Floods Threaten As Heavy Rains Blanket State Cotton Trade Leaders Move To Better Present Prices

Platform for Protection of Price Adopted

Resolutions Are Passed to Restore Confidence in Cotton Market in Meeting at New Orleans Monday

Reduction Sought

American Cotton Cooperative Association to Use Futures Markets for Hedging Purposes; Farmers Asked to Hold Crop

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 13.—Resolutions to restore confidence in the cotton market in the present low market price were adopted here tonight in a meeting of cotton trade leaders called by the American Cotton Shippers' association after E. F. Creekmore, general manager of the American Cotton Cooperative association, had announced that the cooperative organization intends to use the cotton futures markets for hedging purposes for the protection of the price and basis of its cotton. The platform adopted asked the shippers to anticipate their future requirements for this year and next the bankers to lend money to the producers contingent upon a substantial reduction in acreage, and advised the farmer to harvest his crop, hold for better prices and reduce his acreage.

Whispered Discussions
Acting on the observation of Dr. E. McCuen, of Greenville, S. C., president of the American Cotton Shippers' association and chairman of the meeting, the delegates decided at this time to withhold discussion of any amendments to the Federal Farm Act that it might have more mature consideration. Addressing the assemblage and asking them to have confidence in the administration of the Federal Farm Board, the department of the agriculture dealing with the problems confronting the farmer, business.

Republican Candidate for Governor of Texas to Speak Here Tomorrow Night in Interest of Candidacy

Career of W. E. (Bill) Talbot, Republican candidate for governor who will speak in the district court room at 7:30 o'clock Wednesday night, began a boy engineer when at Odessa, led him through a strike and a war and to success in business. Colonel Talbot also came within a few hundred votes of being elected mayor of Dallas, being endorsed by democrats, republicans and independents. In Republican party affairs, he was active in the Harding, Coolidge and Hoover campaigns, and was in charge of Dutt's campaign for governor.

Life Sketches
A sketch of Colonel Talbot's life has been prepared by the McAllen county campaign committee. Included in the booklet are some excerpts from his letter of acceptance. "The governor, according to my conception of the duties of the office, is a hired hand working for the best interests of his state, and not for any political aggrandizement, nor for any added honor to an already full life," Colonel Talbot wrote.

V. L. Wheeler, about 35, of Hobbs, N. M., who was knocked unconscious and suffered severe lacerations of the face and forehead last Wednesday night when his automobile struck a wagon, will be discharged from Lubbock sanitarium today, hospital officials said Monday night.

Found At 71 Very Medicine He Required

Venerable Citizen of San Antonio Tells What Konjola Did In His Stomach Case

MR. WILLIAM DAVIS

"It was nine years ago that I began having trouble with constipation, indigestion, bloating and poor appetite," said Mr. William Davis, 71, of 732 Kayton Avenue, San Antonio. "I took several kinds of medicine but nothing did me the good that Konjola did. I had to take laxatives daily and gas and indigestion followed practically every meal. At times the pain was so severe that I could scarcely bear it. My entire system was run down."

"I read so much about Konjola that I decided to give it a trial. I noticed an improvement within three days and in three weeks I felt better than I had in years. I am telling all my friends about Konjola and expect to take it until I am free of all ailments."

Konjola has done so much for thousands when taken regularly over a six to eight week period. It is truly a master medicine for ailments of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and rheumatism, neuritis, and nervousness.

Konjola is sold in Lubbock, Texas at Bowen's Drug Store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

Lubbock Physicians Issue Precautions Against Infantile Paralysis; Malady Is Causing Deaths In Other Parts of U. S.

While few cases of infantile paralysis have been reported in the western section of Texas, in other portions of the United States several fatalities from the disease have been reported and physicians here have issued a few minor precautions to be observed.

There is no known preventive for the disease for the reason that little is known of the germ. The general attitude of "watchful waiting" is observed in most sections likely to become the next victims.

Cases Reported

One case of the disease has been reported at Tahoka while one case also is reported in Lubbock. Name of the child sufferer could not be determined yesterday and city health officers stated that no quarantine had been placed on the family.

While the disease is usually more prevalent among infants, during the first three years of life, an epidemic has been known to spread among adults. Children in the second year of life are said to be the most susceptible. Epidemics in the United States usually occur in the warm months, from July to October. Little is known by medical science for treatment and it is said that results of the disease are more dependent on severity of the case rather than on treatment. Some victims have been known to fully recover, others to die but more generally some form of permanent paralysis to a member of the body is experienced.

City Health Officer Dr. J. W. Rollo, stated that usual symptoms are a fever, prostration, vomiting, but rarely with convulsions. Severe pains are usually present in the neck, spine and extremities. The mind is generally clear but there may be active delirium. Such symptoms may continue for three or four days and then gradually subside and the patient recover without paralysis having developed. Or it may be that for a few days there will be a general muscular weakness, greater and lasting longer than would be expected in an illness of such severity.

