Number 48.

EARLY TEXAS RANGER SPENDS WINTER HERE.

M. G. Coyle and wife of Houston, Mo., left the first of the week for their home, after spending the winter on the W. H. McKee ranch.

Mr. Coyle was a member of Company D, of rangers that were stationed here when the county was organized in 1876. The camp was located on the bank of Bear Creek, about one half mile above its mouth. At that time Capt. Dan Roberts was in charge of this company of some twenty-five rangers who patrolled this section of the country against the aggression of lawless men and wild Indians.

Mr. Coyle is familiar with many interesting bits of early history in this country. At the time he was stationed here Major John B. Jones was Adjutant General of Texas and Sam Ross was Governor. Major Jones visited each of the ranger companies once a year, and according to his statement, this section of the country was the worst in the entire State, not excepting the border country, or those sections which were continually terrorized by gangs headed by such men as Sam Bass. The Potter and Dublin boys and many others of like character, who lived in this country at the time, were a source of more trouble for the law abiding citizenship than were the Indians.

Numerous accounts of the killing of Sam Bass have been written, and a number of different men have been given credit for putting this young desperado out of the way, but according to Mr. Coyle, Geo. Harold, a member of the ranger company stationed in this county, is the man who killed Bass. Harold was transferred from Company D to Company E, when men were being chosen to capture the Bass gang. This was shortly after Company D had returned from the Mexican border, where they had been for patrol duty around where the little town of Loma now stands. A Mexican bandit had been captured by rangers at El Paso and was being held in jail there. A body of Mexicans from beyond the Rio Grande had come across and demanded the prisoners, expecting to carry him back across the river and execute him. The rangers refused to give the man up. A fight followed in which the jail was torn down, seven or eight rangers and about forty Mexicans killed.

This precipitated a state of uneasiness in this State and it was thought for a time that there might be war between the United States and Mexico, and as a consequence, several companies of rangers were ordered to the border.

Capt. Roberts, who is now past eighty three, lives near Llano. He was in the famous Pack Saddle fight and for gallantry in action, was awarded one of the first rifles ever seen in this country. He carried this rifle with him while commanding his company in this country.

Mr. Coyle and several other rangers were at Beaver Lake, having followed a raiding party of Indians that way, when another Indian raid was made near what is now Ingram, when four children were killed.

In 1876 to '78, when Mr. Coyle was stationed here, there was only one or two business houses here. One saloon was located about where the Schreiner-Hodges Co. store now stands and another, the Double O, was located just west of the court house. The court house then was only a small frame building but was at the present location of the stone court house.

The postoffice was on the southwest corner of the block on which the filling station is now located, and was a small picket house.

During court the prisoners were usually kept on this block also. When a considerable number were being held, a long chain would be put out in a fashion similar to a picket line for horses. Heavy shackles would be locked to the prisoners' legs, after the chain had been placed between them, and all prisoners would be held by the same chain. At one term of District Court, eighteen prisoners were held this way.

The late John C. Townes, Dean of the Texas University Law School, was one of the first District Judges to hold court in the county after it had been organized.

Killings and other law violations were numerous then. On one occasion, Mr. Coyle said, he had come into town for the company mail, and had stopped by the Double O saloon. As he entered he heard two men quarreling. They were both drunk and each threatening to kill the other. He asked them both to take a drink and told them to quit quarreling and go home, and thought that they would forget their trivial difficulty, but shortly after he left they again engaged in a quarrel that a few minutes later led to the killing of both men. The one who fired first hit the other in the heart, but the wounded man was able to draw his gun and before the first man could get away, shot him thru' the head.

Mr. Coyle remembers well the first election held here. Most of the interest centered around the election of a sheriff. The opposing sides, one styled the "cowboys," representing the lawless element, and the other the "white man's side," were very bitter against each other, and the election was contested. For the first few years a number of sheriffs were in office, each for only a short time.

PARENT-TEACHERS MEET.

The Parent-Teachers Association met last Wednesday afternoon at the Baptist church.

After the reading of the minutes of the last two meetings, by the secretary, and reports of the different committees given in, unfinished business was taken up.

A letter was read by the secretary from the president of the Parent-Teachers of the Seventh District, asking that a delegate from Junction be sent to the convention at Fredericksburg. This was voted upon and Miss Austin Durst was elected as delegate to represent our association.

