BABE'S BROKEN BODY FOUND IN SEWER

Suspect Shot by Police in Raid on Postal Sub-Station

OFFICERS TRAP TWO LOCAL MEN EARLY FRIDAY

Monroe Street Pharmacy Broken Into While Police Watch

ONE MAN ESCAPES

Albert Reeves Shot When He Fails to Heed Command

An investigation by postal authorities may be made into what is believed to have been an attempt to rob the safe of the Monroe Street Pharmacy and United States sub-postoffice at 1516 Monroe street at 3:35 o'clock Friday morning, according to a belief expressed by Police Chief Frank Burns.

Claude Reeves was shot in an early morning encounter with police. Another man escaped from the drug store under a shower of bullets from the officers' guns. Reeves was resting well in the Wichita General hospital Friday night after surgeons had performed an operation and it was believed that his chances for recovery are good, according to information given Chief Burns by physicians.

Burglary Charge Filed

The bullet coursed from Reeves' lower left side through the lower abdomen, coming out just above the thigh.

Reeves was arrested at the home of a brother at 7 o'clock Friday morning, his movements between that hour and the time he was shot being a matter of conjecture among police.

The shooting occurred after officers Fred Stengel and A. L. Stubblefield had seen two men approach the pharmacy and after hearing them force their entrance by prying and beating the door with a padded sledge hammer.

Reeves was standing on the sidewalk in front of the drug store when the officers approached. He was ordered to raise his hands twice without complying, the officers reported. At the third command he raised one hand to a level with his head, keeping the other at his side, officers said.

Two Shots Fired

He made no motion after a fourth command, the officers stated and two shots were fired by Officer Stubblefield. Reeves fell to the sidewalk as the officers rushed to the entrance of the drug store.

Seeing the man inside of the store run to the back, Stubblefield fired two shots through the plate glass door while Stengal ran to the rear of the building.

The man broke the glass in a rear window by throwing the sledge hammer and other tools through it. He had just dropped to the ground when Officer Stengal reached the alley and called to him to halt. The officer tried to shoot towards the running man with a shotgun but the cartridges did not BREMEN, June 17.(AP)—Mrs. Clarence D. Chamberlin auctioned off the first bale of the American cotton crop for 1927 received in Bremen today. It brought 20,600 marks.

The auction, an annual affair, was conducted for the benefit of local charities. The bale of cotton was shipped here from Houston, Texas, for the occasion. It is stated that a bid of 1350 was made for it in the United States.

Before a large gathering of cotton brokers and spectators in the cotton boerse Mrs. Chamberlin conducted the auction in lively style. Bidding rose rapidly until 20,600 marks was reached for the bale which has a market value of only 400 marks here.

BYRD TO HOP SUNDAY NIGHT

Bad Weather On Atlantic Delays Take-Off

NEW YORK, June 17. (AP)—Unfavorable weather caused Richard E. Byrd to postpone his trans-Atlantic flight today, at least until Sunday night. That was the first moment he believed conditions could possibly be sufficiently improved to permit a hopoff.

With Charles Lindbergh's New York reception completed the last obstacle besides the weather has been removed from the Byrd flight. When Lindbergh made his flight to France Byrd announced that he would not take off until Lindbergh got back and later said he would not start until "the first flush" of the Lindbergh welcome was over.

BYRD WILL CARRY SURPRISE PASSENGER
By Universal Service.

NEW YORK, June 17.—One person in a million is going to be happy when he takes off for Paris with Commander Richard E. Byrd.

The other million, mostly girls, are those who have written to Byrd pleading that he take them.

The time of the hop-off is still indefinite, but it may be Sunday if the weather is right.

That Byrd will take a passenger was strongly hinted at Roosevelt field today, though the airman would not discuss it.

It is understood that this passenger will be an expert radio operator and will keep the world informed as the America soars over the ocean. No radio was carried by Lindbergh or Chamberlin and Levine.

That will make four men on the plane, America, when it starts.

Other members of the Byrd crew are Bert Acosta and George Noville.

It was just a month ago that Lindbergh made the flight alone.

Then Chamberlin and Levine crossed. Now four are ready to go on Byrd's plane. The trans-Atlantic air business is growing fast.

Byrd said today that he is getting from 50 to 100 letters a day from persons begging him to take them. Most of the letters come from girls. Some are prominent socially. Others are farm girls in the midwest. All plead:

"Please, please, let me be the first girl to cross the Atlantic in an airplane. I am not afraid of any danger."

Other letters come from mothers and many are well known business men. But Byrd has been forced to turn them all down—except one, whose name will not be revealed until time for the plane to fly.

"The fact that so many persons want to go with me shows that adventure is not dead in spite of what the realists say," Byrd commented.

"If they will put wings on the Leviathan I will take some of them."

Byrd's plane is ready for the flight. It has been inspected for the last time. It has stood all the tests. Nothing remains but for the weather man to give the signal.

ORDER 15,000 BALLOTS

Heavy Vote Expected In Election to Complete Highway System

The general committee to assist in creating sentiment favorable to the $1,110,000 road bond issue to be voted on June 25 was named with 50 members by C. E. McCutchen, president of the local chamber of commerce, Friday morning. Circulation of pledge cards to secure affirmative votes on the bonds was started by this and the steering committee of 11 members, following a meeting of this last group held at 10 o'clock Friday morning.

Other arrangements in the campaign to carry the election in favor of the bonds are being made by these committees, with the first plan that of securing the support of all civic clubs during the coming week. Each voter in the Wichita Falls Iowa Park road district No. 2 will have been reached through the work of these committees before the election date, it is affirmed.

15,000 Ballots

Anticipating a large vote on the Wichita county bond issue, E. P. Walsh, county auditor, ordered Friday 15,000 baloits for the election.

Although it is figured that there are less than 12,000 votes in the two precincts in which the election will be held, nevertheless, Mr. Walsh said that it was the policy of the county to have several thousand more ballots printed than considered needed due to the fact that a large number of the ballots are destroyed during the election and sometime sa larger vote is cast than anticipated.

TOY FOR SUICIDE

Man Uses Tiny Cannon To Kill Himself In Park

MILWAUKEE, Wis., June 17. (AP)—A toy cannon, an ingenious contrivance of springs, levers and odd bits of metal, which Emil Endler, 30, a machinist, had fashioned, was the agent he selected to end his life.

He loaded the lethal weapon with a pistol cartridge and pressed the trigger as he sat on a park bench last night, the bullet passing through his heart.

Police found a note near his body addressed to a Wilwaukee girl declaring that without her life "was not worth living."

The testimony was given by Ethel Lee, colored maaid formerly employed by Miss MacKaye. PAN-AMERICA FLIER VISITS IN NORTH TEXAS

Lieut. L. D. Weddington, Back From World Tour, May Be Called

ARMY IN CONTEST

U. S. Government to Enter Plane in Hop Over Pacific Ocean

Special to The Record News.

CHILDRESS, June 17.—"Aviators don't get gray hairs flying from Dallas to Hongkong," Lieut. L. D. Weddington, U. S. army air service and one of the U. S. Pan-America good will fliers told a representative of the Wichita Falls Record News Friday at Childress. He was being interviewed on the possibility of his taking part in the aerial race across the Pacific ocean now being arranged to outdo Colonel Charles Lindbergh's feat in hopping the Atlantic from New York to Paris.

L. D. WEDDINGTON

Lieut. Weddington, who recently returned to the United States after a 22,000-mile flight from Washington, D. C., to the principal capitals of South America and back, is in Childress for a visit with his wife and two children at the home of relatives. He is now in command of the First Photo Squadron of the U. S. army air service at Fort Sam Houston.

No Easy Task.

Weddington, who served in the Hawaiian islands for three years as an army aviator, declared to The Record News reporter that a flight across the Pacific to Hawaii or the Philippines is a task not to be lightly undertaken.

"When I was serving in Hawaii flying from island to island, it was often very difficult to find one's objective because of clouds and fogs which ruined the visibility. Imagine the difficulty of finding the islands, mere dots in mid-Pacific in a flight across the open ocean," Weddington observed.

"It will take an unusual navigator and a most excellent pilot, both, to make such a trip successfully. Aviators don't get to the age of gray hairs taking such trips," he added.

Praises Lindbergh.

According all credit to Col. Lindbergh for his epochal flight from New York to Paris, Lieut. Weddington pointed out that a non-stop hop to the Hawaiian isles or the Philippines will be a far more difficult feat. Weddington cited that with such a large objective as Europe to fly to, a pilot might go off his course but would hardly be able to miss reaching land at some point and soon find his bearings. In the case of a flight to the Pacific islands this would not be so easy, he said, as a slight deviation from a course plotted by dead reckoning, due to wind currents or errors in the plane's compass, would cause the flier to pass wide of his objective with no chance of correcting his course.

ARMY FLIERS TO TRY TO SPAN PACIFIC
By Universal Service.

SAN ANTONIO, June 17.—A non-stop flight to Hawaii is the army's objective.

The flight will be in charge of First Lieut. Lester J. Maitland, who landed at Kelly field late this afternoon in the huge tri-motored Fokker monoplane the army has secretly groomed for the dash across the Pacific.

Lieut. Maitland's flight companion will be Lieut. Albert F. Hegenberger, instrument expert, who is checking the maze of instruments on the flight to Crissy field coast.

Immediately upon its arrival at Kelly field, the big plane was placed under guard and not even Kelly fliers were permitted to peek into the cabin.

"Too much valuable baggage in there," explained Lieut. Maitland.

The plane will probably leave tomorrow for Los Angeles, according to the operations office.

Lieut. Maitland left Hat Box field, Muskogee, Okla., at 10:50 this morning for Dallas where they landed at 1:50 p. m. for fuel. The 200-mile hop from Dallas to San Antonio was made in a little more than three hours, the plane landing at Kelly field at 5:50 o'clock.

The Fokker behaved well on the flight, Maitland said, and when asked if the plane could successfully span the Pacific in one jump, countered with, "Why not."

Man Sought Two Years, Arrested After Giving Sheriff As "Reference"

Deputy Sheriff W. P. Timmons arrived in Wichita Falls Friday night with Howard Lahm in his custody, for whom he had gone to Abilene Thursday. Lehm is accused in indictments here of burglary and receiving and concealing stolen property, according to Sheriff W. G. Bralley, who said that the indictments were returned about two years ago.

Lahm, Sheriff Bralley stated, openly furnished information as to his whereabouts, but apparently did not know that he was helping officers in ending a two-year search for him.

Several days ago Sheriff Bralley received from a naval recruiting officer at Abilene a recommendation blank form with the request that he fill it out, as Lahm had submitted the sheriff's name for references.

The recruiting officer was advised that warrant was held here for the applicant and Deputy Timmons was sent to Abilene to return him here.

Lindbergh Reaches St. Louis Friday After Non-Stop Hop From New York

"Old Home Town" Will Give Formal Welcome To Atlantic Ace Today and Sunday

ST. LOUIS, June 17.—"Slim" is home. Colonel Charles Augustus Lindbergh arrived at Lambert field, from where he started his epic flight, at 5:36 o'clock today. It was just one short month ago that he left this field an obscure air mail pilot, only to return today as America's favorite living hero. He had flown without stop from New York. It was the last lap of the flight that spanned the Atlantic and made New York and Paris neighbors.

His appearance over the business district of the city was the signal for this town to start the greatest homecoming celebration in history.

Town Greets Him

From the time he was first sighted over Scott field, at Bellevue, Ill., flying in close formation with his escort of army planes until he disappeared over the western edge of the city, shouts, shrieks, yells and what have you coursed up through the air, until even he must have heard them, despite the roar of his motor.

The shimmering silver monoplane that carried the name of St. Louist to the great capitals of Europe, was first sighted at a few minutes before three. A shout went up from one of the high buildings. It was taken up by thousands of throats throughout the business district.

Paper flew from windows, literally covering the street. Ticker tape unrolled in spirals from windows. It was a far greater celebration than the Cardinals received when they brought the first world's championship to St. Louis in some 40 years.

Orders had been issued to not throw anything out of windows, but this order apparently was flung to the winds.

The people here love St. Louis, Lindy, and his plane. It is just naturally all St. Louis and that's all there is to it.

He's Back Home

Col. Lindbergh landed his great plane gracefully at Lambert field, while his army escort continued to

BOY, 17, FINDS INFANT CORPSE TORN TO BITS

Gruesome Discovery Made Friday at City's Sewage Plant

INQUEST IS HELD

No Clue Reported For Definite Trace Of Malefactors

The head and portions of the body of a white child was found on a grating at the city disposal plant shortly after noon Friday by Byron Sheffield, 17-year-old employe at the plant. The body of the child had been completely mutilated when passed through the crushing wheels in the sewage canals, and could be identified as human flesh only through shreds caught on the grating.

Justice of Peace R. V. Gwinn was called for an inquest by J. E. Glynn, night police chief. No verdict could be rendered. Judge Gwinn affirmed that the child had been born not longer than three days. No attempt can be made to trace the origin of the child.

The boy discovering the body of the child stated it was floated to the grating early Friday afternoon when he removed the head and buried it in a box until officers could be notified. Several employes at the plant witnessed the removal.

The Hines Mortuary ambulance was called, but was dismissed following Justice of the Peace Gwinn's report. What remained of the child was again buried by the boy who discovered it.

The skull had been crushed in passing the knives of the crusher and was badly bruised but undeniably that of the embryo of a white child. Features were well formed and little decay had set in at the time it was found.

Sheriff W. G. Bralley, E. L. Hoskins of the police force and G. W. Wright, plain clothesman, accompanied Judge Gwinn to the disposal plant. The body was found in one of the newer canals east of the old plant on the river bank. The plant is about one and one-half miles east of the city.

SCHOOL FUND CUT BY DAN

Governor Also Reduces Other Appropriations

AUSTIN, June 17. (AP)—Governor Dan Moody late today approved the educational, judicial, eleemosynary, and emergency appropriation bills after slashing an aggregate of $447,260 from the grand total of $30,944,441 in the bills as finally passed by the recent special session of the legislature.