The fusion of these two important factors has given Thompson-Starrett over a billion dollars worth of activity in thirty years. TALBOT AND TEXAS PRODUCTS

Colonel W. E. Talbot, of Dallas, who bears the rather futile honor of Republican gubernatorial nominee will probably fall far short of election in November but, in all fairness, he has incorporated in his campaign a keynote which we Democrats might well heed.

Colonel Talbot, who will be in Lubbock tomorrow, is stumpng the state under the slogan of "What Texas Makes Texas."

Candidate Talbot is wearing Texas garments, as he goes hither and yon over this big state, pleading the cause of the GOP.

Another matter on which doctors disagree concerns the best way of ventilating schoolrooms and other buildings.

VENTILATION

Another matter on which doctors disagree concerns the best way of ventilating schoolrooms and other buildings.

Professional ventilation experts have always urged that windows be kept closed, preferably made unopenable.

Opponents of the forced-draft system urge that it is not only extremely costly but actually less healthful than a simpler plan.

In this controversy, admittedly not scientifically determinable at present, the layman confesses to sympathy on the side of simplicity and cheapness.

The human animal is not yet fully acclimated to indoor life.

MEMORANDUM OF COLDS

Winter's other annoyances and discomforts could be put up with gracefully were it not for those common ailments of grip and colds which are most prevalent in winter.

Absences from work on account of those common ailments are a severe blow to industry and business.

People who get plenty of fresh air, who ventilate their homes thoroughly, who avoid drafts and wet feet and who are careful to take a good amount of exercise are the ones least afflicted.

On the Firing Line at the Nation's Capital

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE EDITOR SAYS THAT "UNREASONED FEAR" IS TO BLAME FOR DEPRESSION

By Charles F. Stewart (Central Press Staff Writer)

ASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Editor Merle Thorpe of the "Nation's Business," organ of the U. S. chamber of commerce, speaks in a puzzled tone of the slowness of the country's recovery from its hard times complex.

It's purely a "state of mind," he says. Why don't we come out of it? Addressing the American Association of Personal Finance Companies, at the Societies annual banquet at Washington a short time ago, Editor Thorpe blamed "unreasoned fear" for the depression.

Of course the editor is right in large part. Everything is still here that was here before the market crash. The actual number of folk who are pinched for cash, because they had been gambling and the crash caught them, is considerable; but, in proportion to the country's whole population, there are not so many of them. The others are all right, if they only think so.

Nevertheless, the psychological factor does enter into the problem.

Does it enter into it to this extent?—

Is there quite a stable, influential class of Americans who distinctly do not want a return to pre-market crash "prosperity" provided that they themselves can hang onto their jobs and wiggle through a rather precarious period for awhile, until a new sort of prosperity evolves itself—a sort they fancy will suit them better than the pre-market crash variety; if it ever does evolve itself.

Is it among the possibilities that these apocypses of pessimism are pursuing a policy of pooh-poohing all hopeful utterances—issued from authoritative sources, with a view to stimulating business—and that some of them are strategically so situated as to give a certain amount of potency to their pooh-poohing?

That Democratic politicians are making the most of the trade's slackness is freely charged by the party in power's prosperity boosters.

Without implying that such politicians would be happy to see the slackness continue until the end of the present administration, it is hard to recall many imitators of Senator Copeland's example in assuring the voters that things will soon mend, everything start booming again and that President Hoover will be triumphantly re-elected. Few Democratic politicians have done that way.

However, it is not to Democratic politicians that I am referring.

The white collar worker is the chap I have in mind—especially one smallish but highly articulate subdivision of him.

The white collar worker did not profit by prosperity at any stage of the game. No one pretended that he did. There were prospering shouting politicians who insisted that the farmer was not as badly off as he imagined he was, but everyone recognized that the white collar worker's income was far from being kept up with the increased cost of living.

Not that the politician cared the white collarite being without either the money or the organization to make him formidable. Still, his tough luck was generally conceded.

Now among white collar workers are America's newspaper men. They are in that class, anyway, and have shared its privations. Like others, besides watching their incomes purchasing power shrink, they have been hard hit by consolidations, and have been worried about their jobs, even if they have kept them.

As to the remainder of the white collar class I'm not so sure, but I do know that the newspaper boys never were so "sold" on prosperity as many other people—for the obvious reason that, to them, it was prosperity with reverse English.

And now what? Why, with prosperity laid away in moth balls, our reporter, doing his fall shopping, finds his pay envelope stretching materially farther than at this time last year.

Oh! certainly, he may lose his berth altogether. Possibly this frightens him to such an extent that he is willing to have the old thing back again; but possibly not, too. Possibly he has nerve enough to run a risk or two, to keep what amounts to his latest raise in salary.

Plainly the newspaper fella's and the G. O. P.'s interests clash on this question of prosperity.

