Bozeman for the CNFR.

Rigby is optimistic about WTC's rodeo teams for the fall. Several students are already committed to WTC, Rigby said, and he predicted that both the men's and women's teams will be winners in the new season. They may be the best teams WTC has had, he said.

Money is needed for rodeo scholarships, and anyone interested in helping through the Rodeo Booster Club may conact Rigby for information.

Sanitation Seminar For Hospitals Set

Numerous hospitals and nursing homes within a 120-mile radius of Snyder will be sending representatives to attend a health care and sanitation seminar that will be held Thursday at the Scurry County Coliseum, said Tommy Davis.

Davis, the owner of the Snyder Janitorial Supplies, said the seminar is being conducted by Spartan Chemical Co. and administered through his store. Snyder Janitorial Supplies, said Davis, is a distributor for Spartan Chemical.

"We started representing them four years ago and now we are one of the biggest dealers west of the Mississippi River," said Davis.

"We believe this seminar is the first of its kind to be held here in Snyder," he added.

The seminar, he explained, is a "training program for health care institutions that is designed to teach them the proper procedure in cleaning techniques."

Other topics to be studied at the seminar are state and federal guidelines concerning the application of disinfectants in health care facilities.

An Ohio-based firm, Spartan Chemical is sending a representative here to help conduct the seminar, said Davis.

The seminar will begin Thursday morning and continue through most of the day. Approximately 40 people are expected to attend.

Change Can Curb Defaults

AUSTIN (AP) - Texas can change its guaranteed student loan program to curb a 20 percent default rate without running into constitutional problems, Sen. Oscar Mauzy, D-Dallas, said Tuesday.

Mauzy chairs an interim committee which Tuesday heard a progress report on outside study of the problem.

"I believe there is a constitutional way to do what we're trying to do," Mauzy said.

The state's Hinson-Hazelwood college loan program currently is guaranteed by the federal government. State funds generated from revenue bonds are loaned at low interest rates under the program to Texas residents enrolled in state colleges and universities.

The U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare is trying to encourage states to start their own guaranteed loan programs. However, the Texas Constitution prohibits the state from lending its credit to private concerns.

Mauzy did not elaborate on how to avoid a constitutional problem, but others have suggested the state has lent credit in other instances where "The public interest" would be served.

Bob Campbell, an outside consultant, told the committee that Texas would have to change its loan policies to take advantage of federal incentives for a state program.

The state's federally insured Hinson-Hazelwood program would have to begin granting loans to Texas residents attending proprietary and out-of-state schools.

C-CITY MISHAP - Dorothy Cobert of Odessa was injured when her vehicle overturned after she lost control coming off Interstate 20 onto State Highway 208 on the north edge of Colorado City yesterday at about 7 p.m. She was taken to Root Memorial Hospital by ambulance and is listed in satisfactory condition. Lola Dossey, who was working with her wrecker driver husband Jerry Dossey is pictured above at the scene. (SDN Staff Photo)

Two Mishaps Are Reported

Two traffic accidents were entered in police reports of mishaps investigated Tuesday.

The first was reported at 25th St. and KSNY Drive at 11 a.m. Police records show that a 1974 Plymouth driven by Ira Jenkin and a city-owned streetsweeper driven by Allen Rollins were in collision. Only minor damages were reported.

The 5300 block of College Ave. was the site of a two-vehicle collision at 4 p.m. Involved in it were a 1973 International pickup driven by George Rocha and a 1972 Oldsmobile driven by Mary Beckham. That accident also resulted in minor damages.

Among the industries in the principality of Liechtenstein are machines and tools, cotton spinning and weaving, precision instruments, false teeth, pharmaceuticals, ceramics and canned food.

Unmanned Train Goes Through City

An unscheduled, unmanned and un-powered train made a trip through Snyder on the Roscoe, Snyder and Pacific tracks early Tuesday afternoon.

Ten cars rolled from the railroad yards near the Santa Fe station to a point south of 37th Street near the Co-op gin after a Santa Fe engine failed to make a coupling during switching operations. The Santa Fe train was due to pick up the cars from the RS&P, and when it backed into the RS&P track the engine nudged the string of cars, but did not couple on. However, the nudge by the engine started the cars rolling toward town, since their brakes already had been let off.