Since Mrs. Beddingfield is leaving soon, Mrs. W. P. Riley was nominated president in her place. A rising vote of thanks was given Mrs. Beddingfield for her faithful service as president of the Parent-Teachers' Club.

A motion was made to give prizes to the winners in the contests at the Hill Country Meet in Kerrville, March 21, and 22.

An interesting program was given as follows:

Reading—Christine Schraub; Piano Solo—Verena Lawler; Reading—Marjorie Montgomery; Piano and Violin Duet—Lois Hankins and Natalie Lowrey; Reading—Florence Boone.

The first and second grades tied in the picture contest, and it was decided to give each a picture.

The sixth grade got the flag for the month.

The next meeting will be held at the Baptist Church Monday, March 24th.

D. Roger S. Parry was here last week. He has located in San Antonio and Mrs. Parry and Mary Ellen will soon move there. Parry was born in 1879, in Missouri. He says the past few years have seen wonderful changes take place here and he predicts even greater ones in the near future, as the natural resources have hardly been started on the development that must follow.

He and Uncle Billie McKee were boys together and have continued the closest personal friends throughout the many years that they have been separated.

NEW MACHINERY FOR BAKERY ENSTALLED.

The Lone Star Bakery has recently installed a Peerless bread mixing machine at a considerable cost.

Notwithstanding the fact that they have been unable to secure a suitable building that fully meets the requirements of a first class bakery, Mr. and Mrs. Pettitt have been making every effort to render first class service to their bakery patrons.

This new machine, which cost nearly $400, is a great labor saver, as it will mix 1½ barrels of flour to the proper consistency in about six minutes, whereas it takes two people nearly four hours to do the same work by hand. The machine weighs over 1,300 pounds and is operated by a 1½ horse power electric motor.

With this added equipment it will be possible to bake more than 1,000 loaves per day. Many times this amount could be mixed, but there is only oven room for this number.

This bakery is now sending bread to Roosevelt and Sonora, and will likely be able to take care of the local demand and supply the whole county in the future.

BIG EVENT AT KERR- VILLE NEXT WEEK.

In this issue appears an advertisement of the big Rodeo and round-up at Kerrville from the 27th to the 29th. Harold Jones, manager, was here Tuesday advertising this event which is expected to be the biggest ever staged in the Hill Country.

This is given under the auspices of the Garrett-Baker Post of the American Legion at Kerrville, and preparations have been made by this organization to take care of an exceptionally large crowd.

More than one thousand extra seats have been provided at the old Fair Grounds and the Kooee Grounds will be well lighted for night performances.

Mesdames Jennie Patterson and Guy Wynne are in Fort Worth this week attending the State meeting of the Odd Fellows and Rebeccas.

RECENT RAINS COVER THE ENTIRE COUNTRY.

Saturday night weather reports received here by radio, stated that it would be cooler Sunday and that rains over the western part of the State could be expected. Those who have been watching the radio weather reports and have found them so reliable in the past, began to think that the "signs" were going to fail this time, but the rain as predicted, was only a little late, as a heavy rain, accompanied by a considerable wind and some hail, began falling early Monday morning and continued several hours, amounting to 2.10 inches. Frequent showers Tuesday and Wednesday brought the total up to around three inches, for the week.

While the temperature did not drop to freezing point, it was low enough to prove very disagreeable for fresh shorn sheep and goats.

North Llano rose about six feet and South Llano about two, which prevented the Telegraph road from making its return trip Tuesday.

FORD CAR LOST IN LLANO RIVER RISE.

Last Monday after the rain, Assistant County Engineer D. Pope, was returning to Junction and drove into the six mile crossing on North Llano, just as the rise was coming down.

Seeing that it would be taking too much of a chance to stay with the car any longer in an effort to drive it across, he decided to get his engineering instruments and leave the car.

The rise which amounted to some five or six feet carried the car down stream several hundred yards. The Coupe body was torn off and lost, but the chassis was found and brought into town Wednesday and was still intact.

The rise greatly interfered with John Braley's concrete crew but all the equipment and material were moved out ahead of the rains.

CHATAUQUA DATES SET APRIL 25TH-28TH.

Mrs. J. C. Beddingfield, president of the Parent-Teachers' Association, states that the Cadmean Chatauqua people have set the dates for the Junction Chatauqua for April 25th to 28th, inclusive.

There will be one performance on the 25th and two on each of the other days, making seven altogether.