The $16,344,586 educationtal bill withstood the heaviest cut, losing a total of $298,850 under the governor's blue pencil, which struck out many new positions, "need for which, he said, "cannot be more than speculative at present." The non-salary items vetoed can be provided from other funds approved in the various budgets, "or from local funds," he added.

A total of $109,700 was pared from the eleemosynary institutions bill carrying $9,003,872 as passed by the legislature, $30,760 was eliminated from the $715,386 emergency bill, while the $4,880,497 judiciary bill suffered a loss of only $7,950, amounts of most of its items being statutory.

Higher Schools Hit.

In the education bill, the cuts fell heaviest on Texas A. & M. college, Texas Technological college of Lubbock, and the University of Texas. Sixty four thousands dollars was carved from the budget of A. & M. college proper, and $3000 for foul-brood inspection in its experiment station system. The University of Texas budget was reduced $56,000 and the $10,000 item for a laboratory of physical therapy was eliminated from its Galveston medical branch's budget. Cuts in the Tech college budget totaled $45,000, falling entirely on proposed new instructors and employes, with exception of the $2000 lectures and entertainment fund, also eliminated.

The state juvenile training school at Gatesville was the heaviest loser in the eleemosynary bill, with total cuts of $38,700, of which $30,000 was for one of two new dormitories. A total of $29,800 was sliced from the Austin state school for feeble minded, including $18,000 for a new office building.

Furniture and office equipment items constituted the main eliminations in the judiciary and emergency bills. Twenty-nine thousand five hundred dollars came from the Texas university medical branch, Galveston, budget, for furniture and for a new nurses home, in the latter bill.

Twenty thousand dollars were sliced from the budget of the College of Industrial Arts, Denton, in the education bill. Of this sum $13,000 was proposed for repairs and improvements, and paving and walks.

$31,000 Normal Cut.

The Prairie View normal and Industrial college for negroes budget took a cut of $31,000, mainly building repair and equipment, drive way and automobile truck items.

Declaring that it would "be a doubtful policy for the state to begin courses of instruction for cosmeticians at the girls' training school," Governor Moody pared from its budget $900 a year for a cosmetic instructor and $1000 to equip a beauty parlor. These items provoked considerable levity in the house during the unsuccessful efforts of Representative Farra of Waxahachie to eliminat them. He held that delinquent girls "should not be taught things not even available to our good farm girls" and was accused facetiously by Representative Holland of Houston of having been detected in a Laredo, Texas, beauty parlor, "with a manicurist working on each hand."

"Father's Day" Window Entered in Contest

Describing the window as the most beautiful and appropriate in Texas, the front, center display window of the Hub clothiers will be entered in the national contest for the prettiest window of the nation on Father's day neckwear, according to Sol Lasky, vice president of the firm.

The window was designed and decorated by Ardell Thomas. Two immense silhouettes of father wearing massive ties of beautiful patterns form the background. Surrounding neat window cards are many and varied pieces of neckwear, mounted on display stands and showing to excellent advantage. Window displays at the Hub are in charge of Harry Walker. This particular window, however, Mr. Walker says, is the accomplishment of Thomas.

Wife Of Slain Man Faces Jury

the fight, which resulted in Kelly being sentenced to one to ten years for manslaughter, Geisler said.

"The fight," declared Geisler, "Brought Miss MacKaye and Raymond together and they became reconciled. And it eliminated Kelly forever from her life."

The colored maid, who had been called as the first prosecution witness, related in the course of questioning that Miss MacKaye had returned home from a drinking party at Kelly's apartment to find her husband battered and bleeding from the blows of her admirer's fists.

Raymond, in a faltering voice, told his wife how he had been beaten by the dashing young screen actor, the witness said, ending with the remark:

Calls Him Darling.

"Well, darling, I hope everything will be all right after this."

Miss MacKaye, the maid said, answered him tenderly:

"Yes, darling, it will."

Then Raymond, the witness said, murmured:

"Well, the curtain is down."

The maid, who, except for four-year-old Valerie Raymond, was the only witness to the fatal encounter, previously had recounted how Kelly entered the Raymond home and began to talk to Raymond, who had been drinking, about Miss MacKaye. The resulting argument ended in Raymond taking a terrific beating at Kelly's hands.

An intimation thtat the defense will put forward a theory that Raymond's fatal injuries were caused by a fall against his bed was given when Ethel Lee, on cross examination, was asked concerning the structure of the bed.

The witness, cross-examined, said the Raymonds had often borrowed money of her, once in the sum of $1000. Asked why, on the day of Raymond's death, she did not lend money to Miss MacKaye, she admitted Miss MacKaye had not asked her for a loan.

Blows Are Fatal.

County Autopsy Surgeon A. F. Wagner, who followed the maid to the stand, testified that an autopsy had shown thtat Raymond had died of a subdural hemorrhage caused by blows on the head. On cross-examination he was asked if Raymond's fatal injuries could not have been suffered in falls from his bed.

Max Wagner, a friend of Kelly, testified concerning drinking parties at Kelly's apartment, attended by Kelly, himself, Miss MacKaye and her friend, Helen Wilkinson.

The trial will be continued Monday afternoon.

Lindbergh Flies To Saint Louis

roar overhead. He taxied his plane but a short distance, and then halted.

He was back.

And that was the signal for 7,000 rain bedraggled person to start their celebrating. They rushed at the plane, despite police lines, but were finally held back. The rush at Le Bourget field could not have been greater.

Then Lindy climbed out of his little cabin and smiled the famous smile that thrills you. Another yell. He saw Mayor Victor Miller and Governor Sam Baker.

"Hello," he said.

He climbed down and was photographed. He was welcomed by Harry Hall Knight, president of the St. Louis Flying club, that had the faith to finance the greatest expedidition in history.

Lindy answered his welcome with his characteristically short speech, and then waving his hand at the crowd that had waited through rain to greet him, and giving instructions to Lambert field attendants about the care that should be given his beloved plane, he was taken to an automobile, where his mother was waiting for him.

She had come to St. Louis from New York in a special train, arriving last night.

Celebration Saturday

They were then taken to the Knight home where Col. Lindbergh will rest in preparation for the arduous celebration that awaits him tomorrow and Sunday.

Newspaper men tried in vain to get to Lindbergh to get him to say something about his New York to St. Louis hop, but he was well guarded by national guardsmen.

Once inside the automobile, the curtains were drawn, and he was driven through a long line of cheering people, but they did not get a glimpse of him.

Officers Shoot Burglar Suspect

discharge. He then fired several shots with his pistol.

Officer Stubblefield, hearing the other officer's shots, ran to the alley and joined the chase but the man made good his escape.

When the officers returned to the front of the store, Reeves had disappeared and was not located until later in the morning when his father, L. E. Reeves, 502 Scott avenue, telephoned police that his son was at his brother's home.

Ambulance Called

Officer Seph Gardner and the wounded man's father went to the house, calling an ambulance as soon as they arrived. Claude Reeves told officers that he had been under a door-step at a residence near the scene of the shooting for two hours before going to his brother's house.

Frustration of the apparently intended robbery was credited by police officials to a system inaugurated about three weeks ago by which a more thorough covering of the city by officers is reached.

Number of men on the night patrol which has adopted a policy of watchful wating rather than patrolling, has been greatly increased, it was stated. This was the first attempted robbery since the night patrol system was inaugurated.

Recently Arrested

Reeves was arrested by police several weeks ago with two other men as they alighted from a car near a collection of tools in the residential district. Two officers had taken a place of hiding near the tools after finding them.

One of the men escaped from the city jail the following night while Reeves escaped a day later but was recaptured within two hours. The other man is still at liberty.

OFFICER TO FACE CHARGE

Complaint Made By Chief In Wounding of Boy

On the advice of the district attorney's and county attorney's offices, a charge of aggravated assault was preferred Friday against O. A. Robertson, city motorcycle officer, in connection with the wounding of Daniel Lujan, 12-year-old Mexican boy Wednesday. Chief of Police Frank Burns signed the complaint against the officer.

Bail of $250, set for Robertson pending trial, was furnished by Police Chief Burns, N. M. Clifford, W. R. Duke and Thomas C. Noble.

Chief Burns stated Thursday that he did not intend to file charges in the case, as the shooting of the boy was entirely accidental. At a conference held Friday, however, Chief Burns made the complaint on the advice of county and district attorneys.

The youth was wounded Wednesday while running from a bakery truck near Spudder park. Officer Robertson said that he shouted to the boy to stop, and fired his gun over his head. One bullet struck Young Lujan in the arm when he thrust out his hand, officers reported.

LINDY GIVEN NEWS RECORD

Accurate Story of Flight Bound in Volume

By Universal Service.

NEW YORK, June 17.—"Reporters are hard-boiled, all right," in opinion of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, "but," he hastened to add, "they certainly have co-operated with me. I guess they are hard-boiled only on the surface."

The flier's remarks, the first anybody has heard him make about the attention he has been receiving from the press of the world, were his smiling rejoinder to a speech last night by M. Koenigsberg, president of International News Service. At Lindbergh's temporary home, 270 Park avenue, Mr. Koenigsberg presented to the airman a handsomely bound volume containing in exact reproduction all the dispatches International News Service carried over its wires from the day an unknown young mail pilot prepared to hop off from San Diego, through last Monday, New York's unprecedented holiday in honor of a new hero.

150,000-Word Volume

The volume, Mr. Koenigsberg said, contained 150,000 words.

"No single individual ever caused so many words to be sent over press association wires within so short a space of time," said Mr. Koenigsberg. "This is one world record that perhaps you did not know you held. Furthermore these 150,000 words is not a single word of unfriendly criticism. That is, I am sure, a record absolutely unique, and even more remarkable than the mere volume of the news that has been printed about you.

"This is a tribute to you, sir, to your character, your fine American manhood, your peerless courage and unequalled skill. But it is at the same time a tribute to the American public. We are grateful to you for confirming our faith in American newspaper readers. For the eagerness, the avidity, with which America has demanded to be told about you with trainloads of ink and mountains of paper proves that America still loves the gallantry, the skill and the pure and modest heart that were the world's ideals in the days of knighthood and chivalry.

"This is a fine thing to know.

Ideal of Manhood

"It involves responsibilities. America looks upon you as the embodiment of its highest ideals of young manhood. The sense of that might oppress another man, searching his heart and soul with misgivings. But it need not weigh upon you, Col. Lindbergh, because the only responsibility it brings to you is simply to go on being yourself.

"Col. Lindbergh, from the day you prepared in San Diego to hop off for New York until the sun set last Monday upon New York's greatest day of celebration—everywhere you went were I. N. S. men. They watched you narrowly. With cold and disillusioned eyes, used to finding cracks in public idols, they looked for flaws in you. To their amazement, they found none. They all love you. They wrote of you with freedom from reservation that I have not seen equalled in my time, and that, sir, is a tribute you may prize as coming from the hard-boiled, whose very business it is to be dispassionate and analytical.

An Accurate Record

"They wrote for us some 150,000 words. It is the complete and accurate record, in chronological order, of your flight and of the stirring days that have followed. We have reproduced these dispatches, just as they were collected by telegraph and telephone and radio and cable, just as they were sent to 600 newspapers here and abroad and have bound them into a volume which we ask the honor to present to you. We believe it to be the most complete, convenient and accurate record you could have of the wonder month of your life. We give it to you out of gratitude to the maker of "The Perfect News Story."

WHEAT AHEAD OF LAST YEAR

Electra Reports Deliveries Earlier Than 1926

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, June 17.—W. R. Andrews of the Farmers Elevator company reports that 111 loads of wheat had been brought to the Farmers Elevator company up to June 11. Mr. Andrew said that the first load received last year was on June 11. The early crop is attributed to the dry weather. Last year's yield was averaged at 18 bushels to the acre and this year's estimate has been placed at six, which is an abnormally low crop. However, the price of wheat is better than last year and despairing reports from other sections is holding the price up.

Extension For Power Lines to Wellington

GRAIN THEFTS BRING ARREST

Two Men Held at Vernon By Sheriff

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, June 17.—Harvesting of wheat has evidently developed a new kind of thief in this section, according to reports of oats being missed almost daily by farmers north of Vernon. Caught, according to officers, with a trailer almost full of oats Wednesday night on the highway north of Vernon, Hubert Welch and Carlton Danley were arrested by Deputy Sheriff Garland Elliott of Fargo, after a chase of about three miles.

The two men were lodged in jail and charged with theft of the oats. Both men confessed and Welch pleaded guilty. He was fined $10 and given a sentence of 60 days in jail by Judge J. V. Townsend in county court.

The car with the trailer was driven through the oat fields and oats which were recently cut and left in shocks to dry were loaded on the trailer, it was said. The work was reported to have been done at night while nobody was working in the fields.

Welch and Danley had loaded their trailer Wednesday night and were hauling the grain down the highway when seen by the deputy sheriff, they said. The chase and arrests followed.

AFTER THE HONEYMOON

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Build for Future In Making Your Readjustments

By Beatrice Fairfax.
An Authority on the Problems of Love and Marriage.

HOW short and sweet the day seems in which we are supremely happy. But the loveliest holiday must come to a close.

The enchanted period of the honeymoon flies by for the Newlyweds, and all too soon He and She find themselves homeward bound.

It is a little hard to get down to work-a-day tasks and a business-like attitude even after an ordinary vacation. How doubly disappointing to come down from the clouds after a sojourn in Honeymoon Castle.

Finally, they reach home. He returns to work. She begins her new duties as housekeeper and home-maker. The fun of arranging wedding gifts and the contents of the Hope Chest in their own home-nest may keep things at a high pitch of interest and excitement for a while.

But about this time—about the second month after the wedding—it is a good idea for a young wife to check up—take an inventory as it were of the progress of her marriage.

To keep on being happy is of course all-important. But happiness is not a matter of luck—it doesn't just happen.

Mary may well ask herself: "Am I as happy as I expected to be? Is Dick as interested as he was? If not, why not? Am I to blame?"

Necessarily, there is less time for thrills and love-making with Dick running for the 8:15 every morning and returning tired at night. But Mary had known that would be inevitable.

Since Mary and Dick made a sensible choice of life partners, Mary's self questioning is in the main satisfactory.

