GRAIN BIN FIRE

Haskell Firemen spent most of Tuesday afternoon controlling and extinguishing a fire located in the top of a 2.5 million pound grain bin. The bin, located at Nine-Point Grain, was filled with milo and firefighters and Nine-Point employees worked about four hours before extinguishing the fire.

Personal to Haskell
Postmaster Joe Alves:

Dear Joe,

Please hold my mail for a few days, I need the rest.

You see, one day last week, I received a news release in the mail which dealt with "Planning Your Next Move". No big deal, right? Or so I thought at the time.

It just so happened that shortly after arriving home from work that afternoon, my grandmother from Coleman called and asked if I would help move their furniture to a new home in Decatur.

Strictly a coincidence.

Sure enough, Monday's stack of mail included a news release called, "Coping with Insomnia", and you guessed it, Monday night was sleepless.

At least the midnight trip to the office to retrieve the news release netted some good suggestions on what to do when you can't sleep.

Tuesday started out normal enough and little attention was paid to an interesting release on preventing grain dust fires and explosions.

When the fire call at Nine-Point Grain came in, I immediately started to question my luck.

Seconds later, dragging a fire hose up the side of a 2.5 million pound capacity grain bin, I started to question my sanity.

Four hours later, with the fire out, I started reflecting on these and other similar occurrances and decided that my life would be much simpler without such events.

Now, I realize that special requests are hard to handle, but if instead of holding all my mail, you would be so kind as to simply sort through the bundle and hold only those specific items which could cause future problems, it would be appreciated.

The only bright spot in the whole incident was the receipt of a release titled "Living In Happiness with Old Age", keep the good news coming.

Thanks in advance for your cooperation.

Commissioners Discuss 1983 Taxes And Budget

Tax collections and proposed expenditures were the major topics of discussion during a day long session of the Haskell County Commissioners Court Monday.

Commissioners heard Kyle Wilfong, Chief Appraiser of the Haskell County Appraisal Office, explain that the total value of all property in Haskell County would not be available until after the County Board of Review meets later this month.

Following the Board of Review adoption of values, Commissioners will be presented a list of values and will determine the tax rate. Wilfong explained that the rates placed on notices mailed last week were estimates only and that taxpayers should carefully check the value of property and not the estimated tax. He told Commissioners that the estimates were required by law but that in all probability, each taxing entity would change the rates and that taxes would probably be different than the amount of the estimate.

According to Wilfong, the County levied a rate of 32¢ per $100.00 valuation last year and that in the estimate he (Wilfong) had lowered the rate to 16¢ per $100.00. He added that after the computer statements were received, it appeared that the rate could be reduced still further to generate the same amount of tax money next year.

Members of the Court also spent about three hours in a budget workshop discussing planned expenditures for next year.

Commissioners decided to budget salaries for 1983 at the same amount as 1982 and in an item review of the proposed 1983 budget, raised very few items.

In other business, members of the Court approved a proposed County Disaster Plan as submitted by Tom Watson, County Disaster Coordinator and reappointed election judges for General and Special Elections.

Consider Values, Not Estimated Taxes

Representatives of the Haskell County Appraisal Office have mailed notices to all local taxpayers showing the appraised value of all property in Haskell County.

Chief Appraiser Kyle Wilfong told the Free Press that the primary purpose of the notices is to inform property owners of the appraised value. He asked that anyone who disagrees with the appraised value contact his office as soon as possible. Any obvious error will be corrected or information furnished which is requested by the taxpayer.

If the property owner still disagrees with the value, he is invited to meet with the County Board of Review which will meet July 19-23 beginning at 9 a.m. each day. The Board will meet in the Appraisal Office.

Wilfong emphasized that the values are what should be considered and that estimates of tax rates and tax estimates are exactly what they say they are—estimates. He added that when the estimates were made, there was not sufficient data on which to base an accurate estimate.

Following the Board of Review, each taxing entity will be provided with a list of values and tax rates will be set at that time.

Carver, Drinnon Exchange Marriage Vows In Candlelight Ceremony

Sharla Jean Drinnon and David Wayne Carver exchanged marriage vows Saturday at 7:00 p.m. in a candlelight sevice at the First Baptist Church, Haskell.

The Reverend David Bradshaw of Slidell officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cleatus W. Drinnon. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Carver of Rochester.

The altar was decorated with two spiraled brass candelabrums holding 15 tapers each, twin brass heart candelabrums holding 17 tapers each, and a center arch candelabrum with 15 tapers and emerald greenery.