The program will not be received for several days yet, and the Parent-Teachers' Association is not able to give definite information about the different numbers, but the public is assured that every number will be one that will be well worth attending.

SYSTEM FOR GRAD- ING OF MOHAIR

Adams & Leland, Boston selling agents for the National Mohair Growers' Association, recently prepared the following "Outline of System of Grading." It will be mailed to shippers, but is of value to all mohair growers.

It is extremely difficult to explain the difference between the various grades without showing samples of each. There is a material difference after grading, but to anyone not familiar with the grades it appears to be just "all mohair."

To begin with, it must be understood that the various grades are trade names. Short kid and long first, second, and third kid must be shorn from a kid and must be the first clip from that kid. The second clipping is not kid. Mohair sheared in the fall from the goat born in the spring of that year is kind hair, but the clip from the same goat the following spring is pearling hair and cannot be classed as kid.

Mohair is graded according to length, fineness, luster and color. The long kid grades and the combing grades are usually of 12 months' growth, or from goats shorn once a year. The finer grades and short kid grades are usually 6 months' clip or from goat shorn twice a year, the hair being much shorter in staple than the combing grades. The discolored and inferior carding grades contain both short and long staples. The difference between combing and carding is a difference in length only; the first combing and first carding correspond in fineness, but first combing is of good length and first carding is shorter. The same is true of second combing and second carding.

Now a word as to sorting:
This is done by hand by experienced men who have become experts in this work usually by serving as apprentices in mills either in this country or in England. Mohair must be sorted over a screen with a fan so arranged underneath as to draw down all dust and dirt. This is for the protection of the sorters, and usually the loss in weight in a shipment is the weight of the dirt drawn down by the fans.
The work of each sorter is carefully gone over by a head sorter
in order to keep the various grades uniform. Therefore, the mohair is practically sorted twice.

Twelve Months' Hair.

First Long Kid—This is a grade from absolutely first shearing. It is very fine and 6 to 10 inches in length.

Second Long Kid—The same length as first long kid, but not so fine; 100 per cent first shearing.

Third Long Kid—Same length
as first and second, but much coarser than second long kid;
100 per cent first shearing.

Fourth Long Kid—This is simply a trade name. It is goat hair of long staple, good luster and density; little coarser than first combing, but longer and more uniform in staple.
It usually sells for the same price as first combing.

First Combing—This is made up of doe and wether hair of good quality and luster. The length is 6 to 12 inches, and is the finest of the 12 months' grades except long first, second and third kid.

Second Combing—This grade is much lower in quality than the first combing; includes the coarser 12 months' from older does, wethers and bucks.

Six Months' Hair.

Short Kid—This is made
from first shearing, pure kid,
very fine and soft, high in quality and is 2 to 3 inches staple.

Medium Staple Kid—This is a trade name. It contains pure kid hair, first shearing, length 3 to 5 inches. Also there is included exceptionally good fine
rearing of the same length,
with the characteristics of kid,
but this must be from good stock. If this rearing lacks luster or is of poor color it goes into first carding.

First Carding—This grade is identical in fineness to the first combing, although it usually looks finer because of its shorter length of staple, and is not so valuable as first combing because of its being shorter. The length is from 2 to 5 inches and is made from a finer goat hair.

Second Carding—This is identical in fineness with second combing, but is shorter, being from 2 to 3 inches in length.
It is much coarser than first carding.

Burry—This consists of heavy straw, chaff, seedy and hard and soft burrs. Burry mohair generally sells at one-third the price of the same grade that is free from burrs. It pays to keep the burrs out.

Black and Discolored—This grade consists of all qualities long and short staple, kid and old goat hair that is stained or that contains black or gray hair.

Inferior Kid—This is kid hair containing dead hair called kemp, and therefore cannot be classed with regular grades.

Inferior Carding—Both 6 and 12 months' goat hair with large percentage of kemp, the shearing from common or old run-out goats.

It should be borne in mind that all the hair of a kid does not necessarily grade a 100 per cent kid. There is usually a skirt or britch that has to be thrown down to a lower grade.

The order the goat, the condition of the hair is, and of course,
the lower the price for that hair.
High-priced mohair cannot be expected from old or run-out goats, nor will a few high-priced bucks change the quality of the hair in one season or two.

Luster and the lack of it in mohair may be illustrated by comparing a brilliant day with a cloudy day. Only well bred goats will produce hair with good luster.