Automatic warning signals cleared the tracks at crossings. The only damage was to a small track machine of the RS&P which the cars hit in the south part of town and pushed along till their momentum was halted by an incline.

White Opposes Illegal Alien Amnesty Provisions

By MILLER BONNER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The administration-backed illegal alien bill "rewards the lawbreaker while flaunting the law abider" claims a Texas congressmen whose district shares a 352-mile border with Mexico.

Rep. Richard C. White, a Democrat from El Paso, voiced "total opposition to the so-called 'amnesty provisions'" of the bill in testimony Tuesday before a Senate subcommittee.

Spokesmen for farmers, conservationists and farmworkers joined White in objecting to certain segments of the controversial bill.

The administration bill, sponsored in the Senate by James Eastland, D-Miss.; Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas; Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz.; and Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., calls for amnesty to illegals in this country since 1970 and up to Jan. 1, 1977.

"How is it logically going to be possible to sort out from the millions of illegal entries we all agree are among us those who have been here since 1970, and those who have been here since before January of 1977?" asked White. "There is a basic unfairness and poor principle to reward the lawbreaker while flaunting the law abider. The promise of amnesty has brought a flood of would-be entrants to the border, overburdening the border facilities."

White said he agreed with the bill's provision to penalize employers that hire illegal aliens but added, "I think, however, that a tough administrative fining proceduce would be preferable to civil penalties."

Recalling the situation that developed last summer in Presidio, Texas, when the president intervened to allow Texas farmers to hire laborers from across the border, White stressed that a "Bracero-like program" should be included in any illegal alien legislation. The Bracero program allowed Mexican laborers to work in this country legally and return to Mexico after their jobs were finished.

"We are already going through the same traumatic experience again this year in Presidio," continued White. "Domestic labor is not available...and President Carter clearly indicated last year that he would not intervene again, so we are frantically trying to devise another miracle solution."

The Presidio "situation" was used as an example of American farmers who "would welcome an excuse not to hire U.S. farmworkers" by Thomas Jones, a spokesman for the National Association of Farmworker Organizations.

"Last year in Presidio, over 800 foreign workers were imported to pick onions while domestic workers who had already been recruited and given contracts were refused the right to work in these jobs," added Jones.

As to instituting another Bracero-like program, Jones said such laborers "offer the same advantage of being easily exploited as do undocumented workers, but they are hired with federal approval."

Farmers employ illegals, however, because "they are willing to work and have the motivation to improve themselves and their families and because farmers need workers as nature dictates not when some bureaucrat in Washington decides that workers are not available some place in the country to do the work," countered C.H. Fields, a spokesman for the American Farm Bureau Federation.

Fields said his group favored the amnesty proposal but added, "It seems to us that it should be the responsibility of the Social Security Administration to make sure that social security cards are valid. We realize that it will be expensive to initiate a new and responsible procedure for the issuance of social security cards, but if HEW could manage to reduce the $7 billion in fradulent benefits now paid out under various public assistance programs, perhaps some of the savings could be devoted to carry out the law with regard to the proper issuance of social security cards."

Fields also said the bill's provision calling for civil penalties against employers who hire illegals should be clarified. But Anthony Wayne Smith, president of the National Parks and Conservation Association, said that portion of the bill should be strengthened to include penalties calling for imprisonment, not "merely fines."

Conservationists wish to stem the flow of illegal aliens, expressed Smith, because "it is the illegal alien who may well defeat all our efforts at the solution of our environmental problems in America."

A few facts on fasts

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Periodically I fast to lose weight — for instance from supper time to the same time the next night and sometimes a bit longer but never more than two days. Recently I watched a weekly story about a Hollywood actor who weighed over 240 pounds. He fasted to the extent that he died young. Something about heart strain.

Am I doing a good thing or shall I check my insurance policy? I am 5-feet-10 and weigh 240 — down from 260 — and feel fine except for occasional center chest ache and a pain in the left side which my doctor isn't concerned about.