Dual wicker baskets containing gladiolas and carnations decorated the sides of the altar. Brass hurricane lamps tied with pink ribbon marked the pews.

Matron of honor was the bride's sister, Mrs. Brian Toliver, and Miss Vickie Wallace was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Misses Debra Carver of Lubbock, sister of the bridegroom; Kim Griffith; Terri Welsh and Rochie Reddell. Misses Robin Harrell and Melissa Davis, cousins of the bride, were junior bridesmaids.

The bridegroom's cousin, Miss Amy Carver of Knox City, was the flower girl, and his brother, Chris Carver of Rochester, was ring bearer.

Candlelighters were David Drinnon, brother of the bride, and James Davis, cousin of the bride.

Dennis Carver of Rochester was his brother's best man. Groomsmen and ushers were Rayland Hayes of O'Brien; Deveris Holmes, James Beauchamp, Dennis Stegemoeller and Nathan Cockerell, all of Rochester.

Miss Kristie Hannsz registered guests.

Music for the ceremony was provided by Mrs. Ken Lane, organist; Miss Kiersta Lane, flautist and Miss D'Anne Burris and Mrs. Tim Gross, duettists.

The bride wore an original gown from the House of Bianchi in candelight leon chiffle lace from France.

The Empire bodice of imported Belgium net had a queen collar that stood high traced with tiny seed pearls, paillettes and crystals. The bodice was enhanced with appliqués of re-embroidered Alencon lace, and the long tapered sleeves of net and lace were beaded.

The controlled full skirt, with deep scalloped hemline, was embellished with pearls, paillettes and crystals. The Watteau train was cathedral length.

Her matching hat in candlelight was heavily appliqued with Alencon lace, beaded and had a softly draped blusher. Her veil with scattered pearls fell cathedral length.

The bride carried a candlelight fan, made by her aunt Mrs. Mike Harrell, of Alencon lace with tiny seed pearls and satin bows. Cascading burgundy silk roses and baby's breath completed the bouquet.

For something borrowed, she carried a handkerchief of Mrs. Cyle Carver's, the bridegroom's grandmother.

She also carried handkerchiefs from her grandmother, Mrs. Robert Drinnon; her great-great grandmother, Mrs. Vicy Ann Turnbow, and a special friendship handkerchief.

For something blue, the bride wore a birthstone necklace given to her grandmother, Mrs. Robert Drinnon on her eighteenth birthday. Both have September birthdays. The necklace had been worn by three of the bride's aunts, Mrs. Mike Harrell, Mrs. Bill Reeves, and Mrs. Lavoid Robertson, on their wedding days.

For something new, the bride wore a gold bracelet with a gold heart, a gift from the groom.

For something old, she wore the wedding ring of her great-grandmother, Mrs. R.D. Lackey, and the engagement ring of her grandmother, Mrs. Woodley Davis.

In her shoe, the bride had a sixpence given to her by Mrs. W.A. Lyles.

The bride's attendants wore formal length gowns of feather-light polyester taffeta in misty rose. The fitted bodices were fashioned with scoop necklines, outlined with a double ruffle of taffeta and accented with small self roses. The full skirts were held with cummerbunds of soft folds of taffeta.

The junior bridesmaids' dresses were identical in design but burgundy in color.

Each attendant wore silk tea roses and baby's breath mounted on a comb in her hair.

The flower girl wore a formal length gown of candlelight taffeta accented by puffed sleeves. She carried a crocheted basket with burgundy and rose silk flowers.

The ring bearer carried a fillagree silver tray with a small satin pillow for the rings. He wore a candlelight tuxedo.

The groom wore a candlelight tuxedo and his attendants wore burgundy tuxedos.

The bride embroidered handkerchiefs for both her mother and the groom's mother and placed them in the pews. She also presented both mothers with a long stem red rose and a kiss.

The mother of the bride chose a Jo-Ed sophisticate original of mauve polyester chiffon. The groom's mother chose a pink gown with a soft pleated skirt accented with a lace bodice.

Parents of the bride hosted the reception in the church fellowship hall.

Receiving the guests were the bride and groom and their parents.

Dusty rose satin and lace covered the bride's table which held a three tiered cake bedecked with flowers. Pink fruit punch, mixed nuts and white chocolate rose and leaf mints were served from silver appointments by Misses Terry Kuykendall and Rinette Vincent.

Burgundy satin and lace covered the groom's table which featured a two tiered hexagon chocolate cake decorated with miniature fruit.