Mary knew little about cooking, and less about money values when she married. For some strange reason, these practical branches of learning are not included in the average girl's education. But with Dick's co-operation she soon began to master the budget system. The two found it fun to see how far they could make dollars go without sacrificing comfort.

All the Summer after their marriage, Dick took care to eat a substantial lunch downtown and got Mary to come down and share it whenever she could. For Mary's home-cooked dinners were most uncertain. But despite burned biscuits and fingers, leathery steak watery vegetables, slowly, surely Mary learned to cook well.

Soon the two became enthralled by the idea of buying a home of their own. Because they did not make the mistake of undertaking too much at first, they were able to put the idea over. They bought a lot in an unfashionable but pleasant suburb and paid for it in easy instalments. Now they are planning to build a tiny four-room bungalow on their own land—also a garage. When that is paid for, they may have an additional room or two.

Married happiness thrives among young married couples who are honestly striving for real home life. It is wise to plan from the first to make slow but sure strides toward that goal which adds so much to the stability and standing of marriage—a home of your own.

As they pore over plans and blue prints, Dick and Mary in imagination can see that home now, just as it will be, complete with its trim lawn and hedge, roses, big screened-in porch and hospitable fireplace. What a wonderful place it will be for Baby!

To make a success of marriage, begin right from the first by giving your husband a square deal. Make him comfortable in his own way, not yours, at home. Make him proud of you. Keep pretty, attractive, companionable. Fulfil your part of the bargain with tact and good humor. Appreciate all he does for you and show that appreciation. Then you can reasonably hope for his devotion and much but not all of his spare time. Of course he has hobbies in which you do not share—his lodge, or fishing or baseball.

Do not ask him to give up these hobbies. If you make yourself sufficiently attractive and agreeable, once his first enthusiasm for his pet hobby is satisfied, you will attract him more than anything else.

The woman who is subject to the blues and cannot control her "temperament" is a harmless wet blanket. Go for a short, brisk walk every day, read good books in your leisure time, seek cheery companionship or better still, adopt some hobby, study or avocation. But keep cheery and interested and don't pity yourself. Get your husband's point of view—sympathize and understand.

PRECIOUS GIFTS

Love That Must Be Bribed Is Not Worth Having

Drawn by Dorothy Flack

HE BRINGS her the most precious gift life has to offer—the tender, lasting devotion of his heart. And if she is a wise girl, she knows that she is indeed rich to possess it. She will ask nothing more of the world.

But if she is only worldly wise—if she reckons her wealth in material things—and has nothing of the true, deep wisdom of the real woman—she will ask for more. And she will get infinitely less.

Oh—she may have diamond bracelets to deck her arms and emeralds and rubies for her grasping fingers, and pearls to wind about her white throat. But sooner or later, he will realize that affection which must be bribed is not worth having and then she will lose the most precious gift of all

She will be poor, indeed, alone with her sparkling gifts. For love will have gone from her life. And he will never return until she learns to welcome him for his own sake, for the spiritual gifts he alone can bring her. Cupid is wise. He knows when his welcome is real. And he will not linger where he is not wanted for himself alone.

Forced 'Good Time' Indication of Inner Unrest

By Lucy Lowell.

"WHAT," a friend writes to ask, "is happiness? What is a good time?

"What I wish to know," she goes on, "Is whether I am different from every one, and, if so, what I ought to do about it."

LUCY LOWELL

She is a young married woman, she explains, with a lovable husband and a set of friends most of whom are successful young married folk like themselves.

And every now and again they "step out," as she describes it. They doll up and visit Broadway; take in a night club perhaps and have a rarebit and a few dances—even a cocktail on occasion.

"And they all feel they're having a gorgeous time," she informs me, "And of course I try to act as if I thought so, too, but I don't. It seems sort of forced, as if we all were working so hard for a bit of gayety.

"I think I ought not feel so, and I'm trying to overcome it but making no progress. Do you believe, Miss Lowell, I shouldn't go on these parties—they don't happen often, anyway—or is there something wrong with me I should change?"

As far as I can see, there is nothing wrong with this young woman, and somehow I hope she will change neither herself nor her viewpoint.

She strikes me as a wholesome person with a true, sure understanding of values, and that is a thing all too rare in this age of jazz and false merry-making.

For it is false and forced. Watch those who sit about you—four-fifths of them at least—in any Broadway resort where there is too much rich food, too much hilarious dancing and too many cocktails.

They laugh a great deal—yes. But does their laughter ring true? Isn't it rather as if they laugh because they believe it the thing to do?

Real happiness never is a thing that can be made to order. It comes from an orderly, peaceful habit of mind and from sweetness of heart. And these are dependent upon genuineness.

Go to the night clubs if you wish, but take them in as an experiment. Look upon them as you would upon a play; a portrayal of a side of life which you would not necessarily care to have for your own.

Laugh at them, but do not be dazzled by the lights. And, remember, happiness is within you, and no outside scenes or circumstances can take it from you, if it is truly yours.

Working Girl Usually Expects to Marry

By Chas. A. L. Reed, M. D.,
Former President of the American Medical Association.

THERE is one most important psychological factor, says Bevington, that deeply colors the factory girl's whole attitude to life and which makes her mentality totally different from that of her male colleague. This is, that the work claims her only for a time. The man looks on his work as a life-long condition, a permanent background for his marriage, fatherhood and other forms of self-development. Practically every woman, however, has at the back of her mind marriage and release from wage-earning. This is largely why she is so much more content with a routine or repetition job than a man. Her ambitions are not in the work but beyond it. So it doesn't matter so much.

This attitude is a fundamental biological one. It is doubtful whether any woman, however she despises marriage, does more than repress it. It must prejudice the opportunities of the minority who do not marry.

If the tendency to exclude married women from factory work continues it is doubtful whether the attitude can be changed. Even if she stays on for a time after she marries, a woman knows she has got to leave work eventually to look after children.

This factor also furnishes one of the chief reasons why women do not readily form or join trade unions. Whereas a man's span of work is forty or fifty years, a woman's is only eight or ten, and for such a short time it does not matter much. Add to this the biological handicap which inclines her to accept passively what a male employer offers her and the lack of any solid tradition of organization and you see why women are comparatively uninterested in industrial combination.

Of course, this lack of ambition reacts badly on the bargaining power of men workers. Employers, finding women so much less trouble to deal with, are tending to design new machines which women can work and which will dispense with men and this development is alarming in many ways.

An offset to the economy of the woman worker is, however, her greater irregularity of attendance. She has herself more illness than her brother and more calls are made on her by her family to nurse serious illness among them and for various other reasons.

Compared with domestic service, factory employment has advantages and drawbacks as a preparation for marriage and motherhood. The factory girl has a wider horizon; she is more alive to the world around her; she has much better chances of choosing a suitable mate and has acquired a sounder sense of the value of money.

On the other hand, her sister in domestic service is more adaptable to circumstance, can run a house better and knows more about bringing up children. Should neither marry, the domestic probably remains the more normal of the two, as she often finds an outlet for her affections in the family whom she serves.

The migration of large numbers of women from their age-long occupations in the home to employment in factories is one of the most hazardous developments of modern civilization; an adventure of which it is impossible to foresee the end.

Our Rhyming OPTIMIST

—By Aline Michaelis—

WE work, it is true, for the whole year's length and find joy in the tasks at hand, in the zest of our labor we spend our strength, towns are builded and rivers spanned. We are happy all day in the things we do, be it effort of brawn or brain; it is only when all of man's toil is through that high hopes he has cherished wane. And surpassing all joy which our wage may bring is the joy of the thing we build, in the urge of creation our pulses sing and our beings are stirred and thrilled. But only for love can we do our best, and not for the price we earn, nor yet for the rapture that stirs the breast when the fires of creation burn. It is only for love we can labor on, by its measureless strength possessed, it is only for love that the great lights dawn and that all of us do our best!

Folly's Daughter

A Thrilling New Mystery of New York Night Life

By ANN LISLE

Jill Can't Find Work

JILL found it impossible to get work in New York in mid-June. She had no training and only one gift beside her beauty. Several milliners suggested that she would do well to try the wholesale houses, as a model was generally "in season." One gave her a letter to a photographer who might use her for photographic work. But Folly made a terrible scene when Jill suggested posing.

ANN LISLE

"That is no job for your mother's daughter!"

"It's work."

"You can't afford to do that kind of work. You can't go and flaunt your face in public."

"Why not? It's a good face, isn't it?"

"Don't be pert. You simply can't afford to be seen by—the wrong people."

"But, Folly, we've got to eat, haven't we?"

"But, Jill, we always have eaten, haven't we? I'm telling you that as soon as Mr. Kerby finds the right thing he'll put me on. I'm going to have a good part"——

"Why can you be seen in public if I can't?" Jill asked innocently.

Folly glared. Then she sighed. "Because, my dear, the years have passed, and I am forgotten. I have—aged." She wiped a furtive tear from her eyes, and then added simply: "There is something that must be kept hidden, Jill. If the wrong people see you, they'll guess. And then they'll come and spoil things for me—and for you, too. My face doesn't tell the story any more. You saw how Madame Scarlatti was affected by one glimpse of you. . . . She's not the only one. If you go into the movies or the theatre or start modeling for a photographer, and a lot of people see you, the wrong ones may find out"——

"Find out what?" the girl broke in eagerly.

Folly was stern. "Must we go all over this again? Your mother's secret is safe with me. I have kept it for fifteen years. I intend to go on keeping it. It is what she wished. It was what I—promised."

"You promised my mother you wouldn't let me know who I am—that you'd keep me hidden?" Jill asked. "She wanted me to be lonely and unhappy and not have any friends and to be sensitive and worry about who I am? Oh—Folly, that's not so. My heart tells me it couldn't be so. My mother would have wanted me to be happy——"

"Your mother—would not want you to ruin your whole chance by being silly and headstrong and stubborn." Folly told her carefully. "Your mother—would want me to decide. I am not going over this with you any more, Jill. I'm going to get the $50 from Mr. Kerby tonight....Or maybe next week. I don't want to spoil my chances by pushing things too hard or hurrying him too much or making a nuisance of myself. Things in the theatre move slowly."

"You'll give it to me. You'll positively give it to me?" Jilly asked.

"I told you I would," Folly said wearily. "Now I'm going out to dine with Mr. Kerby. And if you don't want to make me old and gray and miserable and nervous you'll not mention the $50 or the movies, or the stage, or posing again. And—I'd like it better if you didn't harrow me with conversations about your mother. She will never claim you, Jill. I've told you she's out of your life forever. But you must remember that you—owe her something—as much perhaps as you owe me."

Folly smiled inscrutably and went on her way. It didn't occur to Jill that any one as young and as giddy and as hard as Folly could be her dream-mother. She was sure that her "dead" mother had been some lovely lady—like Vivian, "Madame Scarlatti" Folly had called her. Jill felt with sudden, tragic young wisdom that her mother had never had a right to bring her into the world—that she didn't wear her father's name—that her coming had wrecked her mother's life.

"A love child," she told herself dreamily. "That's what I was—a love child."

Jill drifted into one of the dreams with which she filled her lonely evenings. Mostly now they were of a handsome gray-haired man who had a wonderful smile and whose eyes said something to her that she longed to have spoken in words. She remembered his kiss—the only kiss a man had ever given her. She recalled the thrilling strength of his arms. She longed for him, for love, with a passionate abandon she did not fathom or understand. And she had no idea that all the wayward, headlong forces that had brought her mother and her father together were fused in her own eager, tempestuous, vital nature.

She had no idea what a menace she was to herself. She didn't even know what was impelling her when she went to the telephone and called the Hotel Shannon and asked gently:

"May I speak to Mr. MacNeil Shannon. Just tell him it's Jill, please."

Then she waited breathlessly for the sound of his voice.

When Manners Are Correct

—By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman.—

The New Home.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

My sister-in-law is about to move into a beautiful new home. I cannot afford to give her anything, but would like to write her a nice letter and wish them lots of happiness. So I am writing to you to ask you if you will please tell me just what to write them. She is my husband's sister and I would like to say just the right thing. A READER.

THIS is the kind of letter that I especially love to have, for it shows such a sure social sense. So many people strive to give gifts in a case like this, because they will not see clearly enough to admit that they cannot afford to give gifts. But you have the fine and sensitive taste to see that a letter, expressing the fact that you wish them happiness in their home, is a gift in itself. Bless you for that discrimination—keep that fine spirit always, dear friend, for the spirit in your happiness-wish is a real contribution to that home.

Your letter might say something like this:

Dearest Mary and John:

Thoughts of you two dear people and of the new home are with us most vividly these days, and we speak of you so often and are so delighted that your dreams of the new house are now consummated. Bob and I should both like to send you precious gifts for the new house—a beautiful lamp to glow in your rooms or a lovely piece of silver to tell you of our devotion every time you use it, or some wondrous picture—but at present we can send only our deep and real affection for you both and our deep and real wishes that with you always in your new home will be the glorious happiness that you both so richly have and deserve.

Dearest love from us both to you both—and to Number 438 East avenue.

Most affectionately yours,

ANNE.

A Rabbi On Prison Board

RABBI HENRY COHEN of Galveston is a member of the prison board by appointment of the governor. He is perhaps the best known Rabbi in the commonwealth of Texas, noted for research and welfare work and as a student of penology. There are nine members of this rison board. They are non-salaried. They will name a warden. He will be given a free hand. He will be paid a salary of $8000 a year. He will be subject to removal by the board for cause and that includes inefficiency.

A warden given a free hand should be able to accomplish many reforms. He should be able to take the penitentiary system out of politics. He should be able to place it at least near a paying basis. John Sharpe is the brilliant editor of the Georgetown Sun. In his review of legislative proceedings, he tells the readers of his newspaper that defeat of the two major bills was merely a difference of opinion—the governor had one opinion and the lawmakers had an opinion or viewpoint that caused the failure of the bills to be enacted into laws.

The facts are the civil service bill ran the gauntlet of its enemies in the house and it was sent to the senate. There it died on the calendar for the reason that it required four-fifths of the senate membership to call it up. From the beginning of statehood to this hour the spoils system has ruled in Texas. Naturally the spoils system has many champions. In September the bill will be given another airing. It will pass the house. It may pass the senate. This for the future.