DEAR READER — I prefer for people to learn to eat right and the overweight problem will take care of itself on a permanent basis. I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-7, Weight Losing Diet, to help you. If you follow that plan you can lose weight and learn what you should eat to stay slim. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

A single day's fast is not likely to harm healthy people. You will lose water and salt but it will be replenished the next day. If you fast very long though you could lose potassium with the water and salt. That is one problem that has surfaced with the high protein diets that have been implicated in a number of recent heart deaths.

The day you fast you lost both protein and fat. You want to lose just fat. There is no record of anyone who was healthy to begin with ever dying from fasting one day. And I might add that fasting routines have worked rather well under medical super vision but it is definitely not a do-it-yourself project. You have a long way to go at your weight and you will need to exercise a lot of will power, learn to eat right and increase your daily exercise within your level of tolerance. Don't try to lose more than two pounds a week; one pound a week is better and safer.

DEAR DR. LAMB — If a woman has had a complete hysterectomy with removal of uterus and ovaries and everthing is O.K. is it necessary that she have a Pap test each year? I've been told that there's no need by other women who've had the same but my doctor continues to do one each year — and they are all negative.

DEAR READER — The Pap test is commonly used to detect abnormal cells — mostly from the cervix of the uterus — and identify cancer of the cervix early enough to treat it. The chances of finding cancer of the lining of the body of the uterus (endometrium) are not so good, unless by Pap test you mean to wash calls out of the uterus as part of the test.

Without either a uterus or a cervix-uterus the main sources of cancer have been eliminated. However a rare person can have changes of the vaginal wall, particularly around the area where the cervix was located. The likelihood of this could well depend upon what was seen in the tissues removed. In a normal woman with no suspicious changes it is not likely that she will develop a cancer but for the purest, or to be 100 per cent safe, a Pap test is still of some value.

You need an annual examination anyway to detect any other problems, such as sagging of organs that can cause problems and of course an examination of your breasts, so the additional procedure isn't that much of a problem.

Slump In Polls Won't Put Carter On Bench

WASHINGTON (AP)-Despite his slumping average in the polls, Jimmy Carter is not going to warm the political bench during the campaign season. Not unless he wants it that way.

There are and will be more requests for Carter's campaign assistance than the White House can fill. The president's political scorekeepers are checking some averages of their own, so as to be most responsive to congressional candidates who have been most helpful to the administration.

That, kind of loyalty check may irk some people on Capitol Hill, but it is the way the game is played. It is not customary to advertise this, or to commit it to charts and memos which can, as one did in this case, wind up in print.

But the fact is that presidents always have done, and probly always will do, more at campaign time for those candidates who do the most for them between elections.

That leaves the broader question of Carter's value as a campaign ally in 1978. That almost answers itself. There is nothing like the aura of the White House to draw a crowd; help raise campaign money and stir up the precinct workers to do the political footwork.

Short of war, Watergate or economic catastrophe, [illegible] almost always are in the market for an assist from the president.

And for all his troubles in the public opinion polls, President Carter is not likely to be an exception to that rule. Whatever the voters may think of the job he is doing, they agree overwhelmingly that he is honest and hard working. He is and will remain a drawing card, and in a congressional campaign that helps [illegible] sometimes it takes a bit of footwork to be helpful. The other night in Spokane, Wash., Carter praised Rep. Thomas S. Foley, then adroitly reminded his constituents that the chairman of the House Agriculture Committee didn't always agree with the administration on farm policy. That's putting it mildly.

The national political leader who really wants to help will be for or against the candidate, whichever does the most good.

There probably will be a few Democrats who find it advantageous to issue dramatic declarations of independence, and to announce that they don't want Carter in their territory this fall.

Carter said in Portland, Ore., that no members of Congress had been around to tell him he was a liability and should stay away from their districts.

He said he didn't think he was a political handicap for Democrats.

Old-Timer Has Faith in Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am a retired coal miner, now 82, and believe it or not, I can still read without eyeglasses. I don't remember when I first started to read DEAR ABBY, but it has now become a very important part of my life.

Will you please do me a favor and settle a lengthy and heated disagreement I have been having with a good friend of mine named Curly. Curly says that you do not personally write your own column or answer your mail. He claims you have assistants and secretaries do it for you. I say that you do all your own writing. Anyway, we have a $10 wager, so please let me know who is right.