Burgundy fruit punch, mixed nuts and dark and white chocolate mints shaped like bells were served from brass appointments by Mrs. Rayland Hayes of O'Brien and Mrs. Deveris Holmes of Rochester.

Miss Kiersta Lane served mock champagne from a silver fountain, and Mrs. Tim Gross served coffee from a silver samovar.

A sculptured fruit arrangement highlighted the two food tables covered with candlelight lace cloths. Rolled turkey and ham, assorted cheeses, sausage balls, olive balls, deviled eggs and black olives were served from silver appointments by Misses Mynea Jones, Cam Klose, Tamara Parrott and Sara Starr.

Other houseparty members were Mmes. Doug Armstrong of New Mexico, Joel Bevel of Rochester, James Davis, Robert Drinnon, Mike Harrell, Olen King, Jim Pope, Bill Reeves, R.A. Shaver, III of Rochester, Bailey Toliver, Brian Toliver and J.W. Wallace.

Mrs. Donnie Rieger provided the music during the reception.

Following tradition, miniature boxes containing bite-size pieces of fruit cake were given to unmarried guests.

Adam Carver of Knox City, cousin of the groom, distributed pink and burgundy silk rose rice bags from a decorated wicker basket. Adam was attired in a burgundy tuxedo to match the groomsmen.

The bridegroom's parents hosted the rehearsal dinner at the Haskell Country Club. Each table was covered with a red and white checked cloth, and hurricane lamps lighted the room. Guests were served lasagna, marinated green beans, tossed salad, french bread and cheese cake by Mmes. Eddie McKeever, Frank Markey, and Jack Medford.

Thursday, Mrs. J.W. Wallace and Vickie hosted a bridal dinner. Members of the houseparty enjoyed chicken salad, fresh fruit, assorted crackers, tea and cheesecake.

The bride is a 1982 graduate of Haskell High School, and the bridegroom is a 1980 graduate of Rochester High School. He is self-employed at Carver's Fina in Knox City.

Following a wedding trip to Possum Kingdom Lake, the couple will live at O'Brien.

After a magnificent performance by a great violinist, one of his admirers said to him, "I would give my life to play like that." The violinist said, "I did." Remember, you get out of painting, or any other craft, only what you put into it. During your studies, use color exercises, patience and perseverance and - discipline. Refer to your dictionary for the definition of "discipline". Change the colors on your palette, avoid monotony by using a range of Victorian colors, then all warm colors or all cool colors. Sketch frequently, add variations to that same sketch, simplify it or abstract it. As you gain proficiency, your personal touches will begin to appear in your paintings. Be honest with yourself, no one can by any more, and no one should be any less. Soon your paintings will begin to reflect you!

Q. What are the primary colors? The secondary colors?

A. The primary colors are those from natural pigments and cannot be made by mixing any other colors. These are red, yellow, and blue. the secondary colors are those made by mixing the primary colors. Red and yellow make orange; yellow and blue make green; red and blue make purple.

Q. What is the characteristic of Burnt Sienna?

A. Burnt Sienna is a fast drying and semi-transparent color. It is used to glaze when you desire a warm area; mixed with Ultramarine Blue it makes the richest deep green available. Add this mixture to your color notes - on how to make greens.

Q. I have trouble painting ocean waves. Hints, please!

A. Knowledge gained from visiting the shore and observing the roll of the waves is invaluable. Living in this Big Country does not permit this often so we have to depend on seascape authorities - those who live in a coastal area. Rolling water, huge waves billowing against rocks and settling into calm foam at the beach is an interesting study for a canvas. Two books that are in my library are "Marine Painting in Oil" by John Robinson and "Seascape Painting Step by Step" by Borlase Smart. You may use these for your reference, if you care to.

HINT: "There is precious instruction to be got by finding we were wrong." - Thomas Carlyle

Interest Your Toddler In Kitchen Play

Do you worry what your toddler is doing while you are busy in the kitchen? Do you feel that you must keep him in a play pen to keep him out of trouble while you are putting away the groceries or washing dishes?

Growing Child, the monthly child development newsletter, suggests arranging things for safe play in the kitchen or involving him in your work.

SAFE KITCHEN PLAY

Be sure that all potentially harmful substances-cleaning compounds, detergents, metal polish, furniture polish, anything your child might swallow-are carefully out of his reach. Knives and other sharp objects should be unreachable, pot handles turned in.

Now just look around your kitchen and you will find any number of safe things for play and learning. A cardboard carton turned on its side makes a house or a cave; on its bottom it can be a car or a boat or just a comfy place to crawl into and count your treasure.