In sorting, there are what are called "line dealers," mohair that is too low to go into one grade and too fine for the next grade lower. Luster and color determine which grade they go into. If of good luster and color, they are thrown up to the higher grade, and if of poor or no luster or of dark, dingy color they are thrown down to a lower grade—Angora Journal.

THE EDITOR'S INNING.

Editors are natural born boosters—they can't help but be so constituted. Also they are long suffering and frequently take abuse and stand for misrepresentation by the wholesale, without a cheap. But sometimes the vials of wrath run over—and then the editor has his inning. Out in Shackelford County there was a road bond issue election fight on and, of course, Editor McCartney, true Irishman that he is, was heart and soul in favor of the issue. While in this frame of mind, he was asked to print a communication from one of the opponents of the issue. He did so, and here it is:

"I want to say a few words to the taxpayers of Shackelford County, it should be able to reach a definite conclusion on this matter easily.

"Do you want to pay more tax? Do you feel that you are now paying enough on property you own? Don't you really believe your present taxes are too high? Well, if you vote for the road bonds, you will get one thing certain, more taxes. If you vote for the bonds, you are simply using your vote to raise your own tax, as well as that of your neighbors.

"I think it is time for taxes to be lowered, instead of being raised. Don't be surprised if a few of your intelligent friends vote for the bonds. You know that a great many people have the majority of their wealth in tax exempt securities, and of course they are not hurt very much by high taxes.

"If you vote for the bond issue, don't let us hear you complaining of high taxes any more. The time is here when we must learn to say NO! If we don't we will simply have to suffer for our folly.—N. A. Brooks."

Having absorbed this complainant's statement to the fullest extent, Editor McCartney thereupon took his linotype in hand, and composed the following touching reply in his paper, the Albany News:

"In reply to the above. Dear Brother Brooks:—In reading your letter over the first time, it touched our sympathy very much, because our heart has always been with the poor man—that's our crowd—especially when they are weighted down, and living under great tax burdens like you related in your article, and after reading it, we wiped a stray tear from our cheek and went on a stroll to drive the sorrow away. But after second thought, we decided that we would look up the records and see about your awful (?) condition, and this is what we find writ in the county records: You own 250 acres of fine Shackelford County land, and find that you paid $4,670.00 for that farm, two sets of improvements, and you rendered it for $2,500.00. We find further, that you are one of those town farmers, yes, moved to town and paid $5,000 for your home, and the 1923 tax rolls show that you rendered this $5,000 home for $800—gee, boy! no wonder you are tax-ridden. We further find your taxes, State, county and school, amount to $85.42. And we find further that you have three children, that is, you had last year, three children on the scholastic rolls, therefore, the State lays down in your lap $36 for the education of those children; besides the State furnishes you free text books, we suspect $10 or $15 worth. Now really Bro. Brooks, you are one of these fellows who wants to milk the government cow and don't want to furnish any hay. And we are thinking about getting Congressman Tom Blanton to introduce a bill and have you put on the pension roll."

The above reminds the Eagle Editor of the recent school bond election. There were men here who lost many days' work in their zeal to help defeat the move for a good school. Several of these men, to our own knowledge, pay less than $10 State, County and school tax, yet they have from two to five children within school age. They have been content to allow others to pay for maintaining our highly organized form of government and for the scant education that their children have received so far, and are unwilling to allow other people to pay for still better educational facilities for their children, under their supposed intentional objection to a higher tax that does not and cannot affect them but very little.

After the election carried over their objecting votes, what happened? Seven of them were the very first to apply for work, at good wages, on the building. Not willing to pay a few cents extra tax, but right on the job when the other man's money is to be spent.

These very men to whom we refer could make more profit on a month's labor than they would pay in increased taxes in five years.

It is a great world, after all! A THOUGHTFUL SENATE.

The Senate of the United States did a gracious thing the other day when it refused to confirm the nomination of W. L. Cohen, a negro, as collector of the port of New Orleans. Cohen was appointed by President Harding over the protest of both the Louisiana Senators, and his appointment rejected by the Senate. One of President Coolidge's first actions was to renew the appointment, again over the protest of the Louisiana Senators and the people of New Orleans generally and the Senate the other day again refused confirmation. There are probably posts in the Federal service to which negroes could be named without any protest, because they would be so located as to be unobjectionable to those coming in contact with such positions. But the people of the South certainly are not to be included therein, and it has always been a mystery why Republican administrations, professedly seeking to break up the Solid South, should repeatedly undo everything that has been done in that direction by such actions as the New Orleans matter, which, as they should know, from previous experience and knowledge of the South, bring about an immediate and increased solidification and impose a tremendous handicap upon the Republicans of the South in every way.—Denton Record-Chronicle.