GARY AURITT, STONINGTON, CONN.

DEAR GARY: You are. I have a staff of devoted secretaries who are expert typists (I'm not). They do the research and handle referrals, but every line published under my name is written by me!

Collect the $10 from Curly, but be careful how you spend it, Gary, because I don't want to be responsible for contributing to the delinquency of a miner.

DEAR ABBY: When my son was married 12 years ago, I gave him my wedding ring to give to his bride. She wore it for 10 years, then she put it away because my son gave her a beautiful set of rings with diamonds for her 10th wedding anniversary.

Three months ago, my son and his wife started divorce proceedings, and I asked my son to get my wedding ring back. He told me he had already asked his wife for it but she wouldn't give it up. She said it was HERS—regardless of where it came from. Finally I called and told her there was a lot of sentiment attached to that ring and I wanted it back.

She then had the nerve to say that she also attached a lot of sentiment to the ring and refused to part with it.

How can I get it back and what should I do now?

BOILING POINT

DEAR BOILING: Your son GAVE the wedding ring to her, therefore it's hers. And I see no way for you to get it back if she doesn't want to part with it. The word from here is, simmer down and give up.

DEAR ABBY: My 13-year-old sister has this crazy thing about germs. If someone coughs or sneezes near her, she holds her breath or runs out of the room.

If someone touches her food, she won't eat it. She sterilizes her toothbrush every time she uses it. She won't use a towel if anyone else has touched it. When we go anywhere, she won't touch doorknobs or railings with her bare hands because they're "germy."

Our whole family is disgusted with her fussiness and over-cleanliness. What's wrong with her? And do you think she'll grow out of it?

WORRIED SISTR

DEAR WORRIED: Your sister has an obsessive "phobia" (fear) about germs. It is not uncommon, but her chances of "outgrowing it" are slim. Please urge your parents to take her to a psychiatrist. With treatment, her phobia can be removed.

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple do-your-own-thing ceremony, get Abby's new booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send $1 and a long, stamped (24 cents) self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

School Zone Sign Too Late

NEW CASTLE, Colo. (AP) - For two years, officials of the New Castle Elementary School sought to have the Highway Department paint crosswalk signs in front of the school and install crossing lights.

Last month, a highway crew carefully painted six-foot-high letters indicating that the area is a school zone.

But the school had been moved to the other side of this western Colorado town the week before.

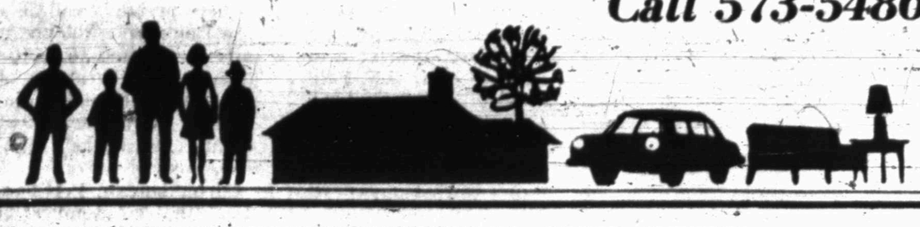

One school official, who asked not to be named, said it was a beautiful paint job, but there was not a child in sight.

The effort, however, may not have been in vain. The man who leased the old school building says he may turn it into a day-care center.

International Link Seen In Terrorists

By Arthur L. Gavshon
AP Diplomatic Correspondent

Political terrorists are busiest now in Western Europe, but they are also still active in the Middle East and Latin America.

Italy's feared Red Brigades, who kidnapped and killed Aldo Moro, are linked in policy and purpose with Arab, West German, Japanese and other terrorist groups.

American, British and West German anti-terrorism specialists who helped Italian police in the unsuccessful hunt for Moro said there were similarities in his case and the seizure and murder last year of West German industrialist Hanns-Martin Schleyer by the German terrorists of the Red Army Faction.