Pots and pans and spoons make wonderful music. A collection of light-weight packages or cans will make Toddler's very own pantry shelf. A round cereal box or empty coffee can rolls almost like a ball. Empty cans with tops and bottoms removed are fun to look through, and small ones fit into or will drop through larger ones.

A salad basket or a small plastic pail will serve to carry treasures from here to there. Empty paper towel or bathroom tissue rollers can be looked through. Measuring cups and spoons fit together and come apart endlessly and in many combinations. Small cardboard boxes make good hiding places for small toys and fit inside larger boxes.

HELPING

There are times when the sights and sounds and smells of your cooking operation are very attractive to a toddler, and he is apt to come in just to see what is going on. These are moments when you might wish he were in another room and not underfoot. But instead of saying, "Go away, Mommy's busy", why not take a moment to involve him, in a small way, in what you are doing?

As Toddler hangs around, probably sucking his thumb, take note of what you are doing. Is there any action or part of an action than he can do? If you are opening a can, hoist him up and show him how the handle of the can opener turns, then leave the handle in a position where he can make about half a turn himself by pulling it toward him.

Then set him down, finish opening the can and show him how the lid can be raised to reveal the contents. You might point to the picture on the label, say "Peas", or whatever, then dip out a few peas with a spoon and hold them beside the picture. "See, here are the peas." The significance of the picture as an indicator of the contents will not be lost on him.

Now you can bring the pan down to his eye level and show him how the can's contents are poured into the heating pan. Pouring is and will be a fascinating operation to him, and he might well be shown the pouring anytime he is around. His hand is too small to hold the can, even with your guidance. But you can give him the empty can, with the lid safely folded in, and direct him to drop it in the garbage sack.

How many jobs should a toddler participate in at one session? He himself will give you that answer. He will stay with you for one or more activities, then seem to lose interest and wander off. But that's so that he can digest what he has experienced. He has to ponder the idea that grownups pour and stir things, and push buttons. You may even see him pouring and stirring with new purposefulness in his self-play not long after he has helped you in the kitchen. There will be times, of course, when you are too rushed to let him join in your activities, and in these cases he must accept the idea that you have nothing for him to do. But on more relaxed occasions the kitchen can serve as a center for new experiences, an interesting place where important things happen, and where he has a chance to learn about the way big-people things are done.

The Growing Child newsletter follows a child's development month-by-month. For more information on the social and physical development of children from birth to six years old, write to Growing Child, PO Box 620N, Lafayette, IN 47902. Include child's birthdate when writing. A year's subscription to the newsletter costs $11.95.

SELF-CONTROL CAN BE THE SMARTEST THING YOU DO THIS SUMMER...

Self-control can be the smartest thing you do this summer. Sometimes you have to cut down on the things you like, that takes self-control. Self-control is important when you overindulge in too many calories. . . . or when you over cool your home. It can be rough on your pocketbook if you set your thermostat too low on hot summer days. WTU recommends setting your thermostat at 78 degrees or higher. Clean or replace your air conditioner filter at least once a month so your unit will operate as efficiently as possible.

Stop by your WTU local office today, and pick up your FREE copy of "Make your Home More Energy Efficient" you'll be glad you did. . . .

RECEIVES GRANT

Lillie M. Wall of 1503 South First Street, in Haskell, received a cancer grant from the Independent Order of Foresters this week. In Haskell to make the presentation was Pedro M. Robeldo, Assistant Director Manager of the Wichita Falls Office.

ICA Sets Round-Up

Hundreds of ranchers across the state have begun donating calves and other livestock for the Independent Cattlemen's Association's statewide calf sale July 17 in Hallettsville.

Doc Hagan, owner of the Hallettsville Livestock Commission Company, has donated his facilities for the fundraiser to begin at 10:00 a.m. Saturday.

ICA President Roy Wheeler invites all livestock producers to participate. Funds raised through the calf sale enable ICA to continue its work for legislation beneficial to the agriculture industry. Enforcing stricter imported meat inspection, delaying implementation of the 1982 brucellosis regulations and exempting livestock from taxation are a few of the results of ICA work made possible by funds from the 1981 statewide calf sale.

"We thank all of those who have helped with donations in the past and urge them to double their contributions this year," said Wheeler.

The sale will be preceded by a cattle drive party Friday, July 16 from 7-12 p.m. at the Knights of Columbus Hall in Hallettsville. Complimentary food, drinks and dancing will be offered to all calf donors and friends of ICA attending.