The early citizens of California, that were the fore-runners of the "Native Sons" found very little in the way of natural resources or attractive landscapes in that country. Something had to be done; they had to make a living; they had to attract people from the East. This they have done, and done so well, too, that the whole world accepts their statements as true, that California is a veritable paradise.

They have not put all their time in on blowing their own horn either. They have set their hands to work and have made a garden spot out of a desert, because they were willing to contribute time and money towards a development that they knew would ultimately make California famous.

Kimble County has a thousand times as many natural beauty spots as California, but the world hasn't found it out because we have been content to drift along. It takes time and money to place the advantages of a country before the public.

What will our beautiful streams and mountains do for us unless we can let the world know about them. We have an unlimited opportunity here if we'll get together and pull together for the good of all.

Elsewhere is an account of the recent trip of W. F. Kellis to California. He is right: Boosters are Builders; or it might be reversed, Builders are Boosters. We are sleeping on our rights by our lack of the co-operative spirit of the California Builders and Boosters.

The Textile Milling Co., of Marble Falls is a reality and not a dream. The preliminary work is going steadily forward under the direction of men whose business ability and integrity is above criticism—men who stand out in the financial world as giants. The prediction is freely made by men in touch with the details of the enterprise, that the mill will be in operation by the close of the year, and possibly by November 15th. Very little publicity is being given to the mill project, in fact, the promoters say they have nothing to give out. "Seeing is believing," they say, and in due time the public will begin to see the material and equipment unloaded from the cars and hauled to the building. The enterprise is assured, folks and nothing short of a calamity will keep it down.—Marble Falls Messenger.

BOOSTERS ARE BUILDERS.

Bill Kellis, editor of the Sterling City News-Record, recites some interesting truths as to what may be accomplished by man when he sets his hand and heart to accomplish a task.

Kellis found his impression of this fact while on a recent visit to California. In his own words, this is the story:

"First, we didn't dream there were so many oranges in the world as there are in California. We had heard of the great schemes being worked out and executed there, but we never imagined they were so huge and grand. The old gold miners returning from California used to tell us of the Mojave and San Joaquin deserts and the sandy wastes between the Sierra Nevada and the Pacific Ocean—and they told the truth. But if they could see it now, what a sight it would be to them. As far as the eye can reach, they would see a vast garden which no man can describe. When I saw this and remembered that there was once a sandy, desert waste, and that every tree and shrub within my view was planted there by man—when I considered that man had bro't the water down out of these lofty mountains with which to water each tree and shrub, I said: 'This is a man-made country, but he made a marvelous job.' When I saw those lofty mountains clad with the tallest and oldest trees in the world and covered with a mantle of snow, I said: 'That is a God-made country, and when he finished it, it became His masterpiece.'"

"Every man, woman and child in California is a booster. They left their hammers east of the Sierras; and if you go there, you had better do the same, for if anything makes a Californian sore, it is to meet a knocker. They boost and expect you to boost, and if you don't boost, you had better take the next train to Texas. They have the best roads, the best schools and the finest public buildings in the world. Their taxes are about 700 per cent higher than they are in Sterling, but they pay them and point to their roads, schools, canals and public buildings and say with pride: 'There is what we get in return for our taxes.'"

"If a bunch of those fellows were to settle in the rich valleys of the Conchos—where God has done so much for the country and man so little—in ten years from that date, all California would be rushing here to see the wonders of this historic land."

ONE WEATHER REPORT MAY BE WORTH MANY TIMES THE COST OF A RADIO SET.

These reports are given out daily and can be depended on... If you knew when a cold norther was coming, or a snow or rain storm, you could arrange to protect your livestock—especially your fresh sheared sheep or goats.

A thorough demonstration will cost you nothing and will prove the pleasure and profit that you can get from a radio receiving set.

If you contemplate the purchase of a set, we shall be glad to demonstrate one to you any night

NEW YORK SCULPTOR TO USE TEXAS CLAY.

San Saba, March 8.—Prospectors digging for mineral deposits in the Colony community, about 10 miles southeast of San Saba, accidentally discovered a vein of clay at a depth of 20 feet.