As for the prison bill, the Satterwhite measure received the endorsement of the house and was sent to the senate. There it died. There the administration bill died. It was impossible to get decisive action on the measures. It was late in the day and the senate rules are rocked ribbed and steel rivited. There is a difference of opinion between the governor and the backers of the Satterwhite plan.

Governor Moody insisted that the new prison board should be clothed with authority (given plenary powers) to sell the prison farms, relocate the prison and utilize the labor of the convicts for manufacturing the goods and wares needed in the eleemosynary and other institutions of the state. Their recommendations to go to the governor for final approval. He did not believe in tying the hands of the commissioners. He would have them survey the field, the conditions and the needs of the people as well as the convicts in order that a new system might be evolved that would place the penitentiary on a self-supporting basis and lessen the cost to the taxpayers of Texas.

As for the Satterwhite plan, the author of the plan insists that in the future as in the past the convicts must be employed largely on prison farms; that it would be unwise to sell the farm in certain sections; that all prison manufacturing gestures in other years were dismal failures and that the nine prison commissioners should take hold and demonstrate just what can be done under the warden system with the commissioners as advisors.

Satterwhite is a pronounced opponent of relocation. He is rock-rooted in his opposition to the prison factory idea. He insists that the legislature and not the governor and the commission should have the last word on the sale of prison lands or relocation. This was the Ferguson plan. Ferguson was opposed to relocation. He was opposed to the sale of the prison farms. He was opposed to the prison manufacturing plan. Organized labor is opposed to prison run factories and prison made goods. Organized labor is protected by the immigration act. It is protected by the many labor laws of the commonwealth.

Texas is a cotton producing state. A vast army of Texas farmers are growers of cotton. They are forced into competition with the prison system of their state for on the prison farms convicts do the work and are real competitors of the army of law abiding citizens who furnish their own land, their own seed, their own mules, their own machinery, their own shelter places and their own food and clothing. In addition to all this, the farmer who has been depending in other years on seasonal labor from Mexico is threatened with the application of the quota provision of the immigration act.

A Texas congressman in largely responsible for the movement to close the ports on the Rio Grande against Mexican laborers crossing the river when they are needed in the cotton fields and on the ranches of the state. R. H. Baker is the head of the new commission. He would pay the convicts for their labor. All above the cost of their upkeep would be given to their wives or children or other dependents. Truth of the matter is, the poverty stricken dependents of a convict are the ones who suffer the most.

They are sentenced not only to degradation through no fault of their own but to poverty and squalor and ignorance and starvation would come to them were it not for the generous impulses and helping hands of the Samaritans of society. For 50 years prison management in Texas has been a costly failure. For many years prison farms have been a costly failure. There is an army of Texans who believe that the prison ox should be lifted out of the ditch, and they are hoping that some lifting will be done this fall when the second special session of the 40th will be called to the capitol to do some more grinding in a legislative sense.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK, June 17. (EFS)—Elliott White Springs, the author of "Nocturne Militaire," has a new specially designed airplane being built for him in Dayton. It will be ready in about 10 days. He is going out there to get it and bring it here and we are going to fly down to Richmond, Virginia, to visit James Branch Cabell, the author of "Jurgen."

Cabell has just finished the first draft of his new novel, "Something About Eve," which will be ready in the fall. His eyes have been troubling him; but they are improved. Springs has never met Cabell but has a great admiration for him and he asked me to take him down there and introduce him. Hence the airplane flight.

"I have a couple of tested parachutes," Springs explained to me over the phone today, "so you won't need to be nervous."

Springs is a writer of stories about the aviation service in the war, whose technical description of a combat flight are as exciting as Shakespearean blank verses and are perfectly clear even to anyone who knows nothing about airplanes. I had the pleasure of reading and disposing of to a magazine the first story Springs ever got paid for. I had not met him at the time, and was asked my opinion of the story by a friend of his to whom Springs had submitted the story for an opinion. I was enthusiastic about it upon first reading, and sent it to an editor with a note praising it. It was bought instanter and Springs has been writing and selling stories to the big magazines ever since.

It is a strange paradox that panhandling is unknown in the downtown financial district and that it is rifest on Broadway, the hangout of the hard-boiled. Although billions are loaned in Wall and Broad street on good collateral, the borrowing of a dollar, or five or ten dollars among bank clerks, brokers' clerks, and other employes of "The Street" is almost unknown. This is due to the code of "The Street." On Broadway the small personal "loans," most of which are never repaid, made between friends and acquaintances must run daily into the thousands of dollars.

Walter Winchell points out that the gunmen are the best behaved patrons of the night clubs. College boys and even respectable business men get squiffed and rowdy and invite and participate in fights as the result of trying to flirt with the other fellow's girl; but gunmen are quiet, sober and placating. When a drunk in a fighting mood wants to pick a fight with a gunman the gunman with Chesterfieldian courtesy dissuades the fellow from the notion.

It is also true that the gunmen are usually the best dressed men in a night club. They are manicured and pomaded and their dress clothes are made by exclusive tailors. The tale is told of a Park Avenue debutante who had imbibed a little too much champagne in a night club one night and was feeling unrestrained, who took a shine to a handsome looking fellow at another table. She demanded that her escort bring the man to their table and give her the privilege of dancing with him. This her escort refused to do. The girl then made an obvious attempt to flirt with the stranger. The stranger refused to notice her. It is in the gunman's code not to monkey with another fellow's girl.

Piqued, the girl deliberately left her own table and went to the table where the stranger was. The stranger sprang up in military fashion as she came up and bowed stiffly. She asked him for a dance. He excused himself gravely, saying he had to leave at once, and disappeared, handing his waiter a bill on his way out, without looking at the check.

The girl was miffed and angry at being turned down so coldly. A detective called her escort aside and told him that the man the girl had just spoken to was a notorious gunman, with a Sing Sing record, who was on parole. When this information was conveyed to the debutante she nearly fainted.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED:

The entrance of Amreica into the world war finds Phillip Wynne Tracy sufferings from the collapse of his first passionate love affair. Before this, he and Natlee Jones, who was the daughter of the Tracys' milkman, had had a childish engagement, which was objected to by both Mrs. Tracy and Mr. Jones.

Phillip becomes interested in Lyra Hilliard, an old friend of his mother's.

The whole affair, however, sinks into nothingness because war is declared.

Rod and Phil are the first to enlist. Notlee nearly breaks Rod's heart by ignoring him entirely at the depot, where she goes to see the boys off, so great is her anxiety to see Phil.

Phillip writes his mother and asks her to be good to Natlee. His mother replies by sending him a letter of introduction to Marta Tennis daughter of her old friend, who lives near the southern training camp, to which Phil is sent.

Here he meets a nameless girl, and on an impulse of pity Phil proposes marriage. The girl, for Phil's good, refuses, and he insists on giving her $1000 with which to start life anew.

Here the story further unfolds—

She realized that his kisses were different from the old childish ones

CHAPTER XXXIII

PHIL GOES A. W. O. L. TO MEET NATLEE

Anne Huntington Tracy took the wire she had received from her son to Major Aukland and asked him to translate it.

It seemed to her these days that Phil was almost a stranger to her. Certainly Phil had never addressed her before as in this telegram.

The major read the wire slowly. Being a man, he understood it thoroughly, but he did not know how to make Mrs. Tracy understand it. Phil was getting over being a spoiled child. He was getting what he needed—the discipline that the army was giving him.

Although he could not tell Mrs. Tracy, Major Aukland was sure from this wire that Phillip was finding himself.

"This message does not seem at all like Phil, Major," said Mrs. Tracy.

"Perhaps, my dear Anne, it's another side of him. If I were you I'd just leave him alone and let him work it all out for himself."

"But, Major, he seems unhappy."

"Of course he's unhappy. Every youth is unhappy when he wakes up and finds that this world is not made solely for his benefit. My advice to you, Anne, is to stay away from him for a while."

And this was why, although his mother was all the time premising herself she would go down to El Paso and Fort Bliss, she never seemed to find the time to do it.

Phil, who at first was somewhat hurt, grew to be rather thankful that she did not, for he felt they were growing apart. She still thought of him as a boy, but he knew that since he had come to Fort Bliss, if not before, he was a man.

Of course, he loved his mother dearly, but this old world was changing very rapidly and his mother did not seem to be keeping up with the procession.

Although Phil did not realize it, his experience with Gladys had exerted a far-reaching influence on his character. He seemed to be settling down, whether he would or not.

At first, he was much with Marta Tennis but she, like all other girls in America, got the craze and joined the "Y," and was soon sent to some station outside of El Paso.

She promised to write to him, but seemingly had forgotten him. It was then that he and Lieutenant Andrews had agreed to disagree.

Phillip could not be otherwise than a good soldier with the traditions of his family behind him, and when he had made up his mind that being in the army a good soldier was the thing to be, he settled down to regular drill and the monotony of army life with a will.

The life out of doors, the drilling and the plain, course food, although it was not palatable to either Rod or Phil, was making them both hard muscled nad healthy.

They liked to think of themselves as "hard boiled," and they swaggered a little. They both had learned, perhaps, to swear much oftener than when they first came down, and they paid little attention the niceties of life; but they had learned there was such a thing as hard work and discipline, something which Phillip Tracy, at least, had never known before in all his life.

Of course they complained to each other, whenever they got together, over the long time they were being kept at the training campus. For some unknown reason son they heard of others who had enlisted long after them having gone, while they lingered behind.

Natlee wrote long, newsy letters, either to Phil or Rod, each week, and both boys, one with unhappiness and the other with joy, noticed she seemed to treat them both alike.

They learned from one of these letters that Jerry Kenyon had at last substituted for one of the men at Mr. Jones' dairy, and that man was already on his way to France. This, for a while, had a rather depressing effect on Phil, who was growing very impatient as the months rolled by.

Even when he received his corporal's chevrons he was not overenthusiastic.

The word came for the regiment to leave, the day another bar was added to the two already on his sleeves and he started, presumably to New York to take the ship for France, in high spirit.

His mother, to whom he wired, he learned had been sent to Chicago from Washington, where they were having a great campaign in selling Liberty bonds.

Phil was not sure he would see her before he left.

His lip curled as he read her message, "My heart is breaking, Son, because I cannot leave to meet you when you arrive at Camp Merritt. I have to tell myself every hour of the day that I am a soldier, too. I love you, dear heart, Mother."

Natlee, as lovely as ever, however, met him at the Ritz the day he arrived at Camp Merritt.

"I'm going A. W. O. L." he had said gayly to Rod as soon as they had gotton to camp, "and I'll be at the Ritz, old chap. If you find the company is going to leave, you must get me there, for I don't want to be left behind."

"Don't do it, Wynne," pleaded Rod, "you can't risk court-martial now."

"Yes, I can. I can risk anything for one good time before I go abroad. How do we know we're ever coming back? I for one do not expect to, and you told me you felt the same. Come on with me, old man. Let's have one last good time together in little old New York before we go. I sent to Nonnie to send over my dinner clothes and you can send for yours. In 'civies' there will not be much danger from lurking M. P.'s. Come on, Rod, be a sport."

"No, Wynne, if you are going out in that reckless frame of mind I must be here to get you back in time."

"All right, Rod; so long."

Natlee, too, had braved her father's displeasure to be with Phillip.

After she had told him that under any circumstances she would go to New York to see Wynne, Aunt Julia came again to the rescue. She told her brother he ought to realize that Natlee was in love with Phil—that she had always been in love with him, and that unless he wanted to make her perfectly miserable for life, he should give his consent for her to marry Wynne.

"Anyway," she added, "I'm going to see that you don't let your prejudice ruin your daughter's life as you did mine. I'm going to take Natlee with me to New York and we'll stay at the Waldorf as long as Phillip Tracy is in town. She shall have her once chance, for she may never see her lover again.

With this, Mr. Jones had to be content, although he did say he was right, that he did not see where this war would take the girls as well as the boys.

Natlee very frankly gave herself into Phil's arms when she saw him, an as he kissed her eyes, her hair and her lips, she murmured:

"Oh, Wynee, you don't know how I've missed you. I was so afraid you would fall in love with that Marta Tennis you wrote about."

"Well, what about Jerome Kenyon, Nat? You practically told me your father thought you ought to marry him, and according to his notion be happy ever afterward."

"I didn't tell you what I thought about it, did I, Wynne?"

"No dear, and you must never think about anybody else but me, for whatever foolish things I have done, I never intended to marry anyone but you."

"Dear Natlee, don't let's think about being separated, and having to remember things. I want to think you're going to be with me all the rest of my life. I want to be happy. I'll go over to the hotel and outwit the M. P.'s. I'll even telephone to Rod. Maybe we could get him over here.

"I wonder if you know how lovely you've grown, darling," he said, when he again took her in his arms, when bathed and dressed in his dinner jacket he came to take her out for the evening.

"I'm perfectly satisfied, Wynne, if you think I'm lovely," she answered, sweetly.

"Aren't you going to wire your mother you're here" asked Natlee, as they were dancing at the Biltmore Cascades.

"She knew I was coming, but I think I'll telegraph her tonight that I've arrived."

"She'll be broken hearted if she doesn't get here before you leave, Wynne."

"Perhaps," answered Phil, who was still bitter that his mother was staying in Chicago where she and Major Aukland were engaged in selling Liberty bonds, instead of rushing immediately to be with him before he left for overseas.

"Anyway, I've got you here with me, Nat, and I'm not going to let anything stand in the way of having the time of my young life. I'll probably be old and gray before I have another.

They had wandered into a little anteroom and there, behind some palms, while the orchestra was playing, "It's a Long, Long Way to Tipperary," Phil's lips sought Natlee's.

Breathlessly she realized that his kisses were different from the old childish ones. These had in them the hot sting of passion, as well as the tenderness of love, and, alas, there seemed to be a fleeting touch of renunciation in them.

"Natlee, you do love me, do you not?"

Something was clutching his heart at the thought of leaving her. She was so sweet, and she was his. At that moment she seemed the only thing in all the world that was hit.