Auctioneer for the sale will be Clyde Holdcroft of Pleasanton. Transportation director is Sedley Martin of Leesville. To make arrangements to have calves transported to the sale, donors may contact Martin at (512)424-3381 or the association office at (512)836-1321.

Spring Rains Create Beautiful Wildflower Patches

Late spring and summer rains which devastated croplands in West Texas have transformed uncultivated areas into bright, blooming patches of wildflowers.

One of the best places to see them is the 14-acre Ranching Heritage Center of The Museum of Texas Tech University where groundskeepers carefully leave unmowed patches to Mother Nature and her ways.

There are cultivated red yucca but also bright spots of wild, lavender Tansy asters -- otherwise known as Tahoka Daisies or Machaeranthera tanacetifolia.

Botanist David K. Northington points out that it is difficult to describe wild plants by their common names "because everybody has a different name for the same plant."

What is Mexican hat in East Texas, for instance, is a prairie cone flower in West Texas. Its Latin name is Ratibida columnaris and it is known by that name even in Europe where gardeners cultivate it.

The Verbena that grows wild in Texas is one flower recognizable to almost any gardener, however. It is smaller than the cultivated verbena and comes only in one shade -- pink-toned lavender.

"West Texas wildflowers are commonly less spectacular than the flowers of other areas of the state," according to Dr. Northington, a member of the Texas Tech University biological sciences faculty and director of the Texas Tech University Center at Junction.

No bluebonnets grow wild on the western plains, for instance, and the showiest blooms may be the white, waxy flowers on the tall bear grass (Yucca) stalks.

For some of the other wildflowers, you have to look closely.

Northington called attention to the ground cherry Physalis vicosa -- with its bell-shaped pale yellow bloom almost hidden under its leaves -- and the delicate Stephanomeria with its sticklike foliage speckled with lavender-blue flowers.

Common in most areas of Texas is Trompillo, called by many the silver leaf nightshade and cultivated by gardeners where it won't grow wild. It, too, has a bell-like lavender flower with a deep, butter-yellow center. Seed pods are hard little decorative spheres, making the plant attractive in each of its seasonal stages.

There are the yellow daisies of several varieties, the tiny lazy daisies, the yellow and the pink evening primroses, and the Shrankia, or sensitive briar, with its spherical pink flowers.

Of special interest at the Ranching Heritage Center are plants and trees brought to the site because they relate to one or more of the historic structures restored there

There are red oaks and live oaks, mistletoe, pecan trees, small leaf elms and, by the picket and sotol house, the sotol plant -- with the stalk used by Indians and pioneers to build -- and several clumps of sacahuiste grass, which furnished the material to thatch the picket and sotol house roof.

PILOT BALL LINER for a perfect thin line everytime. Extra fine tungston ball point. Available in blue, red or black. Perfect for bookkeeping.

New Chemical Controls Fire Ants

Ants -- imported fire ants, specifically -- present a lethal danger at worst, a serious nuisance at best to 18 to 24 million homeowners and their families as well as to farmers and other landowners across the southern tier of the country from Florida to Texas.

Originally introduced into Alabama from South America, they are now considered the most harmful ant pest in North America.

They can kill family pets, newborn calves and even humans who may step on their mounds. At the very least, the swarming insects will inflict painful, burning bites that often cause allergic reactions and are prone to later infection.

Imported fire ants will burrow into thick animal fur or crawl inside the tightest clothing to bite at unprotected flesh.

The prolific and voracious pest is capable of rendering infested rural, suburban and urban areas virtually unusable to normal activities.

Imported Fire Ants already infest lawns and gardens, parks and pastures, rangeland and croplands totalling over 230 million acres in Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North and South Carolina and Texas.

They have occupied this vast area in just three human generations. And the menace is growing.

The ants breed while airborne and blow where the winds take them. Wherever a fertilized queen alights, a thriving colony soon emerges. Mating flights occur in the summer months and the process is repeated, literally multiplying the problem and infesting new territory.

This situation recently brought some 100 scientists and environmentalists together in Atlanta for a 4-day symposium sponsored jointly by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

Participants heard the latest reports on the only environmentally acceptable fire ant insecticide bait presently available. It feeds them to death, and has been shown in extensive testing to be 90% effective when applied as recommended.

Called AMDRO® fire ant insecticide, it was developed in a 5-year research program by American Cyanamid Company scientists working with federal and state agricultural officials in the south.

The new insecticide is non-toxic to birds and other wildlife, and will not persist or leach in the soil.