The G. O. P. simply must restore prosperity to stay "in."

The newspaper gang quite generally speaking, prefers the quietude of the quietude purchasing power at the newly-created level—and if the administration suffers by it, it's just too bad for the administration.

And what can the newspaper man do about it?

It seems impossible, but it is probable that posterity will talk in solemn tones of our wisdom and foresight.

A sport car never will reach its highest development until manufacturers learn to nickel-plate tires.

SKIN ERUPTIONS OFTEN ARE DISEASE SIGNALS

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

It has been said again and again that the skin is the mirror of the body. There are numerous diseases affected the human being as a whole in which eruptions appear on the skin as one of the signs of the disturbance.

In typhoid fever, there is an eruption which appears on the abdomen, chest, and back from the seventh to the ninth day. In pneumonia the form of blister that is called a fever sore occurs around the mouth in 40 per cent of the cases.

Tuberculosis has all sorts of manifestations upon the skin, as does also the more serious of the disorders known as social diseases. Indeed, so frequent and so varied are the skin manifestations of these two diseases that medical students are instructed again and again to look for manifestations of tuberculosis and of syphilis whenever a skin eruption not easily diagnosed is seen.

In scarlet fever, the eruption appears at the end of the first or the beginning of the second day of the disease. It is first seen on the neck and chest and rapidly spreads to other parts of the body. The eruption of scarlet fever, as the name of the disease indicates, is a bright scarlet.