Her cheek lingered against his sleeve—her hand crept up to his face. "I loved you, Wynne, before I knew what it was — before I know enough words to speak it. I love you now, as, with your kisses on my lips, I sense its full meaning. I shall love you after—"

She stopped, and although she pressed a little closer to him, she asked. "We're having the time of our lives, aren't we, dear?"

"You betcha," he answered with his mouth close to hers. He did not dare say more.

MODISH MITZI — Homeward Bound — By JAY V. JAY

Mitzi and Polly are homeward bound. Trunks checked! Passports handy. But where did she put her steamship tickets? Lost? Well, at least forgotten. It does not, however, keep her attention from Polly's new two piece traveling dress with the round neck and the vestee effect. Mitzi herself is wearing a cape ensemble. The dress is of georgette—also with a vestee line. It's really sort of sad, leaving Paris—and the shops.

Polly had the ticket all the time! It doesn't matter exactly where She concealed it in her new pocketbook. Mitzi refuses to worry about it, anyway because the boat is in sight which is practically as good as seeing the statue of Liberty. After all, her cape is new, the upstanding collar is smart and the color is gray (the best color for fall.) After all what is there to worry about? Nothing. Nothing else really matters unless it might be the loss of her trunk.

Next Week—Sports Wear.

Girl Who Can Make Her Own Living Need Not Rush Into Unhappy Union

Learn How to Earn Good Money, Girls, and Insure Yourselves Against Boredom, Unhappy Marriages, the Fear of the Future and the Tragedy of Poverty.

Learn a trade, girls. It's the best insurance that you can possibly take out against misfortune.

Now, while you are young and your mind is plastic and it is easy for you to learn new things; now while your hands are supple, pick out the thing that you like to do and acquire such skill in doing it that you will be able to draw down a fat pay envelope. For good work always commands good pay, and the more expert you are the more you can earn.

Nothing else will do so much to secure your happiness as to be trained to some profession that you love, because you will find a never-ending joy and interest in your work. You will never be dull. You will never be bored. You will never find time dragging heavily on your hands. No day will be long enough for you to crowd into it all the things that you would like to do.

Look about you and you will see that the peevish, fretful, discontented, whining women are the idle women who have no interesting occupation with which to fill their empty days and empty heads. The cheerful, alert, contented women are the busy women. A congenial job beats all the beauty parlors in the world for keeping a woman young and good-looking.

You will never know any freedom until you learn how to support yourself. So long as you have to depend on any one else, no matter whether it is mother or father or husband or brother, for your food and clothes and a roof to cover you, you are a slave to another's authority and whims.

It's only when you can earn your own board and keep and stand alone on your own feet that you know what the word liberty means.

If you want the thrill that comes but once in a lifetime you will get it when you get your first pay envelope. The first kiss of love, the tremor of ecstasy of the bride at the altar, the fumbling of baby hands at your breast, they are all great and glorious moments in a woman's life, but they do not bring her the solid satisfaction that she feels when she realizes that she can make her own way in the world.

If you have a good trade you can make a career of marriage instead of a profession of it. It will not be necessary for you to marry for a meal ticket. If Mr. Right comes along, well and good. You can marry him and be happy ever after, but you do not have to take Mr. Wrong and live in misery because you must have some one to support you.

Old maidenhood used to be the most horrible fate that could befall a woman, because the girl who did not get a husband was not only an unwanted dependent upon her family, but she had no occupation save the most menial, no interests, no hopes, no ambitions, nothing to put pep into her days.

But marriage is merely the meringue of the lemon pie of life to the good business woman. It's an added sweetness to have love and a good husband and children but if she misses them she still has the substantials on which she can get along very well. She isn't left desolate and bankrupt. She has her work, her success, her never-failing interests, her ambitions and the luxuries her money buys her.

If you have a good trade you can eliminate fear, which is the skeleton that sits at every woman's table—the fear of what would happen to her if her husband should lose his job, if he should get sick, if he should die and she were left with a lot of little children to support.

Many a woman lies awake at night thinking how helpless she would be, wondering what she could do to make a dollar, realizing with black despair that she has no wares to sell in the marketplace. She remembers other middleaged women she has known who were left in the same dilemma, women who haunted business offices in which they found no work, who peddled bungling fancywork from door to door or took agencies for articles that nobody wanted to buy.

The wheel of fortune turns continuously. The rich woman of today may be the poor woman of tomorrow, but you will never have to dread becoming one of the sisterhood of women "who have seen better days" and who can only wring their hands in helpless anguish and wonder what they will do when they lose their fortunes. You will have the ability within yourself that nothing can take away, that breaking banks, drying up oil wells, panicky stock markets can affect and that will enable you to cope with Lady Luck.

Nothing will give you such a rating in matrimony as financial independence. If you marry a man who mistreats you he may blight your life, but he cannot make it a total loss, as he would if you were dependent upon him for your livlihood.

Many a wife endures a life that is purgatory on earth merely because the brute to whom she is united feeds and clothes her and her children, and they would starve if she left him.

But the woman who has a good trade and who can make a living for herself and her babies can simply put on her hat and walk out when conditions become intolerble. She does not have to undergo the humiliation of being cursed and beaten by a bully nor be insulted by the infidelities of a rounder.

So, girls, if you value your own business and your own well-being learn a trade.

Felt Bloated, Dreaded To Eat

Kentucky Man Tells How He Suffered from Indigestion. Took Black-Draught and Says He Was Relieved.

Paris, Ky.—Mr. C. M. Berry, who resides at 414 Washington Street, this city, recently gave the following account of his use of Black-Draught:

"For a long time, I suffered with headache and indigestion. I would feel such smothering in my chest after meals, and such a fullness, or bloating, until I dreaded to eat. And after eating, I would feel so dull and stupid, I did not feel like working.

"When I would get up in the morning, my eyes would burn, my mouth feel so dry, and I didn't feel hungry.

"I read of Black-Draught and thought it might help me. I took a few doses and was so relieved, I did not stop. I took Black-Draught till I felt much better, and felt that my system was cleansed. I am never without Black-Draught in the house now. I take it at intervals and avoid dull, tired feeling.

"I have taken Black-Draught off and on for about four years. I give it to my little girl, and can highly recommend it to others. I do not find it hard to take, and it acts quickly and well."

Thousands of other men and women keep a package or two of the old, well known Thedford's Black-Draught handy in the house, for the prevention and relief of many common ills arising from constipation and indigestion.

SALAD DRESSING

A delightful new salad dressing which is especially good with fruit salads is made as follows: Mix one-fourth cup of Hawaiian pineapple juice, one-fourth cup of orange juice, and juice of one-half lemon. Bring to a boil. Combine one-fourth cup sugar and one tablespoon flour and moisten with three tablespoons cold water, add one egg well beaten. Stir this mixture gradually into the hot fruit juice and cook until thickened. When cool, fold in one-half cup of whipped cream.

BAKED HAM MENU WINS

Appetizing and Nourishing Dinner Offered

SECOND PRIZE MENU, $2.50 AWARD.

Submitted by Mrs. Charles Greene, 1902 Pearl Street.

Baked Ham
Summer Squash and Onions
Candied Jams Celery
Rice Cornbread Lemon Jello Salad
Iced Tea
Flappers Delight Cookies

The dinner will cost about $2.25 for a family of five. I have chosen this menu because it includes fresh fruit, vegetables and milk to make it nourishing.

Baked Ham

Take a clise of ham about one and a half inches thick, mix 1 tsp. mustard, 2 Tblsps. brown sugar and rub this mixture over the ham. Place in a baking dish and cover with 3-4 of a cup of water in which you have put 1 tblsp. vinegar. cover and make slowly about 45 minutes. This has the flavor of Virginia spiced ham.

Summer Squash and Onion

2 medium sized squash diced
1 cupful minced white onions
4 level tblsp. butter
2 tsp. salt, level
1-4 tsp. pepper

Wash the squash and remove the seeds. When dried the squash should measure two quarts. Melt the butter in a stewing kettle, add the onions and cook the onions until a light brown color. Then add the squash, salt and pepper. Cover the kettle and allow the mixture to cook over a low flame for 10 minutes. Then continue cooking for 30 minutes, stirring frequently during this period to keep the squash from burning. Sprinkle the squash with paprika when ready to serve.

Lemon Jello Salad

One package lemon jello, 1 cup shredded cabbage, crisped in water before adding to cold lemon jello before it sets. serve with mayonnaise.

Rice Cornbread

1 1-2 cups cornmeal
1 tsp. salt
2 tsp. baking powder
1 1-2 cups cooked rice
2 eggs beaten light
2 cups buttermilk
2 tblsp. melted shortening
1 level tsp. soda added to buttermilk

Bake in shallow greased pan in hot oven.

Flappers Delight

Measure four cups fresh mashed peaches, cover with 2 cups sugar, let stand two hours; fold in 2 cups whipped cream and freeze. Garnish with cherries if desired.

NEW PUDDING

Another attractive and wholesome dessert is nesselrode pudding. Make a custard of three cupfuls of milk, one and one-half cupfuls of sugar, yolks of five eggs; cool, strain and add one-half teaspoonful salt, one pint of thin cream, one-fourth cupful of Hawaiian pineapple syrup and one and one-fourth cupfuls of chestnuts that have been shelled and cooked in boiling water until soft, then forced through a colander. Line a melon mold with a part of the mixture; to the remainder add one-half cupful of crushed Hawaiian pineapple, drained, one-quarter of a cupful of raisins and eight chestnuts broken into pieces and soaked several hours in syrup. Fill the mold, cover, pack in ice and salt for several hours. Serve with whipped, sweetened cream flavored with pineapple syrup.

When putting in the filling for surprise cup cakes, instead of cutting a piece out of the top of the cake, take a piece from the bottom. The top of the cake can be neatly frosted and the filling will be a real surprise.

SALADS HAVE FOOD VALUE

Now Considered One Of Most Important Dishes

At the present time the salad is considered one of the most important dishes of the meal. The material is usually not so high in calories, but this value may be made up by the dressing used. They are usually high in minerals and vitamins, and contain an abundance of roughage. There is nothing more tempting and refreshing than a nicely prepared salad. The different constitutents should be tender, cold and crisp. The market products may be rejuvenated by washing in cold water, draining and keeping them in a cold place or ice box.

Care should be taken in the arrangement of the material on the salad plate, so that it will look its best. The garnish should not extend beyond the edge of the plate. It is not the salad which is the most expensive that proves to be the most attractive.

Leftover fruits and vegetables arranged in an artistic way may rank highest in appearance. If leftover vegetables are used they are improved by marinating with French dressing and placing in a cold place for an hour or two. The term marinate simply means to add salt, pepper, oil and vinegar to a salad mixture, then allow it to stand until well seasoned. There are so many available garnishes, lettuce, parsley, celery leaves, shredded cabbage, diced carrots, watercress, radishes, olives, sprigs of mint, slices of orange or lemon, maraschino cherries, nasturtium leaves and many others which the housewife will find available.

Meringue for Individual Puddings. Drop meringues from a tablespoon into a shallow pan of water and brown for topping puddings served in dainty individual dishes too choice to be submitted to oven heat. When the meringues are browned, lift them carefully from the water with a perforated pancake turner, or similar utensil, and place on the pudding.

Kellogg's CORN FLAKES

AND CHANCES are that if you start cool . . . you will stay cool. For this reason Kellogg's Corn Flakes are increasingly popular throughout the Southwest as an ideal hot weather food. Folks delight in this world-popular flavor treat as an early morning dish. Served with cold milk or cream!

There is wake-up-appetite enjoyment in the very beauty of the golden-brown flakes heaped high in a bowl. There is lively refreshment in the rare, crackly crispness of the flakes---that stay crisp in milk or cream. And oh, such satisfying flavor! That wonderful taste that you find in Kellogg's Corn Flakes . . . the delicacy and deliciousness of real corn goodness, due entirely to the just-rightness of the toasting and flaking.

Because of the flavor, Kellogg's Corn Flakes are the world's favorite ready-to-eat cereal. They lead in popularity and demand. More folks like them than any other ready-to-eat cereal.

And they like them for other meals than breakfast! For instance, you couldn't ask for a finer luncheon dish in hot weather than these appetite-tempting flakes with fresh fruit or honey added. Easily digested, they entirely appease the appetite. They are an energy food.

Also much preferred as a dinner dessert, or between-meal repast. In hot weather, in addition to the delight of eating them, you will appreciate the ease of serving them---another way to keep cool!

KELLOGG COMPANY Southwestern Headquarters Dallas, Texas

Crackly-crisp, oven-fresh always. The flavor in Kellogg's Corn Flakes is sealed in! . . . in the patented innerseal waxtite bag. An exclusive Kellogg feature. Keeps the flakes fresh and crisp, before and after opening.

In addition to Kellogg's Corn Flakes, there are: Kellogg's Pep, a delicious whole-wheat food, including the bran; All-Bran, a 100% bran food, 100% helpful in relieving constipation; New Oata, the first improvement in oats in five years, and Kellogg's Krumbles, a whole-wheat, ready-to-eat food. All are made by Kellogg in Battle Creek, Michigan.

New and Tempting Menus Win Prizes In Record News Dinner Contest

The Sunday dinner menu sumbitted by Mrs. Holman Cook, 1414 Polk street, awarded first prize in The Record News Menu contest on account of the timeliness of the foods utilized, balanced food values and the appetizing appearance such a dinner would make. All foods called for in the various recipes may be obtained on the local markets just now, and it is hoped that "The City of Faith" brand of potatoes, home-grown, will be used where possible by housewives in its preparation.

The second prize of $2.50 goes to Mrs. Charles Greene, 1902 Pearl street. Mrs. Greene also uses several vegetables, and states that her argument for the menu is that these vegetables, the fresh fruit and sweet milk are especially nourishing. And the baked ham sounds as though it would have the flavoring of real 'Virginia cured,' with possibly a better taste in Texas.

The squash and onion dish should be a very 'healthy' preparation due to the food value in each vegetable. Food experts continually advise housewives to prepare more onion dishes, which only seems possible when the odor is successfully sublimated in this case.