Authorities in Europe are convinced that an international terrorist network links four major groups of extremists:

-Yasser Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization, an umbrella for 15 guerrilla groups, the most militant of which is the Marxist Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, pledged to destroy Israel. Their goal is the destruction of Israel and its replacement by a Palestinian state governed by the PLO.

-West Germany's Red Army Faction, the outgrowth of the Baader-Meinhof Gang founded 10 years ago by Andreas Baader, an aspiring artist, and woman journalist Ulrike Meinhof. Both are dead. Italy's Red Brigades have worked with the Red Army Faction and its European sympathizers since 1970 and the aim of both is the destruction of capitalist society.

-Japan's United Red Army, formed nine years ago by students to oppose the American-Japanese security treaty. Within a year its Arab Committee established a base in Beirut, where its members trained for suicide missions including the 1972 massacre at Israel's Lod Airport, in which three Japanese men opened fire on a crowd of Roman Catholic pilgrims, killing or wounding 98 persons.

-Juta de Coordinacion Revolucionario, which combines revolutionaries from Chile, Argentina, Bolivia, Paraguay and uruguay. It claims tens of thousands of its comrades have been killed or wounded in those countries and says its purpose is to challenge authoritarian governments.

C-City Okays Softball Funds, Permit To Taxi

COLORADO CITY - The city council granted the Jaycees money for a softball tournament, issued a permit for a Colorado City man to operate a taxi service and awarded the bid for life insurance for city employees at its regular monthly meeting last night in City Hall.

Council members also authorized Mayor Marie Bassham to sign an application to General Services Adminstration for property at the auxiliary air field north of the city. The city already owns the grounds that were once part of Webb Air Force Base and is now seeking the surplus buildings, runway, etc.

The council also authorized the use of the auxiliary air field as a muncipal airport.

The bid for group life and health insurance for approximately 45 city employees went to Blue Cross Blue Shield. The monthly payments will be $1,242.88.

Kenneth Acuff was awarded the contract for ditching at the sanitary landfill north of the city. His bid was 65 cents a cubic yard or $4,810 for the estimated 7,400 cubic yards.

Several Jaycees were on hand at the meeting to request money for a softball tournament. They were given $500 from the motel tax fund for the event scheduled June 31-July 2.

The council approved a request by Jim Matlock for a permit to operate a taxi service in Colorado City.

The final payment to Parkhill, Smith and Cooper, Inc. for water works and sanitary sewer improvements was authorized at last nights meeting.

The second public hearing to select proposed projects for a grant application for community development block grant funds was conducted last night. A pre-application to the department of Housing and Urban Development was approved. If the application is accepted by HUD, two more public hearings will be required before the grant can be received. The city hopes to receive money for a project that would replace 5,000 feet of out-dated water line that is located downtown on Second Street.

Pretzel Twister Needs Rhythm

By TIM PETTIT
Associated Press Writer

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP) - When Dick Mastromotto gets started he looks like a windup toy.

Bent over a wooden table, he picks up a measured piece of dough, rolls it twice, picks up the ends and, with a quick twist of the fingers, ties a knot. In the same motion, he plunks it on a wooden tray - all at the rate of about 20 a minute.

Mastromotto twists pretzels for a living, a job that he calls "a lost art."

It's a fitting profession for a man born in Lititz, the Lancaster County town that gave birth to America's first commercial pretzel bakery.

Mastromotto, a compact man with muscled arms, never misses a beat as he talks to a visitor. He works with a rocking, back and-forth motion, rather like the toys that bounce in the rear windows of cars.

"It's rhythm, strictly rhythm. If you didn't have it, you couldn't keep up the pace," he says, in the same breath creating two more pretzels.

Mastromotto, 49, recalls how he first learned the trade 37 years ago, when he was a boy would could barely see over the twisting table.

"An 80-year-old man was teaching me. I told him I couldn't do it, and he gave me the back of his hand and knocked me across the room. I can't ever remember not making pretzels after that."

Mastromotto is one of 13 pretzel twisters at the Hammond Pretzel Bakery, an operation started by Carol Hammond Nicklaus' great-great-grandfather about 100 years ago. In an age of machine-stamped pretzels, she and her husband Tom keep up the hand-made tradition in a simple, one-story building nestled in a back alley.