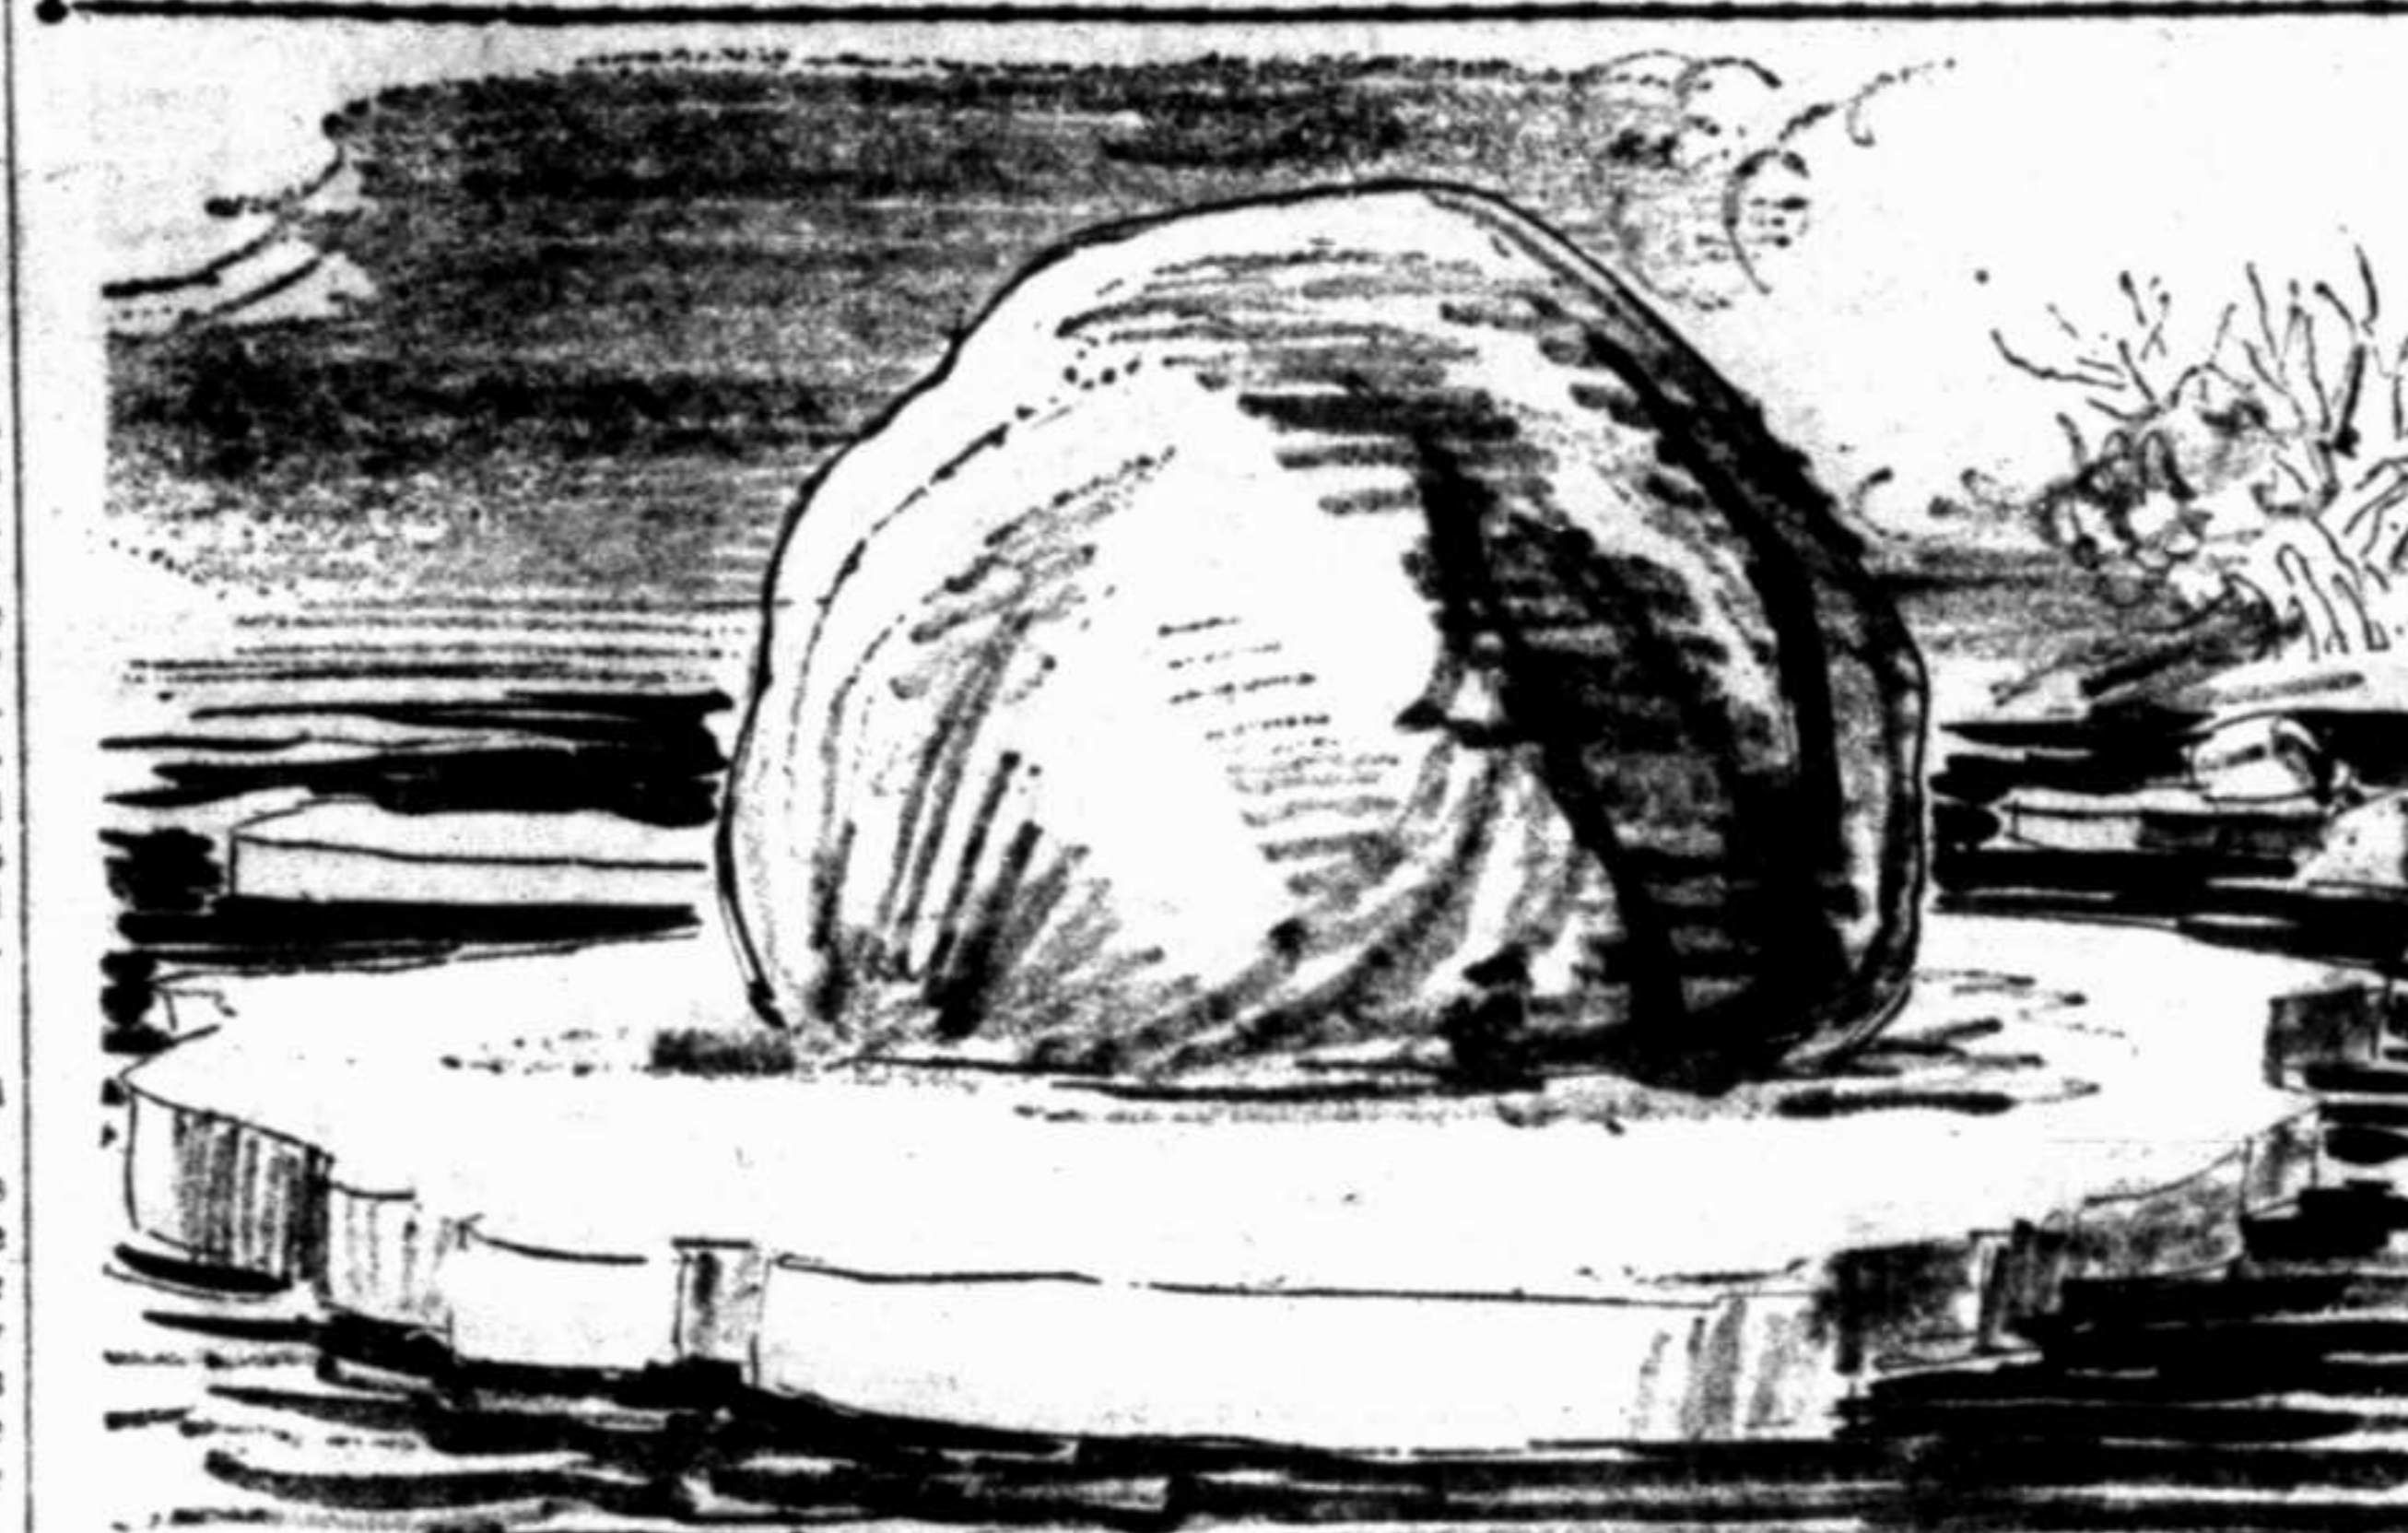

In chicken-pox, the eruption appears within the first 24 hours and rapidly develops into little blister-like spots, mostly upon the trunk. These come out in crops over a period of several days.

In measles, the patient usually breaks out on the third or the fourth day with dark red velvety spots on the face and these rapidly spread over the trunk and the extremities. One of the signs of measles are bluish white specks surrounded by a red ring which can be seen in strong daylight on the lining of the cheeks and lips. These are known as Koplik spots.

There are many industries in which the use of chemicals will produce strange swellings on the hands and splashing sometimes results in similar marks upon the skin elsewhere on the body. Almost invariably any serious disease manifests itself by a change in the appearance of the skin.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

CELIA ROGERS: 11 and just out of high school, lives with her widowed mother.

MARGARET ROGERS, in Baltimore, Mrs. Rogers is a seamstress employed in a dress shop. Celia, after a long search, finds work as a stenographer. BARNES SHIELDS, young newspaper photographer, tells the girl he loves her and swears some day they will be married.

Mrs. Rogers receives a letter signed JOHN MITCHELL, offering to give Celia every advantage of education, travel and social position if the mother will give her up. Margaret declares she will never do this but when she is faced with serious illness and loss of her job she agrees. Mitchell comes to Baltimore and has a long interview with Margaret. He calls at the Rogers' apartment and Margaret introduces him, saying, "Celia, this is your father."