Mrs. D. Sealy, 1704 Britain street, will receive $1.00 for the printing of her menu which seemed particularly seasonable at this time of the year. Meat loaf is a favorite dish in the summer, especially when served cold, and the vegetables complete a well balanced menu.

It grows increasingly difficult for the Menu Editor to choose the menus that will offer readers the most information and suggestion in the preparation of Sunday dinners. Interest in the contest grows with each week, as evidenced from the number of replies received, and each contributor can be assured of personal attention given to each letter.

Menus received Thursday at 12 o'clock will be considered for next week's prizes.

SONGS of a HOUSEWIFE

By Marjorie K. Rawlings

CAN-FED HUSBANDS

Dear Mrs. Rawlings: Have you a word of sympathy for men whose wives come home late from parties or meetings and open a nice fresh can of salmon for dinner? GEORGE L. S.

Pity the can-fed husbands!
The lean ones and the pale!
What tragedy can equal
The hungry, unfed male?

How woe-begone their manner,
What pathos their mien,
As they devour with gusto
The salmon and the bean!

But with what satisfaction
They tell their martyrs' tales!
Ah, canned meals are the stock in trade
Of all the injured males.

I've wondered what the others
For martyrdom have used,
For even the hand-fed husbands
All yearn to seem abused!

PEST INVADES COTTON FIELDS

Oklahoma Territory Visited By Grasshoppers

Special to The Record News.

FREDERICK, June 17.—Hoping to completely stamp out the grasshopper menace that has proven disastrous for Tillman county cotton farmers in the past two years, L. H. Beaty, county farm agent, is directing the work of residents of northern and northeastern Tillman county in poisoning outbreaks of the hoppers.

The first invasion was reported from the Otter Creek community, in the north part of the county, and organized poisoning is taking care of the situation there. More poison bran mash is being sent to the northeastern Tillman district.

Within a month the fight will be in full swing, Beaty believes, but with proper co-operation he hopes to curb all destruction this year.

The condition of cotton is described by Beaty as fair. Washouts that effected thousands of dollars in damage to farm lands and growing crops in storms of the past three weeks, has belated the 1927 crop. More than 100 farms had to be replanted after two washouts.

Good stands are being secured, however, with the late product, the agent states.

FREDERICK, June 17. — In closing sessions of the Southwestern District Baptist Sunday school convention, here Wednesday, Hollis was selected as the convention city for 1928. W. A. Wilcoxen of Lawton, will be general superintendent of next year's meeting.

The district includes nine southwestern Oklahoma counties, and delegates attended the two-day session from more than 25 Baptist churches.

An interesting program of lectures was augmented by departmental instruction in all phases of Sunday school work.

TAKE BACK YOUR GOLD!

CLEVELAND, O.—"What could I do with $30,000?" asked George Schmidt, 60, inmate of Warrensville workhouse, when told of a legacy bequeathed to him by a deceased relative. "Home was never like this. Lemme alone." George does odd jobs of gardening and whatnot around the workhouse and is well-behaved, say the authorities. So the chances are that he will continue at the old stand.

ONE FOR GRIFF — Tom Zachary, once called a great lefthander by Clark Griffith and then passed on to St. Louis, gets a kick out of the shutout victory he turned in over the Senators recently. "And that isn't the end," says the southpaw who won two games for Washington in the world's series in 1924.

Johnny Mann may be the peer of Texas league shortstoppers, but they'll never find another utility player who can do Mann's shoes with the same happy fit Benton has. Whiskery Favorite In American Derby

CHICAGO, June 17. (AP)—The American derby, onceone of the turf classics of the nation, will be decided at Washington park tomorrow in the second year of its revival with eight star three-year-olds racing over the mile and a half route for a purse of $25,000.

The eight starters are: Harry Payne Whitney's Whiskery, winner of the $50,000 Kentucky derby; E. R. Bradley's Buddy Bauer; J. N. Camden's Hydromel; E. F. Cooney's Dolan; Hal Price Headley's Handymandy; W. S. Heaton's Bob Rogers; Black and White, owned by the Pueblon stable, and Aregal, carrying the colors of the Wild Rose farm.

As the race shapes up, the experts figure it to be a battle between Whiskery and Hydromel, with Wriskery the public choice. Buddy Bauer is ranked a contender and the others are given a chance, but past performances favor the trio named.

ARMOUR TAKES NATIONAL OPEN

Cocky Cooper Scores 79 Against 76

By Universal Service.

OAKMONT, Pa., June 17.—Tommy Armour, steady Scottish golfer, who came to America seven years ago, became national open champion of the United States today when he defeated Harry Cooper, of Los Angeles.

Armour had a medal score of 76 to 79 for Cooper in the 18-hole play-off.

The match was one of the closest and hardest fought play-offs ever furnished by the American golf classic. The two men were all square at the turn after the first nine holes.

Cooper, rediating the confidence which has made him such a popular figure during the play here, quickly went into a lead of two. The coast golfer seemed destined to make good his numerous boasts when he gained a stroke on the tenth and then calmly clicked off another on the eleventh.

Scot Calm Bird

The Scot, however, refused to be disturbed by the advantage and shooting calmly as if the thing were a practice match gained back a stroke at the thirteenth when he placed a three beside Cooper's four. The Scot quietly squared the match at the fifteenth when he went down in four, while Cooper required a five.

Cooper's chances went glimmering at the sixteenth. It is a short hole, and Cooper was true to the form he showed early in the match when he played it badly, going two down to the imperturbable Armour.

The flashy Los Angeles player broke under Armour's consistent plugging and took five on the sixteenth which is par three.

Cooper Rallies

Cooper, however, showed his old fighting spirit when he rallied to make a birdie three on the seventeenth. Armour, walked through the hole with a similar three and Cooper, despite his cocky grabbadacio seemed to realize that it was all over.

Armour dogged his confident opponent clinging to him during the early rounds of the match like a veritable "old man of the sea." Despite the fact that he lost the lead to the fighting Cooper at the third, fifth, seventh and ninth, after taking at the first, fourth, sixth and eighth, his natural steadiness gave him the stability under fire which Cooper lacked at the end, and which constituted the margin of

JACK MATLOCK

The veteran Jack Matlock, Los Angeles light heavy, returns to the Wichita Falls ring Thursday night in an eight-rounder with Sergeant Ray Willis of Fort Sill on the milk and ice fund fight card.

Matlock meets the rugged Willis in a preliminary bout to the Frankie Wine-Speedy Sparks 12-rounder. It will be the first time the hard-fighting and heavy-hitting Matlock has appeared below the main event marking in six years. But Matlock, former Wichita Falls favorite, is boxing for charity this time and has agreed that no prestige will be lost by fighting a prelim on such an all-star card as has been arranged for Thursday.

Pete Charley, Canadian welter champ, meets Pug Humphries of Wichita Falls, in a 10-rounder on the same bill.

MR. DEMPSEY YURPS A FEW

Former Champ May Not Box Sharkey For Tex

LOS ANGELES, June 17. (AP)—Jack Dempsey will never fight Gene Tunney for 15 per cent of the gate receipts.

That was the parting word from the former champion as he stepped aboard a Southern Pacific train bound for New York via New Orleans today.

Dempsey apparently in fine condition after months of work in a mountain training camp, and happy as a boy, said he was willing to meet Jack Sharkey next July for 37 1-2 or even 30 per cent of the receipts, but he would not take on that match if it carried the provision that he meet the champion on a 15 per cent basis.

There was a hint in the big fellow's line of talk that if he could not make better terms with Tex Rickard, New York promoter, he would look elsewhere for someone to stage the "comeback" bouts. He said he intended to confer with "several promoters" on the way east.

SPORT a la CARTE by ROY GROVE

Referee Evans, one of the best basket ball officials of the middle west, thinks the dribble will be restored to the game.

"The abolishment of this all-important point," says Evans, "is only intended to put basket ball on a sound foundation, as I believe.

"The idea is to impress on the players that there are other men on the floor besides themselves and that team work will go further in winning a hardwood game than individual effort.

"The dribble, as I have seen it worked out thousands and thousands of times, always reminds me of the fellow who goes speeding homeward and when the cop stops him and wants to know what all the hurry is about, the driver admits he doesn't know. He is going no place, but is in a hurry to get there.

"Players may maneuver all over the floor only to find the defense is a few steps ahead of him when the time comes to shoot or else he lets the ball go wide of the basket.

"There will be a vast improvement in basket ball within the next few years and when the dribble is restored to the game it will be with a definite idea in mind. The teams of the future will be based on the five-man defense and offense.

"The best basket ball teams of today are those that use the dribble very little. They use the play only in a pinch, when it is necessary to escape or move into a formation that will start the ball to rolling."

Battlers are born, and made, as has been said before in ringdom. Jerry Sachs, of Cleveland, will verify that. Jerry held an elimination tournament, endeavoring to find a lad who had the stuff but never a chance to trot it.

Jerry put on close to 215 bouts in one tournament, 79 of these were knockouts, and 12 of these kayos came in one evening.

They matched gloves in all weights and fought in all styles, some included a bit of wrestling.

"Only a few of the lads out of that group had anything that appeared to be natural fighting ability," said Jerry. "Some were so goofy that the bouts had to be stopped. There was a barrel of fun in the process, if nothing else."

Jerry goes into detail of then telling to one lad who had a whole bag full of trick punches. All of them were knockouts and mechanically named. He informed Jerry the blows were all patented and would sell the bunch of them or any part.

"The kid had what he called a pump handle punch," grinned Jerry in telling of him, "also an aeroplane punch, an ankle punch and a "Double Z" punch.

"The aeroplane punch started with the glove up shoulder high and his hand would spin like a plane propeller, then he would take off at the opponent's chin. This punch was accompanied with the buzzing of an aero motor, thereby mystifying the opponent.

"The 'Double Z' punrch started with both hands at the side. He would bring them up together and cross them with a 'Z' motion and in drawing back completed the doubleness and then to the surprise of the opposition he clamped both mitts on either side of the chin.

"No one in the tournament could fight a guy like that, so we had to eliminate him diplomatically, before he killed some one or himself.

"The only battler in the world is the natural fighter. By that I mean he must have an inclination towards fighting, which is rare, after that the business of keeping one up is the hardest work. Any lad is handicapped without that knack."

Nocona Ball Club Improves Rapidly

NOCONA, June 17.—The Nocona Roughnecks have been reorganized in the past two weeks and the results have been for the better. Since the change they have won four games and lost none. Last Sunday the Burkburnett Oilers came down to Nocona and suffered an 8-6 drubbing from the Roughnecks. This same team beat Nocona before the reorganization 21-2, so it is easy to see the good derived from the change.

A good baseball team is worth lots to a town and a good team is assured if the people want it. Just turn out to see the games that's all. It is easy to understand why the crowds have decreased in size, but now that several good players have been added and the management revised for the letter you can see a good game any time you come out. Several college stars have been added to the line-up since you saw the last game.

The Panhandle combination will be here for two games in a row. First game will be Saturday at 3:00 p. m. The new pitchers that Nocona has secured will be used in these games. The probable line-up for Saturday will be: Radford, shortstop; Crites, catcher; Stewart, pitcher; Stone firstbase; Covington, second base; Williams or Janeway, third base; Phillips, left field; Maddox, right field; Brockman, centerfield. Plenty of men are kept in reserve in case the above players fail to deliver. There are 16 to 20 men on the squad.

So far scouts for the Philadelphia, Chicago, Pittsburgh Nationals and Boston, Chicago and New York Americans have looked him over. Barrett is the property of the Memphis Southern association club, which farmed him out to Knoxville.

Hjertberg Quits Rice Track Job

Rothgeb Appointed Coach Of Owl Runners

HOUSTON, June 17. (AP)—Appointment of Claude Rothgeb, line coach at Texas A. & M. college, as track coach at Rice Institute here to succeed Coach Ernie Hjertberg, was announced Friday by Gaylor Johnson, manager of athletics at the institute.

Hjertberg, widely known as a trainer of Olympic stars, it was revealed, had returned his 1928 contract unsigned, because, it was understood, it stipulated no increase in salary. He is now in New York.

Rothgeb recently was procured by Rice Institute as line coach in football after his resignation from a similar position at Texas A. & M. college. Hjertberg resigned Thursday and formally withdrew from the institute coaching staff.

Hjertberg did not return to Houston at the close of the national collegiate A. A. tournament at Chicago last week. It was revealed that Hjertberg was tendered his 1928 contract over a month ago, at which time he asked for a month in which to sign. Returning his contract unsigned, Hjertberg officially departed from Rice.

During his two years as track mentor at Rice, Hjertberg developed several middle distance runners of merit, but the athletic authorities said he displayed no particular penchant for training dash men and field performers. As a coach of athletics in events ranging from the 440-yard run to the two mile event, Hjertberg is recognized as one of the best in the country, and the performanace of his students both here and abroad bear witness to this.

However, the college authorities believe a college track team must be well grounded in each number of the track curriculum. The newly appointed track coach, Rothgeb, is expected to supply this, for he is regarded as a capable mentor, ideally equipped for his post.

Rothgeb's contract with Rice becomes effective in September, when he will go to work wth Coach John H. Heisman on the Rice football team. Rothgeb is also assistant director of athletics at the institute.

Hjertberg who is in New York, is understood to be laying plans for the next track season.

RUNYON SAYS

From the City of Mexico Members of Boy Scouts But They Will Ride Back Senor Gayou Presents

By DAMON RUNYON.

My minister on Mexican matters, Senor Gayou, the young sports writer from below the Rio Grande, appeared before me recently towing two swarthy youngsters.

"These boys have just strolled into town from the City of Mexico," reported Senor Gayou. I noted an outcropping on his upper lip, like unto the first sprigs of early alfalfa in a Pueblo county field. It would seem that Senor Gayou is inciting a mustachachio.

The youngsters both wore khaki shirts, khaki riding pants, and high laced boots. They had a dusty, travel stained aspect. They were bareheaded, in the youthful fashion of the period, and they had thick, black hair that stood straight up and shiny, like patent leather.

"This one is Jose Ascober," said Senor Gayou, drawing the larger of the youngsters forward. "He is twenty years old. This other one is Gregorio Garcia. He is nineteen."