Pennsylvania has at least 60 of the 80-odd pretzel bakeries that produce $160 million worth of pretzels each year in the United States. Although Reading, Pa., makes most of the state's pretzels, the Lancaster area is where the hard pretzel industry was launched.

As one legend goes, apprentice Julius Sturgis fell asleep in his Lititz pretzel bakery and put his soft pretzels through the oven twice, creating by accident a pretzel that could be shipped and stored for long periods without going stale like soft pretzels.

Snyderites In Honor Society

SAN ANGELO--Two students from Snyder were inducted into Alpha Chi National Honor Scholarship Society's Texas Alpha Iota Chapter at Angelo State University.

Billy Keith Murray, a senior, and David Wayne Marlar, a junior, were inducted.

Dead Man Is Elected

ROCKPORT (AP) - It's always disheartening to lose an election, but Pepe Zambrano thinks his case is so unique somebody ought to make a movie out of it.

Aransas County voters re-elected the late incumbent Lawrence Miller by an almost 3-1 margin over Zambrano in a race for a justice of the peace seat in Saturday's Democratic primary.

The elderly Miller died several weeks ago but his name was left on the ballot as required by state law, since he died after the 45 day deadline to remove a candidate's name from the slate.

"Somebody ought to come down here and make a movie out of this," Zambrano said. "They could call it 'Pepe and the Dead Man.' You can't imagine how hard it is to campaign against an opponent with that kind of popular sympathy. There isn't a lot you can say campaigning."

Zambrano said he thinks he probably would've beaten Miller had the incumbent lived.

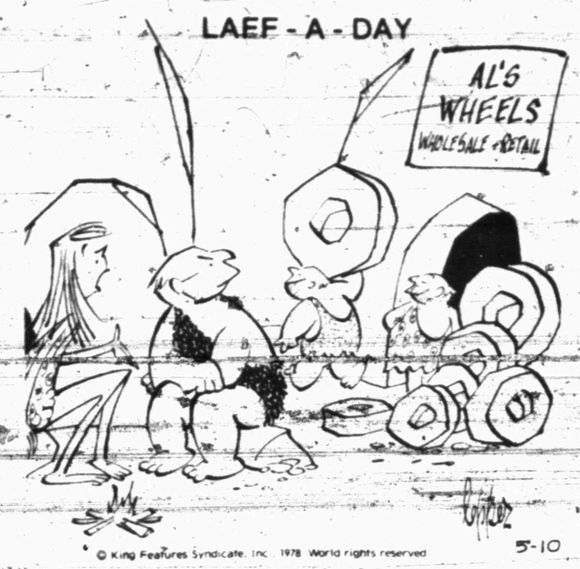

"After he died, a group of people who called themselves 'concerned citizens' ran an advertising campaign in the papers to elect Miller," Zambrano said. "What they wanted was for him to win, meaning no one had won, so the Democratic committee could pick their own candidate. And now that's just what's going to happen."

Zambrano said under Texas law, if a primary fails to select a candidate for the general election, the party's county executive committee selects one.

There were no Republican candidates for the position.

Phi Theta Kappa Honors Dr. Hood

Dr. Mary Hood, faculty sponsor of Phi Theta Kappa at Western Texas College for the past five years, was made an honorary member of the fraternity at a meeting Tuesday.

Also honored at the meeting was Dr. Duane Hood, dean of student services and registrar, who was recognized for the support and encouragement he has given the organization.

Phi Theta Kappa is a national honor society for students in junior colleges. It was organized in 1918 to recognize and encourage scholarship among junior college students. It was formally recognized by the American Association of Junior Colleges in 1928.

To be eligible for membership, students must be enrolled for at least 12 hours and maintain a 3.2 average.

Dr. Duane Hood became a member of the organization while he was a student at Henderson County Junior College. His wife, Dr. Mary Hood, did not attend a junior college and therefore was never eligible for membership as a student.

It was the second honorary membership to be conferred by the WTC chapter this year, the first having been presented to Dr. Robert L. Clinton, WTC president.

Judges Stumble In Reports

AUSTIN (AP) - Some of Texas' election judges may have stumbled in reporting Saturday's results on the pari-mutuel referendum on the Democratic and Republican ballots.