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER VIII

For an instant the room was silent. It was an electric stillness. Then Margaret Rogers went on faltering. She was addressing her daughter and her voice was tense and low.

"You don't understand, darling. You were too little to remember. But this is your father! He's come to talk to you."

She turned toward Mitchell. "Celia's almost a young lady. Don't you think so?" Margaret managed a smile but her words were tinged with hysteria.

Celia's eyes had not left her mother's face.

"But, mother—?" There was dismay in every syllable.

Fiercely, protectively, Margaret Rogers gathered the girl into her arms.

"I ought to have told you," she crooned. "You should have known long ago, my dear. I thought, I thought I was doing the right thing. I tried to. You see, long ago when I was very young I married your father. We quarreled. You were a little baby—three years old—when we separated. There was a divorce. After that we came to Baltimore. I married Bob Rogers. You used to call him 'Daddy Bob.' And after the accident—well, I put off telling you about your own father until you were old enough to understand. Do you understand now, darling? Do you?"

She lifted the girl's chin, gazing fearfully into the brown eyes.

"Tell me, Celia," the mother insisted.

"I'm—trying to understand," Celia said.

Margaret stepped back.

"John," she said, "I'm sorry— Mitchell looked as staid and unemotional as when he entered the room. He cleared his throat.

"Now that your mother has explained the long story, shall we sit down and talk things over? It was to Celia he was speaking. "You are much like your mother—in appearance. I was hardly prepared to find you so grown up."

Margaret had seated herself on theavenport. Celia crossed the room and sat beside her, taking her mother's hand and holding it nervously.

Amarillo Painter Endorses Argotane Says Wife Was Sick In Bed

Suffered For Seven Years With Digestive Troubles But Is Feeling Fine Now

"I had two doctors with my wife this Christmas Eve and then when she didn't get any better, bought a bottle of Argotane and she began to improve right away," said Floyd E. Grifford, residing at 3500 Tyler, St. Amarillo, Texas, while talking with the Argotane representative. Mr. Grifford is a painter.

"My wife had suffered for seven years with stomach and digestive troubles. She had pains in her neck and back. Everything she would eat disagreed with her. The food would not digest and caused gas formation to crowd her heart and she would get weak and dizzy. She had severe attacks of indigestion, and would have pains in her abdomen and cramp for hours. She was very bilious and dizzy most all the time, and never was able to rest or sleep all of a night and was very nervous. She was constipated and had to take strong laxatives most all of the time. Every time she ate she had to go to bed. Any kind of food would make her sick.

If YOU think of danger in terms of trains, steamships, airplanes, automobiles, machinery and the like, please remember that more than 7,000 lives were lost last year in American homes as a result of fire.

More than 60 per cent of all fires occur in homes. The "safety" of your hearthstone loses some of its assurance when you consider this record of tragedy.

To improve such conditions the Stock Fire Insurance companies—representing the great bulk of fire insurance written in this country—maintain many helpful services.

For Greater Home Safety The Department of Building Construction operated by the National Board of Fire Underwriters spreads a vast amount of information regarding building materials and their proper assembling.

Stock Fire Insurance engineers constantly survey the fire defenses of cities and work with public officials to improve them.

Underwriters' Laboratories, established by Stock Fire Insurance, tests and labels thousands of devices used in the home—electrical apparatus, convenience equipment, heating plants, fire extinguishers and utilities of many descriptions.

Ynn Farmers Find Staple's Major Factor

Long Staple Given Support In This Year's Crop Near Tahoka; New Cotton Opens Much Earlier

(Special To The Avantache)
TAHOKA, Oct. 13.—The better staple cotton will bring a better price has been argued in Lybby county for years; and the answer has been that long staple is not adapted to this section. Added to this has been the discouragement given the raising of longer staple by buyers who based all Plains cotton as low grade.

Plants Long Staple
Like a majority of cotton growers in the Plains, Smith had been raising Half-and-Half. This year he was one of a group who planned some Middle cotton, a long staple, early maturing, drought sustaining cotton as shown by experiments made by the Lubbock State Experiment Station.

Mr. Smith planted 25 acres of Middle alongside his Half-and-Half on the same kind of soil and both received the same amount of plowing and moisture. The long staple opened a week earlier and he had two bales of it picked before the Half-and-Half began opening rapidly. The long staple will produce from a quarter to a third of a bale to the acre, while the Half-and-Half will only produce about half as much. In fact, Mr. Smith has agreed to eat a bale of cotton if his long staple does not make twice as much per acre as his short. His long staple measures from 1 to 11-8 inches and brings 10 cents more on the market than his short staple.

Other farmers who have planted the long staple are H. W. Calaway, L. H. Perkins, Wylie Curry, and H. L. Tolson. With the coming of the cooperative marketing system fostered by the government, the issue of grading and payment on the basis of staple length, hundreds of Lybby county farmers will plant long staple cotton in the future, it is believed.