The lads bobbed their heads and said, in Spanish, that they were glad to see me. They were fine looking, upstanding kids, with sparkling black eyes, and nice manners, fully appreciative I would say, of the new youth of the sister republic.

You know—or perhaps you don't know—that something of a revolution has been going on among the youths of Mexico, and it is not the kind of revolution most common to that great country. The spirit of athletic developments and achievement is abroad in the land that the average American imagines as given over to the siesta and to manana.

The boys down yonder are doing things. They are advancing in every field of athletics in such a fashion that I confidently predict the day is not far distant when they will be stout rivals of their young neighbors to the north, which is the U. S. A. and of the youth of all the world.

It is no haphazard, accidental development that is going on in Mexico. It is a well organized proposition. The government itself is interested in the athletic development of its youth believing that this is one of the solutions of the spirit of unrest, and that it will make for a race stronger in mind and body in th efuture. I believe that this same idea is gradually dawning upon the governments of all the nations of the world.

The young Escober and the younger Garcia, as Senor Gayou explained to me, my Spanish being somewhat lame and halting, are Boy Scouts from the city of Mexico, representing what is known there as the Tribus. Exploridras Mexicana. They are of the Halcon group of that organization.

They set forth at midnight on January 1, from Mexico City, and walked New Yorkwards until late in May, covering some 3000 miles. They marched through seven different states in Mexico and 10 in the United States, and they have proof of their jaunt in big autograph albums bearing the signatures of the governors of the different states, mayors of many cities and other dignataries.

Those boys are of good families in the city of Mexico. Their walk was prompted largely by a spirit of adventure, the same spirit that carried the Spaniards of old over the world on voyages of discovery and conquest. I suppose Cortez and Cardenas, and Pizzaro, and all those old fellows who lugged the banners of Spain around the globe were but boys in their hearts.

If I were 19 or 20, I think I would see a walking journey to the city of Mexico as a most alluring adventure. Still, I might not have the nerve to undertake it. I do not recall any sorties of that large nature when I was the age of the young Escober and Garcia. To be sure, I attended a small war, but that was in a considerable company, not with one lone companion I see in the journey of Escober and Garcia much hope for the Mexicans of the years to come. If we could bring more young pilgrims like them to the United States ,we might wind up with a friendlier feeling between the two countries than now exists.

Old folks traveling around in foreign lands are not the proper emissaries of friendly relations. They are inclined to be too intolerant of customs. That goes for the American in Mexico and the Mexican in America. It is these impressionable happy-go-lucky young fellows such as Escober and Garcia who can spread the salve of friendship.

It seems to me it might be meet and proprer for our American Boy Scouts to return this unexpected call from the Boy Scouts of Mexico, per the manly young Escober and Garcia. I never saw two finer looking lads.

"Adios," I said to them by way of displaying my Spanish.

"Goodbye!" they replied, cordially, and in unslon.

PAYNE BLANKS BEARS, 6 TO 0

Jenkins Smites Home Run With Two On

The veteran Geo. W. Payne's rubber arm wagged a too mean a brand of this, that and the other for the San Antonio Bears Friday at Spudder park. The home guard mounted Big Jim Lindsey roughly, Wichita Falls copping the series final from San Antonio, 6 to 0.

Payne scattered eight safeties widely and failed to realize at any stage one little bit of inconvenience. Najo opened the melee with a bingle, but the menace was squelched in a hurry. Olle and Wirts singled in the second after two were away, but Lindsey retired with a foul to LaFayette. Phipps and Klein, the latter who relieved when Umpire Christian arose in indignation during the fifth and ordered Brown to the great outdors because of an uncertain display of asperity in discussion of a calle dstrike, bingled in the sixth after there was one out, but the menace meant nothing, for the next two hitsmen were pie for George. Hargrove's pinch double in the seventh with one down sugured nothing and Philbins leadoff in the eighth wasn't even a threat. Old Rubber-Arm just naturally correct all the way.

Win in First

Victory was scored in the first frame when LaFayette walked, went to second on Turgeon's bunt, legged it to third on Fitzgerald's single to left and scored on Lamb's sacrifice fly. We got another one on Swenson's bloody pop-up to short right, an infield out, passed ball and boot by Philbin on Payne's bounder in the second. The famous Tom Jenkins sewed her up in the third by blasting a large home run over the Security National bank sign just above the Houston-Fort Worth score board in center field wit hFitzgerald and Lamb riding the hassocks by virture of one-basers. It was Jenkins' ninth non-stop swat of the season. Another walk to LaFayette hooked up with singles by Fitzgerald and Lamb tagged us our last run in the fourth. Semiquietitude reigned the rest of the way.

Fancy Fielding

Lindsey went out in the seventh for a pinch swatsman and Sep Good, the portsider, fell heir to the chunking chores. Sep got by.

Our side fielded quiet fluently with the mighty Sugene Turgeon copping the defense palm. Peter Eugene got rosy first in the second when he came up with a dirty drive at the keystone and beat Leslie out of a safety at first with a sweet get-away throw. Pete took a gallop and balloon ascent in the third to stab a smoking smack by Philbin with one hand. The homely Santone keystoner stood up and moaned and cried the next five innings over that piece of highwayry. Benton came away nicely on several tough plays and LaFayette connived neatly with Payne in a spectacular bit of robbery on Phipps the opening frame.

FOTHERGILL ONE OF BALLDOM'S REAL FREAKS

By GEORGE MORIARTY.

Robert Roy Fothergill is, in a way, a baseball freak.

He is a freak in the way the baseball crowds view him. One look at Bob and you wonder how a man "that fat" can play ball.

But, Fothergill not alone can play ball but he can do a few things as well, or better, than anyone else.

One of the things he can do as well, or better, as anyone else, is hitting a ball.

Another thing that he can do as well, or better, as anyone else, is sliding hands first.

Still another thing is sliding after a batted ball.

Fothergill, you see, is in one or more ways a baseball phenomena.

He is fat. Even Bob will not deny that. He knows it. At times the weight of this man of medium height is 245 pounds. But that is between playing seasons. While the pennant race is on his weight bobs between 220 and 225.

He is inclined to take on weight. I presume if he would reduce his diet to one red apple a day he would still find himself unable to reduce. I, for one, know that he has tried hard enough to get his weight down. He has tried every means. He can get it down 10 pounds or so but it keeps bobbing right back. Ten pounds is only a trifle to a man who weighs around 250 when he is weighing top weight.

So Fothergill is destined to remain a fat man. And, being fat, or heavy, the marvel of it is how he can play ball the way he does.

Inside that big body is one of the finest competitive spirits I have ever encountered. It is the kind of spirit you read about in the thriller stories of athletic achievements.

Fothergill is never licked. His great aim in life is to be up and at them.

A man of his disposition and spirit is bound to succeed in sport. Spirit like that overcomes poundage that in another man would be an insurmountable handicap.

He loves to play. An illustration of this was furnished in the opening series of the season.

Detroit was scheduled to open in St. Louis. When the team arrived there a day in advance it was raining. When the team left St. Louis five days later it was still raining. It poured every day, but day after day Fothergill was out at the park at 10 o'clock in the morning, waiting for the gate to open so that he could get into the club house and pull on his uniform.

When a man has a passionate love for play such as Fothergill's nothing can keep him from succeeding.

He is one of the great right-handed batsman of the game, and it would surprise no player in the American league if Fothergill took the batting championship this year. He came near turning the trick last season, leading the league until well in September.

Fothergill got a flying start this season in batting. He will have occasional slumps, but he whales himself out of these slumps. He is too fine a competitor to be knocked down by a slump. They do not last long with Fothergill, these stretches of failure at bat.

What makes Fothergill a successful batter is that he steps into a ball. He is a natural hitter, has a good batting eye, is a student of pitching and he has supreme confidence, one of the most necessary assets of a good ball player. He fully believes that he is able to hit any pitcher who walks to the box. When he steps out to meet a ball he brings his bat well around and puts his massive shoulders behind the swing. He meets the ball out front and most of his drives are on a line, the kind of drives that spectators love to see. He loses many hits because of the terrific speed the ball carries to the outfielder, bringing it to the fielder before it strikes the turf. If more of his drives hit the infield territory he would get even more hits since it is almost impossible for an infielder to handle a ball that Fothergill hits squarely. Only a few days ago one of his grounders struck a second baseman's hands and caromed off into left-center for a two-base hit. "But, as I say, only a comparative few of his drives hit infield soil.

He is a good base runner and an aggressive one. Few players slide hands first, because of the danger of having the hands or arms spiked. But Fothergill almost always slides hands first and he does it a bit better than any other player who uses this method of going into a base. The infielders are not anxious to block his path for he hits the dirt with terrific impetus and when 225 pounds are hurled at you over the ground you do not care to get in the way of the shooting body if you happen to be infielder.

He has the same aggressiveness in fielding. Also, he has unlimited determination. Here he frequently throws himself across the turn in a mad effort to execute a putout and he frequently succeeds.

Considering his weight, Fothergill has marvelous speed. He is fast for any weight.

And baseball is not his only line of athletic endeavor. He played professional football and was a star on the Massillon team when that club had on its roster some of the best of the college graduate players. He played end and became famous for his speed in getting down under punts and his hard tackling. Also, he could block.

They say that nobody loves a fat man but this can not apply to baseball crowds. They love Bob Fothergill. He is one of the most popular players in the majors. He has color and he is a fighter. All the world loves a fighter whether he is fat or thin, tall or short.

NEW GUSHER IN PEARSON POOL

Seminole Field Also Gets Sensational Well

TULSA, June 17.—The Pearson switch pool of Pottawatomie county, has another gusher producer, drilled by the Mid-Continent Petroleum corporation, in its No. 1 Doyle, SW corner SE SW of 19-7-4, which when deepened 25 feet to a total depth of 3844 feet in the Hunton lime, increased from 500 barrels to 1820 barrels daily, which amount it made the 24 hours after deepening. Thursday morning it was flowing at the rate of 85 barrels per hour, at times going as high as 90 barrels per hour.

The well originally topped the Hunton at 3798 feet, and at that time was drilled at 3819 feet and Wednesday it was drilled the additional 25 feet. It is a direct north offset to the Pierce-Wrightsman discovery well, which is producing around 1200 barrels daily.

Seminole Field.

Late yesterday afternoon, Prairie Oil and Gas company brought in a gusher producer in the Earlsboro pool of the Seminole field, in its No. 1 Ruth Stidham, SW corner NE of 11-9-5, which its first hour flowed 180 barrels, from the Wilcox sand topped at 4297 feet, and penetrated to 4317 feet. This is at the rate of 4320 barrels per day.

In the same pool, Barnsdall Oil company also has a gusher producer, in 9-9-5, the well being No. 1 Gibson, SW corner NE of the section. It topped the Wilcox sand at 4310 feet, and at two feet in made 1089 barrels in 12 hours, and is now flowing 132 barrels per hour or 3168 barrels daily.

The new Roxana well in the Seright pool, No. 1 Strothers, NW corner SW NE of 3-9-6, still maintains a flow of 175 barrels per hour, keeping it in the gusher class. This well is producing from the Wilcox top at 4360 feet and drilled 12 feet in.

Production Up.

With the bringing in of new wells, and the application of air to additional producers, the Seminole field increased further the 24 hours ended Thursday morning, the total reaching 381,956 barrels, which is a new high peak. This is from 518 wells, and is 3306 barrels more than the previous day's production.

The Bowlegs pool increased 3913 barrels, its total also reaching a new high peak of 160,576 barrels; the Earlsboro field made 63,894 barrels; the Seminole city 116,355 barrels and the Searight, 41,121 barrels.

Indian Territory Illuminating Oil company's total production reached a new peak for the same period, when its 53 producers made 57,715 barrels. This does not include the company's royalty oil of which it has several thousand barrels.

Majors Buying Moore Acreage

Morton Strike Paves Way For Tradding

AMARILLO, June 17.—Just which way does the oil structure around the morton and company's discovery well in northeastern Moore county move? This is what Panhandle oil men are asking and several divergent views are discovered.

Geologists of the Gulf Production company figure a trend exists to the northwest of the Morton well, based on conclusions when scientific machines were used by that firm, and its block is around these tests. It also is buying protection to the northeast.

The Texas Company is starting to buy a strip of acreage from Dumas in a northwesterly direction, leading into Sherman and Dallam counties. It also plans to play this trend to Cimarron county, in the Oklahoma Panhandle.

Phillips Petroleum company is playing it to the northeast and all of its "buys" are in that direction. Two parcels it has gotten lately are the east half of section 118, block 3T, and the northeast of section 14, block M2. The latter is due north. Midwest Exploration company has been buying nearby.

Study Dolomite.

The dolomite found in the Morton well and also in the Marland Oil company's No. 1 Carver, due east in Hutchinson county, are being studied and may indicate the future trend of the structure. Geologists say the dolomite was too high in the Morton well, yielding only gas, and it was too low in the Marland well, showing only a small amount of oil. Between the two they figure should be the right sector for the pool. The drill will tell the story.

McMan Oil and Gas company of Tulsa, has bought several tracts in a "sight unseen" manner. It got an 80 acres in section 189, and another 80 in section 215, both in block 3T, and the east half of the northwest of section 399 in block 44.

Brokers Return.

The Morton strike in Moore county was the mecca for the return of the lease brokers and attaches of Amarillo's leading hostelries report that many of the lease brokers who left early in the year for San Angelo, Midland, Pecos and other places are back in Amarillo in mass. All seem to be well fortified with acreage in Moore county.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, June 17.(AP)—Early advances were followed by reactions in the cotton market under week-end realizing or liquidation and southern selling. October declined from 17.13 to 16.83, compared with 17.01 at the close yesterday, and closed at 16.87. The general market closed steady at net declines of 10 to 16 points.

The market opened steady at an advance of 6 to 8 points and after some irregularity, sold about 8 to 12 points above yesterday's closing quotations. Prospects for further showers or rains in the belt, seemed to increase the apprehension of grassy fields or insect damage, and numerous reports were received that boll weevil were becoming more numerous. Some of these reports also indicated that farmers were making little preparation for a fight against the insects, and for a time the market showed considerable firmness.