County canvasses held Tuesday showed some discrepancies, including some in favor of the horse race betting issue.

"In some cases the results were telephoned from precinct judges in county chairmen and reported only as Proposition One or Proposition Two," said Douglas McCray, president of the Texas Horseracing Association. "But in some cases, the pari-mutuel referendum was first on the ballot and the interest rate referendum was second while the order was reversed in other counties."

McCrary said in Robertson County the unofficial results reported to the Texas Election Bureau showed 32 percent favoring legalized pari-mutuels on a local option basis. However, the official canvass Tuesday showed 48 percent favoring it, a difference of 539 votes.

"We believe these were honest mistakes, and we are confident that the election judges will want to correct them in the interest of maintaining the integrity of primary elections," he said.

Unofficial returns from 239 of 254 counties, before the county canvasses, showed 739,560 voted against the referendum in the Democratic primary, while 676,126 voted for it.

Republicans approved the question 56,893 to 53,883, unofficially.

Results of the Democratic and Republican primaries will not become official until May 16 when the state party executive committees meet in Austin canvass the reports made by county committees Tuesday.

Merchants Plan Mothers' Event

There are only three days left in the Snyder Shopping Area's Mother of Year contest. Snyder merchants have combined efforts to select a mother to receive over $150 in prizes and a night out in Snyder.

In cooperation with the Retail Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, the merchants are asking mothers to come by before Friday and register for the prizes. The winner's name will be drawn Friday afternoon.

Each business participating in the contest will draw a name and the winner's name will be drawn from those representing the various stores.

The prizes include a Mother's Day corsage from Hinshaws, free dinner for two at The Shack and tickets to the Cinema. Each of the participating merchants will then give away a host of gifts to the winner.

To enter put your name, address, and phone number on a piece of paper and drop it into the special boxes at the following businesses.

Participating businesses include Richardson Sewing Center, Roe's Furniture and Appliance, Gibson's, Hinshaw's, The Shack, NJ's, Thompson's Shoes, Anthony's, Fenton's Dad and Lad, Bar-H-B Western Wear, The Cutery, J.C. Penney, Bea Owens, 4 Seasons, Whitfield's, Gray's Style Shop and Merle Norman Studio.

More Beef To Be Sold To Japan

WASHINGTON (AP)-Recent negotiations on Japan's beef import quota will help boost sales of high-quality beef to the Japanese market, according to the Agriculture Department.

The basic agreement was worked out last January between Robert S. Strauss, U.S. special representative for trade negotiations, and Nobuhiko Ushiba, Japan's minister of external and economic affairs. Japan agreed to increase its global quota for beef by 10,000 metric tons annually.

Department officials said Tuesday that the increase of 10,000 tons puts Japan's total import quota at 16,800 tons for the Japanese fiscal year which began April 1. A metric ton is 2,205 pounds.

The total includes 3,000 tons of beef which will be sold to Japan under its quota for hotels and restaurants, compared with 1,000 tons last year. The remaining 13,800 tons will be shipped under a general quota. The department said that "the United States, with its high quality grain-fed beef, would be in an excellent position to capture a fair share of this market."

Under terms of the agreement, which involved further talks in March and April, the high-quality beef referred to in the pact includes choice and prime grades favored by American consumers, the department said.

Snyderite Is Honor Graduate

ABILENE--Paula Bowden, a 1974 graduate of Snyder High School, was among 31 Hardin-Simmons University students to graduate with honors at the school's 86th commencement exercises.

Mrs. Bowden received the bachelor of science degree magna cum laude by virtue of a grade point average of 3.71 on a four-point scale. She had a major in elementary education with a minor in English.

Mrs. Bowden is the daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Ken Andress of 2607 34th in Snyder.

Class Of '28 Sets Reunion

The Snyder High School graduating class of 1928 is holding a class reunion at The Shack at 11 a.m. Saturday, May 13.

All class members are urged to attend. It is estimated that there will be 25 to 30 members of the class at the reunion. John A. Roberts and Ivan P. Oliver, two teachers of the class, will attend also.