This clay, being of most peculiar texture and color, a sample was sent to the pottery department of the College of Industrial Arts at Denton, where a test of its value was made, with the report that it is without a trace of grit and molds and fires excellently, carrying the beautiful natural color.

The department asked for a quantity of the clay with which to make demonstrations in pottery to establish the facts of its endurance.

A request has also been received from the studio of Pompeo Coppini, noted sculptor of New York City, asking for generous samples of this clay, having heard of its smooth, pliable texture, to test in modeling statues to later be cast in bronze.

PRACTICE OF "TOUCHING WOOD" ANCIENT CUSTOM

Many people, after they have boasted of their good luck, proceed to "touch wood." So did our remote ancestors, the tree worshippers.

An authority on such matters wrote: "The remarkable similarity in customs all over Europe points to the conclusion that tree worship was an important element in the early religion of mankind, especially of the Aryan stock, and the singularly uniformity of rites and ceremonies which can easily be shown to exist in widely separated countries warrants us in believing that they cannot have changed much from very remote ages; and that practices continued down to a very recent period—some even among ourselves—were substantially identical with the rites and ceremonies observed by Egyptians, Etruscans, Greeks and Romans."

The primitive belief was that spirits resided in trees. Without this basic idea being entirely lost there came the period of the sacred groves and the Druids' oaks, and then the dedication of certain sorts of trees to the earliest and simplest form of the superstition.

We touch wood to call the attention of the tree spirit to the fact that we recognize his influence in the good luck of which we boast and in order that he may not feel slighted and change our good fortune into bad; at least that is why our ancestors touched wood.—London Tit-Bits.

America's Marvels NATURAL AND OTHERWISE

By T. T. Maxey

DE YOUNG'S MEMORIAL MUSEUM

A habit of collecting antiquities led Mr. M. H. DeYoung, a public-spirited citizen of San Francisco, to build a museum in which to house his own and other collections and present it to the city.

Two appropriate buildings of Egyptian style, each 140 feet wide and 510 feet long, joined by a broad corridor supporting a beautiful tower, compose this museum. Salmon-tinted, and set down amid pleasingly landscaped gardens in Golden Gate park, this ensemble presents an imposing appearance.

The forty-five galleries contain more than one million objects. Their value is fabulous. The extent, oddity, variety, and completeness of the displays is amazing.

There are priceless oil paintings from the brushes of the masters; engravings of great value from many countries and of many periods; the celebrated Kunz collection containing specimens of every type of precious and semi-precious stone; coins from practically every country on the globe; a collection of reproductions of the great works of the world; a collection of drums, some of which may have called warriors to battle in far-off lands; samples of precious needlework and lace dating back to the thirteenth century; the great bronze vase of bronze, 10 feet tall, weighing about 200 pounds, which was found at Sargon's tomb; rich, rare, and beautiful; a pair of enormous lions in ebonstone, made for the Imperial palace at Peking, China; two giant bronze lanterns some ten feet tall, from the Temple of Nan-ao-San, K'iao.

The history of warfare of many nations is silently told by implements of destruction used from the time of the World War back to the days when men fought in armor. Here is a chair used by George Washington in 1793; there is a Japanese teakwood cabinet 200 years old; yonder the bell from the steamship Oregon that clattered forth the news that California had been admitted to the Union, and a battered piece of wood from the vessel on which Napoleon sailed from Elba to France. Mirroring the civilization of past centuries is a mummy which probably lived about 290 years B. C.; another is a tear bottle, it having been an ancient custom for mourners to preserve their tears as visible evidence of their grief. There is a collection of pipes from far-off lands that would make the mouth of any smoker run water, and other objects of a surprising nature too numerous to mention.

HOME TOWN PAPER BEST.

Chas. E. Blackwell, the most successful merchant in the entire State of Washington, has no faith in calendar advertising. He says: "There are many lines of publicity that the country store can use to advantage, but the one he can use to best advantage is his home-town paper. I venture to say that if the money spent each year for calendars and other knick-knack giveaways were invested—I say invested, not spent or donated, in carefully planned newspaper advertising, the actual net returns to the advertiser would be ten times as great, to say nothing of the advantage the small town paper would derive from the additional and much-needed revenue. And we know that as a business builder, it is without and equal in any town."