Demand, however, was less active than recently, while part of the southern selling here was supposed to be against cotton purchased from the remaining holdings of co-operatives. Selling of this character was regarded as having increased the supply of contracts to some extent and after the early buyers were satisfied, prices turned easier under realizing for over the week-end. At the high point of yesterday, October contracts showed a recovery of about 70 points from the low level of Tuesday, and it seemed this advance had left the market in rather an easier technical position. At any rate July sold off from 16.77 to 16.48 and December from 17.38 to 17.07, and the close was within two or three points of the lowest.

Two private crop reports were issued, one placing the condition of 76.5 and the decrease in acreage at 10.7 per cent, while the other estimated condition at 75 compared with 72.1 on May 22. These figures were commented upon as indicating an improvement in the condition of the crop and may possibly have increased the disposition to take profits on long cotton after the early advance.

Private cables reported Bombay selling absorbed by trade calling and covering in Liverpool, and that more optimistic reports from China were reaching the cotton goods markets.

Exports today 29,178, making 210,660,-213 so far this season. Port receipts 11,125. U. S. port stocks 1,387,287.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, June 17.—(AP)—Trading in today's cotton market was erratic and the general trend of prices was downward. An early advance of 15 points was overcome in the late trading on selling due to bearish private crop reports and in the early afternoon prices showed losses of 20 to 22 points from the highs. There was a moderate rally near the end with the close steady at net losses for the day of 12 to 19 points.

The market opened 2 to 6 points up, probably due to the relatively steady Liverpool cables. Prices continued to gain during the first hour on numerous reports of rapidly spreading boll weevil in the central and eastern sections. October traded up to 17.09 and December 17.30.

Later in the morning the market turned easier when two private crop reports were issued, one making the condition average 75.0 and the other 75.2. One of the authorities estimated the reduction in acreage at 10.7 per cent. The market continued to ease off during the late morning and up into the early afternoon. October dropped to 16.77 and December 17.06, 15 to 17 points below the previous close.

In the late trading week-end covering and liquidation set in and prices rallied slightly but closed at or near the lows.

Exports for the day totalled 34,078 bales and for the week 135,138.

Rails and Coal Issues Outstanding Items Friday In Trading On New York Stock Exchange

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, June 17.—Delaware & Hudson and Pittsburgh Coal were the outstanding features of a fairly steady trading market today as they were taken in hand by interests which have operated in them in the past and pushed over 5 points higher. Other Loree railroad stocks were prominent while the balance of the transportation list held to a rather narrow range. A few specialties in the industrial section responded to group operations by advances that attracted general notice and some profit-taking but the group as a whole simply backed and filled in a rather light turnover.

Call money renewed and held at 4 per cent throughout the day with some accommodations outside of egular channels at a fractional concession. The foreign exchange market was quiet and slightly irregular. Wheat slid off rather rapidly under realizing from the west while cotton options were heavy also.

Those traders who think that the effect of the mid-month fiscal operation is passed insofar as the call money rate is concerned are doomed to disappointment, from all indications. Leading bankers maintain that the government has not drawn against the checks received on income tax payments as yet and therefore the banks have the money of the depositors against which these checks have been given. This money is now available for call loans but when the treasury puts the checks through there will be experienced a sudden tightening in the money market, which normally would mean a higher call rate for two or three days. Such development, it is pointed out, is likely to be experienced early next week.

Some idea of the character of the general trading is to be gained from the fact that Transcontinental Oil was the most active stock of the day. In banks, brokerage offices, restaurants and in fact in every nook and corner of the street the "tip" on Transcontinental has been spread industriously. Everyone met tells of the price that it will go to and each tells of a different level but all—except those very few able to remember the numerous flurries of the stock in the past and the result thereof—are bullish.

It is very easy to find who buys the great amount of stock turned over, for all the ten share traders, and regulars in customers, rooms have the stock, or it would so seem from their conversation. None will say who is selling all the stock, however. Few traders will seel a stock short at such a price and the operator heretofore identified with the Transcontinental flurries from all accounts has nothing to do with this move.

Yellow Truck was pushed along early in the day in a manner to indicate that important short sellers had been cornered. However, as soon as short covering was completed the move flickered out, as there was insufficient new buying attracted by the momentary skyrocketing to keep the advance going. There was a report that General Motors will put $50,000,000 into expansion of Yellow activity. General Motors moved to a new high early in the day but also met with week-end profit-taking and lost its gain, closing fractionally lower for the day. The best buyers of General Motors for the last year, however, are more bullish than ever. There is confident expectation of a melon cutting in August.

Missouri, Kansas & Texas was another of the outstanding strong spots and influenced good demand for the other Loree rails. It was whispered that the Loree folks have been working night and day on their new southwest merger plan and will be ready to make announcement thereon in the not distant future. All the features objectionable to the commission, it is claimed, will be rectified so that there is reason to expect quick approval from that body when application for the consolidation is filed.

U. S. Realty jumped on sudden realization that the stock has been selling behind the rest of the market for some time when consideration is given to its strong asset position alone not to speak of its demonstrated earning power. Rubber recovered over 2 points largely on short covering as rumors of new financing continue in circulation.

American Brown Boveri preferred divident was omitted and the stock dropped 14 points while the common added another to its loss. Marine preferred was in demand once again due expectation of early announcement of recapitalization plans.

Shipping point markets of Texas on watermelons were weak and virtually no business was reported, the bulk of the movement rolling unsold. DUN'S REVIEW.

NEW YORK, June 17. (AP)—Dun's tomorrow will say:

It does not appear that the contraction of activity which normally occurs in most commercial lines at this period is especially marked now, and in certain quarters it is less conspicuous than that which was witnessed a year ago. Not all results equal the high levels attained in 1926, yet there are instances of gain and among these is the record of foreign trade for May. The many irregularities in the present situation, with some admittedly unfavorable aspects, are not surprising, in view of the extensiv ramifications of business. A spring season that has been notable for inclement weather has not brought any general depression, though obviously hurting crops and retail distribution, and even the flooding of a wide area along the Mississippi river, with heavy property damage and a curtailment of buying power, has not seriously weakened confidence.

Weekly bank clearings $9,987,116,000, an increase of 6.5 per cent, compared with last year.

Rev. E. H. McGaughey, pastor of the Floral Heights Presbyterian church, Friday announced his resignation as pastor of the church.

He will leave Monday for Emerson, Iowa, where he has accepted the pastorate of the Presbyterian church of that city. He will also attend the Omaha seminary. Rev. McGaughey has been pastor of the Floral Heights Presbyterian church for the past 18 months, and is well known for his civic and religious work here. He was offered the new post, with an opportunity of completing his seminary training, when a revival which he conducted recently near Emerson, brought him to the attention of the Iowa church.

A test of the qualities of the new city sewerage disposal plant was made Friday by engineers in charge of the construction work.

The tests were satisfactory and as a result it is anticipated that the plant will be turned over to the city for operation within the next few days.

The cost of construction of the plant totals $302,775. This amount includes the amount paid for the plant site and the construction of the building.

Community Sing-Songs Draw Good Attendance

Notwithstanding the rains and cool weather prevailing in Wichita Falls during the past few days attendance at the municipal community song meetings has been unusually large, C. C. Bunnenberg, superintendent of parks, said Friday.

There was an attendance of 300 at the sing-song held Thursday night at the Grant street playground, Mr. Bunnenberg said.

Wichita Falls Folks, Facts, Fancies

Charged with stealing a basket of eggs, Joaquin Vasquez pleaded guilty when arraigned Friday in the county court at law and was sentenced to serve five days in the county jail by Judge C. M. McFarland. John Humphrey, assistant county attorney, prosecuted the case.

Two unusually heavy fines were assessed by Judge W. L. Bass in corporation court Friday morning, the fines totalling $150. Both were on vagrancy charges, one man being fined $100 and another $50.

HOT STOVE; HOT DEPUTY.

SCRANTON, Pa.—Red hot mamas may be difficult to handle, but they're not in it with red hot stoves, according to A. J. Szczecl, deputy sheriff. It all started when Margaret Charney's father decided to give Europe the once over, and before leaving sold to one Anna Blasko one Queen Bengal kitchen range, complete with stove pipe. As soon as father was safely on board, Margaret invoked legal processes to repossess the goods in Anna's possession. Anna retaliated by filing a bond to prevent seizure; but the deputy was essentially a man of action, and the bond made no difference to him, nor the fact that when the truck arrived for it, the stove was red hot. So now the fat's in the fire, and all the deputy has to do is to restore the stove, still complete with stove pipe and fire, to the Blasko household.

"IN M YHAREM"

LONDON.—The law of averages is unheard of in Bali, West Africa, where one man has 98 wives and 460 other men in the town have no wives at all. Another man has 27 wives, while there are seven warriors with 10 mates each and 339 with two spouses.

Seeks Degree

An opportunity to complete his seminary work leading to the doctor's degree is afforded the Rev. E. F. McGaughey in his new post at Emerson, Iowa. The Rev. McGaughey will leave Monday for his new pastorate.

$60,000 Damage Suit Settled For $2500

Agreed judgment for $2500 in a damage suit filed by W. H. Huggins of Vernon, for $60,000 against W. P. Lincoln of Electra, was entered Friday in the 78th district court before Judge W. W. Cook.

The plaintiff filed suit setting out that he sustained serious injuries when he drove his car at night into a truck owned by the defendant, which Mr. Huggins alleged did not have a rear light attached. The collision occurred near Vernon.

The case was filed in the district court at Vernon but was transferred to Wichita county.

Home Demonstration Council Plans July Programs at Meet Today

The Wichita County Home Demonstration council will meet at the courthouse at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon to discuss club programs for the coming month. Miss Mamie Lee Hayden, district home demonstration agent, arrived in Wichita Falls Friday at noon, and will have charge of the meeting.

C. Hathaway, president, said. Work of the past month in salad making, frozen dessert preparation and instruction on diet will be reviewed and Miss Hayden will explain a complete program for July.

Miss Hayden will return to College Station following the meeting, she statedFriday.

Today { At the Theaters By Ruth Morrison

Majestic: Jack Mulhall in "See You in Jail," vaudeville attraction, comedy, Pathe News and Topics of the Day.

Olympic: Lois Wilson in "Broadway Nights," comedy and Fox News.

Mission: Ken Maynard in "Somewhere in Sonora," and chapter 6 of "Return of the Riddle Rider."

Gem: Ken Maynard in "The Unknown Cavalier," and comedy.

Garden: "Twin Six O'Brien," with Kit Carson; chapter 9 "Melting Millions," and comedy.

The smile that won't come off!

That used to be a popular saying. Jack Mulhall, handsome young leading artist in First National Pictures, has a smile that means what it says.

And it is friendly, humorous, sincere.

Those who witness "See You in Jail" at the Majestic theater this week will have to admit that Jack's smile is as refreshing as a day in spring. It won him his first job in pictures and he's never lost it.

It isn't sterotyped. It is genuine.

Alice Day, "pretty as a picture," plays opposite Jack in this Ray Rockett production which Joseph Henabery directed. She is charmingly cast and has the true comedy instinct.

"See You in Jail" tells the story of high finance in the least expected place—the jail tank. Also, there is romance and a million laughs.

SHOWS FOR NEGROES

Municipal free motion pictures for negroes will in the future be presented at the Washington school grounds instead of in Lincoln park, C. C. Bunnenberg, superintendent of parks, announced Friday. The pictures will be presented every Friday night at the Washington school grounds, Mr. Bunnenberg said.

AUTO STRIKES WICHITA BOY

At the Clinic hospital where the injured boy was taken in a Burris-Shepherd ambulance it was said that his condition was not serious. Frank Lynch is the son of Jack Lynch.

Constitutional Amendments Urged And Opposed Before Business Council

State constitutional amendments to be voted upon in August by Texas citizens were discussed from pro and anti angles Friday at the business council luncheon.

Bert King spoke in favor of the amendments and former State Senator Jonh D. Parnell against them.

Before the amendment talks were delivered James C. Mytinger addressed the council relative to the Wichita county road bond election to be held June 25. Mr. Mytinger requested the members of the council to sign pledges, which had been distributed, calling upon the pledges to work for favorable action by the voters on the bonds.

Better Officials.

Mr. King said that the constitutional amendment calling for a higher salary for the governor of the state and increasing the pay of legislators would result in having better qualified men representing the people in Austin.

Also stressing the necessity of having the amendment calling for a larger membership on the state supreme court, Mr. King said, that the present membership of three was incapable of passing on all judicial matters presented to it. The amendment calls for a membership of nine.

Mr. King said that the amendment calling for the abolishment in part of the fee system in Texas was an excellent one. He said that the amendment would have been better if the abolishment of fees in justice of the peace courts had been included in the measure.

The speaker pointed out that the United States Supreme court has held that a person can not be legally convicted in a court where the maintenance of the tribunal is dependent upon fees collected from those convicted.

Parnell Opposes.

In speaking against the adoption of the amendments, Mr. Parnell stated that if the proposed new sections to the state constitution were adopted that it would cost the citizens more money, which meant higher taxation.

Mr. Parnell cited the fact that approximately 40 per cent of the state's income was derived from the petroleum industry, indirectly and directly. He said that increased taxation would mean that large industries would have to bear the brunt of the increase and as a result manufacturers in other states would hesitate to enter Texas for business purposes.

Biggerstaff Refused New Trial of Case; Bond Posted For Appeal

Motion for a new trial for George Biggerstaff, convicted Monday and sentenced to five years for robbery by threats, was denied Friday by Judge P. A. Martin in the 89th district court. Biggerstaff was released on a $5000 bond to await the outcome of an appeal to the court of criminal appeals.

Biggerstaff was accused of obtaining money from P. P. Robertson, East Texas farmer, after threatening Robertson with a gun and to file a complaint with the federal authorities for alleged violation of the Mann act.

Robertson testified that Biggerstaff accused him of transporting Biggerstaff's wife from Oklahoma to Texas. A woman by the name of Alberta Hill was in a car with Robertson at the time of the alleged robbery, he testified.