Cotton Market

ness and industry were Chairman Alexander H. Legg, of the farm board; Carl Williams, cotton member of the board, Secretary of Commerce Lamont and Mr. Creeksmore.
Program Adopted
The program adopted follows:
"Cotton at the present level is below the cost of production. This being the case, it is a safe commodity for investment.
The textile industry is, and has been for some months, in a very unhealthy condition.
Casho J. Callaway, La Grange, Ga., and B. E. Greer, president of the American Textile Manufacturers association was appointed to inter-locate a note of optimism here.
"Spinners may now well be urged to anticipate the future requirements not only for the present season but for at least a portion of the season 1931-32. And even periods beyond, in view of the acreage reduction that must follow the severe decline in prices that has taken place.
Abundance of Money
"There is an abundance of money available through the banking institutions for liberal advances on cotton at the present price, and the banks of the south are urged to so inform the cotton producers, merchants and spinners.
"The above being the case, the farmer would be counseled:
To go ahead with the harvesting of his crop before the elements damage the quality.
But to sell as little as possible at the present level, to store the remainder in a dry place and hold for better prices.
Also to make a very substantial reduction in cotton acreage for next year.
Also that banks be urged in making advances to producers on this crop and for producing the next crop to do so contingent upon the borrower making a substantial reduction in acreage."

Noted Economist Says Insurance Best Solution to Unemployment Over Nation

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NBA Service Writer
WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Before the existing period of wide-spread unemployment is over, the people of the United States will be much more deeply impressed with the need of doing something about the problem than they are now.

Harding advisory committee on unemployment headed by Herbert Hoover and is now a member of the President's Advisory Committee on Employment Statistics.
Dr. Wolman estimates by conservative method, that more than 4,000,000 persons are out of work in the United States. He believes that there will be little or no improvement in the situation for some time to come and that this source will be one of much distress and destitution, in order to alleviate such widespread suffering during similar periods in the future he proposes a compulsory system of employment insurance, to be administered by industry and its employees.

There are sufficient indexes on the state of industry and the level of payrolls he explained in an interview. "To give us a pretty fair view of the state of employment in this country.
The Federal Reserve Board figures show a drop in the number of people employed in manufacturing, August figures showed that in manufacturing, railroad transportation and mining there were 15 per cent fewer persons employed than in August the year before.

Ten Per Cent Unemployed
"The drop in building employment has been at least 20 per cent. We know that unemployment is usually smaller among clerical groups, but clerical employment, according to figures now more than 10 per cent off, has left agriculture, which is hard to measure, although it contributes to the ranks of the unemployed.
There are perhaps 45,000,000 working men and women in the country. We know from census figures approximately how many workers are engaged in each major category.

And it is safe to say that at least 10 per cent of the people available for jobs are out of work. That has been true at least since the first of the year.
Now the period in which some revival might have been expected is past and there has been no revival because we say that men and women thrown out of work in manufacturing and transportation industries were gradually absorbed into other occupations, but there has been no absorption this year because all business activities have been hit except perhaps public works. This depression looks like a deep and lasting thing. Previously we have had possibilities of revival in building, automobile manufacture or agriculture, but there seems no such outlook now. The falling price situation is unfavorable for any pickup in business and there is no sign of a turn in prices.

Too Much Competition
"Heretofore we have been working on the theory that business could stabilize itself and work itself out of such periods. But it is being proved that modern business is too competitive to stabilize itself. Business isn't organized for any such thing.
If we feel that we are on the threshold of stabilizing business and that we won't have any recurrence of the present depression, and those of the past we can look at the business with quantity. But if we think that these hard time periods are something uncontrollable then, in a civilized country, we must work out something whereby people will not be allowed to starve.

Industry should be obligated to create an unemployment reserve fund for the benefit of the unemployed insofar as possible by industry and its employees. The system should be compulsory, but under private administration. In Europe more than 40,000,000 workers are now insured against unemployment under compulsory systems and many millions more through voluntary agreements. Except during periods of great stress and the abnormal employment these systems have paid their own way."

Cities Examples
Asked for an example of unemployment insurance in this country, Dr. Wolman pointed to systems operating in Chicago, Rochester and New York, covering 50,000 workers. It was under Dr. Wolman's supervision that the plan was put in effect first in Chicago in 1923. Since that time $5,000,000 has been paid out under it in unemployment insurance benefits. The Chicago funds represent 4-1/2 per cent of the industry's payroll, 3 per cent being contributed by the employers and the rest by the workers. This year 10,000 workers will receive about $90,000 from the fund.

"We are going to hear a great deal more about unemployment in the coming winter, both in Congress and the state legislatures," Dr. Wolman predicted.