Weak Nervous

"I was weak and nervous and 'run-down,'" writes Mrs. Edith Sellers, of 406 N. 21st St., East St. Louis, Ill. "I couldn't sleep nights, I was so restless. I felt tired and not in condition to do my work. I would have such pains in my stomach that I was afraid I would get down in bed. My mother came to see me and suggested that I use

CARDUI The Woman's Tonic

I felt better after my first bottle. I had a better appetite. It seemed to strengthen and build me up. I am so glad to recommend Cardui for what it did for me. I haven't needed any medicine since I took Cardui, and I am feeling fine." Nervousness, restlessness, sleeplessness—these symptoms so often are the result of a weak, run-down condition, and may develop more seriously if not treated in time.

If you are nervous and run-down, or suffering from some womanly weakness, take Cardui.

SAINT PATRICK.

Far back in the mists of early history, there lived a robust old saint who is revered by the Irish people today. He must have had a most original personality, as something out of his commanding and winsome character has come down through all these ages, to influence the life of these times.

He must have been a statesman as well as a religious leader, and a man of great power and influence, as he is said to have founded 365 churches and to have put a school beside each one.

The Irish people, who have become so important an element in American life, look back to Saint Patrick with a peculiar affection, perhaps because he typified in so many ways the Irish temperament. The man who did so much to stamp out heathenism, who faced and overcame the perils of those savage times, must have been one of undaunted courage and cheerfulness, and these characteristics have been handed on to his descendants in America.

Some one has said that when an Irishman has a roof over his head, he sings, and if he doesn't have a roof, he sings, too. There is an imperishable good cheer in this race that has helped them to win their way.

Wherever you find the sons of Saint Patrick in the country, you find people who have taken hold of the hardest tasks with persistent industry, and a kind of smiling faith which has worked wonders. The first pioneers began on the most laborious tasks, they helped build our railroads and dig our ditches. Now they have risen to the highest posts in the nation and in business. The same dauntless spirit that carried old Saint Patrick through his achievements and drove the snakes out of Ireland, has today driven away the difficulties and obstacles that best the people who come to a new land.

Because of this spirit that is still present in the land, we celebrate the 17th of March as St. Patrick's Day.

COMPARATIVE.

In another ten years Texas will be so far ahead of California as a winter resort that the trains will not carry people through this grand State to spend their money in the much advertised coast resorts. Texas has California beaten any way one cares to compare them, and this fact is becoming known to the leisure class.—Garland News.

Southern California is experiencing a long and menacing drought. We do not use the term "suffering" because of the theory in California that nobody can suffer in that State. All their time is taken up with enjoyment, as we are told. Nevertheless, Southern California wants rain. It has had only one and one-half inches of rain since the latter part of last spring, unless the longed-for shower has come within the last few days. California can't do very well without water. The trees are beautiful but they have to have their drinks. Unless the reservoirs are replenished in winter, irrigation becomes irritation in the summer. Tourists in California gaze like all at the Pacific Ocean and imagine there is water enough for all. But back from the beach front, orchards and meadows and lawns and hydrants and hose pant for water like the biblical deer. Here in Texas, and while this paragraph is being written the weather is sending beautiful rain and beautiful snow alternately. Snowflakes as big as porcelain door-knobs are falling on the window sills of the atelier in which

State Press ates, so to speak. The Californians would do well to come to Texas. After the raucous outcries of their real estate agents, the modesty of Texans, the subdued and cultivated voices of our realtors, would be to the newcomers like glad sweet songs. Undoubtedly the Californians in Texas would miss their accustomed mountains, their bizarre bathing beaches and even their bizarre bathing beauties, but we have all those desiderables here, on modified lines. Our mountains may be less convenient, our bathing beaches less popular and our bathing beauties less numerous. Certainly the latter are more beautiful than their California rivals, although they may seem to bathe less continuously.—State Press.

ONLY GRIP! NOTHING MORE

Once upon an evening dreary, as I rested, somewhat weary, close beside my fireside thinking thoughts I'd often thought before; suddenly I fell to sneezing, then anon, it passed to wheezing, and my blood seemed slowly freezing, as it never had done before; all of this and something more. Ah! distinctly I remember how each bone and separate member seemed to shiver with pains fantastic I had never felt before. Presently the pains grew stronger and the chills that shook me, longer, striving every joint and marrow of by being to explore, and they shook me more and more. Suddenly there came a turning, all my blood within me burning, filled my veins with molten lead, loudly for help I did implore, and my head felt near to splitting, with stranger fancies thru it fitting, as if 'twas a train of demons from some dark plutonian shore, chanting as they passed before, "Tis the Grip and nothing more."—From My an Daily Eagle, March 7, 1899.