Registration by the Environmental Protection Agency is limited to use on lawns, flower gardens, turf, pastures and other non-agricultural lands. Registration for use on croplands, including home vegetable gardens, is expected this year.

AMDRO is a slow-acting insecticide bait that becomes part of the fire ant food chain. Worker ants are attracted to it, collect and distribute the bait throughout the colony. Eventually it reaches and kills the queen and the colony dies out, usually within six to eight weeks.

A survey of consumers who used the material earlier this year recorded these results:

65% of respondents rated AMDRO to be 8 or higher on a scale of 1 to 10 (10 is excellent, 1 is poor).

75% said that the insecticide performed as well as or better than expected.

75% indicated that they would probably or definitely use the product again.

AMDRO Fire ant insecticide is available in 1- and 25-pound bags at garden centers, hardware and farm supply stores.

White Grub Treatment Needed For Lawns

May or June beetles are emerging from the soil and starting to swarm late in the evening. Females are laying eggs and white grub worms that hatch will soon be feeding on roots of bermudagrass and St. Augustine grass in home lawns. Once grubs begin feeding, control measures should be taken, says Max Stapleton, county agent with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Treatment time varies with the particular area of the state and ranges from early July in South Texas to mid-August in the Panhandle. Homeowners in Haskell County will need to treat around the first of July. Timing of application is critical for adequate control.

White grubs in excessive numbers can heavily damage lawns, notes Stapleton. Check for white grubs by cutting a square foot section of sod with a shovel and examining the roots and soil to a depth of 4 inches. Examine at least one square foot of sod for 1,000 square feet of lawn area. Chemical treatment is needed if there are more than four grubs per square foot of sod.

Diazinon or Dursban provide adequate control and should be used at recommended rates given on the chemical container label. The granular form is easier to apply and to wash into the soil than liquid or spray formulations. After using granules, drag the grass with a tow sack or water hose to knock them down to the soil. Then apply enough water to soak the granules into the soil.

Apply diazinon sprays at the rate of 25 gallons of water, including the insecticide, per 1,000 square feet to wash the insecticide into the soil. Wetting the lawn before spraying also helps. Always keep children and pets off the treated lawn until the grass is dry.

The key to white grub control in home lawns is proper timing of chemical applications and getting the insecticide through the grass to the root zone where grubs are feeding, emphasizes Stapleton.

Further information is provided in the publication, "White Grubs in Texas Turfgrass," available at the county Extension office.

Public Notice

Southwestern Bell, in accordance with the rules of the Public Utility Commission of Texas, hereby gives notice of the company's intent to implement a new schedule of telephone rates in Texas, effective July 27, 1982, unless otherwise determined by the Commission.

It is expected that the requested rate schedule will furnish a 13.4 percent increase in the company's intrastate revenues.

A complete copy of the new rate schedule is on file with the Public Utility Commission at Austin, Texas, and with each affected municipality served by Southwestern Bell, and is available for inspection in each of the company's public business offices in Texas. The Commission staff has contended in the past that all rates are subject to change as a result of Southwestern Bell's rate application.

Notice to El Paso Area Customers

Effective January 1, 1982, Southwestern Bell adopted the Mountain States tariffs in effect for El Paso County. Southwestern Bell proposes to merge the separate El Paso tariffs with its tariffs applicable to the rest of Texas. The resulting new rate schedule is on file with the PUC and the El Paso area municipalities served by Southwestern Bell, and is available for inspection at our El Paso business office.

Notice to Customers of Other Telephone Companies

The filing includes, but is not limited to, proposals to increase rates for interexchange private line and foreign exchange (FX) service. Changes in such rates would also affect customers of other telephone companies because such companies provide interexchange private line and foreign exchange service in accordance with rates specified in Southwestern Bell's tariffs. While Southwestern Bell has proposed no increase in long distance rates, any change in those rates would also affect customers of other telephone companies.

Aviso Público

Southwestern Bell, en conformidad a las reglas del Public Utility Commission (Comisión de Servicios Públicos) de Texas, por la presente hace saber su intención de establecer un nuevo arancel para servicio de teléfono en Texas con vigencia a partir del 27 de julio, 1982, a menos que la Comisión haga otra determinación.

Se espera que el nuevo arancel que se ha solicitado rendirá un aumento de 13.4 por ciento en los ingresos intraestatales de la compañía.