Police scouted Diamond's sincerity and were equally skeptical about the story they elicited from Marion Roberts, the chorus girl who entertained Diamond just before the shooting in her room in the Hotel Monticello. It adjourned the room where he was attacked. Marion, held as a material witness, told police her real name was Mariou Strameick and her home was in Boston.

He said Diamond was breakfasting when the shooting occurred in the room where he was attacked. "Two guys were coming up." While she was in her bath, Diamond went to his room with the visitors, she said, and she proceeded to take a bath oblivious of the shooting until much later in the day.

This Is The Hart Schaffner & Marx Trumpeter—An Emblem Of Quality

Many years ago, even before the Trumpeter was adopted as a Trade Mark, Hart Schaffner & Marx had become famous as one of the first manufacturers to insist on all wool materials in their clothes. More than a decade ago when most clothes were just "thrown together," they had attained a nation wide reputation because of their careful tailoring. During all the years that have followed these basic principals have applied, plus new refinements in styling and variety of materials until today the Hart Schaffner & Marx Trumpeter has come to stand for the limit in value possible in Men's Clothes.

FRESHMAN Y PLANNED

A new plan for the Freshmen Y has been worked out by the Tech Y. M. C. A. which is due to increase the efficiency of the freshmen activities. In outlining the program for the coming year, six committees were appointed to further pursue the work. These committees consist of the social service committee, the church relation committee, one dealing with social and athletic activities, a meetings committee, a convention committee, and one dealing with the membership. Each committee is headed by one man who will meet with the four officers making up the cabinet.

Members of the freshmen cabinet are: President, Charles O'Neill; vice-president, Houston H. Hinson; secretary, A. J. Rushing; and assistant treasurer, Anton Ullrich.

SENIOR MEETING

Design of the 1931 senior invitations will be decided at a meeting of the senior class which will be held tonight in room 220 of the ad building, at 7:30.

Floyd Woolridge, president of the class has called the meeting.

BUDGET THEIR TIME

Keeping tab on their time, as well as their money, is one of the main jobs of the freshmen ag students who are taking a course in economics termed "Personal Business." The course is being taught by Dr. J. O. Ellsworth, head of the ag economics department.

The students keep an exact daily record of every cent spent and for what, and an account is given of what is done or to be done during each hour of the day. Some of the freshmen boys are having a hard time budgeting their time spent "courting" the Home Ec girls.

VISITS HOME EC SCHOOL

Favorable comment on the work done by the girls in the Home Economics school was given recently when Mrs. Izora Clark, state supervisor of the northwest Texas high schools and colleges visited here. Mrs. Clark has charge of Home Ec work in the colleges and high schools in this district. She also visited the local high school while here.

DEBATE OFFICERS NAMED

Officers for the first term of school for the debate club were named last night as follows: President, E. Sewell, Slaton; vice-president, Alvis Ellis, Anton; secretary-treasurer, Mary Beth Sheely, Lubbock.

These officers were recommended for election by the nominating committee which was appointed last Tuesday at the first regular meeting of the current school year. The nomination committee was selected by Ross Ayers, president of the club during the last spring term.

A committee is also working on a constitution for the organization. Heretofore the club has never functioned under a specified constitution, but if present plans are perfected the new document will be adopted this term. It is probable that the officers elected last night will serve only one term, then new ones elected.

The first debate of the season is scheduled for the second week of December. The opposing team will be composed of two Englishmen who compose an international team now touring this country.

CARSEY HEADS PI GAMMA MU

At the initial meeting of Pi Gamma Mu, social science club of the college, which met recently, Arnold Carsey was named president of the organization. Other officers are: Dr. W. C. Holden, of the history department, and Mamie Wolffarth, of the government department. All officers were elected last spring, but the president-elect did not return to school.

At the meeting plans for the year were discussed with special emphasis being placed on the next meeting of the organization which is to be November 14. At this next gathering which will be held in room 214 of the ad building, Miss Ruth Horn will speak on "Mexico." Dr. W. C. Holden will introduce the subject and following the address by Miss Horn, there will be a round table discussion.

A program committee consisting of Myrtle Spurlock, Dr. W. C. Holden and Franke Ward was selected at the last gathering of the organization.

BOARD MEETS WITH DEAN

A regular meeting of the board of management of the Tech Y. M. C. A. will be held tonight at the home of Dean J. M. Gordon. The new constitution of the Y will be considered tonight.

CLOTHING CLASS VISITS

With the purpose of getting first hand information on the different ideas of clothing making, the clothing class in the Home Economics department taught by Mrs. Irwin made a visit to the Home Ec department at the Slaton High school recently.

Mrs. Hazel Blodgett is the Home Economics instructor in the Slaton school.

BOOKS GIVEN TO LIBRARY

Among the collection of books recently given to the college library by Professor M. F. Landwer, of the Tech Biology department, are a large collection of German novels, written in the German language. The other books in the collection are on various subjects.