MANANA.

This is a Spanish word, pronounced "Manyana," languidly and leisurely, and is the most important day in a lazy man's life.

Manana means tomorrow. It is the watchword of the weary, the slogan of the slumb-rober.

Manana serves the sluggard instead of "pép". It takes the place of the "get up and git" of the hustler.

It is the day when the ne'er-do-well gets a job and the miser sends his wife to Palm Beach.

It is the day when the little boy wipes his feet before coming into the house, and the little girls ask to wipe the dishes.

It is the busy day and the first day on the wagon for the rum hound.

Manana is the day when we all rush around to pay our bills.

The next popular song will be: "Yes, We Have No Mananas Today."—The Mediator.

MERRY WIVES CLUB.

Mrs. L. L. Skaggs was hostess to the Merry Wives Club at the Fritz Hotel Thursday afternoon of last week.

Six tables of bridge were arranged. After several hands were played the scores were added and Mrs. George Braley received a blue cake box as club prize and Miss Sallie Ray of Dallas was awarded a deck of cards, the guest prize.

Mesdames George Braley and George Vierling, who were nominated and invited to become members of the Merry Wives Club at a previous meeting, accepted their nominations as members at this meeting.

Punch salad on lettuce leaves, sandwiches and hot tea, were served to the club members and Misses Marguerite Wright, Elsie Mathis, Modelle Jober, Clara Fritz, Lela Taylor, Mary Spiller, Emma Jane and Sallie Ray, Dorothy Madge, Dorothy and Ruby Stone, Mesdames W. P. Riley, A. L. Madge, Alex J. Hamer and Milton Carson of Brownwood.

LAF-A-LOT CLUB.

The Laf-a-Lot Club members and a number of guests were lavishly entertained last Saturday afternoon by Miss Modelle Jober at her home.

The room was decorated in green crepe paper and green candles. The ladies further carried out the St. Patrick's Day motif.

Miss Dorothy Madge displayed superior skill at bridge and received the club prize, a green Guernsey ware tea pot, while the guest prize, a cutesy set, went to Miss Ruby Stone. Miss Flora Mae Spiller was consoled with a potato pig with toothpick legs and a black spring tail.

Green jelled fruit salad on lettuce leaves, white and green cake, sandwiches, potato chips and hot tea, were served to Mesdames C. R. Stevenson, L. L. Skaggs, George Braley, A. W. Loeffler and Misses Ruby and Dorothy Stone, the guests, and attending members.

FAREWELL PARTY.

An enjoyable social event of the week was the farewell party given to Mrs. Henry Taylor by the Woodmen Circle at the pretty home of Mrs. Edgar Jordan.

Friday evening.

St. Patrick colors were carried out in the decorations and the soft green glow adding much to the beauty of the rooms.

Much merriment of the old-time contests and "speeches" by each only passed the hours too quickly away. A pretty toast by Mrs. Riley to Mrs. Taylor expressed the sincere regrets of the circle at the loss of such a valuable member.

Refreshments of sandwiches, angel cake and hot chocolate, were served to the following:

Mesdames Henry Taylor, Joe Pamey, Howell Wright, Annie Murrah, Phillip Joseph, Turk Kendrick, Lee Lowery, E. W. Holekamp, B. O. Newby, Tom Jones, W. P. Riley, Bob Motley, and Miss Doris Holekamp and the Hostess, Mrs. Jordan.

A PLAY PARTY.

Little Misses Maxine and Joyce Wright entertained a number of their playmates last Saturday afternoon from 3 until 5 o'clock, with a play party.

In the rope contest, Master Carlton Wright proved to be the highest jumper and was awarded a jumping rope. Many more games were played throughout the afternoon.

Pimento sandwiches, cake and lemonade were served to over twenty girls and boys. Popcorn was served later in the afternoon.

Miss Marguerite Wright assisted Mrs. Howell Wright in entertaining the little folks.

Outlook Good---

MOHAIR Prices good; wool prices firm; prospects good. Sheep prices advancing almost daily. With 58ct. mohair, goats will sell good.

NOTHING To worry about but FEED.

PROSPECTS were never better to raise feed. You would be surprised if you knew how much money goes out of Kimble County each year for Feed that could be raised at home with practically no expense

PLANT Plenty of cotton, but don't overlook planting plenty of FEED STUFF.