Una copia completa del nuevo arancel se ha archivado en las oficinas del Public Utility Commission en Austin, Texas, al igual que en cada municipalidad afectada y servida por Southwestern Bell, y cada una de las oficinas de la compañía para negocios con el público en Texas tiene una copia para lectura pública. En el pasado, la Comisión ha sostenido que toda tarifa está sujeta a cambios que resulten de la manera en la cual Southwestern Bell aplíque sus tarifas.

Aviso a Clientes en la Región de El Paso

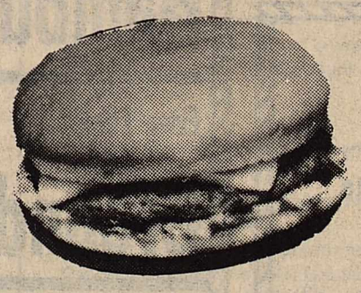

Con vigencia a partir del 1o de enero de 1982, Southwestern Bell ha adoptado las tarifas de Mountain States efectivas en el condado de El Paso. Southwestern Bell propone unir las tarifas de El Paso con sus otras tarifas que se aplican al resto de Texas. El nuevo arancel que resulta de ésta union se ha archivado en la Comisión de Servicios Públicos (Public Utility Commission), al igual que en las municipalidades de la región de El Paso servidas por Southwestern Bell, y está disponible para inspección pública en nuestras oficinas de El Paso.

Aviso a los Clientes de Otras Compañías de Teléfono

El registro incluye, pero no se limita a, propuestas para aumentar las tarifas para servicio de línea privada entre centrales telefónicas (interexchange private line) y servicio de central telefónica extranjera (foreign exchange FX). Cambios en dichas tarifas de servicio tambien afectarían a clientes de otras compañías de teléfono porque dichas compañías proveen los servicios ya mencionados en conformidad a tarifas especificadas por Southwestern Bell. Aunque Southwestern Bell no ha propuesto un aumento en las tarifas para larga distancia, cualquier cambio en las mismas tambien afectaría a los clientes de otras compañías de teléfono.

Arranging Space, Time And Menus Maximizes Efficiency

FROM LOU GILLY
County Extension Agent

Has continuous "kitchen duty" drained your energy and time banks?

"Maximize" your efficiency with steps designed for saving time and energy -- especially human energy -- in meal preparation.

Identify ways specific jobs can be performed using the least amount of time and energy to increase efficiency.

'Workable' Kitchen A 'Must'

A good way to begin is by spending some time organizing your kitchen. Arrange storage and work areas so that equipment and supplies are within easy reach.

This will save steps across the kitchen each time you need something.

Tools A Key

If you've been struggling along with prehistoric tools, maybe now's the time to replace them.

Proper equipment and utensils that get the job done -- and knowing how to use them -- will go a long way toward time-and-energy savings.

For instance, using a blender to grate and crumble bread and cheese takes less time than hand grating or grinding them.

Granted, new equipment does cost more money initially, but most items, if chosen wisely, will be one-time investments.

Time Matters

Another factor to consider is time spent in the kitchen, both busy time and "watching time" -- the latter often wasted.

Instead of standing idle, use "watching time" to prepare other meals.

For example, make up juice for tomorrow's breakfast, sandwich fillings for tomorrow's packed lunches or salads and desserts for tomorrow's dinner.

In order to prepare as much food -- with as little energy -- as possible, maximize time and energy -- both human and fossil-fuel energy.

Prepare a roast large enough for two or three meals, or make two pies and freeze one. Prepare enough of your favorite casserole for two meals and freeze half. This way you've saved not only time but also energy.

Be sure to estimate time needed to prepare each item in the meal. This will help you determine in advance the order of preparation.

Clean-up Conserves

One of the greatest enemies of efficiency is procrastination. Don't put off cleaning up, but instead save time by cleaning as you work. This will provide you with more clutter-free space.

Soak used utensils and equipment immediately or place in a dishwasher. Dried-on foods are difficult to remove from utensils, so avoid waiting to clean them.

Assembly Line 'assists'

Another way to save time is with the assembly-line approach -- perform all tasks of one kind at one time. Do all trimming and peeling before starting to chop, or measure all dry ingredients before wet ones.

Menu Plan Saves

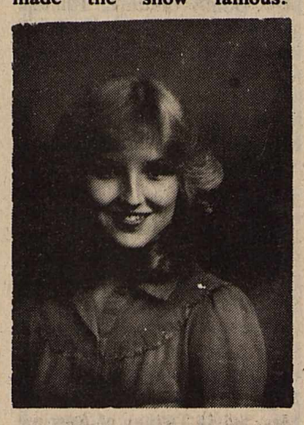

Menu-planning can also save the cook time and energy. Planning ahead helps determine the length of meal preparation, and it ensures efficient shopping.

New Ideas Help

Finally, to control the use of time and energy, be receptive to new ideas. Try new meals, recipes or even methods of cooking and baking that save time and energy. Also try out new products that are time savers.

Lisa Soloman To Appear In 'Texas'

The "Texas" Musical Drama opened June 16 of this year and has been drawing large crowds ever since. As of June 19, more than 5500 people have been treated to the spine-tingling sound, light, and pagentry that have made the show famous.

LISA SOLOMAN

Nestled near Canyon in Spectacular Palo Duro Canyon State Park, the Pioneer Amphitheatre annually hosts visitors from all of the United States and many foreign countries.

This season is the seventeenth for Paul Green's drama of pioneer farmers and cattlemen, told by eighty singers, actors, and dancers with support from sixty technicians and hospitality personnel.

"Texas" has something for everyone. Handsome cowboys, proud Indians, pretty girls, and dogged farmers all have their moments to star. But the land itself is the real hero. It shapes those who dare to live on it, and "Texas" is the story of the pioneers' struggles for, and with the land.

"Texas" will play every night except Sunday through Aug. 21. To get more information about the show, or to reserve tickets, write Box 268 Canyon, Texas 79015 or call 806-655-2181.

Beginning in January, hundreds of applicants auditioned for places in the company, and those selected have been rehearsing since May 23. Several of those chosen have roots in this area.

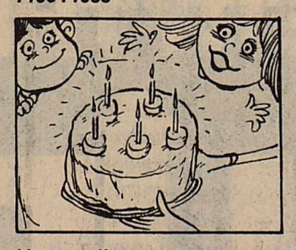

Lisa Soloman, of Haskell, will be a singer in the production. She is the granddaughter of Pearl Soloman.

Grain Dust Explosions Can Be Prevented

Within the past three years, 43 grain elevators have exploded, causing 85 deaths, many serious injuries and hundreds of millions of dollars in property damage and production losses.

"While grain dust explosions are complicated, they can be prevented," says Dr. Gary Nelson, safety engineer with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

"Grain dust explosions are the result of a rapidly burning fire inside an enclosure," he explains. "Fuel, air, an ignition source and a closed container are the necessary ingredients for an explosion."

Eliminating any one of the four ingredients can prevent an explosion, says Nelson, while eliminating fuel, air or an ignition source can prevent a flash fire.

Since grain dust provides the 'fuel' that can lead to a flash fire or elevator explosion, dust control can be a key factor in preventing such fires or explosions," points out the engineer.

Precleaning grain before it enters the elevator should be considered to help control dust, says Nelson.

Other steps that would help control dust include transferring grain throughout the elevator as gently as possible to avoid creating additional dust, using exhaust ventilation systems at transfer points and other locations to remove airborne dust, and sweeping, mopping, vacuuming or otherwise removing grain dust that has not been removed by ventilation systems.

"If precautionary measures fail and an explosion does occur, two things can minimize damage," Nelson says. "These are explosion suppression and explosion venting."

Explosion suppression involves advanced technology where pressure-sensitive electronic equipment detects the beginning of an explosion and releases extinguishing chemicals, all in about 60/1000 of a second--less time than an eyeblink. These systems should be considered for key locations, advises the engineer.

Vents at key positions also help minimize explosion damage by acting as safety valves to prevent the buildup of high, destructive pressures.

Nelson also advocates a systems approach to designing new elevators and altering existing structures to reduce the risk of explosions. This calls for continued research to determine which preventive measures will reduce the explosion potential to a minimum level at minimum cost.

Research is needed regarding the development of ventilation system design guidelines for grain elevators, he adds. Current guidelines are either lacking or too general to be useful.

"Research and education are inseparable parts of preventing grain dust explosions," Nelson says. "Research produces information and education carries it to the public, in this case those operating grain elevators. Current complex jargon and opinions used by experts must be translated and interpreted to produce some practical understanding and guidelines for the industry.

"While grain dust explosions are difficult to prevent because of their complexity, certain measures can significantly reduce explosion risk," Nelson says.

Letter To The Editor

I wanted to express my thanks to the Haskell Volunteer Fire Dept. for a quick response to my call Saturday morning -- they came quickly and without hesitation, did what needed to be done. A fire was avoided - but they were kind to call later in the morning and offer to help clean up the fire extinguisher powder that was all over my store.

Just an expression of gratitude to an outstanding Fire Department.
